HANGMAN HIMMLER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

This Is Allied Danger Period

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign News Analyst

The early meeting of the Big Three, which Washington announces is "in the works," is calculated to pour oil on troubled international waters, and consequently can't be held too soon.

This is the hurricane season for the United Nations, and is an especially trying time for the Big Three upon whom falls the brunt of the task of keeping the Allied ship on a fairly even keel.

The end of the war in Europe has intensified the cross-currents which have been developing: the Polish question, the Yugoslav claims to Italian and Austrian territory, the problems attendant on the occupation of Germany, the generally disturbed condition of the Balkans, the activities of the Communist cells throughout Europe.

It's no exaggeration to say that the next few months will represent the most dangerous period which the Allies are likely to encounter.

If fate pretexts a split among the Big Three—which Heaven forbid—it probably will come in this early danger period. If they can pass through that safely, then the sailing should be increasingly good.

There are numerous factors entering into this danger-period but the most important are these:

1. Mutual suspicions of political and economic intentions.
2. The fact that the Russian and British spheres of influence are undergoing radical changes as the Red tide advances westward.
3. The Communist "Daily Worker" of London today says editorially that the British Government has "assisted in building up a so-called Polish Army whose officers frankly boast that they live for nothing but the day when they can fight the U.S.S.R." Previously the Russian Army newspaper "Red Star" in Moscow had asserted that the London Polish Government was training an "intervention force" for use in Poland—a claim which Polish quarters in London promptly denied.
4. Well, so we could go on but it all adds up to this: the greatest service the forthcoming meeting of Prime Minister Churchill, President Truman and Premier Stalin can render will be to iron out the suspicions, and the causes of the suspicions. Presumably they will deal with all the European and Oriental situations which give rise to anxiety—and they are numerous.

International Situation

Himmler—Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo Chief, commits suicide after capture by British 2nd Army, swallowing poison from vial concealed in mouth; Ribbentrop only top-notch Nazi still at large.

Germany—Nazi stenographic notes show Hitler intended to conquer Poland, Czechoslovakia as first move in war against Western European powers.

France—French Foreign Affairs committee recommends France sever relations with Spain and that steps be taken to force France's resignation.

China—Japanese land reinforcements on Chinese coast in Fochow area as three-pronged Chinese offensive engulfs Hwaiyuanchen.

Burma—British 14th Army troops occupy Bassein, river port 88 miles west of Rangoon.

Philippines—Mopping up stage reached on Mindanao Island, Gen. MacArthur reports; three divisions link on central plateau.

ROLE OF ARMED FORCES STUDIED AT CONFERENCE

Action Postponed on French and Australian Amendments Proposing Mixed Forces Be Held in Readiness for Emergency.

San Francisco, May 25.—(P)—Overnight proposals which would give added weight and importance to the economic and social council of the new world peace organization were among the more interesting proposals at the United Nations Conference moved toward the end of a week of disappointingly slow progress.

Committees sat all day yesterday without reporting any major progress in disposing of the main points of difference. Possibly the absence of State Secretary Stettinius, who is due back today from talks with President Truman in Washington, held up expected compromise proposals from the Big Five on a number of disputed points.

The original Dumbarton Oaks Agreement, which is the working basis for the conference, proposed the economic and social council as a sort of poor relation of the world organization.

Its purpose was to help bring about economic and social conditions which would remove some of the causes of war.

Hitler's Plans For World War Taken By Allied Officials

By ALVIN STEINKOPF
Berchtesgaden, May 25.—(P)—

Stenographic notes the Nazis tried unsuccessfully to destroy have revealed a secret, self-indicting account of Adolf Hitler saying he planned the "crushing" of Czechoslovakia and Poland as "essential preliminaries for the war of the future" against the Allies.

Hitler said Germany was "superlatively prepared" for war and that psychologically she "could not afford to waste" Nazi-schooled fanaticism, which he feared might die down.

Hitler's private report, made to Division Commanders last December 12, was the most spectacular find to date by American officers studying thousands of pages of partly-charged notes which are shaping up as an indisputable indictment of German war guilt.

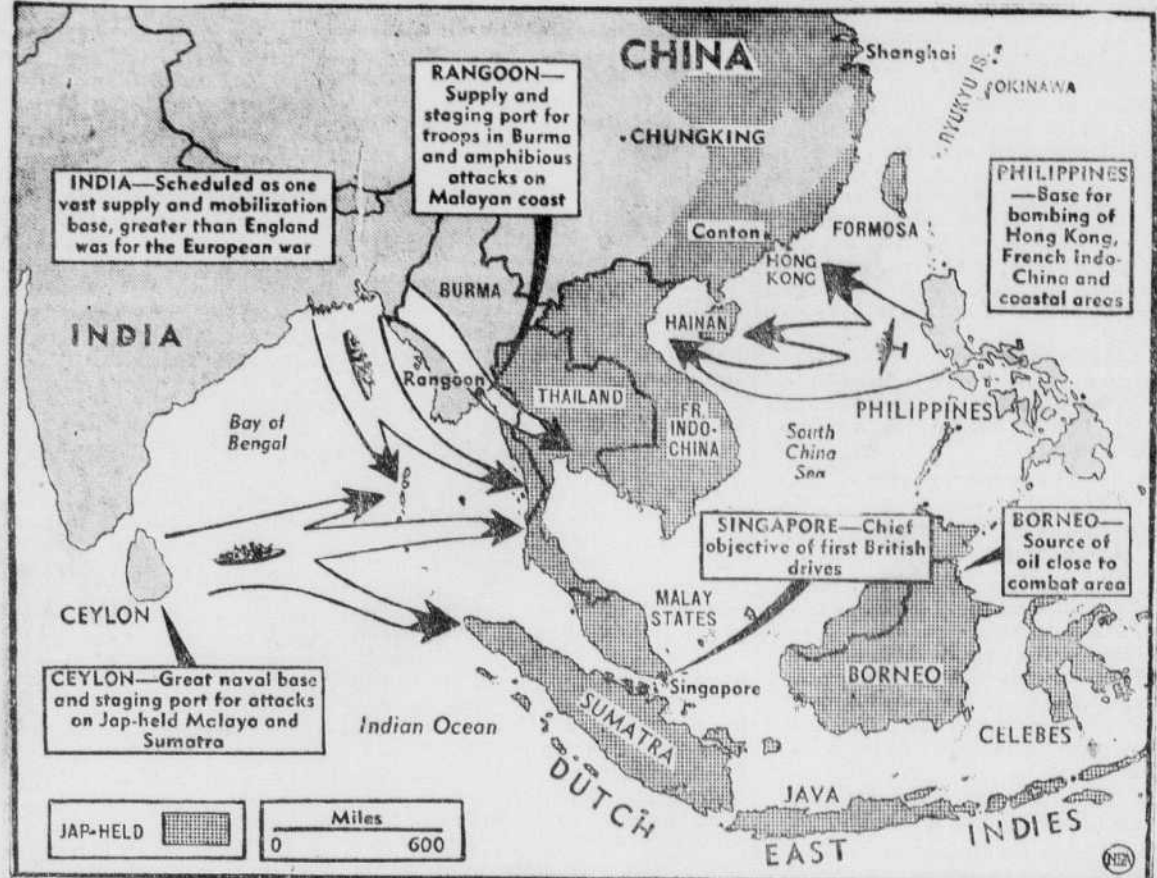

German stenographers, who themselves took down many of these statements, the Nazis never dreamed would come to light, were transcribing the notes, brought here from Berlin, when a partial text of Hitler's report was found.

Made just before the German Ardennes offensive of December 16, Hitler outlined his plans made in peacetime for war preparation in this order:

- "First, immediate introduction of universal military service.
- "Second, reestablishment of German sovereignty through the occupation of the Rhineland and the creation of a fortification system.
- "Third, immediate annexation of Austria, crushing of Czechoslovakia and ultimatum to Poland in order to bring Germany, territorially, to a position for effective defence.
- "These were the essential preliminaries for the war of the future. There is not only military preparation, there also is territorial preparation for a big war and in this respect we with limited space were very badly off.
- "If the course we then proposed to make should lead to a big war," Hitler continued, without specifying what that course was, "obviously we would have to be accepted. Because it was better to accept it then in a moment when we were superlatively prepared rather than at some other moment in which this advantage might have been lost. That one cannot avoid war by refraining from striking was demonstrated by the First Great War."

Everything Points to Trouble for Japs

Map above shows how things are shaping up in the southeast Asia theater of the war against Japan, with signs pointing to more headaches for the foe. Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allies' overall chief in the Southwest Asia Command, is rapidly augmenting his land, air and sea forces for a slashing offensive.

Bracken Turns To Domestic Issues As King Attacks P.C. Opponents For Office In June 11 Federal Ballot

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the first time in his western speaking tour, Prime Minister Mackenzie King has turned to an attack on his Progressive Conservative opponents for office in the June 11 federal election.

The attack came last night in Winnipeg when Mr. King, who up to now has based his election appeal on the Government's record, criticized what he said was Progressive Conservative support of Quebec candidates who were opposed to conscription.

While Mr. King was speaking at Winnipeg, John Bracken, National Leader of the Progressive Conservatives, who recently had been critical of the Government's Pacific war policy, turned to domestic issues in a speech at Saskatoon, outlining his party's plans to stimulate production in southern and western Saskatchewan and eastern and southern Alberta.

Mr. Bracken said his party proposed to take a direct and positive interest in the maximum, efficient development of resources, physical and human, in every section of the Dominion. Every part of Canada had its opportunities for fuller development and a generous and sympathetic attitude would be taken toward each.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. National Leader, spoke at Ottawa and told a rally he did not think there was "any possibility for imposing conscription for the Pacific War, though if it were needed no doubt the country would be prepared for it."

He said a Canadian Division was going to the Pacific as an integral part of the United States Army because "the Americans think it is their own private quarrel against the Japs and they insist a Canadian Division serve with their forces and not as a separate formation."

Mr. King, who now is en route to Ottawa where he is expected Saturday, charged before his Winnipeg audience that the Progressive Conservative Party, which in the past had tried to make Canada believe he was influenced by Quebec, now was trying to make the Quebec people believe he had been their enemy.

"No kind of political warfare could be more contemptible," he added. "It may, if it succeeds, do me harm for a day, but the harm it will do for a day will be nothing to the injury it will do our country for a generation."

DREW PROMISES TO INVESTIGATE JOLLIFFE CLAIM

C.C.F. Leader Charges Government - Paid Political "Gestapo" Operates in Ontario, Maintained By Premier to Spy on Opposition.

