RECORD'S NEW OFFICES.

The Large Press Now Running.

Prepared to Meet Demands of Double Circulation.

With this issue we commence the publication of the RECORD from its own office at 102 Wellington street. The paper is now printed on a Hoe double feed press, capable of printing and folding 4000 papers an hour. It is the fastest newspaper press in any English office in the Province of Quebec, outside of Montreal. The many readers of the RECORD who may wish to see the press, are invited to call at any time after Wednesday next. The best time to see it in operation will be about 1 p.m.; 2.45 p.m.; and 4 p.m.

We desire at this time to express our appreciation of the kindly feeling which has existed during the past year, between Mr. L. A. Belanger, of Le Progres de l'Est, and ourselves. The RECORD, since it started, has been printed in the office of Mr. Belanger, and at all times has he given every assistance to make the paper a success. Notwithstanding that our business relations now cease, we trust the good feeling may continue, and that Mr. Belanger may have every success in his private and business life.

The RECORD is now in a position to meet all demands put upon it, and steps will be taken to double its daily circulation of 1800, which we believe is possible in the towns and villages of the Eastern Townships.

AN UNLUCKY CAR.

Wreck of Thursday Cleared Up.

All that is now left of the wreck of Thursday night is a few ties and beams used in getting the damaged car onto the track. A wrecking train, with all necessary appliances, was sent from Richmond early Saturday morning. A temporary track was laid from the wreck to the railroad, and with the assistance of a large force of men, a number of jacks and the wrecking engine, the car was, after some hours' work placed upon the temporary track, when it was a short job to get it onto the main line. It was taken to the repair shop at Richmond.

The car number is 1115 and is considered very unlucky. Among other mishaps, it was in the accident at Hillhurst several years ago, when two men lost their lives. A number of Sherbrooke people visited the scene of the wreck Saturday.

EDUCATIONAL SERMONS.

Rev. W. H. Emsley of Douglas church, Montreal, preached the educational sermon in the Methodist church yesterday, both morning and evening. Both of his addresses were of much interest and were listened to with a great deal of pleasure and profit by the audiences of both morning and evening.

CHORAL SOCIETY.

Members are reminded of the importance of the rehearsal this evening. A full attendance is especially desirable.

SAM JONES IS OUT OF IT.

Won't Run for Governor Because Politicians Are Bad Men.

Atlanta, Feb. 26.—The Rev. Sam Jones has withdrawn from the Gubernatorial contest, but declares he has right to re-enter it at any time he sees fit. He gives as his reason the lack of character in the State Democratic forces. He says in former campaigns they have sold themselves to the whiskey element, and he has no assurance that this campaign will be an exception. He also says that he does not care to indorse the "vagaries of the Chicago platform," a step which would be rendered necessary should his candidacy be continued.

YUKON STEAMER STRUCK A ROCK.

Valparaiso, Feb. 26.—The steamship City of Columbia, from New York for St. Michael, Alaska, with passengers for the Klondike, put in here on Feb. 14, after having struck a rock in Smith's channel. She was placed in dry dock. Her rudder and upper works were damaged and her keel seriously injured. The repairs will occupy twenty-five days and will cost, including dock fees, $19,000.

Great Destruction of Tobacco.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 26.—The picking, drying, and steaming warehouses of the National Tobacco Company, situated at 24th and Main streets, were totally destroyed by fire today. The loss will amount to $1,000,000; fully covered by insurance. The men were hemmed in by the flames, and all were more or less injured before they could escape from the burning plant.

SAWYERVILLE WINS.

Cookshire Defeated in St. Francis Valley League.

Sawyerville, Feb. 25—With Wright Flaws, Hurd and Ross, of their regular team, all unable to play. Cookshire was undecided about meeting Sawyerville tonight. But after talking it over with his hockey supporter, "Lonnie" Goff, filled up the gaps as best he could and the teams lined up on Sawyerville ice tonight, as follows:

Sawyerville.		Cookshire.
M. Scott,	goal,	Rand
L. Scott,	point,	Goff
R. Montgomery,	cov. point,	Hurd
E. Evans,	forwards,	Learned
T. Kirkpatrick,	"	T. Murphy
Taylor,	"	W. McLintock
McLennan,	"	Bailey

Umpires, G. Plaisance, A. Ross and H. Riddle. Referee, A. Witty, of Sherbrooke. Timekeepers, J. A. Davidson, B. A., and C. C. Bailey.

