Jazz legend Dave Brubeck, who helped define genre's rhythms, dies at 91

By Charles J. Gans
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You don't have to be a jazz aficionado to recognize "Take Five," the smoky instrumental by the Dave Brubeck Quartet that instantly evokes swinging bachelor pads, hi-fi systems and cool nightclubs of the 1950s and '60s.

"Take Five" was a musical milestone — a deceptively complex jazz composition that managed to crack the Billboard singles chart and introduce a new, adventurous sound to millions of listeners.

In a career that spanned almost all of American jazz since the Second World War, Brubeck's celebrated quartet combined exotic, challenging tempos with classical influences to create lasting standards such as "Take Five" and "Blue Rondo a la Turk."

Brubeck, the pianist and composer behind the quartet, died Wednesday of heart failure a day shy of his 92nd birthday. He believed that jazz presented the best face of America to the world.

"Jazz is about freedom within discipline," Brubeck said in a 2005 interview with AP. "Usually a dictatorship like in Russia and Germany will prevent jazz from being played because it just seemed to represent freedom, democracy and the United States."

"Many people don't understand how disciplined you have to be to play jazz. ... And that is really the idea of democracy — freedom within the Constitution or discipline. You don't just get out there and do anything you want."

The common thread that ran through Brubeck's work was breaking down the barriers between musical genres — particularly jazz and classical music. He was inspired by his mother, Elizabeth Ivey Brubeck, a classical pianist, and later by his composition teacher, the French composer Darius Mihaud, who encouraged his interest in jazz and advised him to "keep your ears open" as he travelled the world.

