Talk On Economics In Canada Given Members Of Valleyfield Rotary Club

Following are excerpts from an address given by John Meyer, Financial Editor, The Gazette, Montreal, to members of the Rotary Club at Valleyfield, on November 10th. The speaker was introduced by Rotarian W. A. Walsh and thanked by Rotarian David Henderson.

I don't think there has ever been an occasion in our national history when the economics of being a Canadian have been so heatedly debated. There is more discussion of economics than there is of politics — and Heaven knows, we've provocation enough for talk of politics.

One reason why this talk of economics is so pronounced — and in using that term, economics, I am using it in its broadest sense to mean everything from tight money to trade policy — is because economics and politics, at certain levels, become pretty much the same thing.

The government exerts an incalculable influence over our economic destiny. I wonder whether that influence is as appropriate to our requirements as it should be. Canada has changed in recent years. We are no longer the colony whose commercial interests consisted solely of the exchange of resources for the manufactured goods of the mother country.

The potential emergence of Russia as a dominating influence on world markets is another factor we can no longer ignore. I believe the major criticism to be levelled against the authors of Canada's economic policies is that they will not recognize that we are living in a changing world. Canada is still changing. Our trading partners are changing. The patterns and content of trade are changing. What seemed best for Canada twenty years ago, even ten years ago, need not be best for Canada today.

Let us examine this argument a little more closely. The Canadian increase in gross national product during the last ten years has been 76 per cent. During this period, the Canadian population was increased by 21 per cent. How have other nations made out during the same period? Here are two random examples. The gross national product of the United Kingdom increased during the last ten years, by 65 per cent. The British population increase at the same time was only two per cent. Sweden had an increase in gross national product of 83 per cent, with no increase in population at all.

I think it highly significant that during this period, we experienced a large increase in service industries without a corresponding increase in manufacturing. In other words, when population increase is coupled with the increase in imports of manufactured goods which occurred during the same period, we are presented with foreign producers absorbing our expanding markets at the expense of the development of domestic manufacturing.

Kingdom. Comparisons were made over a five-year period — 1953 to 1957 — between the expansion in world commodity trade and the expansion in world industrial production.

The study group found over this five-year period that world trade in commodities had increased by three-and-a-half per cent. Industrial production, on the other hand, had increased by an average of five-and-a-half per cent a year. The conclusion was that with the advance of technology, substitutes were being developed for traditional materials and, concurrently, by making more efficient use of traditional commodities, more could be manufactured from less raw material.

The implications of this study for Canada are as obvious as they are numerous. They indicate, for example, a relative reduction in the demand for our raw materials by those nations whose own resources have been exhausted. They demonstrate wherein lies the greatest potential for increasing our national production — in making more use of our resources than simply selling them to others. They suggest, too, that there may be an effective ceiling on the amount of exports which we can generate in raw and semi-raw materials.

We can properly take pride in the attraction Canada exerts for foreign capital. It serves — if, in fact, we need its confirmation — as evidence of world opinion of the stability of our political institutions and the potential for production. But what is establishing a climate which encourages foreign investment here, we have failed to establish a climate which encourages domestic investment at a corresponding, or more properly, a higher level.

There is relatively little new Canadian manufacturing of any size which is Canadian in origin. I believe, gentlemen, that we are going to be confronted very shortly with the penalty for having failed to build up a more thoroughly Canadian manufacturing industry.

Manufacturing is the surest and most profitable source of national wealth. The more we do to raw material, the more we profit from it. The conversion of our raw materials into useful products can be accomplished with a minimum of concern for what others may be doing. Our dependence upon foreign markets for our raw materials is correspondingly reduced by the development of domestic manufacturing industries.

I do not suggest, nor does any reputable manufacturer of my acquaintance, that we resurrect high tariffs and impenetrable barriers against imports. But I do maintain that the practice of inviting the foreign manufacturers the world over to make free of our markets must, unless checked, deprive us of our main sources of national income. We are pursuing a suicidal course. So far, I detect no evidence among the authorities that they are aware of this.

Huntingdon Adult Community School Closes On A Note of Success

Huntingdon Community School wound up a very successful period of sessions, on Monday evening, when the last of the classes was held at Huntingdon High School.

The various classes assembled as usual from 7.30 until 9 p.m. and then the "students" gathered in the cafeteria where they viewed a display of the work done by the various classes on different projects — woodwork, painting, sewing and ceramics. These were all a credit to both teachers and students.

Mr. M. Melnyk presided as chairman for this part of the evening and offered thanks to all the people who helped and especially to those who had looked after organization of the school. He said he believed that everyone had enjoyed and benefited from the courses.

Mr. Philip Tinker on behalf of the students in the various classes presented gifts to the instructors as a token of appreciation for their time and effort. Mr. Raymond Rowat thanked

Executive Council Daughters of Isabella Chosen For 1959-60

Seventy-one Daughters of Isabella met in the parochial hall on October 27th, to select their new executive council. Miss Jeanne Senecal, deputy of the district, presided at the election. Mrs. Lucien Loiseleur and her assistants gave their reports in the nominating committee.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Regent, Mrs. Gesle L'Heureux; Vice-Regent, Mrs. Lucienne Montpetit; Financial Secretary, Rosina Provost; Treasurer, Yvette Daigle; Rec. Secretary, Gertrude Labrie; Chancellor, Rolande Dorais; Custodian, Lucienne LeCobvre; Monitor, Alberte Soucasse; Trustees 2 years, Therese Montpetit; Trustee 1 year, Estelle Balguy; Trustee 1 year, Bertha Menard; Scribe, Jacqueline McCallum; Pianist, Gilberte Bougie; Interior Guard, Beatrice Renaud; Exterior Guard, Marie-Jeanne Loiseleur; 1st Guide, Adrienne Leblanc; 2nd Guide, Germaine Leblanc; Banner Bearer, Eleta Hart.

Miss Senecal installed the new officers. She thanked all those coming out of office for their generous help. She also congratulated the newly elected officers. She was very impressed by the large attendance.

Monsignor David said some very appropriate words for the occasion. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Boys' Club To Be Officially Opened Tonight

The Boys' Club, a project of the Rotary Club, is to be officially opened this evening at 7 p.m. Mr. Nicholson of Tougas & Nicholson, Valleyfield, is to entertain the boys with a programme of magic. On Thursday evening the boys will be introduced to a programme of games. The Club is to be open on each Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 8.45 p.m.

Mr. E. A. White, who spends the summer months at Lee's Corners left a donation of $10. for the Club before returning to Montreal. This week a donation of $50. was received from Mr. John H. Molson. A number of other gifts of kind have already been received. Mr. Leslie Hayler, who gave instruction in wood-working at the Adult Education Classes during recent weeks at the High School, made a fine checker board and in due turn presented it to the Boys' Club. A large number of appropriate games have been made for the Boys' Club by Rotarians and friends. As far as we know games have been made by Messrs. H. A. D. Somerville, M.P.P., N. Bourgon, Maurice Melnyk, Fred Anderson, Nelson White, George Dixon, John Gallipeau, Thompson's Tobacco Store, Cecil Brown and Hector Provost.

Thanks are due Messrs. Cleyn and Tinker of Leach Textiles for their generous contribution of work they have done in the way of having alterations made with-in the Club and for many other contributions in the way of equipment. The Rotary Club has already spent $230. in acquiring Club equipment and games. The sign at the entrance of the Club was supplied by Messrs. Tougas & Nicholson of Valleyfield. Though the Club is well supplied with electric lights, some changes are to be made and in this respect, Mr. Hector Provost has promised to see to the responsibility of having the electric lighting alterations made. Mayor Paul LeFevre visited the Club on Monday and decided some of the tables were in need of paint, whereupon he told Alphonse Carisse he would gladly supply the enamel paint and Mr. Carisse promptly responded that he would have a painter apply the paint and have the various games well waxed. And so the work continues to be extended toward making the Boys' Club a recreation center that will prove beneficial to the town at large.

Interesting Panel Discussion Held At H. And S. Meeting

The Huntingdon Home and School Association meeting held at the High School, on Wednesday evening, was well attended and proved very interesting.

The business part of the meeting was short and was taken up by hearing reports from the Kindergarten and Cafeteria committees. These reports were very much the same as those which have already appeared in the last issue of The Gleaner.

The remainder of the evening was then given over to the panel discussion of the subject "The Curriculum, What It Is and Why". Taking part on the panel were Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Vice-Principal of Ormstown High School, Dr. Lawrence Patterson, Director of the School for Crippled Children and Mr. Niles Wisenthal, Institute of Education, Macdonald College.

Mr. Roland Greenbank, President of the Huntingdon Home and School Association, acted as Moderator. This discussion was most interesting as it dealt to some extent with the large number of students in our schools who fail to go on to the university level through various reasons. It was said that only about 3% reach and attend university out of the total attending schools today. It was felt that the curriculum presently in use was too much of a set thing. It was in fact set for those of the academic level and did not provide for those who were not in this category and who made up the majority of the school population. Mr. Wisenthal said he thought that more provision should be made for this latter group than is presently the case.

The question was asked of Dr. Patterson, did he think that school curriculum in Quebec was behind the times as compared with other parts of Canada and the world. Dr. Patterson wanted to know what times — was it the opinion that times did not change. He felt the curriculum was changing according to the times but perhaps it did not provide for the various levels of the students. Mrs. Morgan felt that emotional disturbances accounted for the fact that so many did not go on through high school to the universities. Mr. Wisenthal said he was presently making a study of this factor and he could not agree

It would appear from the discussion that what is needed are more vocational guidance teachers to segregate the various students into the channels they are best suited for. This does not mean that they would be chosen for a particular trade, but that they would be placed in groups where they could learn the type of education which is most suited to their various abilities. In this way they would secure more education within their own interests and thus be more interested in what they were doing and learning and there would be fewer drop-outs.

Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Formerly Of Rockburn, Honored By Friends Friday Evening

A social gathering which brought many old friends together took place Friday evening, in the Rockburn Hall, when guests from Malone, N.Y., Huntingdon, Atholstan and Franklin assembled to honor Mrs. W. G. Gibson, who has been a life long resident of this community, coming here as a bride in 1897. The Hall was very nicely decorated for the occasion, and after a brief and cordial time of social meeting, and community singing, Mr. J. Anderson, Student Minister, very graciously escorted Mrs. Gibson to the front, and after a few complimentary remarks presented her with a very comfortable upholstered chair, beautiful hassock, a purse containing a gift of money, gloves and a lovely plant (cyclamen) in full bloom. A gift of a beautiful brooch and handkerchief was sent in by Mrs. Norman Wilson. These gifts were totally unexpected, but Mrs. Gibson tried to express her thanks and appreciation of the kindness shown her at this time.

Following the presentation a short program was rendered. Songs were sung by Mrs. Currie, Miss Audrey Arnold, Mr. Arden Douglas, Mr. P. McGowan and Mr. J. Anderson, which were enjoyed by all. Delicious refreshments were then served by the Ladies, and after this, all joined hands forming a large circle and the singing of "Old Lang Syne" brought a very happy evening to a close.

Diary Of A Vagabond

(by DOROTHY BARKER)

I have just discovered that a vagabond is constantly faced with a hazard. It is the kind friend who comes to the station to bid one "bon voyage" and plumps into one's arms a bundle of paper-back novels. I must be some sort of an individualist, for I have seldom found that my literary taste agrees with the kind thoughts of my friends.

For almost a complete day recently, I lived my own "who done it" style. Trying to dispose of the evidence proved an emotional experience that is funny now to look back on, but was, I considered at the time, a serious situation.

As the train pulled out for Niagara Falls, where I looked forward to spending a delightfully relaxed week-end, I started leafing through one of the three volumes resting on the coach seat beside me. My hair began to curl in tight little kinks and my stomach do a flop-over as I hurriedly closed the cover of "A Brave New World" and tucked it quickly under my fanny. I didn't want my fellow passengers to see the title.

This novel was only mildly sexy compared to my friend's second choice for my entertainment. My utter disgust, almost physical, was aroused when my eyes met the pornographic rot in the sale of "Lady Chatterly's Lover". I only hope that the sweet little person who handed it to me in the station at Toronto, will never read this story. She would blush for her choice. Knowing her as I do, I am sure she thought she had purchased a chaste mid-Victorian novel with which her contemporary could while away a few hours.

I slammed the unexpurgated edition shut with a bang. Again I worried about what my fellow travelers would think of me if they got a glimpse of my reading matter. Would they think I was a frustrated female who indulged in such literature for the kicks? This was the hottest stuff I had ever handled. How could I get rid of it? It should be burned, I reasoned, but incinerators are a scarce commodity on passenger trains.

I edged my way along the aisle to the door which said "Women" with the horrible books clutched tightly to my bosom. I thought I might flush them away in the little corner room. They were left by leaf I had only gotten as far as page 101 of "The Brave New World" when I realized that this might prove a hardship on the rest of the lady passengers, if we ran out of the supply of water before our journey's end.

I chose another method of disposal. I wrapped the copies in two towels and stuffed them in the wire basket provided by the railroad for soiled linen. Then I began to worry that they might not be found and could gum up the works of the C.N.R.'s laundry facilities. I retrieved them and with a weeping gait, returned to my seat.

I could pack them in my week-end case and dispose of them when I reached my destination, I reasoned.

After registering at my hotel, I took a brisk walk along the gorge. Soon I glanced furtively first right, then left, before I tossed a well tied newspaper parcel over the barrier. I hurried away, but not soon enough.

"Hey lady, is this your parcel? You almost lost it in the drink," said a teenage voice behind me.

There was only one answer to satisfactory disposal. I decided. I boarded the Maid of the Mist in a dripping oil slicker, pulled the fisherman's hat down over my eyes, stood by the boat's rail in evil anticipation of the murder of Lady Chatterly's Lover and the end of a Brave New

About Trying Experiments

The history of the world, like the story of individuals, is the record of experiments. At times, beneficial advances were made; at others, as is usual in experimentation, rather ghastly mistakes were the outcome. But without experiment there would have been no advance at all from the first-man stage of human development.

Experimentation is not so widely written about as are imagination, analysis and creativity.

What do these words mean? You imagine a thing when you see it in your mind's eye; you analyze a thing when you take it apart to see of what it is made; you invent a thing when you put together bits and pieces according to lessons learned in your analysis so as to come close to what you imagined. Experimentation is to try a thing out to see if it will work.

Truth about any phenomenon, from the cause of a common cold to the reason for a slump on the stock market, can be established only by experimental means. Men of science and business learn every day from experimentation. By trying things out, they constantly correct their ideas, revise their theories, improve their methods, and so come nearer and nearer to what is best.

We may go further. Experimentation is more than a means to verify the results of inventive processes. An experiment can be the stone cast into the pool, deliberately to start ripples.

Speculation Versus Experiment

Contrast the idea of windy speculation with the idea of finding out by experimentation. In the first, we exhaust our ideas in talk; in the second we assemble our ideas and put them to work. Using our knowledge of things as they are, we apply thought to their improvement.

Claude Bernard, whose book "An Introduction to the Study of Experimental Medicine" has been in print for nearly a century and is still a text-book, found more dominating facts about man in twenty years than all the other physiologists in the world.

The essence of Bernard's belief is this: by simply noting facts of piling up observations, we shall be none the wiser. We must reason about what we have observed, compare the facts, judge them by other facts used as controls, and put the outcome to the test by experiment. That is the only way to obtain proof of one's beliefs.

Nothing is easier than to design on paper and put together a contraption made up of wheels, magnets, ratchets and pulleys, but only turning on the power will prove whether it will work and accomplish what is wanted of it.

What one needs is to have an idea and to conduct a hypothesis and then test it.

In practical work in office, factory or the multitudinous facets of everyday living, we may trace our development of something new in this way: we sense a problem and develop a desire to solve it; we gather accurate facts; we mull over our data, incubating an idea; we reach the moment of illumination, when a possible solution comes to us; we test the proposed solution.

Scope of Experimentation

Experimentation is not confined to development of glamorous new gadgets, or the uncovering of laws in physics and chemistry. It may be applied effectively in business, for example to reduce waste.

Suppose a business man were to say to himself: any work that does not add value to material, does not give or receive essential information, is reducible waste.

He will observe, collect facts, analyze and write down what he finds. He will choose a possibly rewarding spot at which to start, and prepare a hypothesis about what would happen if he did so and so. Then he will try out his plan, testing every step.

In any job, a person can show himself conscious of methods improvement by asking repeatedly: "How can I do the job more quickly or more easily?"

If top management is alert to the possibility of advancement, it will give supervisors freedom to fail, provided the experiment shows promise of betterment.

Here are some points by which to check the probable value of a change: will it increase production, improve quality, add safety, prevent waste, provide better working conditions, reduce cost or eliminate unnecessary work? The tests given the new system or machine will show whether it is sound, workable and practicable, and whether it has advantages which outweigh its disadvantages.

There is yet another factor to be considered: the human element. Before embarking upon an experiment involving human beings—as in rearranging a factory, redistributing work in an office, or introducing new methods—write down the possible effect the change will have in the life of everyone concerned with it. Take into account the probable reactions, good and bad. You may find that the success of the experiment technically would be the ruin of more valuable things.

Challenge the Obvious

Any person of spirit will find it thrilling to challenge the obvious, to question the accepted way of doing things, and to experiment with new ways. You have a "hunch"; you think up alternatives; you dream up ways and devices by which to test your guesses—as Leonardo da Vinci did when he pierced a small hole in a window blind and saw an image of the outside world reproduced in miniature on the wall of his room, thus foreshadowing photography.

Great music is the final result of inspiration following by rewriting and trying again. Great art is preserved to us because men made experiments with drying oils. Poets reached immortality by experimenting with verse form. The columns raised by the Greeks, and still acknowledged as perfect architectural examples, were the result of experiment which widened them in the centre of eliminate the illusion of narrowness.

Experiment is not confined to universities and industrial laboratories. Every person in Canada can be a research worker, experimenting so as to find better ways of doing things. Robert

Like The Iceberg

It would seem incredible that there could be 151 taxes hidden in the price of a loaf of bread, but that is an authoritative count recently made in the United States. And, since Canada's tax collectors are no less enterprising than American tax collectors, it seems probable that the total would apply here as well.

The information is taken from an editorial in the Wall Street Journal: "The Tax Foundation informs us that - bread - reflecting the taxes on the land it's grown, the seed that's sown, the machinery that plows and harvests and mills the wheat, the fuel, the transportation, the baker, the wrapper and so on - contains 151 hidden taxes. And bread with added vitamins contains also added taxes."

The same source reports 116 taxes hidden in the price of a man's suit, 600 taxes hidden in the price of a house, and even 100 taxes hidden in the price of an egg. Obviously, the tax load is like the iceberg: only a fraction of it shows.

The taxes that are most apparent to Canadians are, of course, the personal income taxes paid to the federal government, and the property taxes paid to the local municipal government. This year, the former will total about $1.5 billion, the latter about $1 billion, or about $2.5 billion in all.

No one would argue that $2.5 billion is not a lot of money, and its payment will no doubt be accompanied by lamentations and suitable cries of distress. But that is only the beginning. Total government spending in Canada this year will exceed $10 billion. For every dollar knowingly paid, three dollars are paid unknowingly.

In truth, the tax burden is like the iceberg.

World. Overboard the two paper backs zoomed as the little vessel chugged under the falls.

"That's too bad, m'am, you'll never see that article again. Hope it wasn't valuable," said a sympathetic fellow tourist as we watched the gruesome evidence sink to the bottom of the Niagara River.

Obituaries

The Late Kenneth Stevenson
 On the afternoon of November 3rd, the community was shocked to learn of the tragic accident which caused the untimely death of Kenneth Stevenson.

Kenneth Stevenson

Born at Franklin Centre in May, 1928, he spent his childhood there, later moving to Huntingdon, where he was employed by David Rennie. Kenneth was the only son of Mrs. Stevenson and the late Charles Stevenson.

