Art camps for creative kiddos

By Ocean Francoeur
Special to The Record

Without school to occupy kids during the long summer months, day camps are often the solution to keep them entertained and out of mom and dad's hair for a few hours each day. While many options are of the sport or outdoor adventure variety, there are camps out there suited for little ones (and not so little ones) looking to stimulate their creativity. Here are a few day camp ideas for kiddos that are more Rembrandt than Reynaldo.

FOREMAN GALLERY SUMMER ART CAMP

If your child is a regular little Picasso, the Bishop's University summer art camp is the ideal place for them. For its tenth consecutive year, the camp is ready to offer an eight-week bilingual program introducing kids aged 6 to 12 to a variety of visual art mediums.

"We focus on visual and fine arts," said Brenna Filion, who is a cultural mediation intern for the Foreman Art Gallery and will be one of the camp instructors. "We want the kids to be able to do stuff they wouldn't be able to do at home."

Spanning June 25 to August 17, each week of camp lasts five days. According to Filion, each week has a different theme and medium. Parents can choose to register their children for one, a few, or all the weeks offered. This year's themes range from mythology to "reduce, reuse, recycle" and involve everything from sewing to land art, passing by more traditional mediums like painting, drawing and sculpting.

"I think week six is going to be one of the most interesting weeks. We do collabs every year, and this time we teamed up with Sporobole," confided Filion. Sporobole is an artist-run center in downtown Sherbrooke which has agreed to lend the art camp some of their filmmaking equipment and knowledge. "Each child will be able to make their own little stop-motion movie. They'll be playing with the foley process, which is basically when sound effects in movies are man-made. So, the kids will be able to make their own sounds for their films and explore different noises and their effect on the project."

"Each day at camp has essentially three big activities planned, and then we move on to smaller stuff," explained Filion. "We spend a lot of time outside, either doing art or going to the pool and playing games. We also want to give the children time to work on their own creative projects. If one wants to work extra on their piece, or create more, they can.”

All of the children’s work then gets exposed in a mini exhibit at the end of each week.

“We work in the art community lab during camp, but the exhibits are held in the Foreman Gallery. So, it’s a professional setting to show off their art to mom and dad,” continued Filion. “They’re really proud of all of their creations. It’s super cute.”

Each week welcomes a maximum of 20 students in order to maintain a one-on-one basis with the children and work on their skills individually. For 20 students, there are two instructors, and according to Filion, they always try to hire one who speaks French and one who speaks English, in order to create a truly immersive bilingual environment.

The art camp starts at 9 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. but offers an extra hour before and after camp for daycare services.

“We know that sometimes parents are busy and need to get to work, so we want to make things as simple as possible for them, especially since the bridge is under construction,” said Filion, referring to the work on the Bishop’s University bridge.

The bridge has been completely cut off since May 6, and though the situation is supposed to last six weeks, thus opening up in time for the camp start-date, we never know.

The daycare service is free of extra charge. The summer art camp costs $150 per week and offers rebates for parents registering more than one child, or for those registering their kids for more than one week. For more information, visit <http://www.foreman.ubishop.ca/community-art-lab/summer-art-camp>.

“Tutti’ means ‘everyone’,” affirmed Dyachkov, adding that inclusivity is the basis of the camp. “No matter your age, level or instrument, you are welcome. In fact, my favorite groups to teach are beginners. The youngest person to have attended our camp was 3-and-a-half years old; the oldest was 81.”

Dyachkov’s goal is to instill a love of music in, well, tutti. “Especially with kids, you can’t force it. I do not push for professionalism.”

Quoting a conference she recently attended, Dyachkov said: “Music is a language that appears far before any of the 6000 spoken on earth. It is our first language. It opens the brain in ways nothing else can. Yes, music enters the ears, but it is the brain that understands it, and the soul that responds to it.”

Camp Tutti’s 8-day summer program begins July 1 and ends July 8. Besides honing skills on various instruments, the camp also touches on art, dance, theater and outdoor activities. On the final day of camp there will be a concert gala, where Camp Tutti attendees will be able to show off their musical accomplishments. There are an assortment of programs offered, tailored to individual needs. Explore them and find one right for you on their website: <http://www.camptutti.com>.

PIGGERY DRAMA CAMP

Is your child a movie buff? Drama queen? Comedian? Monty Python fan? Then the Piggery Drama Camp is a perfect fit for them. Offering kids around ages 11-15 an introduction to all aspects of theater, the two-week program is an invaluable experience for all wannabe actors, writers, and theater techs.

“It’s a passion of mine. I love working with kids and I love theater,” said Mead Baldwin, who co-directs the camp with his cousin, Elim.

6 years ago, Baldwin approached the Piggery Theater to work out a day camp that would work on not only acting, but a variety of theater skills. After receiving a grant from the Tillotson Foundation, the project was underway to create a unique and affordable way for youth to explore the world of dramatic arts.