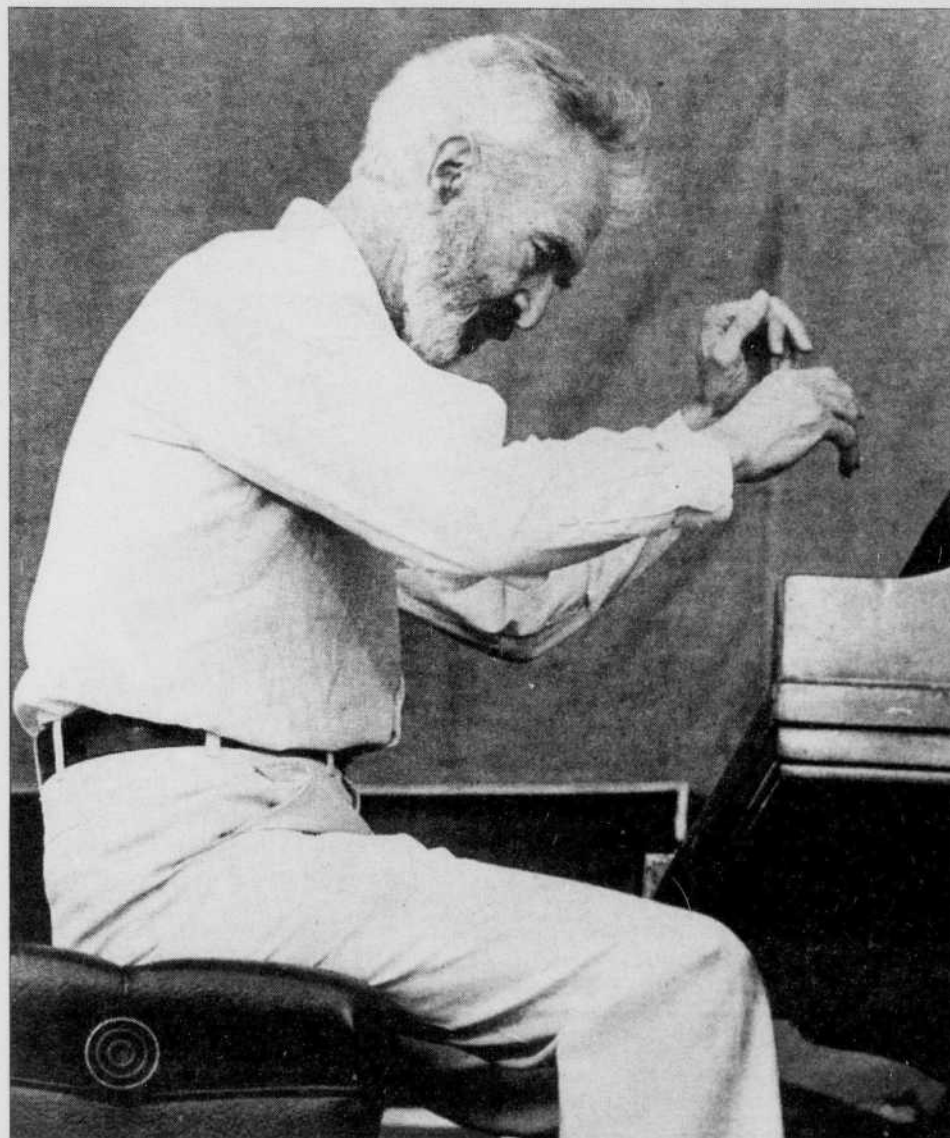

His mother was initially disappointed by her youngest son's interest in jazz. She later came to appreciate his music.

"When you hear Bach or Mozart, you hear perfection," Brubeck said in 2005. "Remember that Bach, Mozart and Beethoven were great improvisers. I can hear that in their music."

Brubeck was always fascinated by the rhythms of everyday life. In a discussion with biographer Doug Ramsey, he recalled the rhythms he heard while working as a boy on cattle drives at the northern California ranch managed by his father.

The first time he heard polyrhythms — the use of two rhythms at the same time — was on horseback.

"The gait was usually a fast walk, maybe a trot," he said. "And I would sing against that constant gait of the horse."

Dave Brubeck at the Newport Jazz Festival, 1984

... There was nothing to do but think, and I'd improvise melodies and rhythms."

Brubeck combined classical influences and his own innovations on the seminal album "Time Out," released by his classic quartet with alto saxophonist Paul Desmond, drummer Joe Morello and bassist Eugene Wright in 1959.

It was the first jazz album to deliberately explore time signatures outside of the standard 4/4 beat or 3/4 waltz time. It was also the first million-selling jazz LP and is still among the bestselling jazz albums of all time.

Columbia executives blocked its release for nearly a year — until label President Goddard Lieberson intervened.

"They said, 'We never put out music that people can't dance to, and they can't dance to these rhythms that you're playing,'" Brubeck recalled in 2010. He also wanted a painting by Joan Miro on the cover, something else the record company had never done.

"I insisted that we go with something new," he said. "And to their surprise, it became the biggest jazz recording they ever made."

The album opens with "Blue Rondo a la Turk" in 9/8 time — nine beats to the measure instead of the customary two, three or four beats — blending these folk rhythms with jazz and a Mozart piece. The piece was inspired by Turkish street musicians Brubeck heard on a 1958 State Department tour that also took his quartet to Poland, Iraq, Afghanistan and Iran, among other countries.

The album also features "Take Five," the cool and catchy odd-metered tune that became the Brubeck quartet's signature and even made the Billboard singles chart. The tune was derived from a pattern that the quartet's drummer Joe Morello liked to play backstage. Brubeck asked alto saxophonist Paul Desmond to write a two-part melody over the rhythm, and Brubeck patched the pieces together.

"It was a song that people could relate to, and it influenced the future of the music," said George Wein, a jazz pianist and founder of the Newport Jazz Festival.

Brubeck always felt that his successful jazz career led fans to overlook the second career he launched as a jazz-inspired classical orchestral and choral composer in 1967 after disbanding his classic quartet.

Brubeck's experience in the Second World War led him to look beyond jazz to compose oratorios, cantatas and other extended works touching on themes involving the church, civil rights and peace.

"I knew I wanted to write on religious themes when I was a GI in World War II," said Brubeck in 2005, recalling how he was trapped behind German lines in the Battle of the Bulge and nearly killed. "I saw and experienced so much violence that I thought I could express my outrage best with music."

Born in Concord, Calif., on Dec. 6, 1920, Brubeck began piano lessons with his mother at age four, but those ended when he was 12 and his father moved the family to a cattle ranch in the foothills of the Sierras. As a teenager, he played in local dance bands on the weekends.

When he enrolled at the College of the Pacific in 1938, Brubeck had intended to major in veterinary medicine and return to ranching. But while working his way through college by playing piano in local nightclubs, he became smitten with jazz and changed his major to music. In 1942, he married Iola Whitlock, a fellow student who became his lifelong partner, librettist, and sometime manager.

