By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The biggest blizzard in two years shrieked across the prairies today, plugging transportation systems and causing havoc in both urban and rural areas.

Most parts of central Alberta were paralysed Tuesday by winds whipping snow along at up to 60 m.p.h. By early today, the 24-hour blast was beginning to subside there, and was howling through Saskatchewan on its way to Manitoba.

Temperatures of 15-to 25-below zero were falling in the wake of the storm, which disrupted unusually tame mid-winter weather in the West.

Most of Saskatchewan had left the bite of the blizzard by Tuesday night. At 10 p.m., Saskatoon reported traffic had been fumbling through the streets in zero visibility for nine hours. Few vehicles dared to venture out to rural areas.

Visibility also was nil Tuesday in Regina. An RCMP spokesman said constables were stopping traffic from leaving that city. Roads were filling in with heavy drifting snow, but no serious accidents were reported.

"There's no way they (Motorists) can go fast enough to have a bad accident," said the police spokesman.

PLANES STOPPED

Some flights managed to get in an out of Regina, but Saskatoon airport was shut down late Tuesday. Norcanair, a Prince Albert-based airline, closed its operations.

CP Air, Air Canada and Pacific Western Airlines reported delays and flight cancellations. Trains and buses were running behind schedule.

The blizzard ripped into the Edmonton area at midnight Monday night and about an hour and a half later, a PWA Boeing 707 cargo jet crashed during final instrument approach to Edmonton International Airport. All five crew members aboard and 75 head of cattle died.

One Alberta road death was directly attributed to the storm. Sylvia Mary Rombough, 18, of Edmonton, died Tuesday night several hours after the car in which she was riding hit a semi-trailer truck on the Edmonton-Calgary highway not far from Edmonton International Airport.

RCMP in Leduc, 15 miles south of Edmonton, said more than 50 cars were involved in different accidents Tuesday on highway 2 to Calgary. An Edmonton towing company reported many cars in the ditch along that road and pulled its trucks out of the area at 9 p.m. because blowing snow and darkness had made the highway almost invisible.

Several multiple-vehicle crashes were reported.

All roads throughout Alberta and Saskatchewan were treacherous by late Tuesday. The storm carried only two or three inches of snow to most areas, but drifts were two feet deep in many places.

Classes were cancelled today in most rural school divisions in central Alberta. Some games in the Western Canada Hockey League and the Alberta and Saskatchewan junior leagues were postponed because road travel was next to impossible.

The storm still packed a vicious punch when it reached Saskatchewan. Winds were gusting to 55 m.p.h. and were expected to continue blowing until later today.

Manitoba forecasters said the blizzard would be just a bad storm in that province. Parts of western Manitoba were touched by strong winds late Tuesday night, but little snow had fallen.

Northeastern British Columbia was first to feel the blizzard, which was spawned in the Yukon. It hit Fort St. John Monday afternoon before racing into Alberta.

School has service in the B.C.'s Peace River country was cancelled today, forcing closure of 23 schools and giving 5,000 rural students an unexpected holiday.

Full blizzard conditions remained in some east-central districts of Alberta late Tuesday, but calm was expected to arrive by daybreak.

An Edmonton weather forecaster called the storm a "good, honest Prairie blizzard." He said the west hadn't seen one like it in two winters.

Edmonton tragedy: flight recorder may provide clues

EDMONTON (CP) — A flight recorder recovered Tuesday from the wreckage of a Pacific Western Airlines Boeing 707 cargo plane is expected to help investigators determine if the crash occurred at the same time a power failure hit Edmonton International Airport.

The four-engine jet, carrying 75 head of Holstein cattle from Toronto to Korea, went down early Tuesday morning while attempting an instrument-approach landing in a fierce blizzard. All five crew members were killed when the huge aircraft sliced through a power line, hit a patch of poplar trees and slammed into an abandoned gravel pit about two miles short of the airport runway.

Pacific Western officials and investigators from the department of transport refused to speculate on the cause of the crash, which occurred as the airport was experiencing wind gusts of 60 miles an hour and blowing snow.

"There is nothing startling us in the face right now," said W. J. Dick, a transport department investigation superintendent.

Mr. Dick said the flight recorder, being sent to Ottawa for examination "should help out" in determining if the plane crashed while power was out at the airport, 20 miles south of here.

Harry Herbert, PWA's public relations director in Edmonton, said there was a complete power failure at the airport at a critical period of the jet's approach. This may have deprived the craft of essential electrically-powered ground navigational aids and runway lights, he said.

Parker Currie, operations supervisor at the air traffic control centre, said radar, radio and instrument landing systems have auxiliary power supplies and did not go off. The runway lights "to my knowledge fluctuated for six to nine seconds before back-up power cut in."

Mr. Currie said the jet was using ground-based navigational aids to line up its approach with the runway. The pilot had the responsibility of determining the angle of approach and altitude of the plane by using his altimeter.

The plane was three miles south-southeast of the airport at the time of the 15-second power failure.

The control tower was in voice contact with the 707 when it suddenly disappeared from the radar screen, Mr. Currie said. The crew had acknowledged normal landing instructions, but did not reply to the next set of instructions from the tower.

Glen Garvin, PWA public relations manager in Vancouver, said the pilot, 51-year-old Captain Arthur Jung of Vancouver, was "one of our most senior pilots." Mr. Garvin said the pilot would not have attempted to land unless he had a minimum visibility of one mile with a 400-foot ceiling. Visibility at 1 a.m. Tuesday, about 30 minutes before the crash, was one mile with a 1,000-foot ceiling.

Other victims were Lowell Leroy Doerksen, 27, of Surrey, B.C., the first officer; George Albert Dormer, 49, of Richmond, B.C., chief flight engineer; Keith K. McMahon, 30, of Delta, B.C., senior load master; and Bill Vance, 35, of Edmonton. Mr. Vance, father of five, was project manager for the flight, the start of a major cattle shipment to Korea.

WORTH $52,000

The cattle were worth an estimated $52,000.

A team of nine investigators from Ottawa was scheduled to arrive Tuesday night to start sifting through the wreckage, littered over the bottom of a gravel pit, 250 by 100 yards and 20 feet deep.

Tension in Israel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — The volatile Israeli-Syrian front was tense today after the second aerial duel in three days between Israeli and Syrian planes.

Two aircraft—one Syrian and one not yet identified—were reported to have crashed in the latest dogfights Tuesday, over the snow-capped Mount Lebanon range near the Lebanese-Syrian border.

Syria, which has repeatedly vowed never to let Israeli raids go unpunished, said one Israeli plane was downed and it lost one of its own planes.

Sources in Damascus said Syrian MiGs have been patrolling the skies for the last three days, since Israeli planes raided a Syrian army camp last Saturday night. Since Syria has said it will trade blow for blow, attention today was focused on Damascus to see if it would react to Israel's raids Tuesday.

The noontime air battle was witnessed by New Year holidaymakers in the popular Lebanese winter sports centre of Faraya, about 25 miles northeast of Beirut.

SEE PLANE CRASH

The holiday-makers said they saw one plane crash against a mountainside and two parachutes open up over the rocky terrain. Authoritative sources said two Syrian pilots were picked up and taken to a hospital, one later dying of his injuries.

Local residents around Faraya said another plane was reported to have crashed further up the mountain chain, but official sources could not confirm this.

They said about a dozen Israeli and Syrian jets were involved in the clash. Lebanese anti-aircraft guns were also reported to have engaged the Israeli planes as they flew over Lebanon.

Israel said a Syrian MiG-21 was downed in the dogfight, but denied that any of its planes were lost.

Fire losses heavy

DERBY LINE — More than 180,000 dollars worth of cigarettes, liquor and perfume went up in smoke early yesterday morning when the Ammex Tax and Duty Free Store on route 55 in Derby Line on the border caught fire.

The fire chief for Derby Line, Benoit Blais, said yesterday evening that the cause of the fire was being investigated. He added that it was a particularly strange occurrence because no one had been in the store for two days since it was closed over the New Year holiday period.

Although the steel-constructed shell of the building remained intact, the interior was well gutted and fire destroyed almost all the contents of the store. Mr. Ronald Beauchesne, manager of the store, estimated damages amounting to $180,000. The losses included 16,000 bottles of liquor, 6,000 cartons of cigarettes and French perfume valued at approximately $10,000.

The fire was reported to the Derby Line fire department at 5:50 a.m. yesterday morning by a nearby resident. Two fire trucks and 14 firemen rushed to the store to fight the blaze.

However, they had to work for several hours before the fire was finally extinguished. The fire chief explained that the blaze was particularly difficult to fight because insulation between the double aluminum roof had caught alight as well.

Hijacker surrenders to priest and agent

BALTIMORE (AP) — A man with an empty gun took over a Piedmont Airlines plane shortly after it landed here Tuesday night, but a Roman Catholic cardinal and an FBI agent talked him into surrendering three hours later.

The man, identified as Charles A. Wenige, 37, of Baltimore, was arrested after he walked off the plane with FBI agent Thomas Farrow and conferred briefly with Lawrence Cardinal Shehan. The cardinal, archbishop of Baltimore, came to Friendship International Airport at the man's request and talked with him over the plane's radio.

Farrow went aboard the craft to substitute for two stewardesses taken hostage when the plane was commandeered as it completed a multi-stop flight from Atlanta, Ga. The other 37 passengers were already off the plane when Wenige, who had been hiding in a lavatory, accosted the stewardesses, authorities said.

TORONTO DESTINATION?

Farrow said Wenige had talked of "personal problems" and had been drinking on the plane. At one point, he threatened to kill himself, the agent said.

Unconfirmed reports circulating at the airport said he demanded to be flown to Toronto.

"He was at times excitable vocally, but not excitable in any physical sense," Farrow said.

Cardinal Shehan said the man told him he had been released from a hospital in Fairfax, Va., earlier in the day.

Farrow said he convinced Wenige that "he shouldn't appear before the cardinal with an exposed weapon."

Farrow said the man put the .45-calibre pistol inside his coat, chatted with the prelate and then was disarmed in a brief scuffle with FBI agents. Agents later discovered it was unloaded and said no bullets were found on the plane.

Authorities said Wenige would be arraigned Wednesday on charges of attempting to hijack an airplane and interfering with a flight crew.

The man, accompanied by Thomas Farrow, agent-in-charge of the Baltimore FBI office, walked down the ramp of the Piedmont Airline plane, shook hands with the cardinal and surrendered his weapon, believed to be a .45-calibre pistol.

The man was taken to a Baltimore hospital.

Congress impatient with progress of peace talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Congress convenes today amid clear signs it is impatient for a quick end to U.S. involvement in Indochina.

Two important congressional groups have served President Nixon notice that time and money will be running out if a peace settlement is not reached soon.

The moves were made in meetings at the Senate and the House of Representatives as Nixon began the first of a series of discussions with Henry Kissinger in advance of resumed peace talks.

Kissinger returned from a west coast vacation Tuesday night and had talks with the president at the White House. He is due to meet Le Duc Tho, North Vietnamese politburo member, in Paris next Monday.

On the eve of the Democratic-controlled Congress's new session, House Democrats passed a resolution calling for the ending of Indochina operations immediately, subject only to the safe withdrawal of U.S. troops and return of U.S. prisoners of war. The vote was 154 to 75.

SETS DEADLINE

Meanwhile, the Senate foreign relations committee—focal point of congressional opposition to the war—decided to give the president until his Jan. 20 inauguration to negotiate a war settlement.

The chairman, Senator J. William Fulbright, told reporters that the consensus of the committee was that if the war is not ended by then, members will push for using congressional powers to end the war.

He was referring to legislation passed by the Senate last year to cut off war funds, subject only to release of prisoners.

