BY-LAW CALLING FOR EXPENDITURE OF $20,000 Rumors Of Massacres Denied By Bulgarian Government

Motion Re Power Was Withdrawn By The Council

Ald. Lacombe Points Out Necessity of By-Law to Equip New Fire and Police Headquarters—Sheds and Stables to Be Built in Rear of Headquarters at Cost of $9,000—Demolishing of Former Headquarters to Cost $1,000—Ald. Houlihan Suggests New Scales and New Police Patrol—Law Regarding Closing of Stores at Appointed Time to Be Investigated—Federal Street Residents Present Petition—Ald. Houlihan Suggests More Rigid Observance of Traffic Laws.

THE motion passed at the recent meeting of the City Council giving the Southern Canada Power Company authority to sell power, but not light, to any new industries which they might bring into the city, was withdrawn from the minutes of the meeting prior to their adoption by the City Council last evening, as a result of a motion made by Alderman Langis and seconded by Alderman Bourque. The sponsors of the motion explained that owing to the fact that the city and Southern Canada Power Company are about to appear before the courts in connection with certain difficulties, they thought it to be unwise for the city to grant this favor at the present time.

Among other important matters which came before the municipal body, was the notice given by Alderman Lacombe, chairman of the Fire Committee, that a new by-law in connection with the equipping of the new police and fire headquarters would be drawn up. Recent press comments regarding electric light charges in the city as compared with other Canadian cities brought forth a protest from Ald. Newton, chairman of the Gas and Electric Committee, who stated that Sherbrooke compared favorably with other places regarding electric rates.

Several other minor matters were brought forth and discussed by the City Fathers at the meeting which had been adjourned from Monday evening.

DISCUSSION IN CONNECTION WITH PROPOSED BY-LAW

The only discussion of the evening resulted from the notice of motion by Alderman Lacombe of a new by-law calling for an expenditure of $20,000 for equipment of new police and fire headquarters, $9,000 of which is to be used for the erection of sheds and stables in the rear of the headquarters.

All the aldermen were in favor of the proposed by-law to a certain extent, but did not all agree thoroughly on certain matters in connection with it. In proposing the new by-law Alderman Lacombe remarked that of the amount asked for in the by-law, $1,000 would be required for the demolition of the old headquarters.

Alderman Tetrault stated that he was in favor of the by-law, and thought the money very necessary. The chairman of the finance committee remarked that the city now possessed a fine new building for its firemen and policemen, but that it would be necessary to equip and furnish this building accordingly.

Alderman Langis stated that he had objections to the proposed by-law as he thought it was necessary in order to equip the new headquarters in a satisfactory manner. Alderman Langis remarked that by having headquarters well furnished in every way it might be possible to close one or two of the other stations now in operation.

Alderman Forest remarked that he was in favor of the by-law, but thought that it would be advisable to close some of the other fire stations.

Objected to Manner of Transporting Prisoners.

Alderman Houlihan, chairman of the police committee, was also in favor of the new by-law, and suggested that with this new by-law a new police patrol could be secured. "It is disgraceful how we carry prisoners through the streets," he said. This new patrol could also be used as an ambulance for poor people. The chairman of the police committee remarked that this new by-law was necessary as the city would have to buy new public scales, and they would have to pay for the demolishing of old police headquarters.

Alderman Loranger, the East Sherbrooke ward representative, was opposed to the closing of number two and three stations, which are the two stations which are being considered in this connection. Ald. Loranger remarked that East Sherbrooke, with its two hospitals, would be in a rather dangerous position if these two stations were closed.

Following the opinion given on the matter by the different aldermen, the motion of Alderman Lacombe was carried, all aldermen agreeing that a notice of a new by-law be given.

Ald. Newton Criticizes Press Reports.

Alderman Newton referred to a recent editorial appearing in the local press in which it was stated that the electric rate in the city was higher than that of other Canadian cities, especially Westmount.

Alderman Newton said that he did not think this was the case, and remarked that in his mind the public

THIRTY-EIGHT SEAMEN LOST THEIR LIVES

Japanese Ship Sank Under Eyes of Two Shiploads of Humanity Unable to Help Crew.

(Associated Press Despatch)
NEW YORK, April 22.—Thirty-eight deep-sea men, the entire crew of the Japanese steel freighter Raifuku Maru, were drowned in the raging North Atlantic seas yesterday when their ship sank under the eyes of two shiploads of humanity unable to help them.

The Cunarder Tuscania and the Homeric, of White Star Line, futilely stood by as the seas gulped men and boat. A wall went up from the helpless spectators as the stricken ship up-ended her stern and plunged beneath the waves.

WERE UNABLE TO LAUNCH LIFEBOATS

(Associated Press Despatch)
NEW YORK, April 22.—The White Star liner Homeric was steaming toward New York today with details of the death of thirty-eight Japanese seamen lost when the freighter Raifuku Maru foundered in huge seas 180 miles southeast of Halifax, as seven ships raced to the rescue. The Homeric, answering desperate radio messages of the Japanese vessel early yesterday, altered her course and was close to the vessel as she capsized and sank. The heavy seas, however, made it impossible for the liner to launch her lifeboats and those of the freighter had been smashed by the waves. Officers and passengers were forced to look on helplessly as the Atlantic engulfed the freighter's crew.

LAGOS, Nigeria, April 22.—Concluding his memorable visit to Nigeria, during which he penetrated far into the interior and received the native chiefs, the Prince of Wales left Lagos aboard the cruiser Repulse this morning in continuation of his southern voyage. He was enthusiastically cheered by a large crowd upon his departure. The Prince found his trip through Nigeria interesting and enjoyable, despite the great heat encountered.

Yesterday he again engaged in polo, playing six chukkas and scoring a goal for his side. There was an impressive military display as he boarded the Repulse.

New French Government Given Confidence Vote After Lengthy Debate Featured By Bitter Personal Attacks On Caillaux

Tactics of Opposition in Attacking Inclusion of Caillaux in Ministry Are Believed to Have Assured Victory of Government, as Both Radicals and Socialists Were Dissatisfied With Painleve's Announced Determination of Retaining French Embassy at Vatican.

(Associated Press Despatch)
PARIS, April 22.—Nine hours of debate featured by bitter personal attacks on Joseph Caillaux, lately returned from exile and now Minister of Finance, preceded the vote in the Chamber of Deputies last night on the declaration of policy of the new cabinet. At the conclusion of the verbal fireworks, Premier Painleve and his colleagues were voted the confidence of the Chamber, 304 to 218. The tactics of the opposition in attacking the inclusion of Caillaux in the ministry are believed to have assured the victory of the government, as both the radicals and the socialists were dissatisfied with M. Painleve's announced determination of retaining the French embassy at the Vatican.

M. Blum, the Socialist leader, notably said that when he entered the Chamber session he had doubts, but he heard the attacks directed at Caillaux these doubts were removed.

"We congratulate M. Painleve for having summoned Caillaux," M. Blum continued, "and since he is attacked for having done so, we give him our votes. The cartel continues."

The Socialists' 140 votes went solidly for the government.

M. Caillaux's appearance before the Chamber's financial committee on Friday is awaited with intense interest. He will on that occasion review the financial situation, and it is understood he will give some indication as to the nature of his first efforts to restore the situation of the treasury, notably on the subject of repayment of the short-term notes falling due this year.

The government today is introducing a bill for two provisional votes on account to pay the current expenses of government for May and June, as the budget for the year has not yet been passed. The financial committee is expected to report on the provisional appropriations this afternoon so the Chamber can begin debating them tomorrow.

Reports Of Troubles In Bulgaria Of Such A Character As To Preclude Satisfactory Estimate Of Situation—Rumors Are Denied

There Are No Means of Checking Up Rumors Emanating from Such Doubtful Centres as Vienna and Belgrade, Which Are Sending Out Reports of Massacres, Wholesale Executions and Fighting, With Enormous Numbers of Casualties.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, April 22.—The information reaching London regarding the troubles in Bulgaria is of such a character as to preclude a satisfactory estimate of the situation.

The censorship established under the state of martial law apparently is preventing independent observers from recording developments, and at the same time there are no means of checking up the rumors emanating from such doubtful centres as Vienna and Belgrade, which are sending out reports of massacres, wholesale executions and fighting, with enormous numbers of casualties.

These stories are denied by the Bulgarian Government. The London newspapers mostly accept the view that the Bulgarian Government is engaged in quelling a desperate communist rebellion, initiated and fostered from Moscow.

The British Government is unofficially represented to favor Bulgaria's request to the Allied Council of Ambassadors for permission to increase her army by ten thousand men, and the Daily Telegraph says a decision in accordance with Bulgaria's wishes will be taken today.

PARLIAMENT IN SESSION

(Associated Press Despatch)
SOFIA, April 22.—Parliament met yesterday afternoon. The session will be a short one as the business on the agenda is not important. The attention of Bulgaria at present is being centred on the Allied capitals and the Council of Ambassadors in Paris in an endeavor to ascertain whether Bulgaria is to be allowed her request temporarily to increase the armed forces of the country.

MEMBERS OF REVOLUTIONARY CLUB ARRESTED

BERLIN, April 22.—Thirty-eight Bulgarian students, alleged to be members of a revolutionary Communist club, were arrested here yesterday. The club was founded a few months ago and is suspected of being indirectly connected with the revolutionary situation in Bulgaria.

BUDGET DEBATE IS CONTINUED IN COMMONS; RAYMOND CRITICIZES FORMER MINISTER OF FINANCE

Liberal Member for Brantford Declared that Sir Henry Drayton Had in the Course of His Budget Speech Stated that There Was a Deficit of $110,000,000 Instead of a Surplus of Over $2,000,000, But the Conservative Financial Critic Had Moved an Amendment Suggesting a Reduction in Taxation.

