FELT MISERABLE ALL THE TIME

Headaches and Tiredness Ended by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Some people suffer for years with Headaches, without ever trying to find out what is the CAUSE of the pain. They get all run-down, and seem to think this weak, depressed feeling is the result of the headaches. As a matter of fact, chronic Headaches are the result of the bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" stops headaches because it regulates the bowels, kidneys and skin—free the body of waste matter which poisons the blood—and thus keeps the blood pure and rich.

As Mrs. Michael Coulis, of Killaloe, Ont., writes:—I used to feel tired out and run-down and had severe Headaches. After using "Fruit-a-tives" the headaches and tiredness quickly disappeared and for two years now I have been in the best of health. And you? Do you suffer? Get well—take "Fruit-a-tives." 25c. and 50c. a box—at dealers everywhere.

It is important that one should select the best of friends and companions, for we are like the chameleon, an animal that takes on the color of its surroundings. The examples of others can be our inspiration, and none of us are too obscure or humble for our example, either for good or evil, to be reflected in our companions. It is our responsibility to always live up to the best in ourselves. Those who obey the laws of health and live in a clean, upright manner will induce others to do likewise.

Many people waste their opportunities day after day, hoping that in some far distant future they will be rewarded for the misery they are experiencing now. The important truth is to remember that now is the only time in which we will

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to Health and Diet Will be Answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclose Stamped Addressed Envelope For Reply. 1926 McCoy Health Service, Los Angeles, Cal.

NOW IS THE TIME

Human beings are social creatures. An individual is only a cell in the great organism of society. Each of us is dependent upon the other. This fact has been recognized by intelligent people everywhere since the origin of the first government. It underlies every system of ethics. We cannot obtain a full measure of life's happiness until we realize that we benefit ourselves best when we help others most. We rise or fall with those with whom we associate ourselves.

The hermit who withdraws himself from society does not have the opportunities to do good.

Many years ago Confucius stated a negative law of ethics: "You should not do unto others as you would not have others do unto you." This law has been the foundation of every subsequent law for human betterment. This was afterwards even more beautifully expressed in the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." If each of us obeyed this law to its fullest extent, we would need no others.

We must understand that in order to obtain the greatest value from life we cannot waste it on passing whims and appetites. We can't be successful members of society or enjoy the society of others to the fullest extent unless we play our own part well in the great drama of life. He who is wasteful of his own powers or self improvement, and is careless of those personal habits which destroy health and character, not only injures himself but injures society as well.

It was once humorously stated that the time might come when we would place our criminals in hospitals to be cured and our sick people in jail for neglecting their duties. This will hardly be necessary, because a sick person certainly suffers enough. Nature has devised the punishment for the neglect of natural laws. The presence of sickness all about is an indication of how ignorant the great masses of humanity are concerning the simplest rules of health.

The consequences of destructive actions are not always immediately apparent. It is in our infancy and youth that the seeds of either disease or of success are sown, and in our later years the crop is harvested.

It is important that one should select the best of friends and companions, for we are like the chameleon, an animal that takes on the color of its surroundings. The examples of others can be our inspiration, and none of us are too obscure or humble for our example, either for good or evil, to be reflected in our companions. It is our responsibility to always live up to the best in ourselves. Those who obey the laws of health and live in a clean, upright manner will induce others to do likewise.

YESTERDAY'S SERVICES IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

"The Battle for Bread" was the subject of the practical sermon delivered by Rev. Joseph Corder at the morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday.

"The seat of war today," the preacher said, "is not in South America, but on the Clyde in Scotland, on the Thames and the Mersey in England, on Queen's Island in Belfast, on the Hudson in the U. S. A., in Baltimore, in Montreal, in Sherbrooke, and other cities on this continent."

"The great conflict today is in congested districts," the minister continued, "in business and commercial centres, in the homes of the poor, and in slumdom; where life grinds cruel and hard. For six thousand years the conflict has been going on—the conflict for bread. The burning question is: 'How shall I support my family?'"

The preacher said that there were three things to be said on the subject. First, that winged caterers came to Elijah, direct from God; He had commanded the ravens to feed him. The ravens did not come as a mere coincidence. Second, the ravens did not allow Elijah to hoard up a surplus. They brought only enough for a meal at a time. Here the preacher added: "The great fret of the world is that we want a surplus; we want the ravens to bring enough for fifty years. There are men in this city who have more faith in the banks of the Dominion than they have in the Bank of Heaven; there are many who cannot be satisfied with the black raven. They must have the golden eagle."

In concluding his sermon the preacher drew attention to the third fact relative to the subject, that relief came to Elijah in a most unexpected way, and from an unexpected source, and it is so with help sent from God.

The solo, "Beside The Still Waters," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, and in the evening the choir sang, "Some Songs Of The Cross." The service was of a pre-Easter character.

SERVICES AT TRINITY UNITED CHURCH YESTERDAY

The morning service in Trinity United Church yesterday was largely given up to the quarterly administration of the Lord's Supper, the sermon being very brief and of a pre-communion type. Rev. Dr. W. S. Lennon's subject was "Two Memorials," the address dealing largely with the commendation by Jesus of the deed of Mary, the sister of Lazarus, in breaking the alabaster box of ointment to anoint Jesus "for the burial." During the service the choir sang the chorus, "The King's Business."

In the afternoon the Sunday School met under the superintendency of Mr. Walter Mutchler. The school has begun its preparation for a special Easter Sunday session. The Trinity Brotherhood met also at 2.30 p.m., and studied a portion of the chapter on "The Rules of the Game," in Prof. Ross' "Sin and Society." The closing study in this series will be held next Sunday afternoon.

In the evening another almost all-choral service was held. Popular and familiar hymns were sung from the lantern screen, and the choir members contributed a number of special items, including several choruses (with solo parts by Mrs. Parsons and Miss Wheeler), and a quartette. Dr. Lennon gave a brief sermon under the title, "Lessons from a forgotten water-pot," the sermon growing out of one of the questions handed in at a former evening service in answer to a request for such.

MR. REDVERS W. HYNDMAN PASSED AWAY

The death occurred at Westminster Hospital, London, Ont., on Saturday of Mr. Redvers W. Hyndman, only son of Mrs. D. W. Hyndman, who was thirty years of age, went overseas with the McGill Battery during the war, and after considerable active service was returned home due to illness. Although he had always suffered since his return, it was only during the past few days that his condition became serious, and the end came quite suddenly.

He is survived by his mother and five sisters, Mrs. Aitken, of London, Mrs. M. Long, and the Misses Mable, Clara and Kathleen Hyndman, of Sherbrooke, besides many more distant relatives.

Nine times out of ten, the man who keeps cool gets the best of a business deal. The strain of modern business life makes heavy demands on the nerves. The man who loses his nerve also loses his judgment.

Many successful business men use Wrigley's regularly. The act of chewing, they find, has a soothing effect. The healthful cleansing action of Wrigley's refreshes the mouth—gently stimulates the flow of natural juices—steadies the nerves.

Apart from its soothing effect on the nerves, Wrigley's is particularly beneficial after eating, drinking or smoking. It cleans the teeth, firms the gums, sweetens the breath—makes the mouth clean and healthy.

Use Wrigley's—it pays big dividends on a small investment.

the largest and most powerful guarantee that any one could think of or imagine."

The Pope said that there are other guarantees which he could not consider or accept such as a juridical guarantee, "I think the Holy See has not one enemy but only sons and brothers."

"I have believed and believe in the perfect loyalty and full good faith of those who have shown themselves ready and desirous of treating with me."

The Pontiff said that one of the outstanding impressions he had received from the avalanche of messages were the sentiment of those in different countries who for many years had wished to consecrate themselves to the defence of the Holy See.

"I wish that the diplomatic corps would say to those brave people that I shall never forget them and assure them that the Pope is not ungrateful and has prayed and said masses for all. Another sentiment which struck me profoundly has been the assurance from many that they have begun again to make their Easter duties and be reconciled to the Church."

Government's proposals even before he had seen them. "I see that at last the Government is waking up to the scandal of the slums and is going to the country with the great problem of slum clearance. It is rather late, for the Government will not have a chance. What is the problem? If you pulled these slums down you would only build others, because it is a problem of overcrowding," and then Lloyd George put forward his own scheme, which he artfully linked with his unemployment remedies.

"You must cut avenues right through to the open air—to the country where people will have sunshine and violet rays. Without that you will never deal with the slums."

To that Neville Chamberlain has replied that Lloyd George has not studied the slum programme, but if the Government has a plan, he is quite certain it is wrong. What emerges from rival politicians' statements and Chamberlain's in particular is all that three parties are going to try to garner votes by tackling the slum problem. And the Tories being a position not merely to promise but to act, are going to tackle the problem at once.

TEMPERATURE TWENTY-SIX BELOW ZERO

Experimental Farm, Lennoxville, Reports that Mercury Was Hovering Well Below the Twenties This Morning—Big Change from Last Week.

