Vol. XXXIII, No. 49 MONTREAL 6, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1965 20 Pages 5c

Holiday hours

The Westmount Public Library will be closed Friday, Dec. 24, and all day Saturday, Dec. 25, Christmas Day.

It will again be closed on Friday, Dec. 31, and all day Jan. 1, New Years Day.

The Library will be open on Monday, Dec. 27, and Monday, Jan. 3, for normal business.

Rent rates rise

Like everything else, the cost of living at Victoria Hall is going up.

This fact was brought to light last week when it was announced that the Westmount Stamp Club, which had been located in Westmount for 32 years and meeting in Victoria Hall since the war, were forced to move due to rising rents.

The club had been paying $600 a year for their weekly meetings or $15 a meeting. Due to a drop over the years in membership, the figure became too much to handle. When they took their case to officials in Westmount they were turned down. Result, they are now located in the N.D.G. Community Centre and have changed their name to that of the Montreal Stamp Club.

GOOD REASON

"There was a very good reason for this," said Ross Shepard, the director of Victoria Hall, "it

Firemen prepare Christmas toys

It's "Toy Time" again in Westmount. Local firemen, for the second year, are helping Santa Claus to bring Christmas happiness to under-privileged children. They are repairing the collection of toys at their New Fire Hall on Stanton street.

These toys will be delivered to the more unfortunate children on the eve of Wednesday, December 22nd. of this year.

The members of the Westmount Fire Fighters Association, Local 981 I.A.F.F., would like to thank everyone who helped by donating toys for this worthy cause. A special word of thanks is in order to City Authorities and all others who made this event possible.

Any toys you may wish to donate during the coming year, would be greatly appreciated by both the Association and the children who will receive them.

6% charge on unpaid taxes here

The rate of interest on unpaid taxes to the City of Westmount has been set at 6% per annum.

This figure was passed on Monday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the council.

Alderman P. McEntyre, Commissioner of Finance, moved that the figure be passed on all school taxes not paid from the period of Nov. 1, 1965 to Feb. 1, 1966 and all other taxes assessed by the city and unpaid from Jan. 1, 1966 to May 1, 1966.

When questioned by council about the rate, Alderman McEntyre said that this was the highest amount that the city was allowed to charge under its present charter. "I'd like to charge the same rate the banks do," he said, "but we are unable to go over 6%."

QLB interested

The Quebec Liquor Board would be more than happy to open an outlet in Westmount, if the city council invites them to do so.

An official of the QLB said yesterday that if a referendum were held and favored liquor in Westmount, even though an outlet is present on the western border, there would be a store in Westmount in short order.

"We never go into a city or town," said the spokesman, "unless we are invited by the council of that city or town."

Tax evaluation address set by Peter McEntyre

The fall general meeting of the Westmount Municipal Association will be held this Tuesday, Dec. 14, at 8.15 p.m. in the Concert Room of Victoria Hall.

The meeting will be highlighted by a talk on property taxes and evaluation to be given by the guest speaker Alderman Peter M. McEntyre, Commissioner of Finance for the City of Westmount.

In announcing the meeting, Charles Aspler, president, emphasized that the meeting would be open to all citizens of Westmount. "Recent increases in property evaluation have concerned many," Mr. Aspler stated, "and the Association is providing this opportunity to the citizens of Westmount to discuss this with the city officials.

Westmount's

During the course of the meeting, the Civic Nominating Committee will recommend that the following be nominated. For aldermen, I. S. Backler and J. H. Richer, for School Commissioners, Dr. H. L. Mussells and A. R. Tilley and for Library Trustee, M. H. Blakely. Mr. Backler and Mr. Richer are finishing their current terms as Aldermen.

There will also be the election of four members of the Association at large to serve on the Nominating Committee for officers and executives of the Association.

There will be a question and answer period where all citizens are invited to seek out any information they may need.

Any question that might require prior attention and investigation should be presented in writing to the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. T. E. Wright, 37 Bruce Avenue, Westmount 6.

Council highlights

Expenses and salaries paid out by the City of Westmount for the month of October amounted to $676,274.54.

The mayor and the city clerk have been authorized by the council to sign another two year agreement with the Westmount Police Association beginning June 1, 1965.

The City Council has accepted a petition submitted by the Selby Street area Tenants' Association and the mayor has promised to give it careful consideration. The council is expected to report back to the Tenants' Association in 5-6 months. As a result of a long study made by the Chief Librarian, the Director of Public Safety and the Director of Public Works, a $17,290 sprinkler system will be installed in the Westmount Public Library.

Parking during the winter on Columbia Avenue for the past 14 years has been a real problem. Well, no more.

This winter restrictions on parking on the east side of the street have been lifted and the once limited parking on the west side has been done away with also.

Westmount has agreed in principle to co-operate with the City of Montreal in the erection of a twin tower for the upcoming Expo 67. It was made clear at the council meeting that this agreement does not commit Westmount and also that it was a friendly (Continued on page 2)

Your ideas mean $$$

Talk throughout Westmount has turned to the Centennial Project. Nearly everywhere people are, in the course of their conversation, discussing the project.

Talking about it is the first step, the second is writing about it. This we invite you to do. Put your ideas down on paper and send them to The Examiner as an entry in our Centennial Contest.

We are offering $100 for the best idea submitted to us. All letters are handed over to the Westmount Municipal Association where, at the end of December, a winner will be picked. The winning letter is worth $100.

The only rules to this contest are that your ideas be original and that you be a regular reader of this paper.

Send in your ideas as to the best way Westmount could make use of a Centennial project and address your letters to:

Next week's weather

December 11 to 18, 1965

By ERIC NEAL

Mainly sunny with some wind and powder snow. Moonlit nights, blue sky cloudless dawns and orange and salmon tinted sunsets. Very cold, temperatures zero and 35°F. This is the beginning of freeze-up in the north country with below zero nights. Ice forming along shores of the St. Lawrence.

Normally, the middle of this week should be extremely cold everywhere with 2 to 3" of powder snow and gusty winds. Very low temperatures continuing in the north and east. For some places in the south, easing a little with white frosts, freezing drizzle and soft snow, then turning really cold with wind-driven powder snow.

The snow falls this week could amount to 10 inches, but we could have the equivalent precipitation in southern counties as 1" of rain.

Dream a little... about spending the Yuletide season in a French Château

Picture a French Château in old Québec. Inside, a medievally-garbed ceremonial procession heralding the arrival of the Boar's Head, the Baron of Beef, and other traditional Yuletide favourites. Now add a huge fireplace with a blazing Yule log and deck all the halls with old-time Christmas decorations. Dream all this, then live it this Christmas when you visit Le Château Frontenac in old Québec. A French Château in the heart of French Canada's capital city. Kearney, of 17 Weredale Park, Westmount, a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, foreground left, is shown how to aim an FN C-1 semi-automatic rifle by Sergeant M. P. Favreau, right, of the 8th Canadian Hussars. Watching is Sapper E. W. C. Whitehouse, a member of the 3rd Field Engineer Regiment, Westmount. Kearney and Whitehouse are members of the Militia in Montreal who graduated this weekend from a junior non-commissioned officer's course held by instructional staff from the Canadian Army (Regular) to bring militia members up to higher standards.

Local youth completes new army course

Lance-Corporal D. J. Kearney, 17 Weredale Park, Westmount, is one of fifteen candidates who successfully completed a Junior non-commissioned officers course last weekend, at the Royal Montreal Regiment. He is now eligible for promotion to the rank of Corporal in the Canadian Army (Militia).