The two-week program devotes itself to teaching all aspects of the world of theater: acting, writing, comedy, sound, lights and props. Last year, Baldwin even added audition training to the curriculum. Each week ends with a show, with the second week dedicated to putting on

MUSICAL CAMP TUTTI

For the musically inclined, Camp Tutti takes place at Bishop’s University in a unique trilingual environment. The camp runs July 1 to 8 and will instill a love of music in all who attend.

Camp Tutti was started 23 years ago, the year after founder Esfir Dyachkov and her family emigrated here from Moscow.

“The camp had a very interesting start,” said Dyachkov. “Me and my whole family are professional musicians. My son, and I don’t say this to brag, is a great violinist. I play the piano and my husband is an alto.”

“When we first came here from Moscow, we did our first show. Not our first show ever, we had done many of those, but our first here. My son was about 17 at the time, and I wanted to perform something more contemporary, to interest the audience. But my son said no, we will play what we came to play. And we did, even Rachmaninov pieces. I was told afterwards that no one had ever heard anything like it.”

“There was utter silence after the performance,” she reminisced. “The audience was moved. It was like our music touched their soul. Several people were in tears. Immediately, parents wanted their children to learn, and they wanted to learn too! I saw the willingness and promised to work on something, and I kept the promise.”

The International Joint Commission is examining opportunities to address nutrient enrichment and improve the quality of the water in Lake Memphremagog

On October 19, 2017, the International Joint Commission (IJC) was asked by the Canadian and American governments to examine the various problems linked to nutrient loading in Lake Memphremagog and Missisquoi bay on Lake Champlain and to come up with recommendations on ways to increase our efforts to reduce the nutrient loading coming from the watersheds.

The IJC is looking to Memphremagog Conservation Inc (MCI) and the Memphremagog Watershed Association (MWA) to undertake this study. MCI, based out of Magog, Quebec, has worked for more than 50 years to improve Lake Memphremagog's water quality. MWA in Vermont was created in 2007 and has a mission to protect and improve the waters of the Memphremagog Watershed.

MCI and MWA will carry out this project with the Conseil de gouvernance de l'eau des bassins versants de la rivière Saint-François (COGESAF) and the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation. This strong binational effort will allow for the collection of all the information and data available on nutrient loading in the watershed, on both sides of the border.

"We are looking forward to working with our partners to produce this report and to the opportunity to make recommendations that will lead to on-the-ground project implementation to meet our water quality goals," says Kendall Lambert, Administrative Director of MWA.

Consultation with various experts, organizations, municipalities and other governments, as well as a review of the literature will provide a snapshot of the current state of the watershed, and support a review of current management efforts to target nutrient loads in Lake Memphremagog and ways these can be strengthened. Preliminary results from this study will be presented and revised in a binational workshop planned for early 2019 and then made available for public consultation. The project will provide recommendations on ways to consolidate and improve the current efforts to reduce concentrations of nutrients and the proliferation of aquatic plants and cyanobacteria that they cause by the end of 2019.

"Hosting a binational science workshop with MWA and Quebec's Conseil de gouvernance de l'eau des bassins ver-sants de la rivière Saint-François (COGESAF) is one of the ways we hope to strengthen collaborative efforts between federal, provincial and state agencies and work toward integrated approaches to managing watershed resources," says Ariane Orjikh, General Manager of MCI.

The International Joint Commission's work plan is available on the IJC's web site: <http://ijc.org/fr/LCLM> a bigger production. Baldwin expressed gratitude that the Piggery Theater allowed him a lot of freedom when running the camp.

"We do a lot of theater games and a lot of improv. I love improv, I use it a lot. The first days are for learning the basics of theater. We play stuff like Werewolf. The kids love it," explained the co-director. "Since we're a small group, only 12 or 15 kids, they all get time on stage and between sets they do prop and scene changes. It gives them really a full acting experience. Because they're young, they get to explore themselves and find out what they're passionate about. They get a taste of everything, whether it be tech or comedy or writing."

The drama camp explores a variety of types of theater as well. According to Baldwin, their shows often have a theme, going from spoofs of the academy awards, to murder mystery dinners.

"Sometimes we use music. We did pieces from Hamilton one year, before it blew up and got popular like it is now," he said. "It's pretty crazy because we were doing Broadway before Broadway even thought of it."

In the past, the drama camp also did Les Misérables, some Disney, Monty Python, and episodes from Rowan Atkinson's "Black Adder". They even sometimes take improv requests from their audience. Baldwin, however, likes to take recommendations from the kids in the program, whether they be Youtube skits or their own written pieces.

"The biggest thing to me is that this is all about the kids," said Baldwin, adding that one once wrote a comedy sketch that was "absolutely amazing."

Along with Elim, Baldwin works with volunteers to run the drama camp, some of whom are older ex-campers that use the opportunity as a kind of entry-level internship.