Brubeck joined the Army as an infantry man, but ended up leading the semi-official Wolf Pack band attached to Gen. George S. Patton's army. They played popular standards as well as some of his first original jazz tunes, including "We Crossed the Rhine," based on the rhythm of trucks hitting the metal pontoon bridges as they entered Germany. His band, which was one of the first integrated units in the then-segregated Army, reopened the Opera House in Nuremberg, the site of mass rallies organized by the Nazis, who had also banned jazz.

After his discharge, he enrolled at Mills College in Oakland, Calif. That's where he formed an octet, including Desmond on alto sax, Dave van Kreidt on tenor sax, Cal Tjader on drums and Bill Smith on clarinet. The group played Brubeck originals and standards by other composers. Their ground breaking album "Dave Brubeck Octet" was recorded in 1946.

In 1949, Brubeck with Tjader and bassist Ron Crotty, both fellow octet members, formed a more commercially viable trio and cut their first records, which gained a national audience. After surviving a near-fatal diving accident in 1951, Brubeck formed a quartet by adding Desmond.

"No one else played like Dave Brubeck," said Wein, who had known Brubeck since he first worked in Wein's club in Boston in 1952. "No one had the approach to the music that he did. That approach communicated."

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Multi-platinum recording artist Trace Adkins and Emmy Award winner Kristin Chenoweth return as hosts of the third annual American Country Awards, airing live from Las Vegas Monday, December 10, 2012 on Fox. The awards show will take place at Mandalay Bay.

The American Country Awards is the only country music awards show that gives fans the opportunity to vote for their favourite artists.

With his trademark baritone and sometimes ironic sense of humour, Trace Adkins is one of country music's most accomplished entertainers. His hits include "Just Fishin'," "Every Light in the House," "(This Ain't) No Thinkin' Thing," "You're Gonna Miss This," "Honky Tonk Badonkadonk" and "All I Ask For Any more."

Adkins is currently on the road with his Songs & Stories Tour in support of his tenth studio album, Proud To Be Here. He also is the host of the cable television series titled Great American Heroes. This will be Adkins' third time hosting the American Country Awards.

Rascal Flatts, Kip Moore and Jake Owen will join previously announced performers Jason Aldean, Lady Antebellum, Dierks Bentley, Luke Bryan and Little Big Town.

The star-studded special also will feature appearances by Miranda Lambert, Natasha Bedingfield, Ron White and champion cowboy Trevor Brazile, Scotty McCreery, Lauren Alaina, Casey James, LeAnn Rimes, Lee Brice, Jana Kramer, Dustin Lynch and Chris Young.

Great albums planned for a 2013 release

Three very different country artists have just unveiled new projects set for an early 2013 release. Let's take a look at what and when.

Ashley Monroe, a member of the trio Pistol Anniés, will release her first Warner Nashville solo album, Like A Rose, to digital outlets on December 18, 2012. The physical CD will be in stores on January 22, 2013.

Ashley Monroe is easy to recognize with her unique vocals. Although she is just 26, she has already gone through some pretty rough times.

Like A Rose has been a long time coming for the singer. Monroe has been creating music for more than half of her life already. Her new album will offer songs that are tremendously serious while others are absolutely hilarious. Monroe truly is an original with convincing emotions and a story to tell.

Monroe spent her childhood in Knoxville, Tennessee, where she immersed herself in all varieties of music ranging from country, to rock, pop, rap and even opera. When she was 11, Monroe won a talent contest singing "I Want To Be a Cowboy's Sweetheart" and two years later her father gave the young lady her first guitar.

She developed a passion for writing songs, discovering that she could easily share her thoughts and feelings with a guitar and her voice.

Shortly thereafter tragedy struck as Monroe's father was diagnosed with cancer and died when Ashley was 13. The young girl immersed herself in music.

Monroe and her mother moved to Nashville so that she could pursue her dream. It didn't take long to find believers. Within a year Monroe had signed a song publishing deal, secured a recording contract and released a single, "Satisfied," a significant hit that put her on the map.

Then another problem came with the merger of her record label with a larger company, and they declined to release her already-recorded album. She didn't let that stop her though, and with a lot of hard work and determination, Monroe kept honing her craft and fellow artists began to notice.