After having nearly been put out of the running last week by Queen Spring, Old King Winter showed that he has still a few kicks left by sending the thermometer down to twenty-six below zero last night, and forcing residents of Sherbrooke and district to give up all thoughts of lighter clothes for a few days at least.

Winter's great offensive opened up last week with a snowstorm which covered up the practically bare streets, followed by a lowering of temperature. On Saturday the maximum temperature was seven degrees and, during the evening, the minimum reached ten below. The thermometer kept on its downward course, with the result that the Experimental Station at Lennoxville reported that during the early hours of today the mercury struck twenty-six below and then gradually crept up, the temperature at seven o'clock being twenty below, while later in the day a warm sun drove the mercury still higher.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD BY BAPTISTS

Fifty-Seventh Anniversary of Local Church Observed by Special Services and Meetings—Toronto Pastor Was Special Preacher.

Yesterday the Baptist Church of this city celebrated its fifty-seventh anniversary with morning and evening services. At the morning service the choir rendered "The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn," and the pastor, Rev. R. M. Simmons, B.A., B.D., took for his text, "At the foot of the Rainbow," basing it on Exod. 16, 2, 3, 9, 10, and Rev. 4, 6.

The pastor said in part: "We have been caught in the great problem of the twofold nature of man; compounded of heaven and earth. Ours is a lifelong struggle between the desire for the flesh pots of Egypt and the longing for the pot of heavenly gold at the foot of the rainbow of hope ever promise with which the eternal has irradiated our experience. Freedom brings its responsibilities and exacting demands and we cast wistful eyes back to the days of childhood's carelessness, and of youth's simple trust and faith. As Christians we are sometimes inclined to flee the challenge of the Kingdom and the burden of the world's pain and sin on our sensitized consciences. We must remember the freedom into which we have been called, know it to be immensely worthwhile and then, carry on."

"But freedom is not an end in itself; it is the open road which stretches on to a future goal—the ideal of the Kingdom of God progressively realized in individual and social experience, represented in the Drama of the Ages set forth in the Scriptures. This goal merges into another, that of Eternal Life experienced now, and to be consummated beyond the veil of death again in individual and social relations. It is this hope and goal which can keep us to our course and command our richest energies and sacrifices. The most tragic element in the experience of the Hebrews was that they had forgotten God. Their gaze is directed and they behold the Radiance of the Eternal. To forget God is the end of life; it presents to us a pressing problem in these days of materialistic thought and endeavor. Of late years there has been the cry 'Back to Jesus' to discover God in Him. Today the cry comes ringing out 'Back to God.' He is the Eternal One, creative, ever free, to do some new thing. He is the secret of life and of wonderful achievement."

Evening Service.

There was a large congregation present for the evening service, at which the special preacher was Rev. H. E. Wintermute, B.A., B.Th., who came from Toronto to take part in the anniversary service. The pastor of the city church, Rev. R. M. Simmons, B.A., B.D., conducted the opening service, and a solo, "After" (Arthur Meale) was sung by Mrs. A. E. Salter, contralto.

Mr. Simmons introduced the visiting minister, who expressed his pleasure in being present on such an occasion as the fifty-seventh anniversary of the church, and spoke of the influence a devoted and progressive congregation had in the religious life of a city.

A stirring message was delivered through the text, which the preacher explained was the most contradictory verse in the Bible; namely, "He saved others; Himself He cannot save."

"In this verse," the preacher explained, "we find a false insinuation, a sublime tribute to the One who must have won many times for the stinging remarks made about Him. He mingled with men and women in their social life, yet they often scorned Him. He taunted Him—how the soul of Jesus must have suffered!"

The preacher drew attention to the fact that Jesus had rendered unto Caesar the homage and respect due him as ruler on earth, and here pictured the scene in Pilate's court where the "quietest insult and fairest compliment" were paid the Saviour in the words of the text.

The congregation was reminded of Pilate's words, "I find no fault in Him," of Pilate's wife's statement, "He is a just man," and continued: "Down through the ages we have been searching for the right words to express the true personality of Christ, but all compliments all tributes fail in the light of the words, 'He saved others.'"

The false accusation, "Himself He cannot save" was taken up by Rev. Mr. Wintermute, regarding which he said: "Perhaps if He had left unsaid some of His straightforward remarks, perhaps if He had polished off His words, He could have saved Himself, but that was not his work here. His destiny was explained in His statement: 'No man taketh my life, I lay it down myself.'"

And this was done, the preacher said in conclusion, because of His love for Man that held Him to the Cross. "Thanks be to God that He did not save Himself; that He have Himself for us."

This afternoon the pastors and elders of the Baptist Churches in the Eastern Townships are holding a session, when the visiting clergyman will be present, and a supper will be given in the church hall, after which the Rev. Mr. Wintermute will give his lecture "Ramblings Through South America," dealing with various phases of life, culture and thought in regard to South America.

The Everona Group of C.G.I.T. of Plymouth United Church took charge of the Sunday School year-end party on Saturday afternoon. The president, Miss Gertrude Cochran, presided, and Miss Isabel Morrill read the scripture lesson. A beautiful hymn, "Ivory Palaces," was sung by the group, and was much enjoyed by all present. Much credit is due Miss Hope MacLagan, leader of the group, for the manner in which the girls conducted the service. Mr. T. Cohoon, superintendent of the school, expressed much pleasure in welcoming and introducing to the school Mr. Charles Rose, who is taking charge of a large class of boys in the Sunday School.

The Junior Girls' Club of St. Paul's Mission held its regular meeting on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. Robinson, McManis street, with a good attendance of members. The meeting was opened by Rhoda Oak, and business routine followed, during which it was decided to hold an Easter sale and tea in the Mission Hall on Saturday, April 20. After the business meeting Rev. Mr. Cheverton spoke to the members, expressing his pleasure that so many were willing and eager to form a junior branch of the W.A. in connection with St. Paul's Mission. He also welcomed Miss Twose, from St. Peter's W.A., who had consented to be present for the occasion. Miss Twose addressed the meeting in a clear and happy manner explaining the wonderful work accomplished by the W.A. in mission fields, and what a privilege it was to belong to such an organization. Following her address the branch was organized, with Mrs. S. Robinson as superintendent of the junior branch of the W.A. of St. Paul's Mission. Mrs. Robinson thanked Miss Twose for her presence and interesting talk. It was decided to hold joint meetings of the Junior Girls' Club and the Junior W.A. for the present. The meeting closed with the W.A. prayer, and tea was served by the hostesses, Alberta Cotterell and Beatrice Leith, assisted by Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Cotterell. MODEL AIR CRAFT CLUB

On Saturday night the interest at the 53rd Armory was very tense as the members of the Model Air Craft Club entered in competition for the Redwing plane presented by Mr. C. Wadsworth for the best flight of the evening. In all three flights with an average of 33.1-4 Fred Hicks getting the best flight with 26 seconds, Jack Nelson coming a good second with 22.1-2 seconds, and A. Sundborg third with 22 seconds. Later on in the evening Hicks improved his flight to 40 seconds.

For the February flight given by the International Airways, Stanley Loughheed was winner in twelve flights with an average of 33.1-4. Fred Hicks was the winner in the junior section with 12 flights with an average of 19 seconds.

Pilot Fleming has offered a pair of silver wings, indicative of flying merit, to the boy who gets the best flight on March 16th, and this should cause a still greater interest.

In the March flights to date Loughheed and Hicks are running neck and neck for the free flight in the senior division, while in the junior division the contest is fairly even between E. Sundborg, A. Sundborg, Freddy Palmer, Billy Johnston and Jack Nelson.

REV. DR. READ CONTINUED LENTEN SERMONS

Yesterday at Plymouth United Church Dr. Elery Read continued the series of Lenten sermons at both services. In the morning he dealt with the value of the Bible in our religious life. Speaking from St. Paul's admonition to Timothy, "Every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete furnished unto every good work."

(2 Tim. 3:16, 17). He pointed out that the Scriptures to which the Apostle referred were those of the Old Testament. From these the young evangelist was to derive that profit which should fit him for his great task. There were people today who doubted the value of the Old Testament, or at least depreciated its value, for the Christian, but it was only necessary to remind them that Christ Himself used it in His experience and teaching. When He passed through the temptation in the wilderness He repulsed the tempter with scriptural answers taken in every case from the Book of Deuteronomy. It must be admitted that all of the Old Testament is by no means of equal value, but to cease to use it on that account would be to derive oneself of a source of information and inspiration that had been tested and approved by Christian in all ages. Through it we learned of God's progressive revelation to mankind, and man's gradual apprehension of God until we behold Him revealed in Christ Jesus.

In closing, Dr. Read referred to the necessity of knowing one's Bible in order that one may become a worker in the Kingdom of God, and appealed to those present to study the Bible for their own profit and the advancement of the cause of Christ.

