Cutting your own Christmas tree? forget it says would-be lumberjack

Do you know anything about Christmas trees?

If you don't and are planning to sharpen up an axe and head for the woods, forget it.

I've come to this conclusion after having spent two hours tramping through snow up to my ankles, looking for a tree for the office.

For three days, the female employees of this office have been begging for a Christmas tree, yesterday I and a photographer headed for the woods. This is going to be simple, I thought. But I've changed my mind.

On arrival, we immediately spotted what looked like a beautiful tree.

I had finished chopping down the tree and was headed back to the car quite pleased with myself when we happened to meet a man who was out looking for a tree, himself.

I immediately knew something was wrong just by the way the man looked at me.

"What is that," he asked. "A Christmas tree," I answered.

"That's a bull spruce and can't be used for a Christmas tree," he said.

"What is a bull spruce," I wondered.

"A cat spruce," he explained, still wearing a smile on his face.

Now, I have no more idea what a cat spruce is, than a bull spruce but I gathered from the gentleman's explanation that these trees produce a bad smell in the house.

So for the next two hours we looked for a fir that suited our needs, a three foot tree that could be put on top of the filing cabinet, that smelled good.

With damp spirits and damp feet the photographer and I set off.

We tramped through snow for about an hour.

I was just about ready to junk the whole thing and return to the office to receive my punishment from the ladies when it hit me.

The branch of a tree I mean. I looked around and there it was, the most beautiful little tree that I had ever seen. And it smelled fine.

I manned the axe while the photographer ran around in circles taking pictures.

We headed back with our job finished. But when we arrived at the office we had to decorate our hard-won tree, because the ladies were too busy, they said.

Well, we did it, and the ladies thanked us heartily, but this still doesn't change my view on taking it upon yourself to play lumberjack.

My advice to anyone who wants a Christmas tree is to go down to the corner lot and buy one and if they are all sold out, well, there is always next year.

P.S. I've got a cold—Atchoooo!

SUCCESS AT LAST — As Christmas approaches, many families will be out in the woods of the Eastern Townships, cutting their own Christmas trees. But the job is not as easy as it sounds. Family says Eichmann not guilty

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Still avowing his innocence, Adolf Eichmann's family said Friday it will not plead for clemency before the Israeli panel that sentenced Eichmann to death for crimes against the Jews.

"They are going to kill him anyway," asserted Eichmann's son, Horst, 21.

"I am realistic," Horst said. "They are going to kill my father anyway. They will say it was a heart attack, ulcers or liver sickness. As one of his (four) sons I only wish he shall be granted justice."

Eichmann's oldest son, Klaus, 25, summoned reporters to a downtown bar to denounce the Israeli trial.

"Israel was partial," he said. "My father is not guilty."

Klaus, saying he was speaking for the family, called his father "loving, hardworking, moral and decent. In one word — useful to society."

Liberals seek new faces

Political pot boils in ET

Reports from Ottawa that Prime Minister Diefenbaker may call a general election for late in March is causing a flurry in political organizations, especially among the Liberals who lost five of the eight district ridings in the 1958 Progressive Conservative landslide.

In these five ridings — Sherbrooke, Stansfeld, Compton - Frontenac Richmond - Wolfe and Brome - Missisquoi — it is expected the Opposition forces will be compelled to seek new candidates for the next campaign.

Maurice Gingues, Liberal member for Sherbrooke prior to 1958, has died since that time and in the four other constituencies the former Liberal MP's are advancing in years and have indicated they would leave the fight to younger men.

In Sherbrooke the situation is vague.

Actually the Liberals have no favorite to date. Several names have been tossed around, but have been ruled out — either because the selectee declined with thanks or because he was unacceptable to the powers-that-be.

Over in Stansfeld two possible opponents for Rene LeTourneau, PC representative, has been mentioned — Yves Forest, Mazog attorney and long-time Liberal organizer, and E. J. Struthers, Mayor of Stansfeld Plain.

Opposition is also shaping up for Heward Graffey in Brome-Missisquoi. Raymond Belleau, Mayor of Bedford, having announced he will seek the Liberal nomination at the convention to be held in the near future.

The possibility of a woman candidate under the Liberal banner is seen in Richmond-Wolfe following the announcement some time ago by Mrs. Alex Booth, of Windsor and president of the ET Regional Women's Liberal Federation, that she would place her name before the convention.

Others suggested as possible nominees against Progressive Conservative Florent Dubois of Asbestos are Marcel Roy, a Richmond attorney, and Raymond Noel, Mayor of Windsor.

To date the Compton-Frontenac Liberals have made no overt move to select an opponent for Mac Stearns, but in East Angus, the largest town in the riding, there is a concerted move underway to place the name of Mayor Roland Brousseau before the convention — when it is held.

But the straight fights which featured the 1958 federal elections are likely to be missing when the 1962 vote rolls around, with three and four-way contests being the order of the day in ET constituencies.

The New Democratic party, an outgrowth of the former CCF, is pressing its organization work in the area and has indicated it will contest all constituencies, while in this province — has already selected its man in Sherbrooke, Gerard Chapdelaine, an attorney. Selections in other constituencies should be announced shortly.

All sitting members for the district, both Progressive Conservative and Liberal, are expected to seek re-election.

N. Z. visitor
OTTAWA (CP) — J. R. Marshall, Deputy Prime Minister of New Zealand, will meet Prime Minister Diefenbaker and other Canadian cabinet ministers during a two-day visit to Ottawa starting Dec. 18 it was announced Friday. During his visit he will call on the prime minister, external affairs minister Green, Mr. Hamilton and finance minister Fleming.

'Wrath of Israel' is now spent; Eichmann trial verdict top news

Death verdict for Eichmann

UN continues Katanga fight

NATO seeks unity on Berlin

Threat of fighting for Goa

"The wrath of Israel now has been spent," said a Jerusalem courtroom official as Adolf Eichmann, standing stiff and unmoving, heard himself sentenced to be hanged for his part in the Nazi slaying of millions of Jews.

The long and dramatic trial of the former Gestapo officer came to a climax Monday as a three-judge tribunal found him guilty on all 15 counts against him and heard prosecutor Gideon Hausner declare that "there can be only one sentence for Adolf Eichmann."

Eichmann himself addressed the court Wednesday and — while he refused to plead for mercy — insisted that he was not the "all-responsible one."

"I had the misfortune to be involved in these events. The slaughter was the responsibility of the political leaders. I am not the monster I am made out to be."

But two days later the court sentenced him to the gallows for "a crime of unparalleled enormity." No execution date was set pending appeals.

NEW TROUBLES

As the Eichmann trial recalled the horrors of the Second World War, world attention also was focussed on current threats to peace in The Congo and on India's border with Portuguese Goa.

In The Congo, the United Nations force continued its fight to force co-operation from secessionist Katanga province. But moves to bring and a refugee camp. The UN denied the charges and accused the Katangans of making several of the attacks themselves to put the UN in a bad light.

WESTERN SPLIT
The Katanga fighting gave rise to divisions among the Western Allies.

At a NATO ministerial meeting in Paris the United States, backed by Canada, Norway and Denmark, defended the UN position that the world force should establish its position in Katanga before agreeing to a cease-fire.

In Ottawa Thursday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker avoided direct comment on a British call for a cease-fire and said it was Canada's understanding that the UN action resulted from "a series of provocative acts and was taken only when all efforts to discuss the situation with Katanga authorities had failed."

