Hank Aaron clouts historic home run

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, refusing to yield to the pressure, erased Babe Ruth's standard Monday night when he smashed the 715th home run of his career.

"I feel I can relax," said the Atlanta Braves slugger said after his two-run, fourth-inning blast off left-hander Al Downing of Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I feel my team-mates can relax and I think I can have a great season," he said.

The veteran of 20 major league campaigns became the game's all-time home-run king the same way he tied Ruth's mark of 714 on opening day—by tagging the first pitch he swung at in the game.

The historic shot triggered 11 minutes of bedlam in Atlanta Stadium as a crowd of 53,775 cheered the soft-spoken Alabama native.

A call of congratulations came from President Nixon while the famous No. 44 was still in the game.

ONE OF THE GREATEST

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who ordered the Braves to play Aaron in Cincinnati Sunday, called him "one of the greatest we have ever seen."

"If God didn't see fit for me to hit the home run here, then I would have hit it somewhere else," said Aaron, 40. "This would have" to be my top thrill in baseball," said the man who holds more than a dozen major-league records.

"It wasn't one of my better ones, but the wind helped to carry it," he said. "I hit it fairly good. It was a fast ball. It was inside, but I think he (Downing) wanted it further inside. He just hung it a little."

Downing, a 13-year-veteran who had yielded only two other homers to Aaron, left the game after walking the next two hitters following Aaron's blast that drew the Braves even at 3-3. Atlanta went on to win 7-4.

RECORDS HIS MESSAGE

The Dodger hurler left the ball park, leaving behind a tape-recorded message in which he said: "Like a great hitter, when he picks his pitch, he's pretty certain that's the pitch he's looking for and chances are he's going to hit it pretty good."

The flamboyant Ruth hit his final three home runs for Boston Braves against Pittsburgh May 25, 1935. He died of cancer in New York in 1948.

Ruth's widow, Clare, did not watch her husband's record tumble on television, but she heard about it almost immediately and sent a telegram of congratulations to Aaron.

"The Babe loved baseball so very much," she said. "I know he was pulling for Hank Aaron to break his record. I sent Henry a wire that covers everything. I'm just wishing him very good luck."

The home run went over the fence just to the right of the 385-foot sign in left field. It came after Darrell Evans had reached first on an error.

When Aaron reached home, his team-mates left the dugout and bullpen to offer their congratulations. A massive fireworks display was ignited.

HUGS WIFE, PARENTS

Aaron broke away from his mates and rushed to a special box adjacent to the Atlanta dugout, where his family watched the dramatic event.

He embraced his wife, Billye, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aaron of Mobile, Ala.

"I never knew she could hug so tight," Aaron said of his mother.

Commemorative St. Laurent stamp unveiled

COMPTON (CC) — Nearly the whole town was there. Men and women in their Sunday best.

Along with the townfolk were the personalities of the region. Heads of the Church and the mayors of surrounding municipalities.

The Members of Parliament were there, MNA's the heads of the post office, gathered in a party atmosphere.

They assembled for a ceremony, the wine and the home-cooked goodies which the women had prepared for the event.

Louis St. Laurent, the Compton native who rose to prominence in Canadian politics would have liked it that way. He was that kind of man.

The events of yesterday were in honor of Mr. St. Laurent, who died in July at the age of 90.

Not since the funeral had Compton, the tiny village located 12 miles from Sherbrooke, seen so many important people.

Postmaster General Andre Ouellet presided at a ceremony yesterday afternoon marking the issue of a seven cent stamp honoring Canada's 12th prime minister.

It was fitting that the population which admired and respected the man who brought the Eastern Townships into the homes of all Canadians, was invited.

The new stamp is part of a series of new low value stamps against 23 per cent for Giscard d'Estaing.

highlighting our historical heritage which first began to be issued in October 1973.

The stamp honoring Mr. St. Laurent was not part of the original series because he was still alive when the series was planned. It is not the policy of the Canada post office department to honor any living person on stamp issues, except members of the Royal family.

"So in this man, both one of yours and one of ours, we want to pay tribute to a great Canadian at the crossroads of a village and history," Mr. Ouellet told the gathering.

The pen and ink drawing of Mr. St. Laurent is the work of David Annesley of Beaverton, Ontario. He is the designer of the series which includes six other former prime ministers and Queen Elizabeth II.

Louis St. Laurent, the distinguished lawyer who was born in Compton in 1882, joins Prime Ministers John A. Macdonald, Wilfrid Laurier, Lester Pearson, William Lyon Mackenzie King, Robert Borden and R.B. Bennett in the honor.

"How many cities, regions and villages would have liked, would have hoped and most, would have been proud of, giving Canada a Prime Minister of the calibre of Louis St. Laurent," Mr. Ouellet said.

"It was through destiny that he was born and grew up here, and destiny did things well, as all his life this great politician was stamped by his origins and had a deep remembrance of his native village."

"Indeed you senior citizens — Stanislas Carrier, Nelson Veilleux, Adelard Bolduc and others — have not forgotten his visits to Compton when he was Minister of Justice, Secretary of State for External Affairs or Prime Minister of Canada," he added.

"They tell us that coming out of church after mass, Louis St. Laurent wanted to shake hands with his compatriots and chat with his childhood friends."

Mr. St. Laurent, after a distinguished legal career, joined the war cabinet at the urging of Prime Minister King in 1941.

He was elected to the House of Commons in 1942 and re-elected in a subsequent general election.

Weicker disclosure reveals new misuse of U.S. tax regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service used United States tax laws as weapons against militant and radical groups working against President Nixon's policies, say memos made public by Senator Lowell Weicker.

The memos chronicled the creation during the first year of the Nixon administration of a special IRS force aimed at collecting intelligence about individuals and groups identified variously as activist, ideological, radical, militant or subversive.

Weicker told a joint session of three Senate subcommittees he has documents indicating the effort was part of an overall plan to create a centralized intelligence-gathering apparatus aimed at bringing pressure to bear on organizations and persons hostile to Nixon.

One link in the intelligence chain was former New York City detective Anthony Ulasewicz who investigated politicians, including some Republicans, during a three-year undercover mission for the White House, Weicker said.

Weicker read into the record a summary of Ulasewicz's efforts to obtain what Weicker called "political dirt" on such politicians as Senators Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Edmund Muskie of Maine and House of Representatives Speaker Carl Albert.

Mitterrand, d'Estaing join fray in French presidential contest

PARIS (Reuters) — Battle lines for the French presidential election were drawn Monday with Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing entering on the right and Socialist party chief Francois Mitterrand on the left.

Giscard d'Estaing, 48, France's economic wizard, became the third candidate from the government majority, increasing the strains now tearing at Gaullist ranks.

He portrayed himself as the late president Georges Pompidou's personal choice for the succession and sought to place himself above party and ideological bickering.

By contrast, the 57-year-old Mitterrand became the candidate of the French left, including socialists, Communist and left-wing radicals, for the first round of the election May 5.

The congress unanimously supported Mitterrand, who won 45 per cent of the presidential vote in an unsuccessful runoff against Gen. Charles de Gaulle in 1965.

Giscard d'Estaing appealed directly to French voters, except hard-core supporters of the Socialist-Communist left, to carry him to the presidency at the head of a new, enlarged government majority.

EIGHTEEN STRESS

But despite Giscard

d'Estaing's entry into the presidential battle, his candidacy is certain to aggravate the stresses within the current Gaullist-led majority.

Pitted against him on the government side are Gaullist former premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, his arch-rival, and liberal Gaullist Edgar Faure, who announced their candidacies almost simultaneously three hours after Pompidou's burial last Thursday.

The proliferation of major candidates on the right raised fears among government supporters that Mitterrand will win in the first-round voting May 5. If no candidate gets a majority, a runoff between the two top men will be held May 19.

The finance minister, first brought into government by de Gaulle 12 years ago, joined the struggle fully aware that Chaban-Delmas had only Sunday received support of the Gaullist UDR party.

Giscard d'Estaing promised that as president he would pursue Pompidou's goal of achieving full European union by 1980 and would maintain France's independence of all powers.

A poll published Monday by the news magazine Le Point—the first public-opinion survey since Pompidou's death last Tuesday—showed that 43 per cent of government supporters preferred Chaban-Delmas against 23 per cent for Giscard d'Estaing.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued to decline sharply in moderate trading Monday. The gold index had its largest drop on record and other major indicators slipped to their January levels.

The gold index fell 44.9 to 542.32 in response to a sharp decline in gold prices in Europe. The index has fallen steadily since closing at record high of 617.61 April 2. The previous record decline was 32.3 points on March 5.

Among golds, Dome Mines fell 12 to $168, Campbell Red Lake 9 1/2 to $82, Pamour 1 1/2 to $16, Camflo 1 1/4 to $18 1/2 and Dickenson 1 to $9 1/2.

The industrial index, widely based indicator of market trend, was off 2.36 to 210.92.

lowest close since Jan. 28. Base metals fell 1.86 to 97.75 and western oils 4.03 to 250, lowest level for both since Jan. 2.

Analysts say the lower New York market continues to be the main influence on Toronto trends. New York had a second consecutive decline in response to rising interest rates.

At Toronto, declines outnumbered advances by nearly five to one.

It's that time of year again

Annual reports: What to look for

TORONTO (CP) — The annual report season is here again, the time of the year when shareholders have a chance to look over their company's performance and raise questions at the annual meeting.

Astute readers can learn a lot from reports if they know what to look for.

D. M. Snell, a Toronto partner in Coopers and Lybrand, chartered accountants, comments in a recent issue of Corporate Reporting: "One thing an annual report should not be an ego trip for management, complete with splashy pictures, references to 'happy times' and little else."

The place to begin is the auditor's statement. This is where the auditor reports on the fairness of presentation of financial statements and whether they have been prepared in accordance with generally adopted accounting principles consistently applied.

Mr. Snell notes that an auditor can only express an opinion that he agrees, agrees conditionally or disagrees with the financial statement.

The majority of readers still believe—erroneously—that the financial statements and notes are basically the work and responsibility of the auditors, he says.

The core of the annual report is the financial statement.

Babson's investment service says financial statements should be written in conventional terminology and include year-to-year comparisons, supplemented by important statistics going back, preferably, for a decade.

The balance sheet should state inventories, accompanied by a breakdown and basis of evaluation in the notes, a description of the parent company's investments in subsidiaries and issue and redemption of shares.

The earnings statement should include sales figures plus details of costs of goods sold and operating expenses. Operating and other income should be presented separately as should non-recurring income and expense items.

EXPLAIN TAX STATUS

The depreciation method should be described in the notes and an explanation if the method has been changed. The company's income tax position should also be described in the notes, especially when deferred taxes are involved, Babson's says.

The directors' report "ought to be a frank discussion of strengths and weaknesses of performance and not just public relations blarney."

In this report, should be some kind of company view of industry conditions and interpretation of economic events.

And discussion of company operations should include comments on product pricing, supplies, labor relations, high level personnel changes, research, effects of international monetary conditions, acquisitions, disposals and capital spending plans.

Canada: Companies predict rapid growth

LONDON (CP) — David Nicholson, chairman of British Airways Corp., says forecasts made by his company show Canada will have one of the world's most rapid growth rates during the coming years. It is an assessment, he said, shared by most major companies in Europe.

Nicholson, addressing a seminar recently on British investment in Canada, added, however, that Europeans do not expect the Canadian consumer market this year to match the high 20-per-cent growth of 1973.

"But a gain of between eight and 10 per cent does not seem unrealistic," he added.

The energy shortage, he said, would give a tremendous boost to oil exploration in Canada and the oil sands of Alberta would be an increasingly attractive commercial venture.

"Canada's own export growth depends to a great extent on what happens in the U.S. and although there will probably be only a relatively mild slowdown, the European businessman believes it will be significant enough to reduce the overall rate of growth," Nicholson said.

But he stressed that this would not likely have serious long-term effects.

The conference was sponsored by The Financial Times of Britain and The Financial Post of Canada in co-operation with British Airways and Air Canada.

J. H. Warren, Canadian high commissioner to Britain, said he has been encouraged by the new Labor government's decision to press for more liberal trade policies within the European Common Market and for changes in the community's agricultural program which would provide greater access for efficient overseas producers.

But "if Europe, contrary to our hopes ... maintains protectionist agricultural policies, our full scope as agricultural producers may not be realized," he added.

Warren said Canada is striving to become a greater exporter of manufactured goods. But it has not been greatly helped in this regard by the widespread foreign control of more important resource industries.

Canada has suffered "to the extent that companies exporting unprocessed raw materials from Canada to their affiliated companies and customers abroad have failed to exploit the possibilities of sales of products with greater value added."

John Roberts, former Ontario premier, described details of new Canadian legislation governing foreign takeovers and H. A. McKenzie, president of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. of Toronto, said industrial unrest in the Canadian resources field "does not bode well for the future."