(Associated Press Despatch)
OTTAWA, Ont., April 22.—H. Marler, Liberal member for St. Lawrence-St. George (Montreal), will this afternoon resume the debate on the budget when the House of Commons reassembles. In the Commons, yesterday, the following members took part in the budget debate: J. F. White, Conservative, London; W. G. Raymond, Liberal, Brantford; John Morrison, Progressive, Weyburn; A. M. Deschene, Liberal, Montmagny; W. F. MacLean, Conservative, East York, and J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg.

The Senate disposed of routine business.

CONTENDS FARM IMPLEMENTS COST MORE THAN IN 1921

(Associated Press Despatch)
OTTAWA, April 22.—The debate on the budget was continued in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by J. F. White (Conservative, London). Mr. White declared that the acting minister of finance, in presenting his statement, showed "too much anxiety to claim a surplus."

The Government had not "produced a financial statement that could be clearly understood by the people," Mr. White said. Members of the House had professed their inability fully to understand it, and, if they could not do so, how could the taxpayers be expected to arrive at any definite conclusion?

The statement delivered was "partial and beclouded." It had not taken into consideration, in the computation of the alleged surplus, the debts of our National Railways.

Mr. White, however, expressed the opinion that had our National Railways shown a profit they would have been included in the budget statement, with a view to showing a surplus, instead of being regarded in the manner in which they had.

The iron and steel industry in Canada, said Mr. White, had been persecuted by tariff changes as no other industry had. The increased duty on slack coal would affect iron and steel industries considerably, without offering any compensating changes in the tariff for the benefit of those industries.

Should Hang Out Welcome Sign.
Mr. White thought that Canada should "hang out a welcome sign" to repatriated Canadians, restore the three-months' residence clause, and not compel a Canadian who wished to regain his citizenship to go through a five-year probation as if he were a foreigner. He was obviously a more desirable citizen than those who knew nothing of Canadian life.

Mr. White contended that agricultural implements cost more now than they did in 1921, in spite of reductions in taxation.

The member for London was opposed to the export of electric power. He considered that this was just another form of exporting raw material. It had been said by authorities that there would be a shortage of power for Canadian industries in two years. The Government should permit the issue of only short-term contracts for electric power, and as soon as possible arrange to revoke all contracts as they expired.

W. G. Raymond (Liberal, Brantford), said that, trying to take an impartial view of the budget, he had reached the conclusion that the acting minister of finance was to be congratulated on it. With customs and other revenue falling, many people had predicted a deficit in the budget. Instead, there had been a surplus. He believed that Mr. Robb's presentation of the country's finances was a fair one, and he based his belief on the exercise of his own judgment and on his confidence in the honesty and integrity of the acting minister of finance.

Criticizes Sir Henry Drayton.
The attempt to "cast aspersions" on that gentleman was deplorable, Sir Henry Drayton had said in the House that men were "doing time" for similar methods of financing. That statement by the ex-minister of finance had passed unchallenged in the House, perhaps because most members did not suppose that Sir Henry meant it to be taken seriously. Sir Henry sometimes liked his little joke. But the ex-minister of finance ought to have remembered that he was not speaking to a limited circle of fellow-members of the House. To those in the galleries it must have been very shocking to hear a responsible statesman coolly imply that the business of Canada was being run by men who were no better than felons and forgers. The possibility of a visitor from another country going away from the parliamentary galleries with such an impression had been overlooked by Sir Henry, perhaps because he sat in that corner of the House where he and the member for Centre Vancouver (Hon. H. H. Stevens) copied their leader (Right Hon. Arthur Meighen), in combination whom they constituted a "school for scoundrels."

Mr. Raymond declared that Sir Henry Drayton, ex-Minister of Finance, had in the course of his speech on the budget, stated that there was a deficit of $110,000,000 instead of a surplus of over two million dollars. But the Conservative financial critic had moved an amendment suggesting a reduction in taxation. If there was an actual deficit, was that the proper way to meet it?

Mr. Raymond had hoped that there would be no more downward changes in the tariff; but a further reduction had been made on farm wagons and sleighs. Was there a good word of appreciation given for this reduction by the Progressives? He had not heard any, and it confirmed his opinion that whatever reductions were made in the budget, Progressives would never be satisfied.

Crow's Nest Pass Agreement.
He regretted that no mention of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement rates had been made in the budget. The restoration of these rates had created discrimination, and no point had suffered more on this account than the city of Brantford. On certain classes of agricultural implements, for instance, the rate from Brantford to the West was $1.28 per hundred, as compared with 96 cents per hundred from Hamilton. These rates were charged by the Canadian National Railway. "Why should the Canadian National Railways discriminate against Brantford in the shipment of its most important products to the West?" he asked.

"The Canadian National Railways should never discriminate against the city of Brantford. That has been one of its very best customers."

In reply to L. J. Ladner (Conservative, Vancouver South), Mr. Raymond stated that "if they reduced the rates from Brantford down to the rates from Hamilton, we would be satisfied." He hoped that the discrimination against Brantford would soon be removed. "I believe," stated Mr. Raymond, "in a revenue tariff," and believed it should be put on a reasonable and sound basis.

Several Progressives interrupted to point out that insofar as they were aware, no tariff reduction on farmers' wagons had been made in the budget.

Question Of Tariff.
The leader of the Opposition in his protestant resolution, on the order paper, made all the misfortunes of the country the result of tariff. But every manufacturer would look at Mr. Meighen's resolution with caution. Manufacturers would recall that in 1919 Mr. Meighen swept the duty off farm tractors and they poured into this country with the result that two Brantford industries went out of business. Manufacturers wondered if Mr. Meighen would do such things again.

Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford), interrupted to ask if Mr. Raymond would be in favor of entirely removing the duty on farm implements.

Mr. Raymond retorted that he was not aware that the Liberal policy was entirely to remove the duty. "When they voted for me, (Continued on Page Eleven)

Most headaches due to lack of internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste and are carried to all parts of the body. Headaches follow. Biliousness, insomnia, lack of energy, all result from constipation, which if unchecked will lead to serious results.

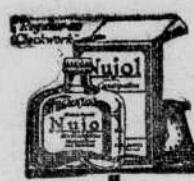

Avoid Laxatives—Say Doctors

A noted authority says that laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition.

Medical science has found in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

A MOONLIGHT SURPRISE

By Thornton W. Burgess.

So where you will, you'll find it true,
Some one has knowledge kept from you.

—Jimmy Skunk.

It was a beautiful night. Mistress Moon was making it almost as light as day. It was just the kind of a night that Jimmy Skunk loves; that Reddy Fox loves; that Hooty the Owl loves. Jimmy left his retreat under Farmer Brown's barn and headed straight for Farmer Brown's garden. He felt sure he would find some beetles there. But he and Mrs. Jimmy had been taking such good care of that garden that beetles and worms were rather scarce, so after a while Jimmy decided that he would go up to Farmer Brown's house and see if by chance there might not be a few table scraps.

Half way up there he met Reddy Fox. Reddy politely stepped aside. "Good evening, Jimmy Skunk," said he.

"It is a good evening," replied Jimmy. "How are Mrs. Reddy and the rest of the family?"

"Fine," said Reddy. "How is your family?"

"Oh, I haven't any," replied Jimmy. "I'm living alone and rather enjoying it."

A funny look crossed Reddy's face. "Oh, so you haven't any family!" he exclaimed. "Well, how is Mrs. Jimmy and her family?"

"Mrs. Jimmy hasn't any family either. She is living by herself under Farmer Brown's henhouse, and she seemed very well the last time I saw her," replied Jimmy.

Reddy chuckled. He opened his mouth as if to say something, but closed it again without a word. He chuckled again.

"What is the joke?" inquired Jimmy.

"I happened to think of a funny thing I saw this evening in the moonlight. I haven't time to tell you about it now, Jimmy, for I must hurry on. You know I have a family to look after and it is quite a responsibility," replied Reddy, and trotted on. He was still chuckling as he crossed the Green Meadows. "So he hasn't any family, and Mrs. Jimmy hasn't any family!" he kept repeating over and over to himself, and each time he would chuckle.

Jimmy Skunk continued on his way wondering what had tickled Reddy Fox so much. His way led him near Farmer Brown's henhouse. Carelessly he glanced over to see if Mrs. Jimmy might happen to be about. Just then she stepped into the moonlight and started toward him. And then Jimmy gave a start. He was so greatly surprised to see a small image of herself. Behind this one walked a small image of himself. Jimmy didn't know this at the time, but it was so. The marks on this little fellow's coat were exactly like the marks on Jimmy's own coat.

Mrs. Jimmy continued to advance and behind her a funny little procession marched out of the shadows into the moonlight. Jimmy began to think it never would end. With Mrs. Jimmy leading the way out of the shadow of the henhouse into the bright moonlight ambled nine little Skunks! Jimmy didn't count them then. He was too greatly surprised to think of counting. Could you have asked him right then how many there were I am sure he would have replied, "A hundred!"

"Where are they?" gasped Jimmy, as Mrs. Jimmy came up to him.

"Yours," replied Mrs. Jimmy. "Yours and mine. The idea of asking such a question! The idea of not knowing your own children!"

"B-b-but this is so sudden," stammered Jimmy.

"Not at all," replied Mrs. Jimmy.

Jimmy said he was. And just then he remembered Reddy Fox. "And I told him we hadn't any family! No wonder Reddy chuckled," muttered Jimmy.

"What did you say?" asked Mrs. Jimmy.

"Nothing of importance, my dear," replied Jimmy.

UNCLE JIM'S LETTER

Dear Corner Folk:

We are pleased to welcome Ruth and Stanley to our corner group today. I am sure Ruth will be glad to have her brother grow big enough to join in her play. I am glad to know that Stanley does not shoot birds, for it is quite a temptation, when one has a gun, to fire at almost anything that comes in view. Try to give the birds and animals a fair chance, Stanley, for that is the motto of a true sportsman. I hope that cut has healed and that there will be no bad results from the accident.

