SLAVE-TRADE—VERONA.

The correspondence and discussions at Verona relative to the slave-trade, have been laid before both Houses of Parliament.

It is gratifying to find that all the great allied powers are unanimous in reprobating this outrage on humanity, and in their desires for putting a period to its horrible career, as will be seen by the document below. It is, at the same time, a matter of profound regret, that the Plenipotentiaries of his Christian Majesty have been under the necessity of acknowledging that the abolition of this traffic is unpopular with the French people. The reasons assigned by the French Ministers for this want of humanity in a "people so humane, so generous, and so disinterested as that of France," are the massacre of the colonists of St. Domingo, and the fact, "that the abolition was not decreed by a national law discussed in the Tribune, but is the result of a stipulation in a treaty, by which France has atoned for her victories." The French Government, however, express themselves determined to prosecute, without intermission, persons engaged in this barbarous traffic.

Resolutions respecting the abolition of the Slave Trade, adopted in the Conference of 25th Nov. 1822. Verona.

The Plenipotentiaries of Austria, of France, of Great Britain, of Prussia, and of Russia, assembled in Congress at Verona, considering that their august Sovereigns have taken part in the declaration of the 8th February, 1815, by which the Powers assembled at the Congress of Vienna, have proclaimed in the face of Europe, their invariable resolution to put a stop to the commerce known by the name of the African Slave Trade.

Considering, moreover, that notwithstanding this Declaration, and in spite of the legislative measures which have in consequence been adopted in various countries, and of the several treaties concluded since that period between the Maritime Powers, this commerce solemnly proscribed, has continued to this very day; that it has gained in activity what it may have lost in extension; that it has even taken a still more odious character, and a more dreadful, from the nature of the means to which those who carry it on, are compelled to have recourse.

That the causes of so revolting an abuse are chiefly to be found in the fraudulent practice, by means of which the persons engaged in these nefarious speculations elude the laws of their country and the vigilance of the cruisers stationed to put a stop to their iniquities, and veil those criminal operations, of which thousands of human beings annually become their innocent victims.

That the Powers of Europe are called upon by their previous engagements, as well as by sacred duty, to seek the most efficacious means of preventing a traffic, which the laws of almost every civilized country have always declared to be culpable and illegal; and of punishing with severity those who persist in carrying it on, in manifest violation of those laws.

Acknowledge the necessity of devoting the most serious attention to an object of such importance to the honour and welfare of humanity; and consequently declare in the name of their august Sovereigns,

That they continue firm in the principles and sentiments manifested by those Sovereigns in the Declaration of the 8th of February, 1815; that they have never ceased, nor ever will cease, to consider the Slave Trade as "a scourge which has too long desolated Africa, degraded Europe, and afflicted humanity;" and that they are ready to concur in every thing that may secure and accelerate the complete and final abolition of that traffic.

That in order to give effect to this renewed Declaration, their respective Cabinets will eagerly enter into the examination of any measure, compatible with their rights and the interest of their subjects, to produce a result that may prove to the world the sincerity of their wishes, and of their efforts in favour of a cause worthy of their common solicitude.

CAPT. FRANKLIN'S NARRATIVE.

The following is an extract from Mr. Berk's narrative. This gentleman, with three attendants, was sent forward to Fort Enterprize, in the hope of obtaining some relief.

