Magog CLC tries its hand at FSL

By Gordon Lambie

Starting next Tuesday, Jan. 13, the Memphremagog Community Learning Centre at Princess Elizabeth Elementary School will be offering a French as a second language course to the general public.

Organized in conjunction with the New Horizons adult education centre in Sherbrooke, the course will be offered at three levels: beginner, intermediate, and advanced, on Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30.

"Our language classes are very popular at night school," said Pervana Mladenof, Memphremagog CLC co-ordinator. "We're almost full."

Mladenof explained that that FSL courses have been in heavy demand by students of the CLC's night school who have felt that the existing six-week courses have not provided enough lasting support. The new 15-week course, she said, should be an effective first step to resolving that issue.

Having herself taken such a course upon moving to Quebec from Alberta, the CLC co-ordinator personally attested to the value that the intensive program has to offer.

"All the classes are going to be happening at the same time with the same instructor," Mladenof said. "The students will be assessed by the instructor in the first class to determine what level they should start at."

The Beginner level course will be aimed at individuals with limited or no prior knowledge or experience of French. Intermediate level will support those who already have some knowledge and competence in French but want to improve their existing skills.

The two secretly take DNA swabs of the daddy candidates

The humorous Rosie Project features a puzzling couple with nothing in common...?

GOOD READS

ELEANOR BROWN

For almost 10 years, Janet Cowan has been going to lunch meetings at the Lennoxville Library, although without actually having lunch. Every two Wednesdays, on and off, she attends Books & Brown Bags. But instead of breaking bread, Cowan breaks open books. "I don't actually bring a lunch," she laughs. "Usually I have a quick bite before the meeting."

No one minds. "Attending the Brown Bags meetings is like chatting over the kitchen table about books we have read," says Cowan. Each person takes a few moments to recommend their latest favorite, while chowing down on the sandwich they've brought (or not!).

COURTESY SHEILA MACLEAN

Books And Brown Bags came about thanks to Lorraine Codère (pictured here in 2004 with her puppy, Simon).

"There is absolutely nothing intimidating about the get-togethers. If we haven't a book to suggest we simply listen to others talk about their book. It is very relaxed. There are no pressures!"

Cowan reads a wide range of books, refusing to commit to a single genre. And that's why the biweekly kitchen klatsch is so much fun. "Members describe the books they are reading and this gives me ideas of what I would like to read next."

It's where she heard about The Rosie Project, which she enjoyed. She calls it a "light romantic comedy, entertaining, and gives a perspective of Asperger's syndrome, which I knew little about."

The Rosie Project (2013) is Graeme Simon's debut novel, and tells the tale of Don Tillman, who's unaware that he has Asperger's, "although his symptoms are obvious to friends and colleagues," notes the New York Times in its review. "He flinches from physical contact and cooks all his meals according to an unvarying schedule; his approach to courtship consists of handing women a detailed questionnaire to test their suitability."

And then the disorganized and impulsive Rosie comes into Don's life. She is the most unsuitable mate imaginable. She's looking for her biological father, and Don, a genetics professor, offers to help. There is much secretive swabbing of the DNA of the daddy candidates. (The Rosie Project is available in print in Adult Fiction, and as an unabridged audio book on seven CDs.)

But Cowan gets more than just ideas for her next read. "The presentation by another person of a book that I have read, it is an eye-opener to hear another perspective. Unlike a book club where everyone talks about the same book, at Brown Bags each person talks about their own experience with a book. Some enthusiasts recommend more than one book. I always bring a pen and paper to note down books that are recommended. Each member has different likes and dislikes so there are always doors open to new reading experiences."

Cowan is a retired dietitian-nutritionist who's lived in the Sherbrooke area since 1970, and in Lennoxville proper since 1980. Her library membership, she says, "is probably as old as the length of time I have been living here. The library is an important institution in the neighbourhood."

The first page of the first book where attendees recorded the books they recommended.

As for Brown Bags, "At retirement a friend of mine invited me to join her.... It was so interesting and enjoyable that I have continued for the past 10 years to attend meetings occasionally."

The group saw the light of day some 11 years ago (the anniversary arrives in February).

Books & Brown Bags was started at the suggestion of Lorraine Codère, who was president of the Bibliothèque Lennoxville Library board from 2002 to 2006. The group was to meet every second week to share a book that they had enjoyed, fiction or non-fiction. Books could be from the library shelves or not. One of the first that Codère suggested was the No. 1 Ladies Detective Agency (1998) by Alexander McCall Smith.

McCall Smith's Botswana-based private investigator, Precious Ramotswa, was well on her way to best-selling status by then (and the library has multiple books in the series, filed in Adult Fiction and in the Large Print section). Ramotswa is hired to investigate small things that hinge on character and a bit of snooping.

Nature park master plan still not ready

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

The long-awaited City of Sherbrooke Master Plan for nature parks is still not ready to be presented to Council as Destination Sherbrooke, which has responsibility for the project, is still making changes to the draft presented to the tourism organization last fall. In all likelihood, the plan will not be presented to Council until March.

"The plan was submitted to the Board of Destination Sherbrooke as expected this fall," the organization's General Director Denis Bernier told local media. "It was welcomed in its form and its policies. Some changes will be made before it is tabled at City Council and made public."

A discussion paper on nature of parks was given to council about a year ago and Destination Sherbrooke explained that it "wants to create experiences related to the complete outdoor urban environment within a distinctive, original and daring framework."

Last spring, two public consultation meetings were organized for input in the development of a master plan. The framework was to highlight Sherbrooke's development of sustainable tourist attractions. By 2020, Sherbrooke hopes to be recognized as the urban destination in the Eastern Townships and make the region a beacon for Quebec tourism. Destination Sherbrooke has been charged with the development, management, and promotion of the natural areas entrusted to it to create recreational and tourist parks.

The Destination Sherbrooke Board, for its part, welcomes the suggestions contained in the draft plan, but has asked that proposed initiatives be quantified and the Destination Sherbrooke development team is currently working to make the requested changes.

Bernier points out that the plan "is not a business plan," and that financing of activities or facilities will depend on the involvement of the private sector and on subsidies for which the City will be eligible.

Following the filing of the plan, Destination Sherbrooke wants to hold a public information session to inform citizens of its guidelines.

Sherbrooke's nature parks are divided into eight clusters that follow the lines of the Magog and St. Francis rivers, Lake Magog, Lucien-Blanchard Park, Mont Bellevue, Lake des Nations, Réal-D.-Carbonneau park, the Beckett Woods, and Parc de la Rive. In 2014, a $20,000 contract was awarded to the Museum of Nature and Science to develop a master plan.

