Crashes shock Britons

LONDON (Reuters) — The British press united today in horror and anger to demand re-examination of air safety regulations as Britain counted a death toll of 160 killed during the weekend in two air crashes.

Filling their pages with pictures and blanket coverage of the two crashes—one at Perpignan, France, Saturday, which killed 88 persons and the second in central England Sunday which killed 72—the seven national dailies gave equal prominence on page one of their calls for an investigation into the type of aircraft used by vacation charter companies and the way they are flown.

At Perpignan, aeronautical experts continued sifting the wreckage of a Spanish-bound four-engine DC-4 which hit a Pyrenean mountainside killing all 83 passengers and five crew members aboard.

HIT POWER LINE

In Stockport, England, a team of doctors completed emergency operations on the 12 survivors of the second crash in which a four-engine Argonaut airliner hit a 30,000-volt electric power sub-station and fell into the centre of the industrial town.

The plane was on a charter flight returning vacationers from Palma in Majorca. It crashed in flames only four miles from nearby Manchester airport to which it was heading.

Most papers pointed out that there were several factors common to both crashes.

Ship protest

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press charged Sunday that Washington is trying to shield those responsible for what the Russians claim was an American attack on a Soviet ship Friday.

At the same time, Russian demonstrators marched outside an American exhibit in Leningrad for the second day in support of the government charges. A U.S. embassy spokesman in Moscow said the demonstrators "prevented or at least effectively discouraged" Russians from attending the American industrial exhibit.

State aid to university vital

As long as society has an immediate need for a university education the universities should be assured the necessary funds and resources to develop, said the Quebec Minister of Education and Justice Saturday afternoon at the 1967 University of Sherbrooke convocation.

Jean Jacques Bertrand who in addition to receiving an honorary degree in law, was guest speaker at the U of S convocation held at the Central Pavilion Theatre, at the university.

Three other honorary degrees were awarded at the ceremonies as well.

Courtney C. Brown, Dean of Columbia University's Graduate School of Business was presented with an honorary degree in administration.

Canadian Author Hugh MacLennan was given an honorary L.L.D.

The Reverend Father Raymond H. Shevenell was given an honorary degree in education.

Mr. Bertrand speaking to a capacity audience said that the recent developments at the University of Sherbrooke are witness of Quebec's role in the Province's priorities.

It is largely because of the universities that Quebec occupies a choice position on the North American Continent, said the speaker.

For progress it is important that "our universities open their doors to everyone who has the required aptitudes."

"But, while on the one hand the state allows the universities the resources so that they can fulfill their duty, the universities on the other hand, have the duty to prepare those who assume the future of the nation."

TOWN THREATENED — Smoke from a forest fire is visible at the top of this aerial photograph taken Sunday over the Northwestern

Ontario community of Sioux Lookout. Most of the town's 2,700 residents were evacuated in the face of the fire which covered about 6,000 acres. Sioux Lookout is a railway and tourist centre 170 miles northwest of the Lakehead. (CP Wirephoto)

A northern town flees as forest fire advances

CHAPLEAU, Ont. (CP) — Most of Chapleau's 3,800 residents were evacuated Sunday as a mammoth forest fire burned its way to within two miles of the town outskirts.

Women and children packed the CPR station for emergency trains to Sudbury, some making the 170-mile journey in box cars. Others piled into private automobiles for a 120-mile trip northeast to Timmins.

Thick clouds of smoke rolled over the town during the afternoon as firefighters battled desperately the 5,000-acre timber blaze which crept five miles toward Chapleau during the day.

The first train left Chapleau at 9:30 p.m. carrying 135 passengers in eight boxcars. A second train was loaded early today.

AID ILL, ELDERLY
Chronically-ill and elderly patients in hospital were to be evacuated later today.

Police were reported patrolling streets to prevent looting of evacuated homes. Those who left town were asked to leave their garden hoses hooked up in case fire breaks out in town. Appeals were broadcast in Timmins and Sudbury for local people to make room available for the evacuees. The Timmins town hall switchboard operator was swamped with offers of bedding, food and accommodation.

Early today, department of lands and forest officials said a southwest wind that was driving the fire toward the town was dropping.

There was some hope that 10 bulldozers in operation would be able to contain the fire. Thunderstorms were forecast, but weather has been unpredictable in the area recently.

HIGHWAY CLOSED
One of Chapleau's two highway exits—south to the Trans-Canada Highway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie—was blocked by the fire Sunday but the Timmins road remained open to emergency traffic.

Corporal J. R. Lewis, Chapleau detachment commander of the provincial police, said by Sunday evening about 90 per cent of the town's women and children had been evacuated. Chapleau has been threatened before by forest fires but has never before had to undergo actual evacuation.

In 1922, and again in 1947, when fires edged close to the town, CPR trains stood by in the yards ready to move residents. But in both cases wind shifts and improved moisture conditions made evacuation unnecessary.

Two split voice prize

MONTREAL (CP) — Romanian soprano Marina Kirovici and Russian baritone Yuri Mazoruk got a standing ovation in Montreal's Place des Arts Saturday night after tying for first place in the international voice competition.

The two singers, will split $10,000 in first prize money.

Sponsored by the Institute International de Musique du Canada, the competition and Saturday's final gala concert were part of Expo 67's six-month World Festival of the Arts.

Third prize went to Gwendolyn Killebrew, a mezzo-soprano from Philadelphia, who won $2,500, and fourth to Vladimir Atlantov, a tenor from Leningrad who received $1,500.

All the performers were accompanied by the Montreal Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Otto Werner Mueller.

Twelve finalists, among them three Canadians, competed in Saturday's concert.

Maurice Brown, a Toronto bass, and Gwendolyn Evaline Sims, a soprano from New York City, tied for fifth place and divided a $1,000 prize.

The remaining vocalists received $500 each. Among them were Bruno Laplante, baritone, Beauharnois, Que.; Gloria Richard, soprano, Bouctouche, N.B.; and Bruce Brewer, tenor, San Antonio, Tex.

The 10-man jury from eight countries was headed by Judge Jacques Vadbonneur and included George Little and Jean-Paul Jeannotte, two distinguished Canadian musicians.

Strikes continue

QUEBEC (CP) — Discussions between Hydro-Quebec and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents 8,000 employees of the publicly-owned utility, were to continue today in an attempt to settle a series of rotating strikes that began May 8.

The talks are reported to have centred on seniority clauses in a new contract for office workers, tradesmen and technicians to replace the last agreement between the two parties, which expired Dec. 31.

The rotating strikes have been held in various regions of the province since May 8, with workers staging walkouts of 12 and 24 hours.

Israel — Egypt fight flares fiercely today

TEL AVIV (CP) — Fighting broke out between Israel and its Arab neighbor today for the third time in 20 years.

Heavy fighting raged in Egypt's Sinai desert — the route the Israelis took to reach the Suez Canal in 1956. Air battles and bombing raids were reported by both sides. Forces of Egypt, Jordan and Syria were involved on the Arab side.

Pearson men briefed on the Middle East

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and members of the cabinet were being briefed this morning on military and diplomatic aspects of widespread Arab-Israeli fighting in the Middle East.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said the session began at 8:30 a.m. It was conducted by officials of the defence and external affairs departments.

Experts in the African and Middle East divisions of external affairs were on duty at 3 a.m. after the first reports of fighting. They called Mr. Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin at 6 a.m. when they had firm information.

The spokesman said neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Martin have plans "at the moment" to attend UN Security Council sessions today in New York. Both felt they should be in Ottawa to make decisions here as necessary.

The spokesman said reports received here confirm heavy fighting on land and in the air between Israeli and Arab forces. The prime minister would have no public comment "until he knows more facts about the situation."

In an interview, Mr. Martin declined comment beyond saying that he is in continuous touch with Canada's UN delegation, headed by George Ignatieff.

The areas are: Southern Indian Lake on the Churchill River drainage and Split Lake on the Nelson River drainage in northern Manitoba; a section of south central Newfoundland south east of Red Indian Lake; and Sandgirt and Lobstick lakes near Churchill Falls, Labrador.

Armada invades Expo 67

MONTREAL (CP) — A small Scandinavian armada invaded the world's fair Sunday under a scorching sun that gave fairgoers a preview of what is in store for them before the end of Montreal's short hot summer.

Cannon fire thundered across the St. Lawrence River as the three ships — a Swedish destroyer, a Finnish frigate and a Danish frigate — sailed under the Jacques Cartier Bridge.

