

Spring Must Surely Be Here - It's Maple Syrup Time And The Sap's A'Gathering

The sap is running and the buckets are hooked to the Maple trees and the owners of the Maple bush are gathering the sap to make into Maple products. This is the first harvest of the new season, so far it has not been reported as a particularly good one. The cold crisp nights and the warm days which make the sap run in good quantity have not materialized as required. In the above photographs, our photographer caught one owner in the act of gathering the sap and bringing it in to make into syrup. The first shows the buckets on the trees in the bush and there is plenty of snow still left on the ground. The next shows good old dobbie drawing the sleigh with a tank of sap which has just been gathered. The last shows the arrival of the load at the sugar shanty where it will soon be put into the evaporator to be made into Maple products. This is just another of Quebec's industries which supplies the consumer with that delectable product for the buckwheat cakes and pancakes that make such a splendid breakfast.

$188 Needed For Objective In Easter Seal Campaign

The Easter Seals committee of the Huntingdon Rotary Club is keeping its fingers crossed in the hope that the coming week will see the fund reach the $1,000 mark. To date $812.80 has been contributed by way of the purchase of Easter Seals and there are still a large number of people to hear from. Before closing the fund, it is hoped that those who have not yet done so will send in their contribution in order that the objective set will be reached. It can be done if a co-operative effort is made by the remaining few and it certainly would be a fine thing to accomplish. Let's go all out this week and see that the objective is reached. Below are the contributions which have been received during the past week.

Fewster's Lacolle Rink Wins Howick Mixed Bonspiel

Moore Mixed Bonspiel (District) was played at Howick, March 26-31, excluding March 30, with 32 teams. The games were marked by percentages. The ice was in splendid condition and most of the games were won by a small margin. On Saturday, eight high rinks played two games each, on a percentage score. Fewster from Lacolle skipped the winning rink. R. B. Ness was in second place, with Marjorie Ness substituting for Mrs. Cole. Morris Robb, Aubrey, third, and Jim Hope, Lacolle, fourth.

The vice-president of the Howick Club, Mr. Gerald Roy, expressed his pleasure at the support given this bonspiel by the district clubs. He presented the trophy to Mr. Fewster, who thanked him on behalf of his rink. They selected garden chairs as prizes. Other prizes were foam pillows, sheets and men's shirts.

The Howick ladies served lunches throughout the bonspiel and there was a full house Saturday night to see the final games and enjoy a social hour. Thanks again to the women who do this work, which helps to make a bonspiel.

Brodie Ness, Kingston, chairman of the 1957 Brier Cup Games, was present with three friends who had been curling at Lachute and Hudson. He was glad to see his old friends again and invited everyone to visit Kingston next year.

Diplomas, Prizes Given Macdonald Farm Graduates

Diplomas and prizes were presented to 21 graduates of the Macdonald College two-year course in agriculture at graduation exercises Wednesday night by Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University.

Prizes for outstanding work were awarded to R. Gasser, who received the Minister of Agriculture's Medal for placing first in the course; J. H. Standish, who received the Department of Agriculture prize for contributing most to his class and course, as decided by student vote; and M. R. Hooker, who received the Farm prize.

Prizes were presented by Jean Charles Magnan, director of agriculture education of the Quebec Department of Agriculture.

Diploma winners were Mr. Gasser, Mr. Standish, Mr. Hooker, D. M. Barr, R. A. Boreham, J. B. Britton, H. A. Crittenden, R. A. Duffy, G. E. Duncan, G. J. Goude, L. E. Green, T. S. Hayden, W. F. Howell, G. A. Khoury, A. A. Leach, J. E. McBane, G. N. Martin, G. W. Sutherland, C. Tamm, D. R. Tarte and H. W. Trueman.

Some very generous contributions have been received during the past week toward the Huntingdon High School Library Fund, sponsored by the Huntingdon Home and School Association. The fund has now reached the sum of $567.60, which we believe is the largest amount since the initial fund was commenced a few years ago.

The annual contributions are for the purpose of making replacements and adding new books to the library in order to keep it up-to-date. There is no doubt that since the new library was established a greater interest in reading among the students has been effected. There is every reason to encourage this new interest as a well read body of students will gain much in general education.

Following are the contributions received during the past week:

- $50.00. — In memory of the late Mrs. W. L. Carr.
- $10.00. — Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd.
- $5.00. — Mrs. J. R. Smith, Dr. F. G. McCrimmon, Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Willis, Anonymous.
- $3.00. — Mrs. R. Alex. Sim, Mrs. and Mrs. Arnold Milne, Miss Agnes M. Patton.

- $1.00. — Wm. J. Goodall, Ernest Humberg, Mrs. Muriel Frier, Gordon Ferry, Mrs. Thos. Wheaton.

Contract Given For Paving Streets in Valleyfield
At a recent Council meeting in Valleyfield, many important points were discussed by the members. Among those which the council had received four quotations, from Fortin Frere Construction, H. J. O'Connell Ltd., Viau Asphalt Paving and P. Baillargeon Ltd. Here are the prices submitted by the contractors: Fortin Frere, 10c a square yard for paving, $7.25 a ton for the paving mixture; a new coat for old streets, minimum depth of two inches, $7.45 a ton. In the same order, H. J. O'Connell: paving, 10c-$8.05-$7.05. P. Baillargeon Ltd. 10c-$8.50-$7.75.

Before reading the quotations, Mr. Alcide LaFontaine, city manager, advised the members of the council to take notice of the price of the (Continued on page 10)

Blood Donor Clinic to Be Held Here April 17

April 17th will be "C" Day in Huntingdon, because on that day the "Clinic" for blood donors for the Canadian Red Cross will be held at the Legion Hall. The importance and need for such a clinic, not only for our own Huntingdon district, but also wherever the Canadian Red Cross Society operates, which is in every province from coast to coast, should not require debate or argument.

Here are a few pertinent facts about this important phase of the work of our Canadian Red Cross Society. The blood transfusion service has been organized in order to help provide adequate supplies of whole blood, plasma, and equipment to all hospital patients, free of any charge whatever. This organization is entirely supported by voluntary subscriptions from all classes of the population, and therefore the blood transfusion service is made available to all through the self-sacrifice of the blood-donors.

The blood is obtained from donors in all walks of life, registered under Red Cross Donor Panels. Anyone between the ages of 18 to 65, who is in good health may be a donor. There is no special procedure to be followed prior to being a donor. No special diet is necessary. You may enjoy your regular meal even immediately before or after going to the Clinic. Your blood will be tested when you call to donate and will not be taken if you are anemic. The whole procedure will take about 15 to 20 minutes, or 45 minutes in all, allowing for a rest period and a cup of coffee. The Clinic in Huntingdon is only held once each year and only 300cc. of blood will be taken, not 500cc. as during the war. All donations are listed on the donors' cards given to them, and special buttons are given after the 3rd, 6th, 10th and 20th donations. After the 20th donation, the donor will receive an engraved certificate signed by His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada.

The members of the local committee under the convener-ship of Mrs. Joan Rottensten, have been busy making plans for our Huntingdon Clinic to be held April 17.

Prospectors will be contacting prospective donors in various areas in Huntingdon and district, in order to establish a head of time the approximate number of donors. If by any chance, you are overlooked, and would like to be a donor at the Clinic, your name may be given to any member of the committee or a phone call to Mrs. Rottensten, 2307, will place your name on the list.

Fire at McCallum Bros. Mill on Tuesday

What might have been a serious fire was averted Tuesday afternoon by the prompt action on the part of the men working at the McCallum Bros. Lumber Mill in the township of Elgin.

