TERRIFIC SNOWSTORM HITS DISTRICT

First Snowstorm of Season Ties up Transport, Power And Telephone Facilities

Worst Winter Storm in Years Causes Serious Disruption of Public Services—Drifts Are Piled Many Feet High

One of the worst early-season snowstorms experienced in the Chateaugay Valley, in many years, struck with all its fury on Wednesday and Thursday last week, leaving in its wake disorder and a complete disruption of habits. The first indication of a change in weather was on Tuesday, when the barometric reading fell sharply. This was followed by a heavy rain about 11 p.m. of the same day. Expecting to see the snowfall of the previous Sunday, gone on Wednesday morning, people awoke to find the ground covered with a thick blanket of fresh snow. About noon on Wednesday, snow again fell and was driven along in blinding sheets by a wind that reached and held gale-like ferocity until late on Friday evening.

Wednesday's drifting snow caused disruption and confusion in the whole of the Beauharnois district. In the stretch between the city of Valleyfield and the Defence Industries plant at Nitro, it was estimated that 150 cars, trucks and buses were mired when night fell. Streets in Huntingdon were blocked for motor vehicles and the town was in darkness, with all wheels of industry halted, until 8 o'clock in the evening. The reason for this was that the driving wind and biting snow had broken a conductor on the main power line near St. Louis de Gonzague, thereby disconnecting the power leading from Beauharnois to Huntingdon and all inter-connected towns. Highly trained linemen from Valleyfield, however, repaired the damage and Huntingdon again had the use of electricity by 7.45 p.m.

The Huntingdon linemen, travelling by horse and sleigh, repaired the broken conductor and severed lines at Ormstown and Howick, and part of Ormstown had lights by 10 p.m. that night, while another part was without electricity until 10 a.m. on Thursday. Trout River homes were illuminated by 6.30 p.m. Wednesday, with the town of Huntingdon coping with unbelievable road conditions. Twice on the return trip, these men, who were travelling with horses and sleighs, were forced to get out of their conveyances and shovel the horses out of snow drifts that were several feet high.

In Valleyfield, many D.I.L. workers from out-lying points, were forced to spend the night. A large plate glass window in the Dion department store was broken by the force of the storm, resulting in much damage to merchandise that was on display. Many old-timers in that city stated that the water in Lake St. Francis Bay reached its highest level in 30 years, with water from the bay sweeping right over Saucé Park and into the canal in the other direction. Many workers whose vehicles were stuck and who were unable to reach Valleyfield were forced to sleep in nearby farm homes or return to the plant for the night.

Many Huntingdonians were without their usual supply of fresh milk on Wednesday as milkmen were unable to make their rounds even with horses. One man was forced to deliver his evening milk on the following morning, and was besieged with calls for milk from other dairymen's customers. Friday evening, who delivers milk in Huntingdon and Valleyfield, had a problem on his hands on Thursday, as he did not know where his trucks were that had been sent to Valleyfield on Wednesday. As highways were blocked, milk trucks were unable to make their trips to Montreal and many trucks were unable to make return trips with empty cans for the farmers. When the farmers attempted to ship their milk by train, however, they were given to understand that the trains could not accept their loads, as they did not have extra cars for additional freight.

With no let-up of wind and snow on Thursday, many streets in Huntingdon were again blocked for motor travel, and one street was blocked for horse-drawn vehicles. With paths drifting in as soon as they were made, it was almost impossible to reach some parts of the town. Many school children who arrived in town on Wednesday morning were unable to return to their homes until Friday evening, when some of the students had to walk several miles. Huntingdon High School buses, driven by Messrs. Caldwell and Elder, were unable to travel more than a few miles from the outskirts of Chateaugay street, west, as the roads were filling in badly and it was impossible to see the road. Approximately 50 students were billeted throughout the town on Wednesday evening, and although a few were able to reach their homes on Thursday, many were still in town for Friday evening.

Travel to Montreal and other centres was impossible with exception of travel by train, and even this method was irregular, as trains were anywhere from 1 to 4 hours late.

The village of Ste. Barbe was the scene of many abandoned cars and trucks during, and after the storm. Mr. Hector Prevost, manager of the Huntingdon branch of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, was forced to abandon his truck there for four days, while he made the return trip in a cutter. One truck driver who hauls milk to Valleyfield every day, stated that he was forced to leave his truck there after he had gone through drifts that reached half-way up the radiator of his truck. A Dundee man and his daughter were forced to remain in Coffey's Corners for two nights, when he was unable to make the return trip by truck. Both remained at a friend's home until, on the third day, he was able to reach Carr's station and make the remainder of the trip by train.

Totally unprepared for such a storm, very few snow fences had been set up, and snow plows were not serviced for the work that they faced. In most cases, people who were forced to attempt to travel by motor vehicles had to turn back; in some cases, even this was impossible and cars were marooned in drifts. One case was reported near Ste. Philomena where a man abandoned his car in a drift and returned the next day to find that it had been covered with snow and the driver of a huge Diesel-powered plow, not knowing a car was under the drift, thereby disconnecting the vehicle. Several similar cases were reported in Huntingdon, but the vehicles were rescued before plows reached the scene.

On Friday and Saturday, a one-way lane was made between the Canadian metropolis and Huntingdon, and two Army trucks from Chateaugay Barracks, Huntingdon, were among the first vehicles to reach here after the snow. When asked if they would like to make a return trip, the Army lads merely gave the interrogator an awed yet sympathetic look, as if the questioner wasn't "quite right."

This year, more than ever before, people noticed that the roads of this district were not cleared until after the Valleyfield and Beauharnois ones were passable. A reasonable answer for that is the fact that workers must reach war plants at Nitro and Beauharnois in order to help keep Canada's war effort at a high peak.

Telephone service was at a low ebb during and after the storm, with 55 poles being down and 47 out of 90 rural lines in the Huntingdon district being out of order. In Ormstown, Howick, Hemmingford, Valleyfield, as well as Huntingdon, it was impossible to make long distance calls. In many local cases, phones would ring but conversation could not be carried on as the line "went dead" when the phone was lifted from its base. Mr. Campbell, manager of the Huntingdon branch of the Bell Telephone Co. was on the road every day and often late in the evening repairing the lines. By Tuesday, all repairs had been made and phones were again in order. Mr. Campbell, who did all the repair work personally, with the exception of three days' aid from another lineman, stated that many of the country roads were impossible even with horses; however, he stated that he and a driver, David McCoy, covered approximately 30 miles a day in several instances where they were forced to unhitch the team from the sleigh and dig the horses out of the drifts.

Under present conditions, Provincial Transport buses stop almost in the centre of the road when they make their stops in front of Aubin's drug store. The reason for this is that there are usually several cars parked in front of the bus stop, and if the bus was stopped alongside the cars, it might slide into them when starting off. The difficulty arising is that people are lined up on both sides of the bus, and motorists passing the vehicle are in constant danger of striking somebody. In order to overcome this difficulty, two signs will be obtained from the Provincial Transport Company, and the bus will stop at the curb between the signs, thereby allowing more room for travellers. The signs will be installed by the road committee.

Christmas Celebrations

Christmas celebrations in churches and Sunday schools need not be less colorful this year, according to L. C. Robitaille, Montreal regional prices and supply representative for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Recognized religious organizations are exempt from the ruling that lights may be placed on Christmas trees and decorations within the home may be lighted electrically only during the period from December 24 to January 1 inclusive. This does not permit Christmas tree lighting in stores or any other place except "within the home," Mr. Robitaille pointed out.

DEATH FOR LOOTERS

London—The German radio reported the death penalty had been invoked in Italy for persons caught looting—presumably in bombed areas.

Looks Like Ayrshire; Looks Like Holstein; Freak Calf Has Two Heads

During a recent visit to Massena, N.Y., a friend of the Gleaner's had the pleasure of visiting the farm of Mr. Moses Leroux, where a two-headed calf was born. The animal, which was born on November 24th, is alive and well, and is attracting curious people from miles around. The freak bovine has four eyes, one on each side of its head and a pair merged together in the centre of the heads. The nerve in the centre pair is dead, but the animal can see with the other eyes. Two long noses and mouths form a V for victory. The animal can eat and drink with either mouth and breathes through both noses. The teeth of the heifer calf are very sharp, which prevents it feeding from its mother; to overcome this difficulty, Mr. Leroux feeds the animal from a pint-sized bottle, pouring the milk into one mouth and then the other. A third mouth, complete with teeth, can be seen between the two noses. The calf is normal in every respect except for its heads.

Early Closing Discussed by Council

Delegation Asks For Weekly Half-holiday By-law

At a regular meeting of the Huntingdon Town Council on Monday evening, the bills, as read, were ordered paid, with the exception of Nitro and Beauharnois in order to close their stores on Thursday afternoons. After considerable discussion on this matter, it was decided that it would be referred to the Town's attorney at an early date. As is known, the retail merchants of Huntingdon deserve a half-day off as well as anyone else, but the point is that if the Town passed such a by-law, then anyone who kept his store open on Thursday afternoons would have to be prosecuted.

Under present conditions, Provincial Transport buses stop almost in the centre of the road when they make their stops in front of Aubin's drug store. The reason for this is that there are usually several cars parked in front of the bus stop, and if the bus was stopped alongside the cars, it might slide into them when starting off. The difficulty arising is that people are lined up on both sides of the bus, and motorists passing the vehicle are in constant danger of striking somebody. In order to overcome this difficulty, two signs will be obtained from the Provincial Transport Company, and the bus will stop at the curb between the signs, thereby allowing more room for travellers. The signs will be installed by the road committee.