The choir sang Rachmaninoff's anthem "Blessing and Glory." At the evening service the subject of the sermon was "Fear and Superstition." Taking his text from Isaiah 8:19, Dr. Read showed that times of national peril were frequently accompanied by a recrudescence of superstition. When a nation was panic-stricken many of the people sought relief from their fears by consulting those who were supposed to be possessed of occult powers. The late war had been accompanied by this feature of superstition. This was a reversal to primitive religion, which was largely made up of superstition. The history of religion was a record of the struggle men made to break away from their superstitions, but too often they had failed to do this. In the Christian church today superstitions survived largely as a compromise with the paganism, which had refused the full revelation of Christ.

The preacher dealt with many of the superstitions that we had failed to shake off, notwithstanding our supposed enlightenment, all of which, he said, were survival of the fear element in life. In conclusion he advised his congregation to leave that sort of thing behind them and learn to live the life of perfect trust in God as their Heavenly Father and Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior.

The choir gave a fine rendering of Shelley's hymn-anthem, "Hark, Hark, My Soul" with contralto solo by Mrs. George Ogston, and soprano obligato, by Mrs. Alberta Adams. The special soloist was Miss Della Wilkie, who gave a helpful and devotional interpretation of Mary Turner Salter's composition "Gethsemane."

"I hear you lost all your money in America."

"Yes, I was fined for being drunk. It took half my fortune to get drunk and the other half to pay the fine.—Prague Paper.

"How does she keep her hands so LOVELY?"

"Those few whispered words made me flush with pleasure."

"—the most beautiful hands, yet she does all her own work—"

"As I looked up from pouring tea, I realized with a thrill they were talking about me! I felt such a happy glow of pride . . . for my hands USED to be my despair!"

"Now I find it easy to have soft, pretty hands, in spite of dishes to do three times a day. I discovered that by using Lux for all my dishwashing, my hands never became rough or red or chapped-looking. With Lux, they were even WHITER and softer after washing dishes than before!"

STANSTEAD AND BOSTON DOWNED DION AND RIOUX RANGERS IN A PLAYED A DRAW FAST CONTEST

First Contest for Dominion Life Trophy at Stanstead on Saturday Resulted in One-All Count—Both Teams Put Up Good Fight—Return Game at Arena Here Wednesday Evening at 7 O'Clock.

STANSTEAD, March 11.—The first game for the Dominion Life Assurance Company trophy which was played here on Saturday night between the Stanstead Olympics and Dion and Rioux, winners of the Sherbrooke Industrial Hockey League, ended in a three to three draw after sixty minutes of one of the fastest and cleanest games seen in Stanstead for a long time.

Dion and Rioux, as champions of the Industrial League, were considered to have a very fast sextet and they certainly lived up to their reputation, every man on the team showing up well. They were strengthened by the addition of Leonard O'Donnell and Eddie Wolfe, of the Pacific, both of whom turned in a good game. The Stanstead squad was also strengthened by the addition of Paul Frazeeau, of Loyola College fame, who turned in a great game for the Olympics.

The game started off at a very fast pace and before many minutes had gone by Frazeeau opened the scoring for Stanstead on a beautiful individual effort that saw him stickhandle his way through the whole team. This served to wake Dion and Rioux into immediate action with the result that the pace was terrific, first one goal then another being threatened until O'Donnell evened the score with a fine individual effort. The first period ended with the score 1 to 1.

The second frame was not half over when Carpentier, the goalie for Dion and Rioux, who had been playing a splendid game, received a nasty cut over the eye that necessitated several stitches. He was removed from the game and Matieu, one of the defencemen, had to go between the posts. Shortly afterwards Frazeeau again put Stanstead ahead with another goal. Both teams battled along at a great clip until Wolfe evened the count again on a pass from behind the nets by O'Donnell, the second period ending with the score two to two.

Play began cautiously in the third period, both teams waiting for the break. Both O'Donnell and Wolfe played a great defence game in front of Matieu, who was turning in a fine game between the posts. With about ten minutes left to go, Van Vliet, of Stanstead, scored the third goal from a pass from centre. Dion and Rioux fought desperately to even the count, and, with about three minutes of the period remaining, Trudeau, who had been playing a fine game all evening, scored the third goal for the visitors on a beautiful combination play that saw him receive the pass right in front of the net. For the remaining two minutes the visitors played defensive hockey to hold the game a draw while the home team tried frantically to get the odd score to carry with them for their game in Sherbrooke Wednesday night, but the bell rang with the teams deadlocked.

The return game will be played in Sherbrooke at the Arena Wednesday night at seven p.m. sharp in order to allow Stanstead players to get the 9 p.m. train back to Stanstead. It is expected that a large crowd of supporters will accompany the team to Sherbrooke as the winners of this game will be the holders of the Dominion Life Cup for 1928.

About four hundred people saw the two teams play here. The game was well handled by Mr. Stewart, of Stanstead, and Mr. Gordon, of Sherbrooke.

DOMINION LIFE TROPHY FOR ANNUAL COMPETITION

The Dominion Life Assurance Company, through their local branch manager, Mr. John G. Watson, have donated a hockey cup for competition between the winners of the Sherbrooke Amateur Industrial Hockey League and the Stanstead Olympic Hockey Club, of Stanstead. Two games will be played to determine the winners of this trophy each year at the close of the playing season. One game to be played in Stanstead with one game in Sherbrooke, the total goals on the round to coat. These games will be purely exhibition contests. The trophy will have to be won three years in succession for final ownership and will have to be played for annually. In event of either team failing to operate, or in event of the Industrial League failing to operate, the cup will revert back to the Dominion Life Assurance Company, or to Mr. Watson, who is trustee for the trophy, and who will have final disposition of the cup.

EXHIBITION GAMES TONIGHT

An interesting double header is billed for the Arena tonight, when Dion and Rioux meet Julius Kayser in the opener at 7.25 p.m., and East Sherbrooke Juniors and Canadian National clash in the second encounter at nine o'clock. These are both exhibition games, all league activities having been completed for the season.

Bruins Took Sole Possession of First Place in American Section of N.H.L. — Canadiens and Detroit Played Draw.

MONTREAL, March 11.—The Boston Bruins took sole possession of the top rung of the United States section of the National Hockey League when they defeated the Rangers by three to two, at New York last night. The match was productive of fast and brilliant hockey. The Bruins scored a goal in each of the three periods. Harry Oliver accounted for two of them and Owen scored the third. Bill Cook and Murdoch tallied the losers' points in the first and second periods respectively. The victory over the Rangers allowed the Bruins to break even on their week-end games. They were defeated in Boston on Saturday by the Ottawa Senators by 2 to 1 after overtime.

Saturday's match was a dull and listless affair. Hitchman opened the scoring in the second period, but a goal by Clancy in the third tied the count. Finnegan scored the winning counter in the overtime.

Playing championship hockey from start to finish, the Toronto Maple Leafs coasted to a three to nothing victory over the Detroit Cougars at the Queen City on Saturday night. The Leafs were masters of the situation throughout, and, but for some good work by Dolson, Detroit net minder, would have won by a greater score.

Two goals in the first period and another in the third gave the Toronto team their margin of victory. Cox netted two of them and Horne netted the third.

14,000 Attended Game at Detroit

The Cougars also failed to collect the full quota of points in their game with Canadiens, International section leaders at the motor city on Sunday night. The match ended in a one all tie. A record crowd of nearly fourteen thousand people witnessed the affair which was the best and most exciting seen this season.

Both goals were scored in the overtime period. Morenz gave the Canadiens the lead, but Reg Noble knotted the count a few minutes before the bell.

Americans Trowned Maroons The New York Americans made some headway in their fight to oust Canadiens from the leadership of the International section when they scored a three to two victory over the Montreal Maroons at Montreal on Saturday night, while the Canucks were held to a draw by Detroit. The loss was the fifth straight for the Maroons.

Simpson, Connor and McVeigh scored the winners' goals while Smith and Ward tallied for the Maroons. The Chicago Black Hawks scored their first victory in five starts when they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates by one to nothing at Fort Erie on Saturday night. Vic Ripley scored the only goal of the game.

ST. FRANCIS ENTER ALLAN CUP SERIES

(Canadian Press Despatch) MONTREAL, March 11.—It was a fighting Victoria team that battled through to a 1-1 draw with St. Francis Xavier at the Arena yesterday afternoon. The Victorias, awarred to the attack throughout the sixty minutes of play, employed every ruse known to the game in desperate efforts to score, but were unable to overcome the two goal deficit which they took into the game and St. Francis, Intermediate Provincial champions, emerged with the honors and the right to represent Quebec in the Allan Cup play-downs.