The rink was filled with intensely interested spectators, and the teams were loudly cheered as they came on the ice by their respective supporters. From the start the game was fast and furious, and in less than three minutes Bailey had scored for Cookshire. Then Sawyerville scored twice in succession, and the hopes of the home team rose high. But Cookshire came twice again to the fore, and at half time the score was 3 to 2 in favor of the visitors.

The second half was even swifter, Little Murphy and McLintock on Cookshire's forward line were pretty well played out, so the Cookshire defence had much to do. As it was the game stood tie at time, 4 to 4, the fourth time this wiuter that Cookshire has had a tie to play off. This time, however, their usual luck left them for Kirkpatrick, scoring in three minutes, won the game for Sawyerville. Score 5 to 4.

The teams took supper together at Keenan's hotel and had the usual pleasant time.

THE DREAD PEST INVADES A PALACE.

Czarina of Russia Stricken Down with Smallpox.

Vienna, Feb. 27.—Within a few weeks of the date on which, according to official announcement, the Czarina is about once again to become a mother, she has been stricken with smallpox, and, although the most strenuous efforts have been made at St. Petersburg to conceal the fact, measles being given out as the cause of her seclusion, yet the true nature of her malady is the subject of conversation in all the court circles, news having been received here thereof by letter, as of course the censor would not permit any information of this kind to leave the Russian capital by wire. The announcement is not altogether unexpected. Indeed it has been anticipated for ten days past.

SIXTY MINERS FOR KLONDIKE.

Special Train Over Grand Trunk.

Montreal, Feb. 26.—To the Grand Trunk Railway belongs the glory of despatching the first special Klondike train. Sixty hardy French Canadian gold seekers, fully equipped for the undertaking, departed from the Bonaventure station last night, amidst the cheers of several thousand spectators, including several women. They will travel via the G. T. R., Chicago and North Western and Northern Pacific to Seattle, Wash., and thence by boat to Victoria, B. C., where provisions will be secured. All the other outfitting has been done in Montreal.

GOLD FROM SAND.

A Bar Worth $200 Produced from 24 Tons of Sand.

Saratoga, Feb. 26.—At a preliminary cleanup of the Hadley plant of the Sacandaga Mining and Milling Company at Hadley, a bar of gold bullion worth about $200 was produced. Twenty-four tons of sand were ground in producing this treasure. The company will increase the capacity of its plant and add new grinders for pulverizing the sand. They now hava about $30,000 invested, and all those interested are convinced that the project will become a paying one. Among those comprising the company are State Senator Edgar T. Brackett and ex-Sheriff W. W. Worden.

SPANIARDS EXPECT WAR.

Havana, Feb. 26.—An editorial in La Lucha this afternoon advises the Government to prepare itself for war with the United States.

SPAIN WON'T SELL CUBA.

Leading Men in Madrid Receive the Suggestion with Indignation.

London, Feb. 26.—A special despatch to the Standard from Madrid says that the correspondent of that paper has been gathering the opinions of statesmen on the suggestion that Spain should sell Cuba to the United States.

The correspondent says he found all parties, including the Republicans and others who oppose the Government, amazed and indignant at such a suggestion, which, it is held would expose the monarchy and Government to an irresistible popular movement, supported by the army and navy, resisting the idea of surrendering Spanish rights in the island.

Financiers make the practical objection that, in view of the fact that the Cuban debt already exceeds $500,000,000, is almost entirely held by Spaniards, who in addition have a vast amount of capital engaged in the West Indies, the price suggested would not satisfy half the compensation required.

None of the ministers would entertain the suggestion.

PARNELL'S RELATIVES.

The Late Stewart's Brother Says They Are in Want.

Dublin, Feb. 26—John H. Parnell, member of Parliament for South Meath, brother of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, is a candidate for the post of city marshal of Dublin. He has issued a circular from Avondale, in which he says:—"The poverty and almost absolute want which my mother, my sisters and I are facing, render it imperative for me to ask the corporation to intrust me with the duties of city marshal. Through the devotion of my brother to the cause of Ireland, Avondale, the home of my family for generations, must go under the hammer."

FELL ON A SAW.

Jeremiah Murphy Instantly Killed in a Russell Lumber Mill.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 26—Jeremiah Murphy, of Moosomin, aged 18, was instantly killed by falling on a circular saw in a lumber mill at Russell.