About 4:00 p.m. fire was discovered in a pile of saw dust near the motor house of the saw mill. The men working in the mill tore off the metal roofing of the motor house and part of the mill's roof in order to extinguish by snow and surface water, the flames which were smouldering between the beams and the metal roofing. The Fire Department from Huntingdon was called and by 5:30 p.m. the fire was under control. Estimated damage to the mill and the motor will be upwards of $2000. The mill was partly covered by insurance.

Canvassers will be contacting prospective donors in various areas in Huntingdon and district, in order to establish a head of time the approximate number of donors. If by any chance, you are overlooked, and would like to be a donor at the Clinic, your name may be given to any member of the committee or a phone call to Mrs. Rottensten, 2307, will place your name on the list.

DROWNING TRAGEDY AT CHATEAUGUAY TAKES LIVES OF THREE CHILDREN

Chateauguy, Que., April 3 (CP)—The bodies of three children were recovered Monday night when a large steam shovel loaned by a Montreal contractor was put to work clearing cover bodies of the victims of a triple drowning tragedy on Saturday. Two of the victims' bodies were recovered by late evening but the search still continued on Monday for that of the third.

The search for the body of three-year-old Monique Laberge, one of three children who drowned was speeded Monday night when a large steam shovel loaned by a Montreal contractor was put to work clearing cover bodies of the victims of a triple drowning tragedy on Saturday. Two of the victims' bodies were recovered by late evening but the search still continued on Monday for that of the third.

Police and 100 volunteers directed by Chateauguy Police Chief Henri Dorais, hoped the removal of ice from a large stretch of the river would enable them to locate the child's body within the next 24 hours. The bodies of the two other victims, Monique's sister Diane, 4, and Bernard Gendron, 3,

Three Children Lose Lives In Tragedy at Chateauguy

An Easter Eve tragedy in Chateauguy, Que., a village of 1,500 residents, claimed the lives of Bernard Gendron, 4, and two sisters, Dianne and Monique Laberge, 4 and 3.

A toy sailboat caused the triple drowning about 11:30 a.m. Saturday. Only the quick thinking of a resident saved a fourth tot.

Little Bernard, who with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gendron, of Christophe Colomb St., Montreal, was visiting old family friends, the Laberge family, decided to sail his boat in a 10-foot square patch of the Chateauguy River where the ice had melted.

With him was Marie Laberge, 3, who was saved, and her two cousins, Dianne and Monique Laberge, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Laberge of Chateauguy Village.

According to the police report, Bernard's sailboat got too far out. He made a desperate grab for it and tumbled head first into the water.

Little Monique, trying to save him, fell in too, Dianne perished trying to save her sister.

Roger Lecuyer, 39 and his wife, Germaine, were credited with preventing the fourth child, Marie, from going in after the drowning children, police said.

Mrs. Lecuyer, looking out of the window of her home facing the river, screamed to her husband that some children had tumbled into the water. The husband ran out and down

Woollen Mills Make Request Build Water Line From River

The Huntingdon Town Council met on Tuesday evening at the County Building, with all members present except Alderman Caza.

During the reading of the bills, a large one for Charity Hospital was read which amounted to $2,795.00 for the total. This covered a number of cases and a period of several months, but the total is very high and perhaps the highest ever. Mayor Cappiello remarked that something would have to be done and it was possible that some of this could be recovered.

Mr. M. Rosenschein appeared before the council in behalf of the Huntingdon Woollen Mills, asking for permission to run a water line to the Woollen Mills from the River. He suggested that it run along Dalhousie Street to a point near the Builders' Supply and Feeds Ltd. dam. He said this would be used only for processes in connection with the mill and that the Town water would be used for drinking purposes.

The Council requested the proposition be put into writing and submitted to them again. Mayor Cappiello said there were several questions which arose in his mind that would have to be settled before a decision could be reached or permission granted.

Gravel is to be drawn today (Wednesday) in an effort to stock pile some for use before the ban goes on the highways. This gravel is to be used right away to fill in holes and bad places where excavation work took place in the early winter. It is reported there are some very bad holes where this work has been done and the men will be asked to fill them in. Extra trucks will be hired in order to get as many loads as possible drawn in.

Complaints were made that too many cars are being left parked on Lorne Avenue, near the mill. Several times of late it has been impossible for traffic to proceed along this street. This street is used extensively by traffic and the police have been asked to see that less parking is allowed and at least the river water is flooding the surface," he explained. "If we don't find the child's body today, we may have to give up."—The Gazette, Montreal.

Constable John Brooks sent in his written resignation to the Council and asked to be relieved of his duties by the end of the month. He explained that he had obtained a position with more remuneration.

The council discussed the matter and decided to have the police committee interview Mr. Brooks before accepting his resignation.

Sgt. A. Trepanier also requested leave of absence for three months starting from the end of May. It was decided that this request be granted.

The Town Foreman's wages were set at $66.00 for a 55 hour week and overtime pay for hours worked after this number.

Rousselle and Rousselle, the new owners of Legault Meat Market, sent a request to the Council for a Beverage License. The council presumed this to mean a Beer License and a letter is to be sent suggesting that the request be made to Quebec Liquor Commission.

Milk reports for samples taken March 19th were read as follows: Elmhurst, 7,900cc; Belle Vallee, 30,000cc; Monique, 990,000cc and Goodfellow, 20,000cc.

The age-old question of the fire equipment being sent out of town was discussed and on account of so many not living up to the requirement of paying for this equipment, it is doubtful if it will be continued.

CARS ARE MU Line

by Noel A. Foisy

I think we'll start a new fan club. Not for Marilyn Munroe or Marlon Brando or the mayor or anyone like that. With spring check-up time coming I'm going to form a fan club for people who promise to look after their automobile fans and fan belts.

That's an awful pun, you probably grimaced like one of our mechanics did when he read it. Reminds me of the old friend who used to start off by saying: "Well, to corn a phrase - - -"

But it is time to think of the fan and fan belt.

Did you know, for instance, that running the fan in your car takes 10 to 15 per cent of the power produced?

That's how much it takes when the fan is operating properly. If it's not just right, as you can see, your car can throw an awful lot of power down the drain (which means a lot of gasoline).

Checking the fan is part of the Spring check-up service that we do for a lot of wise drivers. A car works hard during the winter, harder than at any other time of the year and it needs a Spring tonic.

And so much trouble can be traced to the fan and fan belt and corrected. The fan belt is slipping, so the generator doesn't charge the battery enough and the car won't start some morning. Or the radiator doesn't cool properly and the engine overheats.

A lot of the noises up front that frighten people into thinking their engine needs an overhaul turn out to be loose couplings or the like somewhere around the fan belt and it only takes a minor adjustment.

So this is an open invitation to join our fan club — and our spark plug, oil change, lubrication and brake test club — now that the time for Spring check-up is here.

The winners were — Ladies, Mrs. D. D. Fraser; men, Hugh Ferguson; consolation, men, Earl Gardiner; and ladies, Mrs. Grace Fleming. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

In a report of a "500" party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. McPhee, which appeared in the column last week it was erroneously reported as having taken place on Monday evening, March 19. Actually it was held on Wednesday evening, March 21. Mr. Steven, who was congratulated on the occasion of his birthday which was also the 21st and not the 19th as previously reported.

A Source of Industrial Research

THE Dept. of Mines, Quebec, has been conducting a number of surveys in this area with regard to the peat bogs which are to be found here. A matter of a year ago, the Dept. issued the results of a survey conducted on the two peat bogs in Huntingdon County which lie just outside of the Town of Huntingdon. These bogs are known to residents as "The Teafields".

There has been a little agricultural development of this area, but mainly it is considered of little use beyond being a berry picking source. It has always been considered that the good muck soil that is to be obtained here has great potentialities for growing garden produce. Much of this has been hauled into town for lawn and topsoil. However, experts have been in the district and declared that the area would not develop as truck garden producer.

