

The twentieth annual public speaking contest sponsored by the Women's Institute, was held in the Hemmingford High School on Friday evening, March 20th.

Contestants from Franklin Centre, Howick — which includes Aubrey-Riverfield, Huntingdon, Ormstown and Hemmingford High Schools took part. All these contestants were winners of contests held in their local schools prior to the final evening.

Chairman for the evening was Mrs. J. B. Palmer, County President of the Q.W.I. In her opening speech, Mrs. Palmer expressed the feelings of all W.I. members. The W.I. has always been concerned with the general education of children, and, by sponsoring the public speaking contest, are giving pupils the opportunity to learn the basic elements of speaking in public — to learn to articulate and to express an idea and opinion before an audience.

Mrs. Harriet Macdonald, County Chairman of Education, then called on the nineteen contestants, one at a time, to the platform to present their speeches. All were interesting and well presented.

The judge, Mr. Brash, Supervisor of English, Quebec Provincial School Board, had a difficult task to select the winners.

The following is a list of the contestants and the school which they represented:

Grades 4 and 5: 1st, Louise Duke, Huntingdon; 2nd, Phyllis Whyte, Howick; 3rd, Johnny McMillan, Franklin Centre. Other contestants in this group were Lindo Winter, Hemmingford, and Glenna Rember, Ormstown.

Grades 6 and 7: 1st, Lynn Radley, Hemmingford; 2nd, Nancy Winter, Ormstown; 3rd, Carol Carlson, Howick. Other contestants in this group were Nancy Robb, Huntingdon, and Sheila Stevenson, Franklin.

Grades 8 and 9: 1st, McCreae Nussey, Ormstown; 2nd, Carol Smith, Howick; 3rd, Janet Johnson, Franklin. Other contestants were Doreen Rutherford, Huntingdon and Doreen Kyle Hemmingford.

Grades 10, 11 and 12: 1st, Patricia Dahms, Huntingdon; 2nd, Maureen Martin, Ormstown; 3rd, Beryl Clark, Hemmingford and Barbara Ness, Howick.

After announcing the winners, Mr. Brash gave a few words of congratulatory advice and encouragement to the participating students. He said he was surprised to find the contestants, especially those from Grades 4 and 5, expressing such dynamic personalities. One of the main things in public speaking is to get in tune with your audience. Looking around the gymnasium he saw that all present were keenly interested in each speech — a pin could have been heard dropping. Other important factors to remember are originality of topic and clarity of speech. Mr. Brash also congratulated the W.I. for organizing such an excellent contest over such an extended period of time.

Certificates and prizes were awarded to the winners by Mrs. W. Rember, Vice-County President of the Q.W.I.

Mrs. W. Beattie, President of the Hemmingford W.I., in charge of the intermission programme, Coffee, doughnuts and apple juice were sold. Mrs. M. Adam, Mrs. R. Petch, Mrs. Greer and Mrs. L. Simpson were in charge of this department.

Mrs. E. Merlin, County Treasurer, prepared the prizes for distribution. Mr. Douglas McGowan, Hemmingford, took pictures of all contestants. Mrs. J. Redick, 1st County Vice-President, thanked the various people and conveners who helped make the event a success.

All pupils who participated in the contest are to be congratulated and are urged to enter

MONTREAL, March 20 — Textile production of the future will be based on more advanced technology, a leading Canadian industry executive said here tonight.

Such a trend would naturally increase the need for scientific management, Francois E. Cleyin, President of the Canadian Wool Textile Goods Manufacturers' Association, told a gathering of the Textile Society of Canada, Eastern Division.

"A logical development would mean establishment of higher standards in textile training schools; but we should result in better pay for graduates," he said.

Mr. Cleyin said that these schools would be expected to supply the bulk of the industry's future leaders. The two provincial schools, at St. Hyacinthe, Que., and Hamilton, Que., have graduated more than 300 men in the past decade, he added.

"It is vitally important that graduates of the future acquire scientific knowledge, as well as practical, mechanical, practical mechanics and carpentry."

Even during the depression years, the Canadian textile industry has absorbed all graduates from the technical schools. "In more, said Mr. Cleyin, "the industry is always room for good men top."

The speaker praised the technical activities of such groups as the TSC. "It is increased ability and knowledge which is going to teach the textile industry will be continue."

The gathering also heard a paper on development of fabric construction based on man-made fibres and on Brian Daniels, a graduate at the Textile Institute of Quebec.

Hinman Estate Provides Substantial Basis

The Barrie Memorial Hospital of Ormstown has had an Endowment Fund for some time, of course, but until recently it was so modest in size that it had not been formally constituted although some local donations had been made to it earlier. Among those contributors were Mr. S. Elliott, Mr. R. E. Nash, the Ormstown Community Centre, and the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital.

But with the passing last July of Florence Belle Merrylees, widow of the late Walter Hibbard Hinman, the Barrie Memorial Hospital was bequeathed the residue of her estate for the purpose of creating an endowment fund, but a substantial amount as the official beginning of much needed source from which to draw a revenue towards operating the hospital.

The capital of "The Barrie Memorial Hospital Endowment Fund" as it is now legally to be known, cannot be spent at a time but must be conserved all times and the revenue therefrom only is to be used by the hospital. This ensures that funds given, or bequeathed to the hospital for endowment purposes will always be maintained as such.

The Trust Company chosen as the Finance Committee of the hospital will be joint trustees of the endowment fund.

Mrs. Hinman a Former to cover the costs of a bed, or beds, or room as the case may be" as a memorial to herself and her late husband.

The settlement of this estate was judicially completed, and we learn that the Endowment Fund of The Barrie will benefit to the extent of approximately $24,000.00 which would bring the fund total to just under $30,000.00; not a large sum to be sure compared with some of the rural hospitals, but the Barrie Memorial Hospital is a small one.

Mrs. Hinman lived for so many years in Ormstown before coming to a nursing home in Huron where she spent the last several years of her life. Dr. M. Stalker had been her physician for many years, and was the manager of The Guardian Trust Company of Montreal which handled her affairs was her financial adviser, and these two were named by her as the executors of her will.

The Barrie Memorial Hospital is a small one.

House Being Moved

In Ormstown
It is supposed that residents of Huntingdon are wondering what was going on at the junction of highways No. 4 and 14, across from the Hotel in Ormstown. A house owned by Lindsay Cullen has had all the brick stripped off the sides and is to be moved next door to the Ormstown Branch of the Canadian Legion on Prince Albert Street. In place of the Lindsay house on the corner of the junction of the two highways, a service station is to be built by The McColl-Fontenac Oil Co.

Holiday Enjoyed

Fernand Carriere returned the past week after spending a two-week holiday at Miami Beach, Florida. Fernand travelled by air and while in the sunny south he and a companion from Montreal rented a car and did a considerable amount of sightseeing. They also flew to Cuba and enjoyed a couple of days there. Fernand is a popular young man in Huntingdon and is well known as a clerk in McCoy Bros. store. He recently completed ten years of service in the latter's employ and in recognition of his faithful and courteous service to the public his employers presented him with the round-trip air ticket to Florida.

