Ouellet slams Levesque-Davis alliance

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Monday he is astonished by what he called an alliance between Ontario Premier William Davis and Quebec Premier Rene Levesque against new federal housing programs.

The minister made the comment in the Commons replying to Progressive Conservative MPs criticism of the new programs, among other reasons, on grounds

Quebec rejects them and Ontario has grave reservations about them. Ouellet said he is not surprised by Quebec's attitude. But "this new alliance Levesque-Davis seems rather astonishing to me, indeed overwhelming."

Ouellet said he would attend a federal-provincial housing ministers meeting in Toronto next week with a frank and open mind, willing to listen to all the provinces. HAS RESPONSIBILITY

"The Canadian government is not going to abdicate its responsibilities," Ouellet added after Dean Whiteway PC-Saskatchewan said housing is exclusively under provincial jurisdiction.

Ouellet said although housing is under the jurisdiction of the provincial governments, the federal government has a national responsibility to ensure all Canadians have the right to decent housing.

Ouellet rejected charges by Whiteway and Stan Darling PC-Parry Sound Muskoka that he announced the new programs prematurely, before properly consulting the provinces.

New programs, Ouellet announced last month are aimed at simplifying current housing programs, cutting red tape, reducing federal administration and permitting the provinces to decide how the money should be allocated. Included are higher targets for low-income housing starts.

Ouellet brushed off complaints by Whiteway that the Imperial Bank of Commerce will refuse to lend money for a new graduated payment mortgage program. Whiteway said the Royal Bank of Canada will only lend a limited amount.

Ouellet said the government did not expect all lenders to participate and "I'm not surprised by the very conservative approach" of the large lenders. But he expressed confidence that credit unions and caisses populaires will participate in the new program.

Whiteway said the new program will add $5,000 to the cost of a $35,000 home. Darling said new regulations governing co-operative housing will reduce building incentives, increase costs and red tape.

When Darling asked if the new programs were a major shift in social housing policy, Ouellet replied flatly: "Yes."

Sing that again?

More metric confusion...a sing of the times? John McCaghey snapped this beaut near Dorval airport. In other areas bordering on highways, there is frequent talk about noise pollution but it seems Dorval has the problem licked — their traffic sings.

Municipalities blast lack of consultation

EDMONTON (CP) — The Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) lashed out at the federal and provincial governments Monday for failing to consult with the municipalities on the vital issues of constitutional reform and housing policies.

The federation supports Canadian unity and wants a new federalism "sufficiently flexible and decentralized to satisfy the national aspirations of Quebec as well as the needs of the various regions of Canada," says a FCM position paper.

But the federal and provincial governments "cannot be allowed to make deals or arrangements that may not involve full participation by local government and other representative elements in our country," says the position paper, unanimously adopted in the opening plenary session by the 500 municipal officials attending the 41st FCM conference.

At a workshop on housing later in the day, delegates criticized the two senior levels of government for negotiating new housing programs without municipal representation.

The delegates voted on the position paper on constitutional reform, endorsed earlier by the federation's board of directors, after a spirited debate and hearing Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed and FCM president Jack Volrich speak of the need for a new deal.

Lougheed said Canada will have "a new and distinctive confederation" within a few years that will give provinces more power and autonomy although "I do not see special status for any one province."

The premier called the shift of power to the provinces and evolutionary process that presents both challenges and opportunities for local governments. He acknowledged, however, that while the provinces want more power from Ottawa, the municipalities want more power from the provinces.

Volrich, mayor of Vancouver, said a revised constitution enhancing the status of municipalities is needed and "there is no way we in local government can leave this important issue to be decided only by our federal and provincial governments."

The position paper says a revised constitution should also incorporate equality of status for Canada's two founding races, a bill of human rights, and a wealth-redistribution mechanism to overcome regional economic disparities.

It suggests that a constitutional commission be set up, to be followed by a constitutional convention six months later.

TAX-INCENTIVE REACTION DISAPPOINTS CHRETIEN

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien told a business audience Monday he is disappointed in the private sector's reaction to tax incentives that are in most cases "at least as generous" as those in the U.S.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Chretien said the government is making an effort to design tax incentives that involve the least possible interference in business decisions.

Besides the incentives, government was trying to hold down costs and price increases, restrain its own spending, cut down on government intervention and develop medium term policies, he said. He spoke from a text released in advance in Ottawa.

"I am disappointed, so far at least, in the reaction of the Canadian business community to the many changes in government policy that are favoring private sector development," Chretien said.

"The room is there for private initiative. The incentives are there. With a million Canadians out of work, the need is there for job-creating expansion," Chretien told the manufacturers that economic growth can best be created by the private sector.

"I look to you and to leaders in other sectors to make good that faith, to show aggressiveness and confidence in our country and to get on with the task."

Chretien said comparisons done by finance officials indicate the total level of taxation is only slightly higher in Canada than in the U.S.

Canada's over-all tax burden as a percentage of gross national product was 32.7 per cent in 1977 compared with 30.8 per cent in the U.S., he said. That is in the middle rank of industrial countries.

Corporations pay lower level of taxes on their income in Canada than in the U.S.

FILMMAKER CAREY TAKES ET BREAK

By DAVID VINEBERG
of The Record

LENNOXVILLE — If by chance you find yourself in an Alberta electrical storm or in the midst of a pack of wild Kenyan flamingoes or hiking over summer tundra on Baffin Island, keep an eye peeled for a bearded, middle-aged Irishman with binoculars and a movie camera. It just might be internationally-renowned wildlife-environment filmmaker Patrick Carey.

A globe trotter, Carey, 51, has been in Canada for the past two weeks, of which the last several days have been spent with relatives in Lennoxville.

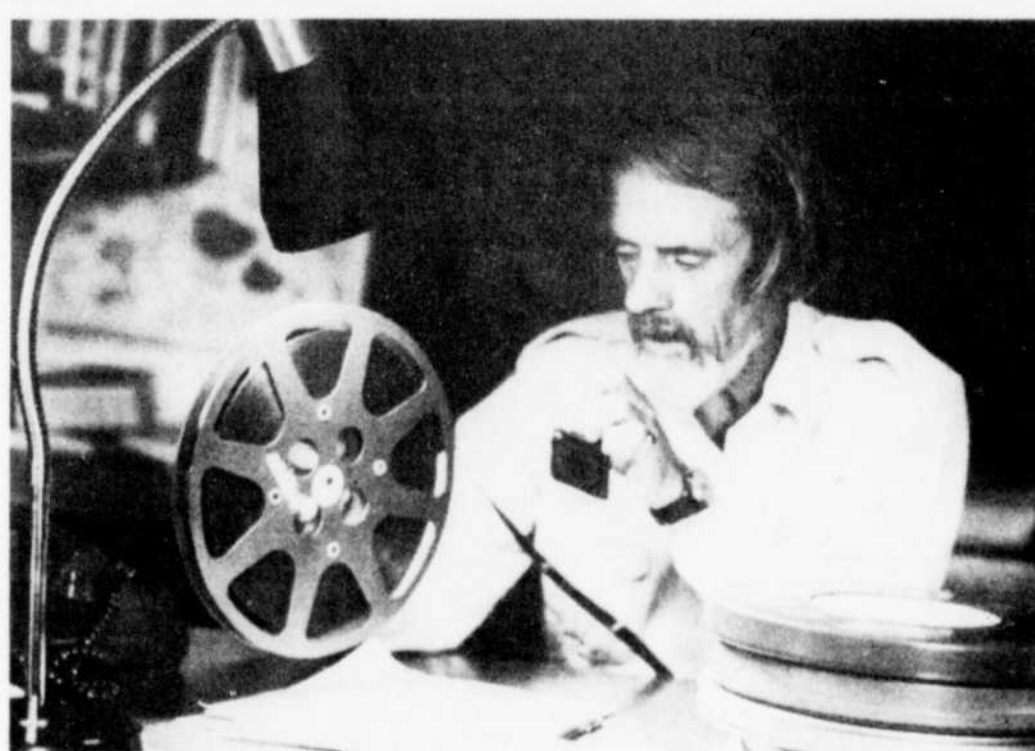

Although he previously worked in Canada between 1957-1962 he has renewed his efforts to capture the natural beauty of our country on celluloid.

Carey whose work is the epitome of environment filmmaking says "The threat to the ecology is the most serious problem man has had to face."

Carey's desire to make Canadian films could give a boost to environment protection groups. He says doom-and-gloom movies which scare people, are not his approach. Instead, he shows a particular environment in all its beauty and grandeur.

According to Carey, the downfall of TV environment shows and documentaries is their lack of feeling but he says they do inform and alert.

Carey's previous Canadian films, include Living Stone and Skies, both Oscar nominees. Living Stone is about Eskimo art. Carey has travelled to northern outposts like Baffin Island four times. Skies was made near Red Deer, Alberta and it features spectacular electrical storms shot in time sequence.

PATRICK CAREY ... "The threat to the ecology is the most serious problem man has had to face."

Carey's quest for the beauties and rhythms of the natural world has taken him to Persia, India, Africa, the Arctic and Canada, as well as his native Ireland.

Over his prolific 32-year career he has garnered numerous awards. His film entitled Oisin is the only non-animated film to win the Norman McLaren Award, a Canadian prize. Another film of his, Waves, is 25 minutes of sea, wind, sand and shingle. Because of its soul-soothing and peaceful qualities one critic described it as "a film that every dentist should have in his waiting room."

Carey's future plans include underwater filming, the logical step in his progression away from the spoken word. Since 1968, Carey has altogether discarded narration in his movies, using only music or the sounds of nature to complement or extend an effect.

Finding a sponsor is an obstacle to filming in Canada. Carey says once the sponsor is found, his own ideas must tie into what the sponsor wants. A fine example of sponsor-producer integration is his Oscar-nominated Yeats Country.

In addition to his own award-winning work he was second unit director-cameraman for A Man For All Seasons, Julia and Stanley Kubrick's Barry Lyndon.

Luckily for local film buffs, Carey has brought several cans of his work over from Europe. He's holding a viewing tonight at Bishop's University in Johnson 20 at 8:30 p.m.

Parizeau readies sales-tax rehash

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Monday he will present yet another proposal later this week aimed at solving the continuing dispute over sales tax cuts between his government and Ottawa.

"It's time it ended," Parizeau said of the two-month-old dispute in reply to questions in the national assembly. Parizeau said his offer, to be considered first by the Quebec cabinet Wednesday, will deal "exclusively with transfer methods" for the $226 million involved in the dispute.

The Quebec finance minister called his proposal a synthesis of the negotiations that have taken place since the battle began following the April 10 federal budget. In reply to opposition questioning, he said there was no ultimatum involved, and he was not presenting the offer "in an atmosphere of combat."

The dispute arose over Quebec's refusal to go along with across-the-board sales tax reductions demanded by Ottawa in its budget. Instead, Quebec announced its own program of selective cuts.

While Ottawa originally agreed to pay Quebec $40 million for its adoption of a selective program, it now accepts the fact that it has "a debt of $226 million to Quebec and Quebecers."

Parizeau said the only question now is the method of payment.

