SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Defence counsel Paul Martineau tried unsuccessfully to obtain an adjournment in the Yvon Dupuis influence - peddling trial Wednesday after Roch Deslauriers, the major Crown witness, made an important change in his original statement.

Russian jet down

BERLIN (Reuters)—British troops today stood guard over a Russian jet fighter that crashed into a West Berlin lake Wednesday.

When the MiG-19 crashed, a Russian general and a busload of armed Russian troops tried to approach the wreck, with its nose buried in the lake bottom and only its tail visible. But British military police hurried forward and kept the Russians off their bus.

PEI election?

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Premier Walter R. Shaw threatened Wednesday to call a general election and speculation immediately mounted he would do just that today.

The Liberal opposition and political observers predicted a 78-year-old premier would lead his Progressive Conservative government into an early campaign, with May 30 being mentioned as the most likely date for the first election since the PCs were re-elected Dec. 10, 1962.

Berlin wall open

BERLIN (Reuters)—The Berlin wall opened here today for some 500,000 West Berliners who are each permitted one visit to relatives in Communist East Berlin over the Easter holidays.

Loaded with presents, about 200 West Berliners gathered at the border checkpoints long before the official opening time.

Food costs up

OTTAWA (CP)—Food prices have risen by almost six per cent in the last six months, according to official statistics.

But both the housewife trundling a grocery cart through the supermarket and official spokesmen for the government here dispute the figure.

The housewife says her purse and her pantry tell her food prices have gone up more than that. And government spokesmen say the price index doesn't reflect consumer ability to switch to lower cost foods when prices are high.

Wildfire policy

OTTAWA (CP)—A new national wildfire policy calling for wide research programs to bolster dwindling wildlife resources was tabled Wednesday in the Commons.

Northern Affairs Minister Laing said in a statement the policy was developed along lines suggested by provincial resource ministers at a wildlife conference and also at the premier's conference here in July, 1965.

Saigon erupts

SAIGON (AP)—Hundreds of anti-government demonstrators poured toward downtown Saigon tonight and burned a U.S. military police jeep a few hours after Buddhist leaders demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime pledge publicly to give way to a civilian government in five or six months.

No Americans were reported injured.

India-Pakistan

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi said today Russia has sent an envoy to Pakistan to discuss the worsening of India-Pakistan relations since the Tashkent agreement.

The Tashkent agreement was signed in January between the leaders of India and Pakistan at the prompting of Soviet Premier Kosygin.

Oil UN subject

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is calling an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council today to discuss the oil embargo against Rhodesia, an authoritative source said here.

Mr. Dupuis, a former minister without portfolio in the Pearson government, is charged with using his influence in an attempt to obtain a racetrack permit for Mr. Deslauriers in St. Johns, Que. The permit was never granted.

Deslauriers had made a previous statement that he had passed over $10,000 to Mr. Dupuis in Ottawa May 9, 1961.

During cross-examination by Mr. Martineau Wednesday, he asked Judge Evender Veilleux for permission to make a new statement.

He said he was "morally certain, in spite of what I said at the preliminary inquiry, that a first payment of $5,000 was made at noon, May 8..." He said it was "very possible" that he made the first payment May 8.

at Mr. Dupuis' office in St. Johns because "Dupuis had told me it was urgent."

TAKEN BY SURPRISE
Mr. Martineau called the new statement an "odious fabrication" and said it had taken him by surprise. He asked for an adjournment to give him time to take appropriate measures.

He said he was unable to continue the cross-examination at that time.

Judge Veilleux denied the request for adjournment but suspended the cross-examination of Deslauriers until today.

Mrs. Roch Deslauriers, the last witness to be called Wednesday, testified that she now was confused on whether it was May 8 or May 9, 1961, that her husband had left their home in St. Johns, Que., with $5,000 to go and get another $5,000.

In her statement made at the preliminary hearing, she had said her husband left their home with $5,000 on May 9 and had gone to Laprairie, Que., to borrow another $5,000.

Mr. Martineau asked Mr. Deslauriers why he had said in the first version of his story that he had given the $10,000 to Mr. Dupuis June 29, 1961, and not May 9, 1961, as he said later.

Deslauriers said that "in good faith," he had mixed them up because he had had a number of transactions around the same period.

PROMOTE AUTO SAFETY
— State Senator Edward Speno of New York (right) and Heward Grafftey, Conservative member of Parliament for Brome-Missisquoi, study safety car prototype during senator's visit to Ottawa Monday. Mr. Grafftey testified before the US Sen-

Grafftey assures aid to US for safe car set-up

WASHINGTON (CP)—Heward Grafftey, Progressive Conservative MP for Brome-Missisquoi, one of two Canadian legislators to testify before the US Senate Commerce

Committee studying car safety problems, told the committee Wednesday that the government of Canada was ready to assist in a material way the construction of a prototype safety car.

Following Wednesday's committee session, Senator Warren G. Magnuson told reporters he believes the committee will call for mandatory safety standards for cars.

Magnuson, the committee chairman, said this seemed to be the feeling of a majority of members of the committee, which included hearings last night on President Johnson's highway safety legislation.

The administration bill would authorize, but not require, the U.S. commerce secretary to set motor vehicle safety standards after two years.

Magnuson said he thought the committee would amend the bill to direct that standards be issued and also to require the adoption of interim standards pending further research and testing.

Such temporary standards, Magnuson said, could be worked out after consultation with the industry. He said they could provide for collapsible steering wheels, dual brakes and "other things the industry apparently is going to do anyway."

Canada's stake in a safety car has gone up particularly with the integration of the Canadian industry—centred in Ontario—with the U.S. manufacturers as of last year.

Two Canadian legislators testified before the committee Wednesday and both said they supported New York State's plan to build a prototype safety car.

Heward Grafftey, Progressive Conservative for the Quebec riding of Brome-Missisquoi, said the "government of Canada stands ready to assist the project in a material way."

Fred Young, New Democratic member of Ontario legislature from Yorkville, said concern about car safety is mounting among the Ontario public and his legislative colleagues.

"The old device of the industry of pointing a finger at the driver no longer works as it once did," he said.

Grafftey was questioned by Magnuson on the extent the Canadian government might be expected to co-operate on the safety car.

COUNCIL STUDIES WAYS

Grafftey said Industry Minister Drury has instructed the National Research Council to study ways and means of technical co-operation. He said a parliamentary appropriation would be required later although the council has broad discretion in its programming.

Red River Valley

Homes evacuated as flood fighters come

EMERSON, Man. (CP)—Boats and amphibious vehicles were moved to strategic standby locations in the flooding Red River Valley Wednesday while officials stepped up efforts to move people out of threatened towns.

So far, evacuation has been possible by road and rail but the relentless rise of the river threatens these routes.

In this border community of 930, about 60 miles south of Winnipeg, only about 60 families have heeded a request to leave.

Said Mayor A. H. Carlson: "The people are well informed and they know at what level they have to move."

READY TO GO

He said a large residential section of the community escaped flood waters in the disastrous 1950 flood and these residents have no intention of leaving. Others have moved their furniture—23 railway cars were available for storage—and now are watching the rising wa-

Hydrogen bomb salvaged by US in sea off Spain

MADRID (AP)—A hydrogen bomb, missing since the crash of a U.S. nuclear bomber Jan. 17, has been recovered from the sea off Spain's southeast coast, it was officially announced today.

The announcement wrote finish to an outstanding underwater project which began after a B-52 bomber and its refuelling tanker collided at high altitude and crashed along Palomares Beach.

The recovery was made by U.S. Naval Force 65, which under Rear-Admiral William S. Guest had been searching the sea depths more than two months.