A letter was read from the Provincial Fire Committee authorizing the Town to purchase 50 feet of 1/2 inch garden hose, to be fitted with a spray nozzle. The letter stated that such equipment is beneficial in extinguishing chimney fires.

Bananas on Market

Four carloads of bananas, scarce in Canada in recent months due to shipping difficulties on the Atlantic seaboard, arrived in Montreal late last week. Prices, set by a previous Wartime Prices and Trade Board order, were 23 cents a pound for bananas from Mexico and 15 cents for those from Guatemala. The Mexican fruit had been purchased in United States funds and had travelled farther by rail. The Guatemala bananas had made part of the journey by ship.

Form Ladies' Branch Wartime Prices and Trade Board

Mrs. C. L. Roman and Mrs. G. R. Amiot, of Valleyfield, Organize Huntingdon Women For Consumer Interests

On Friday afternoon, Mrs. C. L. Roman and Mrs. Gilles R. Amiot, of Valleyfield, presided at a meeting held in the County Building, Huntingdon, for the purpose of forming a Huntingdon Women's Committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. About 40 ladies were present, French and English, all of whom expressed their keen interest in such a project, and therefore two meetings were held, with Mrs. Roman addressing the English speaking ladies, while Mrs. Amiot addressed the French.

During World War 1, the prices of many household commodities rose sky high, making it impossible for the average family to purchase sufficient quantities of certain foods, such as butter, eggs, cheese, etc. In February, 1942, the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was inaugurated, the purpose of which is to provide consumers, either as individuals or organizations, with representation through which they can convey their views to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. A Bad Storm

THE storm experienced during the latter part of Wednesday, all of Thursday and well into the night did much to disrupt services of all descriptions and to block roads for miles. First intimation that the storm was of real fury came about three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, when the power shut down. The mills and other places using electric power were made idle, householders were without light and many without heat. Telephone communication was disrupted all over the district, there was a shortage of milk owing to trucks being unable to make deliveries on account of the blocked roads.

Such a storm as this, shows us just how much we have come to rely upon the many services that can depend so much upon weather conditions for their proper functioning. Electricity has become a vital part of our everyday life and when it is suddenly taken away from us we are at a loss as to what to do. Despite the serious damage caused to power lines during the storm, we were not very long without power and much can be said of the service given us by the Shawinigan Water & Power Company. Considerable damage was done to one of the main lines, but it was only a matter of about four hours before full power facilities were again in force. Telephone communication was disrupted for a time but it was only a short time till this was in order and regular communication was possible.

Possibly the most serious question of the storm was the milk shortage. Numbers of people in town were caught short on milk and those with children, found this to be a serious problem. Trucks making the deliveries of milk to town were unable to get through and in some parts it was impossible for horse-drawn vehicles to make their way through. In one instance, a horse-drawn vehicle was stuck in the drifts for several hours. Many of the school children from the country were left stranded in town overnight on Wednesday, as the school buses could not get through. This presented another problem, as the children had to find shelter for the night, many a home was called upon to provide extra accommodation for the stranded children. With telephone communication disrupted, it was impossible in many cases, to notify parents of what had happened to their children. This naturally caused some anxiety on the part of the parents.

So again, we see how our modern communications system has come to be relied upon for quick messages and by such, quieting fears of the anxious ones at home. In olden days there was a sort of code that if one went out in the winter and was not able to return, it would be considered that they had had to stay in town because of bad weather. But today we have come to rely on our modes of transport to such an extent that in most cases it is possible to reach home. Such storms as this one just experienced are few and far between, and it is only in such exceptional circumstances that our system of transport and communications fail us in these days. It has been said by a number of people that they do not remember a storm as bad as this, for a good many years.

It will be quickly seen how a storm such as the one we have experienced would help the Russians in defeating the Germans in that country. The attacking Germans would be at a disadvantage in bringing up their supplies and in maintaining communications. This would especially be the case where the Russians were defending a city such as Moscow or Stalingrad, as they would hold the advantage. It further points out why it is so necessary to withhold weather forecasts, as they prove very valuable to an attacking force in determining the right moment to make an attack to get weather conditions that are favorable.

Outremont Shows Its Wisdom

DESPITE the intensive campaign put on by the League for the Defense of Canada, in the Outremont by-election, it failed to bring about the defeat of the Government candidate, Major-General the Honorable L. R. LaFleche. Jean Drapeau and his followers put up a great fight and tried to convince the people of this constituency that their platform was the right one for this province. The people evidently listened to what they had to say, but decided that they did not want that kind of thinking in the Government.

In this, we believe they showed wisdom. Such thought in a country such as this one could only be to play into the enemy hands. It would be helping the enemy to defeat us, rather than us defeat the enemy. The anti-conscription idea at this stage of the war is a bad one. We are just now entering upon a period that seems to be bringing us a series of victories, such victories are blows to the enemy which weaken his attempts at us. So far, conscription has not been brought into effect and it may never be, but the way must be open so that it can be brought into force if necessary.

In this war we cannot afford to sit at home and wait to see what the enemy will do, or whether he intends to invade our shores. If he is victorious in Europe, then it is a foregone conclusion that he will attempt to invade our country. If Europe is in the hands of the enemy, then there is small chance of us in this country being able to hold against him if an attack here were made. Considering these points, then the people of Outremont were wise in deciding as they did.

The boasts and actions of a number of the speakers for the Defense League at Outremont by-election, should be enough for any right thinking person to realize that their's is a sensational campaign rather than a constructive one. All sane people are ready to listen to constructive ideas and policies and to support them if they think they will be for the good of all. The Defense League is truly only applicable to the few in Quebec and is not the result of mass thinking throughout the Dominion of Canada. The Plebiscite proved this point and therefore too much thinking should not be given to this radical organization who is disgruntled that the vote takers, went against them.

After the War - - What?

MUCH publicity has been given in the past week to certain proposals for a better post-war life for everyone in England. These proposals are of an extremely social order and spell a better life for the poorer people of the country. Many of the working people of England are in constant fear of want in old age, during sickness and if a disability should overcome them. This new order is designed to bring relief in such cases and dispel the fear that these people will not be looked after.

If it is ever instituted it will be the greatest step toward Utopia that has ever been brought into existence. It is only right that the people of any country should be allowed to share in the wealth of the country whose wealth they are helping to create. Such an order as the one proposed for England would in effect, bring about just such a state of things.

The present health insurance in England would be extended so as to include all members of the insured family. In this way sickness in the family at any time would be looked after. Such a step would bring about great relief to heads of families and banish fear of sickness bringing worry as to how it would be paid for. A grant would be made toward funeral expenses up to $80.00 and this is another worry for most of poorer people whose insurance is usually of not large proportions and contributed in weekly sums. The Government also proposes doing something about insurance companies whereby policies will not be lapsed because of failure to make payments of premiums.

Marriages would be encouraged by means of grants and increased maternity benefits would be made to encourage a higher birth-rate to supplement the decline of births in the past few years. Even illegitimate births would receive some help in the way of a grant and proper medical care and attention. The whole idea is to banish fear of want and privation. Such a state of affairs would bring about a greater contentment of the people and lead to greater happiness. It should have the effect of decreasing murders and suicides and bring down the number of mental cases in the mental institutions. Most of these things are caused through fear of want and worry over trying to provide for families.

Social reform has been looked upon with a great deal of skepticism in the past, but it is brought out in a different light today. It has gotten away from the fact of sharing the wealth of the rich with the poor. It has been found out that there are lots of ways of working social reform so that it can benefit everybody and cause hardship to no one. The postal service is the greatest example of social order that we have in the world today, a non-profit organization working for the benefit of all.

There is no doubt that many changes will be evidenced after this war is over, they will be radical because they will have to be. We, in Canada, could use some ideas along the lines of the proposals being made in England and if similar plans could be instituted here, there would be greater happiness for everyone.

If some form of social reform could be introduced in Canada, which would take away the fear of old age, disability, sickness and the need for hospitalization, the health of the people of this country would be improved considerably. Happiness and contentment make a nation healthy, worry causes more disease than it is given credit for. A healthy people produce more for the country's wealth and radicalism is practically unknown. Dissatisfaction breeds radicals and discontent, that is why in the past few years there has been so much heard of mutterings against the government. The government should do this, or that, such mutterings are bred of discontent or fear of something. Dispel the fear and you have a satisfied people and a more contented nation.

CHATEAUGUAY, BEAUHARNOIS and HUNTINGDON COUNTIES

From Manuscripts of The Late ROBERT SELLAR

MRS. BURNSIDE—Our family (my father's name was Shields, my mother's Black) left Scotland (we lived near St. Boswell's) in 1819. We sailed from Leith and were 10 weeks on the voyage. On coming to Montreal, my father took a house and being larger than he needed, he rented part to the emigrants who came with the Browns. Jas. Brown talked big and promised to get lots for all in Huntingdon, he having gone down to Quebec and saw the governor. My sister who was married to Biggar, went to near Matilda and stayed a year there, he went over to Huntingdon when they heard of free lots being given out there. The first time I came to see Huntingdon was in the summer, but I do not mind the year (1824). I walked in from Wylie's along with Dr. Fortune, who was taking over to him a map of this section. Bowron from Bouchette. On resting by the way, we opened and looked it over. There were just three houses on the north side of the river. Best, the blacksmith, Peter McFarlane and Palmer's. On a subsequent occasion, I went from Trout River to the city in the spring. Old Mr. Nesbitt, who was in his boyhood as far as the Portage and from thence we walked. We stayed all night at Campbell's who had a store in town, but did not do well and moved out to the Grand Marais, where he kept tavern. We were on our way. We saw a new road, which we were afraid to take. They told us, at Campbell's it was the new road up the river, but not finished. My husband, Burnside was an American, and belonged to the Trout River to the city in the spring. Old Mr. Nesbitt, who was in his boyhood as far as the Portage and from thence we walked. Opinions of Others ...