In 2008, Ashley cut a highly praised EP with singer-songwriter Trent Dabbs and a few years later, at the invitation of Jack White, she sang background vocals on an album he was producing by the iconic country-rockabilly singer Wanda Jackson.

Produced by country music titan Vince Gill, Like A Rose offers the full range of Ashley Monroe's songwriting and performing skills. To maintain the honesty of her songs, Gill and the singer chose to record the album simply and without gimmicks.

Some of the songs were written especially for the album while others date back several years and felt right to revisit. The title track, one of the highlights of the collection, was co-written about six years ago with Texan legend

Guy Clark.

One song is bound to surprise, "Weed Instead of Roses" about a woman's desire to get a gift she actually desires from her lover, not just something that smells good.

On the lighter side is "Monroe Suede," which is based on "a slick character that tries to get away all the time." Another is the self-explanatory "You Ain't Dolly (And You Ain't Porter)," a duet featuring CMA Entertainer of the Year Blake Shelton.

"She's Driving Me Out Of Your Mind," written with Jon Randall Stewart, comes straight from one of Monroe's diary. "Two Weeks Late" was suggested by singer-songwriter Shane McAnally, who co-wrote it with Monroe.

"Used," another standout, is an update of a song that appeared on Monroe's Satisfied album. It is about used things that are sometimes worth more for different reasons. Vince Gill and

HURRY! LAST WEEK TO PRE-ORDER YOUR BOOK FOR CHRISTMAS DELIVERY!

Record archives compiled into a book

This fall, The Record began the arduous task of scanning and digitizing original copies of the front pages of our newspaper from the turn of the century.

What we discovered is a tale of tenacious pioneers who built an institutional network of schools, churches, hospitals and cultural centres.

Early editions provide first-hand accounts of the efforts and sacrifices of two World Wars, the Depression, fires, floods, crime and punishment.

More than that, the pages are a testament to the builders and leaders whose names grace our street signs and institutions.

The Record was a driving force behind the formation of boards of trade, a watchdog over town councils, a lead advocate for the extension of the railway to local communities and a vigilant protector of the region's natural resources.

Our goal today is to print volumes in segments highlighting the most important stories of each decade. Volume 1 from 1911-1920 is scheduled to be available for Christmas giving.

Only a limited number of the bound 10" x 13" editions of some 150 pages will be printed and sold for only $25. plus taxes ($28.75), plus $10. for shipping if needed.

'Cagney & Lacey,' 'Mel Brooks' among choice DVD gifts for TV buffs

By Bill Brioux
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wondering what to get the true TV buff for Christmas? This year there is a sleigh full of DVD box set options, available online or at local retailers. Here are five that stand out:

Hands down the prize for best packaging this Christmas goes to Paramount Home Media for "Mission Impossible: The Complete Television Collection." The explosive container comes in the shape of a red dynamite keg, complete with fuse. Your mission, should you decide to accept it, is to crack open the case and check out the eight metal "tape" cans inside. They contain 56-discs covering all eight seasons of the original Cold War classic (1966-73). Jim Phelps (Peter Graves) and his Impossible Missions Force returned in 1988 for two more seasons (shot in Australia), and those episodes are included here, too. The best adventures, however, are the early seasons, where real life husband-and-wife Martin Landau and Barbara Bain bring an adult edge to the James Bond shenanigans. Remember to turn up the sound: Lalo Schifrin's jazzy score — still setting up the Tom Cruise films — sounds better than ever.

If you agree that Ernie Kovacs was to television what Buster Keaton was to silent film — the perfect marriage of artist and medium — then seeing them together is a kick. Kovacs cast Keaton in the comedy western pilot "Medicine Man," shot early in 1961. It's one of the rarities found in "The Ernie Kovacs Collection: Vol. 2" (Shout! Factory), a companion to last year's more extensive release. More Kovacs means more episodes of his wild "NBC Morning Show" from the mid-'50s, the bizarre gamer "Take a Good Look" from 1960 and even a rare Canadian find: Kovacs at his informal best being interviewed late in '61 on CBC's "The Lively Arts."

The 30th anniversary "Cagney & Lacey The Complete

Collection" (Visual Entertainment Incorporated) salutes a series that survived three cancellations. There were key cast changes as well, including three Det. Chris Cagneys, with Loretta Swit and Meg Foster briefly in uniform before Sharon Gless checked in for good. Tyne Daly played her partner, Det. Mary Beth Lacey. Back then, networks doubted anybody would watch women bring in the bad guys if the ladies weren't braless. (Ironically, co-creator Barney Rosenzweig also worked on "Charlie's Angels.") Seeing women kick butt while balancing home lives hooked a whole new, and fiercely loyal, female audience. The series went on to win 14 Emmys.

