Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

1. What are the duties of the maid of honor while the ceremony is taking place?
2. Should the water glasses be filled before the guests are summoned to the table for luncheon?
3. When addressing an envelope to a girl or a woman is it all right to address it "Mary Jones"?

 4. Is it all right to address the envelope of a letter to a man without using the title "Mr."?
 5. Should gifts, that are brought to a birthday party, be opened immediately, or left until after the party?
 6. Is it all right to stack the dishes when clearing the table?

ANSWERS

1. She stands nearest the bride, takes her bouquet or prayer-book while the ring is put on, returning them at the proper time, and arranges the bride's train when she turns from the altar.
2. Yes, the glasses are filled and the butter is placed on the plates.
3. No. Use "Miss" before her name, no matter how young she is.
4. No. "Mr." must be used.
5. Each gift should be opened at once.
6. No; the person who is clearing the table should take no more than one plate in each hand, at a time.

The young man was rather shy, and after she had thrown her arms around him and kissed him for bringing her a bouquet of flowers he jumped up and grabbed his hat.

"Oh, don't go," she said, as he made for the door, "I didn't mean to offend you."
 "Oh, I'm not offended," he replied. "I'm going for more flowers."

 When You Delouse with
"CAP BRUSH"
 40 ROOST APPLICATOR

To kill lice and feather mites with ease "Cap-Brush" Roost Applicator you use the full strength "Black Leaf 40" but less of it. "Black Leaf 40" has plenty of reserve strength and the "Cap-Brush" employs it economically. The "Cap-Brush" has no bristles to scratch and waste liquid, hence make your bottle of "Black Leaf 40" go four times as far.

For individual bird treatment a drop in the feathers two inches below the vent with "Cap-Brush" kills lice. A drop on back of birds' necks kills head lice.

Have You Heard?

Mr. McPherson gave some advice to his wife when they were expecting friends to tea.
 "Just mind, Jeannie," he said, "to put the sugar-tongs in the basin, an' not a spoon."
 "But we have no lump sugar in the house," she expostulated.
 "We've only granulated."
 "I was mindin' that!" said McPherson.

 Youthful Father—Our baby is beginning to recite "Baa, baa, black sheep, have you any wool?"

 Father—Well, he doesn't say all it yet, but he's got as far as the "Baa, baa."

 The teacher had recited "The Landing of the Pilgrims." Then she requested each pupil to draw from his or her imagination a picture of Plymouth Rock.
 Most of them went to work at once, but one little fellow hesitated, and at length raised his hand.
 "Well, Willie what is it?" asked the teacher.
 "Please ma'am, do you want us to draw a hen or a rooster?"

MECCA OINTMENT

How Can I???

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I keep moths out of a fur coat?
 A. Moths will not bother fur if it is plentifully sprinkled with pepper, or tobacco, which leaves no unpleasant odor and can easily be shaken out before wearing. A few whole cloves added will also help.
 Q. How can I prevent soreness when using a sunburn salve?
 A. Before spreading the salve on sunburn stand the jar or tube in warm water and the salve will soften. It will be easy to apply and will not irritate the sunburn.
 Q. How can I remove mildew?
 A. Mildew can be removed with sour milk, then placing the article in the sun.
 Q. How can I remove rust from iron articles?
 A. To remove rust from a large surface such as a stove or kettle, rub first with kerosene and then with steel wool moistened with linseed oil. Or, dip the oiled steel wool in powdered pumice and rub.
 Q. How can I have smooth legs without shaving them?
 A. If you insist upon removing the hair from the legs, instead of using a safety razor try using the finest grade of sandpaper.

LCT COUGHS UP A GENERAL SHERMAN

Out of an armored LCT (Landing Craft: Tank) comes an American-made General Sherman tank operated by British crew as Allied forces train for invasion with manoeuvres on the North African coast.

RADIO REPORTER By REX FROST

For several years, research engineers have been busy working to discover ways and means of reducing or eliminating the harsh, discordant noises which come from a radio receiver when the weather man goes on the rampage. They have been seeking also to find methods whereby "man-made" noises, caused by transformers, electric motors, violet ray machines and the like could be reduced to a minimum. About four years ago radio engineers were successful in developing a form of transmission and reception known as FM, frequency modulation, and this innovation was making considerable progress when the war came along and prevented its being put to practical purpose. As a matter of interest CFRB, Toronto, had installed a special FM transmitter at its Bloor Street studios in Toronto, and was broadcasting its usual programs over this equipment until about two years ago, when the engineer who was responsible for its operation was called by the Government to assume special duties associated with wartime radio location work. Reports on reception from this FM transmitter by the few radio fans who had acquired the FM receiving sets indicated that static was entirely conspicuous by its absence. The station signal came in clear, without any interference on the part of natural or man-made static. Just recently a large organization announced that they had evolved a method of eliminating static, through the means of an appliance which can be incorporated with your present radio set. While these developments of wartime research will not be released to the general public until Victory is won... it is certain that radio reception of the future will be of the noiseless variety. You will be able to tune in distant stations without any of that sharp, unpleasant crackling which is not only hard on the ears, but which frequently distorts the signal itself. As the rumblings of war die down, the discordant noises in your radio receiver will also disappear, providing you acquire the necessary equipment.

Ontario radio audiences are assured of enjoyable music on Saturday afternoons during the winter season for the next three years. News has just come to hand that the Columbia Broadcasting System has signed the Philadelphia Orchestra on an exclusive three-year contract to provide musical entertainment from October 2 to April 30 for the next three winter seasons. CFRB being the Columbia outlet for Ontario, we suggest you keep that October date in mind and tune in for music you will really enjoy every Saturday afternoon thereafter between 1 and 2 p.m.

Listening to "Just Mary" has become a Sunday afternoon habit with many children throughout Canada, but like many other people at this time of year, Mary is going to take a vacation. However, there's a treat in store for the youngsters just the same. At 1.15 p.m. on Sunday afternoons throughout the summer, a delightful little variety program entitled "Calling All Children" will bring to the airwaves music from Walt Disney film cartoons, children's poems and recorded children's stories.