Such anti-war measures have failed in the House by smaller and smaller margins, but now war critics feel that reaction against the large-scale bombing of North Vietnam, which took place during the adjournment of Congress, and the influx of 69 new members will alter the traditional House tendency to support the White House on foreign-policy matters.

Robert Preston Woos 'Mame'

Hollywood—Robert Preston has been signed to portray Beaurgard Bernside, the complete Southern Gentleman who woos and wins Lucille Ball in Warner Bros. film version of "Mame." Preston is perhaps best remembered for his portrayal of Harold Hill, the irrepressible traveling salesman in "The Music Man" both on stage and in the Warner film. "Mame," incidentally, will be Preston's first film musical since "The Music Man." The actor is currently on screen in the Steve McQueen film, "Junior Bonner," and has recently completed a role in Paramount's "Child's Play." "Mame," based on the Broadway musical hit of the same name, will be produced by Robert Fryer and James Cresson. Fryer produced the stage presentation of "Mame," which ran for 1,508 performances before closing in 1970. Gene Saks, director of "The Love of the Red Hot Lovers" and "The Odd Couple," will direct "Mame" from a screenplay by Paul Zindel, Pulitzer Prize-winning author.

By Ann Landers

You don't have to be in bed— on or under it works as well

Dear Ann Landers: I've read your column for years—rarely missed a day. Until now I never had the urge to write to you, but today I must.

I want to say something to the teen-agers who signed themselves "The Investigators." They are right when they say they can get into plenty of trouble even ON a bed, and not in it.

When I was 17 my boyfriend and I were dancing in my room. The record stopped and we fell across the bed. We laughed—and he gave me a tender kiss. The next thing I knew we were embracing—and you can guess the rest. We had not planned on being intimate—it just happened. Nine months later I had a seven-pound baby boy.

Until that incident everyone talked about what great, wholesome kids we were. Our hurry-up marriage changed all that. His folks just couldn't believe it.

So you can see, it CAN happen on a bed and not in it. If anyone accuses you of having a dirty mind, Ann, please ignore it and tell those kids out there what to expect when they start fooling around.—S.T.L. in Paducah

Dear S.T.L.: The letter you refer to brought in some mighty weird mail. One young woman wrote that she got into trouble NOT IN a bed or ON it—but UNDER it!

Dear Ann Landers: I have to laugh when people accuse you of making up letters. With so many screwballs loose in our society these days, who needs to make up anything? In fact, it's hard to believe the news stories, let alone the letters in Ann Landers column. For example:

I just came across the item about a Michigan woman who went to the grocery store with a list 13 pages long, filled up 14 shopping carts, transferred her groceries to 56 paper bags, handed the checkout girl $571.88, loaded the bags into two cars and yelled—"Goodbye, I'll see you next year!"

If you printed a letter from someone who said her neighbor did that, everyone would swear you made it up. But here it is, Ann-Landers—plain as life, in the news. I just thought I would share this little item with you because you must get pretty bored with people asking if all the letters you print are real. Sign me—A True Believer In Blue Island

Dear True Blue: Thanks for the day-brightener—but what really like to know is how many people that lady feeds on $571.88 a year. Also, does she have a vegetable garden in the back of her home, an orchard, maybe, and a cow or two? If you find out, please let me know.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother died suddenly a few weeks ago. He was a fine man, honest, down-to-earth, apparently devoted to his wife and family.

A few weeks ago his widow came to me in tears. She had just gotten around to going through his personal belongings which had been put away. She found, tucked in small compartment of his wallet, the picture of an attractive young woman. It had been clipped from a newspaper but the name had been cut off. My sister-in-law does not recognize the woman and hasn't the faintest idea of why her husband would be carrying that picture. She assumes the worst and is heartbroken. Can you please come up with some explanation? My sister-in-law is grieving terribly.—Also Bewildered

Dear A.B.: A married man would have to be an idiot to carry his mistress's picture in his wallet. From your description, I don't think your brother was that stupid. Tell your sister-in-law to be sure to read Ann Landers this morning. She'll feel better.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 24-year-old working girl with two years of college. I appreciate good literature, good art, good music and good conversation. I'm fairly attractive though no beauty. I have no visible drawbacks. I'm not too fat or too thin, too short or too tall. I don't have acne, buck teeth, knock-knees or bowlegs. I have two eyes, one each on the opposite sides of my face.

I work in a high-class retail establishment and I see women all day long. Most of them are poorly groomed-fat, sloppy broads, short-tempered, shrill-voiced, and they yell in public like fishwives at their ill-mannered kids. Yet it is apparent that at least ONE person wanted to marry each dame. In the meantime here I sit, unclaimed, unpursued and unwanted with nothing in sight. Why do good girls finish last?—Bitter Mystery Of Life

Dear Ms.: Some of those "broods" got fat and sloppy AFTER marriage, and their voices became shrill from yelling at their kids. Twenty-four is still a far cry from the Old Folks Home. The trick isn't to GET married, honey, but to make a decent selection that sticks. It's worth waiting for. Relax.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's the situation in a nutshell—and I DO mean nutshell. Ever since I've known this married couple she's had two closets jammed full of dresses. Last week her sex-starved husband confided to me that his wife insists on a new dress as reimbursement for every act of "love."

Question: What's the difference between this woman who is legally married and a prostitute?—H.J.

Dear H.J.: Most prostitutes insist on money. But fundamentally the principle is the same.

Incidentally, if the wife's closet is jammed full of dresses, how do you figure her husband is sex-starved?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman who had four babies in five years. They are more than I can handle and I do not want a larger family. Neither does my husband. He was seriously considering a vasectomy but gave up the idea when he read of the side effects that a few men have experienced. Although his doctor assured him that 95 per cent of the men who have had vasectomies have had no trouble whatever, he has cooled toward the idea and I can understand why.

Last week he suggested that I have my tubes tied but I am afraid to do it. A few of my friends have told me that this is not 100 per cent safe. They say tubes can come untied and pregnancy is possible.

Will you please check with your medical consultants and get me the right answer? If you say tube tying is 100 per cent certain I will do it.—Need Guidance

Dear Need: Very few things in this world are 100 per cent anything. There are bound to be exceptions, for one reason or another. A tubal ligation, if performed properly, is about as safe as you can get.

Confidential to Heartsick Sister: No, do NOT tell her. It would serve no useful purpose and it might cause a great deal of agony. You have no real evidence that the woman was his mistress. Forget it.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet, "Necking And Petting—

What Are The Limits?" Mail enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Experts say no early election

Uncertain parliament meets tomorrow

By STEWART MacLEOD
OTTAWA (CP) — An uncertain Parliament meets Thursday to hear the program of a minority Liberal government, its lifespan delicately balanced by third party support, or non-support.

The Conservatives, with 107 seats compared with the Liberals' 109, go into caucus today to draft, among other things, a non-confidence motion which, they hope, will bring down the government.

At the same time the New Democratic Party, with 31 seats and the balance of power, will be meeting to decide how it should face such a motion, and whether a separate NDP motion should be presented.

Should the NDP combine with the Conservatives on any such vote, the government would likely fall, and many Conservatives believe that if this should happen in the first two months of the new Parliament, they would be invited to form a government without a general election being called.

However, most observers feel that if the House continues until spring, any defeat of the government would result in another vote.

The government-prepared throne speech, to be read by Governor-General Roland Michener, may give some indication of what may happen. NDP Leader David Lewis has said his party will support any government so long as it brings in "progressive legislation" and works toward some of eight "objectives"—mainly NDP social policies—he has outlined.

FORCED TO LISTEN

In a New Year's Day television interview, Prime Minister Trudeau said his government will be forced to listen to the opposition MPs and the public and there will be some areas where "we'll have to compromise."

When legislation is passed, he said, perhaps it will "correspond more to the consensus of the House or at least to the political feeling of the parties in the House."

The Liberals are known to be anxious to maintain power—and the momentum that goes with it—until another general election is called. Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, on the other hand, said it is his party's "duty" to defeat the government at the first opportunity.

Although it is generally assumed that the NDP does not want an immediate election—third parties have traditionally fared badly when the two major parties have fought on the issue of majority government—some Conservatives are confident of NDP support within the first few months.

"They'll be forced to vote against the government," Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin has predicted.

"If a budget follows the throne speech there could be seven or eight non-confidence motions in the first three weeks, and the NDP would lose its credibility if they supported the Liberals on all of them."

Sometimes the government will announce that it will stand or fall on a certain issue, and this clearly becomes a confidence vote.

"We'll probably be asking a lot of questions in this session as to what programs the government attaches confidence." Mr. Baldwin said Tuesday.

"If a government tries to cling to office by saying votes don't involve confidence, then the only way it can go is down."

British prime minister Ramsay MacDonald succeeded in staying in office for a time in the 1920s by saying his government did not regard certain key votes as confidence issues.

And in 1968 here, when the minority Liberal government of Lester Pearson was defeated—84-82 on a tax measure—the government decided not to resign until a "formal" vote of confidence was called later.

Former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker has called this "a dangerous precedent which will come back to haunt the opposition in future Parliaments."

In the new Parliament, the 15 Social Credit MPs will sit with the Liberals on one side of the House and the Conservatives and NDP MPs will occupy the other side. The Commons chamber has 138 seats on each side.

Mr. Stanfield...

Mr. Trudeau...

Mr. Caouette... all getting ready

By DAL WARRINGTON
OTTAWA (CP) — There will be no federal election before late spring and perhaps not even then, if predictions of opposition party spokesmen prove right.

On the eve of the new Parliament opening Thursday they see as a more likely prospect the defeat of Prime Minister Trudeau's battle-scarred Liberal government and its replacement without an election by a Conservative regime with Robert Stanfield as prime minister.

These expectations are raised in recent comments by New Democratic, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit spokesmen. Caucus meetings today by NDP and PC members of the Commons could confirm them.

NDP house leader Stanley Knowles, a member for all but four of the last 30 years, says both the weakened Liberals and the strengthened Conservatives should have a chance to see what they can do in governing the country before another election.

The indecisive Oct. 30 vote left the Liberals 24 seats short of a majority in the 264-seat Commons and the Conservatives 26 short. President standing in the Commons is: Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent two.

DON'T WANT ELECTION

"I think the country does not want us to take it back into an election in February or March," Mr. Knowles said. "I think we have to make it work and that means finding a device to give both parties the chance."

He went on to say that if the party that's there does deliver the goods... they might last quite a while.

Real Caouette, Social Credit leader, said, he expects a lot of opposition members to be outside the House when crucial votes are taken in the session beginning this week. Their absence might enable the minority government to escape defeat.

But Mr. Knowles said he does not like members abstaining on important matters.

"I don't think we can sit on the floor of Parliament and not cast votes," he suggests that the house leaders of the four parties should discuss a moratorium on votes of non-confidence in the Liberals "to see whether or not the Trudeau government is going to come through with any worthwhile legislation."

NO EARLY VOTE

Gerald Baldwin, Conservative house leader, thinks an election is unlikely before June although the Trudeau government could be defeated early in the session by a combination of PC and NDP votes.

He sees Mr. Stanfield taking over as prime minister and perhaps calling an election in late spring or early summer to end the stalemate.

Although the Conservatives got only 35 per cent of the popular vote last October to 38.5 per cent for the Liberals, he feels the PCs have a mandate to "throw the government out." He bases this on the fact that more than 61 per cent of the electors voted against Liberal candidates.

Prime Minister Trudeau forecasts a speech from the throne Thursday that will reflect what the government learned from the shattering election results. The speech, considered a statement of the government's current policies, is said to be longer than usual.

Most observers expect it to offer measures that opposition parties will find it hard to vote against.

NDP DEMANDS

NDP Leader David Lewis puts tax reform, measures to boost employment, increased social-security payments and control of foreign ownership among urgent demands.

Mr. Knowles said a substantial boost in old-age pensions would raise Liberal stock in NDP books.