Dead man walking (away from the scene)

Record Staff

Sûreté du Québec officers are used to arresting people who have no business being on the road, but officers from the Drummond SQ detachment got a little surprise early Wednesday when they arrested a burglary suspect only to discover he was dead — at least in the eyes of the SAAQ, the provincial auto insurer.

Shortly before 5 a.m., authorities were informed of an attempted break-in at Rochefort Electronique on Boulevard Saint-Joseph in Drummondville. On arrival, patrol noticed a shop window was smashed and that footprints in the snow led to a residence in Demers St.

Police arrested an individual but when they entered his identity into the computer system, they realized he was tagged as "deceased." Using their training, police were able to determine that the arrested man was, in fact, alive and distinctive markings, including tattoos, confirmed the suspect's identity.

According to initial assumptions, he man may have staged his own death with regard to the SAAQ, although they haven't ruled out a clerical error on the part of the automobile insurance agency.

No arrests have yet been made but an investigation is underway concerning mischief and attempted theft. They will also have to determine the circumstances of the man's official "death."

Fire kills 78-year-old in Lyster

Record Staff

Police are investigating a fire that killed a 78-year old man in Lyster on Wednesday.

Firefighters were called to a residence on Fournier Street at around 9:15 a.m.

"A man who was in the home when the fire broke out was injured and transferred to the Enfant-Jésus hospital in Quebec City where he unfortunately died of his injuries," says Sgt. Aurélie Guindon, a spokesperson for the Sûreté du Québec.

"An investigation by the SQ and the coroner is being carried out on the causes and circumstances of death. However, information so far suggests that the fire broke out while the man was using an accelerator to light his furnace."

The identity of the victim is being withheld while investigation is underway.

Trial delayed for Sherbrooke resident in Florida sex tourism case while lawyers negotiate plea deal

The Associated Press
MIAMI

Trial has been delayed for a Canadian man accused of travelling to Florida to have sex with someone investigators say he believed was an underage boy.

U.S. District Judge K. Michael Moore agreed to delay trial for Rene Roberge of Sherbrooke until Jan. 26. It had been set to begin Monday. Court papers show the case likely will end in a plea deal.

Authorities say Roberge flew to Florida after making contact on the Internet with undercover investigators posing as a 14-year-old boy and his father to arrange a sexual encounter. Agents also allegedly found child pornography on Roberge's tablet computer.

Roberge's attorney says additional charges are expected based on a second potential victim. Roberge has pleaded not guilty and could get up to life in prison.

Members of the clergy can be seen by his side, including Rt. Rev. Raoul Bruneau. The new bridge borrowed its name from Jacques-Cartier Park located next to it. Linking the West and NorthWards was an idea that had existed for some time, but the economic crisis had delayed the project, which eventually became a reality.

Amy Webster Husk celebrates 90 years surrounded by family and friends

By Gordon Lambie
LENNOXVILLE

"I'm just going to enjoy what I've got,"

That's what Amy Webster Husk, newly turned 90, said at a celebration of her birthday organized by her friends and former coworkers on Thursday afternoon.

Seated in the basement hall of Lennoxville United Church with her husband Ron Husk, the retired nurse shared a great surprise and delight with the celebration of her life and, in particular, the fact that so many of her former coworkers from the Sherbrooke Hospital were gathered together in one place.

"We're usually 12 or 13," the retired nurse said, explaining that the group has gathered for parties three or four times a year every year since 1966.

"Everybody I ever worked with is here. There must be close to 50, and these are all really close, close friends. I have nothing but very fond memories of all of these people."

Stating that she has lived a full and happy life, Husk explained that she was raised on Hardwood Flat road in Bury by, "two excellent parents."

She was trained as a nurse in the midst of the war years that took her two brothers from her, and went on to work at the Sherbrooke Hospital until 1988 when she retired. Humbly, she pointed out that that work was only part time during the period she was raising the four children she had with her first husband, Beryl Webster.

"I was working part-time, but that part-time was sometimes five days a week," Husk reflected. "Working full-time you get the benefits, so that was better."

After her husband's death in 1979, Husk went back to work full-time at the hospital. She remarried only after her retirement in 1988.

The retired nurse said that it was her 25 years working in the intensive care ward that she enjoyed the most about her job.

"My favourite place was the intensive care," Husk shared. "I retired from there."

"She has been a big promoter of keeping the staff of the intensive care unit together," said Husk's friend Eileen Clark, calling the group, "a big happy family."

"I think this party is so beautiful," the 90-year-old said, looking around the crowded room. "My house is full of flowers, and it's just begun. Our big family party is on Sunday. This is extra; this is a surprise for me."

"I've had one or two people ask me if Amy knew about this," Amy's husband Ron chimed in with a smile, "I said yeah, she's been looking forward to it for 90 years."

Asked if they had any tips on living a long and happy life, the couple shrugged.

"Keep busy," Amy said.

"And just hang in there," her husband added.

Recognized as a faithful member of the church, a committed nurse, loving wife, devoted mother, and great friend, as well as an accomplished seamstress and cook by those around her, Amy Webster Husk shows no signs of slowing down.

"I'm hoping for another 10 or 20 years," Ron said, "but I don't know if I can keep up with her."

Fire destroys Compton home

Record Staff

An empty residence in the rural sector of Compton was the scene of a fire late Tuesday. The building is a total loss, although it is still standing.

Firefighters were alerted at around 8:30 by a passerby who spotted the blaze at 610 Vaillancourt. The residence, a mobile home, was not permanently inhabited, according to Compton Fire Chief Yanick Paré.

"The fire broke out in the attic," he said. "It was nevertheless mastered quickly. By midnight, it was all over. The frame is still standing, but the interior is all charred." He estimated damage at around $100,000.

Firefighters, assisted by colleagues from in Waterville and Coaticook, were inhibited in their work by the extreme cold.

"It was freezing; it wasn't funny," says Paré. "It was -20 degrees. When the guys returned to warm up, they had to deal with condensation."

Paré suggests the fire could have been caused by a malfunction of the oil heating system.

Magog CLC courses

The Advanced Course will be for those who have significant experience with and knowledge of French and want to fine-tune and perfect their knowledge to the expert level.

"It works so well," the coordinator continued, drawing on her own experiences. "It was challenging and intense to say the least, but it worked very well and we had a really good time together."

The students, capped at a maximum of 20 for this session to allow for individualized attention from the instructor, will receive a certificate of recognition at the end of each level completed. The certificate has no official, ministry recognized merit, but will serve as a mark of achievement for the learner as well as a means by which future instructors can know where to start should the student register for another such course.

