Westmount Rotary

You're a bum — or a hero says hockey's Red Storey

By TRACY S. LUDINGTON

Everybody hates the referee.

That was the theme of a light and amusing address delivered Wednesday noon to Westmount Rotary by Red Storey, famous hockey and football referee, who is noted for his open-handed attitude and cavalier manner on the podium.

With a well-placed selection of anecdotes to illustrate his point, he said that he had always managed to get a lot of fun out of his refereeing assignments, and believed he had retained the respect of his colleagues and the players on the various teams that played in the leagues in which he worked as arbiter.

One reason for some of the humorous situations that developed, he said, was the fact that he himself was somewhat hard of hearing. As a result he probably didn't catch ten percent of the epithets that were tossed his way.

He spoke of one occasion on which Butch Bouchard appeared to be taking him to task for a decision that sent the Canadian hockey player to the penalty box. As a matter of fact, he said, Butch actually said "Storey, I wouldn't want your job for all the money in the Forum."

"I am sure" said Storey, "the fans, the members of the two teams, and even the coaches on the benches thought Bouchard was chewing me out."

He referred to another incident in which a player was drenched with rye from a bottle held by a fan. Storey hadn't noticed the incident and the player skated up to him and reported it.

"I can't hear you," said Red. The player repeated his plight. Again Red told him that there was too much noise in the rink, and he couldn't catch the words.

"If you can't hear me," retorted the player in exasperation, "then smell me."

On another occasion, said Storey, Red Dutton was shouting something to him from the bench. "I can't hear you," replied Storey. "You can't hear me — and you can't see me," was the Dutton rejoinder.

He has been in tight situations, he admitted, and for a time was referee in a league in which Chicoutimi was entered, where things were so bad he had to be met by police at the entrance to the town in order to get him in, as well as escorting him on his way out of town.

He told, too, of a game in Chicago in which he ordered a fan ejected. The disgruntled and abusive customer stopped before allowing the police to lead him away, opened his coat to reveal a gun in a holster, and said to Storey: "Red, you'll never leave this building alive."

A referee, said Storey, may call a game flawlessly for 59 minutes, but if he makes a decision the fans don't like in the last minute, he is a bum for the whole game.

"And it's funny" he added, "on occasions like that, if a player happens to bump into you and knock you on your fanny — he's a hero."

He gets a lot of letters, he said, from people he doesn't know.

In fact in the fracas last year that brought about his resignation, he got a letter of commendation from a fan in New York who wrote: "Red, I've been booing you for so long I consider you a personal friend."

And he told, too, of an occasion when the vice-president of the fan club that supports the Rangers in New York came to him and urged him to accept a gift from the fan club. "We really don't hate you," said the man, "We boo you and all that, but we really think you deserve this presentation."

Red thanked him, took the gift and as soon as he had an opportunity opened the box.

Inside was a large cork — and a note reading "For the hole in your head."

37 protest increase

20% valuation hike to be ratified Monday

A 20 percent increase in the land valuation roll will be ratified by the Westmount City Council Monday evening, with the possible exception of some of the 37 residents who appealed the increase in writing.

At a meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, 18 people appeared to add to the cases as stated in letters to city hall, or to make further representation. The meeting which took place on an unusually hot and humid night, lasted for over two hours, following which the mayor, aldermen and city officials were closeted general committee until one a.m.

Assistant general manager Norman Dawe stated Wednesday that the council is now studying all representations, and will submit its decision at a further open council meeting Monday at 9 p.m., following which all residents who appealed the land valuation increase will be notified by letter.

Several of the persons who appeared before council Monday evening were not directly appealing the 20% land valuation increase.

Among these was a representative of the '4300' apartment building on Western avenue. He stated that, in expectation of what he had been told would be a 42% increase in school tax assessment the increased land valuation roll would put the total assessment for school tax purposes in the three and a half million dollar bracket.

The possible increase in the school tax assessment for Westmount was aimed at bringing assessments in this area on a par with those of Montreal he stated, as many older buildings are assessed at a lower rate than their present replacement cost.

He asked some consideration in the increase of land assessment by the City of Westmount because, he stated, 4300 Western avenue is a new building, and had been assessed at today's replacement costs.

Otherwise, he continued, the total tax bills on this property would be unbearable.

"We are not small-minded," the representative pointed out, "and would be able to absorb the 20% land valuation increase by the City of Westmount." He stated that a representative of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal had told him that the school tax assessment would increase by 42%, adding plans for a second apartment block on the Western avenue land have been shelved for the time being.

Alderman F. E. H. Gates pointed out that the school tax evaluation roll was not yet in, and that no amount had been fixed to date. The 4300 Building representative was advised to bring his case before the school board as the proper authorities against which to appeal any increase in school tax assessment.

Other residents present protested what appeared to be a discrepancy in the evaluation by city assessors of their houses with similar buildings in the area, again not bearing directly on the land valuation increase.

With regard to the general city business, approval was given to a request by the City of Montreal for permission to install a traffic light at the corner of St. Antoine street and Rose de Lima. Traffic lights will be installed on all four corners of this intersection, one of which is in Westmount.

Commitment was made of $2,100 to cover the cost of repairing curbs and sidewalks on Hillside avenue, in conjunction with the resurfacing of this street which will take place later in the year. Commitment was also made of $4,000 to cover the cost of traffic signals at Victoria and St. Catherine street, where that artery is currently being extended. Assistant city manager Norman Dawe stated that those lights facing the heaviest flow of traffic would have large 'highway size' lenses, similar to those now at the Glen intersection.

You can't win in city traffic housewife finds

Virtue isn't always its own reward when you're behind the wheel of an automobile.

Mrs. E. McL. Hague, 29, of 6402 Sherbrooke street west, while slowing down to allow a pedestrian to cross at the St. Catherine - Clarke avenue intersection, found herself involved in an accident with the car directly behind her.

Mrs. Hague told Westmount police that she was travelling west on St. Catherine street, close to the sidewalk in preparation for a right-hand turn onto Clarke avenue when she slowed down for a pedestrian. "I had almost stopped when my auto was struck in the rear, sending my car forward so that it nearly hit the pedestrian," she stated. Her passenger, Mrs. E. Begley, 6720 Sherbrooke street west, received a slight head bump, but resulting x-rays showed no injury.

Driver of the second vehicle, Gerard Piepenhagen, 33, of 5240 Cote St. Catherine road, maintained that on nearing Clarke avenue he noticed the traffic light at St. Catherine street and Hallowell avenue turn amber, and had started to slow down when the car preceding him stopped suddenly.

Ernest Hammond, 'Mr. Music'

Canadian Assets — Second of a Series

By FRANCES GOLTMAN

THERE ARE MANY PEOPLE known throughout Canada but in their city of residence are not shown enough recognition. Ernest Hammond, who retired this month after 25 years with RCA Victor deserves more than average identification with the momentous work he has accomplished through the past quarter century.

LIVING IN MONTREAL since 1935 how many people outside the field of music know about "Ernie" Hammond, who has devoted his whole life to music? In Toronto, where he settled first after arriving from abroad, Mr. Hammond studied singing seriously at the Royal Conservatory (then known as the Toronto Conservatory) and sang professionally for a few years. In his youth he was a boy soprano. Besides being a soloist Mr. Hammond was a Director of church choirs.

IN 1921 HE HAD the opportunity to get into the commercial field of music and joined a music publishing firm. For the next 14 years he travelled from coast to coast for sales promotion in this medium of the music business.

"ERNIE" HAMMOND, as he is affectionately known believes that "The music business should have musically educated people to serve the public." How true! After becoming associated with RCA Victor he organized short educational courses for the retail sales and he personally has conducted most of these courses which are held from Halifax to Vancouver.

TODAY, THROUGH Mr. Hammond's brain child, many of the record and music shops are staffed with competent people due to these important courses. They are making a sizable contribution to the 25 million dollars spent on records last year in Canada. Yes, 25 million sounds incredible but it is true. Places where records can be bought today number in the thousands and the impact of records in the world of music has been of great significance. Of the $26,000,000 spent by Canadians for the purchase of phonograph records last year, Mr. Hammond said that "70 per cent was spent on classical or semi-classical music and only 30 per cent on popular and rock'n roll music." This must come as a surprise to many readers!

I MET MR. HAMMOND in Calgary this summer at the Palliser Hotel. He had just arrived in this booming city after addressing the Canadian Library Association of Canada at their Convention in Edmonton. I was in Calgary for the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Associations Convention. We found a great deal to talk about since both of our lives are devoted to music. One very important thing that Mr. Hammond said was "The danger of taking music for granted because of the easy availability of records and other media must be avoided" and added "Parents should prescribe music in a family at an early age and participation in the home should be started as soon as a child is able to take first lessons." How right Mr. Hammond is!

Clubhouse spic and span for fall season opening

By MAURICE MARIASINE

The Unity Boys' Club of Westmount is starting a new season of program activities for the youth of Westmount and St. Henry.

Club members who have been away for the summer and have now returned will note the new paint job on the Clubhouse building and also the bright and shiny indoor atmosphere as they once again wend their way in to register for the forthcoming season.

The open-door policy which is so characteristic of all Boys' Clubs throughout the nation still prevails at Unity; as a matter of fact "the open-door policy" is the keynote of the entire function. Any boy or girl, from six years of age to sixteen, regardless of race, creed or color, is made welcome at the Club.