In October 1949, he was united in marriage to Lola Millicent Anderson. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife Lola, four children, Leslie, Murray, Audrey and Merle. His mother, Mrs. C. Stevenson of Ormstown, four sisters, Viola (Mrs. Kenneth Sutton), Louella (Mrs. W. R. Boyd), Hazel (Mrs. Clarence Forrester), Dorothy (Mrs. Morris Henderson), a number of nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

Funeral was from the J. M. Sharpe Funeral Home to Zion United Church of which he was a member. Rev. J. A. Barnes officiated. Interment at Bethel Cemetery.

Flowerbearers were Gordon Watson, Robert Hutchin, Norman Stacey, Hubert Sherry, George Erskine and Mederic Vaupcourt. Flowerbearers were Russell Brooks, Murray Rennie, Kenneth Erskine and Ross Ovans. Floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

The Late Mrs. Bertha Channel
 On Friday, November 13th, Mrs. Bertha Channel passed away at the home of her mother, Mrs. Alfred Dorais, of Huntingdon, at the age of 51 years. Mrs. Channel will be remembered by patrons of the Huntingdon Theatre, as the ticket taker for several years.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her mother; two sisters: Elizabeth (Mrs. G. Conley), Laura (Mrs. P. Peeny); a brother, Ernest Dorais of Valleyfield and many nephews and nieces.

Dedication of Memorials
 Last Sunday, offering plates were dedicated at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, as memorials to former members of the church. Miss Elsie MacFarlane of Montreal was donor of two plates in memory of Miss Janet A. Robb. Mr. Alex Robb and Mr. Lionel Robb were donors of two plates in memory of Miss Christina Robb. Dr. A. A. White received the memorials in behalf of the congregation. The Minister offered the prayer of Dedication.

George Rennie, Guelph, Ont., and son Allan of Simcoe, Ont., have returned home, after having been called here by the death of his mother, also his nephew.
 Messrs. David Booth and Calvin Wright attended a demonstration at Daie Estate, Montreal, on Monday, which they thoroughly enjoyed. Numerous beautiful floral arrangements were displayed including a complete assortment of Christmas decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. David Booth spent the week-end in Shelburne, Vt., where they were guests of the O'Neil family.

The remains rested at the Montpetit Funeral Parlor, Huntingdon, and the funeral took place at St. Joseph's Church on Monday, November 16th with interment in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The community joins in expressions of sympathy to the members of the family.

Laying Hens Must Have Light
 In order to keep laying hens at the peak of their production especially during winter months it is absolutely essential to use artificial lighting. At all times of the year the flock must be kept active either by sunlight or by artificial light for fourteen hours a day. Mr. Roger Patement, poultry instructor of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, recommends the use of one 100-watt bulb for every hundred laying birds. Each bulb must be provided with a reflector and care must be taken to arrange the lighting so that the feed-hoppers and perches are well lit.

Generally speaking, it is better to use artificial lighting in the morning than in the evening. Continuous illumination throughout the night is not normally advisable. However, it does pay to use permanent illumination on a flock which is in the last two months of a laying period or during warm summer weather.

In order to get the best results, electric light bulbs and reflectors should always be kept clean. Artificial lighting is not just an extra detail of good poultry management; it is a necessary means of ensuring profitable egg-production.

Mixed Farm Opinion On Deficiency Payments

Deficiency payments recently announced by the federal government to apply to hogs and eggs are getting a mixed reception from farmers. Quebec Farm Forums are divided on the issue, two out of three groups favouring the deficiency payment type of price support and one third being vehemently opposed.

Under the deficiency payment scheme the government agrees to pay the difference between a guaranteed price and a national average price calculated over a period of one year. Payment is made directly to producers at the end of the year and is based on quantity sold and the difference between the guaranteed price and the national average price. Thus the producer receives a supplementary payment based on the national average price and not on his actual price. The government has imposed a limit on the amount of product per producer which it will subsidize in the case of hogs and eggs.

Quebec Forums are not sure they should cut back production. The surpluses, they say, are not caused by family farmers but by large, packer and feeder financed units and by in-and-outers. They believe small farmers will survive low prices but that these other producers will be forced out eventually.

Quotes

Farmers that are equipped to produce commodities such as hogs and eggs should stay in the business and there would then be a steady supply of produce. It is the in-and-outer that spoils the markets and causes fluctuations, especially in the hog business. La chute Road Forum—Argenteuil Co. The way the Deficiency Payments read, we think it will automatically cut production when the farmer can only collect for a limited amount of his produce—no matter how he raises. Trout River Forum—Huntingdon Co. Farmers should cut production, but not go out of production entirely. Most of the surpluses have come about because of big feed companies speculating on hogs and eggs. Frost Village Forum—Shefford Co.

ALMA, Que. (CP) — Mayor P. Levesque said 85 new fire alarm boxes will be installed on Alma's 37 miles of streets, making a total of 110 and helping reduce fire insurance rates.

Every Man's Dream

I dreamed I had a million dollars and never need work again. I thought of all the things I could do with that million "bucks." I would buy a finer house and the sportiest of automobiles. I would buy my wife everything she wanted! I was in clover!

In my dream, I dressed and went down to breakfast. But there wasn't any. My wife was in tears—no food had been delivered—not even a bottle of milk nor the morning newspaper. She tried to phone the grocer but the line was dead.

I went outside—the street was deserted—not a bus or automobile in sight. I walked on and on. Nothing was moving. A few people appeared—and I began to ask questions.

"What has happened? Where can I buy food?"

Then I got a jolt. Someone said

"Don't you know? Everybody now has a million dollars and nobody has to work."

At first I was stunned. But it was no joke—it was really true. Everybody had a million dollars and was convinced that, for him, work was over.

Then it dawned on me, as never before, that each of us is dependent upon all the rest—that to a small extent, even my labour has a place in the total welfare of mankind.

Then I awoke. My dream was over. The sun was shining—the birds singing—my wife was rattling the breakfast dishes.

I looked out the window and saw the PIONEER RA chain saw is good... BUT the all-new PIONEER 600 is BETTER

Brilliant Pioneer engineering has produced a better saw for the professional woodsman. Faster cutting than the RA—lighter than the RA... that's the kind of saw you need if you make your living with a chain saw.

About Trying Experiments

P. Crawford remarked in The Techniques of Creative Thinking: "The tragedy of life is not lack of brain power or education but doing so, little with what we have."

The incandescent lamp was not the invention of a lamp-maker, but of a former telegraph worker who continued his experiments even after the learned men of his time quoted two fundamental laws of physics to prove that he couldn't succeed. The first ground handful of nitre, sulphur and charcoal drove a monk's pestle through the ceiling—Roger Bacon had found gunpowder. His motto was: "Take nothing for granted; use your own eyes and test all new theories with your own hands."

How to Start

One way to start is by prodding your imagination. Sit down with a pencil and a blank sheet of paper and think of experiments you can make: candle-wax instead of "elbow grease" on that sticky window; a loose leaf book of numbered form letters so that you answer routine mail by writing a figure in the corner, a figure which your secretary translates into a letter ready for your signature; a jig that will eliminate time-consuming measurements on the production line. Pencils, set in motion by imagination, can act as crowbars in moving our minds.

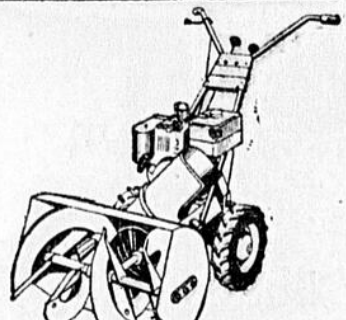

Note the classic simplicity of this formula. You become aware that there is something that may be done, some problem to solve, some improvement to be made. You make a proposal to yourself of some solution; you clarify the problem and the solution as far as you can; you decide upon a plan of action; you try out your plan.

In the ordinary course of life you will not wish to try an experiment until you feel the need for a change. Nevertheless, there are occasions when it is advantageous to experiment for the sake of experiment. This is so for two reasons: you may find that a change in detail or form or method or location will improve what you have accepted as being satisfactory; and you will benefit by the mental shaking up that experimentation gives you.

You take a walk, as it were, on the borders of your business, and pursue what happens to present itself to your attention. Ideas may show themselves when you are looking for them, but they are just as likely to be seen out of the corner of your eye when you are looking at something else.

This is where the widely-read or widely-experienced person has the advantage over those with less broad knowledge; he has a background of material to which to relate new thoughts. This background comes from

Valleyfield

VALLEYFIELD. — The Valleyfield Ladies Curling Club opened the season on Tuesday afternoon, November 10th, with a dessert "Bridge". This was held in the Moco Club. There was a splendid affair: twenty-one tables in all and a prize for each table.

The tea table as usual was very attractive with the yellow cloth, a centerpiece of variegated mums, in a silver bowl and the silver services belonging to the club.

Presiding over the tea table were Mrs. O. E. Giza and Mrs. S. Jones pouring tea and Mrs. J. McFarlane pouring coffee.

Mrs. W. F. Colquhoun, the president, made a few remarks and welcomed any new members who wished to curl and hoped they would have a successful year. Mrs. S. Angell and Mrs. Frank Smith won the door prizes donated by Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Davis.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Stewart, on Thursday afternoon, November 12th, with Mrs. Thos. Crook presiding. The order of service was taken from the Missionary Monthly with different members reading the prayers.

It was decided to send some money to our Prayer Partner, Jessie Weir, for Xmas, who is a missionary in the Canadian West.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Refreshments were served. The hostesses, Mrs. Arthur Montpetit and Mrs. Louis Abram.

Mr. William Shannon, Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of the I.O.O.F., Quebec, made official visits last week to Sherbrooke, Danville, Inverness, Theford Mines and a district meeting at Windsor, Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris spent Friday and Saturday in Lennoxville, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perry.

Mr. Perry is principal supervisor of Lennoxville High Schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spencer and family of Lachine were Sunday visitors at the homes of Mrs. J. A. Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris.

