

Government delays closing of small abattoirs

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS — A call for beef producers in the E.T. not to panic about the government's proposed closing of 66 abattoirs has been made by spokesmen of the group for the Conservation of Beef Production and Small Abattoirs in Region 5.

Kevin Danaher, a St. Elie d'Orford beef producer and one of the main spokesmen for the group, said that Orford MNA and Minister of State for Agriculture Georges Vaillancourt was doubtful that the October 4 deadline for the closing of abattoirs and processing houses, changed from the earlier September 4 limit, could be enforced by the government and that late this year or early 1976 would be a more likely date to look at, when the two men spoke Monday.

The call came in the wake of large increases in slaughtering of beef animals following the announcement of the Sept. 4 deadline, and didn't drop when the government made known its month delay. Mr. Danaher said most farmers feel they must sell now, which is a costly affair for them. Continuing, he noted that the cattle could be fattened up more if left in pastures until mid-October, when about 50 per cent of the annual slaughtering of animals is done and could gain them more money. Because many are afraid of being stuck with animals which couldn't be butchered easily, he said they were taking losses to ensure that their beef would get killed.

LEGISLATION RIDICULOUS

The proposed legislation, which would close the 66 abattoirs in the Eastern Townships and nearly 500 in the province, has been termed "ridiculous" by members of the local group for the preservation of small abattoirs. The group argues that abattoir owners haven't been given directives and that regionalization of abattoirs could cause a whole new problem.

Regionalization of abattoirs might make the procedure and inspection aspect of the affair much easier, but it would almost definitely create new disadvantages to the beef producers.

Workers possibly having to join a union and expenses of trucking animals much further distances would raise the price of processing higher, conceivably as much as $60-70 a head. "The implications of this to the farmer are very bad," said Danaher.

Another probability is that stock auctions would turn into nothing but a farce, with maybe two or three firms being represented instead of numerous buyers from the small abattoirs, and the likelihood of rock-bottom prices for animals would be great.

Most abattoirs which are going to be affected by the government legislation would have to pay out an estimated $250,000 or more for improvements to bring their standards up to the proposed norms. The majority of slaughterhouse owners just can't afford to invest that much money, Mr. Danaher explained.

The Eastern Townships abattoir owners and beef producers have received backing from some large organizations. Early this week, correspondence was received from the Meat Packers Council of Canada "deploring Quebec's quick action" in trying to solve the unspectated meat matter.

The quick action referred to is the means by which the government through their meat inspectors gave notice to abattoir owners of the upcoming changes. The owners were told in late spring that everything was okay and that they would be informed gradually as to what changes were to be made. Then, about a month ago, everybody was told they would have to close their doors.

EXPENSIVE PR JOB

Mr. Danaher stated that the government seemingly thought they could get away with the closing of the abattoirs following the incidents that involved tainted meat. He said, though, that the firms selling the bad meat were not the small abattoirs but large ones, and that the government was simply doing a PR (public relations) job at the expense of the farmers and abattoir owners to try to smooth over the scandal quickly.

MNA Vaillancourt told Mr. Danaher that a caucus meeting has been set for Sept. 5 in Quebec City and that an official date for the deadline of closing abattoirs and processing plants with unspectated meat would be decided at that time.

Until then, the affected groups are planning strategy in case the government decides to stick with the Oct. 4 deadline and will give the authorities a long, hard battle against the unjust punishment to all for the mistakes of a few.

Crews clean up rail wreck

MAGOG — A train derailment near here early yesterday morning forced evacuation of nearby homes and a section of Route 112 some four miles west of here will be closed for several days while Canadian Pacific Railway crews clear the tracks.

Homes for about half a mile on either side of the accident were evacuated yesterday morning due to danger caused by a damaged tanker carrying pressurized propane. The damaged propane tanker was one of 16 cars derailed.

By JAMES BRUCE
(Record Reporter)

Pressurized propane could be heard whistling out of the car all yesterday morning and onlookers were advised not to smoke near the accident site. QPF officers kept all the curious well away from the site while CP officials tried to determine the extent of damages. Around noon, a small group of reporters were allowed to examine the accident area.

Sixteen smashed railway cars were piled beside the tracks and several hundred feet of rails torn up. Several cars were ripped open by the force of the derailment and the site itself looked more like a boxcar graveyard than the main line into Magog. Although ties for quite some distance before the accident area were damaged, CP officials would not speculate about the cause of the derailment. When asked about the cause of the accident, CP

Superintendent Jean Louis Fortin could only say, "We'll have to study it. We won't know for sure until we pick up all the cars."

Repair crews were also kept back by the propane leaks. Some early estimates were that propane would still be escaping for several hours and repair crews would not start removing wreckage until all danger of exploding propane had ended. Even when repair crews do begin cleanup operations, it could be several days before the damage is repaired and the line reopened.

Officials also indicated that a section of Route 112 would be closed until all danger is over. For the time being Provincial Police have set up a detour around the affected area.

Most derailed cars, other than the propane tankers, were said to be carrying "general merchandise". No estimate of damages was available yesterday.

PROpane GAS was leaking from one of the damaged tank cars, forcing evacuation of several houses nearby, after a CPR train was derailed early yesterday morning.

Granby firms agree to cutback water use

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Industries in this rain-parched community have proposed to cut back use of water by 80 per cent to keep a minimum supply for residents, Mayor Paul Trepanier said Tuesday.

The proposal came after the mayor asked 137 local industries to shut down when it was revealed Monday the town had only five and a half days supply of water left.

Mr. Trepanier met with government experts Tuesday and came up with other solutions, including putting water meters in households.

Meanwhile, Rejean Tremblay, a city engineer, said valves leading to the only remaining water source, a one-square-mile reservoir, will be progressively closed to bring daily consumption down to five million gallons by this weekend.

Consumption was cut to 10 million from 11 million gallons a day after the city used the only powers at its disposal in forbidding the town's 35,000 citizens to water lawns and wash cars.

"When we've progressively worked down to five million gallons, then we hope to be able to endure another 20 days," said Mr. Tremblay.

LAYOFFS IN QUESTION
Mr. Tremblay said it was premature to talk about layoffs among the area's estimated 8,000 workers or a shortening of the work week.

Local business leaders were to present their cutback proposals at a meeting with city council Tuesday night.

Mr. Tremblay said council was unable to obtain an ordinance from the municipal affairs department to take drastic measures to curb water consumption.

A civil protection unit with a team of 200 volunteers is planning emergency measures in the case of an epidemic in the area.

At Granby Zoo, the city's strongest tourist attraction, operations continued as normal.

Zoo spokesman Marcel Leclair said zookeepers were recirculating water for the animals rather than replacing it with fresh supplies.

Storm disrupts city

SHERBROOKE (JB) — Close to four inches of rain fell in the city last night, disrupting electricity and traffic, and flooding sewers and basements all over the city. Lennoxville Research Station reported that 2.32 inches fell in Lennoxville.