Similarly in Chateaugay County, there are more of these peat bog areas which stretch away up in the Hemmingford district and thus come back into Huntingdon County. The most recent survey carried out by the Dept. of Mines, concerns this area and the reports are almost identical with that of the one near the Town of Huntingdon.

The reports do not hold out much prospect of the bogs developing into agricultural sections of the counties, as the soil has been burned over too much. It does say that they could be developed under certain conditions, but it would be costly. The survey finds that these bogs can be developed as a source of minerals which could be used by chemical companies in processing and manufacture. The words of the report read as follows in this regard: "Many chemical complexes of these peats, as made evident by chemical fractionation, could be considered as potential raw material for the industrial fabrication of various chemical products". The report then goes on to say what can be found in these bogs and the way to develop them. It also gives an estimate of the various quantities of each raw material thought to be obtainable.

Huntingdon has been seeking a means to induce industries to locate in this area, perhaps this may be the solution. It is of course necessary to get some large chemical concern interested in the potentialities of these bogs with a view to setting up the manufacturing equipment at this point. To the layman in such matters, it appears that here is a source of raw material which is going to waste for the sake of some capital investment. The raw materials cover so many different outlets for products in great use today, that several concerns might profitably engage in the pursuit of recovering them from these bogs. Such a development could mean much to this district in new employment and economy.

Canadian Visitors Flood Florida's West Coast

IT will be no surprise to most West Coast residents to learn that this part of Florida is regarded as a second home by thousands of Canadian visitors. The sight of Canadian auto tags on our streets and highways is as usual as sighting license plates from Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota or other northern and mid-western states.

Perhaps it will be surprising, however, to learn that the number of Canadians in these parts number about 50,000. This figure is offered by R. A. Farquharson who represents the Canadian Government. He estimates that Canadian tourists spent last year some $33,000,000 more in the United States than visiting Americans spent in Canada.

In fact, the balance of trade between Canada and the United States is of real concern to the Canadian Government. Mr. Farquharson estimates that the U.S. is coming out on the heavy end of this exchange some $840,000,000 to the good. Canada would prefer a closer balance and hints that it again might have to impose restrictions on the amount of money Canadians are permitted to take out of Canada to be spent in this country.

Yet, he admits that the number of Canadian manufactured goods which could be marketed in the U.S. are limited and that Canadian manufacturers are making no great effort to penetrate American markets. Canada, however, is exporting increasingly greater quantities of iron ore to the United States and is a virtual treasure chest of other essential metals and ores, including uranium.

All in all, it appears that Mr. Farquharson's concern about the $840,000,000 trade difference is misplaced. All signs point to this figure being narrowed as Canadian industry expands and as Canada develops its potentials as a vacationland for visitors from the States.

Some companies have already been approached with regard to the possibilities, but they have not evidenced too much interest as yet. The recent second report should prove more encouraging as it increases the quantities of the raw material available. The government report also says that these bogs are the richest of all the bogs so far surveyed and apparently the recovery of the material is much easier on account of the fact of the depth at which they can be found. There are a number of companies who might be interested and they are located within easy reach of this area, it just needs one to thoroughly investigate the opportunities which are said to be here. We attach here a part of a press release on the latest survey:

CHEMICAL STUDY OF THE PEAT BOGS OF THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

"The publication of a new report in the series on chemical studies of the peats of Quebec has just been announced by the Honourable W. M. Cottingham, Minister of Mines. The report P.R. No. 306 was prepared by J. Risi, C.-E. Brunette, and H. Girard and deals mainly with the chemical composition of the peat bogs of L'Assomption (L'Assomption county), of Holton (Chateaugay county) and of Napierville (Napierville county).

"Because of economic and climatic conditions, the utilization of peat as domestic or industrial fuel has always met with difficulties in Canada. Moreover, the restoration of about 700,000 acres of peat bogs of the province to agriculture, particularly to truck-gardening cultivation, is a very important economic and social problem. The solution of this problem, however, presupposes the exploitation of the peat and a suitable drainage of the lands reclaimed. In Canada, only the utilization of peat as raw material for the chemical industry can form the basis of a practical exploitation. It was for this reason that the Honourable Minister of Mines ordered a systematic study of the peat bogs of Quebec from a point of view of their chemical composition, in order to prepare the way for the industrial utilization of this wealth in the subsoil of Quebec.

"From a consideration of the results of a large number of analyses, the particular value of these three peat bogs has been established as a source of raw materials for the chemical industry, whether it be for the extraction of bitumen, the making of industrial alcohol and of other products of fermentation, or for the preparation of various derived humic substances and of lignin.

"The report P.R. No. 306 is accompanied by a map showing the location of the peat bogs of Quebec, and a detailed map of each of the three peat bogs studied, several photographs, and numerous analytic data."

Mr. Farquharson's own arguments point in this direction. He told a West Coast audience that the latest Bank of Canada Figures show "... we are growing faster than you are growing; that we are expanding industry faster than you are expanding your industry; and the rate of our private investment is ahead of yours".

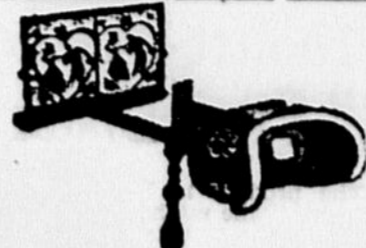

Canada also has great possibilities as a playground, but these must be developed just as it was necessary to build some Florida playgrounds from swampy land, disconnected islands and mosquito bogs.

The Canadian visitor tells tales of fishing at Great Bear Lake on the Arctic Circle and at Great Slave Lake further south where trout weighing 20 to 35 pounds can be caught. These locations are 400 miles or more from the nearest railway and the tourist resort at Great Slave Lake charges $500 a week. It will be some time before Joe Doakes loads his family in an auto for a two-week Summer vacation at these sites.

But Canada is expanding, pushing back the wilderness and opening new territory. Clearly, the futures of the two great North American countries are closely linked and the U.S. should encourage the growth of its northern neighbor as a means of reinforcing the industrial potential of this continent and preserving overall North American prosperity.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The foregoing is an Editorial taken from The Tampa Daily News, Tampa, Florida, and shows how well Canada is keeping up her end of the trade balance. More visitors would come from the south, if better facilities were available in Canada. The tourist business is something which we could do more about, if we would only develop our attractions and give them more publicity. It looks like a very profitable business if the right attention is paid to it.

Random Glimpses of The Past Taken from Gleaner Files

October 22 The Farmer and his Farm Stock What the Horse Market is and What it May Become. Points to Look For. Flaws and Practices That Hurt The Good Name of Canada.

On the evening of the 11th of Sept. Mr. McEachran completed the revision of an article for publication in the Gleaner. This article treats in turn with the marked conditions of horses, cattle, sheep and swine in Canada and throughout the British Empire. In part it was written three years ago, part has just been completed. It was the desire of the writer to revise it and have the publication start today, but the last illness prevented this. The article will appear in four installments.

By the Late Dr. McEachran In a Bulletin issued by Canada Food Board entitled "Canada's Opportunity" we find the following statement. With the re-establishment of normal commercial communication with Europe on the restoration of peace a tremendous demand upon the livestock industry of the country will have to be anticipated and prepared for.

"Increased production of livestock is of vital importance to Canada and her future and is the most valuable reconstruction work that can be done."

In the following statements and suggestions I will endeavour to show, by the extraordinary prices being paid in countries such as Great Britain and the United States, where concerted efforts have been made to improve the quality have resulted in enormous increases in values, and we may place ourselves in this country as now about to reorganize our livestock breeding on a much higher standard than ever before in every breed.