The large box set includes 36 discs containing all 125 episodes, including the original 1981 pilot movie starring Swit. Canadian Al Waxman was the guy in charge in the squad room, and another Canuck, Harvey Atkin, added to the lighter moments.

Here's a one-season wonder that deserves a second peek: "Van Dyke & Company" (MPI). The 1976 series, produced by some of the team behind "The Smothers Brothers," allowed Dick Van Dyke to show off his comedy plus song and dance skills in a weekly variety format. Trouble was variety was already dead. Looking back, however, it is fascinating to see the "Mary Poppins" star try to bridge the gap between "Your Show of Shows," "Carol Burnett" and "Saturday Night Live." The clash of seeing Andy Kaufman one minute and Sid Caesar the next may have been too much for audiences in the mid-'70s, but what a time capsule today. Look for Van Dyke to go toe-to-toe with George Foreman, Tina Turner, Flip Wilson, Chevy Chase, Freddie Prinze and even his old TV sweetie, Mary Tyler Moore.

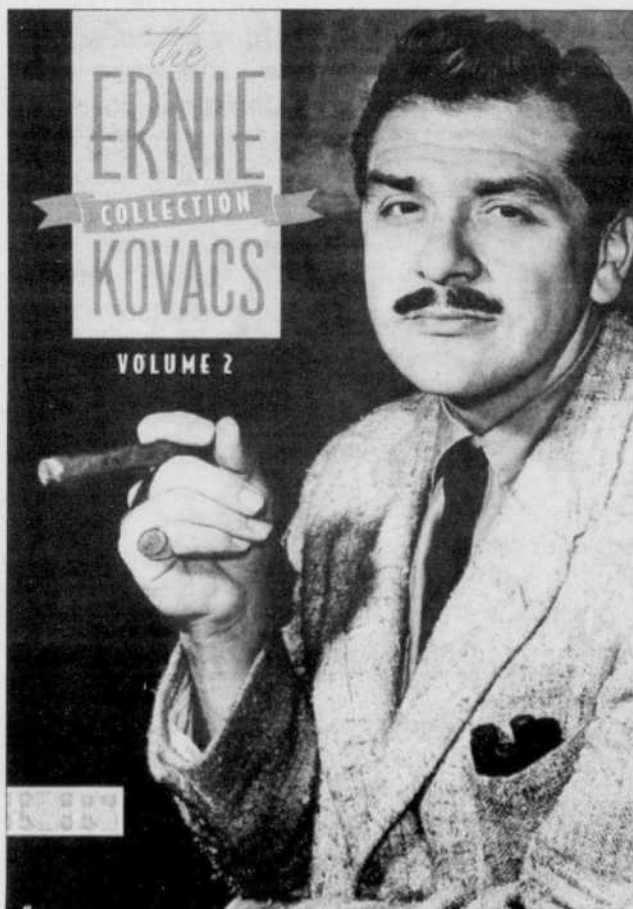

"The Incredible Mel Brooks: An Irresistible Collection of Unhinged Comedy" (Shout! Factory) comes in a handy little book that you can throw at anyone who doesn't think Mel Brooks is hilarious. The 86-year-old comedian is revered for his hit film parodies of the '70s and '80s, especially "Blazing Saddles," "Young Frankenstein" and "Spaceballs." "The Producers" came before and after, the latter as a hit Broadway play. Then there is "Your Show of Shows" and "The 2000 Year Old Man." They all added up to several Emmy, Grammy, Oscar and Tony awards.

Incredibly, none of those landmark goodies are part of this collection, and it's still — as the title suggests — incredible and irresistible. Besides essays by Leonard Maltin, Gene Wilder and others, the book contains five DVDs. They're packed with rare bits of inspired madness. Best of all, each disc features the writer/director/actor reminiscing with pals Wilder, Carl Reiner, Buck Henry and others. There's even a CD so you can take Mel with you in the car and listen to Madeline Kahn's side-splitting Marlene Dietrich parody from "Blazing Saddles," as well as "The Hitler Rap" from "To Be or Not to Be."

