Beebe branch of the CIBC closing in June

By Matthew McCully

Clients of the Beebe CIBC bank were told early last week that the branch will be closing this coming June.

According to Jon Kastikainen, spokesperson for the CIBC, over 80 per cent of client transactions take place outside of a banking centre, through on-line, mobile and telephone banking.

“As a result of this shift, we’ve made adjustments to our network that includes a small number of rural and urban banking centre closures,” he explained in an emailed statement on Friday.

“The decision to close any of our banking centres is not taken lightly and we carefully consider all options before making this decision,” Kastikainen commented.

The Stanstead Banking Centre (in Beebe) will be closed and consolidated with the CIBC in Ayer’s Cliff.

“The Stanstead Banking Centre will close at the end of business on June 13, 2019,” he said.

Kastikainen explained that the majority of the bank’s clients in Stanstead are banking using digital options. “Our team will spend time with clients in the coming months to help them learn more about these convenient options for their everyday banking and to help them through this transition.”

The Beebe branch has four employees. Kastikainen said the CIBC would be working with them on other options available with the bank.

The existing ATMs will be removed once the banking centre closes.

10 new murals at Pat Burns Arena

STEVE BLAKE

The photo of Parent and Meeker is one of 10 new large-scale murals decorating the Pat Burns arena.

The murals, mounted by former Townships Bob Fisher, represent the history of hockey on the border.

The photos feature faces – many of them familiar – of boys and girls, men and women from days long gone by and to the present.

Pat Burns’ widow, Line Burns, was on hand Saturday to help Stanstead College unveil the new murals on the wall above the seats at the Pat Burns Arena, and to drop the ceremonial first puck at the beginning of the game.

Family Drop-In free music workshop

THE SCOOP

MABLE HASTINGS

The Potton Family Drop-In (created by the Potton Committee and Ressources Relais Memphremagog) is offering a free Music Workshop at the Mansonville Town Hall (2, Chemin Vale Perkins, 2nd floor community room) on Tuesday, November 27th from 9am-11am with a certified music therapist from the Centre L'Élan.

Organizer, Janie Lefebvre (Ressource Relais) and Vickie Levasseur (Centre L'Élan) are hoping that families will join them for the fun event where those attending can make their own musical instrument, have a small jam session and learn about the benefits of music therapy.

"We strive to make these sessions fun for parents and their children," said Lefebvre, "music speaks to all age groups and having a certified music therapist with us is sure to enhance the activity."

The Staff Team from the Ressource Relais Memphremagog is providing services not only in Magog but in Stanstead and Potton as well. Their main mandate is to help people in the community and refer them to appropriate resources and services based on their needs and what they are going through. Lefebvre has been the resource person in Potton for a year and a half now. While she has made contact with many, especially parents with young families, she hopes to organize activities that will interest others. Following this event, she will be holding another in December with a Christmas theme.

"The objective of the drop-in is to bring young families and parents together with their children," explains Lefebvre. "Meeting other parents and children breaks the isolation and this can be a chance to get out and enjoy the company of others while partaking in a fun activity."

Like most activities organized, the success is measured by the interest and attendance and the Ressource Relais team is hoping that this activity will appeal to families. For more information about the activity or the Ressource Relais Memphremagog services, call Janie Lefebvre at 819-580-0942 or email: err.rue@gmail.com

Seigneuries du Carrefour wins two awards

By Record Staff

Last week the Seigneuries du Carrefour, in Sherbrooke, was honored twice by the Regroupement québécois des résidences pour aînés (RQRA) during its annual convention.

The seniors residence received two awards; one for exceptional engagement, and one 'Coup de Coeur'.

It was the residence's Life Enrichment Manager, Luce Bessette, was recognized with an 'Exceptional Engagement' award for her drive and energy, which are reflected throughout all projects she takes on. Bessette implemented a sign language course as well as several different fitness activities.

Seigneuries du Carrefour also won the hearts of the jury, thanks to its 'Contagion Mission!' project. The goal of the program was to facilitate the integration of a hearing impaired resident by teaching sign language to the residents and employees.

The unifying project enabled participants to create new friendships, raise awareness to a different reality, and acquire a new knowledge.

The RQRA annual convention was held at the Fairmont Manoir Richelieu last week with 400 attendees.