President Moise Tshombe of Katanga meanwhile was reported to have informed President Kennedy that he is willing to negotiate with the central Congolese government and to have asked Kennedy to appoint a "worthy negotiator." Kennedy replied with an offer apparently designed about a truce and eventual reintegration of The Congo were gaining strength.

After more than a week of intermittent air and ground fighting, the Katanga regime claimed on Friday that it had repulsed an all-out offensive by the UN on its capital of Elisabethville. The UN said it had attained its first objective successfully.

Katanga also continued to charge the UN force with atrocities, claiming UN jets had strafed civilians and UN soldiers had mortared hospitals

ELISABETHVILLE —

President Moise Tshombe of The Congo's secessionist Katanga province was reported to have fled from this provincial capital today as United Nations forces scored new successes against his troops in a big offensive.

Reliable reports said Tshombe and his staff left his presidential residence here and headed for Kipishu, a mining town on the Rhodesian border.

The report came as UN soldiers were said to have captured the Lido Hotel, less than a mile from Tshombe's residence. The capture could not be confirmed.

Elisabethville rocked to the sound of small arms and mortar fire today as the UN troops staged their biggest effort yet to win control of the capital.

The new thrusts came as speculation mounted that a cease-fire might soon be called to end fighting the secessionist province led by Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

The blue-helmeted UN troops were reported to have captured a key tunnel near the centre of the city, controlling the railroad line running north and south and the road to Swedish and Irish UN headquarters.

In Leopoldville, the central Congo capital, UN headquarters announced their forces had launched a major attack in an attempt to clear out the main Katangan military base in Elisabethville.

Swedish and Irish troops were fighting a "sharp engagement" at Katanga's Camp Massart, the headquarters announced.

More than 6,000 soldiers of the UN were reported fighting in the action in an attempt to break the back of Katangan resistance. It was the second day of a strong UN drive against the city.

The UN could give no complete casualty figures for the operation so far, but reports in Leopoldville indicated they were not large on the UN side.

CAPTURE HOTEL
These engagements were reported completed by the United Nations.

Ethiopian troops captured the important Lido Hotel and golf course, securing their hold today. These have been strong points for Katanga gendarmerie and paracommando units, and housed important mortar batteries which fired on the United Nations since the Katanga campaign began twelve days ago.

Swedish and Irish troops cleared the area of "the tunnel," a strategic road underpass leading to a UN camp. The two units had been keeping a relentless pressure on Katangans in the tunnel area since Thursday.

Crossroads and points on high ground in the Elisabethville suburbs have been picked off one by one, by units from Sweden, Ireland, Malaysia, Ethiopia and India. These include important mortar positions in the area of the stadium which had been harassing UN traffic to and from the city airport.

$10,000 allowance for mayor

Council approves pay hikes

City hall will seek salary increases of $2,800 for the mayor and $1,000 for each of the ten aldermen, Mayor Armand Nadeau announced at a press conference yesterday.

The increase will bring the mayor's yearly salary from $4,800 to $7,600 and the salaries of each of the aldermen from $1,666 to $2,666 yearly.

The mayor has an extra $2,400 for personal expenses while each of the aldermen have $883.33 for personal expenses.

Mayor Nadeau said the city council will apply for authority to raise council members salaries at the next session of the Quebec Legislature.

The city budget for 1962 allows $45,000 for council member salaries as compared to $32,000 in 1961. This represents an increase of $12,800 over last year. There was no increase in council member's salaries from 1960 to 1961.

"The raise was approved by city council and will be included in the private bill to be presented to the Legislature at the end of February," the mayor said.

City council voted that they receive a raise because the city was expanding and there is more extra work than in previous years, he said.

Mayor Nadeau said, "The raise is normal for a city of our size."

"The council and myself have been working hard in the past years and we feel that we are justified in asking for a raise," the mayor added.

"I feel that we are not asking for too much as other cities our size sometimes apply for twice that amount after city expansions," said the mayor.

"If the bill is passed in Legislature my total allowance will be $10,000 and my aldermen's salaries will be $3,549.33 yearly," the mayor said.

Man faces 2 charges of murder

VICTORIAVILLE — Preliminary hearings in the case of a Victoriaville man charged with two murders will get underway December 21.

Maurice Fraser was arraigned Friday following a coroner's inquest Thursday which found him criminally responsible for the death of Jacques Cote and Gilbert Pepin, both Victoriaville taxi drivers.

Fraser is charged in both cases with murder which still carries the death penalty under the new code of law. A simple murder, a less serious charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Young Chinese are adopted by 300 "relatives"

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Eight-year-old Lee Shu Yung, a refugee from Communist China, has five brothers and sisters in Hong Kong. Now she has acquired some 300 new "foster" relatives.

They are persons in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Ontario who contributed some 18,000 pennies towards her adoption through the foster parents plan.

It started two weeks ago when Ed Kreiger, who broadcasts a Coffee Club program over a local radio station, asked for penny contributions to adopt a child through the foster parents plan.

Professor claims Majority want Quebec to remain a province

MONTREAL (CP) — H. Georges Grenier, defeated candidate in Thursday's byelection in Chambly, Friday called on Pierre Laporte, winning Liberal candidate, to resign.

Mr. Grenier, who ran on his own Capital Familial label, said in a statement:

"I have asked Mr. Laporte to take a look at himself and ask himself if he has never asked other members of legislature to resign for having done the same thing he did during the election campaign?"

"If Mr. Pierre Laporte has not resigned by noon next Monday we shall see what action will have to be taken."

Mr. Grenier did not elaborate.

20th anniversary

Hong Kong disaster is recalled

Twenty years ago, 290 Canadians died or were fatally wounded in the defence of Hong Kong. In later years charges were aired that poorly trained and ill-equipped troops had been sent in a hopeless cause.

In this story, Dave McIntosh, CP's military affairs reporter in Ottawa, recalls the controversial affair.

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

On Jan. 7, 1941, British Prime Minister Churchill wrote a memorandum in which he said: "If Japan goes to war with us there is not the slightest chance of holding Hong Kong or relieving it. It is most unwise to increase the loss we shall suffer instead of increasing the garrison it ought to be reduced to a symbolic scale."

In the face of this, two Canadian infantry battalions were sent to Hong Kong only three weeks before Japan attacked.

Of the 1,975 Canadians who sailed from Vancouver Oct. 27, 1941, altogether 557 died in the defence of Hong Kong, which surrendered Christmas Day, 1941, or in Japanese prisoner-of-war camps. One man died at sea enroute to Hong Kong.

Why were they sent to Hong Kong?

Churchill said he allowed himself to be drawn from his original position on Hong Kong.

Despite a Canadian royal commission inquiry into the dispatch of the Hong Kong expedition and charges against his commission by Hon. George Drew, then Conservative premier of Ontario, it has never become thoroughly clear why

Canada and Winnipeg Grenadiers — was sent to the Far East.

BRITISH REQUEST
The man who appears to have had most to do with dispatch of the expedition was Maj.-Gen. A. E. Grasett. In August, 1941, he returned to Britain by way of his native Canada after retiring as commander of British troops in China.

In Ottawa he told Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, then chief of the Canadian Army general staff, that addition of two or more battalions to the Hong Kong force would enable the garrison to do so with the British chiefs of staff Sept. 3.

The chiefs recommended that Gen. Grasett apparently Britain approach Canada didn't raise with Gen. Crerar Churchill raised no objection the question of obtaining these battalions from Canada. But he would enable the garrison to do so with the British chiefs of staff Sept. 3.

The checks and certificates were drawn against banks in Toronto and Nova Scotia and made out to and endorsed by Rafael Trujillo Jr., son of the slain dictator, the announcement said.