Railway Committee Will Consider the Bell Application on March 3.

ENTERTAINMENT AT LENNOXVILLE.

The entertainment of last Tuesday evening in aid of St. George's Church, at Lennoxville, was erroneously reported in these columns as being given by the Lennoxvill Dramatic Club. It was under the direction of Miss E. M. Parslow, teacher in the model school, and too much praise cannot be given of the skillful manner in which she conducted the evening's entertainment.

G. T. R. WILL FIGHT.

The Company Meets All the Cut Rates of the C. P. R.

It is announced this morning, that the Grand Trunk Railway Company has met the cut rates of the C. P. R. to local as well as far western points. This decision was arrived at Saturday and came into effect today.

The rate war is now on in earnest. The C. P. R. rates, which are now also the G. T. R. rates, are down to a cent or less than a cent a mile, better than the best excursion rates, and they may go even lower.

The fact that the G. T. R. have met the C. P. R. rates indicates that there is no prospective settlement of the difficulty between the two roads. The G. T. R. have taken the gauntlet thrown down by the C. P. R. and an amicable settlement is not as easy of attainment as before the Grand Trunk met the other cut rates.

The result of the rate war now entered upon by both roads may not be injurious to either and will certainly be a benefit to the travelling public. The passenger traffic over the C. P. R. last week was increased many times its former size and the result must be the same on both roads. The number of passengers will be increased, but for a time at least the receips will probably not be seriously affected.

LENNOXVILLE WINS.

Game Played on Cookshire Ice.

Cookshire, Feb. 26.—The Cookshire hockey enthusiasts had a treat tonight in seeing the match between Lennoxville and the B.C. teams, on the Star rink here. About a hundred and fifty spectators were present when the teams lined up.

A minute after the puck was faced it was plain that the game was pretty much in the hands of the Lennoxville team. The puck stayed pretty much down around the School's goal, though occasionally the striped jerseys made a swift but vain rush towards the solid Arguin. Thrice in succession the village scored, then came the School's one successful effort, and Gilman scored. Play was scarcely resumed ere it was half time—score 3 to 1 in favor of Lennoxville. The second half was a series of successful rushes on the School's goal. The school team seemed fagged, and their forwards were very backward in using their few advantages. Six times the village scored in the second half. When time was called it was 9 to 1 in favor of Lennoxville.

RICHARDSON'S TIME UP.

He will first have to make an application to the Judge of the Superior Court for an order for his release. We understand that this application has not yet been made and until it is Mr. Richardson will remain in his present abode.

DIGNITY OF LABOR.

Lecture by J. A. Chicoyne, Esq., M. L. A., before St. Joseph Society.

J. A. Chicoyne, Esq., M. L. A., delivered a lecture on "The Dignity of Labor" last night in St. Joseph Society's Hall, this city. There was a large audience present.

Mr. E. Chartier, the president, presided and opened the meeting by referring to the work of the Society and calling attention to its two principal objects, pecuniary assistance to its members and to help each other to follow the proper path. For 24 years the members have worked together to that end, and it is to continue such an important duty that some of their members have sacrificed many hours of their time to prepare lectures to be delivered to the Society. The president then introduced the lecturer, who for an hour and a half, held the rapt attention of his hearers as he unfolded his subject. The lecturer opened by saying that to prove the dignity of labor one had only to look at its source, which is the divinity itself, passing to the natural order of things he showed the constant activity and labor in the nature, created by the great worker himself. Everything is in constant movement in nature. It is absurd to believe that man, the only reasonable being of the creation, is made to stand still.

Labor is a necessity to every being. It brings happiness, longevity, fortune and all virtues, moral and humane. It brings and keeps peace in society. It brings capital, because capital is only an accumulation of labor. It brings understanding between capital and labor, and prevents strikes, which cause so much trouble in society in every country of the globe.

The lecturer then entered upon economical questions and showed his hearers that by labor and economy, the peace, tranquility and happiness of families and countries are insured, and the lecturer concluded by advising the members of the society never to deviate from the path of their duties and they would then insure their own and their family's happiness.

A motion was then proposed by the member, F. H. Hebert, city Councillor, in very well chosen words, seconded also in a very appropriate manner by another member, Mr. Moise Audet, which was voted with a good deal of applause.