QUEENS WON TITLE

MONTREAL, March 11.—Putting up an uphill fight throughout, and with luck casting an adverse eye upon them, Loyola lost their sudden death game for the Canadian Intermediate Intercollegiate championship, 2-2, at the College Stadium, on Saturday night. Combined with the steady playing of Podonnet, in the Kingston goal, the breaks were sufficient to keep the locals from a win, but even in defeat, Loyola made a bold attempt at bringing Montreal another championship, as has been their habit of late years.

AUSTRALIA WENT TO BAT TODAY

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 11.—With England's first innings over for 519 runs, Australia went to bat today in the fifth test match and had scored 152 runs for the loss of 2 wickets at the close of the day's play. W. M. Woodfull's 78 not out, was today's batting feature. Leyland, of England, ran his Saturday score of 110 up to 137 before being caught by Fairfax this morning.

VICTORIAS WON JUNIOR TITLE BY BIG SCORE

Defeated Stanstead College in Montreal on Saturday by Score of 10 to 0—Won Round by 19 to 2.

MONTREAL, Que., March 11.—Victoria juniors swept through to the provincial championship at the Forum on Saturday when they trounced the Stanstead College team with the same reckless abandon that they have shown in their past few games. The speedy local outfit triumphed 10 to 0, and captured the round, 19 to 2.

Stanstead could not stand up against the speed, skill and general finish of the fine Victoria team. After four goals had been chalked up in the first period, interest in the game centered in seeing who would score the most goals, and in this contest Mullin and Duguid came out best.

With the margin they had, these tactics were not dangerous, but in their future games the Vics will have to play better combination and show more team-work than they have of late. Vics now meet the winners of the Ottawa district in a home and home series, the dates of which have not been definitely settled.

BADMINTON

DOMINION CHAMPIONSHIPS

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 11.—Mrs. E. F. Coke, of Toronto, was the only champion of 1928 who retained a title in the finals of the Canadian badminton championships concluded Saturday at the Vancouver Club. She defeated Miss Eileen George, of Vancouver, 11-4, 11-2.

Mrs. Coke's exhibition was one of the features of the three day tourney. Three titles came to the east and two go east.

Jack Purcell, of Guelph, Ont., defeated the champion, Jack Underhill, Vancouver, in the men's singles 15-9, 15-7.

Purcell now holds the J. K. L. Ottawa challenge cup.

Miss Eileen George and Miss Millener, Vancouver, created a surprise by defeating the national champions, Mrs. Coke and Mrs. Boone, of Toronto, 18-13, 5-15, 15-12, thereby winning the Montreal challenge cup.

Jack Muir and Noel Radford, Vancouver, played a championship brand of badminton to defeat Jack Purcell and Dr. Cramer, of Guelph, in the men's doubles, 11-15, 15-9, 15-7, earning the Quebec challenge cup.

Miss Eileen George and Jack Underhill, Vancouver, defeated Mr. and Mrs. Jack Muir, Vancouver, for the mixed doubles title and the Toronto challenge cup, 15-9, 15-5.

FEATURE BOUTS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, March 11.—Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, 175 pounder and Tom Keeney, the New Zealand blacksmith are the big question marks on the National pugilistic horizon this week.

Heeney, trounced by Gene Tunney in a championship match here last summer and decisively beaten by the Boston "fat boy" Jimmy Maloney about ten days ago in the first start of his second American tour, engages Otto von Perat, Norwegian slugger, in a ten round match at the Chicago Coliseum tomorrow night.

Beauty and Performance

BEAUTY finds a new expression in the Ford car. Perfect proportion serves to mould its low lines in pleasing harmony. Graceful, full crown fenders, acorn type headlights and full-nicked radiator shell and appointments set off its dignified appearance.

Performance in the Ford car implies more than smooth speed, flexibility, getaway and instant response to the brakes. The word covers inbuilt quality, precision methods of manufacture and inherent balance—all of which make for many thousands of miles of carefree motoring.

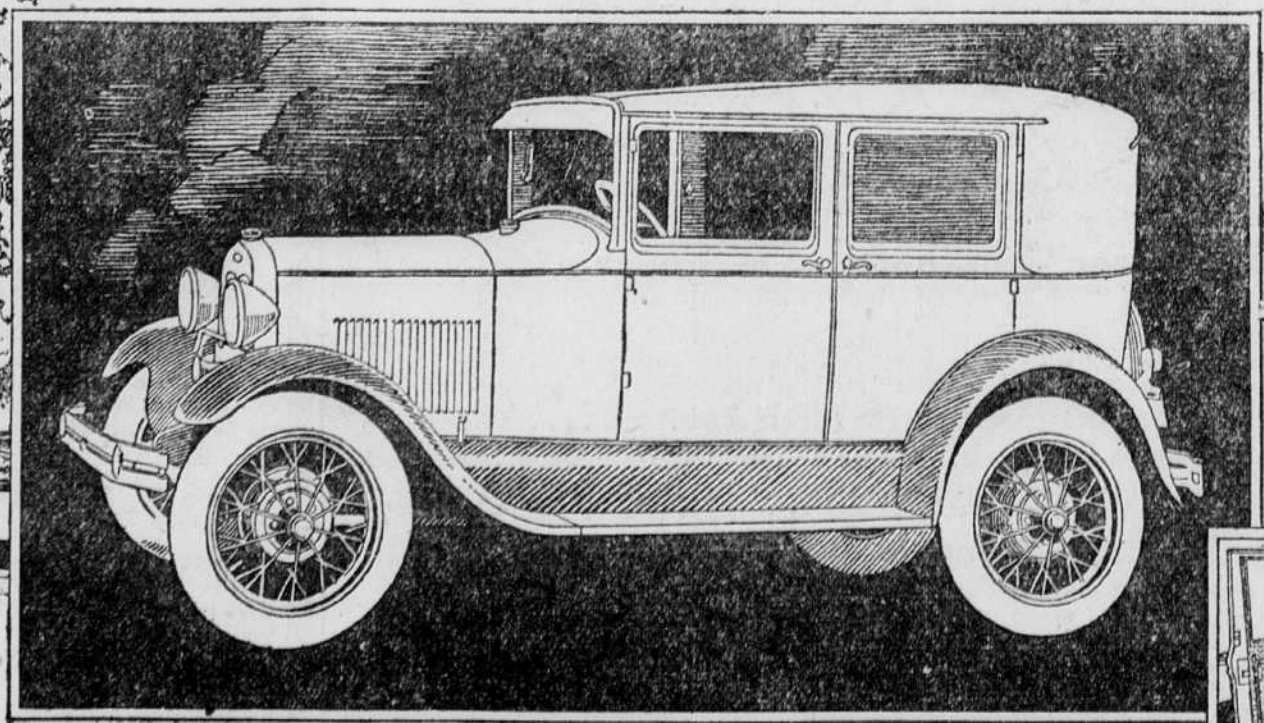

ECONOMY—Month after month, as you have the opportunity to test this Ford car of yours, the realization grows that it costs very little to operate. You find that you get over twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline in city driving; nearer thirty on the open road. It is sparing on oil. Tires last longer than you anticipated, because the car is light and braking smooth and even. Ford labour and parts are low and Ford service is available everywhere.

LONG LIFE—Your Ford car is not out-styled from year to year. You can drive it as long as you like and it will hold its own in any company. Rather than creating yearly models, the Ford Motor Company's policy is constantly to make improvements which can be incorporated with your car at low cost.

SAFETY—The fully enclosed six brake system grips the flying wheels with silent power. The windshield is of shatterproof glass. A steel body gives maximum protection. Even at high speeds the perfect balance of the Ford car and its unique and effective transverse springs hold it firmly on the road. These features contribute to both physical and mental comfort.

SIMPLICITY—Behind the whole plan of the Ford car is a basic principle that has been followed to the letter. This may be expressed in the words "Make it better—make it simpler".

TIME PAYMENT—If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the authorized time payment plan offered by all Ford dealers most attractive.

Major Burwash, F.R.G.S.

INTREPID EXPLORER OF ARCTIC COUNTRY

Major Burwash, Now Wintering Somewhere on Boothia Peninsula, Holds Record for Northland Travel

MAJOR BURWASH, F.R.G.S., exploratory engineer of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch, has travelled more in the course of his profession along the farthest frontiers of the Dominion than any man living. His total is something like 25,000 miles. Beyond the end of steel he has covered his distances in steamers, gas-boats, sailing schooners, scows, canoes and komatiks, and when such craft could not be used he has resorted to huskies.

A great deal of the information that Canada possesses about her own backyard fronting on the Arctic is due to the indefatigable journeyings of this modern explorer. In the old days it was customary to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars outfitting large arctic expeditions. But all that has been superseded by one-man expeditions. Major Burwash has done more than any other explorer to perfect the technique of this comparatively inexpensive method of doing effectively what was formerly done less efficiently by costly expeditions staffed by a little army of men.

His most notable feat was performed in the winter of 1925-26 when he circled Canada from Ottawa, down the Mackenzie river and along the Arctic to King William Island, crossing Boothia and Melville peninsulas by dog-team to Hudson bay, thence by steamer back to Ottawa. The difficult part of this trip was the sledge journey overland which was accomplished with the assistance of an Eskimo couple.

