Sherbrooke policeman is beaten

SHERBROOKE — (RS) — Two of the men who assaulted a local police officer yesterday in Sherbrooke will appear before the court today.

Constable Marcel Guilbault of the Sherbrooke police force was beaten up in front of the Court House yesterday afternoon by a group of individuals.

The incident occurred around 4:25 p.m. as constable Guilbault was walking around the lawn of the court house.

Sherbrooke police arrested two individuals on Marquette Street following a frenzied man hunt around Wellington and Marquette streets.

Police authorities reported they are still looking for other men who were involved in the beating.

It was reported Constable Guilbault suffered minor bruises and nothing more. He has been with the force for a number of years, police said.

Irish hope and bury dead

BELFAST (Reuters) — Premier James Chichester-Clark brought Roman Catholic and Protestant community leaders together Monday night to discuss ways of easing the tension in riot-scarred Northern Ireland.

But fears of new violence remained and the commander of British troops here warned that his soldiers might soon become engulfed in more bitter Protestant-Roman Catholic fighting.

Representatives of what Chichester-Clark described as "all sections of responsible opinion" met at Stormont Castle, seat of the North Ireland Parliament, to "find ways and means of restoring peace and communal understanding."

British troops, meanwhile, continued to hold the line against new inter-communal violence in the two major flashpoints, Belfast and Londonderry, while British military authorities announced that British troop strength will be increased by 2,000 to 6,000 by Thursday.

BELFAST (AP) — Patrick Rooney, a martyr at the age of nine, was laid to rest Monday in the tear-dampened turf of troubled Northern Ireland.

"He was a grand lad and a very reliable altar boy," the parish priest told the bishop as the funeral procession wound up a soft green hillside to the Roman Catholic cemetery from the grey slums of Belfast.

"Dear God," sobbed his young mother, collapsing at the graveside, "let me go with him; bury me too."

Two sisters held her erect, while the father, uncomfortable in his dark mourning suit, grabbed a shovel with the big red hands of a shipyard worker and began filling the grave.

"Dust to dust," the parish priest intoned. The bishop lowered his head with a thousand mourners.

It isn't every day that the bishop of Belfast and a thousand mourners turn up for an altar boy's funeral, but this was far from an ordinary day, even by Northern Ireland's tragic reckoning of history.

ANOTHER VICTIM

Less than 100 yards away at the bottom of the same hillside beyond a gaunt grey line of headstones, another 1,000 mourners heard the rubbing sound of the ropes as the body of Gerald McCauley, age 15, was lowered to earth.

"Shot in the back, he was," said a woman sitting on the iron railing of a grave that afforded a vantage point for both burials. "Shot in the back while trying to evacuate people from their burning homes.

"Don't be foolish, woman," the young priest corrected her.

"He was shot in the stomach."

At almost the same moment in a nearby Protestant cemetery of Roselawn, Herbert Roy, 26, was laid to his final rest in a coffin draped with the Union Jack. Three thousand Orangemen, led by Rev. Ian Paisley, followed the remains through the heart of the Protestant district.

SIX IN ALL

In all, there were six heroes' funerals on the same day: Four Roman Catholic and two Protestant. One of the Roman Catholics, Samuel McClarnon, a 50-year-old bus driver who was shot by a random bullet while lowering a window blind, was carried in a coffin draped in the green, white and gold tricolor of the Irish Republic to the south.

"Poor Ireland," said an old woman still wearing widows' weeds from the 1920 troubles. "All she has is her dead."

In a way Patrick Rooney symbolized the desperate times in modern Ireland.

The bullet that found him in a back bedroom of his family's Divis Street flat, in the heart of the Roman Catholic Falls Road area, had to pierce three walls.

It missed his three younger brothers and his two little sisters, all of whom had been removed to the back bedroom for safety on Belfast's worst night of rioting.

CHURCH CLOSED

Patrick, the reliable altar boy, had to go to his grave without benefit of a requiem mass because his parish church, St. Peter's, was inaccessible behind the barricades in rubble-littered streets where no hearse could pass.

His light-blue coffin was carried out of the door of an aunt's house in a new section of town above the slum where the family had taken refuge.

As four uncles shouldered the tiny coffin two young lads wearing the green, white and gold kilt uniform of the Tom Williams Pipe Band fell in as a guard of honor behind the coffin, leading 800 mourners. In Ireland, only male mourners march in the funeral cortege.

"Ireland, Ireland," the old woman said. "Where is it all leading and when will it end?"

In principle

Masse says settlement has been reached

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Masse, minister responsible for civil service negotiations, said Monday night that agreement in principle had been reached on a province-wide contract for Quebec's 70,000 teachers.

Mr. Masse made the statement to reporters in the wake of contradictory statements in Quebec City by two negotiators in the dispute that has dragged on since 1967.

He said that, as far as he is concerned, the dispute is over. "However, a few legal points remain to be settled. I can assure you your children will be in school next month when the fall term begins."

Mr. Masse's statement supported that made earlier by Jean Cournoyer, chief negotiator for the government and school boards.

But Mr. Cournoyer's disclosure that agreement in principle had been reached last Friday was denied by Raymond Laliberte, president of the 60,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation.

Mr. Laliberte described as untrue a report from Jean Cournoyer, chief negotiator for the government and school boards, that the agreement had been reached last Friday.

"Even in principle, a collective agreement has not been reached."

Teachers have been working without a contract since June, 1967.

Negotiations will continue, Mr. Laliberte said, but there has been agreement on a variety of points. He denied any accord on retroactive pay.

Mr. Laliberte made the statement at a news conference just hours after Mr. Cournoyer's disclosure in a telephone interview.

Negotiations have been on for two years and have been marked by rotating strikes, marches on Quebec City and mass resignations last May.

Council battle over booze

By RICHARD SPALDING
(Record Staff Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — Why Mayor Armand Nadeau has a bar in the back of his office and what he does with it was the topic yesterday at council following a statement by East Ward Ald. Gerard Deziel.

Council members did not appreciate a story in the Sherbrooke French-language daily recently labelling them as heavy spirit consumers.

The controversy is centered on an alleged request the aldermen made for private headquarters with bar facilities, because Mayor Nadeau would not tolerate any further gatherings in his office after council meetings.

Because of recent friction, Mr. Nadeau explained, he would not allow group gatherings in his office, where visitors can easily procure refreshments after long hours of debate over municipal issues.

Mayor Nadeau made it clear yesterday he didn't care whether the bar was off limits between civic receptions.

Ald. Deziel's statement asked whether quarters for the aldermen and the opposition, linked with bar facilities, would not represent an unjustified expense for the population.

He added he was totally opposed to such a proposal, stating that other more serious projects should be tended to.

The statement continued to say that none of the aldermen had appreciated the locked door attitude of the last month. Mr. Deziel asked for control over bar expenses at city hall and a monthly report from the finance commission.

Mayor Nadeau smiled and told council a bar had been instigated in 1955 to help cut down the cost of civic receptions in local hotels.

The mayor said that at that time, civic activities were costing the city an average of $1,500 a month. So an ice box was introduced into city hall to store wine and other refreshments in case of civic receptions.

That figure now stands at $100 a month, continued Mr. Nadeau. "I don't need a bar in my office," he said, "my own little ice box will do just fine."

At this point Mayor Nadeau repeated his intention of having no more meetings in his office. He suggested council move the existing bar to another location or build another door leading to it.