New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices on the New York stock market dropped sharply Monday in reaction to a prime rate increase by one major U.S. bank.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip issues lost 7.58 to 839.96 while the NYSE composite index fell 52 to 49.03. Declines outnumbered advances by almost three-to-one.

Declines	1,115	1,074
Unchanged	340	367
Total	1,778	1,774

Bankers Trust Co. of New York announced before trading opened Monday it was raising its prime rate, the rate of interest a bank charges its best customers, to 10 per cent from 9 1/2 per cent.

The increase resulted in a sharp decline in early trading. Brokers said the prime rate is psychologically important because it is the most widely publicized barometer of general interest rate trends.

Standard Oil of California was the most active issue, dropping 1/2 to $27 1/2.

GOLDS FALL
Golds, which are usually strong in a declining market, were among the largest losers Monday as bullion prices fell on world markets.

Among gold issues, Dome Mines lost 12 to 73 1/2, Campbell Red Lake 6 1/2 to $84 1/2 and Homestake 4 1/2 to $83 1/2.

Steel, farm implement, oil and most forest products issues were also lower while auto stocks were mixed and airline issues scored fractional gains.

Moutain Fuel Supply was up 2 to $7 1/4 after the company reported an oil find in Wyoming.

Watkins-Johnson, which said it might show a decline in profits during the first quarter, lost 2 1/2 to $25.

Among Canadian issues listed on the New York market, Alcan lost 1/2 to $34, Seagrams 1/4 to $42 1/2, Massey-Ferguson 1/2 to $17 1/2 and Walkers 1/2 to $49.

Bus-building firm expects smooth going

WINNIPEG (CP) — After a long uphill climb, Flyer Industries Ltd. of Winnipeg anticipates a smooth riding in the bus-building field.

The new $2.5-million plant the firm has just opened in the city's east end makes Flyer the largest Canadian-owned bus manufacturer in Canada.

Founded in Winnipeg in 1930, the company last year became wholly owned by the Manitoba Development Corp., a provincial government agency.

The government feels that electrified urban transit systems offer an important solution to the dwindling supply of fossil fuels.

Flyer entered the urban transit field in 1968 and until recently was the only producer of trolley buses in North America.

Flyer's new plant, which occupies 150,000 square feet, has the capacity to produce about 800 units annually for urban transit systems.

Flyer makes bus shells for the U.S. market under a 1971 agreement with American Motors General Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Motors.

Final assembly is at American Motors General's plant in Mishawaka, Ind. Flyer's main competitor is General Motors and its Canadian Subsidiary.

HAILS NEW ERA

Company president S. H. Maunmarm feels it's the start of a new era for Flyer, which has nearly 700 employees in its four facilities in Winnipeg.

"We now have the capacity to produce, in one year, more than double the number of buses we produced in the last four years."

"With these new facilities and the level of people attracted to Flyer now, we feel our position in this competitive industry has been strengthened 10-fold."

The new plant employs about 400 and is capable of producing one fully completed bus for Canadian sales and three shells for American Motors General every eight hours.

Flyer has produced buses for Dayton, Ohio and San Francisco and for such Canadian cities as Toronto, Vancouver, Ottawa, Hamilton, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg.

Flyer officials say sales in excess of $15 million for 1974 already has been confirmed.

The company is also planning for future production of small buses carrying 15 to 25 passengers that could be used for dial-a-bus systems or airport limousines.

Oil baron claims profits have not been excessive

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bookout, president of Shell Canada Ltd., says oil industry profits in Canada to date have not "by any standard" been excessive.

Shell Canada's return on capital invested during 1973 was 12.5 per cent and it came after many years of returns between seven and nine per cent, he says in the company's annual report released recently.

"This is still inadequate in relation to the high risk and large capital needs of the business."

Mr. Bookout says that for every $1 of revenue generated by Shell Canada last year, 64 cents went to purchase raw materials and supplies and meet operating costs and wages. Of the remainder, 28 cents went to governments in the form of various taxes, six cents were reinvested in Canada and two cents were paid to shareholders.

Unless frontier and offshore reserves are brought into production, he said, crude oil production from commercially available areas at present will likely fall short of Canada's total domestic consumption by the late 1970s.

As reported earlier, consolidated earnings in 1973 for the company amounted to $112.5 million or $1.13 a share compared with $79 million and 79 cents a year earlier.

ETAT ASKED FOR CALENDAR ENDORSEMENT

The Eastern Townships Regional School Board is seeking endorsement of its proposed 1974-75 school calendar from the Eastern Townships Association of Teachers (ETAT).

Marlis Wehr, president of ETAT, has previously advised the ETRSB that teachers would be willing to accept the calendar, despite some annoyances therein contained. The cause for ETRSB's pursuit of the matter lies in the school board's intention of holding planning day workshops on Saturdays twice during the year.

Because ETRSB officials have recognized the teachers' right to refuse to work on Saturdays, they are asking for the official approval of ETAT, the union which groups all persons teaching in ETRSB schools. The calendar was proposed with Saturday sessions in order to permit the teachers an Easter holiday during 1975.

RRHS LOCKERS INSTALLED BY JUNE

The full-length double lockers for Richmond Regional High School are expected to be in the school by the end of June. Students will then be able to use private smaller lockers for books and valuables and the larger ones for bulkier possessions.

The cost of the lockers will be paid by the board over a five-year period on the following basis: government grant for principal capital outlay, ETRSB payment from local taxes of interest charges.

Students at Alexander Galt Regional High School were also to gain full-length double lockers. However, when they learned that they would have no private lockers, they overwhelmingly voted against the locker installation. The school, according to ETRSB officials, is too small to permit students to retain the smaller lockers they now possess in addition to the full-length ones.

Students, teachers, administrators and other persons attached to AGRHS have urged the school board to use the money which was to have been spent on lockers for other improvements to their school.

Wendell Sparkes, director-general of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, attributes the difference between Galt's decision to refuse lockers and Richmond's acceptance of lockers primarily to differences between the physical plants of the two schools.

According to him, the Richmond school possesses open areas sufficiently large to accommodate all students' lockers, while AGRHS does not. Further, he remarks, the lockers of the Richmond students will be much closer to the locations of the students' classes than would have been the case with the Galt lockers.

"Some students at Alexander Galt would have had to walk literally miles to get from their lockers to their classes," he asserts.

He also notes that the Richmond students and teachers were aware of the fact that the full-length lockers will be shared between two students, while the Galt complement was not.

ETRSB SPECIAL EDUCATION

The executive committee of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board has just concluded the idea of establishing a system of rotating special education teachers between special classes and the regular stream. Though it has not discussed specific policy, the committee has encouraged its administrators to prepare a proposal on the matter for board consideration.

At the last meeting of the board executive, Dick Turpin, ETRSB co-ordinator of student services, urged commissioners to take action to free teachers currently involved in special education classes from the program once they have indicated a desire for such freedom.

"It's a shame to keep someone who doesn't want to stay in special education classes teaching there," he told commissioners. "It's very taxing on an individual's emotional structure to teach there for more than two years without a break."

Noting that the board has been unable to transfer teachers to other programs in the past because of a lack of teachers willing to enter special education, Mr. Turpin felt that the future might bring the feasibility of developing such transferral mechanisms. Already this year, he claimed, two teachers have expressed a willingness to leave their current programs in order to teach special education.

In other special education matters, the ETRSB is finding itself with a readjustment in its enrolment ratios. After an extensive testing program performed this year, the school board has placed a large number of students formerly in classes with eight-to-one student-teacher ratios in classes with 15-to-one ratios. The smaller classes are for emotionally disturbed children while the others are for students with other forms of learning disabilities.

Mr. Turpin attributes the revised placement to a newly-developed "hard-nosed" attitude on the part of school board officials in dealing with recent dicta from the ministry of education.

RENOVATION OF AGRHS OPEN LOCKER SPACE

The Eastern Townships Regional School Board is undertaking a study of space availability at Alexander Galt Regional High School with a view to possible renovation of the school's now-unused open locker spaces into teaching stations.

Originally the space was set aside for use as cloakrooms but lack of protection led to stealing and subsequently to disuse by the vast majority of students. By now, the students have learned how to use their private book-lockers as receptacles for all personal belongings, including winter clothes and boots.

Faced with a continuing problem of shortage of space for offering programs, the school board is now considering using the space for other purposes, notably teaching.

The students, however, also have plans for use of at least some of the space and have sought board approval to establish a lounge for the fourth and fifth levels of the student population.

In initiating the examination of space, the board has given the priority to academic needs. If it finds that some space will not be needed for these purposes, then there is the possibility that students will be enabled to establish a lounge.

Frank Boushel, AGRHS principal, told the ETRSB executive: "I don't want to say yes to the students now and then find in September that the space is needed and that I have to take it back."

Wendell Sparkes, ETRSB director-general, expressed doubt about the student-proposed lounge. Among his criticisms was the observation that the projected lounge could hold 50 students at a given time, while some 900 students are enrolled in the two levels for which it would be established.

The study should be completed and the board's decision made by late April or early May.

LDSB CANCELS APRIL CONCERT

The Lennoxville District School Board has cancelled the third of three projected symphony orchestra concerts for elementary school children. Originally, the school board had anticipated bringing some students to three concerts for a total of $1.50 per child.

However, the last two of the package have both been eliminated because school board officials believed the program selection to have been too complex for the children. Parents who paid for the package should be refunded in the near future, according to Hugh Auger, LDSB director-general.

For excessively high school taxes

Knowlton residents told municipality to blame

KNOWLTON - Brome Lake (Staff)

Sylvester White told nearly 300 Town of Brome Lake residents Saturday their school taxes have been appreciably increased because their municipality failed to ensure that evaluations were made at fair market value.

Mr. White, deputy minister of the provincial education ministry, made his remarks in response to a petition initiated by the Citizens Reform and Advisory Group, which protested the sharp tax increases which have resulted from the municipality's recently-completed scientific evaluation.

Wesley Hodgson, a group spokesman, drew attention to the surge in the municipal evaluation from $3.5 million in 1973 to $35 million in 1974. Suggesting the mill rate should have been decreased ten fold in order to compensate for the evaluation increase, Col. Hodgson said many persons had seen their school taxes increase by amounts between 200-400 per cent.

"Because this area is a recreational site, taxes have gone up, but what has not been taken into account is the fact that it is packed with guys who are surviving on marginal incomes, and that these people have seen their land become too valuable for them to live on," declared Col. Hodgson.

Calling the government the culprit, he called for two changes in the present taxation system. First, in the immediate situation, he recommended implementation of negative factors by the town council, a solution which he predicted has little chance of being used.

In the second place, Col. Hodgson supported the concept of a revised system in which the cost of education is borne by everyone through a direct income tax 'chip' instead of by the property owners. He asserted that only 30 per cent of the parents of children attending Massey-Vanier Regional High School actually own land.

In an interview with The Record, he complained about the government's reactions to these criticisms.

"The government always says that tenants pay for the schools through rents which pass on such expenses, but around here a person who wants to rent a place cannot assess any charges over minimum rental costs," he claimed.

James Boule, director of finance for the District of Bedford Regional School Board, which runs the schools and assesses the taxes in the area, sees things differently.

"It appears that the system is filled with fewer inequities now in the Town of Brome Lake than was previously the case. If the evaluations had been assessed properly in the first place, there wouldn't be any of these problems now," he contended.

Attributing the long-standing inequalities to 'social considerations', Mr. Boule declared that the average increase in taxes is 57 per cent.

"For there to be an increase of that amount, with some persons paying as much as 400 per cent more, a significant portion of the population — as much as 10-15 per cent — must boast tax cuts," he remarked.

Mr. Boule also stated that the situation is not unique to the Town of Brome Lake since every one of the province's municipalities must undertake to have a scientific evaluation performed by 1975, in accordance with article 373 of the education act and Bill 33.

Even Col. Hodgson, however, attested to the fact that taxes have been low in the township. His principal complaint centered on the fact that the increase has been too much too quickly.

"I know at least two guys who are already trying to sell their land because they can't afford to pay the taxes," he asserted. "I ask myself whether it isn't wrong to ask a fellow 65 or 70 years old to move and change his whole way of life. After all, there are human considerations and this system doesn't take them into account."

From this point, Col. Hodgson questions as to whether payment school taxes shouldn't stop when a certain age is reached.

"There are people paying school taxes who haven't had children in school for 40 years. Maybe they should stop paying for education when they reach retirement age," he commented.

"In the present situation," Col. Hodgson declared, "the only way to get anywhere is through the politicians, so we're going to put pressure on Glen Brown, our local MNA."

Going to the movies?

SHERBROOKE (CC) — For the past two weeks English-speaking movie-goers have had to do without an English film in Sherbrooke. But when they find out what films are scheduled in the next month, they won't have minded waiting.

Since the new regional shopping centre, Carrefour de l'Estrie, opened its doors nearly six months ago, at least one of the three cinemas there had been used to show an English-language film.

