Fifty-Fourth Year

MASSIVE NORTH KOREAN ATTACK AWAITED

World News In Brief

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Bernard Zavadnyk, 35-year-old Yugoslav displaced person, died Saturday night after slashing his throat in an basement bedroom in the suburban Eastview home of Frank Pullman, Zavadnyk's landlord and employer.

Pullman, a tailor, who said he entered Zavadnyk's room just as Zavadnyk slashed his throat with a straight razor, recalled that Zavadnyk had tried repeatedly to get his wife, Josepha, and two children, a 10-year-old boy and a seven-year-old daughter, out of Yugoslavia.

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 14.—(P)—Constantin Tsaldaris formally proposed today that western European governments begin immediate negotiations for a unified army.

He asked the European council's consultative assembly to entrust its president, Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, with carrying out the first preliminary steps.

Manila, Aug. 14.—(P)—Twenty persons were reported dead today as the rain-swollen Agno river flooded miles of rice lands in the north end of the Luzon plain. Damage to crops, bridges and roads is estimated at $1,000,000 in Pangasinan province alone.

Baie St. Paul, Que., Aug. 14.—(P)—Flames last night burst out of control in a thickly wooded area of this Charlevoix county region and already have destroyed 10 square miles of virgin timber. Two hundred volunteers are fighting the fire located northwest of this St. Lawrence river north shore town about 65 miles downriver from Quebec City.

Calcutta, India, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Calcutta Express "Cyclone" to new Delhi smashed into a freight train near Moghulserai today, killing 20 persons and injuring 110 others. Reports received here said the wreck was caused by saboteurs.

London, Aug. 14.—(Reuters)—The King and Queen have put down "stern parental feet" on the activities of 19-year-old Princess Margaret and decreed that she must not have so much publicity, says a gossip columnist in today's Sunday Pictorial. The new policy forced the Princess to cancel at least two dance engagements recently, the writer says.

Nancy, France, Aug. 14.—(Reuters)—Winston Churchill was cheered here Saturday by 10,000 Frenchmen as he received the freedom of the city. He addressed the vast crowd in the main square.

Cuzco, Peru, Aug. 14.—(P)—A truck carrying 50 persons overturned yesterday between Cuzco and Sicuani, killing 21 of the passengers and injuring most of the others. Authorities said the driver was intoxicated.

U.S. Superforts Hit City Only 17 Miles From Siberia

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Aug. 14.—(P)—The United States has given Russia a new and unmistakable token of its determination to fight the Korean war even at the risk of open Soviet intervention.

A mission of American air force Superfortresses, in a strike on a North Korean city, dropped more than 500 tons of bombs so close to Russian Siberia—17 miles—that the distant rumble of the attack probably was heard across the border.

This week-end bombing mission to the North Korean port city of Najin was one of the most daring and delicate operations of the war. The difference between putting a bomb down on a North Korean target or, through accident and error in navigation, having them fall on Soviet territory was a matter of about five minutes flying time.

But there was an even greater calculated risk. How would Russia react to the appearance of American planes, bombed and armed for combat, so close to her doorstep?

There was this to remember: April 8, before there was any shooting anywhere in a different part of the world, four Russian fighters shot down a U.S. navy patrol plane over the waters of the open Baltic. The attack occurred more than 30 miles from the

Communists All Bow To Moscow Rule

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

A young woman from Cincinnati wants guidance. She is told to fear communism, but: "I don't know what communism is, so how can I fear it or fight it. What is communism?"

Let's have a go at it. Present-day communism mustn't be confused with the original which was conceived long ago. The old brand was in many respects a beneficent ideology. It abolished all private property and set up a community in which everyone shared equally in everything. In some cases even wives were shared.

Soviet communism, or bolshevism, is humanitarian in scope and it is militant. The fountain head is Moscow. Countries which become communist must abandon nationalism and surrender their sovereignty to Moscow. Their allegiance belongs there.

Beneficent aspects of the old-time communism have been prostituted to fit the propaganda needs of a Russian imperialism which openly seeks world domination. Thus current communism is a new ideology created to meet a new situation.

Communism is the opposite of capitalism and private initiative, such as exists in democratic countries. The state controls all resources and means of production. There is regimentation of the individual in all activities. The completeness of this is shown in the fact that even artists, scientists, dramatists, and what not must subscribe. They can't produce anything which doesn't glorify communism or add to Red prestige.

Individuality is largely swallowed up by the state. Those who evade regimentation are "purged"—that is, they are punished—perhaps sent to labor camps, to prison, or even to death. Those who serve the country best are rewarded in various ways and may become famous.

When communism came to power in Russia through the revolution of 1917, it established the "Third International," or comintern, which was known as the general staff for world revolution. It now is called the cominform.

The object of the cominform was to carry revolution to every country in the world, to establish communist governments. This was undertaken by Red agents whom we call fifth columnists.

It's important to note that the Red leaders laid it down that every revolution must be accompanied by violence and bloodshed. This was to impress the importance of the event on the minds of the proletariat.

That's why there has been violence in all the countries which have been taken over by the Reds.

Americans Recapture Slopes On Eastern Side Of Nakdong River—Situation Unchanged In Other Sectors.

Tokyo, Aug. 14.—(P)—North Korean communists massed 60,000 men tonight for a drive against Taegu, the South Korean republic's emergency capital in the heart of the central warfront.

The big, imminently-threatening force rallied near Waegwan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu. It is believed to be the most effective mass drawn from 15 divisions—150,000 men—the communists had shoved up to the long, curling battleline. And it greatly outnumbers anything the allies have to oppose them.

A Red attack down the Taejon-Taegu mountain valley corridor was expected momentarily. Tuesday is the fifth anniversary of the liberation of Korea from Japan. Such anniversaries are likely occasions in Oriental reckoning for demonstrations of strength.

As the North Korean thousands assembled west of the Nakdong river, American troops recaptured muddy slopes on the allied eastern side of the stream from some of the 12,000 Reds who crossed the river at Changnyong, 23 miles south of Taegu.

The United States 24th Division, moving up behind 45-ton Pershing tanks, attacked the river-crossers at dawn Monday. They shoved the North Koreans back from 1,000 yards to a mile along a flaming six-mile-long sector on the allied eastern bank of the river.

The attacking Americans were met by a hail of fire from high-velocity weapons. The North Koreans in the heights outnumbered the Americans. The enemy has been trying to break out of a six-mile bulge around Changnyong for eight days. The original North Korean 4th infantry division that crossed the river there has been reinforced.

Early Monday night U.S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said the attacking Americans at Changnyong had attained their primary objectives. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said the attack was "proceeding satisfactorily."

American army and navy planes and the Royal Australian Air Force poured a crushing weight of bombs and rockets on the communist invaders.

But for all its ferocity, the Changnyong fighting was described by a general officers at MacArthur's headquarters as probably secondary to the "critical area" which extends 20 miles north and south of the town of Waegwan, 32 miles north of Changnyong.

The communists have put four elite divisions on the Waegwan line just 12 air miles northwest of Taegu, the South Korean republic's emergency capital. Two other North Korean divisions were behind them with armor to exploit the breakthrough the Reds expect to make against the United States 1st Cavalry Division and South Korean forces.

Intelligence officers said the communists are expected to strike out momentarily from the Waegwan area for Taegu. Both the Changnyong river crossing, to the south, and the attack of Pohang, No. 2 Korean port on the east coast, were designed to immobilize as much American and South Korean strength as possible, intelligence officers said.

The Waegwan central front communists keep throwing out probing arms, hunting for weak spots in the long line.

The United States 1st Cavalry Division, caught 500 communists crossing the Nakdong near Waegwan early Monday. The Cavalry killed or wounded 300 of them and most of the remainder fled back across the river. Some Reds took refuge in the hills and Cavalry patrols were hunting them.

A general staff officer said the situation north and west of Pohang, the Korea east coast port, was "generally satisfactory." He said the North Koreans at Pohang had been successful in forcing U.S. and South Korean troops to fight "a holding action." They also prevented the American air force from using the new and important fighter plane field six miles south of Pohang at Yongil.

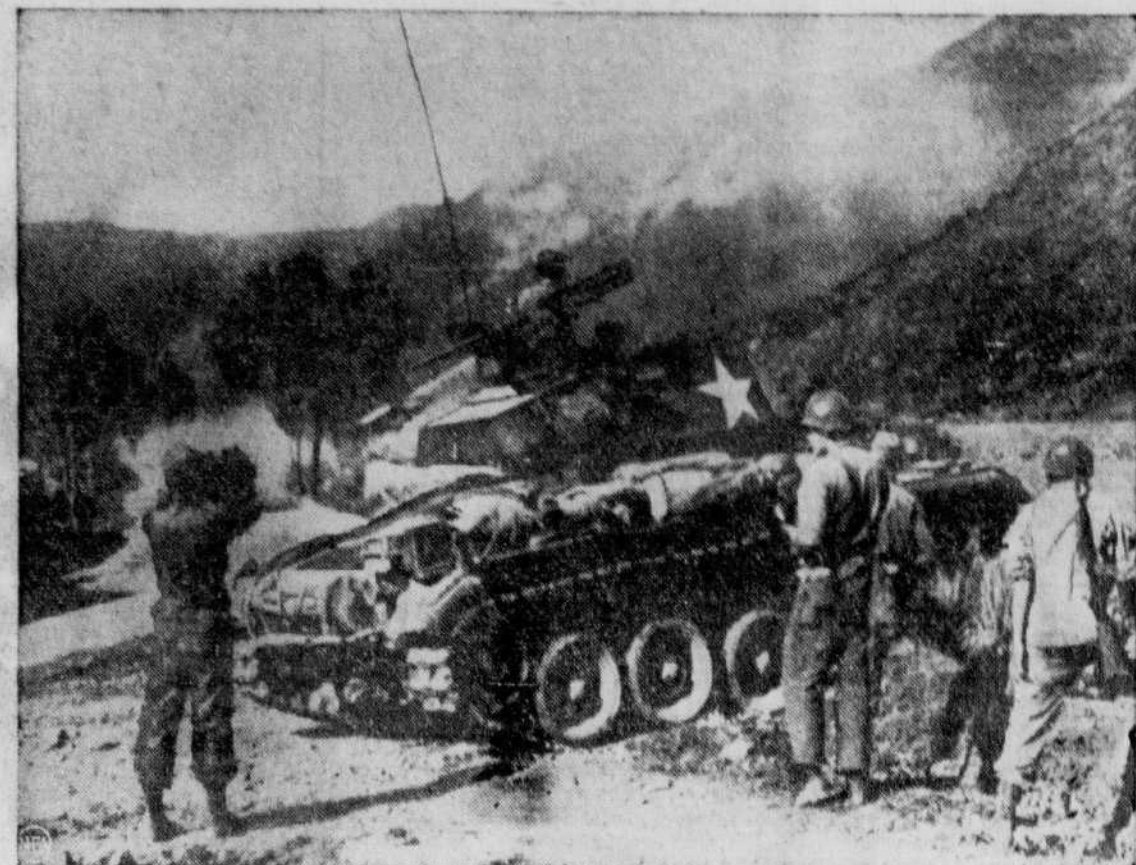

American tanks and infantry still held the Pohang airstrip. A Red battalion was in possession of Pohang port.

North and South Koreans fought minor battles in the Pohang area. On the south coast front, American Marines moved into high ground overlooking the rubble city of Chinhae.

The Chinhae heights were the objective of the Marine and army task force which splintered and dispersed the crack North Korean

London, Aug. 14.—(P)—Princess Elizabeth, expecting a second baby any day now, played with her son, Prince Charles, on the lawn of Clarence House today.

After 15 minutes with the little Prince, who is 21 months old today, the Princess retired into her four-story home.