Each of the three ships fired 21-gun salutes as they approached Montreal harbor and the Expo 67 site and their salutes were returned by a Canadian shore battery at the tip of Cite du Havre where the warships tied up.

Arriving in Montreal as part of Expo's visiting ships program were the destroyer Italian, the frigate Matti Kurki—the first Finnish warship ever to visit Canada—and the Danish frigate Ingolf.

The arrival came in late afternoon after thousands of sun-burned visitors to the fair had spent the day in shady spots and in pavilions which were much less crowded than usual, apparently because of the hot weather.

Kuwait, meanwhile, proclaimed a "defensive war," against Israel and the Algerian press service said troops of the well-trained Algerian army will leave Algeria tonight for the Middle East.

In Rabat, King Hassan II instructed units of the Moroccan armed forces to be sent to the Middle East, officials said.

The fighting began after a series of minor clashes over the last few months across the Syrian-Israeli border, followed by Egypt's command May 17 for the United Nations to withdraw the UN Emergency Force that had separated Israel and Egypt on the Sinai frontier and at the Gaza Strip.

The UN Security Council, which had met fruitlessly for two weeks in an effort to preserve the peace, was called into emergency session in New York.

In Washington, the U.S. government called on all parties to support the council, and said: "Tragic consequences will flow from this needless and destructive struggle if the fighting does not stop immediately."

GRAVE CONCERN

Britain expressed grave concern and launched new discussions among the big four powers.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said the Canadian leader was made aware of the fighting and a number of emergency meetings were likely to be held.

External Affairs Minister Martin said in an interview he has been in continuous touch with Canadian officials at the UN since early today. He declined to comment further.

The fighting first erupted on the Sinai desert front between Egyptian and Israeli troops and tanks, then spread to the Syrian and Jordanian fronts. Both sides accused the other of starting the war after weeks of crises.

Egypt said Cairo and other Egyptian targets were bombed. Damascus radio reported that Syrian air force planes bombed the oil refinery in Haifa and left it in flames. The broadcast said airfields in northern Israel were heavily damaged. Amman radio said Jordanian planes also took part in the raid.

Calls Boston riots an area 'disaster'

BOSTON (AP) — Three nights of rock throwing, looting, arson, and scattered sniper fire in the predominantly Negro Roxbury section has left more than 70 persons injured, 60 arrested, and property damage estimated in the millions.

Three Massachusetts state representatives from Boston Negro sections asked Republican Governor John A. Volpe today to declare the riot-torn section a disaster area to make loans and federal aid available to businessmen there.

"The people in this community are appalled at the violence, wanton waste, deliberate destruction of property, the loss of jobs held by people in the community and the unnecessary escalation of the problems in financing insurance and achieving economic resurgence of these areas," a letter said.

The focal point of violence Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights was Blue Hill Avenue, a major street leading from the city's shopping and business sections to the southeast residential areas and suburbs.

Slash Reds

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. marines smashed a Communist regiment 25 miles southwest of Da Nang and reported that 570 of the regiment were killed. Marine casualties were 73 dead and 170 wounded.

The U.S. command said the marines rolled up their lopsided victory below the big marine base at Da Nang against a crack regiment after two days of intense fighting. The Communist regiment, estimated about 3,000 men before the battle, slipped away to the North Saturday under intense air and artillery hammering.

Mau Mau found

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Two bedraggled, middle-aged Mau Mau fighters, clad in antelope-skin cloaks, monkey-skin mufflers and caps, related in a Kenya police cell Sunday how they emerged from the wilds of Mount Kenya forest last week after living in hiding for about 14 years—unaware that Kenya had won independence.

Police are holding them in custody at Kerugoya, on the slopes of Mount Kenya, for interrogation.

ROCK ISLAND — (Special) — After four days of investigation, the Rock Island-Stanstead police department has arrested juveniles believed to have broken into Cowens store, Sunnyside and Sacred Heart schools, private homes, Happy's Diner, and Brown's Drug store at the Boundary.

There were seven juveniles aged from 15 to 17. Loot taken included over $500 worth of merchandise taken from Cowens.

The boys were "going on a trip" they told the police.

The wardrobe chosen from Cowens' included pants, jackets, underwear, cuff links and tie clasps and shoes; even four suitcases to carry them in.

Roland Fournier, police chief, said he and his men found the loot hidden in a hole a distance from Sunnyside school.

Also stolen was jewellery, some of it thrown in the Tomfovia river.

The boys, some of whom have been held since the night of May 31 in the Rock Island jail, were all taken to the Sherbrooke jail on June 3 and will appear in juvenile court.

Another youth, but not a member of the "gang" will appear on a charge of stealing hubcaps. He is from Ville St. Laurent.

Another youth is charged with assault of a Stanstead College student for no apparent reason.

He is charged with assaulting Russell Brown, doing private police duty at the Sacred Heart school dance.

The full police department, Roland Fournier, William Wadleigh, Ronald Winter and David Audet, carried out the police duties, and were assisted the final 24 hours by Bob Dickie, Montreal, a security adviser expert on fingerprints.

Stanstead College closing is held

By IVY HATCH
(Record Correspondent)

STANSTEAD — The annual closing exercises of Stanstead College took place on Saturday, with the Baccalaureate service taking place at eleven o'clock in Centenary United church and the prize giving in the Amaran Gym at noon.

Dr. Howard S. Billings, Deputy minister of Quebec, retiring this year and a former teacher at Stanstead some years ago, was the guest speaker.

Dr. Billings said that his first public speech was made in the same church 40 years ago and Saturday, he made his last speech in his official capacity of Associate Deputy Minister of the Department of Education.

Dr. Billings said that for more than 20 years approximately 10 per cent of the persons teaching classes in the Protestant schools have not had professional training. There is and will be for several years to come a great demand for qualified teachers. He added he hoped some from the graduating class will consider the contribution they are capable of.

Dr. Billings said that some time ago, a leading U.S. university made a survey of what factors are necessary to make a success in life, and found them to be integrity; willingness to learn; and ability to get along with other people.

The speaker then defined each factor. Integrity and character are largely developed by example. The second factor does not mean education must stop with graduation. One need not be a university graduate to be a success and it is because of this that regional schools are being built to teach and train in vocational, technical, cultural and academic subjects. In reference to the third, Dr. Billings inferred that brilliant people are not always a success because they may not get along with others and therefore are unable to make the contribution they are capable of.

His closing remarks were to the graduates, as he said "May the roads rise with you, always at your back, May God Bless and hold you in the hollow of his hands."

Assisting at the service were Rev. P. Gaudine, school chaplain, Raymond Lester, Headmaster, Rev. R. W. Pearce, rector of Christ Church, and Rev. G. Joysey, pastor of Centenary Church, both of Stanstead.

PRIZE - GIVING

The prize-giving was in the Amaran gym and here Philip Scowen, the chairman of the Board officially introduced Dr. Billings. In his opening remarks he made reference to two members of the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Scowen paid tribute to the Headmaster, Mr. Lester and his dedicated staff and said there are many plans for the school endorsed by the Board.

Mr. Lester said: "Today in education is an exciting time. A time for enthusiasm, courage and convictions."

"Here at Stanstead there is an evolution of thinking about the requirements of education and the students need flexibility, purpose, creativeness, and self-education. He added that tomorrow's world belongs to the people of education and training."

He thanked the staff for their cooperation and mentioned Glen Higginsbotham, Robert Johnson, with their families and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McClary, who are leaving this year. He wished the boys coming back a happy summer, and in his words of advice to the graduates, he left the thought that the hardest work is to develop a sense of judgment.

Mr. Scowen, presented from the Board to Mr. and Mrs. McClary a hand painted picture with a suitably engraved brass plaque on the frame, in appreciation of their work.

Two people were killed and seven others injured in three separate accidents over the weekend in the Eastern Townships.

The fatal accident involving a car and a CPR train occurred at a railroad crossing between East Angus and Bury.

There the train hit a car around 10 a.m. Sunday morning dragging it 150 feet. The car finally rolling off the track, crushed, caught on fire.

The passengers Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Denis Mathieu of 955 Side-leau Street, Sherbrooke, both 31, were burned to death.

The second accident, which happened in Windsor early Saturday night was a three-car collision in which five people were injured, one of them seriously.

Two of the three cars in the collision were moving, one was stationary.

One of the moving cars, driven by Donat Laplante, of Ville D'Anjou went out of control after hitting a car driven by Marc Leblond and crashed into the front porch of a house belonging to Camille Simoneau, 59 Mill Street, Windsor.