Spring Topic

Speculation on how and when the ice in the Chateaugay River will move out has once again become a prominent topic. Some oldsters have prophesied flood conditions before the river is free of ice, while others maintain the ice will rot away. The warm spell of the past week coupled with the rain that fell were the reason for increased speculation and if the temperature had not taken a sudden and severe dip late Saturday afternoon, no doubt the ice would have gone out fast and furiously then. As it is now, the ice is slowly rotting... if this condition continues, perhaps the unusual amount of snow and ice will not prove too serious a problem.

ning was a decided success. More than 200 townspeople availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a satisfying meal and at the same time aid the students in raising money to help defray expenses on a proposed trip to New York City and a visit to United Nations, tentatively planned for the last week-end in April. $140 was cleared for the purpose, a gratifying sum for all concerned. Admission was based on a 50-cent children and 75-cent adult basis.

The event was planned and completely organized by the eleven girls and one boy of the current Grade Eleven and the efficient manner in which everyone was served is a credit to the home training and household science education the students have received.

The class wishes to thank Reverend and Mrs. Grant of St. Andrew's for their co-operation, also parents who gave a helping hand.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brownrigg of Lachine and Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevenson, Ville Emard, attended the funeral of their aunt, the late Mrs. E. Bruce, on Friday, and also visited at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Moody.

Four Classes Move Into New Addition, Thursday

The first classes are to move into the new addition of the Huntingdon High School on Thursday afternoon. The classes making the change will be Grades Eight, Nine, Ten and Eleven plus the Manual Training and Home Economics rooms.

The space vacated by the four grades and two class subjects, located under the Gymnasium of the School is to be cleared out with the view of increasing room area for the Manual Training Room and the Home Economics Room. Thus, these two rooms are really only temporarily to be located in the new addition.

It might be added that the change over is entirely on the second floor of the new building. The class rooms are practically finished and are painted in pastel colours.

The Library, presently located adjacent to the Home Economics room in the basement of the older part of the School is to remain in its present location until the ground floor of the new addition is finished.

Maple Leaf Grange Holds St. Patrick's Celebration

The 17th of Ireland has come and gone! The Youth Committee did themselves proud with the entertainment, which consisted of Community Singing, and games. Mrs. Ernest Salter gave a very interesting talk, "The Golden Years" a history of early Ireland. Mr. Salter played a piano solo "Believe me if all those endearing young charms," followed by a reading by Orville Gamble "The Irish Jubilee". A tableau was presented, depicting an Irish farm home, with "grannie by the fireside" (Effie Gordon), while Margaret (Margie) sang "An Irish Lullaby". The program ended with a "Paul Jones" at which time each exchanged an article of apparel, retrieving same later. The hall was tastefully decorated with Irish top hats, pipes and shamrocks, and the dining tables were resplendent with streamers of green and white and varied sized shamrocks. A birthday cake complete with "a few candles" was passed around and Happy Birthday was sung to Kay Williams who was celebrating her birthday. It is surprising how many "Irish" people there are on the 17th of March!

Worthy Master Bert Rankin and Lecturer May Goodfellow thanked the Youth Committee and the Refreshments Committee for their part in the program.

Lecturer May Goodfellow gave a short resume of her trip as delegate to the Middle Atlantic Lecturers Conference, held in Atlantic City, March 11th to 15th; she was accompanied by Marguerite Johnston, Rosemary Cosgrove, and Kay Williams of Huntingdon, and Grace Thomas of Malone, N.Y. Pomona Lecturer Belle Adrich of Bangor was also there. This Conference takes in five States, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and

New York, with New Jersey acting as Host State. The Conference "Workshops" are most instructive and of benefit to all members of the Grange and Community. Our four members were the only Canadians attending and had the privilege of singing "Alouette", ending with "God Save the Queen", at the request of the National Lecturer E. F. Holter.

Neighbour Nights: April 7th — Chateaugay at Burke, April 14th — Brushton at Bombay, April 21st — Westville at Bangor.

Change of our meeting nights: MONDAY APRIL 6th and 20th, instead of Tuesday, to accommodate the above Neighbour Nights. Programs to be announced later.

GRANGE PROJECT: "EYES FOR THE NEEDY". Any old reading or sun glasses old gold and silver, will be appreciated, please call on any Grange member to pick same up. We are depending on the Community to support this effort.

COMING EVENTS: An Antique show and tea, to be held Saturday, April 25th, from three to five (3 to 5) P.M. at Grove Hall, Huntingdon. Each Grange Member is requested to bring five antique articles, (For show purposes only), marked with their name, the antiquity or history of each article. Any members wishing to show articles and donate food, please notify the Service and Hospitality Committee at the earliest opportunity.

The National CROCHET CONTEST: Entire blanks are also available, from the same committee.

Our thanks to The Gleaner for their kindness in publishing the notices in last week's issue, from Pomona Grange as well as our own.

Many More Years Of Uneasy, Nerve-Wracking Cold War, Predicts Selwyn Lloyd

In the long term, the Russians have not the slightest intention of letting us go our way while they go theirs — and "May the Better System Win" — writes Selwyn Lloyd, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in an article titled, "How To Live With The Russians," in the Reader's Digest.

Pointing out that whether we like it or not our free world may have to endure many more years of uneasy, nerve-wracking cold war, Mr. Lloyd advances a four point program designed to convince the Russians that they will never attain the victory which in their minds is the only possible outcome in the present struggle between our two ways of life.

First of all, says the British Statesman, we must remain strong militarily, politically and economically — understanding now that our economic strength may well be the most difficult to maintain.

Then, we must remain united. Basic disagreements are a luxury the Western Alliance can no longer afford, he continues.

Uncommitted countries, are much more likely to line up on our side if they are shown we are strong, united and resolute. The third requirement is vigilance. The Russians are justly famed as chess players and on far too many occasions our side has seemed taken by surprise in the present international chess game. What it has been hard for us to learn is that we cannot become completely absorbed in our own affairs, go back to bed after extinguishing an unexpected midnight blaze. We should give more thought to firewatching and fireproofing the world in which we live. We must think of peace as a structure to be built up brick by brick in a long series of constructive actions.

Finally, says Mr. Lloyd, "For survival we must solve our own most difficult problems: in the West political and economic disunity; in Africa and the East hunger, ignorance, want, disease, underproduction and overpopulation." These are all things on which international Communism can always rely.

Notes From The Police Blotter

Huntingdon Man Fined In Malone on Two Counts

Roger Joseph Vallancourt, 27, of Huntingdon, Que., was fined $12 in Malone, recently, when he pleaded guilty to violations of two license ordinances.

Vallancourt was fined $10 for operating an unregistered motor vehicle and he was fined $2 for driving with a drivers' license that had expired within the last 30 days.

He was summoned by state police and submitted his plea to Police Justice John M. Boomhower.

Roxham

ROXHAM — Mr. and Mrs. John Hegger and children of Montreal spent the weekend with Mrs. Florence Smith and Ross.

To Mrs. W. S. Hawkins, who is a patient at the Barrie Memorial Hospital, her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Miss Norma Akester, is presently working at the Bell Telephone office Hemmingford on a switch board operator.

Miss Janet Smith, Montreal, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith on the weekend.

Mrs. Carson Wallace is presently teaching at Hemmingford High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Vancour and family of Fisher Street, have recently moved to Mr. Murvin Upton's house here.