Another popular feminine personality who is leaving the airwaves for a brief vacation is Monica Mugan, whose 10.45 a.m. Monday through Friday broadcasts keep Ontario listeners up to date on current events of a social and general nature. After a trip to her home town of Winnipeg, Miss Mugan will renew her radio column of the air on Monday, August 9.

A program with an active service atmosphere originates at No. 1 Manning Depot, Toronto, every Thursday evening at 8.05 p.m. over the CBC network. Gail Meredith, well-known songstress, will act as hostess for the airmen in this series of "Swing for the Services" programs... the lads themselves will lend their voices to the music.

Archbishop Of York Commends Bombing

Approval of the Allied strategy of bombing Germany's industrial cities was voiced by the Archbishop of York recently in a diocesan leaflet in which he replied to his countrymen who have protested against the devastating attacks.

"However much we deplore the sufferings of the civilian population and the destruction of their homes, we must continue to use our superiority in the air as a means of ending the war as speedily as possible," the Archbishop declared.

"It is a lesser evil to bomb war-loving Germany than to sacrifice the lives of thousands of our own fellow countrymen who long for peace and to delay the hour of liberation for millions held in slavery."

Menus Made Up For Allied Nations

Dr. Louise Stanley is making sure that the food we ship abroad is not only nourishing, but tempting to foreign tastes, says The American Magazine. For 10 years chief of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Home Economics, Dr. Stanley's new job is to advise the United States Government what menus to serve to our millions of allies. She has had to learn the favorite dishes of the whole world. For the Russians she recommended a dehydrated borsch from the U. S., and a buckwheat mixture that's made into kasha. She okays oats for Russia, but vetoes them for Africa, where natives look on oats as animal fodder. While making up global market lists, Dr. Stanley also does her own shopping and cooking.

Time Wasted

An old shepherd, a member of the Home Guard in Wiltshire, was up all one night at the time of the expected invasion attempt. When the news came through that he could knock off, he said: "Bain't 'em coming, sir?" "Not this time," was the reply. "Ah," the old fellow said, "just what I thought. There bain't no dependence to be put on those Germans. Here I've been up all night hanging about for nuthin'."

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON THE COST OF DRINKING

Deuteronomy 21 : 18-21; Proverbs 23 : 20, 21; 1 Corinthians 6 : 9-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? 1 Corinthians 6 : 9.

Memory Verse: For Thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive. Psalm 86:

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING
Time—The final instructions of Moses were given in 1405 B.C.; the Book of Proverbs was written probably about 1000 B.C.; the First Epistle to the Corinthians was penned by Paul A.D. 58 or 59.

Place—We do not know exactly where the Book of Deuteronomy was written, but it may have been not far from Mount Nebo, east of the Jordan; the Book of Proverbs was probably written in Jerusalem; Paul wrote this Epistle from Ephesus.

Israel's Law

"And all the men of his city shall stone him to death with stones: so shalt thou put away the evil from the midst of thee; and all Israel shall hear, and fear." It should be clearly recognized that the power of parents over their children (Exod. 21 : 7; Gen. 31 : 15), even to putting them to death, which prevailed in early Israel also to this degree (Gen. 38 : 24), is here enforced and controlled by public authority.

In looking at this severe law, one should be reminded of God's purpose for Israel among the nations, which demanded severe legislation. Laws may greatly vary for the same crime or misdemeanor, from day to day, and under varying circumstances. Thus, e.g., it is not a crime for a man to fall asleep over his work, though it is very bad form, and he may get dismissed for it;—but he cannot be sent to prison. However, it is a crime, punishable by death, for a man to fall asleep while on sentry duty in war. The circumstances determine the severity of the penalty. Israel was to be kept a clean, pure, priestly nation, to bear witness to the holiness of God among the nations of the earth, and this holy calling greatly enhanced the seriousness of transgressions and iniquities.

The Same God

It is marvelous to think that it is the same God who speaks and acts in Deuteronomy 21 and in Luke 15; but how different the action! How different the style! Under the Law, the father is called upon to lay hold of his son and bring him forth to be stoned. Under grace, the father runs to meet the returning son, falls on his neck and kisses him; has the fattest calf killed for him, and makes the house ring with the joy that fills his own heart at getting back the poor wandering spendthrift. In Deuteronomy we see the land of God, in righteous government, executing judgment upon the rebellious; in Luke we see the heart of God pouring itself out in tenderness upon the poor repentant one, giving him the assurance that it is His own deep joy to get back His lost ones.

Habitual Drunkenness

"Be not among winebibbers, among gluttonous eaters of flesh: for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness will clothe a man with rags." Gluttonous eating is here put in the same category with drunkenness. There are people who denounce any kind of intoxicating drinking who at the same time are really gluttonous in their eating. One is as bad as the other.

Two reasons are given why we should avoid the company of those indulging in this manner. In the first place, such men are swiftly running toward a state of poverty, and secondly, because they must, by the laws of human nature be frequently overcome with a spirit of drowsiness which prevents them from enthusiastically entering into their daily work.

In some strange way God has established certain economic laws on earth which allow the people of the earth to make a decent living, whereby the necessities of life can be provided. But millions of people who have had an adequate income, and could have been comfortable, have found themselves finally in abject poverty because of the drain that a thirst for liquor makes upon their income.

Right in God's Sight

"Or know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived:

neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God." Righteousness is that which is right in the sight of God; unrighteousness is that which is wrong in the sight of God. An unrighteous man is a man who is not living right, and that includes all those whom Paul now begins specifically to designate.

In the midst of this dreadful catalogue, is the one word which concerns our lesson—drunkards. There seems to be today a sort of feeling that there is something just a little smart about getting drunk, and that we must not be too harsh on those who indulge in alcoholic liquors. Our text says that such men will not enter into the kingdom of God, and it says we ought not to be deceived in thinking they will. Is not this our danger today, in this very point, that we are being deceived into thinking that after all drunkenness is just a weakness which we must not too severely criticize? The Apostle Paul, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, says it will shut men out of the kingdom of heaven.

