HINT THIRD FREIGHTER SUNK IN ST. LAWRENCE

Ottawa Denies Knowledge Of Latest Report

Although Survivors from Two Craft Sunk in St. Lawrence on Monday Claim Third Craft Might Have Been Torpedoed During Same Incident, Naval Headquarters Deny Any Distress Signals Received.

Ottawa, May 14.—(C)—Naval headquarters has no reports of any further sinkings in the St. Lawrence in addition to the two ships already announced as lost, it was stated officially here today.

So far no signals have been received to indicate that any other ship has been attacked, Navy sources said.

ONE FREIGHTER WAS TRAILED SIX MILES

By ROBERT CLARKE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Levis, Que., May 14.—(C)—A German submarine that sank two freighters early this week in the St. Lawrence River was said today to have trailed one of its victims for six miles before losing a fatal torpedo and speculation was that the undersea raider might have sent a third ship to the bottom.

Thirty-one survivors of one of the two ships definitely to have been sunk passed through here by train early this morning en route to Montreal. And at least two of them, one the captain and the other a gunner, thought it likely that a third vessel had fallen prey to the Nazi U-boat although they admitted they had no official confirmation.

Censorship prevented the name of the captain being given at this time.

The captain—master of a vessel which bore his name—said: "The submarine was out to get as many ships as it could, naturally. And after it fired its torpedo into our ship it was still within hunting distance of other vessels. It would seem entirely likely that a third ship might have been sunk."

The captain revealed there had been forty-three men aboard his ship which sank within six minutes of the time that a single torpedo hit the vessel. One man died of exposure and another eleven are listed at present as missing. The captain said "They can still be alive only through a miracle."

He said that other ships spent 2½ hours searching for the missing men around the spot where the ship was torpedoed "without any success." There were no Canadians aboard the vessel. Twelve of the men were British while the remainder were Netherlands seamen.

The crewman who died from exposure while on way to port in a rescue ship was a Netherlands. Only one of the British aboard the vessel is missing—a 17-year-old trimmer who had helped with stoking duties.

The survivors, en route to Montreal, said they had no information

JAPANESE SHOW FIRST PROTEST AT INTERNMENT

Military Guards Forced to Use Firehose in Effort to Quell Riot by Japanese at Vancouver Barracks.

Vancouver, May 14.—(C)—Several smashed windows and a missing iron grating in Vancouver's waterfront immigration building was the only evidence remaining today of the city's first outbreak of Japanese violence in which military guards used a powerful fire hose to quell the demonstrators.

Today all was quiet and military guards placed a regular beat through the glass smashed to the ground late yesterday when Japanese housed in the big, three-story brick building suddenly staged their short-lived outburst.

Apparently protesting a ruling preventing them from talking with Japanese friends outside through the building's big iron-barred windows, the Japanese smashed several of the windows. One of the iron

Eastern Townships Unit Members Included Among Latest Canadian Contingent To Land In Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON

Somewhere in England, May 14.—(C.P. Cable)—The Canadian 1st Army, spearhead of Britain's invasion forces gathering in the United Kingdom, moved a step nearer its final shape today as the first formations of the armored division commanded by Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington reached their Southern England training camps.

Part of a large convoy of army, Royal Canadian Air Force and general reinforcements, representative groups of officers and men from a number of regiments in the division will undergo special training at armored corps camps, thereafter, as officers explained, "we will pass on what we have learned to other troops in the division."

Setting down was the order of the day for soldiers and airmen alike as they regained their land legs after an uneventful crossing in which the dropping of depth charges by the escort of British and United States warships gave rise to the customary rumors of sub sinkings.

The voyage and the long train journey in crowded, blacked-out and almost airless corridor coaches did not dim the enthusiasm of the men to "get going." Most of them agreed with Sgt.-Ldr. J. B. Whalley that "it certainly feels good to be in England at last."

The troops consisted not only of new formations for the armored corps, but thousands of more reinforcements for Canada's land and air forces in Britain.

The air force group, one of the largest ever to cross from Canada, was evenly divided between ground and air crews, while the armored units included such outfits as the Elgin Regiment, an Ontario unit, the British Columbia Regiment, and South Alberta Regiment, the Governor General's Footguards, an Ottawa outfit, the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment from Quebec's Eastern Townships and a Manitoba armored car regiment.

There was also personnel for manning a heavy repair shop to fix vehicles of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, reinforcements for that corps, the Royal Canadian Artillery, the Royal Canadian Medical Corps, the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, the Royal Canadian Engineers, a new radio location outfit and a group of nursing sisters.

Capt. the Rev. W. B. Brodie, of Winnipeg, an Anglican chaplain with the contingent, said that as far as he knew there was not a single case of seasickness en route. The only complaint the men had about the weather was that it was cold.

Air Commodore T. B. Howe welcomed the air force men from Canada and told them on behalf of the Air Ministry that Britain was grateful for their coming, while W. J. Jordan, New Zealand High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, greeted a small number of Australian and New Zealand air force men who had graduated from Commonwealth Air Training Plan Schools in Canada.

One of the features of this contingent was the number of newspapermen accompanying it as fighting or writing troops.

Indian Counter-Drives Ease British Situation On Northern Burma Line

Fierce Indian Gurkhas Enter Fray as Exhausted British Troops Seek to Halt Japanese at Gateway to India—Japanese Reported Striking Up Burma Road Toward Tengyueh—Allied Planes Active in South Pacific.

(By The Canadian Press)

British military quarters reported today that fierce Indian Gurkhas have counter-attacked the Japanese in Burma and gained a respite from enemy pressure at the gateway to India.

Latest reports said the nearly exhausted British rearguard now is around Kalewa, forty miles from the Assam frontier of India.

On the Allied left flank, Chinese dispatches indicated that the Japanese had driven nearly 120 miles along the twisting Burma Road into China proper.

Chinese headquarters said Chinese troops had destroyed bridges across the Upper Salween river and were holding the East bank against enemy vanguards sixty miles west of Paoshan.

Paoshan is 180 miles inside Chinese Yunnan Province from the Burma frontier by road, 100 miles by air.

Another Japanese column striking Northward from the Burma Road was reported threatening the ancient city of Tengyueh, on the caravan route between China and Burma.

A Chinese spokesman said Chinese troops were battling to save the city. In Australia, Allied headquarters reported that Allied bombers lashed out at the Western flank of Japanese invasion bases above Australia had sunk a 3,000-ton Japanese ship at Ambona, former Netherlands naval base, and damaged two others.

Other Allied warplanes attacked Rabaul, New Britain, on the opposite flank, bombing ships in the harbor and fifteen Japanese bombers on the airfield runway.

Although Japanese fighters were in the air, the communiqué said, they did not engage the Allied planes. No Allied losses were reported in either raid.

The Japanese, however, were reported to have lost two of six Zero fighters which attempted to attack Port Moresby on the Southern coast of New Guinea. Allied fighters credited with shooting down the two planes were reported to have damaged a third.

Looking ahead to the time when the Allies expect to launch an offensive from Australia, Army Minister Francis Forde announced today that conscripted members of the Commonwealth's home militia soon would be given an opportunity to volunteer for service anywhere in the world.

The move is expected to help quell a parliamentary controversy over the Defence Act which forbids conscripted men being sent outside Australian territory.

Air Students To Complete Course On Canadian Fields

Air Minister Declares that Training Programme Is Approaching the Stage Where Graduates Will Be Prepared for Actual Warfare Before Going Overseas—Seek Separate Canadian Establishment Overseas.

By C. R. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 14.—(C)—Air training in Canada is approaching the stage where graduates will be prepared for actual warfare before going overseas instead of completing operational training abroad, says Air Minister Power.

He told the House of Commons this yesterday, adding that was the objective "and we are on the verge of reaching it."

"But that situation now has eased and there are, fortunately, operational units in this country and there will be many more of them."

"One of the shifts that we now are undergoing is to enable a longer period of training to be given here, to train them in operational work so that there will be little or nothing in the way of training required when they reach overseas and have to use the biggest or fastest type of machines."

The Minister continued throughout the afternoon sitting to answer questions on his share in the $2.

OLD WOODSMEN FOUND USEFUL AS COMMANDOS

Shock Troops of Canadian Units Overseas Base Training on Practices of Earlier "Coureur de Bois."

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, May 14.—(C)—A Canadian commando is Billy the Kid in battle dress.

He's a "coureur de bois" come to the wars out of the backwoods of Canada's frontier history. He's a sea-going pirate of a modern army with something of Drake and Daniel Boone in his make-up.

In short, he's a couple of fighting guys in one.

He blackens his face with burnt cork and grease. He wears an old sock, or woollen skull cap on his head and totes a Tommy gun, a revolver, a rifle or a Bren gun. A fighting knife is strapped to his thigh, grenades are in his small pack, ammunition bandoliers drape him. He's not a nice gent to meet in the dark.

From every infantry battalion in the First Canadian Army, tough, alert soldiers are being hand-picked for training as raiders and shock troops. They train ashore and then go to sea with the navy on combined operation manoeuvres.

