SMART STAYS IN POLITICAL ARENA

Dr. J. Ken Carver Installed Prexy Of Rotary Club

New President Presented Interesting Report of Recent Atlantic City Convention — Two Presentations Made — Golf Party is Announced for Wednesday Next — J. J. Russell Entertained.

The installation of a new president, an interesting report on the recent Atlantic City Convention, two presentations and the announcement of a golf party for next Wednesday were features of the regular weekly meeting of the Westmount Rotary Club held Wednesday in Victoria Hall.

Dr. J. K. Carver, newly elected president of the Rotary organization, was duly installed into office, "taking over" from Henry F. King, immediate past-president, both addressing the club with appropriate remarks. Dr. Carver thanking the members for their evident faith in his ability in raising him to the highest office in the club, and past-president King thanking the club members for their staunch support throughout his term in office.

On behalf of the club, past-president Percy Jarman presented retiring president King with a handsome travelling bag, expressing the hope that the genial retiring leader would find it of value when he journeyed to Rotary international convention at London next year.

Mr. King in turn presented the club with a handsome table clock, which, he jokingly hoped would keep the speakers and chairmen to time.

President Carver outlined to the members his stay at the Atlantic City Convention, when over ten thousand Rotarians and their wives and children gathered recently. The mammoth size of the main Convention hall had attracted the interest of Dr. Ken, and he attempted to portray something of its massive magnitude.

Flags, imitation waterfall, an ice carnival were among the feature attractions and of course, battling the waves was a popular sport with everyone.

Several outstanding addresses on subjects of Rotary interest were heard during the course of the Convention, and President Ken brought back a wealth of instructive material.

The annual golf party to Rawdon will be held Wednesday next, the members leaving Victoria Hall immediately following the regular luncheon.

J. J. Russell, well known radio artist, entertained.

NOTED SCHOLAR HERE ON SUNDAY

Rev. Dr. John MacBeath Preached at Both Services at Westmount Baptist Church.

Many visitors joined the congregation of Westmount Baptist Church at both services Sunday to hear Rev. Dr. John MacBeath, D.D., visiting minister from Scotland. Dr. MacBeath also gave an illustrated lecture on Monday night on the subject "Palestine", where he was an army chaplain during the war.

Dr. MacBeath is the minister of Hillhead Baptist Church, Glasgow. He is an ex-president of the Baptist Union of Scotland and has written extensively. He is both scholar and traveller, and is a favorite speaker at the English Keswick Convention.

During his Canadian visit he will fulfill engagements in Western Canada in addition to taking part in the "Canadian Keswick" at Muskoka. He will occupy the pulpit of Walmer Road Church, Toronto, during the latter part of this month.

Taking as his subject at Sunday evening's service "The road that leads to life is both narrow and close," he said, "The old things are best. There is a three-fold challenge in this verse: the character of the gate was that it was narrow; second was the challenge of its condition; third was the challenge of company. The challenge is whether we have the courage to stand with the few who are the minority entering the gate."

"The gateways of the Bible are not only interesting because of the materials of which they are made," he said last night, "but they are interesting because of their character. The whole subject of the Biblical gates is exceedingly intriguing when you come close enough to this magic piece of literature."

Dr. MacBeath went on to say that the gate was made narrow so that people could leave undesirable things before the entrance. The gate, he said, was where the pilgrim was. The "condition" implied in the second part of the challenge was due to the need for struggle without which no worthy object could be achieved.

Brazil, in representation of Consul Arno Konder, who is in Vancouver on business; Dr. Louis P. Hebert, Consul of Guatemala; Henri Comte, Consul of Ecuador; J. Humberto Piquell, Consul of Peru; Dr. V. V. Restaldi, Royal Italian Vice-Consul; Jose Margueirat, Acting Consul of the Argentine Republic, in representation of Consul Guy Tombs, who is temporarily out of town; and others.

PEDESTRIAN HURT

Struck by a truck Wednesday morning at the intersection of Atwater and St. Catherine streets, Miss Emily Proulx, 77 years of age, suffered a broken arm and was removed to the western division of the Montreal General Hospital.

The truck was owned by the Ice Manufacturing Company, and was driven by A. Legault, of Verdun. Miss Proulx was struck at 10.30 a.m.

TWO INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Car Overtaken Friday on Stump of Broken Lamp Standard at Mountain and Montrose Intersection.

When two automobiles collided early Friday evening at the intersection of Mountain and Montrose avenues, two women suffered injuries. Mrs. K. Berlyn, Cote des Neiges Road, and Mrs. Ernest Lattier, of Richelieu, Quebec. Mrs. Lattier was taken to the Western division of the Montreal General Hospital, where she was stated to be suffering from a concussion, while Mrs. Berlyn was able to go home.

Local police learned that the automobile in which Mrs. Lattier was a passenger was driven by Mrs. James Hutchison, of Aberdeen avenue, while Mrs. Berlyn was piloting the other car. Following the collision, Mrs. Hutchison's car overturned and crashed against a steel lamp standard, smashing it. The car fell on top of the broken stump of the standard, which pierced the top of the car without touching the occupants.

Sergeant Byford and Constables Rowe, McCrea and Lauzon investigated.

Mr. Jackson entered the service of the Railway in January 1889, as junior clerk in the office of the auditor of disbursements, Montreal. He was appointed chief of the voucher department in October, 1892, and in January, 1914, he was made an auditor of claims in charge of all freight claim offices from coast to coast. ### AS LIBERTY BELL CHIMED IN ON WELCOME

In a ceremony audible throughout the country, the Liberty Bell that tolled the news of the Declaration of Independence was rung again to herald the Democratic National Convention's assemblage in Philadelphia. At left Mayor S. Davis Wilson taps the historic bell with a padded mallet, and at right Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama strives to catch the last faint vibrations of its chime. The crack in the bell is plainly visible.

West-End Municipalities Stand Well Up In Report

Metropolitan Commission Statement Shows Staggering Total of Assessments — Local Communities Have Favorable Excess of Current Assets Over Liabilities — Populations Given as Westmount, 26,000, Montreal West, 3300, Hampstead 1100.

The recently issued fourteenth report of the Montreal Metropolitan Commission for the year ended December 31st, 1935, contains a great deal that will prove of interest to west end residents, especially in view of the financial situation in which Montreal now finds itself, and the widespread attention and concern being shown regarding the condition of the city.

The Commission, composed of J. Ballantyne, J. Beaubien, A. Carignan, N. Courtemanche, H. Ferland, A. Filion, A. Hudon, J. Jenkins, G. S. Layton, F. J. Le-duc, A. Leonard, J. B. A. Meri-neau, Leo. J. McKenna, A. Ray-nault and J. Shubert, has jurisdiction over a number of municipalities on the island of Montreal, including Westmount, Hampstead and Montreal West. Notre Dame de Grace falls under the heading of "Montreal", and so is affected only as the balance of the city is concerned.