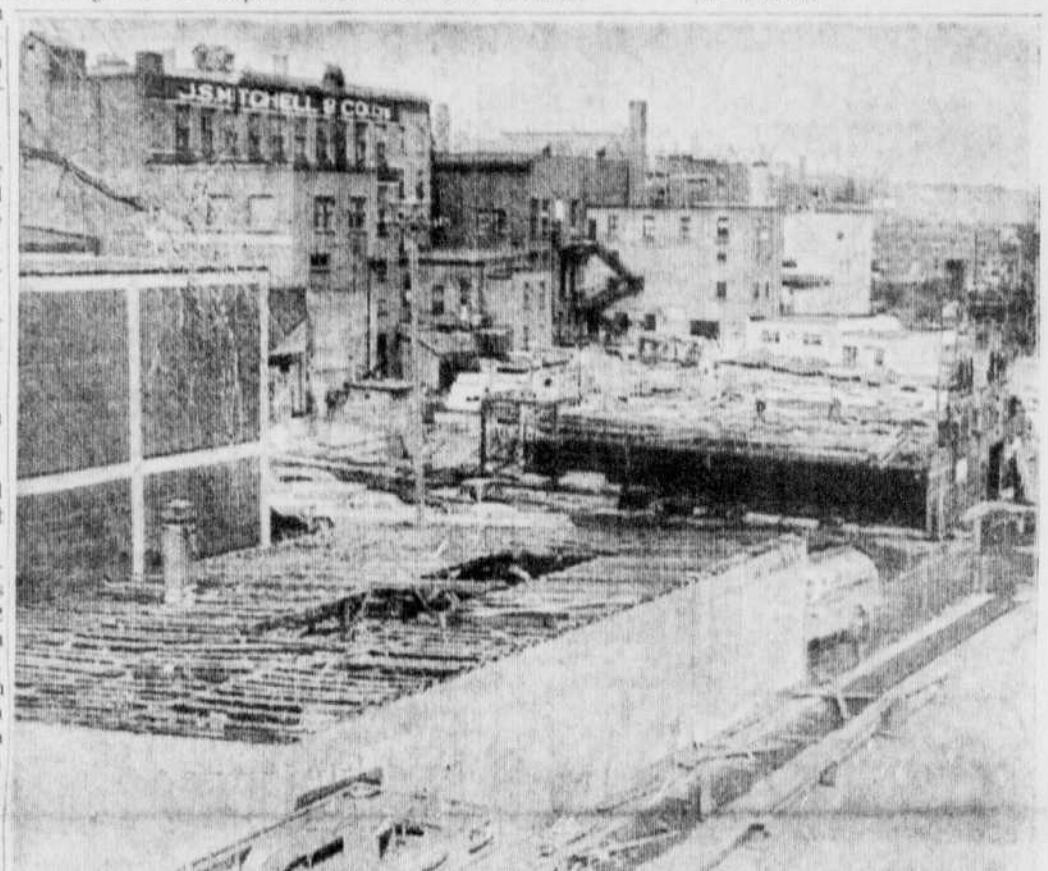

The bomb was located in 2,500 feet of water almost exactly where Spanish fisherman Francisco Simo told the searchers he saw it fall into the sea.

A U.S. spokesman said the bomb was pulled up by the small submarine rescue vessel Petrel. A 1,650-ton vessel, the Petrel is jammed with special equipment for underwater operations.

U.S. officials would not comment, but informants said that the successful cable hitch to the bomb was made by CURV, a torpedo recovery vehicle flown to the scene from Pasadena, Calif.

U.S. embassy officials said the bomb was intact and not damaged.

The bomb, described as a 20-megaton hydrogen bomb, was one of four lost from the B-52 in the collision and crash in which seven American airmen were killed in the crash of a C-124 transport which was on a support mission for the search and recovery groups off Palomares Beach.

WAREHOUSES DEMOLISHED — To make way for a new parking lot and help alleviate Sherbrooke's severe parking problems, the municipal authorities purchased lots between Meadow Street

Soviet congress slaps China rejecting use of war threat

The Soviet Communist party's 23rd congress has delivered a stinging slap to China by rejecting the use of the threat of total war as an instrument of world Communist policy. The net result of the congress will be to deepen the chasm between Moscow and Peking.

The Kremlin leaders also scaled down Nikita Khrushchev's economic boasts and muted the strident bellicosity which the former Soviet chief used as a tool of foreign policy.

Today's Chuckle

Every road to success provides many tempting parking places.

Under Khrushchev, the 22nd congress in 1961 carried on its business to the thundering accompaniment of new nuclear bomb tests and Soviet pressure on West Berlin. Khrushchev constantly implied Soviet superiority in modern weapons of destruction.

At this congress, remarks about Soviet military might and prospects were perhaps purposely vague. The impression left by leaders was that they would be wary of creating new and dangerous tensions for all their talk of support for the Communists in Viet Nam against the United States.

To account for the slowdown of economic development, Kosygin's party were going into effect.

gin has fixed the blame on a combination of Khrushchev's policies and the attitudes of the United States. Khrushchev, he said, posed unsound economic targets and the U.S. threatened world peace. Thus, consumer gains would have to be limited.

"The international situation has seriously deteriorated in recent years because of the United States and... the Soviet Union has thus been compelled to increase expenditures on defence," Kosygin said in his economic report.

Kosygin's speech confirmed that new economic measures discussed last September by the party were going into effect.

Civil service bilingualism plan unveiled

OTTAWA (CP)—A long-term program to develop civil service bilingualism, including pay bonuses for some lower-echelon job categories, was unveiled in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

The prime minister, stressing the program is aimed at the Ottawa area and centres where residents use both French and English, said it is a fundamental objective of his government to strengthen national unity with equal rights and opportunities for both English- and French-speaking Canadians.

The program outlined these measures:

—Secretaries and clerks required to work in both French and English to perform their jobs will receive higher rates of pay. The amount and timing of the bonus were not mentioned.

—Reasonable proficiency or a willingness to learn both languages will be "an element of merit" starting in 1967 in the selection of university graduates for administrative posts.

where bilingualism is required.

—Starting in 1970, executive and administrative persons hired from outside the public service must be bilingual. Bilingualism will be a requirement for promotions by 1975.

—Talks will be opened with the Ontario and Quebec governments aimed at establishing a French-language secondary school in the Ottawa area and the government's language instruction facilities will be expanded.

—Each year 20 English-speaking senior civil service executives and their families will spend a year in a mainly lingual and have devoted years of service to the country will French-speaking civil servants not be prejudiced by the program.

A special secretariat is to be set up in the prime minister's office to implement the program.

Mr. Pearson said after several years the government expects it will be normal practice for French-speaking civil servants to write reports and communicate orally in French within the civil service and French Canadians would be able to communicate in French with the government.

The program will not affect government scientists, military personnel, professionals and employees of Crown corporations.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker challenged the right of the Civil Service Commission, the government's hiring agency, to implement the program without authorization of Parliament.

He demanded greater assurances the changes would not prejudice the careers of unilingual civil servants.

RCMP arrest alleged leader Counterfeit operation thought ended

The arrest of a man believed to be the king pin in a large scale counterfeit money passing operation in the Sherbrooke area signalled the culmination of an intensive three month investigation undertaken by the RCMP in this area three months ago.

The suspect, who was said by police to have had 25 counterfeit bills on him when he was arrested, pleaded not guilty at his preliminary hearing on Friday. His trial is scheduled for April 13.

Sergeant R. A. Boivin warns, however, that the counterfeit danger is not over. He said that all the bills found on the arrested man carried the serial number: R/E2416813. He said that this was a new number to be used in counterfeiting that has just started turning up in Montreal. He added that there may be more of them already in circulation in Sherbrooke.

Sergeant Boivin explained the normal trickle of counterfeit bills turned into a major flood last fall when 20,019 were passed in the Province of Quebec during the months of October, November, and December. In the other nine provinces the total of counterfeit bills passed in the same period numbered only 2,023.

The outbreak of bogus bill passing spurred the Sherbrooke RCMP office to undertake a complete investigation.

In the course of investigations eight passers were arrested and convicted. The eight were: Miss Estelle Tardif, who was sentenced to one year imprisonment; Roger Jolin, sentenced to four months; Jean Guy Richer, sentenced to one month; Guy Gestein, sentenced to four months; Jean-Yves Metivier, sentenced to two months; and Raymond Lemir, who has not been sentenced yet.