Covered With Righteousness

"And such were some of you: but ye were washed, but ye were sanctified, but ye were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God." With regard to the three terms—washed, sanctified, justified—they may be taken to express the same idea under different aspects. That idea is that they had been converted, or completely changed. They had put off the old man and put on the new man. Their sins had been washed away; considered as pollution, they had been purged or purified; considered as guilt, they had been covered with the righteousness of God (Rom. 1 : 17).

No matter what the past has been, there is a way open for forgiveness and cleansing, for deliverance and redemption, through the Lord Jesus Christ. Whatever we have been, we need no longer be; whatever be the chains of the past, Christ can break them today; whatever the shame and stain of the years gone by, purity and holiness may mark our life beginning with this very hour, and there is no man so sunk in sin, no man so long in sin, but that he cannot be washed, and sanctified, and justified this very day.

Egg Producers Face Problem

A recent issue of the Egg and Poultry Market Report issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture states that next fall will be a real test of the ability of Canadian egg producers to meet consumer demand. With current wholesale prices at Vancouver and Halifax within seven cents of the ceiling price and Montreal eight cents, Canadians continue to eat more eggs than ever before. Consumer demand normally falls off in the middle of October and November when storage eggs come on the market and higher prices prevail.

"This year there are no storage eggs, and, with greater purchasing power, higher quality, and price not a restraining factor, consumer demand is likely to continue to an unusual degree. Producers are faced with the problem of providing the biggest possible volume of fall eggs. Grading Stations, Industry, Committees, Provincial Departments, and College Extension Services are urged to help producers to prepare now to meet this emergency."

Success in Making Dairy Cattle Feeds

Under wartime conditions, the considerations for producing a well balanced ration for dairy cows become increasingly important. The nutritive quality, digestibility, economy and other essentials of the feeds composing the ration have to be closely scrutinized, both in raising or purchasing foodstuffs. In order to help the farmer, the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued the Special Wartime Pamphlet No. 80 on "Feeding Dairy Cattle," from which valuable information may be gleaned.

Summer and winter feeding of dairy cows, the feeding of the dairy bull, calves and heifers, together with a table showing the average composition of concentrates and roughages, and information on common dairy cattle ailments. The pamphlet may be obtained free by writing to the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

No Increase in Butter Ration

Officials of the Foods Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board have repeated the warning issued some weeks ago, that the substantial increase in stocks of creamery butter in storage in Canada, as shown by the figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics does not mean that there can be any increase in the present butter ration allowance.

"There is a false impression that we are building up abnormal stocks of butter."

'Deferred Pay' Plan

City employees of Dearborn, Mich., can take out "insurance" on their 1943 income tax payments through a deferred compensation plan set up by the city. Under the plan any employee can ask the controller to withhold a portion of his pay and retain it until the federal tax payments are due. All money for this purpose is held in trust and is not assignable or subject to garnishment. When an employee leaves his job with the city, he is entitled to full payment of any money withheld, without interest, and an employee may at any time discontinue participation in the plan, though once having done this, he cannot re-enter it for a year. This pay-as-you-go plan is separate from the Victory tax withholdings.

Detroit Wipes Out Deficit

With the help of careful budget planning, Detroit has wiped out a 25-year deficit which reached its peak in 1933 when the city was $21,600,000 "in the red," the municipal finance officers association said.

By June 30 the city will have a surplus of between $1,000,000 and $3,500,000, according to estimates of Detroit fiscal officials.

Relief expenditures, bank closings and failure to collect taxes in 1933 stretched the deficit to its $21,600,000 peak by the close of the first depression year. Careful budget operations, revenues from delinquent tax sales, liquidation of closed banks, decreases in welfare costs and some general revenue increases wiped out the deficit and promise the surplus.

Provide for 'War Appointments'

Two West coast cities—Los Angeles and San Francisco—are making temporary appointments to municipal jobs as a wartime measure to meet manpower needs, according to the Civil Service assembly.

Los Angeles has made DNE (Duration of national emergency) appointments to more than 50 classes of civil service positions. The temporary appointments duplicate positions vacated by those leaving for the armed forces, offering their salary range, but not civil service status.

San Francisco will have "limited tenure appointments" if a charter amendment approved by voters is ratified by the state legislature meeting this month.

SOLDIER of the SOIL

THIS year the Canadian Farmer urgently needs help. He needs your help to produce the food so necessary for victory. Many thousands of farm workers are serving in the Forces, so that the farmer—the Soldier of the Soil—is shorthanded, but shorthanded as he is, he is called upon to produce more food than ever before. Food is one of the most powerful weapons of war. Grains, bacon, dairy products, eggs, beef, fruit, vegetables—FOOD to feed our armies, our allies and our people we must have.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

You may be a school teacher, student, business or professional man, an office or store clerk—no matter what you are, if you have a few hours, days, weeks, or months of free time this summer, you can do your country and the farmer a great and patriotic service by helping out on the farm. You may be inexperienced, but you still can help. You will find work on the farm healthy and congenial. It will give you the satisfaction of feeling that you have brought Victory nearer.

What you should do NOW!

Famous Dolly Madison a

Native North Carolinian

Dolly Madison was born Dolly Payne in North Carolina in 1788. The family moved to Virginia and then to New York city so that the children could have better educational opportunities. - Beauiteous young Dolly married John Todd Jr., a lawyer. The yellow fever epidemic of 1793 took Dolly's husband and the younger of her sons. The following year she married James Madison, the noted congressman, who was nearly a score of years her senior. She became an important social figure when her husband became secretary of state in 1801. Since President Thomas Jefferson was a widower, Mrs. Madison often was White House hostess. In this capacity she unwittingly became storm center in a struggle for precedence waged by the British minister, Anthony Merry. Madison became President in 1809 and when they were forced to flee before the British invaders in the War of 1812, Dolly saved many state papers and a portrait of George Washington. When they left the White House they lived quietly on a Virginia plantation. After Madison's death in 1836 Dolly returned to Washington and died there in 1849.

Could you do this with your present cream separator?

YOU WOULD BE PERFECTLY SAFE WITH A Renfrew

Of course, you wouldn't operate your separator in the best room of the house. This is just to impress you with the absolute cleanliness of a Renfrew. No splashing of oil—no greasy, insanitary, fly-attracting mixture of oil and milk, making a mess of both machine and floor. The oil necessary to the operation of a Renfrew goes in at the top and remains inside until it is time to change it.