The destruction of the herds and flocks by Europe consequent on the War leaves them almost depopulated. Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. Now is our opportunity to secure a great market for all our spare breeding stock as well as food animals for many years to come.

Horses

When railroads were first introduced into Britain and other countries the idea generally prevailed that the day of the horse was past—and only a few years ago when trolley and motor cars and trucks were introduced this idea was revived and intensified.

I happened at that time to be breeding on the Walrod Ranch in Alberta from 350 Clyde grade mares, most of them purchased in the district of Chateaugay, Province of Quebec, and Brampton, Ont., having on hand some 1300 head young and old. The stallions used were too imported registered Clydesdales, two imported Shires and one celebrated sire, St. Mungo... out of the shire bred mare, and sired by the celebrated crossed horse "Prince of Wales". My English Board of Directors, some of them at least, got it into their heads that we were immediately entering on an horseless age, and of the Board wrote me a private letter, informing me for my guidance "being, as he said, better informed than I could be, that the Board is convinced that within a few years horses would disappear from the streets of London, and in fact for sanitary reasons from the streets of every City in Britain", and yet since the date of the letter horses have steadily increased in demand and in prices. In the Canadian West, railroad building, bringing prairie lands under cultivation by thousands of new settlers, the South African War, continued and increasing demand for agricultural purposes... then comes the World's War in which thousands of horses were destroyed and worn out at every large battle.

Never in the World's History were horses so valuable both as breeding stock of all kinds and commercial horses suitable for all purposes.

On the authority of press reports I give a few of the high prices obtained at auction sales.

Baron Cuchlyvie brought $47,500; Bonnie Buchlyvie, his son, $26,000; Rosiland, $15,000; mares and stallions sold in open market and by auction, $5,000, $4,500, and $4,350; yearling colts for $2,500, $2,000; many foals, as bringing $3,000 and $2,700. Mr. John Sleight of Aberdeen, is reported as having sold five male foals at $3,000 each. At a recent Lanark sale a gelding brought $1,125. Other breeds besides Clydesdales are bringing high prices. The Belgium Champion stallion "Farceur" brought $12,500, "Cerber" $12,500; the Shire Champion "Goalkeeper" $15,000. At a recent sale by Fraser and McDonald, Perth, Scotland, geldings brought $800, $780, $775 and $610.

What inferences are deducible for such prices? It presupposes great care in breeding and bringing them out in the best selling condition; and the existence of men and means and skill in selection to buy them at such figures. Such animals are not produced by chance, they are the result of years of improvement by selection of sires and dams, proper mating with specific purpose in view by men who from childhood have been taught by men of experience, not only how to feed, care for and prepare for market.

Whoever is in charge of the breeding should be a good judge of the special breed.

Selection of the Mare

The mare must be well bred, if not purebred, she should be of full size, with conformation, and constitution indicating vigour and endurance. The leg bones should be clean and flat and of good size in all breeds. Thereof deserve special consideration, weak flat or shelly hoofs should be avoided as this defect is notoriously hereditary. "No foot, no horse" is a common truism, never to be forgotten. The action should be square, swinging of the legs is very objectionable in a brood mare. She should be strong over the joints, with well sprung ribs. Colour is an important matter for consideration in selecting a brood mare, there should be an absence of too much white on the face or legs. The ancients had a saying indicative of their ideas on this subject.

"One white foot buy me,
Two white feet try me,
Three white feet deny me,
Four white feet and a white face
Give my carcass to the crows and my hoofs to the Devil."

She must be "sound in wind and limb," more particularly free from all hereditary unsoundness.

The Stallion

The stallion cannot be too carefully considered; without doubt he must be purebred, and of the best families of the breed, and he, if old enough, should be a proved foal getter. Avoid cheap stallions, I mean cheap in price and cheap for service fee, don't overlook the fact that "like begets like" and "as you sow, so shall you reap."

In conformation he should be as perfect as possible. In conformity to his breed. He should be of a large size, a good colour, with soundness in every particular, full chest and strong quarters, and short back; strong muscled. The ribs should be well sprung and close-coupled. All hereditary defects of conformation must be avoided. The leg bones should be clean, flat and heavy. The fore-legs should be straight. The knees large and not bent forward, not inclining backward, "calf kneed". The hocks should be large and wide, free from bone disease, "spavin" or articular distention. "bog spavin". The hind leg should not be crooked, and yet, too straight. The hocks should not be wide apart in draught horses whatever they may be in fast trotters, equally objectionable is the show pad of "going close behind" both in draught horses, an indication of weakness and should be avoided. Intelligent study of this defect from a mechanical standpoint will enable anyone with a knowledge of the principals of mechanics to understand the truth of this.

The Foot

One of the most important points to be considered is the feet, the truth expressed in the old adage, "no foot, no horse" should never be absent when inspecting a stallion for breeding or any purpose from the mind of show judge or purchaser... but more particularly the breeder. Flat thin soles and shelly walls constitute one of the most serious defects in any horse, no matter what his purpose may be, yet I have known stallions awarded prizes and allowed to be used for breeding purposes and horses sired by them with the transmitted defect fully inherited; used as sires with the serious consequences to the unwary breeder, and this in shows of much pretensions and receiving public money for use in the improvement of Livestock.

The Exhibition Company certainly should protect the breeders from such impositions.

Length of Bones and Obliquity of the Pasterns.

This point seems not to be sufficiently considered by show-judges, at least from a mechanical standpoint. In race horses, thoroughbreds, steeplechasers, hunters, and to a certain extent in standard-bred trotters an oblique pastern is a necessity to give spring and elasticity to the fetlock and pastern joints. Saddle horses, cavalry horses, hackneys, polo-ponies, all require it to prevent injury from concussion in rapid movements, without this provision the bones, joints and ligaments which connect them together, would suffer injuries from concussion; the sidebones, ring-bones and other ossifications would be far more common.

In the heavy draught breeds, however, the resiliency of the fetlock and pastern is not as much required as is strength and just enough obliquity to give sufficient springiness to lessen concussion on the foot bones, in them too, a short upright pastern is liable to be associated with sidebones and other ossifications. There is no more wonderful adaptation of means to an end in the whole animal anatomy than is displayed in the leg of the horse from the knee downward including the foot. It is an error on the part of showy judges to insist on long or oblique pasterns in draught breeds; on the contrary, they should be objected to as a weakness, by both breeders and judges. Governments should insist that money given for the improvement of horses should not be given as prizes unless the animals are absolutely sound.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, April (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent returning from a three-day visit with President Eisenhower and President Cortines of Mexico told reporters that Mr. Eisenhower and U.S. State Secretary Dulles expressed concern over the proposed new tax on Canadian editions of United States magazines.

The tax was mentioned in the March 20 budget as planned to begin next Jan. 1. It would be a 20-per-cent levy on advertising revenues of Canadian editions of foreign periodicals. It would apply to those containing special Canadian advertisements not printed in the magazines' domestic edition.

Mr. St. Laurent said the U.S. leaders were "worried lest this tax interfere with the free flow of ideas across the border." However they had not asked for its removal, explained to the president and Mr. Dulles the tax was not as presented to them," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Red Chinese Problem

Diplomatic sources in Washington said later that the Red Chinese question also arose at the meeting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., as between Eisenhower and Prime Minister St. Laurent and Dulles and Pearson. President Eisenhower was reported to have started in emphatic terms that American public opinion will not permit either recognition of Red China or its admission to the United Nations.

Pearson was understood to have told Eisenhower and Dulles that he did not believe Canadian public thinking was quite along the same lines.

Here Mr. Pearson declined comment on the Washington report which said in addition that he had told Eisenhower and Dulles that Canadian public opinion was becoming impatient with the present state of affairs. Mr. Pearson did say however that recognition of Red China had been discussed at the White Sulphur Springs meeting, but that each country's policy of non-recognition remained unchanged.