Expenses incurred in the administration of the Commission amounted to $17,099.95, an increase over the previous year of 6.780.09, and more than twice the amount required for the year preceding that (1933).

West end municipalities are conspicuous by their absence from the list of municipalities receiving cash advances. Point aux Trembles received a total of $82,904.97, Montreal North $62,747.27 and Saint Michel was advanced a total of $88,802.24, entire loans amounting to $234,454.48 for the year.

Assessments of the various municipalities reached the staggering total of $1,162,349,412.00, of which Montreal made up $930,881,005.00, Westmount, $71,538,706.00, Hampstead $2,926,230.00, and Montreal West $7,378,155.00.

It is interesting to note that Westmount was assessed higher than Outremont, which trailed behind at an assessed value of only $42,610,737.00. Increased assessments recommended amounted to 6% (land) for Westmount, amounting to $1,347,540.00. Buildings and machinery in Westmount were not recommended for an assessment increase.

The west end municipalities do not appear on the list of communities faced with a cash deficit.

Westmount showed a favorable ratio of collections to expenditures of 110.08%; Hampstead and Montreal West both slightly under the 100% mark, with 99.6% and 99.8% respectively. No additional funded debt for the year was reported by Montreal West, whereas Westmount showed an increase of $220,000 and Hampstead $42,063.00. Hampstead and Westmount both reimbursed their funded debts during 1935; $4,878.00 and $3,000.00 respectively.

West end municipalities show a favourable excess of current assets over current liabilities.

Westmount shows no properties acquired by tax sales during the year, whereas both Hampstead and Montreal West have items against this heading. Hampstead properties thus acquired amounted to $1,600, with $425 written off the rolls, and Montreal West acquired $126,051.00, with corresponding amount of $30,499.00 written off.

Populations are given as: Westmount, 26,000; Montreal West, 3,300; and Hampstead, 1,100. All three communities are listed as residential districts.

Candidate

Brigadier-General Charles A. Smart, staunch Tory standard bearer in this division for a great many years, who announced his candidature in the forthcoming provincial election exclusively to The Examiner late last night.

"I Will Definitely Be A Candidate" Is Latest Statement

Despite Daily Paper Story of His Retirement, Staunch Tory Standard-Bearer is Keen to Contest Seat — Will Liberals Run a Candidate? — Is Dr. J. Stanley Allen to Be C.C.F. Man.

Brigadier-General Charles A. Smart, staunch Conservative standard-bearer in this division for many years, announced his candidature exclusively to the Examiner late last night "I will be a candidate" stated the General in his terse, laconic manner. "There are a great many who want me to run, far too many to disappoint, and I will definitely be in the field."

Word has been bantered round for some time that the General would not contest the local seat again and that several strong possibilities were attempting to get the backing of the local associations. The provincial situation is interesting and the pot is beginning to boil as the election date nears.

The General has sat on the opposition side of the House through many sessions, and on most occasions with a small opposition at that. He has represented the division in the Provincial House through fair weather and foul and his host of friends believe that now, when there is a chance that he may be sitting on the "Government" side, he is still the man for the candidacy and the man for the post.

Contrary to reports in a daily paper that the General would not run, he has definitely announced that his hat is in the ring and that is practically the same as a victory for the veteran for he has a large following in the riding and his support is the type that is not swayed.

Even Liberal workers in the division admit that the General is unbeatable and one has gone so far as to say that if the General were the candidate the Liberal Party would not oppose him. This may be stretching the point just a little and expert observers are of the opinion that the Liberals will have a candidate here after all. However, it is highly doubtful at the present time, as all parties can still vividly remember the results of the Federal election.

However, there is still plenty of time and plenty of room for action on the local front. The C.C.F. have definitely announced that they will have a candidate in the field and although the man has not yet been named, rumor hath it that Dr. J. Stanley Allen will be the standard-bearer for the Woodsworth aggregation.

With the Provincial situation as fraught with unforeseen possibilities as it seems to be at the present time the Liberals may decide that a candidate running here will keep the Conservative stalwarts at home in their own back yard and prevent them roaming to give aid in other doubtful districts.

Then too, there may be some truth to the rumors of another Conservative candidate.

Thus Are The Mighty . . . . .

The mighty have fallen, you must know of course,
The garagers at softball have trimmed the police force.
The coppers are feeling the shame quite a lot,
For their vict'ry was certain, or so we all thought.
The husky garagers with runs and fast balls,
Were cause of the downfall; their playing enthralls.
The officers, confident of a new win,
Went out on the field and got socked on the chin.
They'll bear the great shame of it long as they live,
For the truck drivers trimmed them by eight runs to five.

Brig. - Gen. Smart

The announcement, made Wednesday night, that Brigadier-General Allan Smart would again enter the political arena in the August 17th elections this year came as a distinct surprise to many. Rumours had been rife to the effect that the General would not run again this year, his health reportedly being unequal to the occasion, and on this assumption many were looking forward to a hotly contested electoral battle in this division.

General Smart has represented this division in the Quebec house for nearly twenty-five years. His general popularity and staunch support of the interests of this riding in the Provincial Parliament have made his elections a foregone conclusion, and even the most vehement of opposing candidates have been forced to concede his eventual win, even before the ballots were cast.

Rumours that he might not be in the field this year naturally gave rise to high hopes in the hearts of Liberal supporters here. While this is essentially a Conservative division, it was felt that another Conservative candidate might not find it so easy a task to poll the majorities ceded to the General in past years; and Liberal supporters were looking forward to a closely contested election, and a possible Liberal win.

The General's entry, however, colours the electoral sky here similarly to previous years, and another Smart-Conservative win is already foreseen by experienced observers.

STOP AND REST AWHILE

Where will this mad rush for health lead you? What will you do with the power acquired? Man in his mad pursuit for money, power and control becomes obsessed. He loses all interest in the life that moves about him unless it stands in his way. He fails to see the beauty that surrounds him because his eyes are blinded. Home life and social problems have no interest because they hinder his advance. Thus man becomes nothing more than a restless, roaming animal. Those finer senses and better feelings are killed by the mad rush and pursuit to satisfy the lower animal nature. God gave man brains and faculties so that he would control and govern the earth and all that therein is. Man has lost his head and has forgotten that this heritage is given only on condition that he does utilize those gifts for the use of man. What is the use of money, power or control unless it benefits humanity? In this mad rush greed has crept in and destroyed all the higher ideals. In order to get the right vision, man is called upon to stop and rest awhile.