The blot-outs are in, and those that I have looked at are well done. I hope to see improvement each week in the work, and I hope you will like the games which were written out at the J.R.C. head office. Try them and let us know how they come out. It is fine practice to play well organized games at school, for team work helps us to be good scouts and to train for the bigger games such as baseball, hockey, etc. After a merry game out doors the pupils can get to study with a keen mind, and you know that helps greatly in school lessons.

Every one is enjoying the fine spring weather, but we would be willing to have a few days' rain because the grass would then be green, and everything start to grow better than now.

We will have to do without a few bedtime stories this week for I divided two weeks into one (six stories) I hope they won't get lost again. We will have the remainder of the story about Billy in the springtime woods while waiting for the others to come along. Hoping all are well and happy I will say good-night.

Faithfully yours,
UNCLE JIM.

LETTERS FROM THE CORNER FOLK

Dear Uncle Jim:

This is my first letter to your corner. I hope to see it printed. I am nearly seven years and live one mile from the village on a farm where we make maple sugar. I go to the sugar pines often during sugaring as I have not started to go to school yet. I get tired of playing alone and will be glad when my little brother gets bigger so he can run out of doors with me. He was my Easter present last year. He was my soon have a birthday, (April 20). My pets are a cat named Bobby, and a dog. I like to ride horseback, and have the bedtime stories read to me as I cannot read yet. I enjoy the bedtime stories and also coloring the pictures that are in the Canadian Countryman every week. I am sending in the Blot-Out. I will close hoping you had a happy Easter.

Your niece,
Ruth Merrill,
North Hatley.

Dear Uncle Jim:

This is my first letter to your page. I am thirteen years old and go to school every day. Our teacher is Mr. McMannis and we like him very much. My brother, Clifford, has a rifle and we have great sport shooting at targets to see which is the best shot. We never shoot little birds. I had a bad cut in my head from an axe my brother was using. I had to have Dr. Johnston put three stitches in it. My father has twenty-five cows, four horses and one colt. For pets I have two rabbits. I am sending in this week's Blot-Out. As this is my first letter I will not write too much, as I hope to see it in the corner. I remain, Your nephew,

STANLEY RODGERS.

SOME JOLLY OUTDOOR GAMES

Ice-Bear and Land-Bear—This is a fine game for a summer day. Across middle of space make line to divide ice from land. Choose one to represent the ice bear, who tags only on ice, and another to represent land bear who tags only on land. All other players stand anywhere. When game begins the ice bear tries to tag as many as he possibly can but he must not step on land. The land bear does the same; he must not step on ice. The children run about and when all are tagged each bear counts his victims and the one having the largest number wins.

Black and White—Name two teams, one "black" and one "white." Throw up a card which has one side white and the other black. If it lands black side up the "blacks" run to safety the "whites" chasing to tag them. All tagged join the other side. Continue until one team has tagged all in the other.

Third Man Out—Choose a chaser and a runner. All others stand around anywhere in threes, facing each other with both hands joined. The chaser starts after the runner, and if he tags him they change places. The runner tries, however, before being tagged to get into a circle and break two hands apart. The player opposite the break becomes the runner and gets away quickly.

Always Tired
in the Mornings

Miss M. Beckers,
113 David St., Kitchener, Ont., writes:—
"My system became generally run down. I was nervous, tired and subject to headaches. After using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt like a new person, could sleep and eat well and was relieved of all the old symptoms."

"NERVOUS bankruptcy is being courted by the young women of today," says Dr. Mosher, widely known authority on women's health.

"In her desire to not miss anything she burns the candle at both ends, cutting short her sleep, hurrying or omitting meals.

"This disregard of periods of rest and sleep must necessarily lead to a breakdown of the nervous system, a condition which is the despair of the physician."

Among the early indications of trouble are irritability, restlessness, indigestion, headaches and sleeplessness.

BANK WILL NOT APPEAL CASE

Mr. F. S. Rugg, K.C., informed the Record this morning that it had been definitely decided not to appeal the judgment recently rendered by His Lordship Mr. Justice White in favor of the Paton Manufacturing Co., plaintiff, in the case against the Canadian Bank of Commerce, defendant.

In this case Mr. Rugg appeared as attorney for the defence, and following the rendering of the judgment rumors were in circulation that an appeal would be entered. Upon being questioned by the Record in this connection, Mr. Rugg stated that an appeal was very probable. Since that time, however, it has been decided not to make an appeal.

The time granted for entering an appeal expired on Monday in connection with the present case.

Y.M.C.A. CIRCUS

To say that the Y.M.C.A. Circus for 1925 was bigger and better than ever is putting it mildly. From the grand entry, the first item on the programme, to the senior pyramids, the twenty-third on the programme, the show was filled with exciting items. The outstanding numbers on the programme were possibly "the Lotus Pool" by a picked group of girls from the girls' class, "the Glow Worm" by the junior boys, special diving by employed boys, "the Zandier Dance" by senior girls, Indian clubs by a picked group.

This was the reproduction of an item presented at the Montreal physical directors conference by representatives of the Sherbrooke Association.

There was not one item that was not of an exceptionally high standard. Last night the building housed a large crowd and all concerned are expecting that tonight will see a larger house.

For the splendid results obtained great credit must be given to every one who took part, but more especially to Mr. Lunn, the physical director, and Mr. G. S. Sampson, who acted as "Ring Master." In connection with the show the Y's Men's Club ran a midway which was splendidly patronized.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESSED BY MR. LYON JACOBS

Montreal Attorney Gives Eloquent Address on Abolition of Capital Punishment—Would Have Laws Made by Criminologists—Life Imprisonment More Satisfactory Than Execution.

"Thou shalt not kill, was thundered from Mount Sinai. Now do you believe in this commandment? If it is wrong for the individual to kill it is wrong for the state. Two wrongs will not make a right. We must have faith in Canada, and I hope it shall be one of the first countries to abolish this barbaric practice." This was the statement made by Mr. Lyon W. Jacobs, well known Montreal lawyer and ex-alderman when he made a most striking and eloquent address before the Rotary Club last night on "Abolishing of Capital Punishment," a subject and topic which is at the present time receiving Dominion-wide attention.

Mr. Jacobs considered his subject from every possible angle, and was very emphatic in his statements that this practice should be abolished in Canada as it was not only wrong from a spiritual point of view, but also from a material aspect; and by its practice crime had not and was not being stopped.

In his opening remarks Mr. Jacobs stated that he did not want to use sentiment or play on his hearers' feelings, but wishes to bring forth his reasons why he thought this practice now in force should be abolished, and he asked his audience to consider his remarks for their value and to think over his arguments from an intellectual point of view.

Two important questions were brought forth by the speaker in connection with this subject: "Has the state the right to take human life which is the dearest possession which we have, and which was not created or made by the state?" This was one of the questions brought forth by Mr. Jacobs, and secondly he asked his hearers to define capital punishment.

"Capital punishment," the speaker remarked, "is the hanging by the neck of any man or woman, as the case may be, until they are dead. It is the cutting off of life. In Canada at the present time there are four crimes for which capital punishment can be given. These crimes are murder, rape, treason and any offense, against His Majesty our King."

Spirit of Revenge

In a most interesting and scholarly manner the speaker traced the history of capital punishment from its early days in the eighteenth century in England down to the present day. In dealing with the conditions in England he remarked that he hoped his hearers would bear in mind that he was a lover and admirer of everything British, and was a true and loyal Canadian in every way, and he hoped that no wrong impression would be taken from any of his remarks.

In England in the eighteenth century, the speaker remarked, capital punishment was carried out more as a means of revenge than as a means of protecting society and attempting to abolish crime. "It was," the speaker said, "I will do unto you as you have done unto me instead of Do unto others as you would have others do unto you. It was purely a spirit of revenge in those early days."

"As time went on, however, men began to reason and said I am my brother's keeper, therefore, how can I kill him? They then said we will take life for life."

The speaker remarked that then followed the introduction of many different and brutal torture instruments whereby it was thought to satisfy for crime. It was then decided to appoint a special officer who would be required to take human life.

Many Crimes Punishable by Hanging

"I think Canada is the brightest stone in the British Empire, and I am proud of being a Canadian and a Britisher, but let me say that in England in the eighteenth century they had 100 offences for which persons were hanged." The speaker remarked that regardless of the fact that hanging was lawful in so many cases, it did not have any effect towards betterment of conditions. In the reign of Henry VIII, when the church was involved in difficulties, people who refused to remain with the church were most cruelly treated. "Seventy-two thousand people that believed in Protestantism were hanged simply because they disagreed with the church, which is a matter of conscience. Earlier the Romans threw Christians to the lions to deter them from exercising their religion, but these acts have had no effect. We are all men, all men in the eyes of the Creator."

Executions Made Public

"What was thought at the time to be an improvement was the making of executions public. Offenders were taken to Newgate prison, the public, including the lords and ladies of the country, would attend, were joyful and happy. The executions were also attended by pickpockets and members of the underworld, and while the lords were watching some poor pickpocket being executed for his crime, other pickpockets among the onlookers were at work picking pockets of the lords themselves," Mr. Jacobs said.

"Although execution was made as brutal as possible it was impossible to abolish crime, and then society abolished hanging for all the petty charges and it was put into our law for four offences only. Laws, should be Drafted by Criminologists."

"The men in the House of Parliament know nothing about crime and the laws should be drafted by criminologists," Mr. Jacobs said. "What does modern society do? It takes steps after the crime has been com-

Comparison Made Between Canada and Holland

Mr. Jacobs made an interesting comparison between Holland, where capital punishment was abolished in 1870 and Canada. This comparison showed that in 1894 Holland had twelve convictions, in 1897 there were five, and in 1902 only three. In Canada in 1913 there were 23 convictions, 27 in 1914, and 34 in 1915. "Then how can you justify saying that hanging will stop other men from committing crime? I do not know of one case where hanging has stopped crime."