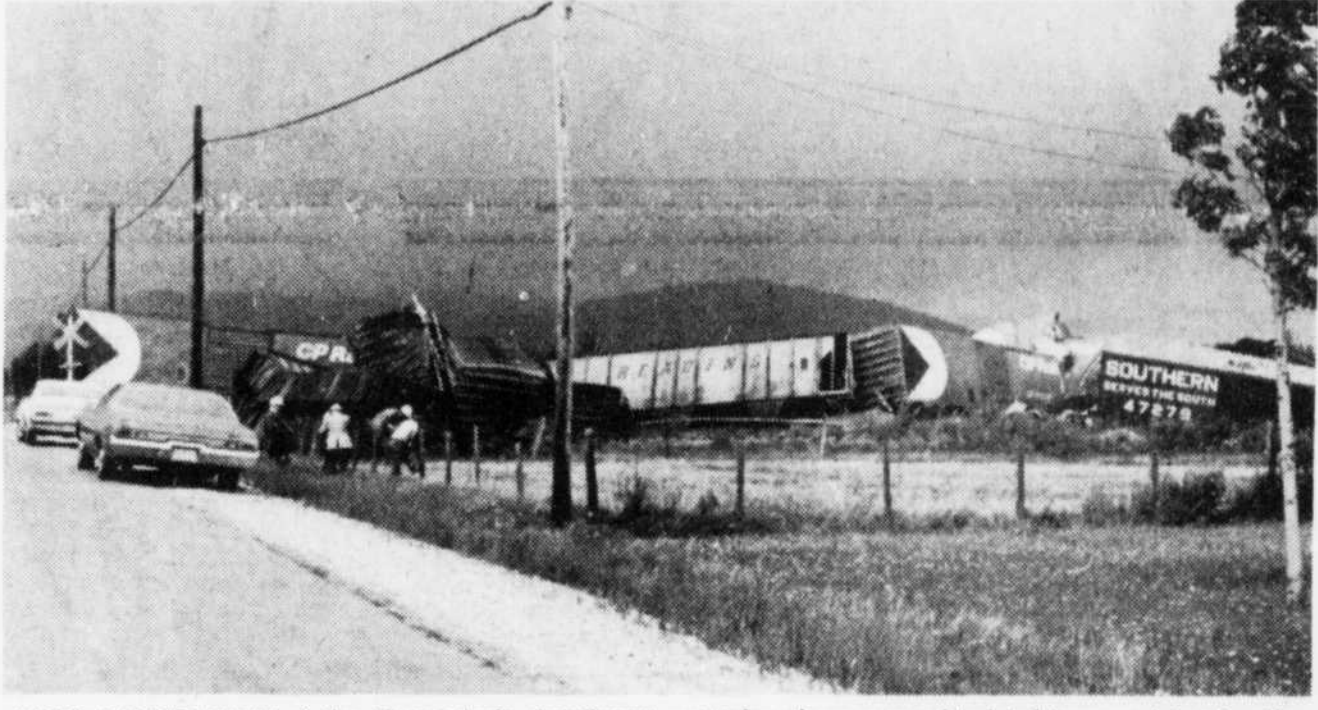

Sherbrooke Fire Department reported they had a busy night, with city firemen answering nine calls during the evening. A small fire at 1360 St. Esprit St. at 7:23 p.m. was caused by the storm and was reported to result in only minor damage. There were several minor fires, two false alarms and firemen reported to 884 Bowen St. at 8:21 to check out a fallen electrical wire.

The fire department rescue squad was called out at 8:15 p.m. to rescue occupants of a flooded car under the underpass on Grande Fourches St. Sherbrooke Police spokesmen reported a normal night as far as accidents were concerned, but there were several calls for drowned cars and flooded cellars.

Electricity was disrupted for a half hour in the North Ward from Vimy to Wood St. between Portland and the Magog River. The power was also shut down on Bowen South in the area of the Hotel Dieu Hospital. The hour and 20 minute shutdown was caused by a downed wire. The East Ward was hit hardest with several short blackouts. Residents of the Stoke Road were without power for at least half an hour.

Sherbrooke Hydro reported many other minor breakdowns which kept repair crews busy most of the night. Residents of Lennoxville were without electricity for two hours.

LONG RANGE VIEW of the Magog train derailment yesterday shows several twisted boxcars lying in piles beside the tracks.

Mid East peace pact ready for signing

JERUSALEM (AP) — A key part of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's pact between Israel and Egypt is complete and ready for signing, Israeli officials said today as Kissinger was continuing talks in Alexandria, Egypt.

The officials said the completed section of the accord obliges both sides to refrain from the use or threat of force, and was to be signed directly between Israel and Egypt.

The same portion of the pact specified permission for Israeli cargoes to move through the Suez canal, said the Israeli officials.

The completed section of the pact is one of three parts of the agreement, in final stages of negotiation.

Kissinger was to return to Israel from Alexandria later today to work out final points of the remaining two sections, the officials told reporters.

Sadat said after greeting Kissinger that the agreement "is not only good for Egypt and for the Arab world, but it is for the sake of peace... for the Arabs and the Israelis."

Sadat repeatedly stressed the importance of peace. He said that under the agreement Egypt would be "regaining our territory, but what we are after is peace."

However, a cautionary note came from Tahsen Bashir, a spokesman for Sadat, who said 10 per cent of the agreement was still to be worked out, and this should not be "lightly dismissed."

Diplomatic sources said the major problem still unresolved was the wording of the clauses covering Egyptian guarantees to limit economic and propaganda warfare against Israel, and the possible linking of the agreement to a similar agreement between Israel and Syria.

NO TERMINATION DATE
The sources added, however, that the pact would be of unlimited duration and would not depend on future Israeli concessions to Syria or Jordan.

Under the agreement, Israel will pull back to the eastern foothills of the strategic Mitla and Gidi passes and will return the Abu Rudeis oilfields.

The passes will be in the new United Nations buffer zone, but Israel and the United States will mean a surveillance post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass; Israel and Egypt will staff one on the Israeli side, and American personnel will operate four other electronic observation centres to give advance warning of any attack.

Kissinger said he believes the Ford administration can get the approval of Congress to the stationing of 200 American technicians at electronic surveillance posts in territory to be relinquished by Israel.

"We will consult very carefully with the Congress and our impression is that we can get it through after some serious debate," he said.

Egypt and Israel will pledge not to resort to "the use or threat of force" for a period of more than three years, and Egypt will curb economic, political and propaganda warfare against Israel. Egypt will allow Israeli cargoes to pass through the Suez canal, and the U.S. will guarantee economic and military aid for Israel.

Long strike settled

MONTREAL (CP) — About 700 production workers at Pratt and Whitney of Canada Ltd. voted Tuesday by a three-to-one margin to accept proposals by Premier Robert Bourassa and return to work, bringing to an end one of Quebec's most bitter labor disputes.

Company officials and members of Local 510, United Auto Workers (UAW) were scheduled to sign a collective agreement today. The workers have been off the job since Jan. 7, 1974.

Under the terms of the agreement, the company will rehire 60 workers next Tuesday and an average of 40 more a week for another 11 weeks. Another 200 workers are scheduled to be rehired by February, 1976.

The workers will also receive a 34-per-cent wage increase over the next three years. An original union demand that the company institute mandatory dues checkoffs for workers not in the union has been dropped.

But UAW Quebec Director Robert Dean said he expects the government will deliver promised legislation that will amend the labor code to make checkoffs mandatory for all workers employed at unionized firms.

Haile Selassie dies

LONDON (Reuter) — Former emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia has died, Addis Ababa radio reported today. He was 83.

The radio, monitored in London, carried the announcement of his death in a news bulletin at 7 a.m. EDT. It said he died as the result of an illness affecting the prostate gland.

Haile Selassie, who had held absolute power over his subjects for almost 50 years, was dethroned on Sept. 12, 1974, after a military coup.

During his reign, he had been praised as Africa's elder statesman, a symbol of stability and a moderating influence in the continent as a whole.

Quebec in focus High mercury levels

MONTREAL (CP) — A scientific adviser to the Cree Indian Grand Council said Tuesday that mining operations were "the probable factor tipping the balance in northern mercury pollution" in Quebec.

Biologist John Spence said the mining developments may be factors causing high mercury levels in fish in northern waters, particularly the Bell River system, about 450 miles north of here.

The statements were made following a meeting here between federal health and environment officials and Cree chiefs.

Council Chief Bill Diamond said 16 Crees from the area were tested and found to have blood-mercury levels of more than 100 parts a billion—10 times the acceptable level.