Mr. Trudeau, noting these predictions, sees no way of telling how long his government will last. Even if the parties wanted to postpone an election for four months or longer, accidents could happen to upset the best-laid plans, he said this week.

Accidents included the absence on vital business of government ministers or members when a crucial vote comes up.

The chance of such "accidents" will keep MPs in a state of jitters for the next few days, weeks or months.

A look at the mail situation

By JOYCE HIBBERT

Nowadays mail delivery is giving the weather a run for it as a favorite topic of conversation.

Many people have extraordinary tales to tell regarding letters and parcels taking longer to reach their destinations that would have been the case in the time of horse-drawn mailcoaches.

Postmasters general come and go, each in turn vowing to upgrade the mail service. Large and handsome post offices have been built and our Canadian stamps are now among the most attractive in the world.

However, we are paying more and more for those stamps and getting less and less mail deliveries.

Recently in the U.S. a man organized an old-time Pony Express to prove a point. He posted seventy five letters in Philadelphia to travel by modern mail service.

The horses and riders, changed at intervals, completed the journey before the bulk of the mailed letters were delivered in Washington.

Planes, trains and trucks travel at increasing speeds. It follows therefore that so should our Canadian mail — be it royal or ever so common.

To aid our mailmen perhaps it is time for another change in uniform design. Nothing sissified and for the sake of the long suffering taxpayers, nothing expensive.

With issues of lightweight trackuits and sturdy running shoes the mail should move faster on its final leg, especially during our winters. It would be great if an added bonus materialised and in the 76 Olympics we watched our Canadian posties capture all the marathon medals.

In any case the Frank Shorters, the Ethiopian palace guards and Kenyan policemen would have to look to their laurels.

To keep the boys jogging along on their appointed routes there might be colourful posters. In fact, why not a poster contest promoted by the postmaster general.

Many Canadians must be bursting with ideas on the subject. The prize, a trip accompanying your letter to the Canadian address of your choice, by way of the regular postal facilities, of course.

A prize like that conjures up dreams of a long and adventurous journey with undertones of mystery. Who would be able to resist!

A panel of judges to be recruited from the vast army of concerned — the ones who have written to their MP or local newspaper regarding the slowness of mail delivery.

We hear that the horse is coming back into his own as a leisure time saddle beast. We might do worse than to give him a shot at getting his old mail carrying job back.

Later, after a man and horsepower retraining program, a special detachment might glamorize the department and bring in the tourist dollars by performing the Maimmen's Musical Gallop.

The slowdown or slowp malaise is not limited to Canada. Complaints are heard in several countries. The art of letter writing is fading and the process is being hastened by the cavalier attitude toward delivery of those still being written.

A lot of attention is paid to the postal workers demands for better working conditions, fringe benefits and higher wages and that is as it should be. But where is the proof that anyone listens or cares about the general public's moans and groans?

There is a familiar old expression, "Post-haste, Funk and Wagnall defines it thus: "Great haste or speed like that of the post." The dictionary is a 1949 edition.

Tax collectors decide not to collect increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal revenue department has put off any administrative action toward collecting a scheduled increase in personal income taxes in case the government changes its mind about the increase.

By law, a three-per-cent reduction in all personal taxes, introduced in the middle of 1971, expired Sunday—the end of 1972. That should mean an increase for all taxpayers effective this week.

The revenue department, which collects taxes, ordinarily issues revised tax tables when a tax change is imminent to guide employers in making payroll tax deductions from weekly, fortnightly or monthly pay cheques.

However, no new tables have been issued to reflect the scheduled three-per-cent tax increase.

"We haven't replaced the tables," an official said Tuesday. "In response to queries, we're telling employers to continue deductions on the basis of 1972 tables."

Does this mean the revenue department expects the finance department to rescind the tax increase?

"We don't know what's going to happen," the official said. But with Finance Minister John Turner expected to announce a new tax and spending budget soon and the possibility that tax rates will be changed, the revenue department decided to spare itself the effort and expense of producing a revised tax table for Jan. 1, only to have it overtaken by a further change within a month or two.

There has been speculation that the minority Liberal government, under opposition pressure to reduce taxes, might announce a decision at least to retain the general three-per-cent tax reduction.

A new tax table would be issued after the budget, reflecting any changes, whether the three-per-cent reduction were abolished as originally scheduled, retained for a further period or if other changes were announced.

If changes were announced to take effect from Jan. 1, new tax-deduction tables would reflect them, even if issued in February or later, the official said.

Companies fight plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Automobile insurance companies operating in British Columbia launched a $100,000 publicity campaign Tuesday to combat the introduction of government-operated car insurance in the province.

A. E. Warwick, chairman of the B.C. advisory committee of the Insurance Bureau of Canada (IBC), told a news conference that insurance firms want the right to compete with the government in selling car insurance.

He said the auto insurance industry in B.C. did $135 million worth of business last year and employed 2,700 persons. In addition, he said, 2,000 agents and 500 adjusters depend on the industry to a large extent.

Mr. Warwick said that since representatives of the industry had a "fairly thorough discussion" with Highways Minister Robert Strachan several months ago, they have been told nothing about the planned government takeover.

RELEASES LETTER
He released copies of a letter sent to Premier Dave Barrett, advising him of the "public information" campaign being undertaken by the industry. The letter says in part:

"Our objective is to persuade your government to permit us to compete freely for all automobile insurance business with any government insurance plan that is formed.

"We believe such competition—and not government monopoly—to be in the best interests of the people of British Columbia. The industry is prepared to meet with you or your nominee at any time to renew discussion on this urgent question of open competition, and through it, freedom of choice. We would welcome further discussion."

Meanwhile, the government released a statement of government attitude Tuesday, labelling the insurance industry's campaign "a new resort to exert pressure on the government... to influence the drafting of legislation which would be favorable to the companies."

Mr. Warwick said the IBC represents most insurance companies in B.C.

Former minister claims he was fired for honesty

TORONTO (CP) — A former provincial cabinet minister in Newfoundland says he was "flung out" of Premier Frank Moore's cabinet for being "too straitlaced" in his opposition to political payoffs.

In a recent telephone interview with the Sun, John Carter, former education and youth minister, said he had objected to what he called lack of a strong follow-up in promised investigations of corruption charges against former premier Joseph Smallwood's administration. Premier Moore's government, Mr. Carter said, could "teach Joey Smallwood some tricks in patronage."

The 38-year-old St. John's farmer-businessman said he incurred the premier's displeasure for objecting to proposals to have a Toronto public relations firm make government film strips at a cost of about $4,000 when "the strips could have been done by my department with our own equipment for about $500."

He said that George McLean, head of the public relations firm Nacom Ltd. of Toronto, had done work for the party during the election campaign— "so they are handing him a lot of contracts now."

"Moore didn't openly overrule my decision to stop the strips award," Mr. Carter said, "but I knew he was displeased."

Mr. Carter said he had objected to the manner in which Mr. Moore was co-operating with United States promoter John Shaheen in the building of a multi-million dollar oil refinery at Come-By-Chance, Nfld.

Mr. Carter said that both the premier and Justice Minister

Alex Hickman had been the guests of Mr. Shaheen in Florida during the last Apollo moon shot.

"Shaheen is getting along just as well, if not better, with them now as he ever did with Joey," said Mr. Carter.

The Newfoundland government has guaranteed $30 million for the refinery and arranged for the remainder of the $200 million for the project to be raised through British banks.

When the ruling Progressive Conservatives were in opposition, they attacked Premier Smallwood's large financial backing for both Mr. Shaheen and U.S.-born promoter John C. Doyle.

"I'll continue to sit as a backbencher supporting the government," Mr. Carter said, "but my problem is that anything I say may sound like sour grapes."

Eternal tug-of-war

There is a peculiar perversity in human nature that defies all bureaucrats, well-intentioned or malevolent, who would like to become engineers of human souls, fashion a "new man," change human nature and usher in their own vision of bureaucratic millennium.

It won't work. For years, even decades, everybody will go on obediently obeying the restrictive laws. But the moment the pressure is relaxed, the cooker boils over and humanity is right back wallowing in its own greed, individualism and disorganization. So much for Utopia, or sociology for that matter.

When the hermetically sealed post-war European frontiers were reopened in the late 1940s, traffic along the border roads rose to unmanageable proportions. The Austrians were on the move, although they live in an outstandingly beautiful country with majestic mountains, deep pine forests, lush meadows and lovely baroque towns, each town endowed with a fabulous cake-shop that had somehow survived rationing, bombs and the wartime slaughter. An Austrian vacationer could find everything at home, but the moment the frontier was opened, down they streamed in their thousands and tens of thousands, in trains, buses, old cars, new cars, on motorcycles, motoscooters and even bicycles, to savor the pleasures of Italy, to lie in the sun on the sandy beaches of the Adriatic, to drink Italian, rather than the often better Austrian, wine, to eat spaghetti rather than the delicious Austrian dumplings.

And the Italians, hastily abandoning their seashore and their art treasures were all streaming upwards, to leave their torrid beaches and the heat of the summer and breathe Austria's fresh mountain air, lie on mossy meadows, walk in dark woods, forget their risotto and their ravioli and gorge themselves instead on a chocolate mock saddle of venison, Dobosh cakes and all the other delicacies that could again be found in those cake-shops tucked away beneath the baroque arcades, off the main square with its statue of Emperor Francis-Joseph or Joseph II.

This two-way stream of traffic that clogged Europe's north-south arteries was something to behold, and a generation later it has in no way diminished. People may be more selective, but they still seek something that is not easily available at home, a new experience, a change.

One cannot but wonder, therefore, at the amazement of the Communist bosses, flabbergasted as they are by the results of the newly opened frontier between Poland and East Germany. All their carefully laid plans have been thrown into chaos by an unstructured humanity that has been rushing to see what's over the horizon, or in this case behind the unwontedly raised customs barrier.

The East Germans, unable to see the West, at least find Poland's roads uncluttered — a relative term this — and the Polish gasoline much cheaper than theirs. The Poles, for their part, are streaming across the border to buy up everything in sight. Long starved of consumer goods, they can no more resist what to them seems a veritable cornucopia than could a child, let loose in a pastry shop, resist the lure of the cakes.

Bureaucrats of both nations are now sourly complaining that the visitors do not go to museums, do not look at cultural sights or study the achievements of socialism. "They spend their holidays in supermarkets!" is the plaintive cry, and since it is an incontrovertible socialist dogma that whatever pleases the people has to be forbidden, ways are now being sought to stem the flood of visitors, to organize them into groups under proper guides and proper guidance, groups that will visit factories, watch football matches and go through museums and never give a thought to an East German transistor radio, or Polish ham.

The engineers of human souls, be they in Poland, East Germany or Manitoba, never give up. Nor does mankind. It's an eternal tug-of-war. But in reality it is no contest.

President Nixon deserves better fate

The outburst against the renewal of the bombing of North Vietnam was of course to be expected. It is depressing just the same, and particularly depressing that Mr. Nixon receives so little of the vociferous support to which he is entitled not only here, but in those many foreign countries that are hostage to American constancy.

In an ordered world, the protests abroad would issue against an American president who turned over a little ally, after years of struggle, to a well-oiled aggressor. The headlines suggest the contrary, and it is time I think to pay attention to, and profess our respect for, the Communist propaganda machine.

It is quite remarkable what it succeeds in doing — in inducing others to do. And of course the pay-off is in such crises as the current one, in which one reads and hears only denunciations of American policy, nothing about the actions of the government against which that policy is directed.

To judge the lengths of Communist propaganda success, consider in cameo a recent venture by Pastor Ralph D. Abernathy, who is the chosen successor to the towering Martin Luther King. Dr. Abernathy understands himself as speaking for the black people of America, and for all Christian Americans.