The course, which ran for five weekends, was conducted by the Canadian Army (Regular) according to recommendations of the Suttie Commission Report, tabled earlier this year, stressing that the Militia should be trained by instructors of the Regular Army to Regular Army standards. This is one of the first such course offered under the new training plan.

Qualified of leadership, man management, customs of the service, mutual instruction, how to run military stores, military law, fieldcraft, map using, drill, rifle and sub-marine gun training, were some of the subjects covered.

Junior NCO courses will be continued throughout the year under the supervision of Canadian Army (Regular) instructional staff. In the past, the practice has been to run only one such course each year for the Militia, but the new policy calls for more courses to meet more stringent requirements to bring the Militia up to Regular Army standards.

A revolutionary new concrete prefabricated system building has been developed and patented by a Westmount architect, working on research projects for housing.

"This system far exceeds the merits," said Mezes, "of the handful of European systems at present in use."

The aim of the architect-developer of the system, was to find the right ways and the right technology, to build low-cost projects. The problem is a universal one. The ever-increasing population; the obsolescence of existing structures; scrapping of whole blocks and districts, to give way to progress results in decreasing the available living-spaces, thus creating enormous problems in housing the families of today.

"The only possibility that remains, is to industrialize the building trade, to build structures prefabricated by a mechanized process — similar to the car industry," said Mezes.

"Out of the handful of system-buildings in use today, there may be only one or two which do this job fairly efficiently. Most of the others are already obsolete, due to technological advances in the meantime, not to mention their drabby and ugly appearance — slightly above outrageous."

This new system is claimed by professionals in the trade, to be an outstanding success, an aesthetically beautiful, and economically simple way of building."

Due to its outstanding merits, the architect proposes that a prototype of this structure would be erected in our own backyard in Westmount, as a Centennial Housing Project, to make use of what it was designed to do: erecting low-cost housing.

IN WESTMOUNT

Mr. Mezes proposes that a suitable size of apartment project for the lower Westmount residents, awaiting to vacate their premises, would be built.

"The cost of a Centennial Project is being financed 50% by the Federal Government. It would be logical to choose a project at least of this magnitude."

In all fairness to all parties concerned, the project could be used by the Federal Authorities, or Expo Corporation, during the World's Fair, to help accommodate visitors flooding Montreal — thus regaining a substantial amount of the cost of the project — and turned over to the City of Westmount after the Fair, to use at the City's discretion, in housing these families. One merit of the system proposed, is the unprecedented speed. The build-

WE SAY

Expo deal good; an adult attitude

BRAVO! Westmount's city fathers once again show the way to other Island municipalities in co-operating with the core-city of Montreal.

We did it in agreeing to contribute to Metro underground - subway costs.

We're going to do it again by joining in Montreal's imaginative Expo tower.

It's an adult attitude. Toward the City of Montreal, to which we are inextricably linked.

Toward greater, metropolitan Montreal, of which we are a small but important part.

But what we like best of all: Westmount, to French Canada the bastion of "les anglais," shows readiness and leadership for co-operation with cosmopolitan yet predominantly French Montreal.

Two solitudes there need not be.

Quebec's 'anglais' nation's linch pin

THERE are more persons of British origin in Quebec than in six of the other nine provinces.

We are grateful to Mr. Glen Brown, footballer and MPP for Brome, for that thought-provoking bit of knowledge, vouchsafed recently to a meeting of the Quebec Newspapers Association.

We English-speaking are no less a minority in Quebec.

But what a minority! Separate us if you will from our fellow Quebecois, we are a big enough group to tell all but Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta's British-descended where to head in.

Or to interpret French Canada — still better, interpret Quebec and its special problems in Confederation — to the rest of Canada.

Ours is the unique opportunity to be both Quebecers AND English-speaking Canadians. More and more of us are grasping that role.

As Mr. Brown puts it: "We can be the linch pin between Canadians."

YOU SAY

Centennial Contest replies

Sir: A centennial project should look ahead while it is looking back. It should benefit the community while suitably commemorating 100 years of history.

Westmount shares with all Quebec something seldom found in the rest of Canada — an abundance of handsome and irreplaceable old buildings. This is what distinguishes Montreal from Toronto or Vancouver. Montreal is the only large Canadian centre with many living symbols of the continuity of our history.

It is this which gives its richness, variety and visual interest.

Unfortunately these unique old buildings have been vanishing with frightening speed in recent years. Obviously it is hard to argue with economic fact, but what a tragedy if we sell our entire birthright for a mess of tax relief.

Westmount has more than its share of fine old buildings. Some are given loving restoration. Others — some of them among the finest examples of Victorian architecture extant — look dangerously in peril of redevelopment.

So this is my suggestion for a centennial project. One of the city's fine old houses, preferably with adequate gardens, should be bought and converted into a Centennial House — a community centre, but with a difference.

The possibilities for use are endless. Obviously Centennial House could incorporate a small "history of Westmount" or Canadiana museum. But that is far from enough. The centre should be a living entity in the community, looking ahead as well as back.

What about a teen-age a go-go. An art gallery with evening and Saturday art classes? A small auditorium for concerts and amateur productions?

Extension classes in languages, astronomy, wine-tasting or what have you? Lessons in

New Commandant: Mrs. Florence Seymour Bell has been elected Senior Commandant of the Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps, which meets at 14 Werdale Park, it was announced this week.

In announcing the appointment, corps officials said: "Mrs. Bell is the ideal officer for such an important post. She has dignity, self-confidence and can enforce strict discipline. The humblest private in the corps may approach her with a problem big or small, and receive sympathetic and helpful advice. Her legal knowledge makes her an invaluable asset to the Corps."

CMA sees rise in consumer spending

Planned investment expenditures for 1966 and 1967 are about 45 per cent higher than the 1963 figure for a significant number of larger corporations, T. J. Kennedy, vice-chairman, Quebec Division, Canadian Manufacturers Association, told Westmount Rotary this week.

A local resident of many years standing and a product of local schools, Mr. Kennedy said in part: "Clearly, these particular companies at any rate are thinking in terms of the economy continuing to expand at a respectable rate and are making plans accordingly."

Why are they so optimistic? The basic reason undoubtedly is the outlook for consumer spending in Canada over the next few years.

In terms of per head of population, of course, we already rank as the second most wealthy country in the world and getting more so. In 1963, the most recent year for which figures are available, national output per person in Canada reached a record of $2,263 U.S., a figure exceeded only by the figure of $3,090 per person in the U.S.A.

Beyond any doubt, the Canadian figure will rise substantially between now and 1970 and be a factor in the expected sharp increase in annual per capita consumer spending which the Economic Council foresees in this period.

Increased ownership

This growing Canadian affluence is finding expression in many ways, not merely in the more modern and better equipped houses in which an increasing proportion of our population is living but also in the increasing ownership of everything from automobiles to outboard motors, to skidoos, and to ever heavier outlays on such things as long distance travel, dining out and a host of services, many of which were available only to a relative few a generation ago.

One of the most encouraging and significant contemporary developments is the fact that our population is getting younger and these younger people among us are incomparably better off than their parents and better educated.

The Economic Council is suggesting that we need at least an annual increase in per capita spending of around three per cent, which doesn't sound much. However, this is more than twice the yearly increase we had in the seven-year period ending in 1963.

Fortunately, the indications now are that this kind of growth in demand through the remainder of the sixties is well within the bounds of our economic capacity, largely because of the pre-natal expansion in our population and labour force.

Yet, as the report makes clear, everything depends on there being productive jobs for this vast army of young Canadians and the blunt truth is that even the dynamic growth of our domestic economy, which we can hopefully but reasonably expect, will not in itself be enough to guarantee employment on the necessary scale.