THIS MAY BE THE LAST WAR

The war we are now fighting may be the last in world history. According to a poll of historians, psychologists, political scientists and other experts reported by Bruce Bliven in November Reader's Digest, there is no valid reason why war cannot be abolished at the end of the present conflict.

The scientists have based their convictions on the fact that society has so advanced that war no longer pays dividends to the victor. Mr. Bliven points out that the victors of the first World War suffered as much as the losers, and that Hitler had to get what raw materials he needed by peaceful commerce before beginning his program of conquest. The myth that war is necessary to gain foreign markets is also shattered by leading economists. A foreign market guaranteeing an excess of exports over imports is no longer regarded as desirable, except in the case of the nation whose debts to a foreign country exceed foreign investments in its own country. In summing up the prospects for eventual world peace, Mr. Bliven concludes that all that is needed is a sincere desire for it and an intelligent use of newly discovered facts about human nature and human institutions. The only alternative is total extinction of our enemies—a program which even the Nazis have not yet tried.—Listowel Banner.

BENNETT SAYS CANADA NEEDS U.K. SETTLERS

HAMILTON, Bermuda—(Delayed)—Canada should have a large number of settlers from Britain after the war, Viscount Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, said in an interview.

Questioned as to the Dominion's post-war policy, Viscount Bennett gave as his personal opinion that there "must be a very considerable movement of people from Britain immediately after the war, both for economic and other reasons".

So far as he could learn, he said, recent Canadian visit, he said, Canadians share that view and were "most anxious that their population should be increased by settlers from Britain".

might acquire the broader view and come to know that this is no time to foster and propagate the canker that rotted the democracies of Europe. Holland fell and France succumbed, each with a score or more of petulant political parties breeding schisms and "isms" that atrophied the will to resist. Canada today might well benefit from their example.

In the midst of war with bloody events impending in western Europe, when all of our thoughts and energies should be turned to meet them, we find at home too much of the old, shoddy game of party politics being played by demagogues and subterranean schemers who shuffle around the tankard of the ring they can't forsake. Those who read the daily press and behind the rews can no longer doubt that the C.O.P. is fast becoming tainted with many of the old political tricks that have for so long stultified both of the old-line parties in the past. Their denunciations and denials and reversals of the day are a tactic that has changed since J. S. Woodsworth passed from the scene. Evidently, at the moment in Ontario, their performance adds no luster to their platform.

Meantime, Quebec is spawning parties in the tradition of old France, even with her fate starkly before her. And the Federal Liberals feigning aloofness, are shying spatters into the current machinery of Liberal Ontario. The press is writing the history of all this even as its headlines scream out our world-wide danger. But the time has come when the rank-and-file should weigh matters for themselves. The Conservatives are soon to meet in Winnipeg. Past and current lessons are before them. What they do will be watched with a wary eye by war-grimed workers of farm and factory. The losers, mainly, will be the politicians.—The Bowmanville Statesman.

WEEK IN OTTAWA

People in the capital are wondering these days when the government will be in a position to announce a comprehensive plan for social security after the war. The Beveridge plan introduced for discussion in the parliament at Westminster has thrust the question into the limelight. The British scheme has been approved in essence in many quarters in Canada. Quite certainly no party in this country will find fault with the principles which it embodies, although in practice it might in many ways not be suitable to conditions in Canada. The Beveridge plan points the way of action for the different allied nations, and Canada's programme will undoubtedly be developed from the studies carried on by the civilian and parliamentary committees of postwar reconstruction. An advance has already been made in plans adopted for the rehabilitation of demobilized soldiers after the war. On the economic front Canada and the United States have taken the initiative through their arrangement for mutual economic co-operation which looks to the "elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce." It is (Continued on page 7)

Trained in Canada—R.C.A.F. air crews take the world in their stride. Smooth-working attack teams—bomber and fighter pilots, Navigators, Bombers, Gunners, Wireless Operators—ready for action on any front. They seek out and destroy the foe wherever he can be found. After victory these keen young Canadians will lead the way to a bright new world. Our future is in their hands. Their future is in the skies.

Young men with a taste for adventure—and a yen to pin Hitler's ears back—have a new career awaiting them in R.C.A.F. air crews. R.C.A.F. training in Canada is expanding steadily. More planes, more schools, more instructors are now available. At present applications are being accepted for air crew of R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

Combining Foods in Ingenious Ways Results in Tasty, Interesting Meals

"Economy and conservation" is the watchword all along the line in homes throughout the country. Kitchen economy need not result in tasteless, uninteresting meals. It can be effected by using ingenuity and being constantly on the alert for new ideas and changes in the food situation. It means getting the most out of available foods and using every scrap of left-overs. Foods that are scarce or high in price must be eked out by combining them in new and ingenious ways with other more plentiful or less expensive foods.

The British have become past masters in the art of making a little go a long way, and the Home Economists in the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, have been collecting and testing many of their recipes, adapting them when necessary, to Canadian tastes. Two British recipes are included here. Savoury Batter is different and delicious; it is light and crisp, and resembles Yorkshire Pudding. Baked Cabbage Surprise makes a tasty and inexpensive one-dish meal.

Keep in line with timely economy.

Crown Brand Syrup in addition to its other uses, is being so generally used to supplement sugar, that the demand has increased tremendously — so that sometimes your grocer may not be able to supply you. But you'll understand why.

A great deal more "Crown Brand" is being produced this year but it cannot be expected to meet a demand resulting from a war shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

The supply of Crown Brand Syrup, like other things, must be shared. Don't hoard — buy normally. With the help of your grocer, every effort is being made to keep you supplied with this delicious syrup.

Telephone Company Says "Use the Mails"

The war surely brings about some revolutionary turns in the business and social world. The Bell Telephone Company of Canada is asking the public to send their Christmas Greetings by mail this year, instead of by long distance telephone—and to do it early out of consideration for the post office workers. The Company has doubtless spent many thousands of dollars in building up the "Christmas Greetings by telephone" habit, but apparently it is concerned lest vital war business may be delayed—for, as it points out, "the war must go on, even at Christmas time." It's the sort of request that many thoughtful people will heed. And of course the Government can make good use of the extra revenue that increase in postal traffic will bring.

1-4 cup dripping
Mix flour and seasoning. Make a well in the centre and drop in the unbeaten egg. Add part of the milk gradually and mix to a smooth batter. Beat with a Dover beater until bubbles form on the top. Add remaining milk and let stand 1/2 hour. Put dripping in a baking tin (8x8 inches) and heat in the oven till fat is smoking hot. Add other ingredients to batter, pour into the hot pan and bake at 375 degrees 45 minutes, until risen and brown. Serve with gravy and vegetables. Serves four.

Baked Cabbage Surprise
3-4 cup chopped, cooked meat
2 cups mashed potatoes (5 medium potatoes)
1-3 tsp. salt
Pepper
1 tsp. tomato or other sauce
1 medium head cabbage
Mix meat, potato, sauce and seasonings. Cut cabbage in half, remove the core and wash thoroughly. Cook in boiling, salted water 10 minutes. Drain well. Place half the cabbage cut side up, in a deep greased baking dish. Pack the stuffing into the cavity and put the other half cabbage on top. Cover with buttered paper and bake at 350 deg., 35-40 minutes until cabbage is cooked. Serve hot with gravy. Four to six servings.

Vegetable Meat Balls
1 lb. ground meat, preferably beef
1 1/2 cups finely diced, cooked vegetables, (potatoes, carrots, etc.)
2 medium onions, chopped
3 tbsps. chopped parsley
3-4 tsp. salt
3 tbsps. dripping
1 egg, beaten
1-8 tsp. pepper
Flour
2 1/2 cups canned tomatoes.
Cook onion in part of the fat, then skim out and mix onion with the meat. Add vegetables salt, pepper and egg. Form into 12 balls, roll in flour and brown on all sides in remaining fat. Place in a casserole. Add tomato, sprinkle with parsley and cook approximately 1 hour in a 375 degree oven. Makes six servings, and is good with baked squash and mixed green salad, or can be served on hot noodles.

CARE FOR SOLDIERS' DOGS
What does a soldier do with his dog when he gets ready to go off to the army?
He may put it in the Wag or Canine Corps providing the dog can pass the tests, he may leave it at home as the vast majority of the soldiers do, or he may ship it to some relative down on the farm.

To provide for the latter exigency the Railway Express has special crates for any size dog from a Peke to a Great Dane. The crates which are made of wood are sandpapered inside so that there will be no splinters. In addition there is a pointed roof so that nothing can be packed on top of it. Slats in the front and in the top give light and air and allow the dog to find out what is going on. A pan of food and a container for water are also furnished.