Cinema two, operated by Cinema Unis, has shown, at times, top rate films. However, during the past 15 days a new release in French, 'Bingo', has been shown there.

Theatre manager Jean Renee Robitaille explained yesterday that due to the demand, both cinema two and three were used to show the film 'Bingo'.

"Here movie talks," he said. "As long as a film is making money then we will keep it."

But Mr. Robitaille said all will return to normal on Friday. At that time a new Walt Disney Productions film, 'Robin Hood', will be shown.

The film, which can only be described as family entertainment, is scheduled to last one week. But beginning the following Friday, local residents will be treated to three of the best films of 1973.

The first to move in will be 'Papillon', a $13,000,000 extravaganza starring top box-office attractions Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman.

The film will be followed with 'The Exorcist'. What more can be said about the film which has created a sensation throughout North America and continues to attract large audiences everywhere.

Following that will be the academy award winning film, 'The Sting', which copied the best film honors last week. The film, which stars Paul Newman and Robert Redford, continues to play to full houses in Montreal.

Mr. Robitaille said that the films will be replaced as their popularity wanes. "As long as there are enough people coming then we will keep the film here," he said.

Mr. Robitaille added that first class films will be presented as long as there is a demand for them and people are willing to come in sufficient numbers.

Champlain Teachers Union calls for high-level MVR resignations

LONGUEUIL (Staff) — Andre Reny, president of the Champlain Teachers Union, has called for the resignations of Fernand Barsalou and Jacques Hillman, director-general of Davignon Regional School Board and director of education at Massey-Vanier Regional High School (MVRHS), respectively, and has demanded a full investigation of the school and school board.

Charging that there is a great chance that many students will fail their year, Mr. Reny claimed that 900 of the 1900 students attending the Francophone portion of MVRHS had been placed in wrong classes at the outset of the current school year.

Among other mistakes which he contended have been made by the school board were the failure to provide enough space for students in several courses; discriminatory allocation of 20 per cent of the recreational budget for four per cent of the student body; and the failure of the board to account for expenditures in several of its budget categories.

St. Laurent honored

He was named Minister of Justice and in 1946 Secretary of State for External Affairs. In 1948, he became Prime Minister, an office which he held until 1957.

Although everybody had their chance to talk about "Uncle Louis", it was in a story told by Mr. Ouellet that the townspeople remembered their leader.

Mr. Ouellet recalled one visit the then Prime Minister had made to Compton. On this great visit the village had been decorated with flags and the entire population had assembled in front of the St. Laurent homestead to welcome him.

Among others, standing at his side, was Xenophile Lalumiere, with whom he had wandered through the fields and jumped fences together.

"Mr. St. Laurent could not hold the tears that came to his eyes," Mr. Ouellet said.

The words which Mr. St. Laurent spoke at that time still remain in the hearts of elderly Compton residents.

"We talk so often of the government of the people, for the people, by the people," Mr. St. Laurent had said.

"Tell me, do we not have the proof of this right here in front of us? There is something beautiful in our democracy, way of life, when a small village like Compton can produce a man who is the Prime Minister of all of Canada. To my mind, this is a democracy at its best."

But even more, Mr. St. Laurent coined one of the most moving statements in the history of our region. "The dream I cherish most," he said, "is to spread throughout the world 'THE PEACE OF COMPTON'."

After delivering the address and shaking hands with everybody, Mr. St. Laurent sat with his friend Lalumiere on the steps of the house and reminisced about their childhood.

That was Louis St. Laurent and that was the way the people gathered yesterday remembered him.

Mr. Ouellet said: "Let us be proud..." and the residents of Compton and surrounding area were.

University singers perform

LENNOXVILLE — The University Singers will perform Handel's Messiah, Parts II and III, on Good Friday, April 12, at 8:30 p.m., in St. George's Anglican Church, Lennoxville.

The work will be conducted by Howard Brown, with soloists Cheryl Dutton, Rosemary McLeod, Robert Peters and Earl Pennington. Catherine Moore, organ, and Nanette Detchon, harpsichord, will be accompanists.

Composed in 1742, Messiah is the most famous of Handel's oratorios. It established his reputation in England, despite its lack of characters and plot. The whole work is a contemplation of the life of Christ, and dramatic through the intensity of feeling.

Choral societies have always been fond of this oratorio. One reads of huge Handel festivals during the nineteenth century, such as the one in 1857 at the Crystal Palace in Norwood, near London, where 3000 chorists and 400 instrumentalists participated.

The report of the event, which drew an estimated 40,000 people, says of the opening concert "the 'Hallelujah Chorus' could be distinctly heard nearly half a mile from Norwood."

Perhaps it is no wonder that Queen Victoria, herself, turned up for the second concert. The performance by the Singers promises to be on a somewhat more modest scale.

A zone of peace

Everybody seems to be hanging on the lips of Sheikh Yamani, the oil spokesman of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, and of President Sadat of Egypt, whose flip-flopping between the Soviet Union and the United States has been as dextrous as that of his friend and last week's host, Marshal Tito. The latter, despite all rumors to the contrary, was well enough to toast Mr. Sadat, at the same time chiding the Egyptian for trusting the wicked Americans too much.

Considering that had it not been for the wicked Americans, Marshal Tito would long ago have disappeared into the limbo that the Soviet Union keeps on the Gulag Peninsula for heretics and similar undesirables, one might be allowed to raise slightly one's eyebrows. However, President Sadat, whose latest accounts of the October war have left those who had followed the fighting in some detail breathless with wonder, is said to have convinced the aging Yugoslav marshal that all was for the best in the best of all possible Third Worlds.

As one reads the pronouncements of men once described by the late President Truman as "tinpot dictators," one is reminded of the great importance attributed in the prewar years to a splendid formula devised by Romania's Titulescu, on the then pressing diplomatic need to placate Albania's King Zog. It was all very interesting in its way, but it was of as little intrinsic importance as are the wide-ranging plans of Sheikh Yamani or Marshal Tito. In the real world the oil sheikhs, oil colonels and oil dictators are a pitiful collection of weak states, politically fragile and militarily defenceless, and it is unlikely that they will be allowed to pile up their enormous reserves without some eager hands grabbing for them.

History is full of sad examples of fat, wealthy men easily overcome by men with a lean and hungry look, and whether those who will supplant the sheikhs — and Marshal Tito, their friend — will be local dissidents doing their thing or the Soviet Union doing her thing through local dissidents, the fact is that we are passing through a very short-term situation and those who build on it are building on Arabian sands.

The unpleasant factors, which the Western world is determined to ignore, are, first, the new might of the Soviet fleet — the Soviet naval expansion and that of the rest of her military build-up by far exceed any legitimate needs of defence — and, secondly, the forthcoming reopening of the Suez Canal, now being cleared by the joint efforts of British and American experts. When the canal has been reopened, the Persian Gulf will become a Soviet lake.

There is a touch of tragicomedy in this performance as we see the British and the Americans not only obligingly clear the canal for the Soviet navy, but also the new British Labor government, the United States Congress and that Australian busybody, Prime Minister Gough Whitlam (whose first act in office was to grant recognition to East Germany) combine their forces to frustrate the puny attempt at providing the Western powers with a counterforce that could hold the Soviet navy in check.

The Diego Garcia base, which would have served a slightly expanded United States navy in the Indian Ocean, is running into difficulties in that the United States Congress has refused funds; the new British Labor government is unwilling to proceed with the agreement pending further study; while Australia's prime minister continues to prate about an Indian Ocean "zone of peace," having been assured that this is also the great desire of the Soviet Union, which he will be visiting shortly.

Meanwhile, the Soviet fleet sits, no doubt peacefully, in her Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf bases, while on Golan Heights Soviet-supplied guns continue, not so peacefully, to boom.

Tanker controversy

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has quietly delivered a secret note to the U.S. state department proposing a five-point program of negotiations aimed at keeping giant oil tankers away from the British Columbia coast and reducing damage from oil spills.

In contrast to past notes on the proposed U.S. tanker route from Alaska, which have been heralded by statements in the Commons by cabinet ministers, the external affairs department this time refuses to disclose the details of the message, delivered last Monday.

But it is understood to contain a request to discuss these points:
—Alternative routes for tankers unloading Alaskan oil at refineries at Cherry Point, Wash., that would reduce the danger of spills in the narrow Strait of Juan de Fuca. One option is setting up a terminal off shore, with an undersea pipeline to the refineries.
—Joint action to set up navigation controls to cut the risk of collisions or groundings.

—Co-operative plans to fight oil spills.
—Joint plans to compensate shore interests in either country for damages from spills.

—Joint planning and consultation on a long-term basis to govern coastal shipping in the interests of residents on both sides of the border.

CONFIRM DELIVERY

Confirming delivery of the note, officials said their hush-hush strategy is aimed at convincing U.S. authorities of Ottawa's desire for "a cool and mature approach" to the pollution dangers of the proposed tanker route, without the heated public pressures that have accompanied such talks in recent years.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who has opposed the tanker route for years, told U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger Feb. 10 that the Canadian note would be coming.

Officials say that under international law, Canada could not impose unilateral barriers against ships moving into Cherry Point. So negotiations are necessary to reach agreements to help prevent spills.

A 40,000-ton oil spill near Cherry Point could foul the shore of B.C.'s Boundary Bay within 48 hours and cost as much as $25 million to clean up, it is estimated.

Officials now regard the Alaska pipeline and tanker route down the B.C. coast—finally approved by the U.S. Senate last July—as a fait accompli.

But they hope to win agreement with Washington on their proposals in the three years before oil begins to flow.

"The fight is just beginning on this," Mr. Sharp told reporters last July.

"There's no necessity for those tankers to move into Cherry Point."

The decision to go ahead with the Alaska pipeline and tanker route—opposed by the government and by the Commons in two unanimous resolutions in 1972—may make negotiations easier now.

RESIST ATTEMPTS

Mr. Sharp told the House last August that Washington had resisted all previous attempts to negotiate controls "simply because the administration was absolutely committed to proceeding with the Alaska line and did not want any studies or discussions going on that might have thrown any doubts upon it."

Until last July, the U.S. administration had been fighting off both court cases and congressional opposition aimed at stopping the Alaska plan.

One alternative offered by Mr. Sharp last fall—a pipeline to Cherry Point from Canada—has already been killed by the government's decision to build a pipeline to Montreal. That would funnel all available western oil to Eastern Canada, leaving little for export to Washington state.

Munro wins plaudits

OTTAWA (CP) — The successful personal intervention of Labor Minister John Munro in the Great Lakes shipping strike has won him unexpected accolades and offset an embarrassing reverse he suffered during the railway dispute last year.

Early this week, after strenuous and nearly continuous negotiating efforts from Thursday afternoon to Monday morning, the minister and his assistants helped representatives of 3,750 seafarers and the Canadian Lake Carriers' Association achieve a tentative contract agreement in Montreal.

That settlement is almost sure to be accepted by the seamen.

Early results in a ratification vote indicate an overwhelming majority favor the proposed agreement that gives the workers annual wage increases of 10 per cent and 12 per cent, respectively, in each year of a two-year agreement.

Seamen in Montreal and Quebec City have accepted the settlement and votes from four Ontario cities and the Atlantic region are expected by Thursday.

Mr. Munro's part in the settling of the potentially-serious walkout has brought him praise from the union and shippers, kudos from New Democratic Leader David Lewis, and, more quietly, individual congratulations from prominent Conservatives.

But last summer, Mr. Munro found himself in a different position.

As rotating strikes of 57,000 non-operating railway workers hit one region after another in July and August, he leaped into the troubled waters of the contract dispute.

His efforts failed after several days, the rotating strikes escalated into a national walkout and Parliament had to be recalled to deal with the dispute.

He recalled in an interview Tuesday that perhaps he had given an overly-optimistic impression to the public during the rail dispute. In fact, he said, he was less happy about the possible results of his intervention privately.

Last Wednesday, when he announced his intention of going to Montreal, he was careful not to overstate his optimism.

When Mr. Munro called the parties together last week, they had not been talking since the 12-day strike began.

"I felt the right time had come to get them together," he said Tuesday. The possibility of potentially-disastrous shipping strikes that could affect movement of grain, oil, coal and iron overshadowed the dispute.

For Mr. Munro and his officials, the settlement was perhaps the high point in his 16-month term in the hectic labor portfolio.

Since he became labor minister in November, 1972, there have been strikes involving three different groups of Air Canada employees, a walkout of CP Air machinists, the national rail strike and a work stoppage by Saint John, N.B., longshoremen, as well as the seafarers' dispute.

What do I see!

Sir:

As I was driving up Belvidere street in Lennoxville Saturday night about 11:15 p.m., not far from one of the new watering holes (pubs they call them) of which I think there are way too many, but our dear government still allows, there, walking on the white line in the middle of our potholes (streets I mean) was this idiot who was pulling his pants down in front of all the passing motorists — one of our future doctors or lawyers, who is probably attending Bishop's.