The Ladies Guild of St. Mark's Anglican Church held their Annual Bazaar on Friday afternoon. They had a good turnout and it was very successful. Mrs. Imrie, the president of the Guild, and Mrs. Hall, the rector's wife, received at the door.

Mrs. D. McEachern of London, Ont., has been visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McEachern.

observation, but we must guard against the fallacy of thinking that to observe is enough. An observer gathers data as nature and environment offer them; an experimenter applies investigation so as to vary the outcome or to make something new of it.

Nevertheless, observation is a vital step in experimentation. Dr. Alexander Fleming set aside a culture of bacteria one day, and observed when he examined it hours later that it was spoiled. The culture grew on only half the plate; the other half was spotted with a blue-green mold. He wrote in his note-book: "I was sufficiently interested in the anti-bacterial substance produced by the mold to pursue the subject," and so he discovered penicillin.

Get the Facts Straight
In planning and carrying out an experiment of any sort you must never lose sight of the facts. From the first tentative step toward an objective until the final test of validity, experimentation deals with facts. If a fact is ignored or if it is erroneous the whole structure will crumble.

The quantity of facts needed will vary. Edward Hodnett II (Continued on page 4B)

LAYS EGG, DIES
TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — A hen on a farm laid an egg that measured 8 1/2 inches around the middle. But the effort proved too much and the hen died shortly afterwards.

SET BACK CLOCKS
SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Campers at a labor union's summer camp at nearby Lake Richard set their watches back two hours. Camp director Ken Gowie said the "day-light losing time" system was adopted so campfires could be held in the dark.

Nitro

Badminton
NITRO. — The C.A.L. Annual Invitation Tournament will be held on November 21st. There will be Class "A" and Class "B" mixed doubles played. Registration for both classes is to be at C.A.L. Recreation Hall. Registration will commence at 11:00 A.M. until 12:45 p.m. Anyone registering after this time will not be allowed to play. Starting time is 1:00 p.m. sharp. Dinner and dance will be held at the C.A.L. Staff House.

Mr. Bruce Clarke and Ted Kennedy were successful in their hunting two week-ends past. Mr. Kennedy shot a good sized buck which will be enjoyed by both families this winter.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Bessie Gould on the death of her husband, Mr. Charles Clayton Gould, 62, on November 3rd, 1959. The Goods came to Nitro in 1939 when Mr. Gould worked for the McLean Construction, transferring later to Defense Industries Limited and then to Canadian Arsenals Limited.

Everyone will be happy to know that Barry Brown is home from the hospital after his bout of pneumonia. He is recovering satisfactorily.

Mrs. B. F. Clarke attended the Auction Sale of the Post Office Department which was held this year at Montreal and found it an enjoyable experience.

Mr. Gaston Cyr, of Montreal, recently visited his brother, Mr. Armand Cyr and Mrs. Cyr.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lowden spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Steele.

A bridge club composed of Mrs. J. Halliday, Ruth Paige, Gertrude Campbell, and Muriel Haines spent last week-end at Burlington, Vt. They were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Collins, Cowansville, P.Q. A very enjoyable time was reported by all and they hope to make this an annual affair.

The regular meeting of the Local Association of Girl Guides and Brownies was held on Wednesday evening at the church. It was with regret that they accepted the resignation of Mrs. Johnson, the Guide Leader, who is moving from the community.

Mrs. Barbara Moore spent Wednesday evening in Montreal where she attended a Scottish concert sponsored by the White Heather Society, and held at Victoria Hall, Westmount. Mr. Kenneth MacKellar, Scottish tenor, who was the star of this performance will be appearing on the Ed. Sullivan show on Sunday, January 24th, the day before Robert Burns' Day. Mrs. Moore was accompanied by her son William, and daughter-in-law, Ann.

Mrs. H. S. Dando, Mrs. W. G. Thompson, and Mrs. B. F. Clarke attended the opening of the Ladies Curling at Valleyfield, on November 12th.

Mrs. Marj. Halliday and Mrs. Ruth Paige spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. B. Campbell, Valleyfield, where they enjoyed a game of bridge.

The long-awaited traffic lights at Nitro began to function on November 12th. We are hoping for good results from this improvement.

Many residents of Nitro were pleased to see and hear Col. F. Clarke, father of Mr. B. F. Clarke, when he was interviewed on Cornwall Television, Channel 8. Col. Clarke was speaking about the founding of the Legion, how it obtained its charter, etc.

The Marathon Bridge, sponsored by the Willing Workers, has been organized again for another season under the sponsorship of Mrs. Margaret MacLean. The following eight couples are playing: Marianne and Keith McMullan, Grace and James Clandinian, Marion and Jack Steeves, Flo and Gerry Thomas, Verna and Bill Demery, Sandra and John Rider, Margaret and Don MacLean, and Ethel and Howard Coleman. Results of the scores will be published from time to time.

Mrs. D. Collins and daughter Elizabeth of Cowansville, P.Q., were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Paige.

The Willing Workers held their regular meeting on Thursday, November 12th, at the Church, with eight members in attendance. In addition to the routine business, it was agreed to purchase a pulpit chair and we are hoping this will be installed before the Christmas services.

A reminder that the Boy Scouts Association will be holding a Whist Party on Friday evening, December 4th, 1959 at C.A.L. Recreation Hall.

Much Road Work Carried Out In Huntingdon County

Much may be said for the roads and highways throughout the County of Huntingdon, for by this time we are able to travel on some very good roads in this town and country. There has been a great improvement in the roads over the past few years and gradually as the appropriations are made more and more of our roads are receiving attention. Route 52 in particular from Huntingdon to Herdman is a much improved route. It is not quite completed, but it can be seen what it will be like when it is. Another stretch of road is that along the Ridge to New Erin and the new lead-off from it to Ste. Barbe. When this is completed, it will provide a short route between Huntingdon and Valleyfield. Still another improvement is on Route 3 along the Lake Shore to St. Anicet. Slowly, but surely the roads in our area are being rebuilt and improved and we shall have something of which to be proud in the not too distant future. Much of the work done has been through Mr. H. A. D. Somerville, our local M.P.P. and he is to be congratulated on his efforts in this direction.

Following is a list of the road work done in Huntingdon County during the past season.

About Trying

 Illustrates this neatly in The Art of Problem Solving where he says that if you were buying rope for a clothes-line you might be content to examine ten samples, but if you were buying rope for parachutes you would likely wish to test hundreds of pieces to judge their strength.

The minute precision of the facts needed will also differ. If you are experimenting with concrete it is enough to know that one part cement, two parts sand and three parts gravel will provide concrete with such and such qualities. If you are working with bacteria you will need to collect your facts with an instrument like that used in the Institute of Biology at the University of Montreal; it can measure to a one-hundred-thousandth of a degree of temperature.

Facts are neither great nor small in themselves, but relatively so. The proportions of concrete are just as important in the foundation of a building as is the temperature of bacteria in the research laboratory.

Having collected the facts with which to start experimenting, we must clarify them, throw them into some sort of order, and isolate the essentials. The logic of experiment consists in the weighing of probabilities, discarding details judged to be irrelevant, ascertaining the general rules that govern cause and effect in what we are doing, and trying out our hypothesis by controlled tests.

What is a hypothesis? It can be thought of an informed guess. We use the knowledge we already have to make a preliminary conjecture about what will happen if we take another step.

Even when an experiment shows our hypothesis to be mistaken, we have gained something. The alchemists founded chemistry by pursuing theories that turned out to be false. Modern scientists, says Dr. Hans Selye, look upon any hypothesis as expendable; it is a launching platform for testing ideas. He summed it up in this way in an article in Maclean's magazine in mid-August: "No count has ever been made, but it is quite certain that for every series of experiments that ends in a 'useful' result like insulin, some thousands of series are completed that are apparently useless."

Your fruitless experiment has not been useless. It has eliminated one possible way of doing something, reducing the confusion of choices; and truth is more easily evolved from error than from confusion.

Nevertheless, the man who embarks upon something new must school himself to face unpleasant facts: the fact that a cherished idea turns out to be unsound, that the wrong road has been taken and must be retraced. He must be skeptical, questioning his results rigorously if he is to be certain, at the end, that he has a true solution and the best product.

Keeping Records
 What are the sins marked in red in the experimenter's rule books? To be dishonest or careless in setting up the elements of the experiment; to be neglectful in keeping a record of everything done; to fail to take into account every small part of the ingredients and every action of the apparatus. Without records, successes cannot be repeated and failures have taught no lesson.

There is a bonus value in keeping complete records: the mere act of putting down on paper the what, where, when, why and how of any piece of work will, of itself, generate ideas of how the work can be done in an improved manner.

Notes help us to avoid the fallacy of attributing effects to wrong causes. They enable us to see that not everything that follows something is caused by it. They give us the data from which to find whether there is a third influence, not taken into account in our experiment, which is influencing the result.

Trying New Ways
 There are several lines to follow in trying to improve a product, a service or a system. Originality may be, but is not always a matter of impulse or intuition. Most of us can find it if we seek it diligently, and no one can ever become a genius except by stepping out, by experimenting. Intuition solves only problems about which we already knew a lot.

One way to hasten the development of something new is to experiment with our material in various combinations. The composer of music works with combinations of notes, moving them around on the scale into pleasing harmonies, trying them out on the keyboard of his piano; the inventor works with combinations of substances and mechanisms; the office manager works with combinations of people and records and machines, tuning up his organization by trying this and that change of duty or partnership of workers.

Another way is by variation, by putting the shoe on the other foot. We ask ourselves what would happen if we placed the files in the centre of the office instead of along the wall; if we curved this assembly line instead of having it straight; if we changed the colour of the package in which we sell our goods.

We can vary things so as to make them bigger or smaller, heavier or lighter, thicker or thinner. In its new form the article may serve its purpose more efficiently or more cheaply, or it may adapt itself to an altogether different purpose.