When the owner gives the dog over to the delivery man, he has to furnish a health certificate from a veterinarian. Likewise the shipping agent at train has to sign a statement that the dog has been supplied with food and water and appeared in good health at the outset of the journey.

Attached to the crate is a special form something like a nurse's chart for a hospital patient. On this form go notations of every bit of handling, feeding, watering, sickness, any odd behaviour. If it is a long journey, the dog is given a chance to stretch his legs on a station platform at some point of the trip and the time and place are daily set down on the chart. Once in a long time a frisky pup slips his leash while out for the constitutional, and there is considerable hub-bub to catch him. The company says this rarely happens, and then the dog is practically always rescued.

Soldiers are always encouraged to take note of instructions on the crate. Many of the rules in the vein of the following which was attached to the crate of a German Shepherd: "This is not a vicious dog. He is a pup and likes to play. He should be fed once a day but needs plenty of water. Any exercise that can be given the dog, and any amusement of such animal during the trip, will be much appreciated by the dog's master who is looking forward to seeing him when the war is over. His name is 'Joe'."

Isolationism In Public Health

(Editorial by Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director, Health League of Canada, in current issue of "Health")

It has taken the present war to make current the term, isolationism. This phrase expresses an attitude, however, which is not new—the point of view of the selfish, the ignorant and the self-sufficient. Even before the parable of the Good Samaritan was written there were those who passed by on the other side because they were indifferent to the needs of others. "I and my wife, John and John's wife, we four and no more", was a sufficient text for many families. Too many people were not only indifferent to the difficulties of others but unaware of the fact that all of us depend each on the other and that the woes of one are the woes of all.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" cried Cain. Of course for better, for worse, we are all our brother's keepers. From now on and forever, else shall the mark of Cain be on our foreheads. Thus has the isolationist in politics branded himself in the eyes of his fellow man. Isolationism in public health is as foolish and short sighted as in the field of politics. Isolationism in public health might otherwise be called parochialism. It is expressed by the self-satisfied people who say, "we have a good local health department and a good community chest and a good council of social agencies. We care not how our fellow citizens in the rest of the county, or province or Dominion fare. Their fate is nothing to us. Their disease is limited to them by a higher power. Not only are their mistakes and shortcomings none of our business, but if they do fall it can do no harm to us."

But the trouble is that it can. A selfish, narrow attitude is not only unneighbourly to our neighbours but dangerous to ourselves. The slum in which there is a high death rate because conditions breed disease which maims and kills our children, nurtures infection which will kill rich children, too; and so disease will spread from neglected areas to areas in which the health machinery seems to be perfect and perhaps is perfect except that the community takes too little interest in the health of the province or the nation of which it forms a part. It is pointed out in "Health" magazine that health conservation for Canada is a problem which demands attention not only in some parts of Canada but in all parts of the Dominion—especially, however, in those areas where the development of good health machinery may lead to seeming self-satisfaction. The neglected area therefore is likely to listen to the doctrine of national health because it knows that it has been neglected. The protected area which is perhaps a rich and powerful area may fall to pull its weight in a movement for the good of all—and the movement towards national health is for the good of every community in Canada, even for the wealthiest areas with the best health machinery. It is not only that communicable diseases may spread from one community to another. There is another fact of which too few lay people are aware: That the cost of unnecessary disease is borne largely, not by the people who are careless and who allow it to develop in their own neighbourhood, but by the wealthy community who pay most of the taxes—but who also pay the painless route—via indirect taxation. A typical example is found in the upkeep of provincial institutions for the care of defectives of one kind or another, or the cost of chronic disease which may origi-

Why Britain Wants Lean; Not Fat Bacon

If Britain wants more bacon, why not feed hogs to much heavier weights or up to 300 pounds or more? This is a question being commonly asked by many people throughout Canada, and it is a logical question, say officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The answer is that Britain wants lean bacon because, due to shipping space being limited, it is more economical to send lean meat than to send fat on the backs of hogs. It is cheaper to send fat in the form of lard which can be shipped without refrigeration.

The advocates for producing heavier hogs to meet the demand for Canadian bacon refer to the heavier hogs raised in the United States. With the British bacon ration fixed for the time being at four ounces per week per person, the British people naturally want to get as much lean meat as possible so that, in the cooking, there will be little waste.

One of the principal reasons that Britain is buying bacon in Canada is because the Dominion has developed a bacon hog. A hog which when fed to a live weight of from 200 to 230 pounds will provide the greatest possible amount of lean meat, and lean meat means meat food in its most economical and concentrated form and utilizes valuable refrigerated shipping space to the best advantage.

It is true that a hog will put on more weight quickly after it has reached 200 pounds, but heavier hogs invariably carry a much higher percentage of fat. Contrary to general opinion, the extra weight is not put on cheaper than the cost of putting on weight up to 200 pounds. Heavier hogs mean fatter Wilshires and fatter bacon. The British consumers have always demanded lean bacon in peace time, and, altogether apart from the consideration of post-war trade, their demand is even more insistent in wartime because they want the minimum of loss in cooking. The impressive fact is the British want lean bacon, and the highest percentage of lean bacon cannot be secured from heavy hogs—and so it's a case of "The man who pays the piper calls the tune."

A Hint For Christmas Gifts

Novel Plan For Making Gifts of War Savings Stamps and Certificates

Thousands of Canadians will find it easier to give War Savings Stamps and Certificates as Christmas gifts next month, as the result of plans now completed by the National War Finance Committee. Through the co-operation of the Canadian Greeting Card Industry, a whole series of 1942 War Savings Stamp Christmas cards has been produced in striking designs. All cards are printed in five colours, and the ink is paginated. The cards, with two places for affixing War Savings Stamps, which may be purchased at the stores carrying the cards. In addition, the National War Finance Committee has produced Christmas greeting cards in two attractive styles for Savings Stamps, and two other types for War Savings Certificates. These, with envelopes to fit, are to be obtained free of charge at Post Offices and banks throughout Canada. War Savings Stamps and Certificates, to be placed inside the cards, may be purchased over the counter at the same time, and mailed immediately.

This undertaking is being carried out by the National Committee in the belief that the exchange of Christmas greeting cards is more necessary to public morale in wartime than in time of peace.

Through the exchange of Christmas greeting cards is more necessary to public morale in wartime than in time of peace. It has been a fault in our conception of patriotism. Patriotism is not a love only of the soil which gave us birth but a love of our fellow citizens, all of them. It was a great soul who said: "Above all is humanity." And isolationism is the antithesis of humanitarianism. A successful national health programme ensuring health for all parts of Canada and all Canadians would mean the triumph of humanitarianism over isolationism in public health, and this must come as people understand all that the movement for national health stands for.

Quebec Safety League Issues Warning

An open letter to all parents and curators of this province issued by the Province of Quebec Safety League yesterday stressed the dangers of children playing on thin ice.

As a result of their anxiety to go and skate or slide on the newly frozen surface, children are apt to take chances which might prove fatal, the Safety League warns.

Three victims of thin ice have already been registered this season and the deep mourning into which this province has been plunged should induce every parent and educator to give sufficient warning and surveillance to children whose playful mind is not always awakened, to the risks in their games.

LIBYAN AIR DEFEAT MOST COMPLETE EVER

Cairo.—Air Vice Marshal Arthur Coningham, R.A.F. commander in the Western Desert, said that the rout of the German Air Force in the Allied drive across Libya is "the most complete defeat of an air force in the field that has ever been." Gains of airfields in Libya, he said, have given the British command full control of the sea route from Eastern Mediterranean ports to Malta.

A Prayer For The Ships Going Out To Sea

O, God, be with the ships that go to sea
From out the kindly shelter of this bay;
By Thy great love, may they encompassed be,
From frailest craft to battle cruiser grey!
O, God of peace who hushed the waves to rest,
Be with our ships upon the ocean's breast.

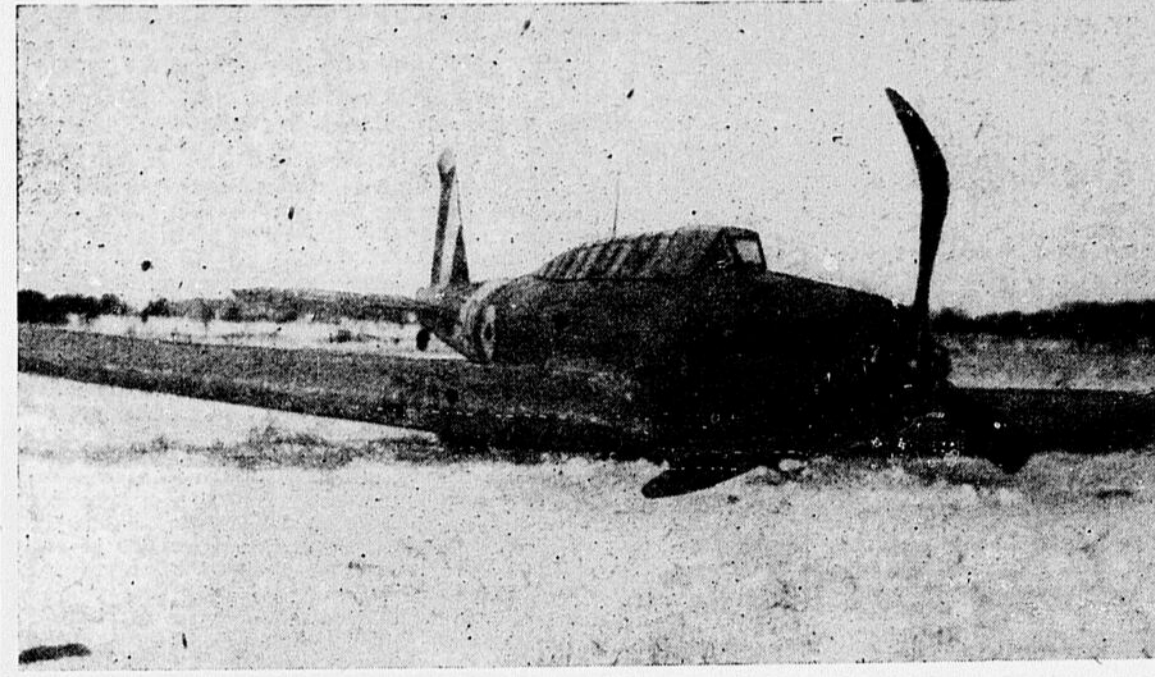

Do Thou, O God, be with the ships that go
At dawn to hail the glory of the light;
Be with the ships that, in the sun's glow,
Ride forth to meet the mystery of night!
The way they take is trackless, lone, and far;
We do not now what lives beyond the bar.