The Leblond car also hit a parked car belonging to Jules Levesque.

Seriously injured and taken to St. Louis de Windsor Hospital was Marc Leblond, 21, of 1431 Galt Street, Sherbrooke who is now in fair condition.

Also slightly injured were his passengers, Margaret Grenier, 19, of 1360 St. Line Street, Francine, 19, Marille 14, and Jacques Leblond, 17, all of Sherbrooke.

The third accident, this one on route 22 about 2 miles out of Compton going to Coaticook, accounted for two injured people.

Taken to Hotel Dieu hospital after the head-on collision was Rejean Begin, 21, of Coaticook, driver of one of the cars.

The other driver, Pierre Rodrigue, 54, of 43 Queen Street, Lennoxville was also injured but not admitted to hospital according to reports.

Prosperous city with ambition described by mayor to C of C

Although the city of Sherbrooke has embarked on the industrial and economic expansion boat, the city is considered by Federal and Provincial authorities as a well-off area, said the mayor of Sherbrooke Saturday night.

Mayor Armand Nadeau was speaking at the annual meeting of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce held at the Sherbrooke Social Club.

Mayor Nadeau said that Sherbrooke thinks it is the only city that is planning industrial and economic expansion but in fact it is not; every city in the Province of Quebec wants to expand, every province wants to expand and Canada, as a whole, wants more industry.

The mayor warned that industries are not created like children, they take time. When Sherbrooke obtained the Walter M. Lowney plant, Montreal lost this industry. The mayor said that when an industry settles in one province it pulls out of another.

The mayor pointed out that he had been told on many occasions that the University of Sherbrooke and the Sherbrooke Hospital School are two prime industries, as is an automobile plant at St. Therese.

The mayor said that the city is one of progress. The newly appointed president of the Chamber, Gaston Audet, said that the Chamber would continue to progress and to help the city progress and

Bi-Bi Commission drifting along

For the past few months little has been heard from the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, that august group which somehow or other was to find out what was wrong with Canadians and what could be done about it.

But whether the Commission is making much noise or not, it can be assumed safely that it is continuing to spend the taxpayers' money, as the current federal estimates contain an item of $1,000,000 to cover its expenses — which sum is to be added to the $5,700,000 it has gobbled up since it was established in July, 1963.

Of this members of the Bi-Bi Commission have received a total of $410,000 in honoraria and another $107,000 in tax-free travel and living allowances.

Despite — or perhaps because of — the money which has been lavished on commission members and their research, they seem unable to deliver the report they were assigned to prepare.

The first volume of the report — first scheduled for early in 1966 — was delayed until early this year, then to early summer, and now has been put back until November or December at the earliest.

Probably it would be just as well if the Commission never produced the document which will be badly out of date when and if it does come out.

Either the Government should write off the ill-fated venture to experience, dismiss the commission members of their employments, or it might make it a perpetual group with the avowed purpose of doing nothing.

As members die or receive their pensions, they can be replaced by other individuals to whom the government of the day feels some obligation.

To maintain flexibility, the membership and staff can be increased or decreased to meet the changing political exigencies.

At least such a permanent body would eliminate the need for creating new commissions to care for the faithful.

It could become kind of a second Senate.

Power mower neglect offers danger

Probably the most hazardous piece of machinery around the home today is the power lawn mower, according to the U.S. National Safety Council which estimates that about 100,000 persons are injured by rotary power mowers in the United States each year.

This represents one injury yearly for every 260 mowers in operation.

Latest studies by the Council show that the most common injury is caused by an object thrown by the rotary blade — a rock, a piece of wood or wire, a bolt, or nail, almost anything that may be hidden in the grass.

The injured person is usually the operator, but too frequently it's a child playing nearby or some other innocent bystander.

Cases of injury due to defective mower design or construction are comparatively rare, as safety standards for power mowers were adopted in 1960 and have been incorporated in 95 per cent of the mowers on the market.

But such standards are no safeguard against serious mishap, meaning only that, properly used, the machine should be safe.

Using it safely is up to the operator. Poor maintenance is one cause of mishap, as a loose blade, for instance, can fly off and do a lot of damage.

A more common occurrence is for the operator carelessly to allow the blade to strike a tree root, a rock or some other hard object, which can fracture the end of the blade, which is then hurled like shrapnel.

Operators should study the instruction manual carefully and stick by the guidelines set down by the manufacturer.

Then, before mowing, he should clear the area of children, adults and pets, and pick up any objects that might be thrown by the blade.

He should never leave the mower while it is running or try to unclog it without first stopping the engine.

Ready for war

Arab mobs worked into frenzy for "Holy War" against Israel

By PETER WORTHINGTON

CAIRO — (TNS) — The dust rose in billows and millions of flies made the air seem hazy as you stared through them over the heads of the deafening crowd.

A man behind the microphone was screaming and his voice boomed back from dozens of loudspeakers and the crowd echoed his call by a thousandfold.

"Holy war... holy war... we are going to war with Israel," yelled the crowd as one.

The rooftops of Cairo's Boulac district were lined with bodies and flowing burqas. People hung from balconies while below flags and banners and slogans hung limp in the moist and oppressive evening air.

FLAGS

White skulls sewn onto red flags stared through ugly circular black eyes and somehow seemed more ominous than they should have.

A child — he couldn't have been more than 12 — reached for the microphone.

A sweating, grinning organizer hoisted him up so he, too, could contribute to the mounting hysteria.

"I also want to revenge the bones of our brothers who died for Palestine in 1948," his little voice was grotesquely magnified by the loud-speakers.

"Let me go to war too... holy war for Palestine!"

YOUNG GOONS

And again the crowd went mad. Despite the innumerable soldiers, many in steel helmets, and the gangs of sharp-eyed, well-dressed young goons everywhere, the crowd was fast becoming a mob.

A mob is a dangerous animal no matter how tight the leash is held.

And the leash, in Egypt, always threatens to snap. This was a mob of hate... hate for Israel, anger at America.

It was a crowd lusty for excitement and intoxicated with itself.

Through the crowd came Sayid Ahmed Shukeiry, jostled, crunched, sweating and adored. He seemed slightly nervous, this leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the star attraction of the occasion.

Only Nasser would have received a more tumultuous ovation than Shukeiry at that moment.

I was on stage with other newsmen. I had talked quietly with Shukeiry only hours before and then he was a different man.

There was none of the suave logic that had earlier distinguished this Cambridge-educated lawyer and former UN diplomat.

LARGEST RALLY

It was the largest anti-Israel and pro-Palestine rally of the present crisis.

Perhaps 25,000 were there. I couldn't tell.

It had been a routine demonstration; nothing that will make headlines.

MOOD

Yet it aptly reflected the mood of Cairo today.

This is a different Egypt from the past. The feeling in Cairo today is that Nasser has won — he's gotten away with his Gulf of Aqaba gamble.

There's a feeling here that Israel, if it intended to retaliate for the closing of the Straits of Tiran has now delayed too long.

The element of surprise which has always been Israel's greatest weapon has been lost.

Today the Arabs are ready for battle. As ready as they are ever likely to be.

This feeling may not be justified and Egyptians and others may be deluding themselves.

But for what it's worth there's distinct impression in Cairo that the crisis is now on the wane.

France changing

French just want comfort not power

PARIS — (NEA) — President De Gaulle, in the splendid isolation of his gilded Elysee Palace, pretends that France has not changed in a decade and that the Europeans still wait for him to lead them out of American bondage.

Yet the old general — the last of the generation of statesmen that included Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt — seemed very tired and perhaps worried and discouraged when I saw him at Chancellor Adenauer's funeral in Bonn and at his last press conference in Paris.

De Gaulle will be 81 when his term as president expires in 1972. For another five years he will be in a position to delay Britain's entry into the European Common Market — which is inevitable — and carry on his vendetta against the United States.

But even members of his entourage of yes-men are not convinced that the President will be able to hold on to power until 1972. What will happen after he disappears from the political scene? As yet there is no successor even in sight who will be bold and influential enough to carry on De Gaulle's policies.

The "myth of Gaullism" has been badly shaken, said the influential Paris newspaper, Le Monde, in a recent editorial. Even a prominent Gaullist told me that "the President's tragedy is that France and Europe have changed while he clings to his impossible visions."

The decline in De Gaulle's popularity is due to many complicated economic, social and psychological reasons. The 10 million French men and women who staged a successful 24-hour general strike May 17 protested against the deterioration of their economic conditions. But they also demonstrated a gainst De Gaulle's persistent attempts to impose his personal authoritarian rule on the nation.