At the camps, these infantry-commandos have to prove they are crack shots. They scale cliffs, bridge gorges and scramble over the roughest country they can find, day and night. They have to know the fine points of battle drill and demolition squads become experts at blowing up targets with a couple of pounds of explosive and some wire.

Street fighting and house fighting are practised with live ammunition and a general who watched one demonstration under fire exclaimed: "I haven't had so much excitement since Vimy."

There isn't a bit of spit-and-polish about the camps. Life is rough and hearty. Men live in tents pitched on a bald, isolated hillside. Headquarters is in a ramshackle building where wind whistles through cracks in the walls. Officers and men wear their oldest, dirtiest uniforms.

More ammunition is shot off here than any other single spot in the army. From the hip or the shoulder the men throw the lead.

The troops are high-spirited and rough-and-ready and there is one classic true story about a night out in a local town.

France Prepared To Immobilize Warships In West Indian Isles

Berne, Switzerland, May 14.—(AP)—The Vichy Government was reported today to have advised the United States it is ready to immobilize for duration of the war French warships now stationed at Martinique but that it could not hand over to the United States merchant ships berthed there.

This course of action had been suggested yesterday by the Paris press, and the reported Vichy stand was regarded as an attempt to compromise on demands on Martinique that had been submitted by the United States.

The French warships now stationed at Martinique include the Aircraft carrier Bearn and the cruisers Emile Bertin and Jeanne d'Arc.

The Berlin radio broadcast yesterday a Vichy dispatch saying the United States had demanded the immobilization of these warships and had asked that Vichy surrender a number of merchant ships now in Caribbean ports.

This request, the broadcast said, would be opposed by the Vichy Government as contrary to the terms of its armistice with Germany.

The London Daily Mail said today that Germany had flatly forbidden Vichy to surrender the merchant ships and had given orders to scuttle them if necessary. The paper estimated there are 140,000 tons of merchant shipping in Martinique harbor.

The civilian will get no more rubber, either synthetic or natural, during the war, Dr. Phillips said. He added, "It is highly probable that the tires he now has on his car eventually will be requisitioned for use on essential vehicles."

Lutetia cited specifically the reported sinking of the British battleship Warspite, but said "such errors were promptly put right in later Japanese reports."

Philadelphia, May 14.—(P)—Motorists throughout the United States were warned today by Dr. C. F. Phillips, head of the Office of Price Administration's Tire Rationing Division, that all non-essential traffic may be halted through gasoline rationing to save rubber.

The civilian will get no more rubber, either synthetic or natural, during the war, Dr. Phillips said. He added, "It is highly probable that the tires he now has on his car eventually will be requisitioned for use on essential vehicles."

He predicted that Government control of the movement of all products carried by rail and water would be reflected in the rationing of gasoline on a country-wide basis, a development Senator Sheridan Downey (Dem., Calif.), predicted would come in any event.

Downey said he looked for a continued decline in gasoline and fuel oil reserves on the Eastern seaboard, despite efforts to patch together a pipeline which might be capable of delivering 100,000 barrels of oil daily from Texas fields.

This meant, Downey added, that Eastern motorists are likely to find their quotas even skimpier after July 1 than during the first rationing period which goes into effect Friday. The least allowance in the East will be three gallons a week for "non-essential" motoring.

EVEN TIGHTER RESTRICTIONS FOR GASOLINE

General Rationing of Transportation Throughout U.S. Is Predicted by Vermont Republican Senator.

By JACK BELLA

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 14.—(AP)—Rationing of transportation throughout the United States was forecast in Congressional circles today and some informed legislators said there are strong indications the rationing of gasoline in seventeen Eastern States might be extended to include the whole country after July 1.

As footsore Easterners formed long lines around registration places for the third day to obtain ration cards that expire June 30, Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), said he believed that before that date arrived plans may be worked out to limit the use of domestic transportation systems.

He predicted that Government control of the movement of all products carried by rail and water would be reflected in the rationing of gasoline on a country-wide basis, a development Senator Sheridan Downey (Dem., Calif.), predicted would come in any event.

Downey said he looked for a continued decline in gasoline and fuel oil reserves on the Eastern seaboard, despite efforts to patch together a pipeline which might be capable of delivering 100,000 barrels of oil daily from Texas fields.

Reds Claim First Defence Lines Around City Of Kharkov Smashed

(By The Canadian Press)

Soviet dispatches reported today that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's Red armies had smashed the German first-line defences before Kharkov, Russia's steel city in the Ukraine, while bitter all-night fighting raged toward a climax in the six-day-old battle of Kerch Peninsula.

The Moscow radio said Russian troops were advancing on Kharkov itself, immediately threatening the key Nazi stronghold.

Simultaneously, a Vichy (French) broadcast said the Russians had launched "massive attacks" paced by violent aerial bombing against the German armies at Staraya Russa and Novogorod, about 120 miles South of Leningrad.

Heavy fighting was also reported raging on the Leningrad front, where the Germans were said to have thrown new six-inch anti-tank guns into action in a vain attempt to stop the monster Soviet "Voroshilov" tanks.

Pressing an apparently major attempt to break out of long-besieged Leningrad, Red army troops were said to have crumpled the first German lines and captured many important positions in the secondary lines in a continuing advance.

New York — The Russian Baltic Fleet has left its base at Kronstadt, near Leningrad, "and is cruising in the Gulf of Finland," where the battleship Marat has shelled German positions along the coast, the BBC said today in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

The Russian warships had been held at Kronstadt by ice, which now has disappeared, the broadcast said.

London — British planes attacking enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast last night set a medium-sized supply ship afire and left it listing heavily, near Aalesund, the Air Ministry announced today.

Another vessel, aground near Vaagso, was bombed and left "a total wreck," the communiqué said.

Montreal Civic Problems Again Engage Provincial Legislature

Quebec, May 14.—(C)—The Quebec Legislature stood adjourned today in observance of Ascension Thursday, a Roman Catholic feast day in Quebec Province. It will not reconvene again until next week.

The Legislature Council, 24-seat Upper House will meet Monday to begin study of a bill to amend the Charter of the City of Montreal, but the Legislative Assembly, 86-seat Lower House, will not resume until Tuesday.

The Lower House disposed of the Montreal Bill before adjourning yesterday by adopting the measure, with only one amendment, as passed by the Private Bills Committee of the Assembly.

The amendment was made to a clause that would have obliged candidates who run for mayor or aldermen to be residents of the City of Montreal proper for at least three years.

Sponsored by Hon. Oscar Drouin, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs, Trade and Commerce, the bill would oblige mayoralty candidates to be residents of the City of Montreal proper for three years, but candidates for aldermanic seats in "A" and "B" categories would only have to be residents of the City or Metropolitan area for at least two years.

Aldermen in "A" category are elected by proprietors and those in "B" by proprietors and tenants. Candidates for "C" category, representing public organizations, would have to be residents of the City proper for two years.

Three main changes would be made in the City's administration by the bill. The number of aldermen would be reduced from ninety-nine to sixty-six and the number of members on the executive committee would be increased from six to nine. It would also authorize the payment of $1,000 annual indemnity to councillors who are not members of the Executive Committee. At present, only the Mayor and members of the Executive Committee are paid. The indemnity clause would be retroactive to May 1, 1942, but the Council changes would not take effect until after the elections next December.

Prior to tackling the bill, the Assembly adopted by a vote of fifty to nine a Government motion which suggested that the Lower House hold three sittings every day except Sunday.

German and Rumanian troops had captured Kerch City and Takli, thus reaching the gateway to the great Caucasus oil fields.

Kerch lies across a narrow strait from the Caucasus.

A bulletin from Red Army headquarters said Russian troops had executed an orderly withdrawal yesterday in the face of numerically superior Axis forces, but gave no indication of the trend of the battle overnight.

"During the night of May 13-14 on the Kerch peninsula, a fierce battle continued," the Soviet midday communiqué said tersely.

On the Kharkov front, 380 miles North of Kerch, Soviet dispatches said the Russians stormed and overran a series of basic German fortifications, hurling the invaders "far back" and advancing through a steadily widening breach.

The Russian high command flung hastily concentrated reserves into the battle only to have them melt before the Red Army assault.

A German aviator captured on the Kharkov front was quoted as saying that Hitler's high command had made all preparations for a lightning withdrawal from the city.

In the Crimea campaign, a Soviet communiqué declared the Russians were inflicting heavy losses on the Germans.

Moscow officials declared flatly that the German high command claim to victory along with the capture of 40,000 Soviet prisoners was "nothing but a lie."

The Russians said forty-three Nazi planes were destroyed Tuesday, making a three-day toll of 145.

Berlin reports said yesterday the Germans were using 200 dive bombers against Red army lines in the Crimea.

A German broadcast, amplifying the daily communiqué, said Axis troops were undertaking and dispersing the Red army's gains gained in retreat along muddy Crimean roads.

The Nazi high command acknowledged that the Russians were attacking heavily on the Donets river front in the Ukraine, and the wording implied that the Germans were gaining—declaring only that German troops were "resisting" instead of the customary "repulsing."

