City policemen are stabbed in emergency ward

SHERBROOKE (CC) — One of the two Sherbrooke policemen stabbed yesterday afternoon remains in hospital while the other was released early today.

The two, Paul-Andre Provencher and Hercule Grondin, were knifed while trying to control an individual who suffered an alleged mental breakdown in the emergency ward of the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. Both policemen received wounds from a pen-knife in the abdomen.

A security guard at the hospital was punched several times by the individual. The man, described as being in his early thirties, is under sedation at the hospital.

A guard is being maintained at all times.

A police spokesman said early this morning that Grondin had been allowed to return home while Provencher is being kept for observation.

Police have not released the name of the person being kept under guard.

According to a police spokesman the individual arrived at the hospital via taxi shortly before 3 p.m. Wednesday. He was accompanied by two women.

Upon entering the hospital the individual began shouting and driving his fists into the walls. He claimed he didn't want to go to the hospital, police say.

When the man attacked the security guard the police were called in. Grondin and Provencher were dispatched to the scene.

As the two tried to calm the individual he allegedly took out a knife and stabbed the two constables during the fight. Only a small knife was used.

Other police were called in and the man was finally controlled. Police say that the two injured constables only realized they had been stabbed when they noticed blood.

It was the second major incident at the hospital this year. In March two rival motorcycle gangs battled in the emergency ward.

Hearst seen again?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say a woman who identified herself as newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Wednesday night and said she wanted to surrender was a hoaxster.

"We've received a phony telephone call from someone who said she wanted to give herself up to Uncle George," said police Lieut. Dan Cook.

The hoax was taken seriously enough to bring Miss Hearst's parents to Los Angeles. A family spokesman said Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst left San Francisco by plane for Los Angeles after learning that a woman identifying herself as their daughter wanted to surrender.

Demonstrators urge PQ fight against Bill 22

QUEBEC (CP) — The Parti Quebecois took its filibuster and oratory onto the lawns of the national assembly Wednesday, urging about 2,000 demonstrators there to continue to fight against what they consider the "treason" of the Liberal government's official language bill.

Inside the assembly, the Liberals were preparing their motion that will impose closure on debate on the bill to make French the official language and probably ram the bill through by the middle of next week.

The demonstrators, brought in by bus from many regions of the province, chanted "shame", "treason" and other slogans against the Liberals and listened to speeches from the six PQ members of the assembly, union leaders and other nationalists during the three-hour long demonstration.

They cheered for Claude Charbon, the PQ's education critic and pop idol of the nationalist movement, who denounced the Liberals as an "illegitimate government", directed, financed and supported by the English.

CREATES BILINGUALISM

The bill, Bill 22, will make French the official language, promote French as a working language and impose limits on the growth of the English school system in Quebec. The PQ opposes the bill because they say it creates a bilingual state that will lead to further assimilation of French-speaking Quebecers.

Mr. Charbon, who was carried through the crowd on shoulders after his speech, attacked the government "as cowardly and afraid" for adjourning committee study of the bill Wednesday afternoon and not facing the crowd.

The demonstrators shouted "traitor" and "whore" at four Liberal assembly members who watched the demonstration from the steps of the assembly, about 150 feet behind the steel barriers set up to contain the crowd.

Provincial police estimated the crowd at 1,500 or more while PQ organizers insisted there were more than 3,000.

Mr. Charbon was joined on the podium by Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, Francois-Albert Angers of the Mouvement Quebec Francais, the other PQ members of the assembly and Camille Laurin, leader of PQ in the assembly until his defeat in last October's provincial election.

CLOSURE USED TWICE
 Mr. Charbon said the language bill will be the first piece of legislation ever passed in Quebec for which closure was used twice. The government used closure to cut off public hearings on the legislation after first reading.

"When our job is finished in that cabin where they (the Liberals) act like the owners of Quebec, your job will begin in all corners of Quebec."

He called on all Quebecers to continue the fight against the bill in the fall.

Biggest construction boom ever in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Wednesday that Quebec must pay higher interest rates when borrowing on the U.S. money market because the province is experiencing an unprecedented construction boom.

Mr. Bourassa was speaking in the national assembly in reply to a question from Jacques-Yvan Morin, Parti Quebecois house leader, about loans made by Hydro-Quebec to finance the massive James Bay hydroelectric project.

He said the province has $10 million in construction projects on the books which means "a high level of loans and this influences interest rates. It is simply the normal game of supply and demand."

Mr. Morin has asked the premier if it was true the Hydro-Quebec had just floated a $150-million loan at 10.75 per cent on the U.S. money market.

He also asked whether the decision to borrow in the U.S. was due to a boycott of Quebec and Hydro-Quebec bonds on money markets in Ontario and other English-speaking provinces.

Mr. Bourassa countered by asking Mr. Morin whether the Parti Quebecois questions were aimed at a "mudslinging campaign" against the James Bay project, one of the most important decisions for Quebec.

"The premier is confounding the interests of Quebecers with his personal political interests," replied Mr. Morin.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said he will prove to the national assembly today that interest rates paid in the U.S. by Hydro-Quebec are comparable to those paid by American utilities and added that Quebec bonds had received a better reception on the U.S. money market than those of other publicly-owned utilities.

Under questioning from Mr. Morin Tuesday, the premier hinted that the government is willing to accept open-end, cost-plus contracts for James Bay construction projects as "it is perhaps preferable in some cases."

He said that if there are a very small number of firms which can bid, the possibility of agreements between them can raise the costs considerably.

"What counts for us is to have the lowest possible costs."

Nixon accepts court's rule

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Pledging to comply with the United States Supreme Court's Watergate tapes ruling "in all respects" President Nixon has ended weeks of uncertainty with the statement "I respect and accept the court's decision."

About eight hours after the eight-member court announced Wednesday its unanimous decision that Nixon must surrender 64 additional tapes and documents, the president issued a statement of acceptance through his chief Watergate defence lawyer, James St. Clair.

Drafted after lengthy conferences at Nixon's oceanside home here, the statement ended suspense heightened by weeks of refusal by presidential aides to say whether he would obey an adverse court ruling.

"While I am disappointed in the result, I respect and accept the court's decision, and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," the president said.

Nixon had challenged in the courts a subpoena for the tapes and documents from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who said they were needed for the cover-up trial of six former White House and campaign aides, scheduled for Sept. 9. The defendants include H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Mitchell.

SCREENING REQUIRED

Weeks may yet pass before the tapes and documents are made available to Jaworski.

They must be screened for relevance by U.S. District Judge John Sirica.

In the past, tapes provided to Jaworski have been supplied to the House of Representatives judiciary committee for its impeachment inquiry. It was not immediately known whether the latest subpoenaed material would figure in congressional consideration of impeachment.

Nixon said in his statement that he had refused to comply with Jaworski's subpoena because of "my strong desire to protect the principle of presidential confidentiality in a system of separation of powers."

But the Supreme Court said the need for the tapes and documents in the cover-up trial took precedence over any generalized claim of confidentiality.

City press hurts farm

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan Wednesday attacked "big city press" editorial writers and said he can add them to a list of agriculture problem-solvers that includes economists with weird and wonderful ideas and not a clue on how farmers think and operate.

"If you want a short course on how to ruin Canada's agriculture industry and how to put every farmer into bankruptcy, then pick up any dozen of the editorials that have appeared in the big city papers about food prices over the past two weeks," he said.

editorial writers.

Mr. Whelan said the future of the Canadian farmer has to improve. Farmers' standards of living had to get better and they had to have more confidence in the future.

He said some persons said he has tunnel vision because he works hard to improve farm incomes and forgets consumers.

But those persons forgot that improved farm incomes would have spin-off effects.

These included keeping young persons on the farm; increasing food production; keeping top-notch land in agriculture "instead of under concrete and pavement;" investment in new farm machinery, buildings, seed livestock and fertilizer.

New Greek regime in ATHENS (AP) — The new civilian government of Greece has freed all political prisoners and recognized Archbishop Makarios as president of Cyprus. But the new head of the Greek Cypriot regime on the island, President Glafkos Clerides, said he will not hand the office back to the archbishop.

One of Premier Constantine Caramanlis' first acts after naming a 12-man cabinet Wednesday was to declare a general amnesty for all those jailed for political dissent during the seven years of military dictatorship.

Citizenship was restored to all who had been deprived of it, including actress Melina Mercouri, leftist political leader Andreas Papandreu and composer Mikos Theodorakis. The new government emptied the Yiaros Island concentration camp and shut it down.

Theodorakis flew home from Paris, and said he believes the return to power of Caramanlis was a positive step. But he pointed out that "the political left is excluded" from the government.

TOTACKLE INFLATION

The cabinet members are all centrists or rightists, and men of economic and bureaucratic expertise, indicating that Caramanlis plans a speedy assault on inflation and other economic woes.

Foreign Minister George Pavlos, also deputy premier, announced the new regime's repudiation of the coup in Cyprus, which is generally believed to have been the work of the dictatorship. He said Greece "has accepted fully the United Nations Security Council decision on Cyprus."

"We, therefore, recognize President Makarios as the legal head of Cyprus."

But in Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, President Clerides said the people of Cyprus should decide the presidency, and he will hold an election "not later than within a few months."

Asked whether Makarios could run, he said: "In a free country, every citizen has the right to present himself for election."

But he warned that "it would be a very unwise move for Makarios to come back under the present conditions."

PLANS TO RETURN
 The 61-year-old archbishop was proclaimed president automatically last year for a third five-year term when no candidate opposed him. Now in New York, he said earlier this week he plans to return to Cyprus in a few weeks. But there was no immediate comment from him on Clerides' statements.

Clerides was Makarios' closest associate, political heir and the resident of the House of Representatives. The latter post made him the constitutional successor to the president, and he moved into the top spot Tuesday after the collapse of the dictatorship in Athens pulled the rug from under the coup leaders in Cyprus.