However, the passers were small fish; the Mounties were interested in arresting the elusive supplier, who is believed to have been getting his money from a headquarters in Montreal.

For three months, Sherbrooke RCMP officers frequented hangouts of known criminals and money passers, digging up information which led to last Friday's arrest.

The large scale of the operation can be easily shown by a few figures. For the first seven months of 1965, only 55 counterfeit bills were passed. From August on (which is when the outbreak started) however, 193 bogus bills were passed.

In October, November, and December, the worst three months, 170 of the phony notes were passed, 77 in December alone. There were 48 passed in October and 45 in November.

The bogus $20's, which are very good counterfeits, are believed to have been made by a group in the Montreal area. The head men of that organization have not been found out yet, and Sergeant Boivin said that their operations, at least in this area, have slowed down considerably in the last few months.

IN REHEARSAL — Which way do you want these pleats turned? Asks the Wreck an unemployed professional football player who irons for the sisters Ruth and Eileen who are trying to find jobs as actress and writer in the Big City. John Clifton, Anne Bedard, and Bernice Besson are rehearsing the comedy 'My Sister Eileen,' scheduled for production April 21, 22, 23, under the auspices of the Lennoxville Optimists.

'My Sister Eileen' cast is large with experienced leads

Bernice Besson, who starred in no less than seven productions of the Montreal Musical Comedy Theatre through the fifties, and Anne Bedard, who played the lead opposite Walter Massey last spring in the Lennoxville Players' production of "Marriage-go-Round," have the comedy leads as Ruth and Eileen in the coming production of the laugh success "My Sister Eileen," which will play on the stage at Bishop's College School the evenings of April 21, 22, 23.

This is the gay story of two sisters from Columbus, Ohio, who take up residence in a basement apartment in New York's Greenwich Village, an apartment which is a cross between a dungeon and bedroom, and offers little more privacy than the street outside their window.

Life of the big city seems to flow past, over, under, and through their apartment, and hilarity runs high as they find themselves coping in turn—and sometimes all at once—with their landlord, with a thirteenth and unemployed football player, called The Wreck, and even with the conga-dancing cadet of the Argentine Navy who involves the sisters in an international incident.

It is a sign of the growth of the Lennoxville Players over the years that they have been able to cast this famous family comedy, for no less than twenty-five speaking roles are required, not to mention another dozen walk-on parts.

This will be the twelfth production of the Lennoxville Players, the eighth to be directed by Lewis Evans. It will be staged by Terry Guest, and costumed by Betty Jefferies. Edna Perry is in charge of properties, and Eileen Dolin of make-up. Proceeds from the production will be devoted to the work of the Lennoxville Optimists Club.

Denis Tossel, 18, of Sherbrooke, was given a suspended sentence in Sherbrooke Court of the Sessions of the Peace after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft.

On March 31, Tossel pleaded not guilty to the same charge. He admitted in court yesterday, however, that he had broken into an apartment belonging to a Sherbrooke woman on 30 Wood Street and stealing $5.

He fled the premises after the noise he made in the apartment had awakened other occupants of the building.

Real Poulin, 26, of Sherbrooke was sentenced to one month in prison by Sherbrooke Judge Redmond Hayes after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft.

Poulin had stolen a suitcase valued at $50 from a traveller from the United States.

Crown Prosecutor Guy Blanchette told the court that the suitcase had been recovered. However, he pointed out that this was not Poulin's first appearance before the court.

Jean Bilodeau, 19, of Richmond, pleaded guilty in Sherbrooke Court yesterday to two charges of theft.

Mr. Blanchette told the court that the accused had aided Richmond municipal police to recover the stolen goods. He also pointed out that the youth had no previous criminal record.

Judge Hayes told the accused that he was going to give him a chance, and gave Bilodeau a suspended sentence.

Crown witness at Dupuis trial says he tried to hide some facts

Roch Deslauriers, chief Crown witness in the trial of Yvon Dupuis, testified Wednesday that when police investigations began he made statements which "only approached the truth" and that he had tried to hide certain things.

Deslauriers, a St. Johns, Que., chiropractor, has testified he gave Mr. Dupuis, a former federal minister without portfolio, $10,000 in May, 1961, in his efforts to obtain a permit for a racetrack in St. Jean-Verville Napier constituency. Mr. Dupuis represented the constituency in Parliament until the federal election of Nov. 8 last year.

Following is some testimony from the trial:

Roch Deslauriers is once again on the stand and Mr. Martineau is questioning.

Q: Did you have an understanding with Mr. Dupuis?

A: Yes.

Q: What was the understanding?

A: I had to loan him $10,000.

Q: I suggest that you invented the whole matter.

A: That is absolutely false.

Q: Mr. Deslauriers, have you on the morning of May 9 gone to your wife before you went to Ottawa with the $10,000?

A: It is possible that I spoke to her.

Q: Is it possible that you showed her the $10,000?

A: During the preliminary hearing and here at this trial it was modified to bring present exactness. In September 1965 (the police interrogation) the truth was given to Mr. Nadeau and Mr. Bienville who were in St. Johns, I think to see Beauregard and to seek a change of venue. I was in the company of my lawyer. They asked me questions. I myself, showed the papers and I refreshed my memory to obtain the truth. I am morally certain that the first $5,000 was brought to Dupuis' office in St. Jean on the eighth.

Martineau: I ask that this trial be stopped immediately because the star witness changed his testimony.

At this point an argument broke out between the two lawyers with the judge acting as referee and putting his suggestions forward.

Q: Mr. Deslauriers did you not say during a meeting with Mr. Dupuis that Mr. Dupuis asked you at a date to bring him $10,000?

A: Yes I had a meeting with him.

Q: Is it not a fact that following the checking of the bank you told Mr. Dupuis that the date was June 29?

A: Yes that was a summary but not complete.

Q: Did you leave through your account?

A: I did not.

Q: You checked your account, if you prefer that word?

A: Yes.

Judge Veilleux: Q: You made one trip to Ottawa?

A: Yes.

Q: To give him $10,000?

A: No $5,000. And $5,000 at his office.

Q: Where you asked about the money? (During the present trial)

A: No.

Q: Did you think about it? Did you tell Mr. Bienville and the police if there was one or two 'pay offs'?

A: I thought about it a long time and came to the conclusion that there were two pay-offs.

Mr. Martineau will re-examine today because of Deslauriers change in testimony, i.e. the $5,000.

Mr. Bienville: Q: You talked about 13 or 14 complaints against you and you were let off?

A: Yes.

Q: You were asked if you had the same charge against you as Dupuis and you said not yet?

A: Exact.

Q: Was there any menace? (on behalf of the police).

A: No.

Mr. Deslauriers on the stand Mr. Bienville questioning.

Q: How many times did he (Mr. Deslauriers) have $5,000? (in his life).

A: Only once.

Q: Is it not a fact that you

1,100 textile workers strike at two plants in Sherbrooke

More than 1,100 textile workers are still out on strike today, as the strike at the Domil plant in Sherbrooke goes into its seventh day, and the strike at the Sherbrooke Dominion Textile plant goes into its fourth day.

The nearly 700 members of the Domil Employees Union, an affiliate of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, voted to strike last Friday, two days after they had voted in favor of postponing the strike for 17 days. The strike delay had been asked for by the negotiations committee.

The strike of the more than 400 workers at the Dominion Textile plant still has not received official recognition from the union's executive. However, at a general meeting on Monday the union members voted to stay out of work until they heard the results of the negotiations in Montreal.

Negotiations between union heads and Domil officials continue today. A meeting went on yesterday between unionists, Dominion Textile representatives and special mediator, Harold Lande QC.

A report from the CNTU headquarters in Sherbrooke says that the workers are striking for higher wages. Spokesmen for both companies refuse to make any statements at this time.

Dominion Textile public relations director Jean Siros told the Record that company officials had signed an agreement at the request of Mr. Lande not to make any statement during the course of negotiations.