Innocent Men Have Been Hanged

Life imprisonment, in the speaker's mind, was the necessary punishment for crime. Life imprisonment with a public whipping before the eyes of the public would do more towards stopping crime and protecting society than any other method known of was the opinion of Mr. Jacobs. "You will ask," the speaker continued, "how can we protect society if we do not hang these men? Is not life imprisonment enough, without taking that which we did not give?"

The speaker remarked that by life imprisonment there was always the danger of the accused escaping from prisons and becoming a menace to society, whereas if capital punishment had been enforced this would be impossible. "I would be ashamed of myself and our penitentiaries if he escaped," Mr. Jacobs said, "and I would say there was something rotten about our system."

Public Opinion Against Capital Punishment

Mr. Jacobs remarked that public opinion was decidedly against capital punishment especially among persons who were authorities in the matter. References were made to several well known attorneys, wardens of prisons and members of Parliament, which showed that these men were convinced that society was not being better served by the enforcing of capital punishment, and that this means of punishment was not tending towards the abolition of crime.

The speaker made special reference to a recent execution in the city of Montreal, and described the procedure and manner in which the affair was treated, and added that following the execution, souvenirs, including pieces of the rope which had been used in the execution, were given to onlookers.

Prison Gives Time for Afterthought

In conclusion Mr. Jacobs said that there is ever the great danger of hanging an innocent man. "I would rather see ninety-nine men let go than to know that one innocent man had been hanged. If a man is imprisoned we can do something for him, and if later his innocence is established we can repay him in some manner or other, but if he has been executed it is too late and the innocent one will have paid."

Following the interesting remarks, a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Rotarian E. L. Stewart-Patterson and seconded by Rotarian H. G. Hatcher.

The bridge, "500" and tea given in the Public Library and reading room yesterday afternoon in aid of the library fund for new books was a well attended and a delightful social event. Mrs. Parmelee, president of the ladies' committee, was the organizer, and was assisted by the committee; the librarians, Misses Farmer and Gilson; Miss Morrison, the Misses Alberta Rowell, Elizabeth Van Roden, Peggy Holding, and Margaret Haight. Miss Alice Wilson was in charge of the card tables and prizes. Those winning prizes in bridge were Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Ralph Webster, Mrs. J. H. Mrs. Parmelee and the committee greatly appreciate the kindly interest shown by those who donated various articles and money to the benefit, while those who contributed toward the success of the social function may feel gratified that they helped in a most worthy cause, that of supplying the best and newest reading matter obtainable. The Librarian states that the demand for the new books by patrons is quite beyond their means and the committee hope that other like events may be held this spring to add to the book fund.

Want Traffic Signs.

Ald. Houlihan referred to the painted traffic signs which were on the streets last year, and remarked that it would be necessary to paint these signs again this year if they were to be used. He also remarked that traffic laws along Wellington Street were not being observed as strictly as might be desired, and in many cases cars were parked on the street during the entire day. He strongly suggested the need of having two men engaged along the street to see that existing traffic laws are observed. The question of finance was also brought up by Ald. Houlihan. Alderman Tetrault stated that possibly some assistance could be given by the finance committee in this connection, following which the matter was referred to the finance committee, who will report later.

Ald. Tetrault Appointed Pro-Mayor.

Alderman J. S. Tetrault, chairman of the finance committee, was appointed pro-mayor for the next three months to succeed Alderman Bourque, whose term has expired.

CONFESSIONS RE MURDER OF SIR LEE STACK

Meeting Decided to Commit Series of Political Murders, With Sirdar of Egypt as First Victim.

(Associated Press Despatch)
CAIRO, April 22.—The judicial authorities have published a summary of the confessions of some of the men accused in connection with the assassination last November of the Sirdar of Egypt, General Sir Lee Stack.

Abdel Fattah Anayat, one of the accused, is quoted as declaring in the course of his statement that following the failure of the conversations between the Egyptian and British premiers in London on the Sudanese and other questions, he met with Dr. Shafik Mansur and Mahmud Ismail, at the former's house, when it was decided to commit a series of political murders, with the Sirdar as the first victim.

The declaration says the trio believed the independence of Egypt could only be gained by the political murders. All the persons mentioned in Abdel's confession have been arrested. Mahmud Ismail was an official of the Ministry of Pious Foundations.

Mahmud Razzid, a railway worker, is alleged to have confessed that he was a member of the "Society of Vengeance," and that Abdel spoke to him about the murder plans; that he lent his automobile, that he and Abdel drove to the scene of the outrage, waited until the assassination was accomplished, and then escaped with Ibrahim Musa, another of the accused.

Dr. Shafik in his reputed confession said there was always present in Egypt a force believing that British rule could only be ended by violence and individual reprisals. He, however, did not condone the outrage, took no part in it, and was only informed of it by Abdel after it had been committed.

Mohammed Fahmy, another of the accused, admitted committing outrages against several Europeans but disclaimed participation in the Sirdar affair.

He also admitted the existence of a secret society for carrying out crimes and claimed that Abdel Hamid Anayat, brother of Abdel Fattah; Ibrahim Musa, Mahmud Razzid, Dr. Shafik Mansur and Mahmud Ismail (correct), were all members.

The police this morning arrested Hag Ahmed, an employee of the railway work shop at his home, and claim to have found there a parcel containing a revolver and a quantity of E type ammunition. The police declare that while bullets of this type have been used in six political outrages during recent years, they had heretofore been unable to obtain any samples of it. Hag Ahmed is said to have exercised great religious influence among the railway workers.

MYSTICISM IS RELIGION IN ITS PUREST FORM

"Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Continues Task of Tracing History of Christian Religion.

(Associated Press Despatch)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—The Rev. Dean William Ralph Inge, the "Gloomy dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, continued his task of tracing the history of the Christian religion in two lectures delivered at the 16th convocation of the Yale Divinity School here yesterday.

In speaking of mysticism, Dean Inge said:

"Mysticism is religion in its purest form—it is independent of time, place, nationality and creed. In reading the writings of the great mystics we might often be in doubt whether the writer was a 'neoplatonist' or member of any other philosophical sect. Religion is like those chemical elements which are not found in any pure state—it is difficult to segregate them from the alien substances which are always mixed with them. But mysticism is pure religion. For this reason the great churches have never been able to do without it and yet have never been able to control it or subordinate it to their aims. It has been throughout a rival to every monopolist claim; a potential enemy to all priest-craft."

HOW TO SAVE $54,000,000.

The outstanding feature of Sir Henry Thornton's speech here was his declaration that there was not business enough in the country for two keenly competing lines and that his hope of improving the situation lay through some plan of co-ordination between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific, eliminating wasteful competition.

If this means merely an effort to reach an understanding by which passenger service will be reduced here and there through a saw off at competing points it will produce little towards an actual relief from the growing burden under which the country is staggering. The lopping off of a train here and there will not solve the problem. As Sir Henry said, competition for business must go on. And this is obvious. With two systems operating, a slackening in the business-getting efforts of either would mean more grist for the other mill, and the Canadian National has no paying business to lose.

With this situation existing, a parley between the heads of the two systems looking to a cutting of schedules would not be unlike the peace conference in Paris. The Allies were the best of friends but with the negotiations on it was a case of every man for himself and let the devil take the hindmost.

A deficit such as that which has been recorded in the National Railway operations for a number of years cannot be removed by any ordinary give and take method. It requires something more than a pruning knife.

There is only one measure, in our opinion, which would wipe out on annual fifty million dollar railway deficit now or for some years to come under conditions which are likely to exist and that is to bring both railways under one management. The deficit and waste would disappear over night.

A railway monopoly is not a pleasant sounding term. We have, however, a Railway Commission, with very large powers which can be still further enlarged by the Parliament of Canada if it is desirable. This Commission has control over rates and service. Under these conditions the teeth of monopoly would be largely removed.

If the interests of the public can be safeguarded, with service and rates subject to order of an independent Commission, why should the people of Canada go on piling up their public debt at the rate of a million dollars a week for the luxury of having two railway systems instead of one, two expensive management organizations instead of one?

These are questions that the public, the taxpayers of the country are asking.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT.

Another disarmament conference is being proposed. It was thought, following the conference held in Washington during the Harding administration, that great things had been accomplished. Today, however, a checking over of the navies of the great powers indicates that naval competition goes on as merrily as ever.

The Manchester Guardian discussing this says:

"It is a curious commentary on the high hopes that were raised when the original Washington Treaty was signed and within three years of the beginning of the great 'naval holiday' it should be necessary to consider plans for a new conference on the same subject. The fact is that today there are more cruisers, destroyers and submarines building and projected for the five Powers who signed the Washington Treaty than were building for the seven great naval Powers in the days when the Great War began. The actual figures, as shown by official returns, are:

	Destroyers & Cruisers.	Submarines.
Great Britain . . .	8	3
United States . . .	12	15
Japan	11	23
France	9	27
Italy	5	26

"It is only fair to point out that the smallest of all the programmes of the five Powers is that which is underway for the foremost naval Power, Great Britain. Whatever race in the construction of subsidiary warships there may be we are clear of any suspicion of having started it. Only fifteen of the 289 vessels building and projected are for the navies (home and Dominion) of the British Empire.

"There is another aspect of these new building programmes which has gone far to persuade the statesmen of America and Great Britain that something more than the existing treaty is required to check the very real competition that is setting in. The fact is the growing size of the subsidiary men-of-war. Limitation, as effected at Washington in 1922, has had the curious result of bringing into existence a far larger and more powerful type of cruiser than the world has ever known before, while the growth of the size of submarines is a matter of common knowledge, despite the great secrecy that enshrouds the design of all these modern warships. The naval architects of the world have neatly steered the post-Washington ships right round the restrictions of the treaty."

PRESS COMMENT

CRUELITIES TO FUR-BEARING ANIMALS.