This is only one outstanding feature of the Renfrew Separator. Others include the low supply tank, ease of operation, close skimming—and highest quality and performance at a reasonable price. You can buy your Renfrew from the man you know—Renfrew's own representative in your neighborhood. He is responsible to you and we stand behind him and all the Renfrew products he sells.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

German Armies Have Started Third Offensive Against Russia

A special radio communique from Moscow announces that the German armies have started a third offensive against Russia. As was the case last summer, the new assault, says The New York Times, has been launched along the winding 200-mile front from Orel, some 200 miles south of Moscow, to Belgorod, just north of Kharkov, where both sides have been concentrating troops for some time. The Moscow communique leaves no doubt that it is a major effort, into which the enemy has thrown "large forces of tanks and infantry, supported by a considerable number of planes."

1943 Strategy

Therewith, the strategy of this year of 1943 has been decided. The Allied victory in Tunisia and the mounting air bombardment appear to have delayed the Germans, and the delay may still prove vital, as in the two years past. But neither Tunisia, nor the air war, nor the necessity of providing for an Allied invasion from the west, have apparently been able to cripple Germany, and her generally defensive position has not prevented her from launching an eastern offensive after all. In fact, as Hanson Baldwin points out, she appears even to have been able to reinforce Italy to a point which gave Mussolini the courage and the brass to answer Allied invitations to surrender with the boast that his answer will be cannon fire.

German Objective?

What the real German purpose and objective in this latest offensive are remain to be seen. In the first offensive of 1941 it was Moscow; in the offensive of last year it was Stalingrad and the oil of the Caucasus. Since the failure of both these efforts, it has been suggested that any German offensive on a similar scale had become impossible, and that if the Germans did undertake another one it would be more or less a token offensive for the political effect on Germany's satellites and the world. The Red Army may well reduce it to such. But the German concentration of some 200 German, plus 20 to 40 satellite divisions and a large part of the German air strength in Russia, might well be Hitler's last desperate bid for victory.

Second Front Appeal

All this gives new point to the renewed Russian appeals for a second front on the Continent. It also provides the Allies with an opportunity. If, as the Russian communique indicates, the Germans have really engaged themselves in a major offensive in the east, they will find it difficult to switch any reinforcements from the east to the west. To the extent that our military situation permits, this is clearly the time to strike at other points. Russia may be counted upon to fight with the same courage as heretofore. But Russia alone is incapable of defeating Germany. The one strategy that will defeat Germany is the strategy she dreads—namely, a real two-front war. If that strategy can be made effective by the Allies the new German offensive will indeed be the last one.

Anniversary in China

Six years ago last week there was a skirmish between Chinese and Japanese troops at a bridge outside Peiping. It was the beginning of a war that was to devastate a large part of China, the beginning, too, of a war that was to lead directly to Pearl Harbor. When the insensate rulers of Japan set out on their mad adventure in North China they decreed war and ruin for all Eastern Asia—and, by all the portents now discernible, for Japan as well.