He went on to suggest council buy its own liquor if it wanted a drink after a long meeting.

Ald. Everett Nicol told his colleagues not a city in the province of Quebec had been able to save $200,000 in liquor expenses since 1955. He argued the bar should be in another location and to be used for civic receptions only.

Ald. Gaston Roy and Marcel Savard voiced their support for such a measure, adding they too didn't care whether there was a bar or not at city hall.

Ald. Deziel proposed the bar be moved to another location, to be used for official receptions only and that there be a control of expenses by the finance commission and supervision from city manager Richard Fabi.

Following the proposal, council members launched a general "I don't care about the bar" turmoil with aldermen making proposal and counter-railways were ripped up by the storm.

Mississippi lays helpless after Camille

Fortunately, many coastal residents fled inland before Camille shrieked in from the Gulf of Mexico Sunday night.

"This is the greatest single disaster Mississippi has ever known with the possible exception of the great 1927 Mississippi River flood," said Gov. John Bell Williams.

FEAR MORE DEAD

State Adjutant-General Walter Johnson, reporting to the governor after a survey of the disaster area, said rescue workers have been unable to reach many areas of maximum damage and he expects the death toll to rise.

In Washington, President Nixon declared the three storm-battered coastal counties of Mississippi a federal disaster area, making it eligible for an initial $1,000,000 in federal disaster assistance with more appropriations to be considered.

At Atlanta, a dozen C-124 Globemaster planes at Dobbins Air Force Base were assigned to airlift 375,000 pounds of food and supplies to be unloaded at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi for the stricken area.

Emergency telephone and electric power repair crews were ordered in.

ESTIMATES DAMAGE

After a jeep ride over stretches of broken pavement between Gulfport and Biloxi, Gov. Williams said damage would be in hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Red Cross said its preliminary and incomplete survey of the area showed about 2,000 homes destroyed and more than 2,000 damaged in the Gulfport-Biloxi area.

Camille also left ruin in Plaquemines Parish (county), a flat Mississippi River delta area that juts into the gulf downriver from New Orleans.

But the more heavily populated Mississippi coast bore the brunt of the fury.

New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., were hit by hurricane force winds but suffered relatively light damage.

FEAR RETURN — Irish officials today fear a return to scenes similar to this one, where rioters and police met face to face in bloody conflicts last week. Cal'n has been restored following the arrival of British troops. But unless Prime Minister Wilson and Premier James Chichester-Clark meet soon to discuss ways of lessening friction between Protestants and Catholics, observers feel more rioting can be expected.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Gout, Like Diabetes, An Error of Metabolism

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—My doctor says my blood uric acid level is high. What does this mean and what can be done about it?

A—This usually means gout. It is caused by a failure of the body to eliminate uric acid in the urine. Like diabetes, gout is an inborn error of metabolism. It is not caused by high living as was once believed. With modern drugs, this disease can be controlled but not cured.

Q—What are the symptoms of gout? How serious is it? Is it hereditary?

Eat, Drink and Be WARY...

Do you love lots of fresh fruit, cool salads and tall tinkling beverages in hot weather? Sounds healthy, but sometimes careless handling, spoilage, or over-indulgence can lead to annoying diarrhea. Then it's Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry to the rescue! It quickly relieves nausea, cramps and restores intestinal balance. For children and adults alike, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has proven gentle, and quickly effective for over 115 years. Keep it handy at home, cottage and on trips.

A—When uric acid crystals are deposited in a joint, usually in the big toe, there is redness, swelling and acute pain. Small skin tumors (tophi) consisting of the same crystals may form, especially in the external ear. Chronic gout, inadequately treated, may lead to serious kidney damage. Heredity is one of the causative factors.

Q—I have gouty arthritis. Please list the foods that are high in purines.

A—Persons with gout should avoid such purine-rich foods as glandular cuts of meat (kidney, liver and sweetbreads), meat extracts (bouillon cubes), shellfish, fowl and lentils. To a lesser degree, purines are found in asparagus, cauliflower, kidney beans, navy beans, lima beans, mushrooms, spinach, rye bread, graham crackers, whole wheat bread, shredded wheat and other wheat cereals.

Q—What are the best drugs for gout? What are their side effects?

A—The basic drug is colchicine. The dosage required to control the disease often causes nausea and diarrhea. Probenecid (Benemid) may cause nausea, headache and a rash. Allopurinol (Zyloprim) may cause liver damage and should not be taken with iron salts. Persons who take it should have periodic liver-function tests.

Q—The diuretic pills I am taking for high blood pressure have caused gout. Would allopurinol work better than probenecid? The latter upsets my stomach.

A—The water pills have not caused your gout but may have triggered an attack. Allopurinol works better than probenecid for some but not all persons with gout. Both drugs work best when given with colchicine.

Q—I have been taking Coumadin for five years and have been losing my hair ever since I started. Is there another anticoagulant that doesn't have this side effect?

A—Although there are other anticoagulants, they all may cause loss of hair.

Ulverton UCW hears history of W.S. UCW units

ULVERTON — A special meeting of the U.C.W. was called in July during the visit of Mrs. John Stokoe, Bear River, N.S. Letters of goodwill were read from the U.C.W.'s in Bear River and Clementsport, N.S., telling the history of their organization also the work being done by the different groups. They are active groups, especially their teenagers, and among their many activities is visiting senior citizens' home, reading to them and doing many little kindnesses.

Mrs. Stokoe also spoke of the work of the different groups of U.C.W.'s in their part of Nova Scotia, which was very interesting.

At the close of the evening refreshments were served and Mrs. Stokoe was presented with a plate of Kirkdale Holy Trinity Church, as a memento of her visit.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Two of the first rules of a student of bridge learns are: Second hand low and third hand high. They are pretty good rules but there are plenty of exceptions to both of them.

Today's hand shows a third-hand-low play by Ted Lightner that helped him and Mike Gottlieb win the 1932 Masters' Pairs.

Mike opened the seven of hearts in response to his partner's heart overcall. South called for dummy's queen and almost any player would have covered with the king but not Teddy.

Back in those early days, almost everyone led top of three-small but Mike had already started the more modern practice of leading low from three, so Ted knew that South was sitting over him with the ace, 10 and noted that dummy had a minimum opening bid and that maybe there was some chance to come out with a nice plus-score. Therefore, Teddy let the queen hold. He did play the eight to tell his partner to lead another heart if he ever got in.

South saw his best line of play would be to go after the club suit. At trick two he led his jack of clubs and let it ride after Ted played low. Mike was in with the queen and led his four of hearts. Now the jack forced South's ace. Ted still had the ace of clubs as an entry for his last four hearts.

If Ted had covered the queen with the king, South would have let him hold the trick. He could lead a second heart or anything else that his fancy suggested but he would never be able to bring in his suit and South would come home with the marbles.

WHAT NEXT? — Workers are busy demolishing the L. O. Noel buildings on Wellington Street South this week to make way for a future construction site. A high ranking official at Denault Ltd., large scale grocer suppliers, said recently the company

Youth to stand trial for murder after statement

SHERBROOKE — (RS) — Andre Chouinard of Lake Megantic was sent to the Assizes yesterday on a charge of murder following his voluntary statement before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel.

The 17-year-old youth was arrested in Lake Megantic last June and charged with the murder of 45-year-old Emile Fecteau of Lake Megantic.

Fecteau's mutilated body had been found alongside Route 24 near St. Ludger, four miles from Lake Megantic. Chouinard had been detained by police in Thetford Mines, Sherbrooke and Montreal on a coroner's warrant.