Three of them have more than 500 parts a billion while one has a level of 649 parts a billion.

Bomb dismantled

MONTREAL (CP) — A bomb found at the nearby St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Tuesday was successfully dismantled by Canadian Forces personnel.

Maj. Pierre Dupuis said police called the Canadian Forces explosives disposal squad and the device was dismantled at a nearby quarry Tuesday afternoon.

The bomb components were subsequently given to Quebec Provincial Police QPP for an investigation. QPP officials declined to comment.

There were published reports indicating the bomb had been discovered by a guard behind a television but prison officials would not confirm this.

Oils were mixed, with Imperial Oil A up ¼ to $25½ and Shell Canada ¼ to $16½.

while Pacific Petroleum was off ½ to $22½ and Pan Ocean Oil ¼ to $10.

Price Co. fell ½ to $17½, Alcan Aluminium ½ to $23½, International Nickel A ½ to $26½, Chrysler Corp. ¼ to $11¼, Seagram Co. ¾ to $31½, Brascan A ¼ to $12½ and IU International ¼ to $10½, while Zeller's gained ¾ to $5½, Canadian Tire A ¼ to $49¼, Massey-Ferguson ¼ to $16½ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to $26½.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Price on the Toronto stock market moved sharply lower Tuesday, trimming the impressive gains recorded the previous two sessions. Trading was light.

Analysts say the recent advance was of a technical nature supported by scattered bargain buying following an extended period of declines. They say rising interest rates and inflation continue to weigh heavily on the market.

The widely-based industrial index tumbled 97 to 185.23, golds 3.10 to 351.35, base metals 41 to 77.71 and western oils 1.61 to 184.70.

Volume increased to 1.29 million shares from 969,000 Monday, when it was the lowest in more than a year. Value rose to $10.93 million from $8.85 million.

What stocks did:

	Tue. Mon.
Advances:	122 208
Declines:	230 141
Unchanged:	257 221
Totals:	609 570
The largest losses among industrials were recorded by paper and forest and industrial mining shares while food processing issues posted the largest gains. Four industrial subindexes advanced and 12 retreated.

HIGHER EARNINGS

United Canso, which reported earnings of $5.92 a share for the nine months ended June 30, compared with seven cents a share for the same period a year ago, gained ¼ to $8½.

Dylex Ltd. A gained ¼ to $7½. The company reported higher net income for the first half ended Aug. 2.

Price Co. which gained ¼ Monday, fell 1 to $17¼, Royal Trust A ¾ to $21¾, Pacific Pete ¾ to $22½, Alcan ¾ to $23½ and Vulcan Industrial Packaging ¾ to $11¾.

Bell Canada edged up ¼ to $43½ and Canada Packers C ¼ to $20½.

Among mines, Dickenson lost ¾ to $7½, Giant Yellowknife ¼ to $9, Dome Mines ¼ to $45½ and Pamour Porcupine ¼ to $5½.

Denison was up ½ to $56, McIntyre ¼ to $48 and United Keno Hill ¼ to $10½.

Siebens fell ½ to $10¾, Pan Ocean ¾ to $10 and PanCanadian Pete ¼ to $15½.

Numac rose ¼ to $11.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over rising interest rates reasserted its grip on the stock market Tuesday, pushing prices into a broad decline in light trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 9.23 to 803.11.

What stocks did:

	Tue. Mon.
Advances:	412 979
Declines:	930 391
Unchanged:	428 395
Totals:	1,770 1,765

Volume totaled 11.35 million shares, compared with 11.25 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .56 to 44.71, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was off 1.10 to 83.96.

Prices moved upward briefly at the opening in a weak attempt to extend the technical rally that had carried the Dow to a 20.65-point gain over the two previous sessions.

But at the end of the first half hour the Dow was back to its closing level Monday and en route to a minus-7 reading by noon.

Brokers said it looked as though the market was simply unable to shake off the effects of the interest rate worries that have dogged it since early summer.

Copper Range posted the day's biggest drop, topping 13½ to 25, while Amax rose ½ to 52½. Neither issue traded Monday following the announcement of a government antitrust suit seeking to block the two companies' merger plans.

Notable losers in the growthstock category included Digital Equipment, down 4¼ at 106¾; IBM, off 3¼ at 178¼; Xerox, 1¼ lower at 55¼, and Polaroid, down 1½ at 32½.

Mary MacLeod

Mr. and Mrs. Angus M. MacKenzie of Lennoxville, accompanied by her three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Morrison and Mrs. Helen MacDonald of Montreal West, and Mrs. Joan Barnes of Orlando, Fla., called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacLeod.

Mrs. Bernice Laurila and son Norman, of Nipigon, Ont., are spending their holidays at her sister's home, Mr. and Mrs. David Nicholson.

Mr. Murdo MacArthur has returned home after an extended motor trip to Nevada and British Columbia. He was accompanied by his daughter Linda, and a friend Earl Morrison of Dell.

Miss Irene Poulin was taken to the Hotel Dieu hospital on Saturday. Her many friends wish her a speedy return to health.

Mrs. Eleanor MacDonald, Scotstown, and her guest, Mrs. Annie Smith, Detroit, Mich., were calling on friends in town last week.

Danny Waldron of Sherbrooke and Roderick MacLeod of Asbestos, were weekend visitors at their respective homes here.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacLeod motored to Wells

River, Vt., last Sunday where they visited Mrs. Beatrice White, and to Graniteville where they called on Mrs. Alice MacLeod. They also visited other relatives in the area.

Sean, Gail and Dale Farrell, Sherbrooke, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Nicholson.

Mrs. Roberts of Montreal, is spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Christie MacArthur.

Mr. Teddy Morrison, Pierrefonds, is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Macdonald.

Miss Mary MacLeod and Miss Frances Macdonald of Sherbrooke spent the weekend at the MacLeod home here. Miss MacLeod is much improved in health and her friends hope she will soon be back in her home for good.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hawkins of North Hartland, Vt., are spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Nicholson.

Several from here and Scotstown were guests at the Donald Morrison cottage in Piopolis Sunday afternoon. Also present were Lyndon Morrison of Sherbrooke and his twin sons, Daniel and Duncan who are holidaying at the Lake. The boys had their bag-pipes with them and played several tunes for the assembled guests. Others present included the Millers and the Kerbaughs, neighbours of Donald and Marion Morrison. Lunch was served before the guests departed for their several homes.

Word from Rev. Donald J. Gillies of Burnaby, B.C., tells of his gradual improvement in health and of his hope to be on his feet in a month's time. He was greatly touched by the many cards and prayers on his behalf and wished to thank everyone for their concern.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McDermott have returned home after a holiday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Copeland and Mrs. Mildred Hopkins in Deerfield, Vt. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Souther in Bradford, Vt.

Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McDermott were Miss Ursula Bozer, Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wheeler, Ayer's Cliff and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Campbell, Brome Lake.

Mr. Leopold Beaudoin, Mrs. Paul Primeau and two children and Mrs. Claude Drennan spent the weekend at Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Dewing, Huntingville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parker.

No returns yet from Arctic oil exploration

OTTAWA (CP) — With a $66-million stake in Panarctic Oils Ltd., the government apparently still is a long way from ever realizing any returns from its participation in the Arctic exploration joint venture.

"There's been good hope, in that Panarctic started up as a wildcat outfit and has made some good discoveries," an official of the northern affairs department commented recently.

"But when there'll be a return is still anybody's guess."

Earlier this month, northern affairs agreed to guarantee a $12-million loan for Panarctic, to enable it to carry on its 1975 exploration program.

A.D. Hunt, assistant deputy minister of northern affairs and a Panarctic director, said the company needed the loan because there is a reduced interest in continuing northern exploration by other companies.