O, God, be with those splendid men who face,
With iron nerve, the lash of wind and wave;
O may they be defended, by Thy grace,
From cruel foe, and an untimely grave!
O, God, be with the ships that sail away,
From out the kindly shelter of this bay.

On Wednesday, Dec. 2nd, started the worst snow-storm we have had for years. You could not see your hand in front of you. The roads got so bad, and not being able to see, the school bus from Kensington did not leave for home. The pupils were all found places to stay by Miss R. Arthur, teacher. They were not able to get home until Friday night, and had to be met with horses and sleigh at Elders, as the snowplow hadn't got any further than White's side.

One couple, Mr. and Mrs. Raeth, Buffalo, N.Y., who had attended his brother's funeral in Montreal, left Montreal Wednesday noon, got as far as Kensington, where they stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chambers until Sunday, as the plow hadn't got through to the border until Sunday.

The telephone went out Wednesday at noon, and is still not working. Electric lights went out Wednesday afternoon, but came on again around 8 o'clock. Farmers with milking machines had to milk by hand, with the aid of candles for light.

The roads have not been blocked so long with snowdrifts for some years.

The service in Elgin Church on Sunday was cancelled on account of bad weather. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in Elgin Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

Owing to the storm, the mail failed to get through last Wednesday and school was closed for the day. It was a rude introduction to winter, but if a thaw should come, the snow will have helped those farmers whose wells have gone dry.

OBITUARIES

The Late Mr. Archibald Pollock
On Sunday morning, Nov. 29th, after an illness of six weeks, there passed away a life long resident of Rockburn, in the person of Mr. Archibald Pollock. His passing was quite unexpected as he was apparently making good recovery. He was a son of the late Mr. John Pollock and his wife Sarah Miner, one of those Howard and Orford, and many a neighbour, and an expert stonemason. Both he and his father were well and widely known throughout the country, and many a piece of stone work stands in memoriam of them, as well as of another brother, William, and many a friendship was formed through this medium. Surviving him are his wife, formerly Jennie Boyd, three daughters, Mrs. Jas. Farquhar of Lake Clear, N.Y., Mrs. Henry Lawson of Montreal, Mrs. Leland Graves of Fort Covington, and two sons Howard and Orford, both of Peterborough, Ont.—all being present at the funeral. One sister, Mrs. Winman, and two brothers, Edwin and Cleveland, all in Nevada, are living. The funeral service was held in the Rockburn Presbyterian Church of which deceased was a member, on Tuesday and was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Brown, M.A. Among those present were a niece, Mrs. Bailey, of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Lony and Mrs. Madeline, of Fort Covington. There were many beautiful flowers from relatives, friends, and the church. The pall bearers were Messrs. Rod Arthur, W. Barr, L. Mather, M. Mather, J. and M. Oliver. Interment was made in Hillside Cemetery.

The Gore

The December meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Norman Fennell. Owing to bad roads and the stormy day, the attendance was small. The devotional meeting opened by singing "Christians Awake". Janet Cullen, wife of Mr. John Hastie, Ormstown, P.Q., passed to her reward at noon on Friday last, after a prolonged illness covering a period of one and one half years.

Mrs. Hastie was born at Tullochburgh, Oct. 1864, but spent her girlhood at Allan's Corners, coming to Ormstown on the occasion of her marriage, March 1887. She was the eldest child of the late James Cullen and of Dorothy Paxton, his wife who was one of a family of nine, of whom three sisters and two brothers survive. Her own family consisted of one son and two daughters, James Edward and Agnes, who predeceased her, and Muriel (Mrs. Clarence Storie) who survives. In addition Mrs. Hastie took charge of two children of a sister's family when the mother was taken from them in childhood and they were reared under her unselfish motherly care, i.e. Gwyneth (Mrs. McLeod) and Dorothy Cullen.

Prices of Certain Foods to Be Reduced to Consumer

Government to Subsidize Wholesalers and Retailers to Make Reductions Possible

Finance Minister Isley has announced that the Government proposed, "by reduction of duties and taxes, and by outright subsidy", to reduce the retail cost of "a number of imported and domestic foods of widespread consumption."

He said the full details of this proposal, which he estimated might cost the public treasury up to $40,000,000 a year, would be announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, but gave the following brief details of price reductions:

1. Reduction in the price of coffee by four cents a pound.
2. Reduction in the price of tea by 10 cents a pound.
3. Reduction in the price of oranges to "about the levels of September and October, 1941."
4. A reduction in the price of milk, "the general objective" being two cents a quart to consumer.
5. Reduction of profit margins on beef taken by some retail dealers to "reasonable limits."

Mr. Isley said these moves, to offset increases in the cost of living due to price rises in spite of the ceiling control, will be aimed at bringing the cost of living "at least part of the way back to the level of the basic period."

The Finance Minister spoke over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, extended to include virtually all independent stations in Canada.

Mr. Isley said the cost of this policy might reach $40,000,000 a year, "but in the light of the great objectives for which we are striving, this cost, which after all is only one cent per person per day, is small indeed."

CONSUMER TO BENEFIT

He said the consumer will benefit to the full extent of the subsidies and remission of taxes. The producer and dealer will not be affected.

"The Government has decided on direct action to bring the cost of living back to the level of the basic period," he said.

"It does not propose to attempt to bring all prices back, nor even to limit its concern to prices which have risen. It is sufficient if by the reduction of certain prices the total cost of the consumers' budget is moved back."

He said the subsidies will be paid in such a way as to ensure that the price is decreased by at least a like amount, and "the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will take special precaution to see that the whole benefit of the subsidies and remissions goes to the consumer."

Regarding beef he said the board was convinced "that in recent months the profit margins of some retail dealers have widened

Ltd. $8.68, H. H. unreasonably, and that the cost of living has thereby been unnecessarily increased."

The board was being instructed to examine measures for reducing these margins to "reasonable limits" for the benefit of the consumer.

New Prices Now in Effect

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, announced Saturday night that reductions in the price of coffee, tea and oranges—arranged through the Government's new subsidy and tax-remission plan—go into effect from Monday, December 7, and that milk price reductions will be effective "well before the end of this month."

Second Stag Party to be Staged

Splendid Program Arranged With Added Features

A second Stag Party is in the making and will be held in the Drill Hall, Chateauguay Barracks, on Friday, December 12. The first "stag party" proved to be ever so popular with the boys in camp; just as always has been the case amongst the civilian population.

The coming Stag Party is going to have another added feature to the programme of entertainment, and that is two wrestling matches will be presented. The noted Sam Chuck of wrestling fame, in Montreal, is to be in charge of this portion of the programme. Tommy Osborne is to take charge of the four boxing bouts, and at the present time is training men in Chateauguay Barracks to present this part of the entertainment. As for the wrestlers, we are given to understand they will be men from Montreal.

Officers at the Barracks, as well as the N.C.O.'s and men report that this Stag Party, which is to benefit the "regimental fund" is going to be well patronized.

2000 admission tickets are being sold and a ready sale is being realized. Door prizes of a $50 Victory Bond, 2nd prize of $25 War Savings Certificate and a 3rd prize of a $10 War Savings Certificate, are serving as inducements to buy the admission tickets in advance.

The ever popular Major Jim Turnbull, who returned from overseas early in the summer, is looking after the sale of advance sale tickets. Major Turnbull has prevailed upon a number of civilians to lend a co-operating hand in the selling of tickets. He reports having had a fine reception and that sales are going along in a very commendable manner.

The augmentation of funds that will be made to the "Regimental Fund" means that the soldiers in training at Chateauguay Barracks will receive extras from time to time, which extras may take the form of sporting equipment or delicacies to be added to the daily menu, all of which are appreciated.

The Rifle Range was a very popular feature of the last stag party and will again be in full operation. Space is being provided for the playing of a greater number of games and as Major Molson says, "we are going to produce, and create a way of having a lot of fun, for after all is said and done, that is what the soldiers want, especially at Christmas time."