The above thoughts were stimulated as the writer sat on a kitchen stool. There, away from all the rush of life, surrounded by the farm and all its buildings that had served for more than 50 years, amid quiet, peaceful life and under bright blue sky, peace and beauty reigned supreme. It was restful and called forth all the high and noble ambitions in life. As you noted the well kept yard and flower garden, as you looked over the old apple tree and the berry bushes, as you saw the old driving shed, not used for years, ready to tumble down, you saw a picture that said life is filled with beauty and happiness when surrounded with those things that you have learnt to love. It was a scene that makes one think about the end and recall the fact that man was made to enjoy this life and not to become a slave to it.

During the holiday season at the cottage, on the lake, in the woods, or back on the farm, plan to stop and rest awhile. Look into the heavens and read the message given there. Look into the woods, listen to the brooks, note the animal and bird life and then think of your own self. If man will just rest awhile and give that God given brain an opportunity to think about life instead of planning to obtain, there will be a new power in the world. Man will no longer desire to crush those who stand in his way to power or wealth but he will share with humanity the beauties of this life. Contentment will reign supreme in the heart of man and there will be no place in this world for greed. Stop and rest awhile. Man was destined to rule but man must give an account of his stewardship.

LIFE DEMANDS THE BEST

Few people understand the things that they handle every day and the appliances that they use. They press a button and the machine operates. They turn a key and set in motion a powerful engine that whirls them through the air or under the sea. They sit back and ride in comfort over the smooth highways or across the seas. They pass through the mountains and scale the highest hills with ease. They use foods and clothing every day but do not know what they are made of or how they came into being. We all use the results of the ages without questioning. Yet this very fact is destroying man's inventive powers and the development of his power to reason.

We listen to men reiterate the headings they read in the newspaper, we listen to small talk of some questionable article that deals with the seriousness of life, we ask a question about the main issues of life and find that our audience is silent. We try to find out why such lines of action are taken and all we can learn is that it has been the general custom. People generally do not stop to think, and as a result the few who do think, lead the rest of the people by the nose. Men and women must stop and use their brains if the private rights of the people are to be safeguarded. If you delegate all the thinking people to stop and ask the question, "where will these proposed policies lead?" "Where will this increased taxation end?" "Where will the increased number of wine and beer licenses bring the people?" These are questions at every turn that demand the keenest brains to think out, and at the present time the larger proportion of the people are just drifting along. There is a day of settlement and those who are paying attention to the trend or the times will be the leaders. They will direct the courses as they see fit. They will lead the people as their own desires direct them. They will control the destinies as they vision them. Will the people stand by and let these things happen? Yes, unless they will use their brains and think. Just tell what you can as a test of those things you use every day and see how much you have reasoned out the values of time, energy and money.

Education is making great strides in Persia. In 1910 there were only 112 primary schools with 10,531 pupils of whom 2,167 were girls. The two secondary schools in the country enrolled 154 pupils. Higher education was limited to a faculty of medicine, a polytechnical and a military school. The number of schools is now over 4,000 with over 200,000 pupils of whom one-third are girls. Secondary and higher education have registered a corresponding advance.

 In Which
 Subjects of General Interest Are Discussed

NOTE:—The opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily those of The Examiner, and this newspaper does not accept responsibility for them. They are published for their general interest, variety and originality of treatment.

By HOWARD S. ROSS, K.C., D.C.L.

The Henry George Idea is the one way to safeguard civilization in the opinion of single taxers.

The rental value of land is due to all the people and their activities increase, especially in cities.

Naturally, the community has the right to take this value which it creates.

The mistake is made of permitting a few to take this value, thus causing speculation in land, while the rest of the people have to pay the expenses of heavy taxation.

Unemployment and the breakdowns of our civilization occur because land monopoly makes scarce the opportunities for work.

This fundamental wrong must be righted before wars and all injustice can be abolished. We shall continue to suffer unless we act.—Louis F. Weston.

Professor Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago in a recent address declared communism, nationalism, racialism and liquor were in effect four religions clamoring for the attention of youth today.

The Christian Scientists are building a new church at Indianapolis, the second new church for this group in the last two years. It is to cost $60,000, will seat 800 and will be a Georgian colonial structure. The money for the new church is raised or fully subscribed.

A State organizer for Father Coughlin's National Union For Social Justice at a meeting held at Fort Wayne attended by 1000 people appealed to the middle class to assert its leadership, and claimed that the Union has no desire to abolish Capitalism but to remodel it. One must admire the energy, initiative and courage of this Canadian born priest.

Recently Dr. Mortimer Adler of the University of Chicago spoke on "Misapplied Psychology" in which he stated that modern psychology is responsible for the elimination of mathematics and the classics from compulsory studies in the colleges of the U.S.A. with the result that students are being turned out who can neither speak nor write well. He said teachers are being shown more how than what to teach.

The head masters of all high schools for girls in Turkey have sent a number of recommendations to parents of their pupils. They say the Turkish woman's real beauty is in her simplicity. Their daughters should refrain from wearing loud colors, extravagant ornaments, rings, earrings, or to paint their faces and their nails.

John Ingevar Jensen, a thoughtful young Dane now a resident of Montreal wrote recently of Professor Leacock's fascinating article, "I'll Stay in Canada":—"I know of course that Stephen Leacock is a great humorist and that he is one of the prominent writers of the Anglo-Saxon world of today. I know also that he is a strange economist who irritates the 'Marxists' and bewilders the orthodox, the 'distinguished' economists I mean. I know he is an engaging speaker who holds confusing opinions as to what ordinary life should be and of the purpose of higher education; but I did not know that he was also so keen an observer, so discriminating and profound a thinker, so understanding a man, so virile and realistic-minded an artist and so fine and comprehending a lover of his country and its people as this short piece of writing reveals the him to be."

Mr. Jensen who refers to himself as "a mere immigrant and foreigner" is a keen student of economics and knows how to express himself by word or pen. He is greatly attached to Canada his adopted country.

A factory for the production of fatty acids from coal has been inaugurated by Witten, in the Ruhr district of Germany. The fat is to be used for the most part in the manufacture of soap. Here is another example of the transformation of matter, and a sign of the unlimited capacity of production made possible by the ingenuity of chemists and engineers.

Rust brothers of Memphis inventors of the New Cotton picker (which will pick as much cotton in a seven and one-half hour day as a handpicker can gather in a three months' season) are doing something else that is of as much importance as their invention of the cotton picker. Their proposal to make an effort to raise, rather than lower labor standards and are hoping to devise ways and means through which a minimum will be placed on wages and a maximum on hours.

