

NAZI RAIDERS CONTINUE RAIDS AGAINST LONDON

Mounting Losses Ignored In Nazi Bid For Victory

At Least Fourteen German Planes Lost in Series of Three Raids on British Capital This Morning—Little Damage Caused in New Attacks, Described as Most Intensive Since Beginning of War.

London, Aug. 31.—(P)—German air raiders thrust at London in the third raid within five hours, apparently uncurbed by a mounting toll of lost bombers.

About the time that the third alarm sent Londoners hastily to cover, the Air Ministry announced that "at least six enemy planes were shot down today and one enemy bomber last night."

Three of Britain's fast-rising fighter planes were missing after the morning combat.

The third alarm of the day came at 1:03 p.m. (8:03 a.m., E.D.T.), and it was London's twenty-first alarm since August 15, when the German air force struck first in the London area with a dive-bomber attack on Croydon Airport. "Yellow Nose" squadron of Messerschmitt fighters were reported routed in a great battle over a Southeast Coast town after "suicidal" attacks on balloons.

An unofficial count of the day's German losses, which usually runs ahead of official communiqués, said that by early afternoon the Germans had lost fourteen bombers and fighters. The fourteenth plane, by this count, fell in flames on farmland in Southeast England, just missing rooftops.

Some of the raiders droning in across the Channel penetrated the London defence area in the third raid. The two morning thrusts were beaten back.

Several bomb explosions were heard in the London zone but after a brief fight, beyond the eyesight of watchers in the capital, the raiders apparently were driven off. One plane dived out of the sun on a town in the London area. The streets were crowded with shoppers. There were half a dozen explosions. Women and children ran for shelter and the fire brigade and air raid precautions services rushed into action.

About the time of the third thrust against London an elderly Swiss couple were reminded in a way that they were in the capital, charged with having made torch signals three days ago under circumstances which authorities charged indicated they were trying to guide raiding planes.

The prisoners, Emil Wirth, sixty-two, and his wife, Alma, sixty-one, denied the charge.

A dogfight raged over a South-east town as the Germans sought to stab into the London zone about sixty miles from the Dover coast. Spitfires, fighter planes which can climb to 11,000 feet in less than five minutes, checked a large bomber formation before it crossed the channel.

Canadian Labor Chieftains Renew War Effort Co-Operation Pledge

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—(P)—Labor's pledge to give all support to Canada in its war effort was reaffirmed today in messages issued by Canadian labor leaders in connection with the forty-sixth anniversary of Labor Day.

Messages were issued by A. R. Mosher, President of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor, Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and W. T. Burford, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Federation of Labor. Workers of Canada pledged their allegiance to the war effort as soon as the conflict began "and that pledge has been kept both in the letter and the spirit," declared Mr. Mosher.

Labor realized that the principles of freedom, justice and democracy on which the movement is founded was seriously threatened. "They could not sacrifice too great in the defence of those principles," Mr. Mosher said.

"They are aware that the first step taken by the dictators of Italy and Germany, when they seized power, was to destroy the organizations which workers had built, to despoil them of their corporate property and imprison their leaders."

"Labor organizations can exist only in a democracy. They must be free and independent bodies through which the workers can express their aims and ideals and promote their own as well as the public welfare."

Workers, have given themselves unsparringly in the service of their country as fighters and as producers

PROVINCE OF TRANSYLVANIA

(By The Canadian Press)

The Axis-dictated Transylvania award means that Rumania restores to Hungary about half the territory she gained from beaten Hungary by the Treaty of the Trianon after the last war, which was 105,000 square kilometres, or 40,530 square miles. This goes now under the general name of Transylvania.

It will be some time before the surveyors agree to the exact area of the ceded territory, however. First estimates from the three capitals chiefly concerned are:

Berlin—21,230 square miles.
Bucharest—19,300 square miles.
Budapest—17,000 square miles.

The territory Hungary lost to Rumania included more than either the pre-war Hungarian Province of Transylvania, about 22,000 square miles, or the latter actual Rumanian province of that name, given by the Statesman's Year Book in 1938 as 24,020 square miles.

CANADA SPENDS MANY MILLIONS ON WAR PLANTS

Munitions Minister C. D. Howe Places Commitments Under Plant Expansion Programme at $550,000,000.

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—(P)—Some idea of the cost to finance war industrial expansion was given by Canadian Munitions Minister Howe, who announced that expenditures and commitments by his department in the past eleven months already amount to some $550,000,000.

A plant construction programme undertaken by the Government accounts for $165,000,000 for the erection or enlargement of more than one hundred plants. Mr. Howe said last night in a statement summarizing the extent and some of the effects of purchases of his department.

Some of the plants which in one case will give employment to 15,000 men and to 7,000 in another, already are in operation. A large proportion of them also are scheduled to be in production within the next six months and others will enter production within the next six months.

Year Of War Finds Germany As Far From Conquest As Ever

(By The Canadian Press)

In the small hours of a September morning—a year ago tomorrow—Germany's Fuehrer issued an order of the day to his yet untired legions. He told them to repel "force with force."

The idea was that if the Poles attacked the Germans there was to be a counter-attack.

When the order of the day was made public German planes already had bombed Polish cities, killed hundreds of civilians; the Nazi legions were on Polish soil and the year of Nazi conquest had begun.

That same morning, Hitler, solemn, sombre, ceremonious, self-consciously trying to make history, told a helling Reichstag he would be the first soldier of the Reich; announced he was off to do or die, and named as his successor in the event of his death Goering or Hess.

At the end of the year Hitler stands like some dim shadow of a Napoleon on the French rim of the English Channel and sends his air legions into Britain's blue skies. For the time being he is "sprawling" over Europe—in the words of Prime Minister Churchill—but the world is agreed that he is as far from his objective of complete conquest as ever.

Britain alone, with an Empire solidly behind her, is holding the Nazi war machine at bay. Her fleet is still master of the seas; her air squadrons still command mastery of her skies.

Observers of the day-to-day events have already pointed out that historians will write of the first year of war as Hitler's year of brutal conquest—conquest by fair means or foul, but mainly by sheer weight of numbers and machines, by use of deception and treachery, by application on an international scale of the brutalizing tactics the Nazis used to gain power in the Reich.

The German steam-roller reached the Channel in June—across the Lowlands of France, after seizing Denmark, sweeping Norway and subjugating Poland—leaving in its wake battered, starving, civilian populations.

The year of war began with Britain's surprise raids on Kiel and Wilhelmshaven. It is ending with systematic raids on the same ports and many related objectives throughout Germany, including military targets in the German capital itself.

Italy joined the war which spread into Africa and to the edge of the Balkans. But the end of the year finds no end in sight to this amazing series of historical reversals, and in the opinion of Britain's leaders a long siege lies ahead. Repeated statements in London, from Mr. Churchill to some of the youngest members of the Government, have stressed that the moment of British offensive against Germany will come—not only air offensive such as is being already carried out, but Mr. Churchill has mentioned that it may be as far off as 1942.

EXTENSIVE U.S. PLANE ENGINE ORDERS GIVEN UNITED STATES AND NORWEGIAN VESSELS CRASH

New Orders Given by United States Make Possible 25,000-Plane Fleet Within Next Two Years.

Washington, Aug. 31.—(P)—Newly placed orders for airplane engines—once called the bottleneck of the United States defence programme—today brought prospects for engine production abreast of the army-navy goal of a 25,000-plane fleet in the next two years.

With new plant facilities already under construction and output steadily increasing, a survey of contracts showed that upwards of 40,000 motors for all types of planes have been ordered for delivery by mid-1942.

At the rate of 1½ engines per plane in order to furnish replacements, experts estimated that this total would be more than adequate for the goal of 25,000 planes of all types which defence officials have set for themselves by that time.

The two largest engine contracts let so far were made public by the army and navy this week. They call for the manufacture of 20,000 Wright motors by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation and 17,000 Pratt and Whitney Motors by United Aircraft Corporation.

Previously 3,000 Rolls-Royce motors had been ordered from the Packard Motor Company—which also agreed to produce 6,000 for Great Britain—and arrangements were made with General Motors Corporation to produce Allison aircraft engines.

Neither Vessel Involved in Collision Off New Jersey Coast Reported in Dangerous Condition.

New York, Aug. 31.—(P)—The freighter Seatrain Texas, a new $2,500,000 United States ship, and the Norwegian freighter Rolf Jarl collided in a fog off the New Jersey coast early today, Mackay Radio reported, but both apparently were not in serious trouble.

Four hours after the Seatrain Texas sent an S.O.S. call reporting she had struck an "unknown ship," the 1,017-ton Norwegian vessel sent a message to the Texas, intercepted by Mackay, which said:

"We will try proceed for five fathom bank daybreak. Please stand by until further notice."