For the Eskimo couple this was in a sense a holiday jaunt. They gladly undertook the long walk from King William Island to Hudson bay and back for the sake of "going out" to civilization at Repulse bay, and receiving as an honorarium for their company a load or two of the white man's goods. Before the party reached the shore of Hudson bay all were practically blind from the snow-glaze. While still three days from the nearest post as they thought, they determined to push on in spite of everything to save off disaster. Starting at three in the morning they began what they believed to be a life and death march, but to their great relief the distance was much shorter than they expected. Repulse bay was reached that afternoon at three.

Last year Major Burwash was again commissioned to make a somewhat similar trip but this time was provided with the auxiliary schooner Ptarmigan in which he reached Cambridge bay in the summer. The Hudson's Bay Company's supply steamer Bay Maud from Vancouver happened to be there at the time discharging cargo. As the vessel is equipped with a powerful broadcasting outfit Major Burwash was able to inform Ottawa by wireless on August 31 that he had arrived safely on the eastern edge of the island inhabited by Stefansson's blonde Eskimo, and that he was making preparations to leave Victoria Island to survey the Arctic end of a tractor route from Cockburn Inlet to Hudson Bay. He would then proceed to Boothia peninsula from which base he would endeavor in the summer of 1929 to pass through Franklin strait and Peel sound to Lancaster sound. He expects to join the eastern Arctic patrol at Dundas Harbor in time to return to Ottawa this fall.

If he succeeds in this daring undertaking, daring because it is precisely what Franklin attempted from the opposite end in the Erebus and Terror, he will be doing in one season what Amundsen took four years to accomplish. The importance of Major Burwash's project has never been emphasized. Any press references to it were of such a casual nature that the boldness and significance of the whole enterprise escaped the public.

Canada's official explorer is now holding a lonely vigil on Boothia peninsula at the magnetic pole making observations that will be of great value to science. His schooner is probably safely and comfortably frozen in, while he himself is no doubt living in a shack in a cosy "privacy of storm," on a bleak shore where he has been snowed under for the last two months and will remain buried until early summer releases him, with only two or three feet of his stove-pipe showing in the meantime above an otherwise clean and unbroken expanse of snow. Photographs of his cabin on King William Island in the winter of 1925-26 show exactly such a condition. Both Amundsen and Rasmussen in their famous journeys from the Atlantic to the Pacific wintered in the same neighborhood.

Incidentally Major Burwash will endeavor to locate the Erebus and Terror, both according to Eskimo stories submerged in shallow water between King William Island and Boothia peninsula. The fate of these vessels has never been solved. The Eskimo stories, first collected by McClintock, might have been unreservedly accepted but for the fact that two vessels were sighted on an ice-floe off the Newfoundland Banks in 1851. The vessels were not visited. The question has often been asked, were they Franklin's ships. If the conditions are favorable in the north Major Burwash may be able to determine once for all whether any credence is to be placed in the native accounts.

If the intrepid explorer succeeds in making the "Northwest Passage" from west to east he will be performing a feat fully equal to that which Amundsen accomplished in 1905.

Woman Legislator Missed Her Golden Opportunity

SHAKESPEARE is dearly loved by the Hon. Mrs. Irene Parlyb, minister without portfolio in the Alberta government, but dearer to her heart still is education and the advancement of the interests of women and children.

For many years Mrs. Parlyb has had a desire to see Elphinstone, the home of Hamlet, and the last resting place of that gloomy but immortal prince. Her opportunity came last year when she represented the women of Alberta at an international conference in Norway, visiting England, Sweden, Denmark, and other countries.

Mrs. Parlyb delivered many public addresses and studied the school systems of various places. Little time was left for pleasure or sight-seeing, but she consoled herself with the thought that at Elphinstone she would certainly steal an hour for quiet meditation at Hamlet's grave.

As it happened, she was met on arrival by a delegation which immediately carried her off to inspect the International Folk School, an institution which is designed to serve as a bridge between different nations with a view to creating a type of mind that will make international goodwill a reality instead of a desire.

"I was so keenly interested in the work being done at that school," said Mrs. Parlyb, somewhat ruefully, in relating the experience after her return to Canada, "that I lost track of time and completely forgot all about my long-cherished plans to visit the grave of Hamlet! 'To be, or not to be,' I quoted to myself when I remembered. Alas, it was most decidedly 'not to be!'"

The Popular Idea Doesn't Apply to Edward Johnson

EDWARD JOHNSON, famous Canadian tenor, is a living contradiction of the popular idea as to operatic tenors. He is a virile and vigorous type of masculinity.

Appropos of this singer who hails from Guelph recently told to some of his friends in Toronto a little anecdote of his friend, John McCormack, another tenor, who is somewhat of a humorist.

The two singers were one day discussing popular misconceptions as to singers and artists in general, and McCormack slipped Johnson on the back to give emphasis to his words as he remarked, "Eddie, we're not just tenors—we're men with high voices."

With the accent on the word "men."

Hormidas Laporte of Montreal, who began work as a grocery clerk and is now president of one of Canada's largest wholesale provision firms.

TORONTO WAS A VERY BIG PLACE

LORD DAWSON OF PENN., for many years now physician-in-ordinary to His Majesty King George, was recently heard to announce that he yearned to visit Toronto. On being asked if he had any particular reason for his desire, a twinkle lit up his usually sombre eye as he explained.

It seems that some time ago Lord Dawson was visiting a rural friend in Devonshire, England, the nearest village to whose abode being known by the name of Bow.

No events move rapidly in this age, and it is possible, though scarcely probable, that that Bow is now thriving metropolis. Be that as it may, when Lord Dawson made its acquaintance it consisted of some twelve to fourteen whitewashed cottages dotted along a straggling piece of very bad road at intervals of anything from ten to fifty yards.

During the physician's stay in this village his host, who dabbled in the art somewhat dubiously known as "gentleman farming," received a visit from an ex-husband of his who had some years previously emigrated to Canada and had now returned on a visit to his home, chock-full of excitement and airs.

He was a sturdy youth with an honest blue eye which belied his most earnest endeavors after a worldly manner. He was a trifle shy but managed to express himself with quite a degree of loquacity for all that and his erstwhile employer was hard put to it to find means of painless eviction.

"Well, well, Joe," he said at length, "so Canada's a great place, eh? Well, that's splendid. And I hear you visited Toronto before coming home. That must be the largest town you've ever seen."

Joe's round eyes bulged.

"Eh sur," he breathed deep down in his chest.

"Eh, but er's a 'mense' gert town. Mus' be... well."

He paused and scratched his head.

"Tain't no use far to go 'xaggeration' like some travellers do but—I'd say er mus' be mos' three times the size o' Bow..."

And it is just to confirm this quite remarkable statement that Lord Dawson of Penn desires to see for himself the capital of Ontario.

Merchant Prince of Montreal Boasts of Bass Not Riches

Sir Hormidas Laporte Is More Proud of His Record as a Fisherman Than of His Commercial Success, Although He Has Worked Way From Grocery Clerk to Knighthood

DURING three score years of unusual activity Hormidas Laporte has risen from an unpropitious start as a grocery clerk at $12 a month to the presidency of one of the largest wholesale provision firms in Canada—a business whose annual turnover runs far into the millions. Through national services of outstanding importance he has won knighthood and a seat on the Privy Council. He heads a great banking house. He has directed Canada's War Purchasing Board. He has officiated as mayor of Montreal.

These are only a few of the achievements and honors which Sir Hormidas has scored up to his credit. But at seventy-eight this merchant prince's proudest boast is that he holds the bass fishing championship of Coteau de La

Sir Hormidas maintains stoutly that the fish like the black bass. He deems a day the gamiest salmon, trout or tuna that ever waved a fin to provide the sports offered by a two-pound inhabitant of the rapids at Coteau.

And concerning that fishing championship, there is a nasty rumor current among rival Waltons—a rumor upon which Sir Hormidas smiles benignly—when the champion snatches a day or two from business to exercise his skill among the rapids he jogs at a convent near the river, he enjoys great popularity among the nuns of this institution and less fortunate fishermen declare openly that his astounding catches are the fruit of the prayers of the holy ladies, rather than of his own prowess!

Hormidas Laporte did not win his position in the commercial world easily. He fought every inch of the way—and often it seemed a losing battle. Fire, flood, and financial depression each time beat him in turn and was in turn overcome.

There is one incident from his career typical of his indomitable pertinacity. On the morning of April 27, 1893, Laporte was awakened by a furious knocking at his door and the wild cry of "Fire!" Glancing from the window as he dressed he saw the flames eating up his hard-built business, ravaging the firm's mighty warehouse and its rich store of foodstuffs.

