Mass jam seen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A massive traffic jam precipitated by delays in settlement of the railway strike was forecast today as the country started the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted 77 persons will die on the country's highways during the weekend. Last year, 124 died in accidents across Canada, 70 in traffic.

Police and safety organizations were braced for the thousands of weekend travellers and the traditional flood of cottagers as summer homes begin to close and residents returned to cities and towns.

In Quebec, heavy trucks will take to the roads Sunday by special permission of the department of transport to try to clear some of the freight stockpiled during the rail strike.

Provincial and city police are on special alert in Montreal and the provincial force will have 800 men on duty across the province. The provincial safety council has predicted at least 35 deaths on the highways.

Row shapes up

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition spokesmen served notice in the Commons Friday that they are digging in for a long and hard fight on the government's proposals for a massive overhaul of railway legislation.

Their fire was directed mainly at the plan to give the railways unprecedented freedom in rate-making, allowing the forces of competition to replace all but the most essential federal control.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker charged that the legislation would leave the carriers "virtually untrammelled" and intensify the freight rate discrimination against Western Canada and the Maritimes.

Four at large

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four armed men today were trying to avoid recapture after a well-planned breakout from nearby Headingley provincial jail Thursday night. Six others who broke out with them were captured Friday.

The manhunt concentrated on the Warren area, 20 miles northwest of here, where one of two cars used in the break was found near an airstrip. The location posed an interesting possibility because one of the four still loose, Kenneth Leishman 24, is an experienced pilot.

Leishman faces trial on theft and conspiracy charges in a brazen hijacking of $383,000 in gold bullion from Winnipeg airport March 1.

Seeks reforms

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association, not a hatchet in sight, gave approval Friday to proposed sweeping reforms in Canada's divorce laws.

Meeting in general session on the second-to-last day of its annual convention, the CBA membership went down the line with a recommendation from its civil justice section that added grounds for divorce include cruelty, desertion, insanity, voluntary separation and wilful refusal to consummate a marriage.

De Gaulle tour

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — President de Gaulle of France flew into this flowered Pacific island today after a three-day state visit to Cambodia where he demanded that all foreign troops get out of Viet Nam.

In a major speech in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, Thursday, de Gaulle made it clear he meant U.S. troops, but the wording of a joint communique today signed also by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, chief of state of Cambodia, was broad enough to include Soviet and Chinese technicians in North Viet Nam.

VICTORIA (CP) — With nine days to go before voters decide who will govern British Columbia, the mounting issues don't appear to be generating much enthusiasm on the hustings.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said the main issue is private enterprise offered by his Social Credit party versus the New Democratic Party brand of socialism.

He looks on the Sept. 12 election as a two-way fight between his 14-year-old administration and the yet-to-taste-power NDP led by Robert Strachan.

After Pearson's crisis speech on economy we could go guidelines a la LBJ country

By HARRY HALLIWELL

Since Prime Minister Pearson's "crisis" speech this week, there has been a noticeable increase in speculation that Canada, like the U.S. before it, is going to have a set of economic guidelines governing increases in wages and prices.

On the Canadian scene, there has been a tendency to think of the guidelines merely as a way of curbing unreasonable demands on the part of labor. Almost forgotten is the fact that President Johnson has used them several times to keep industry from contributing too heavily to the price-profit-wage-cost spiral (you can pick your own starting point in the formula, depending on your bias).

In October, 1965, he used guidelines to roll back price increases on tin plate. At the turn of the year 1965-66 he used them to reduce the threatened $5 per ton increase in the price of structural steel and pig iron. He has also used them to roll back prices on primary aluminum.

The U.S. guidelines are based on two principles. (1) Wages: The annual rate of increase in employee compensation (wages plus fringe benefits) per man-hour; should equal the national average increase in output per man-hour; (2) Prices: They remain stable in industries where the increase in productivity is at the national average; they may rise in industries where the productivity is smaller than the national average; they should fall in industries where the increase in productivity is greater than the national average.

Both guidelines are tied to average national rate of increase in productivity of 3.2 per cent, but there are exceptions.

Wage increases in excess of 3.2 per cent, are considered permissible: (a) If existing wage rates are insufficient for an industry to attract the share of the labor force required to meet demand for its products; (b) if wages are depressingly low; (c) if changes in work loads result in large productivity gains at "substantial human costs requiring special adjustment of compensation."

Exceptional increases in prices are considered permissible: (a) If there are increases in unit material costs that are not offset by decreases in other costs and which would significantly impair profit margins; or (b) if an industry is unable to attract necessary capital.

As the U.S. Council of Economic Advisors observes, the first two exceptions for wage rates are rarely applicable for the simple reason that industries in which unions have strong enough bargaining power to make effective demands beyond the guidelines are, in the main, "high wage industries in which job opportunities are relatively very attractive."

It also observes that very few applications of the price exceptions are to be expected because most large firms, to which the guidelines are "primarily addressed," have ready access to capital and "the profits of virtually every industry have risen sharply and are at record levels as a by-product of the general prosperity in the economy."

It is interesting to apply the principles involved here to the threatened Canadian railway strike.

Justifiably, some railway workers can argue that they are underpaid in relation to workers with comparable skills in other industries. They are admittedly underpaid in relation to workers in the durable goods industries, which are the traditional Canadian measure of a railway man's worth. They have been falling behind.

It should be noted, however, that an integral part of the railway wage-making process has been the unwillingness of railway men to accept changes in technology. The case of the firemen on freight hauls was the classic, but there continues to be a great deal of featherbedding in the industry.

It is too early, for example, to forget the wildcat strike of the CNR two years ago, resulting from the corporation's decision to run trains through points where in the days of steam engines, it was necessary to stop for crew changes and maintenance. It would seem, therefore, that the applicable exception under U.S. type guidelines would be the third wage exception, in which there are "substantial human costs requiring special adjustment of compensation," but which implicitly requires "large gains in productivity."

Our 525,000 first graders face a changing scene

By DONALD PHILLIPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

About 525,000 young Canadians will register in Grade 1 this fall but the odds are not one will reach Grade 12.

By the time they reach the last year of high school, the whole grade system will probably have disappeared or have been changed out of all recognition.

Saskatchewan and Quebec have both announced plans to end the old system. In the former it is being replaced by four divisions of three years each and "subject promotion" is the new policy in the eastern province.

By this method, if a student fails one or two subjects, he won't have to repeat the whole set for the grade all over again. Ontario teachers, most of them relieved that the end of Grade 13 departmental examinations has been officially announced expect to use a similar system.

French is becoming available to more primary school children, although the beginning level still varies from Grade 9 to kindergarten in different parts of Canada.

Montreal children of English-speaking families start French normally in Grade 4 but there are experimental classes in lower grades and in Nova Scotia, where Grade 7 is the rule, some schools begin at Grade 5.

Grade 9 used to be the starting-point in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, but cities in all three provinces are introducing French at Grade 6 or 7. In Manitoba the regular program begins in Grade 7 but some conversational French classes are held in Grades 1, 2, 3, and 4.

In the West, what limits French teaching is lack of teachers. British Columbia is short of 300 teachers in all departments and Howard Loewen of the Manitoba Teachers' Society estimates that 15 per cent of last year's 9,800 teachers have left the province.

Traffic chaotic for holiday

Train runs sporadic as rebels defy order

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians head into the Labor Day holiday weekend today with rail transportation in a state of confusion across the country.

Some trains, mainly freight, were moving sporadically.

But inter-city passenger runs were few and far between, and a number of trains that set out hopefully Friday never reached their destinations.

Behind the confusion are rebel groups of railway workers from Vancouver to Moncton who have voted to remain on strike, in defiance of Parliament and their own national union leaders.

A government bill which became law late Thursday night ordered 118,000 railway workers to end their week-long strike against the CNR, CPR and five smaller railways immediately.

SOME MOVE AGAIN

Some men did, and trains began to move again. But many did not, and the ranks of the rebels swelled following membership meetings from coast to coast.

Many union locals had not yet announced any clear-cut decision early today, but reports from across the country indicated that the CPR was having at least 74 freight trains in operation for rail travellers in British Columbia and the Maritime provinces.

Neither the CPR nor the CNR was moving trains in B.C. where some railway workers had returned but thousands more voted to remain on strike. In Moncton, about 1,100 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen decided to re-establish picket lines, indicating a serious disruption of rail services.

In Montreal, about 2,000 members of railway shop craft unions decided at a noisy meeting to stay off the job.

Most of Toronto's 3,500 strikers returned to work Friday, but there was discouraging news but railway men in at least eight other Ontario centres voted to remain on strike for another day.

Almost 2,000 B.C. strikers voted to stay out and about 300 to resume work in Vancouver, Kamloops and Port Mann.

Calgary had all of its 4,600 railway workers back on the job, but the picture at Edmonton was split. Its 300 CPR employees were back, but 1,400 of the 3,000 CNR men decided to stay out and the other 1,600 were planning membership votes.

There was a similar split in Saskatoon, where CPR men returned and a big freight pulled out for Winnipeg but no CNR trains were moving.

Saggy supersonic makes debut

WASHINGTON (TNS) — At 10 a.m. on September 6 the American Supersonic Transport Project begins its long, paper strewn take-off run.

Four firms will hand the Federal Aviation Agency their bids for the airframe and engines of a superjetliner that will carry 300 passengers, 13 miles high at 1,800 m.p.h. in 1974.

This is the SST. If the Boeing Company's design wins it will sport folding wings which slide inboard when it really gets going. Rival Lockheed Aircraft offers two sets of stubby delta wings. Either way, it will have a long, pencil-thin fuselage with a sharp, vicious looking nose.

On the ground, its titanium skin will bag and wrinkle like a prune. In flight it heats up to 650 degrees and the fuselage stretches by more than a foot.

Boeing, Lockheed and the engine firms General Electric and Pratt and Whitney have spent ten years and $280,000 on their designs, which amount to a stack of paper six feet high.

BIG BUSINESS
The winners hope to sell between 500 and 1,800 SSTs at about $30 million each, so up to $50 billion worth of business is at stake.

The U.S. Government has already plowed $400 million into the program and may have to spend at least one billion more before the SST gets into production.

It is an investment in national prestige, comparable to Canada's effort in producing the AVRO arrow interceptor. Britain and France have joined forces to build the Concorde, a 1,400 m.p.h. 132-seat SST which should be ready by 1971, and the Russians are working on their version, the TU-144.

The U.S. has been beaten before. Britain was years ahead with the first commercial subsonic jet, the Comet. (Canada's Avro jetliner never went into production.) But the Americans came up from behind and captured much of the work market with the bigger and faster Boeing 707s and Douglas DC8s.

They hope to repeat the performance with the SST. The question is not whether people want to fly so fast but whether those on the ground will put up with the inconvenience.

Experience with high-speed military aircraft and space-ships has shown the SST to be feasible.

Passengers can sip their martinis in refrigerated comfort at 1,800 m.p.h., oblivious of the fact that outside walls are baking hot.