Huntingdonians have always proved ready and willing to support the rank and file of the army, at Chateauguay Barracks, and we feel quite certain the civilians will again co-operate and be present at this soldier benefit.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Jenkins, of Merlin, Ontario, aged 72 and 82 respectively, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary with their sister-in-law, Mrs. Joan Barrie and family, Cornwall, Ont., recently.

They are a well-known and highly respected couple, having many friends and relatives throughout Godmanchester and Huntingdon.

Mrs. Jenkins is the third daughter of the late Sam Barrie and his wife, a former Miss Warden. The only surviving member of a family of eight, of which there were Maggie (Mrs. Platt), Mary, John, Lizzie (Mrs. Jenkins), James, Jane (Mrs. Smallie), Agnes and Andrew. She was born on the Marshall farm, Mont Rivier, Que.

Mr. Jenkins was born in England, coming to Lacolle, Quebec, where he met his wife, who was working there. They were married on October 26th, 1892. One daughter was born on October 20th, 1897, who died at the age of six years.

They lived in western Ontario, chiefly Mr. Jenkins worked in a stove factory, also owned a farm at Stewart, Ont. On their farm the first gas well was operated. They lived at Port Alma for over 30 years, where Mrs. Jenkins kept a boarding house and Mr. Jenkins was night operator in The Union Gas Company office.

Twelve years ago, they made a trip to England, visiting places that are now in ruins. They lost their home twice by fire.

They seldom miss spending their anniversary with relatives and friends in the Cornwall district, motoring down or even hitch-hiking, and make good at it.

Best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins for their health and happiness and many more anniversaries together.

Moved by Coun. Bergevin, seconded by Coun. Cairns that $50.00 on account be paid Chambre de Commerce, Valleyfield, for keeping Ormsdown Side Road open during season 1942-1943.

Mayor Paille of Franklin Centre Council, waited on the Council asking for a grant toward the keeping of the Jamestown Side Road open for autos and trucks during the season 1942-1943.

On motion of Coun. McClintock, seconded by Coun. Bergevin, $120.00 was granted towards this work. Franklin Council to be responsible for any damages that might be incurred in this work.

Compulsory Education in Quebec in Near Future Hinted

Premier Godbout Stresses Need of Education For All That Executive Positions May be Equally Divided

Compulsory education in the province of Quebec "in the very near future" was the tacit promise which Hon. Cleophas Bastien, Minister of Colonization, gave at a banquet tendered him at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, Saturday night by the Union Liberal Papineau.

The statement was made in the presence of Premier Adelard Godbout, Hon. Hector Perrier, Provincial Secretary, who has charge of matters educational, Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Hon. Leon Casgrain, Attorney-General, Hon. Georges Dansereau, Minister of Public Works, Hon. J. A. Mathewson, provincial treasurer, and a number of M.L.A.'s, and also in the presence of Rev. Fathers Nazaire Dubois, Adolphe Desrosiers, and Auguste Lemay, the first two former principals of the Jacques Cartier Normal School, and the last the present principal of that school. Mr. Bastien is a former pupil of that school, when Father Dubois was the principal, and when he, Father Dubois, almost a solitary voice, preached in favor of compulsory education, and it was in addressing him directly that the new Minister of Colonization said that "in the very near future" Father Dubois would see his hope come true. The words "compulsory education" were not actually used by Mr. Bastien, but the inference was clear.

Speaking after Mr. Bastien, Premier Godbout called for a new set-up in education; one, he said, which would turn the minds of the young people beyond the limits of this province, and to all parts of the continent, and which would permit the people of Quebec to lead in the economic field. The premier emphasized that when he spoke of "we" he did not mean only the French-Canadians, but Quebecers, no matter of what race they were nor what religion they professed. How glorious it was, he cried, for French-Canadians to talk of their equal rights to advancement all over Canada and then claim special rights in this province because of numerical superiority.

Premier Godbout admitted the possibility of having made errors, but not the error of failing to speak frankly, even to saying things which for the moment did not please. He (Continued on page 10)

EFFECTIVE NOW

TEA, COFFEE
AND

are reduced by law!

This action is taken in line with the Government's declared determination to stabilize living costs on a basis that is fair to all. It is a developing attack on the menace of inflation which arises out of wartime conditions. The prices of tea, coffee and oranges are now lowered by official order. Plans for reduction in the price of milk to the consumer are also under way and will be announced in the near future. The items chosen have been selected because of their important place in the weekly budget of every home in Canada.

TEA and COFFEE Effective now—the retail price of tea is reduced by 10c per pound and the retail price of coffee by 4c per pound below the recent lawful ceiling prices.

The table below indicates how the reduction of 10c per pound applies to less-than-pound packages; and is for purposes of illustration only.

Tea formerly selling by the pound at...	$1.00	90c	85c
Must now sell at
per pound	90c	80c	75c
per 1-2 pound	45c	40c	38c
per 1-4 pound	24c	22c	21c
per 1-8 pound	13c	12c	11c

BULK TEA

The reduction in the maximum retail prices of bulk tea sold in quantities less than a pound should correspond to the reduction in retail prices for the small sizes of packaged tea.

TEA BAGS

Reductions in retail prices of tea packaged in tea bags must correspond to those made on packaged tea.

ORANGES Oranges must be reduced to give consumers the benefit of the reduction in cost to retailers brought about by lower prices for the new crop, by seasonal removal of import duty (effective December 1st, this year) and by the removal of the War Exchange Tax. Oranges should sell at or below the September-October 1941 retail price levels.

BE SURE THAT YOU GET THE FULL BENEFIT OF THESE REDUCTIONS

SPECIAL NOTICE TO RETAILERS:

Retailers will be compensated for any loss on present stocks—in order that these reductions may be enjoyed by the public immediately. Retailers should take inventory of their floor stocks of tea and coffee as of the close of business, Saturday, December 5th. They will shortly receive forms upon which to make their claims for compensation for losses on inventory due to these price reductions.

The motion as presented was withdrawn and upon motion of Dr. J. E. Caza and seconded by Rev. Thos. Knowles the committee named is the three local doctors, Daniel Faubert, N. F. Manning, Isaac Roskle, Francois Oley, D. J. O'Connor, A. A. Lunan, A. L. Sellar.

Francis Oley, in the event of an accident in say my mill, if the accident is merely a small cut, can a nurse at such a hospital be empowered to render the aid and still be within the law for the Quebec Compensation Board?

Dr. McGrimmon: No, I don't believe they would. Under the compensation act it stipulates such aid must be administered by a doctor, and by that they mean not even an interne doctor of a hospital.

The meeting adjourned at 9:30 p.m. with the understanding that the committee would seek as much information as they could and report back to a general meeting on Thursday evening, December 17. It is hoped that by that time much data will be gained and that representatives from the various workshops in the west end of the County will be present.

The mountains, the oceans, the rivers and plains

The summers, the winters and the sweet spring rains

The roar of the river, the thunder of the fall;

The butcher, the baker, the farmer and all

Are fighting for freedom, to us they will give

The freedom of democracy, the right way to live.

Check Old Anti-Freeze Before Using it Again For Driving in Winter

Owners of passenger cars and farm trucks were relieved some time ago by the assurance given by the Department of Munitions and Supply that they would be allowed sufficient anti-freeze alcohol for their automobile radiators this winter.

Last spring it was suggested that it became the patriotic duty of every Canadian motorist to drain and save his anti-freeze for use again this year.

As it is time for this stored anti-freeze to be used, Consumers' Information Service points out that it should be tested by a garage or service station attendant before it is put back into the automobile radiator.

It is most important that the anti-freeze is tested and strained before it is used again to make certain that the anti-freeze is the proper strength to avoid a "freeze-up."

Arrest-Escape, Dramatic Story of Escape From France

After Being Arrested by Gestapo, Young Frenchman Joins Fighting French Forces

One of the most dramatic escapes from France was told in a letter which reached the Fighting French Information Service in Ottawa, from Brazzaville, capital of Free French Africa.

The young Frenchman was arrested by the Gestapo in Brest, as he was attempting to escape from occupied France to England, to join the Fighting French forces.

"For 36 hours," he writes, "the Nazis left me sitting in a chair, with my hands tied behind my back. Once in a while, they gave me a dry biscuit. After hours of questioning, they sentenced me to death, because they found a revolver in my pocket."

"Sentenced to death—and I with a wife and six children! How does it feel to be condemned to die? Well, believe it or not, my first thought was of the movies. How did film stars manage their escape from prison? Scenes from war pictures flashed through my mind."

While awaiting the day of execution, he thought of one plan after another. Then one day he had the luck to fall in with a French woodcutter who also wanted to join the forces of General de Gaulle.

They arranged a plan of escape, as the woodcutter piled his loads of wood outside the prison window.

The next morning, as the German guards were having their breakfast, the woodcutter quietly released the prisoner, and they both took refuge in the home of a friend.

As soon as their escape was discovered, the alarm was sounded throughout Brest, and the surrounding countryside. Sentries were posted everywhere, while the Germans searched the town for him. First Step to Freedom For days he remained in the garret—waiting. Desperately anxious to reach Vichy, he eventually managed to reach the town, with the help of a Polish refugee, who offered to loan him his car.

"But," pointed out the escapist, "do you know what this means? If they arrest me they'll take you too."

"Go ahead," replied the other quietly, "you're younger than I. You can kill some Germans."

England Once in Vichy, after many adventures, he learned that the only way he could leave France, so as to reach England eventually, was to join a Vichy regiment in North Africa. He signed for a three months' engagement.