A union spokesman said that Dominion Textile workers are demanding a 40-cent per hour pay increase over a two year contract. The same spokesman said that management's last offer was a three-year contract with a seven cent pay increase the first year, a four cent pay increase the second year, and a six cent pay increase the third year. There were no figures available for the Domil workers.

Mr. Currier has been with the department for several years and trained under Mr. Bronson and has also taken the special fire training courses offered periodically.

Pierre Dube was engaged as spare constable. As there are some 60 traffic tickets outstanding, from now on all traffic tickets not paid at the town office within a 30-day period will be sent immediately to the Sherbrooke Court for summons.

Derby Line has village meeting

DERBY LINE, Vt.—(Special) —The annual meeting of the Village of Derby Line was held in the village hall on Tuesday evening, April 5, with a good number of the property owners present.

A. S. Judd, Jr. was re-elected as Moderator and presided for the business agenda after the Warning was read by Gordon Johnston, clerk.

Mrs. Mary Rumery was elected to replace Mr. Johnston as clerk, as Mr. Johnston is one of the three trustees of the Village.

Printed statements were in the hands of each one present and included the report of the treasurer, John Berry, Dalton Downing spoke for the trustees and noted their financial account also listed in the booklet.

Benoit Blais, fire chief, has his report in the same booklet and noted that last year six of the firemen attended a Fire Fighters' course at Norwich University, costing the village $40.00. It was noted that A. S. Judd, Jr. and Harold Bowen had audited the village books.

The auditors recommended some arrangement be made to pay off each year on the debt that the town has carried for several years.

Dalton Downing was re-elected as three-year trustee; John Berry re-elected as treasurer; Harold Bowen and Raymond Scott as auditors for 1967; Herbert Curran was re-elected as tax collector.

Authority of the assembly was given to the trustees to borrow money, if necessary, to pay the tax money comes in. A sum of $250.00 was voted towards the maintenance of the Haskell Free Library and $500 for the Baxter Park skating rink, season of 1966-67.

All firemen with the Derby Line department, as of April 1, were voted to be exempt from poll-tax, a gesture of appreciation to the good work done by them.

Last year a total of $17,329.16 was collected in taxes. In discussion of levying the tax on the grand list to defray current expenses the coming year, it was voted to set the tax income at $1,800.00 and adjust the rate to the grand list accordingly. Last year the rate was $1.45.

A committee of Raymond Petelle, Harold Bowen and Andrew Therrien agreed to act to study village zoning and to make recommendations to the trustees.

Mrs. Mary Rumery gave her report on the tennis courts project; Dalton Downing, the electric power; Francis Holland, sewage disposal; and Edwin Earle, the tree-planting project.

Mrs. Rumery noted the finances in the fund to build a court in Derby and another at Baxter Park, in Derby Line. She announced that a card party is being held in Derby the afternoon of April 21 to raise money to be added to this fund.

Arena item requires explanation

Sherbrooke aldermen must be prepared to do some explaining to the local taxpayers about an item of $462,000 in public works bylaw before the public meeting called for April 18.

This item is designated for the construction of the Sports Palace on the fairgrounds and is in addition to the $1,150,000 loan approved August 30, 1965, for the arena project.

When the original bylaw was approved last summer the average taxpayer believed that the $1,150,000 represented the final cost of the undertaking.

But with the work still only in its preliminary stages, the Council has announced that it must find another $462,000 to pay for such things as plumbing, heating, electrical services and equipment, which most people thought had been included in the original bylaw.

Public concern is by no means reduced by the rather hazy manner in which the additional vote has been explained.

The draft bylaw approved Monday night by the Council simply listed the money for the arena project without any details being given.

City Hall sources appear at odds as to why the additional sum is required. One reason given is that it is for items not included in the original bylaw. Another is that the bylaw was submitted to the ratepayers before tenders had been called and was based on engineers' estimates.

If the first reason is accepted the feeling grows that the Council sought to mislead the taxpayers, most of whom were of the opinion that they were being asked to approve a loan for the final cost of the arena.

If the second explanation is correct, that actual costs will exceed the estimates by 40 per cent, serious doubts may be held as to the validity of the probable cost of many other projects the Council is asking the public to approve.

Admittedly construction costs have risen during the past year but the boost has been more like four per cent than 40.

Another objectionable feature of the loan bylaw is its catch-all nature.

The proprietors are being asked to accept or reject a wide variety of expenditures ranging from street paving and sidewalk construction through installation of sewer and water mains to the installation of an illuminated fountain on the Magog River and erection of a chalet at Jacques Cartier Park for the international water ski championships to be held here in 1967.

The voter cannot differentiate between the various major expenditures. He must say yes to the entire list and thus approve outlays of which he does not approve or vote no and perhaps lose out on something he deems of importance.

No objection can be taken to the lumping of similar projects in a single bylaw — sewers, water mains, street paving and sidewalks for instance — but when the expenditures are designed for totally unrelated schemes, each should stand or fall on its own merits.

Did anyone ever actually stop one of those comedians who say, "Stop me if you've heard this one"?

Senator Crerar to end long career

Senator Thomas A. Crerar has announced that he will retire from the Upper House within the next two months, taking advantage of the recent legislation which permits Senators over the age of 75 to take advantage of a retirement allowance.

None will argue with the granting of a pension to one of the Grand Old Men of Canadian politics who reaches the magic age of 90 in June after nearly 50 years in public life.

But many will miss the crisp comments of this man who has proved that the calendar alone does not indicate the true age of an individual.

During recent sessions of the Senate he has shown a vigor and determination unmatched by men many years his junior.

Nominally a Liberal he has been prepared to attack those policies of the administration with which he does not agree. As a rugged exponent of free enterprise he has been a constant critic of the ever-growing welfare state and paternalism.

If the Senate holds any public respect today it is because of Tommy Crerar and a few other members of his type.

By their outspoken opinions they have prevented the Red Chamber from becoming a collection of party hacks who automatically rubber stamp government legislation coming from the Lower House.

When he fulfills his announced intention of quitting the halls of Parliament which he has walked since 1917, he will leave a tradition and inspiration for his younger confreres — the idea of independence of spirit and determination to fight through for his chosen objective.

India must act to preserve itself

The United States, Canada and many other nations have been called upon to increase their food donations to India in an effort to alleviate the near-famine conditions which exist on the sub-continent.

Assistance in other directions has been forthcoming, including a $300,000,000 gift by the United States for the establishment of an educational foundation.

While this assistance from food surplus nations is the natural result of the human feeling of compassion for the less fortunate, sometimes the question may be asked why India does not do more on its own behalf.

That country continues to be bogged down by age-old superstitions, torn by racial and linguistic strife and vastly more interested in holding Kashmir than in attacking its twin problems of over-population and low productivity.

Perhaps the donor nations are justified in demanding that India in these disturbing days find a way to make peace with its neighbor, Pakistan and mobilize its resources to work for its own salvation.

Outside aid alone will not save India. The world cannot indefinitely save a nation that does not want to save itself.

THE CRUCIFIXION: the legal process — 4

His arrest, trial and execution

By REV. D. BUXTON
St. Barnabas Church
North Hatley

When I was on the staff of a large parish in the suburbs of London, England, soon after the end of World War II, I had the privilege of boarding with a couple and their son, Jeff, the husband worked for the British Railways. Not long before I came to this parish, he had listened to the BBC production of the play by Dorothy Sayers, "The Man Born to be King," which is concerned with the life of Christ. In the scene of the Crucifixion, the centurion says: "Son of God He called Himself, and so I believe He was." As a direct result of hearing this on the radio, Jeff became a Christian. They are now a happy Christian family.

"Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried." So we say in the Creed. Do you dare to say the words that follow: "The third day He rose again from the dead?"

Jeff dared to say them, and he did say them victoriously, triumphantly.

As you know very well, there is much talk now about God being dead (whatever that means). We need to remember that this is not the first time in nearly 2,000 years that the Christian faith has been called in question. We need also to bear in mind that the historical evidence does not support the "God is dead" theory.

Lately I have been reading again a book which I found very helpful in days gone by. It is called "Who Moved the Stone?" by Frank Morrison, and published by Feber and Feber Ltd., London.