They won't hear the enormous roar of the jets in the rear as the sound cannot catch up with them. But down below the crash of sonic booms is liable to scare ten million Americans out of bed in one two-hour transcontinental flight.

On transatlantic hops, the aviation men say, the boom is no problem. The odd liner or freighter may be smitten but who cares?

However, the sleep of cities cannot be shattered without repercussions. The airlines are vaguely perturbed by the vision of huge damage suits when their SSTs wreck glass-and-steel skyscrapers. And those modern all-glass air terminals may have to be replaced by blockhouses.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In this land of make-believe and magic it is easy for the visitor to become confused about where reality ends and acting begins. The alternative is to conclude that everything here is like a movie set, where everything is a facade.

Take the matter of money in Hollywood. After a while, it almost seems that there are two classes of greenbacks, here is the kind that most of us work for, and there is the kind that is shovelled out to the talented creatures in the entertainment capital.

"I didn't really want to work in Vegas," a well-known but not really top-drawer singer started this reporter casually. "I just didn't seem right, though, to turn down $60,000 for just two weeks' work."

It has been widely circulated in the trade that the Bonanza stars, under contracts signed last year, receive $10,000 an episode, which is more than most families make in a year. In a season this could add up to $300,000 a hero—not counting, of course, extra loot from guest appearances, royalties on records and appearances at state fairs and rodeos.

One of the trade papers recently headlined a story about a cut in top prices paid guest-stars in TV series. It appears the supply of available actors exceeds the demand.

CHOPS PRICE
Bob Hope's anthology series is reported to have chopped the top price from last season's $10,000 to $7,500. That is high for dramatic actors and usually is given only on the top variety shows for big stars—Ed Sullivan's hour and Hollywood Palace.

There was a time—when Sullivan was so annoyed at Jack Paar for attracting some of his high-priced talent for only the $320 minimum, plus the lovely exposure—when $10,000 was not at all unusual for a star entertaining only a few minutes.

Batman's villains, Variety says pick up $3,500 an episode—high, too, since the Lucy Show ceiling is reported to be only $2,500.

Take-home pay of most stars is almost impossible to estimate. Most of them operate amid a welter of companies and corporations supervised by tax lawyers. One star of a series that was cancelled after a short run still managed to total an income well over $150,000 in the period.

It was recently estimated by the trade paper that a number of big TV personalities, including Sullivan, Miss Ball, Garry Moore and Bob Hope actually hit close to the $1,000,000 mark most years.

LOWER WINDSOR

Masters Wayne and Brian and the little Misses Wilma and Brenda Lynch spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGee and family, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lynch spent the weekend in Montreal guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Morin and family.

Mr. Walter McGee, who has been attending summer classes at the University of Ottawa, has returned to his home here, only to be called to Huntingdon by the death of his uncle, John Clifford McGee. He will spend a weekend with Mrs. McGee, Robert and Linda.

Messrs. Charles and Bert McGee and Mrs. Emile Lacroix, Richmond, were called to Huntingdon by the sudden death of their brother, Mr. John C. McGee, who died following a stroke on Aug. 16. Burial took place on Aug. 19.

MELDING

Among those who attended Cookshire Fair were: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Allan, Master Jerry Allan and Miss Linda Jay, Mr. Eric Allan, Mr. Donald Nugent, Mr. Roger Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Nugent, and Mr. Archie Nugent.

NORTH HATLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Bowen, and three children, Bill, John and Valerie, Ottawa, were visitors for ten days of Mr. Bowen's mother, Mrs. R. W. Bowen. On the last weekend of their visit, a sister, Mrs. L. A. Ray and Mr. Ray, Drummondville, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bowen and sons, Douglas and Bobby, St. Lambert, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hopkins, Sept. Isles, were also guests at the same home.

Dr. and Mrs. G. G. Hatch and family, Toronto, are guests at Hovey Manor, and are visiting Dr. Hatch's mother and grandmother, Mrs. Earle C. Hatch and Mrs. Goodfellow. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ditchburn and family have left on a motor trip to British Columbia, where they will visit with Mr. Ditchburn's brothers, Anthony and Joe, Jr., and their families.

GUIDES PLAY

There can be no real criticism of West's queen of spades lead against the no-trump slam. Some experts would open the jack or ten for deceptive purposes but they would all open one of the high spades as the lead least likely to cost a trick. Strangely enough the spade is the only lead that allows South to make his contract.

South wins the spade lead and notes that he has 13 top tricks if diamonds and clubs both break and 12 top tricks if just one suit breaks. South also notes all sorts of squeeze possibilities but that no squeeze will work if East is long in both minor suits since East can discard in back of dummy.

South sees no reason not to try a minor suit so he goes after clubs. West discards a low heart on the third club so South decides to play hearts just to see what will happen. Everyone follows to three hearts and now South tries diamonds. This time West discards a low spade on the third diamond.

South is in dummy at this point and everyone is down to three cards. If South had bothered to count carefully he knows that West started with exactly four hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. By simple subtraction his last three cards are all spades. East's last three cards are also known to be one spade, one club and one dia-

Labor Day crowd expected

The Brome Fair opening today

BROME — Brome Fair starts today, drawing crowds from throughout the E.T. area.

The 110th Brome Fair is drawing the usual number of fine entries in all varieties of livestock, and providing entertainment for kids from six to eighty plus.

The Gastoni International group will provide excellent grandstand entertainment, ranging from a high wire act — without peer on the fair circuit — to a sensational bicycle performance performed by the Williards.

The Knowlton High School band, under the direction of Mr. Corcoran will be in attendance, providing crowd entertainment.

Racing fans will enjoy the daily sprints, to be held for the Saturday to Monday event. Ray Mullins, a well known aficionado of the sport will preside as president of the racing committee.

The kiddies will, as usual, be attracted to the Peter Marsh midway, thrills and rides for the most timid to the adventurous.

Cotton candy will undoubtedly create the usual amount of chaos on children's clothing.

Ah we were all young once. The prime events: horse pulling and the livestock parade will be the feature on Sunday.

The livestock showing will be a part of Monday's show for those unable to attend on Sunday. The fair is open to all Quebec residents this year.

This plan, encompassing sheep, cattle and horses is under the jurisdiction of the federal government. The usual health precautions will be enforced.

YMCA deal put off

The City of Sherbrooke's agreement to buy the Dufferin Street property belonging to the YMCA suffered a setback this week.

The city originally agreed to buy the property and sell it to the American Biltmore Company to be converted into a parking lot.

However, American Biltmore, has decided not to take advantage of the deal for the moment, a city hall spokesman said.

Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau said that the company has decided that the investment was too great considering the number of parking spaces that they would be able to have on the property.

The City agreed to pay the YMCA $58,000 for the property and sell it to the American Biltmore for the same price.

Rope-sprung Child's Bed

Hyatt Room is established in museum

Highlighting the historical museum recently established by the Sherbrooke County Historical Society at Howardsville is the Hyatt Room, filled with mementoes of Gilbert Hyatt, founder of Sherbrooke, and of other members of the Hyatt family who settled in this locality at the end of the 18th century.

Most of the historical items in the room were donated by Charles Hyatt and Douglas Hyatt, of Lennoxville, direct descendants of Gilbert Hyatt and other members of the family.

Included in the collection are a rope spring child's bed which served many members of the family in their younger days. A set of tools used in the construction of the Universalist Church at Huntingville about 150 years ago, spinning wheels, tables, chairs, bed comforters and other items of household furniture.

But in other parts of the museum are reminders of the early days of Sherbrooke contributed by Sherbrooke and district residents.

One such item is a 125-year-old hand carved fireplace mantel taken from the residence at the corner of Cresse and Prospect which was demolished recently in a street-widening project.

Leonidas Bachand, N.P. president of the Sherbrooke County Historical Society, is appealing to Sherbrooke residents to donate any objects of historical value they may have in their possession to the museum so that its value to the people of the district may be enhanced.

Stork shower held at Border

ROCK ISLAND — Mrs. John Boucher, Jr., Stantead was a guest of honor at a stork shower held on August 18 at the home of Mrs. Alfred Middleton. Mrs. Boucher was taken by surprise on entering the home to find herself the honored guest when she was presented with a corsage of yellow roses and a baby rattle, tied with ribbons, and was escorted to the dining table where a chair was reserved for her under an arch of pink and blue and white garlands.

Seated with the guest of honor was her mother, Mrs. Eugene Labrie, sister, Miss Marcelle Labrie, Beebe, her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Boucher, Sr., and sister-in-law, Miss Marion Boucher, both of Stantead. Mrs. Labrie and Mrs. Boucher were each presented with a corsage of mauve colored roses from the garden of Mrs. Edward Hyatt. The home was decorated with bowls of sweet peas from the gardens of Mrs. John Boucher Sr.

The hostesses, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Arnold Rever, Rock Island, Mrs. Russell French, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Melvin Dustin, Stantead, served refreshments, including two shower cakes, one decorated in pink, and the other in blue with stork motif, made by Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. French cut by Mrs. Boucher Jr.

During the evening two guests, Mrs. Russell French and Mrs. Melvin Dustin were each presented with stork gifts.

RUSTIC BEAUTY — Fall colors and a covered bridge make great color slides or prints. This 90-foot-long bridge, between Compton and Waterville, spans the Coaticook River. Rolliecord camera; shutter 1/250 sec.; lens opening F 8; K 2 yellow filter; film ASA 400.

Summer's end is time to take color shots

The beautiful summer is practically over. But nature's last fling is about to start. Flaming maples, brilliant yellows, and scarlet reds will slowly dot the countryside. A great time of year for color film.

The right time for fall colors is a matter of choice and subject matter. This brings us to the subject that looks particularly good at this time of year: covered bridges.

They are mostly unpeaked in this area and the weather-worn wood seems to lack punch against the green trees. I find green leaves pleasing to the eye but have to have special attention such as overhanging branches to form a silhouette against the lighter green. This gives depth and contrast to the mass of green surrounding the wooden bridge.

The next best thing is to take the picture in the early fall when the maple trees are starting to turn. The color film will record the greens with dashes of color and if a covered bridge is your subject, the scene will come alive with rustic beauty.

Color film is a wonderful medium. It can be dramatically harsh or very gentle, depending on the light. Some subjects require pastel colors. Then one has to wait for a hazy sun. Other subjects look best in a more direct sun.

But here one has to be careful not to have the shadows too dark and lifeless. One way to overcome this problem is to take a camera angle that shows lighter colours in the shadows or reflections just enough to give some detail.

Naturally one likes to take sunsets and in the fall especially around lakes one can find particularly beautiful ones.

Here are some exposures for sunsets just after the sun goes down. Exposure is not really critical. Over exposure gives the impression that it was earlier than it was and under exposure makes it look later. All films are daylight. Kodachrome: 1/50 - 1/60 of a sec. at F 4; Ektachrome: 1/50 - 1/60 sec. lens opening F 8 to F 5.6; High speed Ektachrome: 1/100 or 1/125 between F 11 and 16; the 1/50 - 1/60 sec. at F 8 is for box type cameras.