At the preliminary hearing, the youth had pleaded self-defense as reason for the beating of the victim.

He is represented by Sherbrooke attorney Jean Cormier. SHERBROOKE — (RS) — A Magog man was fined $200 yesterday and had his driving permit suspended for six months after pleading guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and dangerous driving.

Rodney Goyette was charged in connection with an accident on Beebe road last May 1, in which a young motorcyclist was injured.

Goyette, 22, appeared before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel. Three men charged with assault and causing injuries will appear before the court next Thursday.

Twenty-one year-old Jacques Jutras, of Sherbrooke, Rejean Lachance, 20, and Guy Jutras, 28, both of Three Rivers, pleaded not guilty to the charges.

The incident occurred in Sherbrooke last July 31, when a local resident, Marcel Theroux was beaten.

A jail term may be the sentence for a Granville resident if he does not pay back the $30 he obtained from his victim through the use of a false cheque.

Twenty-three year-old Walter Woods made the wrong move in Beebe recently when he obtained money under false pretenses.

Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel will sentence the man Sept. 4, allowing him enough time to repay his victim.

Crown attorney Michel Cote pointed out Woods had a previous record.

A Richmond man was fined $100 yesterday for indecent assault as he appeared before Judge Benoit Turmel.

Crown Attorney Michel Cote told the court the 32-year-old man lured a five-year-old girl into his car and committed indecent actions with her last Aug. 14.

The accused had no previous record.

A Ham South youth told the court he would come back with an attorney yesterday after appearing on charges of break-in and theft.

Michel Desfosse of Ham South was charged with breaking and entry and stealing $500.

The suspect will appear again on Thursday.

Judge Benoit Turmel fined a Montreal resident $50 for store theft yesterday, following the crown's recommendations.

Crown attorney Stanley Steinman told the court Joseph Rosenfield of Montreal had no previous record and that the music albums taken from United Stores in Sherbrooke last July had been returned.

Attorney Steinman also requested the Montreal visitor sign a bond to keep the peace for a year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Bombing

QUEBEC (CP) — Union disenchantment has been cited as the possible reason for a bomb that exploded Sunday at an office of the Quebec department of labor in suburban Ste. Foy.

Municipal police chief Fernand Lapointe said in an interview the bomb may have been placed near the building by a dissatisfied worker.

"Most of the labor conflicts are debated in that building," he said.

Mr. Lapointe said his department had received several anonymous phone calls recently saying the building would be blown up and the building's 13 floors had been searched four times without success.

Suspension

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — City council Monday indefinitely suspended two policemen on the recommendation of Police Chief M. J. Amedee Delage.

Detective Lieutenant Jean-Marie Hubert and Detective Sergeant Paul Dallaire, suspended without pay for "breach of duty," were members of the morality squad.

Witnesses at a current provincial inquiry into the police force have testified that police had files on prostitutes in the city and set rules for prostitution operations.

Smothers Bros.

NEW YORK (AP) — Metromedia television stations in five major United States cities will broadcast the Smothers Brothers television show that was banned by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Metromedia announced Monday.

The controversial show, which caused the cancellation of CBS's contract with the music and comedy team of Tom and Dick Smothers, will be broadcast at 8 p.m. Sept. 10 in New York and Washington, a Metromedia spokesman said. He said that the broadcast time in the other three cities has not yet been set.

The five stations that will broadcast the programs are KTTV, Los Angeles, KNEW, San Francisco, KMBC, Kansas City, WTTG, Washington, and WNEW-TV, New York.

No mermaids in Massawippi but exhibition has one

SHERBROOKE — (SL) — We may not have a real, live mermaid swimming around the chilly waters of Lake Massawippi but then again we do have the next best thing — Frances Dillon at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace.

The synchronized swimming champion is one of the star attractions now showing at Exposition Sherbrooke '69.

The gorgeous creature of the deep vehemently denies being the "Playmate" of the late and adventurous buccaneer, Davey Jones.

"I am married to a wonderful husband and have three wonderful children — all boys," she explained to a RECORD reporter.

Attired in a three piece sparkling silver bikini, which she designed herself while playing at the Bal Du Moulin Rouge in Paris, France, two summers ago, the aqua-belle enthralles the audience with her aquatic performance.

The deep brown-eyed water maiden gave a solo synchronized swimming performance to the mood music of "Warsaw's Concerto" and "Slaughter on 10th Avenue" conducted by Frank Martino.

Her act was crowned through the delicate balancing of a tray of flowers on the pad of her right foot, while half-submerged, and swimming in a wide circle.

In the second half of the show, she participated as leading lady with 10 Aqua-Belles in a colorful representation of "Moods in Technicolor" wearing a bright yellow fluorescent one-piece ensemble with a birds nest bathing cap.

Although she found the water, which is culled from the reservoir at Sherbrooke, a "bit too cold," she did manage to warm up to the applause of the audience.

And, as an encore to her arrival in Sherbrooke, she described the people as "very, very friendly even though I don't speak a word of French."

"The first thing I do when I come to a new city," she said, "is make sure my costumes are in order."

Repairs on her costumes are done in the city where the show is scheduled to perform.

"I usually don't have very much trouble finding someone in the city to do a few minor repairs on my costumes and shows."

Considered one of America's greatest aquatic stars, she has been swimming since the age of three and has been with Sam Snyder's International Water Follies the last ten years.

Born at Scituate, Massachusetts, she has been living in Nassau, Bahamas, the last seven years.

Husband, Dan Dillon, is master of ceremonies and social host at the Castle Harbour Hotel at Bermuda. A former night club comedian, it is his job to mind the kids while his wife glove-trots with the Boston-based aquatic company.

Her three boys, Michael, 10, Barry, eight, and William Joseph, nicknamed "Billy Joe", three, have their eyes set on show business.

Mrs. Dillon said Billy Joe has already learned to dive from a 15 foot tandem while Mike and Barry have hopes of becoming water comedians.

The aqua star has also performed on the "Flipper" television series.

Her part in the series consisted of a ballet leg lift, which has her floating on her back with her right leg extended vertically, and a 300 pound, eight foot, dolphin jumping over her 115 pound shapely body.

A flick of her index finger, she explains, is all the cue needed for the dolphin to jump while Flipper, which is actually one of four dolphins on the show, is usually the one that performs the best in any single act.

In synchronized swimming, which is often performed to music and may take the form of a water ballet, the accent is on artistry rather than competition.

"The greatest problems are the lights and temperature of the water," she said. "It is very easy to lose your sense of direction which is why we usually have an overhead light to guide us from left to right."

"I do hope they try to warm up the water here," she concluded.

MERMAID — This is The Mermaid, or more precisely, synchronized swimming champion Frances Dillon, now playing at Exposition-

Sherbrooke '69 in the Sports Palace for a twice-daily performance lasting until Friday.

Central agency needed to halt terrorism wave

Speaking in the Magdalen Islands over the weekend, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand issued the strongest statement yet to come from a provincial government spokesman in condemning the newest outbreak of terrorist bombings in this province. He has promised to use all the resources available to the province to crush "the radicals, the revolutionaries and the bearded little Castros" whom he blames for the renewed wave of bombings. He has promised to answer force with force if necessary to restore law and order.

All right-thinking residents of the province will endorse his words but may be excused if they hold certain reservations as to the effectiveness of the Premier's declarations.