Growth is essential

Continued annual growth in our exports — particularly of manufactured goods — is absolutely essential. In making this point, the Economic Council does not fail to note the importance of the dramatic upswing in our foreign sales of finished goods, particularly since 1960. But, says the report, there is need for an average rate of growth in the volume of such exports of at least ten per cent per year to 1970. It goes on to say that recent experience provides grounds for believing that opportunities will be available for such a performance. It bases this belief on a continuation of sustained growth of world industrial production and conditions favouring rapidly growing world trade.

Stepping up our exports at this rate will quite obviously necessitate our products being competitive in price as in everything else and much is rightly made in the report of the importance of reasonable price and cost stability.

And so to conclude, it is obvious that the C.M.A. are confident that Canadian manufacturers will continue to work for and gain a still larger share of the expanding market. This will allow industry to absorb more and more of the young people coming into the market and help the manufacturing industry maintain its most important position in the economic growth of Canada for the overall benefit of the whole country.

NEW STANSTEAD HEADMASTER: Appointment of RAYMOND LESTER, (left), B. Paed. (Manitoba), Dip. Ed. (London) as headmaster of Stanstead College has been announced by ERIC T. Well, our social committee has done it again! The dance last Saturday was fabulous! The floor was crammed with people just having a ball. The "Cellar Dwellers" caused a real sensation, playing all the latest numbers from the Beatles, Stones, Herman's Hermits, and so on. They certainly earned their salt: Eaton's Bandstand provided the records: their usual great dancing sounds. The dances keep getting better and better; each successive one surpasses the other. If you haven't experienced one of our balls, you've missed the time of your life!

I have heard this was about the best dance to be held in the old gym, rumors are we may move to a shining new gym — cum — rec hall in the rebuilt part of St. Leo's.

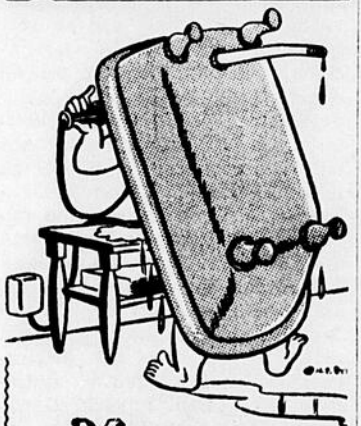

Glee Club is going full speed ahead. Rehearsals are being held for the performance at the PTA meeting on Dec. 15, at St. Paul's. We intend to display our usual fine voice.

Plans are underway for our annual Christmas Dinner, to be held Dec. 16. This delicious banquet is a Merry Christmas present to all the high school and teachers, from themselves. It promises to be quite a party!

The presses are rolling once again in our Academy journal! They promise us an issue very soon; frustrated authors have an opportunity to remove that bushel and show off their shining light to an eager public. An enthusiastic response is guaranteed.

Over 25 per cent of the drownings in Canada last year resulted from boating mishaps. Boating's fun when safely done. Be water wise. This is Red Cross Water Safety Week in Canada.

St. Paul's, St. Leo's entertain

More than one hundred pupils of St. Paul's and St. Leo's Academies with the willing cooperation of their teachers, have voluntarily added a new subject to their homework during the busy pre-Christmas weeks.

The extra subject is entertainment, and from all reports, the girls and boys have taken to it with an enthusiasm seldom mustered for the subjects reflected in the new-style report cards.

The fruits of their efforts will be displayed to parents at a gala evening this Wednesday, Dec. 15 starting at 8 p.m. in St. Paul's Academy on Cote St. Antoine Road.

The program is ambitious — one that would be a challenge to an experienced impresario, but with so much heart it is assured of success.

The St. Paul's part of the program is varied. The High Senior Glee Club under the direction of Sister Mary-Louise will present a general selection. The accompanist will be Anne McNally. Grade 8 girls of the Junior Glee Club will be conducted by Mother St. James of Mary.

Grade 9 pupils have been kept busy by Miss MacKenzie rehearsing a nativity play. "The Other Shepherd," while Grade 8 students have been working under the direction of Miss Mari-Pat O'Boyle and Mother Shiela Sullivan on something in a lighter vein, The Christmas scene from "Little Women."

ST. LEO'S

At St. Leo's Academy, 7th grade teacher Kevin Deegan has spread his talents. He has boys from grades one to 7 working during lunch breaks and on days off on a play. "No Room at the Inn." The play, an adaptation of a story, was scripted by Mr. Deegan, and he will be producer, director, stage manager and, possibly, prompter.

Parents are now busy searching basements for shepherds' cloaks, crooks and sandals. But it's so long since shepherds' guarded their flocks in Westmount that the pupils will probably wind up with an assortment of adaptations — anyway, the old shepherds' cloaks would not fit.

Few performances are as rewarding to parents and teachers as those of children, and with the heart and enthusiasm displayed by the pupils of the two schools, the performance this Wednesday will be most rewarding.

Partners or Partisans?

The second of a three part series

THE THOUGHTS here expressed are those of a very-near Westmounter who resides at 4900 Upper Roslyn avenue and describes himself as "an ordinary English-speaking Canadian, originally of Ontario," who has been for nearly 38 years a citizen of Quebec. Of those years, 36 were spent working with both French and English Canadians in The Shawinigan Water and Power Company, of which he was president when the electric utility was nationalized by the Quebec government in 1963. "Partners or Partisans?" was written toward the end of 1964 and has been published in booklet form, in French and English, by Mr. Mainguy. Since then events in Canada and further discussions with fellow Canadians of both languages have strengthened his conviction that the need is urgent for Canadians to face up to the country's major problem, and to do all they can to help toward its solution "before it is too late." Mr. Mainguy hopes that his article "may contribute in some small measure to a non-partisan dialogue — a necessary prelude to better understanding."

The Great Awakening

The awakening in Quebec was a long-delayed realization of the tremendous potential of French Canada and of the lag that existed because of failure to take full advantage of its own human and material resources and of its opportunities. It was a realization that Quebec had great political power which it could use to its advantage, and that its people had the potential abilities and the energies, if properly directed, to accomplish things perhaps not even dreamed of in the past.

In a recent speech by a Quebec cabinet minister to a French Canadian audience, he said, "In 1867 Quebec became a distinct and autonomous entity, endowed with extremely wide powers. It became master of its education, of its health and social security, and of its laws. What use did it make of these powers? Confederation did not deprive us of power; it gave us too much. In 1867, knowing that our government was in our hands, we relied (too much) upon our autonomy."

He went on to say that in the field of hospitalization everything had been left to the religious communities to do by themselves — that in the economic field the principle of "money talks" had been applied — that in the educational field the clergy were left the whole responsibility for higher and collegiate education — and finally that in the constitutional domain, there was failure to take advantage of appeals to the Supreme Court and Privy Council, as Ontario had done, to win provincial autonomy.

These are remarkably frank and courageous statements from a leading French Canadian to his own people. They show the honest soul-searching behind the determination and prodigious efforts of French Canadians to build a better future for Quebec.

That Quebec has really awakened and is rapidly and radically changing, is evident to anyone who has eyes to see and ears to hear. Politically socially, economically, industrially, educationally, and culturally, great strides are being made — notable changes towards liberalization in the church are apparent. In many fields there is still a very long way to go — there are incredible difficulties and there are mistakes — but there is a new spirit and determination. As our compatriots say, "ça bouge au Québec — things are moving in Quebec."

Revolt Against the Old Order (In Quebec)

A book by a young teaching Brother, published in 1960, which sold more copies in a year than has any other Canadian book in a like period, gives an insight into (and no doubt contributed towards) the changes in Quebec thinking. This is "The Impertinences Of Brother Anonymous". (Les Insolences du Frère Untel).