Last piece of advice; if you can put filters in your lens, try the sky light for controlling the blue in scenes around mountain and beach. No exposure change is required. This filter also has a number 1 A.

Teenagers find real court not like TV version

By CLAUDE LABRECQUE
(Record staff reporter)

Among the old time regulars and the hardened habitual criminals who came to Court Sessions this week were three young heads and three pairs of eager eyes belonging to three teenagers who had come out of curiosity to view Justice first hand.

Yvon Adam, 17, Serge Belisle 15 and Yves Leduc, 14 all Sherbrookers, decided early one morning to go and "see what court was all about".

They were quite impressed with the variety of cases, but as Yvon said "it wasn't as exciting as on TV."

"It's pretty darn hard to figure out what's going on sometimes though," said Serge Belisle. He was referring to the lawyer's technical talk and muffled mumblings which even to an experienced ear can be confusing.

"I thought it was killing when that fellow didn't know whether he should plead guilty or not guilty," said Yves Leduc, who recalled a humorous moment in court when a lawyer interrupted the proceedings to tell the court that his confused client really meant "guilty", not "not-guilty".

The young observers thought the judge was pretty good but a bit too severe in one case. "And do you believe Justice exists?"

"Yes," they all nodded.

Youth gets a year for $1000 theft

Judge Benoit Turmel explained the reasons for a sentence of one year to the accused who stood head bent down in Court Sessions yesterday morning.

Claude Tourigny, 20 of Danville pleaded guilty to a charge of theft in a Danville train station where approximately $1000 was stolen by him and another young man.

Defence Lawyer Roger Parenteau explained to the court that the accused had no record. Furthermore lawyer Parenteau said he had known the accused since early childhood and could not believe that the could have done such a thing. "He certainly will not start again, I'm sure", he said.

Before giving the sentence the judge explained his reasons for the light sentence he was to impose. "Because of your young age, and because you have no police record and of evidence in your favor, I'm giving you a chance," said Judge Benoit Turmel.

In another case, Jacques Heine, 35, of Danville was fined $200, and his driver's licence was suspended for a year on a charge of drunken driving.

Campaign for blind underway

The annual Eastern Townships fund drive for the Montreal Association for the Blind gets underway this week.

The Association stresses that the campaign will be conducted through the mails. There will be no door to door canvassing or telephone solicitations.

The 57-year-old Association has been supported in the past primarily by private and corporate donations. They are hopeful that the Province of Quebec will provide financial assistance for the school. It is noteworthy that all the other five schools for blind children including the two French language ones in Quebec, are completely subsidized by the provincial governments.

Many people assume that the blind of our community are well cared for today. Although blindness was one of the first handicaps society provided for, other handicaps have surpassed the standards available to the blind, a press release notes.

It is the aim of the Montreal Association for the blind to elevate standards of rehabilitation to the level attained by other handicapped groups.

Reform needed in bargaining talks

As most Canadians expected the vast majority of the striking railway workers obeyed, perhaps somewhat reluctantly, the back-to-work legislation adopted Thursday by Parliament, thus avoiding a showdown between the railwaymen and the law of the land and permitting a rapid resumption of normal rail operations following a one-week shutdown.

Settlement of the strike will be welcomed by all sections of the population who were becoming gravely concerned by reports of expanding industrial layoffs due to the inability of firms to ship finished products and receive raw materials.

But the satisfaction over the restoration of railway services will be tempered by a number of factors.

Chief concern will be over the failure of the parties concerned to establish any permanent formula for the peaceful solution of future disputes in key industries.

The measure adopted is simply a stop-gap move designed to end one particularly crippling strike.

If further difficulties arise in the future in railway and other service industries there will be recourse to the old, outworn processes of the present collective bargaining system.

The chap who retires after years of hard work often works hard at not working.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR:

The scouts of autumn are here now

There is a different feeling in the air now that the ninth month's mellowness broods over fields and meadows. Dawns are moist and foggy and one can sense Nature's patience as the sun lifts into the sky and the fog lifts from valleys and swales. September does not hurry; it is a lingering remembrance of summer. It also has the taste of on-coming autumn.

Not yet the blazing bonfires on the hills; not yet the harsh searing of black frosts. Now for a heart-lifting interlude royal colors paint the land. There is the purple of asters and the rich hue of thistles. Ironweed holds bright pennants on stiff stems. Goldenrod paints pictures along dusty roadsides and brightens corners of upland fields. Along pasture lanes sumacs display maroon candles. Around the edges of swamps, chocolate brown cattail heads blend with sun-cured reeds and grasses. In shadowed woodlands the checkerberries are red jewels beneath waxy leaves.

Other papers say:

Experiment not in military diction

History is dotted with examples of the military mind resisting innovations and improvements to the armed services. The Maginot Line, the British square, the red coats in the field, all are examples of military folly in which generals have needlessly relied upon what they knew and not what common sense and ingenuity could supply them. They resisted tanks, aircraft, camouflage, aircraft carriers, combined operations, nuclear submarines and a whole catalogue of military improvements. The result is that in wars, men are expended as freely as ammunition, and all the pious lamentations of the generals afterwards after the military would not one whit.

And so with a group calling itself TRIO, an organization of retired veterans, some of very high rank, which has been brought together in Canada to

(The Peterborough Examiner) resist unification of the armed forces. The Tri-Service Identities Organization was formed to defeat the Department of Defence and the Minister of that Department, Paul Hellyer, in the current attempt to bring about one of the most imaginative innovations in Canada's scrappy military history. This is not to denigrate the considerable courage and fortitude of Canadian servicemen, but to reflect upon the transience and ineptness of the military high command. But as we have said, experiment is not in the vocabulary of military man. Bad strategy, power fixations, and hamboozling the civil authority is. This latest attempt by ex-officers in retirement to harass the civil government and to arouse national anxiety should be watched with care. Similar sentiments in other countries have resulted in some very sorry business.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Cromwell beat a Scottish army at the battle of Dunbar 311 years ago today—in 1650—and checked Charles Stuart's hopes of retaking his father's throne by arms. Charles had signed the Scottish Covenant to win the clans' support but denounced this religious nationalist pact when he came to the throne 10 years later. The Covenanters were declared outlaws and cruelly repressed when they refused to give up their faith. Only the overthrow of the Stuarts in 1688 ended the persecution, but by then thousands of Scotsmen had died in prison or been deported to America.

"HOW DO YOU WISH THIS FINANCED.?"

Adventures with God

Lesson of the broken angel is optimism in face of suffering

The Bible does not tell us much about angels, but some of them were named and they were messengers sent from God. Others were guardians of little children. Jesus said in Matt. 18: 6-14: "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little children; for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father who is in heaven."

Of the two angels named in the Bible, one was Michael, an archangel (The term "archangel" means that Michael was a heavenly Bishop who had authority over less important angels) the other was Gabriel a messenger sent from God to tell Zacharias the priest, that his wife Elizabeth would bear him a son and he should be called John. He was the same angel who told Mary and Joseph that they, too, would have a son and they should call him Jesus.

Their names were mentioned because they were very important angels. But the little angel with the broken back was not important, and until today no one has heard of him. Only because he fell out of a choir loft and was seriously injured, I mention him now. I call him Gabriel because he has brought a message to me which I share with you today.

The only time some people see their names in the paper is when they have an accident and behave bravely.

Gabriel was the bravest angel I have heard of. When I picked him up from the floor in two pieces he was still smiling and clutching his little white hymnbook in his waxen hands. I knew that he was trying to say: Aunt Jenny, help me. I want to sing in your choir with the other members of the heavenly host. Do mend me, and let me stand beside the other members when they sing: Glory to God in the Highest, and: Hark the herald angels sing. I want to! I want to! I want to!

Well, what can an old lady do when a little angel pleads with her like that? What can she do but try to make his wishes come true? So, I gathered up the broken waxen figure and took him to the operating room. From an orange stick designed to manicure my nails, I made a support, and do you know that while I bored that cruel object into his rigid body, little Gabriel didn't even squirm or cry. As long as he remains on this earth—he must wear that brace. But I am very happy to report that his cardinal cassock and white surplice conceals it. Unless one examines his back-carefully, you would never guess from his smiling face that he is wearing an uncomfortable brace.

Now, I don't know where Gabriel's guardian angel was when the wax chorister fell from the choir loft, and factored his middle, but I suppose that like other mothers and fathers he had just turned his back for a minute when the accident happened. It was an accident that changed the pattern and course of his life and brought him into public view. One thing we may be thankful for, is the fact that the accident did not change Gabriel's sweet disposition. He kept the song in his heart and the smile on his face, and tried to live for the glory of God and the benefit of others.

Because the little angel with the broken back wanted to be a shining light for Jesus, he was given courage and strength to bear his cross joyfully, and bravely.

There are thousands of boys and girls and men and women like Gabriel and they put some of us to shame with their cheerful attitudes and courage. Some of them cannot lie down, others cannot sit up; some cannot see, others cannot hear, but somehow they shine and show the world by the sign language that they haven't lost hope, and their fortitude and patience and their skills have enriched the world since the beginning of time.

They have learned how to bring happiness and challenge to others by simply—being happy and making the best of a condition which they cannot change. Jesus came to set in motion a program which will finally eliminate all the suffering and frustration and braces that have for so long held men prisoners in various chains. He, too, learned obedience by the things which He suffered.

He promises to return and set all men free, and to reward those who have borne patiently and even joyfully the things which challenge men's faith. God bless all the Gabriels who want to sing praises to God, and who by His grace keep smiling as they sing.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room.

He commanded the chariot to stand still; and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. (Acts 8:38).

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, draw us closer to Thee. Give us the desire to know Thee better and the will to serve Thee more fervently. Help us that we may become more like Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

VANCOUVER -- (TNS) — Nothing can compete with today's accounts of this week's opening of the emergency session of Parliament. However, grave as our domestic troubles are, it might be useful to remind ourselves that there are bigger and more ominous problems around us.

Such a reminder could even be useful for putting our disarrayed national household in order in a hurry.

What prompted me to write this column en route to the Far East was a talk I had with External Affairs Minister Paul Martin before I left Ottawa, and the lead article I just read in last week's London Economist.

My talk with Mr. Martin concerned our China policy. Was it the Government's intention, I asked, to vote this year for the seating of the Peking regime in the U.N? As always when faced with a straightforward question, Mr. Martin had a magnificently evasive answer. Its essence was that Canada would indeed welcome the seating of Red China in the U.N, but there were considerable difficulties.

'Subtle changes'

Were these difficulties, I inquired, the same Mr. Martin so cogently stated last fall in his explanation of Canada's negative vote, or were there some new elements in the situation?

There were some subtle changes in the situation, Mr. Martin said, but as far as Peking's patently unacceptable conditions of U-N membership were concerned, there was no change whatsoever.