The cost for the course is $268.40, unless the prospective student can prove Canadian citizenship with a Birth Certificate and Quebec Medicare Card and/or the appropriate immigration documents. With this proof, the cost of the 15 weeks of classes drops to $50 thanks to a subsidy offered for local learners.

Classes will be held at the CLC, located at 120 Bellevue Street in Magog, between Jan. 13 and April 28, excepting March 3. There will be no reimbursement of fees for classes missed, and absence from more than 4 sessions will revoke the right to a certificate.

ONE COLUMN, FOUR VOICES

Opening to the Spirit

The word of the week is: Vision

By Revs. Mead Baldwin, W. Lynn Dillabough, Lee Ann Hogle, and Carole Martignacco

1) Did visions of sugarplums dance in your head on Christmas Eve? It's the start of a new year and a fitting time to ask ourselves what vision we have for ourselves, our community, and our world.

Do we look with hope of a bright future for the children of the world or are we filled with dread as one more terrorist confirms that the world is a dangerous place? Whether we wake with a hopeful or a dark vision for tomorrow, I would submit, is dependent upon the choices we make about where we place our attention.

I am not denying that tragedies and atrocities occur and that there is much suffering in the world. However the human capacity to rise above calamity and inspire visions of a better world can sometimes take my breath away.

I remember watching TV with tears in my eyes, as Nelson Mandela was set free and made the long walk out of prison. I remember hearing his words of reconciliation and forgiveness. I remember thinking this is the kind of world I want to live in!

When we are confronted with the sorrows and injustices of this world we have choices to make.

We can react with anger, bitterness and retaliation or we can reach deeper into our souls, into what I would call our God centre and allow ourselves to be inspired by visions filled with the hope that resonates with our truer, nobler self.

2) The word "vision" has been part of my vocabulary for a very long time because I began wearing glasses in Grade 2. I was having difficulty seeing the blackboard in school and my parents had my eyes tested. I did not have 20/20 vision, not even close. Unlike some of the other kids though, who resisted wearing glasses, I liked being able to see clearly and so I embraced the idea. I would put them on first thing in the morning and not take them off till I went to sleep. My glasses gave me vision, the ability to see clearly the world around me.

The word "vision" is not so much the gift of seeing the future, as it is the gift of seeing the world clearly without prejudice, without preconceptions, without wishful thinking. Many people have their minds obscured by those who preach hatred and intolerance. They see the world as divided into good and evil, friends or enemies, heroes or villains. It is as if they had been given opaque lenses that limit vision, rather than enhance it.

Michael Quoist, in a book called Prayers, wrote: "I would like to rise very high Lord: above my city, above the world, above time. I would like to purify my glance and borrow your eyes." In a series of poems he imagines the everyday world as God sees it.

Sometimes I think we don't need a vision of the future, a glance into what is going to happen. I think perhaps we need a clearer picture of the world as God sees it, filled with beauty, wonder and possibility.

3) During my teens the family sport was archery. It was all about learning to focus, see clearly, and the goal was to sharpen your aim. After school, between snacks and homework, my siblings, friends and I would take our bows out to the backyard for a few rounds of target practice. I can still see the concentric rings on the tattered oil-cloths we'd pin up against a few stacked bales of hay.

We each "graduated" through a series of bows, our growth rate determining the size and weight of pull we could handle at any time. One summer I earned a new 30-pound bow by the number of "straight A's" lined up on my end of year report card.

Always a ready supply of arrows in our quivers — and we learned to make our own. My father taught us that the quality arrows were as critical for hitting the target as the precision of our aim. We logged hours in his workshop, with the smell of sheared feathers and glue, precisely setting points, sighting along the wooden shaft for straightness, then decorating the arrow — each in our own colours — all integral to learning the sport. We studied muscle tone and posture, how to assess and compensate for our unique natural curve, how to adjust for direction and intensity of wind.

Vision was crucial, but so was everything else, even collecting spent arrows from the field to repair along with making new ones.

The ancient proverb says "Without a vision the people will perish." But I believe that vision is as much about how as what we see. Everything involved in moving toward whatever that vision represents — the steps along the way, how we train ourselves as well as what we aim for, and all that limits or enhances our range of sight.

4) It was five years ago that I was making the difficult decision to leave everything that was familiar to me in Ottawa and accept the invitation of the Anglican Bishop of Quebec to come and work here in the Townships. This was not a logical decision. I knew that it would mean lower pay, less prestigious work, and, most difficult of all, leaving friends and family for much that was unknown.

Why did I make this decision? The answer is vision. The vision that the bishop shared with me five years ago was a vision that we shared. I was invited to develop a new model for doing ministry and to lead a team of lay and ordained ministers to work in a spirit of mutuality and equality.

The months spent chairing the committee that put words to this vision were some of the most life-giving and spirit-filled of my life and, in the years since, we have seen this vision come to greater fruition.

These visions that lead us can be a source of both passion and frustration. We need both the passion and the frustration because vision is, by its very nature, about the possibility of things being better than they are now. Vision is about possibility.

Maybe I am a dreamer, but the world of possibilities is where I prefer to live. If we are not led by our visions we are in danger of being held by our past. So I say dream on!

One word, four voices - now add your own: What's the role of vision in your life, how does it influence who and how you are in the world?

The Reverends Mead Baldwin, W. Lynn Dillabough, Lee Ann Hogle, and Carole Martignacco are interfaith clergy colleagues in the Eastern Townships.

EDITORIAL

Maybe, just maybe, 2015 will be the year of the citizen.

2015: A very critical year

FRANÇOIS TANGUAY

After a year of confrontations on the environment front, the coming 12 months could very well be the turning point we have collectively been avoiding for a while. After a long debate on shale gas, a legal battle on the proposed passage of a transcontinental oil pipeline across the province, and after a few belugas literally put a halt to the planned oil terminal in Cacouna, something will have to give in 2015.

Decisions will have to be taken on all counts. To start the year off with a bang, the Liberals open discussion on a new energy policy. The initial documentation and reference papers are out and more details will be put forward in the coming weeks. These early documents were put up on the web on Dec. 22. Terrific timing! The three main subjects put up for consultation are: energy efficiency, renewable energy sources and hydrocarbons.

On the national front we are entering an election year. Are the Harper years coming to an end or will we be faced with four more years of the same right wing politics?

Close to denial on the environment, the Harper administration will have to put up very soon. Before the end of March all countries included in the United Nations Climate Convention, even those who, like Canada, are out of the Kyoto Protocol, must come forward with their new emissions reduction targets.