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Charges by C.C.F. Leader Jolliffe that a Government-paid political "Gestapo" operates in Ontario, with quick denial from Premier Drew—lifted Ontario's election campaign today from a comparatively dull discussion of domestic policy to fire and counter-fire.

Mr. Jolliffe last night said a secret police force was being maintained by the Premier to spy on all opposition to his government. "It is the pattern of big business versus the common people," he compared the organization to the Blackshirts of England, the Cagoullards of France, the Falangists of Spain.

At Timmins Premier Drew termed the charges "false in every detail" as quoted to him, and said there would be an immediate investigation by the week-end.

While at London, Ont., Liberal Leader Mitchell Hepburn, former Premier, declared himself "not surprised" and added his desk was thrice rifled.

Mr. Jolliffe said in a broadcast over the provincial network of the CBC his "incredible serious charge" was fully supported by affidavit and "I make the accusation with full consciousness of my great responsibility as the leader of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition in Ontario."

Premier Drew, who heard part of the C.C.F. leader's broadcast while

Most Sinister Of All Nazis Takes Poison After Capture

Murder Was His Hobby

HEINRICH HIMMLER, arch criminal, leader of the Gestapo and the S.S., who committed suicide following his capture by Allied troops.

Supreme Headquarters Confirms Death of Most Sinister of All Nazis. Who as Head of Gestapo and S.S., Ordered Ruthless Extermination of Thousands.

British 2nd Army Headquarters, May 25.—(P)—Second Army officials still are undecided today whether to hold a funeral for Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler in the presence of German military and civilian bigwigs who are in Allied hands.

Thirty-six hours after the suicide death by poison of the S. S. Chief his body still lay on the bare floor of a Luenburg villa. It will be placed in a coffin today.

It was generally suspected that the former German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, the only high Nazi not yet captured or reported dead, was somewhere in the British sector in Northwest Germany. However, considering the number of refugees on the move throughout the countryside, considerable time could elapse before his capture.

Himmler took his life Wednesday night by biting into a vial of poison hidden in his mouth as he stood before his British captors.

Supreme Headquarters at Paris last night confirmed the death of the most sinister of all the Nazis, who as head of the dreaded Gestapo and the S.S. had ordered the ruthless extermination of thousands.

Three days earlier Himmler—object of history's greatest manhunt—had been picked up in disguise as he tried to cross a bridge at Bremervor, 25 miles west of Hamburg, in the company of two tough-looking Nazis.

No one knew then that the British Tommies on guard at the bridge had at last in their hands the man who ordered the destruction of Lidice in Czechoslovakia, and who had been held responsible for the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Jews and political prisoners in Nazi murder camps.

He had shaved off his toothbrush moustache. A black hair over his right eye replaced his horn-rimmed glasses. He was in civilian clothes and forged identity papers bore the name of one Hertzinger, discharged

CHINESE TAKE HAWIYUANCHEN FROM JAPANESE

Enemy Reported By Chinese High Command to be Falling Back Toward Ishan, 43 Miles Northwest of Liuchow.

By SPENCER MOOSA
Chungking, May 25.—(P)—

Chinese troops sweeping down the Kei-chow-Kwangsi Railway last night captured Hawiyuanchen, important Kwangsi stronghold 50 miles northwest of Liuchow, a Chinese Army spokesman announced today.

The Japanese have been reported by the Chinese High Command to be falling back toward Ishan, 43 miles northwest of Liuchow. The Chinese drive evidently was aimed at Liuchow itself, a former American air base in Kwangsi which now is a strategic rail junction stronghold along the enemy lifeline corridor between Manchuria and Indo-China.

On the East China Coast, the Japanese, swept from positions which they had fortified against possible Allied landings, have hurled fresh troops into an attempt to stem their own retreat northeast of Chinese-held Fochow.

A special Chinese communiqué said last night that warship-borne enemy troops were rushed into the sector where the Japanese have fallen back to a point near Loyuan, 31 miles northeast of Fochow. Landings were made Tuesday north of Loyuan from "several warships," but the enemy was being checked with the aid of local militia, the Chinese said.

Huge Fires Rage In Heart Of Industrial Tokyo Today

Manila, May 25.—(P)—United States Marines fought today in the streets of Naha in a drive for control of that capital city of Okinawa. The move could become a flanking movement to the east for the conquest of the principal stronghold of the fortress city of Shuri.

With grenades, flame-throwers and small arms, the 6th Marine Division was moving through rubble, virtually all that remained of the city as a result of weeks of heavy naval and air bombardment.

Fighting on Mindanao Island was officially termed in the "mopping-up stage" but thousands of Japanese troops remain to be dug out of mountain positions before the big southern Philippine island can be considered won.

Australian troops on New Guinea, captured Cape Moem, four miles west of Wewak. A strange sidelight on that campaign was the finding of 7,000 small boxes of Japanese ashes believed to be those of cremated Japanese dead from fighting, bombing and disease since the enemy landed in that sector in December, 1942.

Huge fires still raged in the heart of industrial Tokyo today after Thursday's 9,000,000-pound firebomb raid, greatest ever carried out on Japan's capital city.

Tokyo radio said "thousands of homes" were destroyed and the mansions of three imperial princes either were gutted or partially burned along with the French and Italian embassies, the Mexican Legation, and the official residences of the Minister of Education and the Minister of Transport.

Officials of the 21st Bomber Command hesitated to estimate results because of difficulties of obtaining clear pictures of the devastation. Returning pilots, however, declared the raid was highly successful. Among targets struck were the giant marshalling yards of the principal Japanese railroad lines.

An unidentified Japanese communiqué claimed today that airborne troops "daringly landed" on two American-held airfields on Okinawa last night and "blasted grounded aircraft, munitions depots and airfield installations in rapid succession."

Other Japanese broadcasts claimed recent attempts of small Allied scouting parties to land on Makahine Island and on southern Malaher were frustrated. Both islands are in the Celebes group south of the Philippines.

Organized resistance ceased Wednesday in the Ipo Dam trap north-west of Manila on Luzon Island. Bitter fighting still was in progress but a headquarters spokesman said the Japanese no longer were under central control.

To the north three United States divisions maintained steady pressure along the important Balet Pass, closely supported by bombers and fighters.

World News In Brief

London, May 25.—(P)—The Tokyo Radio said today that if Japan should desire peace "it would be possible that Japan would make proposals through Russia."

The broadcast insisted, however, that "the war is only now starting."

"Others have suggested that Japan intends to propose peace to the Anglo-Americans through Russia," it said. "Russia and Japan are neutral with each other, and therefore if Japan should desire peace it would be possible that Japan would make proposals through Russia. We do not deny this fact."

Trieste, May 25.—(P)—Tension in this disputed city today appeared to have relaxed as discussions toward a settlement of occupation problems continued on a high level, but there was no indication whether the Allies would look kindly upon a three-point proposal said to have been handed their representatives in Belgrade two days ago by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Tito's insistence on representation in the Allied military government and on retention of the administrative bodies created by the Yugoslavs in the past three weeks seemed the knotiest issues.

Quebec, May 25.—(P)—The Legislative Council gave third reading to a bill authorizing the Provincial Government to increase for a two-year period the annual grant to the University of Montreal from $375,000 to $500,000.

Hon. Jacob Nicol (L., Bedford), said that "buildings, no matter how nice and expensive, will never go to make a university in Montreal or elsewhere; a university needs 'career' professors."

"It is impossible to have a good and great university anywhere with amateur and part-time professors," he added.

New York, May 25.—(P)—Marshal Stalin, in a speech broadcast today by the Moscow radio, thanked Soviet citizens last night for their confidence in the Soviet Government which, he said, had turned out to be the decisive factor that secured the historic victory over the enemy of mankind—over Fascism.

The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said Mr. Stalin's speech was made in the form of a toast at a reception for Red Army commanders in the Kremlin.

London, May 25.—(P)—The Daily Worker, British Communist organ, said today in an editorial that the British Government has "assisted in building up a so-called Polish Army whose officers frankly boast that they live for nothing but the day when they can fight the U.S.S.R."

The editorial followed by 24 hours an assertion by the Russian Army newspaper Red Star in Moscow that the London Polish Government was training an "intervention force" for use in Poland. Polish military authorities in London had promptly denied the Red Star assertion.

Oso, May 25.—(P)—The Norwegian Government in London will be coming home shortly to face the prospect of an early, brisk election after the country settles down to a normal existence.

Political leaders say Prime Minister Nygaardsovd will have little difficulty at the polls if he seeks to continue in office.

Quebec, May 25.—(P)—Royal assent was given today to 34 bills by Lieutenant-Governor Sir Eugene Fiset, with the main bill being that authorizing expenditures of $12,000,000 for the setting up of electricity cooperatives to promote rural electrification.

The assembly gave unanimous final approval to a bill by Premier Duplessis authorizing the establishment of a child aid clinic service, associated with the juvenile delinquents court in Montreal and composed of psychiatrist, a psychologist, a physician and "other functionaries and employees as needed."

Routine first reading was given a bill by Hon. J. S. Bourque, Minister of Lands and Forests, which Premier Duplessis said would facilitate the establishment in Quebec Province of four new industries. Only one of the four mentioned was Singer Sewing Machine Company, which is expected to spend up to $4,000,000 on a plant at St. John's.

AYER'S CLIFF PREPARING FOR FAIR CENTENARY

Ayer's Cliff, May 25.—Discussion of ways and means of special publicity for the big Centennial Exhibition of Stanstead County Fair occupied the attention of the Directors at a special meeting held in the Main Hall, Tuesday evening. After some discussion it was agreed to set a tentative allotment of $500 for the Fair's publicity, subject to change, dependent on what Government grants were received.

Reporting on the expected grants, John Peters, of Marq, stated that an increased provincial grant was anticipated shortly, and a study of a similar grant was being made at Ottawa. A letter was read from Ottawa stating that no definite decision had as yet been made on the matter, but due to so many Ontario fairs, and others across Canada, this year observing their 100th anniversary year, a proposal had been made to commemorate the event by erecting a flagpole and commemorative plaque on each fairground where the Centennial year was being observed.

Several proposals for publicity angles were submitted by Gordon Beerworth, the Fair's publicity director, and an agreement was made with Capt. G. Hall, former publicity director for the Bovril Company and recently retired from public relations work with the Canadian Active Army, for some special advertising material. Capt. Hall also agreed to endeavor to secure a special military show to be staged during the exhibition.