The federal government has introduced legislation which would result in a direct payment of $85 to every Quebec taxpayer, but this move has been opposed by all parties in the national assembly.

Parizeau hinted that his proposal would be "a hybrid formula" involving a government-to-government transfer, plus a rebate to individual federal taxpayers with subsequent taxation by Quebec of the refund.

An attempt at ending the dispute last week failed when Parizeau rejected two different proposals made by Chretien.

Proposal would slash taxes

California taxpayers revolt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Indicating a California taxpayers' revolt in the making, pre-election polls pointed toward victory today for Proposition 13, the ballot initiative that would cut the average property tax bill by more than half.

Proposition 13 is strongly supported by homeowners because it would slash the average annual property tax bill to $600 from $1,400. It also would mean enormous tax savings for some of California's biggest landowners, the public utilities.

Three companies alone — Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas and Electric and Southern California Edison — would get a combined tax cut of $280 million.

But because the tax cut would reduce property tax revenue for cities, counties and schools to $5 billion annually from $12 billion, the issue has been criticized by many labor and business leaders.

Among its opponents is Gov. Edmund Brown, running against token opposition in a nine-candidate Democratic governorship primary field. Brown has endorsed Proposition 8, a more-moderate tax-cut plan.

The initiative would limit annual property taxes to one per cent of market value. The average California homeowner's property currently is valued at $60,000, and annual property taxes now range from less than one per cent to almost three per cent.

WOULD SET LIMITS
The measure — an amendment to the state constitution — also would roll back assessments to 1975 figures and then would allow increases of no more than two per cent a year, except when property is sold.

Howard Jarvis, a 75-year-old tax crusader who led a drive that collected 1.5 million voters' signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, says the issue is more than just cutting taxes.

He said it is a message to politicians and bureaucrats who ignore pleas from voters for a limit on government programs and continue to increase spending and services.

"We're going to have a new birth of freedom in California," said Jarvis, executive director of the Los Angeles County Apartment Owners' Association. "Government must be limited. That's the secret of freedom."

Opponents of the initiative estimate that 300,000 of California's 1.4 million state and municipal employees would be laid off if Proposition 13 is passed. The biggest cuts, they say, will come in police and fire departments and schools.

SYNOPSIS

A ridge of high pressure over Western Quebec this morning will collapse during the day but will give sunny conditions and temperatures near normal over western and southwestern regions. A low over northwestern Ontario this morning is moving northeastward and should reach northern Quebec late in the day. It will turn the skies cloudy over northernmost regions and will bring precipitation late in the day today. The skies will be clearing partially over the lower St. Lawrence as the disturbance which has given some rain over these areas tonight is rapidly moving eastward. It will be mostly cloudy over Quebec Wednesday and there will be some precipitation, mainly over western regions. There will be a rising trend in temperatures.

CNTU: Quebec needs socialist labor party

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec needs a labor party with an unequivocal commitment to socialism, but the initiative to create one will not come from the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), federation president Norbert Rodrigue said Sunday.

Rodrigue, in an opening address at the CNTU's 49th annual convention, said the organization—Quebec's second-largest labor federation with 160,000 members—has retained its credibility as a force for social change by remaining independent of all political parties.

"We have always said... that our movement should never give its allegiance to any party, movement or political group," said Rodrigue on behalf of the CNTU's six-member executive. "This independence must be maintained whatever the cost."

Because CNTU members represent a cross-section of political views, "it would be inappropriate to subject our affiliated unions to the pressures and tensions" which would accompany any move to form a labor party, he said.

Interest in a socialist-oriented labor party has been expressed by several regional councils and political pressure groups active in the CNTU.

In the political spectrum, the CNTU version of socialism is to the left of the social democracy espoused by the larger Quebec Federation of Labor and the labor movement in English Canada.

DON'T HELP WORKERS
Rodrigue, completing his first two-year term as president, dismissed all existing federal and Quebec political parties, including the Parti Quebecois government which he said has failed to follow up on much of its electoral platform.

Norbert said the Parti Quebecois government has ignored the wishes of party members on several issues, including recently-enacted Labor Code reforms which were watered down because business groups brought pressure to bear on the cabinet.

The CNTU, because of its traditional role as lobbyist and pressure group, he said, has scored major political gains its members can be proud of—such as medicare and Quebec's state-run auto insurance program which came about largely because the labor movement fought for them.

The same kind of pressure, he said, should be exerted on the federal and Quebec governments to obtain labor law reforms needed to allow unions to organize those sectors of the economy where union recruiting has always been next to impossible.

Rodrigue put the federation on record for the first time in favor of sectorial negotiations, where one union or unions would negotiate at the same table with a group of employers in the same industry. This has already been tried in the province's construction industry, where all employers are represented by one negotiating team during province-wide negotiations.

U.S. diesel car sales in a year. There are waiting lists for both cars.

Olds and VW captured two-thirds of the 28,000-plus diesel cars sold from Jan. 1 through April 30. Mercedes Benz and Peugeot, the other carmakers offering diesels in the U.S., made up the rest. Their sales have dropped in an apparent loss of ground to Olds and VW.

Who are all these people willing to pay more—an extra $205 for the diesel Rabbit, $850 for the Olds 88—for a noisier, smellier engine said to vibrate and smoke and requires a waiting period to start?

DIESEL ENGINE'S SLUGGISH, NOISY

DETROIT (AP) — Tom Hodges' new Oldsmobile is a tad noisy and sluggish. Its fumes are strong in close quarters, and the stuff coming out of the tail pipe might even cause cancer, some fear.

But Hodges loves his fuel-slinging new diesel-powered car. "I would not buy another gasoline-engine car," says the 43-year-old businessman.

Although the new diesel-engine cars are finding plenty of buyers, they also are prompting second thoughts among federal regulators.

Scientists at the Environmental Protection Agency made preliminary findings that diesel exhaust fumes cause genetic changes in bacteria, and the bacteria could cause cancer.

If further studies confirm those findings later this year, the EPA probably will limit the number of particulates—tiny particles—that can be emitted in diesel exhausts. Automakers have been trying to cut down on diesel particulates, without much success.

The cancer threat and another pollution problem, the diesel's emissions of oxides of nitrogen (NOx), are apparent clouds over the diesel car market.

PREDICTS SHORT LIFE
"I think the diesels will have a short life if the government doesn't back off on some of its emissions requirements," said one industry analyst.

Ironically, it was federal pressure on another front—fuel economy—that prompted Oldsmobile and Volkswagen to rediscover the diesel engine. The diesel's prime virtue is good fuel economy.

The most fuel-efficient car sold in the U.S., for instance, is the diesel Volkswagen Rabbit. It averages 45 miles a gallon compared to 29 for the Rabbit powered by a conventional gasoline engine.

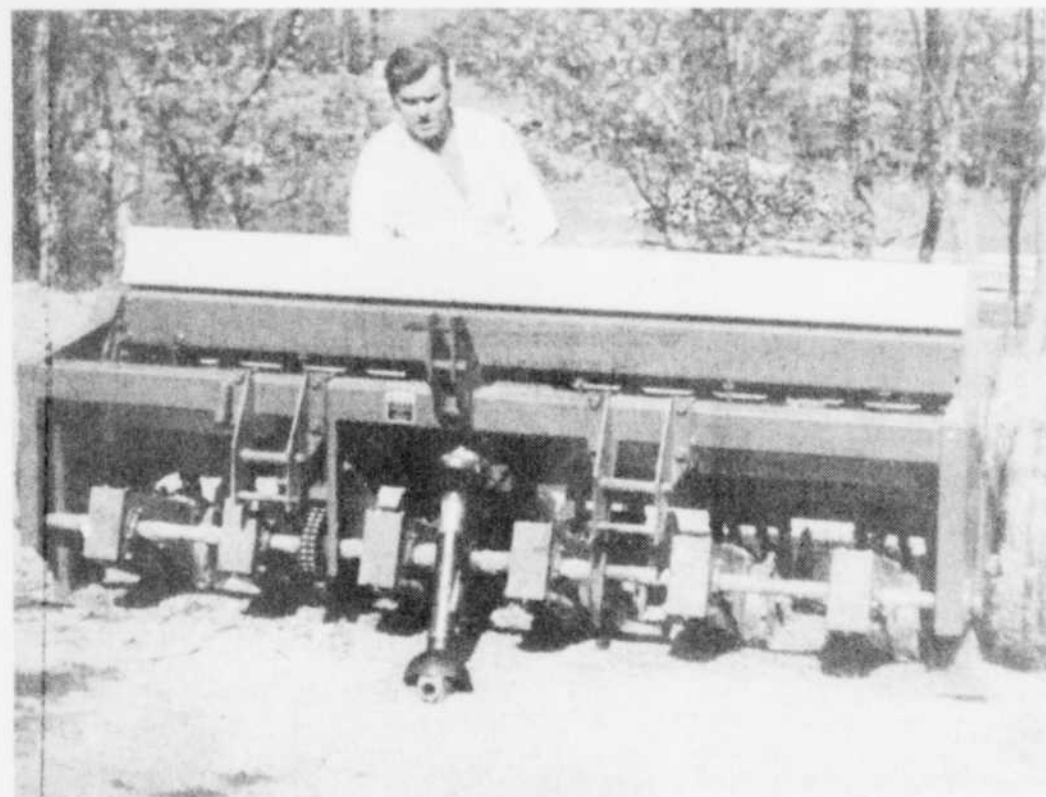

Invented by Rudolf Diesel in 1892, the engine compresses air, instead of the air-fuel mixture of gasoline engines, in its combustion chambers. The compression makes the air hot. At the right point, a fine mist of fuel is injected into the chambers and, ignited by the temperature of the air alone, drives the pistons.

With every auto manufacturer's output required to average 27.5 miles to the gallon by 1985, some auto executives think one in five 1985 cars will be diesels.

GM LEAD THE WAY
Thus General Motors Corp. this model year became the first U.S. automaker to sell a car powered by a U.S.-built diesel engine. Encouraged by public response, GM said recently it will triple its diesel V-8 engine output from 68,000 this model year to 190,000 in 1979 for Oldsmobiles, Cadillacs and light trucks.

Sales of the diesel Olds 88 and 98 and the diesel Rabbit, introduced a year earlier, have roughly tripled overall

Farm machinery updated

Seeder saves 60 per cent

BEEBE (IH) — Farming methods have changed so much over the years until today the modern farmer is faced with many new ways of doing his work, says Claude (CoCo) Vaillancourt, a young farmer who, with his family, raises simmental beef cattle near Beebe.

Mr. Vaillancourt is now the proud owner of a seeder made by John Deere company, that will seed fields without plowing, harrowing and other labors.

The machine is equipped with 12-inch cutting discs that make a small trench three-quarter depth every eight inches, and is eight-feet wide. The seed falls into the trench and is pressed by tamper wheels in the back of the machine — a very simple way of seeding.

This means that the farmer need not plow his land one or more months each year and worries about the seed being eaten by birds are eliminated. No rain storm can carry the seed down a slope.

Using this machine saves about 60 per cent on the cost of seeding and, with the cost of seed today, the saving's worthwhile. The machine is able to seed at the rate of three to four acres per hour, depending on the land.