One reason for coolness is the apparent inability of the police forces at various levels to effect a common front in the battle against the terrorists, their doubts are reinforced by declarations by Montreal municipal police anti-terrorist squad leaders that they are not receiving the co-operation they should expect from police forces in other parts of the area in their fight against the bombings.

Perhaps one of the strongest steps the provincial government could take would be to establish a central agency to carry on the war against terrorism.

This does not mean that the municipal police forces should be relieved of the responsibility of combatting this particular form of crime but rather that the provincial police should be given the power to force local law-enforcement agencies to co-operate fully with all other police forces.

Obviously organized, the terrorist activities are not confined to one municipality or one area. To a greater or lesser extent they are province-wide and must be fought on a province-wide basis by police forces at all levels.

Local prides and jealousies must not be allowed to interfere with the fight on terrorism.

They call'em "patients" because that's what you have to be in our local bandage emporium.

Running OK, walking out

Just how far the good old practise of walking has declined in public favor is evidenced by the experience of a resident of a suburban New Jersey town who made the "mistake" of walking about his neighborhood, clad in old work clothes, to see how his neighbors' lawns were doing.

A police cruiser pulled up and the officers insisted that he explain just what he was doing. After he had managed to convince the officers of his good intentions, he was informed that so few city people walked any more that people in the neighborhood felt he must be a suspicious character.

We can feel sympathy for this unnamed New Jerseyite, recalling a similar experience ourselves in a nearby Eastern Townships town. To kill time waiting for an outbound bus, we strolled through the town late in the evening only to be hailed by a police cruiser for loitering.

Walkers know how queer they look to others by the amused glances sent their way from speeding automobiles or by the comments from residents in areas where one walks to work regularly.

How different is the case of the jogger. Once there was nothing likelier to draw police attention than a grown man running through a suburban neighborhood.

Now such men, above all when clad in sweat shirts and sweat pants, are looked upon as the safest in their community.

But just try walking. Unless you have already established a reputation in their district as being something of an oddball, it is almost as bad as coming down a ladder from a second-storey window.

An old-timer is a fellow who can recall seeing a dirigible sail majestically over the neighborhood.

TODAY in history

Canadians paid a heavy toll 27 years ago today—in 1942—when units of the 2nd Division raided the French town of Dieppe during the Second World War. Of the nearly 5,000 men who crossed the English Channel, 3,369 were killed, wounded or captured. The main body of attackers was stalled on the beaches and only a handful of troops managed to break into the town. Despite the heavy loss, the attack was regarded by many military strategists as a valuable lesson for later seaborne landings.

1809 — Accommodation, the first Canadian steamship, was launched at Montreal.

"Why Don't You Put One in the Other Foot, Too?"

Outside influence needed to solve Laotian internal rows

VIENTIANE — (AP) — When Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos returned from his annual vacation in France, the diplomatic corps turned out to meet him. The Russian ambassador immediately aligned himself with the American ambassador and the two fell into animated conversation.

The Chinese charge d'affaires stood apart across the room. These alignments are perhaps prophetic of political evolution in this Southeast Asian kingdom. A political crisis has been brought to a head by military conflict and it will almost certainly require outside influence to settle it.

Western powers have already started to apply pressure, signalling the Communist side to start a cooling down process. The American government has issued statements critical of the current fighting.

Britain, a co-chairman of the 1962 Geneva accord, says the Soviet Union is ignoring plans to end the threat to peace in Laos resulting from North Vietnamese aggression.

Diplomats in this quiet administrative capital beside the Mekong River are currently looking hopefully to the Kremlin to make the next move. They see, however, a distinctly different situation from 1962 when, before the accords had been signed, pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces captured two-thirds of the country.

PRESSURE EASED
 President John F. Kennedy then put muscle into his negotiations with Nikita Khrushchev by landing marines in Thailand. Shortly afterward, Khrushchev announced the Soviet Union "continued" to support a neutralist Laos. The pressure eased.

The political-military abilities of the United States in Laos have been drastically altered by the Vietnam war. With strong opposition at home to further military involvement, the United States seems in no position to undertake intervention.

Peking, Moscow and Hanoi are certainly aware of this. Thus, with little fear of U.S. intervention, they can continue to support the present offensive. Barring a political settlement, it is likely to put the Communist-backed forces back in control of two-thirds of the kingdom within another year.

What, then, might the Soviet Union have to gain or lose by the establishment of a "pro-Communist neutralist" Laos as opposed to the present "pro-Western neutralist" Laos? The answer may depend on what political sway the Soviets expect to maintain among the Pathet Lao forces. That influence would have to be filtered through Hanoi, which has an estimated 48,000 troops now fighting in Laos.

The answer also would have to consider the Chinese influence among the Pathet Lao and in Hanoi. While this influence is not apparently strong in the Pathet

Central Park remains "in" for New York

NEW YORK (AP) — For hippies and grandmothers, for toddlers and young executives who carry kites in their attache cases, Central Park is the "in" place to be these days.

Five years ago, a mention of the park brought hoots of derision and jokes about muggings. Even Mayor John V. Lindsay, appearing on a countrywide television talk show, once quipped that his bodyguard was absent because he's been mugged while following the mayor through the park.

Today, however, there are fewer hoots and jokes. There is still crime in the park. A 19-year-old Dearborn, Mich., girl was stabbed to death in the park last August. And the city still bans people from the park from midnight to half an hour before dawn because it says it does not have enough police to cover the vast area during those hours.

But William R. Ginsberg, first deputy administrator and commissioner of the Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration, says, "It is clear that in Central Park, at least in the last two years, serious crimes — that is, crimes of violence — have declined."

Improved lighting, more police and a host of city-sponsored activities draw thousands of people to the park each day and many evenings, particularly in summer.

Central Park includes 840 acres — more than twice the land in Monaco — and is bounded by 59th and 110th streets and Fifth and Eighth avenues. The city purchased the land in the 1850s for $7,400,000 and set to work carving a park out of what was then a wilderness overrun by squatters.

In a recent week, the Schafer Central Park Music Festival presented concerts by pop and jazz musicians like Blood, Sweat and Tears, Miles Davis and Herbie Mann.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — According to Soviet terminology there are three kinds of confrontation between the Communist and non-Communist parts of the world. Armed conflict, economic warfare, and ideological warfare. In practice there are no sharp dividing lines between these categories of confrontation because economic and military pressures are merely specific forms of the basic and all-encompassing ideological conflict.

Immediately after World War II Stalin put emphasis on expansion by force of arms. His thrust into the heart of Europe was checked when the Western powers, alarmed by the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia and the Berlin blockade, set up NATO as their collective defence shield. The war in Korea halted his push by proxy in the Far East.

Khrushchev experimented with military blackmail but when he was forced to withdraw his missiles from Cuba and swallow his Berlin ultimatum, he switched emphasis on economic warfare. Preaching direct dependency of economic performance on the political system, he set out to outproduce the Western democracies and conquer the world by the example of a better life under Communism. The scheme never got under way because of the Communist economy's innate incompetency.

The men in the Kremlin who thus forced to retrench their position and while building up their military potential, shift emphasis on the less visible methods of ideological warfare.

What this means is expertly explained by Swiss political writer Georg Bruderer in his contribution to a symposium on the Soviet threat which was recently published in London. Here is the gist of Mr. Bruderer's theses:

The very essence of Communism is ideology. It is, however, not only an ideology as the term is generally understood in the democracies, but an organization as well. This organization, i.e. the Communist Party, was founded, exists, and acts exclusively for the purpose of forcing upon mankind the social system that evolved from Marxist ideology.