Informants in Washington emphasized the discussion was friendly, with each side explaining its stand. Eisenhower said that many Americans are firmly opposed to recognition of a government whose "hands are dripping with the blood of Americans killed in Korea." This quoted phrase is the same that Eisenhower used in explaining the American viewpoint to British Prime Minister Anthony Eden in Washington in January.

Informed quarters at Washington noted that the question of recognition of Red China... on which Pearson has spoken forcibly in the past... has been soft-pedalled at Ottawa in this United States election year.

Another Extension

The Board of Transport Commissioners has approved a six-month franchise extension to Nov. 1 for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. Mr. Justice John Kearney, Chief Commissioner, who announced the fourth extension granted to the company by the board in two years, suggested the company try to round up more Canadian capital to make an immediate start if possible of the controversial Alberta-to-Quebec natural gas pipeline.

The extension will not preclude the Board from changing its decision should there be indications of undue protracted delays or serious modification of Canadian views on how the line should be built, the Chief Commissioner said.

The $375,000,000 project has hit snags on both sides of the border. They could force it to seek still further extensions of time to show financial ability to build the line. The company had stated this financial ability depends on the export of surplus gas at Emerson, Man. A mountain of opposition has sprung up before the Federal Power Commission in Washington which is considering whether to grant an import permit.

The line also depends on Ontario-federal financing of the northern Ontario leg by a crown company. The Ontario legislature has approved the province's participation

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyd and family, and Mr. Baker, from Avonmore, Ont., spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hoyer.

Glady's report that Mr. George Lindsay, now in the Huntingdon County Hospital with pneumonia, is said to be slightly better.

Mrs. F. A. Pelletier spent Easter week-end in Montreal with her daughter Miss Gladys Pelletier.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Marshall and daughter Karen of Ottawa were holiday guests of Mrs. Stephen Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hadley. Mrs. S. Hadley returned with them to spend an indefinite time with her daughter and son-in-law.

Holiday week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Petch were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Case of Montreal and Mr. and Mrs. Garth Beckett of Pointe Claire.

Master Clifford Cookman of Verdun spent the Easter week-end with his uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Hadley and family.

Master Wayne Doucette of Plattsburg, N.Y., is holidaying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie and three children of St. Lambert were Easter guests of her father Mr. Charles McKay and Mr. and Mrs. James Kyle.

Mrs. J. Heather of Outremont was a week-end guest of her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barr.

in the crown effort but opposition forces in Parliament are digging in for a long debate.

Commuter Fares Up

Increases in commuter fares affecting thousands of Canadians were granted by the Board of Transport Commissioners to go into effect May 1.

Commuters in the Toronto area will not be affected by the present increases which are aimed mainly at and from Montreal. However, a further rise affecting the Toronto area goes into effect May 1, 1957.

The two will bring the level of tolls to double what they were in 1954-55. The 100-per-cent increase was requested by the railways in May, 1954.

But the rate increases on the routes, which the companies say are money losers, are being brought in more gradually than the railways had anticipated.

They want the full 100-per-cent rise made operative in two stages over a six-month period. They are getting it in three stages over a period of more than two years.

The first half of the boost was allowed for the Toronto area in September, 1954, and for other areas in March, 1955. That same month, the 50-per-cent Toronto increase was raised to 75.

Assemble Guided Missiles

Canadiar Limited of Montreal will co-ordinate production of the United States air-to-air guided missile, the Sparrow, for the RCAF. Canadiar's role in the multi-million job was learned following announcement by Production Minister Howe that the company had bought out the crown-owned portions of its operations for $11,500,000.

The purchase covers two plants and machinery in a third, forming part of the aircraft company's huge operations at Cartierville on the northern outskirts of Montreal.

Mr. Howe said the price is slightly more than the government's original cost, less normal depreciation reported to amount to about $10,000,000.

Informants said it will be some time before work begins on the Sparrow. The missile will be used as the main armament for Canada's CF-100 jet fighters. They intimated the plants Canadiar purchased for the government will be used for assembly of the missile.

Product - Cement, Delivery 8" Pipe, Distance 1800 Feet

The product to be delivered "Cement", the method of transportation an "8" steel pipe, the distance "1800 feet".

Since mid February, more than 15,000 cu. yds. of concrete have been poured on the power house site at the foot of Barnhardt Island which is the scene of the biggest construction job on the whole Seaway project.

To maintain such a pace in construction requires a total hourly requirement of some 60 tons of cement.

The Ontario Hydro has worked out a technique which is unsurpassed for the spot delivery of the main ingredient of concrete which is cement.

The pipe line that delivers this 60 tons of cement per hour is 3' in diameter, runs under two ship canals for more than a third of a mile to the mixing plant. After several curves the pipe finally climbs to the top of two big silos on the mixing site. Instead of having to move the equivalent of 1800 bags per hour by the truck and men delivery system the cement is whisked through the pipe by pressure from powerful air pumps with hardly a whisper to mark its going.

This pipe line, the finest of its kind to be used in this country, was scientifically designed and studies were made of the distance, curves, friction to be overcome, etc. so it was decided a pressure of 35 to 40 lbs air pressure would do the job.

Whole strings of freight cars containing bucket loose cement unloaded by a screw conveyor and work on an entirely new type of transportation system which will probably save millions of dollars of cost on the Seaway project.

pressed air which sends it on its way to the mixing site. The mixing plant site can store 16,000 bags at a time but that's only a fraction of the total of millions of bags which will be required for the whole project.

It is conservatively estimated that the total of concrete needed for the building of the Canadian half of the power dam will be in the neighbourhood of 260 million tons. As the whole process of construction of the dam really gets going in high gear in the next two years two small railroads leading out from shore West of Cornwall will be built on either side of the actual dam site.

To further expedite matters and hasten construction in conjunction with the dry cement delivery concrete will be mixed on shore and delivered to small hoppers on cars and thence to the work area. The cement filled hoppers will be dumped by huge gantry cranes working from towers 100 feet high. The upstream side will require the most concrete so two trains will operate there while on the downstream side only one will be necessary. The gantry cranes will also be mounted on rails to facilitate their movement.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McNicol and twin sons Brian and Bruce of Cornwall, visited Mr. and Mrs. N. H. McNicol on Sunday.

Mr. McNicol is engaged in electrical work in Cornwall and at present is working with a contractor who will be doing work on an entirely new type of transportation system which will probably save millions of dollars of cost on the Seaway project.

tend to put grave issues to the test. Younger men must carry the lance and wear the breastplate.

There are courtesies as well as duties due by people of one age to those of another age. While young people owe respect and help to their parents, the parents should set the children free at an appropriate age, establishing their relations on the basis of mutual consideration.

Youths should know that older people have a reserve of wisdom and quiet inner strength learned by long practice in adaptation, and that this can be called upon as a significant antidote to the stresses and strains induced by the fears, the vanities, the greeds and the ignorance encountered by young people.

But advice should not be forced upon young people: it was William Congreve who wrote in one of his comedies a couple of centuries ago: "Old men give good advice only when they are no longer able to give bad examples". Indeed, discreet older people will refrain from telling stories about the olden days as a means of "improving" younger people. A good rule is to volunteer stories of the past only to children under eight and to persons of one's own age.

On the other hand, young people need to appreciate and esteem the fact that older people have aged successfully when they have discovered or created for themselves effective roles in society. In China, says Lin Yutang in The Importance of Living, the first question a person asks the other on an official call, after asking about his name, is "What is your glorious age?" If the person replies apologetically that he is 23 or 28, the other party generally comforts him by saying that he has still a glorious future and that one day he may become old. But if the person replies that he is 35 or 38, the other party immediately exclaims with deep respect, "Good luck!"