Young Trujillo, who headed the armed forces after his father's death, sailed in the yacht into exile last month. He flew to Paris from the French island of Guadeloupe and the yacht returned here.

The government said that the documents were issued by several private enterprises, among them the reserve bank here.

Fidel Menez Nunez, director of the recently created office of recovery and property, said that the government has started diligent efforts to freeze the funds of the Hong Kong expedition of 1941. More than 500 Canadians died in battle and prisoner-of-war camps in an unsuccessful defence of the crown colony. Dr. Crawford, now director-general of treatment services in the department of veterans affairs, says the death rate among the 1,417 survivors is higher than among Canadians of the same age group.

but cautioned that "a further decision should be taken before the battalions actually sail."

On Sept. 19, 1941, Britain asked Canada to provide one or two battalions. Ten days later, Prime Minister Mackenzie King cabled Canada's agreement, though the Canadian government was not told of Churchill's earlier doubts.

SEEN AS DETERRENT
Members of the cabinet later gave the royal commission their reasons for the decision.

Defence Minister Ralston said: "I had it definitely in my mind that the United States were not too ready to come in, and anything which would either defer or deter Japan from coming in would be highly desirable from our point of view."

Air Minister C. G. (Chubby) Power said: "It struck me as being the only thing to do. . . . In my opinion we had certain untested battalions in Canada which could be spared and I did not see any reason why they (Britain) should not have them."

Naval Minister Angus L. Macdonald said: "I do not think it was thinkable for this country to offer a negative answer to the request of the United Kingdom."

The director of military training prepared a list of nine available battalions, which "due either to recent employment requiring a period of refresher training, or to insufficient training, are not recommended for operational consideration at present."

PICKED BY CRERAR
Among them were the Royal

ONLY LEVESQUE'S FINANCE THEIR OWN TIME SALES!

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You've got to say one thing for the Gunsmoke gang: They stay in character.

Every viewer of the Saturday night western knows this. I realized it anew when I called on the talented troupe to hear about their windfall.

It had been reported that Dennis Weaver, Amanda Blake and Milburn Stone had sold out their interests in the half-hour Gunsmoke for $1,000,000 apiece. James Arness had previously made his own deal with CBS, also for a fabulous amount.

The trio confirmed the transaction when I visited their Dodge City diggings. They reacted in character: Chester was cheerful, Doc was grumpy and Kitty was flighty.

Kitty was in the makeup department, awaiting her call to the Long Branch saloon. I asked her if the $1,000,000 figure was true.

LIVES AS USUAL

"I guess so," she said. "At least that's what my business manager tells me. It doesn't make much difference to my way of life. He just keeps sending me my allowance, and I just keep spending it."

Doc finished a scene in the Dodge City jail and confirmed the news.

"I didn't want to sell, but CBS made me such a good offer that I couldn't pass it up," he grumbled. "I had a good contract. Well, I had to. I had seen myself on TV every night in old movies, and I wasn't getting a dime for it."

"I had made those contracts when I didn't know what television would be. But when I signed for Gunsmoke, I knew what it was. And I couldn't face my grandchildren if I did not make the best possible deal."

As for Chester, he was bright and cheery, partly because of his financial gain, partly because of his new adventure. He is finishing out his last year on the show. His co-stars have four years to go.

MANSONVILLE —

Mrs. Raymond Miller was called to Montreal by the sudden death of her husband. The funeral took place on Tuesday, Dec. 12 at St. Paul's Anglican Church, with Rev. Gerald Tuik officiating, assisted by Mrs. Miller's nephew, Rev. Father Ralph Carmichael, of Albany, N.Y.

Miss Georgia King, of Montreal, spent several days with Mrs. M. Miller.

High Times

By SANDRA PICKFORD

This week a letter reached the Sherbrooke Record office from a young Japanese student wanting a pen pal. Here's her letter and her address if you would like to write to her:

"I am writing this letter hoping to find a pen friend in your country. A few Japanese are emigrating to your country from Japan but I regret we know your country only vaguely. Therefore, I hope to know your country better by exchanging picture post cards, stamps, school works, and opinions through correspondence. I think this is the best way to understand your country.

I am sure we shall be able to help establish peace of the world when we try to understand other countries better and to promote friendship among them.

I am a Japanese girl, aged 15, and I attend a middle school. Sincerely yours, ORGANIZING A STAMP CLUB — Illene Clarke, St. Francis High School says a stamp club is presently being organized at the Richmond school by Mr. Carroll, grade eight teacher. This will give many enthusiastic stamp collectors a chance to trade old stamps.

CHRISTMAS DANCES NEXT WEEKEND — At least three E.T. high schools will hold their annual dances next Friday night. Diana McCallum, Sawyerville correspondent says the annual Sawyerville Christmas dance will be held December 22. Music will be supplied by Nutbrown's Orchestra. The Princess Elizabeth high school will hold their Christmas dance the same night. Magog's dance is featuring a host of guest artists and promises to be one big fling. On the same night Coaticook high school students will dance to music by the Tartans during their Christmas dance.

SKATE EXCHANGE — If you don't want to spend a lot of money this season on a new pair of skates do what students at St. Francis High School are doing — holding a skate exchange. Students of all grades are bringing their skates to school to trade, or sell, for bigger, or smaller sizes.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS — are just about here for E.T. high school students, marking the end of grueling Christmas exams and the beginning of a full week of skating, skiing, dancing and merriment. Coaticook High students begin their holidays December 22 and school reopens

FLAG COMMITTEE VISITS SHERBROOKE — Shown above are Maurice Allard, M.P.P. for Sherbrooke, and Paul A. Group seeks Sherbrooke Court new flag signatures

The Canadians' National Rally—an organization that is promoting a movement to obtain a distinct Canadian flag was in Sherbrooke yesterday, getting signatures for a petition which will be presented to the Prime Minister when 1,000,000 signatures are obtained.

Paul A. La Pointe, the president of the movement, paid a visit to Maurice Allard's MP for Sherbrooke and obtained Mr. Allard's signature.

The organization plans to submit the petition to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and to the members of Parliament and ask for a national referendum or that a National Flag Committee may be set up. There are now 80,000 names on the petition.

"This is the 110th community we have contacted that is in favor of a new Canadian flag," Mr. La Pointe said.

The flag consists of a white and red background with a huge green maple leaf in the center. "The white symbolizes French, the Red English and the green Canada," Mr. La Pointe said.

Take your camera shopping

Amusing scenes can be worthy subjects

Christmas shopping undoubtedly will take up all of your spare time next week.

But perhaps, while relaxing for a moment, it will be a good time to think about what photographs will be required Christmas Day.

Most hobbyists will be wishing to record the Christmas scene and also the events leading up to the special day.

For instance, if a picture story is done, it would be nice

City there is ample light for pictures without the need for a flash. You should have no difficulty in using black and white or color as films such as Ektachrome or Super Anesoch which are exceptionally fast.

In black and white film, plus X which is a fine grain type has the speed required.

Other subjects worth considering while you are killing time would be Christmas decorations on the city streets, although some snow is needed to complete the picture.

I noticed many of the homes have fascinating and colorful displays, which would be a worthwhile addition to your Christmas story.

It is well to mention here that when taking colour photographs of Christmas decorations at night this should be done around fifteen minutes after sunset if possible.

The sky at this point will give a slight color instead of jet black behind the colorful lights.

Computing exposures for outdoor shots should be calculated on the middle brightness for the scene. This will give you some color rendition in the reflection area, especially when there is snow on the ground.