Mr. Vaillancourt is very proud of his new machine, which can seed pastures with the animals in them. It can plant clover, timothy and alfalfa and for a small fee Mr. Vaillancourt will work with farm people to seed their fields.

He's a real fanatic about new machinery that can save money. Some five years ago, he introduced his tree-stumping machine, which has been used with success, to the area.

From hand planting to simple plows, to tractors and larger plows, to modern seeders — farming has come a long way.

Economic study will aid our future development.

Investors slow to see dividends

Investors are often slow to recognize the importance of dividends and their yields when choosing equities, says Marpep Investment Reports Ltd. in a recent Canadian Business Service publication.

"Dividends, as of this year, are treated far more leniently for tax purposes than ever before," the newsletter says.

And dividend yields, "though historically quite high, will get another boost late this year and next by the flood of pent-up dividend increases that the end of the anti-inflation board is going to let loose."

A number of investment advisers have found that many investors "who used to swing back and forth from penny stocks and other high-risk speculation on the one hand, to savings accounts and Canada Savings Bonds on the other" have recently come to realize that dividends are worthwhile. Home Oil Co. Ltd. and Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. are just two examples of companies whose dividends make them sound and growing investments.

"Home Oil said in its latest communication that the company's dividend policy will be reviewed when the restrictions imposed by the anti-inflation board are over with," the newsletter says.

"Home's dividend was unchanged at 50 cents for more than a decade until 1976 when it raised the rate to 62½ cents. This year it will pay 50 cents."

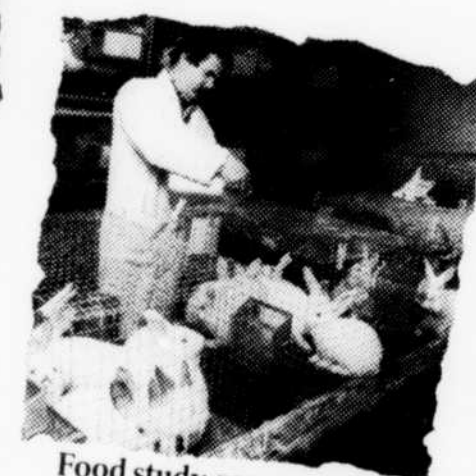

"Home's earnings have risen with the price of the oil it produces and it could no doubt raise the payout substantially without running short of funds for development."

TRAFFIC-WATCH WITH CJAD

It was Terry Scott's first time up...

...but John McCaghey held his hand

By TERRY SCOTT
of The Record

Rick Leckner, CJAD's voice in the sky, arrives at our table in the Airport Hilton Hotel promptly at 8 a.m. and the muscles of my stomach tighten like stretched elastic.

You see, the highest I've ever been above ground was while riding a jerris wheel at the county fair and the immediate prospect of a whirl in the Jet Ranger isn't compatible with my nervous system.

Two weeks earlier I had managed to sufficiently psyche myself for lift-off when word came that the Jet Ranger had been forced to the ground and for a while last Friday as dark clouds and early morning haze hung stubbornly over the sky-line, it appeared a similar fate would occur.

"It's a little wet up there but everything is OK," Leckner reports, motioning to the back seat of the chopper. Rick takes his place in the front beside pilot Richard Brunet, ready to survey the traffic below for the periodic reports sponsored by the Royal Bank.

As I buckle the seat-belt and put on a headset which will allow me to listen to the radio broadcast while in flight, I notice in front of me a pair of paper bags to be used, according to the instructions, in the event of motion sickness. Secretly I wonder if I will realize the ignominy of having to reach for the emergency sack.

My fears are dispelled seconds later, however, as we quickly climb toward the gloomy skies. The sensation is probably the equivalent of the kiddies' roller-coaster at Granby Zoo.

But the view is something else, indeed. In fact, for a brief moment I have to convince myself that I am not looking at the City of Montreal from one of those glass-enclosed miniature scales they have at City Hall.

This is what Rick Leckner sees from the chopper every day - a sprawling metropolis that looks like an expanded version of the doll house you bought for your daughter last week, complete with back-yard swimming pool that resembles a saucer of blue and a neatly-trimmed green mat serving as the lawn.

Sex education program begins

La Commission scolaire regionale de l'Estrie has embarked on a program of sex education in all its schools. The program, requested by the school commissioners and realized through the Quebec Education Ministry, will be in two parts, conceiving a program and then presenting it to secondary school students.

The project is based on the assumption that the family is the most important human unit. While it believes that sex education can be learned in the home, the school commission also feels that a valuable learning process can take place in the schools. The program will revolve around discussions of sexuality, the family, and the importance of these two aspects of society.

The object of this program is to help the student to understand and accept his or her sexuality in a global context.

Bulwer crash victim dies

One person was killed and at least two were injured when their truck went out of control and hit a tree near the Jordan Hill - Bulwer turn Sunday night. Mrs. Beaudoin of the Jordan Hill area near Birchton died early yesterday morning after being injured in the crash. Her husband and two children remain in hospital. The Beaudoin truck was coming from Sawyerville to Birchton when it went out of control. The car behind them called for help, but ambulance attendants were over an hour removing the occupants from the truck.

It is reported that the two children are suffering from fractures to their arms and legs, while Mr. Beaudoin was scheduled for surgery yesterday morning.

Lawyers fight illegal jailing

SHERBROOKE (AF) — A hearing will be held on June 12 into the alleged illegal imprisonment of Serge Roy, 20, of Sherbrooke.

A writ of habeas corpus was ordered by Superior Court Judge Jean-Louis Pélouin, who ordered a gaoler to bring the prisoner before him and to justify his incarceration, then setting Roy free on $500 bail. Criminal lawyers Francois Gerin and Jean-Pierre Rancourt made the unusual request to obtain their client's freedom since his sentence terminated May 19 due to statutory considerations and good behavior.

Roy had taken a truck without its owner's permission as well as stealing some tools belonging to Rejean Leblanc valued at $235. After warnings on two separate occasions, Roy was sentenced to a year's detention September 14 last year. Several days after sentencing, Roy was set free in error but had to return to prison after a month and a half. The jail, however, decided to make him serve out that part of the sentence where he had been set free by accident. Gerin and Rancourt claim that because his sentence is expired, he was being detained illegally.

North Hatley residents complain

NORTH HATLEY (JD) — Residents of this community facing the prospect of a 40-unit apartment development blocking their view, were told last night they have no recourse under law because the town has no controls on zoning.

A group of McKay Street residents affected by the construction of twin three-storey apartment complexes, were at last night's council meeting to demand tighter controls on future projects, as well as council assurances for the resurfacing of the street, possible sidewalks and adequate water pressure.

Concern was expressed that the project, being built by a Montreal-based firm called 81581 Canada Ltd., would attract students and summer transients to a community which exists on a total of $73,000 in annual tax revenues.

Council pointed out to the group that the town had no right to stipulate what sort of structure was built on the lot left vacant after the Pleasantview Hotel was torn down. However, they vowed to pursue the owners for discussions of parking, fencing, sidewalks and road maintenance.

River week

It's Massawippi River Week now through Sunday, and the folks behind the Coalition des Conservationnistes des Cantons have planned a slate of events that will bring everyone down to the banks of the river to see just what needs to be done.

There's no reason why the Massawippi River couldn't be cleaned up within a couple of years — if people wanted it cleaned up. Community pressure will do it, just as community pressure has made vast efforts to clean up the Hudson River, a century ago — the dirtiest river on this continent.

But community pressure can't happen without involvement and here's where the CCC has done good work. Its volunteers have dreamed up some pretty wild fun over the next few days, and most of it is centred on some aspect of the Massawippi River.

So we'd urge everybody who loves clowns, picnics, canoes, balloon races, healthy food, fishing contests, nature tours and enough entertainment for the kids to stay put for a full day, to head down to the river this weekend for a real wingding.

We guarantee you'll be brainwashed into wanting a clean river.

Eyesore

Smaller communities are at the mercy of developers, and last night's council meeting in North Hatley was ample demonstration of the fact.

Residents had a legitimate beef; their view of Lake Massawippi has been wiped out by a structure which would have made sense in Sherbrooke, but looks like a monstrosity on the bucolic hillsides of villages like North Hatley.

It was all very legal; the builders had their permits and the village had all the necessary plans and drawings; the only hitch was that nobody living nearby had the slightest inkling that the structure would be blocking everybody's view.

Even as it was being built, authorities assured worried residents the structure would be only two storeys high and that nobody's view of the lake would suffer. Faced with the truth, councillors would only say they had known all along the structure was going to be three storeys, and the building inspector apologized to one of those affected, saying 'I must have been drunk or something.'

This is no way to run a community, and North Hatley isn't alone in this. Over in Hatley, it seems the provincial government is bullying its way through everybody's property with a highway nobody wants or needs. In Lennoxville, people seem shocked that a massive apartment complex has arisen on one of the best forest-trail areas in the community — seemingly without anyone's knowledge.

The councillors know about these things. They approved the permits. They saw the documentation. They are responsible for seeing that all zoning and construction bylaws are adhered to, and it's their job to ensure the interests of the taxpayers who elected them are not ignored.

All too often, town councils have gotten used to the idea of working in a void, simply because nobody turns out for their meetings. They say — with some justification — people only turn up when they have a complaint to make.

It's high time every ratepayer took his or her turn at the regular council meetings. It's not hard to remember when they are — they're the first Monday of every month. In addition, we as citizens should get to know what being a citizen entitles us to. It gives us the right to see all construction permits, all zoning applications, all municipal bylaws and any plans pertaining to these things. If we don't feel comfortable with the technicalities of community planning and development, we should delegate a neighbor who is, and pay him back by cutting his lawn or something.

People complain they're seeing their communities torn down around their ears, without the slightest recourse. That's not true. All it takes is involvement to know what's going on.

OTTAWA NOTEBOOK

It ain't good grammar, but it's popular

OTTAWA (CP) — G. Hamilton Southam, chairman of the organization responsible for the country's $4.5-million July 1 birthday celebration this year, says he knew he was committing a grammatical sin when he picked the anniversary slogan: "Canada, it's you and me."

"I've spent my life teaching my children to say: 'It is I,'" Southam said in a recent interview.

"But the celebration is a popular event, and people say 'you and me,'" Southam said he gets about a letter a week drawing his attention to the grammatical error in the slogan. But he added that he has no regrets about choosing it.

In French, the slogan is: "Le Canada, c'est toi et moi." That incidentally, is grammatically sound.

Three years ago, the federal government spent about $90,000 on July 1 celebrations, marking the anniversary with a Parliament Hill program complete with fireworks.

Two years ago, it cancelled the celebration, citing economic restraint.

Last year, faced with a Parti Quebecois government in Quebec, it threw restraint to the wind and spent $3.5 million on a nationally televised Parliament Hill spectacular and other events across the country.

This year, the bill has gone up to $4.5 million, but officials organizing the event insist they are practising restraint.

For instance, they say a 145-foot maple leaf flag, pulled up the Peace Tower on the Parliament buildings during last year's extravaganza, will be used again this year.