In 1958, I witnessed the general's triumphant return to power. He was received as a hero by a disgruntled and frightened nation that was being bled white by the Algerian war. A succession of weak governments plunged France into chaos.

De Gaulle was the right man in the right place at the right time. He was France's man of destiny. Only he could have granted Algeria independence without provoking a bloody civil war.

As compensation for the loss of Algeria, he offered the ordinary people the vision of a France restored to her Napoleonic grandeur. For a nation plunged into chaos this seemed like a bright future.

But much has happened in France — as in the rest of Europe, West and East — in the last decade. The new generation of Frenchmen no longer wants to be great. It wants to be comfortable.

The French have acquired a passion for the American-type "le drugstore" and "le supermarket." They want big refrigerators, fast cars and color television. What was once regarded as American "vulgarity" — and what De Gaulle personally detests most — is fast becoming a way of life in France.

Economic discontent thus played an important role in the decline of De Gaulle's popularity. Many wage earners feel that they have not had a fair share of France's postwar economic development. They contend that the Gaullist regime has done little to overhaul the country's antiquated social and economic structure.

French liberals resent the fact that De Gaulle, in pursuit of grandeur, spends billions of francs on the development of his "own" nuclear bomb while the country is tragically short of homes, hospitals and schools.

France's population like that of other European countries, is steadily getting younger. And it is the generation that was born after the end of World War II in 1945 that regards De Gaulle's policies — including his strong anti-Americanism — as an anachronism.

Of course, one can always find in Paris a few thousand young Communists — both of the Russian and the Chinese variety — and beatniks, including a sprinkling of American expatriates, ready to demonstrate against the war in Vietnam and "American imperialism." But the vast majority of the new generation has little interest in Vietnam or international affairs.

The near-defeat of De Gaulle's party in the recent elections to the General Assembly and the unprecedented success of the general strike emphasized again that without De Gaulle his partisans have no political future at all.

What will happen after the general's demise is anyone's guess. According to some politicians, the future belongs to 41-year-old Giscard d'Estaing, a former finance minister, whose Independent Republican Party currently supports De Gaulle's Union for the New Republic.

Giscard d'Estaing is a conservative. But this would not prevent him from forming a middle-of-the-road coalition government with the moderate leftists and socialists who are worried by their current alliance with the Communists.

Pima Indians are a tribe which lives along the Gila and Salt rivers in southern Arizona. In prehistoric times they developed a system of irrigation of which there is still evidence. Friendly to the whites, they long withstood the Apache, fought back the hostile Yuman tribes and sheltered those that took refuge with them. They numbered about 6,750 in 1958.

Maritimes may keep brains at home

Originally, we had not meant to comment on journalist Charles Lynch's woeful assertion that, as a source of exportable brains, the Maritimes are not what they used to be.

However, the thought of Mr. Lynch tearing his heart out over non-Maritime Canada's loss moves us to try to disillusion him on this score.

Unless Mr. Lynch has remarkable powers of clairvoyance (and his writings, amusing and entertaining though they often are, have not yet revealed such a quality), we are at a loss to understand how it was possible for him to be so dogmatic about the inferior brainpower of the present generation of Maritime emigrants to other parts of Canada and the United States. After all, it took even Max Aitken, K. C. Irving, Cyrus Eaton, Sir James Dunn and all the other notable and successful Maritimers some time to establish themselves. It will be the same with the present generation.

A glance at lists of recent graduates from Maritime universities, particularly the rolls of medalists and top prizewinners, should give Mr.

Lynch renewed confidence in the intellectual mettle of the cream of young Maritime Canadians. They come from cities, towns and small communities.

Where they will go will depend partly on them and partly on a variety of circumstances and opportunities. If not all of them eventually assume posts of responsibility, power and influence in political, academic, industrial and scientific fields in Ontario, it may be because the grass in that province no longer seems quite as green, compared with that growing in their home provinces.

Franco seeks to prevent progress

"Some people have been worried by our liberalization measures, but these measures have enabled us to unmask the eternal enemies of the fatherland." This was not Chairman Mao Tse-tung speaking about the "hundred flowers" period in China. It will be recalled that Chairman Mao did let the flowers bloom for a moment, only to chop them off once they had shown themselves. The man who uttered those revealing and rather cynical words was admittedly, like Mao, an authoritarian ruler who has been around at the head of a movement since before World War II. But he is at the other end of the political spectrum from Chairman Mao. He is, in fact, none other than General Franco, the head of the government of Spain.

General Franco's difficulty is that he cannot summon up enough courage to take the plunge. He senses that Spain today is a very different place in many ways from the racked land of the years immediately after the Civil War. But he cannot reconcile himself to it.

The simple fact is that Spain has been catching up with the rest of Western Eur-one — helped in the process by American dollars and the flood of tourists from both beyond the Pyrenees and beyond the Atlantic. Spaniards have in great measure grown out of the numbness and lethargy with which they first bound up their Civil War wounds and then accepted General Franco's authoritarianism — accepting it, since the only alternative seemed another round of fratricidal strife. They will want above all to avoid bloodshed. But they now have the spirit and the spunk to prod and goad General Franco — whom they see as a rather obsolete and redundant Ferdinand — to try to make him catch up with them.

Late last year and at the beginning of this, General Franco seemed to be giving ground. He promised constitutional changes and an endorsement of his proposals in a national referendum.

But having seen how the tide was beginning to rise, the conservatives and dinosaurs around General Franco — whom his critics would say is a dinosaur himself — have panicked. The screws are being tightened again wherever the regime can tighten them. In the province of Vizcaya, scene of industrial unrest, constitutional rights have been suspended. Students and workers are being arrested elsewhere. The Cortes is whittling away some of the rights in the original draft of the proposed law of religious liberty. And newsmen are finding that the press is far from free after all.

Our only consolation in all this lies in the ridicule which fell upon the courtiers of King Canute. The tide in Spain is as irresistible as any tide of the sea.

Bihar Indians fight starvation

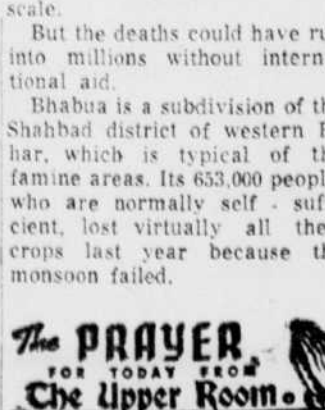

BHABUA, India (Reuters) — At midday every day, hundreds of thousands of emaciated women and children and old men squat on hard dry ground throughout the famine-stricken state of Bihar.

A hot, dry wind raises dust around them as social workers ladle gruel from buckets into their bowls.

For most of them, this is their only meal of the day, and it just sustains life while they pray for the life-giving monsoon rains, still two months away.

The rains will end the serious shortage of drinking water. But it will still be another five months before crops can be harvested.

Until then, this daily feeding routine must go on. Although the situation is grim, it seems likely that big relief operations by the government and by Indian and foreign social organizations will prevent death from starvation on a large WATERLOO — (Special) — The junior choir of St. Paul's Church entertained the patients at Waterloo Hospital May 27. The choir was under the direction of Mrs. Joan Norris, with Fred Sheppard as the organist.

The children wore their choir gowns and sang selections from The Sound of Music. They also rendered several spiritual numbers. A rousing rendition of Canada, our centennial song, was a highlight.

Afterward, the boys and girls gave each patient a parcel of fruit which had been made up by St. Paul's United Church Women.

Following the music recital, the children and Mrs. Norris, who was assisted by Mrs. Myrtle Wilkinson, had a picnic at a home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Macaskill.

Forest fire caused evacuation of 2,500

TORONTO (CP) — Sunday's forest fire which forced evacuation of 2,500 persons from Sioux Lookout, Ont., brought back memories of the July 29, 1916, blaze in Northern Ontario which destroyed six towns and killed 223 people.

The fire, described as a "giant orange wave" by those who survived, levelled the towns of Kelso, Nushka, Ramore, Port Kuis Junction, Iroquois Falls and Matheson and damaged the hamlets of Homer and Monteth.

About 1,000 square miles of homesteaders' farmlands and bushland was also destroyed. Loss was estimated at $2,000,000.

Tales of heroism, suffering and death by those in the fire's path took newspaper headlines away from the First World War.

Entire families of settlers were burned to death or suffocated. When it was over, loads of pine coffins were shipped in by railway box-cars to bury the dead.