The King arrived at Balmoral, Scotland, for his annual grouse-hunting trip. Arrangements were made to telephone him of the new baby's arrival. The Queen remained in London.

Yesterday Princess Elizabeth left home to lunch with the King and Queen. This surprised the crowds who had been waiting outside for word on the new baby.

With her husband, Prince Philip, at the wheel of their new green Rolls Royce, the Princess drove the short distance from Clarence House to Buckingham Palace.

Only a few bystanders saw the Royal couple leave, but word spread fast and when Princess Elizabeth returned to Clarence House early in the afternoon, thousands stood cheering in the sunlit Mall.

The Princess waved cheerfully. She was dressed in a summer frock and appeared in high spirits.

A few hours earlier she had been visited by Sir William Gilliat and Sir John Weir, her physicians. Buckingham Palace said it was a routine check.

New Rocket Is Used By U.S. Planes

Tokyo, Aug. 14.—(P)—The "Tiny Tim," a big new American 11.75-inch rocket, was used yesterday for the first time in real combat. Results were reported good.

Fired from a carrier-based United States navy Corsair fighter plane, one of the armor-piercing rockets knocked out a bridge at Chungju, 90 miles northwest of Taegu, in its first war test, an announcement from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

Other Corsairs using the Tiny Tim destroyed 13 enemy locomotives, damaged 23 more, blasted eight cars of ammunition, set two fuel-oil trains afire and strafed seven cars loaded with communist soldiers.

The Tiny Tim is the second new rocket-launcher introduced in the Korean war. The first was the 3.5-inch fired only from the ground. Both new ones are outgrowths of the original 2.36 bazooka developed during the Second World War.

The 2.36 and 3.5 are fired without recoil from a shouldered tube that looks like a kid's bazooka humming instrument.

Despite its name, said a navy spokesman, the rocket is "neither tiny or timid." It has high explosive quality. Apparently it is the most powerful rocket-type weapon carried by plane in combat.

A timely change from bad to good weather played an important role in Sunday's air work.

Alexander Lands Largest Trout

Jasper, Alta., Aug. 14.—(P)—Jasper's champion angler so far this season is none other than Governor-General Viscount Alexander, holidaying at his mountain resort.

The Governor-General yesterday landed a 16-inch-long eastern brook trout in the Maligne river—best catch of the season from these waters.

Under regulations of the Canadian National Maligne River Anglers' Club, he automatically qualified for the bronze membership button. He will wear the club's gold button if his catch isn't topped.

There was no picture of the Governor-General and his prize catch. He and his party enjoyed it for supper the same day.

Further Railway Offer Considered

Montreal, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Gazette says in a newspaper story today a rumor is being circulated among railway union officials that the railway companies would make another offer, possibly today, including definite dates when the 40-hour week and other demands of the unions would be introduced.

Meanwhile, however, arrangements for a wage-hour strike by 124,000 railway employees in the non-operating trades set for 6 a.m. Aug. 22 were concluded by union officials.

The Gazette says both Frank Hall, chairman of the joint negotiating committee of the 15 international unions involved, and a spokesman for the two Canadian unions concerned said there was still time for a settlement and the two leaders expressed hope the rumors of the new offer by the companies were true.

Temperature Goes Down To 456 Below

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—(P)—How cold can it get?

The National Research Council has installed new equipment which will get it just about that cold. "That cold" is absolute zero—about 460 degrees below Fahrenheit—and the equipment is a gadget called the Collins helium cryostat, manufactured at the research and engineering laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., in Cambridge, Mass.

The reason is gets so cold is that the gadget liquefies helium, one of the hardest of all gases to liquefy. The temperature in this process goes down to 456 below—just four degrees short of absolute zero.

The equipment, according to an N.R.C. announcement, "provides a readily-available source of very low temperatures for the study of chemical and physical reactions."

This apparently means that at the low temperatures, lab experiments work better because they are not disturbed by "thermal agitation" or room temperatures.

"When matter is so cold that the molecules almost stop moving, many strange properties appear," the announcement said. "If an electric current is started in a metal ring, it will continue to flow indefinitely, with the ring showing no electrical resistance."

"Liquid helium at low temperatures has no viscosity at all, so that if a beaker of it is set to swirling it will continue to swirl for a very long time. For this same reason, it will creep up the sides of the beaker and down the outside, so that it appears to dribble out of the bottom. Many materials change their color at temperatures close to absolute zero. Just why these things happen scientists don't know, but they hope to find out eventually."

Significance of extreme low-temperature research is indicated by the 1949 award of the Nobel prize in chemistry for work at temperatures close to absolute zero.

Helium was first liquefied at Leiden, Holland, in 1908, but because it was so difficult and expensive such an extensive amount of equipment, little work was done in this field. After the Second World War the Cambridge concern undertook development work on simplified helium liquefaction systems under the direction of Dr. S. G. Collins of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Dr. H. O. McMahon of Arthur D. Little, Inc.

The new gadget is available and simple, and the N.R.C. feels it will lead to a better understanding of the fundamental laws of matter.

Thinking about it may make the nonscientist, seeking to evade the summer heat, feel a bit happier.

Come to think of it, it might be a good gadget to consider next winter, too, when it's 456 below. You could be thankful you aren't liquefying helium at minus 456.

U.S. Government Issues Anti-A-Bomb Instructions

By FRANK CAREY

Washington, Aug. 14.—(P)—Five years after the explosion of the first atomic bomb, the United States government has come out with some specific instructions on what to do if one hits your city.

They are contained in a big book "The Effects of Atomic Weapons" released during the week-end by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The book has some down-to-earth sections on what a citizen should do in the event of an explosion.

Here are some tips: The first thing to remember is that if a bomb goes off, the burst will be about 100 times as bright as the sun.

Don't worry about recognizing it. One A.E.C. official, in discussing an atomic explosion, told reporters: "If you are not dead already, you will recognize it when it has gone off."

Don't look toward the source of the light.

If you're caught out in the open, with no shelter of any kind within a step or two, drop instantly to the ground, and curl up so as to shade your bare arms, hands, neck and face. Hold that position for at least 10 seconds.

This will not protect you from atomic "rays"—if they reach your area—but it may save you from a disabling burn from the bomb's tremendous heat, which radiates over a considerable area.

Record Crowds Are Reported As Waterloo Fair Comes To A Close

By LOUIS CASSAR

Waterloo, Aug. 14.—Fine weather and record crowds brought the Waterloo Fair to the most successful climax in its history yesterday. About 6,000 people passed through the main gates Sunday afternoon, and a crowd equally as large was on hand last evening.

Highlighting the Fair's close was the drawing for the 1950 Chevrolet car before the grandstand on Sunday evening. Little Miss Gagne, of Waterloo, drew the lucky ticket which gave Georges Guisnon, of Roxton Falls, the new $2,000 car.

The number on the winning ticket was 14633, and was sold to Guisnon by his uncle, Georges Guisnon, a director of the Fair.

Judging in most livestock classes was completed on Friday, with prize poultry and horses chosen the following day.

Saturday was designated Red and White Day, with cattle of the Ayrshire breed holding the judging spotlight in the afternoon. A grand parade of all prize winning animals, along with the new cars, tractors and other equipment on display in the commercial building, was held Saturday afternoon.

We understand sportsmen, their desires and needs, and as most sportsmen desire the best in equipment, we carry only the better lines.

117th Battalion Veterans Hold Annual Reunion

J. F. Barber, M.M., secretary-treasurer of East Clifton for the last 19 years, Saturday was elected president of the 117th Eastern Townships Overseas Battalion Association at the annual reunion held at the Chateau Frontenac.

The reunion, which took the form of a dinner, was one of the best attended since the Association was formed and was highlighted by an address by Roy W. K.C. of Montreal, who was sergeant-major instructor for the battalion when it was in training at Valcartier before the First World War.

The veterans approved a motion to be sent to the National Defence Department offering the services of the total membership in the Canadian defence chiefs and offering "any other service they are able to perform for their country in this present time of unrest."

It was suggested that Association members might be used as key men for any organization work that might be requested by the government.

Mr. Wherry's subject was "Service Not Self," and he said there should be no "ex-service" men among those who served in action with the forces. Servicemen should continue to serve their country and community after they leave the forces.

Mr. Wherry deplored the tendency to stage strikes, criticizing groups of labor which strive to climb over their fellow men, irrespective of the fact that they bring about inflation, and giving no thought to how their fellow men survive.

"It is simply the worship of the golden cow," he said. "The history of the beautiful Eastern Townships does not show that our forefathers adopted this attitude. Their thoughts were of service to the community and to their fellow men."

Strikes and discord, said Mr. Wherry, are what Stalin wants. A better living, he said, can be obtained peacefully without strikes.

"We must forget the worship of the golden cow and give service to our community and country and not be 'ex-service' men."

During the meeting a blanket donated by Tom Cockburn, of Granby, went to Ed. Curtis, of Stanstead, while the blanket offered to the youngest daughter of a member, both being present, was won by Iris Dingman, of Magog.

In addition to the president, officers elected were:

Honorary president, Lt.-Col. J. H. Boutelle, of Danville; honorary vice-presidents, Lieut. R. D. Farley, of Drummondville and Cpl. G. A. Johann, of Coaticook; 1st vice-president, James Anderson, of Sherbrooke; 2nd vice-president, Sgt. Fred Taylor, of Coaticook; secretary, treasurer, Sgt.-Major Ed. Kingsland, of Magog.

Honorary committee: Lt.-Col. A. Whitehead, of Bury; Lt.-Col. H. A. Robinson, of Sawyerville; Sgt. Ray P. Adams, of West Lebanon, N.H.; St. Leslie Shaw, Concord, N.H.

Executive: Capt. J. A. McCallum, Danville; Sgt. Fred Taylor, Coaticook; Cpl. Ed. Parker, Owen Sound, Ont.; Pte. Edward Curtis, Stanstead; Pte. Charles V. Smith, of Bishopton.

Judges were Bert Osmond, Granby; A. Laranger, Granby, and J. E. Blackwood, Knowlton, and race timers were Ray Demers, Lennoxville; Dr. H. Archambault, Valcourt, and H. E. Wallace, Knowlton.

A starting gate from St. Hyacinthe was used for all harness races during the three day fair.

Special drawings and awards took place Sunday night before the capacity grandstand audience. J. J. Savage, of South Stukely, won the special Sherbrooke Record drawing which gave him a year's free subscription to the paper. A silver cup for the best herd of Holstein shown at the Fair was awarded to Marshall Miller, of Brome, and a silver tray went to around the race track and again the following afternoon.

Cash prizes totalling $210 were awarded for the best maple syrup and maple sugar at the Fair, and all were donated by Lussier and Son, of Waterloo. The winners' list is as follows: Maple syrup: 1. R. D. Hammond, Waterloo; 2. H. Robitaille, Valcourt; 3. O. A. Ares, Waterloo; 4. D. H. Dufour, Glen Sutton; 5. P. Ares, Waterloo. Maple sugar: 1. P. Ares, Waterloo; 2. O. M. George, South Stukely; 3. C. B. McLaughlin, Knowlton; 4. O. Ares, Waterloo; 5. A. C. Robert, Warden.

One of the major events of the fair was the horse show on Saturday night which was held in the large indoor arena. Many horses from the neighboring communities participated.

Following are the results:

Potato Race: 1. Robert Miller, Brome; 2. Arthur Fontaine, Fulford; 3. George Chartier, Granby; 4. Jimmy Gibson.

Gen's Saddle Horse: 1. John Peters, Magog; 2. Miss Pouliot, Magog; 3. Miles Richard, Foster; 4. J. J. Irwin, Waterloo.

Dr. R. H. Stevenson Is Honored At Special Celebrations At Danville

By MARGARET DOHERTY

Danville, August 14.—Saturday, August 12, will go down in the annals of this little Eastern Township town as one of the proudest and most glorious days in its history.