Justice Minister Ron

Basford drew support from an unexpected quarter recently during Commons justice committee study of a government bill that would give citizens the right to trials in either French or English.

Eldon Woolliams, the leather-lunged Progressive Conservative justice critic, came to Basford's defence against an attack by French-speaking Liberals.

The Liberals, Jean-Robert Gauthier (Ottawa Vanier) and Eymard Corbin (Madawaska-Victoria), wanted Basford to force provinces to implement the legislation within three years of its parliamentary passage.

Basford rejected the idea as foolhardy. Committee members

Woolliams intervened. "The minister is trying," he told the startled Liberals.

"He needs a little help." When the exchange ended, the Liberals were smiling. Peace had been restored.

Editorials From The French Press

Montreal-Matin: While participating in a panel discussion on national security during a recent Quebec Bar Association conference, the distinguished American journalist Joseph Kraft said something to this effect: Politicians do not win popularity contests by standing up for individual freedoms over national security. On the contrary, they count on public indifference. However, the Quebec Bar devoted a morning workshop to this question while the Quebec Human Rights League dedicated the weekend to a conference entitled Police and Liberty.

The concept of national security, said Kraft, fluctuates at the mercy of the political situation in the country. In reflecting, one finds this highly logical but very disquieting. Because, finally, who is going to define state security...

The observers who participated in this workshop at the bar conference may have been surprised that the lawyers did not raise more quickly a question which normally should have been their main concern in this domain: the gradual movement of federal legislation towards a "dejudicialization" of state powers. From a democratic perspective and in respect to rule of law, it would be desirable, indeed, that civil servants and police (as in the case of electronic surveillance) be controlled by the judiciary, which would not give way arbitrarily. Parliament could define the principles of national security; the police and civil servants apply them, whereas the courts would evaluate whether the powers had been properly exercised.

Now one is far from such a system. The notion of national security, left to the federal cabinet, gives it the choice to refuse citizenship without official reason. The Federal Court Act allows a minister, on presentation of an affidavit, to forbid a court to use a document which the minister may feel is injurious to Canadian international relations or to federal-provincial relations. The Official Secrets Act could itself be invoked, in relation to espionage, to convict an individual without having proven that the accused is guilty of a certain accusation. It suffices to base it on circumstances or on the character of the accused.

In opening the Human Rights League conference, James Petras, professor of political sociology at New York University, said the risk of encroachment on civil liberties grows larger in times of economic crisis and in tense political situations. The times that we live in and government panic does not help to reassure us. —Marc Laurendeau (May 29)

Fine job

Editor:

At our annual meeting on May 24th several people remarked on what a fine job the Record is doing with the Scout news. Apparently people with no connection with Scouting have been reading it recently so the meeting decided that it would be nice if the Secretary wrote and told the Record that the Sherbrooke District Council think you are doing an excellent job with our news and we want to thank you for it.

We will try to keep you supplied with news so you can continue to tell our friends how we are doing.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Fate of retarded 'a national disgrace'

WASHINGTON — America has condemned tens of thousands of its most helpless citizens to a living death. We refer to those retarded Americans who are forced to live in overcrowded, archaic institutions.

These are often nothing more than human warehouses; a few can be classified as snakepits. They have pleasant names like Applecreek, Forest Haven, Rosewood, Sonoma. But they are more like concentration camps, where society quietly hides away its mental misfits until they die.

Forest Haven, for example, is located near Laurel, Md., in the shadow of the nation's capitol. It is close enough to the source of federal blessings to be a model institution. But for many of its residents, Forest Haven is more a hell than a haven.

Today, Justice Department lawyers will argue in federal court that the institution has violated the constitutional rights of its patients. With proper care and training, most retarded people can become contributing members of society. But the attorneys will present evidence and testimony that inhumane treatment at Forest Haven has caused the deterioration rather than the development of patients.

The case of a young patient named Joy Evans will be cited. An affidavit from her mother declares: "Joy resided in Dogwood cottage ... Dogwood was a veritable snakepit. I once witnessed a nurse open the cottage door only to find 80 half-clad screaming women come running to the door; the nurse quickly shut it."

Continues the affidavit starkly: "On one occasion we found Joy's entire back raw. A nurse asked if Joy had a blood disease which may have caused it. When we took Joy to a private doctor, however, we were informed that her back injury was caused by urine burns from being restrained on a rubber sheet."

Joy's suffering is over; she died at a premature age. Another Forest Haven resident, Bertha Brown, also died recently. She suffocated from eating her own feces. The woman suffered from a disease, which caused her to eat almost anything in sight. Yet she was tied to a toilet and left unattended. She bit through the restraining garments, ate her feces and choked to death.

Still another young patient, Earlene Thorton, died last March under curious circumstances. A confidential report by U.S. Park Police stated: "There was no suspicious or criminal activity in relation to this death." Yet the report adds: "During the autopsy, there was a bruise discovered on the right side of the subject's head, which resulted in severe hemorrhaging within the skull. There was a fracture of one of the subject's fingers."

It is the living, however, who should be mourned at Forest Haven. One worker told us: "It is hard to grieve when somebody dies here, because the real tragedy is the slow deaths of almost all the patients here. The people here are forced to sit and do nothing all day, not able to grow, only to deteriorate."

Forest Haven officials refused to allow us to make an unrestricted inspection of the premises. But workers smuggled our reporter, Murray Waas, into the facility for an unauthorized tour.

One place he was taken was the Curley Building, which houses many female patients. Workers said that a year ago he would have found more than two dozen women, many in diapers, others naked, strewn across the bare floor. This was how they spent the day, sprawled on the floor with nothing to do.

Waas found the patients properly dressed, sitting in neat rows of new, plastic chairs. But the changes, workers said, were merely cosmetic. "They may be wearing clothes instead of being naked. They may be sitting on chairs instead of on the floor," said a nursing aid. "But they are still forced to sit here all day with nothing to do, except vegetate."

Waas also spoke to patients who weren't retarded at all but had been transferred to Forest Haven from a nearby orphanage that closed in 1974. For convenience's sake, 20 orphans were deposited at Forest Haven, and their classification was simply changed from "orphan" to "retardate." Now some of them function at a retarded level as a result of their treatment.

Our reporter visited with several residents who have spent most of their lives at Forest Haven. One elderly woman, Thelma Hall, came to the institution in 1927. "Please take me out for a ride," she pleaded pathetically. A nursing aide doubted that the old woman had left the facility more than half a dozen times in the half century she had been institutionalized.

Waas' tour ended with an inspection of the "seclusion rooms," 6 by 8 feet, with nothing but mattresses and toilets as furnishings. Patients may be confined in these bare, cruel rooms for the most minor indiscretions against those who watch over them.

Other patients are "chemically restrained," that is, they are given large doses of the dreaded drug Thorazine. This leaves them sleepy, lifeless, still.

The conscientious workers, who showed our reporter around, were outraged over the way helpless patients are treated. It is easy to understand their frustration, their quiet rage.

GANG OF FOUR: The Turks have borrowed a phrase from the political lexicon of the Red Chinese. They have taken offense at four U.S. lawmakers who are unabashed supporters of Greece. The four are Sens. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and Tom Eagleton, D-Mo., also Reps. John Brademas, D-Ind., and Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y. Whenever a Greek-Turkish issue arises, they are the first to their feet to defend Greek interests. Thus the Turks have started to refer to them as "The Gang of Four."

Stanstead stands by decision to drop grants

STANSTEAD, Que. (CP) — The red-brick campus of private Stanstead College has always striven to be special. With Quebec's language legislation, however, it has become unique.

Faced with the choice between conforming to school enrolment requirements of the language law or giving up $200,000 in provincial government grants, the boys' school has opted to retain its academic independence and look for funds elsewhere.

"The cost of either choice was about the same," explained headmaster Jeremy Riley. Had the college agreed to the enrolment restrictions of the Charter of the French Language Bill 101, Stanstead would have lost scores of students and their $5,675-a-head tuition fees.

The law restricts enrolment in English-language schools to children with at least one parent who attended the English-language school in Quebec. Exceptions are made for businessmen transferring into Quebec for temporary periods and for some persons who were residents in Quebec before the language law was passed last year.

But for Stanstead College, Riley said those possibilities would not have been of much help.

So the college, whose students come from 12 countries and five Canadian provinces including Quebec, became Quebec's only private school to reject provincial government subsidies.

The school also was subjected to a provincial education department policy which tightens control over private schools.

In the case of a private school which enrolls one student contrary to provincial guidelines — including the language law — all grants are cut off, Riley explained.

In the case of public schools, grants are refused only for students who are illegally enrolled.

Riley said lopping off about 20 per cent of the school's budget with the loss of the grants left three choices: reduce the budget permanently, increase tuition fees or go to the public for financial aid.

"We decided not to raise our fees," he said. The school is working on a formula which would combine some budget cuts with the possibility of public subscriptions.

SCHOOL BILINGUAL

The school, located about 140 miles southeast of Montreal on the Canada-U.S. border, offers students in Grades 7 to 12 the possibility of small class sizes in a bilingual atmosphere.

Graduates write mother-languages examinations in both English and French, unlike the public school system where exams are aimed at second-language competence.

"I feel it is impossible to be bicultural," said Riley, a 39-year-old businessman who joined the school as headmaster two years ago after a 15-career in baking and investment analysis.

Bilingualism is another question, he said, pointing to the school's practice of conducting English days and French days during which students function in those languages.

"The way I think and operate is English," explained Riley, a bilingual native of Montreal. "I can accept that other people operate differently."

"But when I run into somebody who by his very behavior negates that, I get offended."

PART OF QUEBEC LIFE

Bilingualism and an awareness of the differences in the attitudes and procedures of the two cultural groups are part of Quebec life.

On a recent trip outside the province, Riley recalled, "Instead of spending half my time wondering what language I should speak and whether I would offend somebody, we got on with business."

The college strives for a mix of cultural and national backgrounds among its almost 260 students, 150 of whom live in residence. About 60 are French-Canadian, another 40 come from other countries and the remainder are anglophone Canadians, said Riley.

Far from worrying about the future of the school,

Riley sees a continuing market for private schools, particularly a bilingual one.

"I guess we're going to benefit to the extent that anybody benefits from the destruction of the public sector," he said, noting parents' concerns about poor-quality education, violence and discipline problems in public schools.

While French-speaking Quebecers have been sending children to Stanstead College in increasing numbers since the beginning of the 1970s, Riley said he is concerned about the future of Quebec.

What would happen if competent Quebecers, both French- and English-speaking, left Quebec during a spate of political troubles?

"What would the residual group be like if it were only those with nowhere to go and nothing to lose?"

DISARMAMENT SESSION PAYS DIVIDENDS

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

The UN General Assembly's special session on disarmament already has paid dividends, says Canadian disarmament expert William Epstein.

First, the French have decided to come back "in the dialogue of disarmament," which is important, says Epstein who serves as a disarmament consultant to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

"Secondly, I understand and I feel that the Russians and the Americans are speeding up their efforts to get a comprehensive test band—to stop all testing including underground tests."

"Thirdly, maybe a speeding up of their efforts to make an early SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty) agreement."