Seeing through the stats from a male perspective

affected by a statistic like “one in four women have been the victims of some sort of assault, whether sexual or violent”. It does make you think, if only briefly, in your own mind: “Can this be true? If these numbers are even close to accurate, it’s terrifying.”

In high school, when we were first shown the numbers, and presented with the idea that this was, in fact a serious problem, I remember a lot of us laughed it off. It was easier. We joked about it, made fun of the posters, tuned out those who lectured us on it. For some, we demonized the recognition of it. Yes, violence against women is a very bad thing, and those who do it are very bad people, but there was no way that it was any of us. These misogynists were monsters and they should be punished to the full extent of the law, but they were a different breed – not like any of us.

Marc Lepine, and the killings at the L'école Polytechnique in Montreal happened when I was in Grade 9. Fourteen Women shot dead in under 20 minutes, while they attended class. All because a troubled man felt that girls were the source of his hardships.

It was when I was confronted with this tragedy, this monster, that my eyes and ears opened. I listened carefully to snippets of my friends' conversations. I talked to the girls I knew and felt close to about the subject. I absorbed the songs and shows and films and magazine articles and ads through a different lens. I watched, I saw, I heard. That was when the one in four statistic became clear for me.

What I had seen and heard from these guys and girls in my class was that anyone was capable of hurting. Harsh words, harassment, violent behavior, dominating relationships, objectification; these things were what my friends suffered through. These things were what my friends did. These were things that I did. Or could do.

By the time I graduated high school, my eyes weren't just open, the way I viewed the whole world and my corner of it had radically altered. Eyelids had been torn off and I could not stop seeing what was happening. And that includes the introspective and critical eye in the mirror.

Now, nearly thirty years later, I understand more than ever that the solution lies within each of us. Social media; the dogged pursuit for equality; the perceptions of power and privilege being rethought and re-considered under saner and more equitable lines.

We are all capable of violence, of objectification, of the abuse of a power structure that some are “lucky” enough to be born on the powerful side of, but it is in knowing this that we are capable of stopping, of changing, of influencing others, of equalizing or abolishing such a biased and hurtful societal “norm”. That we are capable of looking into that mirror with something resembling a chance at enlightenment and change; that’s where the power lies.

As we approach Dec. 6, a day set aside to commemorate the loss of those 14 women, and a day to consider how we can stop gender-based intimidation and subjectification, my hope is that you do the same as I did when this atrocity first happened. Keep your eyes and ears open. We need to go beyond the statistics if there is any chance to rid ourselves from violence against women.

I'm not much of a mathematician. I understand how statistics work, but their power has not impacted me much in my lifetime. Yet, when asked to consider the topic of violence, sexual harassment and intimidation against women, it was the numbers that first jumped out at me. It's hard not to be af-

Bishop's hosts Big Buddies Carnival for 57 local children

By Emilie Hackett
Special to the Record

Face-painting, bowling, limbo, musical chairs, and many more carnival games were set up in the Bishop's University Student Union Building (SUB) on Saturday, Nov. 24. The annual holiday Carnival is a tradition within the university's Bug Buddies club, where over 50 Bishop's students are paired with Lennoxville Elementary School (LES) students for an afternoon of fun activities.

The Bishop's SUB was packed Saturday afternoon as 114 Big and Little Buddies and a dozen volunteers gathered from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. for the Carnival festivities. With a multitude of carnival games, popcorn cups, juice boxes, and Christmas music, the 57 Buddies pairs were in for a treat.

One of the university's most popular clubs, Big Buddies organizes a total of eight activities each year with LES students. At the beginning of the school year, members of the club's executive team visit the LES classes to inform students about the program. This year, they received over 150 applications.

The club being pair-based, Big Buddies can only accept as many children as volunteer Bishop's students they have. They recruit heavily every semester hoping to cater to more children. Big Buddy Nanthicha Laniel, a third-year elementary education student, explained that the program enables the children and students to grow together. Most Big Buddies participate all three or four years of their degree and are often paired with the same children.

According to the executive team, the mentorship program is equally beneficial for the children and the Bishop's students. It helps the students relieve stress and bond with younger versions of themselves.

A group shot of the Big (BU) and Little (LES) Buddies pairs, who meet up once a month for an afternoon of fun activities.