Although this may wash a bit of color from the yellows and lighter shades, in general the middle brightness will be the best.

If you develop your black and white shots by using a soft developer such as one that gives shadow detail you will have plenty of balance from the highlights to the shadows.

BUTTON UP — Boy, it's cold outside, says Santa. Your children may be making this necessary trip to see Santa and with a fast film in your camera many candid shots can be recorded without them knowing it. The picture with this column was taken with a Rollicord camera, F4, 1/30th of a second, Plus-X film, ASA 160, with available light. (Record Photo by Doug Gerrish)

Mayor Nadeau:

To build new sports arena at Sherbrooke fair grounds

A new sports arena will be constructed in Sherbrooke within the next year, Mayor Armand Nadeau said yesterday at a press conference.

He said the arena, to be built at a cost of about $500,000, would go up on the site of the present 34-year-old arena at the Sherbrooke fair grounds.

The mayor said he plans to meet with officials of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association — owner of the fair grounds — to discuss the project.

He said the ETAA offices would have space in the new building.

Although there are no definite plans, the mayor said, "we plan to build the best and most up-to-date arena for people who play in all sorts of sports."

He said aside from use as a recreational centre it would also serve for cattle auctions, fair shows and other activities.

Construction costs would be divided equally among the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

"We have an enormous number of hockey teams which play in our city and we will have more in years to come," the mayor said. "The arena would not only be used by school hockey teams but would be open to anyone who would want to play the sport, skate or use the facilities for any other recreational purpose as long it is not reserved by someone else."

RECREATIONAL TAX
Mayor Nadeau said the city's request to the Legislature for permission to levy a $2 annual tax from tenants and property owners to finance recreational facilities will not include special allowances for the Oeuvre des terrains de jeu—a French-language playground organization.

"The money will be in the hands of the city and all recreational organizations will have equal opportunities to receive money," he said.

According to the Sherbrooke budget tabled at last Monday's council meeting, the city anticipates collecting an estimated $32,000 a year with the new tax.

St. Nick's parade

RICHMOND — The annual Santa Claus parade, sponsored by the local Knights of Columbus will be held on Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus riding through the town streets to Notre Dame High School where distribution of candies and other goodies will be made to the children.

A yearly event, this parade and gala party draws a large number of children who follow Santa around and line up for their bags of Christmas cheer.

HOWARDENE
The mayor said the purchase of Howardene—approved in a referendum held Dec. 5—will cost the city an average of $22,000 a year over a 20 year period for payment of capital and interest charges.

He said it will be another six months before the deal to buy the land and buildings from Sen. C. B. Howard is settled. Sen. Howard agreed to turn over the property in exchange for $285,000 in municipal bonds that will yield a five per cent interest rate.

Church choir to present carols, story

Three have hearing

Trial set on bogus bills count

Three men were committed to stand trial at the next term of the Sherbrooke Criminal Assizes Friday afternoon following their preliminary inquiry which lasted all day.

Denis St-Pierre, 22, and Fern and Joseph Robert Gascon, 25, of Ville St-Francois, were ordered to stand trial on two charges related to counterfeit $10 bills. The three men are charged with having counterfeited $10 bills and of circulating a number of them last November 27 in Richmond, Acton Vale, and Windsor.

The court heard 15 Crown witnesses during the preliminary inquiry which is probably one of the longest in the history of the district of St-Francois.

Prosecuting Attorney Andre Langlais called one witness after the other, and their testimonies were so closely linked to one another, that Judge Joseph Marier ordered the three men to stand trial even before all the witnesses had been heard.

Clerks and proprietors of seven different business establishments testified that the accused had bought a small amount of goods and that in each case, they had given a $10 bill as payment. These bills were shown to be counterfeit $10 bills following the expert testimony of Gerard Dularan, RCMP officer attached with the Crime Laboratory in Ottawa.

Constable Roger Gendreau, of Windsor, who arrested the three men, testified that he had seized a considerable amount of goods in the accused car, which had been bought from business establishments. Sergeant Raymond Rochefort testified that he found eleven $10 counterfeit bills in the accused car, following an extended search conducted through the vehicle. He said the bills were found hidden beneath an ash tray.

Witnesses presented 18 counterfeit bills as exhibits during the course of the preliminary inquiry.

Bail was set at $1,000 in cash or $1,500 in property in each case. St-Pierre and Gascon were represented by lawyer Yvon Roberge while Rene Marceau was counsel for Maillette.

Prevent Christmas season tragedies

Five children died yesterday in Waterford, Ontario when a fire raced through their frame dwelling in the small community.

Fire department officials said the fire was believed to have been started by an overheated stove.

The tragic death of the children symbolizes the start of another "fire season" in this country. As fire fighters everywhere know only too well, the number of fires in any given community goes up as the temperature goes down.

And Christmas time is especially dangerous, with its atmosphere of use and care of Yuletide decorations, gaily-colored lights and cheery decorations. These things, denoting the joy of the season, can result in tragedy if care is not taken in their use.

On Christmas night last year, two Sherbrooke children died in a fire believed to have been started by defective Christmas tree lights.

It could happen to anyone again this year, unless common sense prevails with regard to fire prevention practices in the home.

Many fire chiefs throughout the Eastern Townships have already issued warnings regarding the proper

They should be kept firmly in mind.

A small Christmas tree is less hazardous than a larger one.

The base of the tree should be kept in a container of water; the water will be absorbed and keep the tree moist; Keep trees away from stoves, heaters and fireplaces;

Use good quality electric lights on the tree; not candles.

Check lights for any defects which might cause short circuits.

Keep papers, gifts and other inflammable articles away from the base of the tree until Christmas eve.

Do not use paper, gauze-like materials or other highly inflammable cloths for children's costumes;

Check carefully for burning cigaret butts after every party or gathering in your home;

Always turn out electric tree lights when room is unoccupied;

Whenever possible, use fireproof decorations.

These would all seem to be sensible and simple precautions. Yet, every year, thousands of dollars of damage is done to property and people are injured and killed in fires that result from neglecting to follow one or several of them.

You'd think that from force of habit the auto speeder would run while he's walking

Improving women's rights in Quebec

The only significance of Thursday's provincial by-elections in Jacques Cartier and Chambly is the precedent created by the election of a woman to the Quebec Legislative Assembly.

The overwhelming majorities obtained by the official Liberal candidates in the two ridings were no surprise in view of the absence of candidates of other major parties in the fights.

Traditionally, provincial by-elections are won by the Government candidates, and there was little reason to anticipate a reversal of this rule in Thursday's contests.

The entry of Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain into the halls of the Legislature is of special interest at the present time.

Premier Jean Lesage has stated on several occasions that the somewhat archaic provisions of the Civil Code covering women's rights in this province should be amended at an early date. The inclusion of a woman on this committee, especially one with the legal training enjoyed by Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain, would prove an inestimable asset in the revision of the Civil Code.

Her election also reflects the important changes that have taken place in the political and social thinking in Quebec province during the past few years.

One has only to recall the bitter fight that surrounded the extension of the provincial franchise to women less than twenty years ago to realize the advances that have been made by the feminist cause. Perhaps the Jacques Cartier election result will speed the process further.

Christmas cards are her monument

Grandma Moses has died at the age of 101 after leaving a unique mark on the American tradition of painting. Art critics around the world lauded her works for their charm and quaintness.

But the most complimentary accolades came from the American people who regarded her as their favorite. Her works — usually picturesque rural scenes — were reproduced on an estimated 100,000,000 Christmas cards. They were executed in fresh, startling colors that captured the ruggedness, hardships and warmth of farm life in America.