In announcing plans for a nation-wide campaign to check the cruelties to fur-bearing animals inflicted by present trapping methods, particularly the use of steel traps, a recently established organization called the Humane Trapping Committee, is filling a long felt need. This committee hopes to set up national headquarters in Washington to obtain the enactment of state laws prohibiting the use of non-killing traps. However, according to the chairman of the new committee, William K. Horton, the president of the American Humane Association, the proposed campaign is not an attack upon the fur industry or an indictment of the wearing of furs, as, indeed, it is hoped that the co-operation of the fur industry and the moral support of the public will be forthcoming in the proposed activities. It would be hardly possible, it would seem, to undertake too vigorous an educational campaign along this line, in view of the deplorable conditions which are existent at present.

SAVED: THE GREAT STONE FACE.

Proud New Hampshire has saved the Great Stone Face, as Hawthorne called it the Old Man of the Mountain, as it is more popularly known. Her Legislature has sent to the governor the Franconia Notch bill, so ably championed by the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests. This appropriates $200,000 for purchase from private owners of the Pass over which the Old Man stands as guardian; and this sum, it is understood, will be so supplemented with private contributions that what Harriet Martineau characterized as "the noblest mountain pass in America" will remain in perpetuity the sacred trust of the people. For the brooding figure, to be seen only from one spot and that a very narrow strip of the shore of the exquisite Profile Lake, impresses the spectator with a profundity of sentiment that approaches sanctity. The White and Franconia Mountains are jewels in the landscape, with the grandeur of the Rockies, but they present a softened splendor all their own, while their individual attractions, like the Stone Face and the tiny lakes upon which it gazes, the Basin, the Pool, the Plume, Lost River, Tuckerman's Ravine, the Lakes of the Clouds, the easily accessible tip of Mount Washington, with its famous cog railway—a hundred attractive specialties disclose themselves within a radius of a very few miles.

THE LESSON OF ALBERTA.

(Ottawa Journal) Statistics are not always dry. Often they are invigorating and inspiring; and in such a category is a publication just issued by the Government of Alberta. It is a story of progress during the past two decades that must put pessimists to rout.

In 1905 Alberta's total wheat area was 150,000 acres. Today it is 5,500,000 acres. In 1905 the area of all crops was 616,000 acres. In 1925 it is over 11,000,000 acres. The wheat production in 1905 was 3,000,000 bushels, in 1923 it was 144,000,000 bushels.

In 1905 Alberta produced 800,000 pounds of creamery butter. Last year she produced 21,000,000 pounds. Only a few years ago the province was importing butter. Last year it exported over 4,000,000 lbs. of butter. The value of property in Alberta is now $4,500,000. Alberta stands second among Canadian provinces in poultry value; and last year exported 60,000 cases or 133 carloads of eggs. She has increased the value of her combined agricultural production from $20,000,000 in 1905 to $217,000,000 in 1924.

The whisperers of death should put that in their pipes and smoke it. Given a half decent chance, freed from the blighting influence of extravagance and debt and taxation, Canada's future is one of the surest things that men can calculate.

MORE SOVIET BULLDOZING.

(Detroit Free Press) Leo Karakhan, Soviet minister at Peking, "warns" America, in an article published by the Berlin Rote Fahne, that the new Russo-Japanese treaty may result in a Pacific alliance hostile to this country—unless Washington comes through with recognition of the Soviets.

The Karakhan article, to judge from extracts cabled from Berlin, is a combination of swagger and bulldozing. What the envoy has to say about "the firm position in the Pacific" acquired by Russia as a result of the treaty with Tokio, and about the alleged "guarantees of Russia's future development" in the Far East, is bunk. When he says, "What Russia wants is a position where she can play Japan against America," he utters a truth in a way characteristic of Red diplomacy.

The "warning" is a move in the Soviet campaign to use Japan and the Russo-Japanese treaty as a whip to lash America into recognizing the Moscow regime.

Never has a diplomatic game so brazen and raw been dragged into the light of day. The Japanese should be the first to call a halt to it. Do they relish being used as a tool?

As for America, the methods employed by Moscow are about the surest we can conceive of to rouse resentment against Sovietism here and block any tendency to genuine recognition.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IMPROVEMENT FOR MARKET

Editor of Record: Sir—This is in connection with an improvement for the city market which should be appreciated by many of the farmers who attend market, besides it will be a revenue-paying investment for the city.

The idea is to run a line of sheds suitable for teams and automobiles along the bank of the river starting from the bridge and extending to the full length of the market. But as this strip in its present state is not deep enough for this project, it can easily be acquired. It is a wonder that this has not been thought of before. This means to extend the bank of the river some 30 feet along the water front, just as it has already been done on the east side of the river by a stone wall, but this can be dispensed with as it will make an excellent dumping ground for suitable refuse such as has been used for the same purpose a few hundred yards down the stream. Owning to the short haul a saving of 20 to 30 cents a load should be made on thousands of loads, which in itself should pay for the proposed improvement of these sheds.

A drawing of this line of sheds shows where 50 of them can be made with a capacity of 150 tons and garages by parking them one behind the other. It also shows compartments above suitable for farmers to store whatever traps they need instead of trucking them to and from home every week. Each place would, of course, be securely locked, and rented accordingly.

The estimated revenue is around $1,900 a year like this. Suppose each place rented at 25 cents a week, that would be $1,950 a year, providing the thing was properly handled. In reality this line of sheds should not cost over $3,000, less the saving on haulage, so if the city were to rent them as low a price as 10 cents a week, even that would pay a good rate of interest, and even if it gave them nothing, it would still be a big improvement to the market by clearing it of that number of teams and automobiles. But there will be no need of giving these spaces for the farmers will be only too willing to pay for them.

If it were possible to make this a private venture under the same conditions it would be worth fully 6 per cent on an investment of over $40,000, while it will cost the city around $3,000. I will respectfully ask every farmer who will benefit or not by this innovation, and every commonsense citizen to look over the location of this proposition and judge for himself how sensible or otherwise it is. If these sheds were never built, just the acquisition of this strip of 30 or more feet will be worth thousands of dollars to the city, if for no other purpose than what it is being used for at present. But the sheds are the logical things for they will be beneficial to both man and beast.

The next question is: Will any notice be taken of this? Maybe, but possibly not for a dozen or so years. In the meantime the city will lose all the way from ten to fifteen hundred dollars a year, which in that number of years, will amount to about $30,000 at compound interest. But what's that when the city will have a revenue from the tax of 25 cent on newsboys selling papers in public places?

Yours truly,
CHRISTOPHER.

with OVER-SIZE GRIP

It Abolishes Finger Cramp

Like the Duofold Pen

It's a perfect color match, too

JUST as Parker's Over-size Duofold Pen supplies a full-handed barrel for man-size hands, so this "Big Brother" Duofold Pencil gives man a full-handed grip that never slips out of the fingers. Just hold it gently—it's a fit, so stays put.

To fill, slip in the lead at the writing tip. No need to remove its "insides." Non-Clog Propeller turns lead OUT and IN.

Pull off the Gold Crown and see the healthy crater—three times average size. Under that, a well for extra leads.

A pencil every bit as good looking and hard to mislay as the Duofold Pen—made of Duofold Penstock—hence a perfect color match in handsome lacquer-red or in flashing black.

How the C.N.R. 1924 Dollar Was Spent

THE full circle shown above represents the gross income dollar of the Canadian National Railways in 1924. The circle is divided into a number of segments each of which represents the proportion into which the dollar was broken up for expenditure in the directions named.

The total amount spent on these items, in dollars and cents is as follows:

Labor	$127,216,017.40
Fuel	28,058,471.86
Materials, Supplies and other operating expenses	63,069,441.81
Taxes	4,588,593.56
Equipment and facility rentals, etc.	6,600,561.00
Balance available to apply on fixed charges	14,772,327.92
TOTAL	$244,305,413.55

This chart is interesting in that it is a guide to the part which the dollar of the Canadian National Railways plays in the business of the country as a whole. It is not an idle dollar. Nearly all of it remains in circulation and finds its way into every channel of industry and commerce.

As can be seen, wages paid to employees constitute, by far, the greater portion of expenditures in this way. No enterprise in Canada is such a large purchaser of supplies as the Canadian National Railways. Wherever it is possible to do so, these supplies are purchased in Canada from products manufactured by the Canadian workman or grown or mined in Canadian territory. The store room of the company resembles a well-stocked department store. They contain thousands of separate items from elastic bands to pile drivers. The dining car commissariat is a steady customer of the Canadian farmer and fisherman. The enterprise is one that is intimately associated with every phase of industrial activity in the Dominion from the publisher of a newspaper to the builder of locomotives. The purchases of the Canadian National Railways stimulate every branch of commerce and industry and their service provides an adequate and dependable agency for the transportation of people and their goods from place to place.

TALK ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS BY SIR G. E. FOSTER

Waterloo Audience Heard Fifth of a Series of Lectures—Speaker Was of Opinion that League Could Prevent Wars.

WATERLOO, April, 22. — Another of a series of lectures arranged by the pastors of the Anglican and Methodist Churches was delivered in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, April 14th, when Sir George E. Foster spoke before a large audience on the subject of the League of Nations. This lecture was the fifth of the series, the preceding ones being "Our Navy," by Rev. A. E. Rannels, Montreal; "Historic Martyrs," by Rev. Canon Shafford; "Ancient Civilizations," by Dean Lang of McGill University; "Characters from Dickens," by Rev. Allworth Eardley, Montreal.

Sir Geo. E. Foster, who is the Canadian representative to the League of Nations, gave a clear outline of the origin and formation of the League. The distinguished lecturer showed that he is full of faith and optimism regarding its future, and believes that it has already justified its existence in the services rendered the member nations by promoting better relations between them. At least three incipient wars have been prevented by its means, and the rehabilitation of the finances of Austria and Hungary, the administration of the coal mines of the Saar Valley and the regulation of the question of foreign nationals being obliged to serve in the armies of the country in which they are resident are all matters that have been taken in hand by the League and brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

The speaker was clearly of the opinion that wars may be prevented and that a properly organized League of Nations would go a long way towards making the outbreak of wars difficult. "In the early times," he stated, all disputes were settled by force, but now this method is seldom or never resorted to by individuals, but such differences are settled by courts and arbitrators, why not the same method therefore, for nations?"