The five-week special session, now nearing the end of two weeks of debate, is absolutely necessary, Epstein added. It's going to alert the governments and the people of the world to the terrible dangers of the nuclear arms race.

"It's waking them up. It's putting disarmament right at the top."

Despite Epstein's optimism, expressed in an interview, the political climate between the Carter administration and the Soviet Union, moving rapidly away from détente, is making negotiations for a new SALT pact difficult at this time.

WILL HONOR TREATY

There have been rounds of talks in Moscow, Washington and New York between the Soviet Union and the United States on a new SALT pact to replace the 1974 agreement which has expired although both sides say they will honor the old one until there is a new treaty.

There has been some progress in the talks which are hung up in the difficult area of lowering the limits on long-range nuclear weapon delivery vehicles to replace those set in the 1974 Vladivostok agreement, which allowed 2,400 long-range missiles and bombers for each side.

While the special session is not a negotiating forum, it has provided a natural setting for world leaders to talk. In the first two weeks of debate, governments had a ready-made platform to publicize the cost and danger of the arms race.

Among other things, Prime Minister Trudeau proposed a "strategy of suffocation"—to keep scientists from creating more deadly weapons in the laboratory.

After a 16-year French boycott of disarmament talks, President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing was on the scene. He indicated France would be disposed to join a new UN disarmament commission provided it is not dominated by the Soviet Union and the U.S.

The French president was referring to the Geneva-based disarmament committee, of which Canada is a member. The co-chairmen are the U.S. and the Soviet Union. But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko indicated that the Soviets want to keep things in Geneva as they are.

China, another nuclear power, said it would be willing to take part in an all-encompassing UN meeting on disarmament, in which all UN members could participate.

A lot of people have some pretty strange ideas about Canada's immigration law. And, as a result, a lot of people suffer from believing them.

The fact is, the most reliable information comes from us.

In other countries, we're in Canadian Government visa offices. Here at home, it's your Canada Immigration Centre.

If you know someone who'll have to pass through Canadian Immigration in the near future, you'd be doing them a favour by pointing them in our direction. Especially now that there's a new immigration law.

Now, the new law doesn't mean a lot of changes for the average immigrant or visitor.

Here, nevertheless, are a few things that might affect you or someone you know.

From now on, immigrants and those visitors who come here to work or study must make all immigration arrangements before arriving in Canada. No one may change his or her status while inside Canada.

Remember that money can't buy your way into Canada. All the help you need is free at any Canadian Government visa office or Canada Immigration Centre.

Canadian immigration officers do not discriminate on the grounds of colour, race or religion. Ever.

A new adjudication system gives greater protection to the civil rights of people involved in immigration proceedings. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law.

The new law does not make immigration easier, but it does make it more predictable. If you need to know more, ask at a Canada Immigration Centre. If you know someone abroad who needs information, tell them to contact their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Williams of Lennoxville, Que., are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Brenda Carol, to Robert Norris Ross, of Montreal, Que., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ross of Lennoxville, Que. A July wedding is planned.

Graduation

Ian Robert MacRae, son of A.R.T. W.O. J. Lorne MacRae and Mrs. MacRae (the former Anne Gagnon) of Ottawa, has received his Bachelor of Mathematics degree, in honours Co-Operative Program Computer Science and Statistics from Carlton University, Ottawa, having received his B.A. degree at the University of Waterloo last year.

He is presently employed by the Co-operative Computer Division at Carlton University.

Ian is the grandson of Mrs. Goodenough of Vimy St., Sherbrooke, and of the late Dr. Robert MacRae and Mrs. MacRae of Bury, Que.

Good luck and happy landing, Ian!

Nurses' alumnae

The Sherbrooke Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association held its second meeting of the year on Tuesday evening, May 23, at the lovely home of the president, Mrs. Ruth Atto.

Mrs. Atto welcomed the 15 members who were present for the meeting.

Business was then commenced with a letter of thanks received, from the Sherbrooke Hospital Campaign, for the flotation mattress the alumnae had donated.

A beautiful, inscribed silver tray was circulated among those present. This tray has been bequeathed to the alumnae by the late Miss Clara Aitkenhead, who was director of nursing at the Sherbrooke Hospital from 1952-1968. Miss Aitkenhead is remembered with much affection by all those who were acquainted with her but, especially by "her girls", whom she helped guide with great understanding through the three difficult years of training at the Sherbrooke Hospital school of nursing. This tray will be used at special functions of the alumnae and will be on display for the public when a suitable casing is acquired.

Mrs. Atto stated that the Blood Pressure Clinic, conducted in the hospital lobby during Hospital Week, had been very successful.

Mrs. Bryant noted that only one book, "Pioneer Nurse" is needed to complete our collection of books written by our colleague Miss Bessie Banfield. The other books are at present in the Nurses' Library, at the Norton Annex, where those interested may borrow them.

A donation is to be sent to the Donna Draper Fund, at the Sherbrooke Hospital, in memoriam of one of our colleagues, Miss Flora George, who died recently.

The object of the Donna Draper Fund is to improve nursing care by sponsoring interested graduate nurses who wish to attend post-graduate courses or seminars.

With our hospital undergoing so many changes, a discussion ensued into ways in which the alumnae could be of help. It was decided that a questionnaire be drawn up and sent to all those members asking for their ideas. It is hoped that those who receive these letters will take an interest and reply promptly.

Tentative plans for a Fall "get-together" are being looked into by Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Bown.

The next meeting is to be held at the Norton Annex on Tuesday evening, Oct. 17 at 8:15 p.m.

There was no further business and the meeting was moved to be adjourned by Mrs. Sangster.

Delicious refreshments were then served in the dining room, by the hostesses Mrs. Atto and Mrs. Bown. Mrs. Bryant acted as pourer for the evening. The door prize was won by Mrs. Smith.

Peasley-Seedhouse wed

A pretty spring wedding took place on May 20 at 5 p.m. in West Hill United Church, Pickering, Ontario, when Colleen Seedhouse and Cpl. James Peasley were united in marriage.

Colleen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Seedhouse, was given in marriage by her father, James, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Katharine Peasley, is now stationed in Trenton, Ontario.

The bride wore a floor-length white gown, with long sleeves and a rounded neck line. A full length-veil was held at the crown with a head band decorated with small beads.

Colleen carried a bouquet of red roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Dolly, aunt of the bride, acted as maid of honor and wore a green pastel floor-length gown. She carried a bouquet of white roses with red trim in the shape of a fan.

Bridesmaids were Darlene and Sharon Seedhouse, sisters of the bride and Nancy Peasley, sister of the groom. They wore floor-length gowns of pastel shades-pink, blue and yellow - and matching broad brimmed hats and carried bouquets of white roses with red trim in the shape of a fan.

Cindy, cousin of the bride, acting as flower girl, wore a floor-length gown of pastel green. She carried a basket of spring flowers.

The best man was Brian Wells, a friend of the groom. Ring bearer, Corey Ellis, nephew of the groom, carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Ushers were Murray Seedhouse, brother of the bride, Alden Peasley and Keith Mitchell, brother and brother-in-law of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of light blue with white trim around the collar and matching accessories.

The groom's mother chose a floor-length blue floral gown with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

The wedding reception was held at the Rainbow Room, West Rouge Shopping Centre. A chicken dinner was served. Later in the evening a three-tier wedding cake was cut and served by the bride and groom.

Music and dancing was enjoyed by all.

The bride and groom left for a short honeymoon in parts of Ontario, and will be taking up residence in Trenton, Ontario.

Mrs. Morrill marks year 102

RICHMOND (WHL) — Mrs. Lyman "Sunshine" Morrill of the Wales Home celebrated her 102nd birthday on Friday, May 26, when her immediate family and some 60 friends and guests gathered around to greet her.

Dressed in a floor-length, silk-jersey gown of sky-blue color, and sporting a corsage of pink and white carnations,

Mrs. Morrill chatted and reminisced with her friends.

A cake, made by Mrs. Walter Potts, of Ulverton, decorated the head table. Padre Boudin poured tea and the lunch was prepared and served by the ladies guild of the churches of Ulverton and South Durham.

A telegram was received from the Hon. Pierre Elliott

Trudeau, and a heart-warming letter from Warren Allmand, Minister of Consumer Affairs.

Mrs. Morrill has been a resident of the home since 1965. Her husband, Lyman, predeceased her in the year 1946. She was born near Quebec City, and, with her husband, operated a prosperous farm, in what is now the Parish of St. Barnabe in Asbestos. There are two living sons, Russell and Kenneth, and a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Hamilton. Another daughter, Grace, has passed on.

Guests came from Asbestos, Danville, Richmond, with relatives from Quebec City, Kingston, Ontario and Drummondville.

Ann Landers says

Your doctor should know

Dear Ann Landers: I was glad when you admonished physicians for not impressing on patients the importance of continuing to take their high blood pressure medicine as long as they live. So many patients don't understand instructions. They are under the impression that when they begin to feel better they can just stop the medication. As you pointed out, it's the responsibility of the doctor to explain things clearly.

And now will you please say something about antibiotics? My husband has at least six bottles of left-over antibiotic pills in his bureau drawer. He phones his doctor whenever he gets a bad cold. The doctor calls the pharmacy and they send the stuff over. My husband takes the pills for a few days and then quits. The next time he gets cold symptoms he helps himself to the left-over pills and takes them for as long as he thinks it is necessary.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who is very well-educated. She went to Hunter College and graduated with honors. Jennie has two speech habits that drive me up the wall. First: At the end of almost every sentence she says, "Right?" I don't know if she expects me to answer her or not. Usually I find myself responding, "Right."

Second complaint: She says, "I could care less." What she really means is I COULDN'T care less. (If she could care less, she does care somewhat).

I don't want to seem picky but I'd like some advice on how to get this woman to give up these annoying habits. Any suggestions? — Hackles Up

Dear Hack: Most speech habits are deeply ingrained. Mentioning them rarely does any good. You can stop answering her when she says, "Right?" — but I'll bet she will still continue to say it. Why not tell yourself you couldn't care less?

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My problem is with my stockings. They tend to bunch up or crease at the ankles and sometimes they bag at the knees, too. I wear size 9½ hose, a size 8 shoe, weigh 125 pounds and am 5 feet 5 inches tall. — HELEN O.

DEAR HELEN O. — Do you wash your hose after each wearing? I also wonder if you are buying the correct size. I wear size 9½ hose but only 6½ shoes. Ask at the hosiery counter of your favorite store because that might well be causing the trouble. I am sure some of the readers will have other suggestions for you. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I never felt my son's wallet was safe when he was wearing jeans. Now I have sewn Velcro to the inside top of the pocket he always puts his wallet in. Each time he gets a new pair this addition is made before they are worn. — FRIEDA

Pinnacle district ladies celebrate 40th

DANVILLE (JE) — Forty years ago on May 15, eight neighboring ladies from the Pinnacle District decided to meet twice a month in different homes just for a "get-together". Since that first meeting, there has never been a slate of officers or any intentions of raising money. The ladies did give twenty-five cents at each meeting and at Christmas, the money was given back.