So he undertook a two-day visit to East Germany. That visit is a parable for our time.

East Germany is the eastern part of the country against which we fought a world war. It was occupied by the Soviet military in the Spring of 1945, and a puppet government was installed.

The proconsul, Walter Ulbricht, survived Stalin by many years, and he ruled with the lash. His weakness was that Germans with the spirit to want to leave, and the means and courage to do so, began to leak out of the country, and by 1960, they were coming out in floods, attracted to the prosperity and freedom of West Germany.

At this point, Khrushchev ordered the Great Wall to be built. Standing under the shadow of the Wall in 1961, President John F. Kennedy shouted out the words: "I am a Berliner."

Dr. Abernathy, recalling the incident, closed his speech in East Germany by saying, "President Kennedy once said in West Berlin that he was a Berliner. I want to change that and say: I am a citizen of the German Democratic Republic." The formal name given to the occupied territory of Germany is an exquisite affront on language.

It is not truly German, but Soviet-occupied. It is not democratic, and it is not a republic. A more precise description of the area in question would be: "The Soviet Colony in Germany."

And then Pastor Abernathy said about the slave-state which honored him: "Every minute of my stay in your wonderful country was filled with joy and valuable political experience. I go back to my country the richer for having learned to know and appreciate the German Democratic Republic."

He goes back to a country a lot less convincing as an apostle of justice and freedom having learned to appreciate a slave state.

But the worst was yet to come. They gave him a medal, of course. And on receipt of it, Dr. Abernathy said: "There is one thing you must know. There will be dirt on this medal, for I shall wear it in prison and fighting on the streets. You can be sure of this, that I shall always be worthy of this honour and shall not disappoint you."

Ralph Abernathy, enemy of tyranny, racism, imperialism, war, and indignity. It is as if the American director of the Anti Defamation League had taken a decoration from Hitler, and pledged himself on his return to America not to let Hitler down in the fight for race relations.

Things are that bad, and one worries about it when, making available the weapons of war to a beleaguered people to defend themselves against an enemy which occupies a part of their country, it is we who are cast into ignominy. Look what they did to Ralph Abernathy.

It was much better in the good old days, when they could make people talk like that only after forty or fifty days of torture. No one, reading Darkness at Noon would understand it these days.

What on earth was Rubashov troubled about? Why was he so uptight?

Reader forum
Postal disorder

Dear Sir:
The obvious go-slow of the post office employees inspires anything but goodwill for their cause. On the contrary, we feel that should their efficiency and performance serve as criterion for just remuneration, they are grossly overpaid — or may be overworked?

If so, why the decision not to hire additional help during the Christmas rush? In view of the employment situation, this would even be a good deed.

Our mail situation is getting to be a poor joke. And Deputy Postmaster-General J.A.H. Mackay's rosy views expressed in a recent interview (Montreal Star Dec. 16, 72) do not reflect the sad reality of which the following is an example.

I have kept close record of mail received during the week Dec. 13th - Dec. 19th:

10 Air Mail letters received from Oslo, Norway had taken from 2 weeks to 12, 11, 9 and one letter, 8 days to reach me. The normal is 3 to maximum 4 days.

one letter from the Yukon (Dawson City) - 9 days; one from Edmonton - 5 days; one Air Mail from Switzerland (Zurich) - 11 days; New York City - 9 days; Kingston, Ont. - 8 days.

All the above was first class mail. I keep no track of Christmas cards, magazines, etc. I did notice though, that a card received from Montreal had taken 11 days to travel the distance a car does in an hour and a half.

So so much for Mr. J.A.H. Mackay's assurance that "just over 90 per cent of the mail is delivered according to schedule" and sometimes even 95.1 per cent. I sure wish he were right.

I would like to add that the staff of our local post office is most helpful and efficient and definitely not to blame for the present mess.

Hoping the New Year will bring some improvement.

Secrecy casts doubts on talks

HAROLD MORRISON

While the world hails the return of the Vietnam negotiators to the Paris peace table, there still is a nagging feeling in many parts of the globe that not all the facts have been disclosed. This has led to uneasiness whether the new talks will finally lead to an end to the unwanted war.

The White House announcement, halting bombing north of the 20th parallel, seemed to carry the hint that military hammer blows may have forced important political concessions which Hanoi previously had refused to yield.

Indeed, the fact that North Vietnam agreed to return to the conference table while publicly declaring it will carry a grudge against the United States for 1,000 years conveys a form of concession amid scenes of devastation left by the great fleets of B-52 bombers.

Undoubtedly the bombing had hurt. The destruction may have been greater than anything the North Vietnamese had previously experienced. But it appeared unlikely that this battle-hardened country is ready to agree to great political changes after one series of aerial attack.

TOLL WAS HIGH

The U.S. also suffered. The losses of these expensive bombers appeared to be far greater in this current offensive than in any previous invasion. Both sides argue over the actual numbers of planes shot down but there seems to be little doubt that the Pentagon had become worried about the mounting costs.

Probably more effective in terms of American decision-making was the growing outcry against the attacks and continuation of the war. The political situation had worsened. It was not just a case of a bitter struggle between President Nixon and such outspoken critics as Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme. Nixon faced heavy political criticism at home, particularly in a Congress

Even his decision to suspend the bombing did not end the threat that when the new Congress convenes, many barriers may be erected against the Republican administration mainly because of the deep split over Vietnam policy.

DOESN'T WANT LOSS

Nixon, however, has shown great determination not to go down in history as the man who surrendered in Vietnam. He has demonstrated in the past that he will not bow to political pressures though the impression left all through the presidential election fight was that the Paris peace talks were making progress.

The various reports suggest that the resumption of the Paris talks were preceded by some form of concession on both sides, a sort of minor compromise and perhaps even a hint of readiness to reconsider issues which had been rejected.

While the mystery continues, that hint of compromise remains as perhaps the most hopeful before either side decides to withdraw from Paris bargaining.

entertainment

SCOTSTOWN — The Community Christmas tree entertainment was held in the United Church Hall on Thursday evening Dec. 21.

Rev. M. Jones of Bury was the Chairman. He welcomed the boys, girls, parents and friends. After the singing of a few carols with Mrs. Les Irving at the piano, Rev. Jones offered prayer. The Sunday School pupils which include children of the three churches opened the programme with His Gifts, which were the repeating of scripture verses and singing three carols.

Michael and Marcel Belanger both recited recitations. Mrs. Ross Davidson's class of pre-school pupils sang Gospel Bells. Mrs. K.H. MacIver's class told how to make people happy. Mr. Davidson's class presented, Funny Boots. Mrs. Kenneth A. MacDonald's class read the Christmas story and sang, O Tell me Gentle Shepherd.

Shelley MacKenzie at the piano with her sister Julie sang a duet, Mr. Santa Claus. The programme was interrupted by the arrival of Santa Claus. After he gave out bags of candy to the children he said he had to be off to Bury.

Debbie MacDonald and Cindy Auray received the silver collection which was dedicated by Rev. Jones. This money will be used for the Christmas Community Sunday School boxes for the shut-ins, Christmas 1973. The collection amounted to $23.80.

Mrs. Donald Morrison's class then read scripture verses, lit their candles and sang two carols. Mrs. Maurice Auray accompanied them on the piano.

The Brownie Pack sang, Happy Christmas Morn and Toys. Parker MacDonald sang a solo, Mary laid her Baby down. Mark Sherman did a step dance and Shawn Goodin and her little cousin Angela Goodin sang Jingle Bells. Santa's helpers then gave out more bags of candy and gifts that were under the tree. Rev. Jones wished all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barnes, Fortier, son of Mr. and Mrs. of Eaton Corner, announce the engagement of their daughter, Daisy Patricia, to Pierre Adrien Fortier, of Cookshire. The July wedding will take place in Cookshire.

25th Wedding anniversary

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Richard Nugent of Sawyerville, formerly of Maple Grove, was celebrated at an "At Home", on Saturday, November 25, at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson of Birchton.

More than 70 guests joined the family in celebrating with Mr. and Mrs. Nugent during the afternoon and evening. The bride's table was decorated in emerald green, to commemorate the 25 years of marriage. The table was centred with a bride's cake made and decorated by Mrs. Charles Robinson.

The hostesses included Mrs. Chester Nugent, Mrs. Donald Macdonald and Mrs. Charles Robinson. The guests-of-honor received congratulations from Mrs. Gordon Moore of Concord, N.H., who was unable to attend. Guests attended from North Hatley, Richmond, Capelton, Portneuf Station, Sawyerville, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Bulwer, East Angus, Cookshire, Birchton and Huntingville.

KELLY JO-ANNE Spaulding daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Spaulding of Sawyerville. Granddaughter to Mrs. Audrey Henry and the late Mr. Stuart Henry of Sherbrooke, and Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Spaulding of Island Brook, Quebec. Kelly is eight months old.

by WILLIAM J. MARTIN

For many of us the thought of going on a shopping spree begets the mind. With holiday buying behind us it should be time for a rest. Besides, who has any money left over?

But this is the time when shrewd shoppers can make a big killing. Look at the prices for greeting cards and gift wrappings right after the holidays. What a great time to buy for the following year and take advantage of truly big savings.

Holiday items aren't the only things on sale after Christmas, though. There are a lot of legitimate sales going on, and if you're smart, you have saved some money to take advantage of them.

January is a bargain month for many items, from the traditional "white sales" to winter merchandise of all kinds. Buying at an off-season or end-of-season sale takes some long range planning, however.

Project your shopping needs on larger items ahead by several months or an entire year. Get your skis or antiques or snow tires in March at close-out prices.

Many things don't change in style from season to season, and buying ahead can cut your costs substantially. Do some planning and get in on some big savings.

Readers' questions are welcome and should be sent to Box 5875 London, Ontario.

Blackwood in direct response to the one-spade opening. North doesn't know just what is going on but he passes at five diamonds and East settles for five spades.

This gets back to North and North should have a pretty good picture of the East hand. He has tried for a slam with just one ace. He must have a lot of hearts and spades and singletons in both minor suits.

South is marked with an ace and probably nothing else, but he certainly should be long in at least one minor since clearly he can't hold more than one spade.

The five no-trump call will get him to bid his better minor and South should not be set more than one trick at six.

Sure enough, South bids six clubs. West doubles. What else would you do?

South looks worried until he sees dummy. Then he ruffs the spade lead; draws trumps; eventually finesse twice in diamonds and brings home his slam.

What do you think of North's bidding? Sheer whimsy? Or real top level? Top level is the answer. North really doesn't have a bid over West's one-spade opening. If he doubles he expects his partner to bid hearts and his minor suits are just four cards each. Then East barges into

SHRIMP 'N RICE DELICIOUS

SHRIMP 'N RICE SUPERB

Amid the flurry of holiday festivities, don't hesitate to entertain with a flair. Use your finest china and linens, glowing candles and the warmth of a cozy fire to set the atmosphere for a dinner-deluxe. Serve your guests an elegant meal which is shrimpily delicious... and oh-so-easy to prepare.

Shrimp 'N Rice Superb combines the convenience of white and wild rice in the stay-perfect pouch with the tasteful delight of shrimp, sliced mushrooms and the tang of sour cream to bring the spirit of the holiday season to your table. Buttered bread crumbs top the casserole, which is ringed with gay green parsley. Be sure to reserve several shrimp for a garnish.

Broccoli spears in butter sauce, ready to cook in their flavor-tight pouch, are the perfect vegetable accompaniment. Parker House rolls can be popped into the oven to heat while the entree is baking to bubbling doneness and the broccoli is cooking. Add a shimmering molded strawberry salad and yours will be a memorable holiday meal. And, no one will suspect how easy it was to prepare!