000,000,000 War Appropriation Bill which has been before the House in Committee since April 20.

He told questioners that he was in complete accord with the desire of many that the Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas should be a distinct Canadian unit in the same degree as is the Canadian Army insofar as that is possible in the light of operational problems.

This question was raised by Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn), who thought the Canadian airmen Overseas should be an independent entity and not merely part of the Royal Air Force.

"Nothing in the whole department is nearer to my heart than Canadianization of the Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas," Major Power said.

"I do not know when I have had a greater sense of frustration than in my attempts to Canadianize the Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas."

The Minister said there was resistance to this from the Royal Air Force and from some Royal Canadian Air Force officers who trained with the R.A.F., and desired to maintain their association.

Questioned on the possibility of airforce regiments being formed to protect ships, the Minister said the force was responsible "within the perimeter" of the fields while the army defends us against anything else."

John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy, asked the Minister whether he thought he was getting enough of the $2,000,000,000 appropriation.

Maj. Power said he was "always asking for more" but there was no disposition on the part of the Government to stint him in airforce expenditures.

A feature of the day's abbreviated sitting was a brush between John R. MacNicol (Conservative, Toronto-Davenport), and Munitions Minister Howe.

Mr. MacNicol raised the question a few days ago whether Canada was making as many planes as could be produced and he brought it up again yesterday. Maj. Power said his job was to supply pilots and he was doing so in a larger number than necessary to fill requisitions. Plans were Mr. Howe's responsibility.

"We are supply planes on Government order from Great Britain and on Government order from the United States," Mr. Howe said, but the industry is expanding as rapidly as we think it can be expanded.

"But were we not shut down in the making of Hurricanes at Fort William last year?" asked Mr. MacNicol.

"No, we were not," Mr. Howe declared.

"Yes, we were, for six months," Mr. MacNicol insisted.

"I was asked a question and I answered it," Mr. Howe retorted. "And I am now told that my answer is untruthful. Fort William was within three miles of my own riding."

"I know that," said Mr. MacNicol. "That plant has never had less than 5,000 men employed in the last year," Mr. Howe continued.

Mr. MacNicol said he had it from one of the heads of the Company whose name he would not mention that production stopped five or six months last year.

Mr. Howe said the plant had been operating continuously on a Hurricane order received in 1940 and had never closed down one day for lack of orders.

"I do think it is disgraceful to peddle that sort of gossip," the Minister added. "There has been too much of it here."

"I respect the Minister's use of the word 'gossip,'" Mr. MacNicol exclaimed. "The information was given to me by the head of one of the airplane companies in this country."

The exchange ended when L. E. Cardin (Conservative, Huron North) asked Maj. Power about the length of training course.

Burma theatre, raised the Japanese airbase at Myittha in Far Northern Burma and set fire to many grounded planes, Maj.-Gen. Lewis H. Brierley's headquarters announced.

Simultaneously a communiqué released in Chungking announced that the American Volunteer Group had reached out a long arm to pound the important Japanese air base at Hanoi in Indo-China, more than 650 miles Southwest of Myittha.

"Fifteen Japanese planes, including bombers, one large transport, and two-seater and single-seater fighters, were burned on the ground," said the Chungking announcement, issued by A.V.G. headquarters.

At least twenty-five other Japanese planes were reported damaged and direct hits were scored on airbase buildings.

Both these raids were carried out Tuesday, the official bulletins said. Only one American fighter—one of the pilots participating in the Hanoi raid—was reported lost.

The attack on Myittha was the first on that target in daylight. The raiders attacked, however, without fighter escort as on previous night assaults.

Advice from Chungking, meanwhile, indicated that Chinese and Japanese troops were locked in fierce combat in the vicinity of Lungling, about fifty miles Northeast of the Yunnan-Burma border on the Burma highway.

A Chinese spokesman said last night that the Japanese, although strongly reinforced, had not made progress there in almost twenty-four hours.

Chungking dispatches also said the Japanese had opened a new front by advancing Northwest up the Mekong River from Thailand into the Burma-Thailand-French Indo-China border region, where they were said to be pressing on toward Mongko after occupying Hongkong.

the new tire rationing order. The Minister did not make public, for instance, the price ceiling which has been established. Departmental spokesmen said the missing information will be given in a series of brief statements to be issued in the immediate future.

Some weeks ago Mr. Howe warned Canadian motorists that their present tires were the last they would see until some time after the war ends. He re-emphasized that point in the long statement revealing issuance of the tire-rationing order.

"Canada's rubber shortage is more serious than ever," said Mr. Howe. "Synthetic production will not begin before many months, and it will not benefit the civilian user. Not a single ounce of synthetic rubber will be released for the making of civilian tires, or any other civilian article."

"Essential vehicles must be kept in service, and the rest of us, until the war is over, must do the best we can with the tires or tubes now in our possession."

Under the rationing order motor vehicles are divided into "A," "B," and "C" classes.

"A" class vehicles, like cars driven by doctors and nurses, some clergymen, ambulance operators, policemen, postal carriers, mail deliverymen, buses and certain trucks, some trailers, farm equipment and industrial, mining and construction equipment may obtain new tires, new retreaded tires, retreading services, used tires and used tubes.

"B" class vehicles, including those used mainly to transport workmen and from work, private cars used principally by Federal or Provincial Government employees for essential purposes, Red Cross workers, British Commonwealth Air Training plan employees, ministers of foreign countries, taxi operators and farmers who own no truck, garages tow trucks and other trucks not especially provided for—such as trucks used for delivery to homes—may obtain retreaded tires and retreading services, used tires and used tubes, providing special permission is obtained.

"C" class vehicles, including household vehicles or farm implements, industrial mining and construction equipment for which used tires are adequate, foreign cars in Canada for more than a week, cars operated mainly for the professional duties of government employees, and such persons as newspaper reporters, incapacitated persons, life insurance salesmen and rural school teachers, may buy only used tires and tubes.

Persons not listed in one of the three categories are not permitted to buy any type of tire or tube. It is estimated 1,000,000 or more motorists whose driving is considered non-essential fall into the no-tire class.

Generally speaking, but not exactly, motor-vehicle operators allowed most gasoline under the gasoline rationing set-up which went into effect last April 1 got most preferential treatment under the new tire rationing regulations. Non-essential drivers who are limited to about 5,000 miles of driving under the gasoline rationing are the ones mainly banned from buying any type of tire.

The new tire order was issued by Supplies Controller Alan H. Williamson, approved by R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the War-time Industries Control Board, and concurred in by the Minister of Munitions.

Under its strict priority provisions, a dealer who has two orders and who cannot fill both at once must fill first the order placed by the motor vehicle owner who falls in the higher class.

The only persons permitted to buy or sell usable tires or tubes on a retail basis are authorized dealers, wholesalers or manufacturers.

Last January drastic restrictions were placed on the sale of new tires, casings and tubes, with purchasers limited to persons carrying on service considered vital to the nation in wartime; but until today's announcement by Mr. Howe used tires and tubes, retreaded tires and retreading services were not under control.

The new order establishes these rules which must be obeyed by every tire dealer:

1—He must ascertain that the would-be buyer is in a class eligible to make a purchase;

2—He must ascertain that the purchaser would be unable to operate his vehicle without the tire, tube or retreading service;

3—He must determine that the purchaser has a real need—that he has no tire or tube now in use or on a vehicle of lower class or one of ineligible vehicle, which would be safely used;

4—He must see that his customer turns in—without allowance—a tire or tube of corresponding size and type from a running wheel or single spare on his vehicle;

5—He must observe strict priority, giving every preference to vehicle owners in the higher class;

6—He must have proper written authorization for each sale.

Purchasers of new and used tires and tubes, retreaded tires and retreading services must obtain special ration permits from so-called Tire Rationing Representatives, to be located in any office of the War-time Industries Control Board. Used tires and tubes may be bought upon proof of necessity—and without a Tire Ration permit—from any authorized tire dealer.

THREE MEMBERS DISMISSED BY POLICE FORCE

Bouchard, Vanier And Emile Boudrias Are Let Out By Sherbrooke Police Department.

Lid was lifted today on the long-rumored "shake-up" in the ranks of the local Police and Fire Department with the announcement of the dismissal of three members of the force.

Let out in what was termed officially as "an economy move" were Captain Inspector Louis Bouchard, Detective Lieutenant Henri Vanier and Chief Mechanic Emile Boudrias.

No new appointments have been made to fill the vacancies, it was learned from Acting Director Percy Donahue, who said that Captain A. Dandelin will replace Captain Bouchard as instructor, Detective Pierre Arcand will head the Department's Investigation Bureau and that Sergeant Albert Chamberland will be Acting Chief Mechanic.

It is understood that a number of promotions have been decided upon by police and municipal officials, but no official announcement could be secured by The Record. It is expected, however, that the promotions will be made public in the near future.

Five men were added to the Department yesterday, being sworn in by City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers. The new Constables, who have served their probationary periods, are Gerard Champigny, Philippe Lord, Alfred Lessard, Hubert Fortier and Raymond Fournier.