Unity's full-time staff composed of club Director Maurice Mariasine, Program Supervisor Robert Parker; Girls' Work Supervisor Crystal Cunningham and Sports Director John McDonough, on hand at all times to serve the needs of the boys and girls in the community.

The program planned for the new season will be varied and will suit the inclination of each and every individual member. Sports, handicrafts, group clubs, social activities and special events are on the program agenda for 1959-60.

The fall timetable is now in effect. The Unity Boys' Club opens at 3 p.m. daily Monday through Friday and on Saturday from 9.30 a.m. until noon.

He learned about cars in a Jap prison camp

Herman Koopmans, Canadair group leader in technical publications, whose hobby is designing and building racing cars, owes his talents chiefly to a three-year internment as a prisoner of war in Japanese prison camps. His childhood interest in sports cars was renewed when he was assigned to cut up hundreds of cars for scrap.

Born in Amsterdam, Holland, he was working in the Dutch East Indies when war broke out. He joined the Royal Netherlands Army, and did most of his fighting as a sniper. When the Japanese overran the islands, he was interned in Batavia and began what the POW's called "Sightseeing the Far East with the Imperial Japanese Army." The men were herded from Batavia to Java, to Borneo to Siam to Malaya, and ended in Singapore with only 250 left alive out of an original roster of 1,250.

At Singapore the scrapping of cars began. As a diversion, Herman started to make notes and sketches of different types and designs of cars, using any scrap of paper he could lay his hands on. Soon he was designing his own models, using ideas culled from many of the cars he had helped destroy.

One of the prisoners' assignments was to ship a complete sports car to Japan for a high-ranking prison official. As a joke the prisoners spent months assembling parts from dozens of different cars, and packing them as if they belonged together. This was probably the only car ever designed not to run.

'Back to school' bell holds new excitement

By JANE BARTLETT

The time: Tuesday, the last day of summer holidays and unfettered freedom for Westmount scholars. The scene: youngsters digging out last year's textbooks from their summer hibernation, trying on school uniforms, and wondering what the coming year will bring.

For pupils who graduated this spring from Westmount Junior High School, excitement runs high as they look forward to the last lap of their high school education — two years as students of Westmount Senior High School.

Twins Sheila and Bob McLean, of 2118 Claremont avenue, and Jean Paterson of 4040 Grey avenue, found that although they were sorry to see the summer vacation come to an end, the expectations of a new school, new faces, teachers and activities were not at all unpleasant.

Sheila, 16, president of her class for three years, will continue her commercial course in high school, with hopes of eventually becoming a private secretary. She goes to Westmount Senior High with two scholarships — one from the Protestant School Board for outstanding work in school, and one from grateful inmates of the Queen Mary Veterans Hospital, whom she visited every Tuesday evening last winter.

"Actually, I was helping Mrs. C. F. Shearer, a wonderful old lady of 76, who buys cigarettes, and makes candy and fudge for the vets all on her own. We visited about 365 men each time, distributing candy and cigarettes, chatting and playing beanbags or other games," said Sheila.

By way of thanking her for the men of the Queen Mary Hospital asked Principal Trenholme of Westmount Junior High School if it was possible to donate a scholarship for one year's tuition to the pretty, blue-eyed teenager. At a surprise party in the hospital last June, with Mr. Trenholme and Sheila's mother in attendance, the cheque was presented.

"You can imagine our surprise when we heard that Sheila had also won a board scholarship," said Mrs. McLean. "Luckily, we can use the vets' scholarship next year."

Sheila worked as a typist at the Queen Mary Veteran's Hospital this summer, and has just returned from a two-week holiday in Atlantic City with her family.

"I used the money I had earned for my vacation. It certainly makes a difference when you're spending your own money — was much more careful," she laughed.

Although her main athletic interests are outside of school — skating and water skiing — she likes volleyball, and hopes to try out for the high school cheerleading squad. Last year she was lead member of the WJHS Majorettes.

Sheila's twin brother, Bob, who will study advanced mathematics in his science course at senior high school, hopes to try out for football and basketball teams this year. He also was president of his class last year, previously having acted as vice-president and athletic representative.

"I'm not too sure whether my school work will allow it, but I hope to try out for as many sports as I can," says Bob.

Tall and well built, Bob has three ambitions he would like to fulfil in the not too distant future: to go to sea, to attend military college, and to become an engineer.

"My father would like me to study chemical engineering," he explained, "but right now, I'd like to be a mechanical engineer, if possible."

Bob would have accomplished his ambition of going to sea this summer, but for the fact that he was under the required age of 18. Illness, which caused him to miss his June exams, also intervened.

As for the coming year, Bob is looking forward to new activities and studies, and concluded, "Glee Club sounds like fun, and the advanced math course should be interesting."

Jean Paterson, also a board scholarship winner, and recipient of three Home and School Association prizes and the Birks Medal for the highest grade nine standing in the school, spent her summer far

THE BEGINNING OF THE END: Summer is drawing to an end for these three teenagers, and the end of their high school education is also in sight as they enter Westmount Senior away from textbooks.

"I couldn't really be described as a very good athlete," Jean smiled. "But I love riding, and have been doing it almost since I could think." Fond of animals in general, Jean spent several weeks on her grandmother's farm in Hudson Heights after school closed.

"Of course as well as riding I had chores to do — bringing in the cows, feeding the ponies, collecting eggs and reporting any illness among the chickens. I had quite a few arguments with the hens, who didn't want to give up their eggs," she recalled.

"One of my ambitions is to have a farm someday, although that probably won't be for a long time," she confided. "I'm also interested in scientific research and agriculture, and plants are one of my hobbies."

Jean is a versatile teenager who loves Agatha Christie mysteries, and has tried her hand at writing one of her own, "although it's not really a serious project."

Extra motoring care urged as school term re-opens

Westmount Police Chief R. Edmonstone has issued a special plea to motorists in Westmount to exercise extra caution during the current return to school of children throughout the city.

He pointed out that children, having spent the summer out of the city, are apt to show less caution, and be less aware of the dangers of city traffic.

The 20 mph speed limit in streets bordering on school and playground areas will be rigidly enforced, he stated, adding that motorists should also be aware of the 20 mph speed limit throughout the city. Vehicles at intersections are restricted to a speed limit of 20 mph also.

As an extra word of caution, he concluded that the radar speed detecting equipment would be functioning regularly.

A statesman's saga

Just eighteen days ago Premier Maurice Duplessis paid one of his very rare visits to the West End of the city of Montreal to lay the cornerstone of the new turning to a policy of grants for hospitals. Again there was good-natured laughter.

Human

This ability of Premier Duplessis — the ability to talk to people as a human, to make

Duplessis was not only the leader, but he was the man who did the big bulk of the work, who was at his office early in the morning and late at night, who came with the answers when the going was tough and who stuck to his motto: "The man who will make me swerve from my position isn't born yet."

From his position of devotion to duty and to the province he never swerved.

Tributes have been pouring in for days — from his friends and foes alike, for all realized the tremendous contribution the man had made in his years as Premier, a contribution that changed the pace of Quebec, reawakening the pioneering spirit, searching out new frontiers, providing jobs for native sons, and defending provincial autonomy as he saw it.

Far-seeing

Under the Duplessis policy of private enterprise millions poured into the province for development of natural resources. Quebec topped the world in hydro-electric development, in aluminum production, in asbestos output and in other things.

No man, the Montreal Gazette said editorially Monday, knew better than Duplessis that Quebec must grow, and no man did more to encourage that growth.

With Quebec awakening after years of lethargy, and with Duplessis' determination to stand firm by the traditions of his race, there were tensions, conflicts, misunderstandings.

Duplessis' position was never easy. Personally, I don't think he would have been as successful if the task had been easier. He enjoyed the struggle, and the greater the odds, the greater the feeling of satisfaction when they were overcome.

Part of the success of the Duplessis administration, of course, lay in the fact that he chose a middle course in the stream of Quebec history.

His position was assailed from both sides. To the left were those who would cut the ties with the past completely, and to the right were those who refused to face the fact that the Twentieth Century had arrived.

Steadfast

No one ever suggested that Maurice Duplessis used his office for financial gain — certainly the charge could not be made seriously, nor substantiated with fact. But he did enjoy power. He relished office. Some of his causes, it has been said, were unwise; some of them hopeless; some of his rear-guard actions took on the complexion of entrenched positions. But they were his, and his party's and from them he never swerved.

Often, the question was asked: "How does Duplessis keep his hold on his people." Looking back, even from this distance, the answer is not too difficult.

He aroused the French-Canadian people to an awareness of their destiny, and he proved by his deeds that he would never allow any intrusion on the rights which had been set for his people at the signing of the British North America Act, the document that laid down the terms of Confederation. This he did early in his career, with the result that his followers in his family plot in Three Rivers. Death overtook him in a small mining community on the northeast frontier of one of the mineral developments his administration had fostered, catching up with him just seven and a half months short of the Biblical three-score-and-ten which is considered man's allotted span.

Those who heard the late Premier at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital corner-stone-laying were hearing a master in action. It was a fine day, Duplessis was the main speaker of the occasion, he was bringing good news in the form of a $100,000 cheque from an anonymous donor, and another $400,000 from the provincial government.

And he was at his best as a quipster, a role in which he delighted when he was in good spirits.

"I wondered," he said, "when I received your invitation to lay this cornerstone why you had invited me, after all, I am not a mason."