Perhaps, sociologists would say that

Grandma Moses' paintings captured the American people's wish for a simple and good life that is usually linked with rural living.

Grandma Moses was as much admired for character as her paintings. She, of course, was widely written about and, at one point, became a national fad.

"Spunky" is the word that seems most apt to describe this 100-pound woman who began her art career in her late 70's.

She jokingly promised to live to 200. The vow that she made may well be fulfilled by the enduring popularity of her works.

The Service Is Getting Worse

Adventures with God

Giving without hope of reward is the true joy of Christmas

There are two kinds of Christmas givers: Those who exchange gifts, and those who so love that they give without thought or desire for compensation.

Among my many readers are many people who love the whole human race and in their desire to bring happiness to someone somewhere they give generously, so that a stranger may be cheered, warmed and fed in the Name of their Lord and Saviour.

Among them are widows, some pensioners, and some well to do, but the same spirit of love and generosity is evident in them. They so love that they give. We thank these kindly souls for their continued thought of others, and the inspiration they have been to us over the years.

Some we have met, but every Christmas we come, the familiar handwriting, and the familiar words — "the enclosed is to help someone in need." Year after year they make it possible for me to be a co-worker in their ministry of love, and many a child, a man or a woman has been the recipient of their kindness.

The practice of exchanging Christmas gifts has become a burden to many people. A few have had the courage to stop it, and, I believe, to the relief of their friends, many of whom have everything that money can buy.

But the practice of giving, or sharing, with those in need, without hope of compensation or reward, is a joy, and it is on the increase. This is as it should be, for there is no joy greater than joy shared.

Exchange of gifts does not always indicate lack of the right spirit, but in some cases it does, and such an attitude is far removed from the motive that prompted God to give. His only begotten Son for the redemption of a world — in need of a Saviour. Exchange giving is foreign to the spirit counteracts the selfish attitudes which have developed so rapidly since the turn of the century. It teaches the children the true meaning of giving. It cultivates generosity and concern for the less fortunate, and children learn that it is, indeed — "More blessed to give than to receive."

The observance points up their personal responsibility and privilege to share with others, and it also demonstrates the Spirit of Christmas. "Who though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, that ye might be rich." 2 Cor. 8:9. The children are not obligated to give, neither do they expect to receive. There is no exchange of gifts held out as a bait for giving.

God so loved the world that He GAVE His Son, and the wise men so loved the One God gave that their hearts went out in true adoration to Him and their treasures were laid at His feet.

REPORTING

OTTAWA — The key groups in the battle for the ethnic vote are the Ukrainians, the Italians, the Poles and the Germans: they are large, they maintain their ties of origin, are susceptible to special appeal.

The Ukrainian-Canadians are pretty solidly Conservative. They are gratified that Prime Minister Diefenbaker appointed one of them to the cabinet, and two of them to the Senate. Their hopes for a free Ukraine are fed by the PM's outspoken condemnation of Soviet colonialism, and his promise to try to get the UN Assembly to pass a resolution embodying such condemnation.

Most German-Canadians also appear to favor the administration. Some may resent Diefenbaker's touchiness about his German ancestry (he has called himself "Pennsylvania Dutch"), and emphasizes his Scottish lineage on the maternal side). But most German-Canadians are proud that one of them has become minister, and sympathize with him over the discrimination he suffered in his efforts to win political acceptance.

"They said," Diefenbaker recounts with relish, "that with my name I'd never be prime minister."

Despite his success, his adversaries still seem to think there are yards to be made on his name. A current story: "Know what Kasavubu said to Thombe? No? How'd ya like to have a name like Diefenbaker?"

The Italians and the Poles are pretty solidly Liberal. Except in Il Duce's era, Italian liberalism has been a beacon in Europe for more than a century. And the Poles may be oriented towards the Grits by Diefenbaker's assiduous wooing of the Ukrainians. Old animosities die hard.

It may seem strange to consider New Canadians from Britain as an ethnic group — but technically they are, and politically they are less susceptible to demagoguery than some of the other groups. A good many vote Tory because they were Tories in Britain, but this transferred loyalty could be neutralized by the antagonism Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Fleming have engendered in Britain by the way they oppose Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

The Serbians are pro-Liberal. Balts, Hungarians and other from behind the Iron Curtain will be influenced by Diefenbaker's militant call for self-determination for satellite peoples. The Dutch are not in either camp. The Chinese resent the immigration racket investigations and discriminatory immigration laws.

Arthur Maloney, MP for Toronto-Parkdale, masterminds the Tory campaign for the ethnic vote. He arranged the monster rally of ethnic groups at the Toronto Ex last month that was at once an ovation to and a sounding board for Diefenbaker. Allan Grossman, Ontario minister without portfolio, works closely with Maloney in selling the PM as Canada's most anti-anti-Communist.

Supporting roles are played by Labor Minister Starr (Ukrainians), MP Quinto Martini (Italians), Sen. J. A. Sullivan (Catholics), Sen. James Gladstone (Indians), MP Douglas Jung (Chinese), and, of course, National Organizer Allister Grosart (Bay Street, etc.).

The Liberals' chief of staff in the ethnic vote war is Andrew Thompson, Irish-born Ontario MLA who married an Estonian. He doesn't get much publicity, but high-up Liberals seem satisfied that he gets votes.

French view of Common Market entry

Say British not 'true Europeans'

Something of the same pa-draped suddenly over sand-asked visiting Premier Jean Lesage's attitude is extended to wiches; and streets empty be-cause of Quebec:

Britain, regarded almost pity-fore midnight, "where not even "Why do you Canadians tend to throw up complications, in-somewhat missed the European Perhaps a less prejudiced stand of making it easier for bus, that is not in step with the fear is that Britain, "trailing" Britain to get into the Common rhythms of the new industrial her Commonwealth behind her. Market?"

will inhibit the European im-

"I feel infinitely more at home anywhere on the Continent than in Britain," said a representative Frenchman.

"When I cross the Channel I enter a country where people drive on the wrong side, where kilometres are called miles, kil-los become pounds and units of money utterly lack consistency."

Other animated objections are to unpredictable pub hours; the somnolent British suburbs help explain his intransigence Peter Ustinov, who said the with their huddled little houses, about negotiations on Berlin. "really solid thing about the cement statuary in the gardens If Britain enters Europe, de-entente cordiale is that it is and hideous wooden fences; the Gaulle's stature might dwindle based on jealousy and mutual highly expendable water cross Yet the general is said to have dislike."

Other papers say:

No 'old' grandmothers these days

In court here the other day a magistrate called a sixty-five-year-old woman "this old grandmother." Such courage commands our admiration, for today, we suspect, there are no "old" grandmothers, at least none who will acknowledge the adjective before the title.

A man may slap a friend on the back and greet him with: "How are you, old man?", but it would be a brave fellow indeed who greeted a woman friend with: "How are you, old woman?"

Join the army—on approval only

When the first of four militia decision they had had enough, survival courses opened in B.C., however, had different reasons. A few weeks ago, 2,000 men. Some of them got a job. Others signed up for $40 a week found the course too tough, and plus the opportunity to be said so.

In anybody's army, the loss of 7.5 per cent would be serious, and it is alarming to find weeks course, there were only 1,850 in the camp. The rest had quit.

In the history of going over the hill, many reasons have been given. The usual reasons behind AWOL are boredom, who are between jobs or men family worries and girl trouble. The men of the national sur-don't anticipate hard physical labor on a survival course.