The collision occurred about thirty-five miles East Southeast of Cape May, N.J., Mackay said, adding that the "five fathom bank" referred to meant Five Fathom Bank lightship off the Cape of May Point. The Rolf Jarl is registered from Trondheim, Norway, and made Philadelphia August 21 after a voyage from Lisbon, Portugal.

The 14,200-ton Seatrain Texas, owned by Seatrain Lines, Inc., is used for carrying loaded railroad freight cars and operates between New York and Texas ports. It was launched March 9, 1940.

WAR BULLETINS

Moscow, Aug. 31.—(P)—The Soviet Russian press recorded without comment today the agreement whereby Rumania yielded Northern Transylvania to Hungary in exchange for a German-Italian guarantee of the remainder of her territory.

Newspapers published brief factual accounts of the Vienna conference at which the agreement was reached.

London, Aug. 31.—(P)—A direct hit on an air raid shelter during the Germans' long raid on London during the night killed a number of persons but a man in a house nearby was uninjured.

London, Aug. 31.—(P)—Thirty-six lucky dogs are to be housed in a blast and splinter-proof air raid shelter in Kensington Gardens. The project, submitted by the National Canine Defence League, was approved today by the Officers of Works. But the League did not disclose how the fortunate thirty-six are to be chosen.

SHIPS LOST THIS WEEK

(By The Canadian Press)

Although the British Government maintained its usual silence on the day-to-day sinkings of British merchantmen on the High Seas, enough news leaked through neutral ports to indicate that the Nazi U-Boats were active in the week ending August 30.

The sinking of five British ships with a total tonnage of 26,644 became known. One of them was the 3,457-ton Empress Merchant, which was the former German vessel Pomona, captured by the British Navy early in the war.

Other sinkings during the week were the 3,868-ton Finnish ship Elle and the Venezuelan tanker Bolivar, 2,651 tons, which was the first vessel of that country lost in the war.

The British Admiralty summary for the week ending August 18 showed thirteen British, Allied and neutral ships totalling 52,899 tons lost in that period.

Popular Indignation At Transylvanian Cession To Precipitate Trouble

Period of National Mourning Proclaimed Through Dismembered Kingdom After Announcement of Axis-Dictated Treaty—Reported Germany Will Establish Tank and Motorized Bases in Rumania.

Bucharest, Aug. 31.—(P)—Rumania went into mourning today over Axis-dictated territorial cessions. There were rumblings of discontent and unofficial expressions of concern over possible disturbances in newly-sacrificed Transylvania.

The Rumanian Crown Council conferred until early morning on "new problems of exceptional importance" after ceding more than half of Transylvania to Hungary under a German-Italian "arbitration award" designed to stabilize Balkan peace for the Axis benefit.

Police guarded the Council's Palace session with sawed-off shotguns. Official quarters, aside from the reference to important problems, declined to disclose the new issues facing King Carol and his advisers.

It was understood that as part of the agreement whereby Germany and Italy guarantee Rumania's shrunken territory German motorized troops will guard the frontier with Soviet Russia.

Transylvania's church bells clanged an incessant dirge of protest against the new cession. All Bucharest theatres, movies and night clubs were ordered closed for an indefinite period of national mourning, and music was forbidden in restaurants.

Unreconciled Rumanians formed "Defence Corps" in parts of Transylvania, and from the Province capital, Cluj, came a petition bearing thousands of signatures lauding Julius Maniu, Rumanian Peasant Party leader, for his opposition to the cession and calling "traitors" those who agreed to it.

Maniu, although not a member of the Government or the Crown Council, made an unexpected appearance at the all-night meeting. Tens of thousands of Rumanian public employees, judges, army officers and politicians, with their families, began an exodus last night from Northern Transylvania, which soon will be Hungarian property again.

There was a widespread report that the German minority in Rumania which recently has been setting up an armed militia under general staff officers of German blood might take over the guarding of oil fields and other strategic points.

Rumania has two weeks in which to move her holdovers out of the ceded portion of Transylvania, which is estimated at 19,300 square miles.

PREMIER CALLS FOR UNITY OF WAR ENDEAVOR

Labor Day Message of Provincial Premier Declares Defeat of Nazism Needed to Restore Prosperity.

Quebec, Aug. 31.—(P)—Premier Adolphe Godbout warned last night in a Labor Day message to workers of the Province that "doubtlessly we are impelled by force of events to establish in Europe our first line of defence and to prepare ourselves, even in Canada, to face any eventuality."

"War, with all its horrors," Mr. Godbout said, "threatens the nations which least expect it, because of their privileged situation far from the source of the conflict."

In a separate message, Hon. Edgar-Deschamps, Provincial Minister of Labor, congratulated workers for their "active participation in Canada's war effort."

"It is necessary," he said, "that all continue to manifest their desire to see the common cause triumph."

Probe Ordered Into Prison Camp System As More Prisoners Escape

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—(P)—As a double-barrelled investigation was ordered into organization and administration of Canadian internment camps, search continued today for two more German war prisoners who escaped from an internment camp in the Muskoka district of Ontario last night.

Acting swiftly after the escape of the two latest prisoners, which brought the total in the last two weeks to six, Defence Minister Ralston late last night announced the appointment of a three-man board to investigate the internment camp set-up. In addition he ordered a court of inquiry to investigate last night's escape.

The latest prisoners to escape are Fritz Pietsch, a petty officer in the German submarine service and captured last November in the North Sea, and Herbert Naumann, an army sergeant major, captured during fighting in France around Arras. Both of them had been interned in Britain but later brought to Canada for the duration of the war.

Col. P. A. Pluze of Montreal, newly-appointed Officer Commanding the Canadian Provost Corps, will head the board appointed to investigate organization and administration of internment camps. Associated with him will be T. Dawn of Ottawa, former Deputy Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Warden Goad of Dorchester Penitentiary in New Brunswick.

Mr. Ralston said he was determined to "leave no stone unturned to see these people are held in safe keeping." It was a difficult problem to hold in custody in quickly organized camps "thousands of men who have twenty-four hours a day in which to plan their escape," he said. Maj. Gen. E. C. Ashton, former Inspector-General for Central Canada, will be chairman of the Court of Inquiry to investigate the escape of Pietsch and Naumann. Mr. Ralston said the court would convene in the Gravenhurst area at the earliest possible moment. Two senior officers of the Non-Permanent Active Militia also will be members of the court.

Meanwhile, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, aided by police dogs, and Ontario Provincial Police scoured the countryside for Pietsch and Naumann. In addition search continued in Northern Ontario for Hans Kibart, also a German war prisoner, who escaped from a Sudbury district camp last Tuesday.

The escape of Pietsch and Naumann was cleverly planned, internment officers here disclosed. The prisoners watched their chance and placed two planks on the chassis of a dump truck in the camp and then climbed on unnoticed.

The truck left the camp with the prisoners underneath and when the vehicle reached the dump the driver noticed two "suspicious looking" figures dart for the bushes. He took chase but the prisoners were too fast Continued on page 2, col. 1.

for him and after a roll call it was found the two prisoners were missing.

It was the second escape from this camp in recent times. Two weeks ago Guenther Lorentz, a naval lieutenant, tunneled his way out and hid in a ditch near the camp. He was recaptured, but he was not taken into custody. He is now in the hands of the British.

The escape of Steyer, an under-officer of the German navy, Kibart, an airman, also was cleverly planned. During a football match in the camp recreation ground, other prisoners partially buried Steyer and Kibart in a trench. When all prisoners left the grounds, they got through a wire fence surrounding the grounds and made off.

Steyer was recaptured last night somewhere west of Sudbury.

The sixth prisoner to escape is being held by United States border guards near International Falls, Minn., where he was taken into custody after fleeing from a camp in Northwestern Ontario. He is Manuel Fischer, thirty, a German civilian. His case is still awaiting disposition and is in the hands of Washington officials.

Theodor Steyer, twenty-nine, an under-officer of the German navy, was recaptured late last night somewhere west of Sudbury. Early re-

The Golden Text is from John 3:17, "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles." (Isaiah 42:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is without beginning of years or end of days. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual—yea, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses; the Way, the Truth, and the Life, healing the sick and casting out evils, destroying sin, disease, and death." One, Guenther Lorentz, was returned to the Muskoka district camp from which he tunneled his way out. The other Manuel Fischer, a civilian, is being held by United States border authorities pending negotiations for his return to the camp in Northwestern Ontario from which he escaped.

Steyer and Kibart made their getaway at dusk on August 27 through an ingenious scheme in which they were assisted by other prisoners. During a football game in a prison grounds, the two men were lightly buried in a ditch by other prison spectators. Only thinly covered with earth, the two escaped when night fell.

Sharp Increase In Price Of Corn Recorded On Lansdowne

Jumped to 25 Cents Per Dozen as Against Two Dozen for 35 Cents Last Week—Dairy, Fruit and Vegetable Markets Fluctuated Considerably.