A letter was read from the Department of Agriculture at Quebec approving the plan of operations for the 1945 Fair staged under the direction of the Stanstead County Agricultural Association.

A letter from the Secretary of the Eastern Townships County Fair Boards Association regarding the result of resolutions passed at the annual meeting on acts and attractions, and asking information on collection of amusement taxes and the 1945 race programme was tabled for further discussion.

Donald MacMillan, district agronomist, who has been in charge of getting the prize lists printed, reported that these would be ready shortly, being now in process of printing. An unavoidable delay due to wartime conditions in the printing shop had prevented publication of the prize lists on May 1st as anticipated. Mr. MacMillan also stated that the members' tickets would be available for distribution next week.

John Peters suggested a monthly meeting of all directors to enable them to keep in touch with the progress of events, and this was agreed on. A special meeting of the Centenary Committee has been set for Friday, June 1, at Ayer's Cliff, when plans will be completed for the special programme being arranged by this group, which includes many well known persons in the county who have been active in historical work.

A meeting of the Executive Committee will be held early next week to sanction many suggested improvements and repairs to the grounds and buildings. All horse barns will be completely overhauled and several additions are contemplated.

ALLEY OOP Full Blast

DISTURBANCES CONTINUING IN SYRIA, LEBANON

Paris, May 25.—(AP)—French authorities were reported considering asking for recall of the Syrian and Lebanese ministers today after the latter issued a statement declaring their governments, backed by the Arab world, were ready to resist to the utmost if their current differences with France were not adjusted.

French Government spokesmen said the joint statement of the two ministers to a press conference yesterday stirred official quarters considerably, not only because of the contents but because the statements by last night had not been communicated to the government. The action was regarded as a breach of diplomatic etiquette.

Demonstrations against the presence of French troops—core of the dispute—continue meanwhile in both Syria and Lebanon.

The Lebanese National Congress yesterday voted support of its government's policy in rejecting French negotiations for an agreement which would withhold unqualified recognition of Syrian and Lebanese independence. Delegates in Beirut urged immediate recruitment of an army, while in Damascus all public places were closed yesterday, as strikes continued through the sixth day in protest against the presence of the French troops.

There were no reported incidents, but to avoid trouble French families in Syria were advised to leave their homes and gather at Messe, a Damascus suburb.

ASK DE GAULLE BREAK OFF RELATIONS WITH SPAIN

Paris, May 25.—(AP)—The French Foreign Affairs Committee asked the de Gaulle Government today to break relations with Spain, force the extradition of Pierre Laval and propose means to the Allied nations to force Gen. Franco from office.

The committee is composed of members of the Assembly.

The recommendation to Gen. de Gaulle's government asserted that the Franco regime was no different from the erstwhile Fascist Government of Italy before its surrender.

Spanish regime was termed a menace to world democracy.

PRIME MINISTER NON-COMMITTAL ON TAX KILLING

Quebec, May 25.—(AP)—Arthur Mathewson, Provincial Treasurer in the former Goulet Liberal administration, said last night that the Quebec Union National Government illegally levied since April 27th a six per cent luxury tax which was killed by the Quebec Legislative Council in the first such action in forty-seven years, by the technical device of giving the bill a six months' life.

Mr. Mathewson, who is Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Montreal Notre Dame de Grace, told members of the Press Gallery that the Quebec Provincial Government was not authorized to levy a new tax the day a bill providing for that tax is introduced in the Legislature, as was done in the case of the luxury tax bill.

Merchants today were more confused than ever since they were asked to levy the six per cent tax. They were wondering over what was the money they had collected and whether they should continue collecting the tax especially since Premier Duplessis indicated no decision on the matter might be forthcoming for some time.

Mr. Duplessis told The Canadian Press that there was nothing "official" about the bill killing. "There is no report before the Legislative Assembly and I know nothing about the matter," he said.

It was learned officially that no report would be sent to the Assembly and that the Assembly would have to "find out for itself" what has happened. "It may be days before the Assembly decides to inquire about what the Council did to the bill."

The vote on the bill was 12-4 in the predominantly Liberal Council, only Provincial Upper House in Canada. Twelve Liberals voted in favor of the amendment postponing action on the bill for six months, while the Conservatives, two of the three Liberal National Councilors present to vote against the amendment.

Liberals held 19 of the 24 seats in the Council.

The bill was effective since it was first introduced in the Lower House on April 27th. It was subsequently passed in the Lower House, as was another bill abolishing the two per cent sales tax which the luxury tax was designed to replace. The Upper House has not yet taken final action on the sales tax abolition bill, and it passed over that item on the order paper to discuss other bills at the afternoon sitting.

It was thought possible that the Government would withdraw the bill abolishing the sales tax, thus having the tax situation revert to where it was originally—a two per cent sales tax and no six per cent luxury tax. Luxury tax revenue was to have been earmarked for education and public health.

Premier Duplessis had promised abolition of the sales tax as part of his campaign platform in Quebec general elections last summer. The luxury tax which was to replace it, however, drew a storm of protests from merchants and residents on the grounds that although described as a "luxury" tax, it was in reality applied to a wide range of articles that could not be considered luxuries.

Speculation as to what Premier Duplessis would do should the luxury tax bill be killed by the Council has been rampant. The measure would be dropped, to reports that Mr. Duplessis would call a general election. Speaking on the measure in the Council earlier this week, Union National Councillor Pierre Bertrand (U.N.—Lassalle) hinted that the Upper Chamber might be abolished if the tax bill was not passed.

Confusion as to the fate of the tax measure was not unshared during the last few weeks by confusion among merchants as to its application. With the original sales tax measure scheduled to continue until the end of the year, the majority of merchants have "played safe" by charging both sales and luxury tax on most articles—a total of eight per cent.

member of the German Field Security Police.

For three days he hid the vial of poison in his mouth as he was questioned, stripped and searched from toe to ear, then finally admitted his identity by ripping off the eye patch Wednesday night in the parlor of a house in Luenberg, 25 miles south of Hamburg.

Wrapped only in blankets and wearing only socks—his clothes had been taken from him for fear he might have poison hidden in them—an examining doctor told him to open his mouth.

When the doctor saw a small blue vial hidden there, Himmler bit into it and 25 minutes later, at 11:04 p.m., he was dead.

A dramatic account of Himmler's ignominious last days was given in a dispatch by Terence Duncan, Exchange Telegraph correspondent at British 2nd Army Headquarters.

Two British soldiers guarding the Bremerwerde Bridge stopped three men on Monday. The three produced papers which aroused the guards' suspicions.

They were placed under close arrest and passed on to a camp guarded by Field Security Police at Westertine. Himmler's identity still was unknown.

Then Himmler requested an interview with the camp commander and without giving his name disclosed his identity by removing the black eye shield.

Duncan, quoting a senior intelligence officer of Lt.-Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's staff, said Himmler's identity was confirmed by the chief of counter-intelligence at the camp and later beyond all question by Dempsey's counter-intelligence officers.

In order to prevent attempts at suicide, Himmler was immediately stripped despite a vehement protest. He was given three choices, to remain stripped, to wear British battle dress or to wrap himself in blankets. He chose the blankets, and it was in them that he later died.

After the interview, the blanket-wrapped Himmler was taken by auto from the camp to Luenberg, where a house was set aside for his confinement.

Duncan said it was arranged for medical officers to examine Himmler further last night, the fourth search since the Gestapo head man was arrested.

The last examination was very thorough, Duncan reported. Himmler's feet, hands, legs and back of his ears were closely examined.

The medical officer then asked Himmler to open his mouth and roll his tongue around. The response was unsatisfactory, and the doctor led him to a light and again told him to open his mouth.

Feared Halifax

Mayor Butler, on the stand most of Wednesday, completed his testimony yesterday morning. He said he had read in the newspapers about the Monday night disturbances—when a police patrol car and a streetcar were burned and liquor stores raided—but police officers told him that things were "not as serious as described in the paper."

He took no further action, as a result, until 1:30 p.m. V-E Day when he was informed of crowds causing trouble in the downtown business sections.

The only other witness yesterday was Michael Dwyer, streetcar conductor, who testified he had seen a crowd of lavy men moving south on Barrington Street and smashing windows on V-E Day afternoon.

He said he had heard complaints from servicemen "mostly from the navy" for the past 12 months. He had heard such expressions used: "Never mind, boys, this will soon be over and our day will come. And we'll open Halifax wide!"

"Mr. Joffille's statements as they have been quoted to me are false. So far as I am personally concerned I have no knowledge of any organization such as he describes and have never at any time given any instructions for secret inquiries of any kind."

"I have not seen the text of Mr. Joffille's speech, but when I do there will be an immediate and complete inquiry into every statement he has made."

The C.C.F. chief claimed the alleged organization was financed from provincial funds and operated for the purpose of keeping the government in power.

In charge of the secret force the Government has placed a Capt. William J. Osborne-Dempster, and its office was on the second floor of an old police garage at 18 Surrey Place, just off Queen's Park. The telephone number, supposed to be secret, was Randolph 5718.

CADETS STAGED IMPRESSIVE DEMONSTRATION AT ARENA

High Ranking Officers Of M.D. 4 Attended Display Here Last Night

Citizens crowded the Arena to capacity last night to cheer one thousand Royal Canadian Army Cadets of the Sherbrooke area, presenting eight units, through a well planned display, the first of the kind to be organized here. The units gave demonstrations of rifle drill, physical culture, semaphore drill, guard mounting, counter marching, precision drill, anti-aircraft gun drill, battle drill and marching on colors. The whole was received with enthusiasm and was attended by high ranking officers of Military District, No. 4.

Taking part in the display were the following cadet units, with instructors listed: No. 2 Bishop's College School, Lt. W. S. Fisher; No. 209, Sherbrooke High School, Sgt. Major R. Smith; No. 256, Stantstead College, Capt. L. G. McGilton; No. 37, Seminaire St. Charles Borromeo, Rev. Father R. Ward; No. 402, St. Patrick's Academy, Capt. P. Slattery; No. 1594, l'Ecole Supérieure de Sherbrooke, Rev. Bro. Severin; No. 1872, Beebe High School, C. E. Miller; No. 1930, 72nd Battery, Coaticook and Ayer's Cliff High Schools, Capt. M. B. Farrill.

Outstanding were the Cadets of Bishop's College School and Sherbrooke High School.