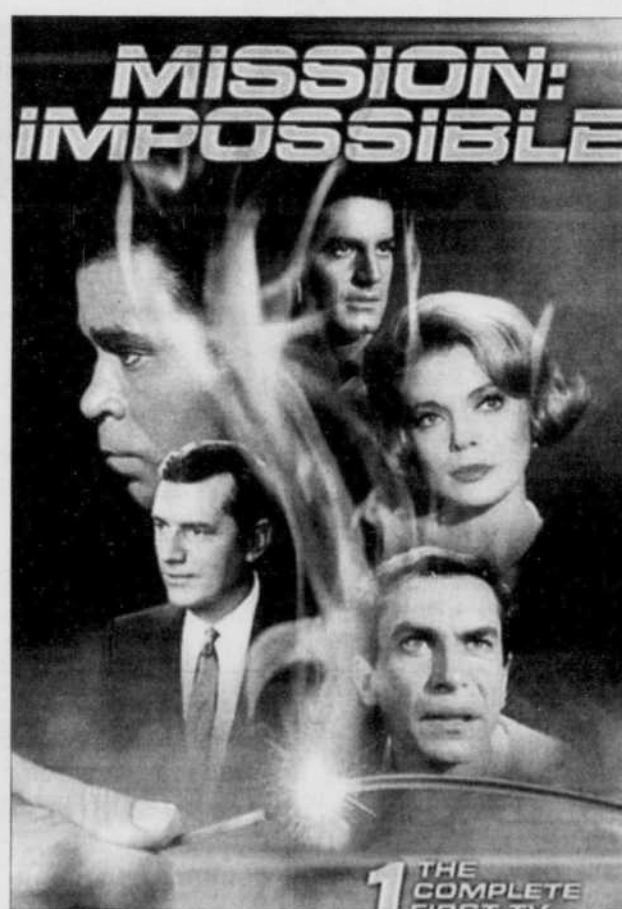

The DVDs also contain the pilot episodes of two of Brooks' forays into series TV, "Get Smart!" (a collaboration with Henry) and "When Things Were Rotten." Brooks was a fearless and spontaneous late night talk show guest and appearances on "Dick Cavett" and "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson" are also included.

Light up a campfire, pass around some beans and enjoy.

Quebec filmmaker vies for Oscar nomination with live short

The Canadian Press
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

A short film by Quebec actor Yan England is in the running for an Oscar nomination.

England's 21-minute film "Henry" is among 11 shorts being considered for a nod in the live action short category.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences says "Henry" will compete against contenders with considerable star power: actress Bryce Dallas Howard directs "When You Find Me," executive produced by her famous Oscar-winning dad, Ron Howard.

Meanwhile, the Dutch-language "Death of a Shadow (Dood van een Schaduw)" features "Rust and Bone" hunk Matthias Schoenaerts; and the Italian-set "The Night Shift Belongs to the Stars" stars Nastassja Kinski and Julian Sands.

"Henry" is about an 84-year-old concert pianist whose life is thrown into turmoil when his wife mysteriously disappears.

The 29-year-old England says it was inspired by the experiences of his own grandfather, who developed Alzheimer's disease and died three years ago at age 96.

"He had an amazing memory. He could remember every single detail of everything," England said Wednesday from the set of the francophone TV drama "Yamaska."

"When he turned 92, at some point I was having coffee with him and my mom ... and he looked at us and he asked us if he had been a good man."

England, a former child actor, says he cried when he learned late Thursday that he'd made the Oscar shortlist. The race started with 125 pictures in the category.

"It's amazing," he said.

"All of a sudden I had this e-mail and I started crying all over the place and I was thrilled about everything and it was just an amazing feeling to have this great opportunity."

For his film, he assembled a cast of veteran Quebec performers including Gerard Poirier as Henry and Louise Laprade as Henry's wife Maria.

England said he's been acting since age eight but always hoped to one day write, direct and do everything in between on a film set.

"I've always dreamed of doing it all," said England, noting that Charlie Chaplin was his childhood idol. "It was such a thrill to do this project from A to Z."

The Academy's branch for short films and feature animation will now whittle the field down to between three and five nominees. Nominations will be announced Jan. 10, 2013.

The awards bash will air Feb. 24 on ABC.

"This is just beyond what I had expected," England said.