The COP 21 climate meeting in Paris at the end of the year will be the beginning of a new era in global environmental diplomacy. Will Harper dare the international agenda once more and put Canada in an embarrassing isolationist stand? Will he even be around, since there is a scheduled election for October? It will be interesting to see where the other national parties stand with regards to the Paris Summit in this election year. Unfortunately both the NDP and the Liberals have been very cautious on climate issues so far. No one will be able to hide for very long and the sooner they speak out the better. Elizabeth May and the Green Party should be the only outspoken ones on this critical issue.

The Kyoto Protocol, much more successful than many think, is due for a major overhaul and a much needed acceleration of measures that will reduce drastically our global carbon emissions. You can expect a plan for some sort of global carbon tax, or at least a comprehensive global carbon market, will dominate discussions. Measures of control, a check-and-balance mechanism will also be a priority. Once any nation has committed to emissions reduction, the results must be reported, verified by an independent body and compared to the engagements taken.

This is where Canada could be faced with serious consequences if we don't shape up to the new global goals. It is most likely the do-gooders will not stand by while a rogue element refuses to play by the rules.

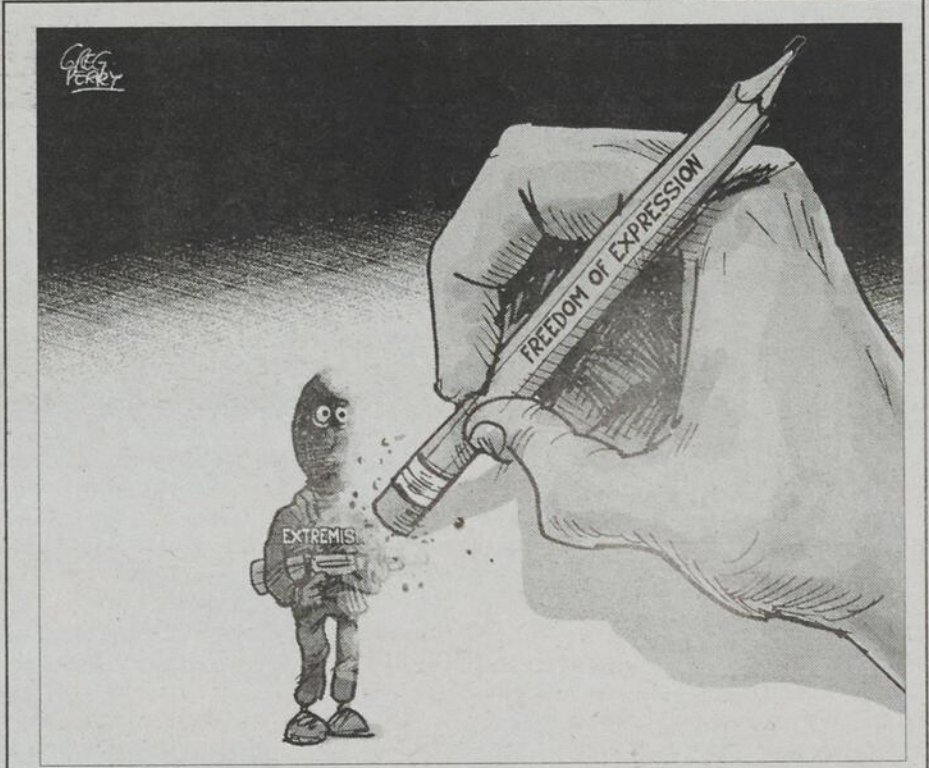

Economic restrictions, an added tax on our exports to compensate for our carbon emissions are two most likely consequences Canada would face if we do not engage seriously enough in the new global climate deal.

Keep in mind that most signatories of the Kyoto Protocol have met the minus 6 per cent from the 1990 emissions goal set in the protocol. Sweden emissions are down by 18 per cent, the UK is -23 per cent, Germany stands at -24 per cent and so on. Canada is 18 per cent above the 1990 emissions level and the Americans are at +9 per cent. Time to put up or face dire consequences.

Maybe, just maybe, 2015 will be the year of the citizen. With enough social pressure, backed by a strong social media tidal wave, politicians could be shamed into action. President Obama, Chinese leader Xi Jinping and the Pope agree on the urgency of dealing with climate — who stands next to Harper, besides Australian PM John Abbott?

By mid-October, we'll have a good idea on where we stand as a nation on a Canada that lives up to the high standards we once took for granted.

In any case, it remains our respective responsibility to act if we are to expect the elected few to follow suit.

There is a focus on the domestic and a pragmatic and loving approach to solving problems. She is charming, and so are the books.

Sheila MacLean is another longtime Brown Bags attendee. She recalls that "each week participants wrote down the title of the book that they presented." That's a historical record of a decade's-worth of favorite books, as chosen by those at the library's heart — its patrons.

"We still write down the names of books that we suggest," says Cowan. Her latest recommendation is the 2001 novel Clara Callan, by Richard B. Wright (filed in Adult Fiction). Clara is a single woman in her thirties, living in rural Ontario in the 1930s, and her story is told through letters and journal entries.

"It is difficult to answer the question of 'What is enjoyable about reading?' Like any similar activity, it is entertaining and often educational. I like to be taken to new places or be offered a new perspective on an issue."

Books & Brown Bags holds its first meeting of the New Year from noon to 1 p.m., on Wednesday, Jan. 14, at the Lennoxville Library (and every two Wednesdays thereafter). All are welcome! Bring a book you enjoyed and your lunch. Or just bring your love of books.

Book Ends

Every Saturday, children aged 5 to 11 are invited to a reading and crafts workshop. It's bilingual, and scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

For adults, Books & Brown Bags will be held Wednesday, Jan. 14 and 28, from noon to 1 p.m. Bring your lunch and a book to chat about (or not!). All are welcome.

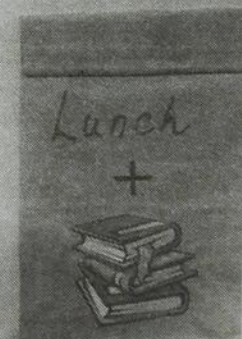

If you're housebound, we can bring books and audio books to you through Books on Wheels.

We have large-print books too, plus an Easy Reads section. There are sections for Young Adult novels and graphic novels, and children's non-fiction and fiction. Inter-library loans and ebook rentals are now available.

Do you enjoy reading aloud to others? The Lennoxville Library is looking for new volunteers for our monthly reading afternoons at the Grace Christian Home in Huntingville. They're scheduled for the second Tuesday afternoon of each month, and run for about an hour and a half. Interested volunteers should contact Janet Angrave at 819-346-4496.