The first unit opened the programme with a Marching On Colors. The colors carried by the B.C.S. Corps were battle colors, awarded the unit for active service in the Fenian Raid of 1886. Only one other Cadet Corps in the British Commonwealth of Nations is entitled to carry battle colors. This Corps is the oldest in the Dominion of Canada, having been formed in 1861, with 84 years of continuous existence. Commanded by Cadet-Major, D. M. Stoker, of Montreal, the Corps is affiliated with the Black Watch Regiment, Royal Highlanders of Canada. Approximately 450 former cadets of the Corps have been on Active Service in this war. Forty-seven have been killed.

The Guard Mounting display of the unit was carried out by the junior cadets, under the command of two senior cadet officers, Cadet Lieut. Satterthwaite, of New York, and Cadet Lieut. Wallace, of Montreal.

The Sherbrooke High School Cadet Corps performed a battle drill, advancing in file, line and arrow-head formation. They were equipped with rifles, Bren guns, Stens, an anti-tank piat, two-inch mortars, a walkie-talkie, respirators and tin helmets.

The Counter Marching of the band of l'Ecole Supérieure de Sherbrooke was excellent, and the demonstration of physical culture by a group from St. Charles Seminaire Borromeo was interesting.

Stantstead High School gave a good demonstration of rifle drill, and two anti-aircraft gun crews composed of boys from St. Patrick's Academy in Sherbrooke gave a smart show, assembling their equipment in 1 min. 3 sec. flat.

Band music was supplied during the exhibition by the band of the Sherbrooke Regiment, under Lieut. R. Havard. In the final March Past, music was supplied by the band of the Cadet Corps of St. Charles Seminaire, under Rev. Father G. Patenaude.

Salutes in the March Past in which all units participated were taken by Col. Leopold Chevalier, E.D., 10th Infantry Brigade Commander; Lt.-Col. G. Monpetit, E.E.M., G.S. O.I., M.D. No. 4, Montreal, representing Gen. Renaud; Lt.-Col. L. Chicoine, E.D., D.C.O., M.D. No. 4, Montreal; and Major John Bassett, Jr., Seaford Highlanders.

Other officers present were Col. C. W. Grier, headmaster of Bishop's College School; Lt.-Col. B. Lyons, E.D., commanding officer Sherbrooke Regiment; Lt.-Col. A. Genest, commanding officer, Sherbrooke Fusiliers; and Major L. W. Greenland, E.D., commanding officer, 35th Battery.

Members of the Sherbrooke Branch, Canadian Legion, executed a Flag Patrol, displaying the flags of the United Nations.

Markers for the March Past were two cadets of B.C.S., with lancers. Organizers of the display were W. W. Gibson, Principal of the Sherbrooke High School; Capt. Slattery; Rev. Father Ward; St. Charles Seminaire; Rev. Bro. Dalton, St. Patrick's Academy; Capt. Farrill, Coaticook; Col. Grier, B.C.S.; Col. Chevalier; Lt.-Col. Genest; Lt.-Col. Lyons; Lt.-Col. Greenland; Sgt.-Major R. Smith, S.H.S.; and Capt. B. Taylor, A.D. C.O., M.D. No. 4, Montreal, officer in charge of the southern zone. Capt. Taylor announced, assisted by Rev. Father Ward, of St. Charles Seminaire.

The First Aid Post was directed by Major W. W. Foote, E.D., V.D., Commander of the local Mobile Force.

RECEIVES PROMOTION—Word has been received by Mrs. Myrtle Pyne, Johnson Avenue, Coaticook, that her son, Captain Rupert J. K. Pyne, has recently been promoted to the rank of Major, while serving with the Canadian Army in Germany.

Major Pyne is a graduate of Coaticook High School, and was a student at Bishop's University when he enlisted in 1940. Going overseas as a lieutenant in 1941, he was promoted to the rank of captain in 1943, and has served in action in Italy, France, Holland and Germany. His brother, Pte. Geoffrey Pyne, who was discharged from the Army after being severely wounded, was overseas for four and a half years, and returned home only a few months ago.

PLANS FOR FIRE CHIEFS' RALLY ARE DISCUSSED

Plans for the coming convention of the Fire and Police Chief Association of Quebec were discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Association held in Hull last Tuesday which Fire Chief W. P. Donahue attended.

Chief Donahue reported this morning that a special five-man committee, including himself, had been appointed at the meeting to study changes in regulations of the Association, and that their duties will be outlined at the next and last meeting of the Association's year on June 6th. It will be held in Verdun.

The convention, which is scheduled to begin July 9th and last for four days, will include such matters as the election of new officers for the coming year. The Chief also announced that there would likely be a special meeting called before the convention.

Six Candidates In Sherbrooke Are Invited To Outline Platforms To Members Of Junior Board Of Trade

The six candidates running for election in Sherbrooke County are scheduled to outline their platforms in brief ten minute speeches to the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Social Club Monday evening, it was announced today.

Coinciding with this announcement was the report in the semi-monthly bulletin issued to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce that they would be staging a "Get out the vote" campaign beginning around the first of June.

Meeting as the guests of J. O. Gagne, proprietor of the New Wellington Hotel last night, a special gathering of the executive committee of the Junior Chamber was informed by President Roger Larose that arrangements to have Major John Bassett, Jr., Progressive Conservative candidate; Maurice Giguere, Liberal candidate; Joseph Labrecque, Independent candidate; Dr. V. Olivier, Blue Populaire candidate; Romeo Gauthier, Social Credit candidate; and Philippe Pepin, C.C.F. candidate, address a general meeting of the Chamber, to present its members with an opportunity to hear the programme and platform each had been completed.

Nominated in Executive Committee, H. B. Lemieux was elected Assistant Treasurer and S. Pabi and J. L. Choquette were elected Directors. Mr. Larose reported that the financial status of the Chamber was in very sound condition with all debts contracted having been paid. He said that the Chamber now had an official membership of 175 and that they were issuing additional invitations to the young business men of the city to join.

Romeo Duford, Secretary of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, reporting in the Chamber's bulletin, stated that "We are too often inclined to take for granted the rights and privileges which we enjoy as citizens of a free and democratic country. Despite the lessons which a world war within a generation should have taught us, we still fondly believe that it can't happen here, that whatever may take place in the other countries of the world, our individual rights will remain."

"We are far too prone to look upon the Government as a power above and beyond us, a paternalistic body with the authority and responsibility necessary to guide us along the economic and social road of life. We forget ours is the power, ours is the authority which government exercises only at our behest. We forget that government consists of our representatives voicing our opinions and acting with the authority which we have delegated."

"The general election will be held on June 11th and on that day we will be afforded the opportunity to exercise our right as individuals to elect the government of our choice. In 1940 we had the same opportunity yet almost two million listed Canadian voters failed to exercise their franchise," he said.

MAGAZINES FOR OVERSEAS ARE STILL NEEDED

"While transportation facilities are being readied to bring many Canadians back home as soon as possible, our boys will still have to spend many a lonely hour overseas until embarkation day arrives," pointed out Mrs. A. N. Scott, in charge of Montreal's Central Magazine Depot. This is the organization that packs and ships magazines donated by Sherbrooke people and all over the world to two and a half million magazines within two years.

Mrs. Scott went on to say that since V-E Day, fewer and fewer magazines have been coming in to the depot for shipment overseas, yet now is the time, if ever, when our servicemen really need the "lift" that a magazine from home will give.

"We do not consider our job done at the Magazine Depot until every one of our boys is returned to civies again," Mrs. Scott reported. "As long as they are away from home, they need and want your magazines more than ever."

Magazine donations from Sherbrooke citizens may be dropped at either Keene's Garage, Dufferin Avenue, or Thompson's Garage, London Street. They will then be immediately shipped to outposts and camps wherever are Canadian service boys away from home.

THE THIRD REICH KAPUT

The arrest and imprisonment of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, General Albert Jodl and other members of Germany's "government," high command and general staff has one important meaning which overshadows all else. The Third Reich which its founder, Adolf Hitler, declared was to last a thousand years, is dead, barely twenty years after it was first given birth in a Munich beer cellar. In fact, Germany itself as a nation has ceased to be. It has no government, it has no defence forces, it has no rights and it has only such internal administration, economic organization and national boundaries as the occupying Allied forces choose to give it. As a governmental and political organism it has ceased to be as effectively as if it never had existed.

The Doenitz rump government was the last functioning organization of the Third Reich, or of Germany itself, and it was only maintained in power while it served the Allied purpose of bringing about the dissolution of the German army.

The dissolution and arrest of the members of the high command removes a serious ground for concern among the Allied people. Ever since the Allied military leaders tacitly gave their consent to Doenitz remaining at the head of the German war machine while his forces were being rounded up, the fear was expressed that he and other members of the Prussian Junker class would find some means of perpetuating their power. This class has been the backbone for every German aggressive move in the days gone by and to permit them to retain their organization would be laying the sure and certain foundation for a future war.

But this danger has to a large extent been removed. With one or two exceptions every responsible senior German official is now either in Allied hands or is dead. Any organization which will be maintained in Germany for many years to come will have the sponsorship of one or other of the occupying powers.

Germany today is impotent in both a military and economic sense. It is as a house ripped down to its very foundations. The chief responsibility of the United Nations for the immediate future is to determine how it will be rebuilt. The old structure is beyond patching and fresh plans must be drawn for the new. And the way in which these plans are prepared will determine whether half-a-century hence Germany will be a self-respecting nation capable of taking its place among the other countries of the world or whether it will be restored as an international racketeer. This is the decision that must be made without delay.

THE CHANNEL PIPE LINE

Aside from the important part which it played in facilitating the advance of the Allied mechanized forces through France, the Low Countries and Germany, the construction of the pipeline beneath the English Channel, linking Great Britain to the Continent, may have a permanent effect on the entire petroleum industry of Europe in the opinion of many observers.

Already the original pipeline, constructed for purely military purposes, has been greatly extended until now petroleum landed at Liverpool can be pumped into Central Germany, while branch lines from the trunk circuits across France form a veritable network reaching almost every port on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coast and most of the major industrial centres. Thus, if the suitable commercial agreements can be concluded, tankers from North America and the Orient could be docked at two or three British ports and their contents delivered to the continent in place of the present inefficient methods whereby petroleum destined for any particular district had to be unloaded at some small and often inefficient port.

Similarly, it is not unreasonable to assume that tankers with supplies for Great Britain from the Orient might dock at Marseille or some other port in the south of France, where their cargoes would enter the pipelines and travel to the Old Country. The extension of these lines to the Balkans might also be envisaged and Romania and the other oil producing states in that region might find a market for their black gold in Great Britain, thus easing the effects on their economy of the inevitable curtailment of their former chief market in Germany.