Experiment of this sort is, in its way, deliberate creativeness. It demands that we have expectant, supple and receptive minds; that we set goals and get going toward them. The experimental mind, which is a mind that retains its youth, has a tendency to move of itself instead of waiting at the dock for a tug.

Ballast exists everywhere: all the pebbles of the harbour, all the sand on the beach will serve for it; but men to steer the ship on a voyage of exploration are rare. The ability to originate is typical of the executive-minded man. A clerk keeps records; the executive grounds himself on the clerk's collected facts; he goes on to imagine new combinations of facts, and he experiments in search of new results. He sails into new territory.

Initiative
 Experiment quite often entails nothing more or less than initiative — "Let's try it now". The inner driving force of imagination and conception should not be kept waiting for a more favourable time or for a flash inspiration. That is how great ideas are lost.

The way to progress is by cultivating qualities of venture-ness. A person may score 100% in a written examination and yet make nothing of his life because he fears to apply what knowledge he has in an experimental way.

Initiative requires the courage to face the consequences of trying new things. Horatio Hornblower says in one of C. S. Forester's stories: "I'd rather be in trouble for having done something than for not having done anything." In its highest form this courage displays itself in personal experiment by medical research workers; like the German doctor who inoculated himself with a fungus he suspected of causing ringworm; the British doctor who gave himself malaria to prove that a mosquito, not climate, spreads the disease; and the Scottish doctor, James Young Simpson, sniffing chloroform to test its effects as an anaesthetic.

Another quality needed is persistence, or stick-to-it-iveness. One may have the desire and the ability to create, to change beneficially, but there are difficulties galore in doing any new thing. Experimentation is not a slot machine into which you slip a coin and get the answer on a printed card.

There would never have been an improvement of any kind at any time if the person with a new idea had been stopped by the first "It can't be done" or "It won't work."

To experiment you must determine to work creatively despite frustrations, rebuffs and failures. You have to challenge sacred cows. To experiment is to get lost and err, but nonetheless to acquire knowledge. You have to learn to fail intelligently, making use of errors to find certainty.

After failing in 700 experiments Edison said "Now we know 700 things that won't work". The one time we must not fail is the last time we try.

Second-hand Materials
 The person with an urge to improve things is often like the person arriving late at a department store sale: he has to take goods which others have seen and not taken. Leonardo da Vinci wrote in his note-book: "The men who have come before me have taken for their own all useful and necessary themes."

Picking up their leavings, he experimented with the elements, mechanics, flying machines, art, tanks, explosives, and a machine to sharpen 40,000 needles per hour, probably the first mass-production machine in history.

Time and again throughout the advance of science and commerce the consequence of following up or not following up the work of others has been very great. Originality does not consist merely in thinking of some basic principle first, but in seeing some opportunity to apply it at a point in time when it can be pursued with profit.

We should not hesitate to start from where other people left off, deas grow and pass from mind to mind. The engineering and technology of the present are the accumulated heritage of the past, the combined experiments of hundreds of generations. George Stephenson put this with clarity and modesty when he said, at the height of his fame: "the steam locomotive was not the invention of any one man, but of a nation of mechanical engineers."

The experimenter will never rely upon chance. "Chance" is a word we invented to express the manipulation of means. He will reach for the stars, and though he may not get one he will enjoy trying.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad. in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men".

Teen-Age Job Prospects Dim

Of the 231,000 Canadians last reported out of a job and looking for work, one in every four was a teen-ager.

The rate of unemployment among Canadians 14-19 years of age was 26%, compared with a rate for the whole labor force of 3.4%.

It's small wonder that the Minister of Labor has been making speeches urging teachers and parents to persuade young Canadians to stay in school.

It's obviously tough for the teen-ager to get a foot-hold in the job market, and lack of education (as the minister points out) makes it even tougher.

But there are three reasons why urging teen-agers to stay in school isn't likely to provide an answer to this job problem.

First, the teen-agers are already staying in school much longer and in greater numbers than they were 10 years ago.

Since the fall of 1949 the late-teen population has increased by 21% but the teen-age labor force has increased only 4.2% and the school population 14 years of age and over has increased 44.9%.

Second, the high schools are beginning to be much choosier about the type of teen-ager they will allow to remain in school.

If he can't handle the program that happens to be available, out he goes, as soon as it is legally possible — and in some provinces school-leaving age is 14.

School authorities argue that a student who can't or won't do his school-work properly is better off getting out getting a job.

Employers and placement officers say that they can't fit a half-baked untrained youngster into an economy which uses less unskilled labor all the time.

Either way, the teen-ager is out of luck.

Any tendency on the part of the citizen or tax-payer to say "serves him right" is restrained by the suspicion that not all high school courses make sense in today's world and by the reflection that, one way or another, the misfit teen-ager is apt to remain a public problem unless he is helped to find his feet.

Third, the fact that job opportunities and high schools may exist at a great distance from one another in this country creates special problems.

Some of the students who leave high school too early in, say, rural Manitoba, may wind up in Toronto looking for work.

Is it realistic to expect Gypsumville, Man., to sustain a high school program that will equip graduates for work in Hamilton?

This isn't an academic question.

Henrysburg

HENRYSBURG — On Saturday evening, November 14, Knowlton High School Band presented a band concert in Henrysburg, Ont.

Since their beginning in 1951, they have travelled over 8,000 miles giving concerts in such centres as Sherbrooke, Quebec City, Burlington, and have recently completed a tour of the Gaspe and Northern New Brunswick.

The band is composed of approximately forty students from Grades 5-11. Band director is Mr. Harry Long, who has directed the band since its beginning.

A very interesting program was presented by the band and much enjoyed.

Mr. Harry Long, musical director, said they would play some music for the Americans seeing we were so near to the border, so the band played "On Parade" and "Stars and Stripes" before closing with "O Canada" and "God Save The Queen."

Mr. Matheson, principal of Hemmingford High School, thanked Mr. Harry Long and his band for the splendid concert. He also thanked those who had taken part in giving their homes and hospitality to the forty musicians who stayed over night.

Mr. Lewis Davidson who has been working at La Prairie Brickyard for the past eleven years retired on November 5th with an unbroken record attendance at work. He was presented with a portable radio and was told he was to feel free to come into the brickyard any time. Lewis has no definite plans but expects to spend some time travelling and visiting friends in New York City, Henrysburg, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cookman and Mrs. Thomas Cheek attended the christening of the former's granddaughter, Tami Ann, on Sunday, November 15, at the Champlain Presbyterian Church in Champlain, N.Y. Tami Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Valach.

Miss Louise Cockerline was admitted to the Montreal General Hospital on Friday. Friends and neighbours wish her a speedy recovery.

are spending some holidays with Mrs. Dryer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Rankin.

Miss Helen Christian of Montreal, enjoyed a week-end visit with Mrs. Margaret Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Rankin and Miss Lillian Rankin accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown of Vaudeuil on a motor trip to the Royal Winter Agricultural Fair in Toronto, where they spent several days.

Mr. David Driscoll of Pointe-Claire, Que., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Sparrow.

Howick

HOWICK — The Sunshine Mission Band of Howick United Church held a meeting on Saturday, Nov. 14th, at 2 o'clock in the Church hall. About forty-five children enjoyed the film "Rudi Comes to Canada". It was the story of a little German boy who came to Canada and found many friends through the Sunday School and Church. Mrs. C. R. Sutherland was present and told the children a story on "Peace". Following this they worked on stuffed dolls, scrap books, Christmas favors, animal cut-outs and filled several Christmas stockings to be sent to needy families in Montreal. Hot chocolate and cookies were enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Curling News — On Saturday afternoon, both rinks were used by lady curlers, for the first game of the season. Several new members from the ranks of the newly weds were playing. All women, young or old, are welcome at the club as social or active members, especially newcomers, who wish to have fun, exercise and become acquainted with the folk in the community. Tea was served, and Mrs. Mabel Glasgow, President, welcomed everyone and hoped for a good season.

The Brown (or Hospital) Bontspiel will be played between Nov. 16 and 25th. This event is between all the members of Aubrey-Riverfield and Howick.

United Church Activities

The Explorer Group of Huntingdon United Church held their regular meeting in the Church Hall, last Friday afternoon. The girls completed their "Exploration of the Church" and stars were presented to the members by their leaders in recognition of their work in the fall season. Plans are now being made for their annual visit to the sick and shut-in members of the church during the Christmas season.

The C.G.I.T. Group of Huntingdon United Church held their regular meeting in the Church Parlour last Friday afternoon. The fall program of worship, handwork, discussions and Christian study themes has met with an enthusiastic response and the girls are now making plans for their annual Christmas Vesper Service which they will conduct in the church on Sunday evening, December 13th.

The Junior Boy's Club of Huntingdon United Church met in the Church Hall, last Friday evening, with a very large attendance. Following a period of recreation the filmstrip "Ways of Worship" was shown and a discussion followed. The evening was brought to a close with refreshments being served by Tommy Quinnell, Richard Grant and Lorne McNaughton.

circles of colour. Walls and ceiling have been repainted. Those in charge have been busy putting everything in order, which the members appreciate.

The first game on the Whitehead Trophy was played on Monday afternoon. Valleyfield won with a total of 20 points against Howick 11.

Howick (5) — Mrs. McWhinnie, Mrs. Gourley, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. R. B. Ness.

Mrs. Richard Greene and daughter Kellie Lee, of Waterloo, Ont., spent a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jas. Tillotson and also visited the Misses Helen and Merle McCaig.

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Younie of St. Catharines, Ont., were guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Younie and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Younie, while spending a few days in the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradley and family visited his mother at the home of Mrs. Nellie Tolhurst and Mrs. Hazel Bradley.

A meeting of the Georgetown and Riverfield, Akita C.G.I.T. was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Craig on November 12th, with nineteen members present. The meeting was conducted in the usual manner by the president Norma Robertson, and our new leaders, Mrs. C. Craig and Mrs. T. Nugent.

Our project for this Christmas is repairing used toys for the needy children. We also decided to sell home-made candy at the Scotch Concert, which was held on the 14th of November. Thirty-five dollars and fifty cents was realized from the candy sale. Thanks are extended to the ladies of the congregation for their candy donations.