"I was thrilled to submit it to the Academy Awards. It was a great opportunity. Now to be in the top 11 is just like: 'Really? Thank you very much. Thank you so much.'"

Monroe made a few changes to make it sound fresh.

Monroe should get a lot of attention with this great album. Her work will now be recognized outside of what she does with The Pistol Annies.

The Mavericks' new album, In Time, a celebration for the band's 20th anniversary

Grammy winning group The Mavericks, have announced the release of In Time, their first album in seven years and their first for The Valory Music Co. It will come out on January 29. The project will be released in conjunction with the band's 20th anniversary of their first major label album release.

The Mavericks' very distinctive sound, which took Country music to places where it had never been before, remains the same throughout the new 14-track album, produced by lead singer Raul Malo and Niko Bolas (Neil Young, Warren Zevon).

Whether it's the Buck Owens-influenced "Dance In The Moonlight," the Orbison-esque "Born To Be Blue," the retro style with horn "Back In Your Arms Again" or Tejano style "All Over Again," The Mavericks have once again created an album that defies the genre.

For Malo, the lead singer with the textured, rich voice; drummer Paul Deakin and multi-instrumentalist Robert Reynolds; as well as longtime collaborator keyboardist Jerry Dale McFadden and seasoned guitarist Eddie Perez, it is clear that they have found their true identity as musicians.

This is a very promising album that The Mavericks' fans have been wanting for a long time.

Kris Kristofferson, a first album in four years

Kris Kristofferson will release his first album of new material in four years on January 29, 2013. Feeling Mortal follows 2009's Closer To The Bone and 2006's This Old Road in a look at his personal life experience.

Kristofferson is a Country Music Hall of Famer who's had a very versatile career. He's been a Golden Gloves boxer, a Rhodes scholar, a college football player, an acclaimed actor, a military officer, a helicopter pilot, a Grammy winner and sometimes a screw-up and an icon. Now he is getting ready to release the third Don Was produced album in a trilogy on his own KK Records label.

"And what I'm finding, to my pleasant surprise at this age, is that I'm more inclined to laughter than tears. I hope I'll feel this creative and this grateful until they throw dirt over me," he says in a press release.

The now 76-year-old Kristofferson did not always imagine this would be so.

"If I look like a mean old man, that's what I am," he sang, back when he was still immortal and when he was sometimes a mean-feeling younger man.

But now he's mostly truthful and thankful, as he sings, "For the laughter and the loving/That I'm living with today." The song "Just Suppose" offers another look in the mirror. "Castaway" is an emotional cry of the heart, as the singer remembers a scene from the past, witnessed from the air, when he was flying helicopters over the Gulf of Mexico.

And "My Heart Was The Last One To Know" is a disturbing old song, written by Kristofferson and poet/author/cartoonist/songwriter Shel Silverstein and previously recorded by Connie Smith.

In the beginning, Kristofferson threw away a promising military career in favour of life as a songwriter. He had excelled at most everything he'd ever tried, save for singing and songwriting, but music was what he wanted to do.

He has written classics such as "Me and Bobby McGee," "Help Me Make It Through the Night," "Sunday Morning Coming Down" and "For The Good Times," as well as a lot of other gems, sometimes incisive.

Kristofferson and Was spent three days recording Feeling Mortal, cutting 20 songs and picking 10, then embellishing the basic tracks with stellar instrumental work from guitarist Mark Goldenberg, pedal steel master Greg Leisz, keyboardist Matt Rollins, violinist and vocalist Sara Watkins, bassist Sean Hurley and drummer Aaron Sterling.

This line from "Feeling Immortal" surely shows his gratitude for where life has taken him: "God Almighty, here I am/Am I where I ought to be/I've begun to soon descend, like the sun into the sea/And I thank my lucky stars, from here to eternity/For the artist that You are/And the man you made of me."

This information will give you time to get the first two albums of the trilogy in order to really appreciate this ultimate album.

I'm gonna be a Fireman someday.

National Board of Review names 'Zero Dark Thirty' best of 2012

By Jake Coyle
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kathryn Bigelow's "Zero Dark Thirty" continued to gather awards momentum as the National Board of Review named the Osama bin Laden hunt docudrama the best film of the year.