No major fighting was reported on Cyprus Wednesday, but the Indian commander of the United Nations peacekeeping force reported indications Wednesday night that 400 to 500 Turkish troops with tanks were digging in 500 yards from the Nicosia airport and would try to seize it during the night.

Secretary-General KURT Waldheim called the Security Council into emergency session in New York to deal with the reported threat. But Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Guner sent Waldheim a message assuring him that Turkey would not threaten or use force against the troops at the airport. Several council members said they were satisfied, and the council adjourned.

Women get new club leader

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edna de Sanctis, office manager for a firm of insurance adjusters in Sydney, N.S., was to be installed today as president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

Mrs. de Sanctis, the federation's vice-president for the last two years, succeeds Elizabeth Aulin of Vancouver.

In August, Mrs. de Sanctis will lead a Canadian delegation of about 150 members to the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention in Brazil.

Following the Canadian federation's biennial convention which ends Friday, Mrs. de Sanctis said the group would prepare a brief for the federal government, requesting action on resolutions passed by the delegates.

"The government has always been very receptive to us," she said.

"Over one-third of the recommendations from the status of women report have been implemented. The government is working on another third and we intend to keep after them."

$103 million more for steel refining firm

QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation expanding Sidbec, the partially government-owned steel company, into an integrated processing firm was adopted in third and final reading Wednesday by the Quebec national assembly.

The two Creditiste members were the only ones to vote against the legislation.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said last week the government would invest an additional $103 million in Sidbec, permitting it to refine more of its raw materials into finished products.

Mr. Garneau said last Thursday Quebec exports iron ore while importing concentrated metals from Sweden and Brazil.

Exported ore is not sufficiently refined to be processed at the Sidbec plant in Contrecoeur, Que., and plans are to extract a purer ore at Fire Lake on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

William Tetley, minister of financial institutions, said in the Quebec national assembly that proposed insurance legislation represents "an outstanding reform of Quebec's civil code."

The minister was speaking during first reading of legislation that he said would put an end to many uncertainties that have been prejudicial to both sides in insurance contracts.

"The legislation stands by the principle of unity of civil rights since insurance laws will be incorporated in the civil code," he said.

The legislation proposes that insurance companies be classified in four divisions of social insurance, mutual life, mutual fire and mutual aid.

The bill also would facilitate the merger or conversion of small insurance companies.

Claude Forget, Quebec social affairs minister, introduced two pieces of legislation that would substantially modify regulations dealing with health and social services in the province.

Bill 41 would make the second Sunday in May election date for hospital administration boards and would give elect officials a two-year term instead of one in order to provide administrative continuity.

The legislation also proposes a modified definition of professional to include any hospital employee who holds a degree from a recognized institution.

Another proposal in the legislation is that 50 persons instead of 100 would make up a quorum at hospital meetings.

Under the legislation foster homes would be able to receive children only from social service centres and would be subject to their control.

The bill would replace three existing bodies with a social affairs commission. The proposed commission would unite the welfare and family allowances appeals commission, the board for the protection of the mentally ill and the arbitration committee that settles disputes between doctors and hospitals.

Mr. Forget said the legislative proposals will not be presented for further study until autumn, giving interested groups time to send briefs to the legislature committee which will meet at that time.

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil company profits in the United States continued to rise sharply in the second quarter of 1974, largely as a result of higher crude prices both in the U.S. and abroad, several companies reported Tuesday.

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the sixth-largest U.S. oil company, said after-tax profits for the three months ended June 30 soared 131 per cent over the same period in 1973, on a 62 per cent gain in sales.

Shell Oil Co., seventh biggest, said its earnings for the quarter rose 39 per cent while Cities Service Co., 14th in size, reported a 76 per cent gain. Tenecco Inc., a conglomerate with significant oil operations, reported a more than doubling of second-quarter net over the 1973 period.

On Monday, Gulf Oil Corp., the fourth-largest oil company in terms of sales, said its June quarter profits were up 28 per cent to $250 million or $1.28 a share, based on sales of $4.82 billion.

Indiana Standard chairman John Swearingen said that almost 60 per cent, or nearly $151 million, of Amoco's gain in earnings for the first half resulted from foreign petroleum operations and worldwide chemical sales.

Cities Service, which retails as Citgo, said its profits totalled $53.8 million or $2 a share for the quarter, as against $30.5 million or $1.14 a share in the second quarter of 1973. Citgo said the 1973 profits excluded an extraordinary gain of $11.3 million or 42 cents a share from the sale of its agricultural chemicals business.

Tenneco, based in Houston, reported second quarter earnings of $87.6 million or $1.14 a share on sales of $1.2 billion, compared with earnings of $42.5 million or 49 cents a share on sales of $973 million in the June 1973 quarter.

Last Friday, second-quarter profits reported by Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, totalled $850 million, up 67 per cent from the year-earlier period, on a sales jump of 74 per cent to $11.38 billion.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market's western oil index was higher Wednesday for the sixth consecutive session to hit its highest level since June 14.

Trading in all areas was moderate.

Oil shares rose 1.81 to 194.25 while industrials, widely-based indicator of market trend, gained .65 to 191.46, golds 12.6 to 529.18, a high since April 9; and base metals .28 to 81.98, its highest level since June 17.

Ten sub-components of the industrial index gained while six declined. Industrial mining and beverages made the greatest gains while banks and utility stocks lost ground.

Observers attribute both the gain and the higher volume to a higher New York market. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was sharply higher in moderate trading and topped the 800 level for the first time since July 1.

OTTAWA (CP) — Credit conditions were squeezed tighter Tuesday as the Bank of Canada increased the central bank rate hours after a round of prime rate increases by chartered banks.

The result will be that loan money will be more difficult to find and more expensive for corporations, and householders probably will find that loans and mortgages will cost more.

The bank rate went to a record 9 1/2 per cent from 8 1/2. It was the third increase since April 14, when the rate was 7 1/2 per cent. The prime rate increases by six chartered banks was to 11 1/2 per cent from 11. Two other banks had previously set their prime rate at 11 1/2 per cent.

The bank rate is the rate the central bank charges for loans to chartered banks and the chartered bank's prime rate is the rate charged their most creditworthy customers. The central bank does not make frequent loans to chartered banks but its rate influences rates charged by the retail banks for everything from consumer loans to corporate financing.

The statement from the Bank of Canada announcing the increase noted there has been a "continuing strong demand for credit."

With each of the recent rate increases, bank governor Gerald Bouey has drawn attention to the pressures of inflation.

"It remains the basic objective of the bank's policy to facilitate rate of expansion of money and credit consistent with continuing growth of the Canadian economy as well as a moderation of inflationary pressures," he said in the statement

Tuesday.

Mr. Bouey also cited high levels of short-term rates both abroad and in Canada as part of the reason prompting the move to a higher bank rate.

INTEREST RATE UP Short-term federal government notes now are paying interest of about 9 1/2 per cent, up from about 6 1/2 per cent four months ago.

Certificates of deposit offered by retail financial institutions are paying 10 per cent interest for six-month deposits. The round of chartered bank announcements Tuesday included one setting the rate for non-chequing savings accounts at 9 1/4 per cent beginning Aug. 1, up from 8 1/4 per cent.

This means that while the banks will be charging more for the money they loan, they will in turn be paying more to get money to loan out.

In announcing the higher bank rate, the Bank of Canada noted it was making no change in its rate for purchase and resale agreements with money market dealers.

New York

Housing shortage is acute problem

EDMONTON (CP) — The president of the Canadian Real Estate Association says the Canadian housing shortage is becoming so severe that families may soon have to double up and marriages will be postponed because couples cannot find a place to live.

Brian Magee told the Edmonton Real Estate Board Tuesday that Canadians also can look forward to even larger increases in the price of housing than those experienced this spring.

"Unfortunately there will not only be a shortage of apartments but a corresponding shortage of purchasable housing and this will place upward pressure on the price of available units," he said.

Political decisions, often caused by obstinate ratepayer groups, had made new apartment projects undesirable, and apartment starts were expected to drop 30 per cent across Canada this year.

SALES DROP In most parts of Canada real estate sales have dropped, he said, and there has been a large increase in listings of homes available for sale.

Mr. Magee, chairman of one of Canada's largest real estate firms, A. E. LePage Ltd., said part of Canada's housing problems is caused by selfishness.

"Those who enjoy a neighborhood don't want to share its amenities with others," he said.

Politicians must stop "bowing to dissident neighborhood groups who insist that new developments should be located anywhere but in their areas."

The text of Mr. Magee's speech was released in advance of delivery.

Banker suggests spending limits

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Higgins, president of the thriving, young bank, Unity Bank of Canada, says a limit must be set on the amount people can spend.

Mr. Higgins said in a recent interview that pride in one's work must replace recognition through material gain. People must begin making sacrifices for the whole of society.

"It seems to me that we've developed a tremendous inflationary psychology," he said. "People's expectations have been just pushed to the ultimate; they expect two cars, they assume that it's right to have long vacations. It seems that people do not understand, and I'm not sure that businessmen understand, or economists understand, the tie between what you can have and your own productivity."

"We think that because we're unique as individuals we have rights to certain things but, really, the problem is that in today's society there are certain rights that for the benefit of the whole you simply can't have."

"...there've got to be controls and unfortunately, controls have become a dirty word."

Mr. Higgins, at 39, is the youngest bank president in Canada.

In months Unity has grown from one tiny branch in downtown Toronto to 19 branches in nine cities in four provinces with assets totalling more than $125 million. Plans call for 80 branches by 1980.

RELAXED ATTITUDE Much of its success is due to a relaxed attitude to banking and encouraging the participation of a group which has been largely ignored in Canadian banking. It has rolled up its sleeves, loosened its tie and gone after the diverse ethnic population.