The League is composed of a council, an assembly and a secretariat. Each nation has three members in the assembly and one vote, the smallest nation having the same number of votes as the largest. The secretariat is the working force of the League, and in its midst the cream of the intellect of the countries represented. This force is continually on the alert with its fingers on the pulse of events, ready to prevent any possible outbreak and to encourage good will amongst the nations.

The number of nations having membership in the League is now fifty-five. The sense of responsibility and the impressiveness of the occasion when one rises to address the hundred and sixty odd representatives of the nations of the world and a gallery of two hundred and fifty reporters may be imagined. "The atmosphere is not conducive to the liberation of a lot of hot air," said the speaker, "and the parliaments of our country could take a lesson in restricting their verbosity by a study of the deliberations of the League." Another regulation of the League is that all measures or resolutions can only be passed or adopted by an unanimous vote, all the members must be of accord or nothing can be done. It will thus be seen that a small state such as Cuba has the same voting power and the same representation as a large nation such as Great Britain, and its consent is just as necessary to the passing of any measure as that of the largest nation. It was only in this way that the smaller nations could be brought into the League.

The official languages of the League are French and English, but a member may speak in any language he chooses, provided he furnish a translation in one of the official languages mentioned.

An indication of the extent of the knowledge of the French and English languages is furnished by the fact that except for one group all the representatives were found to have a knowledge of one or other of these languages. The nations are seated in alphabetical order, therefore no question of precedence can arise.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Jos. Gingras, advocate, who spoke in English and French. Sir Geo. E. Foster prefaced his lecture by a short address in French, which shows that he is a master of both the official languages of the League.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. J. E. Thompson, who, after mentioning the doubts which the majority of people had entertained regarding the usefulness of a League of Nations and the conviction of many people that wars could not be prevented, said that it was a source of satisfaction and pleasure to hear so distinguished an authority as the lecturer speak so hopefully of the possibilities of the League and show so much faith in its possible good results. Mr. Henry Bird seconded the motion, and the audience evinced their approval by rising and emitting prolonged applause.

Rev. Mr. Howitt and Rev. Mr. Schaffter are to be congratulated on the success that has attended these lectures, and the public are much indebted to them for the opportunity which has been furnished of listening to several instructive and entertaining addresses.

CHAPTER VI.

Chancellor's hand went instinctively to his breast pocket, where the little note lay which Fay had sent up to his room that afternoon, and after a moment he said in a queer voice:

"I wonder."
"It's not too late," Nina insisted. "I shall be leaving here soon—as soon as all this has blown over. And then we can break off our—alleged engagement, and you can go away, and people will think it is my fault, and say that I have broken your heart." She tried to laugh, not very successfully.

"And you will marry this—other man?" Chancellor interrupted.

"No, I shall not."

"Why?"

"For the very excellent reason that he has not asked me."

"Not asked you! He must be a fool."

She looked away from him over the belt of dark trees that shut out the road.

"I cannot allow you to call him names," she said gently.

They walked on silently, till presently she stopped.

"Shall we go back? I am sure you have walked far enough."

He frowned impatiently.

"I am not an invalid."

But he turned obediently.

"There are flowers in my room," he said abruptly. "Did you put them there for me, Nina?"

"If? No—why should I?" But she felt a little stab of regret that she had not thought of doing so.

"It must have been Fay," she added, and was quick to see the look of annoyance that crossed his face.

They crossed the lawn and came again to the house by way of the drive. Nina could see Fay standing at the drawing-room window watching them, and pity touched her heart.

For now she knew for a certainty the thing which before she had only suspected—that Jeffery had spoken the truth when he said there had been no harm in his friendship with Fay, and that he cared nothing for her.

But it was with mixed feelings that Fay Lambton watched Nina and Jeffery Chancellor walking to delightfully entertained in the auditorium by an organ recital given by Mrs. Charles Daigneau, who never fails to delight her audience with her playing. The organ, which was all that could be desired, was the gift of Messrs. Kenneth Wallace and Herbert Moynan, whose generosity was much appreciated by all the members of the Guild and all who enjoyed the treat, particularly as it was the only one of its kind held during the sugar season.

wards her up the drive.

Presently her husband rose and came to stand behind her, his hand resting on her shoulder, his eyes following the direction of hers.

"Yes, they make a fine pair, don't they?" he said after a moment. She made no answer. "As Nina has no home, it would be kind to ask them to be married from this house," Lambton resumed thoughtfully.

Fay turned her eyes away, her cheeks flushed.

"Why are you suddenly so considerate for Nina?" she demanded.

"Every day you suggest something for her."

He shrugged his shoulders.

"A man must consider somebody, and you will not let me consider you."

She laughed rather artificially.

"Why this sudden anxiety for my welfare?"

"It is not sudden, and you know it is not. You have always been my first thought. You see, I happen to love you, even though I am well aware that you hate the sight of me."

"You are so fond of exaggerating things."

"The truth is not exaggeration. I am not a fool, and I can see how your face changes every time I come into the room. I can see your relief every time I tell you that I am going away."

"What nonsense!"

His eyes grew painfully eager.

"Fay—I would give every shilling I possess to believe that it is nonsense. There is something I want to say to you."

"Well—Bluebeard! What is it?" she asked, trying to speak lightly.

He took her by the shoulders, turning her round so that she had to face him.

"If I thought you were tired of me, or that there was any other man you preferred," he said slowly, "I would kill either you or myself."

She tried to laugh, though the guilty color rushed to her face.

"Lawrence, it isn't like you to be so melodramatic!" He released her and turned away.

"No, it is not, and therefore you would do well to remember what I have said," he answered, and he went out, shutting the door.

There was a tragic ring, a deep sincerity in his voice, and Fay was surprised to find that she was trembling.

Jeffery and Nina were no longer in sight, and she went out into the hall to look for them.

Jeffery was there alone, staring rather aimlessly at a barometer which hung beside the front door; he was thinking of his conversation with Nina, and wondering who the man could be of whom she had spoken.

A man for whom she cared, but who cared nothing for her! Well, the man was a fool; he wished—and then he forgot what he wished, as Fay spoke breathlessly beside him:

"Jeffery."

He turned round, his face flushing.

"Jeffery, come into the drawing-room I want to speak to you. I haven't had a word alone with you all day."

"We mustn't, Fay. . . . I beg of you—for your own sake—it's madness! If anyone saw us. . . . I ought not to have come here."

Imagine Golfe being cryit down!

Wapinshawingis Halden in Scotland to Put a Stop to the Game. It Flourishes the World Over Now. Canada Has Made Some Golf History.

The first Canadian "hole-in-one" for 1925 was recorded several weeks ago. Mr. S. Rainford, a member, playing over the Shaughnessy Heights course, Vancouver, accomplished the feat at the third hole. Lady Fane offers few greater awards to the enthusiast than that. The baseball player who knocks the pill for a homer with the bags loaded, is an "also ran" in comparison.

While Victoria, Vancouver and British Columbia generally are to be envied, golfers in Chatham, Ontario, enjoyed a game early in February. Still there are not wanting Canadians who can the climate of the Dominion from the first snowfall of winter until the day they can swing into action in the open air and warble "fore" so musically as to strike the real birds dumb with jealousy. There is no season so trying to the Canadian golfer, young and old, as that wherein his activity in the game is restricted to the indoor school, or the study of books by more or less famous players.

Within the memory of comparatively young people, golf has conquered the Dominion. It is as universal as any game ever played in Canada; it adds to its devotees so rapidly that the figures of one month are no criterion for the next. It is as democratic as politics, far healthier and more satisfying. Municipalities that have tried to dodge its advances have been converted to its advantages and its joys. Everywhere municipal golf courses are supplementing those of the privately established clubs. Other sports and games have periodical spasms of success and depression. Golf goes marching on to new and greater triumphs. What is the secret of its conquering power? A thousand writers have tried to tell it and failed. Perhaps there are a thousand reasons; one of them may be hidden in this:—

Doctors declared that he would die. He didn't have a chance. But doggedly he did the course. And asked "How is my stance?" He threw his medicine away, And did a hole in one. Then in a glad voice he cried, "My life has just begun."

Who played the first game of golf and where? It would be dangerous to attempt to take that honor from Scotland. Certainly it has been played there for centuries. But beyond that questioners are bunkered. The Encyclopedia throws some light on the derivation of the name. It says, "Golf (in its older form Gouff, or Gouff, the last of which gives the genuine old pronunciation), a game which probably derives its name from the German Kolbe, a club,—in Dutch Kolf,—which last is nearly in sound identical and might suggest a Dutch origin, which many pictures and other witnesses further support. Wouldn't that stymie you?"

In the fourteenth century its popularity in Scotland was such as to cause the military men of that land serious alarm. It interfered so much with the practice of archery that in March of 1457, Parliament took cognizance of it. That august body "decreted and ordained that wapinshawing be halden be the lords and barons spiritual and temporal, four times in year; and that the fute-ball and golfe be utterly cryit down, and nache usit; and that the bowmen be mald at ilk paroche kirk a pair of buttis, and schutlin be usit ilk Sunday."

Bold spirits defied all the powers of Scotland and played both "golfe" and "fute-ball," to the grief of their more sober minded brethren. Therefore in 1491 another warning, with dire punishments threatened thereon, was issued. "Fute-ball and Golfe, futeballiden," was its heading, and it proceeded, "It is statut and ordainit that in na place of the realm there be usit fute-ball, golfe, or other ilk unprofitabill sportis."