Anglo-Canadian nuclear accord in limbo

LONDON (CP) — The new Labor government is likely to make a decision soon on Britain's next generation of nuclear reactors, and Canadian officials are optimistic that they might get a more sympathetic hearing on their proposals for major Anglo-Canadian co-operation in this field.

This view is based on statements some Labor ministers and MPs made when they were in opposition before the Feb. 28 general election in which Edward Heath's Conservative party was defeated.

Also, there is a feeling among Canadians that many Labor members instinctively oppose any "Buy American" scheme and would prefer to see Britain manage with its own troubled nuclear system or look to increased co-operation with Canada.

Nevertheless, Canadians are uneasy over renewed pressure being applied on the government to decide soon in favor of the U.S. reactor system or miss out on the chances for Anglo-French collaboration in reactors.

Promoters of the Westinghouse-produced reactor warned recently that unless Britain makes a speedy decision, the French company Framatome—45-per cent owned by Westinghouse—will be forced to look to another country as a partner. To succeed, the French program needs orders for six big reactors a year for the next seven years.

BELIEVED UNSAFE

Labor politicians, when in opposition, were generally hostile toward the U.S. reactors, particularly on grounds of safety, which has been greatly criticized in certain quarters in the U.S.

They also accused the American company of wooing scientists here away from the British reactor system in favor of the U.S. pressurized water reactor using enriched uranium.

Canada hopes to interest Britain in its Candu reactor, using natural uranium and similar in basic technology to the British steam-generating heavy-water reactor. Failing that, the Canadians would like Anglo-Canadian co-operation in the reactor field, with an eye to selling jointly in third-country markets.

Much of Canada's high-powered salesmanship was directed at the previous Conservative government. Energy Minister Donald Macdonald met in February with Heath the day after the Conservative leader called the snap election.

The expectation is that Canada soon will announce another such visit here to confer with the new energy minister, Eric Varley, and other officials.

GET CAREFUL STUDY

Varley has said he is keeping an open mind on all of Britain's options. He recently told a news conference the Labor government would examine the Canadian proposals closely.

He also promised the House of Commons that there would be a full debate on the issue, possibly before Easter. He said it would not be a routine debate after the cabinet had secretly made a decision but a sincere attempt to hear all views before deciding.

Shortly before the election, a delegation from the Nuclear Power Advisory Board visited Canada to inspect Candu facilities. Aside from its report, the new government also has before it the report of the House committee on science and technology which was generally critical of the U.S. reactor system. It urged a new look at the British system and was cordial to the idea of Anglo-Canadian co-operation.

CIA's Watergate victim

Jack Anderson's
Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — The Watergate has claimed a major victim in the Central Intelligence Agency with the forced retirement of its dedicated director of security, Howard Osborn.

A veteran of 26 years at the cloak-and-dagger complex, the 56-year-old Osborn was caught up in the suppression of a mysterious CIA memo which described how documents were burned at the home of Waterbugger James McCord, an ex-CIA agent.

The secret memo was based on information supplied by a former FBI inspector, Lee Pennington, who was then working with the CIA as a paid "consultant."

Pennington, an old family friend of the McCords, had visited Mrs. McCord after her husband was arrested inside Democratic headquarters in June 1972. He found her burning papers and documents. Earlier, she had burned typewriter ribbons.

Pennington loyally reported the episode to his CIA bosses and the CIA wrote it up in memo form. For more than a year and a half, it lay in the CIA files like a paper bomb.

Meanwhile, FBI sleuths were asking embarrassing questions about whether the CIA knew of destroyed documents from among McCord's papers and were getting persistent denials from the CIA.

Finally, Senate Watergate Vice Chairman Howard Baker, R-Tenn., began snooping into the CIA role in the cover-up and a middle-level CIA employee who knew of the hidden memo threatened to blow the whistle. After some panicky debate, CIA Director William Colby was reluctantly told of the suppressed memo.

Colby quickly contacted Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., chairman of a House intelligence subcommittee. They agreed that the best course was to let all Capitol Hill committees involved in the Watergate probe as well as Leon Jaworski's special prosecutors know about the cover-up memo.

Nedzi, after full hearings with Pennington, McCord and CIA officials, including Osborn, concluded that the CIA had not dispatched Pennington to burn the papers as the memo seemed to suggest. Osborn claimed he did not even know of the memo. Nevertheless, Nedzi and Colby were both worried about the cover-up.

"It led to the early retirement of Osborn," Nedzi told us. When we reached the ex-CIA security boss at his home near the agency he had served so long, he clung firmly to his oath of secrecy.

"I had planned for over a year to retire in June," Osborn insisted gamely. "I realized there was no financial benefit to staying and decided to retire...."

Navy Blues: A defense contractor has charged that a boyhood friend of Sen. Russell Long, D-La., offered the senator's services for $150,000 to settle the contractor's dispute with the Navy.

The unwitting Long, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, knew nothing of the offer, according to his office, nor has our investigation showed Long ever authorized it. J. Roy Becnel, who is accused of making the offer, swore to us: "I never asked for a dime. I never expected anything."

In direct contradiction to Becnel, the contractor, Lewis Malnak, of Cherry Hill, N.J., has told questioning Internal Revenue Service investigators that Becnel sought cash for his services.

Malnak, president of Lew Malnak Associates, went to Becnel in 1972 for help in settling a $750,000 contract claim with the Navy. Malnak says he had heard Becnel knew Long and that Becnel identified himself as a "bag man" for the Louisiana senator.

Malnak swears that Becnel asked for $50,000 in cash "to get the claim settled immediately" through Long's office. When Malnak protested that he lacked such a large sum, Becnel suggested that he boost his claim above $1 million and pay $150,000 if Becnel's efforts were successful, according to Malnak.

Malnak, with no important contacts in Washington, had tried several times unsuccessfully to see Long's top aide, Bob Hunter. Once Becnel became involved in the case, the barriers fell quickly.

"They walked Becnel in like he was a member of the staff," Malnak recalls. He claims Hunter promised to "look into the case" because Becnel asked him to. Malnak's logs show he met with Hunter three times in 1972.

At the last meeting, Malnak says, he felt Hunter had lost interest. Malnak says he never promised nor paid Becnel a commission, nor ever talked money with Hunter.

In commenting on the case, Hunter says he has known Becnel for years, as has Sen. Long. Hunter recalls meeting with Malnak at Becnel's request, but says he did nothing to help Malnak.

Becnel, a former justice of the peace and drainage contractor, hotly contests Malnak's story. "I'm not a satchel man," he steamed. "I never knew Russell (Long) to take a dime. I'll get hold of Malnak and break his neck."

Footnote: Malnak's interest is in getting his claim settled. He charges he was "blackballed" after his detection equipment discovered that the Navy had bought faulty distress-warning devices for Polaris subs. Reps. Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., and Les Aspin, D-Wis., have asked for a complete Justice Department probe of the Navy's handling of the case.

Junta Hustle: The Treasury Department has informed Rep. Henry Gonzales, D-Tex., that it supports a $23.5 million World Bank loan to the Greek military junta "so that Greece can take advantage of its Association Agreement" with the Common Market.

The truth is that the Common Market virtually suspended Greece in 1967 when it fell under a dictatorship. A Treasury spokesman told us there was "no intention to deceive."

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

More about blood fats

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We read your article about triglycerides. Unfortunately, you gave a lot of information about cholesterol but not about the diet for people who have too much triglycerides in their bloodstream.

I have a count of between 170-175 for triglycerides. The doctor discovered this on a yearly checkup and put me on a diet and then four pills of Atromid-S daily.

My doctor had me avoid generally all sugar, cherries, bananas, grapes and dried fruits. He retired and I have a new one. I don't want to ask too many questions, but he mentions only butter, cheese, full milk and eggs as "forbidden" or taken in small amounts. He did not mention sugar, cherries, bananas, grapes or dried fruit.

Could you write what you think about it or what I should eat to control my triglycerides?

DEAR READER — Triglycerides are fats. Most fats are a combination of three fatty acids (hence the prefix "tri") and glycerine (glyceride).

A few years ago there was considerable enthusiasm about limiting sweets in the diet of persons with high triglycerides. Later, with additional studies, it became more clear that the restriction on sweets usually worked because this decreased the calories and the patients lost weight. The weight loss was the real factor that improved the blood fats.

In your case, as you mention in the rest of your letter, you did not have a significant weight problem. So, your new doctor is reflecting the more recent thinking, that if you don't need to lose weight or limit your calories then the intake of carbohydrates is not so important. It is still generally agreed, though, that it is best to get your carbohydrates from good fruits and vegetables rather than as sweets. That way you get more bulk and needed vitamins and minerals.

For a booklet with more information on cholesterol send 50 cents to "Cholesterol," in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am told that if you get too much vitamin A, or if you eat too many oranges that your skin will turn yellow. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Half true. If you eat a lot of carrots, which are a good source of vitamin A, you can have the carrot pigment in your skin. You sometimes see this in infants who are on baby foods that contain too much carrot. Real vitamin A, as opposed to the carrot pigment, does not do this. You would have to consume a lot of oranges to have such a problem. I have never seen this problem caused by oranges alone.

The pigment in carrots is called carotene. The body converts it to vitamin A, which is much less pigmented. It used to be thought that a yellow pigment signified lots of vitamin A. Pale milk or butter was suspect of being less rich in vitamin A. Then it was learned that as pigment was converted to actual vitamin A that it lost its color. In fact, the less yellow milk contained more vitamin A than the yellow milk.

Dr. Lamb welcomes questions from his readers, but because of the volume of mail he cannot answer personally. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

How about college students

Dear Ann Landers: You have spoken up in behalf of waitresses, telephone operators, cab drivers, non-smokers, etc. And now will you please say a kind word for college students who like to sleep in the morning?

I'm a night person and always have been. I don't come alive until 11:00 a.m. I scheduled my classes so I could sleep late because it is sheer torture for me to get up in the morning.

I live in a dorm and that's the rub. Some people around here pop out of bed at the crack of dawn. They think it's their God-given right to awaken the rest of the world. Then there's another problem. Every morning this week the goldarned phone has jarred me out of a sound sleep at 8:00 a.m.

At that miserable hour, everyone else is in class or asleep. Since my room is closest to the phone I have to crawl out of bed and talk to some dizzy dame who is looking for a babysitter or struggling with some other earth-shattering problem.

If this letter makes your column I promise you it will be tacked to hundreds of college bulletin boards from Maine to California and I, personally, will have it framed for our dorm. — X-hausted

Dear X: I'm glad you didn't ask for a solution to the problem, because I don't have one. Earplugs might help some but until you can move and share quarters with a couple of other night owls, you'll have to put up with the agony, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: Once again you not so subtly promote the idea that withholding sex is a smart way to get a husband. Maybe so, but isn't that deceitful? I'd hate to think the only reason a man married me was because he had to or I wouldn't go to bed with him.

Please don't assume I'm in favor of promiscuity. I'm not. But a woman's decision to bed or not to bed should be based on a better reason than snagging a wedding ring.

Prostitution is the trading of sex for money. The girl who holds out for marriage is actually selling herself for a furnished apartment or a split-level home, plus a ring on her finger and a piece of paper she'll never look at again. Big deal.

I know a cutie-pie who followed that formula — "no marriage, no sex" — and then it was "no new dress, no sex," and finally, "I get my way or no sex." She said it worked every time — bragged about it — but I'd hate like hell to have a marriage based on such outrageous blackmail.

As far as I'm concerned, the honest female agrees to go to bed with a man because she wants to. And if she refuses, it should be because she doesn't want to. Outspoken

Dear Out: You say you're not in favor of promiscuity, but if a girl wants to — nine times in two weeks, with eight different fellows — that, in my book, makes her pretty darned promiscuous.

I am not suggesting that if a girl doesn't save her virginity for the man she marries she's a tramp, but I've received stacks of letters from heartless dames who were dropped by men they were really crazy about and they admit very frankly, "Everything was beautiful until I went to bed with him."

"From then on he treated me differently. The magic was gone. I'd give anything if I could turn our relationship back to where it was before I did that foolish thing."

Sports arena plans studied

COOKSHIRE — The O.T.J. arena committee has made a study re the construction of an artificial ice and sports arena for Cookshire.

They have solicited and obtained signed promises for $35,000 towards this project, from 42 donors.

The government has promised $20,000.00 for five years, a total of $100,000.00.

The committee presented their information to the Town Council on April 2nd, the proposed budget to replace the proposed debt will be published within the next week.

The referendum was cancelled as requested at a public meeting, pending further information and study.

This study has been completed and the committee recommends the original proposed location at the playground complex on Main Street East, with minor changes in structure.

The committee also recommends that the Town Council present this to the taxpayers within the next month.

Quebec Sherbrooke

Presbytery April 17-19

THETFORD MINES — The Quebec Sherbrooke Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, which consists of 24 Pastoral Charges and 37 congregations, will convene in Thetford Mines, the Thetford Mines United Church being the host church.