A sharp increase in the price of corn, due to the prevalence of the annual corn borer, which penetrates into the cob or stock causing decay, was the major change in yesterday's Lansdowne Market price quotations, jumping from last week's price of two dozen for thirty-five cents to twenty-five cents a dozen.

The dairy, fruit and vegetable markets fluctuated considerably and a slight rise in prices of butter and eggs was perceptible, while cheese remained steady. Pullets eggs continue small and laying hens are a bit inactive, resulting in a decrease in price. Red William and Rago berry apples are being replaced by Melba apples, the price being steady.

Montreal cucumbers, however, are becoming scarce and the season for local cucumbers is not yet ripe, consequently a slight rise in price occurred.

Wax beans were considerably higher than last week as those on the market are imported from either Gaspe or P.E.I., which is also true of iceberg lettuce, imported from California. The decrease in price of apples, pears and lemons counterbalanced the subsequent rise of various local vegetables.

The meat market continued its former steady pace with no major fluctuations in price although turkey's decreased from twenty-eight to thirty-five to twenty-five and thirty, while mutton saw an increase of two cents per pound.

Trade in all commodities was rather dull and limited in comparison with the brisk business of last week.

ACCIDENT VICTIM LAID TO REST

A large number of relatives and friends of Gerald Gilbert Sanders, affectionately known as "Little Joe," four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Sanders, who was accidentally killed on Wednesday morning, attended his funeral held yesterday afternoon at his parents' home in Lennoxville.

Rev. F. R. Matthews conducted the service, when the hymns, "When He Cometh" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" were sung by a quartette composed of Miss Maude Cota, Mrs. Frederick Fox, Allen Willard and T. D. Bozer, of Lennoxville.

Thence the funeral cortege proceeded to Malvern Cemetery, where interment was made in the family lot.

Four young boys from Lennoxville acted as bearers, namely Donald McNaughton, Alan Sutherland, Gerald McKindsey and Frederick Vaudry.

The large attendance included many from the surrounding districts among whom were Mrs. Mary MacDermid, Mr. Murdo MacLeod and Mrs. Angus MacLeod, of Marsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Cleland McLaughlin and Mr. Charles MacLeod, of Farnham; Mrs. Edward Lemire, of Compton; Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, of New River; Mr. A. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Fisk, of Sherbrooke, and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Fisk, of Ives Hill.

The little casket was laden with many beautiful floral tributes and many messages of sympathy were received by the sorrowing family.

Canada Spends Many Millions On War Plants

Purchases by the Department "now burst through the $300,000,000 mark," Mr. Howe said. Purchases on British account total about $85,000,000 and cost of the construction plant makes up the balance of the total expenditure.

An accurate estimate of the annual value of the output of the plants has not been made, but it might run to some $300,000,000 Mr. Howe said. Expenditures by the Department for the immediate requirements of the armed forces have averaged $1,000,000 daily since the start of the war.

As to location of the plants, "they are being located at those points in the Dominion where materials can be produced with the greatest speed, a necessity in war, and where an adequate supply of skilled employees, raw materials and suitable transportation facilities are available," he said.

For obvious reasons, location of these plants remain secret.

Mounting Losses Ignored In Nazi Bid For Victory

action on the Dover "battleground" was hit by a bullet which pierced his tin hat. German planes were attacking a balloon barrage at the time.

The first London alarm, at 8:26 a.m. (3:26 a.m. E.D.T.), lasted thirty-seven minutes, and the second, at 10:58 (5:58 a.m. E.D.T.), lasted forty-one minutes.

Two formations of Nazi bombers under fighter-plane escort swept over the southeast coast this morning, with about a dozen bombers and twenty fighters in the first flight and additional bombers and thirty Messerschmitts in the second.

Royal Air Force fighters roared into action, and early reports on the battle said nine Nazi craft out of a squadron of thirty bombers and fighters were shot down. Watchers on the coast said the British defenders "scattered the German formations all over the sky."

London, meanwhile, had been under air raid alarm for ten hours and seven minutes in the twenty-four hours since the sirens shrieked their shrill warning at 11:46 Friday morning.

That was the first of four raids during the day and night in which the blazing guns of the R. A. F. and their supporting anti-aircraft defences took a heavy toll of the Nazis. Altogether sixty-two German planes were shot down, twelve by the all-Canadian squadron of the R. A. F. during a single patrol.

In what the Air Ministry's news service laconically described as "a useful hour's work," the Canadians of the R.A.F. shot down eight Messerschmitts and four Heinkel bombers without suffering any losses or damage. British losses for the day were nineteen planes and ten pilots bailed out to safety.

The day's "bag" brought the German losses for the month to more than one thousand planes, the Air Ministry announced, and it was learned that the 1st Canadian Fighter Squadron of the R.C.A.F. had bagged twelve of these since it began operating as a unit August 24.

Many Splendid Exhibits To Be Seen At Annual Fair At Danville Today

Danville, Aug. 31.—All roads led to the Danville Fair held for the sixty-fourth year under the auspices of the Danville Union Agricultural Society. Exhibits were arranged yesterday and judging took place this morning.

Usually held the last Friday and Saturday in September, the date of the fair was moved ahead a month this year to give the exhibitors a better chance, as quite frequently in the past early frosts have destroyed much of the produce before the opening of the fair. The new hall, where many of the exhibits are housed, was completed during the past year, and provides a splendid place for the showing of the many entries. The hall will be used throughout the year for many of Danville's social activities.

Open to exhibitors of the Town of Asbestos, the Municipalities of Ship-ton, Danville, Kingsley Falls, Tinglewick and St. George de Windsor, the Danville Exhibition is the yearly highlight of activities in these districts, and people from many miles around pack their picnic baskets and drive into its gates for a pleasant outing and at the same time see the high grade produce of farmers whose efforts are the backbone of this country's life in both peace and war-time. Here old friends are greeted and new ones made and each year as cars drive away from the fairgrounds the familiar words, "We'll see you next year" are gaily shouted back and forth.

Several halter and carriage classes provide considerable interest and many horses of prominence are on hand to compete for the ribbons. A long list of prizes have been offered in the dairy and beef cattle section, as well as for sheep, swine and poultry. A special interest is always taken in the children's section where children each year vie with each other for the awards.

The midway provides excitement for the pleasure and thrill seekers, who never seem to tire of the attractions which are shown each year and include such old-time favorites as the merry-go-round, the fat lady and the fortune-telling tent.

The Asbestos Harmony Band is in attendance.

Premier Calls For Unity Of War Endeavor

of the worst crises which it ever had to undergo," the Premier said. The situation gave Labor Day a particular significance this year, "because work is synonymous of order, of peace and of prosperity."

The Premier expressed belief that a great after-war destiny was in store for Quebec Province and for the whole of Canada.

"There is no doubt that as soon as Nazism and Fascism have been brought to reason we will be able to renew our economic effort and attain the success which we have a right to expect in the national and international economic domain. Let organized workers more than half a century to build up."

"In the past twelve months," continued Mr. Moore, "we have witnessed the spread of Nazi domination over most of Europe. The powerful trade union movements in France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Poland and Czechoslovakia are now but a memory for under German National Socialism, as Nazism is officially called, free and democratic trade unions are not tolerated. They are 'verboten' and the Gestapo are everywhere alert to see that these bulwarks of democracy do not operate. Workers in this democratic nation are determined that a similar fate will not be the lot of Canada."

"Though dark days may be ahead and much remains to be done before victory is won, on this Labor Day Canadian workers look with confidence to a brighter and happier future—future when real peace shall prevail throughout the world; when freedom and liberty shall be the lot of all men; and when social security will be assured for all workers."

Labor Day is no holiday for workers in Canada engaged in industries vital to the nation's war effort, for Canada has taken on a new responsibility as second in importance only to Britain in the struggle, Mr. Burford said.

All workers playing a part in war production are treated as combatants by a ruthless foe in total war, said Mr. Burford.

"For every worker and every Canadian there is but one Labor Day resolution assured of whole-hearted concurrence: Let's spit on our hands and get with the war."

Final Curtain Rung Down On Successful Sherbrooke Fair

Favorable Weather Throughout Week Added to Success Attained by Local Exhibition, Which Drew to Close Last Night—Horse Won by Payson Sherman Auctioned for Benefit of Red Cross Society Yesterday Afternoon—List of Additional Prize-Winners Released.

Ideal weather prevailing throughout the entire week, the Sherbrooke Exhibition was successfully concluded yesterday with harness racing and two grandstand performances. Shortly after ten o'clock last evening booths and stands were being stripped of their wares and trucks were busy loading the equipment of the grandstand performers and the produce which went to make up this year's exhibits.

The midway, as usual, was one of the last things to leave the grounds. After the grandstand performance many who were loath to leave wandered around the midway for one last ride on the various "thrillers" or to take one last try at the games. At a late hour those refreshment booths which had not completely folded up were being besieged by hungry or thirsty patrons.