Panarctic has traditionally raised about half its annual exploration budget — which has averaged about $50 million in each of the last three years — through farm-outs and deals with other companies. Panarctic still retains a majority interest in any of its holdings farmed out.

But about mid-1975, the company realized that it could not raise all the money it needed through the arrangements it had used previously.

The government did not want to simply put more money into Panarctic, because that would raise its ownership of the company above the current 45 per cent. This would likely have been opposed by the 30-company consortium of private interests that hold a controlling 55 per cent of Panarctic.

LOAN GUARANTEE

This left the only available option a loan guarantee, with the funds to be provided by the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Montreal.

The loan is for five years, but it can be repaid by Panarctic at any time with interest. It contains a convertible feature, so that the government can accept an equivalent value of shares in Panarctic, Mr. Hunt said.

However, Panarctic president Charles Hetherington was quick to assure that the company expects to repay the loan, rather than to allow the government to increase its interest in the company.

Since it started operations in 1967, Mr. Hunt says Panarctic has a strong record of discoveries. Its Hecla and Drake Point finds are among the largest natural gas fields in North America, he said.

Mr. Hetherington has estimated the company's natural gas reserves at between 10 and 15 trillion cubic feet, although Mr. Hunt emphasizes this is a company figure and not a government estimate. It is not all proven reserves, either.

Not until it has proven reserves of between 15 and 25 trillion cubic feet will a pipeline for moving the product south be justified, and that is when some returns on the federal investment may start to flow in, Mr. Hunt says.

BEST SITE

As for oil exploration, the best site was Bent Horn on Cameron Island where a find was "indicative of several million barrels," Mr. Hunt said.

"But you need several hundred million barrels to make it a potential producer."

Mr. Hunt claims that although it is not yet producing returns for the taxpayers' dollars it has absorbed, Panarctic has nonetheless generated substantial business in the northern regions. He estimates the company has "caused to be spent" by companies working on farm-outs from Panarctic as well as by its own operations, about $150 million.

Eventually, the government's interest in Panarctic will be taken over by Petro-Canada, the new national petroleum company, Mr. Hunt says.

Petro-Canada is one of the participants in a Polar Gas Study Group set up to study the problems in transporting natural gas from the Arctic, along with several other major carriers and the Ontario government.

Financial community supports proposed CDC share issue

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite recent harsh criticism, most of the financial community is solidly behind the proposed share issue of the Canada Development Corp., Don Morrison, executive vice-president, said Thursday.

All but two Canadian brokerage houses plan to sell the shares, Mr. Morrison said following an investment dealers' meeting.

The two brokers who opposed the issue, expected to be the largest in Canada, do so "for philosophical reasons," said Mr. Morrison, of Toronto.

The share issues, expected to begin in early September, has been criticized by Eric Kierans, McGill University economics professor and former cabinet minister in both the federal and Quebec governments.

"The CDC should withdraw the issue until such times as it knows what it is going to do with the money and can tell the public," Mr. Kierans said.

Mr. Morrison said the CDC does not have specific plans for the estimated $125 million the government-owned corporation hopes to garner from the share issue.

"We don't have specific plans for company X or company Y," Mr. Morrison said.

"We're looking at 50 things at a time although only two will come to fruition."

Mr. Kierans contended the CDC ownership should be "purely government and never private."

Mr. Morrison said if the CDC continued to be owned by the federal government, "the government would be under attack for meddling in the affairs of business."

By allowing the CDC to go public, the federal government is "kicking off a new pool of badly-needed Canadian equity," Mr. Morrison said.

The ability of the CDC to pay a seven-per-cent quarterly dividend was questioned by Mr. Kierans.

PROTECTION HIGH

Mr. Morrison said the CDC could not guarantee investors would receive a seven-per-cent dividend. However, he added that before the public would ever lose their investment, the CDC has "a base of $300 million in government capital which would be lost first."

An official involved in the share issue who wishes to remain anonymous said Mr. Kierans had attacked the CDC because it was not going to remain solely in the hands of the federal government.

As an avowed supporter of the New Democratic Party, Mr. Kierans does not wish to see private enterprise become involved in the CDC, he said.

Meanwhile, a controversy continues between Canadian banks and provincial securities commissions. The banks wish to be able to sell CDC shares while the commissions say bankers are not necessarily adequately trained to advise the investing public.

"We are caught in the middle of all this," Mr. Morrison said. He expected that the banks only had "a slim chance" to win their case.

Wednesday August 27: An 8:30 p.m. performance of Hunting Stuart is on tap at the festival. Meanwhile, at the Carrefour de l'Estrie's Cinema II, the movie fare is starring

Thursday, August 28: At Festival Lennoxville, a matinee performance of Jacob's Wake by Michael Cook is on at 2 p.m., while in the evening, Jubalay by Merv Campone and Patrick Rose, an entertaining little musical revue, will be shown. At the Norton Drive-in theatre in Newport, Vermont, the film Airport 75 is showing, and it's billed as being "more exciting than Airport."

Friday, August 29: Jacob's Wake will make its last appearance at Festival Lennoxville. Don't miss this excellent drama by Michael Cook. The curtain rises at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday, August 30: This Labor Day weekend, take in a film and supper at the Coffee Mill in North Hatley. For information on what's playing this weekend, call 842-2431. At Festival Lennoxville, the closing of the summer theatre group's season is heralded by the last performances of Jubalay at 2 p.m. and Hunting Stuart at 8:30 p.m. Another successful play season has been brought to a close.

Sunday, August 31: How about catching Steve McQueen in the Reivers, today at the Derby-Port Drive-in, just across the border. Or see the film at the Carrefour.

Monday, September 1: is Labor Day. What better way to celebrate than by watching the famous "duke" in action in the film Brannigan at the Derby-Port Drive-in. He's scheduled to appear until Thursday night.

Tuesday, September 2: With everyone buckling down for autumn, today is a quiet day on the Eastern Townships cultural horizon.

Car burns at Border

BOUNDARY (IH) — A car owned and operated by Donald Dewey of Tomifobia, exploded and burned early Tuesday morning on Route 55 about three miles north of Stanstead. The Stanstead Fire Department were on the scene and the car was burned to a metal skeleton. Mr. Dewey was alone at the time and was not injured.

CANCER CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL — The 1975 Campaign Honorary President, Douglas S. Smith, the Cowansville Daughters of Isabella and the solicitors from surrounding areas who did volunteer work during the Canadian Cancer Society financial campaign wish to thank the individuals, industries, businesses, etc. who answered their call. The photograph shows the Daughters of Isabella accompanied by three cashiers from the Cowansville Royal Bank counting the receipts. The door-to-door canvassing in Cowansville, Adamsville, East Farnham,

West Brome and Brigham amounted to $1,724.88. In Sutton, Miss Johanne Bonneau and her young team brought $252.63. In Knowlton, Mrs. R. St-Francois, seconded by her faithful group, contributed $542.02. In Bromont, Mrs. Colette Falardeau, who contacted the persons who had not already been canvassed, collected $99. Special donations from the entire section amounted to $1,000. The 1975 result to this date stands at $3,618.53. (Record photo by Studio Lavigne)

SUTTON

M.E. Thompson

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bower spent a two week's holiday in P.E.I.

A few of the members of Golden Rule Lodge No. 20 attended the Colfax Lodge in Knowlton when the Assembly president Sister Irene Williams made her official visit. On August 17 members of all the Fraternal Organizations attended the picnic at Brome Fair Grounds.

Mrs. N. Patten, Mrs. M. Miller, Mrs. H. Breese and Mrs. B. Russell spent a day in St. Albans and Enosburg, Vt.

A few from her attended the Barton, Vt. and Bedford, Que. fairs.