Activities will take place in three places.

Meals will be served in the Thetford Mines United Church and deliberations will take place in the Anglican Church hall of the church of St. John the Divine on Alfred St.

Thursday evening an opportunity will be given to the public to see the church court in action when the meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. and an opportunity given to all interested people to meet the church leaders from the Eastern Townships.

An occasion such as this presents certain problems in accommodation and if there are any people who would like to billet someone for Wednesday and Thursday nights they might contact the United Church Minister Mr. D. Scott at telephone number 338-1004.

The meeting of presbytery in this area will be good for our community and it is hoped that many will take the opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new ones.

Ontario: Bitter fight between dentists and denturists

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

Nowhere in Canada is the fight between dentists and denturists as bitter as it is in Ontario.

The dentist is a university graduate who has had to acquire some medical knowledge during his years of training. He insists that only he is qualified to treat the person who sits in a dental chair. He measures and makes impressions for dentures and does the fitting but does not himself manufacture them.

That is done in a dental laboratory by a technician or mechanic who now seeks to call himself a denturist, deal directly with the public and get more money for his skilled services. He is a graduate of a training school and makes no claim to medical knowledge.

He has won that right, in full or in part, in several provinces and makes dentures for a price less than that charged by a dentist who must add the cost of his oral examination and adjustment to his bill to the patient.

The denturist has not won that right in Ontario and faces prosecution in the courts if he practises on his own.

'YOU DID, WE DIDN'T'

Ontario denturists contend that pressure and lobbying in the legislature by organized dentists brought about legislation last year that prohibits a denturist from dealing directly with the public except under supervision of a dentist.

The dentists deny this. Charges and counter-charges by the opposing forces have flown freely in recent months with the fight at times sinking to the name-calling level.

The case of each group was outlined in separate interviews with The Canadian Press in Toronto. Neither of the men interviewed claimed to speak for any provincial organization but his own but the views expressed were similar to those of similar associations and societies in other provinces.

Said Dr. Kenneth Pownall, registrar of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario:

"It is our opinion that a person who had had only mechanical training at a bench is not qualified to make diagnostic decisions."

Gordon Smith, public relations counsel for the Denturists Society of Ontario:

"The dental technician is a very disadvantaged creature. He has been paid a pittance for his work for years. He can do a good job and a better job than working on a lifeless stone model which is the only thing he used to see of a patient."

CAN BE JAILED

The issue was further clouded by the emergence of a third group, the Governing Board of Dental Technicians (GBDT), at odds with the denturists society.

The board's spokes man is Secretary-Registrar Charles Jewson who in an interview said of the society:

"This denturist group is attempting to use the cloak of respectability that ethical registered dental technicians have. We're opposed to anybody who says he is something just because he says he is."

Denturists or dental technicians or mechanics—the society says all mean the same thing—are controlled in Ontario by the Denture Therapists Act, passed in July, 1973. It imposes a $2,000 fine and a jail term of up to six months for violations. Several denturists have been charged but no case has come to trial.

The case for the dentists, by Dr. Pownall:

"Basically, the dentists believe the delivery of dental care shouldn't be fragmented. Associated with the manufacture of dentures are the surgery involved with their insertion, the question whether the teeth need to come out and whether it should be a partial denture or a full denture."

"We're not saying that only a dentist can make these decisions but we are saying that, for the protection of the public, the public receives better service if there is a dentist involved in taking ultimate responsibility for the entire service."

ASKS FOR CERTIFICATE

Mr. Smith:

"We have insisted all along that where a patient presents himself to a denturist and he has teeth that need cleaning or need attending to, or he requires a partial denture, the denturist wouldn't do it until the patient had those teeth fixed."

"So whether there are any abnormalities, any inflamed, diseased tissue, any decayed teeth, that person is going to be referred to a medical doctor or dentist for corrective treatment."

Mr. Smith displayed what he said was a certificate of oral health signed by a co-operating dentist—"We've got lots of dentists who are co-operating with us"—that attested to the fact a patient's mouth was healthy and gave permission for a denturist to make a set of dentures.

"What more can they ask of us?"

Dr. Pownall:

"There is no such thing as a certificate of oral health. Both the medical and dental professions have said that anyone legally qualified to provide denture service just doesn't need such a certificate."

HITS DENTURISTS

Mr. Smith said the denturists do not fit a patient with a partial denture, and to this Dr. Pownall replied:

"They're doing it every day of the week. I've seen their ads where they say they're doing precision partial dentures and if you're making up so-called precision partial dentures, you have to cut the tooth structure."

"I maintain that they have no training in the biological sciences, that if a person were working in my mouth I would want that person to know a little bit about bacteriology."

Mr. Smith said there are 237 members of the Denturists Society of Ontario operating 107 clinics throughout the province and that they are prepared "to go all the way" in fighting the issue through the courts.

Mr. Jewson said there are 389 "legally registered dental technicians" in Ontario and that the society members are "fooling the public."

"The press has gone on their side because they've tried to give themselves the posture of being the underdogs."

"There's a lot more to our craft than the fabrication of dentures. I think the public deserves more than to consider whether they're going to save $80 on an upper and lower."

"If the government is going to allow this reactionary group to continue to give this service to the public, then we've lost the criteria for developing craftsmen."

LACKS FORMAL TRAINING

Mr. Jewson served in the Canadian Army Dental Corps as a dental technician for 26 years before going into civilian service in a laboratory and said:

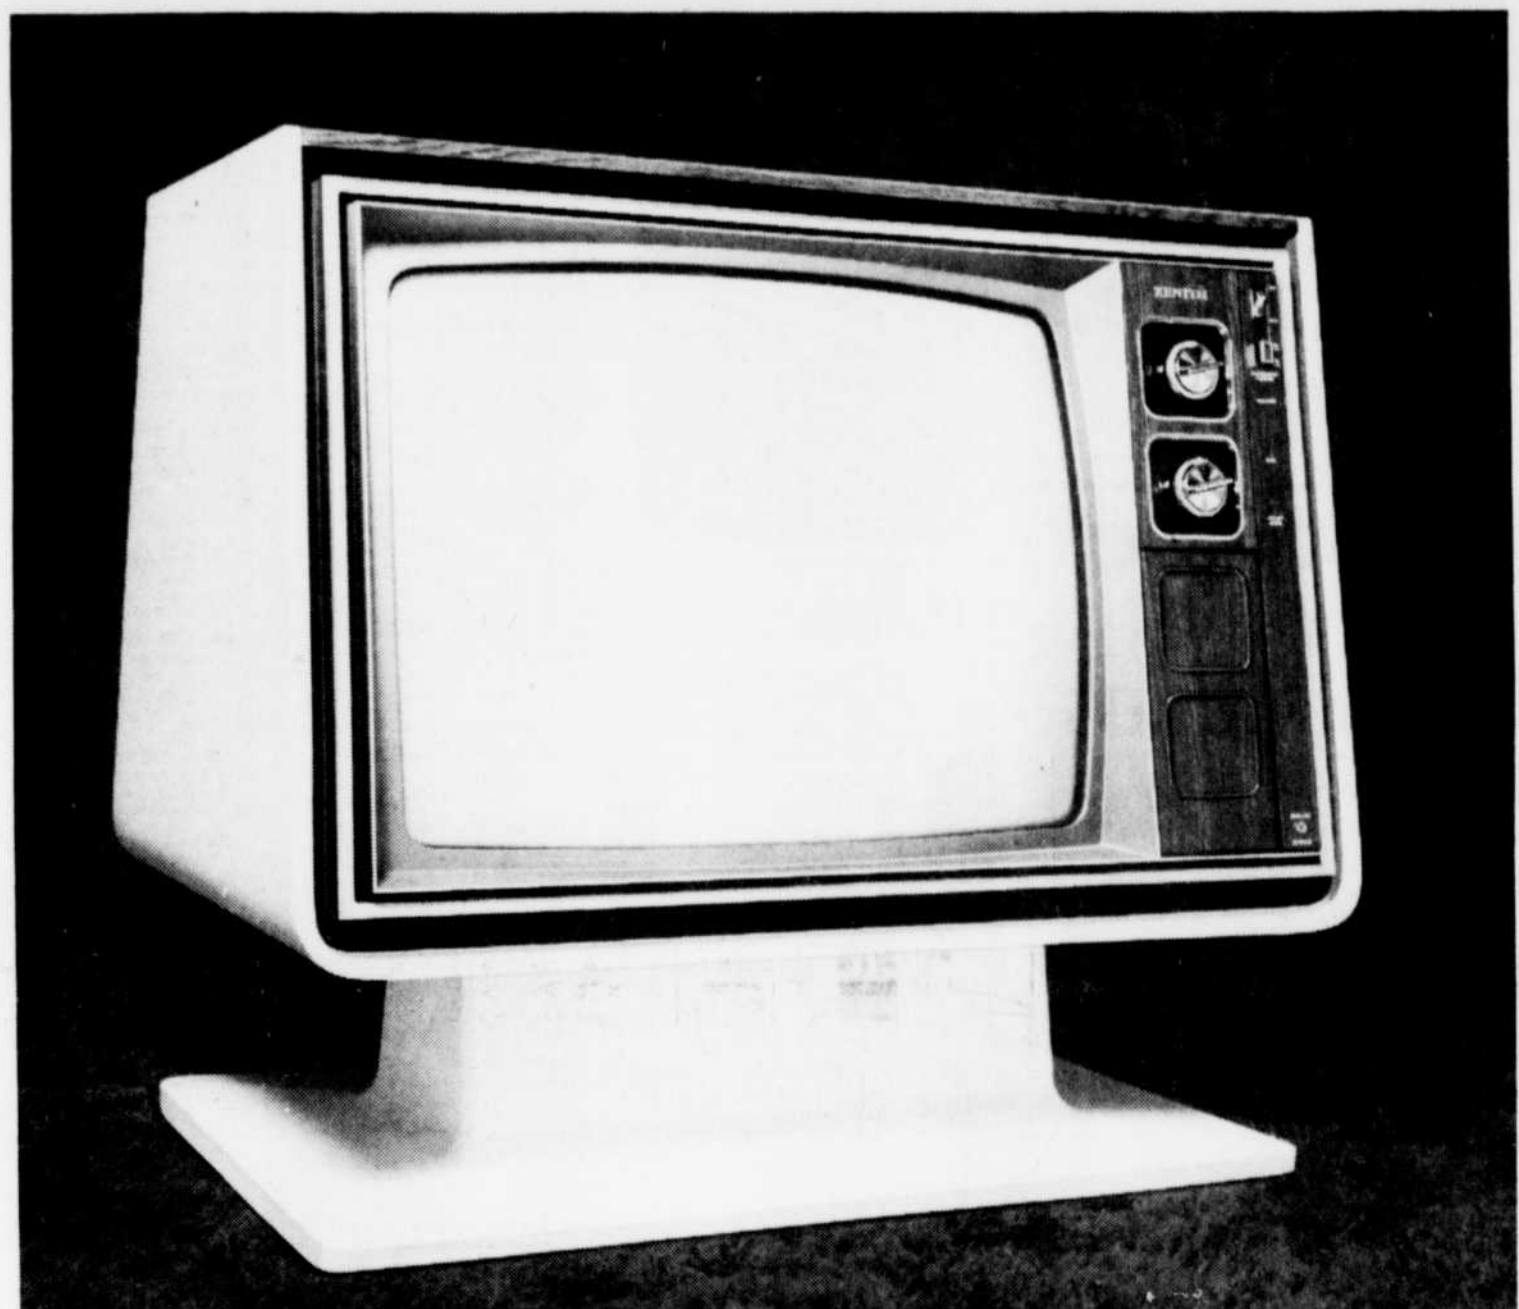

"I would not put myself on any kind of competitive step-ladder with a professional dentist because I haven't had that kind of formal training."

"And we (the BGD) are not the lackey of the dental profession as some say. We have never been involved in working directly with the public and we have no intent of getting involved in that."

The latest word is that the Ontario government is reviewing the situation and will permit denturists to operate independently, under licence, without supervision. This is from sources close to the ministry of health, with no one being quoted.

J.A. Murray

Many in the area enjoyed the play, "Annie, get your gun" presented by the Alexander Galt Regional High School, when several of the students of the area were in the cast — Debbie Taylor as Annie, Betty Jane Halsall, Susan Picken, Bob Halsall as Foster Wilson and Gail Harron.

Mr. Howard Picard of the Lessard Bus Line Staff has returned from three weeks' duty in the Miami Beach area; he is sporting a real southern tan.

Recent guests at the Murray home included Mrs. Clive Thompson, Ayer's Cliff and her son, Mr. Russell Thompson, Sand Hill; Mr. Stanley Murray, Montreal; Mr. Frank Stelfox, Pointe Claire and Miss Nancy Pebleman of Montreal.