In the afternoon the harness races were again followed by a large number of enthusiasts on the grandstand, who saw one of the most exciting days of this sport, since there were two mix-ups among the racers. One of the horses was the victim of an accident when a sulky wheel locked with that of another driver's rig and was torn off. The horse, though unhurt, was drawn from the race. Later in the same event a horse broke the right shaft of his sulky, threw his driver and ran around the track three times before being caught. Vaudeville acts were shown between the races.

The sum of $155 was realized for the Red Cross Society yesterday afternoon by the auction sale of the Belgian stallion donated by C. D. French, of Cookshire. On Thursday afternoon by the auction sale of the front of the grandstand, and the horse won by Payson A. Sherman, of Scottstown. 2500 tickets were sold, netting the sum of $600.

Upon being informed that he had won the horse, Mr. Sherman returned it to the Red Cross Society; to be sold at auction. Yesterday afternoon it was again led out in front of the grandstand, and with Ray Demers acting as auctioneer, the bidding began. After considerable hickering back and forth it was sold to Hon. Jacob Nicol for the sum of $155. This brought the total sum realized for the Red Cross Society from this station up to $755. In announcing the new owner, Orson Ingalls expressed his thanks to the donors, and to the E.T.A.A. for allowing the drawing and the auction sale to take place on the grounds.

In the evening the grandstand performance was viewed for the last time by an enthusiastic crowd. The finale brought the entire cast of artists on the stage for the singing of "O Canada" and "God Save the King."

Police reported a quiet day, with no accidents, aside from the race track incidents, and no arrests.

Thus ends another successful Exhibition put on by the Directors of the E.T.A.A. in spite of adverse conditions, and another "bigger and better" fair has been promised for next year, with more new improvements to the grounds and good performance and midway.

The following additional prize-winners were announced today:

Many Willingly Sacrificing Labor Day Observance As Plants Remain Open To Push Ahead War Programme

Determined to push forward Canada's preparedness, a large number of Sherbrooke workers will on Monday forego the traditional observance of Labor Day and continue on duty at their various trades.

Fully realizing that industries concerned with manufacturing of war material and miscellaneous armaments cannot afford to suspend operations in this time when speed and top-capacity production are vitally essential, it is to the credit of the laboring element that they are ready to sacrifice their usual holiday, well merited as it is, cheerfully and in a spirit of complete co-operation with their employers.

The hum of machinery in these various plants on Monday will carry a note of deep significance, echoing the determination of local workmen to join their confreres across the width and breadth of the Dominion in pressing at high gear the country's armament and war-preparedness programme. These men, working while fellow-citizens are celebrating Labor Day, will have the satisfaction of doing their bit in this time of emergency when every able-bodied man must put his shoulder to the wheel.

Industries which will continue to operate Monday will include the Paton Manufacturing Company, the Superheater Company, the Canadian Ingersoll Rand, MacKinnon Steel, the Brake Shoe, a section of the Rubin plant, the E and T Fairbanks and Company and the Hall Machine-ry.

BUILDING WORK IN AUGUST AT $72,300 MARK

Eighteen permits, amounting to $72,300, were granted for construction purposes during the month of August, according to statistics given out today by W. L. McSwigan, Municipal Building Inspector. This total places the past month the third highest for the same period in the past ten years, August 1939, with $125,000, and August 1937, with $76,300, alone representing greater disbursements.

Of these eighteen contracts ten were over $2,000, while last year with a much larger amount spent there were only twelve over $2,000. The greatest amount was for the $30,000 alterations on the old His Majesty's Theatre property, 86 Wellington Street. Six were for houses and apartments and a total of $34,900 was for new construction purposes.

August, 1940, showed an increase of $5,400 over the previous month and was better than any other month this year except for June, which had a total of $104,200.

On the first eight months of the present year the general amount was considerably lower than for last year, coming to a total of $527,750 as against $963,750.

Following are comparative figures:

|             | 1940      | 1939      |
|-------------|-----------|-----------|
| January ..  | $ 32,200 | $ 36,100 |

Jean-Claude Menard, of East Angus, young son of Ovide Menard, was injured yesterday afternoon while playing under some freight cars in the Canadian National Railway Yard.

Nineteen Young Flyers End Training At Windsor Mills

Will Now Proceed to No. 2 Service Intermediate Flying Training School at Uplands Airport to Enter Upon Second Stage of Their Course—Graduation Ceremony Attended by Number of R.C.A.F. Officials, Headed by Group Capt. McEwen.

For nineteen young men, all of whom graduated from high school and some from college, there was yet another graduation yesterday afternoon—the exciting moment when, parading before Group Captain C. M. McEwen, M.C., D.F.C., Officer commanding No. 3 Training Command, R.C.A.F., Montreal, they were officially acknowledged to have satisfactorily completed their seven-week training period at Windsor Elementary Flying Training School and hence were entitled to take the next step in becoming pilots by proceeding to an Intermediate Flying Training School.

Against a background of green shacks with rust red roofs, the nineteen Leading Aircraftmen wheeled and turned in full review parade, led by Flight Lieutenant C. J. Fee, Supervisor of the Windsor Mills Flying School, and marched past Group Captain McEwen, who took the salute.

Afterwards Group Captain McEwen spoke a few words to the graduates, stressing the importance of the training they had just undergone, the fact that this learning, elementary though it was, formed the essential basis of the love of flying. He expressed the hope that everyone of the young men before him would continue on their course and become full-fledged pilots.

Standing behind Group Captain McEwen as he reviewed the Leading Aircraftmen were Wing Commander E. G. Fullerton, Squadron Leader A. Raymond, Flying Officer E. J. Verrier, Wing Commander G. H. Shaw, Flight Lieut. H. O. McDonald and Flying Officer R. W. Gee, among the visitors, and the following members of the Windsor Mills Staff: Flying Officer A. T. Chesson, Manager J. K. M. Green, Chief Flying Instructor W. T. Wrathall and Secretary-Treasurer D. H. MacFarlane.

This is the first class to graduate from the Windsor Mills School. Half the number now at the school remain for an additional four weeks' training and a new crop comes on Monday to replace those leaving.

These aircraftmen are not pilots, but in their seven weeks at Windsor Mills they have all had sixty to seventy-five hours in the air of dual, solo and instrumental flying, in an elementary type of machine, the yellow Fleet Finch 2.

They have also had a certain amount of ground instruction in theory of flight, navigation, airframes, signals, armament and engines. They have had seven weeks of close co-operation with their fellows.

WILLIE DUSSAULT SAYS:

If you check your home this fall and fix-up all those little things that may have developed during the long, hot summer, you'll be assured of a warm, comfortable home all winter long. A small leak in the roof can easily be patched up now. Later it can develop into an expensive re-roofing job as well as cause you plenty of inconvenience and discomfort. So take the time now to go over the entire house from top to bottom, inside and out and you can forget winter weather worries as far as your home is concerned.

When you've decided what your home needs to put it in tip-top shape call in the fine old Jenckes organization to help you with good advice and reliable workmanship. Of course the Colonel isn't here now but the men he trained remain to carry on the good work. Just call me at 2861 and I'll come at the time most convenient to you. Night telephone number is 2888.

LABOR DAY

There have been many heroes in the ranks of Canadian Labor, men who have helped to lay, broad and deep, the foundations of the great Labor body of today. And there are in this fair land of ours today men who are faithfully carrying on the fine traditions of their predecessors.

It is only fitting that a particular day should be set aside each year in which tribute is paid to Labor; praise expressed for its contribution to the nation's progress, and good wishes expressed to it for the years that lie ahead. And so on Monday next Canada will officially observe Labor Day.

Present-day conditions, as a result of the war, will, to a marked degree, curtail this year's celebration of Labor Day. The enthusiasm on the part of Labor will be none the less sincere, but the greater number of men, women and youth making up the Labor element of Canada will be forsaking the holiday to remain at their tasks in order that Canada's war work may be speeded up, and that Labor's great contribution to the nation's war effort may not suffer. This is a splendid gesture on the part of Labor, and is but another evidence of the whole-hearted contribution which Canadian Labor, as Labor elsewhere throughout the Empire, is making to the great cause of defending the British Empire against the assaults of a mad tyrant who would, if successful, abolish the rights and privileges of Labor, as he would every other phase of freedom which British people hold dear, and which they are not going to relinquish for Hitler or anything of his like.

Organized Labor has during the trying days of the war shown a determined and sincere effort to discharge its great responsibilities in a commendable manner. It has put above everything else the service of the state.

Labor has come to rely more on conciliation and moral suasion and less on force. And as long as its objectives are fair and its methods are within the law it will have the sympathy of the public.