October 16.—We waited until two in the afternoon for Belanger; but not seeing any thing of him on the lake, we set out, purposing to encamp at the Narrows, the place which was said to be so good for fishing, and where, according to St. Germain's account, the Indians never failed to catch plenty; its distance, at most, could not be more than two miles. We had not proceeded far before Beuparlant began to complain of increasing weakness. This was so usual with us, that no particular notice was taken of it, for in fact there was little difference, all being alike feeble; among other things, he said, while we were resting, that he should never get beyond the next encampment, for his strength had quite failed him. I endeavoured to encourage him, by explaining the mercy of the Supreme Being, who ever beholds with an eye of pity those that seek his aid. This passed as common discourse, when he inquired where we were to put up? St. Germain pointed to a small clump of pines near us, the only place, indeed, that offered for fuel. "Well," replied the poor man, "take your axe, Mr. Berk, and I will follow at my leisure, I shall join you by the time the encampment is made." This is a usual practice of the country, and St. Germain and myself went on towards the spot; it was 5 o'clock, and not very cold, but rather milder than we had experienced it for some time, when, on leaving the ice, we saw a number of crows perched on the top of some high pieces near us. St. Germain immediately said there must be some dead animal thereabouts, and proceeded to search, when we saw several heads of deer half buried in the snow and ice, without eyes or tongue. The previous severity of the weather only having obliged the wolves and other animals to abandon them. An expression of "Oh merciful God! we are saved," broke from us both; and with feelings more easily imagined than described, we shook hands, not knowing what to say for joy. It was twilight, and a fog was rapidly darkening the surface of the lake, when St. Germain commenced making the encampment; the task was too laborious for me to render him any assistance, and had we not thus providentially found provision, I feel convinced that the next twenty-four hours would have terminated my existence. But this good fortune, in some measure, renovated me for the moment, and putting out my whole strength, I contrived to collect a few heads, and with incredible difficulty carried them singly about thirty paces to the fire.

Darkness stole on us apace, and I became extremely anxious about Beuparlant; several guns were fired, to each of which we answered. We then called out, and again heard the responses though faintly, when I told St. Germain to go and look for him, as I had not strength myself, being quite exhausted. He said that he had already placed a fine branch on the ice, and he could then scarcely find his way back, but if he went now he should certainly be lost. In this situation I could only hope that as Beuparlant had my blanket, and every thing requisite to live in, he might have encamped at a little distance from us.

October 17.—The night was cold and clear, but we could not sleep at all, from the pains of having eaten. We suffered the most excruciating torments, though I, in particular, did not eat a quarter of what would have satisfied me: it might have been from using a quantity of raw or frozen sinews of the legs of deer, which neither of us could avoid doing, so great was our hunger. In the morning, being much agitated for the safety of Beuparlant, I desired St. Germain to go in search of him, and to return with him as quick as possible, when I would have something prepared for them to eat.

It was, however, late when he arrived, with a small bundle which Beuparlant was accustomed to carry, and with tears in his eyes, told me that he had found our poor companion dead.—Dead! I could not believe him. It is so, said St. Germain, "after hallooing and calling his name to no purpose, I went towards our last encampment, about three quarters of a mile, and found him stretched upon a sand bank frozen to death, his limbs all extended and swelled enormously, and as hard as the ice that was near him; his bundle was behind him, as if it had rolled away when he fell, and the blanket which he wore around his neck and shoulders thrown on one side. Seeing that there was no longer life in him, I threw your covering over him, and placed his snow shoes on the top of it."

It is a remarkable circumstance in the Narrative of this honorable but disastrous expedition, by land and water, of five thousand five hundred and fifty miles, that our countrymen bore their disasters, dangers, and sufferings better than the Canadians, who were accustomed to the climate, and brought up from infancy to constant fatigue.

To Capt. Franklin's narrative is added an Appendix of valuable scientific papers; including zoological and botanical notes and several papers on the subject of the Aurora borealis, developing some new facts relating to this phenomenon and its action on the compass. The work is got up in a style worthy of its importance, and is enriched with numerous charts and other engravings executed in a very superior manner.

DETECTION OF THE MURDERERS OF MAJOR HARE.