Captain Bouchard had served as chief of the Department since being retired on pension from the force about a year ago. Detective Lieutenant Vanier was only recently promoted from the rank of Sergeant.

Person said he "passed out cold" while he sprawled out on a bobbing packing case. He had started out with a lifebelt and got extra support from a drifting plank, but later he switched to the packing case on which Brown was already riding.

He said he did not know how long he was wearing lighter clothes than Len, but the cold water didn't seem to affect me as much as it did him," said Brown. "Len was affected so much that he finally said to me, 'Shall we go over?' And just as he got the words out, the ship sank and I was in sight. He never said another word until long after we were rescued."

The two young Britons said they did not have time to bother much about launching a lifeboat since the ship obviously was going down fast. Brown made an attempt to get into a boat in the water but he abandoned the attempt when the mechanism jammed.

They plunged over the side and Brown took up the story: "That was the last thing I saw. I had no lifebelt and I was stuck perched under water as our ship went down. I really did some praying then."

Clepon couldn't remember being lifted into the lifeboat or being taken aboard the rescue ship. Although forty-eight hours have elapsed since the ship sank, he said Clepon's feet were still numb from the icy waters and Brown said he had no feeling in several fingers.

Brown told of one of the oddities of the sinking. The first engineer "hadn't a stitch of clothing on him when he jumped overboard. He grabbed a lifebelt and hurried to jump into the water 'and naturally he was still naked when he was picked up."

Four of the men aboard—All Netherlands—were listed as "passengers." Actually they were sailors who had survived another torpedoing on the Atlantic some time ago and Brown explained they were given "passenger" rating because of this.

Clepon said the sinking of his ship had occurred close to land—on the coast of Ireland—about six miles away. Although neither Brown nor Clepon said he had been told by the captain that the U-boat was less than 500 yards off when the torpedo was fired.

Survivors were picked up by two freighters following in the stricken vessel's wake. Injuries were scarce among those rescued. Brown said the most seriously hurt was the cook, who suffered a gash on one leg. He added the cook is all right now.

The steward and the second cook, said Brown, were quartered where the torpedo struck and he thought it likely they had been killed. However they are listed as missing.

Submarine Attack Really Unexpected

Montreal, May 14.—Bill Middlitch, 25-year-old naval gunner aboard a freighter sunk in the St. Lawrence River Monday night, said today that a German submarine attack in the river was "the last thing we expected."

"We had no gunners on watch the night we were sunk," Middlitch said on arriving here with thirty other officers and men who survived the sinking. "We never used watches in the St. Lawrence River and were only due to start them the morning after we were sunk."

Middlitch, a resident of London, and another gunner, James Hulan, 24, of Wexley, England, said they were asleep when the torpedo struck amidships.

"We couldn't realize what had happened at first, but when we leaped out of bunks and stepped knee-deep into water we knew we must have been hit. Both of us managed to get into a life boat. There were twenty-two of us in a boat that was built to carry twelve."

Tommy Maxwell, a 21-year-old crewman, said the lifeboat was the only one of nine on the ship to get away. "The others were smashed to bits. And it's a good thing the ship came along to rescue us when they did because the boat would not have held out for another hour."

Tommy said he would not have minded the sinking so much if his friend, Albert Eagar, 17, of Gateshead, England, had not been reported missing after the crew reached shore.

Eagar was at work in the engine room when the torpedo struck. Tommy said, and "I don't think he got away."

concerning the sinking of the other freighter known definitely to have been sent to the bottom. Reports from a St. Lawrence River port last night said that this ship was struck by two torpedoes and that the entire crew of forty-six had reached shore in boats.

Two British survivors interviewed as they passed through here were George Brown, twenty, of Lincolnshire and Leonard Clepon, twenty-one, of Northamptonshire, both members of the freighter's gun crew. They said the ship had gone down "so fast" that there had been no time to get in any shots at the submarine.

"We heard after we reached land that the submarine followed us for six miles up the river," said Brown. Like the captain he expressed the opinion that a third ship may have been torpedoed by the first enemy undersea raider to prowler river waters.

Brown and Clepon were in the icy St. Lawrence for about two hours before they were taken into a lifeboat dispatched by a rescue ship. They disclosed that only one lifeboat—actually a jolly boat much smaller than a lifeboat and usually only used in quiet harbor waters to row from roadside to pier—and a small dingy were on board.

Other survivors clutched timbers and packing cases.

The jolly boat, built to accommodate only thirteen, was jammed with twenty-two survivors when the rescue ship picked it up.

"The jolly boat sailed like hell, but as fast as they'd get one bucketful of water out, three more would come in," said Clepon. And Brown added: "The boys in the jolly boat no sooner got picked up than the boat sank."

Person said he "passed out cold" while he sprawled out on a bobbing packing case. He had started out with a lifebelt and got extra support from a drifting plank, but later he switched to the packing case on which Brown was already riding.

Fusilier Regiment Party In Britain After Safe Journey

Local Unit Represented in Advance Guard of Canadian Armored Division Which Arrived in Old Country Yesterday — Sergeants Entirely Satisfied with Food Received Aboard Ship—Four Local Officers Included.

FORMER LOCAL NEWSPAPERMAN IN NEW CONVOY

Pilot Officer Marcel Olivier, R.C.A.F., Included in Large Group of Scribes Arriving in Britain Yesterday.

At least ten newspapermen were included in the large convoy of Canadian troops and airmen who arrived in Britain yesterday, among them Pilot Officer W. G. Marcel Olivier, Royal Canadian Air Force, of this city, who was a member of the Record staff before enlisting.

P.O. Olivier, an Observer, went on Active Service when the Sher-

First representatives of Major-General F. F. Worthington's Canadian Armored Division were landed yesterday in Britain after an uneventful crossing of a large convoy of army and Air Force men from this Dominion included a group of officers, non-commissioned officers and other ranks from the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, now the 27th Canadian Armored Regiment.

Among the officers who made the crossing were Lieutenants Doug Bradley, Norm Welsh, Henry Tremblay and Don McCallum, all of this city, and Meritt H. Biteman, of Thetford Mines.

The non-commissioned officers of the regiment were worried about the food situation in Britain, but Cpl. Clyde Curtis, of Stanstead, and Sergeants Howard Bennett, of Sherbrooke, and Fred McLean, of Lennoxville, decided that if they were fed as well in army camps as they were aboard ship they would make out all right. This is the second war for McLean, a Scot. He served with the Cameron Highlanders through the First Great War.

BAGPIPE MUSIC IS NOT APPRECIATED

An East Coast Canadian Port, May 14.—(C)—"They don't appreciate good music, that's all," mourned Bagpipe Artist Sgt. F. MacLean, of Sherbrooke, Que., as he wearily told his messmates allowed him to practice on his beloved pipes only once a week.

MacLean, a native of Scotland, has arrived in Britain with the latest group of Canadian reinforcements. His very first leave, he said, he will spend in his native land, where people won't cover their ears when they hear the "bonny skirl."

"It's a good guy, except for that one fault," said Sgt. E. A. Howland of Montreal, "but why anyone thinks that's music, I don't know. Why doesn't he play a little jive on that contraption?"

Others in the same unit included A. Quinn and Stewart Leith, of Sherbrooke, and Don Jackson of Montreal.

STOVE PIPE BLAZE

A stove pipe blaze was put out at the home of Leonard Sevigny yesterday by the Municipal Fire Department. There was no damage.

Crampton of the Montreal office of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, hoped to have a rest during the crossing but after the first day at sea they found themselves editing and publishing a daily paper.

Called the Blank Blackout—Blank being the name of the ship—the paper was a mimeographed report of news aboard ship and it made a big hit with the airmen and troops.

Aboard one vessel was a former Montreal Gazette reporter, Sgt. Observer Don Curtin, who gave up a commission in the Canadian Grenadier Guards to join the R.C.A.F. He was surprised when he discovered that the first detachment of the Grenadier Guards to come to England was travelling in the same convoy.

The army was not without its scribes. Three former members of the St. Thomas (Ont.) Times-Journal staff were with the Elgin Regiment. They were Capt. W. B. Brodie, Lieut. N. M. McDougall and Lieut. Frank Greene.

What You Are Helping The Red Cross To Do

One of thirty-six large mobile kitchens presented by the Canadian Red Cross to British Fire Fighting Services, the unit shown above has penetrated to the heart of a bombed area in London where it is prepared to serve as many as 250 hot meals to men who stay on the job until the last bomb victim is rescued and the last fire is out. Hundreds of Canadian Red Cross ambulances are doing their share too.

Maintenance of these services by the Red Cross depends upon the success of the current campaign to raise $9,000,000 throughout Canada in which Quebec's share is $2,000,000 and Sherbrooke's quota is $35,000.

PHILATHEA SOCIETY MEETS

The members of the Philathea Society were pleasantly entertained at the parsonage by Mrs. N. McLeod, when they held their regular monthly meeting with eleven members present. Mrs. H. R. Frizell conducted the business period.