On Tuesday evening, March 26, six members of the Royal Canadian Legion gathered at the same home for a Presentation Ceremony, when Mr. J.A. Murray was invested with a Past President Medal and Pin. Taking part in the ceremony were Comrades Wells Bishop and Lionel Hurd of Sawyerville Legion, Comrade Ed Struthers of the Stanstead Legion, and Comrades Thos. Harbinson, Colin Standish and George Riglar of Branch 139, Cookshire, of which Comrade Murray is Past President.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Drake in Bulwer; Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Allison in Brookbury; and of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Crawford in Huntingville.

Mr. and Mrs. Murdo Edward Morrison of Scotstown and Dell were evening guests at the Halsall home.

At the shower for Miss Bonnie Nugent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Robinson on the Spring Road, her aunt, Mrs. Charles Robinson, was among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patton of Kinross's Mills were visiting their daughter, Mrs. Nick Turchyn and Mr. Turchyn, Mrs. Basil Prescott joined Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Turchyn to call at the Prescotts in Bulwer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Prescott, with Ian, dined with Mr. and Mrs. Basil Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. David Wood of Lennoxville were supper guests at the same home on Sunday.

Mrs. Audrey Waterman is spending an indefinite time with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McClay in Lennoxville. She visited at the Picard home during the weekend.

Mrs. J.A. Murray accompanied Mr. Edwin Bailey of Loyola College to Montreal where they attended the play, "No, No, Nanette" staged by the The-Arts Group of Loyola College in which Mr. Barrie Wood was Billy Early.

Whether the weather has fooled some of our feathered friends, or whether the birds have changed their ways, flocks of varieties of finches, unusual here, are being fed by locals. They include purple finches, red polls, evening grosbeaks.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Richards attended the funeral services of the latter's paternal uncle, Mr. John Billing, of St. Elie d'Orford.

France does like Trudeau in fight against terrorism

By DONAT VALOIS

PARIS (CP) — In much the same manner as the Canadian government dealt with the Front de Liberation du Quebec in 1970, the government of Prime Minister Pierre Messmer has outlawed four movements working for the secession of certain regions of France.

The outlawed terrorist organizations are the two wings of the Front de Liberation de la Bretagne (FLB), the Basque movement Enbata and the Front Paysan Corse de Liberation.

French police arrested numerous persons suspected of membership in the underground groups and of having taken part in bombings during the last few months.

In Brittany and Corsica, bomb attacks have been made on stores, police headquarters, administrative offices and monuments, but there have been no injuries.

The outlawed movements, the government said, have as their aim "injury to the integrity of the national territory," and have entered into "permanent contacts with foreign associations or political parties from whom they receive support."

CITES PROPAGANDA

To back up its claims, the government pointed to the various movements' propaganda—some of it two years old—to outline their "compromising" dealings.

The objectives of Enbata, laid down in a pamphlet printed in 1972, the government said, include the creation of a Basque state.

"We Basques are a people and a nation. . . . We are fighting on the separatist frontier in the north, which currently put the three provinces of Soule, Basse-Navarre and Labour under the domination of the French state."

The Corsican group said in a statement last Jan. 7:

"We consider ourselves in a state of conflict not against Frenchmen but against France. . . . Autonomy does not interest us; we are for independence."

The two wings of the FLB—the Armee Republicaine Bretonne and the Liberation Nationale et Socialisme—have been equally vocal in their calls for independence.

Greeted with indifference—or at least without surprise—in the regions where they were operating, the decision of the government to outlaw the groups stunned other Frenchmen, who often had known little or nothing of the groups' existence.

GOT LITTLE SUPPORT

Observers said the influence of Enbata was small and its aims received little support among Basques living in the Pyrenees Mountains along the border between France and Spain.

Enbata published a weekly newspaper whose circulation was less than 2,000, in which the group accused the government of driving young Basques from their native areas and bringing on unemployment and recession.

The group also gave assistance to what it called political refugees from Spain.

Nationalist groups seeking autonomy are among those who said the government's decision was a futile act, taken at the insistence of Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin, whose responsibilities include internal security and police.

Nationalist groups said the government has bestowed on the outlawed organizations a legitimacy that their influence does not merit. The government action had brought a wave of sympathy, not only for the outlawed groups and arrested terrorists but also for other ethnic minorities.

ESTABLISH COMMITTEES

Since the government action, committees of support for the revolutionary fight of Bretons, Basques and Corsicans have been established in many regions.

The committees have denounced the "generalized offensive of French bourgeois power against the militants of national minorities and have called upon the people to "combat the offensive of the militia and carry the fight for the downfall of capitalism."

Sympathizers have painted slogans on buildings in Brittany and Corsica calling for the release of those arrested.

Nationalist spokesmen said that what the government is really fighting is the groups' continual attacks on government centralism, imperialism and capitalism that keeps minority groups in an inferior economic and cultural position relative to other Frenchmen.

Marriage now termed sound Midway wedding called a sham

By DAVE AGNEW
LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Jim and Rita Barrett caused a stir that rippled through the Roman Catholic Church in the Maritimes last year when they were married on the midway of a carnival show in Halifax.

The marriage was called a "sham" by one priest. Detractors of the ceremony, staged in front of a merry-go-round with a host of "carnies" as guests, said it would not last.

On March 12, the couple celebrated the birth of a daughter, Kathleen Bernadette, and Mr. Barrett said the couple's marriage is sound.

Mr. Barrett, 29, who now works for a London construction company, said he still has not reconciled his differences with the church.

However, "we are not going to let our differences interfere with bringing up our daughter in the church."

Kathleen will be baptized said Mr. Barrett, and receive a proper Catholic upbringing.

The couple said they may go through their marriage ceremony again—in a church.

At present their marriage is recognized as a proper civil, but not a sacramental bond, said Mr. Barrett.

MET ON FAIRGROUNDS

The couple met when they were operating separate game booths for the Bill Lynch Show.

Their courtship deepened and they decided they would like to be married on the carnival grounds.

Both Catholics from birth, they approached several priests to perform the ceremony. They were told to get permission first from the bishop.

They said Archbishop James M. Hayes in Halifax told them: "Definitely not."

It was explained that under canon law, "marriage between Catholics should be celebrated in a parish church."

"It may, however, be celebrated in another church or oratory whether public or semi-public only with the consent of the ordinary (bishop or vicar-general) of the place or pastor."

Mr. Barrett said he was told the marriage ceremony at the circus would "ridicule the church."

A United Church minister agreed to perform the ceremony and on June 20, 1973, amid the merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels and game booths, the couple were married.

SPLASHED IN PAPERS

The pictures of the ceremony and the couple taking a ferris-wheel ride were splashed in Maritime newspapers.

Two days later, a Halifax newspaper printed a letter signed by Rev. Robert Lauder, pastor of St. Charles Roman Catholic Church in Amherst, N.S.

Father Lauder wrote that the media appeared "to ridicule the United Church for the silly actions of one of its clergy."

"You prefer to publicize the abortions of Rev. Harold King rather than the sincere work of genuine United Church Ministers. They would never stoop so low as to perform a circus wedding between two Christians. It is a sham of a marriage."

Mr. Barrett said the couple have no regrets.

"People who come together to worship God make the church and it shouldn't make any difference if it is inside or outside walls," he said.

hearts. Doubleton leads have been known to work out but this one didn't.

Declarer called for dummy's queen. East who had been taught both to play third-hand-high and to cover-an-honor-with-an-honor put up his king. Declarer won; drew trumps; eventually discarded his three of clubs on dummy's last heart and made five odd.

East had an automatic play of a low heart. His partner had clearly led top of nothing. The king if held back would eventually be able to stop dummy's fourth heart from scoring a trick and South would have wound up making just four spades for an average score.

Remember the boy at the zoo who wanted to know if the hippopotamus was male or female and the keeper's reply: "It doesn't make a bit of difference except to another hippopotamus."

Today's hand gave expert South an undesired top in a regional open pairs, but is only of interest to another duplicate player since four spades is ice cold.

South made an overtrick as a result of a bad third-hand high play by East. The result is unimportant in rubber bridge, but the principle involved is important. Sometime the trick lost by the bad play will be the contract trick.

West didn't have any attractive opening lead and finally selected the nine of Nightclub entertainment conceals a multitude of sins. Choreography disguises fallen arches, big bands smother flat notes and lame jokes get lost in the sound of ice cubes against glasses.

Rolf Harris, the Australian who gave the world Tie Me Kangaroo Down and the vibrating wobble board, is one of those rare entertainers with a boundless talent who never lose sight of the dignity of people who applaud.

He is Jake the Peg, a hapless three-legged chap who sings about having one too many. Then minus one leg, he plays aboriginal music on a bamboo tube called a didgeridoo, that leads into a Salvation Army recruiting song and some naughty Edwardian jokes.

Harris has been carrying on a love affair that has been standing-room-only for the last 12 years with Vancouver, a city he reached by mistake.

He had joined the maiden voyage of the luxury liner Oriana in Honolulu, thinking he was booked to Los Angeles. Instead, he arrived almost 2,000 miles north to find "this ruddy great girls' choir" on the quay-side singing Tie Me Kangaroo Down "and I got the feeling this was my town."

Now the rest of Canada is being courted.

AUDIENCE INVOLVED

Harris has a gift for getting an audience involved, even trying to imitate the sound of an elephant gargling on his wobble board.

His voice isn't in the Jack Jones class but he has the confidence and maturity to mix quiet songs with the absurd in Six White Bloomers or My Boomerang Won't Come Back.

His comedy routines are laced with mime and slapstick, dialect and dialogue.

"Really, you're lucky to be able to convince people, for half an hour or an hour, to look at life through your eyes," says Harris.

"This business of the insult from the stage going back and forth, I find totally loathsome—where the entertainer is really good if he can top you and squelch you right into the ground and make everybody laugh at your expense."

"It encourages the worst sort of involvement from the audience, the kind of reactions you get from spoiled children. I find it horrid."

"And I think of people afraid to get involved because they think it's a come-on to make a fool out of them."

BECAME MATURE

Harris became a mature entertainer during his 31 weeks at the old Arctic Club in Vancouver in 1961.

"It was the first time that I felt I was the equal of anybody out in the audience. I'd been working in England before and I was always conscious of the accents and that Lord McThrippage might be in the audience."

"When I came over here I had the success of one hit record in Australia. Nobody knew me. I was an extrovert. I told everybody I was the greatest thing since sliced bread and could I start tomorrow."

"I'm not saying I'm very clever for being an ordinary human being, but it's the only way I can live. I couldn't live as a manufactured pop idol."

"The person I am on stage is exactly what I'm like off stage, only a little more extrovert. That's the only way I can live in the entertainment game."

Apricot glazed Easter ham

What a delicious tradition is the Easter baked ham! Adorned with a gala glaze, it's truly an elegant offering for a holiday dinner. And this recipe for Apricot Glaze, developed in our Test Kitchens, has just the right amount of tart-sweetness to complement the flavorful ham and add a rich gloss as well.

A combination of apricot jam and applesauce, enlivened with either Dry or Ready Mixed Hot English Mustard, the glaze is simple and quick-to-fix, but the results are spectacular.

For perfect color and contrast to the ham serve fluffy mashed potatoes and a green vegetable. Round out the meal with a fruited gelatin salad, hot rolls or biscuits and for dessert, lemon chiffon pie.

APRICOT GLAZED EASTER HAM

Whole or half ham
¼ cup applesauce
¼ cup apricot jam

1 tablespoon Dry Mustard (mixed with 1 tablespoon water and allowed to stand 10 minutes)
—or 1 tablespoon Ready Mixed Hot English Mustard

1 tablespoon vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons sherry

Pineapple tidbits, maraschino cherries and parsley, if desired.
Bake ham according to wrapper instructions. In a saucepan combine applesauce, apricot jam, mustard, vinegar, sugar, and sherry. Bring just to boiling, stirring constantly. 15 to 20 minutes before ham is done, take out of oven. Remove rind, if any, from ham.

Score fat in criss-cross pattern; spoon glaze over ham and return to oven. If desired, garnish with "flowers" of pineapple tidbits and maraschino cherries with parsley "stems" and "grass". Makes ¾ cup glaze, enough for 9 to 12 pound ham.

Dr. Alfred Whitehead, noted organist, dies

Dr. Alfred Whitehead, noted organist, composer and painter, is dead at the age of 86.

Organist and choirmaster at Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, from 1922 to 1947, he died Monday, April 1, 1974, at Amherst, N.S., where he had lived since his formal retirement in 1952.

Honorary president of the Royal Canadian College of Organists, he held honorary degrees from Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., and Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

Born in Peterborough, England, he studied the organ at Peterborough Cathedral as an articulated pupil of Dr. Haydn Keeton.

He came to Canada in 1912 and lived in Truro, N.S., for a year before going to Mount Allison University as instructor in organ and theory.

From 1916 to 1922 he was organist at St. Peter's Church in Sherbrooke, Que., and then came to Montreal.

During his 25 years at Christ Church Cathedral he wrote many of his 400 anthems, motets, services and carol arrangements including words under the name of Staines Franklin.