Unity was the brain-child of Toronto trial lawyer Bunny Levintor who got the idea after he had heard Walter Gordon remark that white, Anglo-Saxon Protestants dominate the financial industry because other ethnic groups don't seem to try very hard to enter.

After two years of hard work, Mr. Levintor obtained a bank charter in March, 1972.

Mr. Higgins is a former gravedigger, pinboy, and highway construction worker. He grew up in a boathouse next to a sawmill where his father was, and is, a shingles sawyer.

He refuses to permit the bank to provide him with a chauffeur or a limousine or membership in clubs or similar considerations normally due bank presidents. To accept such favors at this stage would be a "corporate crime," he says.

"We're aiming at the highest after-taxes return to our shareholders in the industry," Mr. Higgins says. "We want to provide a quality of service and a quality of advice to our customers, specializing in personal lending to professional people and businessmen of the communities where we're located. Our managers are committed to their own communities, they're part of them on a permanent basis."

Canada's nickel exports slowing

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian nickel deposits are slowly being depleted but domestic producers should continue to play a major role in world nickel markets, Babson's Reports says.

The ore extracted here is becoming more expensive but producers should be able to maintain their positions as price leaders, Babson's says in an investment letter.

Availability of hydroelectric power helps provide Canadian producers with relatively lower production costs while producers in many other areas must use more expensive fossil fuels to process the ore.

Canada has been the major nickel-producing country in the Western world, but during the next few years an increasing amount of the metal will originate from such areas as the Philippines, Africa and Australia, Babson's says.

The Western nickel industry is dominated by several large producers. International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. controls about 50 per cent of the market. Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. and Sherritt Gordon Mines Ltd. in Canada and Hanna Mining Co. in the United States hold another 29 per cent.

Between 40 and 50 per cent of total demand for nickel is in the production of stainless steel used in many consumer durable and capital goods. Nickel plating used mostly by the automotive industry, high-nickel alloys primarily used by the aircraft industry and construction alloy steels account for another 25 per cent.</

...City beat...

SHERBROOKE (CC) — City council passed a bylaw this week which will allow the construction of a drive-in theatre in Sherbrooke. The drive-in theatre is to be built in the north end of the city near the industrial park and the regional shopping centre.

The zoning change in zone K-8 was requested by Harry Hart who is heading plans to build the drive-in. Council had approved the construction in principle more than six weeks ago but only passed the zoning bylaw change Monday.

+++++ Council has retained a firm of administration consultants to choose the new director of the public works department. The service has been without a head man for nearly six months.

Urwick, Currie and Associates were chosen by council because the firm is thought to be the best in the business, according to city director-general Serge Racine.

The firm, which has more than 10,000 persons on file, expects to be able to find the right man by September. The city expects to pay Urwick, Currie and Associates between $3,800 and $4,300 for the work.

The public works directors' post has been one the city has been unable to fill. Earlier this year the city advertised the post in most major newspapers and construction journals in Quebec.

However, the persons who applied at that time were judged unqualified by city officials. This time the city hopes that the consultant firm will come up with the right man.

+++++ The city has asked tenders for a security force to enforce parking bylaws in the city. Securite de l'Estrie has supplied the service during the past year but their contract terminates August 31.

The firm which tenders the bid accepted by council is charged with supplying individuals to check for parking meter violations and to give out tickets.

Only during the past two years has the city switched from having the local policemen do the job and instead handed the work over to a private firm. City reasoning is that policemen should have better things to do than to give out parking infraction tickets.

+++++ Sherbrooke has officially asked to host the opening ceremonies of the Eastern Townships section of the Quebec Winter Games in 1975.

The city had bid to host the opening ceremonies of the Summer Games but organizers awarded the ceremonies to Windsor. Council passed a resolution seeking the event at last Monday's special council meeting.

+++++ Council has agreed in principle to give the Sherbrooke branch of the Salvation Army a $500 grant. The organization, which provides services for the city's lower classes, requested the grant so that it would be able "to continue its most essential activities."

However, council has no money budgeted this year for such a grant. City technocrats have been asked to determine from which budget the grant could be taken.

NORTH HATLEY — A play with only two characters, especially if that play is a comedy, is a tremendous challenge.

Such a play makes heavy demands on the producer, the director and most of all the characters themselves. With only a total cast of two often the play is a fiasco. But such is not the case at the Piggery Theatre where Paul Craig and Joyce Campion team together to bring off an excellent version of The Fourposter, a play by Jan de Hartog. All that has to be done is ask any of the more than 200 persons who attended last night's opening performance.

Usually on opening night there is what, in theatre circles, is called "a packed house". Those are the people who are involved with the play or with the theatre and applaud anyway no matter how poor the play is.

But last night the Board of Directors of the Piggery staged a benefit with all proceeds going to the committee looking after the re-construction of the North Hatley Community Hall which was destroyed by fire two weeks ago. The audience was composed of many people from the town who came to support the project and not the play. They enjoyed the plan which is geared towards a middle crowd.

The play, written in 1946, follows a couple from their wedding night through the first 35 years of marriage. Most scenes are a parody on the problems of married life.

For instance the first scene deals with the trials and tribulations of the wedding night. The second scene is one year later when the wife Agnes is ready to have their first child. Another scene recounts the finding of a bottle of booze in the son's bedroom and continues with both parents reactions when the son hasn't arrived home by 4 a.m.

There is a scene following the daughter's wedding. If you're over 35 the play will bring back many memories. It is dated but not so much as to destroy the real-life image which the play instills.

The Fourposter isn't as powerful as Barefoot in the Park, the first play produced at the Piggery this summer. It is slower, with less action, but due to the outstanding performances given by Craig and Campion leaves a more-lasting impression.

Why did The Piggery go with just a two character play? The reason was money. There was no other choice.

Miss Emily Lebaron, secretary of the Board of Directors, said after the play: "There wasn't the money available for a large cast."

"Wasn't the play good?" she added. "They are two very good actors."

With the qualifications they bring to the tiny summer stock theatre, located overlooking Lake Massawippi, there is no question that they are first rate. Paul Craig, who plays the husband Michael, is easily recognized as Philip I and II in the CBC series White Oaks of Jalna. Among theatres he has starred in are Stratford, Centaur and the Shaw Festival.

Miss Campion also has a list of impressive credits. Before coming to the Piggery she had just completed a season at the St. Lawrence Centre in Toronto. She had three seasons at Stratford and has played many theatres including La Poudriere and Centaur.

"This is a very attractive theatre," Miss Campion was saying last night amid congratulations from all sides following her performance. "The people here have been really nice. They treat us like human beings."

Although only the two appeared in on-stage parts many people from North Hatley were also there. The set was highlighted by a superb antique fourposter bed. It was lent by Mrs. Arthur Virgin, the honorary president of the board of directors of the North Hatley Playhouse Guild, which sponsors the plays.

The Piggery, which seems headed for another outstanding season, thrives on the efforts of persons like Mrs. Virgin. An antique baby cradle and carriage was found in one supporter's basement.

"I have never seen a Board of Directors like they have here," Roy Higgins, who did an excellent job directing Barefoot in the Park, said Wednesday evening "I have never seen anything like it before. Mr. Higgins, who has directed at least 15 plays in the last three years, added.

"It is they who have built this theatre," he exclaimed. "The Piggery is what summer stock theatre is all about."

The Piggery doesn't expect to make any money this year. In fact the Board of Directors would be happy if the theatre breaks even. At the start the season was budgeted for a $7,000 deficit. The theatre did not get any government grants.

But attendance is up so far. Last year there was an average 42 per cent capacity while this year at least 50 per cent of the seats are filled.

Barefoot in the Park was extended one additional week and if the demand to see The Fourposter forces it the play could run for an additional week. It is to run until August 24.

The decision taken two years ago to create professional theatre at the Piggery every summer is one of the best that the culture-starved Eastern Townships anglophone population could wish for.

The Board of Directors works hard. They scheduled a house tour and held raffles to raise funds.

The Piggery isn't just a theatre. It is North Hatley's gift to the region.

Snowmobilers get government grants

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Two grants for road projects and more grants to snowmobile clubs have been announced by provincial government officials.

The major announcement was that Lambert and Grenier Inc. have been awarded a contract to install traffic lights and direction signs on Autoroute 55 between the United States border and Omerville. The contract amounts to $99,155.

The announcement is welcome news to many persons who have complained about the dangers of driving on the autoroute. Many serious accidents have occurred there. The announcement was made by Orford MNA Georges Vaillancourt.

St. Francois MNA Gerald

Deziel divulged that Couillard Construction Inc., of Coaticook, has been awarded a $20,156 contract for additional work on the Bower bridge in Milby. The bridge was destroyed by ice jams three months ago and a temporary one has been built.

Mr. Vaillancourt also said that the Memphremagog Snowmobile Club, located in Magog and the J.P. Snowmobile Club, headquartered in Rock Forest, have been awarded grants. The Memphremagog club will get $4,370 while the J.P. group has been granted $4,170.

The funds will be used to improve the quality of the clubs' trails and also to add safety measures to areas where the sport is practiced.

Sherbrooke Symphony in Festival performance

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — The Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra, under the directorship of conductor Czeslaw Gladziewski, will present a special summer concert at Festival Lennoxville on Monday, July 29.

The performance will include a largely Canadian program and will feature works by Benjamin Britten, Jean Papineau-Couture, Healy Willan and Schubert. William Stevens will be a guest piano soloist.

Mr. Gladziewski, who has been with the orchestra for one year, looks forward to the concert because he feels it will give the symphony an

Czeslaw Gladziewski

Stanstead and Cookshire — the welcome tends to be warmer. "When we perform in these areas the people show more appreciation and that increases the satisfaction of the musicians," he remarked. "Once the musicians feel they are being appreciated they perform better."

The conductor feels the orchestra is improving in general, as well. He notes that the musicians are semi-professionals who must hold regular employment because they don't earn enough as musicians to support themselves.