On Monday week, Mr. Kelly and Mr. Smith, chief constables of police at Rathkeale, having received information that certain noted characters, who have for several months past been absent from their residence, frequented the southern part of their district, generally resorted to three disused points. They communicated with Colonel Norcott, the commanding officer, who granted them a strong military force in aid of the civil power. At the hour of one o'clock on the following morning, the above officers, having made arrangements, proceeded with their respective parties to their different posts; and, after surrounding the suspected houses, commenced a search, which continued for several hours; and we are happy to communicate, that the party from Shanagolden, under the direction of constable Dance, succeeded in apprehending Patrick and James Minnie, brothers, from the commons of Rathkeale, whose comrade, the notorious Oliver Fitzgerald, was apprehended last summer, at Quebec, in America! These two men were found at the house of a supposed respectable, wealthy farmer, named William Power, of Cragyard, near Shanagolden; and, most extraordinary to relate, they were concealed between a bed and the sackcloth bottom, and two females, one a fine young woman, lying on the bed over them. On being taken, they were immediately recognised by the constable. Patrick, the elder, is a rather well-spoken fellow; and on his way to Rathkeale, and in the very streets of that town, he harangued the mob; desired them never to despair, that he was true, and would be true to the last. These two men, with others, are charged with the murder of Major Hare, at Mount Henry, in this county, (Limerick) last year, and many other offences. They also stand charged under the insurrection act, with absence from their residences.—Limerick Chron.

NEW FLUID.—Dr. Brewster, the Edinburgh Philosophical Journal states, has lately discovered a new fluid, in the cavities of minerals, which possesses the remarkable property of expanding about thirty times more than water; and, by the heat of the hand, or between 75 and 83 degrees, it always expands so as to fill the cavity which contains it. The variety which is thus filled up, is, of course, a perfect vacuum; and at a temperature below that now mentioned, the new fluid contracts, and the cavity re-appears, frequently with a rapid effervescence. These phenomena take place instantaneously, in several hundred cavities, seen at the same time. If such a fluid could be obtained in quantities, its utility in the construction of thermometers and levels would be incalculable. There are many cavities in crystals, such as those opened by Sir Humphry Davy, which contain only water, and which, of course, never exhibit any of the properties above described. An account of these results was read before the Royal Society of Edinburgh, on the 3d and 17th of March.

NATURE AND ART.—On the subject of natural and acquired genius, Mr. d'Israeli relates the following anecdote:—Cecco maintained that nature was more potent than art, while Dante asserted the contrary. To prove his principle, the great Italian bard referred to his cat, which, by repeated practice, he had taught to hold a candle in its paw while he sipped or read. Cecco desired to witness the experiment, and came not unprepared for his purpose. When Dante's cat was performing its part, Cecco, lifting up the lid of a pot which he had filled with ice, the creature of art instantly showed the weakness of a talent merely acquired, and, dropping the candle, flew on the mice with all its inactive propensity. Dante was himself disconcerted, and it was adjudged that the advocate for the occult principle of native faculties had gained his cause!

At the Great Sessions at Cardiff, a cause of importance, respecting the title to large estates in Glamorganshire, came on. The question was, who was the heir at law of William Rees, late of Court Colman, Esq., a gentleman who was supposed to have died worth nearly £100,000 in real and personal property. Mr. Taunton, the king's counsel, came down under a special retainer for the lessor of the plaintiffs, and was assisted by Mr. Knight and Mr. Meakin. The defendants' counsel were Mr. Moysey (who came down on purpose, as he is about to retire from the bar,) Mr. Croft, and Mr. Maule. On the parts of the plaintiffs a great number of old witnesses were examined, and two old bibles were produced to prove their pedigree; and on the behalf of the defendants, a variety of instruments, such as marriage settlements, surrenders, receipts, &c. were produced, and a great many old witnesses were examined to prove their case. Mr. Taunton was an hour and a half opening the case of the plaintiffs, and Mr. Moysey three hours and twenty minutes stating that of the defendants. Mr. Taunton was three hours in replying. Both the counsel supported their respective clients' cases in the most able manner. Mr. Justice Wingfield was between four and five hours summing up the evidence. The jury retired for about fifteen minutes, and returned, finding a verdict for the defendants.—The plaintiffs are labouring men, and the defendants small farmers. The cause commenced on Saturday morning at nine o'clock, and was not finished until two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, although the court sat until eleven or twelve o'clock every night. There were upwards of 100 witnesses on both sides.—Hereford Journal.