Ottawa ever since. The second is the enormous growth in the financial needs of the provinces and municipalities, without proportionate increase in the power of the provinces to meet these needs themselves, through provincial taxation.

The whole question of striking a new balance between federal powers on the one hand, and provincial autonomy on the other, is of course a basic one in making Confederation work. Constructive steps have already been taken, particularly in the fiscal field—progress is being made in federal-provincial relations—and the repatriation of the constitution has been agreed to in principle, subject to ratification by the provincial parliaments.

Nevertheless, the "Revolt Against Confederation" will be resolved only by a new "partnership" approach to the whole problem.

wants tangible evidence of recognition and acceptance. This requires, first a revised, modernized and flexible constitution, evidencing at least that both people agree upon the course they are going to try to follow. Second, it requires the more difficult and even more important proof of acceptance, in word in attitude, and in action, by the people and various governments of English Canada.

While French Canadians are united as to their fundamental objectives, they are divided as to the means of attainment. There seem to be three, perhaps four principal schools of thought as to where they can find what they want. Some believe it in separatism—some in an associate state or special statute—and some in cooperative federalism. We shall try to deal briefly here with each of these.

No one has yet demonstrated just what would happen to the economies of Quebec or of Canada in the event of separation. Is it expected that there would be a common currency? If so, why, and how? World confidence, and consequently world investment in and trade with a new State of Quebec would not be determined by its unquestionably rich natural resources alone, but by its proven stability —by its kind of government, its laws and its will and ability to abide by them. These things can be proven only with time. Canada has struggled for a hundred years to achieve its present position. No emerging nation can do this in a day or a year. Given time, no one can say that it would be impossible, but at best it would be long and difficult — it could be disastrous.

For English speaking Canadians the future would also be uncertain. Canada's present economic position is at best one of such great dependence upon the United States that it is difficult to visualize a fragmented Canada as a continuing economic or perhaps even political entity. Nevertheless, those blithely say that we would "join" the U.S., seem to be taking an awful lot for granted. What would the U.S. do if Canada broke up? Just exactly what any nation would do—i.e. whatever was best politically, economically, and defensively for herself—no more, no less. And this would not necessarily be what we wanted at all. We have not been invited to join, yet some people talk as if all we had to do is say "Here we are let us in". Another point what would Russia do? Just feel sorry for us and offer us completely disinterested help?

In all the discussions of separatism which I have heard or read, I have yet to find any thoughtful reference to how it would be accomplished. Is it assumed that the B.N.A. Act provides an automatic escape formula for any province that decides it wants to pack up go home? Is it supposed to be a negotiated deal, the parties striking the best bargain they can with the cards they hold? Even if we leave aside the violent extremists, it is expected that everyone is going to agree to some amicable partition of assets and liabilities? Who gets what, why, and who says so? One of Quebec's complaints has been that eighty per cent of the province's wealth is owned by outsiders—i.e. non French Canadians. It is thought by the separatists that this can be confiscated, bought, or what? It is rather confusing, and it does seem strange that the mechanics of separation receive so little attention.

At this point a thought strikes me—one which has no doubt occurred to many Canadians. Our own special home-grown problem, though it looms pretty large at times in all our minds assumes somewhat more modest dimensions when we let our thoughts turn to the worldwide nuclear threat which hangs over us all.

In any event, we still have faith that the Canadian peoples will find a much better way than separation to solve their problem.

By W.F. Mainguy

The story of Frère Untel, and of changes in peoples' thinking, is really one of revolt against the old order, the status quo, the restrictions both real and imagined imposed by what are called "les gens en place" — established authority in whatever domain, French or English, in political, social, educational, economic, or religious fields.

It was natural, having realized that Quebec was far behind in many ways, that there should be a revolt against those responsible, or those thought to be responsible, for the old system. It is perhaps inevitable too, that in any revolt there be excesses and a tendency to regard any symbol of authority as bad, and to consider any group or individual having authority, as belonging to the enemy's camp—a sort of guilt by association. I believe that this is a significant factor in the situation in Quebec today, as indeed it is in other parts of the world as well.

The point we want to particularly emphasize here, is that quite a substantial part of Quebec's "Quiet Revolution" is a revolt against its own old systems. In the context of the overall Canadian problem, it is important to realize, and to make some allowance for the fact, that Quebec's leaders have their hands very full with problems of their own internal revolution.

Revolt Against Confederation

Besides a vigorous questioning of the wisdom and authority of its own leaders in many fields, Quebec, as a part of Canada, took a hard look at Confederation and asked itself whether there are also, in that relationship, serious restrictions upon the progress of Quebec. Its own answer to this question was "yes, there definitely are."

Coupled with, unfortunately, is an age-old and increasing feeling of resentment and frustration—a feeling that the rest of Canada has either ignored or actually opposed Quebec's legitimate aspirations. This feeling, intimately associated with language difficulties and other problems, has been increased in recent years by two major factors.

The first is the much greater centralization of power at Ottawa, applied of necessity in wartime but its return to the provinces stubbornly resisted by

V—What Quebec Wants

I believe that what is just about what we would want if we happened to be in their place.

I believe that what they want fundamentally, is recognition and acceptance as equals, in Canada and anywhere else, without loss of their identity as French Canadians, and the right and the means to realize their own aspirations, which are not necessarily always the same as, or necessarily in conflict with, those of other groups of Canadians.

W. F. MAINGUY

These things they have always wanted, without ever feeling that they had attained them. Now they are determined and confident that they are going to get them, and in the upsurge of enthusiasm amid the tremendous changes which are taking place, there is understandable confusion as to precise objectives and methods of obtaining them. There is of course danger too, that excesses and intemperate statements and demands may be self-defeating.

It is not enough however, to say that recognition and acceptance are what Quebec wants, and then leave it at that. Some people are inclined to say that Quebec had recognition in the British North American Act, so why can't she be satisfied? Without debating here what was said or not said in the Act, it seems to me that while a large measure of legal recognition may have been there, real acceptance, which is not a legal question but a matter of human understanding, was in many ways lacking.

If Quebec is going to be a partner in Confederation, she

VI—Separatism

I cannot believe that the French Canadian people will ever entrust their future to the kind of leaders who now urging separatism, or, in fact, to any separatist leaders unless they become convinced by English Canada's action or in action that there is no other way.

This is not to say that the separatist movement is not serious, or not strong. It would be very foolish to underestimate it, and it will certainly not disappear just because a lot of people don't like it or because efforts are made to muzzle it. On the contrary, it seems to thrive on opposition and on the undeserved amount of publicity it has been getting in Canada and elsewhere.

It is doubtful whether anyone knows the number of avowed separatists in Quebec—perhaps as a guess it is of the order of fifteen per cent. Most of them seem to desire separation by peaceful means but there is a small fringe of terrorists whose actions have done the separatist cause, as well as the cause of Quebec, far more than good.

I believe that the rest of the French Canadian people, while they all want the things we have already discussed, and while they are not yet in agreement as to how they can best be obtained, do not want separation and would not support it unless all else failed.

It should be remembered that most of today's young separatists know nothing except by hearsay or the printed word, of the wars of 1914-18 and 1939-45 which, though they produced strains within Canada, were nevertheless a unifying force. These young people do not appear to realize that without the joint efforts and sacrifices of English and French Canadians and others like them, they would not today be parading and shouting separatist slogans. They might well be goose-stepping and learning to speak German. It is upon some of their elders who know these things yet persist in inflaming the young to extremism, that a very heavy responsibility lies.

Separation would risk national suicide for both French and English Canadians. It is idle to argue which needs the other more—each people needs the other to survive as a strong sovereign nation which has, incidentally, one of the highest standards of living in the world.