That morning $20,000 worth of unfilled orders stood on the books of Laporte, Martin, Limited. By noon Laporte had arranged credit at his bank, secured a small storeroom, purchased supplies from rival firms and was shipping out the orders without a day's delay.

Sir Hormidas' career is as romantic as that of any of the big captains of commerce who have gained wealth and fame south of the international boundary. Born at the little village of Lachine in 1850, he went to work in the Montreal Rolling Mills while still in his teens, but being a delicate lad, soon shifted to clerking in a grocery store for eighteen hours a day at $12 a month as a lighter occupation.

"Now that I've passed the threescore and ten mark I feel entitled to come down to work at ten in the morning," remarked Sir Hormidas to his interviewer. "But in those days I started work behind the counter at five in the morning and closed the shop at eleven at night."

"That was in the summer, of course. In the winter we took things easier. The shop didn't open until six and we knocked off work at ten."

Miss Anne Morrow

Lindy's Fiancee Has Ability to Write

WORLD-WIDE interest has been aroused by the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ann Morrow, daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico, to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

At Smith college, from which she was graduated with the class of 1923, Miss Morrow gained considerable distinction as a student, carrying off two of the highest honors for literary ability. One was the Mary Augusta Jordan prize for the most original work in prose or verse, the other was the Elizabeth Montagu prize for her essay on "The Women of Dr. Johnson's Time."

From her childhood days Miss Morrow has shown an ability to write. She was always a hard worker and acquired the reputation of being a good student. Her school and college friends tell of her powers of concentration, and of long hours spent with her books. Yet, she was not considered a "grind" and never neglected a good time.

Miss Morrow is slender and of medium height. Her eyes are very large and "pansy colored." Her luxuriant brown hair frames her face in soft waves. She is not known as the athletic type, and has never cared much about sports, although she did a good deal of walking at college.

Miss Morrow's greatest interest at college, according to her friends, was literature. During her last year at Smith she was most interested in the eighteenth century France. In the brilliant writings of the women of that period she found the inspiration that led her to write "The Women of Dr. Johnson's Time."

WHAT COOLIDGE DID IN HIS FIVE YEARS

Signing of Kellogg-Briand Treaty—Naval Armament Conference—Mississippi Flood Relief Highlights of Office

WHEN Calvin Coolidge turns over his office to Herbert Hoover on Monday, he will have been president five years, seven months and one day. He succeeded to the presidency on the morning of August 3, 1923, when Warren G. Harding died in San Francisco, and, taking over the Harding cabinet without changes, he announced a continuance of the policies of his predecessor. His message to congress in December of the same year emphasized a policy of economy and retrenchment.

This policy is probably the popular identification of the Coolidge administration. It was urged upon President Coolidge's behalf in the campaign for his nomination and his election as president in his own right in 1924. And in furtherance of this policy there have been during the Coolidge administration heavy reductions of the public debt and four reductions in federal taxation. Economy reasons were given also in President Coolidge's veto of the bonus bill, which was re-enacted over his protest.

Another notable exercise of Mr. Coolidge's veto power was his refusal to approve McNary-Haugen legislation for agricultural relief. During his administration two McNary-Haugen bills providing for paying the expenses of farm crop marketing by means of a so-called equalization fee came before President Coolidge for his approval. He returned the bill unsigned upon both occasions, and both times the McNary-Haugen adherents were unable to muster sufficient votes in congress to override the Coolidge vetoes. Several laws for aiding agricultural production and marketing were passed by congress and approved by the president.

There were during the Coolidge administration a number of important developments in the field of foreign affairs. Chief of these was the negotiation and signature by fifteen nations of the so-called Kellogg-Briand treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy. The senate ratified the treaty this winter.

One of President Coolidge's inheritances from the Harding administration was the Harding Hughes proposal for adherence by the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, popularly known as the World Court, set up at The Hague by the League of Nations. Mr. Coolidge expressed his approval of the proposal, which the senate eventually ratified but attached certain reservations to its ratification which were not acceptable to other nations adhering to the World Court.

The problem of Latin-American relations continued in the Coolidge administration. A year ago last January Mr. Coolidge travelled upon a battleship to Havana, where he opened the Pan-American Conference. One of the results of the conference was a meeting of Pan-American delegates in Washington last December to draw up conventions of arbitration and conciliation. The diplomatic dispute with Mexico over the application of Mexican oil and lands laws continued in the Coolidge administration. President Coolidge appointed his friend and Amherst classmate, Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and during his term more friendly relations have been established with Mexico, including a partial settlement of the oil and land-law dispute. With the authority of the president, American marines were sent to Nicaragua to restore order in that revolution-swept country. Under American supervision at the polls a presidential election was held in Nicaragua. A constabulary under American command was organized, and marines are gradually being withdrawn, as they are likewise from China.

In the fields of preparedness and disarmament there were also activities on the part of the Coolidge administration. The tripartite conference on limitation of naval armaments, called by President Coolidge, met in Geneva in 1927 but ended in failure. Two weeks ago President Coolidge signed an act of congress authorizing the construction of fifteen cruisers and one aeroplane carrier.

Last, but not least, a summary of important events during the Coolidge administration should include the passage of legislation, involving the expenditure of as much money as it cost to build the Panama canal, for the flood control of the Mississippi.—New York Times.

Banking has been a favorite sideline with the wholesale dealer for many years now. He became a director of La Banque Provinciale du Canada in 1900 and president of the house seven years later.

Heading a huge wholesale firm, a mammoth chain store system and a banking house means hard and constant work, and Sir Hormidas is on the job every day. Even when he snatches a few hours for fishing at Coteau he is in touch with the office. When he suffered a nervous breakdown some months ago he directed the firm from his bed. Each spring he takes a few weeks' vacation at Atlantic City and on every day of his sojourn there full statements and reports are wired from Montreal to his hotel. Even while "holidaying" he keeps his finger on the pulse of his commercial empire.

Perhaps that is why Sir Hormidas appears so hearty and full of zest today. He is an enthusiast for a particular kind of work and throughout his life has seen to it that his appetite for that work has been well supplied.

Although Most Prolific in Output Writer Works Only 4 Months in Year

ONE of the most prolific writers of detective stories in England to-day is J. S. Fletcher, who has been turning out thrillers for so many years that he must soon have exhausted all possible plots. He is an exceedingly fast worker and one might be pardoned for imagining that he works all the time, but such is not the case. Mr. Fletcher himself revealed a little of his method in a recent caustic letter to the New York Sun.

A review of his novel, "The Wrist Mark," had aroused his ire, not so much because of what it said about the book as because of what it hinted about the author. So, though he most writers who have "arrived," Mr. Fletcher seldom troubles himself about what reviewers have to say about him, this time he sat down at his typewriter and ripped out the following:

"Your reviewer of 'The Wrist Mark,' with somewhat questionable taste, speaks of me as 'overworked and aging.'"

"As regards overwork, it may be interesting to him to learn that I never work for more than four months in the year, and spend the other eight months in what he would probably consider sheer idleness."

cricketer, and play regularly during the summer season. And I shall be very pleased, if your reviewer will come over here, to take him on at golf, or at lawn tennis, or to run a hundred yards with him, or to play him at billiards. He will then have a practical proof that I am neither aging nor overworked."

So far as is known, the Sun reviewer has not accepted the challenge. He probably feels in his bones that it will be wise to defer the meeting for as long as possible, for Mr. Fletcher may be even more annoyed than he sounds. It will not have escaped his notice that the letter of rebuke was written on Christmas Day! Otherwise Mr. Fletcher might also have suggested a few rounds with the boxing gloves!

General Feng, China's Most Commanding Figure Accepts Lot of the Common Soldier as His Own

M. O. M. GREEN, the editor of the North China Daily News, writing in the Edinburgh Review, under the title of "A Survey of China," gives a remarkable sketch of the Christian Chinese general, Feng, one of the romantic figures of China. He writes:

"The figure of Feng Yu-shiang, the famous Christian general, attracts wide attention. Of coolie origin, quite unlettered, he is unquestionably the most commanding figure in China. His troops are devoted to him and he to them."

"With the first preparations for the Northern Expedition, various armies were loosely attached to his command, for whose behavior he cannot be held altogether responsible. But his own particular force of about 30,000 men, which he has personally trained and nursed for many years past, bear a splendid reputation wherever they go, and at the moment are rendering yeoman service to the stricken famine districts of Honan. Feng eats the same common food as his soldiers, wears the same clothes, lives in all respects as one of them and keeps iron discipline over them."

"When they are wounded he sees to their care, and during their army service he has them taught a trade against the day of disarmament. He taxes heavily, but returns the money in public works, and Kaitang, his capital city in Honan, has been wondrously adorned with public parks and recreation grounds. In past years he has been accused of treacheries to fellow generals, but the word is a commonplace in modern China and Feng has no lack of precedent in the Old Testament for his changes of allegiance, while on the credit side he has a record which no other leader can show."