This year's program will run from July 16 to 20 for the first week and July 30 to August 3 for the second. Children can attend one or both weeks at $150 each. Fees also include a field trip to the Haskell Opera House in Stanstead. For more information, contact the Piggery Theater at the 819-842-2431, or Mead Baldwin at the 819-837-1112.

Orford Music offers free events as part of its 2018 Festival

Sherbrooke

Orford Music has announced some sixty free events within the programming of its 2018 festival. Ranging from concerts to gourmet events, nearly 100 activities will be held throughout the summer, with the free concerts beginning on Saturday, June 2 and ending on Friday, August 10.

“It is essential for Orford Music to make classical music more widely known,” said the organization’s Executive and Artistic Director,

Wonny Song. “This is why a number of free, family-friendly concerts are being offered throughout the region to allow talented academy trainees to perform in front of the public.”

The festival’s free concerts will be given by the trainees of its music academy at the Salle Gilles-Lefebvre at several venues across the region including the Rivière-aux-Cerises Park in Orford on Friday evenings, at the pond area of the municipal park in Saint-Étienne-de-Bolton on Saturdays, and in various municipipalities of Estrie and Montérégie as a part of the Orford sur la route series.

A new series, Matinées champêtres, has been built into this year’s program. This new concept invites families to enjoy an outdoor concert by the talented young musicians some Saturday mornings in June and July, at North Hatley’s riverside park.

Again this year, the Academy’s instructors will be offering Public Master’s Classes free of charge on Monday and Tuesday evenings. This is an ideal opportunity to dive into the world of the Academy and observe the exchanges between the masters and their promising trainees. Four lectures have been added to this series, during which the public will learn about various topics that affect professional musicians such as injury risks and entrepreneurship.

This year’s festival also sees the fourth edition of Family Day take place on Sunday, July 22. Young music lovers will be able to explore classical music through various introductory instrument workshops and a concert for the whole family. Places are limited, so registration is required.

All details of the summer’s activities are available online at orford.mu

Travel across the stars and get down at Place Nikitotek

By Ocean Francoeur
Special to The Record

Located at the meeting of the Saint-Francis and Magog Rivers in downtown Sherbrooke, the Place Nikitotek outdoor stage is getting ready for another summer in operation. Although the venue is dedicated to production company Québec Issime's show "Québec Issime chante Starmania" from July 11 to August 18, the annual "Les Grands Spectacles" performance series will follow soon after. Programming for this year's series, announced on Wednesday, promises to treat Sherbrooke to an auditory feast for two weekends at the end of August.

According to organizers, with a wide range of shows being performed August 23 to 25 and 30 to September 1, there is going to be something for everyone at the 2018 edition of Les Grands Spectacles Nikitotek.

The opening night of weekend number one will feature l'Ensemble à vents de Sherbrooke, a massive wind-instrument orchestra. Lead by François Bernier, over 50 musicians are coming from a galaxy far, far away to bring audiences the sounds of one of the world's most popular film series: Star Wars. Kids and adults alike are invited to plunge headfirst into the world of the Jedi Order through live music and on-screen projections. Feel free to bust out that Boba Fett get-up you've got lying around because costumes are encouraged!

Coming back down to planet earth the following night, new-age crooner Mark Kingswood will put a new twist on the likes of Frank Sinatra, Michael Bubl  and George Michael while also sharing some works of his own creation, backed by a 10-musician "Big Band" ensemble.

Weekend one comes to a close with a performance the inimitable virtuoso and showman Gregory Charles.

On August 30, weekend two of the series will open with fiery nostalgia for the disco era. Legends of the 70s, the Boogie Wonder Band will groove your socks off and have you wishing for some bell bottom jeans for weeks to come. Having given over 3000 concerts in 300 cities in front of over 3 million people, this will be a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see the world's most famous disco band in such an intimate setting as Place Nikitotek.

The following night the Number 9 concert will pay tribute to The Beatles' iconic White Album in celebration of the 50th anniversary of its release, proving that Beatles Mania is still going strong even after half a century.

The series will close on September 1 with a show by Quebec singer-songwriter Bobbi Banzini, who organizers claim will blow the audience away with his unique take on R&B.

Tickets are on sale online at www.theatregranada.com or can be purchased over the phone at the 819-565-5656.

EXHIBITS

Until July 8

Uplands Cultural and Heritage Centre presents Souffle du vent from May 6 to July 8, 2018. The exhibit showcases the works of two artists living in the Eastern Townships, Lucie St-Jean & Mary Cartmel, who express themselves through painting and sculpture. Lucie St-Jean works imperfect lines that reflect freedom and seek to immortalize the wind and make it appear in her paintings. Mary Cartmel is intrigued by the contrast between the hardness and mass of the stone versus the delicate lightness and movement of birds. She represents them in the contemplative repose, lifting into flight, or landing to rest. Uplands, 9 Speid Street, Borough of Lennoxville is open Wednesday to Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. (closed on holidays).