They will promote collective bargaining through the use of their machines and hope to make some arrangement through the International labor office whereby no one nation will be enabled through its use to take advantage of another. They propose to limit their personal incomes to not more than ten times the wages of their employees who make the machines and to devote all profits that come to them as inventors and owners to improving the conditions of laborers in the cotton fields.

Probably they will find this effort at new and better socio-economic arrangements will prove as laborious and will require as much persistence in experimentation, in failure and success, as ten years of labor in perfecting their new machine.

Canadians, Irish-Canadians, Italian-Canadians, and numerous other varieties of Canada's hyphenated citizens have held or are holding outdoor picnics at Belmont Park, Cartierville amusement centre, this summer. And this week, for their entertainment, a troupe of roaming Australian aerial artists are appearing twice daily in the open air.

The HONEY Family, straight from Melbourne, Australia, are claimed to be the world's greatest teeter-board artists. Eight members of the family make up the troupe, all brothers and sisters, and chaperoning the youngsters are Ma and Pa Honey who were famous in Australian big tent circuses two decades ago. Youngest of the Honey stars is Doris, age 13, and the oldest is Leona, 22. Main feature of the act is the thrilling performance of the girl stars who do aerial stunts that are usually performed only by men.

Commencing with the national Irish-Canadian Festival on Sunday this week has been one of the biggest picnic weeks in Belmont history. On Tuesday the Iverley Settlement held an outdoor gathering at Belmont followed on Wednesday by the Montreal Women's Benefit Association and the Women's Social Club of Point St. Charles Baptist Church. Today the Borden's Farm Products social club is holding its annual outing with the St. Augustine Tennis Club holding their event tomorrow. On Sunday employees of the McColl Frontenac Oil Company and members of the Amalgamated Clothing Worker's Union will hold picnics at the park. Saturday afternoon the Jacques Cartier Chapter of the printers' union will hold an outdoor celebration.

During the spring floods in the United States a house was invaded by the waters of a badly swollen river, the family being forced to evacuate the premises in haste. Amongst other things they left behind them in the living room a bowl of goldfish half full of water. Little by little the ever-rising tide floated the household pets up to the ceiling. When the waters receded and the family returned to their domicile, they found the goldfish swimming around in the bowl, firmly attached by the power of suction to the damp plaster ceiling.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER

Robert Tetrault, of Selwyn House School, is the winner of the scholarship offered annually by Lower Canada College. Ross Clarkson and Kenneth Porter ranked second and third respectively.

Robert Tetrault achieved a very high standard in the examinations, which are understood to have been unusually difficult. He averaged 80 per cent. He attained high marks in English literature and French translation, rating 96 per cent and 95 per cent respectively.

Westmount Baptist Church Notes

The regular services are being continued throughout the summer at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Keen interest is provoked by the summer sermon themes. These are varied, vital and impinge upon every-day life.

On Sunday morning the minister will speak of "God's Splendour" presenting a phase of our Lord's ministry which is seldom emphasized.

In the evening Mr. Johnston will speak of "The Eternal Triangle". Triangles are suggestive of problems and life bristles with them. The preacher will state and present Christ's answer to three of life's most acute problems.

The mid-week services for prayer, discussion and fellowship continue each Wednesday evening. During August this Westmount pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Leslie E. Wilton, a virile, forceful missionary from India and by Rev. Dr. H. H. Savage, the well-known radio preacher from Pontiac Michigan.

CALVARY CHURCH NOTES

On Sunday the series of summer services on "River Scenes in Bible stories" will be continued at the morning worship at 11 a.m., and the series on "Friendship Tales in the Scripture Narrative" at the evening service at 7:30 p.m., with the minister of Calvary Church, the Rev. T. W. Jones preaching at both services.

The subject of the morning sermon will be "Rivers of Precious Memories", while the evening subject will be "David and Jonathan."

A special service will be held in the church auditorium at 3 o'clock, when the members of the Prince of Wales Loyal Orange Lodge No. 364, combined with the members of Boyne Loyal Orange Lodge No. 401, led by their respective officers, will march in procession to Calvary Church for their annual parade service.

The fact that Sunday falls this year upon July 12th, the great day of celebration of the Victory of The Boyne, makes the service this year of added significance and unusual interest. The speaker at this service will be the minister, Rev. T. W. Jones, the subject of his address being the words of scripture, "What Mean Ye By This Service?"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE NOTES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, is "Sacrament."

The Golden Text is: "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." (Hebrews 13: 16).

The following correlative passages are selected from among those comprised in the Lesson-Sermon to be read from the Bible and from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health by Mary Baker Eddy—"

"And when the hour was come he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. . . . And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." (Luke 22: 14, 19, 20).

"The true sense is spiritually lost, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful. Jesus prayed; he withdrew from the material senses to refresh his heart with brighter, with spiritual views." (Science and Health, page 32.)

HUMAN INTEREST

A FEATURE IN THREE PARTS BY
 M. N. JOHNSON
 PART III

(Conclusion)
 As the ovation continued, with the tired young musician bowing and smiling his thanks from the stage, the old father turned, and with face glowing with pride and happiness, looked over the applauding mass of people who were so generously showing their appreciation of this son of his.

Then it was that I got my first good look at his face. And as the name of Bienjoni had seemed familiar to me, so did the face. Something about the way he held his head tipped a bit to one side like an interested robin; and that funny little quirk of humor at the left corner of his mouth—where had I seen it before?

And then I remembered. And this is what I remembered: a building, a huge brick building, in the process of erection. Now let me see, what building was that? I believe, yes I am sure, and what an interesting situation—it was this very theatre that had been built. That must have been twelve?—fifteen?—yes, it was more, it was sixteen years ago. For it was when I was with the Globe. The theatre, which was to be one of the most modern and best equipped in Canada, was new, and part of my beat. And from time to time photographs and write-ups of its progress were secured as part of my regular routine, and were given prominent places in the paper. In addition to these, and to my mind at least, much more interesting, were the not infrequent "human interest" stories I was able to glean from my contacts with the laborers on the job. Many of these laborers, as is bound to be the case, were dull plodders, without a thought above the Saturday pay envelope. But there were others, men of vision, who viewed life with a surprisingly clear perspective. Their well-developed sense of proportion gave them to see work as a sacred trust, and the conscientious manner in which they did their work would make of this pile of brick and mortar a lasting monument to their faithfulness.