The Lennoxville Library is at 101 Queen Street, corner of College. E-mail bibliolen@gmail.com or phone 819-562-4949. The website is at www.bibliolennoxvillelibrary.ca. Older book reviews and reading suggestions are on our blog at bibliolennlibrary.wordpress.com.

Little Jimmy Dickens will be missed

Remained humble and relatable throughout long career

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

This New Year started with very sad news. The passing of country icon Little Jimmy Dickens left the country music community mourning an exceptional entertainer and a wonderful human being.

Little Jimmy Dickens passed away on Friday, January 2. The 94-year-old country legend suffered a stroke and was admitted into a Nashville hospital on Christmas Day.

The cause of death was cardiac arrest, according to a news release from the Grand Ole Opry.

Anyone even just a tiny bit familiar with the culture of country music knew Little Jimmy Dickens. Across decades and generations, the artist was a part of country music present and past.

The 4-foot-11-inches, the West Virginia native was known for his small stature, big heart, and witty sense of humor. He became a member of the Grand Ole Opry in 1948, and was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1983.

Country music has lost one of its elder statesmen. For decades, Dickens was an integral part of the Opry both on-stage and backstage. In fact, Little Jimmy Dickens starred on the Opry stage until the end. He played his final show at his "home away from home" on December 20, one day after his 94th birthday.

Dickens has been an inspiration to many artists, including fellow West Virginian Brad Paisley. Brad Paisley was among Dickens' closest friends. This is how the younger generation of country music fans knew Dickens. He made cameo appearances in Paisley's music videos ("I'm Gonna Miss Her" and "Celebrity") as well as from some of Paisley's bonus album tracks as part of the "Kung Pao Buckaroos," along with George Jones and Whispering Bill Anderson.

Dickens was the oldest living Opry member and has been a recurrent guest on the legendary stage. Outside of the Opry, he enjoyed enough success as a recording artist from the 1940s to the 1970s with eight Top 10 hits, including his signature No. 1 tongue-in-cheek hit "May The Bird of Paradise Fly Up Your Nose."

Little Jimmy rose to fame in 1948. He joked about his own size and made the audience roar with laughter each and every show. He was the good friend of country music artists, and was that performer that everyone loved for his great personality and his goodness of heart.

While Dickens' best-known tunes showcased his humor, he had a large and impressive catalog of songs throughout his long career. While on Columbia records Dickens recorded many classics including "Country Boy," "A-Sleeping at the Foot of the Bed," and "I'm Little But I'm Loud."

His song "Take an Old Cold Tater (And Wait)" inspired Hank Williams' father to give him the nickname "Tater." Hank Williams' beloved nickname for his friend would stick for the rest of Little Jimmy Dickens' life.

Later, telling Dickens he needed a hit, Williams penned "Hey Good Lookin'" specifically for his friend in only 20 minutes while on a Grand Ole Opry tour bus. A week later Williams cut the song himself, jokingly telling Dickens, "That song's too good for you!"

Dickens entertained everywhere he went as he wore his signature rhinestone suits. Today he is still credited with introducing rhinestone suits to country music.

I was lucky enough to meet Little Jimmy Dickens in Kingston, Ontario a few years back. He wasn't tall but his wonderful personality left a great impression. His kindness and humbleness was not an urban legend.

I got to chat with him for over an hour and even if the interview should have been over, he kept talking, often breaking into the laughter that has delighted Opry fans for years.

"I do a lot of interviews and things like that. I enjoy talking to people. I appreciate their interest. I worry when they don't call me," he shared with me that day. He was a people person, without a doubt.

He was comical and always cracking

Bill Cosby applauded at first of three Ontario shows

By Diana Mehta
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Cosby received a warm standing ovation Wednesday night at his first Canadian show, but outside the theatre protesters braved bone-chilling temperatures to express their opposition to the controversy-ridden comedian who faces mounting allegations of sexual abuse.

Cosby's show in Kitchener, Ont., — his first since November and one of three in Ontario — went ahead without interruptions, but it was a different scene at the entrance.

Ticketholders had to make their way past sometimes noisy protesters who vehemently decried the 77-year-old comedian while holding signs that read "rape is not a joke."

Cosby, however, appeared unruffled.

He walked on stage wearing a grey sweatshirt with the phrase "hello friend" as a picture of him with Nelson Mandela was broadcast on two large screens overhead and opened with a simple line.

"First of all, thank you," he said emphatically.

Cosby then launched into a series of jokes about the cold Canadian weather, religion and sibling rivalry, among other topics.

The comedian appeared to strike all the right notes with the crowd, which included a mix of ages. The audience laughed at Cosby's dramatic pauses, giggled at his stage antics and clapped at his punch lines.

"I had a wonderful time," Cosby said as he wrapped up his two-hour act. "Thank you."

Cosby also released a statement through his publicist following the show, applauding his fans for respecting themselves, the theatre and the event organizers.

There were many empty seats in the large theatre, however, which was under constant surveillance by police officers and private security guards posted at multiple junctures.

At one point, three protesters temporarily blocked the main doors into the venue while one woman heckled ticket holders, saying "shame on you."

Stella Goertzen, who was among those who withstood frigid temperatures to protest the comedian, said Cosby shouldn't have come to the city.

"I think they should have closed down the venue and just said you know what, this is not good for our city," she said. "I'm against violence against women."

The activity didn't seem to deter audience members from heading into the venue though, with many saying they believed Cosby was innocent until proven guilty.

"We just felt like we still wanted to see the entertainment we paid for. It's up to the law to decide if there's a problem," said Tammy Kehn. "If there's an issue it will be addressed that way. I'm here to enjoy the show."

Kehn added that she had no problem with those who wanted to voice their opposition.

"They've made their decisions and they've formed their opinions, too and everybody's entitled to that," she said. "We're all here for our own reasons."

Sam Smith, who grew up watching Cosby on television, felt the same way.

"If you want to oppose somebody that's your opinion. I'm here to see a humorous guy, that's all," she said.

In recent weeks, at least 18 women — including three who came forward in Los Angeles on Wednesday — have accused Cosby of sexually assaulting them, with some allegations dating back decades.

'The Big Bang Theory,' Robert Downey Jr. win big at 2015 People's Choice Awards

By Derrik J. Lang

Robert Downey Jr. was seeing double at the People's Choice Awards.

The star of "The Judge" and "Iron Man" picked up the trophies for favourite dramatic movie actor and favourite movie actor at Wednesday's fan-favourite ceremony honouring stars in film, television and music.

"This is perfect for me because I love people, I'm crazy about movies, and I prefer people who love my movies," Downey said.