Miss Yvette Gagne spent a recent weekend in Montreal with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Russell spent a few days in Ludlow, Vt., visiting her brother Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dempsey and family and also called on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macey.

The property of the late Miss Ellen Thompson, Pleasant Street, and the property belonging to the Cutter family on Academy St. have been sold recently.

Guests at the Russell home August 16 and 17 were Misses Joyce Burt and Beverly Mahannah, Freighsburg, Mrs. Mabel Eccles, Cowansville, Mrs. Addie Spencer, West Sutton, Mrs. J. Plante, Bowker Lake, R.R. Russell, Waterloo, Mr. Calno Soule Sr., Mrs. Mae Beauchage, Dunham and Mr. Casavant and family.

We are pleased to welcome the Rev. Jean Barclay who has come to reside in the United Church Manse and who took up her duties in Sutton and Dunham United Churches on August 17.

Mrs. M. Thompson and Mrs. M. Jenne of Cowansville were recent callers on Miss Glenna Munn.

Miss Noreen Russell and Mr. M. Appleby spent a few days in Lee, Mass., guests of her uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Alton Russell and family.

Mrs. Harold Miller spent a weekend in Montreal with relatives.

The floral demonstration sponsored by the members of the A.C.W. of Grace Church Wednesday evening August 20 was well attended. The demonstrator was Mrs. Atkins of Cowansville who was introduced by Mrs. Holmes of Sutton. For her theme Mrs. Atkins chose "Our Home" and made up floral arrangements to go into each room of your home which was very interesting. After the demonstration the several pieces made up were drawn as door prizes. A delicious lunch was served to the ladies afterwards with Mrs. Clinton Hazard

Melbourne pastoral scene is replaced on two dollar bill

RICHMOND (RH) — An era of minor glory has ended in the Richmond and Melbourne area with the introduction of a new Canadian two dollar bill.

The former bank note, which depicted a scene from Melbourne Valley, has been replaced by a bill showing Eskimos navigating kayaks in Canada's far north.

The scene on the former two dollar bill gained notoriety when highway development threatened to bulldoze its way through the valley upon which the landscape painting was based. Richmond and Melbourne residents eventually won the fight to save the area, largely through the sympathetic public response they received on saving the site of the two dollar bill picture.

"There was no way we could really hope the bill would remain the same forever," commented Vladimir Ignatieff of Richmond. "It's possible we managed to postpone the changing of the bill because of the publicity it received during the threatened highway development."

"But the new bills have a different motif and it was only a matter of time before the government saw fit to introduce them."

The new bill was introduced August 5.

Rand talks likely to pick up

By BRUCE PORTER

SHERBROOKE — The strike by close to 600 workers at Canadian Ingersoll-Rand entered its second week this morning, but the possibility of union and management getting back together for the first time since Aug. 19 is likely if both parties still feel as they did yesterday afternoon.

An apparent misunderstanding, resulting from the time when contract negotiations broke off early last week, may have kept the workers off their jobs needlessly. Both sides yesterday afternoon said they were waiting for the other to sit down to make or listen to new proposals.

The union, local 6670 of the United Steel Workers of America (AFL-CIO-QFL), was negotiating a three-year contract before negotiations broke down, but have now set their mark on a two-year pact. They are seeking an increase of $1.50 an hour in the first year, $1 in the second year and an unlimited cost-of-living clause over both years.

The company in their last offer, were willing to give them 65 cents the first year and 15 cents for the second and third years of a proposed contract. They would have allowed for a 1.5 cent cost-of-living allowance, with a "cap" of 35 cents in the last two years of the contract.

Harris Olsson, chief steward and vice-president of the union local, said the main stumbling block was the cost-of-living issue. He said he felt that the union would have agreed to the original pact a cost-of-living allowance had been made for the first year, with no "cap", but it never came to that. The Rand workers have fallen behind by about 22 cents per hour in the cost-of-living bracket since the last contract signed in 1972. Present inflationary cost-of-living allowances are about 40 cents, which would put the workers still behind if the company offer of a 35 cent "cap" was accepted.

"CAP" DEFENDED
 Rand vice-president Jack Ames said the "cap" offered by the company was "pretty high" when compared to other contracts. He admitted the company realized that workers would be below the inflation rate if they had accepted, but experts forecast a drop in the increasing cost-of-living and that before a three-year pact would be completed, the rate might drop past the 35 cent mark.

Union officials said their members were upset by a quote Mr. Ames made last week stating that a "cap" was not unusual, and that it served as some protection for the company. Strikers wanted to know what protection a "cap" gave them if inflation went, as Mr. Ames put it, "hog-wild." The vice-president's reply was that, according to a survey done earlier this year, 47 per cent of 225 contracts had fixed or "capped" cost-of-living clauses. His reference to the protection for the company, he noted, was also a protection for the workers. If the company had to raise production costs to buyers because of unlimited cost-of-living allowances in Sherbrooke, jobs would disappear because the Rand, being a multi-national firm, would get the work done cheaper somewhere else.

STRIKERS ORDERLY
 To date, workers have done little in the way of usual strike tactics, allowing over 400 office staff in their offices each morning, as well as a skeleton staff of plumbers, electricians and boiler room staff because as Mr. Olsson put it, "we still want a place to work when we go back."

While few incidents have been reported, striking workers slowed out-going personnel early this week for possible blueprints or papers for contracts which could be produced at other plants. The search turned up little in the way of "prints", but one employee was embarrassed when his briefcase was opened to reveal a lunch bag and thermos. Inside personnel have cooperated with strikers in checking of belongings as they leave the office.

Strike shifts were set up on Monday, with workers coming for four hours of duty for three days, then have the next three days off. The union is also encouraging the strikers to find alternate jobs, temporary or otherwise, while they bide their time.

It is the second strike in Rand history, the first being last Nov. when workers staged a wildcat walkout for higher wages.

The news in brief

CAN'T RETURN

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Bikini islanders, waiting since 1946 to return home, will have to wait a while longer before they can go back to the former nuclear test site, the U.S. interior department said Tuesday. It said the planned return in mid-September of some 150 Bikinians to the Pacific atoll in the Marshall Islands had been postponed until studies are completed on a radiological survey taken in June.

SALUT FINE

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Salyut-4, the 19-ton Soviet space station visited by two cosmonauts for a record-breaking eight weeks in the spring, Tuesday completed its eighth month in space and was reported in excellent condition.

THREATEN ACTION

MADRID (Reuter) — The Spanish government threatened Tuesday to take legal action against newspapers spreading false news, as rumors continued that Gen. Francisco Franco may soon resign and prompt a government upheaval. The threat followed a Sunday report in the provincial newspaper Diario de Mallorca suggesting Gen. Franco might hand over power soon to Prince Juan Carlos, his chosen heir.

HOAX COSTS

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (AP) — The great North Sea bomb hoax was played out Tuesday, leaving a bill of more than $2 million in lost production and wages. When anonymous telephone warnings from a caller said to have a Middle East accent warned of undersea time bombs, British navy divers were called in. They reported finding nothing but stinging jellyfish after spending hours checking three huge natural gas rigs operated by American-owned Phillips Petroleum.

ORDERED JAILED

LONDON (AP) — Ronald (Buster) Edwards, 44, who helped steal more than $7 million in the Great Train Robbery in 1963, was ordered jailed for six months Tuesday for shoplifting. He said he will appeal the sentence and was released on bail.

INTERCEPT PATROL

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian border patrol intercepted a Libyan armed jeep about two miles inside Egyptian territory and wounded three Libyans, the official Middle East News Agency reported Tuesday.

Fire levels barns

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Lennoxville firefighters were called out at 5:15 a.m. today to battle a barn fire on Moulton Hill, but by the time they arrived, the structure was completely engulfed and nothing could be saved.