After the meeting was closed with Taps supper was served by the leaders.

hidden emotional problem buried deep in the mind has fought its way out into the open disguised as a physical illness. These illnesses are terribly real and have been soaring in Canada since the end of World War II. The biggest single cause of these strange ills is sexual maladjustment. Following close behind are financial insecurity, anger, fear, jealousy, pride. Many accidents are caused by psychomatic problems. The inability to relax produces many ills but if a person can be taught to let the happier side of his nature take over, he will be well once more.

The Older Man and Employment

THE Minister of Labor in the Federal Government, Mr. Michael Starr, is quite concerned over the problem of the older man and his finding employment. This is indeed a problem and has been that way for a number of years now. It used to be that older men were sought after for the higher paid executive positions because of their greater experience in their particular fields. In this fast pace age, the younger men are given preference because employers feel they have speed for the age. Even the age limit for this is cut down however and on reading advertisements for help wanted today, we find age limits of 35 years and occasionally 40 years.

A greater number of students obtaining higher education and specializing in various professions and trades, may account for more efficiency among the younger men. Such students aim at the higher paid positions because they feel they have been specially trained for them. However, despite all this, they do lack the practical experience which is just as necessary as the actual know-how. There are countless incidences of erring in judgment on the part of many of these young executives, due to less experience rather than knowledge of theory. However, this does not deter the employer from hiring these young people in place of the older and perhaps more stable man.

Pension schemes today are a deterrent to hiring a man who has gotten up in years as he cannot qualify for a pension if he is too far advanced in age. However, this should not be a drawback to the older man being employed. He is surely intelligent enough to know that he cannot come under a pension scheme unless he can qualify a prescribed number of years to obtain benefit. Such things have nothing to do with his ability to do a job and do it well. The pensionable age under most schemes runs to about age 65.

If a man can be employed to this age before being pensioned, does it mean that the firm is being charitable by keeping him on until he is able to retire. According to the present trend of say 40 years of age as the last year in which firms are employing an applicant, such applicant would have 25 years of usefulness before the age of retirement. Such would seem to indicate that none of the firms feel a man is too old at ages in between. This being so, why the discrimination of not hiring anyone who is in this 25 year period.

As we look at a large number of the men who hold high government posts today, they are in the "old-age" bracket, yet they seem to be doing a very good job. Many of them did not reach these positions until they were well past the age set by today's trend. Why were younger men not chosen. Could it be that there is more confidence in the ability and experience of these "older" men. It just doesn't seem to make sense. We are not suggesting that younger men should not be employed in high positions or in any positions, but the older men should be given a share too, not just cut off at 40. Many of such men are just becoming most useful, they have settled down and are more conscientious of their duty toward an employer. They are more likely to give him many years of very valuable service and to take the interests of their job more to heart. The younger man is still seeking success, he will not hesitate to leave one position for another which offers him something inviting. This is sometimes at the expense of a previous employer who has given him training in a special and important position.

There is much to be said for the older man, far more than we have the space for in this article. It would be well for employers to give this matter more thought and not be carried away by a trend that does not even make sense.

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Three labor delegations this week visited Premier Paul Sauvé and were assured his government plans improvements in labor laws and the government machinery to settle disputes.

One group, complaining Quebec provincial police are anti-union, was told the force has received a directive urging impartiality and justice for all without regard for social status.

Each of the groups presented briefs urging improvements in one or more fields of labor legislation. Mr. Sauvé indicated the changes his government plans to introduce during the legislative session opening Nov. 18 will cover most of them.

Four main changes were outlined by the Premier:

(1) The membership of the Quebec Labor Relations Board is to be increased—probably by two—permitting it to hold hearings in two places simultaneously. Three members of the present five-man board are needed for a quorum. Steps will be taken to speed up handing down board rulings.

(2) There will be a raise in the level of the Minimum Wage Act which now affects about 46,000 employers with 1,000,000 workers.

(3) The Superior Labor Council, a 30-member body to advise the Labor Department, will be revived. The Council, made up of labor, management, government and sociology experts, has not convened for several years.

(4) Changes in the Workmen's Compensation Act are due. Mr. Sauvé did not give details but indicated the compensation level, now based on salaries up to $4,000 annually, is to be raised.

Changes in the Disabled Persons Act is to be broadened, Mr. Sauvé replied this is a Federal law. Quebec always gives it the broadest possible interpretation. The next time Ottawa consults the provinces regarding it Quebec will try to have it widened in scope.

The Health Department announced a rehabilitation program for paralytic polio victims will be started next January. Its purpose will be to bring them to specially organized hospital centres for physiotherapy treatments.

Dr. A. R. Foley of the Department, estimating the province's polio total for 1959 will top 1,000, said residents in rural areas are often unaware of the restoration of affected limbs that can be obtained through physiotherapy. The Department plans to contact all those who suffered some form of paralysis during the 1959 outbreak.

Dr. Foley also said records indicated 95 per cent of the persons treated for polio this year had not (repeat not) had salk anti-polio vaccine.

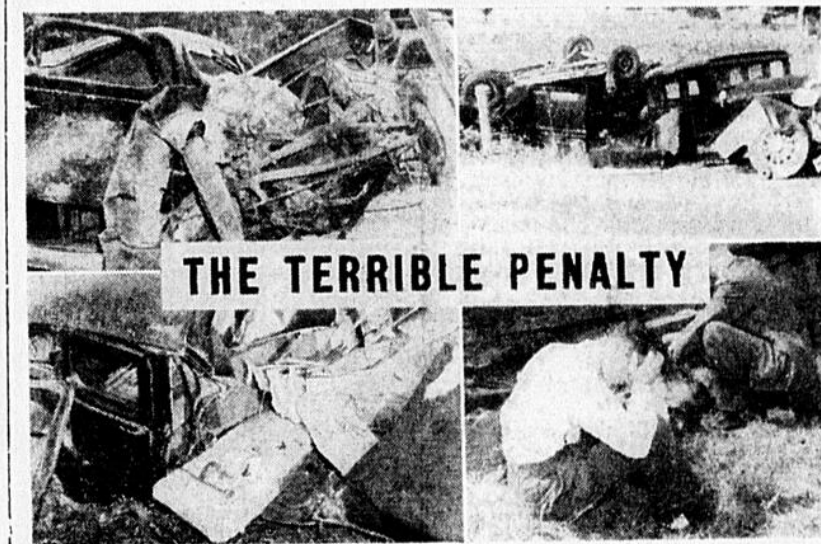

Jean-Paul Gagnon, Editor of the Laval University student newspaper Le Carabin was suspended from his post this week.

The move followed publication of an article in the weekly charging the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Quebec with "collusion" with the provincial government.

The four-man executive of the Laval Student Association ordered the suspension, ratified later by the General Council.

Author of the article was René Savard. It said when the late Premier Duplessis was in power he could rely on an "unctuous" silence of the hierarchy regarding acute education problems.

With the government now led by Premier Paul Sauvé education problems were receiving attention. "This is fortunate," the article stated, "since the hierarchy will follow him. He is in power."

In an effort to cut down on the number of accidents which involve citizens in the area served by this newspaper, the Gleaner will keep a list of the violent type before its readers as a constant reminder. Listed below are those accidents which appeared in the issues of the Gleaner for the date shown and which involved victims in death or severe injuries. The number listed does not cover all the accidents which have occurred, only those resulting as mentioned above. All have to do with traffic accidents. This is the list so far for this year — 1959.

February 18th. — Victim of hit-and-run driver thrown 35 feet from bridge at Chateaugay. Both legs broken, fractures of the skull.

April 29th. — Auto hits cyclist and carries body for three miles. Driver dumps body in ditch and drives on.

Man killed near Hemmingford. Lost control of car, went into ditch, hit a tree. Killed almost instantly.

June 3rd. — Two killed in collision near Valleyfield. Cars collide head-on at intersection of Routes 3 and 14.

July 15th. — Three adults and six children suffer injuries in a collision between two trucks at Havelock Corners.

July 29th. — 11-year-old girl killed instantly in auto-train crash at New Erin — others injured.

August 16th. — Motorcycle-truck collision results in death of Valleyfield resident — St. Stanislas.

September 16th. — Ste. Barbe man killed in head-on collision between car and truck, on Route 3, near Ste. Barbe.

September 30th. — Three people from Ste. Clothilde lost their lives when car plunged into river at Notre Dame du Bon Conseil, after crashing through bridge railing.

October 7th. — Man killed in head-on collision near Ste. Martine. Three lose lives by drowning when car goes over lift bridge near Valleyfield, into Beauharnois Canal.

October 14th. — Boy Scout killed by hit-and-run driver at Chateaugay.

Huntingdon man killed in collision at intersection of Plank and Ridge Roads.

November 4th. — Truck driver killed near approach to Mercier Bridge.

So far this shows 13 violent accidents, 17 local persons have lost their lives, 10 persons seriously injured, in 1959 as far as it has gone.

We urge all drivers to take note and to drive their vehicles with caution — PREVENT ACCIDENTS.

Hardee Farms Wins Award For Packaging

TORONTO — Packaging's "man of the year" award was presented to Bram Dees, president of Hardee Farms International.

The Golden PAC Award is an annual tribute by the 900-member Packaging Association of Canada to the person making the greatest contribution to the packaging field in Canada. Presentation was made at the Association's Golden PAC banquet, held in conjunction with the 8th Canadian National Packaging Exposition.

A citation accompanying the special award said in part: "This man has made an outstanding contribution to the Canadian economy by bringing waste land into high production and creating a new industry to move fresh produce from these lands to markets, packaged in units of convenient size, with economies to the consumer and the maintenance of fresh quality not previously available. "Pioneering a new industry, he utilized what was available in products, processes and packaging materials and from these developed new products with greater eye appeal and nutritional values, more economical and efficient processes and inspired the creation of packaging materials and methods.