Sweepstakes Is Called "Greatest Bleeding Heart Racket"

If you're among the millions of Canadians and Americans who have bought Sweepstakes tickets — you may also be running the risk of a fine or jail sentence.

So warns an article in the Reader's Digest. It points out that the Sweeps is illegal in Canada and the United States. Anyone who mails a ticket, money or information on it, is guilty of violating the Postal Codes. He has also fallen for what authorities call "the greatest bleeding heart racket in the world."

Author James Stewart-Gordon points out that Sweeps promoters use ingenious schemes to peddle their tickets despite the law. A favorite method is the use of professional pushers; these work behind such innocent appearing fronts as cigar stores and beauty parlors. In another favorite dodge, promoters send books of tickets to a "sucker list" culled from phone books. The suckers are offered a commission to sell the books, and told where to send the money.

Despite fabulous prizes, few Sweeps winners really gain anything, says the Digest article. Typical was the dishwasher who spent his $50,000 prize on high living. Within two months he was flat broke and back washing dishes. A mechanic tried the opposite approach and invested his winnings. But his friends promptly snubbed him as a tightwad.

The only real winners are the promoters. Their take has reached more than 100 million dollars over the years, the article says.

Do You Have Trouble Remembering Names

Do You Have Trouble Too many of us share the ability to forget rather than remember names. And while name forgetting and techniques for name remembering have been the subject of endless humor, it is still no joking matter. Frederic Sondern, Jr. reminds us in a current Magazine article.

Resigned to his own notorious limitations in this area, Sondern agreed capably to attend a memory course some time ago to observe the operation. He reports how quickly he was convinced that you can do something about this business of remembering names and adds "the important lesson of paying more attention to people is telling on me. I'm getting better at it. Besides I'm having fun." Apparently a set of practical rules first evolved by Dale Carnegie are still used today with great success. They are simple. All they require is hard work, concentrated effort and practice. Here are the rules as the author lists them in his article titled, "You Can Remember Names."

1. When you are introduced to someone be sure you get the name clearly.

2. Give the name a chance to sink into your mind. The best way to do this is to repeat the name two or three times in the ensuing conversation.

3. While getting a name, also get the face, look at the person as carefully as you listen. Start at the top with the hair. Is it blond, dark, grey? Then the face: is it round, oval, thin, heavy? Note the color of the eyes, the shape of the ears, nose, mouth and chin. It is amazing how sharp the image will be and how long it will remain with you, writes the author.

4. With name and face in mind, try to cement the two together with a mental picture. It is in this area of association that the humorists find most enjoyment. Mr. Sondern reports that he has met with some success associating men with their businesses. For example, a carpenter may be named Sawyer or a contractor Bridges. Mr. Mason, whether he is a mason or not, can be slotted quickly in your mind's eye as laying bricks. Rhymes such as "Mr. Fowler is a prowl-er" have also been a good prop for the writer.

EASTER HAM

Legend has it that ham is a discovery of a lucky accident many, many years ago. Somewhere, sometime, the story goes, threat of an invading tribe caused some villagers to hide their treasured supply of fresh pork by burying it in the sand near the sea. The tides came in and the cool salt water seeped through the sand to bathe the pork in this natural brine. When later the meat was removed and hung by the open fire to cook, the smoke brought further changes in colour, aroma and flavour. One can imagine the celebration and rejoicing at the discovery of a new flavour treat and a way to keep the pork from time of plenty for use when food supplies were scarce.

Again, and 'tis but legend, this discovery came in the spring of the year after a long cold winter. So the feast day became a yearly celebration for early spring. Whatever the origin, it is known that the Egyptians had learned the secrets of curing and smoking pork. Drawings on the walls of the pyramids show a slave presenting ham with great fanfare to a king.

The primitive ham was a far cry from the scientifically prepared masterpiece of today, but the basic principles are the same; that is, curing pork by immersion in a brine containing — salt for cure, sugar for flavour, and nitrate for colour; then smoking in hard wood smoke to bring out the fine red colour and distinctive flavour.

Today, in every step from the selection of the pork and the curing ingredients through the smoking, wrapping, and distribution, exacting skill is used to produce the tender, fine-flavored, uniform Canadian ham that will be the centre of interest on Easter tables throughout the land.

Help Yourself To Health

The influence of your own mind and emotions on your bodily health is so profound that doctors frequently recognize it as their greatest ally. To learn to use this force intelligently, to channel it so that it will be constructive instead of destructive, is an objective we should set ourselves, writes Dr. Arnold A. Hutschnecker, prominent New York internist, in an article titled "Help Yourself To Health," in a current magazine.

Emotional disturbances can and do create higher blood pressure, a faster pulse, fatigue, insomnia, indigestion, chronic ulcers, and a wide variety of allergies.

To combat these afflictions and to achieve the most in accomplishment, happiness and health, writes Dr. Hutschnecker, we must learn to cultivate the will to live. This will to live, he proceeds, is mostly unconscious, but it can be nourished and cultivated consciously. We cannot hope to rewrite the past but we can modify the present and reshape the future.

When we stop learning we begin to grow old. And when we stop being interested and using our bodies we begin to grow old. And if we wish to enjoy a long life in which there is health and wisdom and inner peace, we must first grow up. We must deal with the immaturities left us from childhood—not merely hide them or trust that years of living will do away with them.

A TRIBUTE

To The Late Dr. A. R. Douglas

Many hearts were saddened to learn of the passing away of the late Dr. A. R. Douglas, as he was a much loved and respected person.

He knew how to make friends and how to keep them. He had a kind and generous heart, a charming personality, good sense of humour and ready wit and a keen intellect.

He was endowed with many talents any one of which, if it had been fully developed would, prizes were Stanley O'Connor of Hemmingford and Gilles Serres of Lacolle. A very enjoyable evening was had by all.

most likely, have brought him fame and fortune. But he liked a simple life and was anxious to use his talents for the benefit of others, without reward, and derived much satisfaction and pleasure in so doing. His desire was to lay up treasures in Heaven instead of on earth.

Because of his fine sensitive nature, he was easily hurt, but always so ready and willing to forgive those who grieved him. He looked for the good in others and loved his neighbour as himself.

A lover of peace and concord, he was willing to forfeit his own right to happiness in his interests music, it had the power to uplift his spirits; and his troubles just floated away while sharing the precious gifts of music and friendships with others. This seemed necessary to ensure his happiness and well-being.

By his own personal example and wise counsel he influenced many in their youth to give up bad habits and to lead a good, clean life, and provided the strong arm on which to lean at the right time.

He attended church services whenever possible and his presence in the Wesley United Church, Beebe, Que., will be greatly missed, especially by the choir and organist as his kind words of appreciation and encouragement were so welcome, along with his sunny smile and cheery greeting.

Because his heart just overflowed with loving kindness, he was a friend to all, young and old, and in any walk of life.

With his exceptional ability to relate experiences in his long and varied life, he was a most interesting person to visit with, and truly a most unforgettable character.

No one could have had a more loyal and staunch friend, and I feel very privileged to have been able to bring a great deal of happiness into his life through music, friendship and understanding.

His loving memory will always abide in my heart and be an influence for good on my life and I am greatly honoured to have been considered by him to be, among a host of friends, his

Very Best Friend.