They usually walked to Mrs. So and So's house at approximately 1:30 p.m., and the chatting broke up at 4:00 p.m., as there were hungry men and children at home awaiting a hot meal. Jokingly one lady says, "The highlight of the afternoon was the lunch and, of course, we always came equipped with our knitting or sewing."

A meeting was held on their fortieth anniversary, and there are two original members left — Mrs. Ruth Gallup and Mrs. Evelyn Saffin. The late Mrs. Duncan Kerr was to attend the first meeting, but her daughter, Patsy (who has been a member for several years), was born that day. Patsy (Mrs. Guy Leroux) was at this last gathering, and it doesn't take much counting to guess her age!

Mrs. Myrtle Gallup held this get-together at her home and made a special cake forming the numbers "40", for the occasion. Mrs. Gallup had asked the ladies to try and remember what was the most important improvement during the last 40 years. Some felt it was the removal of the outhouses, but more seriously, most felt it was access to electricity.

They also had 15 minutes to remember the number of births, marriages and deaths in the Pinnacle area — there were 50, 25 and 40 respectively.

Mrs. Gallup says that meetings are still held at least once a month, and there are now twelve members. A small donation is still given by members at every meeting and at the end of the year, this money is given to a worthy cause.

Evelyn Saffin (left) and Ruth Gallup, the first members of the group and Patsy Leroux, who was born on the day of the first Pinnacle District ladies get-together forty years ago, stand behind the 40th anniversary cake.

Ulcer medicine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column about Tagamet being available in the United States. My son is 24 years old and has had a duodenal ulcer for at least four years. I suppose because he is a worrier (inherited from me). He is an accountant and just finished getting his masters degree. Is his ulcer the same as a peptic ulcer?

I would appreciate it if you would send me some information about this new treatment.

DEAR READER — Tagamet, also known as cimetidine, is being used extensively in the treatment of peptic ulcer. By the way duodenal ulcers are one form of peptic ulcer. A peptic ulcer can occur in either the duodenum, which is the first part of the intestine just outside the stomach, or inside the stomach itself. Most ulcers, even if they are called stomach ulcers, are really duodenal ulcers.

Tagamet has a different action from antacids. Basically it inhibits the stomach's ability to form excess amounts of acid rather than neutralizing the overproduction of acids. It was used extensively in England before it was approved in this country and received good reviews there.

I'm certain that your son's doctor knows all about it since Tagamet has been the subject of a heavy promotional campaign both in the lay and medical press. In fact I have seldom seen a medicine given so much promotion and publicity. Perhaps because of this it received unusually rapid approval from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Ordinarily the FDA is rather cautious about approving new medicines until they have been completely evaluated by scientists in the United States.

While it appears that the drug has a very good place in medicine and probably has few side effects, there have been a few warnings. One of these is a suggestion by a Baltimore physician that Tagamet might affect the bone marrow and its ability to produce blood cells. This was discounted by the pharmaceutical firm marketing Tagamet.

However, the doctor's suggestion as published in Lancet Medical Journal raises some questions about how thoroughly the adverse effects of Tagamet have been studied. An earlier question about Tagamet concerned its role in the cause of tumors in rats. However, this data was reviewed by the FDA before they approved the drug for public use. It has also been reported in Lancet that Tagamet was ineffective in stopping bleeding, a complication of peptic ulcers.

I am a bit concerned about the way many medicines produced by drug companies are studied before marketing. Often the scientists and laboratories involved are not totally without bias as often they are investigators one way or another for the drug company involved.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-5, Ulcers: Duodenal, Stomach, which will give you the basic information about ulcers. Others who are interested in this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Tagamet or other medicines are not a substitute for proper living which is essential to the management of all peptic ulcer cases. That includes removal of stress and the eliminations of ulcerogenic habits such as the use of coffee, alcohol and smoking cigarettes.

Honored on birthday

BEEBE — Mrs. Dot Archer was invited by a neighbor, Mrs. Freda Hibbard, to go for a ride in the afternoon. Arriving at the home of Mrs. Della Goodsell, Dot was taken by complete surprise when greeted by 16 guests who had assembled to help her celebrate a birthday.

A social afternoon was spent and the honored guest was presented with many nice gifts, for which she voiced her thanks as well as for the pleasant surprise and hospitality of Mrs. Goodsell.

Miss Leona Shepard made and decorated the special cake which was served with the refreshments at the afternoon tea.

WI Meeting

HATLEY — The regular May meeting of the Hatley Center branch of Quebec Women's Institutes was held at the Community Center. This was a luncheon meeting with invited guests. An Arts and Crafts Show with articles made by the members preceded the business meeting which convened at 2 p.m.

Ten members, eight guests and one child were present. The president, Mrs. J. Johnston was in the chair and the Mary Stewart Collect was repeated in union.

The roll was called by the secretary, Mrs. G. LeBaron which the members answered by giving a helpful hint, a Polly Pointer, naming their favourite magazine or giving a recipe. The minutes were adopted as read by the secretary. The Provincial Convention to be held May 31st and June 1st was noted. The treasurer, Mrs. D. Shaw gave the financial report. Mrs. K. Price, Agriculture Convenor read an article on aromatic gardening and passed around a chart with pictures of herbs and spices and their use. She also gave a recipe for an unusual insecticide consisting of garlic oil and water.

Mrs. R. Vaughan, Citizenship Convenor, moved that $5.00 be forwarded to the fund for replacement of the Land Rover at Lesotho.

Mrs. R. McLellan, Home Economics Convenor, had received the latest copy of the Canadian Consumer Magazine and an article on Micro-Wave ovens was briefly discussed, mentioning the need for careful selection of a safe model.

Plans for the upcoming Rummage Sale were finalized. Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. P. Wilson and Mrs. R. Little offered to donate home-made donuts for the coffee break.

Welfare and Health Convenor, Mrs. Wilson reported that with Mrs. A. Cheal, 100 bunches of daffodils for the Cancer Society had been sold. Members were asked to bring articles for CanSave to the June meeting.

Mrs. R. Vaughan reported on the Community Club meeting and also that the Fashion Show had been a success with satisfactory proceeds.

Mrs. Johnston reported on publicity and the members regretted the cancellation of the McLennan Travelling Library.

The Annual county meeting date was announced as May 10th which was being held at Ayer's Cliff.

The year's programme for the branch was reviewed and will be forwarded to the county secretary.

The June meeting will be a basket tea, when plans for the annual summer outing will be made. The two draws were won by Mrs. Shaw and a guest.

Your Birthday

June 7, 1978

Breaks and opportunities to advance your financial position could pop out of the blue for you this coming year. However, they're intended solely for you if you try to bring in others, they won't work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let a well-meaning friend prevent you from taking advantage of an unusual opportunity that may pop up today. This lucky break won't be here tomorrow. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spur-of-the-moment happenings will turn out to be the most exciting and fun today. Keep your schedule flexible or you might feel neglected if you're left behind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could end up floundering today if you listen to others while ignoring your own intuitive feelings regarding things of a domestic nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take your mind off your career or other weighty matters today. Do something entertaining, different and totally unrelated to your worldly concerns.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Self-doubts should be given second place in your life today. Lady Luck is waiting to pull a few strings for you if she knows she has your trust.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Seriously consider more progressive methods today, rather than adhere to routines for sentimental reasons. Old patterns may be hard to break, but perhaps they should be discarded.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you sense someone is trying to put something over on you today, ask probing questions. Facts will only be revealed through pointed inquiry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep complaints to yourself today. You'll be amazed how quickly others will spot your annoyance and seek ways to alleviate it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A bonus for a job well done may be bestowed upon you today. Someone who has never been a true ally might try to spoil it out of envy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Jump at the chance to do something different today, as Dame Fortune will have her hand in it. There is nothing so important that it can't be done tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Getting yourself in a frenzy over unexpected disruptions today will solve nothing. Try flowing with events. You'll have quite a happy time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) To become careless with possessions or indifferent with work because something more interesting comes along would be a costly mistake.

sents an expert way to find out. It is a variation of the old Culbertson grand slam force.

Specifically, after you ask for aces and follow with a bid of six in a new suit, you want your partner to bid seven if he holds two of the three top trump honors.

Seven hearts makes easily. All South has to do is to draw trumps and claim since dummy will be able to ruff his fourth diamond.

How about all four trumps in one hand? That chance is less than 10 per cent and one anyone is willing to take.

Ask the Experts

A Tennessee reader asks what lead we recommend from:

♦ K 7 2
♥ 8 6
♦ 8 6 4 3 2
♠ 9 7 3

The hand to our right opened one notrump and his partner raised him to game.

We recommend the deuce of spades. Our partner has some cards. We can help him in spades and lead that suit rather than our own diamond.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

How can South bid the grand slam with any confidence?

He can assume that his partner needs both king and queen of hearts for his early bids, or he can check for kings by means of a Blackwood five notrump and bid seven on the theory that even if North does not hold the trump queen the suit will break.

Far better is having some expert method to find out just how good his partner's trumps are.

Cemetery Meeting

On Saturday afternoon, May 27 the annual meeting of the Ascot Corner Cemetery Association was held at the cemetery.

The president, Charles Rolfe, was unable to attend, through illness. The appointed vice-president, Donald Rolfe, took the chair.

The secretary, Evelyn Fearon-Sims reported a successful year, through voluntary work done by interested individuals.

This Cemetery was completely renovated in 1974 by volunteer labour and kind donations. Since then, the volunteer labour has enabled the Association to feel proud of its achievement.

LOBA meets

SAWYERVILLE — The regular meeting of the L.O.B.A. was held on May 23 with the W.M. Sister Marjorie Pinchin presiding. Lodge opened in ritual form and routine business followed.

A report was given on the last two card parties which were successful. A cheque for $110.00 was sent to help the Children's Home in Rosemere.

Sister Theda Lowry was brought before the altar, welcomed and congratulated and given Grand Honors. Sister Lowry was elected to the Office of Grand Treasurer of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Quebec at the Sessions held in Quyon on May 12 and 13. Sister Lowry and Sister Pinchin who had also attended, gave a very good report of the Sessions.

A letter was read in regards to the picnic at the Children's Home on June 24 and several plan to attend. A donation was made to help with expenses of the picnic, also members will take along treats for the children.

Jewels are to be bought for some members. Lodge closed in regular form and all enjoyed lunch and a social time.

Six charged in Moro slaying... guard murdered

ROME (AP) — Two men and a woman shot and killed a prison guard in the northeastern city of Udine today less than 24 hours after the government charged five persons in custody and a sixth still at large with the kidnapping of former premier Aldo Moro.

Police said no group claimed responsibility for the killing immediately, but it was assumed to be the work of the Red Brigades or another ultra-leftist guerrilla organization.

The victim was Sgt. Antonio Santoro, 52, head of the guards in Udine prison. Police said the three killers approached him as he left home for the prison, shot him at close range and escaped in two cars.

In the Moro case, police are still searching for nine other suspects in addition to the six charged.