The primary method of expansion of this system is ideological warfare which seeks to divide and disrupt the non-Communist society by exacerbating and exploiting its weak spots. Every friction, whatever its nature (economic, political, religious, racial, nationalist, social) is a target.

In short, the purpose of ideological warfare, and of its psychological warfare subdivision, is subversive and destruction of the political and moral fabric of the non-Communist society.

Since most of the Communist parties in the democratic countries are too small to do the job unaided, and since it is essential to alert the victims to the nature of the onslaught, Communists rely in their subversive activity chiefly on persons who can be convinced, not necessarily of Communist ideals, but of the allegedly incurable ills in their own country.

These often innocent and well-meaning fellow-travellers enlarge the circle of potential vendors of Communist propaganda in organizations and institutions the Communists themselves find difficult to penetrate.

In this softening up process the Communists follow Lenin's directive: "A stronger opponent can be conquered only by the strongest exertions and by exploiting in the most careful, prudent and skillful way any, even the smallest, fissure between the enemies, any, even the smallest, discrepancy of interests between various bourgeois groups of classes within a country, as well as any, even the smallest, chance of winning an ally. He who does not understand this, does not know a thing of Marxism."

Confident that most people in the democracies don't know a thing about Marxism, and particularly about the Marxist methods of operation, the Communists are relatively safe in the subversive work.

Pursuing their destructive task, they use both ideological and psychological weapons.

The dual thrust, which few Westerners are able to detect, stems from the Soviet view of morale as an amalgam of socially psychological and individually psychological elements. Among the socially psychological elements the most important are national and class consciousness and other group loyalties, sympathies and antipathies.

Individually psychological elements are exemplified by a person's temperament, character, intellect and willpower. Different methods and approaches are therefore needed for ideologically influencing individuals and organized groups.

Mother as a Martyr

By BETTY CANARY

I believe my ability to say, right out loud, "I am a martyr," is a healthy sign. After all, like most women, I was taught to be ashamed of such feelings and I successfully repressed them for years.

The truth is, I have times when I am a true sister to St. Joan—complete with orange flames licking at my ankles.

Sometime ago I decided we should get things in the proper perspective around here. Also, I began wondering if perhaps my children could be so simple-minded as to really believe me when I'd go around, wearing a perpetual grin and saying stuff like, "Of course, I don't mind putting down my book and helping round up your hamsters," and "I'd love to go on a picnic."

Let's be honest. The real reason I'll put down the book and hunt hamsters is because I remember the time they lost a white mouse and I didn't find it until my aunt came for a visit. (Well, actually, she found him. He had made a cozy little hole inside the mattress of the sofa-bed and came out to investigate the stranger that moved in on him.)

The real reason I'll take kids on occasional picnics is because they want to go and I'm a nice enough person to believe children have rights. (My rights include the chance to have a nice lunch someplace indoors where kids aren't allowed entrance.)

My main reason for admitting that I am a martyr, a poor mistreated, overworked slavey at times, is that I don't want my husband and children to start wondering if I am simple-minded. I am sure other husbands and offspring don't worry about their woman-in-the-home. Surely they must wonder about her babbling, "I'd LOVE to..." and "Of course, I don't mind..." to everything from wiping down the walls after somebody's shower to a request for a chocolate cake. Can she love, or at the least, not mind everything equally?

Don't they get bored with the lady simpering, "Because I love you..." as her reason for doing things for the family?

I'm not listening any more to those poets and philosophers and miscellaneous know-it-alls who keep equating work with love. I don't say to my son, "Cut the grass to show your love for mother." He knows the grass must be cut for other reasons. I don't say I clean the bathroom because I love my children. I clean the bathroom because that's part of my job around here and it's a most distasteful job and I can hardly wait until science comes up with a robot to do it for me.

It's a relief when your children understand what a hard life you lead. Today, for example, my mouth full of pins, I knelt before a daughter and measured a hem. "Poor mother," she said, "You thought paper dresses would end this for you."

"But you look nice in the dress," I could mumble truthfully, "even if I loathe taking up hems."

"I wish you didn't ALWAYS moan when you do it," she sighed, "but I suppose I'll just have to listen to you every time!"

The answer of a true martyr in the making.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The 'new look' of 1947 reappears in Paris

PARIS — (AP) — Yves Saint Laurent dropped hems like bombs Monday and they fell to eight, 10, 12 and 14 inches from the ground in styles that were sometimes reminiscent of Dior's "new look" of 1947.

The long look was most emphatic in Saint Laurent's tweed coats, cut like men's topcoats. They drop to midcalf. The skirts that shoot out from daytime tweed suits and battle jacket tops are even longer than midcalf—eight to 10 inches from the ground.

The long theme is carried out in printed wool topcoats cut like men's dressing gowns. Saint Laurent does this at least a dozen times in paisley and Persian carpet designs. And the drop is brought into the English governess look as well: A fingertip-length suit jacket worn over a knee-length skirt. It goes with a LaCoste type shirt that has a buttoned front tab.

The same tab is found on jumpsuits and pyjamas, many recalling the American astronauts' fatigue suits. They come in muted neutrals such as beige and grey, and also in black.

Another important trend for afternoon is the family album and Little Women look—mutton sleeves, waisted Basque jackets, calf-length full skirts and ruffled ruche necklines. In this category, there is also a Spanish feeling. Black cloth suits are treated to passementerie touches, tabs and frogging on the front. The white silk shirt is frilled and the bolero is torero inspired.

Bride-to-be honored

WENDY BLEMINGS

MELBOURNE — Miss Wendy Blemings was guest of honor at a surprise miscellaneous shower, held at the Bellevue Golf Club given by Mrs. Gordon McKeage, Mrs. Russell Bedard and Mrs. Guelph Husk. The room was decorated with pink and white streamers and a large basket of summer flowers. The guests table was also decorated with the same color scheme, white tapers in crystal holders, centred with a prettily decorated shower cake.

On arrival Miss Blemings was very much taken by surprise to find around 60 friends and relatives awaiting her. She was greeted by Mrs. Husk while Mrs. McKeage pinned a corsage on her. Her mother Mrs. David Blemings was given a corsage by Mrs. Bedard and Mrs. Ludger Poirier, the prospective groom's mother, one by Mrs. McKeage. The guest of honor was then escorted to a special seat behind a long table prettily decorated and laden with beautiful gifts. Seated on either side of her were her mother, Mrs. Blemings, and Mrs. Poirier who assisted her in unwrapping the many gifts. Little Miss Julia Griffith replenished the table with the gaily wrapped gifts. After the gifts had been admired, Miss Blemings thanked everyone and invited all to visit her in her new home.

Seated at the head table with Miss Blemings, were her mother and Mrs. Dorothy Oakley, Mrs. Ludger Poirier, the prospective groom's mother and aunt, Mrs. Raymond Vigneault. The hostesses were assisted in serving by the Misses Janie Simpson, Helen Bedard, Darlene Montgomery, Karen McKeage, Frances Lynn Smith and Karen Kyd.

After refreshments had been served Miss Blemings cut the shower cake and passed it around to the guests, after which she introduced her future husband Mr. Pierre Poirier, who had just arrived.

Madame la Presidente: swinger with discretion

PARIS—(NEA)—For the next seven years, Madame Claude Pompidou, France's First Lady, must be prepared to have 50 million pairs of eyes focused on her.