The President then presented the vote of thanks to the lecturer, and invited the audience to another lecture which will be delivered in the same hall, by another member, Mr. L. A. Panneton, M.L.A., on the night of the 3rd Sunday in March next, at 8 p.m., on "Education in the Laboring Class," and declared the meeting closed.

METROPOLITANS WIN.

By a Score of 4 to 3 They Defeat Bishop's College.

Metropolitans defeated Bishop's College on Saturday night, in Sherbrooke rink, by a score of 4 to 3. There was a large attendance, and the game was close and interesting. It was a very fast game, considering the condition of the ice, which was not first class. Metropolitans won the first game in 14 minutes, and the College then scored in five minutes. the Mets started off the second half by three straight goals, and the College wound up the match by two straight. It was a clean exhibition of hockey. Rothera was as usual at home in the goal, and Odell made some very pretty stops.

Lomas and Spafford played a strong game at point and cover point, and on the other side Carter and Moore were not behind them. Moe was in his old-time form, and Davis played one of the best game of his life. Boyle and Richmond, for the College, coverek them in good shape, and in good style upheld their side. Wombwell and Witty for the Mets, and Wurtele and Browne for the College, all did their parts well on the wings. There was little rough playing, and no one was ruled off for foul playing.

The teams lined up as follows :

The Stanstead Journal says:—

"A petition to the Vermont delegation is being signed at Derby Line asking that the mails in transit between Newport and Derby Line be placed in charge of a mail clerk or other Federal officer, "the same as in any other civilized country." There is no U. S. mail clerk on the Passumpsic Division north of Newport, the mail bags being looked after by the ordinary train hands. The petition sets forth thats the mails are hauled "in a very helter skelter manner," and have been known to remain out doors over night at Stanstead Junction. The demand of the petitioners is a just one, and we hope they will not pray in vain."

READY-MADE CLOTHING may do for some people, and so may ready-made spectacles.

Ready-made spectacles are all made with both eyes alike.

Nearly everybody sees better with one eye than with the other. Try it yourself.

It is unwise for a person with unequal eyesight to use ready made spectacles, as even if one eye is properly fitted the other eye is being strained. When fitting, I test each eye separately and give each eye its proper lense, thus equalizing any difference between the two eyes.

Loss $75,000, Partially Insured.

Somerset, Que., Feb. 28.—Special.)—The Roman Catholic church was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. The edifice was a grand one, probably one of the handsomest in this section of the country, valued at $75,000. Only insured for half that amount. The church was entirely new, and was receiving its finishing touches by painters. It was erected on the ashes of the one destroyed 13 years ago. The presbytery was saved. THE MAINE INQUIRY.

A Congressman Thinks Spain Would Have been Justified in Blowing up the Maine.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 28.—The members of the naval court of inquiry arrived here from Havana on the steamer Mangrove yesterday morning.

The Court has arrived at no definite conclusion as to the cause of the disaster.

To a reporter of the Associated Press Captain Sampson said: "We have finished our work in Cuba to a certain extent. There is, as you know, nothing I can say regarding our opinions on the Maine disaster. All reports purporting to express our opinions are false."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—During all the discussion in and out of Congress as to the cause of the disaster to the Maine, only one man has been found so far who thinks Spain would have been justified in blowing up the Maine. This man is Representative McCleary, of Minesota, an intelligent and able man, who was a very conspicuous leader of the gold men of the Northwest in the Presidential campaign and in the session of Congress preceding it.

He says that as the Maine entered Havana harbor with her guns loaded for action Spain had a right to place her over a mine or destroy her as she saw fit, if she had reason to suppose that her intentions were warlike. That the ship was not on a friendly mission McCleary thinks will be generally admitted.

Mr. McCleary was born in Ingersoll, Ontario, on February 5, 1853, and was educated at the High School there and at McGill University, Montreal.

STEAMER BURNED.

Six of Her Crew Perish.

Boston, Mass., February 28.—The British steamer Legislator, Captain Tennant, bound from Liverpool for Colon, was burned at sea on February 16 in latitude 31.23 north, and longtitude 44.10 west. The fire broke out so suddenly that 11 men forward were cut off from the rest of the ship, and in saving them a boat capsized and five men, including the second and third officers, the steward and chief cook were drowned. A fireman received such severe burns that he died in a few minutes. The balance of the crew twenty-eight in all, with two passengers, Dr. W. Mortimer and wife, of London, were rescued within four hours after the fire broke out, by the fruit steamer Flower Gate, and brought to this port. The steamer burned to the water's edge.