A case was decided by the justices of peace at Montrose, on Monday week, which excited considerable amusement. A barber brought an action against a gentleman for 9s. 6d. sterling, for going to his house and shaving him, at three-pence each time. The charge was disputed on various grounds, particularly the alteration in the value of the currency, occasioned by the passing of Mr. Peel's bill. The gentleman was most particular in stating the "war price" of shaving, which he maintained was lower than that now charged in time of peace. Much eloquence was displayed by the defendant. The plaintiff, as is not the case with barbers in general, said but little. The justices thought the charge moderate, even in peaceable times, and gave a verdict for the plaintiff, with expenses.

On Thursday morning, an application made on the part of Lady Portsmouth, for subsistence money, having been mentioned to the Lord Chancellor, his lordship declared it must be matter of private arrangement out of court; he had nothing officially to do with it.

THE PENITENTIARY, MILLBANK.—On Tuesday week an inquiry, held before the coroner for Westminster, and a jury, at the General Penitentiary, Millbank, to ascertain the cause of the death of Ann Martin, a female convict aged 22, issued, after a long investigation, in the following verdict:—"Died in consequence of the short allowance and bad quality of the food with which she was supplied before the new regulations took place in this prison."

It appears by the annual report of the National Vaccine Establishment, that the applications made to the Board for Vaccine Lymph, were more than usually numerous last year; affording strong proofs that the confidence of the world in vaccination is increasing, and of the wisdom and benevolence of parliament, in having provided an establishment where this resource is always to be procured.

The daughter of the Aga of Londran, rescued by a Frenchman at the massacre of Tripolizza, has received baptism at Marseilles, after having given proofs of her progress in the knowledge of Christian duties. The Baroness de Damas and Count Villeneuve have presented the Neophyte at the baptismal font.

A dreadful accident occurred on the 11th ult. in a confinement near Valenciennes, by the explosion of an inflammable gas, called in that part of France feu grisant. Nineteen of the workmen were killed: the state in which the bodies were found aggravated the melancholy nature of the spectacle, for it is stated they could not be identified, as their limbs no longer resembled what limbs are in their natural state; they were shrivelled, and their parts drawn together.

AN ENGLISH BOLL.—A Burial Society has lately been formed in the County of Lancaster. The first printed article of their regulations commences with a preamble thus:—"Whereas, many persons find it very difficult to bury themselves," &c.

NAVAL ANECDOTES.—When the squadron lay in the Scheldt (in 1791), co-operating with the army, and protecting the transports, a curious incident occurred, highly characteristic of the manners and customs of the British navy. Captain Savage, of the Albion, of 64 guns, lying at anchor before Flushing, in company with the Dutch squadron, under Rear-Admiral Vauger, a friendly intercourse was kept up between them. Captain Savage was dining with the Dutch Admiral, when the latter received a message which occasioned some agitation. The Admiral went on deck, but returning to his seat, informed Captain Savage he had caused two of the crew to be taken out of his (Captain Savage's) barge, and put in irons, as they were found to be Dutch Subjects. Captain Savage quietly observed, without interrupting his dinner, "You had better put them back again into the boat, Admiral." "Why," asked the Admiral in warmth, "had I better, do so?" "Because," rejoined the British veteran, "if you do not, I shall order my first lieutenant (and he seldom disobeys my orders) to bring the Albion alongside the Utrecht, and (raising his voice just so much as to harmonize with the subject) d—n me if I don't walk your quarter-deck till he staks you." It is scarcely necessary to add, the men were immediately returned to their boats.

TROTTING MATCHES.—Mr. Hindson's two matches to trot his two horses, one three miles in 11 minutes, and the other sixteen miles in one hour, took place yesterday on the Ashford road, Middlesex, over a three mile circle. The three miles match was for one hundred, and the sixteen miles for two hundred sovereigns. Both matches were lost by the horses breaking from the trot. Betting was six to four on the horse winning the second match.

Foreign Intelligence.

INTERESTING FROM THE SPANISH MAIN.
(From the correspondent of the Nat. Advocate.)
CURACOA, 30th May, 1823.

Reported capture of Maracaybo by the Colombians, and total defeat of General Morales.