The people of Canada salute those who make up the Labor group of the nation. May both groups work together in understanding and co-operation. May all, united and determined, tackle the present. May that same spirit of co-operation continue in the years to come when a victorious Britain and a victorious Canada face a period of reconstruction and set out to repair the damage caused by the insane greed and ruthlessness of a maniacal dictator.

THE NAVAL RECORD

It is sometimes said that figures are dry, and generally they are, the interest which might exist in them being for what they convey, what they mean, rather than what they are in themselves. This is true of the statement made yesterday by Naval Minister Angus Macdonald in reviewing the continued successful watch and ward of His Majesty's ships, including the 113 ships of the Royal Canadian Navy, over the sea lanes that link the Empire.

In dry figures, but figures filled with meaning, the Minister notes that "over 330 vessels of the British Navies are at sea every day." Since the war broke out more than 32,000 merchant ships have been escorted in convoy with a loss of eighty.

Great Britain continues to receive food and fighting material despatched in thousands of tons of shipping, much of it conveyed from Canadian ports by Canadian ships, the Minister said.

During the ten weeks ended August 3 total imports to the United Kingdom were 9,930,546 tons of which 2,676,223 tons were food, 2,880,022 tons oil, and 2,212,716 minerals.

Up to August 17, he pointed out, enemy merchant losses totalled 1,212,000 tons, British total shipping losses were 1,348,563 tons. The British, plus Allied and neutral losses totalled 2,568,335 tons.

Merchant vessels to the number of 179, totalling 1,300,000 tons, are under construction in the United Kingdom alone, with numerous other vessels being built throughout the Empire. Mr. Macdonald said merchant marine vessels as well as naval craft were under construction in Canadian shipyards.

The total Allied merchant marine tonnage, he said, is between six and seven millions, exclusive of 800,000 tons of Danish and French shipping, and 750,000 tons of neutral shipping in Allied service.

REMOVING THE PRISONERS

Despite the loud proclamations of the German leaders that they are winning the good-will of the people of the occupied areas of France, a series of acts and ordinances recently rather leaves the impression in the public mind that things are not so rosy as they seem. The reports which are reaching Switzerland from the occupied areas that the Germans plan the mass removal of French prisoners from the occupied areas seems a case in point.

The reason given for refusing to release the prisoners is that the authorities fear an outbreak of sabotage should these million-odd men be freed. This is in contrast to the reported friendship, for it is rather inconceivable that prisoners released for their normal occupations should resort to sabotage against their liberators.

Rather it indicates that the men are to be removed to Germany for labor purposes, being engaged in industry and agriculture on a virtually slave-labor basis. Thus the freeing of France continues.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELECTIONS

Regardless of their outcome, the pending federal elections in Australia can offer little consolation to Hitler and his aides who are keenly anticipating the breakdown of the British Empire. While the Government parties and the Labor Opposition are fighting vigorously over the war effort of the Commonwealth, the argument is not that this effort be curbed, but rather as to the best way in which it can be increased. Both parties have the same goal, the largest and strongest air force, army and navy possible for the country, with unlimited aid to the Empire.

Just how this is to be achieved is causing some debate and is a matter that should be settled by the Australian voters at the polls, but whichever party wins, the cause of democracy is promised increasing support from the Antipodes.

W. O. NICOL LEAVES MANY FRIENDS

W. O. Nicol, for the past four and a half years manager of the main Sherbrooke branch of the Bank of Montreal, is relinquishing this post to be succeeded by R. L. Curphey, Manager of the Bank's Hull branch.

Mr. Nicol cannot claim to be a life-long resident of Sherbrooke. Nor can the boast of being a native of the Eastern Townships. But he can look back upon four and a half years in a city to which he came a stranger and from which he now goes, leaving behind him scores of personal friends, business associates and well-satisfied customers for the Bank which he has served so faithfully and so well for the past thirty-seven years, twenty-seven of which were as manager in various branches throughout Canada.

The art of making friends is a great asset in any successful business life. This is a quality which W. O. Nicol possesses in great measure. He leaves many Sherbrooke friends behind him whose wish is that he and Mrs. Nicol will thoroughly enjoy their new home and that the future will deal kindly with them both.

In coming to Sherbrooke Mr. Curphey, as Mr. Nicol's successor, may be assured of a friendly welcome into the social and business life of the community. Kindly the citizens welcome him as reluctantly they say "Adieu, but not farewell" to W. O. Nicol.

The prize-winners in a special photographic competition sponsored by The Sherbrooke Record and judged at the Sherbrooke Fair were Dr. H. E. Spencer, J. E. Barnabe and Miss Mattie Bede.

The annual Sherbrooke Exhibition placed an unusual burden on the local bluecoats, who reported an epidemic of pickpockets, while no less than fourteen wanderers were given lodging on a single night.

The large barns on the property of the Misses Gibson at Upper Melbourne, together with the implements and crops, were destroyed by fire.

The directors of the newly-reorganized street railway took a full page of advertising to inform the public of their plans for extensions to the lines and the modernization of the power system.

Grave disorders were reported throughout Spain with numerous clashes between troops, police and strikers in the general strike sweeping that country.

Reports reaching Quebec City indicate that the Indian population is being decimated through an epidemic of measles.

Mrs. A. Leonard, of Richmond, suffered severe injuries when she fell from the verandah at the rear of her residence.

The Divine Householder

St. Matthew XX, 1, 2: "For the Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, who went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard."

Like the parable of the Unjust Steward, this story of the Householder and his laborers in the Vineyard has its peculiar difficulties of interpretation. But the main difficulty lies in the fact that people will insist on looking for teaching that is not there. Of course, it is right to be profoundly impressed by the spiritual significance of all Scripture, but it is, on the other hand, unreasonable to try and force any text beyond the evident scope of its teaching.

We must remember that our Lord was quite content, as a rule, to impress just one vital truth at a time. Every parable has its own setting and its own justification, according to circumstances. Just as the parable of the Good Samaritan arose out of the lawyer's question—"Who is my neighbor?"—so this, of the Laborers in the Vineyard, was prompted by a question asked by St. Peter—"Behold, we have left all and followed Thee; what shall we have therefore?"

The Master's reply to this far from disinterested question was two-fold. In the first place, He spoke of the covenantal reward—"Ye who have followed Me shall sit on twelve thrones." Then He went on to say: "Everyone that hath forsaken houses and brethren or lands—for My sake shall receive an hundred-fold, and shall inherit everlasting life." But, even more than this, Jesus wanted to impress on His apostles the fact that the "contract" between Man and God is not a hard and fast business transaction, a "quid pro quo" arrangement, but that it was quite possible that "many that are first shall be last, and the last first," said He, "the Kingdom of Heaven" may be compared to the way in which a large employer of labor hires his men. In this case, in all probability, the grapes were fully ripe and must at all costs be harvested.

To those who came early, looking for work, the landowner promised the normal day's wage. As other men appeared, he invited them to join in the harvesting operations without specifying emolument—some of them working only one hour! The all-important thing was to get the harvest in before the close of that day.

Can we not imagine the satisfaction of the Lord of the Vineyard in that the year's crop was now safe from storm or blight or mildew? Is it surprising that he should say to his foreman: "All these men have worked well, and the job is finished, let us make no difference between them. Pay them all alike." It was a natural gesture for a generous and free-hearted man. Nobody had any right to complain. Where a bargain had been made it was kept; where no fixed agreement had been reached the men had been liberally dealt with.

You may ask: How does this parable have any bearing on the claims of St. Peter, and his apostolic associates? They had from the beginning borne the burden and heat of the day. Their reward was secure: but later arrivals were destined to be no less honored. St. Paul himself was an eleven-hour man, born out of due time, yet we are told he labored more abundantly than they all! So these first followers of Jesus learnt from this parable that they had no right to grumble because these later laborers should be equally rewarded with them—men like Paul, Timothy, Titus, Philemon.

There seems to be a tendency in the popular theology of our own day to emphasize the rewards, and to minimize the responsibilities of Christian discipleship. Its blessings and privileges are high-lighted: its obligations kept in the background. This soft-pedalling attitude is clean contrary to the constitution of Man and the Universe: life itself was evolved, and Man arose, only out of struggle and sacrifice. Neither the Christian life nor the life of the good Citizen, is an easy journey on rubber-tired vehicles along a pleasant road. Thousands, however, are of this opinion. As a great French Archbishop said, the other day, the real cause of the breakdown of his country was moral, and only resultantly physical. The pursuit of ease and pleasure, and the only too prevalent addition to the more precious brands of intoxicants had undermined the character and stamina of the people, and faction and corruption in the Government completed the debacle.