A satisfactory sum was reported from the rummage sale held in Douglas Hall on Saturday last.

Several members were reported ill and flowers were ordered for them. Plans were made to hold the annual salad tea and sale of aprons, fancy work and food early in June.

Lunch was served by Mrs. McLeod, assisted by Mrs. Austin Scott and Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace. Anniversary supper, Lennoxville United Church, Tuesday, May 19, 4 to 6 p.m.

Quebec Heater Coming Back Into Its Own

The old "Quebec heater"—much maligned but very efficient heating unit peculiar to this section of the Eastern Townships for generations—is scheduled to come back to its own within the very near future owing to a recent ruling from Ottawa curtailing the manufacture of stoves to save iron and steel.

Sherbrooke hardware stores and stove dealers yesterday reported that they have booked hundreds of orders for this heating unit for before Fall delivery. It was learned at the same time that many stores and dealers will stock the "Quebec heater" on a large scale.

Absolutely shorn of gadgets, it performed its work well. In thousands of homes throughout this section of Quebec Province, it was the only means of supplying warmth.

"It was economical in operation, but in appearance, as a stove, for it was just an enlarged iron stove-pipe about three feet high, lined with firebrick, and about two feet in diameter. It boasted of no grate, had a small aperture at the bottom for clearing out ashes, and was fed fuel from the top," it was explained by an old-timer to a Record scribe.

"It burned everything and anything to a cinder and served its purpose admirably while the wintry blasts forced the thermometer to twenty or thirty degrees below zero," he added.

However, some years ago, manufacturers bent on improving their wares put out some new models. They dressed them up to look like victrolas and radios; gave them bright colored casings, and trimmed them with nickel-plated fittings, installed grates which reduced efficiency. They even fitted them with oil burning equipment and brought them thoroughly up to date. The new stoves sold, they appealed to the eye of the thrifty French-Canadian householder.

But that is all over now, for the Department of Munitions and Supply has decreed that on and after the fifteenth of the month no new stoves other than the approved models may be manufactured or in the words of Alan H. Williams, Supplies Controller, "The bride of 1913 may get something of a shock when she sees the new stove. Built for utility rather than for appearance, the new models will be cooking and heating machines and nothing more."

Plans To Catch Rare Species Of Butterfly On Mount Orford

Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce during the past several years has been in receipt of communications from all over the United States and Canada seeking all kinds of information.

The latest letter of this type, received yesterday, is from a butterfly catcher of Rahway, N.J., U.S.A.

The writer, Sherman R. Farrell, 1274 Fulton Street, states that he and a friend are planning to spend several days the latter part of this month in the Sherbrooke area, inasmuch as he has learned that a certain rare species of butterfly has been seen on a certain Mount Orford. (Apparently he means Mount Orford.) The location of this mountain and other data concerning the locale, hotels and transportation facilities are also desired by the writer.

"That's a new one on me," smiled Alberic Julien, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. "I'll send along all the necessary information, but I don't know whether there are any butterflies on Mount Orford."

THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS STAGED AT ST. PAUL'S

The dramatic ability of several members of St. Paul's congregation is well known, but last evening a number of "new stars" appeared in the series of three one-act plays presented under the direction of Mrs. T. V. Vane in the Parish Hall for the benefit of the Building Fund and St. Paul's Guild.

The efficient directress was ably assisted by Mr. A. Morris, President of the Men's Club, and Mr. J. Allanson, People's Warden, who took charge of the stage effects, furnishings and lighting.

Long before the opening hour, the Parish Hall was filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. T. Oak, who acted as cashier, being much perturbed as to how to find a place for the later comers, many of whom found only standing room.

The Rev. W. T. Gray acted as chairman, and his introductory remarks were most appropriate, paving the way for the members of the cast prior to each of the three enjoyable plays.

The first presentation was entitled "If Women Worked As Men Do," the cast including Mrs. May Daykin, Mrs. J. Allanson, Miss Elaine Edgcombe and Miss Lydia Wyatt.

This play was considered semi-comic. The second, "Rising With Grace," cleverly portrayed by Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. J. Allanson, Mrs. J. Robinson, Mrs. B. Thorne and Mrs. L. Pratt, was comic, the climax of comedy being reached in the final play, "Polly Put the Kettle On." The cast in this delightful act, for which the stage managers arranged two scenes, included Miss Edith Smith, Miss Vivian Woolerton, Miss Lauren Pratt, Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. H. Wyatt, Mrs. A. Bray and Miss Mary Edgcombe.

Congratulations were showered on Mrs. Vane, director, the stage managers and each member of the large cast required for the proper presentation of the three well-chosen plays, each having done his or her bit towards the splendid success of the evening.

Loose change was sold between acts under the convener'ship of Mrs. S. Farmer and Mrs. A. Morris. Popular music by Mr. L. Pratt amused the crowd between plays and at the close of the programme he played "God Save the King."

Singing Of Protestant Pupils At Armory Impresses Large Audience

School Children Present Excellent Programme of Choruses Under Direction of Frederick L. McLearn at William Street Armory—Chorus of 500 Voices Heard in Several Selections.

Showing that the present-day educational system is by no means confined to the three R's, pupils in Grades III to X inclusive in Sherbrooke's Protestant schools last night presented a highly enjoyable choral concert in the William Street Armory before a large audience of parents and friends of the young performers.

Directed by Frederick L. McLearn, L.R.S.M., music supervisor in the schools and organist and choir director of St. Peter's Church, the pupils, singing both in a choir of five hundred voices, and in smaller groups, gave a creditable performance, and most of the songs were given surprisingly effective treatment, with the pupils thoroughly enjoying the opportunity to display their talent.

Purpose of the concert was twofold—to show parents the type of musical training their children receive in the schools, and to raise money with which to defray expenses which will be incurred taking a chorus to the Provincial Festival of Song, Music which is to be held in Montreal a week from Saturday.

Most impressive part of the programme was the singing by all the pupils in Grades III to X, inclusive, something unique as far as school singing in Sherbrooke is concerned, but it would be unfair to imply that the other groups were not equally deserving of praise. All the numbers were pleasing, and showed that many hours of training and rehearsal had been spent in readiness for the event.

The programme was as follows:

"O Canada" and "The Star Spangled Banner," chorus; six selections, "Thanksgiving," "Autumn Song," "Winter Song," "God, Our Loving Father," "Spring Song," and "Echo Song," Grades III and IV; "A Song of Canada," chorus; "British Grenadiers," "All Through the Night" and "Bay of Biscay," Grades V and VI; "Rule Britannia," chorus; "Annie Laurie" and "In Dairy Vale," Grade VII girls; "Fair Canada, Our Country," chorus; "Brother James," "There's A Land" and "Ave Maria," (Schubert), elementary school pupils; "The Lincolnshire Poacher" and "The Song of the Jolly Roger," High School boys; "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "Santa Lucia," High School Girls; "Dear Land of Home," "Drums" and "Land of Hope and Glory," High School pupils; "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord, is Ended," chorus.

A special arrangement of "God Save the King" concluded the concert. After the first verse, in unison, the High School pupils sang harmony in the second verse, and in the final stanza the High School pupils carried the tune, with the elementary school pupils singing a descant.

Piano accompaniment was provided by Mrs. John Henderson and Miss Marion Parker.

APPOINTED BY WARTIME BOARD M. O. Beaumier, former manager of the Banque Canadienne Nationale at Warwick, has been appointed local representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Drummondville. It was announced today by L. C. Robitaille, Prices and Supply Representative, Montreal.

AIR MINISTER HAS U.K. PRESS SUPPORT

London, May 14.—(C.P. Cable)—A change in the Air Ministry's policy of anonymity is "long overdue," the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post said today, commenting on Canadian Air Minister Power's protest over the refusal of the Air Ministry to release news of individual actions and successes of Canadian airmen.

The Minister voiced a complaint often heard in Britain, the Telegraph said, and if his public protest stimulates the Ministry into making a change he will deserve the gratitude of Britain as well as Canada.

BRINGING THE WAR HOME

The announcements of Navy Minister Macdonald that freighters have been sunk in the waters of the St. Lawrence River by an enemy submarine, while not unexpected by the majority of clear-thinking Canadians, should nevertheless serve to speed up the war effort of the nation and serve as a standing rebuke to those elements of the population who have been prone to declare that "It cannot happen here." Canada has been brought definitely within the area of hostilities by this incident, and from the tenor of the statement of the Naval Minister it is considered unlikely that it will be an isolated incident, as he declared that it was improbable that information on similar incidents would be made public in the future in the interests of naval secrecy.

These sinkings should vividly impress upon all Canadians that this is a war for the preservation of this country, not a fight for England, for France, for Australia or even a fight for the United States. It is a fight demanding the all-out effort of every Canadian and should bring about the increase of both the offensive and defensive striking power of the country. The Overseas army must be strengthened in order that the enemy be kept away from these shores as much as possible. The naval service must be expanded to cope with the submarine and surface raider menace. At the same time the reserve home defence units must be filled to strength to meet any danger that might arise through the inability of the front line services to plug every hole in the national armor.