After his 3 months were up, he managed to buy a small open motor boat, and set out for Gibraltar with two other men, and a French woman.

DAHLIA'S WHATNOTS

Father Sabourin, famous chaplain with the Dieppe expedition, speaking in a broadcast of a spirit of unity between the French and English of Canada, compared the former to the wife in the marriage bonds, the latter to the husband, each aware of faults and foibles in the other, yet striving to make the best of each other and of their union. His comparison might be applied to the Gallic and Anglo-Saxon races in respect of certain national characteristics of the people of France and England. We associate the word "graces" with the gentle (supposedly) sex, and the people of France cultivated ease and grace of manners while the inhabitants of England still continued to look upon social polish with stern suspicion. Marriages between their royal families did something towards removing such barriers.

But again women are more individualistic than men. Ever since the stone age men have gone forth in companies to war or hunt wild animals or precious ores, thus developing that "esprit de corps" which women, tending the home fires, have generally lacked. As time passed and she began to assert herself, it was for long still as an individual, warring with individual women, hunting individual men. Even modern women's associations have a depressing tendency to break up into cliques. It is gratifying to see how war work generally is developing a community spirit and broadening the outlook of women. But to return to our method, (or Father Sabourin's) of comparing the races, do we not discover a tendency in France to an individualistic viewpoint which has worked havoc in destroying national unity, and a petty selfishness which has led to the formation of many parties so small that they are no more than cliques? This attitude has thwarted the efforts of France's best statesmen to form a stable government, and had much to do with bringing about her lamentable present condition. Even in the midst of the world's Titanic struggle, we see a minor contest between Darlan and De Gaulle, which seems beyond the comprehension of the single-minded champions of liberty and peace. The "fraternity" to which Republican France has pinned its faith seems to have been thrown into the discard by her petty politicians. One might be tempted to point these, for an example, to the many British public men or even Wilkie, the American, who have sunk their personal feelings in their support of a great cause. But one need not go outside of France to find thousands of her people, leaders and private citizens alike, who have sacrificed even their lives in their devotion to their country's highest good through religious or political reform, exploration, or military defense.

Small Rugs, Carpets Are Cleaned in a Jiffy If Care is Exercised

Small washable rugs and carpets about the house become dirty very easily. If care is exercised in washing, however, it doesn't take long to make them spic and span.

Brushes of the brush used to scrub out the dirt should not be too hard, and neither a strong soap nor very hot water should be used. The carpet must be well-rinsed or else the washing will merely serve to flush the dirt down into the pile.

If a rug has been washed, it will remain clean longer. If it is dipped into heavy starch. By doing this it will also stay in a better position on the floor.

The most important thing to remember after washing rugs and carpets is to make certain that they are thoroughly dried, but care should be taken not to use too much heat for the drying process.

As for women's lack of cohesion when working together, one thinks of the grand united efforts of such an organization as the W.C.U. But perhaps the C. has deserved most of the credit for its success. Despite sectarianism, in the final analysis christianity the mother will be found to have exerted a greater influence as a unifying force than even her noble daughter Civilization.

Dr. Adaline Miller, ship's surgeon, was recently awarded the Order of Member of the British Empire after a severe ordeal at sea. She was only three weeks aboard on her first voyage when a German surface raider shelled the steamer. Many of the 600 passengers were killed or wounded.

"I was so busy that there wasn't time to think about the shelling," she said. "When the first shot came I arranged with two surgeons who were passengers, that we should look after different parts of the ship. I never saw them after that. My headquarters was the ship's dispensary. Cries of "Doctor, come quickly" came from all around me. But everyone was wonderfully calm. The noise was terrific."

The order came to abandon the ship and this was signalled to the raider but, he kept up the shelling, and most of the life-boats were smashed. Dr. Miller left in one of

Austin F. Cross, B.A., Gives Timely Address at Valleyfield

Difficulties in Governing Canada Are Magnified By Her Geography, Speaker Tells Audience

The second Gault Institute Forum of the season was held in the school auditorium in Valleyfield, on Monday, of the past week, when friends and parents of the students of this institution had the unique pleasure of hearing an address by Mr. Austin F. Cross, B.A., parliamentary correspondent in Ottawa, for the Montreal Daily Star.

Mr. Cross chose as the subject of his address: "Canadian Politics and the War". In his remarks the speaker said that political developments are much more dependant on personalities than most people think. Mr. Cross claimed that history was as much the work of persons, and the experiences of these persons, as of theories and principles.

He stated that the difficulties in governing Canada are enormously magnified by her geography, so that the member from Yukon takes 7 days to visit a member from Nova Scotia.

The speaker also pointed out that Canadians are not interested enough in their own politics and criticize the view that Canadian public figures were colorless individuals. On this question of politics, Mr. Cross added that women should take a more active part in this Dominion.

Mr. Cross' address was a very timely one and it was immensely enjoyed by the interested parties who had made it a point to attend this forum in Valleyfield. He painted for his listeners a brilliant word picture of Ottawa.

A sing-song and a question period, which was not only interesting but also educational, concluded one of the most interesting evenings of this nature at the Gault Institute in recent years.

In Britain this Christmas there are no special toys, and regular toy manufacturers are restricted to seven and a half per cent of their normal peacetime output. Shelves of London's world-famous toy shops are lined with good wooden imitations of metal as are many in Canada. Streak, grey-painted warships; camouflaged tanks and airplanes; locomotives and cars are now all made of wood. Dolls, stuffed cloth rabbits and lambs are also said to be plentiful. Air raid spotters, anti-aircraft men on lonely gun sites, air raid wardens, and firemen and policemen off duty have become Santa Claus' helpers making wooden toys.

Practically every possible adult gift is rationed. Grown-ups have little to give except such things as books and records, and preserves, home-made jams and preserves, books and money. What is more they'll all be given unwrapped. Gay Christmas papers and ribbons are few for the duration. There will be few Christmas trees as most of these formerly came from Scandinavian forests. Tree decorations, except those left over from other Christmases, are non-existent.

Fish dishes take on new interest if served with a tangy-flavored sauce, the Department of Fisheries points out.

Mayonnaise with a finely grated horseradish added to it is a Norwegian favorite.

Tartar sauce is improved by addition of a tablespoon of finely chopped dill pickle, onion, parsley and capers.

Thick mayonnaise with grated cucumber added is another refreshing variation.

Tartar sauce is made by adding to mayonnaise two table spoons of any of the following per cup: chopped green peppers, stuffed olives, sweet pickles, parsley, onion, pimento, capers or chili sauce.

Milk separators require careful attention. If they are left unwashed, enormous numbers of bacteria grow in the residue in the bowl and other parts and are picked up by the cream at next separating. This is one of the chief reasons for poor quality cream. For best results, the separator must be thoroughly washed and scalded after each run. If, for any reason, this is not done, the keeping quality of the cream may be improved by the following treatment: with the bowl turning at full speed, pour a paulful of hydrochloric solution into the supply tank. Brush the inside of the tank with this solution, then allow it to run through the machine. This will rinse out and destroy many bacteria and prevent them contaminating the cream when the milk is run through the machine.

"mutual" but it opens the way for much wider application, and it is in its aim of becoming a general plan for a new world economic order that its main promise lies. It will help to destroy "economic nationalism" in its worst form which brought so much trouble in its wake in the years following the last war. From Britain and this country, as indeed from all other members of the United Nations has come the urgent plea that definite means must be taken to remove from the world the "fear of aggression." In his speech to the Pilgrims in New York, prime minister King said: "If peace and freedom are to our portion, an end must be put once and for all to aggression and domination of any power." In London Anthony Eden the Foreign Secretary has said that "The great powers will have to shoulder the responsibility of keeping the peace." It was the "imperative duty of the United Nations after victory to make a definite settlement aimed at prevention of future wars." Fear of war reaches its peak and is a constant force in time of peace, but fear of aggression is likely to be swept away in the weariness and relief that follow an armistice. That was the case at the end of the last war, and the average citizen expects his leaders to save him in spite of his own inaction. Adopting the principle of cooperative effort with the leaders of all other allied nations to ensure that the freedom from fear won through victory will be preserved for generations to come.

The fight against inflation has entered a new phase. Adopting the well-known principle that the best form of defence is attack, the minister of finance and the price board have cut down the cost to the consumer by definite amounts on coffee, tea, oranges and milk and are laying plans to reduce the retail cost of beef, and to establish retail ceilings on this vital commodity. The cost of reduction in prices will be borne by the government through reduction in taxes and duties and by "outright subsidy." It will be the consumer that gets the benefits of the changes while the producer and retailer will not suffer. The selection of the foods mentioned was done because they were staple items of diet, and in the case of coffee, tea and oranges were imported articles which allow of more immediate control.

The changes while the producer and retailer will not suffer. The selection of the foods mentioned was done because they were staple items of diet, and in the case of coffee, tea and oranges were imported articles which allow of more immediate control.

All tea and coffee imported into Canada is bought by the government agency, the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation, and is distributed by this corporation. The reduction in the prices of 10 cents a pound on tea and 4 cents on coffee will be borne by the corporation, which means of course the Dominion Treasury. There is therefore no difficulty in the actual administration of the price changes. The total cost of the changes will however be about $40,000,000. The corporation has already paid out in subsidies about $30,000,000. As Mr. Isley explained in debates in the House of Commons it has been impossible to forecast the full cost of subsidies but the gain to the coun-

Sidelights on Life at Chateaugay Barracks

The dining room in the Officers' Mess is being renovated, the work being paid for out of the Officers' funds. When the work is completed, the room will be as attractive as the much admired recreation room adjoining it. The new lecture hut, of which the camp has been in dire need for some time, is nearing completion. This hut is situated next to the Canadian Legion hut, and faces the main avenue leading from the centre of the camp to the drill hall.