In such a situation, the music suffers because musicians do not meet for rehearsal frequently enough, he contends.

Regularly, the orchestra includes 35 musicians from the Eastern Townships and a maximum of 10 guest musicians invited from Montreal or Quebec

City. "With such an arrangement of personnel we might not be as good as before (when many more guests were invited for specific performances), but the musicians themselves are more satisfied because they feel more responsible for the content and quality of the program," he declares.

According to Mr. Gladziewski, the symphony is settling into a routine of offering seven concerts per year — three large ones and four smaller ones mainly outside Sherbrooke proper.

The orchestra is also making concerted attempts to expand its appeal by performing special concerts, with explanations, for school children.

Nevertheless, the only funding received from outside sources to date has come from the DuMaurier Foundation.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — "This is one of the most flagrant cases of receiving stolen goods I have ever heard," said Judge Gerard Normandin after he had found Raymond Jette guilty of receiving 29 pigs, in sessions court Monday.

Jette, 58, of South Stukely, will be sentenced July 29. Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux had produced five witnesses, four of whom told how they stole the pigs in Roxton Falls on March 12, 1973, delivered them to Mr. Jette, and were paid for them the following day.

A bookkeeper for a South Stukely auctioneer produced a bill of sale from Mr. Jette dated March 14, 1973.

Louis Grignon, in defence, unsuccessfully argued the crown had not proven recent possession.

Mr. and Mrs. Jette swore the pigs were delivered in the dead of night, and Mr. Jette did not see them until the following day. They admitted they were delivered from the 12th to the 13th of March 1973, however swore they were not sold at the South Stukely auction until March 20. Their testimony was corroborated by their son.

Mr. Grignon argued one of the crown witnesses, Robert Jalbert, would benefit from an early ticket of leave for collaborating with the police, and cited he was serving two years for perjury.

Crown prosecutor Noisieux rebutted: "He swore he had not been induced in any form to testify, as for the allegation he would benefit from a lightened term neither I nor any of the investigating officers talked to him prior to his testimony."

Judge Normandin upheld the arguments of the crown. He allowed Mr. Jette his freedom until sentencing. Mr. Noisieux indicated he would seek a prison term.

+++++ Herman Bolduc, of Sherbrooke, was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination not exceeding 60 days prior to formal arraignment on charges of arson and fraud.

Bolduc is accused of having set fire to the Bluebird Hotel, Farnham, and of having defrauded Canadian Universal of $120,000, on February 27, 1973. The hotel was a total loss.

Mr. Noisieux indicated he had been in contact with Mr. Bolduc's attorney who agreed to the examination. "I feel it is imperative to determine his true state as he recently attempted to shoot himself," Mr. Noisieux concluded.

+++++ Benoit Claveau and Richard Martel, both of Granby, pleaded guilty to theft of mail valued at under $200 in Granby, June 27, 1974.

Crown prosecutor Noisieux said they thought they had hit some cheques, however landed up with a bag full of Granby tax bills. He suggested a fine of $50 and one year's probation.

Judge Normandin said: "You are lucky, the prior minimum term for postal theft was two years. Since you have no records you will each be fined $25 and costs, in default eight days."

They were granted one month to acquit the fines and costs.

+++++ Judge Bernard Legare continued sentence in the case of Alain Robitaille, of Granby, to August 26. Robitaille earlier pleaded guilty to a count of breaking and entering in Granby.

Defence attorney Pierre Bachand pointed out it was a first offence and requested the clemency of the court. Robitaille was freed pending sentencing.

+++++ Roger Gilbert, Granby, pleaded guilty to having defrauded the Marche Union, Granby of $50 on April 25. He was sentenced to four weekends in jail.

+++++ Judge Normandin reserved sentence in the case of Peter Runte to September 16. Runte, 18, of Granby, pleaded guilty to theft of $41, under terms of article 290 of the criminal code which is theft by a person required to account.

Runte admitted to having spent eight weekends in jail for theft of clothing.

Judge Normandin told Runte he had better reimburse the sum prior to sentencing.

+++++ Bench warrants were issued for Jean Pierre Fortin who failed to appear for arraignment on a count of theft, and Kenny Caster and Jean Paul Duval who missed arraignment on charges of breaking and entering.

+++++ Florent Coderre, Marcelline Lussier, and Joseph Guillemette, all of Granby; Michel Corriveau, Sherbrooke; Michel Corbeil, Montreal; and Michel Ducharme, Cowansville, all pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving in the District of Bedford. They were each fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days. Some delays of one month were granted.

Mr. Turner's Weapons

On July 8 the Canadian people voted confidence in the Trudeau government and gave it a working majority in Parliament. But certainly they did not approve the present state of the nation. Nor did the government ask them to do so. It asked only for the opportunity to grapple with the overriding problem of inflation by its own methods. Now the nation eagerly awaits the government's response to its mandate.

The first important decision by the government will be disclosed in Finance Minister Turner's budget, which was defeated in the last Parliament and which he proposes to reintroduce without delay. It cannot be reintroduced, however, in precisely its original form or, if it is, changes will have to be made a little later on. For the many new expenditures, current and capital, promised during the election campaign must be financed by Mr. Turner's revenues or by an increase of his planned deficit. As he has also indicated, his tax policies in the natural resource industries are being reconsidered.

Apart from all these housekeeping details, the budget will be used, or not used, as one of the government's two primary weapons against inflation. The other weapon is monetary policy which has raised interest rates to a record level. Having refused to consider direct economic controls, the government will need both weapons and, with a majority behind it, can use them as it sees fit.

The budget on which the government fell was described as economically "neutral" but its vastly increased expenditures and substantial deficit were inflationary in themselves and set a pattern of extravagance in the private sector of the economy. Now Mr. Turner must decide whether those pressures should be maintained or curbed, the budget balanced or left in deficit.

It will do nothing, of course, to cool the economy until it is at least brought into balance and preferably into surplus. But Mr. Turner, loaded with the government's election promises (which he may or may not have personally approved) can hardly achieve a balance, much less a surplus, without pretty drastic economies somewhere or, alternatively, tax increases, unless the revenue yields of rampant inflation are even larger than he had expected in the spring.

Altogether he confronts a tantalizing budgetary decision. But that decision cannot be isolated from monetary policy or from the general state of the world economy. At the moment, as expressed by interest rates, Canada's monetary policy would be a strong indirect brake on inflation if it were not largely negated by direct increases in the cost of all production.

Whether this policy has been deliberately enforced by the government and its central bank or represents merely an unavoidable reaction to high United States interest rates, lest they suck capital out of Canada, is not yet clear. Whatever its motivation, the policy, if maintained for long, will surely have significant effects on the economy, as it has always done in the past. Already, indeed, its effects on such industries as house construction are obvious.

Despite these effects, here and elsewhere, most of the Western nations seem determined to use the deflationary weapon of harsh money management simply because they can think of nothing better. After all the talk of "fine-tuning" their economies and their rejection of wage-price controls, they are driven back to the old blunt instrument, the orthodox cure for inflation. And now, suddenly, they begin to fear that they may be using it too harshly, that tight money could turn an inflationary boom into a recession.

British Columbia political scene is in disarray

VICTORIA (CP) — After nearly two years of New Democratic government in British Columbia, the political scene is in disarray as the opposition parties hunt for a winning alternative for the next election.

Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members of the legislature fear that if there isn't some form of opposition unity, there will be the same voting split among the free enterprise parties as occurred in the August, 1972, election when the NDP defeated the long-reigning Social Credit party.

But the difference of opinion lies in just what form this unity movement should take.

Opposition Leader Bill Bennett feels his Social Credit party is strong and broad enough to represent the free enterprise vote and he has invited the other opposition members of the legislature to join his party in the fight against the NDP.

Conservative Leader Scott Wallace and two Liberals, Dr. Pat McGeer

(Vancouver-Point Grey) and Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound), have rejected that idea but have said they would join a B.C. unity party, if such a group is formed.

LEAVES OPTION OPEN

Conservative Hugh Curtis (Saanich and The Islands) also has given his support to a unity party but has left open the option of joining the Social Credit party.

The key to the success of a unity party appears to be held by the 10 Social Credit party members in the 55-member House. The NDP have 38 members, Liberals five and Conservatives two.

To be effective the unity party would have to have a majority of opposition members. However, the Social Credit caucus is interested in unity only under its banner.

Mr. Bennett is reorganizing his party and a policy convention is scheduled for November.

Dr. Wallace has called Mr. Bennett the main stumbling block in the way of a unity party which the Conservatives said should have the support of every member of the legislature "who sincerely respects the democratic process."

Liberal Leader David Anderson also opposes a unity party, saying he doesn't believe such a movement can defeat the NDP in an election.

'WOULDN'T BE EASY'

"The suggestion that we can merge political parties with the same ease that businessmen merge companies is absolute poppycock," he said.

He believes Liberals stand a good chance of stealing NDP votes in the next provincial election because they won 33 per cent of the B.C. vote in the July 8 federal election and doubled their seats from four to eight while the NDP lost nine of their 11 seats.

But Dr. Wallace—whose federal party gained 43 per cent of the B.C. vote and increased its seats to 13 from eight—has said the results showed only that the provincial NDP administration is ripe for the picking, and that this can be done only by a unity party.

Don Oakley

Giving the Indians what they deserve

By Don Oakley

The Havasupai Indians have been to the white man's well seven times for justice — in 1908, 1920, 1943, 1957 and 1968. Legislation is once again before Congress that would grant them trust title to 251,000 acres on the remote South Rim of the Grand Canyon, all that remains of their once vast ancestral homeland.

Beginning about A.D. 700, the Havasupai tribe, known as "The People of the Grand Canyon," lived there without doing ecological violence to the land. In fact, with a religious reverence other Americans are slowly beginning to understand, they considered themselves its protectors.