In any case the importance of the development during the period of the occupation of Germany cannot be over-estimated, especially in the earlier periods before the continental transportation services have been restored to normal. The tremendous burden of moving oil supplies to the occupation forces will be removed from the railways and highways, freeing them for other purposes.

Thus, once again, developments caused by the stress may have an important bearing on peacetime economics.

FRENCH COLONIAL TROUBLES

Adding to the troubles of the de Gaulle administration which is seeking to restore the French homeland to a degree of normalcy following years of German occupation are the complications in the overseas possessions, Indo-China, Algeria and Syria-Lebanon, where local disputes are rapidly turning to bloodshed. In the first two countries French troops are already in action and in the third trouble is rapidly building up. There, the spokesmen for the Syrians and Lebanese are protesting the arrival of French reinforcements and declare they will resist with every means at their disposal any infringement of their sovereignty. In all three areas the troubles stem from the collapse of France in 1940 and the consequent weakening of bonds between the mother country and the colonies, both in actual physical communications and from the standpoint of French prestige.

The Japanese army entered rubber-rich Indo-China in the fall of 1940 but for nearly four years Tokyo gave lip service to the fiction of French sovereignty there. However early in March the pretence was dropped and the Japanese officially took over the whole country. The small and inadequately-armed French colonial garrison tried to fight but they have been driven into desolate inaccessible mountains on the border between Tonkin and South China.

The joint British and Free French campaign against the Vichy Government's hold on Syria and Lebanon also came in 1940. France had acquired mandates over the two countries from the League of Nations. After the expulsion of the Vichy regime they declared their independence. Nevertheless they were completely under French influence. Armed forces in both countries remained under command of French forces and the policies of their governments were more or less dictated by the French, first from Algiers and then from Paris. Now the Syrian and Lebanese Governments are trying to make their independence a fact.

They have protested the arrival of reinforcements which the French say were sent merely in preparation for use in the Pacific. Riots and strikes have broken out in Beyrouth and Damascus, the capitals, while in Paris the Syrian and Lebanese ministers have issued a joint statement that the whole Arab world would assist the two countries in resisting with every means at their disposal — backed by a statement earlier in the week against the French by the new Arab League of Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Iraq, Iran, Yemen and Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile in Algeria trouble has broken out on a large scale. Berber tribesmen rose suddenly two weeks ago and attacked French villages and outlying farmhouses. Nearly 1,500 Europeans and natives have been killed in the fighting, by the latest French War Ministry figures. The famous French Foreign Legion, supported by aircraft, has gone into action against the mountaineers and the Government claims the situation is coming rapidly under control.

General de Gaulle's Government thus faces serious difficulty in re-establishing possession of the huge French Empire. The Japanese simply grabbed Indo-China and even their defeat may leave conditions disturbed in a colony which already has had native troubles. The rising tide of Arab unity is threatening the Empire seriously in other areas where France exercises the biggest single overlordship over the world's Arab population.

An Eye Witness Report From A Merchant Navy Officer Of The Halifax Riots

By Dr. C. H. Church, of Coaticook.

I feel that the public of Canada may be interested in receiving an unbiased personal opinion regarding the Halifax riots on V-E Day from a man who served four years in the last war, in the Canadian Army Medical Corps, and four years in this war, in a merchant transport, who has been constantly calling at Halifax at fairly short intervals, and who has a first-hand knowledge of the events which led up to a very unfortunate and humiliating event. First, however, let me tell you of my experience with some riots I have witnessed. An early one was in Montreal in 1895, while a student at McGill. For some reason I have forgotten, the students marched through the streets from McGill College Avenue, going east on St. Catherine Street to St. Denis, and doing considerable damage in the way of pulling over signboards, and interfering with street cars. All went well until a body of about thirty policemen marched into our ranks and went to work with their clubs for about fifteen minutes. We put up a good fight for a while, and then, feeling discretion to be the better part of valor, broke up and ran. Since that time I have held police generally in respect, for indeed they have the law invariably on their side, and right betokens might, as has so recently been discovered by the Huns.

My second riot occurred at Inverness, Scotland, in the First Great War. There was an American naval base, of great size, at Inverness, and for some reason it kept order and patrolled traffic in the main thoroughfares. For some time naval men, doing considerable damage in the way of pulling over signboards, and interfering with street cars. All went well until a body of about thirty policemen marched into our ranks and went to work with their clubs for about fifteen minutes. We put up a good fight for a while, and then, feeling discretion to be the better part of valor, broke up and ran. Since that time I have held police generally in respect, for indeed they have the law invariably on their side, and right betokens might, as has so recently been discovered by the Huns.

My third experience was a riot in Boulogne, France, also in the First Great War. It was after the Armistice, when the city was filled with Allied soldiers of all nations awaiting ships to take them home. Among these was a large body of Portuguese soldiers, small size, cocky little fellows, with bombastic officers. Now as an old soldier I will tell you, their march to the city was a very high opinion of these men, for they had recently left their posts in the line in Belgium, without, it was considered, sufficient reason. Well, these little gentlemen had pretty generally taken over the examination, much to our annoyance. The all-mach came one fine day when two Scotch laddies went in for a wee drop, in their kilts, looking grand. The Portuguese fellows were very interested to know what they were under the kilt and just lifted the tail-end of one Scot's kilt to find out. This was too much, and a fight started with odds of fifteen or twenty to one, with the result that the two Scots were carried off to hospital. The news spread rapidly among the troops, and that night at 6 p.m. whistles blew at allotted corners, much to our annoyance. The all-mach in sight, on street cars, and in shops or houses, were battered and wounded until they had all cleared out of the city and into their barracks. It is interesting to note that in these three riots no one was killed, or even very seriously injured to my knowledge, so that while a riot may seem to be a very grave affair, actually not much injury occurs if men are not armed. Now in Halifax, a naval port, there has been for years a growing feeling of discontent on the part of sailors, although the citizens in general have worked very hard to make the servicemen happy, and have arranged many shows and benefits for their entertainment. This was not easy, as men of all services and all nations were stationed in the vicinity, sometimes in very great numbers. But in spite of this, the servicemen, and particularly sailors, soon began to feel they were not popular, and were only allowed in Halifax on sufferance. Whether right or wrong, that was the general reaction. The service organizations at Halifax seemed always to be cold and impersonal, and wherever he went the sailor had to be in a crowd of his own kind. Many families no doubt opened their homes to servicemen, and many were given great cheer by their guests, but others were very unfortunate with their first attempts at entertaining servicemen, and refused to make further attempts.

There is a story which has long gone the rounds here, and which I believe to be accurate, though perhaps not in all its details. At the start of the war, about Christmas, 1939, I believe, a large British cruiser lay at anchor in Halifax harbor. Its captain had become acquainted with a family of considerable means, occupying a large and beautiful home. The wife extended to the captain an invitation for any two officers from his ship to spend Christmas at her home and partake of dinner. Two young sailors turned up and were escorted by a maid into the presence of the lady of the house, who graciously explained that they had expected two officers for dinner, but that the two sailors would be very welcome to have dinner in the kitchen with the maids. The lady seemed quite happy at this solution of the affair, and they dined with the domestic staff, had a fine time, and gratefully expressed their gratitude to their hostess before leaving. The officers who were expected did not show up at all. Some days later, the lady met the captain, and asked him why his two officers had not turned up as expected. He replied that all his officers had had previous invitations, and so he had sent two midshipmen instead, very nice young chaps, one the son of Lord Louis Mountbatten and the other the son of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal.

Personally I have felt greater loneliness in Halifax than in Saint John, Quebec City, Boston or New York, simply because I had no place to spend spare hours except the Merchant Navy Club, a rather drab place, or in the restaurants. There was one pleasant interlude when I was proposed as guest member for ten days at the Halifax Club. I obtained this introduction through the good offices of a family I had met in Halifax through an introduction by mutual friends in another city, and I continued to enjoy the hospitality of this kind people, but this introduction, it will be noticed, came from outside—it did not originate with a resident of Halifax anxious to extend the hospitality of his home to a lonely sailor; furthermore this is the only Halifax home I have had the privilege of entering in four years of frequent stops.

There are other reasons for the sailors' discontent. For instance, I have seen dock laborers discharging cargo, almost too drunk to stand, on liquor stolen from the cargo they were unloading. I have seen these dock laborers, time after time, stealing and damaging goods with absolute impunity, for union stevedores so resented being watched by guards while they worked that they refused to do until the guards were removed. And they were removed—promptly. Stevedores here come from all over Eastern Canada, so one cannot place the entire responsibility on Halifax laborers, but I do blame the unions. These stevedores were getting $1.10 an hour and double this at night and on Sundays. Anyone will understand the feelings of crew members, risking their lives to carry stores and equipment to our forces, when they witnessed such contempt for the war effort.

I have seen intoxicated sailors of our navy thrown out of restaurants at night by professional "bouncers" as though they were felons, when a little time and tact would have brought a patrol car to take the offenders quietly away. I have been stopped by men of the services seeking shelter for a wife and child in winter, at 11 p.m., after hours of fruitless effort to find shelter. There are many homes here, large ones, occupied by two or three in a family, where the owners have been unwilling to give up a room, even at a high price, to a stranded serviceman. Halifax has always been prudishly a temperance city and has remained so, though the province has had no compunction about making six or seven millions annually in liquor profits, largely from servicemen, and yet provided no place where a man could go to drink what he had purchased, except a back lane or some foul resort. In other provinces, where there are well-run taverns and public houses, one never sees conditions as they have existed here, with servicemen, particularly sailors, who have been subjected to strain and anxiety, and who are probably feeling lonely and depressed as well, unable to obtain the relaxing effect of alcohol without having to drink it in holes and corners like criminals. I have unwillingly come to the conclusion that for the majority of servicemen alcohol in some form is almost a necessity, for without it many of them would crack up under the circumstances of isolation from home and loved ones after weeks and even months of continual strain. I do not mean necessarily that men must get drunk, but merely buoyed up, cheered, and relaxed in company.