Laniel joined the club because she loved "how it brings the community together. Most Bishop's students do not get to interact with the kids in Lennoxville." She added that "it also allows for students who aren't necessarily in the education program to get an opportunity to mentor children."

Hosting events one Saturday a month, Big and Little Buddies experience an array of activities. From trips to a pumpkin patch, to apple-picking, to swimming at the university pool, there are many opportunities for the LES and Bishop's students to bond.

Pairs are formed based on compatibility, as each Big and Little Buddy fills out a form with their interests and habits. The $10 membership fee, paid by each Big and Little Buddy, helps cover materials, snacks, and transportation for the events.

Phoenix holds annual blood drive Wednesday

Record Staff

On Wednesday, Nov. 28, the Sherbrooke Phoenix is inviting fans to donate blood in their annual blood drive to be held at the Delta Hotel from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. in collaboration with the Sherbrooke Police.

This year, Alex-Olivier Voyer, assistant of the Phoenix and native of Sherbrooke will be acting as honorary co-chair along with police officers Mélyssa Brochu, and Philippe Dubois.

"I am truly honored to be honorary co-chair for the blood drive. I invite you, in my of your day, but it could also change lives. It's a gesture that can really make a difference difference," said Voyer.

Last year, 369 donors showed up for the drive. This year's target is 375.

It is always possible to give blood every 56 days, or six times a year.

Each donor will receive a Flex ticket. Phoenix players and their mascot Onyx will be present during the day to meet those present and to help the team of volunteers.

The newly elected MPP, Amanda Simard, a young lawyer and former town councillor, put her career on the line by privately pleading against and then publicly denouncing Ford's actions.

Ford's attack on franco-Ontarians hard to explain

PETER BLACK

Last fall a headline in this space boldly proclaimed "Franco-Ontarians to get new university." Well, so much for that.

What franco-Ontarians did get was Doug Ford, and what even the most reasonable observer would describe as an inexplicable attack on the province's 600,000 or so French-speaking citizens. Specifically, Ford axed the previous Liberal government's long-delayed plan to create a French-language university for the Toronto region. He also cut the office of French language services commissioner.

Ford made the cuts in the guise of budget belt-tightening, blaming the previous administration for drunken sailor-style spending. The $80 million for the university and $2.8 million for the commissariat, as critics have pointed out, is but a drop or two in Ontario's $150 billion budget bucket.

If the face of a storm of anger and outrage, last week Ford walked back somewhat on the eliminating of the franco commissioner but did not budget on the cancelled university.

Still, what's done was done and folks have been left wondering what could possibly motivate a targeted strike on a group of such historic and symbolic importance in Canada's largest province? Surely the cuts were not the actions of a governing party hoping to add seats in regions that shunned Ford's Progressive Conservatives in the June election.

The Tories only won one seat in Ontario's collection of francophone-rich ridings, that one being Glengarry-Prescott-Russell, near the Quebec border. The newly elected MPP, Amanda Simard, a young lawyer and former town councillor, put her career on the line by privately pleading against and then publicly denouncing Ford's actions.

As far as we know, despite her career-limiting protest, Simard is still the parliamentary assistant to Justice Minister Caroline Mulroney, who Ford made a full minister for francophone affairs in his attempt at damage control. Technically speaking, Mulroney could qualify as a linguistic minority herself, growing up as an anglophone in father Brian's Westmount mansion.

One ventures gingerly into any comparison of the relative status of Quebec's anglos and Ontario's francos. Both groups have their gripes and grievances about their treatment over the years at the hand of the majority linguistic group.

For Quebec anglophones, the litany of perceived abuses imposed on them would include the relatively recent appropriation of English health institutions by provincial authorities, the series of battles over English on signs, and, of course, Law 101 and its sweeping changes to the use of language in business, education and government administration.

On the franco-Ontarian side, the story of the most recent decades would be more about incremental improvements in government services. The landmark change was the French Language Services Act of 1986, brought in by Liberal Premier David Peterson. He was a key ally of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa in the struggle for the Meech Lake Accord constitutional deal.

There are certain fundamental differences in the status and rights of Quebec anglos and Ontario francos. Perhaps the most stark is the amount of choice parents have in education. In Ontario, students can attend school in either official language, subject to board boundaries. There are no restrictions on where newcomers can send their kids.