Among these latter was an Italian brick-layer, Pietro Bienjoni by name, with whom I found it an education and a pleasure to talk. The best time in which to talk to the men was, of course, at lunch time, when they all sat about on boxes and kegs and piles of bricks, and smoked, after having partaken of the simple fare which had been eaten from their lunch boxes carried from home in the morning. Then the tongues were loosened; and the minds of men during the busy working hours of the morning found expression in words, and revealed the many strange angles and kinks and twists of which the undisciplined human mind is capable.

But there was never anything bizarre or unacceptable in Pietro Bienjoni's thinking. His was the soul of a poet, even though he would have been the last to have admitted it. He saw beauty and worth-whileness in everything, even in work. Life was a joyous responsibility to him, a responsibility which he accepted in the full realization that it was only by putting his best into it that he could hope to get the best from it. And many a profound bit of homely philosophy, quaintly expressed fell from his lips between puffs of tobacco smoke.

One day as we were sitting together on an old mortar-debauded plank, Pietro talking and I making mental notes for a story for tomorrow's Globe, his little five-year-old son, who had come up with an older brother to visit their father at his work, was playing near by. Or at least he had been nearby a few minutes ago, but now he had strayed a bit until he had got out of our sight. His father missed him, and going to look for him, found him in another part of the yard, playing happily at 'brick-layer'. He was picking up and carrying the heavy bricks to a spot where he began to build something of his own designing.

"My little Benito," the father had said to me earlier: "He's one good-a-keed. And smart, too. Some-day hees old Dad is going to be-a-proud of him. You watch, Meester. Some-day, you see!" And seeing the look of adoring tenderness in the father's eyes I felt that I didn't need to wait until 'some-day' for the pride.

But now I was astonished at the expression that came over the brick-layer's face at sight of his son at play. Was it anger or fear? To me it looked like nothing else but fear, as he shouted to the boy a command in Italian. And whatever it was that I had seen in his face, it made his voice harsh and strident.

The boy dropped the brick he had been carrying; and without a word, though with a lip that quivered with hurt sensibilities, he came to meet us and turned questioning eyes up to his father's displeased face.

"Why, Daddy? Why? Benito like to play with bricks just like you. Why not, Daddy?" And bewildered surprise looked from the boy's black eyes.

The father replied to the boy's plea in Italian. I did not understand what he said; but the impassioned tone of voice, and the gestures, left nothing to my imagination, nor any doubt in the boy's mind. He cried at first; not in the way a wilful child cries when denied his own way, but in the sobbing, breath-catching way of the broken-hearted. The father took him in his arms and talked to him. And before very long the sobs ceased, the shaken little body became calm again, and a smile came back to his tear-stained face like a rainbow after a shower. The older boy came along soon after, and the two went off together to return to their home.

I spoke to the father about the incident.

"Weren't you unnecessarily harsh with the little chap?" I asked. "Surely he wasn't doing any harm, playing with the bricks. And may he not be following in his father's footsteps? Perhaps some day he too will be a brick-layer, and have a hand in building beautiful buildings."

"No, no, my friend!" the man cried out, with unnecessary vehemence. "That is just what I don't-a-want heem to be. My little bambina must-a-not be a brick-layer. He must-a-not even touch-a da brick. Some-day he will be da great-a-musician. I feel it here!"—putting his hand upon his heart in a dramatic way—"and da brick-a spoil hees fingers, so." And he held out for my inspection his own two hands, with their brick and lime scarred fingers. "He will play da violin, Meester, you see, some-day. He must-a not handle da brick."

I had my story. It was written with all the imagination and feeling of which I was capable. And the next day it appeared in the Globe, half a column, one column wide, in a 'box'. At the end of the story I said "It would be interesting to follow up the life of the little Italian Benito, just to see how much of inspiration there may be in the dotting father's prophecy."

That was sixteen years ago, as have said. And tonight, in the very theatre the father had been helping to build at the time, I have been privileged to witness the fulfillment of the prophecy.

London.—Two precedents will be set this year when the lord mayor of London, Sir Percy Vincent, embarks on the Empress of Britain, Aug. 8, for Canada to attend the charter jubilee celebrations of Vancouver, B.C.

Sir Percy will be the first English lord mayor to visit the Dominion in his official capacity and it will also be the first occasion the famous insignia of London office—the chain and mace—have left the country. Full regalia will be worn at the celebrations.

The lord mayor's retinue will include Sir T. Vansittart Bolderman, member of the court of aldermen; the chief commoner, F. Rowland; the sergeant at arms; sword bearer and London's new city marshal, Lieut-Commander John Roberts Poland.

Announcing his decision at a meeting of the city corporation to accept Vancouver's invitation, the lord mayor said he had done so with the consent of the King. He will unveil a statue to Captain Vancouver, founder of that city.

The Town of Hampstead, collaborating with the executive of the Club, have promised that the extension of Queen Mary Road to the clubhouse will be completed for traffic by the 15th. Contracts for the furnishing and minor details of decorating and embellishment are being let, and everything should be completed and ready for use by the time stipulated.

The new course is an eighteen hole one, with a par of seventy. Situated somewhat to the north of the old course, it is spartan and yet not difficult, well planned and compact, yet with ample allowance for good driving. It provides plenty of excitement for the skilled golfer, and yet is ideally constructed to suit the needs of the not-so-proficient yet ambitious adherent of the game.

Under the expert care of Greenkeeper John Allen, the new course is one of the finest on the island.

The clubhouse has been planned to include every modern convenience. Shower-baths, modern locker accommodations, a fine dining room and lounge that can be

Did All That Could Be Expected, Says Fort William Committee

Fort William, Ont.—Charges made against Fort William fire department in connection with a blaze in the Murray Block some months ago were not sustained in an inquiry before a civic committee which reports as follows:

Your committee, having heard the evidence of all parties concerned, is of the opinion:

That the fire had made too great a headway when the alarm was sent in, to be put out before the building was destroyed.

That on account of the nature of its construction, it was dangerous to risk the lives of the firemen in the basement, where the fire was burning the fiercest.

That the chief used reasonable judgment in preventing persons entering their stores on account of danger from smoke and gas.

That everything was done that could reasonably be expected, to extinguish the fire that finally destroyed the building at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Syndicate Ave.

PICTURE NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE STARS

"Peg Of Old Drury" At The Empress Sat.

In "Peg of Old Drury", which will be the feature attraction at the Empress Theatre starting on Saturday, Anna Neagle, of "Nell Gwynn" fame, surpasses herself in the role of Peg Woffington, the little Irish dancing girl who left her nuptial Dublin home for the glamour of London Town and became the greatest actress of her day and the adored of David Garrick.

Her piquant features, her dashing male masquerade, the sweetness of her Rosalind in the interpolated scenes from "As You Like It," and the infinite pathos of her untimely death on the stage of Old Drury will long be remembered as the outstanding features of a magnificent performance.