Today, instead of feminine age we have the beautiful word "girl," which sweeps across the years from birth to death and takes no heed of time. "The girls are coming to the party," a phrase so delightful in its ambiguity that masculine gallantry is summoned to its best response.

A perpetual girlhood: this is feminine genius. Ever-young, and never old. And who would change it?

(Hamilton Spectator)

The task now seems to be for the survival course to find a way of surviving. The taxpayer has already seen thousands thrown away in pay alone for these temperamental temporary soldiers. Unless the record is better in three other such courses across the country, service chiefs should make some different rules for the acceptance of personnel. Would it be too much to ask an applicant if he intends to stay around for six weeks, even if survival training means some hard training means some hard work? The taxpayer finds it hard to survive, too.

to ensure genuine negotiations following a cease-fire.

The NATO ministers in Paris also worked for a united front on the Berlin crisis. France still opposing full-scale negotiations with Russia while the other 14 members favored them—in varying degrees. But the NATO nations were reported firmly united in their determination to fight if necessary to preserve their rights in West Berlin.

In the Communist world, a more serious split came to a head during the week when Moscow disclosed Sunday that it had withdrawn its diplomats and severed relations with Albania, the tiny Balkan state accused by Premier Khrushchev of clinging to Stalinist doctrine and trying to disrupt Communist unity. Moscow also withdrew a diplomat from Ottawa Sunday—but not willingly.

The assistant military attaché at the Soviet embassy, Lt.-Col. Anatoly F. Loginov, was expelled one day before the external affairs department disclosed that he had been caught red-handed receiving secret documents from a government employee who had tipped off the RCMP.

Election rumors were another popular topic of conversation in the capital as Prime Minister Diefenbaker paused in a busy travel schedule to announce that the fifth—and probably last—session of the 24th Parliament will convene Jan. 18. But the prime minister was keeping a tight secret the date of next year's vote.

Long-standing bitterness between India and Portugal over the latter's enclave of Goa on the west coast of India blew up into a major crisis as India massed troops on the border amid persistent reports that it may try to take over the territory.

While India blamed several incidents on the Portuguese and insisted that Portugal give up the territory, the administration in Goa returned the charges and began an evacuation of women and children.

Hong-Kong

Rifles of Canada, a Quebec regiment recently returned from garrison duties in Newfoundland, and the Winnipeg Grenadiers, recently returned from similar duties in Jamaica.

Gen. Crerar, in recommending these two battalions, said the duties they performed in Newfoundland and Jamaica were not "in many respects unlike the task which awaits the units to be sent to Hong Kong."

Col. Ralston approved Gen. Crerar's recommendation Oct. 9. English-born Brig. John Kelburne Lawson, 55, of London, Ont., was appointed commander of C force.

The royal commissioner into the Hong Kong expedition, Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada, found that the Royal Rifles and Winnipeg Grenadiers were "well trained" and "well provided with equipment."

The official history of the Canadian Army in the Second World War, written by Col. Charles P. Stacey, says: "The two battalions had clearly not reached that advanced state of training which one would wish troops to attain before being sent against the enemy."

Mr. Drew maintained that the two battalions were thrown into a probable theatre of war "with out even a fighting chance." Neither was trained for war partly because of "the shortage of weapons."

Bulk of the force sailed Oct. 27 in the British transport Awatea and the remainder in HMCS Prince Robert, a total of 96 officers and 1,879 other ranks. Fifty-one men, all but one from the Grenadiers, deserted before departure. Between 30 and 40 other men had to be forcibly restrained from breaking ship. They got down the gangplank but not through the embarkation shed.

C Force sailed without a vehicle of any kind.

Before the Awatea sailed, it was found there was room for approximately 20 vehicles, including two water-tanks. In the defence of Hong Kong, there was one element Canadian soldiers had to contend with.

The vehicles, however, didn't reach Vancouver until Oct. 28 and 29.

The royal commissioner found that the vehicles would have been in time had "more energy and initiative" been shown by the quartermaster - general's branch.

Mr. Drew said army headquarters never knew the force had sailed without vehicles until it was far out at sea. He taxed the defence department and headquarters staff with "shocking inefficiency."

All 212 vehicles intended for the force were loaded aboard the American freighter Don Jose which sailed from Vancouver Nov. 4.

In normal circumstances, the Don Jose would have reached Hong Kong Dec. 6. But she was diverted by U.S. naval authorities and reached Manila Dec. 12. The vehicles were used by U.S. forces fighting in the Philippines.

The Canadians had arrived at Hong Kong Nov. 16. They had only three weeks to get ready for war.

On Dec. 7, Japan struck at Pearl Harbor. About 8 a.m. Hong Kong time, six hours later, the first blow—an air attack on Kai Tak airfield—fell on the 410-square-mile Crown colony.

The possibility of relief of the garrison disappeared when the U.S. fleet was crippled at Pearl Harbor and the British battleships Prince of Wales and Repulse were sunk the next day in the South China Sea.

The Japanese, attacking from the Chinese mainland, quickly breached the main defences, the Gin Drinkers Line, and the six defending battalions then had to fight on 29-square-mile Hong Kong island. The Canadian force was split, the Royal Rifles going into the East Brigade under a British brigadier and the Winnipeg Grenadiers into West Brigade under Brig. Lawson.

The Japanese 38th Division paused for a few days to soften up the island defences with artillery fire. Bombers were also thrown in, which wasn't difficult because the British had no air force at all.

The Japanese began landing on the island about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 18. It took them only a week to force surrender of the colony.

Records of both the British and Japanese are incomplete and vague. The battle was broken into small but bloody skirmishes all over the hilly island.

About 2:30 a.m. Dec. 19, Brig. Lawson ordered A Company of the Grenadiers to clear on the island about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 18. It took them only a week to force surrender of the colony.

At this time of world-wide concern with nuclear phenomena, special interest attaches to the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in the Christian Science churches this Sunday: "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" Typical of the Scriptural selections, which have been chosen to reaffirm that God is the supreme Author of the entire creation, will be this verse from Psalms: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork." Also pointing up the omnipotent power of God will be correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy which include: "God is the divine Principle of all that represents Him and of all that really exists."

For and about Women

Here's how to slim upper arm to look your best

IF YOU WANT to wear a sleeveless dress on New Year's Eve, now's the time to get that upper arm in shape. Start (left) by holding beauty stretch behind back. Pull up and out for a count of 30. Next, make fists, bend elbows with fists near shoulders.

ALICIA HART

There's an excitement about New Year's Eve that brings out in every woman the desire to look her very best.

She'll have her hair beautifully styled, choose her prettiest evening costume, and be sure that her make-up is carefully applied.

Yet, in a sleeveless dress, she won't look her best if her upper arms are flabby. If you have this problem, you needn't give up the idea of wearing a sleeveless gown. There's still time to firm the upper arms with a few carefully chosen exercises.

For one such, you can use a beauty stretch and hold your hands behind your back. Pull up and out, keeping a perfect posture. Pull, relax, pull, relax, for the count of 30.

This exercise can also be done with the stretch rope held out in front.

Here's another arm exercise that will help: Stand straight and bend your elbows, making fists near your shoulders. Press the inner-upper arms towards the body and hold this position for a moment, then release. Don't bring down your arms before you do it the next time.

To firm both the upper arms and back, here is an exercise that is both effective and easy to do. Stand with your elbows bent and put your fingertips to your shoulders. Rotate your elbows in a circular movement.

All arm exercises should be done daily — no cheating — and about 30 times each.