Four Years Alone

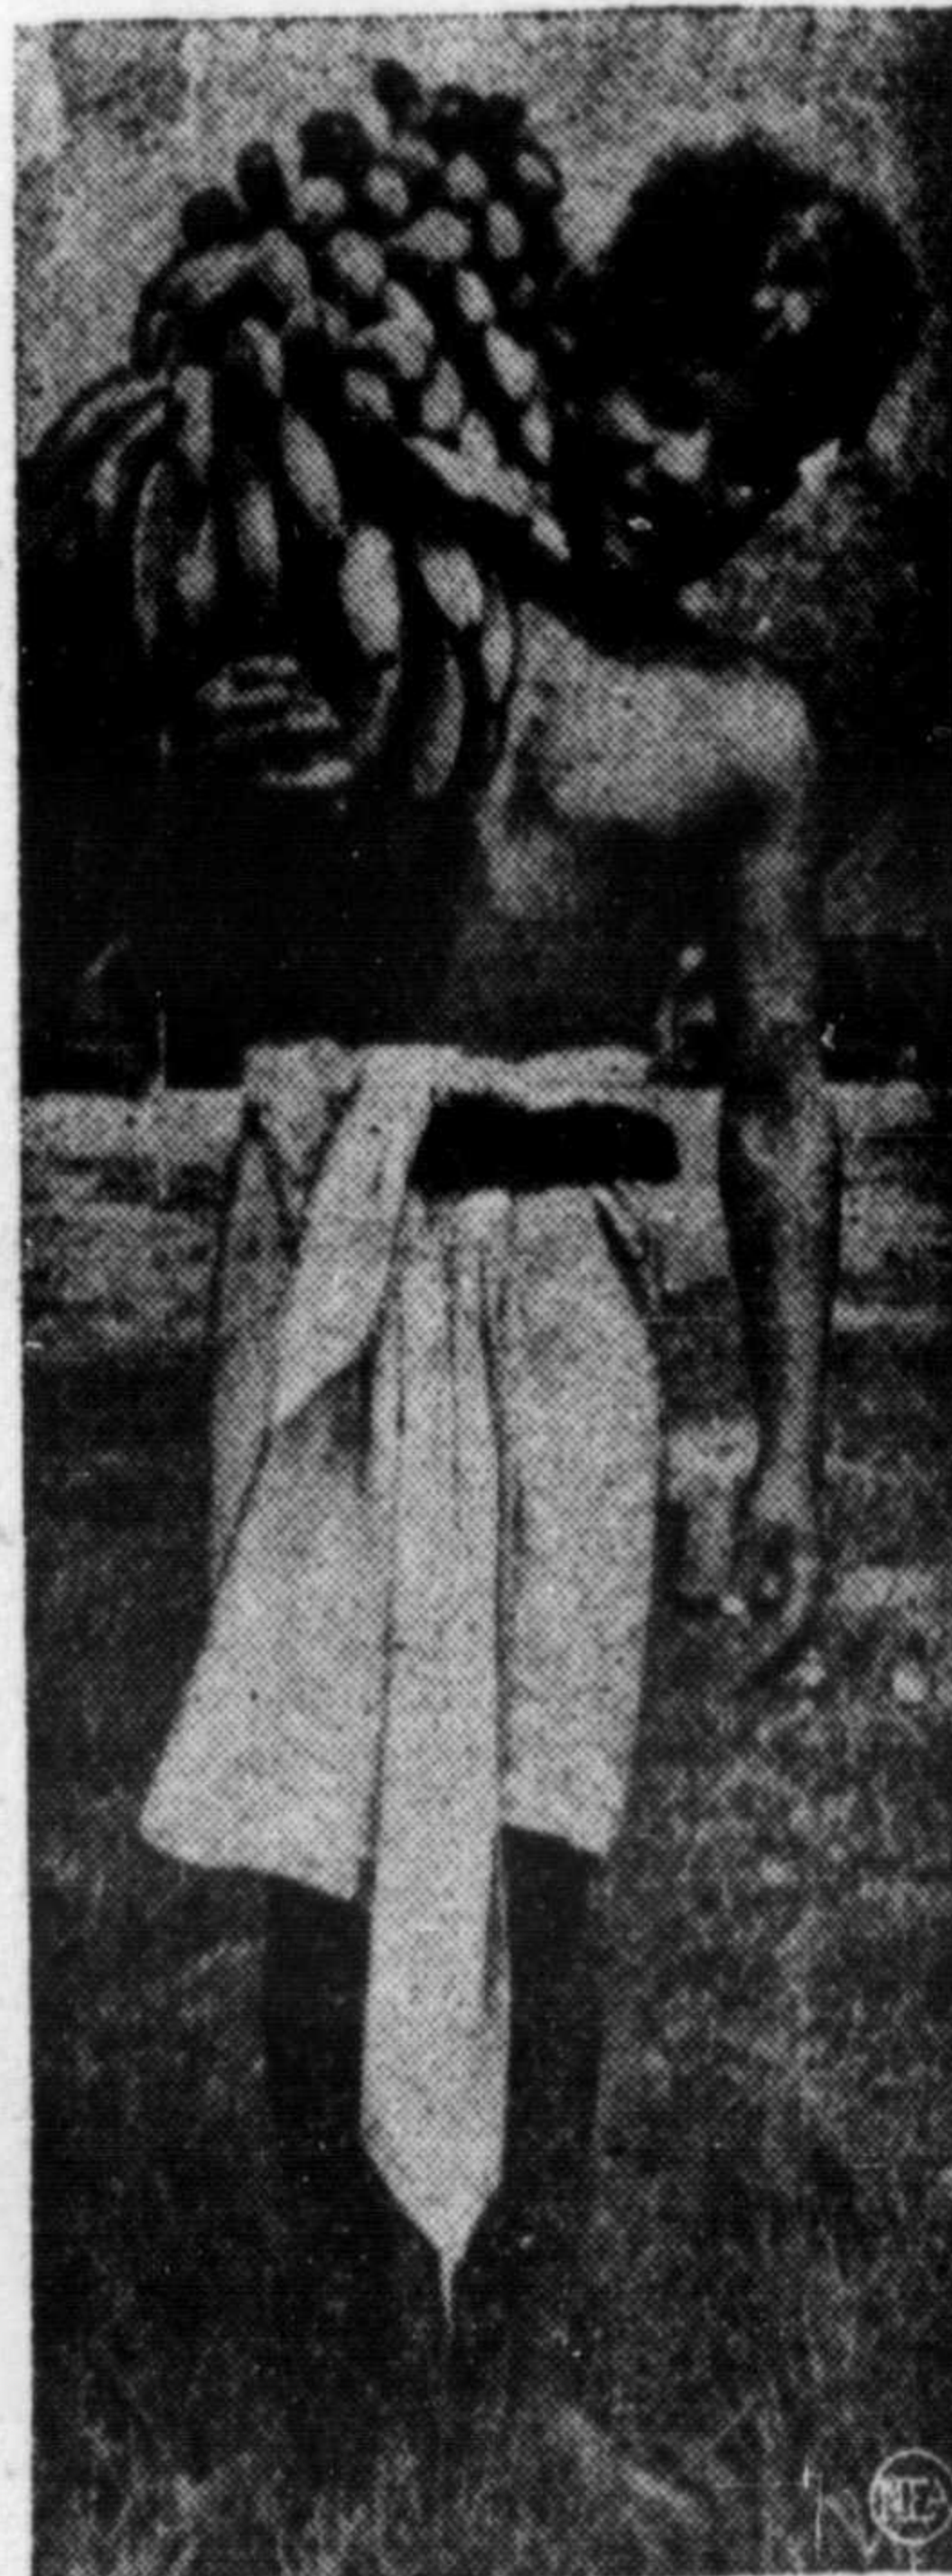

For more than four years China bore alone the scourge of fascist-militarist barbarity in its peculiar and vicious Japanese form. Whatever may be Japan's course in the future, it cannot for generations expunge from men's minds the memory of the most dishonorable war ever fought by a nation. That which Kurusu symbolizes for the Allies was mild compared to what has been perpetrated in China, where loot, mass slaughter, rape and the poisoning opium den have been the normal procedure and the mark of Japanese occupation. For more than four of the six years the world looked on as if it were no concern of its own, as if only two remote alien Asiatic peoples were involved. We cleaved so close to legal neutrality that we opened our arsenals of production to both sides, which meant in effect to Japan alone, for China had neither the money nor the means of transportation to benefit. While legally correct, it is now clear that politically it was folly. We armed Japan against ourselves as well as China.

China Held Out

The Chinese would not fight, the knowledgeable said. The Chinese could not fight, the experts said. Japan would consolidate its victories in six months and the Chinese, congenitally divided among themselves, would accept the inevitable. Six months passed, then 12, then 24. The Chinese did not accept. Periodically there were renewed rumors of Chinese defeatism, of internal breaking up, of imminent cessation of war on terms that meant surrender. And China held out: not only held out, but bled more and more of Japan's troops and Japan's resources.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That Control of Prices Has Saved Canadians $350,000,000 In Living Costs During 1942.