The first fire occurred at the home of Henri Boucher, 12 Prince Street, at 8:35 a.m. The second call came from Archie Cocher, 95 Lake Street at 11:05 a.m. Both houses were slightly damaged by smoke.

It is strongly recommended that everyone should have their chimneys checked to make sure that they are not partially or fully blocked. A fire starting from a faulty chimney could destroy or badly damage a house and cause a great amount of grief to families.

Have your stove pipes and chimneys checked soon.

Endowment Funds Essential to Hospitals

ELSEWHERE in this issue will be found news of a recent bequest to the Endowment Fund of the Barrie Memorial Hospital of Ormstown which is now setting up that fund in a formal and legal manner to ensure that all such funds shall be held in perpetuity for the benefit of the hospital regardless of what external or internal changes may take place. Up to the present, this safeguarding has been the sole responsibility of the Board of Governors but with the hoped-for and needed expansion of this fund, it has been decided to entrust the fund to a nationally known trust company with the Finance Committee of the hospital as co-trustee.

The new trust deed now sets forth the form which the fund shall take and the conditions governing its operation. Under this deed the hospital will have the benefit of the trust company's knowledge and experience — invaluable assets under today's conditions — while prospective benefactors will have the advantage of knowing that whatever is donated or bequeathed to the hospital as an endowment will not only be in safekeeping but will always be handled to the financial advantage of the hospital. It is an integral part of the deed that securities or money bequeathed to the hospital for endowment can be used for no other purpose.

There can be no higher form of memorial than that which continues year after year to assist in the relief of human suffering through bequests to an endowment fund from which the capital cannot be dissipated but remains secure to provide an annual income for the financial welfare of the hospital to which it is bequeathed. And all hospitals need such a fund.

In most hospitals the income from endowment funds provides a substantial contribution to the operating income and thus lessens the operating deficit to that extent. As everyone knows general hospitals cannot be made self-supporting without a raising of rates to the point where only the well-to-do could pay them. And only through grants, and by donations and bequests has it been possible to maintain hospital services at the high standards required today. The hospital which has a heavily-endowed fund from which to draw a revenue for operating purposes is in a most fortunate position and to be envied by those whose endowment fund has not yet reached the point of being able to yield substantial returns.

It is the hope of Barrie Memorial officials, and officials of every other hospital in the same circumstances, that the endowment fund may be increased to generous proportions within the next few years. Prospective donors, and those who plan to leave a portion of their estates where it can be put to use for the greatest good of the greatest number, should keep the hospitals of their community in mind.

Crippled Children and Afflicted Adults Aided

THE Easter Seal campaign for the benefit of Crippled Children is again being conducted in this area by the Rotary Club of Huntingdon. Usually this campaign is supported to the extent of $1,000. Elsewhere in the Gleaner appears the list of contributors to the weekend and shows $475 has been received.

As a result of these campaigns conducted in past years, a great number of juveniles have received aid toward overcoming ailments of a serious character. The Rotary Club has also procured over a dozen invalid wheel chairs which have been sent out on loan to folks who may have suffered a hip fracture, become crippled and of course the occasional case of a person being unable to move about in ease due to advanced years. The chairs have indeed performed a wonderful service to folks requiring them, and who reside somewhere in the Chateauguay Valley. At Valleyfield and Beauharnois the respective Rotary Clubs have likewise acquired a large number of invalid chairs for the folks requiring them in Beauharnois County.

50% of the money received through purchases of Easter Seals is sent to Montreal to be used by the Hospital for Crippled Children, the remainder of the fund is spent on such benevolent works of local character as already outlined.

If you have not already made a contribution toward this very worthy cause, will you please do so without further delay. Mail your contribution to the Huntingdon Rotary Club, Huntingdon. Mr. W. R. Wilson is the acting local chairman of the Crippled Children's Fund.

Bumps Do Not Prevent Safe Driving Habits

BUMPS! We have lots of bumps in the roads in the district. And bumps are not good for cars. With the large quantity of snow this winter and alternating extreme cold for prolonged periods with a few extremely mild days, Mother Nature was not kind to the motorist or the roads.

Every spring, many roads are closed to heavy traffic but motorists should still heed the pot holes and bumps. We don't like listing bumps but certainly hazards like the new gravel stretch on Highway 52 near the Boyd Settlement Road, the bridge in construction outside of Ormstown on Highway 4, some nice pot holes along Route 4 between Huntingdon and Trout River, etc., bear serious consideration when driving.

Generally speaking the roads are heaving to the most extent in the centres, however in some areas, the roads are breaking badly at the edges. Further hazard is the flooding on some of the roads. Excess water does not help brake linings and springs, and consequently care should be taken going through deep puddles.

Possibly the last word of caution on spring roads would be, have care when driving on to the shoulders of the roads. With the frost coming out, the ground is very soft and has a tendency to throw a car out of control.

Safe driving means less in numbers of accidents and fewer injuries and deaths. You cannot drive at the same speed as in the summertime, therefore lift the foot off the accelerator a little. Drive with great prudence and live.

The Week In Quebec

Quebec (CP). — Eastern Quebec's part in the Dominion Drama Festival got under way this week.

Regional Adjudicator Richard Ainley on his arrival here said Canadian Theatre is producing some good young directors. He said he had seen some plays of superior quality written by Canadian Playwrights in his tour across Canada as Regional Adjudicator.

Mr. Ainley, who now is a freelance drama teacher in England, will have seen some 60 plays when he finishes his regional adjudicating April 11. "You get a little punch drunk," he said.

There are 14 regional festivals from which eight plays will be chosen to compete in the Dominion Finals to be held this year in Toronto, May 18-23.

Groups in the Regional Festival are: Les Treize de Laval University doing Antigone by French Playwright Jean Anouilh; the Quebec Art Theatre in the Chalk Garden by British Playwright Enid Bagnold; Le Masque from Sherbrooke, Que., in a three-act French comedy, Bon appetit monsieur; Les Compagnons de Notre-Dame from Trois-Rivières in two Canadian plays, Les oiseaux de nuit by Jean Pelletier and La Genevieve by Felix Leclerc. The last two plays are out of contest.

Hon. Antoine Rivard, Solicitor-General and Minister of Transport, told a delegation of the Quebec Trucking Association today that the Province has not accepted money from the Federal Government for the construction of roads and that it never will.

"The day that we accept money from the Federal Government, the Ottawa Government will become the proprietor of our road network," he said.

As for the Trans-Canada Highway, he said, "We have at least four roads of that nature and we will have a fifth one, probably this summer. These roads we have built at our own cost and it is up to us to decide where and in what way they will be constructed. We don't need the permission of deputies from the other provinces to decide things that have been entrusted to us by the Canadian Constitution."

The Trucking Association had presented a brief asking that the Province seek an agreement with the Federal Government so that it would receive Trans-Canada highway benefits as do the other provinces. These benefits would be used to better the Provincial road network. The benefits were due to the Province because the Quebec taxpayers were contributing toward the Trans-Canada highway project, the brief said.

Eighty-seven persons died accidentally in Quebec City in 1958 it was reported this week by Dr. Berchmans Paquet, Director of the Municipal Health Service. (Continued on page 11)

"That brither should butcher brither is awfu' proof o' the doctrine o' total depravity. After a', thae Yankees, though their ways are not oor ways, are flesh o' oor flesh, an' we should live aside ane anither in peace."