These same insidious forces are at work in the Free Democracies of this Continent. Liberty has run riot, and men in high places deny the existence of perils that should be obvious even to the most myopic eyes! Demagogues eloquently glorify the free institutions which they have not the slightest intention of helping to defend. They proclaim their unwavering faith in Democracy—forgetting that faith without works is dead. Let me add that "Justification by Faith," however it may be theologically, is by no means to be commended as a directive principle of State Policy! Our own Government might well take this to heart! It is written: "By their fruits ye shall know them."

The rebuke administered by Our Lord to His great apostle, Peter, is not to be regarded as of merely local or personal application, but as universal in its scope. It applies to what we may term the spirit of inordinate acquisitiveness, wherever it may be found. The ruling thought with many men is: "What shall I get? What profit is there in it for me?" It is the wage, and not the work itself, that absorbs their whole soul. Such men miss the true joy of service. The Master in His wisdom felt the need of impressing this truth even upon His own personal followers.

God metes out His rewards by other rules and standards than these with which we are acquainted. His ways are not our ways; therefore it may well prove in the final summing up, that the first may be last, and the last first!

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

DEFEAT OR VICTORY MAY REST ON PLAY OF ONE KEY CARD

This is the last of our series of articles showing that it does not pay to play poker bridge.

The playing conventions in contract bridge are not new. While contract is a fairly new game, we know there has been some form of whist played for hundreds of years, and the conventions of the play have slowly developed over the centuries. Therefore, when you hear a player say, "I lead whatever I think will win" or "I play them as I see them," that player either does not know the conventional plays or he has an inferiority complex.

Suppose you were sitting West in today's hand. The opponent on your right is playing the contract at three no trump, and you hold three of your partner's suit headed by the jack. Should you lead the honor?

No, hold the honor to trap one of declarer's spades, and lead the small one. If West leads the jack, South wins it with the king, knocks out the king of diamonds, and if East catches the ace and queen of spades, South gets the spade ten for his ninth trick. If East refuses to establish the spade ten, then declarer sets up a long club, losing only one diamond, one club and two spades.

If West leads the three of spades, East will come in with the ace and return the seven of spades, his fourth best. Now regardless of how declarer plays, he will have only eight tricks, going down one.

So long as innocence needs aid;
So long as weakness pleads a trembling span
Old England's glory shall not fade.

CANADIAN-U.S. ECONOMIC RELATIONS

(L'Information, of Montreal)

The tourist business has always been considered one of the principal ones in the country. As a matter of fact millions of dollars have been spent each year by these visitors, and it constitutes an important part in our economic scheme. In wartime the importance of this industry only increases. How is it that tourism, an industry of peace if there ever was one, becomes so important for us in times of war?

It is because Canada is engaged in a war which is raging in Europe. In order to pursue our military effort effectively, we need vast material for war and a good part of this material must be bought outside of the country. The merchandise which we buy in the United States are compelled to pay for in American money.

We obtain this from tourists by selling them services or merchandise. These American dollars, let it not be forgotten, return to the United States, and that is a point that our visitors should be made to understand. The more orders we give in the United States—and we can give only as many as we have American money to pay for—the busier their factories will be and the more work there will be for everybody.

PRESS COMMENTS

THE INVASION IS SOMEWHAT DELAYED

(Brantford Expositor)

Now that August 15 has come and gone and Der Fuehrer has not become established in Buckingham Palace as the ruler of Britain, it is in order to inquire concerning the reasons for the delay.

What is hindering the powerful Nazi machine in its attempt to invade Britain? Is it the difficulty of crossing the Channel and landing an army on British shores? Is it because if it does, succeed in crossing the Channel it will immediately be attacked by Britain's vigorous defence army? Or is it because the prompt and energetic organization of all the defence forces, supplemented by powerful civilian guards, is upsetting the entire plan? Whatever the cause, the Nazi leaders and their troops still remain on the European side of the Channel, still looking towards the shores of Britain just as Napoleon's army did in 1805.

There are several good reasons why the Nazi military authorities fear to launch an attack against Britain. Chief among these, perhaps, has been the utter failure of the Nazi agents to secure active co-operation among the British people. They have found that there are no "Quislings" in Britain. There never was a time, in British history, when it could be said, "we are all good Englishmen," with greater truth than during this present emergency. Whatever sympathizers there were with Nazism have either been placed behind the bars in prisons or sent to internment camps. There is not a single acre of ground within the confines of the United Kingdom where parachute troops could land with safety. Nazi is a remarkable tribute to the morale and unity of the British people. Then, again, another factor is absent that contributed so greatly to the success of Hitler's invasion of other countries. When the Nazi armies invaded Poland, Der Fuehrer was able to signal to Russia to stab Poland in the back. That, of course, was a cowardly act, and the Poles were soon crushed between the two great armies. When the Nazis were driving through France they were able also at the strategic moment to signal II Duce to stab France in the back. These tactics succeeded according to expectation but in the matter of Britain there is no third nation standing ready to stab her in the back. Hence, the Nazis can only succeed in subduing Britain by waging actual warfare by their military, naval and aerial forces. The campaign conducted so vigorously in the United States by Nazi sympathizers to prevent aid reaching Britain has failed disastrously, and the American Republic is straining might and main to provide her with the sinews of war.

Thus the Nazi rulers are limited to aerial attacks, which have failed to shake the morale of the British people, to stop shipping to and from British ports, or to inflict extensive damage thus far on harbors or naval bases. That is the situation at the present time, and it is one which should give British people throughout the world great encouragement.

GOULD LADIES' SOCIETY HELD BUSY SESSION

Chalmers' Church Association Entertained at Home of Mrs. K. N. MacIver—General News Budget from Gould and Vicinity.

Gould, Aug. 31.—A meeting of the Ladies' Association of Chalmers' Church was held at the home of Mrs. K. N. MacIver. The guests numbered about fifty, including members and visitors, and were graciously received by Mrs. MacIver.

A short business session, with the President, Mrs. Murdo Matheson, in charge was conducted in the usual manner. The minutes of the previous meeting, held at Mrs. A. Morrison's, were read and adopted.

It was decided to hold the annual chicken pie supper about the middle of September. A special business meeting will be called to make the necessary arrangements, when a date will be set and committees appointed.

Vases of artistically arranged garden flowers were used in decorating the rooms for the meeting.

The out of town guests included Mrs. B. Haselton, of Beebe, Mrs. E. Holgate and Miss Margaret MacIver, of Sherbrooke, Miss Margaret Hutchison, of Toronto, Miss Hilda E. "But Frank and I are going to take a vacation. We're going to pack the baby and ourselves off to mother's cottage for a week and then spend the other week with Frank's father on the farm. We think it's a good idea to see both families this year, get some sunshine for ourselves and some typical 'spoiling by grandmothers' for the baby."

"We aren't taking lightly the matters of national defense or trouble abroad, but we're trying to keep up for each other and for our families. We think we can do whatever needs to be done without being Gloom and Peter Pickle-puss about it."

I believe wholeheartedly that we can unite for national defense without becoming a nation of short-tempered, sad-faced, generally unpleasant individuals to have around."

Overheard in a restaurant — "We've cancelled our plans for a vacation this year," Mrs. A. was telling tall, good-looking Mrs. B.

"George and I had intended to take the children back to that nice little camp on the lake we discovered last summer. That vacation did us all a world of good."

"But George and I are so worried about everything that I know we couldn't relax and enjoy the lake or the camp this year. We're both so gloomy and depressed all the time that I don't think the children have much fun being around us at home, and I don't think they would up at the lake either. Oh well, they'll just have to get used to the change. I don't see any hope for them or anybody. Isn't it too awful?"

The woman across the table sipped her iced tea thoughtfully.

"Yes, it's awful, Mary. Anyone who thinks at all is bound to be worried and, sometimes at least, pretty depressed."

Attractions at the Local Theatres

At The Granada

One of the recent stories to come out of Hollywood, and reliably authenticated, rates a place of honor among the screen "incredibles." It came to light during the filming of the Paramount drama, "The Way Of All Flesh," featuring Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry Muriel Angelus, which is being presented at the Granada Theatre starting tomorrow.

At the Paramount Studio in Hollywood, Muriel Angelus and Mary Martin, who was featured in "The Great Victor Herbert," have adjoining dressing rooms. Comparing notes they discovered that in many ways their careers were curiously parallel. It developed that Muriel voyaged from London, and Mary railroaded from Weatherford, Texas, to end up next-door, studio neighbors.

Each started as a dancer, Muriel learning ballet as a youngster before going on the London stage; Mary studied dancing and became a teacher of Terpsichore in Texas. Muriel made a screen test in London but was thumbed down. Mary journeyed to Hollywood with ideas, sang in night clubs, but got nary a nod from the studio.

Coming to New York for a show, Muriel arrived just in time to learn that the show had folded before she even rehearsed, but landed a lead in "Boys From Syracuse," which was an immediate success, as was also Muriel.

Having established a successful run of 235 performances as a Broadway musical comedy hit, "The Boys From Syracuse" proves an equal to the screen currently at the Granada Theatre.