Dr. Whitehead was the founder and conductor of The Cathedral Singers from 1931 to 1939. They contributed outstanding performances of Bach's St. Matthew Passion and B minor Mass to the Montreal Festivals in that time.

In 1947 he became dean of music at Mount Allison University and remained until his retirement in 1952 when he went to live in Amherst.

Dr. Whitehead continued his work as a painter in water colors, pastels and oils.

exhibiting in the Maritimes and the Royal Academy in London. He also continued as an organist at Trinity-St. Stephen Church in Amherst until 1966.

He is survived by his widow, the former Amy Mosher, and a daughter, Betty (Mrs. Robert Lang).

Council meetings

Rock Island

ROCK ISLAND — At the March sitting of the Town of Rock Island council, a resolution was passed and the request made to the Department of Highways with a copy sent to Georges Vaillancourt, MNA and minister of State for Municipal Affairs, for an overpass at the Route 55 - Dewey street intersection in Stanstead.

Mr. Vaillancourt's reply was read at the April sitting of the Rock Island council assuring them that everything possible will be done to have the overpass. Funds have not yet been appropriated but the effort will be made.

A letter was read from Redikers Transport complaining about the winter conditions of the Rock Island hills. Redikers trucks travel this route extensively. This particular route is a part of 147 and should be salted and sanded by the provincial — highways department.

Mrs. M. Masse, Town secretary, will again take the census as in past years.

Mayor Edouard Girard gave a report of his meeting with Customs - Immigration and Department of Public Works concerning the outcome of the former Customs - Immigration building on Main street. The Department plans to dismantle the building and use the lot for Customs - Immigration parking, allowing a section for public parking. However, Mayor Girard said there will be further discussions on this matter.

George MacLaren was appointed lawyer for the town. A letter from Mr. MacLaren noted proceedings have started to expropriate the Cote garage in the Village. This is the chosen site for the new Rock Island post office.

The new police cruiser is now in use. A resolution was approved to send a note of appreciation for his support in having the liquor store in the town.

A donation of $100 was voted to the Weir Memorial Park and $25 to the Boy Scouts Association.

Rampling may be next U.S. watching sport

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Rampling is very popular in England these days. It's not a new sport, like streaking, nor is it a revival of an old sport, like bird-watching. Rampling is an actress, first name Charlotte, who is on display these days in John Boorman's intensely interesting film, "Zardoz."

Charlotte Rampling is a beauty with talent, a devastating combination. Hollywood has its collective eyes on her and she says that there is a distinct possibility she will be working here in the future. And the future isn't too far away.

"I may be coming back here," she says. "There are some things brewing for me. I did one picture in the U.S. so far — 'Corky,' which was shot in Texas. That was with Robert Blake. It hasn't been released yet in the U.S. We saw it not too long ago in New Zealand."

She is married to a New Zealander, a public relations man named Brian Southcombe. They have an 18-month-old son named Barnaby and the Southcombes make their home these days in St. Tropez, France.

Charlotte is a very modern girl, with some old-fashioned overtones. She is completely self-sufficient and relies on herself totally. There was one period in her life, she says, when she was unsure of herself.

"I had to get away," she says. "For a year, I was in Iran and Afghanistan, then I went to a Buddhist monastery — in Scotland, of all places. I got deeply into meditation which has helped me and still helps me in picture-making. It enables me to concentrate on the scene I'm doing, on my job, even with everything going on around me."

She's also deeply into ESP. She had a sister and, when they were girls, the two Ramplings made up a singing act. Then Sarah married a wealthy Argentinian, moved to South America and eventually died. Charlotte knew that Sarah had died before she got the official news.

She and Brian also had a ghost in their apartment in London, who used to do things like folding a dressing gown and carefully placing it at the foot of their bed.

She says the movie business in England these days is very bad. (That may be why she is receptive to offers for work here.) For a long time, she did a lot of English television but she says that has fallen off, too.

"The energy crisis is so serious in England," she says, "that the sets must be turned off at 10 p.m. Fewer shows are being made and overall production curtailed. There isn't that much television being shot in England any more."

She works wherever she can. At the moment, she is very proud of a film she did in Italy for an Italian woman director, Liliana Cavani. It is called "The Night Porter." She hopes it will be released here, because she thinks it has something important to say.

Trustees meet

DERBY LINE — The trustees for the forthcoming crafts center for the forthcoming crafts center this July and August held a meeting on Thursday evening, April 4 at the home of the director, Pat Wright and Mr. Wright in Derby Line.

The main item of business was to appoint task forces who will meet the coming two weeks and on the evening of April 18 will assemble at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wright to report their surveys.

Three new trustees were added at the April 4 meeting. They are Mrs. Gunilla Kuniholm, Steve Pitkin and Kate Betsch.

Mrs. Wright conducted the session on Thursday evening. David Lalime, a lawyer, was at the meeting and presented his legal advice on why the center should be incorporated. The matter was left in his hands to do the job. Before this can be completed the center must have a name. Several names were volunteered but finally it was decided that a committee will make the decision.

Standing task forces are Curriculum — Pat Wright, Mary Azarian, Maggi Graham, Guilla Kuniholm, Steve Pitkin and Paul Richter;

Building — Pat Wright, Joe Somerville and Michael Rosenthal;

Sponsors and contributors — Sue Watson, Ann Somerville and Rosemary Carvill;

Closing fair — Sue Watson, chairman; Steve Pitkin, Maggi Graham, Joan Richter, Ann Somerville, John Perry;

Public Relations — John Perry, chairman; Harriet Liddell, Dick Wright and Ivy Hatch.

It is the aim of the trustees to be able to offer a total of 30 courses, some for eight weeks, others for a shorter period. This was discussed and will be announced after plans are finalized.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): People expect a lot of you—don't let them down. A positive approach is essential. Keep smiling!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Pep up an old idea that you laid aside earlier because you had no time to develop it properly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Geminians tend to be disorganized under present planetary influences. Try to schedule your efforts.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Family member who has been "acting up" can be controlled if you'll apply a little psychology.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A few snags and obstacles, but not enough for serious worry. Try to view things more realistically.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Nice enough day, with only a few spotty negative influences that can be overcome with fine effort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Make the first move—don't wait for others to take the initiative. Librans tend to procrastinate!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Pay up outstanding bills so that your credit rating continues to be one of your greatest assets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Try to ascertain your true position where you are and/or money are concerned. Some reorganization may be needed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A wrong turn now could result in serious setback later so think twice before taking definitive action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can reach accord but you may have to "give more than take" in this particular instance.

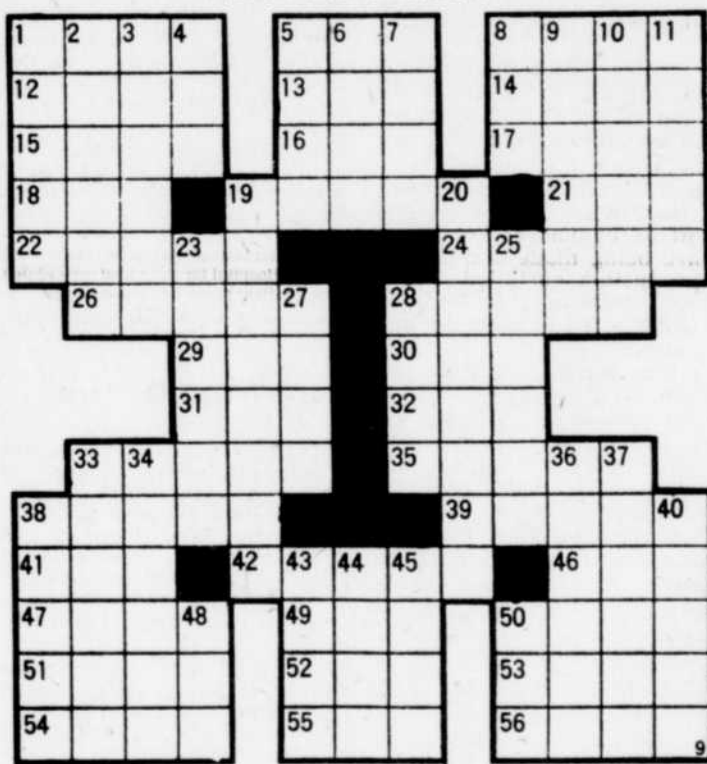

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Keep busy, but at your own pace and without anxiety. Take a more positive attitude about situation.

$22 million spent annually

Canada Council: Putting a frost on grants

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council last year gave more than $6.1 million to the 20 leading recipients of its largesse for art galleries and the performing arts, an increase of almost 10 per cent from the previous year.

Lead a Lively Life

Printed Pattern

A council spokesman said the over-all rate of increase for the 20 leading recipients is likely to be close to last year's 9.8 per cent.

The council dispenses more than $22 million a year to the arts generally. Whatever extra money it gets from the government and from its endowment funds in the new year it wants to devote to individual artists and to younger, less well-established theatre, music and art organizations.

In considering the restraints being imposed on the senior arts organizations, the council exempts the National Theatre School in Montreal and the National Ballet School in Toronto. With no box office receipts, they have far less chance of earning income from the public than have the theatres and concert halls.

The theatre school last year received $505,000, up 17 per cent from the previous year, and the ballet school $240,000, up one-third.

EMPHASIS ON BALLET
The National Ballet of Toronto, the council's biggest recipient of funds, had a $660,000 grant last year, up 10 per cent from 1972-73, and up almost 52 per cent from 1970-71. This reflects a conscious effort, a council official said, to raise the incomes of sadly underpaid dancers.

While the grants to leading organizations may go up another 10 per cent this year, the increase amounts in fact to a restraint. With rising materials costs, and payrolls making up an unusually high proportion of performing-arts expenditures, budgets have to go up more than 10 per cent just to maintain last year's level of activity.

The near collapse of the Montreal Symphony earlier this year is one of the factors that prompted, in a curious way, the council's decision to hold the line on the new year's grants.

The Montreal orchestra received increases of 11 and 10 per cent respectively in the last two years, and last year drew $484,000 from the council. But when it came to ask Ottawa for even larger grants, the council and the cabinet told it to look elsewhere for the money.

CAUGHT IN DISPUTE
Municipal grants to the symphony had been cut off because of a dispute between Mayor Jean Drapeau and the musicians' union and Quebec province was unwilling to pour money into the orchestra unless it got more support from the French-speaking community in Montreal.

Ottawa's message was clear—unless the orchestra could find more money elsewhere or break the log-jams in Quebec City and Montreal, it should not lean on the federal treasury for more.

There was a feeling in provincial, municipal and private funding circles that as long as Ottawa was willing to pour more money into arts organizations generally they need not increase their share.

It is to break this leave-it-to-Ottawa philosophy that the council acted. Moreover, council director Andre Fortier told a parliamentary committee that if the council does not divert more money to struggling younger organizations they will die.

Mr. Fortier has been saying for more than a year that private industry should lend more support to the arts. He cited evidence that this, in fact, is happening.

DONATIONS INCREASING
In 1960, corporate donations to charitable organizations amounted to $38.6 million, of which 2.1 per cent went to cultural organizations. Their cultural support amounted to 0.021 per cent of their pre-tax profits.

In 1970, corporate donations rose to $59.7 million, and 5.4 per cent of this went to cultural bodies, or 0.044 per cent of their pre-tax profits.

But some people in the performing arts world believe the council has acted too quickly, and that large corporations are not yet ready to divert significant amounts of their profits to the arts.

Some of the arts groups can be faulted for not having solicited funds from industry. The National Ballet and Toronto Symphony, however, have succeeded in getting major companies to sponsor tours and concerts.

Apart from the National Theatre School and the National Ballet School, the 20 leading recipients of Canada council grants last year, with percentage increases from the previous year in parentheses, were:

National Ballet, $660,000 (10); Montreal Symphony, $484,000 (10); Stratford Festival, $477,000 (3); Toronto Symphony, $470,000 (8); Canadian Opera Company, $415,000 (10); and Theatre du Nouveau Monde, Montreal, $415,000 (9). Over $300,000 each: Royal Winnipeg Ballet, $305,000 (9); Grands Ballets Canadiens, Montreal, $330,000 (10); and Vancouver Symphony, $308,000 (10).

$200,000 or more: Theatre du Rideau Vert, Montreal, $250,000 (11); Atlantic Symphony, Halifax, $234,000 (10.4); Manitoba Theatre Centre, Winnipeg, $230,000 (7.4); Playhouse Theatre, Vancouver, $230,000 (15); Vancouver Art Gallery, $230,000 (35); St. Lawrence Centre, Toronto, $225,000 (7);

Winnipeg Symphony, $220,000 (10); Neptune Theatre, Halifax, $210,000 (10.5); Quebec Symphony, $200,000 (9.9); and Opera du Quebec, Montreal, $200,000, no increase.