He handled his audience well, pausing after each point for the laughter to subside before going on. Seeing the chairman of the city executive committee in the audience, he said that he hoped this would lead to Montreal re-

How about Tex for the task?

TEX Coulter, the big man with the Southern drawl, had a few things to say about the professional viewpoint here a week ago.

He says the professional man has a job to do — and nothing is going to make that job become a secondary interest.

Frankly, we agree.

And since the question was youth training — we wonder if perhaps Tex wouldn't be a good man to enlist in the fight against juvenile delinquency here.

Football, he says, is his job. But in putting it over, he is in a position to go a long way towards putting many a boy back on the right track.

Commends chief's advice to residents

Sir: The suggestion and advice given the residents of Westmount in your last issue by Chief Edmonstone are sound, practical and based upon experience.

The prestige of a police force can be measured by its success in preventing criminal acts and where they are committed in promptly arresting and convicting law-breakers. To succeed in maintaining Law and Order and progressively decreasing the crime rate, even the best police force must have the co-operation of the public.

In the degree that the individual citizens will carry out the suggestions of the Westmount Chief of Police will they assist in enabling the fine force he directs not only in questioning suspects but keeping out the prospective criminal.

The elementary precautions that the Chief urges will go a long way towards safeguarding the property of the citizen and the likelihood of his suffering shock or injury at the hands of the element that live off the proceeds of crime.

Yours truly,

Bernard Rose

By the way . . .

I REMEMBER Toscanini saying to me on a similar occasion: "There's no need for that fellow to wind his legs round his cello. Nobody's going to steal it while the concert's on." "Perhaps, Signor," said I, "he is more comfortable like that." "I am concerned with music, not with the personal comfort of the musicians," said the maestro coldly and rather ruthlessly. "Besides, his legs get in the way of the bow." That disarmed me.

A watch which is "water-proof and unaffected by magnets" reminds me of the water-proof scissors, also unaffected by magnets, which Dr. Strabismus (Whom God Preserve) of Utrecht invented. Experiments showed that the scissors remained dry after trimming the fins of fish four feet below the surface of a stream. Magnets on the bank had no effect on the scissors. About the same time the sage invented a non-porous shoehorn which could be used as a glove-stretcher in deep snow. But supply outran demand.

If it's progress, — we have it!

A FRIEND from out of town was driving round the West End on Labor Day. The development here in a decade came as a surprise and somewhat of a shock — particularly in Cote Saint Luc.

As he drove over more and more thoroughfares that weren't even in existence five years ago, he began to shake his head.

Finally, I asked him what was troubling him.

"Well," he said, "things have certainly changed. I remember when I used to slip out and shoot a few crows, just for the fun of it, right about where the new Examiner plant is now. But those days are gone."

"If it's progress" he added doubtfully, "I must admit — you've got it."

THOUGHTFUL BOATBUILDER: Ian Wilson, 16, of 119 Blenheim Place, checks a gun turret on his seven-foot model of the Soviet heavy cruiser 'Sverdlov'. Ian, who hopes for a career in the navy, launched his ship for a trial run in Westmount Park's horseshoe pond Tuesday

Soviet model ship gets trial run in Westmount Park horseshoe pond

By JANE BARTLETT

As an interested crowd of spectators gathered, the model Soviet warship 'Sverdlov' weighed anchor, revved its engines, and slipped into the waters of the horseshoe pond in Westmount Park for its trial run Tuesday evening.

Captain, owner, and builder of the 'Sverdlov' is Ian Wilson, 16, of 119 Blenheim Place, petty officer first class of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

Ian, who built the seven-foot-long model singlehandedly in his spare time, has been tinkering with boats ever since someone gave him a plastic model building set. His sailing ships and small warboats have often been on display at the Westmount Annual Hobby Show.

"I got tired of being limited to a company's choice of boats I could build, and decided to try it for myself, using wood," states Ian, who drew up plans and constructed the "Sverdlov" from pictures of the Russian navy's most modern warship in "The World's Warships of 1955" and "The Soviet Navy".

Using balsam wood, he sketched detailed plans, and did all the woodwork by hand. The only plastic on the model ship is found in a tiny pair of oars in a lifeboat, minute life-rafts, gun turrets, miniature anchors, and strange looking devices which Ian explained were radar and other enemy identification equipment.

Portholes are tiny brass eyelets which he purchased at a local hobby shop, along with the rudder, propeller, and propeller shafts.

"With motor, batteries, and wiring, the whole thing cost about $80," said Ian. "The trial run was to see if she was seaworthy, if she listed, and whether or not the engine worked properly." It was a crucial moment for Ian, who has been working on the boat since late last summer. The actual Sverdlov type of warship weighs about 19,200 tons, and little was known about the heavy cruiser until 1953.

The busdriver, Raymond Legault, 31, said that Rawling stopped suddenly for the yellow light, when he had expected him to go through it. He applied his brakes but could not avoid a collision.

Red Feather drive plans big kick-off

Hundreds of helium filled balloons, jiving teen agers, a soap box derby, water skiing, derring-do in canoes paddled by members of Canada's 1960 team and a ceremonial flag raising will supply only part of the excitement at Red Feather's Campaign kick-off show on the Mountain.

Planners for the bigger-than-ever Red Feather show that will be held the afternoon and evening of Saturday, say they still have some surprises in store. Details of additional attractions will be announced next week.

Mayor Fournier, Parks Commissioner Claude Robillard and Red Feather campaign leaders will be on hand to welcome the crowd of 10,000 expected to turn out for the event.

During the show 300 helium filled balloons with attached tags will be released. These balloons are expected to float some miles before coming to earth again. The finder who returns the balloon that travelled furthest to Red Feather Headquarters before the end of the campaign wins a prize.

Some 16 members of local Red Feather Boys and Girls Clubs will take part in the soap box derby. Busy contestants are now putting the finishing touches to their charriots in club workshops. The race will be run in eliminating heats down the hill by Beaver Lake.

A major attraction will be Marc

Cloutier's Water Skiers. Another thrill-packed event will be canoe races in which 40 paddlers from the Canadian Canoe Association take part. Some of the racers will be Canadian Olympic representatives next year. A number of the races will be between war canoes.

Mike Stevens' Record Hop will be broadcast from the Pavillion at Beaver Lake and hundreds of teenagers are expected to be on hand to dance.

Bag pipers will pipe the crowds up to the Chalet for opening ceremonies and the official flag raising.

'Teach character' Roy E. Wagar urges addressing new Protestant teachers

The new school season—as far as the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal is concerned—got off to a good start Tuesday when Roy E. Wagar, vice-chairman, addressed the new teachers at a special induction ceremony at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Speaking to those who are entering teaching for the first time, to those who came to the board from other provinces and other countries, and to those returning to the teaching profession after some time as wives and mothers, Mr. Wagar paid tribute to the importance of the teacher in education.

"Without good teachers," he said, "the fine new schools would be just buildings."

He urged the teachers to be proud of their profession.

"Don't apologize for being a teacher," he said, "the doctor, the lawyer, the clergyman, the dentist, the engineer never hesitate to proclaim their profession. Your job is just as important. You are skilled, you are leaders, you are teachers—don't be afraid to say so."

When he was a boy, the speaker said, the teachers were of the class to whom people went for advice. Over the years, he added, the pinnacle of the teachers appears to have shrunk. He urged the new teachers to take their places as leaders in the community, alongside "the doctors, the clergy and other professionally-trained men and women."

The new teachers, he said, are the ones who will influence the trends of the educational system for the next 30 or 40 years.

"I do not subscribe," said Mr. Wagar, "to the view that the Russians have a better system than ours. If it is good for the Russians, let them use it."

EXPERIMENT

He also added that he did not believe all the changes advocated south of the border should be adopted. "Let us experiment," he said, "and adopt that which is good and applicable to our needs in this province."

In closing Mr. Wagar urged the teachers to develop character in those who came under their charge.

"The development of character," he said, "has not kept pace with the advancement of science and technology. Moral strength and backbone need to be brought up to the level of our increasing intellectual enlightenment and our ever-widening control over physical things. It is common to say 'Knowledge is power.' But mind without heart, intelligence without conduct, cleverness without goodness— all these have dangerous flaws."

"Is it not truer," he continued, "to say that character is power. Can you teach the child by example, as well as by word to have a set of principles, something to which he can set his back and declare 'Here stand I, I can do no other.' Can you teach him to be broadminded, to look at ideas and facts from all sides, to compare statements, reports and beliefs honestly and eagerly, to be thoughtful of others, to be gentle and modest, combined with strength and authority, to have a sense of duty, obligation and responsibility, to be honest and fair and true, to have self-respect. Can you give him something to take hold of, something that will last him through life, a knowledge that money and power do not give dignity to character and happiness to individuals, but rather things like honor, love, loyalty, trust and faith."

"I ask you to determine," he said, "that from our schools and from your hands, will come boys and girls of character. We must have them as the men and women of tomorrow, if our highly organized, complex society is to work."

350 teachers appointed, many in West End schools

More than 350 new teachers have been appointed to positions in Montreal's Protestant schools. Many of the new teachers will be instructing in West End and Verdun schools.

The new teachers come from every province in Canada, except Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, and nine foreign lands including the United Kingdom, France, Switzerland, Australia and the United States.

Recent graduates from Quebec

Teacher's colleges and universities account for 179 of the new teachers. The next largest group hails from England and numbers 57. Teachers returning to the service of the Board number 35, while Ontario has contributed 17, the United States, 14, Scotland, 12, France, 7, Australia and New Zealand, 10 and Alberta, 1. The grand total of new teachers is 362—297 women and 65 men.