At The Premier

Romance by Richard Denning and Jean Cagney, menace by the veteran J. Carrol Naish and the well-known humor of William Frawley make up pleasing entertainment in "Golden Gloves," which opens at the Premier Theatre tomorrow.

Taking its background from the increasingly popular three-ring circus of sport, "Golden Gloves" tells the story of a young amateur boxer who, for the sheer love of the sport, battles his way to the heavyweight championship in the face of opposition on the part of his sweetheart and the scheming of petty fight racketeers.

Richard Denning, one of Paramount's regulars, turns in a neat job as the battling Romeo and Jean Cagney makes a convincing heroine at the Premier Theatre tomorrow.

who would rather her boy friend stick to his department store counter than to cultivating cauliflower ears. J. Carrol Naish, as the racketeer-fight promoter who does out near-gold watches in exchange for broken noses, acquires himself in the usual Naish manner, while Bill Frawley seasons the piece with his own brand of humor.

Present, too, is a new screen personality who seems to be going places. He is Robert Ryan, former four-time heavyweight champion of Dartmouth College who, as the professional "ringer," is pitted against the amateur Denning by the scheming racketeer in the big fight sequence.

The other attraction is "Hidden Gold," latest "Hopalong" saga.

LAKE MEGANTIC

Boy wanted for Sept. 1st to deliver Records daily in Lake Megantic. Apply Sherbrooke Record Company, Circulation Department, or to Elmer Morrison, Lake Megantic, Que.

Jean Cagney and Richard Denning in "Golden Gloves," which opens at the Premier Theatre tomorrow.

Succumbing to the wiles of Muriel Angelus, Akim Tamiroff has wandered from the straight and narrow, in Paramount's "The Way Of All Flesh," opening at the Granada Theatre tomorrow.

Weekly Letter to Farmers

W. S. RICHARDSON, Assistant to Superintendent,
Dominion Experimental Station, Lennoxville, Que.

The yield and quality of crops from pastures and meadows next year can be greatly influenced by the care and management from now until freeze-up.

With the advent of cooler weather the rate of growth of grasses slows up and the cattle begin to clip the pastures very close. In order to compensate for this slow growth, it is wise to have some supplementary source of feed.

Clover fields from which the first crop was harvested early have generally been cut the second time and the hay stored in the barn. This season being later than usual, there is still some of this second crop on the fields. This may still be cut and made into hay, or else put into the silo to supplement the short corn crop. The addition of 30 to 60 pounds of molasses, per ton, to clover when it is being ensiled improves the quality of the resulting feed.

Where manure is available for top-dressing, the ideal time to apply it is immediately after removing the second crop. It should be thoroughly spread at around 8 tons per acre. Applied at this time, it strengthens the root system of the grasses and results in increased yields next year. If the clover is not required for hay or silage, it may be used to good advantage for pasture. At first the cattle should not be turned in, while the clover is wet, or some cases of bloat may occur. After a few days when they have become used to this new feed, they may be left in all the time without danger. Timothy aftermath also provides excellent pasture at this time of year and helps to keep the cattle in good condition. If it is possible to give the stock access to both clover and timothy fields at the same time, so that they may get a combination of these feeds, results will be slightly better. Animals like variety in their diet.

While the cattle are on these aftermaths, the permanent pasture, if it is in a good state of fertility, will be putting on growth, which will provide feed until time for winter stabling.

Will this pasturing of aftermath hurt the crop for next year? Only if judgment is not used in the length and closeness of the grazing. Hay fields should not be grazed right down to the ground, so that the grass roots go into the winter without protection of tops. This rule also applies to the permanent pasture. On the other hand, meadows can have too much growth. This excess top growth has a smothering effect and makes difficult mowing the following year. Use judgment and do not over-graze!

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Katie Kingfisher

WHILE I don't have quite as much blue in my dress as that noisy husband of mine, people say I'm every bit as pretty. In fact, from the way he took on when he courted me, he must think I'm prettier.

For one thing, I keep my long head feathers neater than he does; but in most ways, we are very much alike, particularly when we get to discussing the best place for the nest. Then we both talk so loud and so fast, that neither one make a soft cradle for the babies when they hatch, for we don't believe in soft beds for children. We think they are healthier if they sleep on a hard, sticky one. We get all the old fishbones and fish scales we can find, and make the mattress of that. And if the children find it uncomfortable, they never say so, as all their time is taken up crying for something to eat. I tell you we have a time keeping their stomachs halfway full, as I don't believe a young kingfisher ever got so full but what it could eat some more.

As soon as their eyes are open in the morning, they start in begging for breakfast, and then on until dinner-time, they are fussing about something between meals, and from dinner to supper it is the same thing. Some days when it is stormy, and fishing is poor, we have to carry them nearly everything we catch, and the consequence is, we go to bed hungry. But we are willing to do anything to keep peace in the family. But never mind, just wait about a year from now when they have babies of their own, then maybe they will appreciate what we have done for them.

And even when they have left the nest, and are nearly as big as we are, they follow us about, get in the way, hold their bills wide open, and beg to be fed, instead of trying to catch something for themselves—but I suppose all parents have their troubles, so I oughtn't to complain.

Aside from the children, that sky-blue husband, who was a bridegroom not three months ago, is sometimes a great trial. He gets me so nervous, that I feel like plunging under the water and staying there for good—if I were right sure he would be sorry, I believe I'd do it. It's like this: He thinks the river for a mile up and down from the nest, actually belongs to him, as if he had bought and paid for it, and if a fisherman happens hears a word the other says. But in the end, I generally have my way, and the nest goes where I thought it ought. Speaking of the nest, we don't build in trees, but in a bank, right near the water, for there's where we get our living, you know.

"People Say I'm Very Pretty"

When we have decided on a place, both of us work. Turn about digging out a round hole about ten or fifteen inches deep, straight in the clay, and when we think it is deep enough, we dig down, and make the cutest little round nursery you ever saw.

We don't take the trouble to

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are playing "Campers". Teddy put up his YELLOW canvas teepee with a bright RED sun painted on the side. The teepee has a BROWN board floor and Teddy has put a nice RED cushion on the floor inside to sit upon. "Heap big Injun glad to have heap fine squaw come to lunch!" says Teddy. "Heap plenty nice YELLOW banana, PURPLE grapes, GREEN pear and RED apple for him heap brave Chief!" answers Susie May, with a BLUE tray of the fruit on a White plate.

They have fixed a RED and BLUE striped stool with YELLOW wooden legs, for a table. Paint the sky BLUE and the leaves of the tree GREEN, also the grass GREEN. The pegs holding the tent are BROWN and the ropes over them YELLOW.

Both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

"Oh, it is such fun playing 'Injun' and 'Campers'!" says Teddy and Susie May. "We always pitch our tent near a big BROWN tree so it will shade us from the sun."

The Pirate of River View

ONE more day and the long beautiful summer holidays at River View would be over! No wonder the children at the big hotel hung around their playground regretfully—no one likes to think that jolly days must end.

"But then," said the practical Vera, "we can't make the summer any longer by wishing so let's have one grand good time today even if it is to be the last. Reggy, I'll beat you to the spring!"

"You will, will you?" shouted Reggy, and away they ran, pell mell, down to the pretty grotto back of the playground where big piled up rocks and a bubbling spring made a wonderfully cool place to play.

"Do you know what I'd like to do?" asked Sylvia when she caught up with the breathless runners. "I'd like to take off my shoes and socks and splash in the water. I've wanted to all summer, but somehow we always went swimming in the lake instead."

"Better not," advised Vera, "you might wet your clothes!"

"I won't wet anything," answered Sylvia, "see? These are my very oldest clothes! All my good ones are packed—except what I'm going to wear at the fete this afternoon. I'm going to wade!"

No sooner said than done. Sylvia pulled off her socks and sandals and waded into the cool water that trickled over the rocks.

"You ought to come in," she called to the others, "it's loads of fun!"

That was too much for the other children. In a jiffy their shoes and socks were off and they too were wading in the cool, clear water.

"I'll tell you what let's do," said Reggy when the joy of just plain wading had begun to pall upon them, "let's cave back there!" He pointed to a hollow in the piled up rocks in front of which the water dripped from high up to where they were wading. "Well, let's play pirate and I'll be the pirate and you girls can be the shipwrecked passengers that I carry to my cave over there. And then when I go back to the ship for plunder, you can try to escape and I'll catch you again!"

"You do think of the nicest things to play!" exclaimed Sylvia, admiringly. "Let's begin right now!"

"All right," replied Reggy, "then you girls lie down on the grass over there like as if you had been just washed up by the waves, and I'll come and find you and carry you off."

In five minutes more the game was under way. Pirate Reggy carried his first prisoner, Vera, over the slippery rocks in safety and set her down in the damp hollow which was his cave. Then he went back for Sylvia.