FLAW IS REGIONALISM

The real weakness in the political structure, which was accentuated by (the election) results, is that no party at present can claim to be national, and to bridge the dangerous regional gaps which exist. There has never been such need for statesmanship on both sides of the House, forging acceptable formulae which may be embodied in a new constitutional structure. —Cochrane (Ont.) Northland Post.

Traffic committee checks dangerous intersections

The General Manager's Administrative Traffic Committee has been authorized by city council to spend some $6,000 in order to add traffic lights, stop and yield signs in locations throughout Westmount where the Committee has found, "potentially dangerous intersections."

The largest commitment, $5,600, was made in order that a set of overhead traffic lights may be installed at the intersection of Wood avenue and Sherbrooke street. This improvement is in accordance with a program of modernizing major traffic light controlled intersections.

A stop sign will be erected on Lexington avenue at the northwestern corner of Edgemoor road. This intersection has been found by the Traffic Committee to be dangerous without a stop sign.

A 20 mile per hour sign will be posted at west end of Edgemoor road between the Boulevard and Lexington avenue. This is a result of a pronounced incline at this location.

A yield sign will go up on Kensington avenue at the southwest corner of Cote St. Antoine road, for, as the Committee sees it, the right of way is not clearly established at this intersection.

GOODS MUST GO FAST

It is the general belief of bargain seekers that the retailer absorbs the loss when goods are not sold during periods of greatest demand. However, the concept is false. No retailer can stay in business by selling "spoiled" goods at a loss. The cost of spoilage and the accompanying increased storage costs are passed on to the consumer. The cost has to be added to the price of other goods which the consumer demands. —Lachute (Que.) Watchman.

Saturday morning, December 11th at 11:30 a.m. Sermonette by Rabbi Goldberg — "Israel Is Thy Name," based on Torah Portion.

JEWISH ECUMENISM: The Temple Brotherhood will be host to representatives of 25 Synagogue Brotherhoods of the City of Montreal and environs when it presents a program of Jewish Ecumenism on Wednesday evening, December 15 at 8:15 p.m. in the Grover Auditorium. Three Rabbis representing Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Judaism will be panel participants. They are — Rabbi Seymour Zambrowsky, Rabbi Dr. Samuel Cass and Rabbi Jay B. Goldberg. Rabbi Dr. Harry J. Stern will be the moderator and an open forum will be held giving emphasis to the urgent need of increased unity among Jews the world over. Convener for this meeting is Ted Nashman and a social hour will follow the program.

On Monday, November 29, Temple Brotherhood held an important meeting when Professor Irving Brecher addressed the gathering on "The War On Poverty." The lucky draw took place and a trip for two to Europe and Israel was won by Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Grover and a trip for one to Europe and Israel was won by Fred Becker of Toronto. These trips are made possible in co-operation with KLM Airlines. The successful fund-raising effort was carried through under the chairmanship of Saul Perelman.

CHANUKAH OBSERVANCES

The Feast of Lights commences Saturday evening, December 18 when the first Chanukah light is to be kindled. In all departments of the Religious School preparations are now being made for observance of this historic festival. On Saturday morning, December 18, the High School Assembly will be in charge of Class 10 with a program entitled "The Modern Meaning Of Chanukah." On Sunday morning, December 19 at 11 a.m. the Junior School annual Chanukah festival observance will take place with a dramatic performance entitled — "Hannah's Story" written and directed by Mrs. Lionel Morris, presented by pupils of classes 4a and 4b. Mrs. Bernard Reinharz and Miss Ruth Seavack, teachers.

The annual Sabbath Eve Candlelight Service in which confirmants of 1966 will participate will be held on Friday evening, December 24 at 8:15 p.m.

BRIDGE WITH THE EXPERTS

A pre-Chanukah program, Monday evening, December 13 at 7:45 p.m. Temple Community House.

Parking problem plagues public

If for some reason, you are called upon to visit city hall, your chances of getting a parking spot anywhere near the hall are slim.

There are 9 parking places for "Persons on business at city hall" which are located in the rear of the building. But, there are 13 reserved parking places for department heads.

To make matters worse, there are very few places to park near city hall.

You are not allowed to park on the north side of Sherbrooke street, or on either side of Cote St. Antoine. If you go all the way up to the annex on Stanton street and park at the rear of that building, you are (1) very lucky to get a place, (2) there, too, many places are reserved, and (3) because there are more cars than spots to park them in, double parking has evolved. In some case, you may spend a good half hour in search of the person who's car is blocking your exit.

Even if you are fortunate enough to get a place to park there, you are faced with a healthy hike to City Hall.

A temporary solution might be to make some arrangement with the owners of the vacant St. Andrew's lot to park the employee's cars there and leave more free space to the residents on the south side of Sherbrooke street and Argyle avenue, where all employees are now forced to park.

Or, sacrifice some of that fine greenery in front of the Hall for a small semi-circle driveway with parking on both sides.

The city knows that they have a problem in this case. But, there is little they can do about it according to officials.

Council refuses

Sometime ago, a suggestion was put forth to council to have the present parking lot at the rear of the hall widened by moving it east and west. Council refused the idea and is still waiting for more suggestions.

"We have broken our backs to supply parking," said one official, "but if it turns out to be anything like what happened on Greene avenue, we'll be no better off."

The city official was referring to the two buildings that were gutted by fire on Greene avenue near Sherbrooke street which the city took over and turned into a parking lot.

"Because people will not pay 25¢ to park in this lot, many of them still park illegally on Greene avenue and we have much the same problem we had before the lot was built," he said.

When asked if a lot was ever to be built at the hall, if there would be a change to park in it.

New building . . .

ing shown on the sketch can be put up in a matter of a few weeks."

"Here is an opportunity for Westmount to exercise its utmost human care," said the architect.

"Nothing can be more fitting to commemorate the Confederation, that to prove its basic concept: 'One for all, and all for one.'"

The Centennial Project — whatever it may be — should be of a practical value. And we actually have a practical problem now: what to do with this situation. Bandstands and the like are charming, but they do not help these families. It is our civic duty to rise above everything, and concentrate on solving the real problems, not trying to look for problems of an artificial and abstract nature."

Nativity pageant Sunday

On Sunday evening at 7.30 p.m. the pupils of St. Matthias' Church School will present a Pageant of the Nativity in the Church, under the direction of MISS ELIZABETH NEWILL. Music will be provided by the Boys' Choir.

At 11 o'clock in the morning a White Gift Service will be held in the Church School.

According to one scientist, the human brain could store about 50 times more information than is contained in the 9,000 volumes of the Library of Congress.

the official replied, "I don't see why not, you have to pay to park in the lot down at Montreal City Hall."

By the way, those "Reserved" signs at City Hall mean just that. As is the case 90% of the time when you drive in, all the public spaces are taken. Don't make the mistake of parking in one of the reserved spots. This reporter did and I look at my ticket as I write this story.

Tea Time Topics...

Durable toys for children

By Millicent Hickmore

Christmas is a child time! And no child's Christmas is complete without toys — toys to transport a child into an unlimited world of "make believe," a world where the child can gradually discover and develop its own sense of identity.

However children's toys can be a parental nightmare. Mother is eternally picking them up or nagging her children to put them away. Father is constantly repairing them. Industrial technology has yet to develop toys that will put themselves away — but now it has developed toys that are so tough it practically takes a sledge hammer to break them. These toys are the long-lasting polyethylene toys, large and colorful. They are made from a special rotational cast and can take a tremendous beating without breaking. No breakage, in turn, means economy and safety. A toy that is shattered a day or so after Santa Claus' arrival represents both wasted money and a danger to the child. These specially constructed toys are mostly large — such as rocking horses, racing cars, drums and child-size rocking chairs — a delightful gift for a child and durable.