Sealed Up in a Freight Car.

A few days ago when the G.T.R. employees at the station at Coaticook opened a car they found therein two young boys named Kidney and Leadbeater. These boys had got into the car either at Waterville or Compton. The car had been locked and sealed up, and if it had happened to have been consigned to some place beyond Coaticook, or had been sidetracked, the boys might either have starved or frozen to death before help had come. The only freight in the car was a lot of cotton waste, which they had taken from the bundle and made into a bed. They had also broken open the boxes in the car, which contained paints and oils. We understand that the matter is likely to be taken up by the G.T.R. authorities—Coaticook Observer.

RE-UNION AT BARNSTON.

Celebration of 84th Birthday of an Old Resident.

Coaticook, Feb. 28—Thursday evening, Feb. 24th, was the occasion of a most pleasing re-union at the home of Levi Cleveland, of Barnston, when his kindred and friends met together to celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday. The house was well filled. About eighty ladies and gentlemen sat to a table well laden with viands of every description such as only the Barnston ladies know how to provide. The evening was passed by social intercourse, listening to and recounting pleasant reminiscences of by-gone days. Although bearing the inevitable infirmities of old age and taken entirely by surprise, Uncle Levi, as he is familiarly called, was able to respond to a very feeling and tender address given him at the presentation of an elegant upholstereo chair together with many loving remembrances, proving without a doubt the high esteem in which he is held by his neighbors and friends. Among those present from a distance were his nieces from Coaticook and Lennoxville. At a late hour the friends left wishing both Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland much happiness in the years to come.

WHERE LOVE SHALL LEAD.

Where love shall lead
The rose, my dear, from the thorn may bleed
But sweet to the rose in darkness dying,
Its wounded breast o'er the red thorns lying,
The thought that still
It does love's will—
A joy in life and a joy in dying!
Love is calling, and hearts must heed.
Sweet is the pathway where love shall lead.

Where love shall lead
There rings the cry of a world in need.
Spirits sweet in the shadows sighing.
Famished souls for the life bread crying.
Yearning still
To do love's will,
Listening ever for love's replying.
Love has called to a world in need.
Sweet is the pathway where love shall lead.

BEFORE I KNEW.

It was on a beautiful day in autumn that I first set eyes upon Dunsforth mansion. I alighted at the porte cochere somewhat weary and not a little curious about my immediate future. But all my tired feeling fled when I gazed at the scene before me.

The owner of Dunsforth mansion was a woman, a rich widow, and I had been engaged as tutor to her two children. I had not yet seen her, having been appointed by her solicitor, an elderly, kind faced gentleman, who told me that I would surely be well suited with my surroundings and with my future employer.

My father had died recently, and as his estate was in litigation, which was likely to last for some time, it was incumbent upon me to seek employment almost immediately. My mother had enough to live upon for the present, but until we realized on my father's inheritance things looked rather blue.

I mused on our lot quite awhile and was finally startled out of my reverie by voices in the avenue. A beautiful woman with soft, fluffy hair, a delicate, high bred face, robed in mourning garb, came up toward me from the avenue. She chatted gayly with a little boy, whom she was leading by the hand. I knew at once that the lady was Mrs. Dunsforth. Her lips and eyes as she smiled betrayed a genial nature, and there was a cordiality in the grasp of her hand that made me at once at home at Dunsforth mansion.

We chatted about the weather as we walked toward the house. She did this to relieve me of my embarrassment, I knew.

"Charlie," she said before we reached the hall door, "this is your new tutor."

The little boy whom she had been leading by the hand came forward. He was 6 years old, the very opposite of his mother with hair that was almost black, large brown eyes and a little, fragile body. I stooped to greet the little man, and he sprang forward and caught my hand.

"You are nice," he said, blissfully ignorant of my vivid blushes. "I like you already."

My heart went out to the child. "I am glad to hear you say that," I replied. "I know we will be great friends."

"My little Charlie is a very stanch friend once he has made up his mind to like any one," said Charlie's beautiful mother, with a proud look at her son.

"You are not at all like Professor Dolittle. He was always cross and he had a big wart on his nose," continued Charlie innocently.

I laughed aloud, caught the little fellow by the shoulders and drew him toward me.

"What's your name," he asked.