In Quebec, with some special exceptions, newcomers without eligibility for English public education under Law 101 must send their children to French school. In the perverse corollary of those restrictions, francophone parents are not allowed to send their kids to English school. English-speaking parents with eligibility, on the other hand, can, and do - in numbers - send their children to French school.

Education rights are deeply ingrained in the soul of franco-Ontarians. If Premier Ford were to crack open a Canadian history text he would read about his predecessor from a century ago, James Whitney. In 1912, his government approved what is called Regulation 17, which banned French language education in Ontario schools beyond grade two.

Regulation 17, which had as much to do with religious intolerance as linguistic, sparked outrage, led to a prolonged political and legal struggle, and ultimately petered out in failure before it was rescinded in 1927.

Still, as much as Quebec anglos may feel their education rights embattled, they have never been subjected to a measure aimed at forced assimilation as were Ontario's francophones.

"They're fighters," said Premier Ford, in announcing his slight retreat on his attack on French services. One could add, they've had to be.

Concordia stings the Gaiters to end their perfect record

By Emilie Hackett
Special to the Record

The Bishop's Gaiters basketball teams traveled to Montreal on Saturday, Nov. 24 to battle the Concordia Stingers. Despite their best efforts, both the men's and the women's teams fell to their rivals.

Abdul Kamane and Kevin Davis's 26 points each were not enough to outlast the Stingers, who won 105-91. This win cuts the Gaiters' perfect record short as they Stingers sit in the top spot in the RSEQ standings. Bishop's was never able to hold the lead, as the Stingers outshot Bishop's 84.4 per cent to 58.1 per cent from the charity stripe. The Gaiters will be back in action on Thursday, Nov. 29 in Quebec City to face the Laval Rouge et Or at 8 p.m.

The Bishop's women's team fell 72-52 despite tying the Stingers 17-17 in the first quarter. The fourth quarter was crucial for Concordia as they outscored Bishop's 16-3 in the frame. Gaiters' Ashley Milhomme led all scorers with 21 points, but Bishop's 23 turnovers sealed the deal in Concordia's favour. The Gaiters will travel to Quebec City to face the Laval Rouge et Or on Thursday at 6 p.m.

Laine nets 5 goals, Jets defeat Blues 8-4

The Associated Press

Patrik Laine scored five goals Saturday in the Winnipeg Jets' 8-4 victory at St. Louis, two short of 97-year-old NHL record.

It was the 61st five-goal game in league history. Darryl Sittler of the Toronto Maple Leafs was the last player to score six goals in a game, on April 22, 1976, against Boston.

Brandon Tanev, Blake Wheeler, and Jack Roslovic also scored for the Jets, who snapped their first two-game losing streak of the season.

Laine's five goal outburst gives him a league-leading 16 goals in 10 November games.

Joe Malone, who played in the early days of the NHL with the Montreal Canadiens, scored seven goals in a game with the Quebec Bulldogs in January 1920. He also had a six-goal game and three five-goal games.

Laurent Brossoit allowed four goals on 27 shots for his first career win against St. Louis. He improved to 4-1-1.

Vladimir Tarasenko, David Perron, Ryan O'Reilly, and Pat Maroon scored for the Blues.

BLACKHAWKS 5, PANTHERS 4, OT

SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) _ Erik Gustafsson scored 2:32 into overtime to give Chicago the win.

Gustafsson wristed in his third goal of the season to beat Florida goalie James Reimer, snapping Chicago's two-game overall losing streak and eight-game road skid.

Alex DeBrincat tied it with 2 seconds left in regulation and David Kampf, Patrick Kane and Alexandre Fortin also tallied for the Blackhawks. Gustav Forsling had two assists and Kampf added an assist for a three-point night.

Goalie Cam Ward made his first start since Nov. 12 and stopped 34 shots.

Mike Hoffman, Jared McCann, Aaron Ekblad and Frank Vatrano scored goals for the Panthers. Jonathan Huberdeau recorded a pair of assists.

Reimer made 36 saves for the Panthers, who lost their third straight.

MAPLE LEAFS 6, FLYERS 0

TORONTO (AP) _ Andreas Johnsson had a hat trick midway through the first period and Toronto routed Philadelphia.

John Tavares, Patrick Marleau and Josh Leivo also scored, and backup goalie Garret Sparks made 35 saves for his first shutout of the season and the second of his career. Mitch Marner added two assists.