A GIMMICK: Heard on the radio this morning, a Christmas list for Santa Claus — starts off like this, in a little boy's voice — crayons, blocks, (a long list in between) and ends up with the request for a bicycle and a pony — when the radio commentator cuts in and announces that seeing the list is getting out of hand, why not visit a certain finance company — and get a loan?

IN THE MAIL: A letter from Mrs. Ruth A. Shackleton on behalf of Trinity Memorial Guild, which reads: "The Ladies of the Trinity Memorial Guild have asked me to write and thank you for your kind co-operation in helping to make our Christmas Fair known to the public, and adding to the success of it, this was greatly appreciated."

Eventide WA plans Christmas party

The Women's Auxiliary of Eventide Home held an executive meeting recently at the home of the President, Mrs. C. N. Knowles. Plans for the Christmas Party to be held on December 14 were finalized. Several purchases were decided on which will bring comfort and pleasure to the Residents in the Home. The following members of the executive were present; Mrs. Brigadier G. Dockray, Mrs. R. B. Porteous, Mrs. W. A. Routledge, Mrs. E. Bent, Mrs. B. T. Gardner, Mrs. M. H. Shade, Mrs. F. J. Kelland, Mrs. S. A. MacSween and Mrs. S. J. F. Brettingham. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. F. J. Kelland presided at the tea table.

Douglas Hospital 'Operation Santa'

At Douglas Hospital, there isn't just one, but many Santas, and they start Operation Santa when most people are just celebrating Thanksgiving. The auxiliary of the hospital takes on the responsibility of seeing to it that all patients in the hospital and those patients in foster homes receive an individually wrapped gift Christmas morning.

It's a mammoth task to make sure that each member of the hospital's large family of patients gets pretty much what he or she wants from Santa. Everyone pitches in. Nurses and staff, working with suggestion lists, find out about patients' wishes, giving guidance only on the suitability of requests, and noting such things as color preferences and sizes. The completed lists of wishes are returned to the auxiliary's committee, and then the shopping activity starts!

When parcels begin to pile up, then comes the big production part of the job. Gifts have to be sorted, marked, wrapped, and labelled. To the gifts asked for especially by the patients, it's usually possible to add a 'fun' gift.

Between December 7 when all the wrapping is begun, and Christmas morning when the bursting cartons are delivered to wards, some 1500 gifts have been attractively parcelled and their gay bows tied. Santa's cheery visit has been made possible through the generosity and whole-hearted efforts of many, individuals and groups, and for these as well as for the patients, it's brought a merrier Christmas.

'Y' observation nursery school

An observation Nursery School will open at the YWCA, 1355 Dorchester boulevard west in January.

Organized in cooperation with the Family Life Education Council which already operates an observation nursery school, the Y school is designed for three and four year old children.

Mothers will attend with the children, observing them in the nursery school setting, then retire to another room to discuss their observations with a trained discussion leader. A trained nursery teacher will be in charge of the nursery itself.

Registration is limited and Y officials hope all those wishing to enroll children will register immediately by calling the YWCA, at 866-9941. Registration Office.

The nursery will open Tuesday, January 11, and run each Tuesday for eight consecutive weeks. The school hours are 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

MISS SHELAGH MARGARET GOODMAN and MR. STUART REGINALD BOISVERT whose engagement is announced. The bride to be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olafur Goodman, of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Boisvert is the son of Mrs. G. R. Boisvert, of Westmount. The marriage has been arranged to take place on Thursday, December 23, in St. Stephen's United Church, Vancouver.

LaFleur-Belcourt wedding held in St. Leo's Church

The marriage of Anne Elise, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Paul L. Belcourt, of Halifax, N.S. formerly of Ottawa, to Mr. Henri Philip LaFleur, son of Mr. Henri G. LaFleur, and of the late Mrs. LaFleur, took place recently in St. Leo's Church, Westmount, the Rev. Myles Kelly, of Corpus Christi Church, Senneville, Que., officiating. Mr. Marc Perron played the wedding music, and standards of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of ivory moire, having a bodice with a square neckline, an A-line skirt, and a train falling from the shoulders. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias, and white Fuji chrysanthemums.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Monique Belcourt, as maid of honor, for her sister, and Miss Josephite Belcourt, also a sister, as bridesmaid, were in frocks of moss green velvet, having A-line skirts. They wore velvet bows covered with Orange Delight rosebuds in their hair, and carried bouquets of Orange Delight roses.

Master Sean LaFleur, nephew of the bridegroom, acted as page.

Mr. Anthony LaFleur acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Marc L. Belcourt, brother of the bride, Mr. Dimitry Cirigo, Mr. Donald McGregor, and Mr. William E. Staver.

Mrs. Belcourt, the bride's mother, was in a grey velvet suit, having a matching lame blouse, and wore a coral silk turban.

Mrs. LaFleur, stepmother of the bridegroom, wore a Raoul Jean Fouré model of teal blue brocade with a hat of the same shade.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Blue Room, of the Ritz-Carlton, where yellow roses and chrysanthemums were used to decorate. Later Mr. and Mrs. LaFleur left for Acapulco and Mexico City, the bride travelling in a moss green tweed suit, with a soft green blouse, and wearing a matching tweed turban, and brown suede accessories.

IODE plans program to support International Co-Operation Year

The IODE has a continuous program of assistance to countries within and without the Commonwealth in Fields of Service and Education.

ICY and National Services at Home and Abroad: In support of the appeal for International Co-operation Year the Services at Home and Abroad department IODE is making a country-wide drive to increase the help they have given to the emerging countries for many years. In 1964, six hundred cases were shipped to India, Hong Kong, Greece, Korea, Jordan and Africa. The total value was $115,000.

The contents of the cases represent incalculable hours of work spent by IODE members across Canada. Each province has a workroom, staffed by members who sort and pack handmade quilts, sweaters, baby clothes, afghans and toys, for shipping overseas. A most popular item is the property bag which contains amenities such as, tooth paste and brush, soap, face cloth, comb, facial tissue, etc.

The shipment to Korea is a specialized one, containing X-ray film and developer used in conjunction with the X-ray equipment donated to the clinic by the Order ten years ago. Each year the supporting supplies have been sent at a cost of $3,200, per annum. In addition eight thousand pounds of powdered whole milk is sent each year. The entire project is aimed at combatting T.B. in children.

Emphasis placed on "Freedom from Hunger" campaign
To help fight the many ills that stem from malnutrition, shipments of dehydrated soup will be sent by the IODE as well as additional powdered milk.

ICY AND EDUCATION

As a contribution to International Co-operation Year and in conjunction with the Canadian Education Association, arrangements were made for Miss Patricia Margaret Bishop of New Zealand to come to Canada to teach Grade 2 at the General Crerar School, in Scarborough, Ontario, for one year.

This exchange teacher of outstanding ability was head of the Primary section of schools in Wellsford, New Zealand. It is hoped that a close association between schools in Scarborough and Wellsford, New Zealand may be established through an exchange of letters, pictures, tape recordings and so on. Thus are built the bridges of understanding and friendship between people and countries.

ADOPTED SCHOOLS

Chapters across Canada have "adopted" some fifty Secondary Schools in the West Indies and British Honduras and send a continuous flow of books and educational supplies to these schools.

IODE post-graduate scholarships are awarded to students from the West Indies and from Africa, for study in Canada. A student in Nigeria is being sent through Medical school in Lagos, and two students are attending Medical College in India.