When you exercise, be sure you wear something that is not tight or confining. A leotard, if you have one, a bathing suit, or some old shorts and bra will be perfect attire.

None of the above exercises are difficult to do. And there's sufficient time before the gala event to trim down heavy upper arms. You will be delighted with the results if you adhere to a daily exercise schedule.

There's no point in giving up a "dream" dress because of a figure flaw that you can correct with just a little perseverance and a few minutes of your time each day.

Hold one moment and release but don't put arms down (center). Do this daily for count of 30. If you're faithful about exercise, this is the way your upper arm should look (right) on New Year's Eve.

Whether a man's hobby is photography or hunting or fishing or cabinet making, he always needs something.

Ruth Millett

Bless man with hobby when Christmas shopping

This is the time of year when a woman is mighty thankful for a man's hobbies.

Because this is Christmas list-making time—and the man with a hobby or two is never a man who has "everything."

Whether a man's hobby is photography or hunting or fishing or cabinet making, he always needs something.

Every year when the gift catalogues come out there are dozens of new items listed for the man with a hobby or for the man with a hobby.

So the man who "had everything" after he opened his Christmas packages just a year ago is sure to be missing something this year—for hobbies are big business and hobby equipment is as ever-changing and as quickly obsolete as any other kind of equipment.

There is always a newer and better power tool, a more fully automatic camera, a better spinning reel, more luxurious camping equipment, or a new "must" for a man with a boat.

The women who have it tough this time of year are the women whose men are hobbyless. It's their own fault if year after year those men come up with shirts, ties, belts, wallets, and shaving equipment. What else can you give a man without a hobby?

So women may fuss and fume from time to time about the time and money a husband spends on his hobbies—but not when Christmas draws near.

Then she is thankful for every one of his hobbies. For the man with hobbies is as easy to find a gift for as a kid who still believes in Santa Claus. Neither ever reaches the stage of having "everything."

CURLING IN SPOTLIGHT THIS WEEKEND

For the first time in the history of curling, Sherbrooke and Lennoxville Curling Clubs will be the sites for the Seniors Competition sponsored by the Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club. This tourney is open to curlers over 60 years of age and sixteen clubs are taking part in the event.

The competitors opened their fight for the title yesterday afternoon with matches slated today and the finals tonight at the Sherbrooke Curling Club at 8.00. There should be some good curling witnessed as the majority of the skips are no beginners in the game and they know all the angles and how to play them.

The Province is divided into four districts with the Townships in district No. 3. The only district not represented is number 4, which comprises St. Maurice Valley and Quebec City. The Branch, under the circumstances, allowed the local group to enter five rinks to complete the draw.

The highlight of the event will be the presentation of honorary life memberships in the branch to Bob McMurray of Lennoxville and Hubert Johnston of Sherbrooke. These are well-deserved as both curlers have done a lot for the game in the Townships.

The finals in the main and consolation sections will be staged in Sherbrooke and following that President Nixon will present the trophy and medals to the winning rinks.

The Lennoxville Curling Club will defend the Quebec Challenge Cup this evening against Sutton just to make it a full weekend. This is the second time this season Lennoxville has defended the Cup. In their first defense they downed Lennoxville. So from the look of things it will be a busy weekend for curling enthusiasts.

Red Storey, former National Hockey League referee and one of Canada's better known sports figures, has agreed to officiate at the annual Pee Wee Hockey Tournament in Quebec City. The tourney is scheduled from Feb. 24 to March 3.

Red's officiating will certainly add greatly to the success of the '62 meet and President Bolduc pulled off a great move in obtaining his services. Red will add plenty of extra color to the tournament which draws youngsters from all Canada and United States. Last year some 52,672 took part in the week-long event with 16,400 paying to see the final at the Coliseum.

This is a great tournament and we had the opportunity of attending two years ago. It is well run and without a doubt one of the greatest events bringing together kids of all denominations and it is great to see the youngsters mixing although they don't speak the same language. It is certainly a great community effort and the organizers deserve plenty of credit.

It is easy to understand why Roy Hamey, general manager of the New York Yankees, stated that it would cost them close to $800,000 in salaries for the coming season. They just signed Mickey Mantle at a reported $82,000 and Maris is holding out for $75,000 but may settle for $60,000. So when the rest of the club signs it will be pretty close to the reported figure.

Dan "Doc" Avery, chairman of the Mass. State Boxing Commission and president of the International Boxing Association, from Boston is interested in getting Burke Emery to fight down around his part of the country. He figures Emery could do very well around Beantown and we agree with him. Burke hurt his arm the last time out but should be ready to go soon.

The Beavers certainly got walloped Thursday evening when they were run over by the Rockets of Drummondville 9-3. The locals looked good for the first period but then they commenced to slip and we think Coach Dube was very happy when he heard the final siren sound.

We never saw a team fall apart so fast as the Beavers. It didn't matter what they did, or who did it, they just couldn't click. It is hard to understand how seasoned players can commit such blunders, such as passing across the front of their own net. This cost the Beavers three goals.

It was by far the worst game we have seen the Beavers play. The defense was doing everything wrong and as for hitting, they certainly left a lot to be desired. It seems today that all they can do is run someone into the boards and if you call that body-checking then the art has certainly slipped over the years.

It isn't very often a complete team, comes up with a bum game but Thursday it was just that. Even Andy Pratte pulled a few bad ones. Now it is over let's look to the future and hope that the Beavers can come up to the standard set earlier in the season.

As for the fans tossing things on the ice we wonder if they realize how dangerous this is. The one certain way to cure these offenders is to escort them out of the rink and to the Police station.

Punch Imlach may be right in his latest predictions but he is on thin ice, other coaches silent

By JACK SULLIVAN

It's refreshing to note that Pudge Imlach has regained his shut. Not only has he done that, vocal chords and is running the Bruins' dressing-room risk of being thrown out of the door has been barred to news-coaches' union of the National pro men after practices and Hockey League for publicity games.

The post-mortems must be a little more than a little bit of fun when a team can win only five games and the four in its first 28 outings.

No one really expects any great pronouncements from Sig Abel of Detroit. The Blake of Montreal Canadiens and rookie coach, Doug Harvey of New York Rangers. So, it is up to Punch to carry the ball and he's doing a fine job.

One could hardly get the time of day from the Toronto Leaf coach last year, but just the other day Toronto hockey writers gathered around after a Cup chase in the semi-finals and then had an easy time with Detroit Red Wings in the final round to take the silverware. So far this season, the Hawks have won only eight of their 27 starts.

KEEPS HIS PROMISE Watson? Well, his tongue practically propelled him out of the league a couple of years ago when he was coaching New York Rangers. He returned this year with Boston Bruins, and right out of it.

Beavers may have new men in uniform Sunday

Three new players to be on hand for workout today and may sign, locals searching for new goalie as well

Sherbrooke Beavers will possibly have three new players in the lineup Sunday when they meet the league-leading Granby Vics at the local Arena.

Claude Genereux, left-wing, Louis Arpin, right-wing, and Claude Cardin a centre will play as a line. They will arrive in Sherbrooke today and will practice with the locals this afternoon. Coach Dube will try to make arrangements with the three players and sign them for Sunday's game.

Dube says that a new goalie may also be in the nets to "give Andy Pratte a rest. This will not be known for sure until Sunday afternoon.

The Beavers are definitely in need of a victory, after losing 9-3 to the Rockets Thursday. The local team will have a hard time to "come up" from this defeat but Coach Dube is hoping for a good fight.