We have had for several days past flying rumors of the fall of Maracaybo, and defeat of Gen. Morales—all of which, however, wanted confirmation. By an arrival to day from Aruba, we have received the grateful intelligence that the reports are true, and that Maracaybo has actually surrendered to the victorious arms of Columbia, and fell in the following manner.

On the 19th inst. two Spanish armed schooners sailed from Maracaybo for Porto Cabello, not knowing that the Colombian Admiral Padilla had crossed the bar a few hours previous, and by whom they were shortly captured; the whole fleet then stood into the Lagoon, and at daylight Admiral Padilla ordered the two Spanish ships, with seamen and marines, ordered them to hoist Spanish colors, and make for the city, and that he would send a few sail in chase, which however should not overtake them. All things being thus prepared at 7 o'clock, A. M. the manœuvre was commenced, the whole Colombian fleet immediately made sail in chase of these two decoy vessels—they were seen by the forts, which not suspecting the trick began to fire on the Colombians and protect the supposed Spanish schooners which anchored under Fort St. Carlos, and remained in battle array, firing blank cartridges at Padilla, till his fleet engaged the forts. A landing was then effected from the schers, and the crews entered the fort with three cheers—in a few moments, however, the Spaniards found out the cheat, and were thrown into confusion. This gallant little band of Colombians harassed them in the rear, whilst Padilla in front was pouring in a galling fire. The carnage now became dreadful. The Colombian ship of war Mars was sunk by a point blank shot, and nearly all on board perished.

Morales finding his situation bad, retreated with his army to Gibraltar, leaving Admiral Padilla and the Colombian forces in possession of his strong hold. The forts being manned by the Patriots, and their flags hoisted, they proceeded towards the city, which immediately rallied round the standard of Liberty. Morales not thinking himself safe, went on towards Porto Cabello taking Coro in his way. When two days march from Coro, near Valencia, he fell in with the advance guard of Gen. Paez—an action ensued, and Morales' army was completely routed. In this as in several other actions the Spanish general displayed a want of courage, leaving the field of battle and his army to the mercy of the enemy. This is the sum total of the news received to-day. I enclose a true copy of a letter from General Paez on the subject.

Extract of a letter from Gen. Paez, dated

"VALENCIA, April 22, 1823.

"We have just given the Spaniards a dreadful beating, and I may safely say will prove a death blow to their hopes. My advanced guard yesterday encountered the Caval Bugos del Coro, which I must confess harassed us no little. The Royalists, thank God, have paid dearly for their temerity. A fine Spanish regiment of horse have been entirely cut to pieces by my troops, principally Creoles of Caracas.

Morales fled precipitately after losing the day, and the best part of his forces. All he has now with him (being thinned by capture and desertion) amounts to about 1400 fighting men, miserably clothed and fed, whilst our forces here are 3,530 effective men. Morales has made good his retreat to Coro. I only wait the arrival of a frigate from England to co-operate, when I shall make a desperate attack on Puerto Cabello, being persuaded that it requires an effort. The momentarily expected force, and that which we have at La Guayra will no doubt be sufficient to effect our purpose.

The brave Padilla has forced the bar of Maracaybo, and captured the forts by strength and stratagem, on the 19th, after an obstinate resistance, with the loss of the brig Mars, of 20 guns.—A large Spanish schooner was destroyed by the Independencia; the Captain escaped in his boat, but a few hours after was killed by order of Morales. The good people of royalty, have changed their opinion on this Modern Nero, and fondly look up to us for salvation. The town of Maracaybo, it is said has capitulated. Vive la Republica.