The occasion was "Dr. Stevenson Day" and some 2,000 people from Danville and surrounding communities turned out to honor the 71-year-old country doctor, celebrating 50 years of service to the medical profession. The tall, energetic physician is credited with bringing 2,000 babies into the world, after which he lost count.

One of the highlights of the afternoon took the spectators back to the early days of the doctor's practice. To the accompaniment of applause and cheers from the grandstand, Dr. Stevenson and his wife drove up and down the track, the doctor driving a horse and buggy as he did so many times in the old days.

Between four and five hundred of his babies, ranging from 200 pounds to babies in arms, paraded before him on the Fair Grounds. The parade was led by William Sparks, a husky six-footer and Dr. Stevenson's first baby, who pushed a carriage bearing one of the latest arrivals, tiny Karen Frost.

Dr. G. D. Kilpatrick, chairman of the Protestant Committee of the Quebec Council of Education, of which Dr. Stevenson is a member, was the main speaker during the ceremonies.

"Today the world is in a sorry state and the times are out of joint," Dr. Kilpatrick said, "and in the general striving for wealth and power, we are apt to become cynical and to wonder if there will ever be a day of brotherhood and peace, until we see a small countryside and its surrounding district rise up to pay tribute to a man who never thought of worldly power or the praises of men and we feel that all is not dark."

"Dr. Stevenson deserves all the honor and tribute you can pay to him," the speaker continued, "for he has made a gentleman's agreement with life, to put more into it than he takes out."

"His entire life has been based on three things," said Dr. Kilpatrick. "First of all, his work. Next alone determined the doctor's coming and going; where need existed there he was. The second factor which motivated his career was love, the love of his great profession and of his people, with no thought of material gain. His reward has been found in the trust, friendship and answering love of those people. The final factor was faith—in men and in God."

The speaker referred to Dr. Stevenson as the father of the biggest family in the world, the wealthiest and the most loved.

Wishing him many more years to his labor of love among his people, Dr. Kilpatrick said in conclusion, "I am indeed proud today to pay my tribute to Robert Hall Stevenson, great doctor, great citizen, great friend."

Dr. Stevenson spoke briefly, thanking his people for their tangible expression of gratitude and appreciation, and saying that he had done no more than his duty as a general practitioner, that he had enjoyed his life in Danville immensely and that through all the years he continued to be struck by the extraordinary kindness of its citizens. He also referred to his wife, pointing out the invaluable assistance and co-operation which he had received from her throughout his long career.

Addresses were made by E. O. Gignas and Albert Goudreau, the district's Member of Parliament and Member of the Legislative Assembly, who both congratulated the guest of honor on his achievements, referred to the untiring devotion of Dr. Stevenson, and wished them continued health and happiness in the love and esteem of their fellowmen.

Rev. C. W. Foggo acted as chairman of the meeting and presentations to Dr. Stevenson were made by the Mayor of Danville, Dr. G. Letendre, a fellow physician, with whom Dr. Stevenson has worked in close association for 45 years.

"We have worked together not only as friends, but as brothers," Dr. Letendre said, "and it is with the utmost pleasure that I see my confrere's years of sacrifice and untiring devotion rewarded on this day."

Travelling bags, a reclining chair and ottoman and a purse were presented to Dr. Stevenson. C. McGaw, representing the Canadian Johns-Manville Company, announced that a room in the new company clinic at Asbestos, will be named after the doctor with a bronze plaque suitably inscribed. A silver plaque, in recognition of his services in the field of education, was placed in the new Danville-Asbestos school.

Mr. Foggo, stating that "flow-ers are the most eloquent symbol of affection," called upon Beverly Lodge to present Mrs. Stevenson with a bouquet of red roses.

Earlier in the day games were played, and races run, to the accompaniment of the Asbestos Harmony Band, which also played for the parade of Dr. Stevenson's babies. Ten-year-old Nancy Stevenson, granddaughter of the guest of honor won two races and came second in another, while another grandchild, Bobby Thomas, won a special prize for finishing last in a race. These two children, along with Bobby's sister, Barbara, sat on the platform with Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, listening the addresses and presentation.

Robert J. Currie, manager of the Dominion Paper Company, Kinross Falls, acted as announcer for the games, following the picnic lunch which was enjoyed on the large grounds.

Members of the committee, responsible for the success of the day were Cyril Foggo and Dr. G. Letendre, co-chairman of the entire celebration; W. S. Hamilton and J. A. Roux, finance committee; J. H. Bontelle and Adolphe Brassard, publicity committee; R. L. Currie, general committee; N. Henry Smith, J. Oscar Grimard, sports; W. A. Olney, grounds committee; D. M. Smith, of Kinross Falls, secretary, and H. E. Lockwood, general committee.

Fontainebleau Resident Dies In Car Crash

Thirty-eight-year-old Sylvio Bourque from Fontainebleau met his death Saturday, in a car accident which took place on the road to Gould. Two other passengers were badly injured and the fourth only slightly.

Mr. Bourque, who was in the back seat suffered a fractured skull when the car missed a curve and drove into a field. Taken to the Hotel Dieu he died shortly after the accident which took place at 1:30. An inquest was held later in the same day under the supervision of Dr. Louis Gagnon. The verdict was accidental death.

R. Dulude, driver of the car which was a Fontainebleau taxi, hit the windshield as did Roch Gagne, of Weedon, and is still in the St. Vincent de Paul hospital where he was taken Saturday. His condition is reported favorable.

The fourth passenger, A. Laprise, also of Fontainebleau, was knocked unconscious but suffered no injuries.

Ontario led eastern Canada's week-end death toll, claiming 22 of the 34 persons accidentally killed.

A Canadian Press survey showed nine persons reported killed in Quebec and three in Nova Scotia.

A boating accident at London, Ont., accounted for four of the 14 drownings. Traffic accidents caused another 10 deaths and 10 other persons lost their lives in a variety of mishaps. A child was scalded to death, another was killed when he walked into a tractor-drawn binder.

Ten persons died in Ontario by drowning and traffic accidents accounted for six deaths.

Four persons were killed in Quebec in traffic accidents: Rodrigue Dewar, 22, at Stonefield, Que.; Edouard Gagne, 46, near Drummondville; Mrs. Lucie McCormick, 70, at St. Antoine des Laurentians; Marcel Pettitclair, in Montreal.

Drowned were: Maurice Lalonde, 33, near St. Hyppolite; and Philippe Harvey, 35, at Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. John Polonsky were killed at Parrelton when their automobile was struck by a train. Ernest Agrignon, 72, was killed when he walked into the path of a train at St. Andre-Aveline.

Lawrence Dowd, 12, was drowned in a small mud-bottom lake near Halifax, B. N. S. He was drowned at Antigonish, N.S., when he fell into a well. Two-year-old Barbara Naugle was crushed to death near Halifax by a truck.

Reforestation Work Done By Southern Canada Power Company Is Outlined

Drummondville, Aug. 14.—The extent of the work undertaken by the Southern Canada Power Company, Ltd., to aid the reforestation of the area served by its lines was explained to a group of Eastern Townships residents who had gathered here on Saturday afternoon to inspect the tree nurseries of the company located a few miles from the centre of this city.

Started about 1944, this nursery now contains 1,200,000 trees, varying in age from seedlings planted in May of 4 to 1 year to four-year-old trees which are available for replanting. Approximately 200,000 of these four-year-old trees are distributed without charge to farmers in the St. Francis river watershed who will agree to plant them on land not highly suitable for agriculture and who will care for them until they have reached maturity.

Explaining the apparent discrepancy between the 1,200,000 trees under four years of age and the 800,000 which would be distributed in the same four-year period, company officials said that the difference allowed for the expansion of the nursery and provided a reserve which would permit the normal distribution to be carried on even if a substantial portion of the young trees were affected by some epidemic.

Reforestation is an important part of any power company operations, as a good tree cover improves the stream flow. The roots of the trees act in the nature of a sponge, absorbing much of the water during a period of heavy rains and releasing it during dry spells. Thus a terrain well covered with trees is less subject to floods.

MILAN

The Carry On Society met at the home of Mrs. Henry E. Moulton with a good attendance. Mrs. J. J. MacDonald, of Dell, was present and joined the society. After the business was transacted, a social hour was spent. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. David Nicholson, served delicious refreshments.

and to droughts.

The majority of the trees are conifers, such as spruce, Norway pine, Scotch pine and similar varieties. These trees reach maturity much earlier than harder woods with the result that the reforestation efforts produce results quicker than by the planting of hard woods.

Prior to the inspection of the nurseries, the guests were entertained at a luncheon at the Manoir Drummond by the officials of the company and were later tendered an informal reception at the City Hall by Mayor Biron of Drummondville.

FIFTY YEARS OF MEDICINE

The impressive ceremonies held at Danville to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the entry of Dr. R. H. Stevenson into the practice of medicine not only honors the particular guest of honor but also pays tribute to the medical profession generally, and especially to the Country Doctor as a class. There are few classes in the community who have more dedicated their lives to the service of their fellow men than those general practitioners who have seen fit to establish themselves in the smaller towns and villages of this country.

To the many difficulties which face the rural doctor anywhere—long distances, night calls and the like—are added for the Canadian doctor the hardships of the winter, blocked roads, heavy snows and extreme cold. But despite these obstacles, men are still found who are prepared to battle the elements in an effort to alleviate the suffering and distress of the ordinary mortal.

When any man has completed a half-century of such service, especially in a single community, it is only fitting that the residents of that area show their appreciation for the work he has done. The celebrations at Danville at the week-end were in keeping with the importance of the event to be honored and the citizens of that section of Richmond-Wolfe are to be complimented on the effective manner in which they honored their village doctor.

With the people of Danville, residents of the Eastern Townships will join in wishing Dr. Stevenson continued health and prosperity.

THE UPSWING IN BASIC COMMODITY PRICES

In the past few weeks, the strength of the basic commodity markets has attracted increasing attention and, indeed, aroused some concern, says the current Monthly Review of The Bank of Nova Scotia.

Since the outbreak of war in Korea the rise in prices has been sharp, reflecting strength in a wide variety of commodities and especially in rubber, tin, sugar, and fats and oils. From June 23, just before hostilities began, to July 27, the official United States index of spot prices for basic commodities rose by nearly 15 per cent and, indicative of the expectations of purchasers, futures prices rose considerably more. Thus, the Dow-Jones index of futures prices of sensitive commodities increased by nearly 22 per cent.

Prices were already showing strength before the outbreak of fighting in Korea, the Review points out. The broad trend in the basic commodity markets had been upward since mid-April: prices of non-ferrous metals had been strengthening, wool had been rising again, and grain prices had also been firmer. For some commodities, prices had begun to rise well before April; for example, last fall's abrupt advance in coffee prices and the strength in rubber, cocoa and cotton and lumber before the end of the year. As a matter of fact, the downward drift in the basic commodity markets was reversed about mid-1949.

The recent advance in the average level of basic commodity prices has now offset the decline which occurred in the first half of 1949. Though the current level is still considerably below the peak reached at the end of 1947, it is still very high. At the end of July the basic commodity index was about three times as high as the level of August 1939. In contrast, the general index of United States wholesale prices, in which the basic commodities are of course included, was only somewhat more than twice the August, 1939 level.

The Review goes on to discuss some of the underlying reasons for the gradual strengthening of basic commodity prices before hostilities began in Korea, and discusses the outlook as it appeared at that time. The high level of business activity in the United States and the gradual increase in industrial production overseas meant a strong demand for industrial raw materials, the production of a number of which was barely sufficient to meet requirements. At the same time, however, world food supplies were increasing and the outlook for the prices of some agricultural commodities such as grains and even sugar was open to more question. This was the immediate picture just before the outbreak of war in Korea.