- Two 12-oz. packages white and wild rice frozen in the stay-perfect pouch
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup bias-cut celery
- Two 2 1/2-oz. jars sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 2 cups cooked shrimp (reserve 6 shrimp for garnish)
- 1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon pepper

TOPPING

- One 10 1/2-oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1 1/2 cups dairy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 2/3 cup dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

OVEN 325°
Cook rice according to package directions. In large skillet sauté celery and mushrooms in butter until crisp tender. Stir in green onions, pimiento and shrimp. Turn rice into skillet and carefully blend ingredients; spoon into a 2-quart shallow baking dish.

TOPPING: Combine soup and sour cream; mix well. Spoon over shrimp-rice mixture. Toss bread crumbs with butter; add parsley. Sprinkle over soup mixture. Bake at 325° for 30 minutes. Top with remaining shrimp and bake 5 to 10 additional minutes. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

TIP: If desired, arrange parsley around edge of casserole in decorative pattern.

Can a Change in Eating Habits Help You Live Longer?

By LELORD KORDEL
Number One of a Series

Is wrong eating a factor in the physical and mental illness of modern man? Lelord Kordele believes so. For years he has studied the effect on body and mind of varying foods, and is convinced that we can add many years to our lives by revising some of our eating habits.

Health, then, is the Lelord Kordele plan for enjoyable eating—and healthy living. Follow these articles for the next 12 installments. They will help you to a longer, healthier existence.

"DO PEOPLE DIE because they don't eat the right stuff?" I recall asking that question of my mother when I was about nine years old.

"I suppose they do, thousands of them every day, only it is called by some fancy medical name," was her sage reply.

Perhaps that was the day when I resolved to find out what people should eat to grow to maturity in good health and to maintain themselves in vigorous, energetic usefulness throughout middle age and toward the century milestone.

What I learned is not new, for there is really nothing entirely new under the sun. A few wise men in each generation have felt for centuries that mankind was growing less and less vigorous.

In the days of the Roman Empire, the philosopher Seneca realized this sad truth. As tutor and friend of the gluttonous Emperor Nero, no doubt Seneca had occasion to make many an observation which finally led him to declare:

"Man does not die. He kills himself."

And throughout the ages since Seneca, men—and that means women, too—go right on "killing" themselves at the dinner tables, lunch counters and banquet boards of the world.

HEED THE WARNING: We are an ultracivilized nation, composed of persons whose mental powers and accomplishments are adjudged above the average.

Then, why in the name of all that is sensible, don't we heed the warnings which our own public health statistics flash before us every time there is a census; every time we conscript large numbers of our young men for military service?

We are a nation of aches and pains, fatigue and nerves. Thousands upon thousands of our citizens die every day, prematurely. Many of our older men and women are incapacitated in one way or another for years before their death by one of more serious illnesses.

We are far from being a strong, healthy people.

By now, you are probably waiting for me to tell you to invest in a carrot patch and live off the harvest the rest of your life.

You might live a long time by munching carrots throughout the years. But who wants to live a long time if life is going to be as monotonous as a carrot diet?

Even an ant eater enjoys occasional variety in its meals.

THE FIRST STEP

However, as a first step toward re-educating you for maximum health and well-being, I shall outline briefly what to me is a prime natural law governing the human body.

Whether you have but a smattering of knowledge about the human frame, or whether you have read every medical book in the library, a good understanding of natural law is absolutely necessary. Then you will treat your body with the respect and consideration it merits.

Every form of living, growing thing on this globe—algae scum on a pond, redwood trees, whales, mankind—is made up of cells. Each one of these cells is so small that it would take 8,000 of them lined up side by side to reach across one edge of a box one cubic inch in size. To fill that same little cube box would require over 100 million of these cells.

And in the entire human body there are hundreds of billions of cells. That is a lot of anything! To make the matter more complicated, each one of those cells is a separate living unit.

The next time you look in a full-length mirror, try to visualize yourself as the billions of separate lives you actually are instead of as the one life registered on the birth records.

Therefore, the prime natural law is to nourish the cells of your body. What do they require? Among others, three very important nutrients: Minerals, Vitamins, and Protein.

Why, you are probably asking, should I be bothered with such things? An animal does not. It eats what it wants with no thought of maintaining any kind of balance. Or does it?

An animal does maintain a balance in nutrition! Except that it does so by instinct, whereas man, blessed with the "superior" faculty of intelligence, can choose and select his food. What is the result?

LIFE EXPECTANCY

The average man today can expect to live to be 68; but some doctors think he should live to 150. The lower animals do much better than man.

According to Dr. Edward L. Bortz: a dog is fullgrown at two years, lives to an average twelve; a cat is fullgrown at 1 1/2, lives to ten; a horse, full grown at four, reaches 25.

Reasoned Dr. Bortz: "If a man is physically mature at 25, then he should have an average normal life span of 150 years."

Why does not man live proportionately as long as the dog, the horse, or other animals?

For the simple reason that, given the power to think, he seems to have lost most of his instinctive powers.

When man traded instinct for intellect he made a bad bargain as far as his health was concerned. Instinct would never lead him to over-refined foods, starches, artificial sweets and fried victuals dripping with grease.

Yet his "intellect" does!

Thus it seems that in the matter of nourishing his body and attaining a ripe old age, man fares much worse with his "brain" than an animal does with its instinctive powers.

Canadian Cast In Action Role

Hollywood—Canadian actor Vance Davis has been signed for a pivotal role in the new John Wayne starrer, "Wednesday Morning," a Batjac production for Warner Bros. directed by Andrew V. McLaglen for producer Michael A. Wayne.

The western drama, co-starring George Kennedy and with Marie Windsor and Neville Brand, is filming in Durango, Mexico.

Dracula Folks Honor Chris Lee

Hollywood—Christopher Lee, the motion picture actor whose name has become forever linked to that of the infamous Dracula, was honored by the Count Dracula Society with the presentation of the Horace Walpole Gold Medal Award for his performance in Warner Bros. "Dracula A.D. 1972." This is the newest of four Dracula characterizations undertaken by Lee since the Transylvanian Prince of Darkness was first brought to screen life.

Vincent Price presented the award, which is the highest of several Dracula Society awards named after great writers of Gothic literature.

Legion Ladies Auxiliary

SUTTON — The regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was held in the Legion rooms, Dec. 11. Owing to so much sickness there was a small attendance of members.

General business was transacted, bills were ordered to be paid, Christmas cards had been sent to members, also the shut-in members will be remembered with plants and gifts. Plans were started on the Holiday party or trip.

Sgt. at Arms for Auxiliary Colors, Eleanor Beausoleil, Sgt. at Arms for Canadian Flag, Jean Lawrence.

Birthday greetings were sung to members. The surprise parcel was won by Eleanor Beausoleil.

A nice lunch was served by Comrades Connie Sherrer and Jean Gilbert.

At this meeting a drawing of the raffle tickets which were sold by the Senior Branch, was held, with the results as follows: George Duval Sr., Armand Goyette, Knowlton, Edward Eland, Fred Barker and Micheline Gingras. Proceeds from this raffle are for a Senior Citizens dinner. Comrade George Duval donated his prize to the Senior Citizens dinner.

Annual holiday program

Mrs. Charles Aulis 876-2193

BEEBE — On December 22 at 7:30 p.m. a good number of people assembled at the Advent Christian Church, for the annual Christmas program.

Mr. W. Loewen was master of ceremonies, and asked the gathering to join voices in singing Away in a Manger, and Come All Ye Faithful. In his remarks he spoke concerning the Christmas season and closed with a short prayer.

Miss Marjorie Woodard, of Belleville, Ont., was pianist for the group singing.

The program included recitations, group singings, reading depicting the Holy Birth. Rev. E. Anderson rendered two solos: "What Child is This?" and "Love Came Down at Christmas." A trumpet solo, Gloria in Excelsis, was played by Mark Batchelder.

Mrs. G. Batchelder was pianist for the program singers.

The program closed with a reading and short prayer by Rev. E. Anderson.

Mr. Loewen, with two helpers, distributed the gifts from the prettily decorated tree.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. E. Woodard and Mr. Anderson for doing the decorating.

All teenagers were asked to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loewen on Saturday evening, when they went out to sing Carols to shut-ins and senior citizens.

A happy holiday season is planned for the action group.

United Nations condemns South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A General Assembly committee approved a wide-ranging resolution Thursday condemning South Africa for its continued occupation of the territory of Namibia and calling on all UN members to help the people of the territory in their fight for independence.

The resolution, sponsored by 38 members, was approved by a vote of 101 to 1 with 15 abstentions. Portugal cast the only negative vote. Canada was among a group composed almost entirely of Western powers which abstained.

The resolution was the latest in a long series of moves aimed at ending South African control over Namibia, formerly known as South-West Africa. The item has been on the agenda of every assembly session since 1946, but South Africa has refused to recognize a UN vote which ended its mandate over the territory.

Thursday's resolution was approved in the assembly's committee on trust and non-self-governing territories. It calls on the assembly to ask all members "to take effective economic and other measures designed to ensure the immediate withdrawal of the South African administration from Namibia."

It also deeply deplores "the extension to Namibia of (South Africa's) policies of apartheid" and supports the use "of all means" necessary in the opposition by the Namibian people.

Several of the countries which abstained from voting indicated they could not support the part of the resolution which approved the use "of all means" in the independence struggle.

Elsewhere, the assembly's budgetary committee endorsed without a vote a $2-million appropriation for the first year of the UN environment program. Of that total, $1.9 million will be used in setting up the environment secretariat in Nairobi, Kenya, while the remaining $100,000 is for a two-week conference in Geneva next June of the governing council for environment programs.

The Nairobi secretariat would consist of 98 staff members headed by an executive director. Maurice Strong of Canada is expected to be named to this post before the assembly ends its current session.

Confederation instigated by premier former Quebec

By BILL COULTHARD
QUEBEC (CP) — The 1967 Confederation of Tomorrow Conference in Toronto was instigated by former Quebec premier Daniel Johnson, Opposition Leader Gabriel Loubier said Thursday.

Mr. Loubier said a "deal" was worked out, however, to make it appear that John Roberts, then premier of Ontario, had called the conference.

Mr. Loubier said that if Quebec had called it, some other provinces might have been suspicious and a "touchy" situation could have arisen.

The question came up when Mr. Loubier said in the Quebec national assembly that convocation of the 1967 conference of provincial government officials, headed by the 10 premiers, was one of Mr. Johnson's major achievements in constitutional atters. Mr. Loubier is leader of the Unite-Quebec party, formerly called the Union Nationale, which Mr. Johnson led for several years before his death in 1968.

Mr. Loubier was later questioned by a reporter about the reference to Mr. Johnson's responsibility for "convocation" of the conference.

FEW KNEW IT

He said it is known that Mr. Johnson was the first premier to talk about such an inter-provincial constitutional conference, at which the federal government would be restricted to observer status. But he said only a few persons such as ministers knew at the time that Mr. Johnson was the instigator of the conference and that a "deal" was worked out with Mr. Roberts.

Mr. Roberts has retired from active political life.

Mr. Loubier made the reference to the 1967 conference during debate on a non-confidence motion he placed on the national assembly's order paper Tuesday.

The motion condemned Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberal government for neglecting to exercise "all its jurisdictional rights in matters of federal-provincial relations."

The Opposition leader compared Mr. Bourassa unfavorably with former premiers, including Mr. Johnson, whom he said were more aggressive in their dealings with Ottawa. The motion was defeated 47 to 23 by the Liberal majority.

Lady Reader Beefs, but . . .

He's No Male Chauvinist Pig

Dear Dr. Lamb—So now you have laid it on the line about the castrating female. Now, how about a column about the castrating male, or are you such a male, chauvinist pig yourself that you aren't even man enough to admit that?