UCW MEETING

Unit 1 of the UCW of Trinity United Church held its March meeting in the Church Hall on Thursday afternoon, the 28th, with the leader, Mrs. S.J. Olney, presiding.

The devotionals were taken by Mrs. Velma Snaden and consisted of a scripture reading in keeping with the coming Easter season as well as a reading from a book from one of the other churches, composed by an elderly member there, and which all found most interesting. It was reported that the Board of Trustees were purchasing a rug for the study at the Manse.

Mention was also made of the Men's Pot Luck Supper, which will be held in the near future.

It was decided to hold the annual "auction" in June.

Mrs. Ruth Gallup had on display the quilt which had been donated, and which will be sent to Montreal headquarters, filling a request for bedding received earlier by this group.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. J. Saffin and Mrs. Ruth Gallup.

Recent guests of the Misses Elsie and Gwen Elliott included Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Findlay, Kitchener, Ont., Mr. George MacLeay of the Wales Home, Mrs. Eric Morrison of Ayer's Cliff and Mrs. Janet Chant and children of Halifax, N.S.

Wins fourth consecutive scoring title Phil Esposito ties Gordie Howe mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins Monday pushed his Art Ross Trophy winnings over the last seven seasons to $10,750 when he was awarded $2,000 for his National Hockey League scoring feats in the current season.

This season Esposito became only the second player in NHL history to win four straight point-scoring titles. It marked the fifth time in his career he has won the award.

Gordie Howe, former great right winger with Detroit Red Wings and now with Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, won six scoring championships, including four in a row, during his 25-season NHL career.

Included in Esposito's 145 points this season were 68 goals, making him the first player to lead the NHL in goals for five straight seasons. His points and goal totals this season were second only to his own records of 152 and 76, respectively, in 1970-71.

Braves top Dodgers

Lost in the hoopla of Hank Aaron's record-breaking 715th home run Monday night was the fact that Atlanta Braves took advantage of six Los Angeles miscues to win 7-4, handing the Dodgers their first National League baseball loss of the season.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the second, but fell behind 3-1 after the Dodgers batted in the third. Aaron's two-run blast tied the score in the fourth and the Braves added the winner before the inning ended.

The six Los Angeles errors were the deciding factor as the Braves managed only four hits off three Dodger pitchers. Starter Al Downing, who surrendered Aaron's historic home run, was tagged with the loss.

Ron Reed got the victory but needed relief help in the seventh inning from Buzz Capra.

In the only other NL game, the unbeaten San Francisco Giants won their fourth game, edging Cincinnati Reds 4-3 as Garry Maddox drove in all four runs.

New York Yankees also remained undefeated, downing Cleveland Indians 5-3 in the only American League game for their third victory.

Giants 4 Reds 3
Maddox extended his hitting streak to 15 games—the first four this season and the final 11 in 1973—by singling home the Giants' first run in the opening inning following a walk to Bobby Bonds, an infield out and a balk.

Then he cracked a three-run homer off loser Roger Nelson in the fifth after a single by winning pitcher John D'Acquisto and a two-out walk to Chris Speier.

The Reds chased D'Acquisto, a rookie right-hander, in the seventh when Merv Rettenmund hit his first NL homer. Pete Rose followed with a double and Dan Driessen rapped a run-scoring single.

Yankees 5 Indians 3
The Yankees collected 12 hits to start the season with three consecutive victories for the first time since 1959.

The Yanks broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning on a run-scoring single by Mike Hegan off losing reliever Tom Hilgendorf. They wrapped it up with two runs in the seventh on run-producing singles by Gene Michael and Jim Mason.

New York's Graig Nettles and Cleveland's Oscar Gamble hit solo homers earlier.

Aeros get revenge

WINNIPEG (CP) — This year's World Hockey Association quarter-final series against Winnipeg Jets couldn't start soon enough for Houston Aeros.

Fresh in their minds was the memory of last year's West Division final when they lost four straight to the Jets.

"We haven't forgotten last year," Houston goaltender Don McLeod said after the Aeros beat Winnipeg 5-2 Monday night in the first game of their best-of-seven series. "We'd like to return the favor."

The Aeros, who lost just once in eight meetings with the Jets this season as they took the West Division championship, grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first period and outscored the Jets 3-2 in the final period.

Murray Hall with two and Frank Hughes, Jim Sherrit and Mark Howe scored for Houston. Danny Johnson and Norm Beaudin scored for Winnipeg.

Toronto Toros will try to increase their series lead to 2-0 tonight over Cleveland Crusaders while Chicago Cougars are at home in New England after the Whalers won the first two games of that series.

Edmonton Oilers, trailing Minnesota 2-0 in games, entertain the Fighting Sains Wednesday night and the Jets and Aeros meet in Winnipeg.

THEY DIDN'T IMPROVE
"Their team didn't improve, while ours did," McLeod said, explaining the reversal this year. "We have depth this year ... three solid lines."

McLeod faced only 19 shots, including three in the third period. Hughes and Sherrit scored in the first period, taking most of the fire out of the Jets.

Coach Nick Mickoski wasn't happy with his Jets, who finished fourth in the West Division.

"We need a better effort from everyone if we want to win," he said.

"When everyone was putting out tonight we were going OK. But then one guy would let up and the others would also start lagging."

"We're hesitant to bring the puck up and as soon as we hesitate they cover up."

There was only one powerplay goal scored in the hard-hitting game despite 14 minor penalties. Hughes got that one.

Winnipeg had the manpower advantage seven times but failed to muster any sustained attack on any of the chances.

Winnipeg was without goaltender Ernie Wakely, recovering from pneumonia, and centre Chris Bordeleau who has the flu.

ORR RUNNER-UP

As over-all winner, Esposito collects $1,000 along with the Art Ross Trophy, plus $500 as first-half leader and another $500 for leading all scorers in the second half.

Defenceman Bobby Orr of the Bruins finished second with 122 points, including a league-leading 90 assists, to win $500 as over-all runner-up to Esposito, plus $250 for each half, as runner-up to the big centre.

For only the second time in NHL history, the third-and-fourth-place finishers in the scoring race belonged to the same team as the first two. Right winger Ken Hodge and left winger Wayne Cashman of the Bruins had 105 and 89 points, respectively.

The 1970-71 edition of the Boston club also held the top four places when the season ended. That year it was Esposito, Orr, Hodge and left winger John Bucyk, in that order.

Another Esposito, goaltender Tony of Chicago Black Hawks, also made the post-season money list, but he had to share the Vezina Trophy with Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers.

It marked the first time in the 48-year history of the award that two clubs had to share it. The Hawks and the Flyers wound up with identical 164 goals-against marks, forcing the league to award Parent and Esposito $1,500 each, and to engrave the names of both goalies on the trophy as co-winners.

Normally, the winner receives $1,500 and the runner-up $750.

Parent played a record 4,314 minutes—Bob Taylor played the remaining 366 minutes—and led in shutouts with 12, the most since Esposito's modern-era record of 15 in 1969-70. He also won the $250 as first-half leader. Esposito was the second-half leader and receives $250.

CONSOLATION WINNERS — The Windsor rink of T. Cumby took the consolation Sutherland Trophy at Saturday's Spring Mixed Bonspiel at North Hatley. Flyers out to make NHL history

A team representing the West Division of the National Hockey League has never won a Stanley Cup, but Philadelphia Flyers hope to change that this year.

The Flyers, or Broad Street Bullies as they are sometimes called, begin their quest for the cup tonight when they open at home against Atlanta Flames in a best-of-seven series.

The other NHL playoffs start Wednesday with Chicago Black Hawks playing host to Los Angeles Kings, Toronto Maple Leafs travelling to Boston to meet the Bruins and New York Rangers opening in Montreal against the Canadiens.

Last year's Flyers were knocked out of the playoffs by eventual winner Montreal, but this year the West Division champions are more experienced and solid in goal.

Bernie Parent was in goal for an NHL-record 73 games and shared the Vezina Trophy—awarded to the team allowing the fewest goals—with Tony Esposito of Chicago.

TOOK A NIGHT OFF
Last Saturday, apparently with the Vezina sewed up, Parent was given a night off and his seldom-used backup man, Bob Taylor, gave up six goals.

Fred Shero, coach of the Flyers, shrugged off the use of Taylor by saying the Vezina "is a worthless trophy."

Philadelphia has been established as favorite in the series against Atlanta which is in only its second year in the NHL.

The Flyers, besides Parent in goal, have such shooters as Bobby Clarke, Rick MacLeish, Bill Barber and Ross Lonsberry. Then, of course, they have the bullies—Dave Schultz, Andre Dupont, Bob Kelly and Don Saleski.

The Flyers had seven players with more than 100 minutes in penalties—Schultz had more than 300.

DID WELL IN SEASON
But Atlanta isn't expected to be a pushover. In six meetings between the clubs this season, Atlanta won twice, lost twice and there were two ties.

After clinching a playoff spot, Atlanta coach Bernie Geoffrion said:

"In all my years in hockey this is my greatest thrill. Nobody expected us to place higher than seventh in the West Division. I promised the people in Atlanta a playoff spot in five years and we made it in two."

One of the stars for the Flames is rookie centre Tom Lysiak, a former Medicine Hat Tiger, who scored 19 goals and had 64 points, the club's best. But the team is well balanced and won't be pushed around.

Brian Hextall and Pat Quinn are both big and tough and should be the going get rough—and it always seems to when the Flyers are involved—there should be plenty of action.

In the Chicago-Los Angeles series, Esposito and Rogatien Vachon, who played most of the Kings' game in goal, are expected to face each other throughout.

Only four clubs, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and Toronto gave up fewer goals than the Kings, coached by Bob Pulford, a former Maple Leaf.

In Pulford's playing days, the Maple Leafs stressed defence and Pulford was one of the greatest defensive centres in hockey.

The Kings missed the playoffs last season while finishing with the eighth best defensive record and Pulley decided they had to tighten up.

"They'll need all their strength to hold off the Hawks who boast such marksmen as Jim Pappin, Stan Mikita, Dennis Hull and Pit Martin."

In the playoffs, the main problems for the Leafs will be the line of Wayne Cashman, Phil Esposito and Hodge plus defenceman Bobby Orr.

Esposito took the scoring title for the fourth consecutive year, with 145 points on 68 goals and 77 assists. Orr placed second with 122 points, Hodge was third with 105 and Cashman fourth with 89.

They accounted for 18 goals and 26 assists in league play against the Leafs. Cashman had seven goals and six assists, Esposito five goals and six assists, Hodge four goals and four assists and Orr two goals and 10 assists.

Boston's offensive style accounted for 349 goals this season.

Asked if the Bruins would attempt to slow down the smaller Toronto forwards with body checks, Guidolin said:

"Norm Ullman, Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Paul Henderson, to name a few, are veterans. They know what's going on."

"If you keep running at them all night, you're just going to get chippy penalties and they don't win you any hockey games. However, if you get a chance to hit them, hit them good."

"Let them skate with us. We have the big guy (Esposito) and he can stand a lot of ice time."

The Leafs are expected to start Doug Favell in goal against the Bruins' Gilles Gilbert, who has a sore right ankle and appeared to favor it Sunday.

This is the 13th Stanley Cup series between the two teams with the Leafs holding an 8-4 edge. The last time they met was following the 1971-72 season—the last time the Leafs made the playoffs—and the Bruins took the best-of-seven quarter-final 4-1.

Bassett issues warning

OTTAWA (CP) — Unless peace is restored between the World Football League and the Canadian Football League, up to 80 per cent of big-game CFL stars will play for the new league in 1975, John F. Bassett warned Monday.

In a memo addressed to all members of Parliament, the owner of Toronto Northmen of the WFL said he is prepared to urge WFL teams not to negotiate with CFL players until their contracts have expired.

"Since our associates are anxious to have a team located in Toronto, we would expect them to accept this suggestion," said Mr. Bassett, whose club would be barred from Canada under proposed federal legislation to be introduced this week.

"If the signing of futures is permitted to continue, we would expect that fully 70 to 80 per cent of the present name players in the CFL will not be playing in the CFL next year," Mr. Bassett said in the memo.

Although only a trickle of CFL players have switched to the rival league, the WFL teams have placed Canadian stars on their negotiation list and WFL president Gary Davidson has warned there might be some raiding.

ONLY ONE IN CANADA
Mr. Bassett repeated promises that equalization payments made by Toronto Argonauts to other Canadian teams will not fall below their 1973 level for the next 10 years if the WFL is allowed to play in Toronto. He also said the Northmen are prepared to guarantee that no other WFL team will be located in Canada.

The Northmen have WFL territorial rights for all Canada "and have agreed to turn over those rights to the CFL or the Government of Canada" to prevent any WFL expansion to any other Canadian city, Mr. Bassett said.

He repeated that he did not have prior knowledge of government policy against American football teams locating in Canada.

"There are a great number of facts to substantiate this and we are prepared to furnish it to any MP who wishes that information," Mr. Bassett wrote. However, Health Minister