The medium-term outlook suggested the possibility of a resumption of the downward movement in basic commodity prices. In addition to the prospect of somewhat better distributed food supplies there remained the likelihood of some slackening in United States business activity when the demand for automobiles and housing waned. Moreover, the persistence of the dollar problem was a further factor of potential weakness in United States prices. In general, it appeared that the broad trend might be downward possibly over the next couple of years, though the supply of some commodities would remain tight.

The long-term outlook, says the Review, appeared more buoyant. Though there might be ups-and-downs in the United States, the U. S. economy was growing at an impressive rate and the trend of U. S. consumption of most commodities was definitely upward. The trend of consumption in Europe was also upward, especially as Germany recovered, and it seemed likely that any moderate reduction in basic commodity prices and any easing of the dollar shortage would encourage larger consumption in the heavily industrialized countries of western Europe.

TO THE GLORY OF "JERVIS BAY"

There will be unveiled at Chatham, England, in August, a bronze tablet to the crew of the 19th officers and men who lost their lives when the merchant cruiser Jervis Bay was sunk in the North Atlantic by a German pocket battleship, the "Admiral Scheer," while the British vessel was defending a 38-ship convoy on its way from Canada to Britain in 1940.

Those who were old enough at that time recall the story of the courage of the officers and crew engaged in their most important task of shepherding the convoy. The captain of the Jervis Bay ordered the ships to scatter and headed straight for the German raider, sending out smoke to cover the withdrawal of the ships in the convoy. The captain engaged the German battleship in a fight to the death and enabled the merchant ships to escape with their vital cargoes under cover of the smoke screen into the gathering darkness.

The Jervis Bay had been badly hit and was on fire but still the gallant cruiser and her crew continued to keep the raider fully occupied until her last gun was silenced. The Jervis Bay then went down with her colors flying.

Those who in the engagement died did their full part to bring the ultimate victory over the sea raiders and to make their contribution to the victory which finally came with the triumph over Germany.

In the trying days of 1940 when the close of the struggle was five years away the sacrifices that this ship and her men made brought untold results. The action will remain one of the most important events in British sea history. It was in reality a symbol of the sacrifices that Britons were to make for mankind. It was a triumph of human courage and sacrifice.

"DON'T WORRY" — MacARTHUR

St. Thomas Times-Journal
An Associated Press cable from Tokyo on Tuesday stated that when W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's personal adviser, was boarding a plane for Washington after visiting General Douglas MacArthur to get the "low down" on the situation in Korea, the Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations forces in the Far East told him to report: "Tell the President not to worry. We are confident."

General MacArthur has said that kind of thing before. He has given "stand or die" orders on more than one occasion, naming a position from which there must be no retreat. But his men have both stood and died and been driven back from what were to have been last lines of defence. We wish we could see more justification for his optimistic message to Mr. Truman; but perhaps he has a few strong military cards up his sleeve that we do not know of.

Some of the correspondents at the front have irked the General by telling what they have seen about the demoralization of green, untried American troops, and by their analysis of the situation as they see it, and he has told them to stop sending that sort of messages, else he would impose a strict censorship. If there was one thing the people of the British Commonwealth and United States wanted from their correspondents during the Second World War it was factual reporting—what was really happening without glossing over gloomy developments, or serious defeats. The newspapers claimed, and time proved that they claimed rightly, that if the people knew the exact situation when it was bad they would respond to the need for effort and sacrifices, and put up as cheerfully, or at least as patiently as they could with controls. The worst thing that could be done was to create an unjustifiably cheery frame of mind by concealing the truth. Hence, we say, we hope the General is right when he tells President Truman not to worry.

WILL NEWSPRINT BE RATIONED AGAIN?

Kingston Whig-Standard
Emanuel Celler, Democratic member of the U. S. House of Representatives from Brooklyn, made a prediction to Editor and Publisher this week that the United States would ration newspapers and Canadian newspapers. Due to the Korean situation, he said, there will be "early official action setting up priorities on distribution of newsprint." That would mean, in other words, that newsprint would be allocated and rationed in the United States; such action would undoubtedly affect this country's economy and might quite conceivably be duplicated here.

It should be emphasized, we think, that the only valid reason for rationing would be of shortages caused by the demands of mobilization in both Canada and the United States. In such circumstances, measures to ensure fair distribution might well become necessary—as they might become necessary in many another field. The experience of rationing is still well remembered by adults, by newspapers and other organizations. Nobody liked it, but the great majority managed to live through it. It could be endured again—if the necessity for it were genuine.

We question the necessity of newsprint rationing at this time—and as long as that necessity does not exist, rationing should be resisted. According to Editor and Publisher, "the supply picture (in the United States) is better than it was two months ago," although it prefaces the remark with the statement that U. S. newspapers are not "literally swimming in newsprint." That would rather depend, we think, on how deep a newspaper must be before it is literally swimming. From what we have seen of a number of Sunday editions of various U. S. newspapers, they are at least swimming around almost chin-deep. And when confronted with a Sunday edition of two hundred-odd pages—not counting comics and magazine sections—we find it virtually impossible to believe there is any shortage which would justify rationing.

AND THIS ONE CAN'T BE TURNED OFF!

University Holds Special Class For New Canadians

Toronto, Aug. 14. — Doctors, lawyers, technicians, housewives, engineers, a politician and clergyman are among the 305 New Canadians attending advance English courses at the University of Toronto.

The group represents 24 European, Asiatic and South American countries. The students, ranging from university students to persons in their fifties, are grimly determined to overcome the language barrier. The six-week course, sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education, is divided into 11 classes which meet two hours a night, five nights a week. Attendance at the classes, designed to help newcomers to overcome their "initial handicap of language," is nearly 100 per cent.

Typical of the group is blonde Elsa Kiesner, an assistant nurse at a local hospital. Elsa studied medicine for three and a half years in Europe. Driven from their native Latvia, she and her husband came to Canada 18 months ago.

"I want to become a doctor, you see," she said. "I tried to enroll last year at several universities, but there were no vacancies. I'm going to keep on trying, though, and I hope to succeed eventually."

Learn English Again

TULSA TUSSE GIVES LESSON

IN BIDDING
"This hand," starting a Tulsa correspondent, started a bad argument that almost disrupted our little group of players. We hope you will be able to settle it once and for all.

"As you can see, South did much too well at his contract. Two clubs. West opened the king of hearts and then shifted to a trump. South drew trumps, discarded the rest of his hearts on dummy's spades, and then gave up the ace of diamonds. He therefore made eleven tricks.

"Of course he would not have made a game at clubs if he had bid it. West could have taken two top tricks in hearts and one in diamonds. However, there was an ice-cold game in spades just waiting to be bid and ready to fall into the North-South laps.

"South says his bid of two clubs was a temporizing bid. If North could bid again South would raise the spades. If North could not bid again, South felt that two clubs might be the best contract. He certainly did not expect the bidding to end as abruptly as it did.

"North claims that South should have raised the spades immediately. There was no need to show the clubs at all, in his view. If South had raised spades, North would have bid again. South's failure to raise spades indicated a possible misfit, and North felt he should get out of the bidding while the getting was good.

"Who is correct, and how would experts bid this sort of hand? North is 100 per cent correct. There was absolutely no need for South to show his clubs. They would be a delightful surprise to North whenever South put them down on the table as the dummy. When a player makes an open-

The Record Short Story

Where Pride Belongs

By EMILY CALVIN BLAKE

It was an early June morning, and Janet, busy in her small garden, was relieved that no real damage had been done by yesterday's heavy rainstorm, just a few of the blossoms bent down.

Then she stiffened in apprehension, for coming around the house she saw Richard dawdling along, his small dog King capering beside him. She went on with her work, thinking how absurd this feeling whenever the 7-year-old boy suddenly appeared on the scene when she had thought him safely occupied in some other place.

When he was close by, he began bluntly: "You told me and Lois to finish building the bridge near the fish pond. Lois stayed but I didn't because I didn't want to."

With effort she controlled her voice: "I'm sorry you disobey me, Richard." He seemed to be waiting expectantly before putting out his hand and pushing farther down a heavy-petaled rose. And when he spoke now, his words were sharp and angry: "I wish another big wind would come and bend them all down again."

Carefully she chose her words: "I'm not going to believe you mean that, Richard, and before long you'll tell me you're sorry."

She watched him as he went down the path, a tall boy who held himself straight, and who was about the same age her son would have been had he lived. Scarcely a year younger than Lois, who at once had accepted him as a greatly longed-for brother.

When did the change from the first desire to please change to waywardness. She couldn't recall except that it seemed to stem from his loyalty to Lois. Always an interested spectator when Lois, having tried her mother too far was deprived of some coveted pleasure and sent to her room to repent.

And he never failed to be at the foot of the stairs when the little girl, restored to grace, would appear, clinging to Janet's tender and forgiving hand. He would glare at Janet, and then in a twisted mood transfer his strange resentment to Lois, refusing to play with her.

So even that loyalty was tainted. Little fears began to enter her mind. Perhaps she should have taken a baby whose habits had not been formed. But Richard had seemed exactly right to both her husband Dan and herself.

She made another effort, increasing her kindness toward him, if that were possible, more tolerance and patience. But the picture did not change, no matter how she tried. Time after time he disconcerted her by his unruly, certainly planned mischief, with no remorse; only that measuring look as though trying to define her reaction.

Finally she confided her fear to Dan that they had made a mistake. He gave his diagnosis. "Maybe you're trying too hard to convince him he really belongs, and he feels it a bit different from the casual way you take Lois. He's impressionable as I discovered when I showed him my ship model up in the attic."

"I remember."

"But you should have seen his bright eyes when I told him that when I was a boy I dreamed of sailing the high seas and of finding a new wondrous coral isle."

"You never got to that far-away place, did you Daddy?" he asked, and actually there was pity for me in his eyes—a sensitive little chap. I covered up by saying, "When you're a little older, the ship is yours."

He had not told her that part before, a little embarrassed perhaps, but she knew now his strength of feeling for Richard. Dan repeated: "I'll all work out; he's just passing through a phase."

A few days later, however, she discarded any illusion of a temporary phase. She had finished dressing for a drive to the village when she went downstairs and stopped before the hall mirror to tie a silk scarf about her head. Then turning she saw Richard as he emerged from the living room. King in his arms; perfect timing so she might see them both. In family conclaves it has been decreed that, King having been careless several times, this part of the house should be declared out of bounds.

"What does this mean, Richard?" she asked in a level tone. "King wanted to go into the living room to see if he knew how to be good now."

"So you took him in there when you knew he was not allowed."

"Yes, I took him in." He stood there, challenging her.

With more than usual effort, she spoke calmly: "I don't like to find you so disobedient. Now, please take King out into the yard."

So she stood by her principle of forbearance for this stranger. She felt his eyes boring into her, then his voice, clear and distinct: "I hate you and you're not really my mother!"

"Then there is nothing more to be said."

He did not answer, and for a second she thought he was going to cry. Then he ran down the hall to the back of the house.

Having completed her errands in the village, she started back slowly. Those defiant words hurled at her still rang in her memory. Then suddenly, she drew the car into a quiet enclosure and, closing her eyes, seemed to wait. She began to see the boy as one in a way fighting for his rights, and soon the answer came.

His belligerent actions were immature attempts to bring himself into the circle. He felt himself an outsider, not considered close enough to be called upon to pay for his misdeeds. And with a child's clear perception he sensed that justice was part of love and security. Thus when Lois returned from her small banishments, closer than ever to her mother, he struck out blindly feeling himself discriminated against, all the assertions of his belonging without foundation.