International understanding is fostered by an active correspondence program arranged by the IODE between children of Canada and other countries. Last year 6,486 Canadian children were linked by letter to children in other lands.

The aims of International Co-operation Year is most areas, follow closely the program already undertaken by the IODE Services at Home and Abroad and Educational departments, hence an increase over-all is the IODE target for ICY.

Alumnae tea

The Alumnae Association of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital is holding its annual Christmas Tea in the Lounge of the Nurse's Residence, 2055 Northcliffe Avenue, Sunday, December 12, from 3 to 5 p.m.

All graduates are cordially invited to attend.

Wife Preservers

Town and Gown Tea to be held Tuesday

The monthly meeting of the Women Associates of McGill will be held at the Faculty Club on Tuesday, commencing at three o'clock. Prior to the serving of tea, Mrs. Guy H. Fisk will give an illustrated talk entitled "Let's Decorate for Christmas".

Mrs. S. R. Townsend and Mrs. G. A. Wootton will receive.

Those presiding at the tea tables are: Mrs. Miller Hyde, Mrs. A. D. Nesbitt and Mrs. A. C. McKim.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be: Mrs. J. A. Elson and Mrs. J. A. Radcliffe; assisted by the following: Mrs. Peter Eakins, Mrs. T. L. Hills, Mrs. E. A. Hosein, Mrs. T. L. Hutchison, Mrs. Ian McLaren, Mrs. M. K. Oliver, Mrs. E. C. Webster, Mrs. W. M. Williams.

Membership tea

The paid-up membership tea of the Sisterhood of Congregation Tifereth Beth David Jerusalem will take place on Monday, at 8:30 p.m., at the Synagogue Centre, 6519 Baily Road. Frances Katz, well-known humorist, will entertain, and Mrs. H. Rottenberg, president, will preside.

Wife Preservers

Place a bowl on a folded wet towel to keep it from slipping on the working surface.

Renowned Jewish poet to visit

Jacob Glatstein, renowned Jewish poet, essayist, literary critic and editor, will appear in Montreal on Saturday evening, December 11, at a "Meet the Author" Evening as guest of the Jewish Public Library and the Israel Rabinovitch Institute for the Advancement of Jewish Music, Arts and Letters which is under the auspices of the Canadian Jewish Congress. This event will take place in the Auditorium of the Jewish Public Library, 120 Mount Royal Avenue West, at 8.30 p.m.

Acclaimed as a leading figure in Yiddish literature, Jacob Glatstein was a co-founder of the introspective Yiddish poetry group "Insich". His poems have been translated into Hebrew, Spanish, Russian and French and his recent book, "Homecoming at Twilight" appeared in English, Spanish and Hebrew. As a journalist and literary critic he is a contributor to major Jewish literary publications in North and South America, Europe and Israel.

Slippers help to solve your gift problems

There's good news for harried Christmas shoppers, says the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada. Gay and exciting leisure footwear and slippers, imaginatively designed by Canadian shoe manufacturers in greater abundance than ever this season, make ideal gifts to put under the tree on Christmas morning. They help solve many a gift problem too, the Bureau notes.

Slippers are always welcome Christmas gifts. They are a happy choice, because besides being synonymous with comfort, they are healthful, protecting the feet and keeping them warm on drafty floors.

Festive footwear is highlighting many gift displays in stores across the country. In slippers, the variety is limitless, and slippers are as much at home in the bedroom as the living room, the Bureau reports. Women's slippers range from backless mules to scuffs, from cozy boots to sandals. There are gold ones and silver ones, some jewelled or of Turkish inspiration, made in rich velvets, satins and brocades — literally, slippers to go with all the beautiful at-home clothes that are opening up a whole new avenue of fashion.

There are warm and cozy slippers for Dad — some fleece lined or with fur uppers — or the classic opera slippers with flexible leather sole and smooth leather lining. The Candy-cane set has not been forgotten either. Here there's good variety with lots of eye appeal for junior members of the family. Youngsters get a kick out of finding slippers in their Christmas stockings and mother won't have to worry about their padding about barefoot.

Outdoor boots make pleasing Christmas presents too. They abound this season, from knee-high to ankle height — in smooth leather, suede, reptiles or furs, real or fake. After-ski boots are plentiful as well, fur being the most popular look with skiers this season.

Mrs. A. Finestone reports to CJA Women's Division

"With great pride, the campaign committee of the Women's Federation reports to you that we have exceeded our objective of $300,000," Mrs. Alan H. Finestone, 1965 campaign chairman of the Women's Federation of Combined Jewish Appeal, reported to the "Tribute to Workers" Women's Division Closing Luncheon on Thursday, December 2, at the Windsor Hotel. "It has been a most challenging and rewarding experience," she reported.

In delivering her report, Mrs. Finestone emphasized that the success of the women's division was "a team effort." In paying tribute to each worker she told them, "you have approached your varied and important assignments with outstanding dedication and have worked long hours... all geared to achieve a most worthwhile goal."

EXCEEDS QUOTA

Announcing that the campaign total for the Women's Federation came to $300,283, Mrs. Finestone said, "we are fortunate that we live in a warm and generous community whose citizens take pride in their local, national and overseas agencies and support them so willingly. I am delighted to report that we exceeded our quota for this year and registered an increase of more than $19,000 over last year's total. I am deeply grateful to each and every one of you who helped make this a most successful year."

Highlight of the luncheon featured the presentation of awards to campaign workers who had made important contributions to the campaign.

AWARD WINNERS

Mrs. Sol Cohen was named the second winner of the Rhoda Leopold Memorial Award as the top woman campaigner this year. Mrs. Cohen has contributed outstanding service to several Joint Campaigns. She served as chairman of women's "Cavalcade" days in the 1965 Joint Campaign and was also in charge of delegates' folders for the ninth women's community conference.

The award, which is presented annually to the outstanding campaigner in the women's division, was instituted by Mrs. Rhoda Leopold's sons in memory of their mother. Mrs. Leopold was chairman of the women's division from 1940 to 1943. She was an advisor to the Women's Federation and retained her active participation until she passed away in 1964.

OTHER AWARDS

Other award winners included Mrs. Ben B. Cohen, prospects chairman, Outremont; Mrs. Marvin Corber and Mrs. Michael Nissenthal, district co-chairmen for St. Laurent; Mrs. Harry D. Fogel, district chairman for Cote St. Luc "C"; Mrs. Sidney L. Goldwater, district chairman for Dollard des Ormeaux; Mrs. Abe Weiner, chairman of records; Mrs. Louis Richler, special canvass chairman for St. Laurent; and Mrs. Matus Rozanski, special canvass chairman.

Greetings were presented by Jacob M. Lowy, president of Allied Jewish Community Services. Remarks were given by Mr. Alvin Bronstein, executive director of Allied Jewish Community Services and by Mrs. Eugene Lowy, campaign director of the Women's Federation.

Certificates of appreciation to the women who served as advisors, area chairmen and special names co-ordinators.

Co-conveners of the closing luncheon were Mrs. David L. Nadler and Mrs. Manual Abrams. Serving on the arrangements committee were Mrs. George J. Strean, Mrs. Ralph Cummings and Mrs. Jack A. Klien. Chairman of the awards was Mrs. Gerald Metalin and hostesses chairman Mrs. Harry D. Fogel.

Try sausage roll party appetizers

Pan-fry, broil or bake sausages until lightly browned, then chill. Meanwhile, prepare pastry and roll out in a rectangle to a thickness of not more than 1/8". Lay a cooked sausage at edge of rectangle and cut pastry into strips as wide as the sausage is long. Then cut strips into rectangles long enough to wrap sausages in. If desired, spread each rectangle with a thin layer of prepared mustard.

