

THERE IS NO JOY WITHOUT ITS PAIN

A SONG

Sung by

M^{rs} Seguin

IN THE ROMANTIC OPERA

LILI, OR THE SWITZER'S BRIDE

Written by

J. T. S. Sullivan

COMPOSED BY

CH. JARVIS.

25 Cts. net

PHILADELPHIA

Published by A. FLOT 196 Chestnut St

* THERE IS NO JOY WITHOUT ITS STING.

Words by J.T.S. Sullivan.

Music by C. JARVIS.

Più allegretto.

PIANO. p

There is no joy with-pp dolciss. ritard. pp tempo.

out its sting, No bliss in life with-out its gloom; No pleasures that this.

* The original key is C.

world can bring, But fades with in the hour they bloom. A cru - el fate a - waits the heart, That lives and hopes on love a - lone: One dim

sweet embrace, then doom'd to part, And part - ed, all its joys are gone! Yet hope will restore, Yes, The promise once more, The heart will an - - - swer dolce.

There is no joy.

to its smile. Yet hope will restore, Yes, The promise once more, The heart will an - - - swer to its smile.

dolce. p ff

2

Ah, could we but for ever own
 The bliss we sometimes steal from fate,
 And seize it ere its joys are flown—
 Alas! we know their worth too late!
 Yet will I not so soon despair,
 He loves me, and his heart is mine!
 His vow still lingers on the air,
 That heard him whisper: "I am thine!"
 Fond memories repay, yes, when he is away,
 With hope the weary heart beguile.

There is no joy.