Defence of the country is vital, but the best means of assuring that the defence will be effective is to strike at the enemy, to force him to keep his striking power elsewhere. In this manner and in this manner alone can the war be prevented from devastating Canadian soil.

THE VALUE OF AIR POWER

The sinking of three British destroyers in the Mediterranean is a grim reminder that air power is going to play a major part—far greater than ever before—during this crucial year of the war.

Looking back on the terrible blood-baths which have been poured from the skies upon many peoples since the beginning of the conflict, it is difficult to believe that anything worse can be in store. Yet the indications are that we have seen little as compared with what is to come.

The new great bombers which now are racing to the various fronts from both Allied and Axis factories are the latest that science can produce and represent concentrated efficiency surpassing anything heretofore produced. They can fly farther and faster, carry greater loads of bombs, shoot more accurately—in short they are terrific in their striking power.

The Royal Air Force already has shown enough to convince the world that it has the best there is. The Nazi fleet, however, has for months been lying largely doggo, or playing possum, through much of the winter. Without question this long period has been utilized in overhauling and strengthening it immeasurably with new and better machines from the factories.

We have had glimpses of 1942 Nazi air strength. We saw it in the deaths of those three destroyers, and were reminded of it again Tuesday when the Nazis advertised in connection with their offensive on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea:

"Hell has been let loose over the Bolshevik positions in the Kerch peninsula."

Hell was indeed let loose, and yesterday the Nazis claimed victory with "annihilation" of the Red force. On the other hand, Moscow reports no substantial change in the situation. We must await more news for clarification of the position.

In any event, the German air armada for the most part still lies doggo. But that will not be for long, because it is safe to say that a world of evil is about to be whelped on the German airfields. Hitler is getting ready to strike a mighty blow somewhere. In view of circumstances Prime Minister Churchill has justification for his statement that "airborne invasion becomes more and more a possibility."

Such a Nazi invasion of the British Isles might be attempted if the Muscovites are able to hold the Nazis. Still, it likely would represent an act of desperation and would be employed by Hitler only as a last resort.

What seems more likely is that the Nazi leader will stage a huge air offensive in the Mediterranean theatre in conjunction with his effort to smash the Russian line and break into the Caucasus. If he cannot drive through the Reds he may try to reach the Middle East in a combined air and sea operation, by-passing Turkey and striking through Syria.

BRITISH WAR PRODUCTION

Britain's war production is at the highest point in history and will continue to expand until the limit of manpower and resources has been reached.

It is reliably understood that the output of guns, shells, bombs and other weapons of war for the air force and army in the first quarter of 1942 was twice as great as in the third quarter of 1940—the Dunkerque period when Britain went "flat out" in preparation for an expected invasion.

The extent of the expansion will be limited by the supply of labor, raw materials and machine tools, but the flood has not reached its peak.

The story of British production, which in relation to size of population is greater than that of any country in the world, is one of revolution from pre-war unpreparedness to the present position in which some fifty-five per cent of the country's resources are being devoted directly to work for the Government.

Articles considered necessities in peacetime no longer are being manufactured or are being turned out in such small quantities that they are almost unobtainable.

More and more the country is being geared to the war effort. Less than nine per cent of Britain's total import of raw materials in 1941, exclusive of articles for food production, was for civilian use. The percentage will be even lower in 1942.

In the production drive the post-Dunkerque days, when men and women worked seventy to eighty hours a week in factories preparing for what they feared might be the defence of their homes, are still cited as an example for the nation to follow.

Then came the Battle of Britain and the days and nights of bombing which, though they did not decrease output, slowed down the rate at which expansion could take place.

The rapidity of the expansion is attributable to several reasons. Factories launched in the first year of the war came into production in the autumn of 1941; the victory in the Battle of the Atlantic resulted in an unbroken flow of raw materials; new men and women workers brought into industry "got the feel" of their jobs and the output increased accordingly.

Keeping pace with the increase in quantity has been the quality of the goods produced and Britain's weapons of war have been recognized as among the best in the world.

The output might have been greater had not Britain adopted the policy of "quality first," but the results have borne out the Government's decision in that respect.

Germany's Messerschmitts were mass-produced and thrown into the Battle of Britain by the thousands. They were met and defeated by far fewer numbers of superior Spitfires and Hurricanes.

Improvements will continue to be made as experience in battle shows faults in equipment now being manufactured. Just as the air war over Britain brought improvements in aircraft, so has the fighting in the Middle East brought improvements in tanks.

THE ALLIED BREADBASKET

Preliminary crop reports indicate that Dame Nature has joined forces with the North American farmer in the programme of food for victory. Bumper harvests all along the line are forecast with weather and soil conditions ideal.

On the enemy side of the picture, the outlook in Axis-dominated parts of the world took on a definitely unfavorable tinge.

The United States Department of Agriculture Crop Reporting Board said the general outlook is "decidedly good—in fact if the weather were any better, the yield of foodstuffs would be augmented even more." The May 1 Government crop report indicated a winter wheat crop of 646,875,000 bushels and a rye harvest of 53,279,000 bushels.

The area sown to winter wheat is the smallest except for one year since 1914, the report said, but with the smallest acreage abandonment and highest yield per acre in ten years, the 1942 crop is expected to produce 22,000,000 bushels more than was indicated a month ago and only 24,000,000 bushels less than the huge crop of last year.

The yield per acre is estimated at 17.8 bushels.

Broomhall, the British grain authority, reported on the other hand that over much of the European continent winter and spring crops are backward due to a recent cold, dry spell.

"As a result of the small acreage planted last fall and the lateness of spring," the report added, "it is believed that most countries are facing their third successive indifferent harvest. In the Danube area, even with a good growing season, wheat surpluses are likely to be very small."

Of the Russian situation Broomhall said: "There are great possibilities of increased food production in Siberia where large areas are capable of a higher yield per acre than the Ukraine."

The Department of Agriculture added that the European dairy situation continued to deteriorate because of the shortage of concentrated feeds, reduced numbers of cattle, shortage of farm labor and large requisitions by the armies of invasion.

But American butter production for the week ended May 7 increased seven per cent over the previous week and 7.8 per cent over the same week a year ago. Milk production rose about four per cent above that at the same time a year ago.

FERTILE SOIL FOR FAMINE

Dear Sir:—The Record's recent editorial on "Starvation Sweeps Belgium" was not only thoughtful and timely, but also very well written. The details of the fate which has twice engulfed the Belgian people within twenty-five years, but certainly accented the fact that "food," or rather, the lack of it, will play its historic role in pulling down the ferocious tyrants dominating most of "the ancient and famous peoples of Europe," referred to by the valiant Churchill at this hour.

In the course of a chapter on Belgium and Luxembourg, in Paul de Hevesy's authoritative work, "World Wheat Planning," 1939, I note the following facts set forth:

The slump in agricultural prices, beginning in 1929, led to wheat prices in Belgium, as elsewhere, falling below the cost of production. Consequently Belgian farmers began increasingly to take up animal and milk production. This tendency threatened to damage the already precarious price situation in these latter branches of agriculture. To remedy this situation, the Government abandoned its former policy of free wheat imports and instituted, in March, 1931, a policy of importation of wheat from the outside world. The import of wheat is subject to special permit, granted only when the Cereals Office at Antwerp possesses proof that corresponding quantities of domestic wheat have been purchased and utilized in 1939, led to wheat prices in Belgium, as elsewhere, falling below the cost of production. Consequently Belgian farmers began increasingly to take up animal and milk production. This tendency threatened to damage the already precarious price situation in these latter branches of agriculture. To remedy this situation, the Government abandoned its former policy of free wheat imports and instituted, in March, 1931, a policy of importation of wheat from the outside world. DENTIST HAS ANNIVERSARY AT DANVILLE

Friends Fete Dr. G. W. Adams,
One of Oldest Practising
Dentists of Province of Quebec.

Danville, May 14.—Dr. G. W. Adams, a well known dentist and highly respected citizen of this community, celebrated on May 1 the sixtieth anniversary of his association with that profession.

He is one of the oldest practising dentists in the Province of Quebec, and except for the time spent in college, has lived and carried on his work in Danville, with branch offices in many nearby towns.

Dr. Adams was pleasantly surprised in the evening, when some thirty-five of his friends came to his home to personally extend congratulations. As spending some time in social activities, Dr. Adams was presented with a beautiful floor lamp. He expressed his appreciation in his usual genial manner. The ladies served refreshments.

THE SHIPTON WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The year 1941-42 was for the Shipton Women's Institute an interesting and varied one, as shown by the publicity report.

Agriculture was marked by the reading of a selected article about gardens made in buckets. Later, a flower show was held, where the winners of prizes for the most attractive bouquets were Mrs. Montmany, Miss Church, and Mrs. Vermeeren.

A talk by the Rev. Mr. Hinton on legislation led to the thought that people to live orderly lives in an orderly community.

To emphasize Canadianization and National Events, Mrs. Mark Mills described with sympathy some of the unique and interesting customs of the European settlers in the West, whom she had known.