She sped the car ahead eager to see Richard in the light of her deeper understanding of his experience. She was to be given recognition. Her heart seemed to expand, reach out beyond her own boundaries to realize the longing of every human being to find his place. And a wave of gratitude stirred her for the child, who, coming into her home, had so enriched her experience and widened her horizon.

Arriving home, she parked in the driveway and walked quickly around to the front where she saw Lois, disconsolate, sitting alone on the top step of the porch.

"Richard's run away," she blurted out. "He's my very own brother and he's gone with King. He said he didn't like it here."

Janet did not linger. With Lois she went through the small grove of woods near the house, all the time realizing this was a futile search. The all at once the riddle was solved, and they returned.

Alone, she climbed the two flights of stairs, the last high and narrow to the attic. In the dimness she saw the small figure seated on the floor holding in his arms Dan's old ship model, ship that had been built in dreams of sailing to far distant ports. King lay a few feet away, alert as though aware of tension.

She spoke directly: "Why are you here, Richard?"

"I've run away." He raised his red-rimmed eyes, and she saw that after his decision to leave had come the shock of not knowing where he could find a haven. He asked: "Have you found me?"

Compassion filled her, but she repressed her emotion. "Of course, I've found you. And how do you think I felt when I came home expecting to be welcomed by my son, and to be told you were gone?"

At her new, stern tone he looked at her in surprise, but no fear, lifting his head as though rising to the stimulus of responsibility.

"Now Richard, go to your room and stay there."

He put the ship down and stood up. She gave him a little shake and turned him toward the door, withholding the strong desire to draw him to her, hold him close.

"Can I have King with me?"

"No, Richard, you'd do exactly as I say. And when I think you've made up your mind as to whether you'll ever run away again, I'll come to your room and you can tell me."

His eyes now were bright: "I know now—I'll never run away again. I like it here."

"I'm happy to hear that."

He glanced at the scarf still wound around her head. "And when I'm a man I'll buy you a hat with a feather on it. A mother should always wear a hat."

THE END.

DRILL 300 FEET IN HARD ROCK

A quarry operator drilling extremely hard rock reported costs were soaring. "Using a forty-five pound Jackhammer, we needed four to six steel bits for a two-foot change," he stated.

"Then we switched to Carset Jackbits. Now, we are averaging 300 feet per bit. Rod life and drilling speed have been greatly increased while drill maintenance has been reduced. We'll stick to Carsets from now on."

The foregoing is only one of many field reports showing phenomenal savings being made with Carset Jackbits—another development of Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, leader in the manufacture of mining equipment for over 60 years.

Harbert And Ransom Tie, Playoff Today

Chicago, Aug. 14.—(P)—Chick Harbert and Hank Ransom match skill in a golf playoff today for about $83 per shot.

Tam O'Shanter's "world" championship is at stake — a title incidental to the $11,000 first prize, highest in golf history, and $5,000 for second.

The difference between the awards is $6,000, and a calculating machine will show you the boys will be shooting at $83.33 per shot on a par-72 route.

The 18-hole playoff is the ninth in 10 years of tournaments at the Tam course.

Harbert, 35-year-old Detroit resident, closed with a 34-34—68 to tie Ransom at 281 yesterday while some 20,000 customers flocked to the scene. The previous day he had driven into contention with a brilliant 67.

Ransom, a 30-year-old Dallas, Texan, has averaged under 71 strokes per round — in 21 tournaments this season and still hasn't won a title. He stayed on his stroke-beam at Tam with rounds of 70-69-71-71.

The "world" women's pro crown rested on the head of Babe Zaharias with 293 — 11 under par. She also won the Tam all-American open last week and set a course record of 70. In all she collected $3,400.

Dot Kietly of Long Beach, Calif., took the women's amateurs title with 315, and Frank Stranahan added the "world" men's amateur title to his Tam All-American diamond with 289.

By JOE REICHLER (For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 14.—(P)—Baseball Chatter:

Roy Hamey, General Manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, says if the Dodgers lose the flag this season it will be nobody's fault but Brooklyn's.

"Heck," Hamey said, "Rickey had the pennant won last December. All he was worried about was the world series. How do you think that made the rest of us feel?"

"We decided to show him there were some other clubs in the league. As a result, every club saves its best pitchers for the Dodgers."

Konstanty's Junk—When reporters ask Philadelphia's Jim Konstanty what he throws to the hitters, the despectable relief ace answers with a grin, "Junk."

Konstanty's "junk" includes a screw ball, palm ball, slow ball, slider and pretty good curve. "I don't know what it is," says Jackie Robinson, "but whatever it is, I can't hit it."

Robinson has made one major-league hit off Konstanty, a home run.

Down To First—Although Sam Jethroe, Bobby Thompson, Richie Ashburn, Gil Coan, Larry Doby and others are regarded as faster runners, Jackie Robinson is fastest going down to first base.

"As fast as Robinson is," says Pie Traynor, the Hall of Fame third baseman, "my vote is for the fastest right-handed batter getting to first goes to Rogers Hornsby. Arky Vaughan was the fastest going from first to third."

A Pet Show was held on Saturday afternoon with the following judges: Major McClinton, agronomist for Bromo County; Kurt Blumenfeld, James Wilkins and Harry Griggs.

Dogs

A silver cup, donated by the General Director of the St. Etienne Electors Co-operative, was won by a blond Cocker Spaniel, entered by Yvette Marcoux; 2nd prize, Boston Bull, entered by George Cadarette; 3rd prize, Toy Pup, entered by Francis Young.

Cats

1st prize, a white Angora, entered by Erika Whall; 2nd prize, white Angora kitten entered by Ruth Giroux.

Other Pets

A baby turtle caught in the Mississippi River won a prize and was entered by Luella Bailey.

Saturday evening featured a "Log Sawing Contest."

The winners of the cross cut saw were: Ladies—Mrs. Milton Boyce and Mrs. Albert Shepherd, (time, 50 seconds); men—Wilbur Cook and Bert Cote, (time 20 1/2 seconds); Kurk Blumfeld and Rudy Lessard (time, 21 seconds); James Eastman and Jeff Cobb (time 21 1/2 seconds).

One of the most interesting events of the fair was Patsy, the trained horse with her trainer, Mrs. Kurt Blumenfeld. Mrs. Blumenfeld, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Korman, of this place, studies the art of horse training from a book on the subject, bought Patsy at the age of 10 years and started her training. Patsy is now fourteen years of age, which she is able to tell you in a very clever way. Among the many clever tricks she can do, is to climb up a series of steps and stand finally with all four feet on one step that measures about 12 feet 8 in.

The music for the street dancing was furnished by the "Ramblers" of Newport Centre, Vt., and an orchestra from Enosburg Falls, Vt.

On the St. Lawrence Gulf island of Anticosti deer are so numerous they stroll into Port Muniere; must be thinned out by official hunts from time to time.

Prices Steady On Livestock Markets Today

Montreal, Aug. 14.—(P)—Prices were steady to stronger in good demand on the Montreal livestock markets today.

Offerings were 1,188 cattle, 777 sheep and lambs, 247 hogs and 1,327 calves.

Cattle receipts were lighter and quality in general was mostly common to medium on nearly all classes. Only cows and bulls had been sold and brought estimated steady to firm prices.

A few good cows were 21-22.50, medium 18-20, common 15-18, canners and cutters 12-14.50. Good bulls sold at 22-23, common and medium 15-21.

Calves were easily disposed of at prices considered $1 stronger. Good weaners were 28-29, common and medium 20-27, while drinkers brought 16-22 and yearlings 15-17.

Lambs moved well at steady prices. Good lambs were mostly 27, with some at 28 and medium quality 25-26. Sheep ranged from 6-13 according to quality.

Hog prices were not established.

Churchill Wants Earlier Session

London, Aug. 14.—(P)—Conservative leaders Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden will present their arguments to Prime Minister Attlee Wednesday for an early recall of Parliament to take up urgent defence problems.

A government announcement today setting the date for the conference followed demands by both the Conservatives and Liberal leader Clement Attlee to cut short the Commons' summer recess.

Attlee has summoned Parliament to return Sept. 12th. The opposition leaders want Parliament to convene within a week or 10 days.

In a letter to Attlee made public by the Prime Minister yesterday Churchill wrote that the date fixed by the government "bears no relation to the crisis and the facts that are before us."

The Doctor Says:

HAY FEVER ALLERGY IS MISERABLE BUT PARTIAL RELIEF IS POSSIBLE

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.
Late August is a gloomy time for about 10 or 12 million sufferers from ragweed hay fever. The reason for the regularity is because ragweed begins to shed its pollen into the air at about the same time every year.

When the symptoms are severe the nose alternates between a stage of running mucus and being completely stuffed up. The eyes water, itch and sometimes are so swollen that they can hardly be opened in the morning. Sneezing comes in fits of 20 or 30 sneezes at a time, leaving the victim slightly relieved but exhausted. Usually the person who has severe ragweed hay fever is completely miserable for three or four weeks and has some trouble for one or two weeks at either end.

When the frost has destroyed the pollen there is no further trouble unless a little dust which contains the pollen is stirred up. This does not mean that hay fever has no complications, however, as there is a tendency for those who have had hay fever for several years to develop asthma, which is a still more distressing condition than hay fever itself.

CLEVELAND

The August meeting of the Cleveland Women's Institute was held in the Hall with eleven members present. The president, Mrs. Hazel Taylor, opened the meeting with the "Mary Stewart Collect." The secretary, Mrs. Ralph Healy, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll, which was answered by donating an article for the fall sale. The treasurer gave her report showing a balance of $246.61. A Red Cross quilt, ragweed hay fever for most people is to try to be desensitized, that is, to have the sensitiveness to the pollen decreased by injections or "shots" of pollen extracts. These are best given either all the year around or for several months before the season starts. Many hay fever victims are particularly and temporarily relieved by air conditioning. This relief is due to filtering of pollen out of the air which is breathed in. Sometimes a room which has a pollen filter in the window gives a certain amount of comfort.

Drugs May Help
A great many people plan to take their vacations during the hay fever season and go to places where the pollen is either absent or very slight. In this way they can get relief for at least part of the time.

Several drugs known as antihistamines and going under various trade names bring considerable relief to many hay fever sufferers. These drugs act for only a short time, but they do help many hay fever victims when their symptoms are intolerable. They are not entirely lacking in undesirable effects, however, and therefore should not be taken without some medical supervision. Furthermore, some people seem to be helped more by one kind of preparation and some by another.

TO CANADIAN RAILROADERS AND THE CANADIAN PUBLIC

It is important that you understand clearly why the managements of Canada's railways believe a railway strike is absolutely unnecessary.

Our reason for this conviction is that we have made the employees involved in the present dispute a fair offer of wage increases and improvements in working conditions, which if applied to all employees, will cost us $37,000,000 a year.

We have further acknowledged a moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time, and we have explained why, in fairness to Canadian industry and all other employers of labor, we cannot put it into effect now.

To do otherwise would be to perform a disservice to industry in general and to all employers and employees alike.

The railways, after making two previous offers which the union leaders rejected, have now made a third and final offer which gives the employees the choice of either:

an increase in wages averaging $8\frac{1}{2}$ cents per hour, or a reduction in the basic work week from 48 to 44 hours, with an increase in wage rates of 9.1% so as to maintain or in some cases improve present "take home" pay.

The labor leaders have made no concessions at all and have refused to budge from their original demands for a 5-day 40-hour week with maintenance of present "take home" pay, and in addition increases of 7 cents and 10 cents an hour.

The railways are thoroughly conscious of, and sympathetic to, the problems of their employees resulting from higher costs of living.

Drastic, unwarranted reductions in hours of work instead of decreasing these problems will inevitably increase them.