She and her husband symbolize the new era, the transition from the austere, heroic, almost legendary Gaulism of their illustrious predecessor to a more liberal, accessible human form.

Claude Pompidou had to escape the public eye during the years her husband served as prime minister. Now the die is cast and it will be difficult for her to avoid the protocol shadowing her movements.

It is more than probable that the Elysee (France's White House)—as impersonal, conventional and official as the Louvre—will acquire a spirit of informality with the advent of the first "swinging" Madame la Presidente. For years the towering figure of General de Gaulle not only blurred the outlines of his ministers but put his unassuming wife Yvonne far in the background.

Anyway, she was very removed emotionally from the world of miniskirts and swinging society. Not for Madame de Gaulle the gaiety of first nights and bright parties, but instead the formal ritual performances at the Opera with visiting royalty and the rigorous protocol of lunches and banquets at the Elysee.

While the Pompidous have never gone in for the wildest form of Paris night life, they still like to indulge in a night out on the town. But they both have survived unscratched from a whispering campaign which linked them in the social circle of movie idol Alain Delon when his bodyguard, Stefan Markovic, was murdered.

Claude Pompidou will most certainly bring to their official residence a relaxed atmosphere. But being a Frenchwoman to the core, she will know instinctively just what the French people expect of a modern First Lady—a certain measure of discretion and not too far out, fashion-wise.

er when they were both in the nursery. Born in the province of Anjou, known for its blue skies, soft-spoken people, good cooking and wine, the two girls were brought up by a housekeeper who taught them the almost forgotten housewifely arts, especially cooking and sewing.

"Plain cooking, succulent dishes like mutton stew, that is what we as a family appreciate," Claude declared one day. The Pompidous' country house, an hour's ride out of Paris, is the meeting place of the clan.

"Weekends we are often 15 at the table," she remarked, "all family."

Claude Pompidou also happens to be the first Madame la Presidente to be fashion-conscious. A few months ago she attended an official gala at the state Opera in a Chanel Bermuda evening suit. She loves trouser suits and all the fashionable gadgets, figure-hugging swimsuits and short skirts. Tall and slender, with a shock of curly blond hair, she looks particularly good in tailored clothes. Her favorite design houses are Yves Saint Laurent, Cardin, Dior, Laroche. But she is also a faithful Chanel client.

"A lot had been said about my 'above-the-knees' hems, my Bermuda ensembles. After all, I dress like a woman of my times. I do know that from now on I must consider my new activities and responsibilities. I may adore independence, but I am quite capable of respecting certain obligations," she confided.

She and her husband are interested in new ideas, new people, especially artists, writers and poets. There is nothing of the social snob in either. They are completely unimpressed by titles or position. Madame Pompidou frankly admits she knows nothing about politics.

The Pompidous shortly expect to be grandparents. Their son Paul, 27, who is completing his medical studies, married last year just before the mini-revolution.

The Pompidous come from middle-class stock and do not attempt to conceal it. Claude Pompidou is inclined to be somewhat outspoken but is usually very gay and has a ready laugh.

"I adore knowing everything about people, but the social set bores me very quickly and I am only really happy with our real friends, those who stood by my husband during the difficult days of May, 1968," she declared recently.

Reading is her favorite pastime but she also devotes much time to a medical research outfit and an organization that cares for handicapped children. Friends and acquaintances who until recently called him Georges and theed and thou-d him are wondering how they should address the president of the Republic? Who will be admitted to the inner circle? New fads and snobisms eventually will stem from the Elysee.

Will the new president remain faithful to the old Georges Pompidou? And who among her woman friends will feel free to call on Madame la Presidente at the Elysee?

ONLY YOUR ART DEALER KNOWS FOR SURE

In the last 25 years, Americans from Madison Avenue to Main Streets across the country have become art and antique enthusiasts, acquiring old furniture, bric-a-brac, paintings, prints and sculpture with such fervor that the term "cultural explosion" was invented to describe it. Now, thanks to advance techniques in the reproduction of art masterpieces, middle-income buffs can afford to become collectors. The most recent of these—hand-crafted reproductions of famous art treasures for home decoration—are available at surprisingly modest prices, with duplications so exact that only your antique or art dealer knows for sure.

The Natural Look

Make-up is a wonderful invention. It can transform the plainest Jane into the belle of the ball. The key words to remember in using make-up are "subtle" and "natural." There is no point in applying liquid foundation if you have a "make-up mask" instead of a face when you've finished. It's also pointless to apply elaborate eye make-up if you come out looking as if you stepped out of a paint-box. Make sure that your face is a well-blended whole, with nothing looking artificial.

Acknowledge Courtesies

Women, because they're women, are extended certain courtesies by men in our society. Such things as opening doors, lighting cigarettes, giving us the right of way on the road, are done for us. The truly feminine woman will never take any of these considerations for granted. She will always acknowledge courtesy with a nod of the head, a smile or a thank-you.

Get Rid of Blackheads

A good way of getting rid of blackheads is to use a solution of olive oil and salt. Put the mixture into a bowl and dab on with cotton.

"The Land" is completed for Osaka '70

After eight months of intermittent filming over the length and breadth of Canada, the National Film Board has completed its production for Osaka '70 "The Land", a six-minute panavision spectacular will be presented in the Canadian pavilion of the 1970 World's Fair.

The film which tells of the vastness of the land, of its potential natural wealth and of the challenge of the climate and geography to its relatively few inhabitants, will be seen on a gigantic triangular screen. Director, Rex Tasker has attempted to show the land in its natural untouched state; as it looked during the course of its population and as it is today.

"The Land" was begun last August and now covers the five broad geographical divisions and all four seasons. The most difficult sequences were left to the last and, in mid-April, the N. F. B. crew wrapped up its film making on Baffin Island in the Northwest Territories. In temperatures averaging -27 degree and with winds up to 30 m.p.h., the story of the land was conducted.

Cameras froze, heaters failed to heat, trucks got stuck, skidoos stopped and the Eskimos decided that they preferred hunting to performing for the camera. Not even the caribou herds were cooperative. Tasker had originally planned to film the vast herds of caribou crossing the barren wastes in their annual migration. But the graceful animals had no such plan and chose to remain in more intimate groups of twelve to fifteen.

Some of the most spectacular shooting in the film was done from the rear of an RCAF twin engine Caribou. Captains Paul Appery and Brian Cuniff, who had flown the Film Board crew across Canada, provided some low level flying so that cameraman Michel Thomas d'Hoste could capture a breathtaking view of the North from the air.

Early filming for "The Land" was by the award-winning cameraman Jean-Claude Labrecque who also had his share of anxious moments. Aside from aerial shooting, one of the Labrecque sequences required he and his camera to sit perched on the front of a locomotive, six inches above the rails. As the train sped along at 65 m.p.h., Labrecque filmed the prairie landscape.

"The Land" will be one of three films to be presented by Canada at its pavilion in Osaka.

The catfish are out for a stroll

By JIM CROSSLEY

After a rainstorm, Vernon Ogilvie spends the night driving and looking for walking catfish out for roadside strolls.

Vernon, a biologist on the staff of Florida's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, is an expert on this land-prowling menace.

His current opinion: the walking catfish, a former pet tropical fish gone wild, is more of a threat than ever. Its habitat has increased until it encompasses West Palm Beach where Ogilvie resides. There is evidence that the species nested productively this year and he finds a new wave of juveniles.