"There are indications that in the new regime Feng is coming out as the people's champion. When he paid his first visit to Nanking in August last, he scandalized everyone by his brusque manners, by driving about in a motor lorry with half-a-dozen common soldiers, himself as common-looking as anyone, and by his utter contempt for all ceremony and display."

"Invited to a state banquet, he lectured his audience on extravagance, contrasting the luxury of the feast with the state of penance to which he had seen in the north devouring weeds and husks. Turning to the government's lists of rewards and decorations, he exclaimed: 'I see here no record of punishments: are we all so perfect that we must only be rewarded?'"

"Feng was called back to Honan in September to crush a local rebellion, but has since returned to Nanking. He has lately intervened on behalf of the hapless people in Nanking, whose houses have been torn down for the new road over which Dr. Sun Yat-sen's body is to move to its final burial near the Ming Tombs. This road is one of the greatest scandals of the day. A straight line was drawn from one side of the city to the other, and every house in the way has had to go. Twenty thousand people have been made homeless, and the highest compensation paid them is stated to have been $30, with land adjacent changing hands at perhaps $20,000 an acre. The general expectation is that Feng is waiting to declare himself until the present potentates have involved themselves a bit more deeply. He keeps his own counsel. But the belief is universal that he is only biding his time and that power must ultimately fall to him."

The St. Albans' Ladies' Guild, together with Mrs. Templeman, were hostesses, on Wednesday last, at the parsonage, to some forty ladies, including visitors from Canterbury latter's motion, "That, owing to a deficiency in the funds for the wid-

DEATHS REPORTED

MR. JOHN NIXON, SOUTH

DURHAM, QUE.

SOUTH DURHAM, Que., March

11. — In the passing away of Mr.

John Nixon on Saturday morning,

February 18th, 1929, Durham lost one of its highly respected citizens.

The late Mr. Nixon had reached the age of seventy-eight years, two months and ten days, and had been in failing health for three months, but was only confined to his room seven weeks. All that medical skill and loving hands could do was of no avail and he passed quietly away, surrounded by his wife, son

John, and daughter, Miss Muriel, also his sister, Mrs. Lizzie Nixon, of Melbourne.

The late Mr. Nixon was born in Ely and passed the greater part of his lifetime there in business with his brother, Mr. Edward Nixon, who predeceased him several years ago.

He was united in marriage to

Miss Sarah A. Newell, Melbourne, on June 21st, 1882. Of this union there were five children, Fred,

John, Dora, Harold and Muriel.

Mr. Nixon came to this village nine years ago. He was a devoted husband and father, of a kindly disposition, true neighbor, gentle and considerate of others, much beloved by his own family and a wide circle of friends who were present in large numbers at this service. Among those present were several of his fellow-workers who had come over thirty miles by team.

The funeral took place on Monday, February 18th, at 1 p.m., from his late home to St. James' Church, which was largely attended by friends, including citizens of all degrees, who came to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed.

The service was conducted by Rev.
Mr. A. J. Oakley, who spoke comforting words to the bereaved. The mother, of Canterbury, are keeping house for Mr. and Mrs. Cowling, while they are in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Start entertained a number of their friends on Thursday evening last. A snowstorm was enjoyed the early part of the evening. Afterwards games were played at small tables. Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the evening.

choir rendered the following hymns:
"On the Resurrection Morning,"
"There Is No Night in Heaven,"
"Thy Will be Done," and for a voluntary "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The casket was covered with beautiful floral tributes among which could be mentioned a pol-low from the family; wreath from Mr.
and Mrs. E. Millar, of Calgary; wreath from Harold; wreath from Canadian Bank of Commerce, Montreal, and many more sprays, bouquets and wreaths, showing love and respect for the departed and sympathy for the sorrowing family. The bearers were neighbors and friends, namely, Messrs. Samuel Weir, Patrick Forbes, Duncan Folsey, Charles Nixon, William Dunn and Ernest Griffith. The funeral cortege wended its way to St.
John's Cemetery, Gallup Hill, where interment took place in the beside his son, Freddie, who predeceased him thirty-four years ago.
Rev. Mr. Oakley had charge of the committal service at the grave.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss his widow, Mr. John Nixon, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Montreal; Mr. Harold Nixon, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Millar and two children, of Calgary, and Miss Muriel Nixon, at home; one sister, Miss E. Nixon, of Melbourne; Mrs. Lucetta Nixon,

Gossip From The Training Camps

"Goose" Goslin, American League batting champion, has reached the Washington training camp, at Tampa, Fla., with an array of good news for Manager Walter Johnson.

His throwing arm, he says, is all right. It was all wrong most of last season, and he had to relay the balls that reached him in the field.

A strenuous week of exhibition games was inaugurated with a six-five victory over the Tampa South-eastern Leaguers yesterday.

Three home runs failed to aid the St. Louis Cards in yesterday's exhibition tussle at Sarasota, with the Indianapolis Indians, and the American outfit clubbed a 11 to 7 victory off the offerings of three recruit hurlers.

For the first time in years Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, is a bit worried over his pitching staff.

Dizzy Vance, if he can be persuaded to sign a contract, and Doug McWeeny will be the backbone of the staff, of course, but when this pair is named the Robins stock of consistent winners is exhausted. Robinson must develop a regular and winning starter of two from among Elliott, Clarke, Moss, or some of the youngsters.

Colonel Jacob Rupert has had his first glimpse this year of his New York Yankees and is satisfied. The Yankees' owner arrived at St. Petersburg yesterday.

If Andy Cohen can keep up his present streak of hitting John McGraw will not have to look any further for a second baseman for his New York Giants. Since the exhibition season started, Cohen has been hitting the ball on the nose and safely.

ON WAY TO HALIFAX TODAY
MONTREAL, March 11.—En route to Halifax where they will attempt to advance the banner of Quebec Province in the Allan Cup play-downs, St. Francois-Xavier, colorful French-Canadian hockey team, left Montreal today.

The team, after winning the championship of the Mount Royal League of Montreal, proceeded to the provincial semi-finals by defeating, respectively, the Pacific of Sherbrooke, Kenogami-Jongueville, of Northern Quebec, and Montreal Victorias, last year's cup finalists.

The next opponent for the Frenchmen is the Bathurst, N.B., outfit, Maritime champions and regarded as a team which will batter hard at the barriers now separating it from the custody of the historic mug, at present in the possession of Manitoba University.

The first game will be played on Wednesday night and the second Friday total goals to count. The line-up probably used by the Saints will be: L. Gagnon, goal; Brunet, center; Carroll and Baril, wings; and Ahearn, defence; Pedneault, P. Gagnon, Bourgoin and Lapointe, subs.

BASKETBALL

O-A DEFEATED PT. ST. CHARLES

On Saturday afternoon the Omega-Alpha basketball team defeated the Pt. St. Charles United by a score of 61 to 8.

The local team clearly demonstrated their superiority in all phases of the game. The forwards worked a beautiful passing game which completely baffled the visitors time and again.

The line-up: Omega-Alpha—Hammond, Watson, Walker, Cook, Beach, Barlow, Welsh, Strachan, Gardner, Pt. St. Charles—Black, Shapter, Clark, Weeks, Rousseau, Mac-Donald, Charlton.

TWO INTERESTING GAMES
On Saturday night two more very good games were played in the City Basketball League. Y's Men taking the first game by 44 to 23, and Bishop's the second game by 33 to 23.

The Y's Men-Regiment game was very exciting from the beginning to the end, but with McCaw and Rowell for defense on the Y's Men's team the Regiment found it hard to get in, and shooting had to

General Francisco Manzo had extended from Sonora down through the state of Sinaloa to Guisla, Mazatlan, one of three sizeable west coast ports, was the object. Defending Mazatlan from the rebels was a small force under General Jaime Carrillo. A Government announcement today said the advance had stopped, although it did not indicate when, where or why. A possible explanation was found, however, in a dispatch which told of withdrawal of some of Manzo's men for use on the Chihuahua front.

Success of this rebel west coast venture might give them a base of operations for at least a threat against Mexico City, by way of the state of Nayarita and the city of Guadalajara. Such an offensive would threaten the rear of General Calles' army and probably divert some of his forces from the northern front.

be done from fairly well out. In point getting Bryce, Robertson and Ryder were the leaders for the Y's Men's Club, while Mariasine, Price and Foley scored for the Regiment. The line-up: Regiment—Mariasine, 15; Foley, 7; Price, 6; Sjolander, Thissen, 7; Y's Men—Bryce, 17; Robertson, 8; Loughhead, Houlden, Cross, 7; Ryder, 8; McCaw, 2; and Rowell, 2.

In the Bishop's-Pirates' game Bishop's got off to a good start and had the Pirates baffled in the first period, doubling the score on them, getting 16 to 8. But in the second period it was neck and neck. Bishop's only gathering in 17 points against 15 by Pirates, making the final score 33 to 23.