The first chapter is called, "The book that refused to be written." The author tells us that he set out to write a book, in which he would prove that the story of the Resurrection of the Jesus was nonsense.

But after making a thorough study of the Gospel narratives, and of contemporary historians, he found that he was forced to do the exact opposite.

"Crucified, died, and buried... As a young man," he says, "I used to stop dead at this point, set my teeth tightly, and refuse to utter another word... But today I feel differently. I have wrestled with that problem and found it tougher than ever I could have conceived possible. It is easy to say that you will believe nothing that will not fit into the mould of a rationalist conception of the universe, but suppose the facts won't fit into that mould?"

"The utmost that an honest man can do is to undertake to examine the facts patiently and impartially, and to see where they lead him." The events of Thursday night in Holy Week and Good Friday were, in many respects, extraordinary and unprecedented.

There is no doubt that Jesus was arrested late at night, probably about 11.30 p.m. He was led before the Jewish Council. This trial did not go according to plan. The witnesses did not agree with each other. At last the High Priest seems to have thrown all pretense of legality to the winds. He applied to Christ the most solemn form of oath known to the Hebrew Constitution, the Oath of the Testimony: "Adjure thee by the living God." To this Christ, as a pious and law-abiding Jew, had no alternative but to answer. The priest asked him: "Are you the Christ?" Jesus replied: "I am!" We can almost hear the ring of triumph in the High Priest's voice, as he exclaimed: "What further need have we of witnesses? You have heard the blasphemy; what do you think?"

Why were the priests determined to have Jesus crucified on that Friday? Why all the rush?

The writer maintains that there are factors in the Gospel story which are not immediately apparent in a first reading of the narrative.

The priests were afraid of the people. After all, on Palm Sunday they had cheered Jesus wildly and excitedly. How would the crowds welcome the news that their Hero had been arrested and was on trial for his life?

But this is only part of the reason for the rush to have Jesus arrested and executed. Beneath the acknowledged fear of the people, there was a deeper and more potent fear, the fear of Christ Himself. He possessed certain definite powers beyond the normal. The priests were dealing with an unknown and incalculable quality, and their acts plainly show it.

And there is another factor in this strange drama, and that is that the initiative remained with Christ even to the end. When Judas the traitor left the supper table, and went out into the night, he brought to the priests some information which completely resolved the hesitation and doubts of the rulers. The news which Judas gave to the priests must have been something like this: "Jesus is thinking and talking of death. He is going to the garden at the foot of Olivet, and will wait there till I come. Make your arrangements quickly, and I will take you to Him."

Thus Christ Himself was challenging and indeed facilitating. His own arrest. Here was the opportunity for the priests to arrest Him, and to have Him condemned to death, quickly!

But even the trial before the Roman governor did not go according to plan. Pilate was determined to have Christ acquitted somehow, at all costs. His wife, Claudia, sent a message to him, warning him not to condemn Jesus, because she had a bad dream the previous night. But, in the end, the battle of wills closed in the defeat of the Roman Procurator, and it was probably a sad and intensely irritated man who made his way back to the Imperial apartments of the Palace.

Why Good Friday? The answer depends on what, or who, you think Jesus Christ really was. If He was only another martyr to the truth, then there isn't much more to be said. But if you take seriously His claim to be God, then the death of Jesus on the Cross is something to make the least sensitive think twice.

All religions attempt to bridge the gulf between the purity of God and the sinfulness of men, but Christians believe that God built the bridge Himself. On Good Friday we remember His deliberate action in allowing Himself to be caught up in the sin — suffering — death mechanism which haunts mankind. That is why this Friday is called Good Friday.

Christians believe that He did not let it end there, for He went on, right through death. "The third day He rose again from the dead."

I have on my desk in front of me a wooden Cross about eight inches high, which I value very highly. This was made by Jeff, whom I mentioned earlier in this article. He is only one among millions all down the ages, who have found peace and joy and forgiveness at the Cross of Calvary. In all humility I include myself among them. God, in His mercy, has extended forgiveness to me.

This is a true saying: "God so loved the world, that He gave His only-begotten Son, to the end that all that believe in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." (St. John 3).

The gumbo-of chicken soup fame—is a herbaceous, hairy, annual plant. Because of the large amount of mucilage it contains, gumbo is extensively used for thickening broths and soups. In upper India, it is used for clarifying sugar. In Africa, however, gumbo has a totally different use. The seeds are worn as beads. The best-perfumed seeds are reported to come from yet another part of the world, Martinique.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

TOKYO — (TNS) — While Hong Kong with its neon-trimmed sophistications is merely a stray sample of western Europe and America in an Asian setting, Tokyo is the real McCoy. If you can forget geography for a while and overlook the occasional kimono in the street, you are back home; even the chilly spring weather is the same.

True, the centre of this megalopolis (population over 10 million) lacks sky-scrapers, for earthquake prone Tokyo cannot risk piling up concrete higher than 17 stories. But its character is thoroughly North American. The city, as with everything the Japanese have copied from the West, is at first glance indistinguishable from the original.

It is hard to realize that the amazing westernization of Japan is the product of less than a century. Though perhaps only skin-deep culturally, it has given the country the highest standard of living in Asia and the potential of a powerful role on the world scene.

A generation ago, this potential was misused for military conquest. That mad venture, finally pulverized in the mushroom clouds over Hiroshima and Nagasaki, left the nation with a traumatic experience which to this day inhibits Japanese policies.

The scar and the dread of militaristic revival are so deep that Japan still shies away from looking after even her own defense. The Japanese Army, drawn from a population of 100 million, numbers only 85,000 men and lacks practically all the essential means of modern defense, although the country is now one of the four mightiest industrial powers in the world. (It ranks third in steel production and first in shipbuilding.)

A serious hindrance

This abdication from the international scene, while inevitable in the immediate postwar years of economic and political reconstruction, has now become a serious hindrance to the Western efforts to sustain the non-Communist nations of Asia against Peking-fomented subversion and "liberation war" terrorism.

Unlike in Europe where defeated Germany through the federal republic, has assumed a stabilizing role (which includes sharing of the collective defense burden), Japan lives in self-centred political isolation and continues to rely for its defense on the United States.

There are signs, however, that this cocoon atmosphere is about to change. The tiny but already visible cracks are caused by two diametrically opposed internal pressures which emanate from Japan's new political generation.

Unburdened by the traumatic experience of their elders, this generation is groping for a new foreign policy that would reflect the reality of Japan's formidable economic strength.

Pro-Western point

The pro-Westerners counter by pointing out that Japan's prosperity and security demonstrably rest on close ties with the free world. China, they contend, will not dare attack if Japan shows a will to defend herself and helps contain Communist expansion in Asia. The bulk of Japan's exports goes to non-Communist countries and all the essential raw materials come from outside the Sino-Soviet orbit.

Foreign observers here are watching the developing clash between the two concepts with anxiety, for the weight of this modern industrial giant, once the decision of its full use is made, will undoubtedly tip the balance of power scales not only in Asia but in the whole East-West conflict.

My feeling is that the long-overdue showdown over Japan's future course is about to begin. The rumblings under the lid, held by the cautiously pro-Western Government of Prime Minister Sato, are unmistakable.

Dr. G. J. S. Wilde, a Queen's University psychologist, turned up an incredible story while doing research on twins in his native Holland.

The two couples of identical twin brothers and sisters set out to furnish their homes after their marriage. And although they shopped independently they came home with purchases that were "almost exactly alike."

The result, Dr. Wilde says, is that within a short time the interiors of their homes "completely mirrored each other." He adds that they also bought flowers each Saturday and, at 50 miles of the city, Identical twins who will participate are Bob and Jim Nugent, 19-year-old pre-med students at Queen's.

Their school career in Edmonton, their home town, was filled with the same ups and downs, with only a variation of a few marks. They did poorly in Grade 11, they say, but obtained honors the following year.

Bob says they resemble each other except that Jim needed a larger hat size. They also wear their hair differently because of a desire to be different. But they share much the same opinions and tastes and have a flair for art but no musical talent.