The barn, owned by Bishop's College School, was rented by Peter Denison and Forest Beerworth, and contained about 3,000 feet of used lumber, several buggies, scrap iron, tools and a large amount of cocoa bean shells.

Damages were estimated at about $3,500, a much smaller figure than it could have been if Mr. Denison had not moved several pieces of machinery out of the barn a few days ago.

Volunteer Fire Department chief John Nichol officially listed the cause of the fire in the old wood-frame barn as "undetermined," but as the barn was not served by electricity, the possibility of someone setting the fire was high. Mr. Nichol ruled out lightning as a likely cause.

Chief Nichol also said last night's rain possibly saved the house of Mr. Beerworth about 200 feet away from the barn, as the grassed area between the two buildings would have burned easily, adding to the firemen's worries.

WINDSOR (CM) — A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the barn on the farm of L.H. Farquhar in Lower Windsor Saturday afternoon. The century old building burned quickly to the ground. Lost in the blaze was a bull, a quantity of hay and several pieces of farm machinery.

Firemen from Windsor answered the call but were unable to do more than save nearby buildings.

Patchwork Policies

Four Canadian provinces, British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia, have attempted in varying degrees to regulate the price of oil as they have the undoubted constitutional right to do. But their present methods will not succeed for long. They only demonstrate the futility of attacking the nationwide disease of inflation on a haphazard, regional basis while the federal government evades it altogether.

In the first place, the four provincial governments have fixed prices but not costs, and the costs of bringing oil from the ground to the consumer are rising steadily. Wages, interest charges on borrowed money, transportation, profits and taxes must be recovered in the end by prices. When the provinces do nothing about costs, in the oil or any other industry, and when wages, the main cost in all of them, are uncontrolled, prices must rise, too. At best the provincial regulations are no more than a temporary expedient, a delaying action. They cannot be anything else so long as the Canadian economy continues to inflate itself in every aspect, from the national budget down to the business of the corner store.

Moreover, the four provinces, with their local systems of control, are cutting straight across national energy policy, such as it is. The federal government has decided that oil prices should increase to discourage waste and encourage production. Six provinces have accepted that decision, or taken no steps to obstruct it. The others, especially, the big, rich provinces of Ontario and British Columbia, have enough power in politics to harass the federal government (just before a dubious Ontario election) if not to make their own policies effective.

All this is a blueprint for political discord and economic confusion. They will not be avoided, they will only worsen, unless the federal government decides to grapple with the underlying forces of inflation that raise the cost of everything, including oil. Meanwhile all the governments (with the exception of Manitoba) insist that inflation is not directly controllable but all are trying to control a single product, by one means or another, as if it could be separated from the rest.

In one province at least a wise distinction is made between the price of necessary and unnecessary oil. British Columbia has let gasoline prices rise and frozen the price of heating oil. Heat is a necessity of life in a cold climate. Much pleasure driving on the roads, summer speedboats, and winter snowmobiles, are not a necessity but nothing more than official exhortation has been done to discourage them, even when Canada's reserves of conventional oil are likely to be exhausted within a decade.

Clearly it is time for the eleven governments to cease quarrelling over the details of energy policies and the revenues derived from the oil industry, time to face the fact of future shortage and today's exploding costs. Under the most favorable circumstances the price of energy will remain high or rise higher throughout the Western world until new resources are discovered or invented. But the price need not rise in Canada at the projected rate if the governments face together the basic fact of inflation as they have not done yet.

Opinions from the French-language press

This a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: Inflation is a problem that must be dealt with. If not, we are heading directly for bankruptcy, for our prices will no longer be competitive. This is what Prime Minister Trudeau said last week.

Many Canadians probably were surprised by these words from the prime minister. For it is not primarily because excessive inflation is impoverishing the citizens, in particular those on fixed incomes, that Mr. Trudeau wants to attack it, but because it is hurting exporters.

As well, this excessive inflation has lasted for more than two years and no lasting federal policy has been undertaken to fight it.

Certain die-hard Liberals argue, however, inflation in Canada has been less than in other industrialized countries, thanks to the wisdom of the government.

But, on the one hand, inflation was less in some industrialized countries than in Canada.

On the other hand, all Mr. Turner's budgets were inflationary. It is not the result of wisdom on the part of the government, but the nature of the Canadian economy itself, which is based on the primary and tertiary sectors, raw materials and services.

Certainly, the current politicians are not inferior to those of the previous generation. But that is not enough. For contemporary problems are much more complex than those of previous generations.

This is why a central power is necessary which has an over-all view of the problems, and which can orientate the economy in the direction of the interests of all Canadians. This power already exists in the federal government.

Total control of wages and prices is a measure which proved ineffective in the countries where it was applied. There remains, however, the selective control of prices of certain essential services and products. This is an extreme measure.

For in a capitalistic system, all price control is felt to be a limitation of free enterprise. It is thus preferable to use a much more flexible standard to allow companies to raise the price of their products, but pay the consequences.

In brief, no matter what method is chosen, what is important at the present time, is the application of one. Even if it means improving it later.

For the worst enemy now is ultra-conservatism, which makes Canadians slaves to the anarchy economic forces instead of making them masters. Ivan Guy, Aug. 13

Sherbrooke La Tribune: The federal department of transport last year wanted to experiment with bilingualism in communications in Quebec between the pilots of small planes and the control towers of five airports.

The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, together with the unions representing airline pilots, object to the implementation of bilingualism for visual-control flights.

This is simply because English is the master language of international aviation. The use of another language in air-ground communications could put air transit in jeopardy.

This is serious enough that the flight professionals will have a 24-hour strike in October to oblige the transport department to stop all bilingualism in air control.

This battle is of the highest importance. It must be proven English need not remain the language of control. The nicest argument in this direction is given to us by the fact the pilots did not control their tongues to avoid spitting on our famous cultural sovereignty.

This is far from the beautiful international co-operation of Apollo-Soyuz where Russians and Americans exchanged national languages. Jean Desclos, Aug. 12

Ottawa Le Droit: Because of our complex political system, Canada is without doubt one of the most administered countries.

Taking into account only the federal and provincial levels of government — apart from municipal and regional authorities — Canada is administered by about 250 ministers, more than 400 deputy ministers, about 1,000 elected representatives and about 600,000 civil servants.

This is not counting the employees of boards, Crown corporations, schools and hospitals.

For a country of about 20 million, it is a costly public structure.

The surprise statement of Jean Chretien, president of the federal treasury board, to the effect that federal civil servants have a better sense of the state, and thus the federal government has a better civil service than that of Quebec, startled more than one Canadian, and more than one civil servant, but for different reasons.

The comparison between the Quebec and federal civil services can be made. It can evidently — even without scientific research — show that in Ottawa, work is done more seriously than in Quebec. The absence of tradition, the administrative partisanship of Mr. Bourassa, the physical environment, many factors explain a great deal.

But it remains that in the federal government there are causes for laziness, and also dead wood. The weight of the machine itself is a factor. Self-satisfaction is another.

To sum up, this unexpected declaration by Mr. Chretien has caused several useless debates, without doubt. But it perhaps permits many civil servants to ask themselves the question: Paid by the Canadian people, do we really work to serve them better? — Jean C. Levesque, Aug. 16

Agreement to talk ends occupation of log camp

ESTCOURT STATION, Me. (AP) — The occupation of two logging camps by a group of Maine woodsmen ended here Monday night with an agreement by state and company officials to meet and discuss grievances, the head of the Maine Woodsmen's Association (MWA) said.

MWA president Wayne Birmingham said state officials had agreed to close the border station at Estcourt to all Canadian loggers working at the camps, which are located in this northernmost Maine town.