Curacoa, June 1.—By an arrival to day from Las Toquez, we receive a confirmation of the foregoing, with further particulars. During the heat of the action between Fort St. Carlos and the Colombian fleet, a Spanish three-masted schooner also assisted; she was called the Morillo, and commanded by Capt. Sebrillos; the schooner was sunk after fifteen minutes action; the captain effected a landing in a boat, and was instantly decapitated by Morales's order, at this brutality the people became incensed, which operated to his prejudice—so much so that the inhabitants of Soula openly avowed their intention to surrender and shake off the Spanish yoke. These accounts may be in particulars incorrect, but in point of effect they are no doubt just, as every vessel brings the same tidings. Should any thing further transpire I will keep you advised. I shall in a few days, by Rebecca & Sally, forward you a rejoinder for publication, in which I shall plainly prove that but little dependence can be put in the "Curacoa Courier" and much less in the editor, who has become the hireling of Spain, an enemy to truth.

Adieu. Your friend, &c.

The schooner Cornelia, Capt. Mullen, arrived here a few days ago, from the city of St. Domingo, reports that a force under the Haytian flag, was collecting at Samana, under the command of General Bugelar. It is believed that the negroes intend to sail thence shortly, to make themselves masters of Porto Rico.

The President of Hayti has publicly annulled in a measure his late decree, "prohibiting any intercourse between his subjects and the Islands, Curacoa and St. Thomas are allowed to trade with them for six months more. The Government of Hayti were about putting in force a new tariff of duties. On Mahogany the export duty was to be doubled, so as to amount to nearly a prohibition. By this means they intend to promote the growth of coffee and cocoa. By this new edict the article of mahogany has risen in the city from 25 to 30 dollars per M.

London, May 1.—The Dorsetshire, arrived at Weymouth, has on board the 8th Regiment of Light Dragoons, who are returned home, after an absence of twenty-seven years, with the warm recollection of events that shed a lustre over their long career in India. Among the officers on board were Major G. Deane and Capt. Van Cortlands. Capt. John Williams died on board on the 20th of January, in consequence of a fall from a considerable height up the rigging, much regretted by his brother officers and every one on board.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, THURSDAY, May 8.

Mr. HOLME SUMNER gave notice, on the part of his hon. friend, the member of Galway, of a motion next week, to bring in a bill against the practice of bull bating.—Sir J. OWEN presented four petitions from landowners in the county of Pembroke, in favor of a measure for the commutation of tithes. Mr. HUME supported the petition, and considered 25 years' purchase (the compensation offered by the petitioners) to be a full equivalent. He was confident, that if the sense of the country was taken, it would be as strong against the system [of tithes as it was against the system of slavery.—Lord ALTHORP presented a petition from the town of Lottghborough, in Leicestershire, praying new facilities in the recovery of small debts. The noble lord commented generally upon the faultiness of the existing practice, which rendered a small debt scarcely worth pursuing; and quoted two instances of late occurrence—one in which a debt of £3 had cost £47 to recover; and another, where, upon a debt of £4 the costs had been £90.—On the motion of the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, the report on the beer bill was ordered to be brought up on Monday.—Mr. HUME presented a petition from Richard Carlile, a prisoner in Dorchester gaol. The hon. member began by characterizing Mr. Carlile as a man of the highest moral character in England. He was an exemplary head of a family, and an excellent neighbour. The prosecutions against Mr. Carlile and his family had produced no other effect than that of materially increasing the sale of his publications. The petition complained of the interruption given by the court to his defence, of the oppressive sentence passed upon him of three years' imprisonment, and £1500 fine, and also of the still more oppressive execution of a levari facias, which took away from him all power of paying the fine, and subjected him, in default thereof, to continual imprisonment. He (Mr. Hume) must be allowed to say, that a course so arbitrary, was more worthy of the inquisition than an English tribunal.—The SOLICITOR GENERAL justified the course pursued on the petitioner's trial: he boasted that he would continue to publish the same works, in spite of all risks and dangers, and in that course he persisted to this moment. As to the inability to pay the fine, Carlile acknowledged he had sold 13,000 copies of the work in question, at half-a-guinea each, so that the prosecution must have put much more money into his pocket than the fine levied upon him. Mr. LENNARD and Mr. DENMAN spoke in favour of mitigating the punishment of the petitioner. Mr. Peel justified the course pursued towards him. The petition was ordered to be laid on the table, after a motion for printing it had been rejected.

MONTREAL, July 5.