"In this war, at least, Mr. Forsyth, they are to blame. They declared it, and if ever war is justifiable it is surely one like that we have fought and won, where a people rise to defend their native land against the invader."

"I dinna dispute you, but as I creep near to my end, my heart softens to my fellow-men o' a creeds and races and I wish to see peace and good-fellowship the world over."

"So do I, but sure and permanent peace is not to be won by surrender of right. It is better for all that the best blood of Canada and Britain has soaked the fields within the noise of the roar of Niagara, than that Canada should have become a conquered addition to the United States."

"You're right in that. The sacrifice is sair, the trial bitter, but the country's independence had to be maintained. Canadians will think mair o' their country when they see what it has cost to defend it."

"It will be poor recompense to those who have taken part, should Canadians ever forget what has been secured to them at such a sacrifice. From a boy I was trained to look forward to be a soldier, but now that I have seen what war is, I no longer glory in the name. War brings out what is worst in human nature. Since I saw you last I have got a new idea of wickedness."

"Dootless the trade of killing must harden the heart", remarked Mr. Forsyth.

"That is true. If a man is inclined to evil, the license of war develops every thing in him that is bad; but if there be any root of goodness in him, the scenes of war excite disgust and hatred of sin."

"I can understand how the sight o' wickedness will give an orra man a skunner o' sin, but hoo can war mak him good?"

"In this way", replied Morton, "when a soldier wakes in his tent he does not know but he will be in his grave by night. In times of war the soldier walks hand-in-hand with Death. That either makes him a dare-devil, reckless of what he may do, or it sobers him by the thought that any hour he may be face-to-face with God, and he fights against his evil inclinations as becomes a servant who has to report to his Master."

"Noo that the war is ended you'll be leaving Canada", remarked Mr. Forsyth.

"That depends on what your daughter says. My regiment sails from Quebec the end of the month."

"What mean ye, sir, by Maggie haein' aucht to dae wi' your going?"

"Simply this, that if she will take me as her husband and you will give your consent, I shall sell my commission and remain in Canada."

"You are surely no in earnest? What has the dochter o' a backwoods farmer t' dae wi' an officer?"

"Since I landed in Canada I have had many false notions rudely torn away, and one of them is, that there is any connection between worth and station in life. I have found more to admire in the shanty than I ever did in the parlors of the Old Country."

"That's repeatin' what Rabbin Burns wrote, the rank is but the guinea stamp."

"I have proved it true; for the first time in my life I have become intimate with those whose living depends upon the labor of their hands, and my Old World notions have melted away, when I found them better than those who boast they never soiled their fingers with manual toil."

"Aye, aye; nae guid comes o' tryin' to escape the first command to fallen man, 'in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread.'"

"What say you?" asked Morton.

"To your asking Maggie? Oh, dinna speak o't. She's my ae ewe lamb and I canna pairt wi' her."

"I do not mean you should; we would go to Upper Canada together."

The old man paused and leant upon his hoe and Morton stood respectfully behind him. After long silence he raised his head. "I canna answer you. It's no for me to put my ain selfish will against her good; gang and let her choose for herself."

"Thank you", said Morton, with emotion.

"We have had a backward spring; frost every week amast to the middle o' June, an' sic cauld winds since syne that nae-thing grows. We have sown in hope, but I'm fearfu' there will be little to reap. Sic a spring the auldest settler canna mind. Look at thae tatties! What poor spindly things they are and this the first week o' July."

"It has not been so bad in the west."

"I'm glad to hear it. Weel, this being the first real warm day we've had, I tellt Maggie to busk hersel' and gang and veeit the neebors, for she's been in a sad and sorrowfu' way since her mither de'd. She said she had nae heart to veeit, but wad tak' a walk along the river and be back to mak' my deener. Her brithers we expect hame every day from takin' rafts to Quebec."

"I'll go and seek her", said Morton, as he turned away, and the old man went on hoeing. Morton had gone about half a mile, when his eye caught the flutter of the linen handkerchief Maggie had pinned round her neck. She did not see him and as she sauntered before him, he marked her stately carriage, and muttered to himself, "A woman worthy to woo and win". Unwilling to startle her by going too near, he cried "Miss Forsyth".

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, March (CP). — Events piled up swiftly: RCMP commissioner L. H. Nicholson resigned over the Newfoundland strike; British Prime Minister Macmillan came seeking support for Berlin proposals; the cabinet gave more help to Nova Scotia's coal industry.

But none of these things could overshadow the impact of the sudden death of Hon. Sidney Earle Smith, 62, the gregarious Cape Breton farm boy who had been one of Canada's leading educationists and who, for the last 18 months, had been winning new spurs as external affairs minister.

Mr. Smith had given his all to the diplomatic role since leaving the University of Toronto as president. His doctors told him he had high blood pressure, and had warned him to slow down. Prime Minister Diefenbaker also told him to take it easy, ignoring this advice, Mr. Smith kept hustling.

Friends said the job killed him. On Tuesday afternoon, after returning from a speaking engagement in Halifax, he lay down for his usual after-lunch nap and never awoke. The doctors said that while asleep, he had suffered a massive cerebral hemorrhage — one kind of stroke.

Macmillan Talks

His death, followed by a state funeral here and burial at Windsor, N.S., came on the eve of Mr. Macmillan's stop here during his world tour on the Berlin crisis. Although the Commons adjourned out of respect for Mr. Smith, the Canada-U.K. talks went on. Mr. Diefenbaker automatically taking over the external affairs job.

Little was said about these discussions. It was learned that Canada generally supported Mr. Macmillan's ideas. However, it was the day after Mr. Macmillan's departure for Washington that Mr. Diefenbaker gave Canada's strongest statement on the Berlin situation.

"The prime minister called for 'further and more careful study' of a proposal known to have been under consideration of a United Nations role in a settlement of the West Berlin problem."

However, Mr. Diefenbaker's statement did not go much beyond supporting this general principle of the UN being included in such a settlement, and it was understood that no definite or precise formula has been devised.

Nicholson Quits

Newfoundland wanted more men to police the loggers' strike. RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson agreed to the request, and began collecting reinforcements from Maritimes detachments. Then the federal cabinet stepped in and refused to send the extra Mounties.

The upshot was Commissioner Nicholson's resignation on the ground that Ottawa had broken the contract under which the federal force undertakes to maintain peace and order as a provincial force in Newfoundland. Mr. Fulton disagreed; he said that under the circumstances, the reinforcements would have been a party to "union-busting" by Newfoundland Premier Smallwood.

At the week's end, Mr. Fulton informed the Commons the new RCMP Commissioner would come from within the force, and indicated the successor to Commissioner Nicholson would be announced shortly.

Higher Subventions

The federal government, in an attempt to offset the mass layoffs in Nova Scotia collieries, hopes to move some 700,000 tons of N.S. surplus coal to the big Ontario market by giving that province an extra $4,300,000 in freight subventions.

The special one-year aid brought a promise from Dominion Coal Company that no further layoffs would be made beyond the 40 days already ordered. By the end of March, some 4,100 Cape Breton miners will have been off for 25 days, and must lose another 15 days during the summer.