Queens School in Westmount will have a number of new instructors including Miss S. Bogert, Mr. J. F. King, Mr. W. V. Myatt and Miss Fletcher of England.

Miss Fletcher is typical of the teachers recruited in foreign lands. She has a number of years teaching experience in England and answered a newspaper advertisement to teach in Canada. She specializes in English language and literature and will teach sixth grade.

Some of the new N.D.G. teachers are Mr. Martin Lewis of Somerled who is a native of Wales, Miss S. R. Phillips, a home economics specialist from Wales who will instruct at John Grant High, and M. R. E. Fox, a French specialist who will instruct at John Grant High.

New Saint Laurent teachers are Mrs. L. Cahill, and Mrs. Rhoda Chanin of Laurentide School, Mrs. S. A. Goldman of Westbrook, Mr. Bernie Fox of Millar School and Miss Florence Nerenberg of Gardenview School.

At Verdun High Mr. A. D. Price of Victoria, B.C., Miss Shirley James of England and Mr. E. A. Theriault will be among the new staff teachers, while Miss Margaret MacLintosh will be the new librarian.

Grand march highlights summer program closing

The Westmount Ice Rink was hardly recognizable one evening recently as nearly 200 children and as many parents and spectators gathered to officially close the Summer Parks Program.

The colorful event opened with a grand march into the arena by members of the various park groups, followed by demonstrations of activities, sports and games in which the youngsters had taken part throughout the summer holidays.

Alert resident foils attempt by two thieves

Attempted burglary of Golden's Flower Shop, 4863 Sherbrooke street west, early Sunday morning, was foiled by the quick action of a nearby resident in calling Westmount Police.

The police department stated they received a call from a resident at 5 a.m. Sunday morning, reporting suspicious noises in the vicinity of the flower store.

Three patrol cars responded to the call, to find two men at the scene, attempting to avoid discovery by hiding under their automobile.

The men, Edward Benham, 32, of 1466 Jolicoeur, and Lawrence Moffatt, 27, of 1440 Crevier street, Saint Laurent, were charged with breaking and entering. They appeared before the Court of Sessions on Tuesday, before Judge Peter Shorteno.

The defendants pleaded guilty to the charge and were remanded, without bail, for sentence until September 15.

family is willing to subject themselves to one of my efforts," she laughed.

In spite of her busy life, Jean found time last winter to make about 900 favors for patients at the Royal Edward Laurentian Hospital on St. Urbain street.

She expects school life to be very different next year. "My sister Diane, who went to Westmount Senior High, told me all about it. For one thing, I expect a lot of hard work. I know that it's a much smaller school than Junior High, and that we'll have more responsibility in looking after our own work."

Among the new studies Jean will encounter are physics, biology and chemistry. She is looking forward to new activities too.

"But there are so many new activities, that I haven't decided yet which ones I'll be doing," she concluded.

Canadian Jewry pay tributes

Because of the unfortunate death of Premier Maurice Duplessis, the ceremony launching the Bicentenary of Canadian Jewry which was to have taken place on Labor Day under the joint auspices of the City of Trois Rivieres and the Canadian Jewish Congress has been postponed. No alternative date has been set as yet. In a statement on behalf of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Samuel Bronfman, National President said: "The Hon. Maurice L. Duplessis has been a colorful figure in Canadian public life for many years. While not everyone has agreed with him, there are few who will dispute his love for the province and for the things he held to be important. Through the strength of his views he made a distinct contribution to the welding of the Canadian nation and will thus be missed by all.

"Personally and on behalf of the Canadian Jewish Congress I extend to his family and colleagues sincere condolences, relieved by the conviction that his place in Canadian history will remain an important one."

A joint statement from Lavy M. Becker, Chairman of the National Bicentenary of Canadian Jewry, and Monroe Abbey, Chairman of the Montreal Bicentenary Committee reads: "The National Bicentenary Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress is deeply grieved at the sudden and untimely passing of the Honorable Maurice L. Duplessis and extends its heart-felt sympathies to Mr. Duplessis' family, to his intimates in Government and to his people.

Painting picnic planned by Independent Artists

By VALENTINA RAHR

The Independent Art Association is planning all kinds of interesting activities for the coming 1959-1960 season. A painting picnic will take place on September 15, when two buses will leave Westmount Park for St. Matthias, near Chambly, Que. Non-members are welcome, and reservations may be made ahead of time by getting in touch with Mrs. Lorne Adrain, 5421 Montclair; Mrs. Stuart Knox, 4325 Mariette; and Mrs. Bea Alan, WE. 3-4188.

Mrs. Alan, who has organized the summer outings for the association, is at present having an exhibition of her own paintings at "The Red Steer", 5468 Sherbrooke Street West. This one man show consists of landscapes, seascapes, portraits and still life, and will continue for about four weeks. Teachers for the painting picnic will be Adam Sherriff Scott, RCA Western avenue, Eric Wesselow and Adrien Hebert.

Scotland's foremost tenor Kenneth McKeller, will appear at Victoria Hall on September 10 and 11, along with Johnny Beattie, comic; Sheila Nicholson, soprano; John Mulvaney, "prime minister of mirth"; Ronnie McCulloch, accordionist; Alice Dale, female character impressionist; and Dennis Woolfor, pianist; for the Greater Montreal Scottish Societies Association.

Three prominent Canadian architects form the committee of enquiry organized by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada; Peter Dobush, Sherbrooke Street West, chairman; John C. Parkin, Toronto; and Charles Edward Pratt, Vancouver. The enquiry will take the committee across Canada, seeking ways by which new residential areas can be better designed. The committee was formed as a result of a Federal Grant of $30,000, for a full scale enquiry into the design of residential areas in Canada.

Professor Maxwell Dunbar, of McGill University, has spent a large part of the last 24 years in scientific research in the Canadian Arctic, and strongly criticized some current trends in the North this week. He has found that wages are astronomically high, and morale is abysmally low. A very expensive mistake is being made in the belief that people living in the North must have all the comforts — and many of the luxuries — of city living.

For generations the people of the Canadian North have had a special character, marked by particular attitudes. New communities have expanded, but this character did not change. The southerners who went North to try out the life, returned very often within a few months; the ones who remained stayed because they liked it, and became Northerners.

They liked the life for its simplicity, sense of comradeship, satisfactions of pioneering, of building something in the wilderness. For the true Northerner, this made up for the comforts of city life.

In the last few years a forced growth has taken place in the North. A few of the specialists who went there to live, loved the life. But almost all are staying because of the terms of their contracts, and the high wages. They are bored because they have over-heated quarters all year, overfed on rich menus, with little work to do. Volunteer settlement and volunteer pioneering was slow. But the settlers stayed, for good. The settlers who are there today because of defence requirements, are mostly waiting for contracts, to terminate to return to the city.

Kent Capers earns money

A lot of fun and over $250 for the March of Dimes Polio Fund were the results of the Kent avenue Capers musical revue held last Friday evening.

Parents and children got together to stage the revue after a suggestion by 11-year-old Danny Chaykin, a visitor from New York. The idea soon mushroomed and many parents in the neighborhood, about 50 children and a number of invited radio and TV personalities turned the original revue idea into a musical show with plotted numbers and added a raffle and refreshment booth for good measure. The show was held at 4951 Kent avenue — in the yard of one of the parents. It attracted about 200 people.

Rod Dewar, CJAD, announcer, was M.C. of the show, George Bloomfield, well known TV actor and director, directed and Mrs. R. Stotland, a local music conductor wrote the lyrics for some of the songs. Mrs. Charles Bloomfield, mother of the director, produced and Mrs. J. Rother assisted in the writing department.

Many of the numbers revolved about the theme of polio. "Shoo Bug" proved to be a great favorite as did the ballet dancing and puppet show. Stars of the show were Danny Chaykin, accordionist, Suzanne Waxman, 6, who satirized Marilyn Monroe, Steve Stotland, 11, who sang "All Day, all Night" and accompanied himself on the ukulele and David Gladstone who played a record-er solo.

trusted him to lead them into spectacular progress for they felt he would never sacrifice the traditional rights they deemed necessary for survival.

The voters of Quebec enabled Duplessis and his party to set three records in the Legislature. He was the first Quebec Premier to serve five terms of office, four of them consecutively. Duplessis himself served as Premier almost two years longer than his nearest rival, Hon. L. A. Taschereau. Duplessis was a member of the Legislature for 32 years, without a break.

Devoted

Duplessis was devoted to Three Rivers, and after his ancestral home was torn down he took up residence at the home of a sister, not more than 300 feet away. He often spoke of his fondness for Quebec City, as he walked with friends from the Chateau Frontenac to his office in the Legislature. But he had a tie with Montreal that went back to his days at Notre Dame College. There he had his hair cut by the college barber, Brother Andre. This association with the man whose devotion to Saint Joseph resulted in the great Oratory on Queen Mary road developed in the future Premier a special devotion to the Saint, which was to have a bearing on all the major decisions of his life.

Wednesday is St. Joseph's Day, and Duplessis attended mass each Wednesday and always timed his important moves for Wednesdays — elections, by-elections, opening of Legislative sessions, cabinet meetings and important political decisions.

Duplessis had many friends, but only a few who were within his close personal circle. Yet he always found time to see a steady stream of men and women who besieged his office in the parliament buildings, his office in this city, and at times even his home in Three Rivers.