In the fish's mobility lies its threat. Earlier reports were that it invaded land using its peculiar air-breathing apparatus in order to satisfy its voracious appetite. From the frequency of observation by the public in the spring, it appears also that the catfish uses its wriggling land locomotion to hunt out sheltered waters for spawning — thus increasing its range.

Clarias batrachus (its scientific name) can grow as long as 18 inches. It is a bulky, subduing the more valuable native fish. It is even beast right at this stage. Vernon Ogilvie is so busy sending the ones he captures during his night forays to other biologists who want to study them that he can't repeat an earlier test on whether the fish is tasty on the platter.

He said he fried a few early in his research and that he's sure most people would prefer the domestic catfish now being raised walking catfish. Already in this country we have a fish that, when the whim hits it, comes ashore for a stroll.

Scientists report the freshwater eel frequently makes excursions on land in moist grass for considerable distances, the purposes of which are not understood.

Big eels can be met on pond paths in the East. This is a giddy encounter not easily forgotten by the POTTED PLANTS — Wide selections of lush blooms compete for prizes at Ayer's Cliff Fair to be held August 21, 22 and 23.

What to Do When Your Transistor Set Gets Dunked

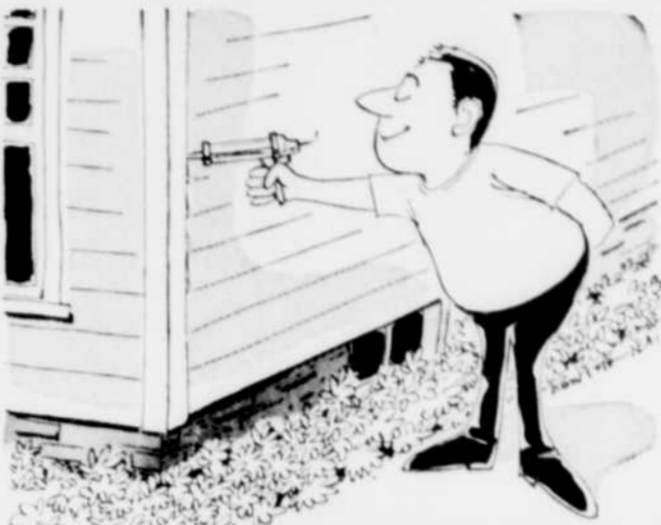

If you drop your transistor radio in the lake, or leave it out in the rain overnight, what do you do? DO NOT turn the set on, advises Brian Marohnic, Zenith's national service manager, because water will act as a conductor and may possibly short out several circuits.

Remove the batteries and quickly sponge out as much of the water as possible. If the radio is dropped in salt water, first rinse or sponge it out immediately with fresh water. This must be done quickly or some of the parts may oxidize. It is then preferable to fan the radio to dry it, but if this is not possible, put the receiver in a warm place. If you do place the radio near a fire or heater, be sure it is not so close that intense heat will damage the set. Intense heat can damage the speaker by warping it. If the batteries have not been removed, the heat may cause them to leak or burst.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

CALKING FILLS THE MAINTENANCE GAP

A caulking gun is easy to use.

By MR. FIX

Calking isn't expensive and it takes no skill to apply it. Not calking leads to expensive maintenance problems and problems that may require professional help to cure.

The choice is as simple as that.

You can calk most any time except when the temperature drops below 40 degrees. Any season is the right season. It makes sense to calk before you paint and any new construction must be calked.

Calking compound is a putty-like substance, only more pliable, that is used to seal cracks and joints in your house. The stuff lasts a long time but it should be checked occasionally and replaced if any of it has dried out or shrunk and no longer fills the gap.

Calking should be applied around window and door frames, between siding and vertical corner boards, between window sill and siding, between dormer and roof, between chimney and roof, between siding and top of foundation, between steps and porches—almost every joint you can find on the outside of the house.

Calking compound is available in two grades—gun-grade and knife-grade. Gun-grade can be bought in a prepackaged cartridge with its own plastic nozzle. Just slip the cartridge into a caulking gun and you are ready to work. Gun-grade also can be obtained in bulk for hand packing into a caulking gun.

For the average homeowner the cartridge method is best. The few times you will use it hardly makes it worthwhile to pack a caulking gun and then clean it out. For people in construction work or painters the lower cost of bulk calking makes sense.

Knife-grade calking compound is a little stiffer and is packed in place with a putty knife. When it dries it is just as flexible as the gun-grade.

Calking compound adheres well to most any surface—wood, brick, concrete, stone or metal. It will adhere better, however, if the surface is clean. Old calking should be completely scraped away. Brush off loose particles. Wiping with turpentine or thinner will remove any trace of old calking from the surface.

Do not calk when wood is wet. Wait a few days if it has rained.

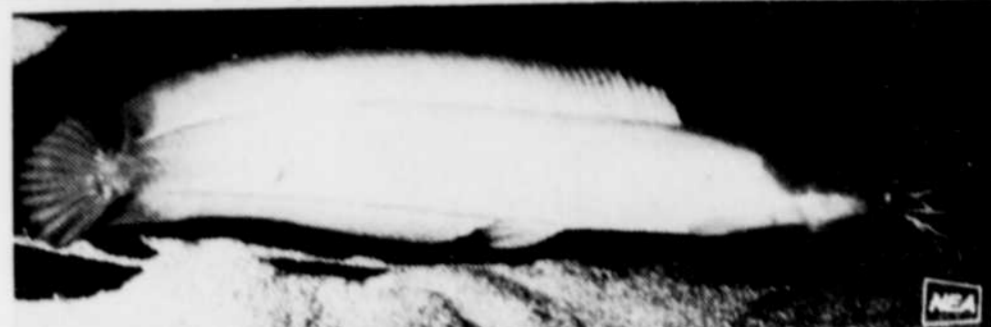

On raw wood it is a good idea to coat the surface with linseed oil. If you don't, the wood will soak up all the oil in the compound and leave it dry and crumbling.

Keep steady pressure on the trigger of the caulking gun to assure an unbroken and fairly wide head of calking. The crack or opening should be completely covered.

Use calking for minor repairs. Cracks in wood or small rotted out spots can be filled with calking and painted over. Clean out all the decayed wood before filling. Small cracks should be cleaned out and widened, wider at the bottom than at the surface, so that calking will hold.

Calking keeps in heat in winter, cool air in summer, keeps moisture from seeping in whenever it rains. Failure to calk (or recalk when needed) leads to expensive damage.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

hard to poison in a body of water because it can simply walk away. It sleeps days, is active at night.

Tennessee is worried enough for its game and fish commission to take up the subject of erecting defenses. Bob Burch of the department says Tennessee weather is probably cold enough to keep what was originally an Asian tropical fish from getting through Tennessee winters. But they're taking no chances.

One strange note. The walking catfish is a valuable widely in southern commercial ponds.

Four thousand catfish farmers sold 12 million pounds of channel cats and blues last year and the crop is expected to go to 52 million pounds in 1972. Franchised chains of catfish eateries are sprouting.

The domestic catfish has its own invasion going. The United Fruit Co. accumulated brood stock and is trying to raise catfish as a farm crop in Central America.

Maybe there isn't too much danger from Florida's human involved though the eel still goes about its business, breeding in the ocean vastness, spreading its floating larvae and remaining a fairly good citizen (though slimy).