Some survivors managed to escape death because they were close to large bodies of water. Others escaped by train to Kirkland Lake, 45 miles southeast of Matheson.

Firefighting efforts were useless and it was not until early August that rain finally removed the danger of the fire breaking out again.

At Nushka, 10 miles north of Matheson, 62 persons were killed. Thirty-four suffocated in a clay ditch beside railway tracks after Rev. Wilfred Gagne led them there where he thought they would be safe. He returned to town and died there with 28 others when the fire swept in.

A survivor of Nushka was Simon Aumont, 40, who picked up his baby and told his wife and other children to run to the railway. He collapsed after running some distance, but when he regained consciousness and went back to the ruins of his home, he found his wife and nine children dead.

Percy Alderson and his wife were surrounded by the fire near their home, five miles away from Matheson, and were sprayed with flaming cinders as they huddled on the ground. The next morning, Mrs. Alderson led her husband, blinded by the cinders, out of the area on a stray horse.

To encourage settlers to remain in the area after the fire, the Ontario government paid $150 for the loss of a barn and $850 for a house.

73 KILLED IN 1911
The Matheson fire is not the only one that has caused tragedy in Ontario. The Porcupine fire of 1911 cremated 73 persons, inflicted $3,000,000 in damages on gold-mining property and left 3,000 pioneers homeless as it wiped out South Porcupine, Pottsville, Cochrane, Goldlands and Porquus Junction and ate into Timmins and Golden City.

The Halesbury fire three years later killed 44 persons, caused $6,000,000 damages to silver mines and farms and left 6,000 settlers homeless in Halesbury, North Cobalt, Charlton, Thornhill and Healey and touched Englehart and New Liskeard.

LIBERALS MEET
QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Lesage, leader of the Quebec Liberal party, announced Sunday the next party congress will take place Oct. 13-15 and will have as its theme "Quebec . . . After Expo."

Mr. Lesage made the announcement along with Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, following a meeting here of the 325-member general council of the federation.

The opposition leader said the theme was chosen because it best described "the general anxiety felt by Quebecers in the face of a government that doesn't act and which doesn't seem to know where it is going."

The Liberal party had laid most of the groundwork for Expo and was the only party capable of "planning for the years which follow this great event."

Mr. Kierans said the next congress will study problems of labor and manpower, rural and regional development, consumer protection, urban problems and housing, provincial finances and health insurance.

It was also announced that the Quebec Federation of Liberal Women will hold its next congress in Quebec City Sept. 13-14 under the theme The Consumers' Nightmare.

At its Sunday day meeting, the federation council approved in principle the merging of the Federation of Young Liberals with the parent federation.

SWEETSBURG WARD — concurrent one day sentences on the balance. Judge Gerard Normandin agreed to the request of the crown.

Judge Normandin noted that the fraud had been perpetrated through allegations that purchasers would be the beneficiaries of television residuals, though none occurred. The judge, in agreement with the crown, admitted that the plaintiff said that they had received

Karl Kyling, 26, Bedford, pleaded guilty to two charges of armed robbery, and two of automobile theft, June 2, in Bedford District Court. He was sentenced to four years, to be served concurrently to his present sentence of four years, by Judge Normandin.

Crown Prosecutor Noisieux reiterated earlier remarks that Kyling has shown excellent indications of rehabilitation, and that further incarceration would not be in society's interest.

Philip Miller, 20, Bedford, pleaded guilty to a charge of armed robbery, at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Sutton, September 1964. He was sentenced to 16 months, to be served concurrently to a like sentence, handed down in March by Judge Normandin.

The case of Ivy Lee, charged with indecent exposure while performing a dance in a public house, was deferred to June 6.

THE QUEBEC SCENE

Federal politicians will not succeed in destroying wall built by Duplessis around Quebec — Johnson

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Sunday federal politicians will not succeed in destroying what he described as the wall built around Quebec by former premier Maurice Duplessis, founder of the governing Union Nationale party.

Mr. Johnson spoke for an hour in a fighting, campaign-style speech before about 5,000 Union Nationale supporters celebrating the party's victory in a general election held one year ago today.

The meeting was organized by Provincial Secretary Yves Gauthier, elected in Trois-Rivieres following the death in 1959 of Mr. Duplessis. The former premier founded the party here in 1936 and was the riding's representative throughout his long reign.

"The Union Nationale was founded to save Quebec from being submerged by Ottawa," Mr. Johnson said. "It was founded to fight against the ways of the federalists."

He said the federal establishment "right down to the last French-Canadian minister . . . would still like to destroy the wall erected by Mr. Duplessis."

DRAWS CHEERS
"With the Union Nationale in power, Ottawa will not succeed," said Mr. Johnson, bringing a cheer from the crowd.

The premier, noting that the Union Nationale holds 12 of 13 seats in the St. Maurice region surrounding Trois-Rivieres, which is about 70 miles north-east of Montreal, made three announcements.

He said there would be no toll charge on a bridge under construction here across the St. Lawrence River which was begun by the former Liberal government as a toll bridge estimated to cost about $35,000,000.

He said a new bridge will be built at the community of St. Leonard d'Aston, 20 miles south of here, in the riding of Agriculture Minister Clement Vincent.

Federal politicians will not succeed in destroying wall built by Duplessis around Quebec — Johnson

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Sunday federal politicians will not succeed in destroying what he described as the wall built around Quebec by former premier Maurice Duplessis, founder of the governing Union Nationale party.

Mr. Johnson spoke for an hour in a fighting, campaign-style speech before about 5,000 Union Nationale supporters celebrating the party's victory in a general election held one year ago today.

The meeting was organized by Provincial Secretary Yves Gauthier, elected in Trois-Rivieres following the death in 1959 of Mr. Duplessis. The former premier founded the party here in 1936 and was the riding's representative throughout his long reign.

"The Union Nationale was founded to save Quebec from being submerged by Ottawa," Mr. Johnson said. "It was founded to fight against the ways of the federalists."

He said the federal establishment "right down to the last French-Canadian minister . . . would still like to destroy the wall erected by Mr. Duplessis."

DRAWS CHEERS
"With the Union Nationale in power, Ottawa will not succeed," said Mr. Johnson, bringing a cheer from the crowd.

The premier, noting that the Union Nationale holds 12 of 13 seats in the St. Maurice region surrounding Trois-Rivieres, which is about 70 miles north-east of Montreal, made three announcements.

He said there would be no toll charge on a bridge under construction here across the St. Lawrence River which was begun by the former Liberal government as a toll bridge estimated to cost about $35,000,000.

He said a new bridge will be built at the community of St. Leonard d'Aston, 20 miles south of here, in the riding of Agriculture Minister Clement Vincent.

LIBERALS MEET
QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Lesage, leader of the Quebec Liberal party, announced Sunday the next party congress will take place Oct. 13-15 and will have as its theme "Quebec . . . After Expo."

Mr. Lesage made the announcement along with Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, following a meeting here of the 325-member general council of the federation.

The opposition leader said the theme was chosen because it best described "the general anxiety felt by Quebecers in the face of a government that doesn't act and which doesn't seem to know where it is going."

The Liberal party had laid most of the groundwork for Expo and was the only party capable of "planning for the years which follow this great event."

Mr. Kierans said the next congress will study problems of labor and manpower, rural and regional development, consumer protection, urban problems and housing, provincial finances and health insurance.

It was also announced that the Quebec Federation of Liberal Women will hold its next congress in Quebec City Sept. 13-14 under the theme The Consumers' Nightmare.

Hospitalized teenager to graduate with class

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Angela Taylor is a plucky 17-year-old who has spent the last 16 months in hospital but will still graduate with her high school class June 16.

The pretty, brown-eyed brunette was hit by a runaway car last August and suffered a broken back, a fractured leg and chest injuries. Her right leg had to be amputated above the knee. She has been fitted with an artificial leg and still wears a cast on her back. Angela carried on her studies from her Lions Gate Hospital bed through a telephone hookup paid for by her family and the North Vancouver School Board. She was released from hospital late in May and is looking forward to participating in graduation ceremonies at Carson Graham Secondary School.

"All I had to do was flip a switch by my bed and I was tuned into my classes," says Angela. "It was just wonderful."

"I can walk quite well. I was able to discard my crutches some time ago."

The stay in hospital has reshaped her future.

"Before the accident I wanted to be a clerk but now I want to be a social worker. People were so good to me when I was in hospital, I now want to help others."