He had political foes, many of them, who fought vigorously. At the end of his life, however, their names are to be seen in the list of tributes, for while they disagreed with his policies, they realized his ability and his zeal, as well as his devotion to the principles in which he believed.

Statesman

So close to the scene of action it is difficult to sum up the effect of the career of Maurice Duplessis on Canadian history. As I heard a French-language radio announcer say Monday "The death of Premier Duplessis has left Quebec in a stupor".

Perhaps in fewest words, a quotation from a Montreal Star editorial of Saturday: "Mr. Duplessis has shown uncommon wisdom in combining Quebec's old tradition with the new forces now so apparently at work."

But in the years to come, when time has softened the tensions, the conflicts and the misunderstandings, I believe Maurice Duplessis will go down in history as one who rightly deserved to be called a statesman.

The committee hopes to enter two or more floats in this year's parade. Other events planned to raise the necessary funds will include Montreal's second annual Pre-Grey Cup Dinner, slated for the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, October 7, and a float preview to be held early in November on Dominion Square.

The committee is also planning other activities for the Grey Cup Festival weekend, aimed at promoting the City of Montreal as Canada's largest business and tourist centre.

Mrs. Alida Brunette of Verdun and Mr. Guy Desjardins, 28, of 131 Saue street received slight injuries following a recent collision with a cement traffic divider, known as a "mall" at the St. Catherine street-Grosvenor avenue intersection.

Desjardins, driver of the auto in which Mrs. Brunette was a passenger, stated that he had not noticed the mall prior to colliding with it. The accident occurred at 5.08 a.m.

Montreal String Quartet to offer 12 concerts

The Montreal String Quartet, comprising four musicians prominent in the city's musical life for the past seven years, was recently made the recipient of a Canada Council grant enabling the group to offer a series of 12 concerts to the Montreal public at low entrance charges.

Each member an outstanding musician in his own right, the Quartet has been acclaimed by critics and audiences throughout Canada and New York City as one of the most important groups of its kind. The four are featured regularly on Canadian Broadcasting Corporation programs, and have played often for the CBC's International Service.

First violinist with the Quartet is Hyman Bress, who was born in South Africa and came to Montreal upon graduating from the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. Winner of the Heifetz Prize and the New York Concert Artists Guild Award, he combines his quartet activities with his career as a soloist.

Mildred Goodman, second violinist, was born in Montreal and studied at McGill's Conservatorium of Music prior to attending the Institute of Musical Art in New York. One of the founders of Musica Antica et Nuova in this city, she has appeared widely with various chamber ensembles.

Otto Joachim, who plays viola with the Quartet, is also noted for his compositions. Born in Dusseldorf, Germany, he studied at Dusseldorf and Cologne Conservatories, and later pursued his career in the Far East.

Walter Joachim, who is cellist with the group, teaches at the McGill Conservatorium of Music and the Provincial Conservatory of Quebec. He is the principal cellist of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra and performs frequently as a soloist.

McGill chamber music orchestra offers imposing season program

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the McGill Chamber music series. Starting in 1939 as the McGill String Quartet, under the auspices of Montreal Festivals, this group introduced many chamber music works for the first time to Montreal music lovers, and over the years created an ever growing enthusiastic chamber music audience. In 1949 they presented Bach's six Brandenburg Concertos in two evenings under the direction of Alexander Brott, and the public response was so overwhelming, that it was decided to present works from the vast and beautiful literature of chamber ensemble works, hitherto not heard in Montreal concerts.

A group of distinguished Montreal citizens formed the McGill Chambermusic Society with Mrs. H. M. Jacquays as president, for the sole purpose of providing organized continuity of the newly created McGill Chamber Orchestra, consisting of some of Montreal's finest string players. Until 1957 this organization was maintained by public support only. With the aid of the Arts Council of Greater Montreal, it became possible to increase rehearsal time, higher the standard of performance and present more adventurous works. This year with the support of the Canada Council, the McGill Chamber Orchestra is embarking on its first American tour.

An important feature is the annual commissioning and presentation of a Canadian composition, made possible by the Lapitsky Foundation. Over the past decades the McGill Chamber Orchestra concerts have become an indispensable part of Montreal's music life.

For its 20th anniversary season, Alexander Brott, the McGill Chamber Orchestra's artistic director, has chosen six programs of unusual interest and variety. As in the past the concerts will take place in Redpath Hall, well-known for its intimate atmosphere and excellent acoustics, with the exception of the last concert, which will be presented at Christ Church Cathedral.

The season will begin with an all Bach concert on Monday evening, October 5th, including the Brandenburg Concerto No. 6, the double concerto for two violins, and the Brandenburg concerto No. 5 with John Newmark and Mario Duschenes as guests artists.

On Monday evening, November 16th, the soloist will be world renowned flautist Jean Pierre Rampal in a suite for flute and strings by Telemann, other works on the program will be a concerto grosso by Tartini, and one by D'Allesandro.

On Monday evening, December 7th, the soloist will be Andre Navarra, distinguished French cellist in the Haydn cello concerto, other works will include concerto grosso in D minor by Vivaldi and "Italian Serenade" by Hugo Wolf. This concert will also be the occasion of the first performance of a commissioned Canadian work, by Jean Vallerand, well-known Montreal composer.

On Monday evening, February 8th, a small instrumental ensemble with Keith Faulkner, English narrator, as guest artist, will present an unusual program featuring "Facade" by William Walton, and "Sept for Seven" by Alexander Brott.

On Monday evening March 14th, the program will consist of Renaissance and Preclassical Music. Compositions to be heard are "Fantasias" by Byrd, "Symphony for Strings" by Boyce, "Concerto for 4 Violins" by Telemann, and "Works for Strings" by Heinrich Isaac.

On Monday evening April 11th the concert will take place in Christ Church Cathedral. It will be an all Handel program with St. Helen's Island, Val David, and the Quebec Provincial Exhibition where she won a prize for her portrait of a girl in a red dress. Kenneth Meek well-known Montreal organist as soloist. Works will include two concerti grossi and two concerti for organ and strings.

The Society has flourished and expanded under the presidency of Mrs. E. M. Hawkin.

'Parlez-vous français?' duo open school in YMCA

By VALENTINA RAHR

Two enterprising sisters will open a French conversation school at the Westmount YMCA, September 16, in the hope that their pupils will become better acquainted with "la belle langue", one of the major languages spoken in this province.

The founders, Pierrette Champoux, and her sister Simonne Champoux Boucher, are well equipped to carry through a project of this kind. Born in Montreal, they were both educated by the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame; University of Montreal; and are graduates of the "Societe du Bon Parler Francais" under the direction of Jean Audet, and Jeanne Maubourg. This latter institution specializes in French diction, conversation and, as its name implies "to speak good French".

The program for the coming year is scheduled to take in classes in French reading, diction, folklore for students, classic extracts, poems, verses, and the art of speaking correctly; along with musicians, painters, and great personalities, and the meaning of dramatic art, general study of culture. Fashion is an added course for girls.

The classes will be open to pupils from the ages of two and a half years, through 17 years of age. Private lessons may be arranged. The school year will begin on September 16, with daily lessons at 2.30 p.m.; and 4 p.m., and will consist of one hour a week, per student. Examinations will be held at the end of the year, and certificates granted to those qualifying. At Christmas the school will close for holidays, and will reopen in January to continue until the end of May. Recitals will be held at that time, with successful candidates taking part. Mme Simonne Boucher will instruct, the classes; alternating with Pierrette Champoux. Plans for additional schools of this type are being considered.

Pierrette Champoux, daily radio commentator on CKVL, for the past 11 years, has had a varied and interesting career. As Commentator and reporter, she made four trips to Europe with her sister Simonne Champoux Boucher, who is also a reporter.

There they attended various congresses, at Cultural Institutes in Versailles and Brussels, etc.

Another interesting facet of both their careers is making 16 records in New York, of French Canadian songs, called "Les Bords du Saint Laurent." Simonne Champoux Boucher is a successful script writer, and has sold several dramas and comedies to Radio Canada, in which her sister Pierrette Champoux starred.

Pierrette Champoux' programs on CKVL are "La Vie Sociale" daily at 2 p.m.; and "Actualite" daily at 10.25. The latter is usually taped, and played back over the air, as it would require considerable travel and time to carry two live programs, every day.

Mme. Simonne Champoux Boucher is married to a lawyer, Henri Emile Boucher. They all reside at 4151 Dorchester street West.

Queen Elizabeth School of Nursing size is increased

The new School of Nursing of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Northcliffe avenue, will provide accommodation, teaching and recreational facilities for 60 more student nurses, Dr. Harold Griffith, medical superintendent, has announced.

This will bring the school capacity up to 120 and help to provide more nurses to meet the current demand, Dr. Griffith said.

The present nurses' quarters will be completely renovated and will accommodate internes and resident doctors. There will be nine small apartments to accommodate married internes and their families and 12 single rooms for male and female doctors.

40 paintings go on exhibit

Some 40 paintings tracing the evolution of the Automatistes will be exhibited at The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts beginning Sept. 11 until Oct. 9.

The Automatiste Retrospective Exhibition will be presented in The Stable Gallery by the Museum's Junior Associates.

Works by Mousseau, Ferron, Borduas, Gauvreau, Riopelle, Leduc and Barbeau will be shown.