What, then, were the reasons for the obvious consideration given by Ottawa to a change in our attitude? If Peking's conditions were totally unacceptable a year ago, what makes them less unacceptable now?

Mr. Martin, using the familiar Pearson-U Thant phraseology about the necessity to end Red China's "isolation," skirted the question for a while and then said: "The trouble is, we don't know what Peking's real aims and intentions are. We have been trying hard to find out, but they won't give us even a hint."

I couldn't believe my ears. Didn't Lin Piao, who is now the actual boss of Communist China, spell out these aims and intentions last September? What else do we want or need to know?

"They have to talk that way for propaganda purposes," Mr. Martin said. And he added that "No rational human being could possibly mean these things."

Remembering the naive idealists who used exactly the same argument about Hitler's blueprint of conquest, I had no more questions.

I wouldn't have mentioned this conversation had it not been for the Economist article which could have been written as an answer to Mr. Martin's they-don't-mean-they-say this.

Under the startling heading "This is the Third World

Mr. Johnson's policy

For this reason, "if one side the Marxists and the honorable pacifists, a good many of the critics are finding it increasingly hard to disagree with the basic premise of Mr. Johnson's policy -- that it is at present America's job to try to keep China's evangelism under control."

"China has nominated Vietnam as a test case for what it claims to be a new kind of war. It is a land war, fought by relatively small formations of very brave men who are prepared to persist for years with the tactics of ambush and terrorism until the other side's nerve cracks."

Popular Ayer's Cliff resident feted at WI shower and farewell party

AYER'S CLIFF — On August 18 the Women's Institute entertained in the Church Hall at a combined shower and farewell party in honor of Mrs. Alice McHarg, who is being married in the near future to Mr. Robert Mayhew, and will be leaving the community.

Upon arrival Mrs. McHarg and her mother, Mrs. M. Wyman, were met by Mrs. N. Pierce and Mrs. R. Waite. The guest of honor was presented with a corsage and, with her mother, escorted to a seat while the assembled guests joined in singing For She's a Jolly Good Fellow.

Mrs. Mary Fleming acted as mistress of ceremonies and introduced Mrs. D. MacKinnon and Mrs. M. Goode, who entertained with two delightful violin duets. Mrs. C. Kendall was enjoyed in two vocal selections. Mrs. Gordon Shipway was accompanied for these artists and was responsible for arranging the program.

Following the musical selections, Mrs. Fleming presented Mrs. McHarg with a set of luggage from her friends with their best wishes. She spoke of Mrs. McHarg's untiring assistance in all community organizations. She has been a faithful member of the United Church Women, the Choir, the Home and School Association, the Dramatic Club, past President of the local Women's Institute and held office at the County level as well. These groups, as well as her friends shared in the gifts, which also included a string of cultured pearls and earrings, a travel clock and a pen and pencil set. A personally engraved pen was also given her for her youngest daughter, Mary, who is also leaving here to reside in Bury.

Mrs. McHarg expressed her appreciation for the lovely gifts and party. She said she would always have fond memories of her life which has been spent almost entirely in this community.

Refreshments were served. Mrs. M. Wyman, mother of the guest of honor, and Mrs. H. Carl Mayhew, sister-in-law of the prospective groom presided at a prettily appointed tea table, centered with a silver bowl of sweet peas and baby's breath flanked by pink and white tapers in silver holders.

A bride's cake an attractive addition to the table was made and decorated by Mrs. Wendell Cass.

Mrs. Willard Rixford, a life-long friend of Mrs. McHarg, also assisted in pouring during the tea hour. Mrs. L. McPaul did the floral arrangements.

In charge of the evening's arrangements were Mrs. R. Waite, Mrs. Ed. Astbury, Mrs. M. Fleming, Mrs. J. Saanum, and Mrs. N. Pierce of the Women's Institute; Mrs. Desmond Kennedy, of the Home and School; Mrs. W. Browning, of the Dramatic Club and Mrs. G. Shipway, of the United Church Choir.

Mrs. L. Thompson, Mrs. S. True and Mrs. T. Binnekamp assisted in the kitchen and with the serving.

Relatives and friends attend stork shower

WATERVILLE — Mrs. Carroll Buzzell, Cherry River, was the guest of honor at a stork shower given August 17 by Mrs. Raymond Lesperance, with Mrs. Tom Bean, Ayer's Cliff, as co-hostess.

Some 20 friends and relatives were present upon the arrival of Mrs. Buzzell, who was presented with a corsage of a fancy bootee, filled with marigolds. Mrs. Bean escorted her to a chair decorated in pink and blue, beside which was a large pink stork.

Gifts piled on a nearby table, were opened by Mrs. Buzzell assisted by her mother, Mrs. Archie Stronach, Lennoxville, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Lawrence Buzzell, Cherry River.

Following a social hour, refreshments were served including a shower cake in the shape of booties, decorated in pink and blue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grapes were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. Fox in Hereford and called on Mrs. Anne Hall in Colbrook. They were accompanied home by Mr. H. L. Hall, who has been a guest of his sister, Mrs. Hall.

We, too, may get guideposts but for prices, profits too

By NORMAN SIMON

Is organized labor prepared to accept wage guideposts?

In his television broadcast Tuesday night Prime Minister Pearson hinted that in order to curb inflation Canada may follow the U.S. into some sort of wage-price freeze, or at least voluntary control.

He hinted that a system to keep wage increases in check with the rate of productivity growth in the country as a whole may be tried here as it has in the U.S.

But any system of voluntary control of wage increases depends upon the co-operation of trade unions.

The position of the labor movement, as stated by the Canadian Labor Congress research department is: "Yes we are prepared to discuss with business and government an incomes policy or a set of guidelines which take into consideration all factors of production."

But organized labor in Canada would resist any income policy which placed heavy responsibilities on unions for exercising wage restraint while allowing other forms of income to find their own level.

The CLC research department argues that the aim of an income policy should be to ensure that wages as well as profits, rents, salaries interest and other forms of income do not rise so rapidly as to cause large and prolonged increases in price levels.

In the U.S. the 1962 Report of the President's Council of Economic Advisors suggested the general guide for non-inflationary wage hikes should be 3.2 per cent a year.

Business was asked to exercise similar restraint in pricing, but no specific figure was suggested as a guideline.

The guidelines never earned the confidence of U.S. organized labor.

The CLC concludes that the failure of U.S. labor to accept the guidelines stems from the double standard set for wages on the one hand and prices on the others.

"Labor is understandably annoyed that in much of the public discussion on the subject, labor has been harshly criticized for seeking wage gains in excess of 3.2 per cent while, with a couple of notable exceptions, industry has been able to ignore the public interest in its pricing decisions while suffering the displeasure of neither the general public nor the government."

The exceptions noted were President Kennedy's pressure on the steel industry in 1962 to back down price increases and similar action by President Johnson against the aluminum industry.

The CLC points out that unique Canadian problems will make a wage-price policy difficult to implement. These include:

The lack of central organizations able to speak for all labor or all of management; The varying levels of production in Canadian industry; The lack of data and research about productivity and incomes.

"Formidable as these obstacles are, there is no reason why they should prevent labor, management and other groups from giving the matter of incomes policy careful study," declares a CLC research paper on the income policy issue.

But the paper goes on to warn that labor would not accept productivity growth as the ceiling for wage increases since this arrangement would freeze labor's share of rising national income.

If the productivity ceiling were accepted, labor says, the total labor income would go up, but as a percentage of national income it would remain the same.

"Labor would not be allowed to increase its share relative to other groups such as salaried executives, professionals or stockholders."

"In other words, this arrangement would protect the status quo of relative income shares." (TNS)

Labor Day should be observed as a day of national consideration for the future of Canada, as employers and employees pause and pay tribute to their joint endeavors. With obstacles continually facing industry and the people who keep the Canadian wheels of progress in motion, this holiday provides an ideal occasion for everyone to appraise their respective roles as Canadians, men and women making individual contributions to the welfare of the nation, their provinces, communities and personal lives. It's the time of year when all should try to weigh the value of their personal contributions exercised for the good of all!

Sunday Sermon Subject for September 4, 1966

God's use of man as His witness will be a major theme of the Bible Lesson on "Man" at Christian Science church services this Sunday. The Golden Text is from Job: "God exalteth by His power..." Remember that thou magnify his work, which men behold." Selections to be read from the denomination textbook will include: "God will heal the sick through man, whenever man is governed by God" ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy).

Pickling time

What ever happened to the old days when pickling in most homes started some time in September, and ran on into October?

Nowadays, we find ourselves up to our elbows in dill-sized cucumbers and spiced peaches and pears, as early as the first week in August. It makes for a short summer — but for a long winter of wonderful eating.

Fortunately there's still time to stock your shelves, especially with relishes that depend on melons, late cucumbers, corn, and green and ripe tomatoes. But don't delay — the season is getting away from us.

Unless you grow your own fruits and vegetables, remember that you're not guaranteed a big saving by doing your own. With a good commercial bargain, you get the benefit of large-scale buying and production, and the economy this assures.

Just the same, there's rich reward for home pickle makers, in the variety and sense of achievement that's enjoyed. It's worth every jar you wash and every label you write.

HOME MADE DILLS
Dill-sized cucumbers
3/4 cup pickling salt
2 cup white vinegar
6 cups water
Fresh dill
Fresh garlic
Desired spice additions (see below)

The cucumbers should be very fresh, and no more than 5 inches long. For very best results, they should be gathered no more than a day before using, and not over 3 inches in length.

Thoroughly scrub and rinse the cucumbers. Cover with ice water and let stand overnight. Sterilize sealers.

Bring salt, vinegar and water together to a rapid boil.

Pack the dills into the sterilized jars, halving any that are overly large. Add a piece of dill (flower and stem) and garlic in amount desired, remembering that it is strong in flavor.

If desired, you may also add a piece of hot red pepper, or pepper berries, or mixed pickling spices (a good-sized piece of pepper, or 3 pepper berries, or 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon spice per jar).

Fill to overflowing with the boiling vinegar mixture and seal. Let stand about 6 weeks before using.

Amount of vinegar mixture above is enough for about 3 1/2 or 4 quarts of cucumbers.

POLISH DILLS: These are done as above, but without the vinegar. Garlic only is used with the dill, or garlic and red pepper. Remember that the vinegar is used in most pickle recipes, partially for its preservation value. If omitting the vinegar, it is especially important, for safety, to sterilize the jars well, scrub and rinse the cucumbers several times, and have the water rapidly boiling.

Perfume, don't forget, is as personal as your accessories. It can be as important as your scarf, pin or charm bracelet.

Here are some important facts to remember in choosing perfume for yourself.

Try on perfume before buying it. Individual skin chemistry often alters the scent. What may smell good on your friend may not be as pleasant on you.

Lightning theory is exploded

OTTAWA (CP) — Lightning strikes the Empire State building about 40 times a year—and that bit of information takes care of the theory that it never strikes twice in the same place.