"John Middlebrook," I said, "Mr. Middlebrook," correcting myself.

"Mr Middlebrook," said the child musingly. "Why, your name begins with an M, just like my Aunt Marjorie's."

"And what is your Aunt Marjorie's name?"

"Her name is Miss Manderville, don't you see," with a poke at my arm.

We had reached the drawing room by this time, for the hall door was open, letting in the sweet, crisp autumn air. Charlie scampered off and soon returned with his elder brother, who strongly resembled his mother. He had the same light curly hair, calm blue eyes and expressive, kissable lips. He was a bit more quiet than the youngster I had first met, more observing and thoughtful.

"This is Joe," said Charlie, bringing him up to me; then turning to his brother, "Joe, this is our new teacher. His name is Mr Middlebrook. I like him ever so much, don't you?"

Joe shook my hand warmly, though he was not so effusive on short acquaintance as his younger brother.

I was soon installed in my new home and thanked fate for having cast my lines so pleasantly. The winter went by in a quiet, steady way. My tutorship of those two splendid boys was a pleasant task and their mother was ever the same cordial friend she seemed on the first day of our meeting.

Although Aunt Marjorie was frequently the theme of conversation between the children and their mother and seemed to be held in the same affectionate regard by both, I had not yet met her. In my leisure moments I pursued my study of the law, which had been so rudely interrupted by my father's untimely death.

One morning when I came down to the breakfast room I found her standing at one of the windows—Aunt Marjorie—of whom I had heard so much. Mrs. Dunsforth introduced me to her. "My dear sister, Miss Manderville," she said, "Mr Middlebrook, the boys' tutor and good friend to us all."

Aunt Marjorie held out a little, fair hand with beautiful pink nails, dimples that did not come from fat, but were just made to intensify the beauty of that fair member. From her hand I glanced into her face, a shy, sweet face, with unspeakably sad eyes and a mouth which showed that it had twitched with pain.

She was fair, like her sister, and perhaps five or six years younger. In our intercourse during the next few days I found her a sedate, even tempered woman, who I knew, had met with some great sorrow in her young life. But there came a time when I realized Aunt Marjorie was taking a deeper interest in me. She came to the schoolroom now and then and took part in the boys' lessons. She conversed with me at table and seemed delighted to know that I was keeping up my law study. Her sister, to whom I had mentioned my reverses of fortune since my father's death, had evidently informed her of that fact, and I read a kindly pity in the tender eyes of Aunt Marjorie.

I might as well say it—I loved her. I loved her with a feeling akin to idolatry. I did not know whether my love was reciprocated, and for that I did not care. I was satisfied to dwell upon my feelings for her. My silent worship of her filled my life with a romance that was irrepressibly sweet.

At last it came as it was to be. I spoke to her of my love, and she listened graciously. It was on one of the first balmy spring nights. We stood by the open window and looked out upon the starlit sky, the dawn, dazzlingly beautiful in the brilliant moonlight with the dew scintillating on the grass blades.

"Marjorie, I love you!" I faltered. "Hear me and then answer me."

She paused a moment after my fervent avowal and the assurance that the litigation which held my father's estate in jeopardy was drawing to a close and that I would soon be able to take good care of so sweet a wife. As I looked down into her face I thought I read love for me in her tranquil eyes.

"We love each other, John," she said very quietly, but very tenderly.

I took her in my arms and kissed her passionately. She tolerated my caresses for a moment, then gently pushed me aside.

"I love you," she said. "I don't know why I tell you this when I must tell you in the same breath that I can never be your wife."

Her face grew white and wan. Dull suffering was in her eyes, and a shudder shook her delicate frame. I felt the iciness of the moment and clutched at the window hanging for support. Then, taking both her hands in mine, I looked steadfastly into her face and asked: "Marjorie, what do you mean? Why can you not be my wife?"

She caught my arms and put them around her neck. "John," she whispered huskily, "I am married!"

A burning kiss on my mouth, and she was gone. I was conscious only of the sudden emptiness of the room. Wretched and heartbroken, I sought my own chamber, and there, I may as well say it, I cried for the first time since my father's death.

I was able now to account for many things about Aunt Marjorie which I had not heretofore understood. She was frequently absent from her sister's house. She was moody to sullenness at times and then again warm hearted and gay.