These are the seven artists who signed the Automatiste manifesto, "Le Refus Global," in 1947. This was a social declaration against almost all established institutions and an affirmation of a new philosophy of life and art called "Automatism."

The exhibition will cover the work of the seven artists from 1947 to the present.

The paintings have been borrowed from the artists themselves and from the collections of Yves Lasnier, Miss Madeleine Arbour, Mme Françoise Riopelle and Michel Lortie.

Maurice Duplessis

By
The Venerable
R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.,
Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

As I write these words the Premier of our Province has been stricken in the most northerly town of the Province. It is always a shock when an outstanding man is suddenly laid low, and especially so when he is a man who controls so much of the political life of millions of citizens. For Maurice Duplessis is the Premier of all the people of Quebec and not of a section.

The first announcement of the Premier's ill health was when the Archbishop of Quebec reported it in the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada. At the Eucharist held before the election of our new Primate the same Archbishop of Quebec prayed for the health of the Premier. In spite of our differences we are one people.

Maurice Duplessis has been a controversial figure in Canadian politics for many years. He has fought passionately for provincial rights; many of us have disagreed with him on the passion of his championship while we agree thoroughly with the principle.

We are always in danger of over-centralization; of being drawn into a great impersonal governmental machine. The centralists would have one language and one culture — even at the risk of a dead level of mediocrity. As long as Maurice Duplessis is Premier of Quebec there will always be color and difference.

That does not mean that I have always agreed with the Premier's policies. I think sometimes he has been dead wrong, and I have been glad to say so. But taking it by and large he has made a tremendous contribution to Canadian life. He has protected the Quebec farmer, perhaps for good and sufficient political reasons, but he has protected him. He has tried to keep the population on the land, even while he tried to attract new capital to the development of resources and to the industrializing of the Province.

Maurice Duplessis has made mistakes but at least he has made them in the grand manner. What he has done he has done greatly, and to the best of his knowledge

Worship commences Sept. 11 in new Temple auditorium

Scooter accident on Cedar avenue

Mr. and Mrs. Sbynek J. E. J. Kralicek, 3440 St. Germain street, suffered scrapes and bruises when their scooter collided with an auto on Cedar avenue recently. The couple refused medical attention.

Mr. Kralicek, 27, told police that while attempting to make a left turn, a car travelling behind him passed on the left, cut him off, and caused him to lose his balance.

Driver of the auto, Jean J. Chartier, 30, of 4985 Earncliffe, stated that he was travelling east on Cedar avenue, when his car was struck on the right side by the scooter. He added that the resulting bang caused him to stop at Cedar and Clarke avenues to investigate.

United Church of Canada reports strength of union

The United Church of Canada was formed on June 10, 1925, after a quarter of a century of negotiations, by the union of the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches in Canada. Into the United Church came also nearly a thousand congregations organized on a community basis in prairie and frontier areas. Although a minority of the Presbyterian (29%) stayed out of the union, the new church began with over 600,000 adult members in 1925, a number that has now grown to one million. The United Church is the largest non-Roman communion in Canada, one in five of all Canadians looking to it for spiritual ministrations.

The United Church of Canada values its strong ties with world Presbyterianism, Congregationalism and Methodism, yet it has developed a distinctive life of its own. It has given leadership in the ecumenical movement, and supports liberally such causes as inter-church aid and service to refugees. Overseas its missionaries work with indigenous churches in India, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Trinidad, Angola and Northern Rhodesia. In Canada, its 3,322 ministers are responsible for 6,025 congregations organized into 2,707 pastoral charges. Its home mission work in small scattered communities, in downtown city areas and among the Indian and non-Anglo-Saxon people is extensive. Its pastoral ministries are carried on in 28 languages. It maintains three universities, eight theological colleges, eight secondary schools, fifteen hospitals, and many homes for elderly people and for redemptive work. On both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts it operates fleets of vessels to bring the work of the church to remote ports. Berkeley Studio in Toronto is its well equipped centre for producing audio-visual materials.

In organization, The United Church is Presbyterian, reserving however the right of ordination to annual Conference as in the Methodist Church, and giving considerable liberty to local congregations.

The expansion of the Church in the past decade has been rapid. Since 1950, 361 new churches and halls have been built, and 230 more are planned for the immediate future. Sunday School attendance has soared, with 731,000 enrolled, while 263,000 belong to various youth groups. Total givings in 1958 were $52,854,940 of which over $10,000,000 was for the larger work of the church. The United Church House, a nine-storey building in Toronto, has recently been completed as the national headquarters. Moderator of the United Church is the Right Rev. Angus

J. MacQueen of London, Ontario, and the permanent Secretary of the General Council is Dr. Ernest E. Long.

First Baptist Church active

Coinciding with the opening of the day schools, the church Sunday school of First Baptist Church will resume its program of activities this coming Sunday; sessions for boys and girls over eight, as well as groups for young people and adults, will convene at 9:45 a.m. A special program has been prepared for this opening session, including the showing of an inspirational film and special worship features.

The superintendent of the Sunday School, Dr. A. L. Gordon, is being assisted in the leadership by Miss Frances Wallace, the associate superintendent, and Miss Daisy MacNeill, Director of Christian Education. Plans for the coming sessions will be announced. Special reference will be made to the year-long program plan called "The Year Of Baptist Achievement." All members of last year's church Sunday school have been advised of this opening through the mails.

On Thursday night of this week, First Baptist Church will be host to an inter-church conference on the "Y.B.A." program; the local representative, Rev. Robert Yanke, St. Lambert Baptist Church, is in charge of ar-

'Diamond of Hope' Westmount Baptist subject of sermon

The Baptists of North America have joined together for a Baptist Jubilee Advance Program for five years. The emphasis for 1959-60 is on Christian Education under the title of "Year of Baptist Achievement" (YBA).

The minister, the Rev. E. J. Bailey, will discuss this program under "The Ministry of Teaching" at the morning service. At night, using the background of the famous Hope Diamond, the minister will speak on "The Diamond of Hope".

The Church School opens its Fall activities on Sunday, Sept. 13, with classes for all ages at 11 a.m., coinciding with the morning service.

The church choir rehearses on Thursday nights at 8 p. m., and there are openings for singers in all parts. See the Choir Director, Mr. Galt McDermot before choir practice or after service on Sunday.

Dr. Douglas Smith inducted as Dominion-Douglas minister

The induction of Rev. R. Douglas Smith, BA, BD, DD, as minister of Dominion Douglas Church took place at the church last night.

Smith, is well-known in Montreal medical circles and Mr. Justice Arthur I. Smith of the Superior Court is another brother.

Autumn a colorful month for vacation

If you are one of those fortunate persons who still has a vacation to look forward to, you will find the months of autumn particularly pleasant for a sightseeing tour of Canada.

Fall colors rivaling the most spectacular in America are found during October and early November in the uplands of Ontario, the Laurentian Mountains and the Gaspé Peninsula of Quebec, the mountain country of Alberta and British Columbia, and the quiet countryside of the Atlantic Provinces. In the Prairie Provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba there's color too, in the crisp, cool fall season.

People and Places

Labor Day weekend had Montrealers all over your reporter's beat, and the weather welcomed them as gleefully as did the resort owners . . . With the "summer" vacation period stretching a little further each year, the hiatus between this period and ski-time is becoming only a matter of a few weeks . . . From Lake Placid, Pete Rolland, the affable owner-manager of the Homestead, reports glowing prospects of swell activities right up until American Thanksgiving Day . . . Vermont and New Hampshire echo similar tidings . . . The new autoroute to the Laurentians opened with all the ballyhoo of an Indianapolis speedway classic and with much the same demented enthusiasm . . . difference, of course, being that no prizes are awarded for getting to town in slightly less time . . . just a few cases of jumping jitters . . . Vera and Gerry Travers make a fine public relations combination for the Mont Gabriel Club . . . and Vera reminds us that from here in the Saturday buffet suppers will be replaced with gourmet dinners . . . As food is served in either instance, Uncle Beauregard won't be put out one little bit . . . George Powell, the Chantecler's guiding wizard at Ste. Adele, renewed the Buddy Clayton Trio for an extended term . . . as a very dear friend of ours says: "They don't only play "good" — they play well! . . . Getting back to Mont Gabriel for a sentence or two, Gordon Chambers does some pretty deft work there with a piano, too . . . The thought of all the lovely little sun-tanned children trooping back to school after the long vacation brings tears to our eyes . . . (we feel a little sorry for the teachers as well) . . . but then how else are the little darlings to learn about the pre-Cambrian age or the romance of Abelard and Eloise . . .

Come to think of it we just had a refresher course on both subjects recently . . . Lin L'Ecuyer, co-operator with Max Huber of Maxlyn's restaurant at Stowe, definitely offers rebuttal to the rumors circulating that he was christened Linseed . . . He does, however, acknowledge a cousin named Catfish L'Ecuyer . . . and so it goes . . . We have to go now and watch all the smart people who holiday in the Fall enjoying themselves . . . Be around next week, please.

Children's Theatre plans busy season

The Children's Theatre is buzzing with excitement these days, — registration opens shortly in the five studios, and judging by the hundreds of calls from all parts of the city and suburbs, it looks as though this will be one of the busiest seasons in the 27 years of Children's Theatre.