An article in Canadian Nurse magazine says lightning can kill you outdoors especially if you stand under a tall tree, or even indoors if you are talking on the telephone or fiddling with the TV dials.

You're safe in a car during an electrical storm but it's good idea to pull off the road. A bright flash of lightning could blind you temporarily, making you lose control of the car.

If you're swimming or out in a boat when the storm strikes, make for shore and take shelter. When you're out in the country, head for a grove of trees but never a single tree in the middle of open ground. Keep away from wire fences and if there is no clump of trees around lie flat or crouch in a hollow.

If lightning strikes someone, apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, even if there are no signs of life, and wrap the victim in blankets to keep him warm.

It is advisable to keep this type of dill in the refrigerator.

PICKLING POINTERS

Use only pickling salt, not iodized salt. Iodized salt makes pickles cloudy.

White vinegar gives best color in pickles, but cider or malt vinegar adds flavor which is sometimes preferred.

White sugar gives a clearer color in pickles, but brown sugar adds an extra flavor which sometimes compensates for the darker color.

Ground spices darken pickles, which is why many recipes call for whole spices instead. Tie whole spices loosely in cheesecloth before adding to pickles, so that all possible flavor may be extracted before removing the spice bag. Always use fresh spices. (TNS)

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By JOSEPH and SUSAN WEARING

MOZART — Symphonies No. 29, K. 201; No. 33, K. 319; The Berlin Philharmonic; Herbert von Karajan, cond. (DDG stereo 139,002) — The delightful Symphony No. 29 was written for oboes, horns and strings. Only bassoons were added in the No. 33 work. It is surprising, therefore, to hear such a full sound from the orchestra. Karajan accomplishes this by scaling down the performance, using the widest range of dynamics in the "piano" level. The beginning of the A major symphony (No. 29) is superb. The "pianissimo" opening gives an atmosphere of suspended excitement. This gives way in the last movement ("allegro con spirito") to an ebullient mood that is ment ("allegro con spirito") to an ebullient mood that is straightforward, calm and unruffled, allowing the music to speak eloquently for itself.

VIVALDI — Gloria; Kyrie; Adele Addison, soprano; Saramae Endich, soprano; Florence Kopfeff, contralto; Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra, Robert Shaw, cond. (RCA VICTOR Mono LM-2883) — The Gloria is a glorious work and the short Kyrie, which is also included, is especially interesting. Florence Kopfeff's lovely tone and great conviction make her outstanding in the aria, Domine Deus. The Robert Shaw Chorale perform with excellent precision.

EARLY BAROQUE MUSIC OF ITALY — Choral and instrumental music by Monteverdi, Frescobaldi, Turini, and dalla Casa; New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenberg, director. (DECCA Stereo DL 79425) — This is yet another in the series of fine recordings by the New York Pro Musica. Their singing is pointed and vital; they avoid the artificiality and preciousness which I disliked in recent recordings of Monteverdi madrigals by the Polyphonic Ensemble of Rome. In fact, this is some of the best baroque singing I have heard. The recorder playing is also very fine. The viola da gamba is authentic, but sounds like an awkward instrument to play.

Collectors of Canadian coins usually include in their collections the decimal coinage of the Maritime provinces which consists of the Prince Edward Island Large Cent, the New Brunswick Half Cent, Large Cents and 5, 10 and 20 cent pieces, and the Nova Scotia Half Cents and Large Cents.

The most interesting coin of the Maritimes is the Prince Edward Island Cent. It is also unique in that it was the only government coin of that province, a single year issue dated 1871, the only coin issued in Canada with the royal title in English and the only coin of the Heaton mint at Birmingham without the "H" mint mark.

On the reverse of the P.E.I. cent is a large oak tree with three oak saplings representing the mother country, sheltering the three counties of the Island - Kings, Queens and Prince.

There was a total issue of one million P.E.I. cents and they are still quite common and obtainable from dealers for approximately a dollar.

Prior to the decimal coinage there was a large quantity of half penny and penny tokens circulating in the

1871 P.E.I. CENT

Maritimes. The most common being the Ships Colonies and Commerce half penny, which even today is only worth 25 cents.

FOOTNOTE: The United States $2 bill which was never popular is to be discontinued.

Eight new leases have been granted treasure-hunting firms to hunt for a reported $150 to $200 million worth of sunken gold and silver and other treasures off Florida's coast. The treasure ships sunk during violent hurricanes in the early 1700's.

Decanters, mugs, fans, buttons and all that

FROM A COLLECTOR. A SELECTION OF ARTICLES COLUMNS IN THE TIMES. Ryerson Press, 125 Pages, $4.75.

This series of articles from the TIMES makes a highly interesting little book.

I am not a collector and have never had a very active interest in such things as antique nutmeg graters or Italian egg frames, thus I approached the book with some diffidence.

I had read only one chapter before I was completely captivated—caught in a maze of old buttons, jewelry, marriage fans, decanters, drinking mugs, punch pots and all kinds of fascinating dishes, tobacco stoppers, servers and kitchen gadgets. The illustrations are wonderfully interesting and command far more than a percursor's glance.

There is, aside from its fascination, a deeper value to this slender volume. It introduces some rarely encountered words that should send one running at once to the nearest dictionary (shagreen is one) and tells the origin of others. The word "nicotine" comes from the name of Jean Nicot, who in the year 1559 while ambassador to Portugal sent seeds of tobacco to Catherine de Medici, Queen of France.

Names are recalled, perhaps with some difficulty; the Diaries of Pepys and Evelyn, the great Lord Nelson, Lord Clyde, better known as Sir Colin Campbell of the Crimea and The Thin Red Line.

The book will be a treasured possession for the experienced collector but possibly an even greater delight for the uninitiated amateur who will assuredly lose himself in an enchanted world of long ago, haunted by the shadows of gallant men and beautiful women against a background of gleaming silver and glowing jewels.

I do recommend it as profitable and fascinating reading.

By GLADYS TAYLOR

Last year about this time, I wrote in a "Jottings" column: "Faced with my usual pile of fall (Book) catalogues — and with little time to read them — I was sheer relief for me to receive, along with McClelland and Stewart's catalogue, a well-written resume of their whole Canadian list. . . I hope this might encourage other publishers to follow their excellent example . . ."

Needless to say I make no claim that my comment had any effect on the other Canadian publishers. But I am delighted to report that Doubleday has followed McClelland and Stewart's "excellent example" re - publicity. Actually Doubleday is doing even better for columnists because instead of a seasonal resume of their books, their new promotion director, Carolyne Hastings is getting out a monthly sheet called "The Advance" which not only discusses up-coming books but gives capsule anecdotes about honors won, reactions expressed or author's experiences concerning books previously published. Miss Hastings' "In Advance" is literally a life-saver to columnists such as myself and I not only hope she can keep up the sprightly and informative pace she has set herself but it's my secret dream that eventually every publisher will perform the same service for us news-hungry columnists.

If you'd like to spend a weekend back in the 1639 - 1649 decade why not plan a tour of "Sainte - Marie among the Hurons" during the final phase of its reconstruction at Midland, Ont? As all structures are scheduled for completion within months, publicist Bas Mason warns that this may be your last opportunity to see the craftsmen (mostly of French Canadian descent) recreating the community with seventeenth century French skills - broad axing, hand chipping, adzing and masonry.

Gwyn C. Ace has been appointed Quebec Sales Manager for W. J. "Age Ltd., Textbook Division. He will have a regional office in Montreal and it is hoped that by means of this appointment the company can do "an even better job of providing service to Gage textbook customers in the province" than in the past.

Frank Newfield one of Canada's outstanding book designers has been commissioned as design consultant for the Centennial publication "Alberta - a Natural History." The project was initiated by the Natural History and Learned Societies of the province and is being produced under the patronage of Northwestern Utilities; Canadian Western Natural Gas Company, Canadian Utilities and Northland Utilities Ltd. Editor in chief is Edmonton's Dr. W. George Hardy. The book will cost over $100,000 to produce and has been written by 24 leading authorities in the field of Alberta natural history.

BC's Bennett burns too bright for Paddy Sherman's dull tome

BENNETT by Paddy Sherman; 316 pages; McClelland and Stewart; $7.50.

The first thing the reviewer of this book has to decide is whether he is going to discuss it in terms of Paddy Sherman as a biographer or W.A.C. Bennett as the subject of a biography.

Paddy Sherman as a biographer is, in my opinion, a flop. He has written the most forgettable prose I have ever read.

Mr. Sherman may have failed as a biographer because he has learned too heavily on factual minutiae or has made no attempt to capture atmosphere, character or a vision of W.A.C. Bennett's niche in history. He may also have failed because he either doesn't really know the man Bennett or is ambivalent toward him. In other words, until he had decided whether he liked or despised the man, he shouldn't have written this book.

What, then, about the book as the history of the man country known as W.A.C. Bennett? Generations of Canadian students have hated history because it was presented as a series of dry - bone dates, wars and parliamentary acts. Sherman's biography of Bennett may well make all readers hate biography because it is little more than an endless series of dates, political battles, provincial legislation - and dollar transactions.

Only occasionally as one wades through the morass of forgettable details does the maverick Bennett personality emerge. We get only glimpses of the man who, periodically, sets all Canadians and a lot of Americans on their ears with his political derring-do - and who has probably waved his biggest red flag in the voter's bullring by calling an election in the wake of the less - than - promising results chalked up by the party-in-power in the recent Prince Edward Island, Quebec and Manitoba elections.

W.A.C. Bennett has just too much life and color to be caged in such a dull book as Paddy Sherman's. Perhaps Bennett himself will have to write the book which will finally capture the WAC - ism or Bennettism by which his era in history will undoubtedly be known.

In the meantime, if you are a persevering, and a willing-to-mentally-periscope reader you may learn a fair amount about B.C. and its development with skittish bridgegroin Bennett from this book. If not you had better wait for another book on this man - which there will surely be!

ROOM FOR ONE MORE by Sorche Nic Leodhas; Holt, Rinehart and Winston; $3.45.

It was a gloomy, though facetious, art teacher of my school days, who predicted, "You just haven't got the talent, Lassie. The most you'll ever draw will be a herring off a plate."

True as his prophecy proved to be, I never did become resigned to it. Certain illustrations in children's books have power to rouse in me not only admiration, but a passionate envy. I would give a great deal to have created them myself.

This is particularly true of ROOM FOR ONE MORE by Sorche Nic Leodhas. The illustrator, Nanny Hogrogian, has done a masterly job of peopling the purple-clad hills of Scotland with tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor. The effect could not be bettered. The thin, horizontal lines filling in the human figures, the criss-cross lines giving substance to the piper's tartan kilts as to the thatch on the roof of the welcoming cottage, all these are used to give reality to the mists that roll softly through the moors and valleys of the Highlands.