Months went by, and the winter came again. Before the others Marjorie and I were as good friends as ever, but we were never alone together again. Her eyes seemed more melancholy than ever, and I was thankful for my task of teaching Mrs. Dunsforth's sons, and for the rest of the time I buried myself in study.

Spring came and with it another episode in my life at Dunsforth mansion. This time it was a rainy, chill spring day. The weather had been capricious for a week, and on the evening in question I was sitting alone by the fire in the library. My pupils had gone to bed, Mrs. Dunsforth was away on a visit to neighbors, and Marjorie had been absent for several days.

Suddenly the door opened, and there entered with the gust of chill wind a gaunt looking stranger. He walked straight up to the fire and held out his thin, trembling hands without speaking or looking around. For several moments I was too perplexed to speak. Was this an apparition, or was it a man of real flesh and blood, though he seemed to have but little of either. He was scantily attired; his hair was dishevelled and quite black. The face was ghostly white and the eyes dull and glassy. There was an air of refinement about the man, though, which caused me not to fear him.

"You are cold," I said.

He turned and bent his eyes upon me.

"Who said I was cold?" he asked abruptly.

"I did."

"You? Well, what of it? Who makes it cold? It's nice enough for anybody who has not been out in a long time. What makes you look at me so? Do you think I am crazy?"

I riveted my eyes upon him. "I didn't say you were crazy. Sit down; let me talk to you."

"I thought so. You think I am mad. I have just broken out of a madhouse. Are you going to send me back?"

"You need not fear me. I have no cause for sending you anywhere. Come, warm yourself. You are no more crazy than I am."

A grateful glance came from the dull, lusterless eyes, and after a little I persuaded him to lie down on the lounge. Soon he fainted away from the exertion of the long tramp he must have had, for the nearest insane asylum was 80 miles away. That much I knew.

He remained prostrated for a week in the comfortable bed of the guest chamber, to which I had carried him on the night of his arrival. Mrs. Dunsforth took as much interest in the strange visitor as I did, and now and then the boys came in and laid flowers from the greenhouse on his bed.

In a week from the night of his coming to Dunsforth mansion he died. Marjorie was absent while our strange guest was sick. She returned on the evening before we buried him. I heard her come up to her sister's room. The crazy man was lying in his shroud in the room below. After awhile the two sisters came down and went directly to the death chamber. I did not see them again that night. I had promised Mrs. Dunsforth that I would keep the watch beside the corpse, and at midnight I began my vigil. No one was in the room when I came in, and no one disturbed my lonely hours. Just as the night faded away into the gray dawn and the purple clouds crept up the horizon the door was softly opened to admit Marjorie. Her face was swollen with weeping, and her step was faltering as that of one who had not slept for many nights. She walked slowly to the bier and gazed distressedly at the face of the silent sleeper. Then she came over to me where I was sitting near the grate, with its fast dying embers.

"My husband, John!" she sobbed, pointing at the shrouded figure, gaunter and whiter than any dead man I had ever seen. In a moment I understood it all. She had been married to a lunatic. This, then, was the tragedy of her life that bade her tell me that she could never be my wife. Anguish at her spoiled, unhappy life filled my soul. I kissed her hand as I would have kissed the hand of a saint. She said not a word to me beyond a tender "thank you" for my sympathy. I arose and left her with the dead. I knew that now the obstacle to our union was removed; that she would be mine in good time, for had she not told me that she loved me!

While I am writing this story she is sitting beside me, a happy, blooming wife. We waited a year, then slipped away one day to be united forever. We are often at Dunsforth mansion, where our romance began, and my little charges are as fond of me as their "Uncle John" as they were when I was Mr Middlebrook, whose name began with an "M," just like Aunt Marjorie's.—St Louis Republic.

SMOKERS WHO NEED CHANGE.

Few Men Able to Use the Same Brand of Tobacco Continuously.

A nervous man dashed into a large tobacco store down town in Broadway and said to the proprietor:

"Look here, Billy, I've been buying smoking tobacco from you for a long time, and no sooner do I find a brand that suits me than you begin to adulterate it, and it doesn't taste as it did. This blank brand which I have been smoking for four months now has gone all to pieces. I want something new."

"Why not try the tobacco that you liked so well before you took up this brand?" asked the proprietor. "It has been improved, and I think that you will enjoy it."

The nervous man accepted it and went out.