It was all in vain; Scotsmen were determined that the game should flourish until the ends of the earth had succumbed to its spell. Though to many the earth meant their own country. Well, it has conquered the world, and now it is defying nature. Games have been played at night under artificial light, with fair enjoyment. In Montreal some enthusiasts have played the game on the ice and snow, during several winters. Poland Springs and Lake Placid, N.Y., have gone one better, golf on skills having taken a firm hold. According to those who have watched it the players put up a creditable exhibition, and ski-golf has come to stay.

"Royal and Ancient"

There came a time in Scotland when all the "cryits," "statuts," "wapinshawingis" and all the rest, were relegated to the limbo of hopelessly broken clubs and lost balls. Playing during church service time was forbidden for a while, but even that restriction disappeared. The game attracted the attention of monarchs, but there is no record to show when it was first called "the Royal and Ancient game." James IV, it is said, was the first King to formally figure in the golfing records; thereafter royalty lent its favor, and in 1534 William IV, became patron of the St. Andrew's Golf Club, then, as now, the most famous seat of the game. That monarch approved of it being called "the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews." England, however, looked upon the game with some suspicion, and late in the eighteenth century there was no warm regard for it there. A different story is told in the newspapers every day in the present.

Canada has made history in golf. That may be news to some who are apt to look across the southern boundary line and imagine that the United States is the leader. The first inter-club golf match in America was played at Quebec in 1876, with a victory for the golf club of that city over that of Montreal, by twelve holes. The course was the historic Cove Fields where, somewhat over a century before, Wolfe and Montcalm had met in the combat that was to decide possession of Canada. The Quebec Golf Club is the second oldest on the continent, the distinction of being the first going to the Royal Montreal Golf Club which, in 1923, celebrated its jubilee. There are now some 400 golf clubs in the country, every province having its quota.

A feature of Canada's 1924 season was the amazing growth of what is sometimes known as "Public Golf," but more often as "Municipal Golf." The reference is to courses laid out wholly or partly at the expense of the municipality, and for which the playing fee is small. In some cases there is a nominal membership fee, and an organization which under the auspices of the municipality, controls the course. Methods differ in various sections, but a most important point is that municipal golf invariably pays its own way. Edmonton and Calgary have the oldest municipal courses in Canada and 1924 was a record season on both. The same was true of Medicine Hat and Moose Jaw.

Winnipeg had to open a second one. Hamilton's public course was all to the good; London had a whopping year; so did the municipal courses in Montreal and Toronto. Brantford is reported ready to open one this year and many other municipalities are going to or will soon be compelled to do the same. There are others but it would not be possible to deal with all in this article.

All this, in addition to the increase in the number of private clubs and the steady additions to their membership. The tale in this regard is the same all across the continent. St. John never had keener interest in golf than now. Halifax tells the same story. From in the game, and the fine qualities it develops. Saskatoon isn't very old, as history goes, but it has golf clubs and courses that would delight the man who lives for golf alone.

In Ontario there are many places where the game is played amid historic surroundings. Belleville and Kingston are two that might be instanced. Peterborough, Ottawa and Windsor are among the places where golfers are at home.

Already there is speculation as to the Canadian amateur event taken place at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, Ottawa, June 29-July 4, and the Canadian open championships at the Lambton Golf and Country Club, Toronto, July 30-Aug. 1. The sharp are discussing pros and cons and trying to pick winners just like the politicians do months before an election.

Miss Mabel Roy, of Montreal, is a guest for the holidays of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Duboyce. On Wednesday Mrs. Duboyce entertained at a tea and shower for Miss Roy, whose marriage takes place shortly.

When the thirty-six guests were assembled in the living room the hostess called upon Mrs. F. Dyson, who gave two humorous readings, after which she announced that the next item would be a duet composed by local talent and given by two little girls, the titles being "An April Shower." A huge basket decorated in pink and white and laden with gifts was then brought in by little Misses Betty Hall and Dorothy Stafford and presented to the guest of honor, who, although taken by surprise, thanked her friends for their gifts and the pleasure she was having in meeting her old friends of Richmond. After the basket had been thoroughly examined, Miss Roy, on behalf of the hostess, presented the two little gift bearers with gold signet rings in remembrance of the day. The friends then adjourned to the dining room, where tea was served. Mrs. George Norris pouring tea, Mrs. E. Richmond coffee, and Mrs. Louis LeMoine cutting the loaves. Assisting in serving were the Misses Tillie Bidgood, Mabel Parkes and Myrtle E. Dyson, while Mrs. D. W. Stevens and Mrs. L. W. Stevens, of Sherbrooke, looked after the guests.

The decorations in the tea room were in yellow spring flowers, those in the living room being red tulips. The guests, who were all members of the church of which Miss Roy's father was formerly pastor, extended best wishes to the guest for happiness and a long life.

Mrs. George Gilchrist, of Glenmont avenue, held an afternoon tea at her home on Tuesday in aid of the W.M.S. of the Methodist Church. Although the weather was not all that could be desired, a goodly number attended. The small tea tables, profusely decorated with cut flowers, were set in three rooms, and at the large table Mrs. P. C. Duboyce and Miss Tina Cross poured tea, while Mrs. R. E. McArthur, Mrs. L. Boast, Miss T. Bidgood and Miss B. Cross served. One of the results of this effort on the part of Mrs. Gilchrist was the addition of about twelve dollars to the treasury of the Women's Missionary Society.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Annie Lulla Gray, who died April 22nd, 1919.

There came a call from Heaven
Just six years ago today.
It took our dear, kind mother
To that heavenly home above.
Our home on earth is lonely,
Her place is vacant still,
For we know there is no other
That can fill our mother's place.
We are still shouldering our burden
Which God has called us to do,
Then some day, dear mother,
We shall rest in peace with you.

CHICAGO.—When four internationally known men place their seal of approval upon a Child Welfare movement such as the Junior First Aid Legion, organized in Chicago, we may be sure that there is great need for it. The tragic death of President Coolidge's son Calvin, served to show that no wound is slight.

Every year, throughout North America, twenty thousand children between the ages of ten and fourteen, meet death through accident, and over three hundred thousand are injured. This does not take into account the many accidents to children of different ages.

No more will the false precepts of goose grease and raw beef be tolerated when Willie comes home with a badly bruised eye or lacerated foot or palm, for Willie is a member of the Junior First Aid Legion. He has a plainly written and illustrated First Aid Book and a compact first aid kit. He understands the danger of neglecting an open wound, be it ever so slight. He is not only taught to minister to his own hurts, but understands how to care for his comrades in time of stress.

Word comes from Health Commissioner Bundesen, of Chicago; Doctor F. J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner of New York; Director General Charles H. Hodgetts, of St. John Ambulance Association, Ottawa, Canada; Uncle Dan Beard, National Executive of the Boy Scouts of America; Lester F. Scott, National Executive of The Camp Fire Girls; Doctor Fred C. Zapffe, of American Association of Medical Colleges, and Doctor Harry W. Gentles, of the Chicago Chapter, American Red Cross, heartily endorsing this movement. These men will act as judges for worthy first aid performances in 1925.

"The Junior First Aid Legion plan of giving children simple and complete First Aid Instruction is one that should have the appreciation and cooperation of every father and mother," said Doctor Bundesen. "I feel that there is a great need throughout America for education work among boys and girls, on how to give first aid in the common, everyday accidents to which children are subject."

In speaking about this new movement, Doctor Frank J. Monaghan stated, "I am most enthusiastic about the Junior First Aid Legion. Organizing the children into First Aid Classes is a big, fine work. If children knew what to do when accident comes, or if today's full-grown men and women had been taught First Aid when they went to school, you would see fewer people in hospitals today."

That interest in the Junior First Aid Legion is widespread is apparent. Director General Charles H. Hodgetts, of the St. John Ambulance Association of Ottawa, Canada, states, "The plan of interesting boys and girls in a study of the art of First Aid appeals to me. All school children should be taught the art, and the effort to popularize it through the Junior First Aid Legion will go a long way towards stimulating the study."

In an interview with Doctor Harry W. Gentles, of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross, he stated, "Many people have a mistaken idea that the function of First Aid belongs to the battlefield. A great army of men and women and children lose their lives annually through the lack of immediate First Aid. If our boys and girls were taught that when they are hurt and there is an open wound, no matter how slight, it must be intelligently cared for, fewer minor accidents would result in tragedy."

Mothers will have less to worry about this coming summer, with its vacation activities and pastimes, which bring frequent accidents, if Willie of Six and John of Sixteen are members of The Junior First Aid Legion.

OTTAWA, April 22.—"A merger

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, before the House Committee on Railways and Shipping this morning, "would result in enormous savings. The saving would be sufficient in net earnings to meet fixed charges on both railways."

Sir Henry's declaration was made in reply to a question from W. D.
Euler, chairman of the committee.
On the subject of economy, Sir Henry said that he and E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C.P.R., had decided to appoint a joint committee of officers of the two roads to consider suggestions made. One of these was that one train a day should be taken off the Ottawa-Montreal and the Ottawa-Toronto run.

Criticized by Sir Henry Drayton
for expenditures on advertising, Sir Henry said that if the Canadian National officials found that advertising was necessary, "we are going to

FORECASTS AN

Only Between Fifty and Sixty
Per Cent. of Normal Winter
Cutting of Timber.

QUEBEC, April 22.—Forecasting
an improvement in the lumber business very shortly if people really got down to work, but adding that at present the conditions were not very brilliant, David Champoux, president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, is visiting Quebec.

Mr. Champoux was inclined to believe that very little profit, if any,
was being made at present by lumbermen. He said that during his term of office, which he intended especially to answer for, was the preservation of the forests either from fires or from destruction through abnormal cutting. As far as winter operations had been conducted he understood from reports on hand that only between fifty to sixty per cent of the normal cutting of timber had been going on, the majority of the large lumber interests reducing their operations to a minimum.

MONTREAL, April 22.—Fresh receipts of live stock on the market
this morning amounted to 3 cattle, 132 calves and 151 hogs. Prices were generally level with yesterday's quotations. The best lot of calves sold for $6.50, and the poorer ones were unsold at ten o'clock.
There were hardly enough hogs on sale today to establish a market.