The board is the second notable group to name "Zero Dark Thirty" best film, following the New York Film Critics Circle. The two early awards suggest the film may be the Academy Awards frontrunner, four years after Bigelow's "The Hurt Locker" triumphed at the Oscars.

The film took three awards Wednesday from the National Board of Review, which also named Bigelow best director and Jessica Chastain, who stars as a CIA agent, best actress.

The group also gave a boost to the "Silver Linings Playbook," David O. Russell's comedic drama about a mentally unstable former teacher (Bradley Cooper) attempting to reorder his life. Cooper was named best actor and Russell was given best adapted screenplay. (Best original screenplay went to Rian Johnson for his script to the thriller "Looper.")

Leonardo DiCaprio won best supporting actor for his performance as a wealthy slave owner in Quentin Tarantino's "Django Unchained." Best supporting actress went to Ann Dowd for her performance as a fast-food manager terrorized by a prank caller in "Compliance."

The board also cited Ben Affleck, director and star of the Iran hostage crisis drama "Argo," for special achievement in filmmaking. Best ensemble went to the cast of Tom Hooper's musical adaptation of "Les Miserables." The group is also highlighting John Goodman with its "spotlight award," noting the actor's work this year in "Argo," "Flight," "Paranorman" and "Trouble With the Curve."

The National Board of Review, a group of film academics, students and professionals founded in 1909, is one of the first groups to announce its picks for the year's best movies. The Los Angeles Film Critics announce their choices on Sunday. The Golden Globe nominations come Dec. 13.

The National Board of Review has some pedigree in picking films that have gone on to win best picture at the Oscars, though not in recent years. Last year, it selected "Hugo," while the academy chose "The Artist." In 2010, it selected "The Social Network" while the academy chose "The King's Speech."

In addition to individual awards, the board also lists its top 10 films, in no particular order: "Zero Dark Thirty," "Argo," "Lincoln," "Beasts of the Southern Wild," "Django Unchained," "Looper," "Les Miserables," "The Perks of Being a Wallflower," "Silver Linings Playbook" and "Promised Land."

The awards will be handed out at a gala on Jan. 8 in New York at Cipriani's, to be hosted by Meredith Vieira.

Oprah Winfrey picks debut novel, Ayana Mathis' 'The Twelve Tribes of Hattie,' for book club

The Canadian Press

Added another book for possible holiday gifts: Oprah Winfrey's latest "2.0" selection. Winfrey announced Wednesday that she has chosen a debut novel for her book club, "The Twelve Tribes of Hattie," by Ayana Mathis. An author interview will be aired Feb. 3 on Winfrey's OWN network. In a statement, Winfrey likened Mathis' book to the fiction of Toni Morrison. Published this week by Alfred A. Knopf, "Twelve Tribes" tells of a teenager's journey from Mississippi to Philadelphia in the 1920s and the large family she ends up raising.

Winfrey revived her club, now called Oprah's Book Club 2.0, earlier this year with Cheryl Strayed's memoir "Wild." Dozens of books over the past 20 years have become bestsellers, thanks to the talk-show host's endorsements.

Cashing in on Gangnam Style's YouTube fame

The Canadian Press
 SEOUL

As "Gangnam Style" gallops toward 1 billion views on YouTube, the first Asian pop artist to capture a massive global audience has gotten richer click by click. So too has his agent and his grandmother. But the money from music sales isn't flowing in from the rapper's homeland South Korea or elsewhere in Asia. With one song, 34-year-old Park Jae-sang — better known as PSY — is set to become a millionaire from YouTube ads and iTunes downloads, underlining a shift in how money is being made in the music business. An even bigger dollop of cash will come from TV commercials.

Gerard Butler wanted to be a soccer star

You could say Gerard Butler was practically born to play his latest film role, that of a soccer player in "Playing for Keeps." Growing up in Scotland, he was a Celtic Football Club supporter and went to a lot of games. He also kicked the ball around "every second" he had, he says. "I played in the morning before school, I played in the morning break, I played at lunchtime, the afternoon break and after school; I played for the school team, I played with boys clubs, and I just loved to play," Butler said during a recent stop in Toronto. "It was actually my dream to be a soccer player but in truth I knew I never would be one."

MUSIC

December 8

DANCE at the Lennoxville Rifle Club, 22 Beattie Street, on Saturday, December 8 from 8 p.m. to midnight. Music by the Country Swingers. Everyone welcome.