DIOCESAN COUNCIL C.W.L.

A meeting of the Diocesan Council of the C.W.L. was held recently in Canon Fissette Memorial Library, with Miss J. Goggin, president, in the chair.

Correspondence included a letter from Mrs. D. Aitken, Provincial Council, regarding a spiritual bouquet for the Provincial Director, Most Rev. L. P. Whalen. Since this year marks the 25th anniversary of Bishop Whalen's consecration, the Provincial Council is making him a special donation, and will gratefully accept all contributions.

Miss McCormick spoke on the new Social Action Program reports. All parish councils are advised to procure the booklet, The Christian in The Community.

It was decided that a baby gift be sent to Mrs. D. Pankovitch, Mrs. E. Clarke is to take charge.

A motion was approved that the slate of Provincial officers remain as last year.

Miss Goggin advised that Mrs. J. MacDonald will attend the Diocesan Convention at Richmond on May 14.

BIT OF MEXICO AND MISS QUALITY — Colorful as a basket of Easter eggs are the fashions for the small fry for that Sunday in April. A little bit of Mexico is reflected (left) in a vibrant green dress by Nancy Kay. Bird of Paradise embroidery decorates ruffled bib front. Easter ensemble by Miss Quality (right) features a sprout green A-line coat with set-in sleeves and navy lining dotted with daisies to match the sleeveless dress piped with green at the hem and neckline. These designs are in easy-care Kodel.

Easter egg colors for younger set

NEW YORK — (NEA) — There's a wonderful collection of fashions designed for little girls to wear for their Easter egg hunt.

These fashions are as diversified in styling as they are in fabrics. But they are all done with "easy-care" in mind.

Although the fabrics are all different from each other in appearance — there are some that look like linen, some like homespun, others voile — they can all be machine-washed and dried. This factor will be a bonus for mom when the egg hunt is over.

Some of the prettiest styles are suits with co-ordinating blouses and coats with co-ordinating dresses.

One suit in a handsome canvas fabric comes in pink with a lilac dotted Swiss blouse. (The dots are in pink.)

There is a coat in sprout green with daisy-printed coat lining to match the dress fabric.

You will find smocked dresses and pretty Victorian styles with fitted waist and full skirt. Colors at once bring to mind the Easter eggs themselves. There are pastel lilacs, mint green, pinks and blues. Occasionally, a vibrant hue pops up.

Every little girl can look her best for the Easter bunny this April and if she gets a bit rumpled and soiled the automatic washer will take care of the whole matter in no time at all.

For and about Women

Thayer-Davio vows exchanged

BEEBE — A quiet but pretty spring wedding was solemnized at Wesley United Church, Beebe, at eight o'clock, Saturday, April 2, when Carol Ann Davio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Davio, became the bride of Donald Leslie Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Thayer, of Georgeville. Rev. Ralph Rogers officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Gordon Laberee organist also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Lawrence Goodsell who sang the Lord's Prayer. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Goodsell rendered I'll Walk Beside You. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a light blue wool knit jersey suit and white accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

Mrs. Percy Manning sister of the bride, as her attendant wore a pink cotton and arnel knit suit, white accessories and a corsage of deep pink carnations.

Mr. Raymond Thayer, acted as best man for his brother, and James Thayer, also a brother of the groom, was the usher.

Mrs. Davio, mother of the bride, chose a blue print nylon jersey dress with white accessories and a corsage of blue tinted carnations.

Mrs. Thayer, mother of the groom, was in a beige and gold tweed suit with beige accessories. Her corsage was of bronze baby mums.

The reception was held following the ceremony at the Legion Memorial Home, at Stanstead, where 50 relatives and close friends signed the guest book which was in charge of Miss Barbara Thayer, sister of the groom.

The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake iced in white with lacy edgings, topped by three bells with a large bow. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. C. Thayer, mother of the groom. A buffet lunch was served.

For travelling on a short wedding trip the bride wore a wedding ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Thayer have taken up residence in Georgeville where the groom is employed.

Relatives and friends were from Ottawa, Stittsville, Uxbridge, Ont.; Derby, Vt.; Fitch Bay, Georgeville, Beebe and the Three Villages.

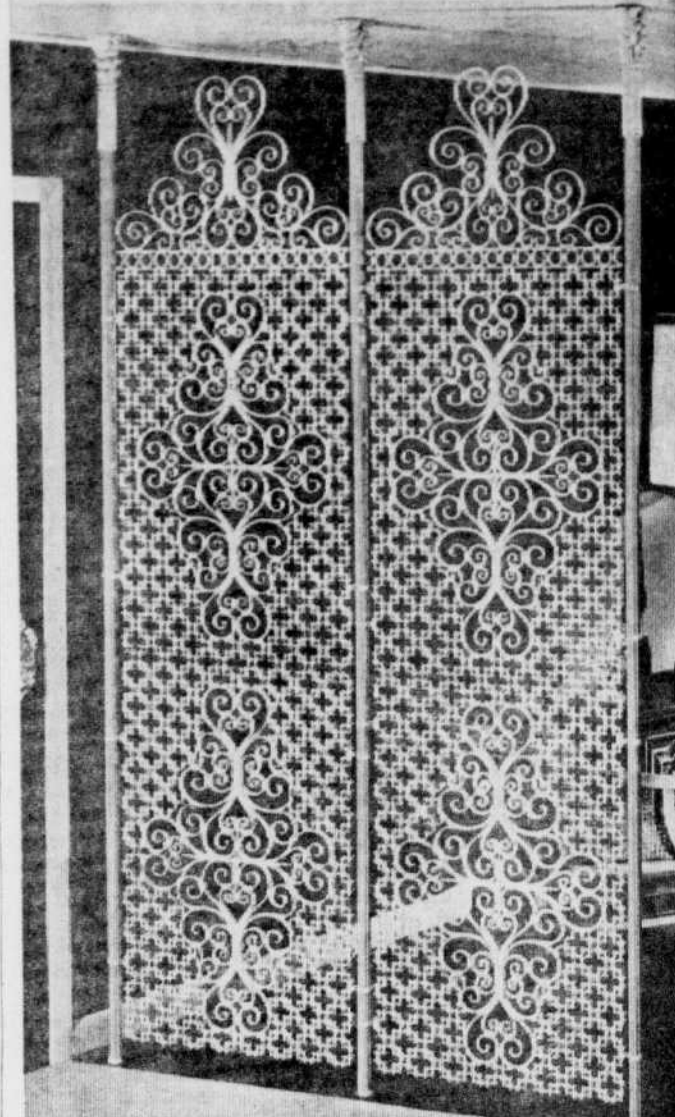

Personals

Capt. and Mrs. Carl Olson and daughter Carla, of Camp Borden, Ont., are arriving today to spend Easter week-end with Mr. Lincoln Olson and with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mullin, Walton Avenue. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Olson's mother, Mrs. Eldon Mullin, who will visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mullin, before proceeding to New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bennett, of Lennoxville, recently motored to Plymouth, N.H., with Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bennett, Janyee and Noryne, of Greenfield Park, to visit the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Forster, of Cowansville, Que., announce the engagement of their daughter Sandra, to Mr. Robert Alston, of Granby, Que., son of Mr. Alex Alston, of Sussex, N.B. and the late Mrs. Alston. A fall wedding is planned.

CASTILLE DIVIDER — Even a Spanish grandee would approve of this Castille Divider panel system, an authentic reproduction of a Moorish design. Predicts definite future for barmaids in Canada

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — There is a definite future for barmaids in Canada, says Gerald Roy, and he aims to help meet the demand.

Mr. Roy has established a school for women bartenders here and in a four-week course they are taught how to mix more than 60 drinks.

The first course at the Canadian School of Bartending had 10 students and there wasn't a bunny girl in the lot.

"There's a big difference between women bartenders and bunny girls," Mr. Roy says.

"Bunny girls are like cocktail waitresses. My students will be bartenders—they will be tending bar, mixing drinks."

Leo Atherton, a former bartender who is Mr. Roy's partner in the school, conducts three-hour classes each week—women in the field.