DENIAL IS ISSUED BY PREMIER OF ONTARIO

TORONTO, April 22.—Premier Howard Ferguson last evening declared the report that permits for the sale of 4.4 beer were to be issued on a patronage basis and that the granting of the licenses were to be left to the judgment of Conservative members of the Legislature and defeated candidates, as "absolutely incorrect."

It was true, he said, that the recommendations of the Conservative members would be considered by the government, but so also would recommendations and suggestions from Liberal, Farmer and Labor members, as well as any other recommendations of weight by which the government might be guided.

Definite announcement that sale of the beer by permit holders would not be permitted after eleven o'clock on week days, an not at all on Sundays, except at meals in hotels, was made by the premier.

HERRIOT ELECTED
PRESIDENT OF FRENCH
CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

(Associated Press Despatch)
PARIS, April 22.—Former Premier Herriot was elected President of the Chamber of Deputies this evening. He received 270 votes, with but a single vote against him, the opposition abstaining from voting.

BUDGET DEBATE

It was not my policy," said he. As one who confessed to "some protectionist proclivities," he could not see that the Conservative group in the House had really been courageous enough to come out strongly for protection.

Personally, Mr. Raymond believed that if the protectionist resolution tentatively submitted by the leader of the Opposition could be carried out by any government, "it would shatter Confederation." There was a sort of genius in the history of Canada which could be best described as the spirit of concession.
On this spirit the warring provinces, which had been at each others' throats, had come to an agreement at Confederation. On this spirit peace had been reached between the French and English races in Canada. Only on this spirit of concession could be based a constructive policy for the whole of Canada, and Mr. Raymond believed that Premier King, who had done more than anybody else to reconcile labor and capital in Canada and in the United States, was the political leader most likely to successfully bring about such a spirit.

Tariff Board Something To Hide Behind.

John Morrison (Progressive, Weyburn) was "disappointed at the tardiness of the Government" in the matter of tariff reduction. At the same time, he had grown tired of listening to the chronic fault-finding of the Conservative group, which seemed to consider it a duty to cry "wolf, wolf" when nothing was wrong.

Mr. Morrison stated that the Liberals had declared to the country during the last elections, that they favored a low tariff; but when one came to Parliament "it took a magnifying glass to find the difference between a Liberal and a Conservative."

The tariff board in his opinion would merely be something for the Government "to hid behind." Our railways should "cut down their overhead." Canada, stated Mr. Morrison, could not prosper under high freight rates. He regretted that the Prime Minister had not yet brought down the alternative vote bill as promised by him last session.

IRREGULAR MOVEMENTS

NEW YORK, April 22.—Confused price movements took place at the opening of today's stock market. Selling pressure was renewed against Maxwell Motors, Baldwin, American Car and Foundry, and White Motors, all of which opened a point or so lower. Willis Overland preferred responded to the resumption of dividends by advancing 1 1/2 points, and American Sugar Refining and Frisco common also moved up a point each. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe dropped 1 1/2 to 1 1/4, a new 1925 low, and 116 points below the year's high, established two months ago.

their redemption.

PRESENT AND FUTURE EARNINGS

The average earnings for the last seven years, available for bond interest, sinking fund, depreciation, depletion and War Tax, have been $900,298. It is estimated that on account of the larger tonnage over which the overhead charges will be distributed in the future, this amount of $900,298 will be increased by $208,680 to $1,108,978. Based on an estimated market price for newsprint of $70 per ton, the earnings of the new Mill, available for bond interest, sinking fund, depreciation, depletion and War Tax, will amount to $1,146,316,—which added to the earnings from the Kraft Mill, will form a sum of $2,255,294.

These net earnings of $2,255,294 represent:

(a) over 4 1/2 times the amount required for the interest on the entire net outstanding bond indebtedness of Wayagamack Pulp & Paper Company, Limited, and its Subsidiary;

(b) a net sum of $1,642,775 available for the payment of the interest on the present bond issue of Detroit Took Fall Out of Cleveland and Washington Beat the Athletics — Yankees Successful.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEW YORK, April 22.—Ceremonies appropriately marking the golden jubilee of the National League will be combined with the raising of their fourth straight pennant by the New York Giants when they open their home season at the Polo Grounds today in the first brush of a series with the Boston Braves.

All the other teams in the National League will likewise resume play today after a day of inactivity out of respect to the memory of the late Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn Club.

In the American League, favored teams today were rapping at the back door to first place as the first week's leaders floundered insecurely after two defeats yesterday.

Erratic tossing cost both Philadelphia and Cleveland their games with Washington and Detroit. Chick Fewster's wild cast on a double play resulted in three Tiger runs, paving the way for Cobb's men to win by 4 to 3, while liberal distribution of passes among members of Stanley Harris' championship contingent by pitcher Lefty Groves, gave Washington an easy win over the Athletics by 6 to 2.

As a result of this faulty handling of the ball, Washington today is tied with Philadelphia for second place, only one game behind the pace-making Indians. The Yankees, who moved up another notch at the expense of the Red Sox, 5 to 1, today will be faced with heavier going when they open a return series with the Senators at Washington.

St. Louis, refreshed by two triumphs over the White Sox, following their disastrous opening with the Indians, today will attempt to retrieve their four straight defeats at the hands of the American League leaders. Tobin and Robertson yesterday helped the Browns out of the cellar with homers which figured materially in clinching a tight game by 9 to 8.

A home run by Picinich was the only tally which Boston was able to collect against the fine pitching of Sam Jones, of the Yankees, and that run was insufficient to save them from the League pit. The Red Sox fell to the bottom under heavy hitting by the Huggins team, which won without being extended by 5 to 1.

The result of the games played yesterday follows:

GOLF

GOLFERS PREPARING FOR BUSY SEASON

Quite a number of local golfers have been limbering up at the St. Francis Golf Club course during the past two weeks in preparation for the coming season's activities. Temporary tees and greens are being used as yet, but it is expected that within the next week several of the regular greens will be in play.

Dave Turnbull is on duty at the club house, and the Club has been very fortunate in securing the services of a first class green-keeper in the person of Alfred Lawrence, who last year worked under "Paddy" Grant at the new Lachine course.

The members of the green committee have been at work and have drawn up an interesting card of fixtures, subject to final arrangement of inter-club games and competitions. They expect to be able to announce the programme shortly.

LENNOXVILLE TEAM HELD MEETING

The Lennoxville Football Club met last evening at the Odd Fellows' Lodge room with a good attendance of members and players. The vice-president, Mr. C. E. Boddy, acting as chairman in the absence of the president, Mr. Owen McCoy.

Quite a number of important questions were brought up for discussion, one of which was that the club ask the Q.C.R. team to come to Lennoxville and play an exhibition game on Saturday, April 25th, each team to have the privilege of substituting their men during the game.

In this way each team would get beneficial practice for the league games and the position of the respective players would be ascertained more than in the regular practice periods.

C.C. BALLANTYNE
HAS CHALLENGED
J. ARCHAMBAULT

Former Minister of Marine Scout- ed Suggestion that Government Could Control Ocean Rates.

(Associated Press Despatch) MONTREAL, April 22.—That, while he was not contemplating offering himself at the next Federal elections, he was willing to pit himself against Joseph Archambault, Liberal, Chambly-Vercheres, in any of the constituencies of St. Lawrence, St. George, St. Antoine or Mount Royal, was the challenge of Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, late Minister of Marine in the last administration, in an address here last evening.

Mr. Ballantyne dwelt largely on the Petersen contract, but made passing reference to the statements Mr. Archambault had made Monday in his speech on the budget. The speaker scouted the suggestion that the Government could control ocean rates.

It was also decided to purchase new sweaters this year, the color being blue and white stripes. The returns for the raffle were very promising but there are a few books out yet which must be returned before Friday evening, April 24. The results of the raffle will be published either Saturday night or Monday night, April 25th or 27th respectively.

QUEEN'S TO BE HANDLED OVER TO
UNITED CHURCH

Statement Made by Principal of Queen's Theological College— Expects Increase in Number of Students.

(Associated Press Despatch) KINGSTON, Ont., April 22.—Rev. Dr. S. W. Dyde, principal of Queen's Theological College, in discussing the future of the college, today stated that it is almost a certainty that the college will eventually be handed over to the United Church of Canada, and that under the new influence he believed there would be a considerable increase in the number of students in attendance.

Asked if there was any danger that the United Church would close Queen's Theological College and carry off the $200,000 endowment, in its policy.

CONFLAGRATION CAUSED
$500,000 PROPERTY DAMAGE

Fifteen Business Buildings and Nearly Two Hundred Homes Were Consumed by Flames.

(Associated Press Despatch) NOGALES, Ariz., April 22.—Special despatches to the Herald say hundreds were made homeless and property damage approximating $500,000 was caused yesterday by a fire which devastated a large portion of Cananea, Sonora, Mexico.

Fifteen business buildings and nearly two hundred homes were consumed by fire.

Principal Dyde replied:

"It is not easy to say. The United Church might wish to strengthen itself in Toronto as compensation for the loss of Knox. Moreover, since the war the Presbyterian Church has several times discussed its colleges. You see, we had not so many students as before the war, and many believed that we could do better work with fewer colleges. The classes would be larger and the expense not so great. However, the church finally decided to make no change in its policy."

PROTEST HAS BEEN ISSUED
BY JUGO-SLAVIA

Note Affirms that Jugo-Slavia Has Always Maintained Best Relations With Bulgaria.

BELGRADE, April 22.—The Jugo-Slav Government has issued a note protesting against reports regarding Jugo-Slavia which it claims have been disseminated from Bulgarian centres. The note says these reports are to the effect that a terrorist campaign is being carried on in Bulgaria with a view to provoking disorders and civil war, "so as to permit the army of our western neighbor, that is to say, Jugo-Slavia, to pass the frontier and occupy Bulgaria."