Birmingham said officials of the Canadian firm of J.D. Irving Co., owner of the major part of the land in the area around the logging camps, had agreed to sit down for talks Wednesday over charges that the company is mistreating American woodsmen.

William Malloy, director of the Maine Employment Security Commission, said he requested Monday that the border be closed to all Canadians connected with the logging operation.

Malloy said he was closing the border to insure that no confrontations occurred between American and Canadian woodsmen.

MADE CONDITIONAL However, Birmingham

said the MWA had insisted as a condition for the end of the takeover that the border be closed until the dispute is resolved.

Friction between Americans and Canadians erupted in the seizure of the camps early Monday by about 50 American loggers.

Birmingham said the men occupied the main camp and a smaller site throughout the day, and barred Canadians from both areas.

Malloy said there had been no violence, but added the men "clearly had broken the law."

The loggers, many of whom were not MWA members, asked all Canadians to leave the site and prevented others from entering the area as they usually do every Monday morning.

NEAR BORDER

The camps are located a short distance from the Canadian border, and many Canadians cross the border each week to work in the forests of the vast North Woods.

The MWA, formed in June, has charged that the companies exploit the Americans by employing Canadians and favoring them for the best jobs when Americans are available.

Record Yester Years
20 Years Ago

OTTAWA — A new jet engine development believed unique in the western world, doubling the rate of climb of an interceptor plane or giving added bursts of speed to jet fighters, has been unveiled by Canadian scientists.

An improvement on the usual jet engine afterburners which burn additional fuel in the airplane tailpipe to attain greater speed, it is the fruit of four years of work by about a dozen scientists at the National Research Council's aeronautical establishment.

The one top-secret device was demonstrated to reporters Friday at Uplands airport here, where it has been tested for the last six months in a relatively-slow Gloster Meteor jet aircraft on loan from the RAF to the central experimental and proving establishment.

With FO. Alan F. Arnold of Toronto at the controls, the Meteor did a low-level flypast at about 450 miles an hour with the new afterburner roaring.

On a second run, from a dodging 200 MPH, Arnold turned on the afterburner to send the plane into a climb at a rate of about 20,000 feet in three minutes.

The new twist is a spray of jet fuel — kerosene on the blades of the jet's turbine to cool their 1,200 degree Fahrenheit heat. The fuel, atomized by the whirling turbine blades, then is ignited in the afterburner tailpipe for added thrust.