Dealing with education and better schools, Miss Margaret LeRoux's thoughtful talk presented certain advantageous aspects of the proposed larger school unit, together with a brief summary of the bill intended to bring the County Unit into being. Some of the members gave their time, and one member, Miss Gwen Elliott, gave generously of her money as well, to the School Fair, in August.

Mrs. Joseph Suffins, Jr., Convener of Child Welfare, presented a paper on methods of training and feeding children, and the attendant results.

Mrs. William Clarke read a paper tracing the development of colonization in Canada.

The paper on Home Economics, prepared by Mrs. Harmon Lodge, stressed the importance of the home-maker, showing the connection between an orderly household and the possession of serene temperaments and a sane mental and moral outlook among the members of such a home. A tufted bedspread was made of bleached flour bags. This was raffled and won by Mrs. William Finlay. An afghan, made of small squares knitted by the members and put together by Mrs. Harmon Lodge, was given to the Red Cross.

The August meeting, planned as a picnic, became, because of the rain, a happy indoor gathering, in the home of Mrs. Orrin Olney. Mrs. Joseph Suffins, Jr., won the prize for the quiz contest. Mrs. Olney was presented with a birthday gift by the members of the Institute.

All the extra-branch meetings, semi-annuals and conventions were attended by representatives of our Institute. A supper social was held in the spring and a baked bean supper in the fall. More money was raised by a penny raffle held at the December meeting. This meeting was also marked by the exchange of small gifts.

A gift of maple sugar was sent to the Navy League. A poppy wreath was purchased for the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day. Tea-bags were sent to Scotland, most appreciative letters being received in return. Ten dollars went to the Salvation Army, a further sum was given the Red Cross, and $2 was given to the Queen's Fund. Ten dollars was expended through Mr. Henry Smith, at Christmas, to send cigarettes and candy to soldiers overseas.

News Items From Ayer's Cliff

A very impressive service was held in Beulah United Church on May 10, to open the hour of worship a medley of old time hymns were played on the organ and after the assembling of the choir, they led the singing of others. During the service the choir rendered the anthems, "Believe in Me," when the solo was taken by Mrs. R. G. McFarlane. In the second anthem, "In the Secret of His Presence," Messrs. Keeler sang the duet part. "He Planned It All" was given as a male chorus and was much enjoyed. The old hymn, "Almost Persuaded," was sung by Mr. Alfred Keeler, with the choir humming his accompaniment in parts, making it very effective. During the offering, an old hymn was used as a special number. Rev. M. H. Sanderson conducted the service and for his address based his remarks on the 18th verse of the 14th chapter of St. Luke. "They all with one consent began to make excuses," and the question, "What excuse have we for not being Christians?" To this he gave straight forward reasons, why we should be Christians and in his discourse proved how refusals or excuses in and for the work of Christ were our denial of working for him, and how many he said, "were to busy" to help in any way in the work of the church and his service. In closing Rev. Sanderson thanked the choir for the planning of the excellent service.

Mrs. Arnold McVey and infant daughter, Sue Lane, have returned from the Sherbrooke Hospital to their home here.

PAY TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF RICHMOND BOYS

Impressive Memorial Service
Held for Gunner Eric Stevens and Sgt. Harold Alvan
Taylor Who Gave Their Lives Overseas.

Richmond, May 14.—The seating capacity of Chalmers' United Church was not sufficient to accommodate the large number of sympathizing relatives and friends who assembled to attend the memorial service held in memory of 1st Anti-Tank Gunner Eric Stevens and Sgt. Harold Alvan Taylor, R.C.A.F., two of Richmond's young men who have paid the supreme sacrifice for home and country while on active service.

The service, conducted by the Pastor, Rev. S. G. Woolfrey, assisted by Flight-Lieutenant Rev. Higgins, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Victoria, was most impressive. The Pastor, with words of sympathy and comfort to the sorrowing congregation, stressed the words of a quotation found among the possessions of the late Alvan Taylor—words that may well be taken as a last message from the deceased—"It is better to die for things that live than to live for things that die."

The large congregation was augmented by members of the Udothup Lord Aylmer Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, Branch No. 15, B.E.S.L. of the Canadian Legion, the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, the Girl Guides, the Young People's Union, and the Canadian Girls in Training. During the service their flags were received by the Pastor and deposited at the altar. A guard of honor under the Flying Officer Morley from No. 3 Initial Training School, Royal Canadian Air Force, Victoria, was present.

The choral part of the service, under the supervision of the choir leader, Mrs. Becker, with Mrs. Dyson as organist, rendered the anthem "Like as a Father," The solos, "Somewhere the Sun Is Shining" and "The Lost Chord," were sung by LAC, Harold S. Styles, of St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A., now in training at Victoria, LAC. Styles possesses a barytone voice of unusual quality, and his sympathetic interpretation of these two selections will not soon be forgotten by the large congregation who were deeply moved by his rendition.

Sgt. Harold Alvan Taylor, R.C.A.F., was reported missing after failing to return from air operations last August. A native of Richmond, Alvan had spent his boyhood among the friends who now assembled to pay their respects to two of their fellow-citizens whose amiable dis-

E.T. CHURCHMEN IN SESSION AT COWANSVILLE

Trinity Church Hall Scene of Meeting of E.T. Unit of Fellowship for Christian Social Order.

Cowansville, May 14.—A meeting of the Eastern Townships unit of the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order was held in Trinity Church Hall.

Those present from out-of-town were Rev. F.A.C. Dosssee, Sherbrooke, Rev. C. M. Stewart, Stanstead, Rev. P. Matthews, Magog, Rev. Maynard Booth, Arvida, Rev. A. Lovelace and Mrs. Lovelace, Beebe, Rev. A. Gustafson, Scotstown, Rev. T. Barbour, Farnham, and Rev. Mr. Barr, Bolton.

A business meeting was held in the afternoon and plans were made for the summer work.

The Fellowship is an Association of Christians, whose religious convictions have led them to a belief that the creation of a new social order is essential to the realization of the Kingdom of God.

The official publication of the order is called "Christian Social Action," and a recent number summarizes the issue confronting the ecumenical movement as follows: The obstacles to the development of the economic movement are not primarily those connected with denominationalism, but rather those connected with the consequence of the economic structure of society. The present economic system is a predisposing cause of the racial, national, and class conflicts, which increasingly negate the efforts of the Church to establish Christian community. The evils which it promotes are such that the changing of the economic system to achieve the common ownership of the means of production for the meeting of human needs has become a necessary step in the work of the Kingdom of God. The relation between the economic order and Christian community is the crucial issue confronting the ecumenical movement.

At the evening session an exhaustive paper on "The Prophets and the Social Order," by Professor R. B. Y. Scott, was read by Rev. Victor Rose, of Pointe Claire, in the presence of Professor Scott. This was followed by a general discussion.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by members of the A.Y.P.A.

INDIANS WITHIN HALF-GAME OF A. L. LEAD

Chubby Dean Masters Champs By 7-2 Score

Only Joe DiMaggio Out of Line, Hammering Out Two Homers Against Cleveland—Curt Davis Hurls Two-Hitter to Blank Cincinnati 4-0 for Dodgers—Pitcher Jim Tobin Hits Three Circuit Clouts in Braves' Win Over Cubs.

Only Joe DiMaggio, the jolting outfielder, could claim the services of LeRoy (Chubby) Dean at Cleveland yesterday afternoon, and the round Indian twirler set the American League leaders and world champions down with six hits to coast to a 7-2 triumph.

DiMaggio turned in a pulverizing performance, swatting a home run in the seventh inning and adding another in the ninth frame for good measure.

The loss was the Yankees' first in eight games, and ended a seven-game victory streak, allowing the Cleveland club to climb within a half-game of first place. Ten thousand fans watched Dean fan six Yankees and issue only one base ball while the Indians got to Gomez and Lindell for rime sateties.

Elsewhere along the American League front the White Sox of Chicago grabbed a 2-1 decision from the Boston Red Sox in a ten-inning battle, a single by Myril Hoag sending Joe Kuhel home with the winning tally. Charley Wagner and Johnny Humphries waged an eight-inning scoreless pitching duel. Both teams had tallied once in the ninth before the tenth inning break through.

A free-for-all struggle which included twenty-eight hits and seven errors was won by Philadelphia Athletics by a 10-9 score over St. Louis Browns, and Connie Mack's A's thus advanced into fifth position in the junior loop. Bob Johnson and Louis Blair clouted three hits each to lead the attack for the A's, who got off to a 5-0 lead in the third inning and were never headed.

The other American League tilt saw the Tigers of Detroit square accounts with big Buck Newsum, who blanked them a week ago, by combining his delivering for nine hits in seven innings and scoring a 6-2 triumph over Washington Senators. Youthful Hal Newhouse gave the Senators some classy flipping, allowing only three hits, one of which was Bob Estalella's fourth circuit clout of the year. It was the Tigers' ninth straight win on their home field.