In the late 19th century, the small tribe, now numbering only 435, was herded into 518 almost inaccessible acres deep in the bowels of the canyon and denied access to the upper plateau region, where for 1,300 years they spent their winters. Havasupai livestock may use the plateau land but not the Havasupai people, and even the use of the plateau for grazing is allowed by permit that can be revoked at any time.

The isolation of the Havasupai has exposed them to perhaps the most severe community health problems in the United States: a grossly inadequate landbase, extremely low income and the exorbitant cost of food, cause hunger, malnutrition and a high incidence of disease. Life expectancy of the Havasupai is 44 years — 26 less than for other Americans.

Because of their isolation, they are visited only once a month by a doctor. Medical evacuation is almost impossible since the eight-mile horse trail to the nearest dirt road is blocked for weeks in winter by snow. Emergency helicopter service is available only during the day and in good weather.

Confinement of the Havasupai to the canyon has also had profound social effects. Today, 70 children aged 10 and over must leave home for nine months of the year to attend a federal boarding school 350 miles away or live in distant foster homes while attending public school. The shortage of land has forced more than 100 tribal members to leave their families to resettle in towns 75 or more miles away.

The means of granting justice to the Havasupai lies in an amendment to Senate bill S 1296, a bill to double the size of the Grand Canyon, which has already passed the Senate. The amendment has the support of a number of prominent congressmen, as well as President Nixon.

The House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs votes this month on S 1296 and on the amendment granting permanent trust title to the Havasupai of these 251,000 acres. If passed by the House, Senate supporters of the amendment are confident it will be ratified by the upper chamber.

Answering the objections of hard-line conservationists, who seem to be the only people opposing the amendment, Sen. Edward F. Kennedy, D-Mass., stated: "The Havasupai have absolutely no desire or intention to use their land base for any purpose other than those which they have pursued for nearly 1,300 years. They are not going to build a dam, or put up a factory, or launch a tourist extravaganza or undertake any other environmentally unsound project."

Quite the contrary, the Havasupai are intent upon preserving the natural, undeveloped and unspoiled beauty of their homeland and are ready to accept any reasonable requirements Congress might impose to insure environmental protection and consistency of use with the adjacent and enlarged Grand Canyon National Park.

This legislation should be passed.

St. Clair partner was a CIA front man

WASHINGTON — A law partner of President Nixon's impeachment attorney, James St. Clair, was a front man until last year for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Paul F. Hellmuth, the managing partner of St. Clair's Boston law firm, has been associated over the past decade with an industrial security company called Anderson Security Consultants, Inc.

We have now established that the company was a CIA front until it was disbanded last year. Hellmuth was then listed officially as president of the firm.

We first learned of Anderson Security's CIA connections from confidential tape recordings of former presidential aide Charles Colson. He described the company as "wholly owned" by the CIA. Insiders at the CIA, he said, "call it an agency proprietary."

We located two former Anderson Security associates who completely confirmed Colson's charges.

Ostensibly, the firm distributed document shredders, conducted security sweeps and planned surveillance programs for industrial concerns. But behind this facade, Anderson Security also funneled money to support the CIA's clandestine operations.

The former associates told us that mysterious checks, written for large amounts, would frequently arrive at the office of the firm's secretary-treasurer, Virginia attorney L. Lee Bean, who would deposit the money in a local bank and disperse it upon instructions.

The secret instructions often came, say our sources, from James St. Clair's quiet law partner. Some of the mystery money was dispatched to Miami banks and was used allegedly to support the CIA's anti-Castro activities.

Our sources say that the Anderson firm's industrial security business was also a front to hide another CIA activity. One of the firm's primary functions, the sources say, was to shred sensitive documents discarded by defense contractors "so the Russians wouldn't get them."

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

This is a clear violation of the law. The National Security Act, which established the Central Intelligence Agency, specifically prohibits the agency from engaging in "internal security functions."

Yet for over a decade, Anderson Security employees regularly visited defense contractors to destroy classified papers. They hauled around a portable shredder, mounted on trucks and on a jeep-pulled trailer. Hot documents were dumped into the machines, mixed with water and ground to a pulp.

When the mess dried, it was cut into large, flat cakes and discarded. One real estate developer, affiliated with Anderson Security, wanted to use the super-secret pulp as insulation in the buildings he constructed, but the plan never worked out.

Former officials of the Anderson firm insist it was disbanded over a year ago. But CIA expert John Marks, coauthor of the controversial book, "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," who helped us with our investigation, learned that the company had apparently transferred its operations from Springfield, Va., to the Boston area a year ago. We have been unable to trace it further.

We contacted Paul Hellmuth who refused to discuss Anderson Security's links with the CIA. But he insisted to my associate, Joe Spear, that James St. Clair didn't know "the first thing about" the security firm.

Other lawyers close to Hellmuth told us, however, it would "greatly surprise" them if St. Clair were unaware of the activities of his managing partner. The ethics of the profession, said our sources, would demand such disclosure among partners.

At this writing, St. Clair has not responded to our requests for comment. Attorney L. Lee Bean was vacationing in Austria and couldn't be reached. A CIA spokesman informed us the agency would have "no comment."

Inside Man: Former Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., who used to champion the mining industry as chairman of the House Interior Committee, has now turned up on their payroll as a $1,750-a-month lobbyist on the strip-mining bill.

In apparent violation of House rules which allow ex-congressmen on the floor only if they are "not interested in any...bill pending before Congress," Aspinall has been generally arm-twisting his old pals right in the well of the House to vote against strip-mining controls.

Aspinall's employer, American Metal Climax, has a major stake in strip-mining, and Aspinall has been lining up interviews with his ex-congressional colleagues for mining industry types.

The House leadership, of course, is winking at the illicit lobbying even though it is going on literally under their eyes. As for the leathery, 79-year-old Aspinall, he is as scrappy as ever.

"Sure, I've been on the floor," he said. "But I'm not pinholing any members. I'm for a strip-mining bill that will have ecological protection and will permit strip-mining. After all, nobody ever said Wayne Aspinall wasn't a conservationist."

Actually, that is exactly what his environmentalist opponents have said for years, now more than ever as they sit in the galleries and helplessly watch him at work on the floor below.

Ralph Novak

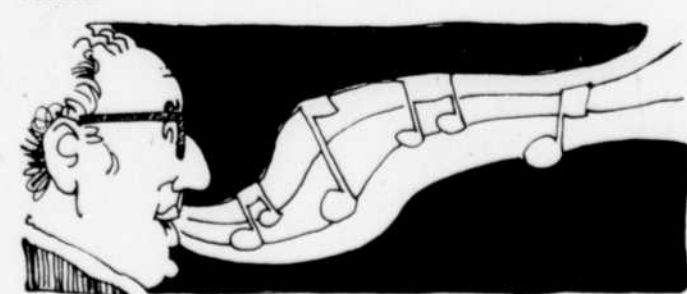

Post-mortems in the Kremlin

By Ralph Novak

"Well, Alexei, what did you think of Comrade Richard?" "Frankly, Leonid, I thought he came on a little strong. I didn't mind so much when he kept asking us if we would speak into his lapel pin. But when he asked us to sign the petition saying we'd vote for him again if we had the chance, that was a little too much. And I kind of regretted it when he said he really didn't want to devote any more time to detente because he wanted to get back to the real business of government, which is handling the Watergate affair."

"Yes, Comrade, I know how you feel. Whenever I would talk to him, he would keep spinning around to make sure no one could sneak up on him and serve him with a subpoena. Then every 45 minutes Comrade Ron would issue one of those mimeographed releases that were a blanket denial of all charges, with the blanks for accuser and charge filled in in pencil. I pointed out that the Czar and Teddy Roosevelt would hardly have handled things that way."

"Did we make much progress in the bargaining, Leonid?" "They didn't seem to see the fairness of it when I offered to give up four bazookas and a bayonet if they would give up 250 nuclear missiles, 500,000 troops and the Strategic Air Command. But then you never expect a capitalist to listen to reason."

"Well, every time Comrade Henry would open his mouth to say something, out of nowhere would come this tape recording of 'Hail to the Chief.' Somebody would stick a corned beef sandwich on rye in Henry's mouth and Comrade Ron would read another communique about cultural exchanges. It looks to me as if Comrade Henry may be getting purged soon."

"Over there they actually call it. Getting named attorney general," I think, Leonid. Anyway, I don't think Henry is that bad off. They might send him to Massachusetts or some terrible place like that but they don't dare get rid of him. He might have negotiated a secret treaty with Upper Volta or someone that says they can have $300 billion if he is taken out of office."

"What I didn't understand, Alexei, was all those so-called journalists running around asking questions and taking pictures. Were they really CIA men in disguise?"

"No, that had something to do with what they call in the West 'freedom of the press.' I'm not exactly sure what it is but it seems to me that Solzhenitsyn tried to explain it to me once."

"All in all, do you think we came out ahead this time?" "I'm not sure, Leonid. I think in one of those secret disarmament agreements we agreed to give all of our nuclear submarines to Albania and in one of the trade pacts we agreed to buy 500 million cases of surplus meat tenderizer. But basically, as far as I can understand it, we did pretty well."

"That's worth a drink. What will you have?" "A diet vodka for me. And let's toast the people's soviet socialist republics and the future of Marxism-Leninism."

"Prosit, Alexei. But I have just one final question."

"What's that, Leonid?"

"Do you think John Dean was telling the truth?"

MR. AND MRS. CARL ROBERT BALL

MAGOG — The marriage of Kathleen Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril J. Ruck of Magog, Quebec, to Mr. Carl Robert Ball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Ball of Waterville, Quebec, took place June 22, 1974 at 4 p.m., in St. Paul's United Church, Magog. Rev. Dr. William Close officiated at the double ring ceremony.

During the signing of the register, the organist, Mrs. E. Cuthbert, played "Sunshine On My Shoulder."