Calvin Pickard, who was claimed by the Flyers on waivers from Toronto before the start of the season, allowed four goals on six shots for Philadelphia (10-11-2) before being pulled. Anthony Stolarz allowed two goals on 34 shots in relief.

BRUINS 3, CANADIENS 2

MONTREAL (AP) _ John Moore scored a power-play goal with 2:57 left and Boston beat Montreal.

David Backes and Jake DeBrusk also scored to help the Bruins win for third time in four games. Tuukka Rask made 32 saves, and David Krejci had two assists.

Jonathan Drouin and Tomas Tatar scored in the third period for Montreal, and Carey Price stopped 32 shots. The Canadiens have lost four straight.

PENGUINS 4, BLUE JACKETS 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) _ Jake Guentzel scored his first career regular-season hat trick to send Pittsburgh past Columbus.

Tanner Pearson also scored for the Penguins, who have won two of their last three after losing nine of their previous 10. Kris Letang had three assists and Sidney Crosby two. Phil Kessel continued an eight-game point streak for Pittsburgh and Evgeni Malkin has a seven-game run.

Casey DeSmith made 37 saves for Pittsburgh.

Cam Atkinson and Scott Harrington scored for the Blue Jackets, who lost for the second time in three games.

In 1922, Egyptologist Howard Carter became the first person to enter Tutankhamen's tomb in 3,000 years.

In 1992, it was announced that the Queen of England would begin paying income taxes, the first time a British monarch would do so since the 1930s.

In 2000, nearly three weeks after Election Day, Florida's presidential election results were certified in favor of George W. Bush.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Mary Edwards Walker (1832-1919), physician/activist; Charles M. Schulz (1922-2000), cartoonist; Robert Goulet (1933-2007), singer/actor; Rich Little (1938- ), actor/comedian; Tina Turner (1939- ), singer/actress; Dale Jarrett (1956- ), race car driver; Harold Reynolds (1960- ), baseball player/sportscaster; Peter Facinelli (1973- ), actor; DJ Khaled (1975- ), Roosevelt signed legislation in December 1941 that decreed Thanksgiving would always fall on the fourth Thursday of November. Thanksgiving had been celebrated on the last Thursday of November, which in some years was the fifth, since 1863.

TODAY'S SPORTS: In 1917, the National Hockey League was founded in Montreal, Quebec, Canada.

TODAY'S QUOTE: "It seems beyond the comprehension of people that someone can be born to draw comic strips, but I think I was." — Charles M. Schulz

TODAY'S MOON: Between full moon (Nov. 22) and last quarter moon (Nov. 29).

As this was our Election meeting and many were only one year in office, Comde Lucie moved that there be no change and everyone accepted. We discussed raffles for spring and we have three articles, we are planning to have one raffle in February for Valentines Day.

Our Christmas meeting will be on December 11 at 5 p.m. The Christmas supper will be catered by Comde Helen.

Do Just One Thing

By Danny Seo

Do you keep a box of baking soda in the refrigerator to keep it smelling nice and fresh? When it's time to replace the box, don't toss the baking soda in the trash. While it may not be active enough to bake with, you can still do a myriad of other things with old baking soda. Keep it handy near your stove or grill; if there's a flare-up or fire, baking soda is a great extinguisher. Mix baking soda with equal parts sugar and place it where you've spotted roaches. The sugar attracts them to the mixture, but the baking soda is deadly to them. And finally, you can dump it into the sink or tub and use it as an all-natural cleaner.