Not only is a railway strike unnecessary now, but furthermore, because of the tense international situation, it would endanger the entire Dominion. As the presidents of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways said in a joint statement to the representatives of the unions last Thursday:

"The present situation...imposes a nerve strain on all concerned at a time when we badly need to devote all our energies and thoughts to the grave threat of war and a national emergency... It leaves the railway employee in a most uncertain and unhappy frame of mind because we are morally certain he does not wish to walk out on his job at a time like this, no matter what issues are involved... this opinion seems diametrically opposed to the strike ballot which has been reported by the unions, but railway management retains too high an opinion of the loyalty, steadfastness and sense of responsibility of their employees to believe a strike would not mean a heart-breaking situation for them. That is not to say they will not carry out their undertaking to strike if union leaders decide to call upon them to do so but as already stated, it will cause great unhappiness and self-reproach."

The importance of the railways in Canada's economy cannot be exaggerated. Never was that importance more apparent than in World War II. And without the loyalty and intense effort of all railway employees, Canada's magnificent war effort would have been impossible. The same holds true today. As the presidents further stated:

"... the general public is inconvenienced and business arrangements are made uncertain so long as the likelihood of a strike persists. Moreover, a railway strike would so cripple our economy that it would weaken for a long time our ability to take a strong line in international affairs and thus give great comfort to the enemy. Therefore, railway management feels strongly that the issues must be faced resolutely so that all interests, the worker, the public, and the Government, as well as the unions and railway management, will know precisely what is facing them. The time has come to remove this uncertainty which hangs as a blight over our day-to-day life."

WITH THESE CONSIDERATIONS IN MIND, THE RAILWAYS HAVE MADE THIS OFFER AS THE ULTIMATE THAT COULD POSSIBLY BE EXPECTED OF THEM, AND IT GIVES A SETTLEMENT WHICH WILL LEAVE RAILWAY WORKERS IN AN EXTREMELY FAVOURABLE POSITION COMPARED TO OTHER INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

HERE IS OUR OFFER

The final offer which excludes hotel and water transport employees is as follows:

- (1) Recognition by railway management a moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time.
- (2) Recognition by the unions in principle, subject to negotiation in detail, of minor amendments to existing contracts covering working rules to bring about more efficient operation.
- (3) EITHER
(A) A 44-hour basic work week with 9.1% increase in hourly rates so as to maintain "take home" pay. In regard to monthly rated clerical employees there will be an understanding that a 5-day actual work week may be granted by local arrangements in selected cases where the hours now actually worked are less than 44, on condition that the requirements of the service are protected up to 44 hours per week.

OR (B) A graduated increase in basic wage rates approximately equivalent in expense to that involved under Plan A. When applied to all employees, this would cost the railways \$37,000,000 per year, and would average $8\frac{1}{2}$ cents per hour.

Mountains And Molehills

Women's Lack Of Perspective Makes Them Magnify Little Troubles

One of the strangest things about women is the way they magnify trifles. They have a positive genius for making mountains out of molehills, and it is the assiduous following of this occupation that is responsible for most of their unhappiness. It is literally true that most of women's troubles are little troubles. I do not deny these. Possibly the pebble in the shoe hurts as badly as a mortal wound, but it is both pathetic and humorous that the things that ruin most women's lives and of which they complain loudest and longest are not great crushing tragedies, but petty irritations. I am, myself, a sort of human tear jug into which unnumbered thousands of women weep, and as I listen to their tales of woe the thing that amazes me most is how small is the grievance that most of them are permitting to spoil their happiness, and I marvel again and again at the feminine lack of perspective, the feminine lack of sense of value, the irresistible feminine mania for prodding at a pimple until they turn it into a cancer that eats out their hearts.

DOROTHY DIX

ADMITTS SHE'S WELL OFF

A woman will admit that Heaven has bestowed all of its choicest blessings upon her. She has health, every comfort and luxury, a good, kind, generous, devoted husband, lovely children, a beautiful home, but instead of esteeming herself the favorite daughter of Lady Luck she beats upon her breast and cries out that she is the most miserable of all women because she has made some tiny speck on her horizon into a cloud that blots out all of her sunshine.

It is literally true that women resent some little personal peculiarity in their husbands more than they do their vices, and that they find it easier to forgive unfaithfulness or drunkenness or being no-account than they do a man's having some little habit that gets on their nerves. The thing that offends them most is marriage into cinders, ashes and dust to a woman is the way her husband eats or his failure to wipe his feet on the mat before he comes into the house or his forgetting to post letters.

I know one woman who is on the point of divorcing her husband, even though he is one of the best men in the world and a grand provider, because he likes light and the minute he comes in the house he snaps up all the window shades, which she always keeps exactly at the same meticulous height. I know another woman who feels that her life is unbearable because her husband scatters the papers when he reads them and hangs up the towels on the bathroom floor. And I know innumerable other women who have destroyed all the peace of their homes and driven their husbands from them by waging an unending fight on their husbands' smoking.

The thing over which the great majority of wives make most moan is their husbands' neglect of them. Their husbands' coldness and lack of appreciation. Now this is a direful thing, if true, and calculated to make any loving wife grieve, but if you will investigate, nine times out of ten you will find that the wife's charges have no basis in fact.

HIS HABITS ARE PROOF

The poor man is working himself to death. He never looks at another woman and sticks as close to his hearth as the house cat, and he feels that this is all the proof of devotion that any woman should need. But because he provides her with beef-steaks instead of orchids, and because he doesn't woo her as ardently as he did in his courting days, she considers herself neglected and worries over having lost his affections.

It is also woman's fatal ability to put two and two together and make a hundred out of it, that causes many a wife to endure needless tortures of jealousy over her husband's secretary or some pretty little girl with whom he has amused himself at a party.

Another potent source of trouble with women is the in-law trouble, which is aggravated, if it is not caused entirely, by the feminine tendency to exaggerate the importance of trifles. Mother-in-law makes a mild suggestion and daughter-in-law takes it as an unwarranted meddling in her affairs and an indication that the older woman is going to try to run her house, and forthwith she runs up the fighting signal. Husband goes to see his mother and wife believes mother-in-law is trying to win her husband away from her.

And so it goes all through life. Women who should be happy and contented are miserable and disgruntled because they make the unimportant important, because they magnify trifles, because they let the little things that shouldn't worry them fret them to death, and because if they haven't any real troubles they create imaginary ones. Which is very funny. And very sad.

Mrs. L. Bradford, President Of The Rebekah Assembly Of Quebec, Visited Prosperity Lodge At Cowansville

Cowansville, Aug. 12 — The regular meeting of the Prosperity Rebekah Lodge, No. 23, was a very pleasant event, when the president of the Rebekah Assembly, of Quebec, Mrs. Laura Bradford, of Riverside Lodge, Granby, paid her official visit.

Upwards of twenty-six members of Granby accompanied her. The following Grand Lodge officers were introduced and welcomed by Mrs. Herman Stowe, P.N.G., of Prosperity Lodge, Mrs. Laura Bradford, president R.A.; Mrs. Christine Symington, D.D.P., of Unity Rebekah Lodge, No. 39, Dunham; Mrs. Muriel Cassidy, P.P.R.A.; and Brother Bradford, past representative.

The hall was nicely decorated with multicolored flowers. Noble Grand Sister Joan McClatchie was in the chair and after the business was transacted, a song by Mrs. Syberg, in Danish, was much enjoyed, also a piano solo by Miss Isabelle Beattie, P.D.D.P.

The Grand Lodge officers were then called upon for remarks and Mrs. Symington, D.D.P., in her address stated that the annual District meeting would be held in Dunham on October 27.

A gift was presented to the president, Mrs. Laura Bradford, by Sister J. D. Stevenson, P.N.G., of Prosperity Lodge, for which Sister Bradford expressed her sincere thanks and appreciation. Delicious salad refreshments were then served in the Masonic Hall.

Visitors were present from Granby, Dunham and Iron Hill. General Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Capps, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Blinn were calling on Mr. and Mrs. C. Brock.

Mr. and Mrs. C. McCormick, Miss Elizabeth Brown and Master Timmy Macdonald motored to Waterbury, Vt.

Miss Alice Draper spent several days at the Hermitage Club, in Magog.

Dr. and Mrs. Rowe spent ten days at their cottage in the Laurentians.

Master Dickie Calder, of Montreal, is spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin.

Mr. Kenneth Stevenson has been transferred from the Bank of Commerce, in Hemmingford, to a branch in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Scott, of Lachine, were guests of the latter's cousin, Mrs. J. D. Stevenson, and family.

MARRIAGES

WILLEY-DERY

Waterloo, Aug. 14.—The marriage of Miss Gertrude Dery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dery, Waterloo, Que., to Mr. Frank Willey, of Waterloo, son of Mrs. Charles Oglestone, of Rutherglen, Ont., took place on July 22 at 7 o'clock, in St. Bernard Church, Waterloo, Rev. Father Heyman Hebert officiating.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a blue dress with white hat, shoes and gloves and a corsage of carnations. Mr. Donat de Senneville, of Waterloo, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Chez Georges Warden Hotel.

For the wedding trip to Rutherglen, Ont., the bride wore a white dress, with red shoes and accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Willey took up residence in Waterloo.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Willey, of Granby, Mrs. George Price, Miss Blanche Thompson, of Fulford, Mr. and Mrs. de Senneville.

EAST CLIFTON

The "Busy Bees" were entertained at the home of Mrs. Ray Waldron with Mrs. Desmond Bain as the joint hostess. Fourteen members were present and a large number of visitors. A very busy meeting was held. Plans were made to hold a supper in the near future. One new member was enrolled. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by several others.

Mr. Isaac Hodgson, Jr., of Everett, Mass., was a guest of Mr. Fred Bellam, having been old friends for many years. He also called on other friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Luce spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luce, at Moe's River.

Mr. Fred Bellam attended the Reed-Thompson wedding and reception in Sawyerville, on Monday afternoon, July 31.

Fine Program Of Entertainment Has Been Drawn Up For 91st Exhibition

Marbleton, Aug. 14.—The 91st time high in the history of this Marbledon Fair opens today and will continue for three days, terminating on August 16.

This is the second time that Marbledon has had a three-day fair and the prospects, provided the weatherman remains reasonably co-operative, point to an all-time exhibition.

An extensive program has been prepared for the entertainment of members of the Wolfe County Agricultural Society as well as the general public.

The new half-mile track, considered by many drivers to be as

Amateur Radiomen Prove Usefulness During Emergency

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Winnipeg.—Opportunities for amateur radio operators to demonstrate their usefulness in national emergencies do not occur often, but when they do the hams go all out.

The Manitoba flood disaster last spring is a prime example of what the hams can do.

In greater Winnipeg alone, amateur radio operators handled more than 4,000 messages during the flood, two-week period of the flood. These were mainly inquiries about relatives and friends in the flood areas.

"We weren't trying to take business away from the telephone companies," said Peter Watt, president of the Winnipeg amateur radio club. "We just stepped in to take up the overflow."

Two key stations handled the bulk of the job, with other hams voluntarily assisting in keeping them in operation on a 24-hour basis. This went on almost continuously for two weeks.

GAS GENERATORS

In anticipation of a power failure, a number of operators acquired gasoline generators at their own expense. These would have enabled them to carry on when other means of communication were cut off.

The amateurs had no difficulty in answering queries from points as far off as Great Britain and the southern United States.

Ham facilities were used also to raise money for the Manitoba flood relief fund.

A conversation between Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg and the Mayor of Nanaimo, B. C., which took place between station VE4SR, operated by Stewart Talbot of Winnipeg, and station VETXV, operated by Jim Reid of Nanaimo, was recorded and later broadcast.

It resulted in raising $10,000 for the fund. Similar arrangements were later made with other cities.

Liquor Sales Lag In South Africa

Johannesburg.—South Africans are making drastic cuts in their liquor consumption in an effort to balance their budgets. The effect of this economy has caused a slump in liquor sales which is giving concern to hoteliers. Bottle stores have also experienced a big drop in sales.