Roll up sausage, moisten edge of pastry and seal. Cut each roll in half. Place on lightly greased baking sheet, sealed edge down. Brush with milk and bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) until lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 36 rolls.

Nuthatch puzzles experts

By WINIFRED WILSON

As we sat on the verandah one early December day a Red-breasted Nuthatch flew to the small branches of a young maple tree, took something, and carried it out of our sight behind a large fir tree. This was repeated over and over that same afternoon and on at least two other days.

We will never know just what the bird carried, or exactly where the prizes were hidden; but we do know that Nuthatches are noted for hiding away food in holes and bark crevices. What puzzled us was the fact that none of the favorite foods of a Red-breasted could be found on the tips of maple twigs. This little 4½ inch light grey bird is supposed to favor suet, nutmeats, sunflower and conifer seeds, none of which could be picked off a maple tree.

In southern Canada we have the White-breasted Nuthatch all year round, because it is resident wherever found. An inch and a half longer than its cousin, it lacks the black streak through the eye and, of course, is less colorful. If you have large trees near your home try putting out suet to attract one, because all Nuthatches (and many, many other birds) love it. In winter the White-breasted may be seen creeping, headfirst down a trunk in true Nuthatch style, looking for hibernating insects, insect eggs or pupae found in bark crevices. Flying from tree to tree, it keeps up a continual stream of "yank, yank" in a nasal voice. They seem to pair for life, so if one individual is around the mate is apt to be not far away.

It takes somewhat of an expert to distinguish between these two by their calls. The Red-breasted talks in a higher key, and the words are spoken more abruptly. Some Red-breasted Nuthatches breed a bit farther north than the White-breasted ever does and may live as far south as North Carolina. In autumn some of them fly as far as Florida and the Gulf of Mexico, while other travel but a few miles.

So in settled Canada we actually may see either kind in winter. You can easily recognize them by their pale grey plumage, upside down position on a tree trunk, and stubby tails. Naturally, it is not necessary for their tails to be equipped for bracing the birds on bark as are the tails of Woodpeckers which always travel on the trees head end up. Nuthatches must be wonderfully sure footed, because they can move up or down, because they can move up or down, forwards or backwards, and even cling to the underside of branches.

Loyola maintains win streak

Loyola College Warriors Varsity Hockey team maintained their winning streak this weekend as they beat the College Militaire Royal in St. Jean 5-1.

Roger Wilding of the Loyola squad sparked his team with two goals while teammates Dave Hedgecoe, Peter Quelch and Roy Riley belted one apiece into the opposition net.

Returning for the military college was Tom Smallman who netted CMR's lone marker.

LCC downs St. Leo's 4-2 in exhibition hockey

By ANDY MCGILLIS

St. Leo's senior A puck chasers made their debut last week at the City of Westmount artificial rink and fell victims to a 4 to 2 defeat at the hands of Lower Canada senior AA hockey team.

The Saints looked good for about the first half of the game but ran out of gas after twice enjoying a goal lead and the L.C.C. boys showing superior condition were well worth their exhibition win.

Newcomers to the Westmounters figured in both their goals, with Murray Sherriffs notching the first counter and Wayne Colomb denting the twine for the second counter.

A fine turnout of fans was present to cheer the Saints on but their efforts were to no avail as their heroes wilted under the pressure of the visitors and you can be sure some gruelling skating sessions will be the unhappy lot of the losers.

To rate St. Leo's chances for the year after watching this contest would be difficult but it was evident that some glaring weaknesses were evident due to the loss of the 1964-65 stalwarts like John Donnelly, Jules Desjardins, André Camilli and Paul Stubbs, however a few of the newcomers did impress but it is anybody's guess whether they will be able to supply the punch to make the team a threat for top honors.

To give a three star rating on the Academy's performance, you would have to go along with Roger Lefebvre, Wayne Colomb and Grant Sherriffs. This trio turned in a steady and all around fine game.

Mariasine's retirement saddens hearts at Unity

By L. WILLIS

Although our Annual Banquets at the Unity Boys' Club were the usual success and ran smoothly with "good food, famous personalities and festivities" for all, the termination was overshadowed by the announcement by Mr. W. R. Rutherford, chairman of the Board of Management, that the ever efficient, conscientious, friend and advisor to hundreds of boys and girls over a span of fourteen years as director of Unity was retiring to take up a new position with the Montreal Boys' Association.

Mr. Maurice Mariasine received a standing ovation from his many friends and associates who were present at the banquets and there were many tears shed by some of his young friends. However, we all wish him much happiness and success in his new position and hope to have the opportunity to visit with him at the club frequently.

This sad news was tempered by the announcement that genial Charlie Howes, the present Program Director of the Club would continue on as Club Director. "Uncle Charlie" as he is known to the younger members of the club is a great favourite and we feel that he is well suited to continue the successful operation of the Unity Boys' Club. He will have the support of all connected with the club. It is a difficult task to follow a successful man in any position but we are sure Charlie Howes is equal to the task.

VOLUNTEERS: Mr. Allan Tobin, has offered his services to the club in the field of radio electronics, we are pleased to welcome him and also Mrs. Pakh will also be conducting a coed craft class on Thursday evenings.

HOCKEY: Hockey enthusiasts will be encouraged to hear that we hope to start a House League at the club, utilizing the rink at the park across the street (Staynor). If the weather will cooperate we hope this will materialize. We also have two volunteers to assist with this project: Toivo Vood of Lower Canada College and John Walker a club member.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE: The schedule is now available for the Community Centres Basketball League, the Midgets have their first game at Panorama on Friday, December 10th at 7.00 p.m. and the Bantams play at Rosemount on Thursday, December 9th at 8.00 p.m.

TOYS: Judging by the appearance of one of the rooms upstairs at the club, Santa is storing a hoard of loot in preparation for the Christmas party to be held at the club on Saturday, December 18th. There will be special entertainment and Christmas cheer for all.

GIRLS' GYM PROGRAM: Mrs. Shirley Neilson holds a gym program for the younger girls every Thursday evening. CHRISTMAS CARD CONTEST: This is your last chance to get your design in for the Unity Christmas Card Contest. Please have the entries in this week.

SPARROWS GROUP CLUB: Miss Leslie Powell will be taking the "Sparrows" every Tuesday evening in the Library at 7.30 p.m. This includes girls only ages 11 - 13.

TWEENERS: The Tweeners will be holding a Penny Auction on Saturday, December 11th at 2.00 p.m. in the Craft Room No. 1. Proceeds will be donated to the "Neverlanders" Group Club for costumes for the production of the "Sound of Music!" Anyone wishing to donate toys, games or comics please see Tween President Sharon Syvret or Programmer Christine Henson.

PIXIES: The Pixies are currently working on a model of the Bethlehem scene which will be on display at the front counter of the club.

CHICKS: Miss Nancy Turley will be returning every Tuesday evening for Junior Drama. This group is currently rehearsing "There's No Place Like Home."

JUDO: There will be no Judo Classes on December 11 but classes will resume on Saturday, December 18th.

S. JOHN AMBULANCE: The St. John Ambulance Corp will be holding their annual Christmas Party on December 11th at the club.

B of M announces new certificate

Introduction of new, high-yield savings certificates has been announced by the Bank of Montreal.

The certificates are available in multiples of $10 in amounts up to $50,000 and are discounted 25 per cent to reach face value after six years. This represents an interest rate of 4.85 per cent compounded semi-annually, or a simple interest rate of 5.55 per cent.

The certificates earn interest on a graduated scale starting six months after purchase, to maturity in six years, when they are worth full face value.

Thus, a $1,000 certificate can be bought for $750 and, with interest, reaches face value in six years.