Line-up: Bishop's—Rudner, 12; Mariasine, Fuller, 6; Wallace, Green, 10; McMoran, 2; Bouchard, McCullough, 2. Pirates—A. Stocks, 8; C. Stocks, 3; Jones, Miller, 8; Joiner, 2; Robinson.

Both games were handled by Mr. G. Barlow.

CITY LEAGUE GAME TOMORROW

The game tomorrow night in the City Basketball League will be played at Bishop's College, when a keenly contested match should be seen with Omega-Alpha, the leaders, meeting Bishop's, who are second in the running. If Bishop's win tomorrow they will tie with O-A, while if they lose they will be second. Another game will be played on Wednesday at the "Y" when Y's Men meet Pirates. This also should be a very good game. The last game of the season will be played next Saturday, when Regiment will meet Bishop's at the Y.M.C.A.

at least five years. Consequently, this stock appears to be one of the outstanding ones in the group that will benefit from the Beaumais development.

Rumors are again rife with regards to mergers and deals in the paper industry. The latest links Brompton with some other large newspaper company. It is understood that a well-known local brokerage house is sponsoring the stock and its improved market action the past week or two can be attributed to the factor. It must be remembered that in face of general unsettlement in the industry last year Brompton was able to maintain its earnings and consequently from now on, the outlook would appear to warrant optimism.

Hornblower & Weeks: We would certainly limit commitments to those stocks which have shown a disposition to withstand the selling pressure of recent days, particularly those leading issues which enjoy a broad market.

C. H. Van Buren & Co.: We find it hard to believe that the market is ready for another upswing. Until loans are reduced, one can expect the list to develop great irregularity every time the credit position is brought to the front.

Wall Street Journal will say today: Erie's surplus continues gaining. Steel bookings gain 34,854 tons. Treasury may show deficit.

MARKET FORECASTS.

The Old Order Changes

By David Lyall.

She was absolutely dependent on her only son, and when he decided that she must come to England and make her home with him, she offered no objection. The offer had been made with his wife's full concurrence but the experiment was not a success.

There was no quarrel, because old Mrs. Freeland had never in her life quarrelled with anybody. It was not her method of getting what she wanted.

She was a deeply religious woman, who put first things first, but she had not been able, after much searching, to find a common meeting ground with her English daughter-in-law. Even love for the children had not provided it. She had no shame in being dependent on her son, because the love between them was of that rare kind which forbade the smallest misunderstanding. So when one day she went to him in his office at the mill and said quietly, "Robert" (being a West Countrywoman she pronounced her son's name as if the vowel in the first syllable were "u" instead of "o"), "I want ye to find me a wee house, a but and ben will do, my lad, but I would like a place to myself."

Freeland looked his mother straight in the face, asked no questions, but said very simply, "Very well, mother."

He found the wee house without difficulty, and put his mother in it and there was neither dispute nor fret over it at Coppetts.

"My mother's gettin' old, Harriet," Freeland said to his wife. "And it'll be better for everybody if she has a place to herself."

Mrs. Freeland decided not to make a grievance of it, though rather inclined to nagging. It was a secret relief and it also gave her an extra room in a house none too large for her family requirements.

The old lady was as happy as a queen in her rose-covered bower, though her domestic help was of the distinctly casual order. Some-times she had none at all. But she was still very hale and hearty, and very skillful in all household affairs, as became the widow of a shipwright who had brought up a considerable family, all of whom were dead but her son Robert. She was very fond of her grandchildren, but George, the boy killed at Ypres, and Mary were her favorites, partly, no doubt, because they favored the Freeland side of the house.

She was busy at her knitting when Mary entered, and looked the picture of dignified, contented old age. No one regarding her rosy face and bright black eyes would have credited her with her seventy-six years.

"I wish wonderin' whether any of ye would be better the night, lassie," she said, smiling happily on Mary. "A' weel up by?"

"Yes, Dad's at Manchester, and all the rest have gone over to Gorham Lacy."

"I see. When is't to be ready?"

"Oh, soon. Won't I change your mind, Granny, and come and live with us there. It's so big you could hide yourself away from us if you like."

"No, lassie. I'm a' richt here."

"But think how lonely you'll be, Granny!"

"I wanna be lonely. Debbie is comin' to bide wi' me. We've arranged it."

Mary made a little grimace.

"You're an old plotter, Granny, and I really don't know what mother will say."

"Deborah has been speakin' about retirin' for more than a year. She has saved a bit. It's just an obligation to come here. She'll be cheaper than takin' lodgings anywhere else, and it'll suit me fine."

Mary laughed.

"Arch plotters the pair of you!" she repeated.

"Then I'll be seein' your father often. He's to be at the mill every day he tells me. And surely you'll not be too proud to come to the little house, will ye, Mary?"

When Mary did not immediately answer, the old lady regarded her anxiously, and beheld a creeping shadow on her face.

"You're worried about something, lassie."

"Yes, Granny. I am. I've come to tell you about it. I simply can't leave Mardocks. I've regretted sending in my resignation every day and minute."

"Could ye not draw back yet, then? I dare say they'd be fella glad to keep ye."

"I know they would, but just think of the ructions at home. Mother would very nearly have a fit if I dared to hint at it. Then, unfortunately, I can't get away from the fact now that I might be keeping the job from somebody else who needs it."

"That's another story, lass. Of course, that wouldna be right."

"No, but I shall hate an idle life, and pretending to be a grand lady. I'm not cut out for that role at all, and I know it is filling mother with despair. Don't you think, Granny, that people are far happier when they have to work—quite hard, I mean—so that they don't have much time to think?"

"Ye never said a truer word, Mary, and I'm thinking your mother will be findin' that out by and by. For she's a grand worker herself, and a good housekeeper, and she'll never get a tribe o' servants to keep the place the way she would like it kept."

It was a generous and quite sincere tribute to the daughter-in-law whose good qualities she admitted freely, even when deciding that she would be happier farther away from her.

"I somehow don't feel comfortable about this big change, Granny, and I'm sure father doesn't."

"It's a certain fact he never would see bocht the place if it hadna been for your mother," Granny conceded with a slight pressure of her mobile mouth.

"And I'm nearly sure father isn't a bit happy about what people ma-say. Listen, Granny, it's most awfully like being among the profiteers. It is what people will say, I'm sure, and yet anybody who knows father could never believe he would make money wrongly."

"Not wrongly, lassie, he couldn't help himself. But I ken hoo ye are feelin'. I feel it myself, an' it would nae been far wiser like to have stopped where ye are. I said it to your mother one day, but she gied me the wrang side o' her face for it."

"She would, and, Granny, everything's in the melting pot. Perhaps in a year or two there won't be any big houses. If the Socialists have their way everything will be levelled up."

"Oh, I've heard a' that stuff an' nonsense long ago on the Clyde," said Granny rather scathingly. "Whatever they may say, weel-doin' an' hard work an' brains will aye rise to the top, and idle set an' stupidity sink to the bottom. That's common sense. I hae na use for Socialism. Them that preach Socialism are the kind that want something for naething. Na, na, lass, the new world they're aye speakin' about canna be built on that kind o' a foundation."

"Oh, but Granny, there are heaps of wrong things that want redressin'. Don't you think now honestly, that a lot of people have been cheated, and have never had enough of the good things of this life?"

She had tasted searching poverty in her young days, but love and an indomitable courage had lifted her high above all the privations of her early married life. "Folk's troubles are mairly o' their ain makin'." Mary. Tak awa the drink, and half the problems would be solved."

"Aye, whit did he say?" asked Granny, interested because the girl was interested.

"Oh, nothing much. We didn't talk for a minute hardly. It was rather an impression I got, that was all. There wasn't anything high and mighty about him, and he spoke to me exactly as if I were a human being like himself. He's a Colonial—I daresay that partly explains it. Well, I'll have to be going. Oh dear, I don't know which is worse, too much money or the want of it."

She kissed the old lady fondly and went off.

The motoring party from Gorham did not get back until after dark. Then Mary found the atmosphere unpropitious for putting forward her plea concerning her continuance at Mardocks. She and Granny had arranged it delightfully. Her five working days she proposed to spend at the cottage on the burn, as Granny called it, stoutly refusing to acknowledge the Folder's claim to be called a river. All rivers were gauged by the state of Clyde on which the poem and the prose of her life had been spent. Then on Friday and Saturday morning she would proceed somehow to spend the week-end with her family. So did this delightful but somewhat furtive pair of rebels seek to break away. But listening to enraptured accounts of the progress of the workmen at Gorham Lacy, observing the deepening of her mother's social pride, Mary withheld her request. Another day could not make so very much difference, then her father would be home.

"Oh, it's a heavenly place, Moll!" said Bee as she unwound the veil from her small, vivacious head. "Furniture is the next item on the programme. Munn and I have decided to go to Manchester for a couple of days next week. Haven't we, Munn, and wouldn't you like to come?"