The chancel was decorated with baskets of white with pink gladioli, daisies, and baby's breath and tall white candles. White bows marked the pews.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of white angel skin. Part of the bodice and the sleeve was of cotton lace. Pink ribbon ran through the high necked collar, the waist, the hem of the skirt as well as the long train. Pink ribbon also decorated the deep puff of the sleeve and the buttoned cuffs. Her long veil was attached to a headpiece of white roses and lily of the valley and she carried a cascade of red sweetheart roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Miss Diane Fraser, of Cookshire, Quebec, friend of the bride, as maid of honour wore a pale blue gown of embossed nylon over an acetate lining of deeper blue. A ruffle trimmed the bodice and long ties from the high waisted skirt made a bow in the back. She carried a nosegay of daisies, bachelor's buttons, carnations and baby's breath.

Mr. Roy Sylvester, cousin of the groom, acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. John Ball, brother of the groom and Mr. Bryan Ruck, brother of the bride. The gentlemen of the wedding party wore tuxedos and white carnations on their lapels.

The bride's mother chose a floor length gown of small orange flowered print on an eggshell background. Her corsage was of coral sweetheart roses.

The groom's mother chose a floor length gown of blue, red and white print. Her corsage was of red roses.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Iris Dingman, wore a gown of mauve polyester trimmed with white daisies. Her corsage was of yellow mini carnations.

The reception was held at the Cabana Lodge, Magog, where pictures were taken and the receiving line was formed. Mr. Garth Dingman, uncle of the bride, was the photographer.

The four tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's mother and grandmother and was decorated by Mrs. Gordon Bailey.

A dance was held at the Army, Navy, Air Force Veteran's Hall, where the music was provided by Mr. Bruce Patton and his orchestra.

For their trip to Cape Breton Island, the bride chose a yellow dress and wore a corsage of coral sweetheart roses.

Relatives and friends travelled from Sussex, England, Holliston, Mass., Cambridge-Preston, Ontario, Ottawa, Ontario, Montreal and vicinity, Sherbrooke, East Angus, Lennoxville, North Hatley, Baldwin's, Waterville and Austin, Quebec.

Golden anniversary

SOUTH BOLTON — Former Eastern Townships residents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hall celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 29 in Rouyn, Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willey accompanied by Mrs. Edward Snay, Newport, Vermont, and Mr. William Seymour, Derby, Vermont, journeyed to Rouyn, Quebec on June 29 to attend the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. Willey's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hall.

The event took place in the Noranda Recreation Centre. This party had been planned by Mr. and Mrs. Hall's seven children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

As they entered the hall, Mrs. Hall (Edrie Willey) was presented with a bouquet of red roses and Mr. Hall (Ralph) was presented with a family photo tree with a gift of money from each child. Mrs. Hall also received a beautiful corsage and Mr. Hall a boutonniere.

The hall was trimmed in gold for the occasion. A three tier cake and candles were in the centre of the table. The red roses Mrs. Hall had received at the door were arranged in vases and placed on the table.

As each guest greeted the

Dear Ann Landers: I have a wonderful husband and we have two fine children. About a year ago I made a miserable mistake. I became involved with a married man, the husband of a friend of mine. The "romance" was of short duration and I could kick myself every time I think about it.

I foolishly believed I was entitled to some outside loving because something was lacking at home. My lover gave me the same line. We were "soulmates." Finally I came to see the relationship for what it was, a cheap, back-alley affair. I stopped seeing him after the fifth meeting and have toned down my friendship with his wife. (Guilt, of course.)

Since that lousy episode, I've tried doubly hard to be a better-than-ever wife, and our marriage has never been stronger.

Yesterday I received a phone call from "Mr. Black Past." He tells me he wants to "do the right thing" and confess everything to his wife. He claims his conscience is bothering him and he can't rest until he comes clean. I nearly collapsed.

I begged him not to. I explained that if his wife isn't willing to forgive and forget she might sue for divorce, naming me correspondent, and it could wreck my life. He reads your column every day and says you're a smart lady. Will you please try to get through to him. —Tormented in Toledo

Silver anniversary

SHERBROOKE — Saturday, June 29, 1974 a 25th wedding anniversary party for Fred and Margaret Currier was held in the Sergeant's Mess of the William Street Armory, Sherbrooke.

The hosts and hostesses for the party were their family who were all able to be present - Jim and his wife Valerie of Amherst, Nova Scotia; Stephen of Toronto; and Nancy and Donald of Sherbrooke.

On the arrival of the honoured couple, Jim pinned a corsage on his Mom and Nancy pinned a boutonniere on her Dad.

Stephen welcomed everyone to the party and to the mess. Jim introduced the bridal party of 25 years: the matron of honour, Mrs. Eric Davidson (Audrey Burt) of Toronto and the bestman, Arthur Morrison of Sherbrooke. Several of the guests at the party had also attended the wedding.

The evening was spent renewing acquaintances and taking pictures of the occasion. Everyone enjoyed the punch and canapés served from the buffet table. Centering the buffet table was a beautiful anniversary cake, given by Mrs. E. Siveright, that was cut and served to the guests.

Later in the evening, Jim presented his parents with anniversary gifts, cards and a silver envelope containing currency with the congratulations and best wishes of all. Both Fred and Margaret expressed their thanks to the family for the lovely party and to all those attending for their gifts and help in making the evening such a memorable one.

Donald was in charge of the guest book and Nancy looked after the anniversary book sent by Roy and Gwen Hastings of Florida. Those attending from a distance came from: Amherst, Nova Scotia; Toronto, Ontario; Lyndonville, Vermont; and Chateaugay Terrace, Quebec.

Frederick Currier and Margaret Dawson were married on July 2, 1949, at the Church of Saint Paul the Apostle, West Sherbrooke, and have resided all their married life in Sherbrooke.

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Insulin isn't found in foods

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I wonder if you could give me some information on diabetes. I am a diabetic and am trying to find foods that contain insulin, such as artichokes and sweet breads. Could you help me or tell me where to write for the information?

DEAR READER—I don't know where you got the idea, but you might as well forget about it. Insulin is a complex protein. That means it is formed by hooking together over 50 amino acids. All proteins are formed by hooking together various combinations of amino acids, just as words are formed by hooking together letters in the alphabet.

The rub is that your digestive system is designed to break down proteins into the original building blocks of amino acids. Just as the protein in milk, beef, fish, eggs and other foods is broken down, so are any protein medicines you swallow.

The acid pepsin juice in the stomach starts the process. The rest is accomplished in the small intestine as a result of enzymes from the pancreas and intestinal wall. What gets through the intestinal wall into the body then is just the building blocks and these are all the same whether they come from meat, milk, wheat or other sources. This is just like breaking down a lot of words. The letter "a" is the same "a" whether it comes from one word or another word.

So, insulin has to be given by injection. This way the protein avoids being broken down by digestion into its common building blocks. The insulin can then be active in the body. Digested insulin is just a collection of disconnect amino acids and has no effect on diabetes or the blood sugar.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I sent for a book advertised in the Farmer's Almanac titled "State Food Vs. Fresh Food" and was really shocked at some of the things they said were bad for your arteries, like flour and cereals and ham and bacon and you should drink raw milk. Is there any truth in a diet like that, and wouldn't you get some other disease drinking raw milk? Would like your opinion on this diet as I do have trouble with arthritis and my husband has trouble with his arteries. I just wonder by eating all fresh food and raw milk whether it really would improve your arteries.

DEAR READER—In a word "GHASTLY." Raw milk went out with the dark ages. Happily we do have pasteurized milk and in most places it is required. As a result our children are not exposed to many diseases that are milk borne.

Widespread areas of the Midwest once had cattle with brucellosis, a disease they then transmitted to humans who drank the raw, infected milk. That is only one disease that milk can carry. Milk is good food, even for growing germs. You don't need to tell me anything else about that diet. If it is as far off the truth as the bit about raw milk indicates, it is probably a public health menace. Throw it away and save yourself the doctor bills it could cause you.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Balanced Diet" booklet.

Oswald: "There are any number of ways for a good bridge player to make more tricks than one of lesser ability, but none is more apparent than the expert's willingness to give himself extra chances."

Jim: "Here is a case in point. South (a fair player) started by cashing his three top diamonds. The suit failed to break so he led a club to dummy's ace and a second one back to his queen. West took his king; cashed the last diamond and got out with a heart. South led a third club and was down one when that suit failed to break."

Oswald: "South had given the hand a fair play. He would have made it if either minor suit had broken or if East had held the club king."

Jim: "A fair play, but one that failed to give himself every chance. He was right to cash the diamonds and lead a club, but the first club play from dummy should have been a small one. He would get in with a heart or spade and lead a second club. This would collect West's king and give him the second club trick he needed."

Oswald: "This play would have cost him an unimportant overtrick if East had started with three clubs to the king. As it was it would give him the extra chance that would bring home the contract."

Totalitarian schools add problems

By Tom Tiede
(Fourth in a Series)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —
A local teacher tells the agonizing story of a shy young pupil who was too embarrassed to ask for a pass to visit the school lavatory.

Thus inhibited, the lad wet his pants regularly, became the object of peer derision, earned the nickname "Peepot", and had a mental breakdown.

The teacher says, "What kind of system do we have when a kid can't go to the bathroom without written permission?"

The question is being asked with steadily growing regularity by child advocates who believe schools have become one of the most oppressive, often most destructive, forces in young people's lives.

Toilet permission is only the beginning of lengthy regulatory lists which, at most schools in America, are absolute law. Violation of such mundane things as dress codes, personal appearance standards, and even locker tidiness can result in public humiliation, expulsion and in some cases corporal punishment.