Much of the time is devoted to practising, all of which is done with water colored to resemble the real thing. The trick to mixing drinks properly, Mr. Atherton says, is to get the proportions of ingredients right and to get them into the correct-size glass without having any liquid left over.

A St. Catharines hotel agreed to let the students gain practical experience in a real bar for one evening each during the course.

Mr. Roy says reaction of bar managers and bartenders to the idea of having women tend bar has been favorable. He has promises of jobs from three managers and, with a shortage of men bartenders in this area, ner in the school, conducts three-hour classes each week—women in the field.

A putterer's work is never done

One reason why "woman's work is never done" is because an awful lot of women are disorganized putterers.

Instead of tackling their work early in the morning and sticking with each job until it is done, a lot of housewives take up half the morning getting themselves started. They sip cup after cup of coffee, call all of their friends for long gossiping chats, start one job and then switch to another before it is finished.

They jump at any excuse to get out of the house—from hopping into the car to make a quick shopping trip, to running over to visit with a neighbor, to attending a morning meeting. (Since no one respects a housewife's working hours there are always morning meetings a woman can attend if she wants to get away from her work for awhile.) Yet all the while that the puttering housewife is stalling instead of getting on with her chores—she is nagged by the thought of all that she needs to get done.

So she doesn't really enjoy the breaks she keeps taking before she has earned them.

Asks removal of restrictions

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's independent consumers' association has asked the home secretary to remove all shop closing restrictions.

It suggests that the interest of shop employees ought to be safeguarded by statutory limitation of their working hours rather than by restrictions on shopping hours, as at present. A survey by the Research Institute for Consumer Affairs indicated 60 per cent of women in full-time non-manual jobs would like shops to remain open until 10 p.m. on one or more days a week.

At present shops in general close at 5:30 p.m. or 6 p.m. on weekdays, although in large towns a few may stay open until 7 or 8 p.m. This means that the majority of full-time women workers have to crowd their daily shopping into their lunch hour.

The law now allows shops to remain open until 8 p.m.

Cabinet intervention sought in Hydro northern labor dispute

QUEBEC (CP)—The provincial cabinet was asked Wednesday to intervene in a dispute that has idled 3,000 men since March 15 at the Manicouagan Outardes Hydro-Quebec project.

Negotiators for the National Construction Union—an affiliate of the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions—sent a telegram asking for government intervention at the cabinet level after company union representatives found themselves at an impasse.

They had been meeting in the offices of government conciliator J. P. Lafleur since Saturday, with little result.

In a statement released Wednesday, Hydro-Quebec said it insists on being allowed to discipline men it holds responsible for the strike and to fire four men said to have forced a foreman off the Manicouagan dam March 15.

The four were suspended after the incident and the suspension resulted in the current strike.

as not been between apologists for the "Quebec solution" and for the "Canadian solution" but between the two groups—students and professors on one side; politicians on the other—who have carried on an intensive discussion about Quebec.

Delay expulsion

MONTREAL (CP)—Superior Court Wednesday granted an interim injunction to delay the expulsion of 436 school children from schools in suburban Lachine in a dispute between two school commissions over which pays the cost of educating the pupils.

The injunction, obtained by the St. Sacrement de Lachine school commission against the Lachine school commission, delays any expulsions until hearings on the dispute are held April 12.

Executive shift

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada has reorganized its administration at the senior executive level with the appointment of four vice-presidents, George McGreggor, president, announced Wednesday.

Herbert Seagrims, formerly vice-president—operations, was named executive vice-president while William Harvey, formerly vice-president—finance, was appointed senior vice-president—finance.

Search delayed

QUEBEC (CP)—An aerial search for a light plane, missing with two men on board since March 25 from Riviere du Loup, Que., was interrupted Wednesday by bad weather.

An air force spokesman said the cloud ceiling was down to 400 feet and visibility was less than half a mile.

Honor Viceroy

QUEBEC (CP)—Suburban Quebec-West, a community of about 9,000, will officially change its name to Ville Vanier June 12 to honor the governor-general, Mayor Jean-Paul Nolin said Wednesday.

He said the town has received approval from the government for the change of name and has Gov.-Gen. Vanier's permission to use his name.

Negotiated sale

MONTREAL (CP)—Marc Boissonneau, assistant to the administrator of the Quebec Liquor Board, testified Wednesday that he negotiated the price for the LaSalle land sold to the QLB for 66 cents a square foot last fall.

The decision to purchase the land at that price was backed by Lorne G. Power, the administrator, and QLB counsel Gerard LeDain, Mr. Boissonneau said.

The ultimate 007 toy gift fit for prince

LONDON (AP) — Six-year-old Prince Andrew will take delivery in a few days of a £4,000 ($12,000) model of James Bond's souped-up sports car, complete with toy machine-guns, bullet-proof windshield, two-way radio and real radar.

The car will be a gift from Aston Martin, who made the original for Sean Connery to use in the movie Goldfinger.

Prince Andrew's parents, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, saw the midjet car in action Monday when they visited the Aston Martin plant in nearby Buckinghamshire.

Factory Manager Stephen Hoggie's six-year-old son, Ian, demonstrated the car for the Queen and Prince Philip.

"Demonstrate the water scooter, Ian," said designer Tadek Marek.

Prince Philip—who was once accused of spraying two news photographers with a water sprinkler at the Chelsea flower show—asked:

"Which way does it squirt?"

Little Ian nodded towards a group of lensmen.

"They won't like it," said Prince Philip.

SHOOTS OUT WATER

Ian pressed a button and two streams of water shot from reflectors at the rear of the car. The water missed the camera men but drenched a factory worker's knees.

Ian pressed another button. A smokescreen belched from the tiny car and enveloped the photographers.

"It's wonderful," said the Queen. "Andrew will be so pleased."

Car men back LBJ on safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. automobile industry endorsed Tuesday most of President Johnson's highway safety legislation but urged that it—rather than the government—be given primary responsibility for car safety standards.

John S. Bugas, vice-president of the Ford Motor Company, said in testimony prepared for a Senate commerce committee hearing that the industry is in favor of all of the major parts of the $700,000,000, six-year program except for the section under which the commerce secretary would have discretionary authority to establish motor vehicle safety standards.

Bugas, chairman of the Automobile Manufacturers Association's safety administrative committee, said the section would give the secretary "virtually unlimited power to establish safety standards affecting the design and development of motor vehicles."

As an alternative, Bugas proposed a three-point program which he said would bring into effect a partnership of the federal government, the state governments and the auto industry for moving ahead immediately to improve traffic safety.

The industry proposal, as he outlined it, called for:

1. A commitment by the four major automobile manufacturers to co-operate in a voluntary program to improve the safety design of vehicles as rapidly as possible.

2. The strengthening of the government's role in vehicle safety standards through a joint federal-state program that would include participation in and support for the vehicle equipment safety commission which now represents 44 states and the District of Columbia.

3. Frequent reporting on the industry's safety progress by the auto-makers to the U.S. Congress, the commerce secretary, other government agencies and the public.

"Such a program," Bugas said, "will enable the automobile companies to share safety developments with each other soon enough so they can be incorporated in passenger cars by each company at the earliest possible time."

Reds claim long trip underwater

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Admiral Sergey Gromov, commander-in-chief of the Soviet navy, says in an article in the Communist party paper Pravda that Soviet nuclear submarines completed an underwater voyage of about 24,800 miles without once coming to the surface.

He says the submarines were armed with rockets capable of hitting targets on land or at sea thousands of miles away and with torpedoes which could be fitted with nuclear warheads.

The underwater voyage around the world by the submarines compared well with a similar trip by the U.S. submarine Triton, the newspaper Red Star says.

Describing the latest feat by Soviet submariners, the defence ministry daily says while the Triton was never far from an American base, the Russian vessels were often far from any friendly port.

If a sailor fell ill aboard the Triton an American cruiser could always appear alongside and take him off, it says.

But "The Soviet submariners had to sail in regions where there were not only no Soviet bases and harbors but which our naval vessels do not visit at the present time."