Your Birthday

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 2018

Use your intelligence to figure things out. Relying on what others tell you will be misleading. You must make life adjustments based on facts. A personal change will be rewarding if you follow your instincts and practice moderation. Make love a priority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Look at the big picture, but don't feel that you must do everything at once. You need to pace yourself to fit your budget, lifestyle and availability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You don't have to make a change just because someone else does. You may need to adjust your plans, but it's still best to do your own thing for your own benefit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Look over contracts, investments and issues you want to adjust before the end of the year. Negotiate on your own behalf. A gift or reward is heading your way.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Situations will escalate quickly. Don't give in to anger when intelligence is what's required. A steady pace and a carefully considered plan are in your best interest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Information will be revealed. Take caution when dealing with institutions or government agencies. Make sure all your personal documents are in order. Your feelings for someone will change due to an emotional incident.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Look for the path of least resistance. Remember what's happened in the past and make decisions based on what you know and the experiences you've undergone.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Partnerships will need to be nurtured. It will be difficult to know where you stand given the dialogue you have with someone. Expect pertinent information to be left out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Don't limit what you can do when you should be letting your creative imagination run wild. Explore the possibilities and discover what you are capable of doing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Fill your day with enjoyable activities and people. A shopping spree or an event you've been looking forward to will lift your spirits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Keep a close watch over domestic situations that have the potential to spin out of control. Someone may withhold information that would alter your feelings about something.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Emotional matters will cause you to question what someone is telling you or asking you to do. If a change is required, look inward and make self-improvements. Don't try to change others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Getting in touch with an old friend or relative and making plans for upcoming events will lead to travel plans or a conversation that could shape your next move.

Most errors occur at which trick?

By Phillip Alder

Dale E. Turner, an actor, said, "Some of the best lessons we ever learn are learned from past mistakes. The error of the past is the wisdom and success of the future."

Correct — but it is still true that, despite numerous admonitions from teachers and authors, many bridge players do not think at trick one. They immediately and blindly plow forward.

To try to cure this trait, David Bird has written "Trick One" (Master Point Press).

Englishman Bird is best known for his amusing books, but he is a good writer who explains things clearly. In 16 declarer-play and seven defense chapters, he covers the ground thoroughly. There are then 28 declarer-play and 16 defense problems to try, the diagramed deal being one of them.

How should South plan the play in four spades after West leads the heart eight?

South seems to have only three losers: one spade, one heart and one diamond. What might go wrong?

West appears to have led from a short suit. If he also has ace-nine-fourth of spades, he might be able to get a trump promotion. Note that that happens if declarer wins the first trick. West takes the second or third trick with his spade ace and leads his second heart. East wins and plays a third heart, and West's spade nine must take a trick.

Since East would probably have bid with six hearts headed by the king-queen-jack, South should duck the first trick, take the second with his heart ace, cross to dummy with a club and play on spades (carefully allowing for East's having the bare ace).

Strong feelings for husband's ex

Dear Annie

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 2018

Dear Annie: I have a tricky problem going on right now. I am married and have been for a while — 20-plus years. It's been a typical marriage, with its ups and downs, but I'd say I've been fairly content and things have been pretty good. Right now, I would say I am in the middle of my life, so this issue could very well be a midlife crisis. I have a great relationship with my husband's ex-wife. We have always gotten along famously. Lately, I have been having strong feelings for her that I shouldn't be having. I have four stepchildren, and there is always some function or get-together with all of us. We typically have a wonderful time together. I find myself thinking about her all the time when I'm not around her. I know that nothing can come of these feelings, and it seems ridiculous to me, but I can't seem to stop them.

I never felt this way in the early days of my marriage. It started a few years ago. I'm not sure what brought it on, but she is a great person, and maybe I've just started to realize that. I'm even dreaming about her at night. I have had same-sex feelings off and on my whole life and was in a brief relationship with a woman before I met my husband. It was quick but intense. When I met my husband, I only had eyes for him, so I didn't think anything more about women until now. I am sure I should probably talk to a therapist because this can't be normal. I've tried everything to stop the thoughts, but they just seem to be getting stronger. I don't want to be consumed with this any longer.

My husband and stepchildren would be shocked to know about this, but I am very good at hiding my feelings and would never say a word to them. I wonder, though, whether any of my feelings show when I am around the family. I'm open to any suggestions you might have. — Pining Away Day After Day

Dear Pining Away: Before deciding whether to act on your feelings, you should talk to a therapist, as you acknowledged in your letter.

Developing strong feelings for another person could be a sign that there is a lack of intimacy in your own marriage. If that's the case, then the next person you should talk to is your husband.

The type of uncontrollable thoughts you have could also be a sign of obsessive-compulsive disorder. The way around them is through them. The more you resist intrusive thoughts the more they come. That which we resist persists. You sound pretty calm, considering the catastrophic potential of your acting on your feelings, and you will know so much more and be ready to act — one way or the other — after you have talked this through with a professional.

Dear Annie: A while ago, the issue of noisy children in restaurants was discussed in your column. You have yet to discuss the more ubiquitous problem of noisy adults in restaurants. — David B.