Wheat Acreage

Fairlie farmers obviously are hopeful of improved wheat markets. A survey by the bureau of statistics reveals that they plan to put 22,085,000 acres to wheat this year, up nine per cent from 1958 and the most since 1956.

Plans for the stepped-up production come at a time when the Canadian surplus still is large, although export sales have made substantial inroads in the last two years. At Jan. 1, the total carryover was 702,000,000 bushels, down 101,500,000 from a year earlier.

The farmers' optimism apparently stems from two factors: hopes of delivering all current farm wheat holdings this year; and the government's announcement last week that it plans to make gifts of some surplus stocks. A $13,500,000 gift to India, Pakistan and Ceylon is expected to be allocated by July 31.

However, one sobering aspect of 1959 plans has been the cool government reception to the recent Prairie delegation's request for $300,000,000 in deficiency payments. Officials here say this may cause some second thoughts over the scale of 1959 seeding.

Record Deficit

Total estimated federal spending for the current fiscal year ending March 31 has risen to a peak $6,161,370,000 including old-age pensions. A record peacetime deficit of $700,000,000 is indicated.

A deficit of that size would compare with the previous top peacetime deficit of just over $390,000,000 in 1919-20. However, $2,000,000,000 deficits were recorded in the final four years of the Second World War.

Last week the government added $282,799,710 to its 1958-59 outlays by placing supplementary estimates before the Commons. Thus the current year's spending of more than $6,000,000,000 will exceed the previous 1943-44 high of $5,300,000,000, and it probably will go higher next year.

European Trade

British thoughts about joining the European free trade area still are causing concern in Ottawa. Opposition leader Pearson says such a union excluding Canada and the U.S. would be "extremely bad for Canada both economically and politically."

The Liberal party leader in a major Commons speech said last week that Canada should consider joining this free-trade setup and try to get the United States into it, too, to avoid having the Atlantic "split in two between Europe and North America." He added: "Atlantic interdependence is a far better policy and concept for us... than continental interdependence."

Scottish Dairy Show

What might be called a "Battle of the Dairy Cattle Breeds" was held at Glasgow, Scotland, during the latter part of February. It was the annual Scottish Dairy Show, offshoot of the "Country Comes to Town" Exhibition, about which the February 21 issue of Farming News says, in part:

The Scottish Dairy Show is probably the only big agricultural event in this country promoted by a partnership of a farmers' voluntary organization

(the old-established Glasgow, Glasgow, to such voluntary bodies as the Glasgow Agricultural Society, and the National Farmers' Union of Scotland.)

It was natural that its success should inspire moves for starting the National Dairy Show for Scotland, and that the prime movers should be the Glasgow Agricultural Society (whose Glasgow Show faced an inevitable decline) and Corporation of Glasgow, as the owners of the Kelvin Hall, the venue for the "Country Comes to Town" success. (end of quote)

However, while this year's show has been lauded as an immense success with 109 British Friesians, 105 Ayrshires, 33 Dairy Shorthorns, 33 Jerseys, 11 Red Polls and 11 Guernseys in competition, albeit also a financial success, the total attendance was only 30,947 as compared with 34,758 in 1958. However, there was apparently a "flu scare" at that time.

English Herds

While the Ayrshire is still Scotland's premier dairy breed it will be noted that the British Friesian entries slightly outnumbered the Ayrshire entries. In that respect, however, it might be noted that in both instances a considerable number of the entries came from English herds. Also that a large number of Scottish Ayrshire herds which would ordinarily be expected to have entries were not represented. It might therefore be presumed that a large proportion of the Scottish Ayrshire breeders do not place much stress on such short time tests, prefer to gauge their production on a yearly basis.

Production Show

As already intimated this show, as in past years, was actually a short-time production show, that type or conformation which naturally goes hand in hand, so to speak with production was of comparatively minor importance. For instance with but one exception the prize winners of the Ayrshire section on inspection were away down the list of production winners. The same also applies to the British Friesians.

The Supreme Champions

Ayrshires won five of the inter-breed honours at the Scottish Dairy Show and were reserve for five others. The Friesians won four and were reserve for five.

The Charles Ross Cup for the Supreme Individual Champion was won by the Friesian cow Hunday Envoy Me 11th, owned by Arradoul Farms Ltd., Buckie, Banffshire, Scotland. She produced 1110 lbs. M., 3.3% F., 8.7% solids not fat, or a total production score of 223.5 points. The judge gave her 110 points on inspection, making a total score of 333.5 points. Incidentally she was only fourth in her breed class (50,000 lb. class) on inspection.

Reserve Supreme Individual Champion was the Ayrshire cow Yelden Astor, owned by Ian Logan, Manor Farm, Yelden, Bedfordshire, England. She had headed the senior Ayrshire class with 85 lbs. M., 4.9% F., 8.7% solids not fat for a total of 199.5 points. On inspection she was given 125 points, making a total score of 324.5 points. In her breed class she was only given a Highly Commended award on inspection.

The Craig Trophy

The coveted Craig Trophy for the Best Team (6 cows) went to the Ayrshire group, with the Friesian group as the runner up, and with the other breed teams in the following order: 3. Jerseys; 4. Shorthorns.

The Ayrshire team (with their breed class standing on inspection in brackets) was comprised of Towerdale Dolly (3rd) with

Letters To The Editor

Lachute, Quebec. March 20, 1959.

The Editor, The Huntingdon Gleaner, Huntingdon, Que.

Dear Sir,

During recent visits to Ormstown, I noticed the absence of the fountain which used to occupy a prominent place on Main Street. Where is it now? Surely it has not been discarded as "junk"?

This fountain was a very fine piece of foundry work, donated by the Sons of Temperance Society to accommodate humans, horses and dogs. Over the years countless numbers quenched their thirst there.

If the town feels that the fountain has no attraction as a reminder of days past, could not the Ormstown Fair Board be invited to place it in a suitable prominent position on the exhibition grounds? Chateaugay-Huntingdon Counties are rich in history. The time may come—I hope it will—when their citizens will want to preserve this "Canadiana" in an historical museum. Relics of the past, large and small, will be sought to make an interesting and valuable collection.

It would be a tragedy to allow the "old things" to disappear forever because of our lethargy. I feel that the Ormstown fountain should be restored to its original position, placed on the fair grounds, or at least stored carefully for the future. Is it too late to do something about it?

Yours truly, Former Ormstownian.

Chateaugay Heights, P.Q. March 17, 1958

Editor, Huntingdon Gleaner, Huntingdon, P.Q.

Sir:

In view of the twenty million dollars more or less spent on the new "skyway" to bypass Coughnawaga, it is unfortunate that the money was all spent, before any signs could be erected to tell visitors how to reach Chateaugay Heights or to reach any of the other Chateaugays for that matter.

It is little irritations like these, lack of road signs on the main road, lack of trains on the tracks that tend to handicap this whole area in comparison to others.

Surely the need for road signs several months after a so called 185.9 points for milk; Barr Nesmy (5th) with 189.9 points; Yelden Astor (2nd) the Reserve Supreme Individual Champion with 199.5 points; Yett Wallflower 2nd, (2nd) with 190.8 points; Humes-ton Countess Jazz (1st) with 186.1 points; Woodcockfauld Fairy 3rd, (2nd) with 184.4 points—a total of 1,133.1 points for milk. Collectively they were given a score of 500 points on inspection which gave them a total of 1,633.1 points and the Trophy.