Dr. Lamb

That is a far more serious problem in our society today and what I find even more grievous is that he doesn't even need a willing female. We females are fighting not only for our own liberation but also for the liberation of the males and the ancient myths that plague our society today about what is masculinity.

Do you abide by the outdated ideas that masculinity is the ability to woo them, win them, love them, and leave them holding a baby with the longer the list the more masculine the conqueror? Masculinity is the ability to excel in violence. Masculinity is the ability to hold liquor. Masculinity is the skill of having a dirty joke ever ready. Masculinity is the ability to hide, or better yet to kill any and all feelings of concern and tenderness. These outmoded ideas still plague our modern society. What do you have to say? You did your column on castrating females. Now what do you have to say about the real problems in our society?

Dear Reader—Oh, no, that is not my definition of masculinity. Those are all your words. I'm sorry you got so worked up over my column on castrating females. Perhaps you should ask yourself why. There is usually a reason when a person over-reacts.

You seem to have castrating females and the Women's Lib Movement mixed up. The castrating female has a psychiatric problem. She is not interested in liberation, but in domination and establishing herself as an all powerful superior being to satisfy her psychopathology. She tries to achieve her goal by dominating the male, usually her husband. If she is successful in engineering his failure in business, in giving up alcohol, in giving up cigarettes, or as a father and husband, she by comparison becomes superior and the dominant figure in the family system. Because of the man's obvious problem, such as alcohol, she is able to convince herself that she has no problems. It is his fault.

My understanding of the Women's Lib Movement may be sketchy, but I have assumed most of these women were emotionally normal and desired to be liberated from a second-class-citizen position of a housemaid, dependent on the all-powerful husband for money and decisions. In short, equal social, economic and political rights as an individual. That is a lot different and is not a psychiatric problem.

JOYOUS HOLIDAY FEASTING

'Tis the season to be jolly! Holiday meals are memory-makers when served on a candlelit table, decorated with pungent evergreen boughs and graced with your finest linens and china. At the heart of any memorable meal is the meat course. This is especially true of your yuletide dinners, when the featured meat should be worthy of the gala occasion.

This season bring a touch of Europe to your table by serving Veal Birds Viennese. Thinly pounded slices of veal and prosciutto ham are rolled

I don't spend much time worrying about what is the definition of masculinity versus femininity. (I already know the difference between men and women.) I am much more interested in liberating people from their prejudice, hostilities, misinformation and lack of information regardless of their sex.

It seems to me that what this world needs is a lot more effort by people to help other people to build up their self image and help them achieve the best of their capabilities. This is not accomplished by either the male or the female dominating the other in or out of marriage. Domination and competition are often destructive.

Frankly, there is a lot more pleasure in life doing things for someone than to someone, and sex hasn't much to do with this. We hear a lot about sharing—but even that isn't as satisfying as helping someone else to accomplish something or make a better person of himself or to achieve his maximum potential. A lot of women have known this for years and have been exceptionally successful in helping their husbands be a better person by providing the support and healthy interaction needed to face a lot of the real frustrations and anxieties in day-to-day living in a competitive society.

Some clever men have also been successful in helping their wives build up their own self-esteem and realize their best capabilities in or out of the home. I believe men and women who are clever enough to adopt this attitude get more out of life and marriage and are both emotionally and physically healthier than the combatants.

Dear Dr. Lamb—The question I am going to ask will probably help most people, but is also one often ignored. If you answer it, it may help prevent a great number of unwanted pregnancies. My question is, how does a girl get pregnant? Must the girl and boy both be bare-the female in the Fallopian tube connected to the uterus (womb) inside the girl's body. The sperm cell has to come out of the male, enter the woman's vagina, pass through the uterus and up to the tube where it meets the egg. Unless an egg has been released, this union cannot occur.

The union itself is called fertilizing. The counterpart of what happens in plants is when pollen from one plant lands on the maturing seeds or buds. This means that the way a girl gets pregnant is through sexual intercourse. There are a few other ways in which the sperm can reach the egg, for example, in animals artificial insemination.

Chapter No. 17, O.E.S.

COWANSVILLE — The stated meeting of Cowansville Chapter No. 17, O.E.S. was held in the Masonic Hall, Christ Church, 910 Main st. on Thursday evening, Dec. 21, the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Susan Durrell, presiding.

The meeting opened in regular form and the Flag of our Country was presented.

Mrs. Myrtle Vincent, Past Grand Patron; Mrs. Helen Ramsay, Associate Grand Matron; Mrs. Margaret Staton, Grand Organist; Mr. John Syberg, Grand Trustee, and Mrs. Grace Hadlock, Grand Instructor, District No. 2 were all introduced, welcomed and escorted to the East. The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Susan Durrell, extended a very cordial welcome to all visitors present.

The minutes of the November meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Florence Jenne and Mr. John Hall became members of Cowansville Chapter No. 17 by initiation.

Correspondence and bills were read and disposed of. The Secretary's and Treasurer's annual reports were read and adopted, also reports of various other committees. Routine business was attended to.

There being no further business the meeting closed.

After the meeting all retired downstairs where delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses for the evening. Mrs. Lillian Watt, Mrs. Minnie Pearl, Mrs. Bernice Jenne and Mrs. Mary McCutcheon. The tables and hall were decorated for Christmas and after lunch there was an exchange of gifts.

Allegro Unit

Ivy Hatch 876-2083
STANSTEAD — A total of 32 members of the Centenary United church Allegro Unit, their menfolk, and a few members of the Afternoon Unit gathered in the church hall on Tuesday evening, December 12 for a pot luck supper of many goodies to eat. These had been prepared and brought by the women.

Later, a short business meeting of the Allegro Unit was held. The leader Mrs. Albert Bullock presided. Routine reports were heard. Mrs. Warren Soutiere brought dish towels she had purchased for the church kitchen and Mrs. H.M. Cass gave a gift of a long lace table cover for the church. Expressions of appreciation were spoken.

Mrs. Warren Soutiere was elected as leader of the Unit, with Miss Arlene Probyn the co-

Leader. Re-elected were Mrs. Mabel Wallace, secretary and Miss Gertrude Ketcham, the treasurer.

Plans were made for Christmas remembrances. A note was made of a meeting for leaders of Women's groups at Plymouth - Trinity church in Sherbrooke on January 17.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Bullock for her leadership the past year. Next meeting will be in January.

EDWARD A. ASHMAN of Morgan Center, Vt. formerly of Beebe

Funeral services for Edward A. Ashman, 69, of Morgan Center, Vt., were held at 1:00 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 29, 1972, at the Nazarene Church in East Charleston with the Rev. Ray Blachly officiating.

Mrs. John Gienco of Derby was organist, and accompanied Gary Wheeler, who sang "Beyond the Cross" and "The Old Rugged Cross."

Bearers were Lyndol Ames, Roderick Ames, Lawrence Elliott, Lloyd Hayes, Harley Moulton, Jr., Shirley Wallace and Donald Whitehill.

Interment was in the Crystal Lake cemetery at Stanstead, Que.

Mr. Ashman, who died in Newport, Nov. 26, 1972, was born March 22, 1903, in Beebe, Que., the son of John W. and Mary Major Ashman. He was married Feb. 13, 1926, to Mabel Morrison, who died in 1932. On June 1, 1936, he was married to Violet Cole, who survives.

For 10 years Mr. Ashman operated a farm in Holland, moving in 1946 to Island Pond, and in 1950 to Morgan Center. In later years Mr. Ashman did carpenter work.

He was a member of the East Charleston Nazarene Church. Besides his wife, Mr. Ashman is survived by three children, a son, Melvin of Holland and a daughter, Mrs. Reginald (Edith) Hughes of Lennoxville, Que., by his first marriage and a son, Larry, by his second marriage. He also leaves six grandchildren.

Other survivors include the following brothers and sisters: John Ashman of Massawippi, Que., Harry of Hill, N.H., Mrs. Richard (Winifred) Ellum of Derby, Mrs. Archer (Ruth) Lenney of Cowansville, Mrs. James (Viola) Smith of Coaticook, Mrs. Richard (Inez) Middleton of Stanstead, Mrs. Arthur (Vivian) Jordan of Way's Mills, Mrs. Arthur (Elsie) Townsend of LaSalle, Henry Ashman of Newport, Mrs. Herman (Alice) Humphrey of St. Catharines, Ont., Mrs. Edward (Vernice) Middleton of Stanstead, and Guy Ashman of Hatley, Que. A brother Ralph predeceased him.

Christmas Party Confections are easy and fun to make

YOUR CHRISTMAS PARTY can be spectacular when you serve confections you make yourself. All will enjoy Orange Candy Cane Cookies, Lebkuchen, No-Cook Christmas Candy and Tangerine Egg Nog.

ORANGE LEBKUCHEN

- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1 cup ground blanched almonds
- 1 cup honey
- 1/2 cup Florida orange juice
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind

In small bowl beat eggs until light. Gradually beat in sugar and continue beating until pale in color. Mix together dry ingredients and almonds, add to beaten eggs alternately with honey and orange juice. Add orange rind. Turn into greased and floured 15 x 10 x 1-inch baking pan. Bake in 400°F oven 15 to 20 minutes. Cool. Frost with Orange Glaze*. Cut into 1-inch diamond shapes.

YIELD: About 6 dozen cookies.

*Orange Glaze

- 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 2 tablespoons Florida orange juice

In small mixing bowl beat together all ingredients until smooth.

Amid the hustle of the Christmas season there's always time to throw a party. Whether it's a tree-trimming get-together, a festive dinner or a children's party, Christmas time produces a fabulous array of sweets for all to enjoy.

Cookies, candies and drinks take on holiday personalities as they're dressed up with party colors and flavors. And what better flavors does Christmas offer than those of fresh Florida oranges and tangerines. They're naturally festive and create a tart-sweet sparkle in holiday foods.

Candy canes are a fun tradition and even more fun are Orange Candy Cane Cookies. Cookie dough flavored with grated orange rind is rolled out and cut into candy cane shapes. After baking, it's frosted and striped with Orange Frosting for a real party look.

Orange Lebkuchen, a citrus-flavored honey and spice cake, makes a superb Christmas party delicacy. Lebkuchen originated in Germany and this type of cake was considered a real luxury in Medieval Europe. It contained spices and almonds which were too expensive to use every day and could only be afforded on holidays. This firm-textured cake is frosted with a light Orange Glaze and cut into small diamond shapes. Orange Lebkuchen has a rich, festive flavor and brings a little Old World charm to Christmas entertaining.

Candy is everywhere at this time. It's a favorite to hang on the tree, to stuff into a Christmas stocking and to nibble on. You can make your own easily with no cooking required. It's called No-Cook Christmas Candy and it's made with crushed vanilla wafers flavored with ground almonds and orange juice. The mixture is formed into little balls and chilled so that the flavors blend into a rich tasting confection. No-Cook Christmas Candy goes well as a party treat or you can pack it into pretty tins to give to friends.

No Christmas party is complete without egg nog, just as this season isn't complete without the fragrance of tangerines permeating the air. Combine the two and you've got Tangerine Egg Nog, a rich creamy drink accented with the refreshing flavor of Florida tangerine juice concentrate. A cloud of meringue and tangerine sections top the egg nog for a light, party look.

ORANGE CANDY CANE COOKIES

- 1 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

In large bowl, cream butter with confectioners' sugar. Beat in egg. Chill until dough is stiff enough to handle. Roll out dough 1/8 inch thick. With cookie cutter, or cutting around paper pattern, cut out candy cane shapes and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 375°F oven 12 to 15 minutes, until lightly browned at edges. Remove to cooling rack. When cool, frost with Orange Frosting*. Tint about 1/2 cup of frosting orange and make stripes on frosted cookies.

YIELD: 60 cookies.