Directors Dorothy Davis and Violet Walters have lined up an exciting season of stage shows and radio listening. They have many talented pupils in the various studios and casting shortly takes place for the three major productions of Heidi, Jack and The Beanstalk and Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp. The popular "Calling All Children" program begins its season of radio plays starting Sunday, November 1. These radio shows have been a popular feature for many years and script writer Jean Low has promised some exciting plays for this season.

The Montreal Children's Theatre, now in its 27th year has been directed since its inception by two well known theatrical personalities, Dorothy Davis and Violet Walters who have worked hard and conscientiously with a faith in the ideal behind the Children's Theatre, — a faith which has steadily justified itself.

The Children's Theatre curriculum opens with a kindergarten class as an essential preliminary to the principal course, which emphasizes instruction in self-expression, diction, poise and self control. Those who have witnessed their stage productions and listened to their radio performances, over CFCF will realize what a very valuable work can be accomplished with children in various forms of dramatic work. Even if pupils have no intention of pursuing drama when they grow older, the course is invaluable in helping young people to overcome self consciousness, and acquire a clear enunciation, good diction, and a graceful poise.

The Children's Theatre has produced many tangible proofs of the value of its training and the success which its pupils have achieved. Registration for the Girouard avenue and Cote St. Catherine road studios starts Monday afternoon September 14. For the other three studios in Saint Laurent, Town of Mount Royal and Park avenue, there are different dates. For full information and brochure, phone Dorothy Davis or Violet Walters at HU. 4-6620.

There are only two rivers at Three Rivers, Quebec. The name derives from the fact that the St. Maurice River empties into the St. Lawrence through three channels at the city's site.

Bulbs better in ground than in box, cellar

From Sept. 15 on, bulbs are better in the ground than in a box in the cellar or in the garage. This is the word from the Montreal Botanical Garden.

Tulipes, narcissus, junquils, hyacinthes, crocuses and all other spring bulbs should be planted in the fall, with the deadline Oct. 10. After that there is risk of damage, especially if the winter is early.

Leaflet No. 2 dealing with the planting and care of bulbs may be obtained from the Botanical Garden, 4101 Sherbrooke Street East, by writing to the information office there, calling personally or telephoning UN. 1-3811, local 2783.

Now is the time to think about taking proper care of furnace

Grateful homeowners have ten rules which they follow, at this time of year to assure comfortable and constant heat for next winter. Good care of the heating system when Old Man Sun is hot outside pays off in trouble-free comfort in the cold months to come.

Now is the time, according to the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, to clean and inspect your heating plant. As a rule, in many homes, much time is spent outdoors during the fine weather and it is easy to forget the old winter friend in the basement who kept the family comfortable last winter.

It pays though, to see to your furnace now when it's warm outside so that it will see to you when the weather changes.

Here are ten simple rules every homeowner should follow:

1. Clean all surfaces of your furnace flues.
2. Remove all soot and ashes.
3. Oil all door hinges, bearings and regular parts.
4. Check instruments and gauges for accurate levels.
5. Leave door partially open all summer to avoid sweating and rusting.
6. Open the drain cock at the bottom of the boiler.
7. Let sufficient water run from the system to remove sludge.
8. Paint the outside of your boiler to protect it.
9. Remove all trash from the furnace area to avoid fire hazard.
10. Follow these ten rules for greater comfort and less trouble next winter.

The Institute points out that these simple rules, if followed faithfully, will increase the service every homeowner can get from his heating system. Not only will they prolong its life but will pay dividends meantime in efficient operation and greater economy in fuel.

The accumulation of soot in pipes and trash in the furnace area provide dangerous fire hazards. At the same time, dust and dirt collected in filters or around convectors becomes insulation which prevents their efficient operation.

If you have air filters in the heating unit they should be inspected. A vacuum cleaner may be used to remove the collected dust. If you have convector radiators, the same household appliance may be employed.

A little time and attention to your heating facilities now, when the weather is good, will give you good weather indoors next Fall when the inevitable change in the season occurs.

Thomas More courses start October 5

Thomas More Institute of Montreal have announced their 15th season of evening courses for adults, to start October 5 in the D'Arcy McGee School building on Pine avenue.

A BA degree, granted by the University of Montreal, is obtainable from universities as McGill, Harvard, Montreal, Loyola College, etc., but the distinguishing feature of this Institute is that it is directed at the intellectually curious man and woman rather than the degree seeker. Beside 25 night courses there is an afternoon discussion program for ladies and a Saturday program for teachers. Topics range from The Atom to The Peculiar Communication of Art.

Professors and lecturers are Teachers' College, School Commission, and the fields of newspaper, art, music, science and business. Trained discussion leaders handle the many reading-discussion classes.

The Institute also offers an evening High School for adults to prepare them for Provincial examinations. The High School, taught by teachers in the regular Montreal high schools, opens September 14 in the McGee building.

BE SMART — BOOK EARLY. A good many of you are starting to plan your Christmas holidays already, but those of you who plan to go away for the Christmas holidays and haven't started planning yet are going to get stuck. The airlines have their advanced schedules out already for Miami Beach, Jamaica, Nassau, Puerto Rico and most of the popular resort areas. The steamship companies will have their sailing schedules out within a few weeks and believe me when I tell you that even though the schedules aren't out yet there have been quite a few bookings made already. The first type of accommodations, on these cruises, to be sold out are those of the minimum price. It is the same thing with the resort areas and their hotels.

If you keep putting off making your reservations, you will find when the time comes to reserve a cruise, plane reservation or hotel accommodations that they will be completely filled up.

Why not avoid this disappointment and book early. Plane reservations do not require any deposit; cruise reservations must be accompanied by a deposit of 25% which is refundable if you have to cancel up to two weeks before sailing; and hotels usually require a $25.00 or $50.00 deposit which is also refundable if you have to cancel.

hold its next meeting Tuesday, September 15, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rakovsky, 201 Metcalf avenue, Westmount.

William M. Sheehan, president of the Montreal Branch of World Federalists of Canada, will speak "World Peace through World Law." Two films will also be shown.

Decorator note how to dye wood

Here's a fascinating decorator idea . . . particularly useful for anyone on a furniture budget! You can dye wood! Any color of all purpose dye works beautifully as a stain for unfinished or sanded down wood surfaces, giving a modern, colored-stain finish that can be paste-waxed, or rubbed with oil and shellac!

With this new furniture coloring trick, can you see how easy it would be to glamorize a bedroom that's furnished with inexpensive, unfinished pieces? Or to co-ordinate all the odd furniture in a child's room, or a summer porch? Well-made, old pieces of furniture, refinished with colored stain look miraculously new and interesting . . . like a decorator's smart highlight for the home! You might have an old chest that could be refinished in this way. If you have, top it with a bookshelf the same width, stained the same color. Add new hardware to the chest and you have a modern, good-looking breakfront that's a conversation piece for the dining or living room!

Even garden furniture can be treated with the color stain. First of all, faded canvas seats and backs could be removed — freshened and brightened a summer color in a dye bath . . . right in the washing machine! The weather-worn wood frame could be stained a Dark Red or a Siamese Pink! (An illustrated booklet of ideas and instructions called "Color — all through the house" is available from the makers of Rit Dyes).

Directions for color-staining your wood furniture are simple enough to follow. You remove the old finish, then rub vigorously with steel wool to open the pores of the wood. The color-stain solution is made with one package of any color of the better-known, all-purpose dye to a quart of hot water. You just brush it on! The color stain glows richly on the wood surface, allowing the woodgrain to gleam through—a particularly attractive effect in rich dark tones like Peacock Blue, Deep Red, Plum Blue or Forest Green!

Silver-haired model is much in demand

By JOAN MARTIN

A trim, silver-haired Westmount matron opened the door, smiled graciously and quipped: "I'm in the midst of fashions, fittings and furniture."

What Mrs. Kenneth Eldridge of 67 Holton avenue means is that not only is the modelling in forthcoming fashion shows sponsored by local emporiums to display the best of the European collections, but is simultaneously remodeling her home.

Mardi Eldridge, one of Montreal's top high fashion models, is unique in her field in that she embarked on her career only after her family were fully grown.

"I started when most women give up," she says. "I really fell into it."

About 10 years ago, at a friend's suggestions, she listed her name with one of the fashion bureaus in a downtown department store. A week later they called her and she has been modelling ever since.

A stint with the Powers Modelling Agency — in the teaching end — and some beauty consultant work gave her a good background for high fashion. She feels that a model does not have to be beautiful, but, like good cooking, should have the proper ingredients:

1) Good posture, 2) A perfect size (so that many alterations are unnecessary), 3) Height (Mrs. Eldridge is 5'6"—which she says is short) and 4) Good grooming.

"I'm really looking forward to this season," she declares. "There doesn't seem to be any definite style as contrasted with last year's chemise which was very unbecoming."

Mrs. Eldridge believes women should dress to type and favors feminine clothes with soft rather than severe lines.

"I like to model evening gowns for that reason. They make me feel so elegant."

The Spring and Fall shows are the biggest and most exciting because at them, imports from the big European houses are modelled.

Each model in the show is called in for fittings a few weeks ahead of time. When she goes for her first, all her clothes are usually placed in individually assigned dressing rooms along with an itemized list of accessories which are to accompany each outfit.

When the clothes have had their final alterations and the girls have familiarized themselves with what shoes, gloves, hats (if required) and jewelry adorns them, a rehearsal is the last step prior to parading them before the public.

"Everything must run smoothly for there isn't much time between changes," she states. "We each go out in turn and you have to be ready."