"The Big Bang Theory" also won multiple honours. The sitcom about a group of scientists was awarded trophies for favourite network TV comedy and favourite TV show, while co-star Kaley Cuoco-Sweeting was chosen as favourite comedic TV actress.

"We truly have a love and passion for making this show together," said "Big Bang" co-star Johnny Galecki. "Honestly, it's a dream come true every day, and it's never lost on any of us for a split-second that it's entirely due to your love and support."

The gush-filled ceremony kicked off at the Nokia Theatre with "Mom" stars Anna Faris and Allison Janney quipping about their selection as the show's hosts.

"Oh, who are we kidding?" Faris joked. "Neil Patrick Harris was unavailable, and Ellen DeGeneres said she was busy."

However, DeGeneres wasn't completely booked. The talk show host was on hand to pick up the trophy for favourite daytime TV host.

Other winners in attendance included Hunter Hayes as favourite male country artist, Matt Bomer as favourite cable TV actor, Chloe Grace Moretz as favourite dramatic movie actress and Chris Evans as favourite action movie actor.

"I'll say 30, 40 per cent of the votes were my mom, but the other 60 per cent, it really, really means a lot to me," Evans said. "I'm eternally grateful."

Melissa McCarthy was honoured as favourite comedic movie actress, while Adam Sandler was selected as favourite comedic movie actor.

Ben Affleck was designated the humanitarian of the year for his work with the Eastern Congo Initiative, which he co-founded in 2010 with Whitney Williams. The organization advocates the economic and social growth of the country through various programs.

Iggy Azalea and Lady Antebellum, who performed during the People's Choice Awards with Fall Out Boy, were also champions. Azalea was deemed favourite hip-hop artist, while Lady Antebellum were crowned favourite country group.

"Grey's Anatomy" star Ellen Pompeo accepted the awards for both favourite dramatic TV actress and favourite network TV drama.

"Somehow, this never gets old," Pompeo said. "I have to say it actually gets better. We're 11 seasons in, and your passion for the show keeps us going."

A couple of Pompeo's absentee co-stars were also selected as victors: Patrick Dempsey for favourite dramatic TV actor and Sandra Oh as Cristina Yang for favourite TV character missed most.

some witty jokes. But if we all know how hilarious he was, he could also make you cry when he performed his 1970's "You've Been Quite a Doll, Raggedy Ann," which tells the story of a father who has lost his daughter.

Born in Bolt, West Virginia, Little Jimmy Dickens was the youngest of 13 children. Throughout his childhood he lived in poverty, but he discovered a deep love for music. His mother and three uncles played guitar while the young boy would sit and watch with delight.

Despite his height, he played high school basketball. The likable Dickens was president of his class, and when he was offered a drama scholarship to West Virginia University, he turned it down.

He instead wanted to become a professional jockey and to pursue his music. As one might guess, he was a hit on the radio stations. In 1945, Dickens met Roy Acuff, who encouraged him to pursue his career in Nashville.

Subsequently, Dickens began appearing on the Opry before he ever even cut his first record! Little Jimmy Dickens enjoyed a career of longevity that most only dream about...but he remained humble and relatable throughout it all.

He will be deeply missed in the music industry and by all his fans. Brad Paisley probably said it best in a statement, "Jimmy made more out of his time on earth than anyone I've ever known; an incredible life in every measurable way. Longevity? Yes, practically unheard of. Faith? Totally and wholeheartedly. Humour? There was no one funnier, or with a better sense of it. A true entertainer? The best I've ever seen. Charm? Unmatched. Love? This was a big one."

"I think he loved everyone he ever met, and if not, he never let it be known," Paisley wrote. "Much will be said and written about his incredible and unique place in country music history. Which could fill a book. But that isn't how I'll remember him," he continued, while also posting tributes on Twitter. "I will remember the human being that best check-marked all the boxes of a complete and wonderful life. My hero."

Dickens is survived by his wife of over 40 years, Mona and two daughters, Pamela Detert and Lisa King.

A public visitation was set for Wednesday, January 7 at Woodlawn Roesch-Patton Funeral Home on Thompson Lane in Nashville. A public celebration of life was held Thursday at The Grand Ole Opry House. Both events were open to the public. Rest in peace Tater!

from 1984 to 1992 — has denied the allegations through his lawyer and has never been criminally charged in connection with any of the claims.

But the slew of allegations alone were enough to prompt a group of Kitchener residents to organize their own alternative event to coincide with Cosby's show to raise funds for women's centres that support victims of sexual assault.

"We chose to go the community route, raise some money, raise awareness, get conversations going," said Melanie Baker, a co-organizer for the event which has been called Voices Carry.

"To Cosby, the message is we've heard, we see, this isn't going away."

Baker said those who had purchased tickets to Cosby's show would gain free admission to the alternative event and she expected a number of former fans of the comedian to come by. The city's mayor had also said he would attend.

Cosby has had to cancel or postpone at least 10 shows on his current world tour because of the growing number of women who claim he drugged and sexually assaulted them.

His agents, however, said his Canadian appearances were going ahead as planned.

In an ironic way, Baker said, Cosby's determination to perform despite local opposition has helped shine the spotlight on the issue of sexual assault.

"As much as we would have loved it if his event got cancelled, having it go ahead, the story has got more and more attention ... and thus it keeps getting into the broader conversations about sexual assault, about domestic abuse and all of those important issues," she said.

Shirley Lichti, a longtime volunteer with the Sexual Assault Support Centre of Waterloo region, which will benefit from the event, said the community's response is sending a positive signal to survivors of abuse.

"We're not so much trying to send a message to Cosby as we are to our community that says women who've been sexually violated are not alone, we believe them, we're here to help them," she said.

"If you look at the media in 2014 sexual violence was in the news again and again and again ... and for the first time the conversation got elevated to a point where people said it's safe for me to tell someone that I've been abused."

Cosby was scheduled to perform in London on Thursday and Hamilton on Friday, and protests are planned in both cities.

Cougar hockey teams return from holiday break

By Mike Hickey
Special to the Record

The Champlain Cougars men's hockey team returned to action after a lengthy 18-day holiday break last night when they travelled to Valleyfield to play the Braves. They return home Sunday to host the St-Hyacinthe Laureats at 4:30 p.m. The Cougars finished the first half of the season with a 24-6 record good for 53 points, one point behind the league-leading Princeville Titans.

Meanwhile, two former Cougars, Janick Asselin and Anthony Nellis are finding success away from Lennoxville. Janick Asselin, a four-year veteran and former captain, is a member of the Clarkson University Golden Knights, a Division 1 NCAA school in upstate New York. The Coaticook native has played in eight games to date as he makes the adjustment to university hockey and has fitted in well in his new environment.