*Orange Frosting

- 1/4 cup soft butter or margarine
- 2 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 3 tablespoons Florida orange juice

In small bowl, cream butter until soft and fluffy. Beat in confectioners' sugar, orange rind and juice.

NO-COOK CHRISTMAS CANDY

- 2 cups crushed vanilla wafers
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 12 ounces (2 1/4 bags) whole blanched almonds, ground
- 1/4 cup light corn syrup
- 6 tablespoons frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted

In large bowl mix all ingredients except confectioners' sugar. Form into balls about 1/2-inch in diameter. Chill several hours. Roll half of candies in confectioners' sugar.

YIELD: About 4 dozen candies.

TANGERINE EGG NOG

- 2 quarts milk
- 12 egg yolks
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen Florida tangerine juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
- Florida tangerine sections

Scald milk in large heavy saucepan. Beat egg yolks with sugar, stir in about 1 cup of hot milk. Quickly stir into remaining hot milk and cook, stirring constantly, over very low heat until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon. Remove from heat and add vanilla, chill. Add undiluted tangerine concentrate. Pour into punch bowl and top with tangerine sections.

YIELD: 16 1/2-cup servings.

*Meringue Floats

- 12 egg whites
- 1/2 cup sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, and continue beating until mixture stands in stiff peaks. Place a dollop on each egg nog serving.

MANSONVILLE — The United Church Women of the Mansonville and Vale Perkins Units held their annual Christmas meeting on Dec 14 in the church hall where 23 members and 12 visitors attended, with the President, Mrs. Keyworth George presiding.

Special features of this meeting were the reports from each committee on the year's activities, also the treasurer's yearly report for Vale Perkins was given by Mrs. Ralph Knowlton and for Mansonville, by Mrs. Rupert Fullerton.

The Committee reports were Communications by Mrs. Hazel Jones, Social functions by Mrs. Gerald Cabana, Food section by Mrs. Gerald George, Flowers committee by Mrs. Betty Klopfer, Church decorations by Mrs. Ben Barnett, Supply and welfare by Mrs. Denzil Kilpatrick, Press and publicity by Mrs. Harold Clark, Sickness and card committee by Mrs. Ethel Bailey, Membership committee by Mrs. Merton Bailey, Work committee and Program committee by Mrs. Ross McNeil.

Following the above reports, the nomination committee presented the slate of officers for 1973 which was adopted and accepted unanimously. This slate of officers as presented by Mrs. Leonard Noon, Chairman of the nominating committee, was General president, Mrs. Gerald George. General vice-president, Mrs. Bertha Webb. Treasurer, Mrs. Rupert Fullerton, and secretary Mrs. Harold Clark, Chairman of the Vale Perkins Unit, Mrs. George Jewett. The new committees will be appointed by the executive in January.

A vote of thanks was voiced to the 1972 officers for the wonderful service rendered during the year, and a special thank you to the retiring president, Mrs. Keyworth George. The new president, Mrs. Gerald George, was given the chair and she gave a short speech and then announced the next meeting to be held Jan. 18, 1973, in the home of Mrs. Rupert Fullerton.

The service of worship led by Mrs. McNeil, consisted of Christmas hymns and bible readings on O Come Emmanuel from Luke 2:13-20. Also other readings by six of the members, closing with Hark the Herald Angels Sing.

Donations were presented to be given to the needy of the community. The guests and members then participated in a game after which Christmas gifts of homemade articles and homebaked goods were exchanged.

Rev. Carl Gustafson said grace and the group sat down to a most delicious Christmas lunch prepared and served by the hostesses, Mrs. G. George and Mrs. K. George.

Chess fever high, interest increasing

MONTREAL (CP) — The chess fever that spread from Iceland last summer is still running high here—with promoters doing their best to keep it so.

Bernard Ouimet, president of the Montreal Chess League, said the scale of new interest—particularly among French-speaking citizens—and commercial sponsorship is almost unbelievable to veterans of past unsung tournaments in cramped basements.

"The whole thing would have been unthinkable not so long ago," said the 29-year-old insurance actuary. "What is new is that we are able to open doors that were closed before."

The world chess championships in Reykjavik, Iceland, caught the public imagination in an unprecedented manner. The games between American Bobby Fischer, the victor, and Russian Boris Spassky, the defending champion, came over the media like dam busters. Suddenly commercial sponsorship, hitherto invisible, became available for local chess.

Ouimet advocates alert public relations and promotion to ensure that the intellectually stimulating game of pawns, kings, queens and knights will have a good future in Canada.

FORM OWN FIRM

He said an example of business potential has been provided by aptly-named Bryan M. Knight, 33, and Douglas R. Long, 28, who founded Chess Nut Enterprises (Le Fou des Echecs Entreprises) several months ago. And Knight, interviewed on his return from a business trip to his native England, told a reporter:

"We are the only Canadian firm specializing exclusively in chess in retail, wholesale, import and mail-order fields." His tiny Chess Nut boutique on west-end Queen Mary Road features sets from $2 to $2,500, from 24 countries, in acrylic, glass, metal, wood, bone, soapstone, ivory, ceramics and cement.

Chess Nut is also the title of a 15-page catalogue distributed across Canada and featuring, like the boutique, such supplies as literature, chess clocks and score sheets as well as sets and boards.

The happy-warrior partners—old friends, university graduates and avowed chess freaks—enjoy exploiting off-beat and spinoff opportunities, their latest venture being Pawnography, a 72-page book of cartoons touted, at $1.25, as an ideal gift for broad-minded chess people.

"We dreamed up all the ideas for the cartoons on one mad night," Long confided. "We touch on some of the do's and don'ts of chess. For instance, spectators—especially beautiful spectators—leaning over a chess board can be terribly distracting, you know."

Janice Logan, the comely 24-year-old artist who did the sketches, confessed with a smile that initially she felt some of the cartoon ideas were a trifle risqué "and so did my mother."

HAS TOPICAL INTEREST

"But we decided they were ok and, in fact, I was amazed that the ancient game of chess relates so well to anything topical—religion, sex, pawns in society and other things," said the native of Columbus, O., and graduate in fine arts from Ohio State University.

Knight and Long found a vacuum in some aspects of the chess industry and have been so busy they have little time to play the game.

"But some of the sets are irresistible," said Knight. "We hid them until we have a chance to try them out."

Of the over-all Montreal picture, Ouimet reported that for some time the league under his presidency had been trying to correct a traditional lack of good French-language literature and material. The interest stirred by the world tournament had been of immense help.

Some 225 contestants turned up for the opening of the Montreal chess championships, compared with roughly 85 in other years. Scores of spectators included citizens of 10 and 12 years of age.

Ouimet said a Canadian participation record may well have been set when 750 people took part in Quebec championships conducted by the French-language newspaper, La Presse.

Ear wax texture may lead to health clues

NEW YORK (CP) — How's your ear wax, wet or dry? Genetic factors in the kind you inherit may determine immunity to disease.

Doctors are testing the oily, sticky substance to learn more about such killer diseases as cancer and heart disease—and body conditions such as under-arm odor.

Editors of the British Medical Journal report the aim of such medical research is to seek clues to the genetic and fundamental biochemical nature of a wide variety of conditions.

Ear wax, called cerumen after its Latin name, is a complex substance produced by about 1,000 microscopic glands in both ear canals. Embryologists have linked the cerumen glands to the development of sweat glands in the armpits and elsewhere in the body.

A Japanese geneticist, Dr. E. Matsunaga, showed earlier this century that people inherit one of two types of ear wax—wet or dry. Ear wax is controlled by one set of genes, with wet ear wax dominant over dry.

HAS MORE FAT

Most Caucasian and black people have wet ear wax, which usually is oil, sticky and honey-colored. It contains three times as much fat as dry ear wax but one-third the amount of protein.

The dry type is grey and brittle and is common among the Japanese, Mongol peoples and the Indians of North and South America.

Doctors notice that a great range exists in the amount of cerumen people produce. In some persons, the amount is scant, in others it is so copious that it can obstruct the ear canal.

Normally, ear glands produce a liquid cerumen that dries into a wax, which eventually pulverizes and flakes.

But the mechanism fails sometimes and wax accumulates to form a plug. If it blocks the canal, it can cause pain, deafness or dizziness. The plugs can be hard or soft, depending on genetic factors.

Do-it-yourself "cleaning" to remove plugs is not recommended.

Genetic differences in ear wax have led researchers to believe that some unknown adaptive value exists in cerumen, possibly associated with resistance to disease.

USED IN RESEARCH

Ear wax is being used as a research tool to gain more knowledge of the role of heredity in producing disease.

From research studies of Dr. Nicholas Petrakis of the University of California at San Francisco and others, doctors have learned that ear wax has anti-bacterial properties because of the presence of immunoglobulins and lysozymes.

Immunoglobulin is a protein containing antibodies vital to the body's attack against infections. Lysozyme is an enzyme capable of damaging some bacteria.

Dry ear wax contains more of both substances than wet ear wax.

Though researchers do not fully understand why such a difference exists, they note that American Indians, who have the dry type, still suffer from a high incidence of ear infections.

Dr. Petrakis also has reported that wet cerumen is present in Japanese women with breast cancer more often than in Japanese women without it. But the incidence of breast cancer is low in the Japanese and Oriental populations.

Dr. Petrakis has hypothesized that a genetic variation of the cerumen and other similar glands may influence human biochemistry and susceptibility to breast cancer.

He also theorizes that perhaps the genetic factor may influence metabolism of fat and the production of arteriosclerosis.

Killer disease smallpox said almost conquered

GENEVA (AP) — Final victory seems near in the fight against smallpox, a disease that has killed more people than all the wars of history.

World Health Organization officials report "unparalleled success" in their global efforts to eliminate the disease that has destroyed millions and left countless others blinded or disfigured.

The vaccine has been available for nearly 200 years, but until recently getting it to remote areas and administering mass inoculations have been major problems.

New cases have been reduced from 2.5 million to fewer than 200,000 a year since a worldwide drive against smallpox was launched in 1967. The figure may approach zero before the campaign marks its 20th anniversary, officials predict.

Smallpox is believed to have started in Indian and Central Asia and spread westward. Scars like those caused by smallpox were found on the mummified head of the Egyptian pharaoh Ramses VI, who died in 1160 B.C.

The disease reached spectacular proportions in Europe by the time of the Crusaders in the 11th century. For hundreds of years after that it swept nations with appalling regularity.

NO ESCAPE

The disease struck rich and poor alike. Even royalty could not escape. Peter II of Russia, Louis XV of France, Joseph I of Germany and Queen Elizabeth I of England were victims.

A slave of Spanish conqueror Hernando Cortez is believed to have introduced smallpox to America in 1520, producing an epidemic that killed millions. Some historians have said the disease was a principal factor in the white man's conquest of America.

Smallpox vaccine was discovered in 1796 by Edward Jenner, an English county doctor who noticed that milkmaids who had suffered cowpox seemed immune to smallpox. But it was decades later, after more epidemics—including one that killed 41,000 in Britain—before smallpox vaccination became mandatory in Western nations.

The disease was virtually eliminated in Europe and North America following the Second World War but when the World Health Organization began its campaign in 1967, smallpox was still a major threat in many developing countries, about 30 in all.

Harris, Buchanan top NFL rookies

NEW YORK (AP) — Electrifying Pittsburgh runner Franco Harris and tough Green Bay cornerback Willie Buchanan were named Tuesday as National Football League rookies of the year by The Associated Press.

The 230-pound Harris won in a landslide as the NFL's top offensive rookie after leading Pittsburgh to its first playoff in 40 years.

Buchanan was drafted No. 1 from San Diego State and helped give Green Bay the toughest secondary against touchdown passes. He won a comfortable verdict in the defensive voting.

Harris locked up 65 of 68 votes in the AP poll of pro football writers and the remaining three went to Green Bay placekicker Chester Marcol.