Now with this preview of conditions generally, let me describe the regrettable events of V-E Day, May 8, 1945. I arrived at the scene at a comparatively early stage of the riot, about 2:30 p.m. Crowds were milling about on Barrington Street, Halls Street and other streets in the vicinity. There were men from all the services, but the navy seemed to have the most representatives. Already men were streaming up from Water Street carrying carboys of beer, and later liquor in bottles and cases, and servicemen and civilians alike were cutting the staff about, drinking as they went. Wind-downs were being smashed all along the streets. Everyone seemed happy and gay, with the sidewalks crowded by civilian men, women and children. I met or saw no police, except about ten at the entrance of the City Hall. I saw no R.C.M.P. in the crowd, and I saw no attempt on the part of any policeman or service patrol to quiet or prevent the racket. Later on, Admiral Murray and the Mayor went through the streets in a truck, broadcasting to the crowd, about ten at the entrance of the City Hall. Variety Of Flowers Dominate Scene At Landsdowne Market

By far the most outstanding item on the Landsdowne Market this morning was the plant flowers that dominated the scene both inside and out. Supplies were heavy in all divisions, yet the flowers predominated.

Black cherries made their first appearance this year at the market and were selling at the almost prohibitive price of 70 cents a pound. At one booth, squash was also in evidence for the first time. Cut into quarters it was selling at 15 cents a piece.

Cucumbers, although dropping five cents, still remain at the high price of 25 cents. Becoming more plentiful, rhubarb took a decided decline from 20 to 10 cents a bunch. Pork predominated in the meat market where quality and quantity showed a considerable increase over last week. However, there were no appreciable price changes noted.

Tomato plants were much in evidence and looked strong and healthy. They were selling at $1 for a box containing four dozen plants.

Cut flowers were attractive and were selling at $1.50 per dozen for a mixed bouquet, with tulips predominating. Tulips alone sold at 75 cents a dozen, and narcissi at 50 and 75 cents. Cut roses and carnations sold at $4 and $2.50 a dozen respectively.

Prices for plants ran as follows: Geranium, a dozen, 20 and 25 cents; pansies, 25 and 35 cents; salvia, 15 cents each; fern, 50 and 75 cents a pot; alyssum, 25 cents a dozen; petunia, 25 cents a dozen; marigolds, 25 cents a dozen; and stocks, 25 cents a dozen.

Quebec Council Of Farm Forums To Hold Annual Meeting At MacDonald

Are war assets being made available to farmers? How to assist the Veterans' Land Act in settling returned men, post-war plans for community centre, price floors and other important matters are expected to occupy the attention of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums at its annual meeting on Saturday, June 2, at MacDonald College.

Farmers from all sections of Quebec will gather at the college for the fifth consecutive June meeting to carry on the business of the Council, to discuss farm problems and to examine the work that MacDonald College is carrying on in the interest of agriculture.

The annual meeting was announced by R. Alex Sim, Secretary of the Quebec Council of Farm Forums, who has carried on this adult education programme for farmers since its inception in 1941.

Delegates are expected from all parts of the Eastern Townships, Chateaugay and Huntingdon counties, and in the Ottawa Valley from Argenteuil, Gatineau and Pontiac

Tomatoes Contain Much Vitamin C

The outstanding value of the tomato in nutrition is due largely to its vitamin C (ascorbic acid) content. On the average, a fresh, ripe, summer-grown tomato should contain about 25 milligrams of vitamin C in each 3 1/2 ounces of whole tomato. One small tomato would supply around one-third of the recommended daily adult allowance of vitamin C. Four to 4 1/2 ounces of properly canned tomatoes or tomato juice would supply a similar amount. However, analyses of tomatoes from different sources show that they vary widely in their vitamin content, says C. C. Strachan, Dominion Experimental Station, Summerland, B.C.

The variation in vitamin C content of tomatoes depends on several factors, notably variety. If a variety of high vitamin content is grown beside one of low content in several different areas of the country and under varying seasonal conditions, the vitamin content may vary considerably in both varieties but they will always keep the same relative position to each other. That is, the same variety is always the high one.

Climate, that is, heat and especially light, can greatly modify the vitamin content of any variety. Dull, cool, rainy weather, particularly at ripening time, results in fruit of low vitamin content. Tomatoes harvested late in the autumn tend to be low in vitamin content. Also those grown under glass during the winter months have only about one-third of the vitamin content of summer-grown tomatoes.

Fertilizers appear to have little effect on the vitamin C content of tomatoes although they have a sharp effect on the yield. Neither does the soil seem to play much of a role so far as vitamin content is concerned.

In experiments conducted at the Experimental Station, Summerland, the following varieties were found to have a high vitamin C content: Signet, Clark's Early, Sugawara, Earline 8040, Master Marglobe and Stokedale. Of these varieties Clark's Early and Sugawara are grown extensively in the Okanagan Valley and adjacent areas. Earline 8040 is an early maturing variety suitable for use in short season districts, whereas Master Marglobe and Stokedale are comparatively late maturing varieties requiring a long growing season.

Signet is a Summerland Station introduction which, in addition to having exceptionally high vitamin C content, has excellent color and flavor. It is a heavy yielding, the fruit commencing to ripen early and continuing to mature over a long season. The comparatively small size of the fruit is a disadvantage from the commercial canning standpoint, but Signet is rapidly becoming popular as a home-grown variety. It is being used in breeding work in an effort to produce a variety combining larger sized fruit with the superior yielding ability, color, flavor and vitamin C content found in Signet.

EXHIBITION AT ORMSTOWN WILL OPEN ON JUNE 6

Ormstown Exhibition opens again on June 6, 7, 8 and 9, after being closed for the past five years on account of war conditions.

The association has joined the American Horse Shows Association of New York, and this seems to have increased the entries in the light horse classes, as already there are 12 entries in the $200 Harness Horse Stake, sponsored by the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal; 11 entries in the $100 Roadster Stake, sponsored by the Soulanges Cartage and Equipment Co., Montreal; 10 entries in single harness pony class; 10 entries in $200 Harness Pony Stake, sponsored by the Mount Royal Hotel; 16 entries in Owners Up jumping class and 18 entries in the Association $400 jumping stake, so that the light horse classes will be the best ever seen at Ormstown.

The Holstein and Ayrshire classes will both have large entries in all classes.

Free acts will be staged every afternoon in front of the grandstand and in Arena at night.

Wallace Bros. shows will be on the midway, and there will be horse racing with full classes on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Boys' and Girls' Calf Clubs of the district have over 60 entries of their calves.

Warning To Buyers Of Seed Potatoes

Wartime gardeners and anyone else buying potatoes for use as seed should see that such potatoes when offered for sale are in containers of 10, 15 or 25 pounds with the dealer's name attached giving the grade, variety and the certificate number of the grower. The retail dealer must have a permit from the Dominion Plant Protection Division, Ottawa, to repack seed potatoes, states the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

This is required by an Order of the Minister of Agriculture passed on September 12, 1944. The purpose of this Order is to insure that wartime gardeners and others who buy seed potatoes actually receive them and that they get the value for the extra price paid as compared with table potatoes. The Department points out that not all potatoes are suitable for seed. The certified product is practically free from diseases which cause reduction in yield and quality.

Why is it there seems to be more room for laughter in humble homes than in monstrous mansions?—Guelph Mercury.

Weekly Letter to Farmers

W. S. RICHARDSON, Assistant Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Lennoxville, Que.

"QUALITY HAY"

V-E Day has been celebrated. Although this means a cessation of hostilities in Europe it does not mean that the farmers of Canada should slacken their production efforts. Actually it will require all the food that can be produced to prevent starvation of many people on that war-torn continent.

In Eastern Canada, the principal foods produced consist of livestock products. The basis of the ration for cattle, sheep and horses is hay. The cost of the balance of the ration and the success obtained in feeding it depends to a large extent on the quality of this basic portion.

Quality in hay depends on a number of factors which can be controlled by man and, of course, on the ever present one of weather over which he has no control.

Two of the controllable factors are composition and time of harvest. The first one, composition or the plants that make up the crop, is controlled by the seed sown and the preparation of the soil before seeding. High quality hay cannot be made from a crop that is mostly weeds.

Time of harvest is very important because as the plants mature there is a decrease in the percentage of protein and an increase in the fiber content. This decrease in protein goes from over 20% in young alfalfa and clover to less than 10% when fully matured. The same is true of timothy except that it starts at 10% and reduces to below 5% when ripe. Protein is the expensive part of the ration and fiber is practically indigestible so why not harvest the crop when the percentage of protein is high and the fiber low?

The proper time to cut alfalfa is when between 10-50 per cent of the plants are in bloom. Red clover should be cut when about 50% are in bloom and timothy at the first bloom. As all the hay cannot be cut on the same day it is advisable to start before this stage of maturity is reached, in order that the last fields will not be left too late.

Plan to cut the hay this year and improve the livestock production next winter.

HELP FROM THE GRAVE

When in dire straits, the Chinese believe they may expect the souls of their ancestors to come to their rescue, but only if the remains have been properly buried and kept intact.

John Bracken—The Progressive

It is significant that throughout a political career without parallel in the Empire during this century, John Bracken has been identified with progress—with progressive political movements. For more than twenty consecutive years he was Premier of Manitoba. He is today, the leader of a great national party, a party that is young, virile, resurgent and above all else—progressive.

It is the belief of John Bracken that, however they may be expressed in political or economic terms, the ideals of all men of goodwill in Canada are best embodied in three simple words—Progress through Co-operation.

And, farmer though he is, when John Bracken speaks of co-operation he is not thinking of docile cattle being driven willy-nilly to pasture; nor a flock of sheep forcibly fenced in and impotent to protest. To this Canadian, that species of enforced co-operation when applied to human affairs—and of which some of his opponents appear enamoured—is the very negation of true co-operation... a contradiction in terms best illustrated perhaps by the inmates of an internment camp. Not for John Bracken the delusion of a heaven on earth densely populated with gestapo, disguised as bureaucrats!

Born in a log cabin, the life of John Bracken is itself a triumphant vindication of his resolute belief in his fellow men. Never defeated at the polls, he won five straight elections as Premier. How? By consistently practising what he preached—progress through co-operation. By enacting wise, farseeing, beneficial legislation on behalf of the people. By using the first period of his Premiership to restore to sound health the unsound finances of the Province, by drastic economies, tax adjustments. By using the second period to develop natural resources and to build roads at low cost. By using his third and fourth terms as Premier, to embark on great schemes of reconstruction, enlisting the co-operation of all political parties in the beneficent task he had set himself... Thus through years as leader of the people John Bracken won their co-operation by being, himself, the heart and soul of co-operation. To make his government truly progressive, he asked for and received the advice of experts in every field. He drew upon ability and talent from whatever quarter they came. Political advantage meant nothing to him; the good of the people, everything. By trusting them, he won their trust. Through difficult years their loyalty never wavered.