The examples pain the mind. A student caught smoking in Mississippi was forced to walk the hallways with an "I'm an addict" poster. A kindergarten child in Texas, who wore ear-length hair to hide a skull deformity, was expelled at five years old. A basketball coach in New Jersey passed out contracts to his squad mandating personal behavior, and warned they would be dropped from the squad if they broke the agreement. Child advocate Eda Leshane says children sometimes get warnings for overdue library books that hint of sabotaging the child's future employment attempts.

The illustrations are not isolated. Though the U.S. Supreme Court has determined that neither "students nor teachers shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate," the student at least is still shedding plenty in the way of civil rights when he enters the educational door.

In most schools, children do not have the right of redress from teachers or administrative personnel. In many schools, students are subject to physical retaliation for real or imagined faults (Dallas, Tex., school officials administered 26,000 licks in 1972).

In many schools pupils are not allowed any expression, much less freedom of it, at times the teacher wishes quiet. In sum, the American education system does not hold with the Bill of Rights.

In fact, at least part of the American educational system does not hold with basic decency. Thousands of schools allow the administration of amphetamines to calm hyperactive kids, even though many medical opinions question the practice.

In Boston recently, a child advocacy group discovered 600-foreign speaking children who could not attend school because administrators refused to provide bilingual facilities. In the South, according to officials of the Robert Kennedy Foundation, as many as 50,000 black youths have been "pushed out" of classrooms through discriminatory treatment.

To be sure, the abuses vary from institution to institution and teacher to teacher, but at least one Constitutionally questionable practice prevails nationwide. According to Dr. William Pharis, director of the National Association of Elementary School Principals, all schools in the nation keep files on children and most keep the files secret from either pupil or parent inspection.

The confidential file system is, naturally, historic in American schools. But Dr. Pharis says that does not make it any less repulsive today. Much of a youngster's life is represented in the school data, and a good deal of private opinion besides. Records include grades, psychological reports, medical histories — and very often, with varying degrees of accuracy, personal notations of conduct, deportment, character, even personality. It is not unusual for an angry instructor, for good reason or no, to record for posterity the opinion that "this kid is a real sad jerk."

The system shocks Pharis. He says not only is it wrong to keep secret files on anybody, even children, but it can be destructive as well. "It's the old self-fulfilling prophecy syndrome. Most of what people are is what they've become from other people's input. So if teachers continue to harp on a child's actions, using the files, the child may soon come to behave as he's expected to behave."

In other words, the marginal comments in the secret files may not help so much as hurt the development of a youngster.

But even without the sociological implications, the files create problems. Students resent them because they can't see them. Parents grow suspicious of the data-gathering institution and its values, not to mention its democratic principles.

Moreover, says an official with the U.S. Department of Education: "Though the files are supposed to be confidential, they sometimes go public. Who knows how many jobs have been lost, for example, because an employer found disqualifying traits on the past records of applicants?"

Encouragingly, the secret file system may be on the way out. Several schools, including Zachary Lane elementary outside Minneapolis, have adopted open file techniques. Zachary principal David Dooley says parents often keep the dossiers at home, there is space in the files for both parent and teacher observations, and "very often the student himself is the one filling in new file information."

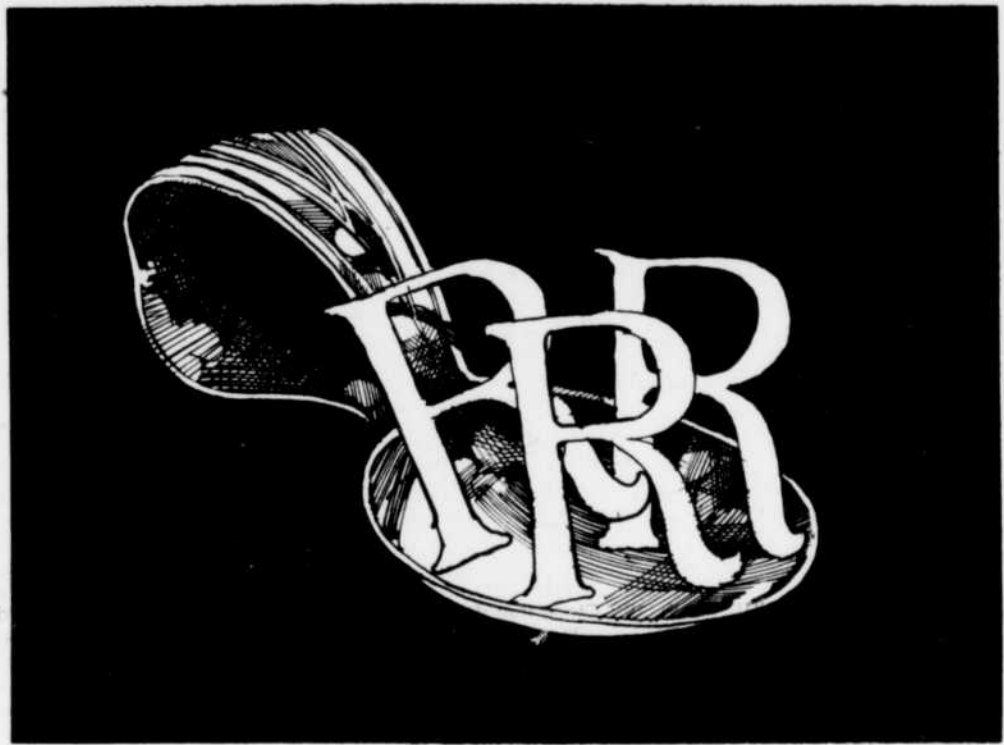

Even as the idea spreads, NAESP director Pharis predicts the courts will soon rule for the nation as a whole: "Nobody has a right to keep secret data on anybody; I think the courts will agree."

But even if this one civil abuse is removed from schools, dozens more will likely remain: censorship of student newspapers, areas off-limits to students, careless administrators who deal with names and numbers rather than children.

Thus with the cost of education skyrocketing — now $95 billion a year — growing armies of both student and parents believe the expenditures should provide for the inclusion of justice in the daily lessons.

ACW-UCW holds successful tea and sale

WAY'S MILLS — On Wednesday afternoon, July 10, the Way's Mills Anglican and United Church Women were hostesses at a most successful Salad Tea and Sale held in the Union Hall.

The tea tables, arranged in the ground floor hall, were centered with small glass bowls each containing a beautiful rose while a basket of exquisite peonies, delphinium and roses, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Foster, added greatly to the decor.

The dining room was in charge of Mrs. Howard Standish assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Geddes, and the servers were Misses Anne, Janey, Angela, and Kathy Standish, Debbie and Melissa Clark, Robin and Holly Whipple, Leasha Smith, Kelly Holmes and Wendy Walsh.

Tea was made by Mrs. W.B. Holmes who, assisted by Mrs. Muriel Cass, kept the tea-pots well supplied, while the squares were cut and arranged by Mrs. Maude Littlejohn and Mrs. Arthur Jordan.

The salads were attractively arranged by Mrs. C.D. Pedersen, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Richie Harrison, Mrs. Gordon Whipple and Miss Phyllis Cass. Mrs. George Nason and Mrs. Shirley Whipple prepared the trays of French bread and glasses of Tang for the children, assisted by Mrs. Roland Sheldon.

The sales tables were in the upper hall. Here the home-cooked food was sold by Mrs. Weyland Pope, Mrs. Alcide Beaudin and Mrs. Lottie Drew. Mrs. James Dunn was their cashier. Handicrafts and novelties were sold by Mrs. Harry Eno, Mrs. William Hawthorne, Mrs. J.N. Foster and Mrs. Mildred Rudd. The cashier was Mrs. Clarence Davis.

Concentrated golf program needed

EDMONTON (CP) — A concentrated development program is needed to help develop adequate Canadian golf professionals, says Stan Leonard, once one of the best in this country.

"I can't ever recall Canada being in worse shape for top competitive players," he said in an interview. "Every other country has developed top players lately."

Leonard said schools should be established in four or five major cities with top teaching pros such as Bob Toski and Labron Harris being imported to provide detailed instruction and supervision.

"We need something for the special golfer who is no longer a junior but is not ready to step in with the mature players."

Such a project would cost about $50,000 the first year, said Leonard, "but there are no takers."

Here for a televised golf competition, Leonard said Canada's performance in the 1973 World Cup shows how poorly this country has fared in producing top golfers.

"We finished 27th, which is sickening."

"We beat Morocco, but did we beat anybody else?"

Canada finished behind Thailand, the Philippines and France and 56 strokes behind the victorious United States.

The Canadian entry, Phil Giroux of Montreal and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, scored 612 shots.

"The previous year, we were 23rd or something," said Leonard. "It's a sad situation."

In 1968, George Knudson and Al Balding won the World Cup. Knudson plays sporadically on the American pro tour, while Balding has taken a club professional's job near Toronto.

Panasiuk, Canada's top golfer last year, remains in Canada. Some, including Leonard, would like to see him take a crack at the American circuit.

Leonard says Panasiuk is "wasting an abundant talent."

Ben Kern and Wilf Homenuik are virtually the only Canadians playing regularly in the United States. They have few tournament exemptions, which means they must qualify in a playoff for the right to compete in a regular tournament.

"We haven't gone far in the last 10 years," said Leonard, who had an excellent record as a touring pro. "It was pitiful that no one from Canada qualified for the Tournament Players Division in the United States this year."

A discouraged Leonard said only one Canadian player—Doug Roxburgh of Toronto—has the capacity now to step into the American pro tour.

Legion 10 drops Clark's, Rand forfeits to Begin

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Legion No. 10 downed Clark's Pharmacy and Rand defaulted to Begin Sports in Lennoxville Women's Softball League play last night.

Legion took a four run lead in the first inning and added nine more to the count before Clark's rallied for their first 10 runs in the fourth inning. Legion scored three more runs in the fifth, to offset the three made by Clark's.

Clark's added one run in the following two innings, while Legion chalked up six in the sixth inning to cap the victory. The final score was in Legion's favor 22-15.