The Rockets on the other hand are heavy favorites to dispose of the last place Olympics but Montreal can't be counted out. They have come up with victories over all the teams in the league and Latreille, a new player, who just signed with the team from the Metropolis, and who worked out with the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, should definitely add some needed strength to the red sweater team from Montreal.

Granby, who are setting a strong pace while leading the league, have not lost a game to the Beavers yet this year. They looked impressive in their last win over the locals and will carry an edge when they step onto the ice at the Sherbrooke Arena Sunday afternoon.

Bert Bourassa, is back with the locals and Roger Picard, the Montreal policeman, is with the Beavers on a full time basis now which will surely help the slumping locals. However, all in all, some good action should be enjoyed in both games.

St. Pat's Old Boys basketball team won their third straight game without a defeat Thursday evening as they edged a fast Lennoxville Grads team 54-53 in a regularly scheduled game in the ETABA.

This sets the green and white team solidly in third place as they have only played three games to date. Monday evening will be the real test for the Old Boys as they will face the first-place Independents.

In Thursday's fixture St. Pat's led throughout most of the game. However in the last eight minutes of the encounter Lennoxville came to life and tied the game at 53-53. St. Pat's showed very exact shooting from far out, however the visitors showed some very dazzling shooting under the basket.

High scorer of the game was Cowansville's Paul Jordon cops District of Bedford basketball scoring honors; Knowlton first COWANSVILLE — (Special) — Paul Jordon of Cowansville High School won the District of Bedford Interscholastic Senior Basketball League scoring championship for the 1961 season, with a total of 143 points, 17.9 point per game average.

Jordon after three fine intermediate seasons, jumped to the tougher senior level without any trouble. Scoring mostly on drives and an accurate jump shot, Jordon hit for his personal high 25 points in an 85-24 Cowansville victory over Waterloo High.

Teammates Gary Farr and Art Fausher of Sutton battled for second spot with Farr finally edging out Fausher 127-126.

Knowlton, which took top honors in the league standings, had Don Brown high in the scoring column. Brown's 113 points gave him sixth place in the league. Rather than having one really high scorer Knowlton had a well balanced team, with such stars as Brown, Bob Lemaire, Butch Staples, Bobby Hume, Ken Flewelling and Jeff Worden. Knowlton will be a hard team to beat when they defend the provincial title they won last spring.

Other players who had fine seasons were Garth Durrell and Connie Hadlock of Knowlton, Roy Sherrer of Cowansville and Teddy Rutter of Sutton, while D. Perkins was the only bright spot in an otherwise dismal season for Waterloo High. Norm Labreque was the best of a weak Granby entry.

From all reports Knowlton, Sutton and Cowansville plan to represent the District of Bedford League in the H-I-Y tournament to be held in the Sherbrooke High School gym in late January.

The Mets, who begin their National League baseball career next season, acquired Walls from Philadelphia for $125,000 in October.

Roger Maris voted male athlete of year by AP, Paul Hornung of Packers second, mighty pleased with award

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (CP) — Baseball's home run king Roger Maris, normally reticent and unemotional, was deeply moved Friday when told he had been named The Associated Press' male athlete of the year for 1961.

"It's got to mean a lot to me when they rank you ahead of every athlete in the world," he said. "There are some mighty good ones out there."

The New York Yankee slugger, who hit 61 homers, a record for one season, was the overwhelming choice in the voting by 253 sports writers in the annual AP poll.

Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers, the National Football League's leading scorer, was second. He was followed by Warren Spahn, veteran left-hander of the Milwaukee Braves.

The Yankee right fielder was to leave for his Raytown, Mo., home Friday after failing to reach a salary agreement with general manager Roy Hamey. He is believed to be asking for $65,000, an increase of $27,500 over last year.

SETS NO GOALS "I've set no goals for next season," he said, "except that I'd like to get off to a better start. I couldn't do anything right in the first few games last spring."

For finishing on top in the AP poll, Maris will receive the Fraternity Order of the Eagles — Frederick C. Miller trophy at a dinner in Milwaukee, Jan. 4. He is the first baseball player to win the trophy since Ted Williams in 1957. It was won last year by Rater Johnson, the Olympic decathlon champion and world record holder.

Hornung led Green Bay to its second consecutive Western Conference title in the NFL. He is a cinch to win his third straight scoring championship.

Spahn paced the National League in earned run average with 3.09 and complete games, 21. He won 21 games, including the only no-hitter of the major league season, while lifting his lifetime victory total to 309.

Bob McMurray honored by Branch

"It is an honor for me as a member in the Branch. Hugh Brown, president of the Canadian Branch of the Royal Montreal Caledonia Curling Club, thanked members of the Branch, past presidents of the club and guests for attending the presentation. Mr. Brown then called on Mayor Ernie Gibeau who expressed his words of welcome and at the same time paid particular praise to Bob McMurray.

President Nixon made a presentation of a scroll and medal to Bob McMurray for his great work in curling circles. He was the first president of the Lennoxville Club and has done great work during his 53 years as a curler. He is the 81st person to be given a life honorary membership in the Branch.

Following the presentation Mr. McMurray thanked President Nixon and the Branch for their special honor in making him a life member and those who helped in the event. Mr. McMurray stated that he would continue in the role of making the great game it is.

Stan Hamilton, Branch vice-president of the district, extended his words of thanks and praise to Mr. McMurray for his great work. Following the presentation the third round of the Seniors Competition took place. Today the rinks will continue with the finals this evening in Sherbrooke at 8.00.

Hubert Johnston of Sherbrooke will be honored this evening and will be presented with a life membership in the Branch by President Albert Nixon.

Slap shot was discovered by error, says King Clancy as teams prepare for weekend, Canucks meet Wings

The slap shot, a muscular manoeuvre of which goaltenders' nightmares are made, may have been spawned in error. King Clancy, assistant general manager of the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs, claims he was in at the birth — and again at the death when use of the controversial weapon subsided for a time.

Leafs were practising for the arrival of New York Rangers who perform here Saturday when Clancy spoke his piece on the slap shot. General manager Punch Imlach has said Leafs' Tim Horton has the hottest shot in the league — if not the most accurate — and estimates the puck travels 100 miles an hour when Tim slaps at it.

"It happened at a team practice," Clancy said. "I had gone in with big Charlie Conacher trailing."

"I accidentally lost the puck off my stick, kept going in on the defence, Charlie, steaming up, slapped at the puck and whistled it in behind Lorne Chabot."

Charlie and Clancy were so impressed they decided to try out the shot against Boston in the next game. The idea was that Clancy was to crash the defencemen aside and "Charlie would slap the puck."

They gave up on it after one game. Charlie, with one of the hardest shots in the league, was just able to catch Clancy in the slack of the pants.

Leafs, three points off Montreal, will be firing his slap shot from the blue line with his fellow defencemen Allan Stanley handling the close-in work.

Stanley paused in his practice to speak on reports he is going down hill at 35.

"A fellow named Lynn Patrick (general manager of Boston Bruins) made the same mistake in September of 1958," Stanley said. "He thought I was all washed up — too slow for the National Hockey League — and traded me to Toronto for Jim Morrison."

Stanley was so slow he managed to make the second NHL all-star list in 1959-60 and again the following year.

One of the top attractions in the NHL right now — goalie Terry Sawchuk — won't be in action before Sunday. Terry, the experienced half of the Detroit double-a-action goaltending system, got his 87th shutout in 12 seasons Thursday night when Red Wings polished off Bruins 5-0.

Sawchuk needs only eight more shutouts to break one of the oldest records in the NHL book.