Enthusiasm grows in proportion as a man is able to report a higher and a higher age, and if he is over 50 the inquirer drops his voice in respect.

Meaningful old age

Living a few years longer is not so important as living the years meaningfully. Many people — and not least of all business and professional men — declare that the years after 65 are the most interesting and gratifying part of their lives.

A philosopher compares life to a piece of embroidery, of which, during the first half of his life, angels and disappointments, but life always begins where we are. We should have a purpose; we should still want to do some-

Only when we look back at the long course of our life and its general result can we see the why and wherefore of it all. A thousand things become clear which were formerly obscure, and we gain a satisfying feeling of difficulties overcome.

With advancing age we receive unexpected rewards and compensations. We escape slavery to convention; we detect the superficial things and pay attention to the significant; we enjoy being patient; we have outgrown our keeness acrimony; we are free of uneasy craving; we are no longer pompous and self-regarding; we have a feeling of immense relief from the number of dangers we have escaped; we have advanced from what was promised to what is fulfilled.

This is not to say that we must rest on our oars. A survey reported this year in Industry reveals that 64 per cent of the world's great achievements have been accomplished by men who have passed their 60th birthday. Between 60 and 70 years of age, 35 per cent of the world's great achievements were accomplished: 23 per cent between 70 and 80, and 8 per cent after 80.

Sir William Van Horne, builder of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said no man comes to the sub-conscious co-ordination of details necessary to control a vast system until he is 60. And if we forsake the mundane things of business to seek a lesson in knight errantry, we find that when the first lances of all Christendom were Chandos of England and Du Guesclin of France, John Chandos was over 70 and blind in one eye. Retiring and soft-spoken he was, but when the earth stirred to a slow thunder of armies the most dreaded device on a shield was still the red pile of Chandos.

Not a rocking chair

The paradise we seek for old age is not a rocking chair in which to sit and twiddle our thumbs, but a place where we may use our strength and gifts and knowledge and experience to finish our job or to do other jobs for which we never had time. Activity in a useful role gives us a feeling of adequacy and accomplishment.

Growing Old Successfully

Everyone, of whatever age, should have periodical medical examinations, but these are especially needed after middle life. People under forty are likely to put this advice on one side with the remark that they will worry about such things when they have to. But what will happen to them if they do not take ready shaping itself. Repeated or untended insults to their bodies: infections, malnutrition, obesity, emotional turbulence, poisons, alcoholism, drug addiction, overwork; these produce unnatural wear and tear.

All of the infirmities of old age are not inevitable, if only people will think forward, give medical men a chance to detect and treat ailments in their early stages, and do what the doctors order. Health and longevity are not inherent rights, but privileges, and as such they carry the obligation to make an effort to earn them.

Why Worry?

Some people worry without any more justification than that they are getting old. Worry should do. It is perfectly normal for a person to ponder the things that might have been, to shed a few quiet tears over unclaimed opportunities, to sort things out in their own minds, but then he should turn quickly and briskly to the future. The most dangerous phrase in post-middle-age language is "that's the way". It is of great importance to take the time to plan the morrow while not fretting and worrying ourselves uselessly.

At whatever age we may be, life consists in progress, and we defraud ourselves and cause disharmony by clinging obstinately to one phase or group. Some great musicians were guilty of working up to colossal climaxes and then blasting away at the same chord over and over again, ruining the moment by being reluctant to leave it.

One who has early formed good habits of living, picked up the important techniques of adjustment, and acquired a good philosophy, will go on, despite the vicissitudes of adventure and development. A man of 65 may be as vital as the average man of 40, and may show no sign of old age except an accumulation of wisdom.

This does not mean that everyone can count on being a Jean Borotra, playing competitive tennis at Wimbledon in his 38th year, or a John W. Davis, arguing a great constitutional case before the Supreme Court of the United States on the threshold of his 80th year. It does mean that everyone who takes care to preserve health and spirit through youth and middle age can count on being able to enjoy success in his own line of activity right up to the end, barring accidents.

Increasing age is something about which to be sensible. It is a great boon to have the proper spirit of one's age, to abandon attempts to appear younger than one is, to take on significant responsibilities instead of juvenile ones; to give up the pretence of cleverness, resource and infallibility, and to become willing to be accepted or rejected for what one is.

Many business men in their sixties and seventies will tell of the relief it is to be passed over by committees and forgotten by campaigning organizations and neglected by speakers committees: events that would have been heart-breaking thirty years before. Free from feeling neglected, they are exhilarated by the freedom to be interested in new facets of life that appeal to their new maturity.

No cause for pessimism

With more older people alive today than at any other time in the world's history, everyone has reason to think about this new situation. There is, however, little cause to take a pessimistic attitude. Dr. Lawrence E. Ranta, medical director of the Vancouver General Hospital, said in Canadian Welfare that there is no proof that persons over 65 pressed the community with a social or medical problem disproportionate to the assets that the community has gained by becoming healthier.

Economically, there is a temporary burden laid upon the shoulders of younger people, but this will decrease as we improve the health of elderly people and find ways of enabling them to carry their proportionate share of production and economic usefulness. An editorial in Maclean's at the end of May remarked: "We could bring to bear on their problems the same human genius, the same dogged perseverance, the same patience and devotion, the same fine sense of adventure and discovery that gave the world a vaccine for polio. We could probably do this without spending a single extra dollar and in the long run we might even save some dollars."

How big a problem?

The most important external factor determining the high proportion of aged persons in our population today was the heavy surge of immigration prior to 1931. Between 1901 and 1931, more than 4½ million people entered Canada, most of whom were between 20 and 40 years of age.

There have been remarkable advances during the past generation or two in medical serology, curative and preventive medicine, with their consequent reduction in death rates. It has been said that thirty per cent of the persons who reach 65 owe their survival to the advances in health and medicine made since they were born.

Tradition looks upon 35 as the middle age. In 1921, 67 per cent of Canada's people were under 35 and 33 per cent were 35 and over. By 1951 there were 61 per cent under 35 and 39 per cent 35 and over. Still more striking are the comparative figures for persons of older age. In 1921 the proportion of our population 60 and over was 7.5 per cent; in 1951 it was 11.4 per cent. In 1921 only 4.8 per cent were over 64; in 1951 the figure was 7.8 per cent.

A publication of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in October tells us that Canada's death rate dropped to the lowest point on record in 1954, the eleventh consecutive annual decrease, a decline of almost 20 per cent in a little over a decade.