When the history of this war comes to be written, one of the major wonders to be recorded is the way in which the Canadian people, unaccustomed to economic controls and restrictions, buckled down to a new rationed and price-controlled economy. Not many of us understood all the implications and objectives of it and many of us grumbled, but the fact is that in mid-1943 the free and liberty-loving people of the Dominion are marching along in self-disciplined fashion with an experiment in controlled living which Prime Minister Mackenzie King described at its outset as, "hitherto untried by the will and consent of any free people anywhere."

One of the most interesting discussions to date in the present session of Parliament is Finance Minister James L. Hsley's exposition of results from the operation of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, a vast new organization set up to operate the price controls. He calculated that control of prices had saved the Canadian buying public $350,000,000 in living costs during 1942, and, should prices remain stabilized throughout 1943, an additional $850,000,000 will be saved. In arriving at these figures the Minister based his calculations upon present prices, as held down by the various "ceilings," and as compared with the prices of commodities which prevailed throughout a corresponding period of the last war, when prices were unchecked.

Reviewing the history of price control in Canada, the Finance Minister admitted that even in the government there was no one at the outset who could be entirely confident that a general price ceiling was the right answer to threatened inflation. But the government, he said, did recognize the "terrible consequences" that inflation would have for the Canadian economy, both during and after the war, and was determined to prevent it if at all possible.

The decision, he told the Canadian people, had been justified. If there had been compromise or delay Canada would be faced with "an extremely confused and well-nigh uncontrollable situation. . . . The best evidence as to what would have happened is, to be found here in Canada. We have only to observe the eagerness with which scarce goods are purchased when they appear on the store shelves; we have only to follow the action of prices of the few commodities which for various reasons it was necessary to take out from under the ceiling; we have only to watch the scramble for housing accommodation in congested areas; we have only to experience the difficulties of securing transportation by rail or bus to realize how quickly prices and rents would have soared if at the time when shortages began to be felt we had not taken steps to control virtually all prices at levels then prevailing.

NOT MUCH OF A PRIZE!

We're told that the meek will inherit the earth. But it may not be much of a prize after the aggressive have finished with it.

—Owen Sound Sun Times.

The Chinese thought of it first!

THOUSANDS of years ago, the Chinese used a form of gunpowder—a flaming chemical of defence dumped over battlements upon an invading enemy.

And from this age-old beginning has evolved smokeless powder made from high-proof alcohol. Like the airplane, it has done much to further the progress of mankind—but in evil hands it has meant tyranny and enslavement.

As the tempo of this war for liberty increases and our armed forces in all parts of the world swing to the offensive, more smokeless powder for our shells, bombs, depth charges and torpedoes is a vital necessity.

And because we have vast fields of grain and the facilities to convert them into high-proof alcohol, the United Nations shall have an overwhelming superiority of fire-power to pulverize the enemy into unconditional surrender.

Thus, China's primitive powder of defence has finally developed into the weapon to drive tyranny forever from this earth. In a way, it is the hand of ancient China reaching out in defence of free men everywhere.

Alcohol for War is also used in the manufacture of Synthetic Rubber, Drugs and Medicines, Photographic Film, Lacquers and Varnishes, Drawing Inks, Compasses and other Navigation Instruments, Plastics, Shatterproof Glass and many other products. Every Seagram plant in Canada and the United States is engaged 100% in the production of high-proof Alcohol for War.

CHAPTER XVI

Senora Fuentes, washerwoman, whose further claim to fame lay in her motherhood of small Miguel, set down a weighty basket of laundry on the landing outside her garret room in Calle Mortopo, and fumbled for the key. Although Miguel was still suffering from the effects of that prostrating low fever which so much afflicts the slum-dwellers of San Jose, it was safest, she considered, to lock her door on leaving, since the saints alone knew what new mischief the youngster would contrive to his mother's distress.

"When may I have my fiesta?" asked the towled urchin, lying amid the tumbled blankets.

"May the devil take your fiesta!" returned Senora Fuentes sharply, being tired and more than usually oppressed by the tautness of the air. Sharp though her voice was her manner was kindly as she felt his hands and forehead and completed a motherly inspection.

"Good—in a short while now you will be free," she promised.

"And then may I have my fiesta?"

"There are no longer any fiestas; he still, now, limb of Apollyon!"

"But there must be a fiesta!" he said. "I have still my firecrackers; those beautiful crackers given to me by the Consul Inglese."

"Wait, little monkey, wait!" said Senora Fuentes. For the present, pick over the washing I bring from the Almirante Higgins."

"But I wish to explode my crackers and so humiliate that ladron Tomaso Perreira!"

"There will be a fiesta on Saint Jose's Day; be patient."

"That is a long time to wait, madre mia," was Miguel's rueful rejoinder.

"It is prohibido—forbidden—to explode crackers save at the fiesta," said his mother, mixing the ingredients for a savoury omelette in an earthenware bowl.

"Oh, many things are forbidden in San Jose," retorted this disgruntled young man of the world; "but they happen—such as revolutions and—yes, drunkenness."

The wavering notes of Pablo Valeco's voice came in at the small high-up window. Pablo was apparently homeward-bound from his favourite cantina, and Pablo was happy. Liquor in undue proportions always made him vocal, and the neighbourhood accepted it with philosophical shoulder-srugs. After all, Pablo had been the local drunkard for as long as most of them could remember, and even when worst in his cups was entirely harmless—hating to cause trouble. All he asked was a peaceful passage home to the dreary cellar which was his abode.

Above the strident discords of his "carolling" sounded the urgent clip-clop of horse's hoofs, as a watchful vigilante cantered down the street to impress on the soak the need for a decent seaminess.

"Peace," said Pablo without truculence: "I do no harm to saint or man."

The conversation was audible in the stuffy room under the eaves.

"One day," rapped the policeman. "I shall round thee up, my Pablo, and take thee to the calaboose."