Mr. Bram Dees was born in the Netherlands in 1901. He came to Canada in 1926 and became a field worker for a vegetable grower. By 1930 he had a truck farm of his own and in 1934 he opened a wholesale produce company in Winnipeg.

By 1939 Dees Produce was the largest distributor of Manitoba grown vegetables in Western Canada. The following year the company was sold to the Safeway organization.

Mr. Dees later was director of produce buying and grower relations for Dominion Stores Limited. In 1946 he established a company at Bradford, Ontario to wash, grade and ice-

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — For years, Canada and some of the less-powerful members of NATO have been urging greater consultation among all partners in the military alliance, big and little. They have had the feeling of being ignored by the leading powers on major policy and strategy decisions.

Last week, Canadian representatives won a degree of support for their position from the United States.

Following joint defence talks at Camp David, Md., U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter announced that NATO foreign ministers will meet directly after the Western Big Four summit conference in Paris, Dec. 19.

The NATO ministerial meeting will be in addition to that already scheduled for Paris, Dec. 15-17, and likely will provide the ministers with a chance to discuss Big Four proposals for a summit conference with Russia.

Commented Canada's External Affairs Minister Green: "This is what we think should be done." He has been calling for more use of the North Atlantic Council, NATO's policy-making arm which includes representatives of all member countries.

Canada's delegation went on a second tour of the talks at Camp David when the U.S. agreed to increase the flow of American defence orders to Canadian plants. The official communiqué said the two countries would seek more "fruitful" co-operation in sharing of defence contracts.

With Mr. Green at the conference near Washington were Defence Minister Pearekes, Finance Minister Fleming and Defence Production Minister O'Hurley. Besides Mr. Hardee, the U.S. delegation included Defence Secretary Neil McElroy and Fred Scribner, acting treasury secretary.

Back in Ottawa, Mr. Pearekes the following day said he expects facilities will be available in Canada for storing nuclear warheads by the time Bomarc anti-aircraft missile launching bases are ready for use, in 1961.

French Missiles? Canadian soldiers are being trained to use the French SS-10 anti-tank missile. The training program is being carried out at Camp Borden, Ont. A Canadian Army team was first trained on the weapon by the French Army in Europe last year.

No decision has yet been made to adopt the missile for the army. It would be used by tank-hunting armored corps teams. It had been assumed until recently that the American surface-to-surface Lacrosse would be the first guided missile in the army's arsenal.

But Defence Minister Pearekes told reporters last week acquisition of the Lacrosse depends on its performance in cold-weather tests at Fort Churchill, Man., next February and March.

Mr. Pearekes has said that if the SS-10 is required by the army he is confident it can be produced in Canada. It is said to be capable of disabling any existing armored vehicle with a conventional high-explosive charge.

Parliament Opening Parliament re-opens for business Thursday, Jan. 14, after a six-month adjournment. Chances are that members will have plenty to talk about, with finance and defence matters among the main issues, as the Commons reaches the mid-way point between elections.

This will be the third session of the 24th Parliament elected March 31, 1958. The government's new legislative program will be outlined in the Speech from the Throne to be read on opening day by Governor-General Vanier — the first such ceremony for Gen. Vanier, who succeeded Vincent Massey last Sept. 15.

The political battling is expected to get under way in earnest on the following Monday, when Opposition leader Pearson and CCF House leader Hazen Argue launch the 10-day Throne Speech debate, to which Prime Minister Diefenbaker will reply.

Central topic of Opposition criticism in the debate is expected to be the financial problems which reached their peak after the last session adjourned July 19.

Interest rates rose sharply, and would-be borrowers found their loan applications refused by the banks. Finance Minister Fleming has attributed this to an extraordinary demand for commercial loans to finance rapid economic expansion. But Opposition critics have demanded that the government accept a share of responsibility for Bank of Canada policies of preventing any large rise in the money supply that would make money less "tight".

In the continuing argument over defence, a major issue will be Mr. Pearson's demand that Canada should have sole control over nuclear weapons used by Canadian forces. Present government plans are for the United States to share control over atomic warheads in the proposed Bomarc anti-aircraft missile program.

Other Opposition criticism will be levelled against the government's rejection of pay increases for government employees, as recommended by the civil service commission.

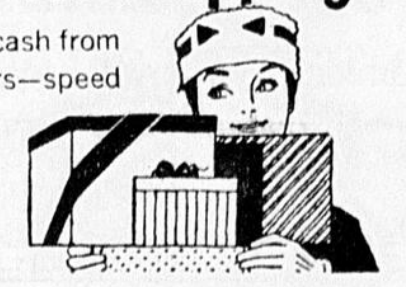

Flag Issue Revived The long-standing issue of a national flag is due to get an airing at the coming session. A Quebec Progressive Conservative, Maurice Allard, has filed a two-page private bill proposing that a day be set aside as Canadian Independence Day and empowering the Canada Council to select a distinctive national flag and anthem.

Mr. Allard, M.P. for Sherbrooke, proposes that Dec. 11, anniversary of the 1931 signing of the Statute of Westminster, be recognized as Independence Day. Under his bill the Canada Council would sponsor a national competition to select a flag and national anthem. The flag would be "free of the emblem or emblems of any other country". It would be submitted to the Queen for her approval after being sanctioned by a joint resolution of the Commons and Senate.

The national anthem also would require joint approval of the two houses.

Comment On Our Attempt to Make People Accident Conscious

THERE has been some comment on the article published in the last issue of The Gleaner entitled "The Terrible Penalty". We hope that more people have given it thought than have expressed their views so far. That it is worthy of thought by all drivers of vehicles goes without saying. The statistics published, concern only the area in which The Gleaner circulates. This is very small when the whole Province, the whole country, is considered. Of course we are only primarily interested in our own area and the Toll is far too high.

The statistics had to do only with the more violent traffic accidents. They did not cover all the accidents that have happened, nor all the accidents which caused loss of life. There have been a number of drownings, farm accidents which took lives and also some in other areas of employment. However, we believe we can say that the automobile is the No. 1 killer. Therefore, it is concentrated upon it to a greater extent.

In this matter we are more or less helpless. There appears to be only one avenue to follow and that is by appeal to all vehicle drivers to exercise caution at all times. This also seems to be a task that is fruitless. The accidents instead of decreasing are for ever mounting in number. We are not alone in our endeavors to try and prevent accidents. All publications carry warnings and appeals; the judges in our courts are trying to do their best by giving stiffer sentences and fines. We cannot ban the automobile from the road entirely, it has come to be too important a part of present day need. Yet short of this, what can be done if the people who drive them will pay no heed. Already drivers have had their licenses cancelled for periods up to one year, but this is like taking a scoop of water from a stream, it cannot be noticed. It perhaps has the effect of making those so punished more cautious in the future, but we need more mass caution that that.

Perhaps we are on the right track in doing

Howick

Howick W.I.

The November meeting of the Howick Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Huntley Greig, on Tuesday afternoon, with 19 members and 5 visitors present. In answer to the Roll Call suggestions were given for "a tasty sandwich."

Business arising from the minutes consisted of a discussion concerning the prizes offered in Howick High School. It was decided to give the usual prizes for first place in Grades IX and X, and for Home Economics and Industrial Arts in Grades VI through XI. It was resolved that twenty dollars was to be sent to the Quebec Service Fund and seven dollars to the County Service Project. The treasurer reported a balance of $177.35 on hand. Mrs. Huntley Greig and Mrs. Wallace Kerr reported on their attendance at the semi-annual county meeting at Franklin Centre. The Spring Convention is to be at Dundee next May. It was decided that the conveners were to give shorter reports—a time limit of 10 minutes. Mrs. Roy Younie was appointed Resolutions chairman.

Conveners' Reports: Mrs. Cairncross, Agriculture, told of her tour by European farmers and farm officials of farms in Ontario, the Mid-West and Southern Ontario including the farm of Mr. Erle Ness & Son. For Education Mrs. Eric Smith read an article on school bus safety. Mrs. Bruce Chisholm gave an outline for Health and Welfare. Adults should have polio shots. She spoke of eye banks, civil defence and home nursing. There was discussion on the fact that the County Health Unit had not visited the local school for about four years. Mrs. Frank Sutherland, Home Economics, read about an all-out war against premium stamps and also read an article on money management for the family stressing the value of a budget. Mrs. Robt. Macfarlane and Mrs. Brodie Macfarlane gave a demonstration of candle making and Christmas centre-pieces. They displayed some already made, which were beautiful. The members were greatly interested in these. Mrs. Wallace Kerr thanked the Mesdames Macfarlane for the excellent demonstration they had given.

At the December meeting each member is to bring a Christmas gift for a needy child. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction followed by dainty refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Hebert Esdon of Cornwall, and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Fraser of Scotstown, visited friends in the community on Sunday. Miss Marjorie Ness of Shawinigan Falls spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ness.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Barwick and son Larry of Montreal, and a few local friends visited Mr. Tom Vass on Saturday evening, the occasion being his birthday. Miss Hazel Goodyear of Montreal spent the week-end with Miss Helen McCartney.

Howick United Church was represented by Messrs. Ross Brown, Wayne McKell, Charlie Tennant, Donald Sutherland and Bill Ness at the Young People's Convention held in Parkdale United Church, Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Zeibarth and Carol Ann from Erie, Penn., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Campbell, McRae, Donna and Alan of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McRae. Others who visited in the community were the Masters and Hopes from Lacolle.

The children who collected for U.N.C.E.F. went over the top again this year in spite of miserable weather conditions. Great credit goes to the "Spunk of the Spooks" and the generosity of the community as the contents of their boxes revealed the sum of $155.46.

The November meeting of the Georgetown Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Clark, on Nov. 4th, with twenty-one members and one visitor present, answering the roll call with one of the "Commandments".

The President, Mrs. C. Brown opened the meeting. Mrs. Murie Ness led the responsive reading, followed by prayer by Mrs. N. Simms. Mrs. C. McCartney read the minutes of the previous meeting. Miss Isabel Elliot took the study.

Mrs. N. Simms read a very interesting letter from Miss Bessie MacMurchie. Plans were made to remember her and Mrs. Fossum at Christmas.