He returned to lineup on Dec. 30 when the Knights defeated American International, after missing eight games due to an injury.

Clarkson has a very good Business program which opens doors even in Quebec. "It is close to home and the hockey program is one of the best in the ECAC," he told the team's website in November. "It has been everything that I envisioned. The team here is like family, just like the Cougars."

Nellis, started this season playing with the Pembroke Lumber Kings in the Central Canada Hockey League and has accepted a scholarship offer from Lake Superior State University in Michigan. Nellis, who scored 85 points for the Cougars last year, will be in their line-up for the 2015-16 season. He is currently second on the CCHL scoring list with 56 points through 40 games.

"In Anthony we see another dangerous offensive threat," Lake Superior State head coach Damon Whitten said in a release. "He has a great skill set and can thrive as a distributor of the puck or as a finisher, and we were drawn to that versatility. When Anthony gets a scoring chance he shoots to score and has a natural ability to finish. He also has versatility to play all three forward positions and play up top on the power play, so there are a lot of ways we can get him involved."

"I want to thank the Cougars for helping me reach this level," Nellis said.

The Champlain women's hockey team will begin the second half of the provincial collegiate season next Saturday when they play a road game against CEGEP Limoilou.

Their first home game will not be until Sunday, Jan. 25, when they host Andre Laurendeau.

The league has instituted a new playoff format this season which will see the season into two separate sessions, with the top team in the fall session advancing to the playoffs while the other remaining five playoff berths will be decided in the winter session.

Limoilou won the fall season with a 14-1 record while Dawson College and St. Laurent finished tied for second with identical 13-3 marks with the Cougars a point behind them with a 12-3-1 record.

Phoenix comeback falls short in OT loss to Shawinigan

By John Edwards

The Sherbrooke Phoenix came from behind to force overtime, but could not take away the full two points, as they fell, 3-2 (OT), to the Shawinigan Cataractes on Wednesday before 1,945 fans at the Sports Palace.

After a scoreless first period, Christophe Lalonde gave the Cataractes a two-goal lead in the second with goals at 11:05 and 16:49. He now has 18 goals on the season.

The Phoenix came back in the third period with a pair of their own. Raphael Lafontaine cut the lead to 2-1 at 10:05 and Carl Neill tied the game with 4:42 left in regulation, sending the game to overtime.

A last-minute penalty proved costly for Sherbrooke, however. With Daniel Audette in the box for a cross-check with 55 seconds left in regulation, Shawinigan's Gabriel Slight scored the game-winner a minute into the extra session. Lalonde picked up an assist on the goal, giving him three points for the night.

Sherbrooke outshot Shawinigan 31-28, with Alex Bureau making 25 saves for the Phoenix. Marvin Cupper made 29 stops in a winning cause.

The Cataractes were 2-for-4 on the power play, while Sherbrooke was scoreless in three attempts.

The Phoenix (21-15-4) are back in action tonight, when they visit the Quebec Remparts.

They return home tomorrow to face the Baie-Comeau Drakkar. Faceoff at the Sports Palace is set for 4 p.m. Minor hockey players in uniform will be admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

The Martlets led 39-14 at halftime and extended the lead to 58-19 after three quarters.

McGill is now 5-0 in league play; the Gaiters are 0-5.

Grey Cup champion Calgary Stampeders re-sign receiver Charbonneau-Campeau

The Canadian Press
CALGARY

The Calgary Stampeders re-signed Canadian receiver Simon Charbonneau-Campeau on Thursday.

The 26-year-old St-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Que., native was scheduled to become a free agent next month. Calgary acquired Charbonneau-Campeau from Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Jan. 6, 2014.

He appeared in 14 regular-season games for Calgary and established career highs with 13 catches for 233 yards and scored his first career touchdown Sept. 6 against Edmonton. Charbonneau-Campeau added two receptions for 74 yards in the West final and had a catch for 28 yards in the Stampeders' 20-16 Grey Cup win over Hamilton.

The former Sherbrooke star also had seven special-teams tackles with Calgary.

"I'm pleased that Simon has chosen to remain with the Stampeders," Calgary head coach/GM John Hufnagel said in a statement. "He was an excellent addition to the team in 2014 as he made some very important catches and was a great asset on special teams."

"I look forward to his continued development in his second season with us."

Charbonneau-Campeau played two seasons in Hamilton and in 41 career CFL games has 22 catches for 348 yards and one touchdown.

Obituary

Ruth Patricia Sarrasin Powell

Ruth was born at the family farm on McVety road in Waterville on September second, nineteen hundred and thirty-six, the third of five children, to Peter James Sarrasin and Mary Dealtry Shore. She attended Waterville Intermediate School to grade nine and then transferred to Lennoxville High. She completed her education from O'Sullivan's Business College in Sherbrooke. She was employed as a teletype operator at the Canadian Ingersol Rand company in Sherbrooke, a position she held for seven years.

On a wintry Saturday, after a late spring snow storm dumped six inches of heavy wet snow on the area, she married Murray Powell, a linesman with the now defunct Southern Canada Power Co. on May 11, 1963.

They rented an apartment in Waterville for approximately two years where their first child Laurie Elizabeth was born in nineteen sixty five. In August of that year they bought a dairy farm on Carrier road in Waterville and in nineteen sixty seven their second child, Lorne Edwin, was born there.

Ruth, having been brought up on a farm, understood and accepted the rigors of the project they had undertaken. She was an absolutely capable partner in every aspect of their enterprise. She could run the tractor, milk the cows, handle crops, pull calves, maintain the dairy as well as keep the books in order.

Her house was always a bee hive of activity, many of her children's cousins spent part of their summers and weekends at the farm, where they found themselves contributing to the upkeep of the garden or helping to harvest its bounty. And then there was always the preserving and freezing the harvest in preparation of the winter season.

For her daughter, her granddaughters and many of her nieces, Saturdays were usually reserved for cooking, and she passed on her culinary excellence to them as they hauled the ingredients from the pantry to the kitchen table and measured and mixed and placed them in containers to bake. Then the ovens incurred in the process had to be cleaned up. Those women, no longer young, have fond reminiscence of being part of the cooking sessions in their young lives.

In recent years, her health deteriorated to such a degree that she seldom went outside and spent most of her time reading. Her four grandchildren and one great grandchild provided her with much entertainment and comfort.

Weariness from a long and exacting lifestyle began wearing her down. This past fall, from the kitchen window, she watched as the sugar bush lost its colorful foliage to the rain and winds of autumn. She remarked that the grand adventure of human life was somewhat similar to the fate of the tree leaves but of longer duration, and her time to leave was fast approaching; she doubted she would ever have the privilege of seeing the brilliant splendor of the autumn woodlands another season.