It appears that, by eulogizing the pictures first, I put the cart before the horse, this is not so. In my estimation this delightful book will be loved by young readers for the illustrations straggling over each and every

Hits back at Sunday psychology

I've only got two hands and I'm busy wringing them by Jane Goodsell, illustrated by Robert Day, Doubleday, New York; 161 pages; $4.00.

This book with the amusing title is about the author and her search for identity. It is not an autobiography in the sense that the events actually happened to her but it is of the modern American woman about whom so much is written these days. So much so that the modern American woman can hardly identify herself as the one whom writers, television producers and Sunday newspaper psychiatrists have been picking on for years. The writer has chosen this way of hitting back at them.

One can laugh heartily at the chapter on "Men, Women, Marriage and all that", where the author answers questions on marriage, American style. This is the type of humor she expresses:

Q. Do you feel that your role as a mother and homemaker is beneath you?

A. No, I feel its beyond me.

Q. Do you enjoy talking to each other?

A. Oh, we enjoy talking to each other all right. The problem is listening to each other.

THE USES OF SPACE - by Ben Bova; Holt, Rinehart and Winston; 144 pages; $4.00.

The Second World War, whether intended as such or not, provided a diversionary tactic for getting the attention of the people of North America off of unsolved war was over, the same problems - and more - were rampant. They have not been solved, and the attention of the people pouring off billions of dollars into a program to explore outer space which has been there for millennia and can wait awhile longer if necessary.

One would expect a book entitled "The Uses of Space", to be propaganda to justify the wilful abandonment of urgent domestic problems to tinker around in space. Actually, Ben Bova's book might be more appropriately entitled "The Uselessness of Space", for in this book about the moon and the planets he discusses the possible value to earthmen of having people actually reach a planet or at least the moon.

He shows how highly speculative a project it is and how the prospects of finding nothing of use are tremendous. Our present knowledge of the planets, he tells us, indicates that there is no life at least, no longer life there and that it is extremely unlikely that human beings could survive on them. Moreover, the time it would take to travel to them would be prohibitive.

Even on the moon man cannot live as there is no atmosphere and no surface water - it is not even known if there is subterranean water. Possibly, he suggests, underground housing could be devised so that people could settle on the moon, giving the surface, however, a wide berth.

Much of the book is taken up with the moon, going into detail about possible activity in connection with exploring and colonizing that stellite which has neither air nor water. Since the project is all imaginary, some of it may be glibly accepted, but other angles excite our ridicule. What will the inhabitants do for oxygen on the surface or under it-if there is no air? As for returning to earth for a month's vacation each year-apart from the undesirability of living such an unsettled life and apart from the expense of such a thing, the time consumed in the trip would make it impracticable. THE REDISCOVERY of Pitcairn by the Swallow in 1767 was a tale of misadventure. On August 22, 1766, Carteret sailed from Plymouth in company with Wallis in the Dolphin to search for Davis' Land - the southern continent. After four months together, the two ships separated in the western opening of the Straits of Magellan, and Wallis, believing that the Swallow had foundered, sailed on alone.

But Carteret limped on alone and, having searched fruitlessly for Davis' Land, he turned westward and rediscovered Pitcairn's Island, and then completed his voyage around the world.

And what became of Midshipman Pitcairn from whom the island now takes its name? Portlock reports: "This young gentleman was afterwards lost in the Aurora, in her passage to the East Indies; and his father, a major of the marines, fell in action at Bunker's Hill, and died in the arms of another of his sons".

Between 1767 and 1790 when Christian beached and burned the Bounty there is no record of Pitcairn's again being sighted, although it is known that Cook, looking for it, was only a few miles off when an outbreak of scurvy compelled him to turn to the north. In 1791, Edwards in the Pandora, searching for the Bounty, sighted and renamed Quiros La Encarnacion, Ducie Island, less than 300 miles to the east; but it was not until 1808 that Folger, an American sealer, found the new community.

We have the later and authentic authority of John Adams, the last of the mutineers and patriach of Pitcairn, who stated that a printing error had placed the island five degrees to the north of its true location. The island has had a long and romantic history and its stamps are among the most popular of the British Colonial issues.

NAPLES NAKED

A LAST LAMP BURNING by Gwynn Griffin; Longmans; 512 pages; $7.95.

Naples is the setting for the book of contemporary Italy. This is the Naples the visitor suspects exists while he glimpses the narrow, teeming, shop-fronted streets or looks back toward the brooding Vesuvius and the gleaming white villas.

The story goes into action with the death of the wealthy old Sandbrendetto and the effects of his will upon his immediate relatives, the poverty-stricken, neurotic, sadistic Colvapore family in their shambles of a castle, and particularly the heart-wrenching youngest member, 15-year-old military school student Galo, whose only ambition is to escape from the family.

Far from the palazzo, the story goes to the tenement of a bombed-out section of Naples, part of the Sanbrendetto estate, where the remainder of the characters struggle, pray, steal, murder, love die. The young swept up into Communism at the same time fighting off socialism, defying old traditions while watching for the annual miracle in the church. Then there are the old - Crivissa, seeking out an existence from her little shop, the mother figure to the neighborhood, and Quong, the ancient Chinese exile whose grandson is the new Italy, the calezo driver finding only comfort in the past. Between these two elements, the author deftly includes the genteel poor, the bumbling professor Beppo and his budding, sensitive daughter.

As a novel it is cohesive, but primarily it is a searching study of a new way of life in an old city. Griffin skillfully brings the people alive while at the same time is presenting an analytical treatise of a social revolution.

Bluebell Phillips, well-known to readers of this page as a reviewer, has published a book of poems and a book of children's stories within the past year. The latter is called THE LOST TEMPER AND OTHER STORIES ($2.90) while the book of verse is called THE BLADE AND THE BEAST ($1.00), subtitled "Poems about man and ideas, love and nature."

cruel, harsh, shocking in its realism, and the reader can only wonder all the while just how did the author come to know these Neapolitans so intimately, not only their physical existence but one would say their celebrations.

Everyone suffers in comfort

MENTFREYA by Victoria Holt; Doubleday; $4.75.

Once again the familiar story ingredients are put together with professional competence to result in an enjoyable, if run-of-the-mill, novel which will be a popular choice at libraries.

The castle is rambling, bleak, mysterious, set on the Cornish coast the family impoverished, but proud, the heir (Bevil) handsome if philandering, the heroine (Harriet) wealthy, unloved, but unwittingly beautiful when she dons a period costume for a masquerade ball and does the Cinderella bit. Instead of the governess hearing things astir in a vacant room, it is the young newlywed mistress who senses the affinity between herself and the tragic woman whose portrait hangs in the unused, ghost-filled wing, and she wonders if she is to be done in by the shadow-eyed governess, which is a switch.

The main plot is Harriet's and Bevil's, but there is the Mentfresya daughter, high spirited, arrogant, school friend of Harriet's who spies things up by running away with an actor. Harriet's father, austere, unloving towards his daughter, takes unto himself a showgirl wife and this ends in tragedy. But at least everyone suffers in comfort.

Suspense builds deftly with the tide moving into the danger where Harriet has been lured by the least suspected member of the menage.

The story is told in the first person and the author keeps Harriet firmly in hand.

Mentfresya may have a formula plot, but it is carefully written, with good descriptive passages, the characters probably typical of their Edwardian era. This is another Victoria Holt book which will not disappoint her many readers.

Pot shots at dream of space flight the uses of space, there is room for improvement on the earth, and this space-room, that is-is not being utilized. In the old days people had a saying, "First things first." Even today there are people who feel that the number one problem is not how to get to the moon but how to get back to earth with feet on the ground and eyes open to reality.

"The Uses of Space" by Ben Bova is not propaganda either for the space program or against it but is a book of facts about earth, moon, planets and space study.

To build nuclear plant

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction of a $106,000,000 nuclear power station on the St. Lawrence River near Trois-Rivières was announced in the Commons Friday by Mines Minister Pepin.

The 250,000-kilowatt plant will be built by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., the federal nuclear agency, under an agreement with Hydro-Quebec which will purchase the power production.

Mr. Pepin said the site is at Pointe aux Roches on the south shore between Beaucourt and Gentilly 10 miles downstream from Trois-Rivières. The plant will be known as the Gentilly power station.

Completion is scheduled for 1971. Hydro-Quebec will operate the station and will purchase it from Atomic Energy after it has demonstrated its reliability. Mr. Pepin said the purchase price, which he didn't reveal, would enable Hydro-Quebec to produce power at a cost equal to that of power produced by coal-burning thermal plants.

The arrangement is similar to that between Atomic Energy and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for two nuclear stations.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested Mr. Pepin was making the announcement now because a federal byelection campaign is going on in Nicolet-Yamaska, a seat held by the Conservatives until the resignation of Clement Vincent, the present Quebec minister of agriculture.

Mr. Pepin denied this. He said former Liberal Premier Jean Lesage reached agreement on the project in May, 1965, with Industry Minister Drury on the plant and agreement on the location was reached in May this year.

De Gaulle viewed as exploiter of weak US position

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

President de Gaulle of France appears to have deliberately exploited a weak and vulnerable United States diplomatic position to enhance his own popularity and prestige among anti-Western leaders of Southeast Asia.

There undoubtedly is a great deal of truth in his argument that the people of Asia are unlikely to bow to the power of the West or remain subservient to Western ideas and influence. The people of India and China made that amply clear in 1947 and 1949.

But that still leaves the question why de Gaulle, in his candid speech at Phnom Penh, Cambodia, should call on the U.S. to fix a timetable for withdrawal of its forces from South Viet Nam without pleading with North Viet Nam to halt the flow of its forces across the border. The tone of de Gaulle's speech would suggest the whole cause of the war must be blamed on American interference — a debatable point likely to delight Hanoi and further infuriate Washington which feels it is carrying the torch of freedom despite the lack of support and assistance from indifferent allies.

U.S. VS. UNITY
The de Gaulle argument could, of course be based on the contention that North and South Viet Nam really make only one country, populated by the same people, and that Americans, in crossing the Pacific, represent the only true foreign intruders.

GIVE NO WARNING
The niceties of diplomacy

Background to the news

Some British commentators immediately concluded that what de Gaulle hoped to achieve in Cambodia was not fresh hope of a Vietnamese settlement but public ovals to obliterate the poor reception he received in Djibouti, capital of colonial French Somaliland, where troops had to bludgeon rioting crowds clamoring for independence.

Probably as pertinent is the view that de Gaulle has shown far greater ability than some of his Western friends in getting along with the Communists and is seeking to recapture influence in an area France had dominated in the past.

Escapee had eye for angle

WINNIPEG (CP) — A yen for fancy living and a quick wit to work out the angles were the main assets that helped Kenneth Leishman become known as Winnipeg's Flying Bandit.

"He always had a good imagination," one acquaintance said of the prematurely bald 34-year-old who is among 10 men who escaped from Manitoba's provincial jail at Headingley Thursday night.