$650,000 arena approved for Cowansville

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — About 100 townsmen appeared at Town hall Monday night and enthusiastically accepted the $650,000 arena project.

Bylaw 474 was adopted authorizing Cowansville to spend $650,000 and to obtain these funds by floating a 20 year bond issue for that amount.

The bonds at a six per cent annual interest rate are to be issued in $100 denominations or multiples of $100 and will be paid to the bearer or registered owner at all branches of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Quebec and at the main office of the Bank in Toronto. These bonds will be dated May 1, 1966 and will be redeemable in series over 20 years according to a schedule of payments, which purveys to the equilibrium of the debt service charge of Cowansville for the years to come, according to the by-law. Concerning the possibility of a rise in taxes to pay for the arena project the by-law states as follows:

The present bylaw imposes and there shall be levied annually, upon all taxable immovable property, a special tax at a sufficient rate, according to the valuation roll in force each year, to provide for the yearly payment, in principal and interest of the bond series.

When questioned as to why the bylaw did not mention the rate of tax that would be levied, Mayor Roland Desourdy said this was impossible to determine at this time as it depended on many things including the valuation roll. He did say, however, that the rate could be between $20 and $25 on a $12,000 to $15,000 property valuation.

Mayor Desourdy referred to the fact that taxes had not been raised since 1959. At that time the valuation rate was raised from $1.75 per $100 valuation to $1.85.

"We in Cowansville must do our part for the young people of the town and do our utmost to make the town the best possible place in which to live," he said.

Asked if the arena would be constructed as a winter works program the mayor replied, "It would be started this year," he said, "but would not be a Christmas present. If accepted as a winter works project $200,000 could be gotten in way of a federal grant," he said.

The arena artificial surface would measure 80 feet in width by 200 feet long and the non-columned interior would seat at capacity 2,500 persons with standing room for perhaps another 1,000.

ARENA MODEL — To the right above is the architect's model of the $650,000 arena for Cowansville. A bylaw was accepted by property owners who attended a special meeting called Monday night at town hall. No definite date has been set for the beginning of construction. Mayor Desourdy said tenders would be called for within about a month. It is to be constructed next to the cultural Cen-

Delightful WHS performance does credit to Finian's Rainbow

WATERLOO — All the world loves an Irishman. Those in Waterloo who were fortunate enough to see Finian's Rainbow performed by the Waterloo High School Glee Club last week were no different.

By BERNICE CHAMPAGNE (Record Correspondent)

small form was no indication of her loud voice which alternated from clear to throaty but was always warm. She was completely charming as the demure sweetheart of the outraged daughter.

The play, an original Broadway production with music by Burton Lane and lyrics by E. Y. Harburg, was staged in the high school auditorium on the nights of March 31st and April 1st.

The entire company did credit to the colorful and lively production. Mrs. Marion Hackwell, as director, seemed to bring out the best in the young amateurs. Producers Roger McKergow deserves much credit, also, for the show's success.

Lighting under the direction of Al Thomson was at times dramatic, at times simple, but always appropriate. The rainbow effect produced occasionally was lovely to see.

Kenneth Ramsay as Finian McLonergan dominated the stage at all times. He was a natural as the Irish immigrant, always looking for the rainbow, sometimes dogmatic and egotistical, sometimes warm and lovable. Finian provided much of the comedy, and his Irish accent was wholly believable.

Richard Price as Woody Mahoney, the local hero, had a deep voice which carried well. Once over his initial self-consciousness, Richard showed a capacity for humor and an enchanting shyness toward his betrothed.

Og the leprechaun was typically impish and totally delightful. John Hackwell was perfect in the part, poised and fun to watch as he seemed to enjoy his role and the play itself. John's voice was pleasant in song, and aptly high pitched as he pranced around the stage as the lovable Og.

Council urged to fix road

DUNHAM — (Staff) — Several residents on the Malenfant Road in Dunham Township recently complained to council concerning the poor condition of their road this spring.

One resident David Brown, said when weather is warm enough to thaw ice residents have to go without services. "For a 15 day period recently," he said, "there was no mail, milk or bread delivery on our road. Every spring it is the same. We had a young baby last year and at one point had to push groceries home, nearly a mile in a wheelbarrow."

There are five families on this road on the Cowansville side of Dunham village and Mr. Brown said he previously complained to Mayor Normand Gaudreau about the situation.

During a telephone conversation the mayor said the road was to be rebuilt this year. Mayor Gaudreau said last week he received a letter from the agriculture and colonization department which mentioned that money had been put aside for rebuilding the road this year. The letter and other correspondence, he said, is on file and may be seen by residents and other interested parties.

Mayor Gaudreau also said that in recent years there had been a dispute between men hired by the township to look after the road and as a result work had not been done properly for some time. This is now cleared up, he said.

The car was driven by Ernest Cleverley, 67, of 167 Dieppe Street, Cowansville. The accident occurred at about 11:10 a.m. Wednesday when the boy was crossing the street from school. He crossed against the traffic light, police said. He is a patient in Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital, Sweetburg.

EAST'S DISCARDS
AIDS STRATEGY

One of the most interesting hands in Dorothy Hayden's new book illustrates the great value of giving your partner a count by means of a high low discard to show that you started with an even number of cards in some suit.

South gets to six no-trump after opening the bidding with an artificial forcing two club bid. If West opens any suit but spades South will simply concede a trick to the ace of hearts and make his contract without any trouble but West opens the nine of spades and South sees that he will never be able to bring home dummy's six card heart suit.

He wins the first trick in dummy and takes a club finesse. Then, he knocks out East's ace of hearts. East plays a second spade and South is in dummy for the last time. He takes a second club finesse but still must lose a trick to West's jack of diamonds provided West knows enough to guard that card instead of his ten of clubs. In most games there would be an excellent chance for West to go wrong. South would cash his queen and jack of hearts and West would have to make two discards. He could throw a spade and a diamond with no worries but then South would cash his third spade and West would be in trouble. He would probably guess right and throw a club but the count signal would give him a sure thing play.

East should play the four of clubs on the first lead of the suit and the deuce of clubs next. This play would show an even number of clubs. West would know that East had started with either two or four. If two South would have started with five clubs to the top four honors and West's clubs would have no value. If he had started with four then South could not hold a low club and again West's clubs would have no value. Hence West could discard a club and lose nothing by so doing.

Choirs of 16 Border area churches join in festival of Easter music

STANSTEAD — Centenary United Church was filled to capacity on April 3, for the annual Easter festival of choir music, as the large assembly heard approximately 300 voices from 16 choirs singing en masse. With Mrs. A. P. Gordon, Stanstead, at the organ, the program opened as she played for prelude selections, Voluntary in G minor and in D Minor, by J. Stanley.

The choir led for the singing of the Easter hymn, All Glory, Laud and Honor, after which Rev. Geoffrey Joyce gave the invocation.

Why did
Cliff Egerton switch to Black Horse Ale with the new gold label?

Mr. Clifford Egerton of Chateaugay, Que.

Cliff Egerton knows a *winning flavour when he tastes it. He tried Black Horse Ale, and now it's his favourite beer.

In a recent taste-test (no looking at labels) among Quebec beer drinkers, 3 out of 5 picked Black Horse Ale over another popular competitive ale.*

(This test was conducted by an independent research company)

Make the flavour test yourself! Pour a glass of Black Horse Ale. Look at the head. Sniff the pleasant aroma. Best of all, enjoy the rewarding taste. You'll realize why the winning flavour of Black Horse Ale really quenches a beer thirst.

BIRD ON THE BRAIN — They say a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. But what about a bird on the head? Obviously six-month-old Andy Baird doesn't think it's worth anything as a neighbor's budgie lands on his head. Andy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Baird, of Kingston.

When this goes in hot water worries go out

You'll have all the hot water you want with a Cascade 40 automatic electric water heater. The big 40-gallon tank holds ample reserves, reheats fast when extra hot water is needed. Costs only pennies a day to run, too—yet it can keep the whole family in hot water. And plenty of it.