"He will come in in about three days for another box of that tobacco and tell me that it is just what he has been looking for," remarked the proprietor to another customer. "He will smoke it for three or four months and then he will complain bitterly that the manufacturers are adulterating it with cheap tobacco, and he will make a change. Does the tobacco change? Why, yes, a very little bit, but not enough for him to detect the difference. It has happened that when he complains the loudest about it the tobacco is the best. The explanation is simple—he gets tired of a brand in about three months, and then it doesn't taste right to him. That is true of many smokers. To enjoy their tobacco they need a change occasionally.

"General Grant was the only hard smoker I have ever known who didn't require a change. He wanted good cigars, and he wanted them strong. He was not cranky about their shape or make so long as they smoked easily. I have one customer—he is now nearly 70 years old—who bought cigars from me when I first began selling them, and he buys nearly the same brand. His taste in tobacco has not changed, but he is an exception. It is a fact, though few smokers realize it, that a man needs change in his tobacco just as much as in his food. No man would enjoy the same dinner day after day. Few men can smoke the same brand of cigars or smoking tobacco month after month without having it pall on their taste at times. This man who was in here a moment ago thinks that the tobacco itself changes. He considers himself a judge of tobacco, and I humor him by seeming to agree with him and give him another brand when he complains."—New York Sun.

COLORADO'S WONDER.

The State Possesses the Most Tremendous Canyon In the World.

It is abruptly countersunk in the forest plateau, says John Muir in The Atlantic, so that you see nothing of it until you are suddenly stopped on its brink with its immeasurable wealth of divinely colored and sculptured buildings before you and beneath you. No matter how far you may have wandered hitherto or how many famous gorges and valleys you have seen, this one, the Grand canyon of the Colorado, will seem as novel to you, as unearthly in the color and grandeur and quantity of its architecture, as if you had found it after death on some other star; so incomparably lovely and grand and supreme is it above all the other delightful canyons in our fire molded, earthquake shaken, rain washed, wave washed, river and glacier sculptured world. It is about 6,000 feet deep where you first see it, and from rim to rim 10 to 15 miles wide. And instead of being dependent for interest on waterfalls, depth, wall sculpture and beauty of parklike floor, like most other great canyons, no waterfalls are in sight and no appreciable floor space.

The big river has just room enough to flow and roar obscurely, here and there groping its way as best it can like a weary, murmuring, overladen traveler trying to escape from the tremendous bewildering labyrinthic abyss, while its roar serves only to mellow and deepen the silence. Instead of being filled only with air the vast space between the walls is crowded with nature's grandest buildings—a sublime city of them painted in every color of the rainbow and adorned with richly fretted cornice and battlement spire and tower in endless variety of style and architecture. Every architectural invention of man has been anticipated and far more in this grandest of God's terrestrial cities.

A Well Used Cradle.

The Chicago Inter Ocean says: "Mordecai Hardesty, the first white child born in Indianapolis, was rocked through infancy in a cradle in the possession of Mrs. Brandt, wife of the Rev. J. L. Brandt, pastor of the Christian tabernacle of Valparaiso, Ind. The cradle is known to be 106 years old. It was brought from Virginia to Indiana at an early day. Altogether 40 sons of Indiana have been rocked in this same relic, which is still doing service in the home of the Rev. Mr. Brandt. The cradle was hewed from the log, is 8 feet 2 inches long and from its long continued use closely resembles ebony."

Sad Misunderstanding.

"It was all I could do to keep from laying violent hands on him," said the keeper of the high class cafe as the pale young man departed. "The idea of his calling this place a beanery!"

"He meant to pay you a compliment," said the listener. "Are you not aware that he is a Bostonian?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Though Rome is called the Eternal City, the name by right belongs to the city of Damascus, in Syria, which is the oldest city in the world. As long a man has written records the city of Damascus has been known.

Of the foreign born population of the United States the Irish are now only about 20 per cent, whereas in 1850 they were over 40 per cent.

WHAT IS WORTH DOING AT ALL
is worth doing well. The merchant who believes in advertising should back up his belief by advertising persistently, continuously and intelligently. Just as you would stock up with the kind of goods people demand, so should you fill your advertising space with talk about those goods that appeal to people's reason. The ads should best speak the up-to-dateness of your store, by being changed frequently. It's good logic—seasonable ads, seasonable goods. The business man whose business precludes him from giving due attention to his advertising, can safely relegate his detail to me and be assured of satisfactory work at reasonable prices.