A bale valued at over $91.00 of knitted articles, sheets, quilts, etc., was packed by Mrs. G. Barrington and Mrs. M. Kerr. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Clark assisted by Mrs. Ness, Mrs. Simms and Isabel Elliot.

Miss Agnes Carmichael of Montreal spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Gebbie. Mrs. Jane Barber of Plattsburg, and Mrs. Don Wright of Ellenburg Depot, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whiteford McKell.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Silver of Baie Comeau were recent guests of Mrs. Robert Roy.

MORE AND MORE DELIVERIES BRING O'Keefe ALE
Delivery boys everywhere are noticing this new trend to O'Keefe. Every day more and more people are discovering mild O'Keefe Ale. Next time you order beer from your grocer, be sure to ask for O'Keefe — you'll enjoy its natural mild flavour.

THE O'KEEFE MILDNESS SECRET
Ever bitten into a grape seed? It's bitter, unpleasant. Grape growers found by experiment that they could develop seedless grapes with nothing to spoil the delicate flavour. It's the same with hops. Ordinary hops contain seeds which give an unpleasant bitterness to ale. However, O'Keefe master brewers insist on coarser "Seedless Hops", result—there's no unpleasant bitterness, just the right, natural mild flavour.

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD — The Aubrey-Riverfield W.I. met at Mrs. Andrew Allen's, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. A. Allen reported that arrangements had been made with Dr. Stalker to give an illustrated talk on his trip overseas. Quilt blocks were brought in and left in charge of Mrs. J. Reddick to have ready for quilting meeting in December. Current events Citizenship. An item on helping children round the world. Mrs. Edna Carson, manager of sales for UNICEF greeting cards throughout the world praised volunteers who have given their time towards this project. This is the 10th year the cards have been on sale in 70 countries. Eleven million cards were sold world wide last year and $660,812 was added to the children's fund. Sixteen thousand boxes were sold in the Montreal area. Education—Education called key to survival. There is a fourth R in education, responsibility. As sure as the sun rises, the future of the world's millions of people now is in the hands of educationists and scientists. It has been stated that Canada's education system needs more good teachers, more "testing achievements", more universal and higher standards, more discipline in work and behavior, more money and a better use of what we have. Canadians are spending about $1,000,000,000 on education this year. This makes it next to the government itself, the biggest business in Canada.

Home Economics—Highlights read from a letter from Mrs. Bernhardt items on (1) new cans for home canning aluminum ones with transparent tops, (2) frozen food pouches in aluminum or plastic, (3) Trading stamps, (4) Tips on new stoves and electronic ranges and the speed in cooking with same. A demonstration was given on hanging coat hangers on clothes line so that they will not fall off when used to hang small articles out to dry.

Publicity—walk softly in county aged homes. We may be in the presence of people greater than we know. Cheer those who have gone to homes for the aged, any contact they have with others has to come from outside, either through relatives keeping in touch with them or through the people of the community. It means a lot to them when outsiders come to make personal friendships with them. They may be happy but miss belonging to a family or having neighbours and perhaps miss being regarded as persons in their own right.

Welfare and Health—Children get help in therapy in Syracuse. Help in speech lip reading, hearing aid, language and help to overcome social problems. Item on care of feet. If one would spend as much on caring for the feet as for hair, hands and face, one would appear and feel much happier. Dictates of fashion and style cause

Elgin

ELGIN — The Ladies Aid of the Elgin Presbyterian Church was entertained at a delicious dessert luncheon by Mrs. W. R. Rutherford at her home, on Friday afternoon.

It being the Annual Meeting, reports of the work done during the year were given by the Secretary, Mrs. Rutherford and the financial statement by the Treasurer, Mrs. Donald Ferns.

Two more new tables were ordered for the basement which with the four new ones already on hand, which had been purchased during the summer will mean more efficiency in serving at the Annual Suppers.
Donations from the Society were voted on and passed $20.00 to Children's Memorial Hospital, $20.00 to Huntingdon County Hospital, $30.00 to the Church Budget, $25.00 to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Home, and $15.00 to the Deaconess Training School. With a balance of over $600, in hand the Society closed a very successful year.

The officers were all re-elected for another year. The offering taken up from members and invited guests amounted to $20.75.

Wedding

SWEENEY-WAITE

GEORGIA, VT. — Miss June Ann Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sweeney of Georgia was married to Paul Alan Waite, son of Mrs. Eugene Waite of Sheldon and the late Mr. Waite on Saturday, October 31st, at 2 p.m. in the Georgia Methodist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Farrell. Traditional wedding music was played by the organist, Ethan Newton.

Mrs. Phillip Hayden was matron of honor for her sister, and the Misses Jerrilyn Sweeney, another sister of the bride, and Carol Aja were the bridesmaids. Ronald Hojboom served as best man, and Kenneth Grenier, and Phillip Hayden, brothers-in-law of the bride were ushers.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. Her waist-length gown of white imported clipped Chantilly lace and tulle was fashioned with a basque bodice of lace, with Sabrina neckline embroidered with iridescent sequins and long sleeves. The bouffant skirt featured ruffles of tulle in the back. Her fingertip veil of illusion net fell from a crown, and she carried white carnations on a white Bible.

A Steer Championship

The so-called Howick-Huntingdon livestock area has in the past produced a large number of champions — in both showing and production — of Ayrshires especially, and to quite an extent Holsteins. However, recently a beef cattle steer, a product of that area, annexed a grand championship at a major exhibition.

Eileenmere of Terra Firma, a purebred Aberdeen-Angus steer, bred by Floyd Stevenson, Franklin Centre, annexed the grand championship of the Capital City Beef Cattle Show at the 1959 Ottawa Winter Fair. Moreover, the owner is a 4-H Club member, Bruce Groves, Apple Hill, Ont., who purchased the calf from Mr. Stevenson, last February. Eileenmere of Terra Firma was shown in first the 4-H Club steer class and then in the open section for steers, and finished up as grand champion steer of the Show, any breed, any age.

Finally, Eileenmere of Terra Firma, weighing 840 lbs., was sold at auction at $3.65 per lb. to Loblaw Groceries.

The matron of honor wore a white lace gown over blue taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of blue carnations, centered with pink sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaids wore white lace over pink taffeta and carried bouquets of pink carnations. The mother of the bride was dressed in navy blue with pink accessories. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a blue dress with black accessories. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Sheldon town hall. The wedding cake was cut by Mrs. Elmer Rivers after the initial cut by the newly married couple. Miss Jo-Anne Barber and Mrs. Wyman Ovith presided at the punch bowls, and Mrs. Kenneth Grenier had charge of the guest book.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Waite will reside at 228 North Main St., St. Albans.

For travelling the bride chose a blue wool dress, with black accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests attended the wedding from Winoski, Burlington, Essex, Sheldon, St. Albans, East Fairfield, Georgia and Swanton, and Huntingdon, Que.

Mrs. Waite attended schools in Georgia. She has been employed at Brunelle's restaurant in St. Albans. Her husband is a graduate of Bellows Free Academy in St. Albans, and is employed at Simpsons Motors.

The gifts were numerous and beautiful. The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Anthony Small of Huntingdon.

Terra Firma Herd

While Aberdeen-Angus cattle herds are comparatively few and far between in this area, in fact mostly recent innovations, Mr. Floyd Stevenson established his Terra Firma Aberdeen-Angus herd, at Franklin Centre, some 9 years ago; now has some 25 head in that herd. His foundation animals were mostly purchased from the well-known North River herd of Dr. McCall, Lachute, Que. Eileenmere of North River, sire of the Ottawa champion steer, was also bred by Dr. McCall.

Family strains in the Stevenson A-A herd include Blackcaps, Prides and Blackbirds with Bandler of Winfield, bred in the famous Winfield herd of E. P. Taylor, as the present herd sire.

Leptospirosis

Leptospirosis is a livestock disease which we believe, is seldom heard of in this area. Nevertheless, it is apparently quite prevalent in other parts, especially in the United States, so much so that a new bacterium for the control of that disease has been developed by Globe Laboratories. For the information of the uninitiated (and, frankly, until recently our personal information was rather vague), Leptospirosis, according to Dr. Frank R. Jones, President of Globe Laboratories, Fort Worth, is caused by a small germ called Leptospira. It is a highly communicable disease found not only in cattle and swine, but frequently in horses and other animals. Young calves may die within twelve hours after the disease strikes a herd, pregnant cows may abort or weak calves may die within two or three days.

The infection spreads through the urine of infected animals, particularly that of swine, which contains millions more germs than does the urine of cattle. Direct contact with urine-infected bedding or hay, grass in pasture accounts for most of the spread. But, the disease can be introduced into the body through the eyes, nose, mouth or breaks in the skin, and the inhalation of urine droplets in the air accounts for an indirect spread of the disease.

Diagnosis

Leptospirosis in cattle is best diagnosed with a blood test, which will not show positive during early stages of the infection. Blood reaction will develop within eight to ten days. The most important symptom in cattle is abortion, but other indications are loss of nursing calves which suddenly die, depression, loss of appetite, fever which ranges from 104 to 107 degrees, anemia, loss of weight, yellowish colour, drop in milk production and blood-tinged milk.

Treatment

The only treatment of animals already showing symptoms of Leptospirosis is the use of antibiotics, if administered in large doses. When not killed out with sufficient treatment, the germs dig into the kidney tissue for a long time, producing very tiny white scars on the kidneys. The animals can and do shed the germs in their urine.

Immune, But!...

Animals that have recovered from the disease are immune to subsequent attacks, but they remain carriers of the infection for a long period. In recovered animals, Leptospira organisms become established in the kidneys where they multiply, usually without ill effects on the animal, and are shed in the urine, spreading the disease by both direct and indirect contact.

management are almost as important. Leptospira pomona bacterin is used for the prevention of the disease. A killed culture of the bacterin cannot produce the disease or introduce it on the premises. Seven to fourteen days are required for the development of immunity.

Better stop worrying about what your son will do when he grows up — and see what he's doing now.