Enrico Triaca, Teodoro Spadaccini, Giovanni Lugini, Antonio Marini and Gabriella Mariani, all in maximum-security jails to guard against attempts to free them, and fugitive Mario Moretti were charged Monday with kidnapping and assassinating the president of the Christian Democratic party and with killing his five police bodyguards during the kidnapping March 16.

All are believed to be members of the Red Brigades, the terrorist gang which boasted that it seized Moro in a Rome street ambush and killed him seven weeks later after the government refused to free 13 jailed terrorists.

density of the City of Montreal until you've witnessed it from the air, row upon row of houses stretching down a tiny strip of blacktop, virtually breathing down each other's necks.

Circling, we pass over a suburban parking lot crammed with cars that look no bigger than the toys my son plays with in his sandbox in the backyard. To think that cars that small could be such gas guzzlers...

It is raining hard at this elevation now and water begins to leak into the back seat of the helicopter, dripping incessantly onto my shirt but I scarcely feel the inconvenience, particularly as we perform a hairpin turn above the murky waters of the St. Lawrence.

The mighty waters of the river seem to stretch endlessly into the morning haze, dotted here and there with white specks - seagulls dancing on the waves.

Surveying the Jacques-Cartier bridge, Leckner reports back to the station that traffic is at last beginning to clear. Still, there is a quarter-mile backlog of vehicles and I shudder as I imagine the scene a half-hour earlier.

We are cruising along at about 120 miles per hour throughout the ride and it doesn't take long to swoop over the familiar landmarks of the city.

The Olympic Stadium juts out like a porcelain sugar bowl from the East end and westward at Blue Bonnets, the horses are out for an early morning trot, looking like a carousel in the distance.

Soccer fields that appear like table-top games you open on Christmas morning and train yards reduced to the size of the one that you've set up for your son in the basement - all of them are part of the world as seen from these heavens.

"Sorry about the leak," says Leckner as we alight from the chopper and he hurries back to complete his Friday traffic reports.

He hadn't have offered apologies. After all, the closer you get to the clouds the easier it is to get wet.

Pan-African meeting to support Seko

PARIS (AP) — Four European countries and the United States have agreed on joint military and economic action to help keep President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire in power, but the United States balked at planning to assist other African regimes.

A communique issued after 13 hours of talks ended early today said the United States, France, Britain, Belgium and West Germany discussed action "taken or considered" for Zaire's security, and aid "necessary for its recovery and economic and social progress."

TRUDEAU REITERATES BOYCOTT POLICY

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau reiterated his government's policy on the Arab boycott of Israel Monday and urged that Middle East armament funds be redirected to more constructive purposes.

However, the prime minister, in a speech to the closing dinner of the 30th United Jewish Appeal, evaded a suggestion during an introduction by the president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Rabbi Gunther Plaut, that he announce a legislated stand against Canadian companies participating in the boycott.

Instead, he repeated remarks he made to a Jewish audience in Montreal last month, calling participation in the boycott repugnant to the deepest principles by which the country lives.

He also promised to turn the public spotlight on any company refused government trading support because of acceptance of the boycott.

It also said the five countries "brought up the problems of aid that could be provided to African countries desiring to preserve, collectively or individually, their integrity and their development."

No details were given. France wanted a Western-backed pan-African peace force and economic aid to bolster pro-Western African governments threatened by rebels with Russian and Cuban support. But U.S. and European diplomats said the U.S. delegation wanted the talks limited to the immediate problem of Zaire.

The U.S. Air Force is flying 1,500 Moroccan troops to Zaire to replace the French troops and will return the legionnaires to their base on Corsica. The Moroccans are to be joined later by 500 troops from Togo, Gabon, the Central African Empire and perhaps Senegal and the Ivory Coast.

France has about 14,000 other troops in Africa propping up governments in Chad, Djibouti, Mauritania and other former French colonies. The U.S. government estimates there are 38,000 Cuban troops in Africa. As the talks were being held Monday, the French Communist party led a march by 5,000 demonstrators in Paris to protest French military involvement in Africa.

Concordia status shaky

MONTREAL — In spite of a Quebec government promise to absorb Concordia University's deficit of $6 million, accumulated during the past two years, the financial state of the university remains shaky, Concordia's rector, Dr. John O'Brien, warned yesterday.

The rector was addressing the spring convocation of the university's faculty of commerce and administration. He promised to keep his speech short, "in keeping with the financial tradition of the university."

O'Brien allowed that there have been improvements in Concordia's financial situation, but "they close only in part the gap with other universities. We remain the least funded university in the province," he said.

An attempt by the Quebec minister of finance to cut expenditures by paring $18 million from the Quebec university system will aggravate the situation, said the rector, adding that Concordia's share in the cut will be $1 million.

"(Past) deficits will be wiped out," said O'Brien, "but as a result of the cut we will probably have a deficit in the financial year to come."

The rector promised that the university will continue its efforts to convince the provincial government to do something about Concordia's financial situation.

"The outlook is reasonably good that we shall receive some special consideration from the department of education for the coming year," he said.

CNTU attacks PQ

MONTREAL (CP) — In its strongest attack yet on the Parti Quebecois government, the Confederation of National Trade Unions CNTU has rated the Levesque administration a major disappointment and questioned the wisdom of the PQ's independence option.

Trepanier addresses FCM convention

EDMONTON (CP) — While an independent Quebec could be an important country, it is still better off staying within Canada, Paul Trepanier, vice-president of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities and mayor of Granby, said Monday.

"Quebec has a sufficient number of specialists, architects and scientists and could easily do business with French-speaking nations," Trepanier told delegates attending the federation's 41st convention.

Bodies surface in NY rivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as warmer weather is bringing green leaves to Central Park and summer clothing to shoppers on Fifth Avenue, so too are the Hudson, Harlem and East Rivers performing their own rites of spring: They are giving up the dead.

It happens every year as the waters warm up. The bodies float up from the once-icy depths where they remained for the winter.

Fishermen protest pay

ILES-DE-LA-MADELEINE, Que. (CP) — Irate fishermen here are refusing to take to sea, saying the federal government is not paying them enough for their catch.

The fishermen are making 6.5 cents a pound of fish, compared with last year's 8.5 cents. Last year the federal government made up the two-cent difference with subsidies, but has not announced a decision on the payments yet this year.

Treaty hurts fishing derby

HAINES, Alaska (AP) — The American hosts of this community's annual salmon derby say it was one of the best ever-until their Canadian neighbors were tossed out. The Canadians, who came from just across the border in the Yukon Territory and British Columbia, were ordered out of the derby Sunday as a result of the termination of a U.S. - Canadian fishing treaty.

"My God, they're our neighbors," said Dave Olerud, derby chairman. "The damage created internationally probably wasn't as serious as the damage created locally."

Wendy Hyde, a city hall spokesman, said "this is terrible for Haines since the Canadians make up most of the tourists in the city."

TRAFFIC

ditions put a damper on a close approach that morning.

Cars, looking the size of toys, streamed out of both exits of the Louis Hippolyte Lafontaine tunnel as we cut across the St. Lawrence again and flew towards the South-Shore bridges. The Jacques Cartier and Victoria were both bad news with long lineups on the approaches, but the Champlain was relatively clear with an even traffic flow.

In towards the core of the city with rain beading and disappearing from the windshield as Place Ville Marie reached up towards us. We cleared it with a couple of hundred feet to spare, then flew along Westmount mountain, then out to the heliport. It had taken us but 22 minutes to complete the circuit.

The rotor slowed and the landing was as smooth as a butterfly landing on a flower petal.

Rick let us out, apologized for our rain-soaked clothing, and returned to his seat as they took off to do their final checks before returning the craft to the hangar.

Terry, who had cast a most ominous glance at the motion sickness bags which are prominently displayed in front of the passengers as we embarked, smiled and said he'd had a good time and really enjoyed the flight.

I had had some slight misgivings following the first flight attempt and cancellation. We had repaired to the friendly confines of the Montreal Press Club in search of solace when photographer Allan Arless, upon hearing of Terry's scrubbed first flight, offered to take him up in the family Cessna. He even allowed he had always wanted to try and land in the Big O when he was appraised that Terry was going to a ball game that night. Fortunately common sense prevailed. One less sale for Erica Jong.

Seaver pitches fifth straight win

Tom's terrific again. "I think he's the old Seaver, with improvement," says Cincinnati Reds pitching coach Larry Sheppard of right-hander Tom Seaver. "He's been coming on in the last five or six ball games. He's just been fantastic."

The return to form of the Cincinnati ace has been marked by a five-game winning streak, including Monday night's six-hit, 2-1 decision over St. Louis Cardinals.

That improved Seaver's record to 6-4 after a bad start that took him until May 6 to gain his first victory.

While Seaver continued to win, Los Angeles Dodgers were going in an entirely different direction. The defending National League champions lost their fifth straight game, a 9-8 decision to New York Mets.

The defeat was especially galling for the Dodgers, since they led the Mets by 8-2 at one time. The loss kept them 5½ games behind front-running San Francisco in the NL West.

"We're not down too much," said third baseman Ron Cey. "The important thing is to get this thing turned around and start winning. We are in a three-team race now and have to be concerned about both San Francisco and Cincinnati. The way things happened tonight is typical of the way things have been happening all year."

The Giants held on to first place by a half-game over the Reds after a 4-3 loss to Philadelphia Phillies. In other National League games, Chicago Cubs beat Houston Astros 2-1, Atlanta Braves defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4 and Montreal Expos beat San Diego Padres 4-3.

Seaver's victory was achieved with the help of Dan Driessen's RBI single in the eighth inning off Cardinals right-hander Bob Forsch. The Cardinals' run against Seaver was unearned.

Mets 9 Dodgers 8

Bill Russell's wild throw on Doug Flynn's grounder with two outs in the ninth inning enabled Tim Lincecum to score the winning run as New York beat Los Angeles. The Mets scored three times in the ninth off the third Dodgers pitcher, loser Terry Forster.

short notes...

Pitcher appeals decision

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal appeals court ordered a lower court Monday to reconsider a former Philadelphia Phillies pitcher's suit for damages over injuries he alleges were incurred while a member of the National League club's minor league organization in 1971.

Pat Bayless, a right-hand pitcher, accused the Phillies in a 1976 suit of giving him massive doses of pain killers, including Butazolidin, and forcing him to pitch.

Bayless left a Phillies' AA farm club in August, 1971, and subsequently was confined to a mental institution. His suit claimed his mental illness was a direct result of the drugs he was given.

Als' contract woes continue

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) — Montreal Alouettes appear to have resolved contract difficulties with top quarterbacks Sonny Wade and Joe Barnes only to run into signing problems with veteran place-kicker Don Sweet.

Sweet returned to Montreal with other Alouettes who took part in the Canadian Football League all-star game Saturday at Calgary. But he did not report to camp with the other veterans Sunday.

General manager Bob Geary worked on the Sweet and other problems Monday and placed veteran runningback Andy Hopkins on waivers.

Norton, Spinks await WBC ruling

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — If the World Boxing Council is ordered to return its heavyweight crown to Leon Spinks, it could mean cancellation of the Ken Norton-Larry Holmes title fight Friday, the judge hearing Spinks' suit against the WBC was told Monday.