Miss Neagle's brilliant study is equalled only by Sir Cedric's masterly interpretation of the part of David Garrick, the greatest actor of his generation. His excerpts from Shakespeare, and in particular his glimpse of Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" are among the finest things he has ever done.

Maire O'Neill, that capable Irish actress, brings a wealth of rich humour to the part of Peg's outspoken mother from Dublin, while Arthur Sinclair brings the role of her father vividly to life.

As Mr. Rich, notoriously eccentric manager of Drury Lane

AT THE MONKLAND UNITED THEATRE!

Ruby Keeler follows up her hits in "42nd Street", "Flirtation Walk", and "Shipmates Forever", in which she was teamed with Dick Powell with another splendid attraction "Colleen", now playing at the Monkland until Saturday night.

"Bullets Or Ballots" Is Feature At The Capitol Starting Friday

Edward G. Robinson returns to the screen in "Bullets or Ballots", a First National production opening tomorrow at the Capitol theatre as the main feature. In this picture, Robinson has a role as strong as that of "Little Caesar", although he is neither crook nor gunman, but one of the coldest and most hard-boiled detectives of the New York Police Force.

The story of "Bullets or Ballots" was written by Martin Moehey, the New York police reporter who exposed racketeering in his newspaper and was sent to jail for thirty days for contempt of court because he refused to divulge the source of his information. The plot tells of a hard-boiled detective determined to put the boldest and best organized band of criminals known to history, out of business. To do this he renounces both love and honour, at least temporarily, for he breaks with the police and ostensibly becomes a criminal himself in order to gather the evidence to break up a band of crooks, so powerful, that no one had been able to put the finger on them.

Joan Blondell has the leading feminine role as Robinson's sweetheart and the supporting cast includes Barton MacLane, Humphrey Bogart, Frank McHugh, Richard Purcell and George E. Stone.

The Jones Family in "Educating Father", the second feature, reveals the adventures and experiences of the average American family and is an hilarious comedy of family life with Dad finally getting "wised-up" to the ways and methods of the modern generation. The leading characters are portrayed by Jed Prouty, Shirley Dione, Dixie Dunbar, Spring Byington, Kenneth Howell, June Carlson, George Ernest, Florence Roberts and William Mahan.

Then Al, with undiminished zeal, returned to the lot, and to his picture, prepared to wear down some more players to his size.

The next candidate for an energy contest was none other than that hi-de-ho musical showman, Mr. Cab (Harlem) Calloway. And Cab, it is widely known, is famous as a singing orchestra leader who has never been known to weaken.

Cab, with Al setting the pace, went into the hot hoofing and jazz singing sequences of a torrid song-and-dance number with all the fiery enthusiasm and endurance of his race. For several days - and nights - it seemed that Jolson had at last met his match for endurance and speed.

Cab and Al, after long and strenuous stretches of movie work, would appear equally untired when other member of the cast and staff were ready to sink into chairs.

But finally, it appeared, Calloway began to "weaken in the stretch." Between scenes, when Al was leaning to the telephone to phone his broker or bookmaker, or was laughing and telling stories to members of the company, Cab could be seen slipping off to his stage dressing room furtively wiping his brow.

Then came a time, when Jolson was engaged in joyously ribbing some of his friends on the stage and the Negro chorus was rehearsing for the "Save Me, Sister" finale, that somebody asked for Calloway. Cab wasn't in sight. And his valet spilled the beans.

"Mistuh Calloway is layin' down 'n' takin' a rest," he explained. "He's weary." The valet rolled his eyes and added: "It don't look like Mistuh Jolson ever do look weary."

"The Singing Kid" is a powerful human interest drama which swings intermittently between hilarious comedy and heart wrenching pathos. There are two big production numbers staged by Bobby Connolly, with music and lyrics by E. Y. Harburg and Harold Arlen.

Besides Jolson the cast includes Sybil Jason, Beverly Roberts, Edward Everett Horton, Lyle Talbot, Allen Jenkins and Clair Dodd. The picture was directed by William Keighley.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Starting Saturday, "Lorna Doone" from the famous English novel will appear at the Orpheum. Above scene shows Victoria Hopper and John Loder who appear together.

Jolson So Full Of Pep He Tires Out Other Players

Star of "The Singing Kid" Filled With Irrespressible Enthusiasm

Al Jolson is an actor of irrespressible enthusiasm and limitless energy.

The Jolsonian traits, which years ago grew into a theatrical tradition to the effect that "Al never gets tired of entertaining his crowds," are seen anew in the mammy singer's current screen work. Al was no more zestful and zippy two decades ago, when he faced the lights, camera and microphone for the First National picture, "The Singing Kid," which comes to the Westmount Theatre on Sunday for the first three days of the week, following Wednesday at the Seville.

In the early sequences of the new musical, Al worked with those high compression purveyors of pep, the Yacht Club Boys.

Day after day, and evening after evening, Al stepped out ahead of the Yacht Club quartette in the pep-talking labor of creating a mad and merry song production number. After it was all over, and the four Yacht Club lads had finished their final take, they literally wilted. In harmony, they declared:

"This is the hardest job we ever tackled." But Al wasn't fazed. Despite the fact that he'd been doing a big weekly radio show, with many rehearsals, as a side issue, it was an energetic Jolson who bade the drooping Yacht Clubbers goodbye when they entrained for New York.

Then Al, with undiminished zeal, returned to the lot, and to his picture, prepared to wear down some more players to his size.

Richard Dix Stars At Empress In G-Man Film

The much-discussed misuse of legal brilliance in defence of notorious gangsters and public enemies has been made the plot basis for Richard Dix's new starring vehicle for RKO Radio, "Special Investigator," which starts Saturday at the Empress.

Dix, as the story opens, has the role of an eastern attorney who has grown somewhat wealthy as the courteous mouthpiece of gangsters who are freed time and time again by his clever evasion of facts in trial before juries.

But just as he wins one of his most important cases to be rewarded with a $15,000 check from gangland and the affections of a perigrinating blonde, a verbal blasting by a judge and a combination of circumstances, including the shooting of his brother, a G-man, he suddenly awakens to the iniquity of his legal practices.

Playing opposite Dix is the beautiful Margaret Callahan, who finds herself torn between the love of Dix and that of her gangster-brother, as Dix renounces his clients and secretly begins operations as a special investigator for the government.

To make their romance more turbulent, Dix finds out that it was the girl's brother who had killed his kin.

In seeking vengeance on the type of men he had once defended in courts of the land, Dix goes to Nevada where he learns that gangsters who had stolen bullion worth several hundred thousand dollars were distributing the "hot gold" into an abandoned mine and shipping it out as ore. Dix wages a fearless war against the enemy camp in this rugged background, as the woman he is to love comes West to nurse her wounded brother and others from the eastern underworld trail him.