Some hoteliers have reported a 25 to 35 per cent falling-off in bar sales compared with last year. Trade in hotel lounges, which was booming two years ago and encouraged hoteliers to spend lavishly on interior decoration, is practically at a standstill.

One hotelier said: "I have never known the bar trade to be so bad."

Waiters in smart city hotels said that on some days they did not serve a single customer in a four-hour spell of duty.

The position in a number of Johannesburg hotels is so bad that the proprietors are serving behind the bar counters and establishments which have had six or eight barmen for years have cut down staff.

fine as any in the country, has been carefully groomed for the horse and motorcycle racing which will feature the daylight attractions.

These races will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

The evening programs will feature the fine band from Asbestos. This band recently came second among all bands in Quebec province for its excellent music.

First class entertainers have been engaged from Montreal for Vaudeville performances tomorrow and Wednesday. A new stage has just been erected to accommodate the performers.

A large Midway will on hand, containing a ferris wheel, merry-go-rounds, kiddie car rides as well as the usual attractions connected with a top-notch Midway.

In addition, there will be other attractions, including fireworks, free dancing, a magician and songs in both French and English.

The usual Marbledon Fair exhibits of handicrafts and cooking will be the feature of the main building and the thousands of articles made during the winter by the ladies of Wolfe County will be on display.

While Marbledon Fair has never been noted for its size, it has always been outstanding among all Fairs for the quality of the work exhibited by the ladies of Wolfe County.

President of the Ladies' Department is Mrs. Philibert Thibodeau and secretary-treasurer is Mrs. Theodore Pare, both of Marbledon.

Directors are: Mrs. Armand Larocque, Ste. Adolphe, Mrs. Wilfrid Carrette, Ste. Adolphe, Mrs. Lloyd Mackey, Marbledon, Mrs. Alfred Boulet, Bishopston, Mrs. Mark Porter, Bishopston, Mrs. J. A. Stewart, Lime Ridge, Mrs. Raymond Thibodeau, Marbledon, Mrs. Donat Fontaine, Weedon, Mrs. Robert Dumas, Weedon, Mrs. Roy Harrison, Bishopston, Mrs. Carol Bennett, Bishopston, Mrs. Emile Lizee, Fontainebleau, Mrs. Eldred Dawson, South Ham.

This year's Fair will see the presentation to the Wolfe County Agricultural Society of a trophy which will be awarded annually, starting in 1951, to the winner of a marathon road race to be staged at the Fair by the Society.

The trophy is being donated jointly by the Sherbrooke Record and La Tribune.

New Fire Truck For Rural Areas

Bracknell, England.—Soon to be exported to Canada is a new streamlined fire truck now being tested by 12 part-time firemen.

Bracknell, a small market town, was chosen for the tests because of its frequent heat fires—record number for one month being 50.

A feature of the new truck is a water tender with 450 gallons capacity, invaluable in districts where a water supply is limited.

The owner, Fred Bassett, discovered his New Hampshire's dual talents—he or she can lay eggs too—about two months ago.

"It" starts crowing reveille like any good rooster in the wee hours.

Mr. Bassett says the one-year-old fowl is the first egg laying and crowing bird he's come across with in 20 years experience with chickens.

Head teachers will be required to keep a Punishment Book. This will record the names, ages and offences of the children, along with the signature of the canewielder.

Teachers in Middlesex County schools have been given a new code of regulations governing the disciplining of unruly pupils in their classrooms. In effect, they have been told to go easy on the rod, even at the risk of spoiling the child.

The code, adopted by the county education committee, recommends that corporal punishment should be used only if it appears that other disciplinary measures are inappropriate. It should never be severe. Due regard, it says, should be given to the emotional and psychological effects of the punishment on the individual child.

Any form of correction likely to affect adversely the mental or physical development of a student, is banned under the new regulations. Slapping of children's ears, or rapping them over the head or knuckles, will not be permitted.

If corporal punishment is deemed necessary the code requires the teacher to administer it in private and then only with a cane. Girls are to be spared save in exceptional circumstances and in their case caning may be inflicted on the hands only. The boys have a choice—they can take it on the seat of the pants.

HONORARY PRESIDENT

HENRY VACHON, member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for Wolfe County, who is an honorary president of the Marbledon Fair that starts today.

British Fashions For Fall, Winter Curved, Feminine

London.—Slender, patrician lines dominate London's autumn and winter styles, giving a most attractive general silhouette.

Curves are moulded, shoulders are natural or rounded, and waists well-defined.

This soft and feminine outline—with such womanly adjuncts as capes and muffs—is enhanced by materials which have at last overcome wartime austerity. There are deep-pleat woolls, authentic Scots plaids and velours for day wear, rich brocades, faille and tulle for evening, with a touch of velvet for all occasions.

Contrasting fabrics are used in abundance. Perhaps first in popularity are the reversible fabrics woven together. These double-sided wool weaves supply the maximum of warmth with the minimum of weight.

Skirts are still growing shorter. Lengths average 14 to 15 inches from the floor.

Capes have reappeared and several London houses are featuring them for both day and evening wear. Deep-pleat wool and velour are used for day, the capes falling in straight and simple lines from the shoulders.

Velvet and a shiny facecloth (the old-time broadcloth) are used for evening capes and coats.

One of these, with such loose sleeves that it looked like a cape, was made from the new reversible velvet, and had a distinctly Victorian flavor. A bold braid design was superimposed, the braid in turn outlined in cut steel and gun-metal sequins.

With an eye on the American market, the British couturiers have increased their production of simple day dresses. And, taking a leaf out of the Parisian book, many of these little dresses are carried out in black. They are shown in both crepe and wool, cut on extremely simple lines.

TOWN COATS IN VELVET

Town coats for autumn and winter are largely in velvet. They are built on close-fitting lines, either pinched in at the natural waist line or tapering from neck to hem in a princess silhouette collars are small.

Jackets take the limelight in the British suit picture. Skirts are simple, tapering to the hem without pleats or slits, which the designers regard as unnecessary with the shorter skirt.

Cocktail suits follow the trend of the tailor-mades. The skirts, still slim, preserve the narrow front look, with pleats or slight flares concentrated in the back. Revers and pockets are all-important.

One of the best winter suits was shown by Matelli. It was fashioned from ottomian tweed with a soft beaver collar framing the face, and a box-pleated basque held snugly at the natural waist line by a dark brown leather belt fastened with a bronze carved buckle. The skirt, with darted top, had three matching bronze buttons centre front.

One of the most unusual and striking evening dresses was produced by Norman Hartnell. In colors reminiscent of a Siamese cat. The blue satin of the bodice and skirt—the glorious blue of the cat's eyes—shimmered through a cloud of tulle in shades ranging from pale cream to deep brown.

While black is predominant for all occasions, there are many autumn tints, ranging through brick and orange to rust, red rust and ginger. Greens, next in popularity, are sombre and muted. Little brown is used. For evening there is white, grey, lilac and a golden copper.

The days are gone when Britain's ample figures could find only styles in dark colors and subdued designs. Designers are proving, to themselves and the conservative British "fannies," that dresses styled to suit the design of the fabric, can flatter the largest of figures.

The loudest of horizontal patterns and stripes are used in such a way that they emphasize straight lines and slim the swing of a flared skirt.

In rayon, cotton and silk, horizontal designs are used in button-through styles with belted waist, revers neck and short sleeves. The straight skirts have just the right amount of fullness, and the interrupted lines of the pattern emphasize the clean-cut figure-line. Made for 42 to 46-inch hips, it costs £7 15s. ($24.02).

A floral-printed rayon with cross-over neckline, short sleeves and cummerbund waist has unpressed pleats from shoulder to hem in front and from the waist at back.

Designers are also proving that the larger figure can wear all-round pleated skirts and still have a slimming outline. The correct effect lies in the choice of pleats, which must either stop at the hip-line or be stitched down.

Silk dresses cost as little as £2 10s. Woolen models start at £3 19s. 6d. Irish linens, seersuckers and cottons range from £5.

Handicapped Find Work In Factory

Moose Jaw, Sask. — A retail store has opened here to sell nothing but goods manufactured by disabled veterans and other handicapped persons.

It will serve as an outlet for merchandise manufactured at the disabled civilians' workshop here. This factory was opened three years ago "to help disabled veterans to help themselves."

It employs a staff of 24, of whom 20 are disabled, and produces about $48,000 worth of goods a year. These include silk and rayon dresses, cotton house dresses, sheets, pillow slips, coverlets, babies' diapers, nurses' and waiters' uniforms, and hospital garments.

The idea behind the scene is to train disabled veterans to support themselves rather than to depend on direct assistance from the provincial social-aid branch.

During training, board and room are provided by the government and an allowance of $5 a week is paid by the workshop. When trained, employees are paid a regular monthly wage. Eventually many of them take regular employment in the garment industry.

Both the store and workshop are jointly owned by the Saskatchewan government and the handicapped civilians' association of Saskatchewan. The workshop is 30-per-cent subsidized.

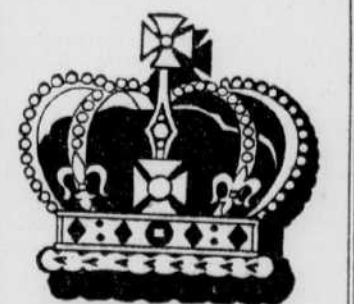

and nicest pulling team of horses on stone drag, by Parker Harling, $3, best lady driver, by Forrest Hooker, $3, best farm horse under 1,400 pounds.

By Brousseau and Bros., East Angus, $5 in merchandise, best pure bred bull, beef type; by a paint firm, $2, best beef cow; by Angus D. Smith, $5, best ram and two ewes; by L. L. Mackay, $3 and $2, best pure bred stallion in show; by B. Cohen and Co., Sherbrooke, one electric motor, h.p., best mare and foal.

By the Society: $3, $2 and $1, off-spring of a pure bred beef cow; $3, $2, and $1, off-spring of a pure bred beef bull; $5, $4, $3, and $2, young herd under two years coming from the same pure bred beef bull, one pure bred male and three females; $3, $2 and $1, off-spring of a pure bred dairy cow.

$3, $2, and $1, off-spring of a pure bred dairy bull; $5, $4, $3, and $2, young herd under two years old coming from the same pure bred dairy bull, one pure bred male and three females.

A large number of special prizes is also offered in the Ladies' Department.

Vienna Airfield Plan Obstructed By Russian Veto

Vienna—Vienna, astride one of the cross-roads of Europe, wants to develop an international airport, badly needed to cope with increasing passenger traffic.

The need is shown by the fact that despite great obstacles more than 50,000 passengers have used the commercial air-lines to and from the Austrian capital since the end of the war.

But Soviet obstructionist tactics have thus far interfered with development of any such plan. The allied council has again had to refuse Vienna's request, because Soviet representatives steadfastly refuse to agree to the development of the airport at Deutsch Wagram, now in Soviet hands.

A committee of Austrian Experts last year inspected all airfields and selected that a Deutsch Wagram as most suited for development as a future airport for Vienna. It has the longest concrete runway in Austria and its geographical position would allow of full expansion and unlimited technical development.

Russian Restrictions. The allied council have agreed to the Austrians setting up a civil aviation bureau, but the Russians refuse to sanction any practical steps towards the beginning of a civil air service. Development through utilizing the services of foreign air-lines has been handicapped as the Russians insist on maintaining a whole series of restrictions.

Any aircraft not belonging to an occupying country wishing to fly over Austrian territory must have previous authority from the commander-in-chief of the zone to which this territory belongs.