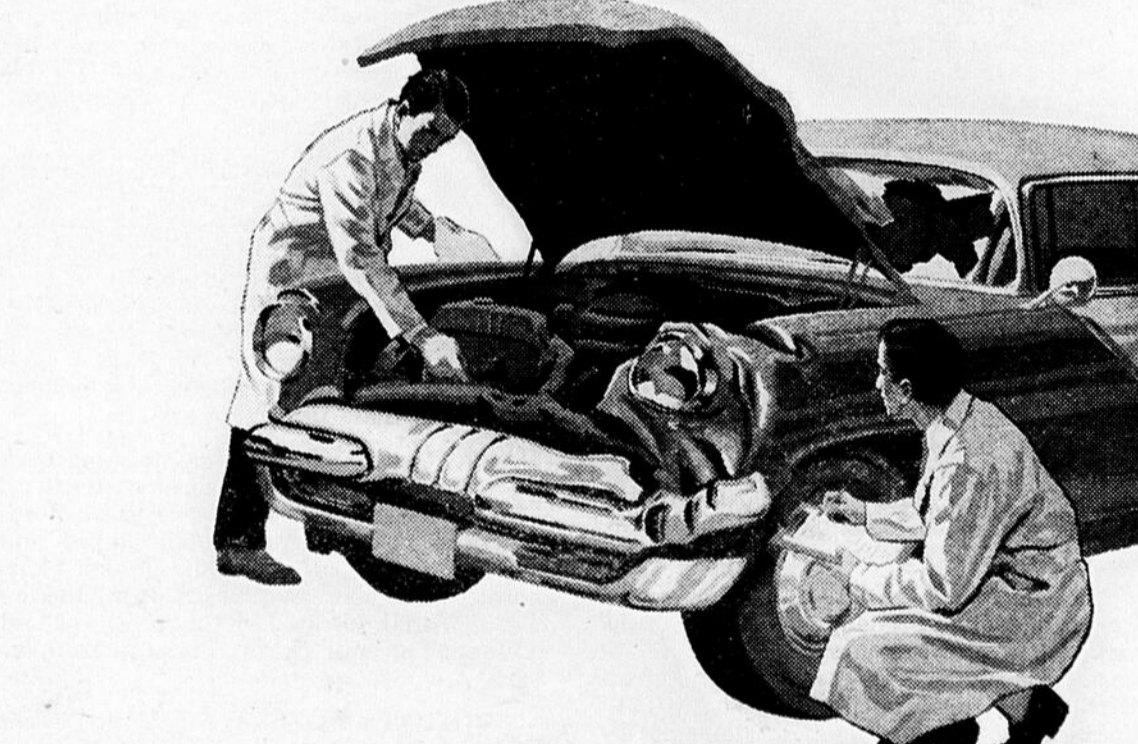

The ages at which death occurred provide interesting reading. A little over 11 per cent of all deaths were of infants under one year of age; 9 per cent of persons between one and 40 years of age; 16 per cent between 40 and 60; 44 per cent between 60 and 80; and 20 per cent over 80 years of age. It is estimated in Canadian Welfare that whereas the population of men and women aged 65 and over in 1951 was 1,086,000, it will be 1,610,000 by 1971. The Labour Gazette estimates the 1971 figure 20,000 higher.

Youth and age

Each phase of life has its own significance and each is invested with its appropriate responsibilities and activities.

V. Sackville-West wrote in All Passion Spent: "Youth had no beauty like the beauty of an old face; the face of youth was an unwritten page". But youth has urges and energies that are only the precursors to the aged. Part of our difficulty is that we are trying to force both into a common mould. The Financial Post printed a cartoon in which a youthful college graduate and an elderly man are looking at a sign in an employment office: "Open wanted. Must be young and experienced."

To every part of life has been assigned its own peculiar appropriate quarry, and our effort must be directed toward extracting the best of all. We need not dwell on the sombre side of age, but only to acknowledge at each period the virtues and disabilities of the other. Lord Beaverbrook said at 75 years of age, without relinquishing an iota of his prestige and leadership: "Henceforward I do not in-

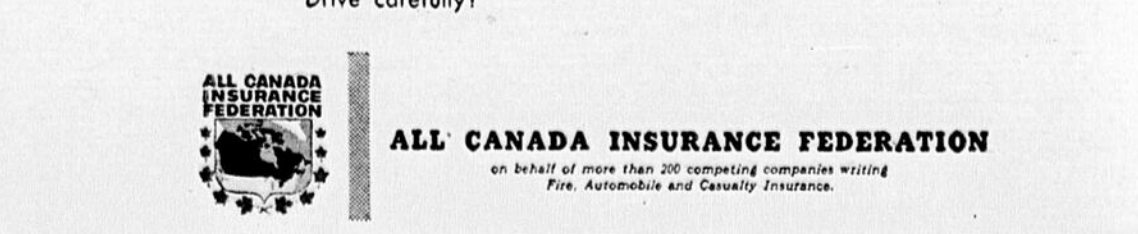

Accident costs Set automobile insurance rates

Automobile insurance rates are set in direct relation to the number and cost of accidents of Canadian drivers. Last year, for example, automobile insurance claims amounted to more than one hundred million dollars—a motor car was smashed every two minutes and someone was injured or killed every 12 minutes.

When the costs of automobile accidents decrease, so do automobile insurance rates. But, when the number and cost of accidents increase, then insurance rates increase too.

"Christ and Human Suffering"

In this special series of four Sermon Lectures we shall consider some of the most fundamental questions of human life. If God is good and desires good for us, then why does He allow us to suffer? Why do the righteous suffer? What can we learn from the pains and suffering of the cross of pain and suffering? You will want to hear these and other questions discussed and are invited to join us this Sunday evening.

Easter Services Well Attended

The Easter services in all churches in Huntingdon, on Sunday, were very well attended. Special music appropriate to the festival was used to bring joy as the climax to this solemn religious offering. Beautiful spring flowers and Easter lilies decorated the churches, adding to the renewed life which comes at this time of the year. On Good Friday a special three-hour service was held at St. John's Church.

Snow Storm for Last of March. Perhaps as a parting gesture, a heavy fall of wet snow came on Thursday and Good Friday and blanketed the countryside. However, it did not last long and turned to slush. Milder temperatures are fast melting the remaining snow and ice, but sugaring is not turning out too well on account of the type of weather we are experiencing.

This told of the people of Kenya in Africa, who are asking that the gospel be preached to them, and for schools and hospitals. No race is condemned to perpetual ignorance and illiteracy. They say, "We, too, are men." They are reaching out to us for help. Let us not refuse them.

Huntingdon Fair to Feature Rodeo

The Huntingdon Fair Board is making an all-out bid for the patronage of a record attendance at its fair in Huntingdon, this fall. It has been the policy of the Board for the past years to try and obtain something in the way of good entertainment for their annual Fair. This has paid off in larger attendance and consequently bigger receipts from the gate. This year, the Board has made arrangements to have a full Rodeo presented for two days, which will show in the afternoon and the evening of both these days.

Due to the fact that a guaranteed amount for each day is part of the contract made, and in the belief that this great attraction will provide entertainment of a kind never before seen here, the Board is looking for an extra large attendance. It has therefore been decided that much advance publicity will be necessary to acquaint the public of this coming attraction.

The dates for the Huntingdon Fair have been fixed for August 13, 14, 15, and the opening evening will have a big parade of floats and the Square Dance will be a feature on the grounds. On the next two days — afternoons and evenings — The Black Diamond Wild West Rodeo will be the feature attraction. This is a one hour and forty-five minute show having 66 head of wild stock and 35 professional cowboys and cowgirls. It is action-packed all through with real wild west thrills and fun, featuring riding, roping, bucking bronchos and steers, trick riding and driving and a host of other acts. Hi, Gi, Pit Up, Tar, Ride'em, Cowboy, will be familiar cries to be heard during this Rodeo, while the boys rope the little doxies as in the Round-up Days.

Perhaps this a little early, but it is suggested that the dates be kept in mind and that this is one event you will plan to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Alison Elder and Lois of Rawdon, Que., also AC2 Allan Elder, R.C.A.F. Station, Clinton, Ont., spent a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Lang, Ormstown and Mr. and Mrs. Weir and family, Huntingdon.

Excursion to Frestwick
As the rather ungrammatical Scottish expression would have it, Douglas A. Ness is back lang syne from Scotland." However, a week or so ago, some time after his return, there came to hand copies of the Scottish Farmer and the North British Agriculturist, both dated March 10, in both of which there are some references to the James Graig's annual show and sale of pedigree Ayrshire bulls and the role played by Douglas A. Ness in connection with same.

Incidentally, Douglas A. Ness flew across by T.C.A. from Dorval to Frestwick and returned by the same route, in reverse order, of course. He therefore probably saved nearly two weeks in travelling by air instead of by sea. However, that was by no means his first Air Flight to Scotland, to the home of the Ayrshire cow in his quest for Ayrshire cattle.