A remarkable man, this John Bracken. A political portent—with his dogged insistence on progress—progress for the people in every department of national life. "How can any Government be progressive," asks John Bracken, "unless ALL the people participate in it, for the good of all?"

Henry Morgan And Company Pass Century Mark In Their Long And Outstanding Commercial Career

Henry Morgan and Company, Canada's oldest department store, is 100 years old this month.

The big Ste. Catherine street store is celebrating its hundredth birthday quietly, simply recalling its history and that of the past century in Montreal through colorful window displays, special historical features throughout the store and a series of historical advertisements in newspapers and magazines. Meanwhile messages of good-will from business neighbors, suppliers, customers and friends, even from retail competitors, are reaching Henry Morgan, President of the Company, and other members of the Company Board of Directors. Messages are coming not only from many parts of Canada but also from other lands.

Morgan's this month are recalling many "firsts" in Canadian business and retail history and employees and customers of the big store are also paying tribute to the family which has conducted the firm's affairs since Henry Morgan, the founder, first landed in Montreal and opened his drygoods store in partnership with David Smith in May, 1845. Morgan's was one of the first drygoods stores on old Notre Dame street in Montreal's lower town to expand beyond its rented quarters and secure additional space on McGill street, thereby launching the trend westward which was to continue for a century.

The first store, opened in 1845, was staffed by nine clerks and Mr. Morgan and Mr. Smith who also waited on customers and engaged in many of the tasks associated with a small retail establishment. Later when even larger quarters were secured on both McGill and Notre Dame streets, forming an L around the building on the corner, the company boasted that it had more than 100 clerks. It had become one of the largest retail enterprises in the country.

Always a progressive organization Morgan's introduced many innovations in Canadian retailing. In the 1870's it became the first store in Canada to adopt the departmental system, making every department stand on its own feet, paying its own share of the general store overhead, doing its own buying and having its own managers. This system was later adopted by large stores throughout the country and is general department store practice today.

About the same time Morgan's became the first store to present its merchandise in organized window displays. This change was actually accomplished against the strong objections of the founder. Coming to work one morning Henry Morgan found that the white paint which normally covered the front, ground floor windows had been washed off and merchandise had been arranged inside. The passer-by could stop and look through the window and see the small display.

Mr. Morgan was furious. It would be quite possible, he said for his competitors to see exactly what merchandise Morgan's had to offer and then put similar merchandise on sale. He ordered the windows closed up again. But the first step had been made and it was not long before the founder was convinced that Morgan's had nothing to fear from competition as long as they adhered to their policy of quality and honest dealings with the public.

The next "first" for Morgan's was a famous one. It was the move uptown to Ste. Catherine Street. All the retail "experts" in the city predicted that the move would be the end of Morgan's enterprise, but it turned out to be just the beginning of a new period of unequalled expansion and prosperity. The "experts," some of them unwillingly converted, followed uptown a few years later and Ste. Catherine street became the principal shopping street of the metropolis.

Uptown the house of Morgan continued its progressive march to make retailing history. Once again, in 1912, it went against popular retail opinion when it decided to add motorized transport to its horse and delivery service. At that time Morgan's boasted of a fine delivery service with handsome wagons and spirited, well-groomed horses. It had just built new stables and purchased new equipment, but the store management, with an eye to the future, was gauging Montreal development and thinking of the days when deliveries would cover a much greater area. A few motor trucks were, therefore, purchased as well.

Morgan's Celebrates Hundredth Birthday This Month

Once again the "experts" watched Morgan's with amazement. Motor truck delivery, they said, would never pay. It was not practical and it was too expensive. The truck would never replace the horse. But once again they were wrong and in 1920 the last of Morgan's famous horses were sent to pasture and an all-mechanized fleet of delivery trucks and vans was installed. Other stores followed suit.

The story of Morgan's is, of course, a collection of many historic items spread over a full century and a recital of cold dates cannot reveal the enterprise which exists today. When the time came to prepare for the Centennial celebrations, however, the store directors had first drawn up a chronological story of the firm since its inception and upon that outline the historical displays and features have been based. It gives Morgan's history in brief.

1819—Henry Morgan was born in Saline, Fifeshire, Scotland.

1837—Henry Morgan began his mercantile career in a wholesale drygoods house in Scotland.

1845—Attracted by the unlimited possibilities of a future in a new land where business was yet to be built, 26-year-old Henry Morgan came to Canada and landed in Montreal. It was not much of a city in those days and had a population of only 45,000. There was no up-town section at all, there were no steamboats in the harbor and the nearest train was at LaPrairie across the river. Mr. Morgan visualized a great city on this island site, however, and prepared to launch his enterprise.

May, 1845—Henry Morgan and David Smith opened a drygoods shop at 204 Notre Dame street (old style numbering) between Recollet and McGill streets. The name of the shop was Smith and Morgan and there were nine clerks employed. A bank account was opened at the Bank of Montreal and on May 23, 1845, the first cash deposit was made, the total of the first day's sales. Merchandise for the new store was mostly imported from England and for many years the main stock of the company was to come from overseas. On ship arrival days the street in front of the store was frequently blocked with great packing cases from the factories of Britain and Europe. Customers who were unable to find what they wanted in the store would quite willingly wait till the next shipment came in, perhaps six or eight weeks later. Business was done in a more leisurely manner.

1850—David Smith left for Chicago to engage in pharmaceutical enterprise and Henry Morgan remained in Montreal to carry on the business alone.

1851—James Morgan, a brother of Henry, arrived in Montreal and entered into partnership with the founder, replacing Mr. Smith. The shop was now called Henry Morgan and Company, a name which it has retained ever since. Previous to coming to Canada, James Morgan had been a junior partner in the firm of Muirhead and Morgan, Glasgow. Another brother declined an invitation to come to Canada and join the Montreal enterprise, because Montreal was too small.

1853—The firm directed by the Morgan brothers moved to larger premises at 208 McGill street, just south of Notre Dame.

1858—Further expansion took place when the Company acquired additional premises at 284 Notre Dame street. The two locations were joined in the rear to form an L around the corner. A hundred clerks were employed. The store was known as the Colonial House and had an established reputation for quality and service.

1860—Business continued to increase and the Company had to move again. This time property was secured on the northeast corner of St. James and McGill streets, where the Bank of Nova Scotia now stands. Store fixtures, antique by today's standards, were elaborate and impressive. The store was lighted by ornate overhead gas lights. Store clerks, formal in manner and attire, waited on a fashionable and colorful Montreal.

1877—James Morgan Jr. and Colin D. Morgan, a nephew of the founder, were admitted to partnership. Morgan's became the first store in Canada to adopt the departmental system and a new era of expansion was just beginning.

1891—The young partners, correctly predicting that Montreal's future rested on development northward, made the Company's most daring move. Securing property on the outskirts of the city, they built a modern store on Ste. Catherine street at Phillips Place. They made only one mistake. When they first planned the new store they planned a four-story building. Later, they reduced it to three stories and so they had scarcely moved in when the premises became too small.

December 12, 1893—Having lived to see the business he founded safely installed in its new location and fully confident that the enterprise would now grow far beyond his fondest dreams, Henry Morgan, the founder, died at his home in Maisonneuve. His brother, James, became President of the store.

1901—A large annex was added to the uptown store to take care of the increased business and other retailers followed Morgan's up the hill and Ste. Catherine street began developing into a shopping centre.

1903—The Union Avenue extension was built, fronting on Aylmer street.

1906—Henry Morgan and Company, Limited, was incorporated with James Morgan, Jr., nephew of the founder, as president.

1907—The factory property on Beaver Hall Hill, including the Dominion Motor Car Company, was purchased.

1910—A fireproof delivery stable was built.

1912—The first delivery motor trucks were secured and mechanization of Morgan's delivery service began.

1916—Morgan Realities were incorporated. Morgan Trust was incorporated, at first to serve officers and employees of the store but later to serve the general public as well.

1919—The big public warehouse on Concord street was built.

1923—Morgan's new building was erected, making the store one of the biggest in Canada. A feature of the building was the moving of the Bell Galleries up Union Avenue from Ste. Catherine street. Visitors came.

May 19, 1932—James Morgan, Jr., died in Bermuda.

1940—Harold M. Morgan, President of the Company during the great expansion period, died. Henry Morgan became president.

1945—Henry Morgan and Company, Canada's oldest department store, a trust company, real estate company and factory celebrates its hundredth anniversary.

To prepare for the anniversary Morgan's gathered together a diversified collection of Montreal historical items many of which are now on display in special anniversary windows throughout the store. They include many costumes worn by Montrealers during the past hundred years, ancient transportation vehicles that were familiar on Montreal streets during the fifties and sixties, complete room furnishings and decorations. Some of the merchandise assembled returns to Morgan's on loan for exhibition purposes many years after it was first purchased there by mothers or grandmothers of today's owners.

Even while the past is being recalled Morgan's are thinking of the

TOM is in the pink
DICK has retired
HARRY will go places

Tom knows something about stormy weather, but he feels in the pink and his mind is at ease because his life insurance, which protects his loved ones, has weathered the strains of war and epidemics. The reserves behind his policies are regulated by law and so stand guard that even in times of the gravest stress he knows he is secure.

Dick knew nothing about life insurance reserves when he took on his first policy as a young man. But now that he has retired, he knows that the security he enjoys comes largely from the monthly income provided from his insurance—protected by reserves accumulated from his past premium payments.

Harry is an up-and-coming fellow who needs only opportunity to make good. He may not know it, but his own life insurance and the premiums of several million others will keep providing him and others with opportunities for years to come. Life insurance funds are invested in undertakings from coast to coast that provide employment for multitudes of people.

LET NO ONE MISLEAD YOU!