Today's recipe

STRAWBERRY SHORTEST CAKE

(Makes 6 servings)

2 pints fresh strawberries, chilled
5 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2/3 cup dry instant coffee and tea lightener
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
6 slices (1-inch thick) pound cake

Crush 1 pint strawberries; mix with 3 tablespoons sugar and lemon juice. Chill.

Chill bowl and beaters in refrigerator for 15 minutes. Force about 8 strawberries (or enough to make 1/2 cup strained berries) through food mill or blend in electric blender; strain to remove seeds. Blend coffee and tea lightener, strawberries, vanilla and 2 tablespoons sugar in chilled bowl. Whip at high speed with electric mixer until soft peaks form (3 to 5 minutes). Slice remaining strawberries; fold into topping.

Spoon crushed strawberries over cake; top with strawberry whipped topping.

Fertility drug hailed by doctors

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A fertility drug has enabled a woman to become pregnant five years after receiving treatment for a tumor on a vital gland, say obstetricians at the Albany Medical Centre.

Mrs. Anthony Putorti, 32, was treated with the drug gonadotropin, doctors said. She gave birth to an eight-pound, seven-ounce girl—her first baby.

Normally, gonadotropin is secreted by the pituitary gland. But sometimes, because of a tumor or disease, the gland fails to secrete enough gonadotropin to induce ovulation.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—We had a four-drawer chest which had to stand in front of a window in our small bedroom. It blocked out the light from the window, so we saved the chest of drawers in half horizontally and placed the two halves side by side. A board was fitted all across the top and new low legs from the dime store added. It was then sanded and painted to match the walls. We now have a wide chest that fits snugly under the window and adds to the appearance of the room.

Classes held for the perceptual handicapped

TORONTO (CP)—The picture is changing for the "disadvantaged child"—the one crippled by cerebral palsy, the mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed.

The Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities estimates that five to 15 per cent of the school population is perceptually handicapped.

In Ontario, 55 schools operate classes for children with learning disabilities — perceptual handicaps. All are primary public school classes.

"A friend of mine paid $400," said a bachelor in the civil service. "And the girl didn't even pass her school certificate exam."

ATTEND SCHOOL

That meant she had not successfully completed high school. Education is one factor behind the rising bride price. More girls are attending high school and university. In a region still about 80 per cent illiterate, educated men prize such girls as wives.

The 1956 law was passed when Nnamdi Azikiwe, later to become Nigeria's first president, was the eastern region's most powerful politician.

When an outraged prospective bridegroom cites the legal limit while bargaining with his sweetheart's parents, they may say: "That's Azikiwe's bride price. Pay it to him and marry his daughter."

Bride price is an old custom among the Ibos, who predominate in the eastern area of Nigeria. It compensates a girl's family for the time spent in preparing her for marriage and for the loss of her services. At divorce, the price is returned.

Not all men oppose the bride price. Felix O. Ogbonna wrote: "The cost is not to be taken seriously as anyone who wishes to marry can even go to the installment way."

Unique ceremony planned by couple

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—stantly faced with problems of choice and or a marriage to be meaningful, it is not necessary to follow inherited ways.

The bride wore a simple mod dress with flowing Norman style sleeves. She plaited her hair in the mode of the Norman era and wore daisies twined in it. The daisies symbolize innocence. Plaiting signifies the joining of two souls, in tradition first known in Egypt.

The couple's hands were bound by the matron of honor with white and red ribbon in ancient Chinese Yin and Yang symbolism representing the conjunction of opposites—male and female.

"We are not going against tradition, we incorporated it in a personal contemporary liturgical service," Mary says.

"Today, individuals are consciously as anyone who wishes to marry can even go to the installment way."

A number of younger men are following the example of a bachelor economist who was educated at U.S. universities.

"I'm waiting until someone pays me to get married," he said.

ped in some degree, and that five out of every 100 children need intensive treatment.

Dr. Sol Gordon of New York's Yeshiva University said in a Toronto interview:

"A professional might diagnose a child as retarded and the parent would argue this was not the case. The professional's feelings would be 'What do you know? You're only the parent.'"

"Today, professionals are beginning to listen to parents."

Robbie McMonagle, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McMonagle of Richmond Hill, Ont., is a youngster with a learning disability. But he is one of the lucky ones who has received help.

Mrs. McMonagle says that in Grade 1 Robbie couldn't hold a pencil, he ate paper and fell out of his desk. He was rated as dull-normal and school officials said that nothing could be done.

Grade 3 when he could be enrolled in an opportunity class.

The McMonagles, however, refused to accept the diagnosis and enrolled Robbie in a class at the Sutherland Educational Clinic for children with learning disabilities. Within six months he had passed Grade 1.

When the family moved to Winnipeg, a child guidance centre was available to help. He received tutoring in mathematics and a social worker interpreted to the McMonagles what the school was doing.

Robbie moved into Grade 3 with normal children, and advanced into Grade 4 without problems. His school now has suggested that he be accelerated.

He can't, however, learn by having someone show him. He learned to jump by reading the encyclopedia.

"In class, he writes down everything the teachers say, then reads it, and this is how he learns," Mrs. McMonagle said.

Rehabilitation varies from child to child. For one, the page of a book may be almost covered, with a window left open for the child to read; some play games to learn how to hear sounds properly, and others do tracing to learn shapes.

Children with learning disabilities are taught with the senses—taste, smell and touch.

The child exercises to build up his co-ordination and his basic skills for learning.

Perceptually handicapped children may be retrained to lead a normal life, functioning at the age and grade level of their fellows. The earlier retraining occurs, the more successful it is.

But the important thing for parents is that help is becoming available.

One Toronto mother said: "When parents have a child they dream of what that child will be. When they find out it's not what they want they're disappointed and let down. The particularly important point is that if they need help, there is an organization available right then."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brock and daughter, from Middlesex, England, have been guests for several days of Mr. Brock's mother, Mrs. Robert Kirby, and Mr. Kirby.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirby were recently in St. Albans, Vt., where they were guests of Mr. Kirby's brother.

Rev. Canon and Mrs. T. E. R. Nurse have returned home after spending a few days with their family in Montreal. While there they paid several visits to Expo.

Grades One and Two travelled to Montreal by school bus to visit the Expo Circus presently being staged at the Auto Stadium on the Expo Grounds. Several teachers accompanied the small fry on this adventure. It was considered that the small children would enjoy a visit to the circus rather than attend Expo itself. The children all enjoyed the circus to the utmost and returned to Knowlton in the evening, tired, but happy.

A number of successful trips by individual classes of K. H. S. to Expo have been undertaken and there are still several classes planning a visit. The thanks of the school administration is extended to parents and chaperones who have accompanied these classes to Expo, to date with no casualties or lost children!

Arnold Baker wins Victoriaville Field Day after playoff

VICTORIAVILLE — Arnold Baker, who last year walked off with the majority of the try Club opened the 1967 golfing season in the same manner as last year and if this is any indication then the club-swingers in the District had better be prepared for a tough time. Playing here Sunday in the first official E.T. Golf Association fixture the lanky swinger walked off with the honors but required five extra holes to do so. At the end of the 18 holes he was tied with Brian McEwen of Asbestos Golf and Country Club, both finished with 76's. Each player banded out until they hit the long fifth hole when McEwen took three putts and this cost him first place in the event while Baker dropped his for a par. It was a close battle and the field witnessed some good golf before it terminated.

England stops Mexico in Expo soccer opener

LONDON (CP) — It wasn't really sour grapes, but London sportswriters had their share of criticism about the opening of the Expo 67 soccer tournament in Montreal.

The English team, Football Association XI, won its opening game Saturday 3-1 against Mexico Lees, but London Sunday newspapers objected to a four to centre forward Frank Wignall.

The News of the World says the fighting penalty brought 'the chaotic Expo tournament to new heights of farce.'

The Sunday Mirror says Wignall was "tapped, slashed and generally manhandled," forcing him to "strike out in self-defence."

The Mirror also objects to the playing surface at Expo's auto-stade field and the hot weather. "Given normal soccer temperature and a first-class pitch, the FA XI would have won by at least half a dozen goals," the paper says. "Remember, too, the playing surface would not permit much constructive ground football."

CALLS IT 'ORDEAL'

The People calls the match "one long round of English pressure in an ordeal of 93-degree heat and fever-pitch temper."

The News of the World says the game "got the topsy-turvy Expo tournament away to a start its organization scarcely deserved." The English team "overcame the heat, the treacherous pitch and all the uncertainties of the last week with a performance worthy of their world champion's label."

The Mirror also says the English players have been called "prima donnas" in Montreal because of their attitude towards the six-country tournament and the condition of the field.