The British Friesian team (also with their breed class standing in brackets) was comprised of Hunday Envoy Me 11th (4th) the Supreme Individual Champion likewise the highest milk producing Friesian, with 223.5 points for milk; Terling Grey 55th (1st) with 189.9 points; Powis Jansma 26th (Commended) with 193.7 points; Usan Paula 2nd, (2nd) with 182.1 points; Stonehall Polka (Highly Commended) with 183.8 points; Beckermat Unisvavender (not placed) with 194.9 points, making a total of 1,167.9 points for production. Collectively they were given a score of 400 points on inspection to give them a total of 1,567.9 points.

The Jersey team was third with the second highest score, 450 points, on inspection and 948.2 points for milk or a total score of 1,398.2 points. The Dairy Shorthorns were fourth with 760.4 points for milk, 375 points on inspection, a total of 1,135.4 points.

Disqualifications: News: An unfortunate feature of this show was the number of cows disqualified in the milking trials and consequently further inter-breed contests. Total disqualifications amounted to 43 cows with "casualties" in all breed ranks. British Friesians suffered heaviest with 25 cows out. Ayrshires lost 6, Dairy Shorthorns 6, Red Polls 3, Jerseys 3. Apparently deductions are made for low quality milk, either in fat or in solids, in one or more tests, with disqualifications when a cow is low in both.

Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower have agreed on a formula for offering to Soviet Premier Khrushchev the prospect of a summit conference later this year.

A proposed draft of the plan was sent to the French and German governments and other NATO allies, and when fully approved it will be included in a new note to Moscow on negotiations over the Berlin crisis and German problems generally.

The agreement was disclosed less than two hours after Eisenhower and Macmillan, with their regular advisers, opened the second day of their talks at a wooded retreat to which they flew by helicopter from Washington.

Khrushchev spoke in Moscow saying he accepted in advance an expected Western proposal to convene a foreign ministers' meeting at Geneva May 11.

Eisenhower in an earlier television speech cautiously opened the door to a summit meeting provided the groundwork is first laid by the foreign ministers. But he insisted the U.S. will fight rather than yield to Russia's demand that Allied troops leave West Berlin so that it can become a "free city" within Communist territory.

Fight in Tibet

Terse reports to New Delhi last week told of fighting in the Lhasa, capital of Communist-Tibet.

The uprising was sparked, according to the Indian press, by an order from the Red Chinese command to the 25-year-old Dalai Lama telling him to report at once, without bodyguards. Whereabouts of the Dalai Lama, who is worshipped by the 1,300,000 Tibetans as their religious and political leader, was not known. There was speculation he may have been kidnapped by the Communists or fled from his palace under protection of friends.

Reports of trouble in the land hidden in the Himalayas have been growing since last summer when Khampa tribesmen of eastern Tibet slipped out of Lhasa to launch a guerrilla campaign against the Chinese Communists.

Columbia Power

A vast power development scheme for the Columbia River capable of meeting 60 per cent of all electric power demands in British Columbia and the U.S. Pacific northwest in 1965 has been proposed to the International Joint Commission at Ottawa.

The project advanced by the International Columbia River engineering board would cost nearly $1,000,000,000 in Canada alone.

The board proposed construction of at least eight huge dams on the Canadian portion of the Columbia. It said that a Canada-U.S. agreement on sharing the costs and benefits will be required before full co-operative development can start. Such an agreement will be discussed in Washington on April 8 at a meeting between the Canadian and U.S. sections of IJC.

The Washington discussions will hinge on the share of power Canada should receive from generating stations in the U.S. section of the river. The U.S. has agreed in principle that Canada should get a share. At Victoria, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said "downstream benefits is still the No. 1 question."

Newfoundland Dispute

Premier Smallwood said in the legislature at St. John's last Friday that Prime Minister Diefenbaker "has been good enough to tell Canada from the House of Commons that the premier of Newfoundland had aggravated the violence in the Newfoundland woods dispute."

Mr. Smallwood said there were "48 days of lawlessness and violence" before he intervened in the loggers' strike. He said "the heat was on me for 12 days before I intervened" at the request of "political-labor leader" Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, Frank Chafe, eastern Newfoundland CLC representative, labor officials and scores of telegrams "written by the IWA."

"And yet the prime minister of Canada says I aggravated the situation. . . This is said by the prime minister who doesn't think there's any need of a royal commission. There's no need to find out the facts and assess the responsibility."

"Why does the prime minister condemn us? What was this house to be condemned for if it was not for passing this legislation? (decertifying the two Newfoundland IWA locals.)"

"Yet the legislation has not been disallowed. It has not

Farmers Are Against Strikes

Farmers should not strike according to Quebec Farm Forums. They point out that strikes are unfair to other sections of the economy which must suffer some effect of the strike, that strikes are generally a financial and economic loss to strikers as well as others and that they cause bitterness. Some farm forums believe that a farmers' strike would be morally wrong when people in other countries are hungry. The groups also pointed out that practical considerations make strikes impossible for farmers. Some farm products are perishable, few farmers are financially able to survive without regular income, and farmers would not co-operate sufficiently to make a strike effective.

The farm forums unanimously agreed that the educational program of unions would be a good thing for farm organizations to adopt. However, they were not agreed that the compulsory dues system of labour groups or could be adapted for the use of farm organizations. They unanimously disapproved of forcing all farmers to join organizations although some believe it would be desirable.

The forums do think that farmers should organize to sell their products and negotiate prices.

We think that from Labour Agriculture can learn to stick together and "no strikes". Through our educational program our farm forums are trying to help themselves and co-operate with others. — Trout River Forum, Huntingdon Co.

We do not favour strikes. A strike is morally unjustifiable because it is unfair to all, especially those not directly concerned. — Fordyce Forum, Missisquoi Co.

A song "Let Him Go", by the group. Finally, our classmate, Florence Dauphinais, dressed as a queen, wearing a crown, sang the closing song. She was elected Queen of Langlois Academy in December.

The attendance surpassed any other held, the past several years, which means a very large one. Many beautiful prizes were given for the card games.

Local Boys have narrow escape
A patch of ice on the Mercier Bridge was responsible for a car accident on Saturday night around 12 o'clock. Louis Schurman and Bobby Laurendeau were returning with a friend by car to Chateaugay after attending a movie in Montreal, when their car suddenly skidded on a patch of ice. A car approaching in the opposite lane fortunately broke their skid, but the boys were thrown through the windshield. They were taken to the Lachine General Hospital, but released several hours later after treatment. Louis required five stitches to close a scalp wound and suffered multiple cuts and bruises. Bobby had an injured arm and shoulder as well as cuts and bruises.

OBITUARY

The Late Agnes L. Tucker
CHATEAUGUAY. — Agnes L. Tucker, wife of the late Samuel Tucker, passed away on Friday, March 20th, in Valleyfield, at the age of 89. Mrs. Tucker, a long time resident of Chateaugay, had lived on Riverside Drive until a few years ago. She was Mrs. James Heaney of Astoria, L.I., arrived by plane to make the necessary arrangements.