In the National League the feature tilt was served up by the Dodgers and the Reds at Brooklyn, where thirty-five-year-old Curt Davis led the Flatbushers to a 4-0 victory with a brilliant two-hit pitching job, retiring the Reds in succession in the last six innings. Brooklyn scored all their runs in the first four frames at the expense of Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vander Meer.

Pittsburgh Pirates rallied for three runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Giants 3-1 at the Polo Grounds behind the six-hit twirling of Max Butcher. Johnny Barrett punched out the big blow, a double in the seventh inning to score two runs, and later scored himself on a fly to the outfield. Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Buccaneers, was bounced for the third time this season.

Jim Tobin staged a one-man show at Boston to make the Braves' 6-5 win over the Cubs of Chicago a personal triumph. Not content with limiting the Chicago club to five hits, Tobin slammed out three home runs. Some show by a pitcher!

In the other National League fixture the Cardinals ended a four-game losing streak by hammering four Philadelphia moundmen for fifteen hits to coast to a 9-1 triumph behind Lon Warneke's masterful five-hitter. Slaughter, Brown and Musical led the barrage with three hits each.

YESTERDAY'S STARS
Curt Davis, Dodgers: Shut out Reds with two-hit hurling.
Jim Tobin, Braves: Pitched five-hit ball and collected three home runs himself to beat Cubs.

Joe Haynes and Myril Hoag, White Sox: Former furnished great relief hurling job, including the fanning of Jimmie Foxx with the bases loaded in the ninth inning, and latter singled home winning run against Red Sox in 10th.

Hal Newhouse, Tigers: Stopped Senators with three-hit pitching.
Chubby Dean, Indians: Held Yanks to six hits and himself drove in two runs with double.

Lon Warneke, Cardinals: Pitched five-hit ball to down Phils.
Max Butcher and Johnny Barrett, Pirates: Former provided six-hit hurling and latter doubled for two runs in win over Giants.

Canadian Race Tracks Survive Increased Wartime Taxation

Toronto, May 14.—Canadian race tracks have survived higher wartime taxes. Attendances have exploded the theory that people would spend so much on War Savings Certificates they would have nothing left for pari-mutuel tickets. Good or bad, that's how it has been.

But gasoline rationing has teeth. Some tracks already are feeling the bite. Little has been made public to indicate exactly how much racing men believe gas rationing will affect their industry. The few signs have been strong.

Tony Gorman, Executive Chief of Quebec racing, has been reported as wanting to swing the Ottawa Connaught Park race meet to Blue Bonnets, near Montreal. He thinks Connaught is too far from the centre of the Capital, will be poorly attended because of rationing.

In Toronto there is a movement to have this city's four spring meetings at Woodbine Park to save gasoline and tires.

The expert says:
Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell, commenting on Scotty Kennedy, Winnipeg Rugby Football Club Secretary, paying only 37 cents for a race horse: "That Scot has not been

EQUIPMENT IS GIVEN OUT TO U.S. SOLDIERS

Baseball Equipment Fund Handed in National League Office Has Provided Armed Forces with 80,000 Pieces.

New York May 14.—The Baseball Equipment Fund handed out of the National League office has already provided the armed forces with 80,000 pieces of baseball equipment—almost everything but uniforms and shoes.

The "A" kit consists of one dozen balls, three bats and two rule books. The "B" kit includes a catcher's glove, mask and chest protector.

Most men in military service take their gloves to camp or buy them at cost at post exchanges.

Throughout the big leagues fans have been asked to return balls hit into the stands. (Some minor leagues are doing this, too.) It is estimated that 1,000 dozen balls will be obtained for army use through this throw-back plan.

Out on a limb:
When Bob Whitlow, army pitcher, soaked the ball over a fence 35 feet from the home plate at West Point the other day, he got credit for a double instead of a home run. The ball hit the trunk of a tree outside the field and bounced back. And military efficiency, providing for the possibility that a hit would strike one of the branches hanging over the field, had a ground rule for what might happen in the air.

Alsab Popular Favorite of Racing Crowd

Bought for $700. Preakness Colt Captures All Hearts with Horatio Algerism in Preakness Victory.

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Editor
New York, May 14.—One of the town's itinerant racing fans, so the story goes, journeyed to Baltimore to see The Preakness. When he arrived, he found the tariff beyond his means and after being rebuffed at the gate stood aside mournfully trying to figure a way to get inside.

A well-dressed gentleman approached the gate.
"I'm Alsab's owner," he told the attendant.

"Come right in, sir," was the respectful reply.

Another chap stepped up.
"I'm Alsab's trainer," he announced, was waved in promptly.

A small fellow strolled up to the gate.
"I'm Alsab's jockey," he informed. In he went.

Our little East Side friend returned to the line.

"Whaddya want?" asked the door man gruffly.

The visitor looked him in the eye and without a blink informed.

"I'm Alsab."

Press box experts buzzed Preakness dope at Pimlico. You found the Sun Again supporters, of which there were too many, the Alsab admirers, the Valinda Orphans, Devil Diver devotees. Requested nabbs, and even a few Domingo disciples.

The horse no one mentioned was Shut Out.

"What do you expect?" wisecracked.

Stan Wilson, professional at the Country Club, will probably be gray-haired by the time the golf season is over this fall from trying to make his supply of balls stretch through.

Whereas last year Stan had four hundred dozen balls, this summer he has only a few more than one hundred dozen, and he has to ration his supply, selling no more than three a week to any one member.

You can imagine how careful he has to be in his lessons for fear of loss.

Albert Troy, chief steward at the Sherbrooke Country Club for the last two seasons, has accepted a position in the same capacity with the Mount Pleasant Club, and his pals will wish him luck in his new job. Albert has seen service at St. George's Club, the Curling Club, the Hermitage Club and the Mount Orford National Park Club.

IN SPORTING VEIN By ALLAN BRYCE

Fans who have fallen into the habit of strolling to the Parade Grounds of a summer evening to watch the softball games are going to find something else to do. They'll have to take up gin rummy or long walks or start going to bed with the chickens, because it looks very much as if there will be no softball at all.

Definite decision to call off operations for the summer has been made by the City League, and there are signs that there will not be any Industrial ball either, although no decision has been reached in this regard.

Ernie Taylor, Secretary-Treasurer of the Industrial group, said that a meeting will be called for next week to talk over the situation, but did not entertain any high hopes that the circuit could carry on, faced as it is with a shortage of available players and the hard job of working all day and several nights and playing on others that the players have to put up with during the softball season.

High school boys throughout the district are out strengthening their leg muscles and improving their physical condition in preparation for the annual interscholastic track meet on May 23 to be held as usual under the direction of Rev. Errol Amorson and his capable staff at Stanstead College. Big event in the school spring season and the last fling, as it were, before the final examinations, the Stanstead meet brings lads and lassies from far and wide in the Townships, and now and again some exceptionally fine young athletes are discovered, standing out from the crowd above the pack.

As usual, the Stanstead track and field team is favored to retain the Eastern Townships championship.

"CRASH" CAPS ORDERED FOR TEXAS SQUAD

Helmet Saves Texas League Team Outfielder from Skull Fracture and Gives Manager Idea.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 14.—Ivan Crawford, outfielder for Tulsa in the Texas League, received a fractured skull when struck by a pitched ball in a game against Fort Worth here last year. It saved Cy Block, Tulsa outfielder, from the same fate this season.

Here's how: Crawford got himself a protective helmet this year. But he wasn't playing here the other night and Block, finding the helmet fitted him perfectly, borrowed it.

Block was hit over the ear by one of Ed Greer's fast balls. Whitey Platt, Tulsa outfielder, who ran to Block when he went down, said the latter was unconscious for only four or five seconds.

Block says he never will go to bat without one of the "crash" helmets. Manager Roy Johnson, of the Tulsa club, has ordered a full set of the special caps and will require all players to wear them.

Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles of the International League will meet tonight in the first lighted game in the New York area since the dim-out went into effect.

The Giants decided to go ahead with their night game after tests made by city officials disclosed that the lights from Roosevelt Stadium could not be seen 1 1/2 miles out to sea to the East.

Yesterday at Buffalo, the Bisons pounded three Jersey City hurlers for 18 hits, including home runs by Mayo Smith, Ed Kobesky and Mike Rocco, for a 17-5 victory. It was the Giants' ninth loss in 14 away-from-home contests.

The Orioles moved 4 into Jersey City from Montreal, where yesterday's series final was postponed.

Toronto Maple Leafs pushed into third place in the standings by taking a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs by 3-1 and 9-3 scores.

The first game, a seven-inning twilight affair, saw Lefty Joe Sullivan hang up his third victory of the year, although he was relieved by Dick Conger when the Chiefs threatened in the last frame.

In the nightcap, Bill Brandt won his fifth victory of the season as his mates, led by Burgess Whitehead, Johnny Wrosteck and Nick Gregory, walloped three Syracuse hurlers for twelve hits. Gregory hit a home run in the second inning with one on.

Newark Bears continued their heavy hitting by blasting six Rochester hurlers for a 10-4 triumph. It was the Bear's sixth straight victory over the Red Wings.