"Aha—fair game for such a policeman!" yapped Pablo; "an old done man!" Apparently he wept a little at this stage, self-pity sweeping through him in a wave. Another, more bellicose voice joined in the serial debate. Sylvestro Lopez—the Wolf—who had been lounging in his own doorway, preparing his teeth for supper, called:

"Have a care, Vigilante—have a care! We are not all old dead-beats in this street." Sylvestro was a noted firebrand, escaping major troubles by the skin of his teeth only. "Pablo harms no one. Hast caught any more contrabandists of late, officiale?" Apparently an old gibe was voiced here, for the horse-hoofs clattered wildly, as if the horse were prancing to a vicious hand on the reins.

"One day, Sylvestro, I will catch thee!" barked the policeman. After a wordy debate, silence was restored, the iron-hoofed hoofs could be heard in retreat. Pablo resumed his singing, which died into a wailing diminuendo; peace reigned in the echoing calle.

"Madre mia, when may I hold fiesta?" reiterated small Miguel passionately.

"Hold this in thy foolish little stomach!" urged Senora Fuentes, tossing the omelette deftly in the frying-pan prior to seasoning it to taste. Miguel ate greedily. He hated this confinement which made him feel useless, younger than his immature years; for it ill became one of his standing to be locked in whenever his mother was busy on her varied, lawful occasions.

Senora Fuentes made all things tidy, before busying herself with the laundry. Then she pantingly carried the basket downstairs to the remote wash-house, and put the day's haul to soak against an early rising on the morrow.

Upstairs, Miguel's gaze seemed almost magnetically capable of drawing the forbidden fireworks within his hand's reach; he wriggled convulsively.

"But I must make fiesta!" he exclaimed.

Dick Higgins was not thinking of fiestas as his launch disembarked himself and Wynne at a point selected by the airman. They were granted diplomatic privileges so far as the use of the launch after nightfall was concerned and the boat sauntered out past that decrepit fort at the harbour-mouth without exciting challenge from lounging sentries. Not infrequently Dickie took the boat out for a late evening's fishing.

"Somewhere about here, I reckon," said Wynne, using airman's eyes to distinguish dimmed landmarks. The launch crept in among boulders. With the launch's engines stopped, he stood up, listening, wondering if he might hear the distant throb of Gaspardo's illicit engine. But beyond the slow crash-crash of surf the night was almost soundless.

"Funny, this swell running in a flat calm," said Wynne in a conspiratorial whisper.

"It's all this volcanic trouble that's hanging around," said Dickie, remembering the many things he had read in the Higgins's Saga.

It was almost eerie in the gloom. Normally phosphorescent, the sea was now dull and leaden. Ashore not so much as a leaf stirred in the lush greenery that ran down to high-tide mark.

"We might as well be moving," said Dickie.

"Got a gun, sir?"

"Never carry one if I can avoid it; too risky! I'm a non-combatant in this man's war," Wynne shrugged. He daily risked life and limb in the air; but ashore, on the ground, he liked to think he was allowed a sporting chance to defend himself.

"Well, if we go this way—" he suggested, and led off overboard, into the backwash.

"Keep off and on until you get a signal," Dickie warned Manuel. "Like this." With a tiny pocket-torch he flashed a characteristic series of dots and dashes. "Hide her behind the rocks if anything comes in from the sea."

"Si, senior." Even at night the Consular launch was distinguishable for itself, and it had never entered Dickie's head to camouflage the craft. He followed Wynne and scrambled ashore. After questing around like a bloodhound, the airman found what he declared was the track, led the way along it. Dickie felt a slow thrill run through him. Anything might lie at the head of this trail—anything!

Then he was touched by Wynne's hand, drawn back, pulled down.

TABLE TALKS

SADIE B. CHAMBERS

Wartime Canning.

Some weeks ago I told you about the bulletins, which were being issued by the Department of Agriculture, in Ottawa, prepared by the Household Economic Department. Any one may have these bulletins at anytime by writing and asking for the subject in which you are interested. Household bulletin No. 20, entitled, "Wartime Canning," is well worth writing for. Here are some of the high points from this bulletin:

"Home canning takes on new importance in wartime, for as much as possible of Canada's perishable fruits and vegetables should be canned for use throughout the winter. In order to avoid any waste of sugar or fruit, extra care should be taken to follow directions and recipes given in this bulletin prepared especially for wartime canning. If this is done, even the beginner may feel confident of successful results."

Safe Canning.

"If food products are left in their natural state most of them spoil in a few days—some in a few hours owing to the growth on their surface or in their tissues of bacteria moulds or yeasts. If such organisms can be destroyed and the entrance of these organisms prevented, the food can be kept in good condition indefinitely. Therefore, successful canning depends on destroying all microscopic life by using sufficient heat for the proper length of time and by using air-tight containers which protect from re-infection. The aim in canning fruits and vegetables is to assure this result while preserving natural shape, color and fresh flavor. Safe canning depends on strict attention to every step in the process. "When canning fresh fruits and vegetables, the fresher they are the better will be the finished product and the smaller the chance of failure. For the best results vegetables should be canned within a few hours of gathering."

Spoilage of Canned Goods.

"Improper sterilization and sealing of canned fruits and vegetables may result in the following types of spoilage: Mould, fermentation and bacterial spoilage (flat souring). In the case of mould if it is detected soon enough—the growth may be removed from the surface, the contents of the sealer brought to the boiling point and the fruit used immediately.

When slight yeast fermentation occurs the boiling of the fruit with additional sugar generally makes it palatable. With bacterial spoilage, which usually takes the form of what is known as "flat souring," no gas is formed but the contents of the sealer can develop a sour or rancid odor and the liquid is generally cloudy.

Size of Container.

If any sign of bacterial spoilage is detected the entire sealer should be discarded without testing, as a toxins may be present which are extremely poisonous.

Containers should be of a size to suit the needs of the household so that the contents may be consumed shortly after opening, otherwise deterioration and spoilage may occur. "It is a wise precaution to boil canned vegetables gently for at least ten minutes after they are removed from the sealer or can. This does not imply that they must be eaten hot. When the vegetables are required for salads, etc., they may be set aside after boiling, and chilled before use."

SOFT LITTLE FROCK

Style No. 2712 is designed for sizes 14 to 20, 36 to 50. Size 36 requires 3 yards 35-inch fabric with 1 1/2 yards ruffling. Pattern includes chart with step-by-step instructions.