The action in the mining district is the kind for which Dix has long been famous and he outwits and "outmits" the crooks in a thrill-packed climax.

Erik Rhodes, well known for his comedy roles with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and Owen Davis, Jr. are included in the big cast. Rhodes plays a gang leader. Other well known players supporting Dix and Miss Callahan are Ray Mayer, Harry Jans, Joseph Sawyer, J. Carrol Naish, Sheila Terry, J. M. Kerrigan, Jed Prouty, Russell Hicks, Ethan Laidlaw, and Si Jenks.

"Special Investigator" was directed by Louis King, with Clig Reid as associate producer. It was adapted by Louis Stevens, Thomas Lennon and Ferdinand Reyher from the magazine serial by Erle Stanley Gardner.

"Lorna Doone" Stirring Drama At The Orpheum On Saturday

"Lorna Doone," one of the foremost novels of the last century has been brought to the screen in a picture version that has been acclaimed by all newspapers critics who have seen it for its fidelity to the original and for the natural beauty of the production. Coming from the pen of R. D. Blackmore, this tale of life in the Exmoor country in Devonshire during the reign of James II has been an inspiring romance known and read wherever the English language is known. The screen version has already established itself in England as one of the film masterpieces of the day, and was under the artistic direction of Basil Dean. This picture is to be presented in Montreal starting this Saturday for one week at the Orpheum Theatre.

The scenic beauties of that part of Exmoor where the original story was laid have all been introduced into the picture by the simple expedient of taking the entire production company up to the Doone district and photographing them right in the story surroundings. The result is atmosphere of reality that fairly breathes the hills and valleys of this part of Devonshire. Among the typical scenes presented are such incidents as the impressive blessing of the harvest, an old-country Devon Christmas, was sail in a great oak-beamed kitchen, love and laughter in the cornfields, and many others, all of which are outstanding for the colourful manner of their presentation.

When Basil Dean the producer chose Victoria Hopper to play the title role of "Lorna Doone" he chose an actress who had already proved herself by her work in an earlier production "The Constant Nymph". As Lorna, Miss Hopper's quiet beauty fits the part aptly, and bears out the impression that the Lorna of the book invariably leaves. Taking the part of her swain Girt Jan Ridd is John Lader, one of the rising screen stars of the day, whose virulent portrayal of his part won him especial praise. Supporting is a large cast of popular English stars.

Featured on the same bill is a diverting comedy-romance laid in Paris entitled "Once in a Million" and presenting two American stars, Charles Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian, now making pictures for the British film industry. Concerning itself with the week-end adventures of an unintentional countess on the other, the amusing misunderstandings which result produce a series of hilarious situations aimed to assure perfect entertainment. Song, dance and romance are equally treated, with Miss Brian at her best as a fashion mannequin, gowned as only Paris can do it.

These two pictures will appear all week at the Orpheum at no change in their regular admission prices. Specially chosen shorts will complete the program

Eastern Townships Summer Paradise For Vacationist

A summer paradise of gently undulating woodlands, dotted with silver lakes and threaded with murmuring streams, the Eastern Townships provide a fascinating vacation land. Replete with every attraction designed to catch the eye of the holiday maker, this sparkling land of wood and stream is but a few hours from Montreal, and is efficiently served by rail and highway.

Dotted with pretty towns and villages, the Eastern Townships is indeed one of the beauty spots of eastern Canada. The many lakes and streams provide hours of untrifling entertainment for the fishing enthusiast, and at the many fine hotels and boarding houses are found tennis courts, and many other recreational facilities.

Regarding tennis, there is ample accommodation for enjoying this healthful and entertaining sport at practically every hotel and boarding house in the territory. Golf courses abound, and the green trees are extremely reasonable.

Lake Memphremagog, one of the show-places, is 30 miles long and from one to four miles wide. Its western shore, bold and mountainous, is in striking contrast to the cultivated slopes of the eastern shore.

To the north Mt. Orford stands out like a sentinel over the lake. To the south Owl's Head rising from the water's edge looks down upon its surface studded with a score of islands of various sizes.

The Steamer Anthemis stopping at Knowlton's Landing twice daily, gives an opportunity for delightful sails on Lake Memphremagog. The trip to Newport is well worth while.

There are frequent moonlight excursions. The Steamer accommodates motor cars as well as passengers.

Lyton, B.C.—A pair of mongrel dogs, worth nothing to Indian owners who had sought to drown them, were safe as they licked the hands of new-found owners who risked their lives to rescue the two animals from their nine-day refuge on a precarious ledge 200-feet above the swirling waters of the Fraser river.

While his companion, R. Pingle, stood watch at the anchor end, Ray Washpock slid 400-foot down a three-quarter inch rope to the spot where the dogs were marooned, coaxed them into a haversack he carried then swarmed up the thin strand to safety.

While the two canines turned worshipful eyes on their rescuers, Pingle and Washpock announced they would claim ownership, then took them to their cabin eleven miles south of here to begin the task of filling out the lean, starved frames.

The dogs swam to the ledge when an old rowboat in which their Indian masters had cast them adrift capsized in Cisco canyon a few hundred yards above this town.

J. W. Quaffe, summer resort chef, made an abortive attempt to feed the dogs. He slipped over the cliff ledge in an unsuccessful attempt to toss the dogs a package of food and had to be rescued by a railway guard who saw his plight as he became stranded on the crumbling ledge 150-feet from the top of the cliff.

SHOWING CONVENIENT MOTOR ROUTE TO KERR'S FARM

Kerr's Farm, one of the most delightful holiday spots in Quebec, is ideally situated at Lakefield, midway between Lachute and St. Agathe on Route 30. Route 8 provides easy access to Lachute, and Route 30, running northwards, is an excellent improved road. Alternative routes are also shown above.

Laurentian Ranges Rank Among World's Finest Vacation Lands

The Laurentian country, one of the most beautiful and unspoiled holiday fields in the North American continent, lies at the back door of Montreal. But a few short hours' drive takes one to the heart of this land of green, rolling hills, pleasant valleys, winding rivers and tree fringed lakes, where the soft breezes are heavy with odours of balsam and spruce and pine, and where the cool, dark forests and rippling streams abound with game and fish.

According to geologists the mysterious fascination of great age hangs over these mountains, but mighty ice caps have harrowed their sides, humbled the pride of their peaks, and have polished a chronicle of themselves on the scattered rocks which abound in this great region.