The paper asks how Canadian would feel "if their world hockey team operated on a cracked ice surface abroad."

Remember when...

Gene Tunney retained his world light - heavyweight boxing title 42 years ago tonight—in 1925—by knocking out Tom Gibbons in the 12th round of a scheduled 15 at New York. Tunney became a world heavyweight champion by beating Jack Dempsey in 1925 and 1927 before retiring undefeated.

Panama — Ismael Laguna, 136, Panama, outpointed Alfredo Urbina, 135½, Mexico, 10, per mill much constructive ground football."

WHITEWASH METS TWICE — Two nitches who seldom start for the San Francisco Giants came through with flying colors and shut out the New York Mets in both ends of a doubleheader. Braves' rally falls short as Reds win, Giants take double Cincinnati Reds are going fishing today but manager Dave Bristol may have to make another trip to his corner barber shop.

If he does, you can bet he will not ask for a closer shave. The National League-leading Reds ran up a 5-0 lead against Atlanta Sunday, then held off the Braves 5-4 for their fourth straight victory. It was the 14th one-run game for the Reds in their last 15.

"I had a haircut the other day and had all the gray hairs cut out," the Cincinnati pilot cracked after giving all the Reds a day off today.

Cincinnati's third one-run verdict over Atlanta in three days protected the Reds three-game lead over second-place St. Louis Cardinals, winners 4-3 over Chicago Cubs. Third - place San Francisco Giants swept a doubleheader from the fading New York Mets, 7-0 and 5-0. Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1 and Philadelphia Phillies overcame Houston Astros 6-1 in other Sunday games.

In Saturday's action, Cincinnati nipped Atlanta 8-7, LA dumped Pittsburgh 5-1, New York and San Francisco split a doubleheader with the Giants taking the opener 11-2 and the Mets the nightcap 2-1. Philadelphia doubled the score on Houston 4-2 and Chicago Downed St. Louis 7-5.

LEE SAVES REDS — Reliever Bob Lee, newly acquired from Los Angeles, stopped the Braves' comeback Sunday, preserving Jim Maloney's fifth victory in seven decisions.

Lou Brock smacked his third homer in three games leading off the first inning, then broke a 3-3 tie with a run - scoring single in the eighth as the Cards topped Chicago behind the three-hit pitching of rookie Dick Baltimore squeaked by Washington 3-2 and Kansas City defeated Chicago 3-1.

The two boys in Baltimore were the only other passengers on the Orioles scheduled flight to California to play the Angels tonight. When they discovered they would be traveling with the Orioles, they waited patiently through almost 2½ hours of departure delays until Etchebarren got them airborne with his homer.

Wally Bunker, Eddie Watt, Eddie Fisher and winner Stu Miller blanked Washington after the Senators scored five times in the third.

McAuliffe unloaded his ninth season homer and fifth career slam with two out.

Al Downing hurled the Yankees to the first game victory with a five-hitter.

The White Sox fell one game back of Detroit when pitcher Jim Nash capped a four-run fourth inning with a decisive run scoring single that put Kansas City ahead 5-1 in their nightcap.

TORONTO (CP) — David Meldrum win three competitions and place third in the fourth.

Mrs. Wingerson - Meldrum, bronze-medallist in the 80-metre hurdles at the 1966 British Empire Games, won the women's long jump, the women's 220-metre race behind Jean Fisher of Ottawa and Margaret Cheskin of Toronto.

San Juan, Puerto Rico — Luis Rodriguez, 154, Miami, Fla., outpointed Juan "Rocky" Rvero, 169, Argentina, 10.

Then, as fewer than two dozen spectators watched, Leitch broke his own record on his third attempt.

The mark was well below the Canadian open record of 215 feet, four inches set by Harold Connelly of Culver City at Vancouver in 1964.

Plessisville, Lachine, Granby and Quebec tie for lead in loop, Als drop three weekend games

Weekend action in the Provincial Baseball League saw four teams slip by Thetford Mines to tie for first place honors, Plessisville, Lachine, Granby and Quebec.

Sherbrooke Alouettes stretched their losing streak to seven dropping three more games, losing 10-4 to Granby Saturday evening, 5-3 to Plessisville Sunday afternoon, and 3-1 to Quebec in the evening.

The Miners of Thetford, in sole possession of first place before weekend action, slipped into second by losing two to Lachine; Saturday afternoon by a score of 7-3 and Sunday, 11-8.

Drummondville split two weekend games, defeating Plessisville 5-4 Saturday, and losing 7-3 to Granby on Sunday. Quebec stole two from Coaticook by scores of 1-0 and 7-4.

In Saturday's game against the Cardinals at the Park Avenue Stadium, the Als committed seven errors, with pitcher Ramon Rijo giving up eleven hits, to drop the 10-4 decision.

Pietrzwitz, the Granby hurler, spaced nine hits, while John Self slammed his third homer of the young season with another roundtripper against starter Rijo.

In Plessisville Sunday, Sherbrooke pitchers Santin and Fiqueroa gave up 15 hits while handing the Braves their 5-3 victory. Chuck Este was the big gun for Plessisville with a double and two singles.

Sunday night's tilt at the Park Stadium saw the Quebec Indians score two ninth-inning runs to slip ahead of the Alouettes 3-1. The Indians profited from Sherbrooke's weak offense, while Coaticook will head off against the Plessisville Braves.

The losing pitcher, Guido Cuello, allowed eight hits as he struck out a total of nine men. The loss was the seventh straight for the Alouettes who showed the lack of hitting power which has been hindering them since the beginning of the season.

On Sunday, Granby's John Self slammed the ball over the scoreboard to perform a feat which hasn't been seen since 1950. This homerun against Drummondville pitcher Mench sparked the Cardinals to a 7-3 victory over the Royals.

Tuesday, the Alouettes will be seeking their first win as they travel to Granby to meet the Indians. Granby will be at Lachine, and Thetford will be playing host to Drummondville while Coaticook will head off against the Plessisville Braves.

TOP SHOOTERS — The three top shooters at the Canadian and Quebec skeet championships in St. Janvier, Que. shake hands at the conclusion of the six-day event. Piscitelli family does well at Canadian Skeet championships

ST. JANVIER, Que. (CP) — The Piscitelli family from North Haven, Conn., won several prizes and most of the attention at the Canadian and Quebec skeet championships which concluded Sunday.

Dominic, 40, won the high overall title, missing only six targets in 500 shots. His wife, Arlene, took the women's title with a respectable 458 out of 500 in six days of shooting.

Their three - year - old son, Kevin, won only a soft drink for his efforts at the championships but he was clearly the most popular of all the shooters.

Standing a few inches shorter than his father's 12-gauge shotgun, Kevin calmly blasted a few shots at the end of the rounds, supervised and coached by his parents and dozens of fascinated spectators and officials.

His father, a sporting goods dealer, won only one gauge shot, the 410, and was one of the few high-ranking shooters at the championships who never managed a perfect round, but his calm consistent marksmanship in a variety of weather conditions gave him the edge.

Runner-up to Piscitelli was Jack Pattyn, a member of the famed Detroit Wreckers squad that once shattered 500 birds in a row at St. Janvier. Pattyn blasted 493 of 500 birds and won the 20-gauge open earlier in the week.

Paul Laporte of Montreal, a relative newcomer to skeet shooting, hit one fewer than Pattyn and was awarded the high over-all crown in the Canadian closed section.

In 12-gauge shooting Saturday and Sunday, Ric Sheridan of Oshawa, Ont., blasted two perfect rounds of 100 each and went on to defeat five other veteran shooters in a sudden-death shootoff. Gus Sanderson of Ottawa won a preliminary international style event.

Last year's high over - all champion, Barry Boyce of Kingston, Ont., did not defend his title.

NHL clubs must submit their 12 players today

List must be handed in by 5 p.m. to President Campbell, poker game opens tomorrow with draft going MONTREAL (CP) — The biggest poker game in the National Hockey League's 50-year-old history doesn't start until 10 a.m. Thursday, but by 5 p.m. today to six of the participants in the game will have decided the top 12 players they intend to stay with.

The game is the NHL's complicated expansion draft whereby each of the six old clubs — Chicago, Detroit, Montreal, Toronto, New York and Boston — deliver to Clarence Campbell, the league president, a list of 12 players they will protect.

Next season the league is expanding to a 12-team two-division circuit. The new entries — Pittsburgh Penguins, Philadelphia Flyers, Minnesota North Stars, St. Louis Blues, Los Angeles Kings and California Seals — will deliver cheques valued at $2,000,000 each to Campbell today for the 20 players they will receive with their franchise.