Als rained out - Indians, Royals split

The Sherbrooke Alouettes scheduled game against the Thetford Miners was halted last night in the seventh inning on account of heavy rains, with neither team scoring any runs up to that point.

In other league action last evening, the Three Rivers Eagles swept a double header from the hapless Granby Cardinals, 2-1 and 12-9. In Quebec, the Indians and the Drummondville Royals split their two games. Quebec taking the first one 8-7, and dropping the second 7-4.

In the Als game, the two clubs were able to muster only four hits between them, while the Sherbrooke hurler, Enrique Gutteriez had registered eight strikeouts before the game was called.

As a result of the Granby Cards' double loss to the Eagles, they find themselves eliminated from the league playoffs, as well as having suffered from a lack of gate receipts during season play.

The Granby club faces a heavy deficit and it would not be surprising to find them absent from the league next season.

In the league standings, the Sherbrooke Alouettes are in second place, with a record of 10-10-1. The Trois-Rivières team is in third place with a record of 9-11-1.

Indians, Red Sox win openers

The Indians and the Red Sox won their first games in the two out of three series in the Sher-Lenn Little League semi-finals. Indians took a 11-6 win over Senators and Red Sox won 11-3 over the Twins. Next games in the series will be played Wednesday night.

Indians came up with a surprise sending Richard Dostie to the mound and the youngster did a fine job holding the Senators to six scattered hits. Michel Murray was the Senators' starter and went all the way. Errors by a loose infield did not help the Senators as they came up with six in the game. The Indians first six runs in the game were unearned.

In the top of the first the Senators got away to a 4-0 lead. Two errors a base on balls and a single by R. Dostie scored the runs. The lead was short lived as the Senators jumped ahead again in the first part of the second with Michel Murray and R. Dostie, his second hit, sending the runs home. Indians took the lead for the first time in the last of the second as they sent in two runs, two errors, a hit by pitch and a single by Jacques Lambert.

Senators went down in order in the top of the third. Indians again came up with three bases on balls, an error. Hits from Renaud Dostie and Gregoire in the last of the third sent three more runs across the plate, with Kenny Rhanan and Bernard Boutin connecting for safeties. The Senators got a single run in the top of the fourth. Indians went hitless in their part of the fourth. Two runs in the last of the fifth put the game away for the Indians. The Senators went down in the fifth and sixth. The Indians took the game on the long end of a 11-6 score. Guy Gregoire was the big Indian hitter with three for four. Rejean Dostie had two hits for the Senators.

DENIS LANDRY — of the Little League Orioles.

Player profile...

By TED ANDERSON
Denis Landry has been a member of the Sher-Lenn Little League for the past three seasons and is a big man in the Richelieu Club sponsored Orioles. He is used mostly as a pitcher but also can hold down any position in the field. Denis is a pupil at Larocque School and is in the seventh grade.

Working under his dad, Jean Landry, who is coach of the team, does not effect Johnny's play. He generally comes up with the outstanding play and is quite a favorite with his team mates and they look for his leadership on many occasions.

Denis was a member of the Sher-Lenn All Stars this season and played well when in the line up. His favorite big leaguer is Rusty Staub and his hockey star is Bobby Orr. During the winter, Denis is very active in hockey and this along with baseball are his main sporting interests.

Ont. leading in Games

HALIFAX (CP) — Although British Columbia proved its superiority in swimming, Ontario climbed to the top of the medal and points standings at the Canada Games Monday, sweeping the rowing events and continuing to dominate in lawn bowling.

Ontario oarsmen won five events Monday, the province's swimmers posted three victories and the bowlers added another triumph to bring the total gold medal count to 12 after two days of competition.

British Columbia was close on the heels of Ontario with nine gold, 12 silver and six bronze medals.

Ontario had a single silver medal and four bronze.

Today's calendar called for action in baseball, field hockey, tennis, soccer, women's softball, swimming and diving. Lawn bowling and sailing were scheduled to end.

Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia were leading separate divisions in field hockey.

Nova Scotia and Ontario lead two of the divisions in soccer but Saskatchewan, Newfoundland, B.C. and Manitoba were tied for the top in the other two.

BC LEADS
As for sailing, B.C. was leading in the flying juniors, Nova Scotia in sailing and Quebec in the OK dinghies.

Ontario leads one section of the women's softball, but Manitoba crept into a tie for first place with Alberta in the other division.

In baseball, Nova Scotia leads section B and there was a three-way tie atop section A — Ontario, B.C. and New Brunswick.

But if the lustre was out on Lake Banook where Ontario powered through every event, the drama was in the steaming confines of centennial pool.

Angela Coughlan, 16, of Burlington, Ont.; Donna Gurr, 14, of Richmond, B.C., and Bill Kennedy, 16, of London, Ont., all became double gold winners.

Miss Coughlan added the 400-metre freestyle to her 200-metre freestyle. Kennedy won the 200-metre backstroke to add to his 100-metre backstroke championship.

Miss Gurr won a gold in the 200-metre backstroke to go with her gold in the 400-metre individual medley.

Ron Jacks, 21, of Vancouver, took the 400-metre freestyle and Bill Mahony, 19, of New Westminster captured the 100-yard breaststroke.

TOPS RELAYS
B.C. teams roared off with both men's and women's 800-metre medley relays. In both, the winning times were good enough to become Canadian national records, but technical problems loomed when some officials ruled that all members of a relay

Orioles - routine win, Twins, Reds lose

Manager Billy Martin of Minnesota Twins wasn't wild about his relief pitchers and Cincinnati skipper Dave Bristol wasn't pleased with several of his butterfingers Reds.

Both the Twins, leaders in the American League West, and Reds, pace setters in the National League West, lost some of their slim margins, as well as the games.

Boston tied the Twins on Tony Conigliaro's three-run homer in the eighth off Bill Zepf and beat them 7-6 on George Scott's run-scoring double against Ron Perranoski.

Dave Boswell, making his first appearance since his ballyhooed Aug. 6 fight with Martin and team-mate Bob Allison, checked the Red Sox on five hits through seven innings. The defeat sliced Minnesota's lead over idle Oakland Athletics to 1½ games.

Five Cincinnati errors handed Pittsburgh Pirates 10 unearned runs, including two in the ninth and seven in the 10th, and a 12-5 triumph in the only National League contest, trimming the Reds' edge over Los Angeles to one-half game.

In the American League Baltimore Orioles mauled Seattle Pilots 12-3, Kansas City Royals trounced New York Yankees 6-1 and California Angels topped Cleveland Indians 3-1.

Carl Yastrzemski greeted Zepf, a rookie brought up from the minors last week, with a single. Reggie Smith walked and Conigliaro smashed his 16th homer. With Perranoski on the firing line in the 10th, Smith walked. Rico Petrocelli sacrificed and Conigliaro was purposefully passed before Scott came through.

The Red Sox scored in the first on a walk, Dalton Jones' triple, another walk, Conigliaro's bunt single and an error.

After errors by left fielder Alex Johnson and pitcher Gerry Arriago and Robert Clemente's single and double The Royal scored three runs off Me Stottlemeyer, 16-10, in the fourth on two walks, a single, an error and an infield out.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .
Sam Snead won the Canadian open golf championship 29 years ago today — in 1940 — at Toronto when Harold (Jug) McSpaden missed a two-foot putt on the final green of their 18-hole playoff. Snead posted a 71 to the defending champion's 72 in the extra round after both pro golfers went round the regulation 72 holes in 281.