Many people who attended the dance at the drill hall, on Thursday evening, were astonished to see that all the roads and avenues had been plowed and the snow removed. It has since been learned that the camp is equipped in such a way that only two hours was required to clean the snow away after last week's heavy snowfall.

Army Wins 6-4 - The Huntingdon Army sextette caused quite a surprise to the hockey fans who saw the regular league game at the Montreal Forum, on Friday night, when they met the R.C.A.F. team.

After trailing through half the game, the Army started a rally which netted them their first goal at the 12:50 mark of the second stanza. After that, the visitors kept pace with the R.C.A.F. and made their breaks good. That was particularly true in the third period when White tallied twice and Munday scored the Army of another well-earned victory.

Displaying remarkable form, the Huntingdon team again pulled the "hat-trick" and disappointed many R.C.A.F. followers by their back-checking and aggressive plays. The other goal-getters for Huntingdon were MacDonald and Peters.

The following is a summary of the game: First Period - 1-Air Force, Harnott 7:15. Penalty: Blanchard. Second Period - 2-Air Force, Mullins (Desbiens) 29. 3-Army, MacDonald (White, Peters) 2:14. 4-Army, Peters (White) 3:35. 5-Air Force, Planche (Desbiens, Mullins) 6:28. 6-Army, White (Bertwhistle) 12:58. Penalty: Blanchard. Third Period - 7-Army, White (MacDonald) 6:45. 8-Army, White (MacDonald) 7:20. 9-Army, Munday 11:20. 10-Air Force, Planche (Desbiens, B. White) 14:29. Penalty: Planche. Line-Ups - Air Force: Gagnon goal, Lessard Fleck defence, Benison Tracey defence, Blanchard Planche centre, MacDonald Desbiens wing, White Mullins wing, Peters Air Force subs: MacIntosh, Burdett, Cashen, Shaw, Harnott, White. Army subs: Munday, Bertwhistle.

Godmanchester

At a regular meeting of the Godmanchester Council on Monday, the resignation of Allister Hunter as road officer for district No. 6 was accepted and Allan Hunter elected in his place. Alfred Latulipe was given permission to cut some trees on the Ridge Road opposite his property, as they are too close together. The Council also decided to sell some trees, situated along the Curran road, to Mr. H. Legros. All arrears of taxes of 2 years or more were ordered in to the County secretary to be sold for taxes at the March sale. A letter from the New York Central railroad was read and filed requesting operators of snow plows to arrange to clean the flangeways of ice, snow and dirt, as a precaution against the derailment of trains. A letter from the Department of Roads was read and filed regarding winter maintenance of Highway No. 4 during the present winter.

Mr. L. Samuels requested that his name be struck off the valuation roll and that that of F. H. Burnett inserted instead. Mr. Robert Milne was given permission to repair the snow plow for his section. A grant of $25. per mile was authorized towards snow removal and erecting of snow fences, on Ridge road, Curran road, part of Carr headline road and part of Carr side road. A grant of $20. per mile was made towards the removal of snow by motor plow in the New Erin section. The Council refused to authorize the Mayor to sign an indigent card from the Montreal General Hospital for treatment of Miss Jeanne Boucher. The office of the Godmanchester Council will be closed on the Saturdays following Christmas and New Year's. The Collection Roll on Branch No. 3 on the Boucher Branch of Cowan Creek was homologated and read and all costs in connection therewith will be collected from interested parties according to the number of acres drained. Poignant Drama Starring Bette Davis "In This Our Life"

One of the year's most poignant dramas will make its local debut at the O'Connor Theatre, on Sunday and Monday, December 13 and 14th, "In This Our Life." The film features a brilliant cast with Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Dennis Morgan and George Brent in the leading roles, while Charles Coburn, Frank Craven and Billie Burke make up the talented supporting cast.

The film is set in the South where a once proud family, the Stanleys, have lost much of their prestige, due to the financial manipulations of one member of the family. Bette plays the role of Stanley, a capricious, inconsiderate girl who believes her own happiness is the only thing that counts. Regardless of whom it may hurt, she is determined to do just as she pleases. But she never gains that happiness. Her own striving for the unattainable brings unhappiness to her and to everyone with whom she comes in contact.

Her sister, Roy, played by Olivia de Havilland, is the one to be most affected by Stanley's thoughtless acts. Stanley, who is engaged to Craig Fleming, a bright young lawyer, played by George Brent, plans to forget about him and run off with her sister's husband, Peter, a surgeon, portrayed by Dennis Morgan.

After a very short time, Peter realizes his mistake in divorcing his wife and marrying Stanley.

In the meantime Roy and Craig, brought closer by their mutual unhappiness, fall in love. Stanley, after a very brief period of grief, returns home and loses no time in plunging the entire household into a state of anxiety by her newest inconsiderate acts.

John Huston, who did such a fine job with "The Maltese Falcon" directed "In This Our Life" which is based on the successful novel by Ellen Glasgow. Howard Koch adapted the story for the screen. Max Steiner wrote the background music.

Drive For Fats And Bones

Everyone Asked to Save Fats and Bones For Salvage

A Dominion-wide campaign for the collection of fats and bones has been launched by the National Salvage division of the Department of National War Services, in co-operation with the Oils and Fats Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it is announced by Charles LaFerte, Director of National Salvage.

In connection with this new war drive, Mrs. Phyllis Turner, Oils and Fats Administrator, declared that today Canada faces a serious shortage of fats and oil for war industries, and needs a minimum throughout salvaged fats and bones, 35,000,000 pounds of fat a year, or reduced to per capita figures, about one ounce of fat per person per week.

This is not just another brief campaign, with a spurt to be put on for a few days or weeks and then dropped, the Salvage Director emphasizes. The campaign must be sustained, right across Canada, in every household, hotel and restaurant from day to day for the duration of the war.

Housewives are the key people in this collection. They are asked to take waste fats and bones to their meat dealer. In any community where a fats and bones collection system is already in operation, either through municipal collection or sponsored by a local voluntary salvage committee, housewives can continue to dispose of fats and bones through such a system.

The Canadian meat dealers, as their contribution, have undertaken to accept salvaged fats and bones at their stores, and to see that they are forwarded to the renderers and meat packers for the recovery of vital glycerine for explosives and other materials essential for war industries. Renderers and packers likewise have promised their co-operation in making the campaign a success.

Every ounce of dripping, every morsel of scrap fat, every bone, green or dry, must be saved.

Meat dealers will pay from 4 to 4 1/2 cents per pound for dripping fat.

W. I. NEWS

The meeting of the Hemmingford branch of W.I. was held on Friday, with Mrs. W. E. Petch in the chair. After the transaction of routine business, the speaker, Rev. Mr. Howard, addressed the meeting on Democracy.

Mr. Howard pointed out the rather farcical nature of our elections and governments under a party system, which expected both electors and elected to follow their party in all matters, instead of using the essential prerogative of Democracy, namely following the dictates of conscience irrespective of party following. He also pointed out that while employees of business houses could be discharged, a member of Parliament was installed in a job from which only another election ousted him. He spoke of the extreme difficulty of men elected, to withstand the temptations of public life. He appealed to his hearers to be Canadians first last and always and to put good of the country and our fellow men before any party feelings. He concluded by saying we could lead a crusade and mentioned the poor material Christ had, to start a world upsetting order. We owe it to ourselves and others to acknowledge our belief in the Fatherhood of God and by our faith in him to follow his principles to uphold the ideal of Democracy in its purest form. To say we can do nothing to better conditions is a poor commentary on our moral worth as Canadians.

Mrs. M. B. Fisher thanked the speaker and later entertained the speaker and members to tea at her home. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. P. Simpson, in January.

believed frankness was the duty of the elected to the electors. It is because of a sense of duty that he had turned over the department of colonization to Mr. Bastien, realizing the importance of that department in the future of the province, and country.

"We are in the provincial field, and must defend our rights, but we cannot forget conditions in all Canada, and on the continent, and the part that we in this province will be called upon to play therein," said the premier. It was to blind oneself to the fact that we of Quebec were mingled with other people of other faiths, of other races, and we had to look beyond the frontiers of the province into all of Canada, and even beyond the frontiers of Canada, and there must emanate from this province the spirit of generosity and goodwill to others.

What was more important than material things was the reputation of the province, said the premier. With a good reputation for the province all doors would be opened. There were some people, little groups about, who tried to gain some advantage through their teachings, their door to door peddling, but the intelligent people of the province would rise against such subversive doctrines, and realize that their mission was not confined to the province, but that their influence must be exercised throughout Canada, and the continent, and not limited to the province. Those who tried to rise against such subversive doctrines, and realize that their mission was not confined to the province, but that their influence must be exercised throughout Canada, and the continent, and not limited to the province. "You will say that we must understand English? That is true. You will say that the heads of the big enterprises not only in Canada but even in Quebec are English. I know that, and it is because I know it that I have the right to say that in order to gain equality with others we must be better qualified than others. It is not sufficient to say that the English have all the big positions. We