Maureen Hallam, June Hendy and Pam Bown each made to the bases in five times at bat for the Legion squad.

Rand was forced to forfeit their game to Begin because only seven players turned out for the game. Eight players is the minimum for a scheduled contest.

Three games are on tap for Sunday, while a lone match is slated for Monday. Begin plays

Defence sparks Als to 20-12 win

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence wins championships, says coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes, but it doesn't hurt to have one or two "ordinary" superstars.

"Our defence played a super game," Levy told reporters following the Alouettes' 20-12 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference Wednesday night.

But the game also showed that second-year quarterback Jimmy Jones is a team leader, he said.

The former University of Southern California star teamed with "ordinary" superstar Johnny Rodgers on an electrifying first-quarter 70-yard touchdown, one of five passes caught by Rodgers for a total of 128 yards.

Canadian Open draws 150 contestants

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Tom Weiskopf and Jack Nicklaus took exception Wednesday to accusations that Mississauga Golf Club is not in championship form.

Much of the 6,788-yard layout was under water in the spring when the Credit River flooded.

"I don't think a lot of you guys (writers) go beyond the 18th green," said Nicklaus before he and Weiskopf embarked on their second practice round for the Canadian Open, a 72-hole test for $200,000 in prize money that began today.

As for complaints of slow play in the initial two days of practice rounds, Weiskopf had this answer:

"Those guys that do all the complaining don't play at the right time of day. I play either very early in the day or very late."

The two Columbus, Ohio, natives paired both Tuesday and Wednesday for late starts and dusk was falling when they returned to the clubhouse.

150 IN FIELD

They will be among a field of 150 professionals and amateurs vying for the $40,000 first prize. The three amateurs in the field all earned exemption from the Royal Canadian Golf Association — George Burns III of Port Washington, N.Y., the 1973 Canadian amateur champion; Ontario amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont.; and veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont.

Weiskopf, who included the Kemper, Philadelphia and Colonial among his 1973 tour victories, has yet to win this year.

Of the course he said:

"I'd have to rank it in the top 10 on the tour this year so far as being beautiful and tough."

"I hear that floods have left spots and that the course has been damaged. Heck, I've played courses that didn't have any flood problems and they really did have damaged spots."

"I think this (Mississauga) is in excellent condition."

The 18th, which underwent alterations last year, is not quite settled and could pose a problem with how shots react as they hit the surface.

NOT A FACTOR

But neither player was of the opinion the green would be a factor in deciding a winner.

"In fact, I'd go so far to say the course is really in exceptional condition," said Nicklaus who lost here by a stroke in the 1965 Canadian Open to Gene Littler. Nicklaus has played in three Canadian Opens, finishing second on two occasions and third once — a stroke off the pace.

It remains the only national title that he has competed for and never won.

Lee Trevino, the 1971 champion, named Weiskopf and Nicklaus as the men to beat in the 65th challenge for the Canadian Open that has been won by a Canadian only once — by Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon in 1954 — since 1914.

Nicklaus, perennial leader in the money-winning list until this year, has won only the Hawaiian Open in 1974. He has $119,982 in winnings.

He trails Johnny Miller ($204,750), Hubert Green ($160,449), Hale Irwin ($142,012) and Jerry Heard ($120,427) — none of whom are competing here.

"Our execution on defence forced them into errors," Levy said of Montreal's two pass interceptions, two recovered fumbles and its ability to limit Hamilton to four field goals, one in each quarter.

Hamilton place-kicker Ian Sunter scored his three-pointers from distances of 22, 38, 24 and 27 yards.

SPOILS HIS RECORD

Jones had one pass intercepted and Montreal fullback Steve Ferrughelli, who had never fumbled during his professional career prior to the game, lost two against the Ticats.

Jones also tossed a 16-yard touchdown to halfback Larry Smith in the second quarter. Kicker Don Sweet converted both first-half touchdowns and added field goals in the second and third quarters from 34 and 14 yards respectively.

Rodger's spectacular touchdown brought many of the 15,246 spectators to their feet when he caught the ball at the Hamilton 20-yard line between defenders Al Brenner and Louis Clare and outraced them 20 yards to the end zone, running backwards the last five yards.

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams told reporters he put back-up quarterback Bill Etter into the game in the third quarter because the team was not moving under Chuck Ealey. Ealey returned late in the game after Etter began suffering double vision following a hit by defensive end Junior Ah You, who was voted the game ball by his Alouette team-mates.

"Don't write us off yet," Williams said.

"We moved the ball pretty well," he said of the Ticats who were outscored by the Als 159-58, but gained 269 yards through the air compared with 182 for Montreal.

Clyde King named as new Atlanta manager

ATLANTA (AP) — Clyde King was named Wednesday to manage the faltering Atlanta Braves, but Henry Aaron's revelation that he would have taken the job if asked turned a routine announcement into a simmering controversy.

Aaron, the 40-year-old all-time baseball home run king who had said he never wanted to manage, changed his stand

Rand in Lennoxville at 6:45 p.m. Sunday, while Sawyerville will play a twin-bill against two different teams. Legion plays at Sawyerville beginning at 6:30 p.m., with Clark's opposing them at 8:30 p.m.

Brasserie Dauphin will tackle Begin on Monday evening at 6:45 p.m. in the only regular scheduled tilt.

Tuesday night at the all-star game in Pittsburgh.

"If the Braves offered me the job Wednesday," said Aaron, "I'd feel compelled to take it simply because there are no black managers in the major leagues."

"I have said previously that I wasn't interested in managing the Braves or any other team. But since my name was injected into the conversation by (Atlanta) vice-president Eddie Robinson, I've changed my mind."

Robinson, who expressed surprise at Aaron's statement, said:

"In all of our talks with Hank, he has said that he wanted a front office job after he retired and not a position on the field. I don't think there's anything to straighten out. I'll talk to Henry about it."

WAS FAVORITE

Meanwhile, King, a special assistant to Robinson for the last two years and a former manager with San Francisco Giants, was named interim manager. He had been the leading candidate since Eddie Mathews was fired Sunday.

"I certainly don't expect any problem with Hank," said King, 50, after Robinson read a prepared statement, naming King to head the Braves. Contract terms were not revealed.

"I have gotten to know Hank fairly well and know that Hank Aaron would not do anything to harm the Atlanta Braves."

King was dismissed as manager of San Francisco Giants early in the 1970 season. He had previously coached and managed in the minors after pitching for Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers from 1944-53, compiling a 32-25 record, mainly as a reliever.

MUST WIN JOB

Robinson, who stressed that King was taking over only for the remainder of the year, said King possibly would be rehired for next year if the Braves showed improvement.

He also left the door open for Aaron, saying that if a change in managers had to be made next year, "Aaron would be considered."

Braves president Bill Bartholomew also was surprised by Aaron's comments, saying the superstar outfielder always had told him he was not interested in managing.

"If Hank feels he wants to manage next year, certainly he'll be given consideration."

Record set at WFL contest

Jacksonville Sharks set a World Football League record Wednesday night when they kicked four field goals in the first half of their game against Southern California Sun.

Grant Guthrie booted three-pointers of 23, 29, 27 and 42 yards.

On the last play of the game, quarterback Tony Adams from Utah State threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to Dave Williams and the Sun came up with a 22-19 victory before 46,780 fans.

In Wednesday night's other WFL games, Birmingham Americans bombed Memphis 58-33, Chicago Fire turned back Portland 29-22 and Florida Blazers beat Houston 15-3. New York Stars are in Philadelphia tonight for the WFL's nationally televised game against the Bell.

Jacksonville had taken a 19-15 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter when Kay Stephenson fired a 16-yard pass to Tony Lomax.

But Adams, who had connected with Williams on a 20-yard scoring pass in the first half, got the Sun going in the final 2½ minutes, hitting with short passes to James McAlister and Williams and, on fourth down and six yards to go at midfield, finding Kermit Johnson at the 40 with seven seconds to play.

WINNING PASS

After the Sun took its last time out, Adams threw to Williams deep in the left corner of the end zone.

As a WFL-record 61,319 fans shrieked their approval, veteran George Mira and rookie Matthew Reed of Grambling decimated Memphis' secondary with 378 aerial yards and five touchdown passes — three to Alfred Jenkins — to keep the Americans unbeaten.

Mira threw 38 and 74-yard scoring strikes to Jenkins and one to Dennis Homan for 12 yards.

John Harvey ran for 126 yards and two touchdowns for Memphis. But, as Coach John McVay explained: "It all started when we gave up a cheap touchdown early and had to play catch up from there. . . . We just started behind and finished behind."

CARTER HOT

Virgil Carter of the Fire had a hot night in the air, too. He threw touchdown passes of 50 yards to Mark Keller, one yard to Cyril Pinder and 69 yards to James Scott too, as Chicago took advantage of Storm mistakes to stay tied with Birmingham atop the Central Division.

Portland, which drew a home-opener crowd of 19,358, has lost its three games. The Storm took the lead on an 18-yard scoring pass from Greg Barton to Greg Specht. But it didn't score again until the final period.

LINDA LOVELACE IS COMING TO TOWN!

Percival funeral Friday

TORONTO (CP) — Funeral services for fitness expert Lloyd Percival who died Tuesday in Montreal will be held here Friday.

Percival, 61, collapsed at a noon luncheon meeting and died about three hours later in hospital. Dr. William Kerr, his personal physician in Toronto, said he died of a heart attack.

Percival was a controversial figure in his life-long promotion of modern methods of physical fitness and training and his Hockey Handbook published in 1950 formed the basis of the Soviet Union's rise to supremacy in that sport.

He recently sold his interest in the $3.5 million Fitness Institute in Toronto which he opened six years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy, daughter, Janet, women's director of the Fitness Institute, and a brother, Alan, of Toronto.