Before the draft gets under way several other items of business will take place. The governors of the six current clubs start off the four-day annual convention meeting as a single body for the final time. At the same time, the new division governors will be meeting in an adjacent salon of the hotel.

The NHL rules committee also has a morning meeting scheduled. Campbell said this committee will discuss a number of policy changes affecting league officials. "We will discuss the sharing of responsibility by our referees and linesmen of the ice," Campbell said.

Referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison will examine and determine whether his officials are being deployed for the best results. LINESMEN DUTIES Campbell said this meeting will examine how officials are employed in other major sports such as baseball, football, basketball and soccer. In recent seasons the league has come under criticism for the manner in which its officials carry out their duties.

"One purpose of this meeting will be to see how we can relieve the referee of more of the menial chores so he can concentrate on calling fouls. We'll examine the possibility of leaving it to the discretion of the linesman to call minor penalties of a certain nature (bench minors for too many men on the ice). As for the draft, Campbell said all the hazards rest with the claiming club. If a player is claimed by one of the new entries but does not wish to report it will be up to the claiming team to persuade him to make the move. Under the draft, each of the six East Division (old clubs) can protect one goaltender and 11 other players. The new clubs will draw lots from A to F for the order in which they can select a goaltender. The east team from which the new club's claim is made will then protect a second goaltender from its professional system. The goaltending draft continues on an alternate claim-and-fill basis until each of the east clubs has lost two goaltenders and each of the west teams has two goaltenders.

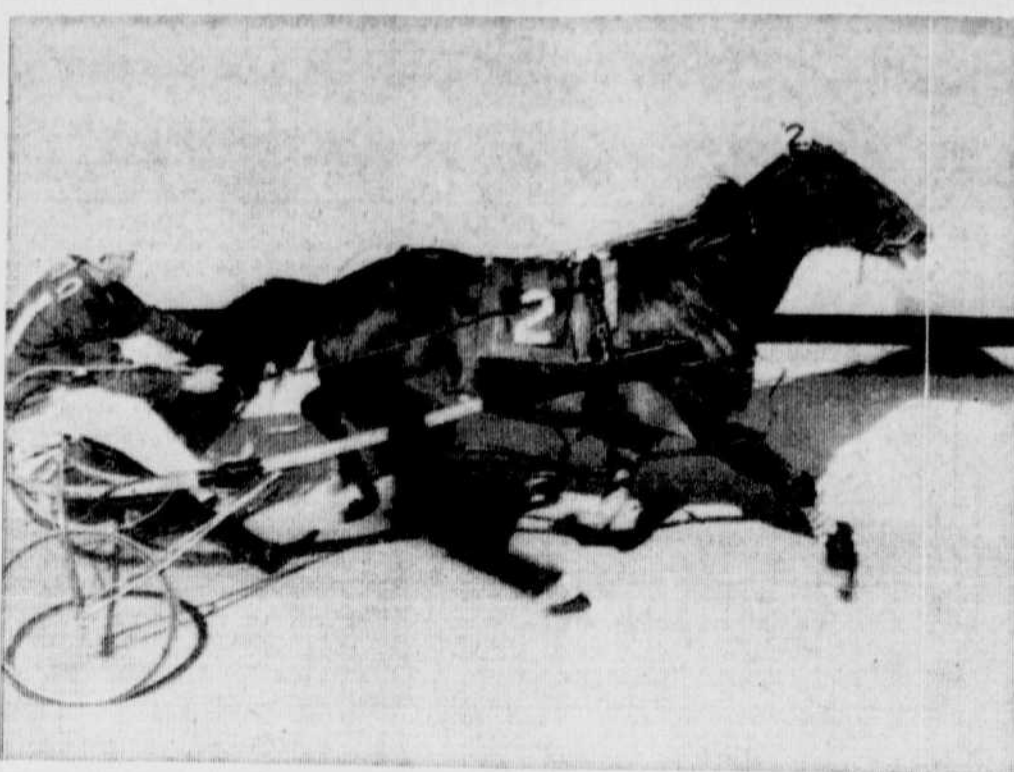

COMPLICATED SYSTEM The order for the first round of drafting of other players will be the same as the second round of goaltenders—F to A. Succeeding rounds follow on a rotation system, whereby the team with the first choice in the previous round moves to the end of the list and the others move up one.

The drafting continues until each of the west teams has received a total of 18 forwards and defencemen and each of the east teams has lost 18 forwards and defencemen.

Each East Division team projects 11 players. Each West Division claims one player. The east then protects one and the west claims one. The east protects another and the west claims three players. It then moves on an alternate fill-and-claim basis until all West Division clubs have a full complement of 18 players each of each East Division club has given up 18 players.

While there is a particular order of drafting among the western clubs, there is no set order for them drafting from the old teams. For example, Montreal could lose several players before Boston loses any. But once Montreal loses its 18 players, it withdraws from further proceedings. The Central Professional Hockey League, the Western and American leagues also have meetings scheduled during the four-day convention.

SETTING MARK — Robert Jutras is seen teaming Mrs. D. Desmarais' Adios Marcel under the wire in the main event on the Sunday afternoon card of the Sherbrooke Race Track. He won in 2:06 3/5 in the main dash.

Adios Marcel wins in 2:06 3/5 in first start, Heleta upsets Jersey Express in grudge tilt

Adios Marcel, owned by Mrs. Doreen Demarais of Richmond, the first corner he was out in and teamed by Robert Jutras, walked off with the main dash on Sunday's card at the Sherbrooke Race Track when he led the field under the wire in 2:06 3/5.

It was his first start of the season and proved he hasn't lost any of last year's form. Last season he was timed in 2:06 4/5 and yesterday once he took the lead from Baby Sandwich, who had set the pace for event until the three-quarter, he had plenty of horse to finish strong.

Andre Rouleau, driving Baby Sandwich, took the lead just before the quarter and went to the half in 1:02 2/5, and remained out in front until Adios Marcel commenced his move from the third spot. H. Lemaire and Sovereign finished strong to nose out Baby Sandwich at the wire.

In the Stake, in the fifth, it was as predicted with Villeneuve and Heleta staging a battle with Gilles Jutras and Jersey Express with the former emerging the winner. Villeneuve got away from the seventh position, on

British bettors are backing Max Bell's Dominion Day as favorite for Epsom Derby

LONDON (CP)—The hunch money is coming in from Canada and Ireland, where the colt a Canadian - owned horse in is trained by Paddy Prender.

Wednesday's Epsom Derby, but at least two of his three own ers aren't joining them. Dominion Day has never won a race in his three previous Epsom, Surrey.

It says the Epsom Derby is a risky pick behind 7-10-4 choice Royal Palace.

Bell says he likes the odds, but will not place a bet. Bell is head of an ownership syndicate that includes singer Bing Crosby and oilman Frank McMahon.

"Bing is here now," Bell said, "and I hope Mr. McMahon can make it."

Meanwhile, at least two London newspapers pick Dominion Day to win the annual classic, Merry Hampton in 1987.

SHAVING STROKES

3-BALANCE — Balance is the intangible quality that lends precision and beauty whenever applied. In golf it allows all pieces to fit together, work together and flow in proper sequence. The important thing to remember about balance in the swing is that everything revolves around one pivotal point — a straight line that runs from the top of the head, through the spine, and straight into the ground. This line never moves laterally nor at an angle to the ground. The best way to maintain this equilibrium is to keep your weight equally distributed on both sides of the pivot. If your weight moves forward, then balance is thrown forward, and vice versa. Keep in mind that you are a top-heavy structure and, with a tendency to move all over the place. The best way to test proper balance is to assume a stance so that a shove from any direction will not disturb your equilibrium. Another hint that I use, is to imagine that I am swinging in a barrel that is secured. I try never to touch the barrel's rim. If I can do this I feel confident any balance will always remain intact. Bob Dickson stages rally to win British Amateur golf championship

FORMBY, England (AP) — Bob Dickson, playing his last round of golf before beginning a six-month hitch in the U.S. Army, broke open a tight match in the last eight hole Saturday and edged Walker Cup teammate Ron Cerrudo 2 and 1 for the British Amateur Golf Championship.

Playing in the first all-American final since Deane Beman defeated Bill Hyndman in 1959, Dickson and Cerrudo battled evenly through the first 27 holes at Formby's course.

But Dickson, who lost the U.S. National Amateur crown two years ago because he had day,