Melancholy Accident—At Stukley, on the 10th inst. Mr. Darroft Parker, aged about 20, was killed by the fall of a tree.

Suicide—On the 3d inst. at Durham, Mr. Adam Cummins, put an end to his existence by suspending himself by a rope from a beam of the barn.—Standard British Colonist.

QUEBEC, JULY 8, 1823.

No further confirmation has been received of the report which we gave in our last, that a battle had been fought between the French and Spanish Forces, the active vigilance of Mina and the circumstances under which the French army is placed, however render such an event probable, though the numbers engaged may have been considerably stated. The invading army is no doubt exposed to many difficulties, if it remains on massé, it will be much straitened for subsistence, and if this circumstance has obliged the French Commander to make detachments for the purpose of foraging, the Constitutional General has no doubt availed himself of the opportunity of intercepting one of the divisions so employed; which has given rise to the report in question.

We are informed that the defect which we noticed in the construction of the sewers in this City has been remedied, and that at the last meeting of the Magistrates an amendment was made in the contract for carrying these works into operation by which cedar is to be in future substituted for pine. A special meeting of the Magistracy has also been convened for this day, report says, that the object of this meeting is to present a respectful representation to the Governor in Chief, praying His Excellency to withhold the grant of a part of the ground on which the late Recolets Church stood, and which is understood to have been applied for, as a site, on which to erect an Episcopal Chapel of ease.

The Editor of the MONTREAL COURANT has criticised the expression "to run a muck and tilt" as quoted in our Editorial remark of the 1st instant. We shall not waste our time in discussing the elegance of the expression, but we maintain that it was appropriately used, and in answer to the question in his quotation, "fine words we wonder where he stole 'em?" refer him to the Quarto Edition of Johnson, in which he will find under the word Muck,

"To run a Muck, signifies, I know not from what derivation, to run madly and attack all that we meet.

Frontless and satire-proof, he scowls the streets,
And runs an Indian muck at all he meets. Dryden.

Satire's my weapon, but I'm too discreet.
To run a muck, and tilt at all I meet. Pope's Hor."

Original Poetry.

To the Fire-Fly.

1.
Hail, insect of the starry breast!
Oft have I watch'd thy wand'ring light
When all was silent and at rest,
Ghaze through the shadow of the night.

2.
Within thyself thou bear'st the fire,
Which, sun light, on thine airy race
Shows thee what most thy wants require,
And guides thee through the realms of space.

3.
Oft from among the tall green weeds,
I've mark'd thy fairy lustre glide,
Or view'd thee, from the quivering reeds,
Near thy bright lamp across the tide.

4.
I've seen thee by the mountain dim,
When clouds were gathering vast and dark,
Hail onward like a winged gem,
Or gleam like some ethereal spark.

5.
And when the midnight tempest came,
And shook the rugged pine on high,
I've seen thy pure innocuous flame
Fall, like a meteor, from the sky.

6.
To me, thy star of light serene,
Hath seem'd like those which pour its rays,
When clouds and darkness intervene
And sudden life's bewild'ring maze.

7.
Symbol thou art, when sporting near
The flowing stream or flowering tree,
Of virtue which, remote from fear,
Is happiest in obscurity.

8.
Emblem thou art, when boisterous wind
Drives thee before it from on high,
Of innocence, which vengeance blind,
Spurns, tramples, and then leaves to die. R. C.

WHARFAGE AND STORAGE.

Peter Sheppard

HAVING leased the extensive Wharf and Store lately erected next St. James Street, Lower Town, begs leave to inform the merchants and masters of vessels that he will receive on storage, goods of all descriptions, the store is very large and particularly adapted for grain, which he offers to cribble and ship on board on the most moderate terms.

No wharf in Quebec affords similar protection from the wind to shipping lying alongside. The greatest attention will be paid to keep the wharf clean and free from incumbrance and otherwise rendering every facility to the ships resorting to it; its proximity to the Custom House is an advantage, particularly to ships discharging general cargoes.

N. B. Two good and neat offices in the store to let and if desired any part of the store will be divided and let separately.