For example, a Belgian airliner wishing to land at the near-by Schwechat airfield must have the permission of the Americans and the Russians to fly over their zones. All efforts by the British, Americans and French to allow the Austrians themselves to give the necessary clearance have been steadfastly opposed by the Soviet element.

Most of the Air - liners coming to Vienna use the Schwechat field. This field has natural limitations which would prevent it ever becoming a first-class airport for Vienna. But eight lines, including Italian, Dutch, and Belgian lines, are at present using it.

Visitors To Falls In Record Numbers

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Visitors to this world-famous scenic resort may establish a record this year if the influx of travellers continues at the pace of the last three months.

In June, automatic automobile and bus counting devices installed in Queen Victoria park, central area of these 36-mile-long Niagara parks system, recorded 229,948 automobiles entering the park. July traffic averaged close to 12,000 a day. This is considerably higher than 1949, despite prolonged cool, wet weather.

Since the counting devices were installed a year ago, the largest single 24-hour period was the Sunday preceding Labor day last year, when 29,015 vehicles were registered.

Douglas Allan, supervisor of the Ontario department of travel and publicity, said visitors registering during June at the department's information booth numbered 14,836, an increase over 1949. In July, the daily registration was estimated to be double the June figure.

The falls continue to attract visitors from all parts of the world. Aside from representatives of most of the 48 states, a total of 37 countries were represented by June visitors. Among them were Germany, Japan, Finland, China, Alaska, Malta, Egypt and Switzerland.

Women's Colleges Opened In Madras

Madras, India. — The recent establishment of three rural colleges for women in Madras marked another feather in the cap of the state's department of women's welfare. These colleges provide two year's training, designed specially for village women, to equip them for leading roles in community affairs.

Such educational institutions and the development of literacy classes are the principal activities of the department. Other projects include community centres, service homes for widows, orphans and paupers, and the training of welfare workers.

Community centres have been established both in urban and rural areas. They instruct women in knitting, needlework, spinning and weaving and train them to make useful household articles. Attendance is increasing daily and 14 new centres have been opened in recent months.

One feature of the community centre's activity is the house-to-house visit of a resident welfare worker, trained in one of the department's schools. The workers provide medical aid, secure employment when needed and teach elementary home economics to housewives.

Courses given these welfare workers include cooking, nutrition, first aid and home decoration.

Large-Scale Search For Nfld. Herring

St. John's, Nfld. — There's a major search going on in the coastal waters of Newfoundland and Labrador. The quarry is the silver-bellied herring.

The Newfoundland government is back of the search, which if successful will mean a larger catch and longer season for the herring fishermen.

Seven ships are in on the search, including two Icelandic vessels subsidized by the government, four owned by the federal government and one owned by a Curling, Nfld. Company. Up to now herring have been few and far between along Newfoundland's coasts.

Beaverbrook Papers Reverse 1928 Stand

London — Politician Robert Boothby says there's nothing wrong with the Schuman plan except that it's 22 years late.

The Conservative Member of Parliament said that in 1928 he visited German executives responsible for the re-organization of coal and steel production. They made Britain a generous offer on pooling. Later Boothby made a parliamentary speech about it.

"Thus, I think I anticipated the Schuman plan by 22 years," Boothby said in a humorous aside during a recent commons debate. He drew a laugh when he quoted a letter he received from Lord Beaverbrook's Express group of newspapers now are fiercely re-sisting the Schuman plan.

LOOP-LEADING ATHLETICS MEET SAINTS AT PARK TONIGHT

Locals Trim Drummondville Twice; Several Attendance Prizes Tonight

Sherbrooke Athletics made a connected twelve hits off two Cub pitchers and won 7-5 at the Park Avenue Stadium.

Jacques Jeanneau started on the mound for the locals but was replaced after one and two third innings. Harold Shacker, who replaced him, pitched good relief ball and was credited with the win.

Schantz and Smith tossed for the Cubs and Smith was charged with the loss.

The visitors held a 3-0 lead at the end of the second inning. Four hits and two bases on balls allowed the Cubs to tally three times in the second frame. Drummondville scored their other two runs in the sixth inning on three hits and a base on balls.

Sherbrooke tallied five times in third and twice in the seventh.

Hits by Dussault, Garcia, Nance, Brown, Canizares and Pascual in addition to a base on balls to Shacker permitted the A's to tally five times.

Brown Homers

In the seventh inning Garcia singled and was moved to second on Gene Nance's sacrifice. Brown, who was recently signed by the A's as a pitcher, played right field. He connected with a fast ball in the seventh and drove the ball out of the park to score Garcia.

Normie Dussault with three hits was the big gun for the locals. Garcia, Brown and Pascual each hit safely twice.

Hummell and Neagle with two hits each led the Drummondville attack.

Game Tonight

The Julius Kayser Co., Canadian Silk Products Ltd., Sheer Silk Hosiery Mills and Elegant Hosiery Co., have kindly donated 48 pairs of nylon stockings to be given away at attendance prizes tonight. The locals tangle with St. Hyacinthe at the Park Avenue Stadium tonight.

H. Laurie, Granby, Wins East Angus Field Day After Five-Hole Playoff

Three golfers tied for first place with 78 in the annual East Angus Field Day on Sunday and after a five-hole playoff Howard Laurie, Granby, emerged the winner.

Laurie was tied with clubmate Don Doe and Magog's Jerry Huot. After a three-hole playoff Huot was eliminated and then in a two-hole playoff Laurie beat out Doe.

The low net of the field was won by sixty-five-year-old Tom Bayley, of East Angus. The veteran golfer fired a 93 and minus his 33 handicap he led the net division with 60.

Doe received the first gross prize in class "A" and Huot the second gross prize as no competitor was allowed more than one prize.

BAKER WINS

Arnold Baker returned to competition and capped the low net in class "A". He fired an 80 and his 32 handicap won him the prize. S.C.C. took second low net with a 70. He shot an 81.

Over $140 worth of prizes were distributed.

Play Narrows Down After Week-End Matches In E. T. Tennis Tourney

Several players reached the quarter-finals of the Eastern Townships tennis championships in various divisions as a result of matches played during the week-end.

L. Lamoureux entered the quarter-finals of the men's singles, defeating Laurent Turmel, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2, while in the women's doubles Peggy and Ruth Rice of Windsor Mills entered the round of eight with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Bibiane Paulin and Marguerite Havard.

Robert Bedard became another quarter-finalist in the men's singles, winning 7-5, 6-3 over J. N. Donaldson. R. Laporte and P. Emond reached the semi-finals of the women's doubles, downing Shirley and Hilary Watt of Windsor Mills, 6-4, 7-5.

In the men's doubles, Roger Roy and Johnny Hibbard qualified for the quarter-finals with the 6-2, 6-1 victory over Bill Juncas and Luc Lamoureux, while Robert Bedard and Normand Breault downed P. E. Cote and Louis Cote 6-2, 6-4, to enter the same round.

A close match in the women's singles saw Raymond Laporte, E.T. champion, defeat Marguerite Paulin, city junior champion, 6-1, 1-6, 9-7.

Saturday's results follow:

Amedee Gaudreault defeated Lucien Goyette, 6-3, 7-5; Luc. Lamoureux defeated Laurent Turmel, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2; Peggy and Ruth Rice defeated Bibiane Paulin and Marguerite Havard, 6-2, 6-3; J. M. Cote defeated Bill Juncas, 6-3, 6-2; Robert Bedard defeated J. N. Donaldson, 7-5, 6-3; Amedee Gaudreault and Andre Renaud defeated Raoul Gagnon and Maurice LePine, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3; J. Louis de Leseleuc defeated P. E. Cote, 8-6, 6-3; R. Laporte and P. Emond defeated Shirley and Hilary Watt, 6-4, 7-5; Robert Bedard and Normand Breault defeated Pierre Delage and Maurice Lagace, 6-0, 6-0.

Today's matches:

Australia Enters Davis Cup Finals With Thrilling Win Over Sweden

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 14.—(P)—Australia is in the Davis Cup challenge round again, but there might be big overcast in the team before it faces the United States in the main event Aug. 25-27 at Forest Hills, N.Y.

John Bromwich, it appears, no longer is physically fit to play two singles and the doubles within three days. That was proved with out much question as the Aussies defeated Sweden 3 to 2 in the Inter-zone final which ended yesterday at the Westchester Country Club.

The narrow scrape convinced experts that captain Harry Hopman would be wise to substitute the 20-year-old "baby" of his team, Ken McGregor, from Bromwich in the challenge round singles.

Bromwich, 32, was so tired that his first service was a set-up for Lennart Bergelin, the Swedish ace, in the closing stages of their match yesterday. Bergelin won 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 7-9, 6-3.

It wasn't fatal, for Frank Sedgman, the Aussie's slugging young champion, squelched Torsten Johansson, the Swedes' No. 2, by 6-4, 7-5, 6-3 in the fifth and clinching argument.

Hopman has no guarantee that McGregor will do any better than Bromwich—as well. Yet, by saving Bromwich for the doubles, he can be almost certain of winning that big point, and can hope that Sedgman will win both his singles.

Meanwhile, Ted Schroeder, America's No. 1 amateur tennis player, looms as a sure bet to become the top singles performer on the U.S. Davis Cup team.

The refrigerator salesman from La Crescenta, Calif., yesterday won his first grass courts tournament of the year—the Newport Casino Invitation.

Alrick Man, Jr., non-playing captain of the U.S. team, was elated when Schroeder defeated Art Larsen of San Francisco 6-3, 7-5, 6-4. But he got a scare when Budgie Patty, another possible singles player and the Wimbledon champion, suffered a severely sprained right ankle. The injury might keep him off the courts for several days.

22-Inning Game In International

Sunday, normally, is a day of rest, but you can't tell it to Tom Poholsky and Andy Tomasie after their record-shattering 22-inning performance.

Poholsky, Rochester's rookie right-hander, and Tomasie, Jersey City's seasoned veteran, hooked up in the duel—longest in international league history. It went five hours and 15 minutes and Poholsky, 10 years Tomasie's junior, emerged the winner 3-2.

The old record was set by Toronto and Baltimore April 21, 1943, when the teams battled to a 2-2, 21-inning deadlock.

A crowd of 5,863 watched the struggle. Don Richmond's single, scoring Dick Cote from second base, gave Poholsky his 16th victory of the season. Tomasie gave up 13 hits, Poholsky nine.

Montreal Royals climbed to within four games of the league-leading Red Wings by sweeping a doubleheader from Syracuse 7-1 and 10-6.

Baltimore divided a twin bill with Buffalo and fell seven games behind Rochester. The Bisons beat the Orioles 6-4 in the opener out the third-place Baltimore rebounded in the nightcap 7-5.

Stan Hack's Springfield Cubs edged Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5 in 12 innings.

Charles bout.

Charles enters the ring a 1 to 5 favorite over the comparatively unknown Beshore, but he can't take any chances.

The champion is fully aware the boxing world will be interested in the effect of his long injury-imposed lay-off.

"I'm not taking him (Beshore) cheap as long as he's been in training," said Charles.

"As a matter of fact, I never take it easy in any fight. It'll go till one of us gets in the way. I don't go in with the intent to knock out. If the guy gets in the way, well—I always fight to win as quick as I can."

New York Giants Nip Phillies 2-0 While Dodgers Defeat Braves 8-2

James T. Hearn, an unheralded righthander, is the top candidate for the baseball bargain of the year.

A month ago, St. Louis Cardinals sold him to New York Giants for the waiver price of $10,000. Now, it is doubtful if he could buy him back for ten times that amount.

Since joining the Giants, he has made six starts and New York has won five of them. Jim was credited with four of the decisions. He was beaten once.

He was never better as he pitched the Giants to a 2-0 shutout over the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies yesterday. He allowed four hits, walked one and struck out three.

The victory gave the Giants an even break in their four-game series with the