Don't Throw Any Old Socks Away

Don't throw out your husband's or your son's old socks, even when they seem darned and mended to death. They can be made into warm, colorful afghans.

First, dip all the socks you have on hand in gentle, fine-fabric suds that "won't shrink woolsens," rinse, and dry thoroughly. Then cut off the feet and the ribbed tops, cut it up the centre, and you have a piece of material about eight inches square. When you have a quantity of these squares collected, featherstitch them together, and embroider a small decoration in the centre of each square. If you have enough socks, do a back for the afghan in the same way. If not, a lining of some kind will add extra warmth. These warm afghans are particularly appreciated in such services as those of the mine sweepers.

Heat Treatment By Short Waves

When a doctor treats your aching joint by short-wave therapy you hold your hand or your foot in an electric field. Short-wave radio waves heat the joint, almost without your being aware of it. An egg can be held in the hand and cooked in this way. Now the same principle is being applied to treat machine parts and plywood. Other uses of short waves include the heat treatment of tobacco without removing it from the hogshead and the killing of insects in grains and cereals.

Mrs. George Hodgins Dies in Ottawa

The death occurred on Sunday in an Ottawa Hospital of Margaret Abiah McFall, widow of George Hodgins, in her 70th year.

Mrs. Hodgins, who resided at the home of a sister, Mrs. William Alexander, 231 Preston Street, was born at Brantford, Ont., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McFall. She married George Hodgins (brother of Mr. Hillard Hodgins, of Shawville) in 1900. He predeceased her 13 years later.

She was a member of McFall Baptist Church and several fraternal organizations.

The funeral service was held in the chapel of Hulse and Playfair, Ltd., on Tuesday afternoon. Interment was made at Norway Bay Cemetery.

Former Resident of Clarendon Passes

Final tribute was paid to Thos. Smiley, 71, of 1212 Granville Street, Vancouver, B. C., by many friends present at his funeral on July 8th.

A former resident of Clarendon, Mr. Smiley had resided for many years in B. C. and had lived in Vancouver for the past twenty years. He died at the Athlone Private Hospital after a short illness, on July 3rd.

He was a member of Pontiac Lodge A. F. and A. M., Shawville, Que.

Funeral services were held in Nunn and Thomson's Chapel, with Rev. E. F. Church officiating. Interment was made in the Masonic Cemetery, Barnaby.

Surviving relatives are two brothers, John H. and Peter E. Smiley, of Perth, Ont.; four sisters, Mrs. Hugh A. Brownlee, of Shawville; Mrs. E. Linda McLeod, of Otter Lake; Mrs. M. Eades and Margaret Smiley, of Campbell's Bay.

Joseph Brown, One of Clarendon's Oldest Citizens Passes in His 96th Year

One of the oldest residents in this district, Joseph Brown died on Monday at the residence of his son, Herbert, at Stark's Corners. He was in his 96th year, and had been in good health until recently.

A farmer by profession, he lived all his life in the township of Clarendon, except for a short period in Portage du Fort. He was the son of the late John Brown and Ann Brownlee, and a member of the Church of England. He also belonged to the Orange Order.

Twice married, his first wife was Phoebe Sommerville; and his second Mary Archibald. Both predeceased him.

Left to mourn his loss, in addition to his son Herbert, are two other sons, Joseph, of Portage du Fort, and John, of Forrester's Falls; two daughters, Mrs. Archie Johnson, of Portage du Fort, and Mrs. Manson Strutt, of Western Canada. A number of grandchildren also survive.

The funeral will be held at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon, from the residence of the deceased's son, Herbert, to St. Paul's Anglican Church and Cemetery, Shawville.

When to Harvest Grass Seed

When to harvest grasses for seed is a major problem to many farmers and one which should be given ample consideration, for the time of harvesting seed is most important. Some grasses especially crested wheat grass, drop their seeds very readily when the plant becomes mature. Delayed harvesting is likely to result in heavy loss through shattering.

However, if on the other hand the crop is cut too early, there will be a large percentage of the seed not properly filled and the result will be reduced yields and light seed, says R. H. Anderson, Supervisor, Illustration Stations, Dominion Experimental Farm, Melfort, Sask.

Crested wheat grass seed is ready to harvest when the heads are mostly brown and the stems are still green. A guide is to press the seed endways between the thumb and fore finger. The seed is ready to harvest when the kernels buckle rather than break or flatten out in this test.

Brome grass does not shatter its seed very readily but it should be harvested when the seeds become quite firm. This stage is reached when the heads have a distinct brown tinge some of them almost black. The stem will still show a green tinge.

The seed of slender wheat grass shatters easily and the crop must be cut when the heads still have a greenish tinge and the seeds are firm but not brittle.

To prevent heavy losses through shattering the grass seed should be harvested at the proper stage of development. As a general rule, harvest when the seed is well filled, firm but not brittle.

Unchanged Typewriter

Most original features of the first practical typewriter of 1874 remain standard today, such as the paper cylinder, with its line-spacing and carriage-return mechanism, the arrangement of the type bars so that they strike at a common center, their actuation by means of key levers and the printing through an inked ribbon, says Collier's. And the positions of the characters on the keyboard have not been changed.

French 'Reunion' Isle

Has Interesting History

Reunion's history is as varied as its topography. Discovered in 1545 by a Portuguese, Mascarenhas, the island bore his name until 1643 when it was claimed for France and renamed Bourbon Island. Colonization began in 1664 at St. Paul bay under the direction of the French East India company. In 1764 the island reverted to the French government. When the Revolutionists came to power in France they called the island "Reunion," an idea that endured only to the rise of Napoleon. "Le Bonaparte" then became the fashion. The English seized the island in 1810, and gave it back five years later. "Reunion" again emerged as the island's official name.

Reunion has been administered as a department of France through a resident governor and consul general. Three delegates, one to the French senate, two to the house of deputies, traveled the 7,500 miles to Paris to represent the island's interests in the French parliament. Their constituents are, for the most part, Frenchmen, British, Indians, Chinese, Africans, and natives of Madagascar. To Reunion, France has sometimes sent political exiles, notably Abd el Krim, famed Riff leader, in 1926.