He was half way over the rocks with her when a voice called from above, "There doesn't happen to be anybody around here who could use a

"I never was known to miss anything like that! Tell me what you want and I'll get dry so quickly you'll never know I was wet."

Marion looked doubtful, but she told her errand just the same. "It's that nice little Mrs. Pepper, you know, Reggy," she said, "that old lady you were so obliging and kind to last week."

"To be sure I know her," agreed Reggy, "remember, Vera, how she sat on the front porch and told mother I was such a gentleman—and I hadn't done a thing for her that day but hold the screen door open."

HIDDEN PROVERB

A well-known proverb is hidden in the following five sentences. Each sentence contains but one word of the proverb. If the words are rightly guessed and written together in the order in which the sentences appear, the proverb will be complete.

1. Sailors enjoy the rolling ship at sea.
2. Precious stones are found in various countries.
3. Farmers should gather their crops in the fall.
4. There is no end to eternity.
5. A spring-bucket covered with moss is often to be seen in the country.

CHARADE

My first is something
That we all love to see;
'Tis good for the flower,
'Tis good for the tree.

My second adorns
A pretty girl's head;
And in ancient warfare
Helped to make wounds that bled.

My two joined together
We see in the sky;
But we never can reach it
For it's up very high.

MIDDLE-LETTER PUZZLE

Take the middle letter of the words representing, in order: Frozen water; feminine pronoun; an untruth; aged; peculiar; to weep; plural of man; the smallest number; and you have those for whom this puzzle was made.

A Paper Doll

I'M JUST a paper doll you see;
You must not roughly handle me.
My frock of tissue paper thin
Is all that keeps my body in.

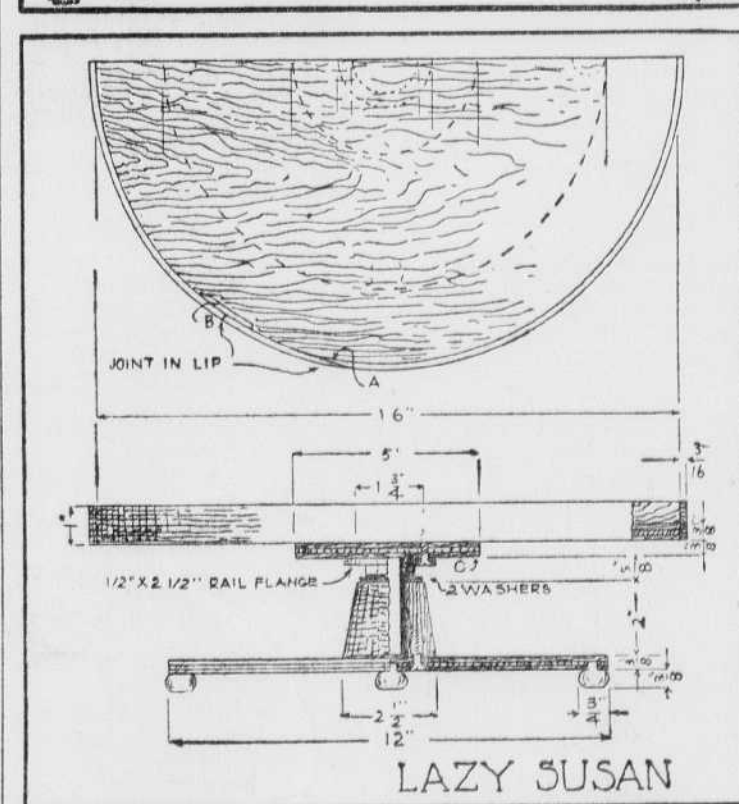

The tiniest drop of water too,
Would surely soak me through and through,
And crumple up my face and dress,
And make me look an awful mess!

So leave me safely on the shelf—
I'm sure I can care for myself;
I'm just a paper doll, you see;
You must not roughly handle me.

Presence of Mind

TO KNOW how to act under all conditions requires great presence of mind. How many of you can on the instant meet any situation? How many of you think of the right thing to say at exactly the right moment? There is a story told about Rousseau, the French educator and writer. One day while at the king's court he found himself at a loss for the appropriate answer to one of the courtier's sallies. Crestfallen and humiliated he left the court only later to think of a witty and excellent retort. But it was too late! Lack of ready wit and presence of mind had in a moment weakened his influence in the French court. Have you presence of mind. Can you think and act quickly when faced with danger? The little daughter of a herdsman was sent one day by her father to round up the cattle under his charge. There were about eighty of them, and among them two bulls, one of which was occasionally in the habit of assaulting people. On the day in question the young girl unwarily approached this bull too closely and he immediately gave chase. On a level field, without dykes or hogs or any place of refuge to resort to what would you have done?—for to run home, a distance of three-quarters of a mile was out of the question. The girl with great presence of mind ran over to the other bull—a good natured animal and much stronger than her assailant. Standing close by his side and kindly tapping him on the back she drove him towards her father's house followed by the enraged bull, who kept roaring and fuming all the way—but when he came too

LAZY SUSAN

WHY "Lazy Susan"? The writer doesn't know but our forefathers used a similar contrivance in passing beverages and glasses around the table and that was what they called it; many who like to preserve the old ideas and customs today have adopted the name with the idea and they are both becoming popular.

The top may be of  $\frac{1}{4}$ " plywood, any wood, but the common fir or basswood may be finished with red mahogany or black walnut stain; this may be covered with a varnish or lacquer which will resist most beverages but if only dry stuff is to be used a shellac finish will be all right. The lip,  $\frac{1}{2}$ " x  $1\frac{1}{2}$ " x about  $5\frac{1}{2}$ " may be bent dry, perhaps, but if not it may be steamed by soaking near the protector turned around and with a shake and toss of his head kept the assailant at bay. In this manner the girl arrived safely at home.

Clear thinking at all times, coolness in the face of danger—these are the first aids in time of trouble.

ing it in boiling water or wrapping it in a heavy cloth and pouring boiling water on it. Bend it while it is wet and hot to a circle a little smaller than the tray and allow it to dry. When dry, glue it part way round the edge and clamp it in place. Plane a straight face at A, continue the gluing around, force the lip into perfect contact with the tray and at A and allow it to harden thoroughly. Trim the rim away at A to fit the joint and drill  $\frac{1}{8}$ " holes about 2" apart into the plywood and fit and glue plugs, smooth and sandpaper. If preferred a "fished" square joint may be made as at B.

Glue a 5" plywood circle as at C and screw to it a  $2\frac{1}{2}$ " rail flange for a  $\frac{1}{2}$ " pipe; center both accurately. In the flange fit a  $\frac{1}{4}$ " x  $2\frac{1}{2}$ " nipple, threaded on the top end only. Make a hardwood socket 2" long x  $2\frac{1}{2}$ " to  $1\frac{1}{2}$ ", (verify). Cut a 12" circle from  $\frac{1}{4}$ " plywood and bore a hole in the center to take the  $\frac{1}{4}$ " nipple and turn easily but not loosely; wax the hole and the nipple to avoid friction. Turn four turnip feet,  $\frac{3}{4}$ " x  $\frac{1}{4}$ " with a  $\frac{1}{4}$ " pin as shown. Center and fasten socket accurately with screws and glue. Place two iron washers on the nipple, wax them to reduce friction, and drop the nipple into its place in the socket. Sandpaper, remove all sharp corners to avoid splinters and finish.

couple of bags of peanuts, does there?"

"Oh, Daddy!" shouted Sylvia, "we certainly could, 'cause we're in a pirate cave and haven't had a sign of any provisions for—four—six days!"

"Dear me, dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Bruce, "to think of such a sad state of affairs! And only this morning my daughter Sylvia, she's about your size I should say, she's such a big breakfast that I thought she would burst!"

Sylvia giggled as she reached for the peanuts her father handed her, and then the game went on. After awhile, Pirate Reggy, fearing that his cave might be raided by a rival band of pirates, decided that he would carry both his prisoners to another hiding place.

"But Reggy," exclaimed Sylvia, "you can't carry both of us at once!"

"Yes, I can," said Reggy, positively, "I'm lots bigger'n you girls—just look at my muscle!" So he picked up both girls and started out of the cave.

Now whether it was that he was trying to do too much, or whether they had crossed the slippery rocks so many times without a fall that they had become reckless and careless, or whether the sound of Vera's big sister's voice calling to them just then disturbed him, it would be hard to say, but whatever it was something made Reggy slip and down went the three children "Klasp!" into the water.

Vera's sister Marion, who was around the turn and couldn't see them continued to call, "Reggy! Oh, Reggy! Reggy! Want to earn some money today?" And just then she turned passed the shrubbery and saw the spring!

Down in the water, sliding and slipping over the wet rocks, were the three children she had come to find and such sights as they were!

"What in the world—" began big sister Marion.