Leishman, always possessing a flair for good clothes and shiny cars, was being held at the jail to await his trial this month on a charge of theft and conspiracy in the $983,000 gold bullion robbery from Winnipeg's International Airport March 1.

Along with the conspiracy charge Leishman was also being held as a parole violator—a charge police laid when he trailed ended for him in Vancouver less than two weeks after the daring gold robbery was pulled.

Leishman first made headlines in 1958 when he was arrested in Toronto and charged with a bank robbery and an attempted bank robbery. The two charges netted him 12 years in prison but the evidence that came out of his trial spoke for his imagination and daring.

CAN FLY PLANE

An experienced private pilot, Leishman boarded a commercial airliner in Winnipeg on a December day in 1957 and flew to Toronto.

Always immaculately dressed, he went to a bank in the business section. Posing as a businessman looking for a loan, he held up the bank to the tune of $10,000.

Once outside, he jumped into a rented car, drove to the airport and flew back to Winnipeg with the loot. At the airport, his late-model Cadillac was waiting.

While Toronto police were baffled by the lack of leads in the robbery, Leishman was making plans for his second trip in March, 1958.

He followed a similar pattern on the second try but fell short of success when a woman, a clergyman and two bank employees battered him into submission when he panicked during the robbery.

While serving time in Stony Mountain Penitentiary, 20 miles north of Winnipeg, Leishman became a "model prisoner."

WINS FRIENDS
Always a smooth talker and quick to make friends, Leishman became chairman of the prison's class on the theme: "How to make friends and influence people."

About 3½ years after he was sentenced, Leishman walked out from behind the tall gates of Stony Mountain with the approval of the parole board in 1961.

Following his release Leishman returned to being a salesman of everything from pots and pans to aluminum siding. With his business contacts renewed once again, he was on his way to success he enjoyed previously.

Then suddenly 12 gold bars were whisked away from the International Airport March 1. Twelve days later the trail led to Vancouver where Leishman was picked up and held for parole violation. Although he didn't have any gold bullion in his possession, he did have an airline ticket for Hong Kong and the conspiracy and theft charges followed.

Four other men also have been committed for trial on various charges in connection with the theft, in which two men posing as airline cargo crew signed forged documents for a shipment of bullion bound from a Northern Ontario mine to the mint in Ottawa. All the gold has been recovered.

Star performers are a charming couple

By CLAUDE LABRECQUE
(Record staff reporter)

AYER'S CLIFF — Mr. and Mrs. Andre Prince, otherwise known as the Hildays Upside Down Unicorny Aerial Act proved to be as simple and refreshing in private as they are exciting and inaccessible while performing.

This hold-your-breath-they're-gonna-fall aerial performers were the main grandstand attraction at the Ayer's Cliff fair where they doubled as a cyclist duo, and played the heights as well.

In private, Hilda, the British-bred brunette and wife of Andre Prince, the Bordeaux-born fiftieth a secret zeal for cycling, are surprisingly quiet and easy to meet.

As a matter of easy fact home towners Hilda and Andre would as soon as not strike up a conversation on the pleasure they derive in "whipping up a gouter" as talk of the intricacies of aerial act confections.

Hilda and Andre came over to North America from their respective countries in 1947 with the Ringling Bros. Circus. Hilda was an aerial act specialist, and had as she says "grown up in the business" with her family, the Alexanders, Andre on the other hand had "pushed himself into the business" starting first as a simple cyclist, then improvising an artificial wheelman's act, when he was picked up for his eye-catching skills in a Bordeaux theatre by Ringling.

After meeting in the U.S., Hilda and Andre married and moulded their individual specialties into what has proven to be a successful mixture of cycling and high wire.

From then on they were an exclusive act and could move around the country on their own without having to travel with a show. The constant travelling, one day at Ayer's Cliff the next day in New York, and the next possibly, Nashville, Tennessee, doesn't cramp their style though. "I was born in a suit case," says Hilda with a laugh, and "I was born in a trunk," adds Andre.

The act, no matter how easy their talk about it, is a feat. Try riding a unicycle upside down while supporting from one's jaws the twisting acrobatics of a 130-pound woman.

But it isn't all work admits Hilda. "When we get a warm and receptive audience, no matter how uncertain or bad we feel, we always manage to make a good show of it."

For two or three months out of the year, the Hildays retire to their home in Sarasota, Florida and live like normal people. Hilda says that it is a great change to sew and cook and swim like everybody. "But we must keep in shape" she says. "We work out for a few hours every day." The Hildays have a large backyard and some aerial equipment there. "So Andre goes out back once in a while and hangs by his teeth," she laughs.

After a few months of this normal living the Hildays get restless and are anxious to get back to showbusiness. When they get too old for the act, they dream of having a small

Grass hockey series is won by Cookshire

COOKSHIRE — A grass hockey tournament, with rules the same as hockey, using a ball instead of puck and grass surface instead of ice, was played recently in Cookshire. The Cookshire team coached by Steve Fraser defeated a Huntingville team coached by Reg. Aulis. The tournament was the best two out of three games. Huntingville won the first game, 4-1. Allan Bradley scored two for the victors; singles going to Robert McVetty and Howard Spading. Steve Fraser replied for Cookshire's lone tally.

Cookshire came from behind, 3-0 in the second period of the second game, to nip Huntingville 5-4 in overtime, with Joel Waldron scoring the winning goal at 0:20 of the second overtime period. Brian Rolfe scored three times in the third period to lead Cookshire's attack. Joel Waldron scored Cookshire's other tally in the second period. Reg. Aulis scored twice for Huntingville. Allan Bradley and Robert McVetty singles in a losing cause.

In the deciding game Steve Fraser and Warren Fraser led Cookshire offensively with two goals apiece. The final goal for Cookshire was scored by Fraser Bellam. Reg. Aulis with two and Allan Bradley, with one, completed the scoring for Huntingville.

Players on the two teams are as follows: Huntingville, Reg. Aulis, Frank Tarte, Allan Bradley, Ross Aulis, Doug Davis, Howard Spading, Barry Minnaugh, David Luce and Robert McVetty. Cookshire, Steve Fraser, Warren Fraser, Fraser Bellam, Brian Rolfe, Brian Ord, Joel Waldron, Almon Pope, Liles Bellam and Bruce Rolfe.

NORTH HATLEY—The High School Memorial Scholarship Committee met at the school, on August 22, to discuss the awarding of scholarships for the school term 1965-66.

Peter Vaughan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vaughan, won the $200 scholarship, and the $50 Citizenship Award went to Faye Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wilson. Peter is entering Bishop's University, and Faye is continuing her studies in Ontario, and plans to train for a nurse.

Mrs. C. Smith was elected chairman for the next term, and Mrs. G. E. Bennett will be secretary-treasurer.

GENERAL NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Daintrey have returned home from a visit with their daughter, Catherine, Mrs. Brock McLaren, Mr. McLaren and son, Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hartwell and two daughters, formerly of Canterbury, are now residing in North Hatley.

Mr. Randolph Auger, Hartford, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. G. Morton and three children, Burlington, Ont., are vacationing at the homes of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Auger, and of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clark. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Karon, Salem, Mass., were weekend guests at the same homes.

Legion L.A. elects officers at Derby Line

DERBY LINE — Mrs. Gertrude Stevens, and Mrs. Harriet Downing were hostesses for the August meeting of Foster County Auxiliary Unit of the American Legion meeting held at the home of Mrs. Stevens.

The report of the nominating committee was heard. Officers elected were: First and second vice - presidents, Mrs. Alberta Darby and Mrs. Margaret Hunt; secretary, Mrs. Eileen Berry; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Downing; Sgt. - at - arms, Mrs. Gertrude Stevens; chaplain, Mrs. Effie Gray; historian, Mrs. Jan Palm; flowers and cards, Mrs. Gertrude Stevens.

A project to raise money was discussed and will be brought up again at another meeting.

The communications included a thank you note from Edwin Earle in appreciation of flowers for the Baxter Park at the war memorial.

The next meeting date and place, will be announced, when the installation of officers will take place. Although a president was not elected, it is expected one will be named before the installation date.

Serving of refreshments by Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Downing brought the evening to a close.

Tree, planting committee is to complete work

DERBY LINE — A meeting of the special committee on trees and planting was held recently at the home of the chairman, Edwin Earle. Several recommendations were discussed and tentative plans made. It is hoped that more plantings can be made this fall and in the spring a continuation of flower gardens be put in. Anyone having bulbs to donate for this purpose please give them to Mr. Earle.

It was strongly recommended that the old grandstand at Baxter Park be removed as soon as possible. When this space is cleared three Colorado Blue Spruce will be set in. Also, at the southwest corner of the park, beyond the play area, brush and scrub trees are to be cleared and a variety of trees will be planted.

The area near the cemetery fence and the Baxter Park road will be greatly improved with a row of flowering bushes and shrubs with lilac bushes at the gates.

The lawn in front of the Village hall is in need of improvement and it was suggested that plantings of ground hemlocks be used here.

Most of the new trees already planted to replace those that have had to be destroyed apparently are doing very well. However, a few have died and will have to be replaced with new plantings. Several people have asked for trees to be planted on specific lots and, as soon as the time is right, the committee will make every effort to see that this is accomplished.

Hunting and fishing in the ET

By NORM NICHOLL

WITH THE LABOR DAY WEEKEND now with us it gives us the sad feeling that summer is past and Fall is fast approaching. It must be said that we can look forward to another month of fishing except for Rainbow, Brown and Specked trout which close on September 18. In looking back over the summer two sad events happened with the passing of Phil Fergusson and Harold Sutton. Both were active conservationists. Phil Fergusson was a hard worker for the Lake Massawippi Club with his efforts on the membership committee, which sold many tickets through his pushing members to get out and sell the Club. Harold Sutton was well known in the area for many years as both an ardent fisherman and his particular interest in the Romaine Club. Both members will be missed by the Clubs they were members in.

ANOTHER BULLETIN on the standing of the Molson Tournament has been released. The Rouyn-Noranda Hunting & Fishing Association has taken the lead in the 13th Annual Molson Tournament, the Club Amateur Chasse & Pêche Donnacona holds second spot and the Association Chasse & Pêche Martin-Pecheur holds third place. To date the standings are: District "A" Rouyn-Noranda Hunting & Fishing Association; "B" Club Amateur Chasse & Pêche Donnacona; "C" Association de Chasse & Pêche Martin-Pecheur; "D" Club de Chasse & Pêche de Schefferville; "E" Association de Chasse & Pêche de Montmagny-Lislet; "F" Association Chasse & Pêche du Lac Mégantic; "G" Memphremagog Conservation Association; "H" Club Sportif des Pecheurs du Lac St. Francois; "I" Association Recreative Gatineau, section de Chasse et Pêche; "J" Association Chasse & Pêche St. Gabriel de Brandon; "K" Lake St. Louis Anglers Inc.