Mrs. Tucker was buried from the Chapel of the J. R. Reid & Sons Funeral Home. Rev. John Buck of St. George's Church officiated at the burial service on Saturday. Interment was in the Protestant Cemetery, Chateaugay Village.

Legion News Branch 108

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated in high style at the Legion Hall on Saturday Night. Feature of the evening was a group of dancers from St. Ann's Young Men's Society, St. Ann's Church, Montreal. The young men accompanied by their "Colours" and garbed in typical Irish costumes went through their paces with apparent enjoyment.

Mr. Bunny Kehoe was Master of Ceremonies and introduced several fine singers during the evening. Don McGee and Ted Sonne were on hand with their ever welcome guitars. Mr. Patrick Noonan, our own "Little Leprechaun", introduced the dancers and their master of ceremonies, and we understand that he was director of this fine group for many years. All in all St. Patrick was put to rest for another year in a real Irish atmosphere.

Girl's Auxiliary News

The Girl's Auxiliary of St. George's Church paid a social visit to the Kateri Memorial Hospital at Caughnawaga on Monday evening. Mrs. Stacey, night nurse, welcomed the girls who visited five Eskimo children, one Eskimo man, three Indian men and nine Indian ladies. The patients enjoyed the visit and were the happy recipients of candy, games, puzzles, dolls, fruit, cigars and cigarettes. A newborn baby was viewed by the girls through the nursery window. Pictures of the patients and the G.A. Group were taken during the evening. Miss Susan Warren of Chateaugay Station accompanied the G.A. girls on this visit.

The G.A. girls would like to thank the following people for their help in making this visit possible: Mr. Douglas Williams and Mr. Thomas Dunn, transportation; Mrs. C. Grant, Mrs. T. Dunn, Mrs. J. Pickard, Mrs. J. Gillespie for cookies and fudge; Mr. Syd Mitchell, who donated a cheque for $5.00 which was used for the purchase of fruit, Kleenex and cigarettes; Mr. Thomas Dunn for cigars. Prior to this event Mrs. Sydney Mitchell, G.A. Leader held a work party at her home on Saturday afternoon at which time the girls prepared fancy cups of candy to be given out to the patients. Miss Doreen Johnson and Mrs. Sydney Mitchell, the G.A. Leaders, were the chaperones for the evening.

The Police Blotter

A 13-year-old boy of Chateaugay Village was sentenced to 23 months in a school of correction by Judge Maurice Fortin at the Valleyfield Court on Friday. He was apprehended by Chief of Police Roland Lussier while attempting to set fire to Couillard's Taxi Stand on Gilmour Avenue. Earlier in the day the boy had been reported for helping himself to money and several crosses on chains which were on display for sale at the Bourcier Bakery in the village. The boy was placed in the custody of his parents for 2 or 3 days and will then be taken to a Reform School.

A 15-year-old youth of Chateaugay Basin was also sentenced by Judge Fortin to 2 years to be spent in a Reform School. He was taken into custody by Chief Lussier after complaints were lodged by his parents and neighbours. Evidently, the lad had no scruples about helping himself to other people's money and had stolen $50.00 from his father. Detective Barcelona of the Provincial Police took over the case and conducted the investigation after the boy had been taken into custody by Chief Lussier and Constable Milburn.

Chief of Police Roland Lussier was summoned to the J. R. Laberge General Store on Salaberry Blvd., at 3.20 a.m., Sunday. Mrs. Laberge noticed what she thought were prowlers around the store but upon investigation by Chief Lussier, he found some unfortunate people whose cars had frozen up, seeking shelter against the bitter winds blowing in off the river.

MORE AND MORE PEOPLE CARRY HOME
O'Keefe ALE

Friends, neighbours, people everywhere are creating this new trend. Every day more and more people are discovering mild O'Keefe Ale. Next time you bring home a case of beer, make it O'Keefe — you'll enjoy its natural mild flavour.

THE O'KEEFE MILDNESS SECRET

Ever bitten into a grape seed? It's bitter, unpleasant. Grape growers found by experiment that they could develop seedless grapes with nothing to spoil the delicate flavour. It's the same with hops.

Ordinary hops contain seeds which give an unpleasant bitterness to ale. However, O'Keefe master brewers insist on costlier "Seedless Hops", result — there's no unpleasant bitterness, just the right, natural mild flavour.

Canadian Garden Service

As a Hobby Gardening Tops

Few recreations or hobbies can give anything like the satisfaction one derives from gardening. Golf is a lot of fun and so is fishing and bird watching. But rewards of gardening, as one Canadian has so well expressed it, "are surely among the most satisfying that man can enjoy." To pick up a handful of rich soil in the spring, to plant some tiny seed, and then a few days later watch the tiny shoots appearing, to see a picture of color and beauty gradually unfolding throughout the season, this is real and full living indeed.

And from a practical standpoint there is another great advantage. To pick up a handful of rich soil in the spring, to plant some tiny seed, and then a few days later watch the tiny shoots appearing, to see a picture of color and beauty gradually unfolding throughout the season, this is real and full living indeed.

One doesn't have to spend large sums of money on equipment, or long hours of practice. There are no green fees, no clubs to join. With a few dollars for tools and less than that if necessary for seeds and plants, one can produce beauty out of what was a barren patch of soil, and vegetables that "have a flavor incomparably superior to anything we can buy."

First Plantings

It is much too early in most parts of Canada yet to think of actual planting. But it will do no harm to make plans and it is always advisable to order early, while stocks are ample and quality is highest. Conveniently, most flowers and vegetables divide themselves into three broad groups — hardy, semi-hardy and tender.

In the first are those things that can be planted just as soon as the soil is fit to work. They don't mind a bit of frost, in fact they prefer to get a start while the weather is really cool. In this category will be grass seed, sweet peas, cosmos, and other flowers that normally seed themselves in this climate. The sooner the first of these go in the spring the better. In the vegetable line in the same group will be the first plantings of garden peas, lettuce, onions, radish, spinach and perhaps just a few hills of extra early potatoes. Normally, of course, potatoes are tender and the tops will freeze. But it takes them quite a while to come through the ground, and in the meantime the weather will be warming up.

Be Careful With These

In the semi-hardy group, there is a much wider range and with these in both flowers and vegetables there is no hurry about planting at all. Most of them will stand some cool weather and even a nip of frost. But they prefer both warm soil and warm air and there is nothing to be gained in planting them until we are pretty sure there is no danger of serious frost. In this group will be about half the flowers and vegetables listed in most Canadian seed catalogues.

Finally we come to the really tender things, those that will not stand any frost at all. Among the flowers are zinnias, petunias, dahlias and begonias and several more. In vegetables are melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, corn, peppers and others.

Spread Them Out

And right here at the start of a new gardening season, it should be emphasized that with the hardest of the most tender, the gardener who gets most satisfaction never plants all the seed of any flower or vegetable at the same time. He spreads out the planting making at least two and sometimes three or four from 10 days to two weeks apart. In this way he is covering his bets so to speak for if the first planting gets frozen or washed out or tramped on, he will still have one in reserve. More important, he will have something coming on all the time, fresh corn and peas not just for a few days but for many weeks and bouquets of beautiful flowers too. With plantings well spread out the garden should be blooming and producing abundantly from late in June until snow and with a few special tips and short cuts which you will be hearing about in our next article, we can add several weeks to the normal season as well.