As November neared, her health waned rapidly. She chose to stay in the house that had been hers for nearly half a century and to meet death from her familiar surroundings.

Just before midnight on November the third, serenely and with dignity, without fear or rancor, her big generous heart gently beat its last beat and she slipped away as was her wish.

...and it seems to be strongly affecting my mother in a terribly negative way

FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 2015

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: My parents are getting divorced after 22 years of marriage, and it seems to be strongly affecting my mother in a terribly negative way.

Mom has told me that she has contemplated suicide twice. Once, she even held my brother's gun to her head. Everyone in the family, including my grandmother, my aunts and even my boyfriend, thinks Mom needs counseling.

So how do I suggest it without making her think I'm calling her "crazy"? And another problem is the cost. Mom may refuse to go because it's too expensive. Do you have any suggestions that may help? — Concerned Daughter

Dear Daughter: All mentions of suicide should be taken seriously. You are right that your mother could benefit from professional help, and it doesn't need to be expensive. Tell her you are worried about her and it might help if she talks to someone about her feelings.

Free and low-cost help is available through local churches, graduate school counseling departments, medical school psychology departments, United Way, the YMCA, the Samaritan Institute (samaritaninstitute.org), NAMI (nami.org) and the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline (suicidepreventionhotline.org), and through support groups such as the Depression and Bipolar Support Alliance (dbsalliance.org) and Recovery International (lowselfhelpsystems.org). Do a little research on her behalf and make a suggestion, including a website or phone number, so she can get the help she needs. You could even offer to go with her.

Dear Annie: We recently hired a young woman at our business. Like many other 20-somethings, she doesn't understand personal boundaries. May I use your column to give her some advice?

Dear Miss New Hire: Welcome to our company. You got the job over five other highly qualified candidates, which means you are both smart and lucky, but you still have a lot to learn. If you work hard here, you can go far.

Let me tell you a couple of secrets: You are no longer in college. Standards may have changed, but it is still not acceptable to bring all of your problems into the office and discuss them at length. Twenty minutes complaining about your roommate is excessive. So is another 20 minutes on your boyfriend's ex, your sister's drinking, your mother's bodily functions and who you slept with last night. Not only are you wasting time, but you are disturbing others. And they will repeat everything you say to everyone they know — including your boss.

You would be so much better off asking questions and learning the workflow and the purpose of procedures. You are the only one who can make your career path a good one. Start now. Look down the road to where you want to be. If your path continues as it is, I give you six months here. — W.A.

Dear W.A.: Thank you for your honesty. Over-sharing is common, and not only with 20-somethings. Too many people display their entire lives in front of the world and believe this is normal and acceptable. They do not understand the concept of privacy. We hope it will make a comeback soon.

Dear Annie: I'd like to respond to the letter from "Ventura, Calif.," who questioned whether alcoholism is a disease. As a 33-year recovering alcoholic, I have better knowledge about this than self-righteous folks with superior attitudes.

There is no question that alcoholism is a disease. Only a fool would say it is a choice. The afflicted person has a discernible difference in the brain that results in a disproportionately pleasant response to alcohol.

And whenever anyone chooses to have a drink, it is for the same reason an alcoholic does: to change the way they feel at that moment. Otherwise, a glass of water would do just as well. — Anonymous

Help is available. Accept the assistance and wisdom of experienced colleagues and friends. Beneficial alterations can be made if you implement new ideas and concepts with methods that have proven effective in the past. A positive change in direction is apparent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Use your willpower. Overspending and overindulgence will cause unhappy and unnecessary setbacks. Self-control will bring you greater satisfaction and happiness, as well as peace of mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Once you have made up your mind, stick with it. Second-guessing and self-doubt will confound those around you, leading to continued strife. Don't be discouraged by what others do or say.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Keep it simple. Be mindful of the circumstances around you and remain informed about your adversaries. Domestic problems will evaporate if you are diplomatic. Make love, not war.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You will be intrigued by different cultures or beliefs. Quench your thirst for knowledge by scouring the Internet or your local library. Expand your outlook and you will motivate onlookers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Promote your ideas every chance you get in order to make progress. Potential partners will surface at seminars or group discussions. If you get involved in your community, you will get something in return.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Strive to keep an optimistic outlook. An unexpected turn of events will leave you wondering which way to turn. An elderly friend or relative will provide the answer to a mysterious question.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Your persistence will pay off. If you give up every time someone disagrees with you, nothing will be gained. Stick with the basics, and proceed one step at a time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — A financial gain is within your reach. You will get your point across effectively by sticking to the facts. Exaggeration or stretching the truth will backfire and damage your reputation and status.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Irreconcilable differences due to an emotional confrontation are apparent. Make concessions to prevent a negative situation from escalating. Compromise may be difficult, but you should weigh the pros and cons and consider the consequences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Preparation and concentration will enable you to market an unusual idea. Keep your plans under wraps until the final product can be revealed without a flaw.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Think before you speak. Making empty promises will cost you your credibility. Dealing with an elderly relative will be trying but rewarding if you step up and take care of matters swiftly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Don't hesitate to take on a challenge. If someone is trying to make you look bad, your adaptability and resiliency will help you demonstrate what you are capable of doing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Get your plan up and running, even if you still have changes to make and problems to solve. You will learn via the mistakes you make and the challenges you face.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — An unexpected dilemma will cause concern. You will have to deal with this matter immediately to avoid setbacks. Put your regular schedule on hold for the time being.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Being able to think fast will give you the edge when faced with competition. A raise in salary is heading your way. Prepare to do whatever is necessary to advance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Someone will feed you false information. Don't go ahead with your plans until you have all the facts required to make a good decision. It's better to be safe. Avoid joint ventures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Don't be too quick to devote your time and effort to something that isn't likely to be beneficial. Ulterior motives are apparent. Don't misread someone's generosity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Find out what is going on behind the scenes. If you don't feel that the information you are receiving is accurate, talk to a trusted friend. Refrain from making an impulsive move.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Time spent with people you love will brighten your day. Patience will pay off. You will be commended for something that you did in the past. Don't be shy; step into the spotlight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Have fun. Go shopping, to a spa, or wherever pleases you. Putting distance between you and stressful situations will do you a world of good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Changes at home will be rewarding, but get the go ahead from anyone affected by the planned alterations. Equality in your personal relationships will bring the best results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — It's important to keep in mind that not everyone shares your beliefs or desires. A thoughtful approach and straightforward explanation will allow you to move forward without opposition.