The camps of the Indians, wise with centuries of nature lore in their blood, were scattered throughout the million acres of this natural park which stretches for a thousand miles north to Hudson's Bay.

The highest point of the range is Mount Tremblant, rising 3,400 feet above the sea, known to the Indians as "Manitou Ewitchi-Saga," (mountain of the dread Manitou), about which there was a legend that the mountain trembled when anyone infringed the great laws of the wilderness.

Many of the Indian camps have now been replaced by modern hotels where excellent bathing, dancing, bridge, golf, tennis, riding, and motoring may be thoroughly enjoyed.

Others have been taken over to provide complete facilities for those who prefer to spend their vacations hunting, and fishing in some of the 35,000 lakes, and virgin forests of the Laurentians.

For the angler, trout and bass are abundant. The glistening denizens of the mountain streams provide plenty of thrills, and a good catch almost any day of the season can be depended upon, although May and June are generally recognized as the fishing months.

The primeval forests provide interesting trips throughout the Adirondack and Green Mountain regions, its fine situation on the golden shores of Lake Champlain makes it a spot of rare beauty and historic lore.

On the very spots where, three hundred years ago, Samuel de Champlain discovered the Richelieu and Lake Champlain waterways, Burlington has a place all its own in the story of the progress of America. It was here that the French, the English and the Indians fought for two centuries for the possession of this continent.

Transcending the years from its first settlement in 1773 to the present, Burlington has kept pace with the times and has become one of the most popular holiday spots in Eastern America. Every form of recreational, amusement, educational and commercial accommodation is to be found in abundance.

In Burlington today one finds New England at its best; a progressive community, active in trade and industry, a city of historical background, situated in the centre of a recreational region unsurpassed in all America.

The many fine hotels and boarding houses provide excellent accommodation for the visitor. Splendid food and the earnest efforts of the proprietors to make every convenience and comfort available for their guests make the stay in Burlington a memorable one.

Joe Bowman, Phillies pitcher, is a budding author. Joe learned to operate a linotype machine in Kansas City and while grinding out the stuff at so much per line he got the idea it would be smarter to get paid by the word.

He also decided that he could write a lot better magazine stuff than what they were handing him to be set into type.

SHORE LINE OF B.C. IS OF GREAT LENGTH

Vancouver, B.C.—Although the distance from the International boundary on the south to the northernmost point of British Columbia's coast is merely 600 miles, the province has a coastline of 4,334 miles, according to figures issued by provincial geographers.

Numerous deep indentations and bays on the mainland coast and the many islands along the shore give British Columbia a shoreline of 11,228 miles, or nearly half the distance around the world.

Vancouver Island alone has 1,884 miles of salt water beaches, the Queen Charlotte Islands 1,500 miles and other small islands a total of 3,300 miles.

This is not an alibi but came to me from a McGill old timer. Westward should never have lost. Ryan and Martin (McGill) were both out first ball. One was bowled and the other caught. The umpire unfortunately had called "no ball" in both instances.

Funny how an evening paper loves to emphasize the fact that Westward have only won one league game. Another team has not won one game, but who cares?

Around The Tennis Courts

by NIVEN

The Men's Open Singles Tournament which has been in progress for the past few weeks on the Municipal Courts is fast drawing to a close. Mr. Tucker eliminated Ed. Dowden and Guy Thomas to reach the semi-finals. In the game between Thomas was eliminated 6-3, 8-6, the tennis displayed was not what it might have been had the contestants put a little more pep into the match. Mr. Thomas puts forth a much more interesting game from a spectators point of view.

Should the local cartoonists fall short of material I would advise them to come around the tennis courts and record for posterity the many and varied poses displayed in the art of serving the tennis ball. A contortionist has nothing on the local boys—and girls. By the way, I have been called to question by members of the fair sex for omitting to mention anything as regards their activity on the courts. I assure you, Miss O'Reilly that when the tournaments for the ladies commence this column will

Fathers pants may be cut down for Willie but not his cricket bat, gloves or pads. I will be only too glad to see that any contribution in whatever form reaches its destination and acknowledge it. The above also replies to Mr. Shorts unquoted letter of last week.

Speaking of that letter I have another correspondent.

"Wicket keeper." Is the game mentioned in Mr. Short's letter (1884 to 1887) the same game? Yes it is. It is the game that produced Ranjitsinghi, Dr. Grace, Lord Hawke and the famous saying, and moral code, "That's not cricket" then it is the same game.

If you mean, is it one continuous game, I would say emphatically "No". They had time out for afternoon tea and luncheon and had to stop the game to awaken the umpires.

Harold Brooks, mentor and drill sergeant of the Westmount team pulled a funny one on Dominion Day. One of his sluggish fielders asked how the chances were for a draw against Westward heavy score of which Bobby Ireland contributed a delightful century.

"If your batting is as slow as your fielding our chances are good" said Harold. The whole team took it to heart—and pulled off a draw!

The lost ball was found in a tree. A blackbird was trying to hatch out some new excuses for the ball beating the batsmen.

Will Bobby Clutsum please remember that he did not celebrate July 4th He did. Fifty odd runs 4 wickets and four catches.

Yates of McGill had a narrow escape in that game. A hard hit ball from the other end caught him right on the cheek bone, knocked him out and never broke his glasses.

I see by an evening paper that they have a flourishing cricket club in Hollywood. It's one redeeming feature.

certainly endeavour to rectify this matter, in the meantime, please remember that hard courts are not good for sliding on with bare knees.

The membership of the W.A.A. tennis club has increased considerably during the past week. The courts are in excellent condition and those who are already members are well pleased and are looking forward to some really enjoyable tennis.

Wanted: A stationary tennis-shirt for Wendall Coldwell.

ANNUAL RIFLE SHOOT WAS HELD BY R.M.R.

The Royal Montreal Regiment's annual machine gun and rifle classification was undertaken last week end at Pointe-aux-Trembles ranges.

On Saturday 70 men of all ranks of the regiment took part in light automatic and Lewis gun firing. Light automatic firing was done by movements, 15 rounds being fired at 100, 200 and 300 yards. The machine gunners practised grouping, firing at falling plates and rapid firing. The camp was swelled by an additional hundred men on Sunday, when the ranges were the scene of rifle practice at 100, 200 and 500 yards. In firing rapid at 200 yards the firsers shot 10 rounds in 75 seconds. Snap-shooting and application were also fired at the 200 yards mark, and five rounds deliberate at the 500 yards range.

Crosley Field, Cincinnati, has put in a complete new set of bulbs, 648 of them at 1,500 watts each, and installed 264 alzak reflectors, the latest gadget along that line. The engineers promise that the 1936 lighting intensity will be 40 per cent. ahead of last year.