Basically Mrs. Eldridge considers herself a housewife but enjoys the idea of having something else to do. She says it is a nice feeling to be useful and to keep abreast with the times after rearing a family.

The Viewpoint

Age is a quality of mind;
If you have left your dreams behind,
If hope is cold;
If you no longer look abroad,
If your ambitious fires are dead,
Then you are old.

But if, from life, you take the best,
And if in life, you keep the zest,
No matter how the birthdays fly,
No matter how the years go by,
You are not old.

As a special opening feature a continuous FASHION SHOW will be held daily throughout the week previewing the Fall and Winter Fashions and presenting a wonderful collection of Domestic & Imports in Finer Coats, Suits and Dresses from the Fashion Centres of the World.

He stoops to conquer

THESE LOCAL BUSINESSMEN feel they have a good excuse for getting a preview of the Fall hemline. They are Meredith "Merry" Hayes (left), and Carl Niderost, QC, both members of the Kiwanis Club of Montreal, which is sponsoring a gala ladies fashion show in the ballroom of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Sept. 16. The show will be produced by Irene Wilson, well known local couturier, and will feature Gord Sinclair as master of ceremonies. Proceeds go to help the Kiwanis Club's work with underprivileged children.

Paris still focal point in fashion

Although seeing as many as eight fashions a day every day for two weeks leaves one slightly breathless, there is still a feeling of exhilaration and excitement as each fashion house brings out its new collection, according to Eaton's Fashion Consultant, Jennifer Lindsay.

Montrealers will have an opportunity to see some of the most exciting originals in a far more leisurely way when they are presented by Eaton's at the first of a series of Thursday lunchtime fashion shows at The Queen Elizabeth's Salle Bonaventure on September 17.

Mrs. Lindsay, who will be giving the commentary throughout the series of "Fashions at Luncheon," is now catching her breath again after seeing the openings of the couturier collections in Dublin, London, Paris and Rome. "Everything seemed new and exciting," she says, "not just the garments, but accessories, coiffures, make-up, even the way the models walk." She found the models walk much faster and swirl around more than the models in Montreal.

"Paris is still the focal point in fashion," Mrs. Lindsay says, adding that for her, Paris offers fun, as well as excitement in fashion, "but London is wonderful for exquisite tailoring and quiet, almost understated, elegance, while in Italy one is fascinated by the original use of colour and fabric, particularly in sportswear."

Commenting on the forthcoming series, Donald M. Mumford, general manager of the Queen Elizabeth, says "As Montreal is one of the most stylish cities in the world, The Queen Elizabeth feels that there is a good need for such a weekly fashion luncheon. There was certainly no lack of interest in the fashion shows held by Eaton's in Salle Bonaventure earlier this year. Every week, there was a host of stylishly dressed ladies waiting for the room to open."

Potters' Club

Potters' Club, 346 Victoria avenue, starts fall term classes on Monday, Sept. 21. There will be a variety of classes available to the public. These include beginners' and advanced classes, wheel, ceramic sculpture and enamel on copper. Also on Saturday mornings a children's class.

Your School, Your Child and You

Back to School

By E. George Cochrane, B.A., M.Ed.

This column has a history that goes back seven years, to September, 1952, when it was inaugurated as part of the public relations program of the Protestant Men Teachers' Association of Greater Montreal. In time it became a more individual and a more personal affair, and that is the situation now when Your School, Your Child and You resumes on a regular weekly basis. You can look for it on this page in every issue.

Why such a column as this? It reflects the belief of this writer and of the editor of this newspaper that the experiences which our children undergo in school are of tremendous importance to themselves, to their parents, and to our society. For the purpose of this column is to discuss, in straightforward prose as free as possible from the educator's professional jargon, what is going on in the schools — the philosophy that underlies our educational system, the goals that have been established and the means being employed to attain those goals, and the issues and problems that confront educators — and by that term I most certainly include parents — today.

From week to week I propose to discuss some aspect of the school program in which some degree of interest has been expressed. I feel that this column would be of most interest if readers were to submit letters expressing their own views on what is going on in the schools and asking questions about matters of school policy and curriculum about which they are not completely clear. Such letters can be addressed to me, care of this newspaper.

In the weeks to come I shall be discussing with you such subjects as what the modern kindergarten is trying to do and how it goes about attaining its objectives, the way in which first grade children are taught to read, what is being done for the gifted and the handicapped children in our schools, bridging the gap between elementary and secondary school and between high school and college, and the perennial problem of homework. In almost every instance, considerable emphasis will be placed upon the role that parents should be playing in the formal education of their children.

It is my own strong personal conviction that our educational system will satisfactorily perform the job that our society has assigned it only when truly professional teachers and administrators work co-operatively with alert and interested parents to meet the needs of children. The Home and School movement has done much to foster this spirit of co-operation and I shall be devoting at least one column to thoughts that I

Hospital appoints new Director of Nursing

Miss Joan M. Gilchrist, formerly Assistant Director of Nursing Education at Mount Sinai Hospital, Toronto, has been appointed Director of Nursing of the Jewish General Hospital, it has been announced by Dr. W. R. Slatkoff, Medical Director. She succeeds the late Miss Norena Mackenzie.

Born in Toronto, Miss Gilchrist received her nursing training from Wellesly Hospital in that city, where she later worked for one year. Another year was spent at the Veteran's Hospital in Victoria B.C., and for a short time she worked in Juneau, Alaska.

WHEN THE CAHA ordered Junior Canadiens to play in a league next year to be able to enter Memorial cup playdowns, there was plenty of speculation to where Habs would play. To enter Metro would be a lopsided league with Habs surely going on to win. That is just what has happened. The Metro league controlled by the Forum as a farm system, which costs them some $15,000 or better each year to operate, have the Habs of Brockville in the league. The team finishing up on top at the end of the schedule will compete in the Memorial. One thing, the team will not compete in the Metro playoffs so the trouble last year between Verdun and Quebec and the Memorial cup playoffs will not occur.

Quebec are having a hard time getting ice time. There is a report from the capital city that Quebec have formed their own four team junior league. This has been the ambition of hockey men in that city for some years. The Baronets seemed to be squeezed out of the picture. Snowdon Ponsards is another team who are doubtful starters.

Cornwall and Pointe aux Trembles are two more new entries which brings the fold to an even dozen. Perhaps this is the time to change the league's name, for the name Metro does not fit into today's plans, with almost half of the teams off the island of Montreal. Between now and September 21, when the league meets again, many more plans will be made, but it all sizes up to a very successful junior hockey season.

OVER the week-end, for two days, we made our annual trip to Lanchester, Ontario for a little bit of fishing. For our son of nearly 11 years, it was exciting for he caught the first perch over myself and Scotty Bowman. The Bowman family have a cottage and Scot was spending the final days of his summer holidays before he headed back to Peterborough to coach the Petes. He signed a two year contract this week as coach and manager. He left early as he'll spend the month of September working on the program.

If ever a book is written on sportsmen in this district, Scot Bowman would deserve a chapter. He played hockey for several teams in the Metro league and later for the JAHA, now a league of the past. He joined up with Sam Pollock as assistant coach at Ottawa and then got his chance with the Petes. Toronto Maple Leafs were after his services after his team lost out in the Memorial cup final. Which by the way was a profitable series for Petes, who received $10,000 as their share of the gates. The series drew some 35,000 fans.

There may be a future for Scott in NHL or American Association, for he is young and is only starting up the ladder of hockey fame.

Verdun Sham-Cats have not learned a lesson that penalties can cost them a game. It nearly did in Cornwall. They won 1-0 but it was only when the Cats collected themselves at the right moment that they were able to stop the Emards. There seems to be a few that want to argue with game officials to make them change their minds, which they won't.

While in Cornwall on Friday night we picked up local paper, and Cats received 175 yards in penalties. The Cornwall team at least had a chance to tie it up but went for the win or bust. This is the best year that the Cats are having in their history. They came supporters. Cats are home twice up with a big win of 25-1 over Lakeshore, but they must play the football that they know they can play, not the pretend game that they sometime give to their supporters. Cats are home twice to their fans this week. Cornwall on Sunday and week from now, next Wednesday, against Lakeshore.

The Almost Right Football Selection club were right. All four members picked Als over Ottawa and Hamilton over Toronto.

For the weekend, our sports editor Georges E. Jones is the only one to pick Hamilton over Montreal, while Tom Maltby, Nat Bernstein and Ziggy Bielski pick Montreal to win.

But, in the Sunday meeting at Toronto between Ottawa and Argos, Jones and Bielski picked Toronto to win while Maltby and Bernstein take Ottawa.

Tackle grid starts today with 2 games

The Westmount Recreation Department Eight-Man Tackle Football League will get underway today at Westmount Park.

Now in its fourth year, this extremely popular league will have 26 holdovers. Teams each carry 16 players. Eight positions are still open.

Huskies, last year's champions, will not have Bruce Wilson back for the early part of the season. Bruce is recovering from a serious automobile accident. Bob Robertson remains with the team along with Jim Beasant.

Mules will have Cammy McFadden back who will be helped out by Paul Hamilton.

Bert Guilfoyle will mastermind the Brones, aided by rookie coach, Phil Martin. Martin has come up from the officials' ranks.

Two new coaches are out this year with the Bulls — John Taugher, well known former hockey player, and Alan Turner.

First game at 5:15. Mules at Huskies; second, 6:15. Bulls at Brones.

Westmount tennis tourney underway