Policy reserves represent premium dollars accumulated at interest for policyholders by life insurance companies as the necessary provision against the day when policies become claims by death, maturity or surrender. Let no one mislead you about the nature of these funds. They are NOT "surplus funds" nor do they represent "profits" in any sense of the word. Policy reserves are the exact measure of the total funds which must be held for policyholders, to be paid to them when due.

all citizens to assist them in executing their duty. And there were thousands of strong, able-bodied citizens ready to help if given a recognized leader in police uniform or in any uniform denoting authority. Firemen go about their duties as a matter of course, and willingly risk their lives to save the lives of property entrusted by the citizens to their care. Then why should the police, who are sworn to do their duty, not risk their lives, if necessary, in fulfilling that duty? I believe that in the Halifax riot the police would have taken action and ended the riot speedily—if anyone had given them orders to do so. All we needed on that day was proper leadership, for the servicemen were unarmed and could have done but little damage if boldly attacked. Admittedly naval ports depend mainly on navy service patrols to keep order, and the civil police are chary of making arrests under ordinary circumstances, but they still have the authority to do so, and on this occasion they should have taken action, regardless of risk. Rioters usually give ground quickly before the forces of law and order. The possible danger here on V-E Day had been evident, and was acknowledged for a long time, and why nothing was properly organized to stamp out any trouble at its very first sign, is impossible to understand. As a result, Halifax has been horribly despoiled, and the splendid navy personnel have been placed in a position of contempt, at least temporarily.

In conclusion, it should be noted that a floating population of some 20,000 people have come to Halifax from all over Eastern Canada to work as stevedores, and in the shipbuilding industry, as well as at many other jobs. These civilians of course had no interest in the city whatever, and it seems very likely that the majority of the civilians who took part in the riot consisted of these people and not of Halifax citizens.

Real Social Security
Rationed Scarcity?

To the political and economic reactionary, Social Security is something to be used as a bribe to win votes—a sop to soothe unrest. Social makeshifts of that kind are actually offered to-day as political substitutes for sound, economic planning for the post-war reconstruction of Canada.

To the State Socialist, on the other hand, Social Security is a bookish theory seeking to prove that poverty would be much more endurable if only it were much more general.

And now, listen for a moment to John Bracken, the forthright leader of the Progressive Conservative Party:—"The State here in Canada, unlike in Germany, is the servant of the people, not its master. Finance, and economic mechanisms associated with it, must likewise be regarded as the servants, not the masters, of our economy. The underwriting of prosperity AND social security is a proper function of the State."

Notice how closely prosperity and social security are linked together.

We are determined that Social Security shall no longer be regarded as a charity but as what it is—a social obligation and national responsibility of the very first magnitude and importance. Social Security must grow with prosperity—because the degree to which social services may be provided is determined by the size of the national income. We are pledged to maintain that income at a high prosperous level. It is against this background of plenty for all, that the Progressive Conservatives see Social Security.

The Progressive Conservative Party is pledged to provide, without delay, a uniform and comprehensive social security programme for all Canadians, including:

- ✓ Extended unemployment insurance coverage.
- ✓ Adequate payments for the maintenance of unemployables.
- ✓ Accident and sickness benefits.
- ✓ Children's allowances.
- ✓ Maternity benefits.
- ✓ Widows' benefits.
- ✓ Retirement pensions.
- ✓ Increased old age pensions at age 65.
- ✓ Increased pensions for the blind.

Where any of these social services are administered provincially, we shall provide grants large enough to ensure adequate standards of social security for all Canadians.

Compare this positive and complete programme with the make-shift expedients of other parties. No other party can equal or even approach John Bracken's guarantee of security for all Canadians.

It's rational security—NOT rationed scarcity.

Everything In Readiness For Annual Interscholastic Track Meet Here

All is in readiness for the Y's Men's third annual Eastern Townships Interscholastic Track Meet which will get underway tomorrow morning at the Parade Grounds. The meet is under supervision and sponsorship of the Sherbrooke Y's Men's Club, and will be presided over by President Vic Newton, with Jeff Wilson officiating as Chairman of the Track Meet Committee.

Entries have been received from almost a dozen Eastern Townships schools, with the highly-competitive teams from Sherbrooke High, St. Francis College and Bishop's College being favored for top honors, yet with the ever-present possibility that some of the other schools may upset the well-known apple-cart and walk away with the Skinner Trophy, emblematic of the championship.

Some forty-three events are on the programme, with classes set for Midgets, Juniors, Intermediates, and Seniors, as well as several open events. Schools are limited to two contestants in each event, thus affording equal opportunities to every entrant. The Parade Ground track, despite the recent rains, is in top condition, and every indication is given that the meet will be the most successful ever held in the Townships. The track is being laned for the convenience of the runners, thus providing for equal advantage in the highly-competitive events.

It is anticipated that Major John Bassett, Jr., Progressive Conservative candidate for Sherbrooke County, and a former graduate of Bishop's College School, will be present and will fire the starting gun to officially open the meet. If possible, Major Bassett will also be present to present the Skinner Trophy to the winning team at the close of the meet.

Chairman Jeff Wilson has announced the names of the following schools which have registered for the meet: Sherbrooke High School; Lennoxville High School; Stanstead College; the Holmes Memorial School; East Angus High School; St. Francis College High School, Richmond; Ascot Consolidated High School; Bishop's College School, Lennoxville; and Fairfield High School, Drummondville.

The order of events will be as follows:

1. Midget, 50 yard dash (finals).
2. Junior, shot put.
3. Intermediate, pole vault.
4. Senior, shot put.
5. Intermediate, shot put.
6. Junior, broad jump.
7. Senior, 880 relay.
8. Intermediate, 100 yard dash (finals).
9. Midget, broad jump.
10. Junior, high jump.
11. Senior, discus.
12. Senior, 440 yard (final).
13. Midget, high jump.
14. Junior, 75 yard dash (finals).

BURY

The second annual Brome District Jersey sale was held at the Brome County Fair Grounds. Many of the outstanding herds of Quebec Province are located in this district, and under the guidance of W. Elmo Ashton, of the famous "Gables Farm," at Foster, and one of the foremost Jersey breeders in Canada, the breeders have organized to hold an annual sale of Jersey cattle. Some fifty head were offered at this second annual event, every entry being selected by the committee, and were registered, blood-tested, T.B. free Jerseys. Breeders had consigned cows and heifers from the tops of their herds, many of which rank high in Canada for type, production and health. Many of the Jerseys offered at this sale have R.O.P. records and all are from R.O.P. families, with the offspring of many Royal Winter Fair winners represented. The daughters of the famous Brampton Royal Bull, $5,400 prize bull, of 1943, were included in the event, which also offered the best Jersey individuals, show cows, show heifers, fresh-calving cows and many show prospects and foundation stock. The sales committee for the sale included Charles A. Robinson, of Cowansville; Charles Saunter and Lionel J. Dion, of Sweetsburg; Walter Wright, of Granby; Horace Whitehead, of Knowlton; W. Elmo Ashton, of Foster, and Lawrence Draper, of Brome. Mrs. W. E. Best Effort Could Be Enough In Derby; Serves Notice By Nosing Out Occupy

Best Effort, Eddie Arcaro up.

By NEA Service.

Best Effort may be tough to beat in the Kentucky Derby, June 9, and the chances of the industrious youngster of last season won't be hurt if it comes up mud.

Best Effort further demonstrated this at Churchill Downs the other afternoon when he nosed out the crack 5-year-old sprinter, Occupy, running six furlongs in 1:12 and four fifths despite a muddy track.

Going to the past at the New Orleans Fair Grounds, Jan. 1, Best Effort started 10 times as a 2-year-old. By mid-July he had started 13 times, winning 3 times and finishing in the money on six other occasions.

By now the black son of Ladysman-Gorgeous Lady by Colonel Vennie or Busy American was racing with the best of the Futurity candidates in Chicago.

An impressive race was an allowance event at Washington Park, July 22. Away slowly and next to last in a field of eight at the half, Best Effort came from nowhere to be second to Errard and closing fast. In the Prairie State Stakes at Washington Park, Aug. 16, Errard was again the winner by three lengths, but Best Effort was obviously improving.

A week later he gave convincing effort in the Dinah Did Upset Handicap, running five-and-a-half furlongs through the slop to prevail easily in 1:07 and two fifths.

It was in the Cowdin at Aqueduct that Best Effort got even with Errard, the favorite at $1.85 to $1, in his best race of the season. War Jeep went to the front, followed closely by Errard, Plebsite and the long shot, Best Effort.

At the head of the stretch, Ted Atkinson sent Best Effort around the leaders, and driving with hand and heel, urged the New Orleans-owned colt to the front. Best Effort continued to draw away the winner by a length and a half over War Jeep, with Errard, Plebsite, Alexis, Sun Herod, Paper Mill, Fighting Don and a couple more following in the order named.

Carrying 120 pounds, Best Effort ran the six-and-a-half furlongs in the fast time of 1:18 and three fifths.

Best Effort could easily be enough.

OCEAN IS BUSY

Seventy-five per cent of the world's commerce, in normal times, is carried over the Atlantic ocean, although it is only one half as large as the Pacific.

Detroit Back With Two-Man Mound Staff Through Al Benton's Injury

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer
Detroit is back to a two-man pitching staff with Al Benton, the No. 3 man, lost for at least a month with a broken leg.

The former sailor who had allowed only four runs and 31 hits in 57 and one-third innings and had won five games compared to one defeat, a 1-0 loss to Washington last Sunday, was laid low in the fourth inning yesterday by a drive off the bat of Philadelphia's Roberto Estalella.

The Athletics went on to score all their runs off Benton's successors and defeat the Tigers 7-2.

Benton's loss puts Hal Newhouser and Paul (Dizzy) Trout back on the swing-shift schedule of last year when the pitching pair took part in 96 games and won 56. With Benton sharing a large part of the burden, Hurricane Hald and Tornado Trout were able to take a three-day rest, something they didn't get last year.

New York Yankees drubbed the League-leading Chicago White Sox, 6-3, moving past Detroit into second place and only a half-game off the pace.

Best-pitched game of the day was a night tilt in Washington won by Cleveland's Steve Gromack over Roger Wolff, 1-0, on a five-hit effort. Doubles by Pat Seery and Jim McDonnell broke it up in the 10th.

Rookie Ben Steiner contributed four hits, including a two-run homer, to the Boston cause as the Red Sox made it two straight over St. Louis, 8-5.

Danny Gardella, a New York Giant substitute outfielder, gave the National League pacemakers a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati with an eight-inning pinch homer with Buddy Kerr on base.

Charles (Red) Barrett, acquired by St. Louis from Boston in the Mort Cooper deal, made his first appearance for the Red Birds and registered a 7-5 success over Brooklyn, helping his cause with a double that chased Hal Gregg in a four-run fourth frame.

Pittsburgh was forced into extra innings for the second straight day, but again downed Boston, 10-9, on Jack Barrett's circuit clout in the 10th. The Phils turned back Chicago, 6-3, on a brilliant five-hit by Dick Barrett who decisioned Paul Der-ringer.