SOME OF THE INDIVIDUAL high scores in the Tournament are: Adrien Pruneau, Memphremagog Conservation Club with a 7 lb. 5 oz. lake whitefish; Hugo Lapenna, Stanstead County F & G Club; with a 13 pound rainbow; Leslie Bullock, Stanstead County F & G Club with a 11 lb. 6 oz. brown trout; Jean Belanger of the Association de Chasse et Pêche Lac Mégantic captured a 14 lb. 1 oz. landlocked salmon in Lac Mégantic with a spinning reel and live bait. The fish was weighed in at Laporte's Sport Shop. For the second year the Molson Fishing Club and Laval Conservation Association invite moose and deer hunters to attend a reunion this coming Wednesday September 7th at the Laval Sports Centre, St. Vincent de Paul. An interesting programme has been lined up which will include firearm and ammunition displays, along with guest speakers and films.

THE INFRACTION list for May, 1966 shows that the Protection Branch prosecuted 646 infractions and added $8,885 to the pot. The infractions listed were: Moose: 14, Deer: 3, Fur-Bearing Animals: 10; Part-ridge: 1; Migratory Birds: 68; Miscellaneous: 16; Fishing: 536 for 646. The eleven districts show the following: Abitibi: 4 for $20; Chicoutimi: 16 for $330; Gaspe: 17 for $190; Hull: 71 for $640; Quebec: 72 for $10; Rimouski: 57 for $990; Sept-Isles: 7 for $95; Témiscamingue: 75 for $410; Trois-Rivières: 40 for $355; Montreal: 136 for $3,645; Sherbrooke: Fur Bearing Animals: 1; Miscellaneous: 2; Fishing: 193 for 201 offenses netting $1,400.

LAKE ELGIN FISH & GAME CLUB next Sunday, September 11th, will be holding their second Chicken Shoot at the Lake. There will be cash prizes and 2 (row) boats, and other prizes for the winners of the shoot. Here's a chance for the sharpshooters of the area to test their eyes.

The Club had a very good turn out for the Provincial armoured last weekend with some of the Police forces in the area having their weapons checked out.

IT MIGHT BE WELL advised for the R.C.M.P. to check out water skiing on the Tomifobia River from the lake to bridge on the road from Massawippi to Ayer's Cliff. The river is narrow and the channel narrower. On a number of occasions small boats have been endangered by water-skiers using the river to ski into the Lake.

Clemente hits 2,000

Roberto Clemente's three-run homer against Chicago Cubs Friday was provoking in more ways than one.

It was Clemente's 2,000th major league hit. It was also his 23rd homer, tying his best season - long effort in that department. And it gave Roberto 101 runs batted in, marking the first time in his 12-year career he's topped 100.

But most important, the fifth-inning shot boosted Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-3 victory and sole

Preferred Pace features weekend card at Sherbrooke Racing Club $4,900 in purses up for grabs

A Preferred Pace Sunday evening for a purse of $500 will headline the weekend card at the Sherbrooke Race Track. Five sidewheelers are listed to start in the main event. This evening a Pace for a $350 purse, also with five starters, in the main feature on the card.

A total of $4,900 will be at stake in the two cards with $2,475 up for grabs this evening while Sunday night the drivers will be battling for the major share of $2,425.

A shortage of entries has reduced the number of starters in several of the classes. To night only two dashes have eight starters with seven in two and others having five and six. Sunday it is about the same thing with eight going to the wire in the first and tenth with the others varying.

In the main event Sunday White Flame, Rhythm Man, The Great Spencer, Juliana Herbert and Santa Glory complete the class. White Flame, with Ray Roberge driving, has already been timed in 2:07 1/5 and with the pole position will be tough.

Buster Hickins with The Great Spencer has a record of 2:06 3/5 while Poirier's Juliana Herbert and Fabi's Santa Glory have identical marks of 2:07 3/5. O'Meara's Rhythm Man has a time of 2:05 2/5 for the current season and could supply plenty of opposition for the field.

This evening Mondou's Harry Johnston has drawn the fifth spot in the Preferred Pace while Henrie Lepage with Bonanza Pick has the pole. Amee Beaudoin and his unpredictable Rhythm Mac has the second slot and anything could happen.

Shooting Song and Duchess Day C are strangers to the field but should be able to provide plenty of opposition to the favorites. This should turn into a real battle before the winner. On Sunday evening there is crosses the wire, one repeat in the third and sixth. This was a must since

SEASON CHAMPIONS — Armstrong Cork recently won the championship of the regular season in the O'Keefe Commercial League. Eskie offence raps Lions 13-6

EDMONTON (CP) — Randy Derbow was given the reins of authority Friday night and, after one full game as a quarterback, the nimble youngster proved he had all the essentials to handle the job fulltime.

He scored both touchdowns and directed a masterful ground offensive as Edmonton Eskimos rapped British Columbia Lions 13-6 for their third successive Western Football Conference victory.

Manhandled by Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers in their first two starts, the Eskimos now share the lead with the Roughriders and Blue Bombers. Each club has four wins but Edmonton has played one more game.

Kerbow's touchdowns, in the second and third quarters, came on identical one-yard plunges set up by long, diversified marches. Tommy-Joe Coffey, who missed both converts, added the other point late in the first half on a 35-yard field goal attempt that went wide. Bill Lasseter conceded the point.

Joe Kapp collected British Columbia's touch down, also from one yard out, as the Lions failed to escape the league cellar they share with Calgary Stampeders.

GUN ENDS THREAT

The Lions threatened late in the game but the sound on the Edmonton 20 with full-back Bill Munsey corralled by linebacker Greenard poles.

Kapp scored with less than three minutes remaining and a penalty for blocking from the rear ended Edmonton's bid to run out the clock.

Taking over at the Lions' 37, Kapp threw to Larry Elmes, and Billy Moore to reach the Edmonton 28 with one play remaining. Kapp's flip to Munsey near the right sideline looked dangerous until Poles intercepted the hard-running fullback.

Poles was replacing Jim Stinnette, who suffered a torn Achilles tendon earlier in the game. Edmonton marched 95 yards in six plays for its first touchdown. Jim Thomas and Trent Walters sparked the running game and Kerbow fired passes to Willie Shine and Coffey to move the ball to the three.

The Eskimo scored immediately after the second-half kickoff. They moved from their 26 to the B.C. eight in eight plays. Thomas and Butch Pressley smashed to the one and Kerbow slid over left guard for the score.

A roughing penalty set up the B.C. touchdown. The penalty moved the ball to the Eskimo 40 and Kapp scored five plays later.

Thomas, leading ground-gainer in the West paced the Eskimo attack with 122 yards in 16 carries. Pressley rambled for 55 in 12 and Walters for 36 in five as Edmonton picked up 239 yards on the ground.

Kerbow completed 10 of 17 passes for 144 yards as Edmonton picked up 22 first downs. Kapp had 14 passes for 144 yards as Edmonton picked up 22 first downs. Kapp had 14 completions in 21 attempts for 255 yards. The Lions added 97 yards, Munsey four for 58.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins outscored New York Yankees 8-5. California Angels edged Washington Senators 6-5 and Kansas City trimmed Boston 5-1.

The Indians jumped on Joe Sparr for five runs in the first inning of the nightcap but Detroit fought back, finally tying it in the sixth. Stanley singled in the 10th and scored the go-ahead run on Jim Northrup's force-out grounder.

Stu Miller, Baltimore's usually brilliant relief specialist, hit Al Weis and Tommie Agee with pitches in the 11th inning, forcing across the winning run. Tom McCraw opened the 11th with a double and Don Buford drew an intentional walk before Miller's control disappeared.

Earl Battey's three-run double in the first inning and pitcher Jim Grant's tiebreaking single in the fourth sparked the Twins to their fourth straight victory.

Joe Adcock smacked a two-run pinch hit homer in the eighth, lifting the Angels past Washington. Bobby Knoop delivered three California runs with a pair of triples and a homer. The Athletics climbed past Boston into ninth place behind the six-hit pitching of Lew Krausse. Danny Cater knocked in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly, and Phil Roof hit a bases-empty homer.

By TED ANDERSON

Another season for the Sher-Lenn Little League is quickly drawing to a close, and there is no doubt that this has been the most successful venture that the league has enjoyed.

To become Provincial Champions has always been the ambition of the league, and it was finally accomplished.

It must be said that the league had the best All-Star team this year, chosen to represent us in provincial competition.

Amee Roy blended the crew into a fighting unit, and certainly brought results, though beaten in Victoria, they won many, many friends through their charm.

Ability of the youngsters was shown not in the first game, but rather in the second, against Edmonton. One can imagine the tension and pressure to which the youngsters were subjected.

It was an exciting and interesting trip for all, and too much cannot be said in praise for the work that Coach Roy and Manager Ed Anderson had done out West.

Red Sox and Tigers are at it again. The two teams, finishing one-two in the final league standings and also in opposition to each other last year, now battle today and tomorrow for the playoff championship.

The first game is underway this afternoon, with the second slated for tomorrow. Should a third match be necessary in this final, it will be played on Labor Day.

Stars this week go to Denis Dussault, Roger Bourgault and Dewey Raban.

LAKERS AT HOME SUNDAY

AYER'S CLIFF—(Staff)—Sunday is a special day for the Ayer's Cliff Lakers.

Tomorrow the Lakers will be presented with their trophy earned in winning the Massawippi Valley Baseball League title, in a ceremony during the fifth game of the semi-finals with Magog.

Sunday should be an extra-special day for the Lakers.

According to Stan Holmes, coach of the champions, the Ayer's Cliff squad would like to celebrate it by defeating Magog in the fifth game of the best-of-seven series.

The Magog crew descends upon the Lakers in the latter's field tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m., and should a sixth game be necessary to decide the finalists, it will be played in Magog, Labor Day.

Casper a good bet at 4-1; behind Nagle by one stroke

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Those four-to-one odds the gamblers put on Bill Casper to win the $200,000 world championship golf tournament looked like a good bet today for those who backed the American.

Casper strode into the final round of the 72-hole, medal-play tournament with 216 shots, one behind Kel Nagle of Australia, who was leading the field.

Nagle held his lead Friday by shooting a par 73 over the 7,037 yard Royal Birkdale course. Casper, the U.S. Open champion, fired a four-under-par 69 to leap back into contention.

Bert Yancey, of the U.S., who had a 68 Thursday, shot a 76 for 217 which put him two shots off the pace.

DEVLIN TIES YANCEY

Bruce Devlin of Australia also had 217. At 218 were Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, Peter Thomson of Australia, Terry Dill of Mule Shot, Tex., and Neil Coles of England.

Equalling par of 219 for the 54-hole route were Colin Johnston and Barry Coxon of Australia, and Bob Charles the left hander from New Zealand.

Only two Canadians of nine were still in contention, Moe Norman, from Gilford, Ont., was in a six-way tie at 225. He shot 77 Friday to go with earlier rounds of 75 and 73.

Wilt Homenuik of Winnipeg, the Canadian PGA champion in 1965, shared 229 with nine other players. He had 80 Friday after