"There will be no fight...if this court issues an injunction ruling that the title be taken away from Norton and given to Leon Spinks," said lawyer Bertram Fields before the federal judge took the issue under submission for a later decision.

Badminton politics...

OTTAWA (CP) — The International Badminton Federation IBF is sitting on a powderkeg because of its refusal to recognize the People's Republic of China, says David Folinsbee, executive-director of the Canadian Badminton Association CBA.

Folinsbee said in an interview Monday that 22 Asian and African nations have defected to the breakaway World Badminton Federation WBF which recognizes China, and not Taiwan, as representatives of the mainland.

Canada might have to re-assess its position if countries such as Japan and Indonesia, who dominate women and men's badminton, jump to the WBF, he said.

CFL special award announced

MONTREAL (CP) — The outstanding player in the Canadian Football League during the last 25 years will receive a special award in early September, Donald W. McNaughton, president and chief executive officer of Canadian Schenley Distilleries Ltd., announced today.

McNaughton made the announcement on behalf of the trustees of the annual awards, also sponsored by the distillery. He said the additional prize, as yet undetermined, would be added for this year only.

The special award will go to the player judged to be the best of the outstanding player winners in the last 25 years and will be a follow-up to the silver anniversary ceremonies which took place here last year during Grey Cup festivities.

MAGOG SOFTBALL

Clement Cote, coach of the Canadian Tire team; Jean Poulin, sponsor of the CTC team and Georges Lussier, Labatt representative for the Magog area. The game ended, 12 to 10 in favor of The Canadian Tire Corp. squad.

White Sox shut out Indians

The baseball pitching fraternity is supposed to be a close-knit group, with even opposing hurlers feeling sympathy for counterparts who are performing well but have little to show for it.

But don't tell that to Steve Stone of Chicago White Sox.

"I don't have a drop of sympathy," said Stone after he outduelled Rick Waits of Cleveland in Chicago's 2-0 victory over the Indians Monday night. Waits has lost his last four starts although he has pitched six-hitters in three of them, including Monday's loss to Stone, who surrendered just three singles.

"I've lost my share of well-pitched games, too, so I can't feel for what happened to him."

Chicago manager Bob Lemon, a former star pitcher with Cleveland Indians, was a bit kinder to Waits.

"They both had command of their stuff, they're good breaking-ball pitchers, and they showed it tonight."

Stone, 6-3, struck out six and walked six and never allowed a Cleveland runner past second base as the White Sox won for the eighth time in the last nine games.

"I had pretty good stuff after the early innings," said Stone. "I struggled for a while but suddenly it was there."

Waits was annoyed at giving up Bill Nahorodny's two-run double in the fourth inning.

"When I have stuff like that, I should throw a shutout," he noted. "The ball Nahorodny hit may have been a little up but it looked like he goofed it and it seemed to have overspin. Those are a little discouraging, but I'll just keep pitching and hope things turn around."

In other American League action, Oakland A's beat Boston Red Sox 9-7, Seattle Mariners upset New York Yankees 7-3 and Baltimore Orioles defeated California Angels 6-2 in 10 innings.

A's 9 Red Sox 7

Oakland built an 8-1 lead, then withstood Boston's furious rally behind homers by Jim Rice, Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson before 36,463 fans on half-price night.

Wayne Gross contributed a double and two singles to a 13-hit attack for the A's while Rice, who had hit a homer in the last seven games, slammed his 19th, tops in the majors.

Seattle 7 New York 3

Seattle broke a seven-game winless string and handed the Yankees their sixth loss in seven games. Ruppert Jones and Juan Bernhardt had three hits apiece and Lee Stanton homered for Seattle, while New York's Paul Blair and Thurman Munson hit home runs.

DOPING SCANDAL ROCKS WORLD CUP SOCCER

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The 1978 World Cup soccer finals, rocked by a doping scandal involving Scottish player Willie Johnston, moved back into playing action today amid hopes that the unhappy incident will be forgotten.

Johnston is being sent home, his international playing career at an end after he admitted taking two stimulants before Saturday's match against Peru, which Scotland lost 3-1.

The scandal — only the second occasion on which a player in the World Cup finals has been found taking drugs — surfaced when a random dope test on Johnston after the Peru match registered a positive result.

Even before the International Football Federation (FIFA) had time to consider the affair, Scottish Football Association secretary Ernie Walker announced that Johnston was being sent home as soon as possible and that he would never again play for Scotland.

FIFA may yet impose further sanctions on Johnston, but is not expected to meet to discuss the affair until next week.

FOUR GAMES TODAY

While Johnston, 31, bows out in disgrace from a tournament in which he was expected to be a major star, the second series of matches begins today with four games in Groups 1 and 2.

Reigning champion West Germany makes three changes from the team that struggled to a scoreless draw in the opening match against Poland for its second game against Mexico.

Dieter Mueller, top scorer in the West German league last season, and aggressive winger Karl-Heinz Rummenigge come into a revamped 4-3-3 lineup in the hope of adding more punch to the listless German attack.

Manager Helmut Schoen, who has already said that he does not believe his present team is good enough to win the cup again, says he will not make the mistake of underestimating the Mexicans, who made that blunder themselves when beaten 3-1 by Tunisia.

"We know Mexico can play better and therefore we are prepared for a very difficult game," said Schoen.

Espo looks forward to Shero takeover

NEW YORK (AP) — It was June, the sun was shining brightly and Phil Esposito was happy.

All the disappointments, the injuries, the lack of production of the previous season seemed to have disappeared for Esposito, captain of New York Rangers. He was looking forward to next season and the debut of Fred Shero as coach of the National Hockey League club.

"Fred did wonders with the Philadelphia Flyers," said Esposito of the man Madison Square Gardens hired last week to revive the sagging Rangers — a last-place team in the Patrick Division the last three seasons. "That team won because of him."

"He handles the bench as well as anybody I've ever seen, and that includes Harry Sinden, who was the best coach I ever played for. Harry did a super job for us in Boston but I was really impressed with Shero."

"During the all-star game last year, he had everything so organized," added Esposito, the greatest single-season point producer in NHL history. "He said everybody would play one-minute shifts and they did. And we all played better because of it."

SHOOK HIS HAND

"After the game, I went up and shook hands with him. I had to — he did such a super job. And I never shake hands with the coaches like that."

Since Shero was hired last week by the Rangers, there has been talk that Esposito might be forced to relinquish his captaincy or perhaps even be dealt away because he does not fit the Shero mold.

The 36-year-old centre was non-committal on the captaincy but scoffed at a trade possibility.

"I have two years left on my contract plus an option for a third, at my option, which means I'll be here for the next three years," he said. "Fred is a progressive coach and he'll build a team in his style. I can play his system — we all can."

Padres 4-3

MONTREAL (CP) — Pitcher Rudy May of Montreal Expos had to cope with cold weather and low-run production for the first time in several weeks but, nevertheless, moved his National League baseball record to 6-5 with a 4-3 triumph over San Diego Padres Monday night.

Andre Dawson socked a two-run home run in the second inning and the Expos added single runs in the seventh and eighth innings for the victory.

In his last two outings, May's team-mates gave him a total of 24 runs to work with and the games were played in temperatures at or near 30 degrees.

"They're not going to score a lot of runs for me every time we go out," May said. "I feel that sometimes I'm going to have to win the close ones too."

At game time on Monday the temperature was 13 and the cool conditions were the biggest problem for the lanky left-hander.

"The main thing that made it hard to work was that it was cold tonight."

"I didn't really prepare for a cold evening to pitch and, consequently, as the game went on it was harder for me to grip the ball. It affected my control on my curve ball and that's why I stayed with a lot of change-ups."

TWO TOUGH INNINGS

In spite of the control problem, May was in trouble in only two innings — the second and ninth.

He gave up four consecutive hits in the second but only one run, thanks to sharp fielding on the part of Warren Cromartie.

Gene Tenace led off with a double and scored on a single by Derrel Thomas. Bill Almon then singled to move Thomas to second.

When Thomas tried to score on a single to left by Dave Roberts, Cromartie fired a strike to Gary Carter and caught Thomas at the plate.

After walking the first two batters in the ninth, May was lifted for reliever Mike Garman. Garman got pinch-hitter Jerry Turner to hit into a double play, gave up a run-scoring single to Dave Winfield and struck out Tenace to end the game.

Cromartie, reported Monday on the verge of being traded to San Francisco Giants for pitcher Jim Barr, also responded with two hits and scored the winning run in the eighth.

Montreal manager Charlie Fox admitted he had talked trade with the Giants but said the teams were not close on a deal.

Centre-fielder Dawson, the National League Rookie of the Year in 1977, was the offensive star of the game with his two-run blast. He also scored the third Montreal run in the seventh.

INVERNESS

C.W. McVetty
453-2266
The past week has been a sad and tragic week in this area. On Sunday, last, the seating capacity of St. Andrew's Church here was completely inadequate to accommodate those who from many different sections of the Eastern Townships came to pay their last respects to a wonderful friend, in the person of the late Mrs. Lorne Kelso, who had passed away suddenly at her home here on May 18. To add to the poignancy of the day word had come around earlier in the day that Mr. Leonard Guy, of Kinross Mills had died suddenly. Then on Wednesday — only three days later — many of the same group, with the immediate family of Mr. Guy, attended his funeral services in Candlish United Church at Kinross Mills. The communities in which the two deceased lived have had much in common during much of the past one hundred and twenty-five years, but never has that real companionship been better exemplified than in the widespread and sincere feelings of mutual loss apparent at these two services. It must be a measure of comfort to those who mourn that so many wish to join with them in their sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little of Sand Hill, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little and attended the funeral services of Mrs. Lorne Kelso.

Mrs. Dora Henderson was remembered nicely on the occasion of her birthday when her four daughters, Mrs. Planche, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. Ken Nugent, Mrs. Vic Lowry and her granddaughter, Miss Cheryl Lowry, with her sons-in-law, Mr. John Evans and Mr. Vic Lowry paid her a surprise visit to express their best wishes. Her many other friends wish her many happy returns of that special day.

Mrs. Martha McVetty, Mrs. Pearl Marshall and several friends, of Lennoxville, called at Reedsdale for a short visit on Sunday afternoon.

The sympathy of the people for miles around is being expressed to the members of the Breton family in the death of their sister, Rita, Mrs. Leandre (Larry) Poulin, of Theford Mines, who passed away at the Theford Mines Hospital on May 27 after much suffering.

The condition of Rita's brother, Willie, in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, in Arthabaska, is encouraging, and it is expected that he will be home before long.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?

Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.

When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?

Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is

- (A) made or grown in Canada and
 - (B) of equal or better value and quality.
- That's not just good advice... it's good sense.

What is made in Canada?

Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.

As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.

Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?

Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.

If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.

Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?

Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I." or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabrique au Quebec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."

The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.

And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

This ad was made in Canada. Making this ad employed (for a period of time) a writer, an art director, an account executive, a media buyer, a media planner, a typesetter, an engraver, a platemaker, a traffic operator, several switchboard operators, various mailmen, shippers and secretaries, publication reps, publication make-up people, not to mention all their various suppliers.

Everyone of these people lives and works in Canada.