The cattle which Douglas A. Ness purchased for the Burnside herd several orders, and perhaps, for the Royal Sale of Stars, are, we understand, being shipped by sea to Levis, Que. (for the regulation quarantine period) after Navigation has been fully opened on the St. Lawrence.

We understand that Burnside's (D. A. Ness) purchases were all on a private sale basis; that is at the farms concerned. However, as already indicated, part of his time over there was spent at the Ayr Bull Show and Sale—as one of the judges at that great annual Ayrshire classic event, for his credit, as indicated by the two Scottish Farm Magazines.

The Ayr Bull Sale
However, before repeating the comments about the forte played by Douglas A. Ness, a few comments about the sale might be of interest.

The Scottish farmer report says, in part:
"Recent downward trends in prices were checked (at this sale) ... The 106 bulls sold for a total of £12,036.3s to give the satisfactory average of £113.10s, compared with last year's average of £113.8s.6d. for 83 bulls.

"The top price of 650 guineas paid by Mr. J. Semple, Netherton, Dalrymple, for the Rottenrow champion, showed an increase of 190 guineas on last year's top price."

"This event was a personal triumph for Mr. Jacob Templeton, Rottenrow, Matchline, who gained the awards for champion, reserve champion and group of three bulls. He is the first breeder who has ever attained this distinction.

Burnside Judged
The report goes on to say:
"There was general agreement when the judges, Mr. Douglas Ness, Burnside, Howick, Que., and Mr. Ivie McIlwraith, Stannock, Whithorn, selected the champion, Rottenrow Paderewski, a most impressive bull of fine appearance, style and pedigree. His dam, Rottenrow Peerie 6th, is by the famous Rottenrow Remarkable which was unbeaten in the show rings in this country, before he was exported to Canada (to Bois de la Roche Farm, and now owned by the Howick Ayrshire Breeding Club). Rottenrow Finality, the sire of both the champion and the reserve, is a son of Rottenrow Killy, champion at the London Dairy Show in 1938, and was himself a prizewinner at Ayr Show."

The reserve champion, a Rottenrow Crown Prince, was purchased by the Ministry of Agriculture Breeding Centre, Shinwell, Reading, at 500 guineas.

Veal—The Meat of the Month
Fresh veal, delicate, tender and juicy, is plentiful in butcher shops now. Although some veal is usually available the year round, this is the season when it is best in quality and most economical to buy. It is not sold by grade in the shops but good quality veal has certain characteristics which the consumer should learn to recognize.

Similar cuts of veal may vary greatly in colour and size for they come from animals of different maturity and weights. The meat from younger animals is grayish-pink and is less firm than the pinkish-brown meat of the more mature veal. The bones in young veal are more porous and more reddish in colour than those from older animals.

All good quality veal is fine-textured and velvety. It has much less fat than other meats, but what there is may be white, creamy-white or tinged with pink. Although it comes from young animals veal has a considerable amount of connective tissue and requires long slow cooking to make it tender. It is a mild-flavoured meat which combines well with many foods and seasonings and its delicate flavour is enhanced by cooking in well-seasoned sauces.

Roast Veal for Springtime Dinners
Most cuts of veal are tender enough to be roasted and the mild flavour of this spring favourite is a superb contrast to the season's sprightly lasting fruits and vegetables. Because veal contains little fat a roast will be juicier if it is covered with slices of bacon, salt pork or other fat strips during cooking. The fat should be removed during the last hour of roasting so that the meat will brown evenly.

Like other meats, veal shrinks less and has a better flavour when cooked at a low temperature. The roast should be placed on a rack in an uncovered pan with no water added and cooked in a moderately slow, 325° F. oven until it is well done. The meat is cooked when it is fork tender and greyish in colour, with no trace of pink remaining, or, if a meat thermometer is used, the internal temperature of the roast is 180° F.

Woman's Association
The March meeting of the Woman's Association was held this past week at the home of Mrs. Anders. The usual programme was followed. The members brought their first contributions toward the work of the Fall Sale. The varied responses to the Roll Call were in keeping with special days of March, St. David's and St. Patrick's, etc. An interesting story, "Doers of the Word", was told by one of the members, depicting the work done in Korea by Christianians, translating the Scriptures into the Korean language, and under difficulties this work was done, because of Communist domination. The sum of $10.00 was voted toward the work of the Finance and Extension Board of the Montreal Presbytery. The program committee sponsored a very amusing game entitled "Bequests". A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting, when refreshments were served.

Woman's Association
The March meeting of the Woman's Association was held this past week at the home of Mrs. Anders. The usual programme was followed. The members brought their first contributions toward the work of the Fall Sale. The varied responses to the Roll Call were in keeping with special days of March, St. David's and St. Patrick's, etc. An interesting story, "Doers of the Word", was told by one of the members, depicting the work done in Korea by Christianians, translating the Scriptures into the Korean language, and under difficulties this work was done, because of Communist domination. The sum of $10.00 was voted toward the work of the Finance and Extension Board of the Montreal Presbytery. The program committee sponsored a very amusing game entitled "Bequests". A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting, when refreshments were served.

Is Your Car Sufficiently Insured Against Accident?

A traffic accident has sunk an ex-bus driver $76,000 in debt. "It's hopeless. I'm a ruined man. I'll spend the rest of my life paying," says William Stevenson, of Brantford, Ont. The accident... a head-on collision between two private cars in which three people died and seven others were injured... occurred on a highway near Brantford on August 1, 1954. The story of what has happened during the nineteen months since is told by Sidney Katz in a current issue of a popular magazine. Stevenson was hospitalized for four months, served a four-month sentence in prison for dangerous driving and was ordered by the court to pay damages of $96,781.95. His insurance protection amounted to only $21,765.50. For each year he defaults there is added to this amount almost $4,000 in interest. Stevenson hasn't been able to work since the accident, says Katz. He's lost his home, his assets, and his wife and sister support him. Of the six other survivors, all but one still suffer from injuries incurred in the accident. Several, still unable to work, have gone deeply into debt. None has received more than a fraction of the damages awarded by the court. A. W. Boos QC, the lawyer who represented several of the survivors has pointed out, says the article, "that today anybody may face financial ruin unless everybody who drives a car is heavily protected by public liability insurance. "Twenty-five years ago," he says, "twenty thousand dollars was considered a lot of insurance. Now you need fifty thousand dollars or more."

Howick Mixed Bonspiel Proves Interesting Event

Life around the Howick Curling Club has been one long bonspiel during the month of March. First the Howick Mixed Bonspiel, which came to a halt midway and was finished at a later date, due to the heavy snowstorm. Sixty rinks were entered with the eight, high percentage rinks playing in the finals. Each rink played two games in the finals and their two percentage scores were added, the four highest winning the prizes. These games were played on the 24th, which was a busy day for the ladies too. Mrs. C. Kerr and her committee had arranged for lunches to be served before and after games, during the bonspiel, but on the final day dinners were served to 40 or more. Following the games, the Pres. of the Men's Club, W. F. Welch presented the prizes to the winning rinks in the following orders: 1. Lachine; 2. Aubrey; 3. Howick (Stewart); 4. Howick (McRae). This was a most enjoyable affair. 32 rinks entered, with play going on at the three clubs. As each rink went on the ice, the first and third players changed to the opposite rink, thus mixing the curlers from the three clubs. This element of surprise added a lot to the fun. The finals on Saturday evening, March 17th, drew a full house. An extra end was played to decide the winners of the main event, which was Morris Robb's rink. Glen Whyte was runner-up. The games were served following the games by the clubs. The prizes for the main event were presented by Rev. Wm. Brown.