Buchanan received 34 votes and Cincinnati safety Tommy Casanova was runner-up with 18. Sherman White, a Bengal defensive end, was next with four.

Other top rookie defenders were Cleveland cornerback Tom

Flames grab share of fourth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Much has been said about Buffalo Sabres becoming a playoff threat in only their third season in the National Hockey League, but they could still be upstaged by Atlanta Flames.

The Flames, after only 40 games in their first NHL season, have already laid partial claim to the fourth playoff spot in the West Division.

The move came Tuesday night when the Flames defeated New York Islanders 6-1. That gave Atlanta 38 points, on 16 wins and six ties, and a tie with Philadelphia Flyers. Only eight points separate the Flames and Flyers from first-place Chicago Black Hawks.

In the only other game Tuesday, St. Louis Blues edged Pittsburgh Penguins 5-4.

In tonight's games, Montreal Canadiens visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Los Angeles Kings face the Rangers in New York, the Islanders are at Buffalo, Vancouver Canucks visit California Golden Seals, Pittsburgh is at Chicago and the Flyers and Flames battle for sole possession of fourth spot in the West with a game at Atlanta.

Larry Romanchych and Keith McCreary each fired two goals to lead the Flames in handing the Islanders their 28th defeat in 37 games.

Arnie Brown got the New York goal before an Islanders home crowd of 10,042.

Ernie Hicke and Leon Rochefort got the other Atlanta goals as the Flames outshot the Islanders 36-23. It was Atlanta's fourth victory in as many games against their 1972-73 expansion partners.

At St. Louis, the Penguins threatened to keep pace with Atlanta and Philadelphia as they took the lead early and never fell behind until Phil Roberto's winning goal with 1:26 left in the game.

The loss left Pittsburgh two points behind the Flames and Flyers and four ahead of St. Louis.

A first-period goal by Greg Polis gave Pittsburgh the early lead and scores by Jean Pronovost and Bryan Hextall made it 3-1 early in the second period.

But just 15 seconds after Al McDonough made it 4-2 for Pittsburgh the Blues came back to tie the count with scores by Pierre Plante and Gary Sabourin before the second period ended to set up Roberto's winning effort.

Fran Huck and Chris Evans got the other Blues goals before a St. Louis crowd of 18,161.

Mayor proclaims Clemente week

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mayor Peter Flaherty has declared this Roberto Clemente Week in Pittsburgh, and in Harrisburg, the state senate has moved to have the late Pirate great inducted immediately into baseball's Hall of Fame.

"This will provide us all with an opportunity to pause and reflect on the many contributions Roberto Clemente made to this community both as a great ball player and humanitarian," the mayor said Tuesday.

He said Tuesday a portrait of the 38-year-old right fielder would be placed in the lobby of the City-County Building for the duration of the mourning period.

The senate acted on a broader scale.

"The Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the people of Pennsylvania sor-

Marshall honored

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Marshall, relief specialist for Montreal Expos, will receive the Ken Hubs Memorial Award at the Chicago Baseball Writers' Dinner Jan. 13.

The Hubs award, in memory of the Chicago Cubs' second baseman who was killed in a plane crash in 1964, is given to a player displaying exemplary conduct on and off the field.

Marshall, who is studying for a degree in education at Michigan State, compiled a 14-8 record for the Expos last season in addition to being credited with 18 saves. He had a hand in 32 of Montreal's 70 victories during the season.

Voyageurs win delayed game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia fans waited an hour and 40 minutes for an American Hockey League game to start Tuesday night and the Voyageurs gave them a 6-5 reward over New Haven Nighthawks.

In the other game, Cleveland Barons took a 2-1 road win over Baltimore Clippers to move into a fourth-place tie with Richmond Robins in the Western Division.

The New Haven-Nova Scotia game was delayed in Halifax because the Nighthawks missed their scheduled flight in Montreal after arriving late from Boston. They chartered a plane to Halifax.

Once it started, 2,639 fans were treated to one of the best games of the season.

Dave Gardner and Yvon Lambert scored three goals each for the Voyageurs. Gardner got the winner at 18:11 of the final period with a rising wrist shot from 10 feet out.

Lambert beat goaltender Glen Resch three times in the second period. Ron Smith paced New Haven with two goals and Derek Kuntz and Yvon Rolando added the others.

Cleveland beat Baltimore when Rod Norrish connected from a scramble in front of the Clippers' net at 9:30 of the final period.

It was a defensive battle which featured strong goaltending by Baltimore rookie Ken Lockett and Cleveland veteran Fern Rivard.

The Clippers, winless at home in their last 11 games, opened scoring in the first period on a goal by Wayne Schultz. The Barons tied it when Terry Holbrook scored on a breakaway.

The standings

Ron Ward, a converted defenceman, has not scored a goal in nine games for New York Raiders, but he still leads World Hockey Association scorers, statistics released Tuesday show.

The Raider centre has 28 goals and 35 assists for 63 points. However, he is being chased by Terry Caffery of New England who has 20 goals and 40 assists.

Tom Webster, Caffery's teammate with the Whalers and a former Detroit Red Wing and California Golden Seal, leads the league in goals with 32.

J. C. Tremblay, a former standout defenceman with Montreal Canadiens, has the most assists, 42.

Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland Crusaders has the most shutouts, 4. With Bob Whidden, Cleveland goalies have a goals-against average of 2.61.

Cheevers, a standout last year with Boston Bruins, Stanley Cup champions, has earned 18 of Cleveland's 23 victories. His 18-9-0 record is the best in the WHA.

Photog complains

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A newspaper photographer swore out a complaint with police Tuesday alleging Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes assaulted him at the Rose Bowl.

The photographer, Art Rogers, 55, of Los Angeles Times "alleges that Woody Hayes grabbed his camera and shoved it back against his eye," said Police Sgt. J.M. Robinson.

Emonet triumph

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (AP) — Patricia Emonet won a World Cup slalom race Tuesday on treacherous Pohorje Mountain where there were more disqualifications and abandonments than finishes.

Even the 16-year-old French girl had her troubles. Fourth after the first run with a 62.86, Miss Emonet sped to victory with a record 54.25 in the second. But officials ruled an irregularity and asked her to re-

Hornets need help from their friends

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets need a little help in the Ontario international hockey tournament, even after they defeated Kingston Aces 5-4 Tuesday night.

And the team that could help the Hornets is the same Aces who play host Thursday night to undefeated Prague Selects of Czechoslovakia.

The Galt win in Kingston before 1,083 fans created a three-way tie for first place in the 15-game tournament, involving three European clubs and three from the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Prague, Galt and Moscow Dynamos have six points apiece, four more than Kingston, Owen Sound Downtowners and Timra of Sweden are winless after three games.

In an exhibition game Tuesday, Brantford Foresters of the senior league edged Timra 5-4 to extend the Swedes losing record to five games. The Swedes were dumped 8-4 by Orillia Terriers of the senior circuit in an earlier exhibition contest.

Filion winningest racer again

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Herve Filion, the saucy little reinsman with the so-long-sucker smile, is the world's winningest harness racing driver for the fifth consecutive year.

The 32-year-old Canadian wound up 1972 with a world record of 604 winners and earnings of more than $2.5 million. He owns most of his horses outright or in partnership with clients.

Filion could have quit the season in mid-December, when he had 31 more winners than his record 1971 showing. But he said tracks kept calling him, and he went down to the wire.

The brash Canadian from Angers, Que., finished the year Sunday at Dover Downs in Delaware with three winners in seven drives. In his other races, he finished second twice, third and eighth.

Saturday, a day he reined four winners at Monticello Raceway in upstate New York, Filion reached another milestone in his career, winning his 600th of the year behind Sherlock.

Before the short, stocky Canadian became the world's leading harness driver, the most races any reinsman won in one year was 386. In 1968, Filion had 407 victories, the first 400-plus record for one season.

He was still top gun with 394 in 1969, and again in 1970 with 486. He had his first 500-plus season in 1971 with a total of 543.

Once he had 12 winners in two days. Another time he rode seven winners on a single card.

His lifetime total of 4,065 includes many horses which were claimers.

TRAVELS FAR

He travels more than 250,000 miles a year by plane and car to tracks in the U.S. and Canada with an occasional jaunt to New Zealand, Australia or Europe.

Some critics say he works his horses too hard. But Filion bristles at such charges, saying he pushes his horses only enough to win.

With a hungry appetite for driving, his skills come in a good part from just plain hard work.

Between races he studies every horse and driver in the next field, searching for an edge he can use to his advantage.

One of his friends says he has a photographic mind, a fantastic memory. And in a little work book, he records his every start, finish and penny earned.

Work pays off for Boom Boom

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — The Boomer was down to a whisper, poking a bit of fun at his critics who figured by Christmas he would be neatly buried in the wreckage of an expansion flop.

But Laryngitis could not dampen the enthusiasm of Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion who, at 41, has worked harder than any time in his life to help make the newly-minted Atlanta Flames a successful expansion club in the National Hockey League.

He admits he drives his players as coach but they have responded by proving they are no first-season doormats with a record, approaching the 500 mark.

He keeps busy, too, selling the club on the banquet circuit, so busy in fact that he hasn't much time to worry about the ulcer that cost him his first NHL coaching job with New York Rangers.

"I guess the Boomer fooled a lot of them," Geoffrion whispered in his colorful third-person pattern when the Flames arrived Monday for a game against New York Islanders.

His fractured French-English speeches seem to go well with the southern charm of Georgia and the fans in Atlanta have caught on to NHL hockey rapidly and in a big way. His critics are dwindling fast.

"I know all about them saying the Boomer would be gone before Christmas because he didn't have the temperament to coach a hockey team.

"Well, I guess the Boomer showed them things are a little different now."

His Ulcer, like the famous slaphot, is a thing of the past. Geoffrion does not try to explain why his Flames are performing in a way his established Rangers could not three seasons ago.

In the 1968-69 season, when the Boomer coached the Rangers, every game produced a kind of trauma for him. He just plain suffered — win, lose or draw.

By mid-January, when general manager Emil Francis relieved him and took over the coaching chores, the Boomer's supposedly repaired ulcer was just about to be wiped open.

An intense competitor in his playing days with Montreal Canadiens and the Rangers, the Boomer apparently has learned to channel the stress coaching produces.

Last Saturday night, the Flames got a 1-1 tie with the Canadiens in Montreal, but the Boomer lost his voice.

Geoffrion had his first success as coach when he led Quebec Aces to two straight American Hockey League championships after he temporarily retired as a player in 1964.

An all-star right wing for the Canadiens for 14 seasons, he was inducted into the NHL Hall of Fame on Aug. 24, 1972. His sizzling slaphot earned him the nickname Boom Boom and accounted for many of his 393 NHL career goals. He became the second player to score 50 goals in one season, reaching the milestone in 1961, and he played on seven Stanley Cup winners.

By nature Geoffrion is not a listener. For opponents, he's still the hard-rock "I hate your guts" guy. Off the ice, he has absorbed some of the affability of his new home base while practising his French-accented southern-style invite to friends, "Y'all come to see us now, ya hear?"

WON LAST TWO

He had five straight seconds before making One Kid his 598th win. Next he won with Bethel Beauty, was seventh in the eighth race, and came back to win the ninth and 10th races with Sherlock and Jestic Jerry.

On a miserable rainy Sunday, Filion's appearance increased attendance at Dover Downs to about 4,000, a track spokesman said.

Filion said after Roosevelt Raceway in New York closed Dec. 16 that he had 574 victories and was going to all it quits for the year.

"Then the tracks started calling. If a track calls me I can't say no. I have seven brothers and all are in harness racing. It's been good to us. If I can help the sport, I go."

Friends say Filion is one of the softest touches on the racetrack and groomers appreciate his keeping a full money clip in his pocket.