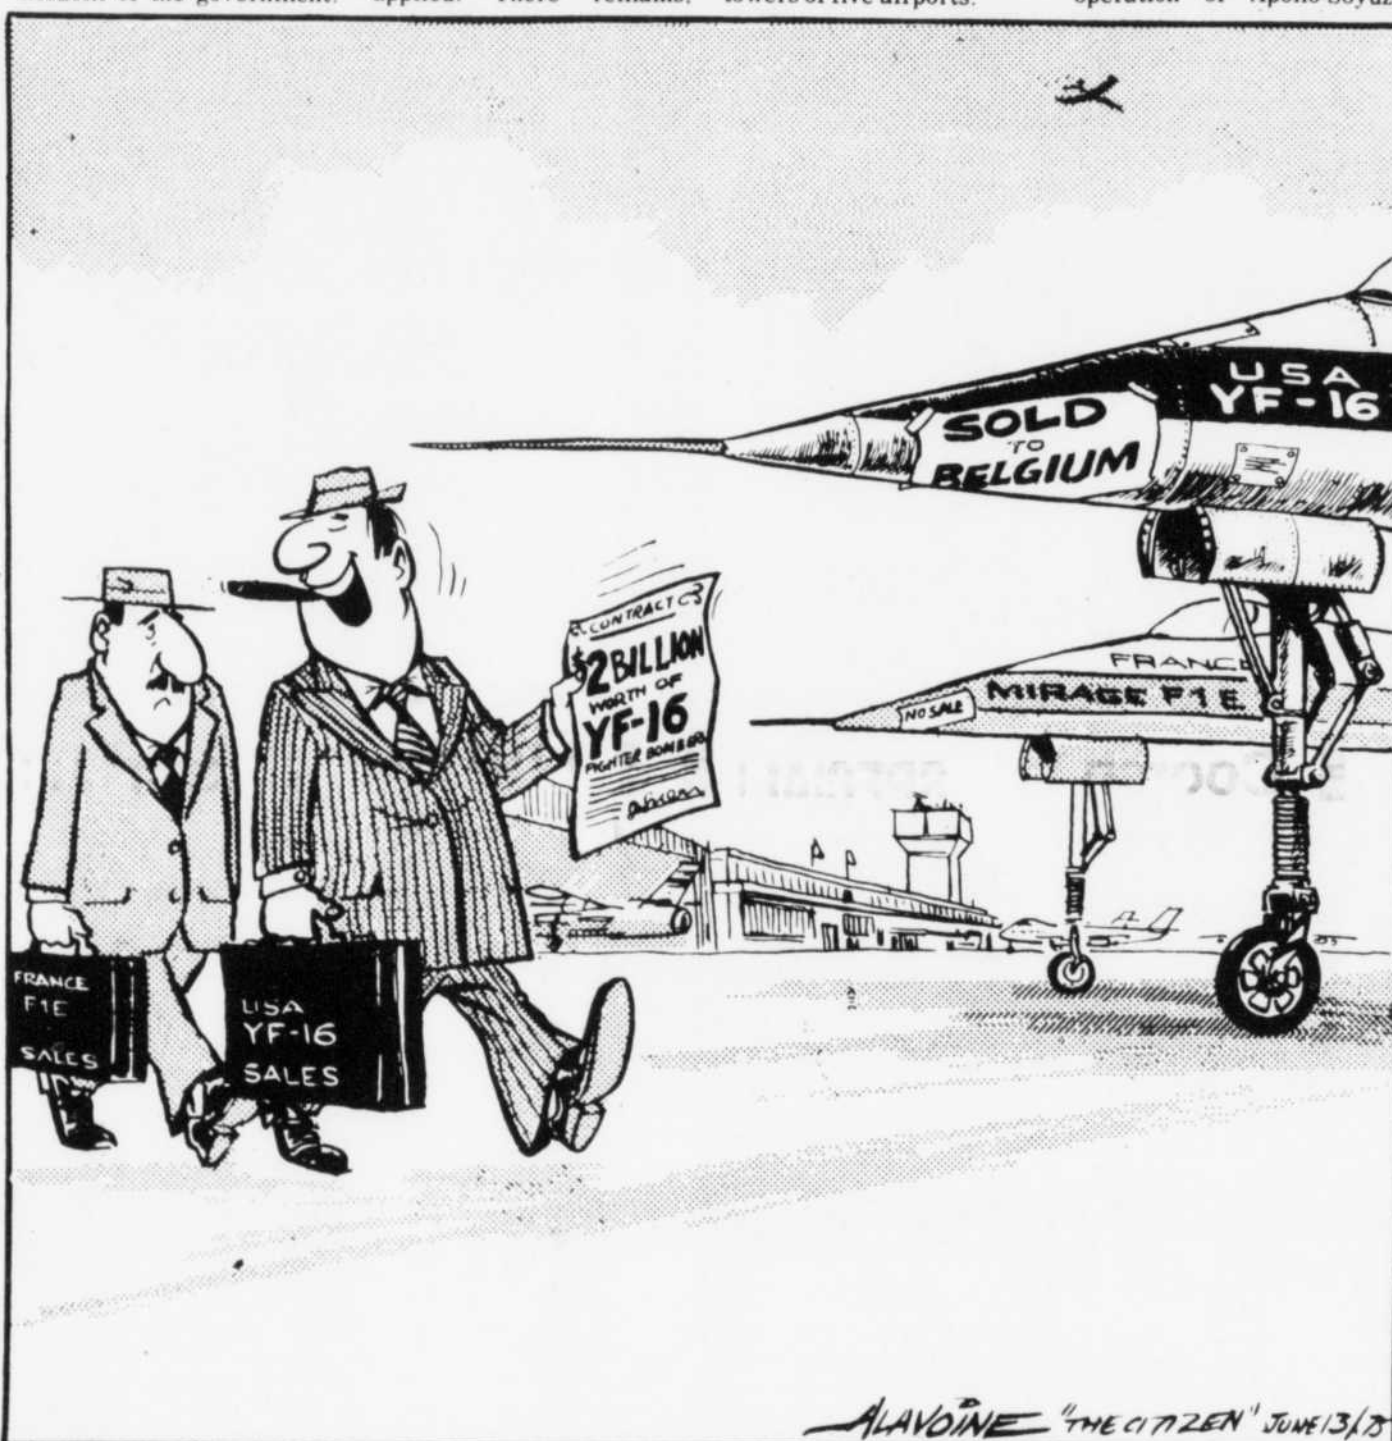

45 Years Ago

MONTREAL — The cold gray dawn of a day at the end of this week will see Captain Errol Boyd, Canadian war flyer, lift the old Bellanca Columbia, veteran of the skies, into the air at St. Hubert Airport and point her nose eastwards on a non-stop flight from Montreal to England.

Harry P. Connor, who navigated the Bellanca to Bermuda and back, has mapped out a course for the Canadian flyer, taking the great circle route from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and out to sea. The plane will either fly over Gaspé and the Gulf or cut across Maine and the Maritime provinces on the way to the open sea, the route depending on weather conditions. Meteorological experts here and in New York will do their best to give Capt. Boyd an accurate forecast of weather conditions over the Gulf and over the North Atlantic before he takes off, for the ship will carry no radio.

All week Canadian Wright Limited Exports have been working on the original Wright 225 H.P. Whirlwind engine which has carried the old Bellanca to all her records. The staunch old motor has been carefully tuned. Boyd listened to her steady hum and pronounced himself satisfied. He took the monoplane up over the city to test motor and controls in the hangar in St. Hubert.

All that lacks is the newest instruments combatting fog and darkness, the Sperry horizon loaned by the inventor to Boyd for the flight.

"Don't feel too bad — I not only threw in the steel belted radials and the radio, but it took a $100 factory rebate to cinch the deal!"

Floating spy bases

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is quietly considering plans to establish a flotilla of floating spy bases to replace the intelligence installations in Turkey.

The Turks began expropriating U.S. bases after Congress refused to lift the arms embargo. These bases, according to intelligence sources, account for about one-fourth of the information gathered about Soviet nuclear tests and military maneuvers.

Top defense officials are still hopeful that Turkey will let them continue to use the bases. But they are casting about for other options.

The most likely plan, now under discussion at the highest levels, would call for taking old ships out of mothballs and equipping them for intelligence gathering. Thus, the Soviet Union would be monitored from international waters.

Meanwhile, another all-out effort will be made this fall to change the House vote.

If the House votes to restore arms to Ankara, our sources predict, the Turks will give the U.S. access again to the strategic bases.

But if the vote is negative, one source warned, "there's no doubt we'd have to get Americans out of there fast. Our equipment would probably be held in hostage and we'd have to evacuate dependents."

Dangerous Delay: Government investigators have yet to complete their probe of a major auto scandal we uncovered over two years ago.

In 1973, we exposed a massive corporate cover-up of dangerously faulty equipment in Cadillacs. Largely as a result of our exposure, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) opened a formal investigation.

Two years later, the investigation is still at sea.

The story actually began in 1967 with General Motors' discovery that a "blower

Jack Anderson's

Washington

relay" used in Cadillacs was failing its engineering tests.

This innocent-looking switch, somewhat smaller than a cigarette package, is a vital part of the air conditioning system. Any breakdown can cause sudden, dangerous electric fires.

Nonetheless, the blower relays were installed in 1969 and 1970 Cadillacs. By the end of 1969, there were an incredible 21,000 blower relay failures in the 1969 Cadillacs. The 1970 Cadillacs did better with only 9,516 reported relay failures.

GM abandoned the troubled relay device before producing the 1971 model. But before dumping the defective part, an honest memo circulated through Cadillac's plush headquarters. The memo stated starkly that 48 per cent of the relays would probably fail in five years or 50,000 miles.

The findings led some Cadillac men to urge a recall campaign which would protect Cadillac owners but would cost $14 million.

Cadillac's bosses balked. In addition to the expense, the recall campaign would have meant admitting that Cadillac, "the king of cars," had flaws. It was decided, therefore, to fix the cars that came in without alerting other owners to the potential danger.

By the time of the cover-up decision, the trouble reports were growing more ominous. One told of an elderly man who tried to fight the fire in his new Cadillac with a hand extinguisher. He wound up in the hospital with over $10,000 in bills. Other reports told of burned hands, burned dashes, burned cars.

In the spring of 1973, we uncovered the scandal. Our queries to GM produced Watergate-like responses. First came outright denials, then partial, guarded admissions of some trouble. But a spokesman told us no recall campaign was instituted because "the situation was not considered safety related under the federal safety act."

At this point, the feds entered the picture. It is the government's responsibility to protect the consumer. The Center for Auto Safety gave the federal sleuths all the information, which we had asked them to help evaluate. Then we sat back to wait.

And we waited.

This week, we called the NHTSA about the investigation. A spokesman told us no conclusion has been reached in the matter. But, he added, "we are essentially done with the investigative phase of the investigation."

What's left? Well, after the NHTSA finishes the unconcluded investigative phases, the investigation is evaluated, then assessed, and then a determination is made as to whether a defect exists. If a defect is found, public hearings are held so the industry can present its case.

By the time the case is concluded, the dangerous Cadillacs will be obsolete.

Microwave Menace: The Pentagon has royally pooh-poohed our reports of microwave damage to human eyes because safer standards would cost them billions in equipment changes and compensation. Now, the esteemed "Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Monthly" has printed an article by Dr. Milton Zaret telling of a 53-year-old radar repairman who was not only blinded by the rays, but deafened. The ear damage has also affected his balance and left him virtually unable to walk.

The family

Oakley-Davidson

MR. AND MRS. D. OAKLEY

A lovely summer wedding took place on Saturday, July 5, 1975 at 4:30 p.m. in the Lennoxville United Church when Beverly Ann, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Davidson of Lennoxville became the bride of Denis Johnson, youngest son of Mrs. Doris Oakley and the late Mr. William Norman Oakley of Sherbrooke.

Rev. Douglas Warren officiated at the double ring ceremony. The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Molly Fox and Miss Thelma Crawford, friend of the Davidson family, sang "The Wedding Hymn" at the beginning of the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The guest pews were marked by white satin bows. Two large baskets of pink and white gladiolus were placed at the front of the church, one on each side of the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely floor length gown of white sheer over satin which flowed from a close fitting bodice to a gathered flounce which went into a short train. The gown featured a standup collar, V neck, long sleeves, and was trimmed with lace. Her waist-length veil was held in place by a dainty band of white roses and lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses mixed with pink carnations and a sprinkling of baby's breath from which streamed white satin ribbons.

Miss Cathy Coates of Ottawa, Ontario, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She looked very pretty in a floor length gown of flocked white nylon over deep blue polyester which had a stand up collar, a high lined bodice, and a flounce at the bottom of the skirt. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies and baby's breath tied with blue ribbons and wore a band of matching daisies in her hair.

Miss Jean Davidson, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, and Miss Cindy Tomkinson, cousin of the bride, as flowergirl, wore dresses identical to the maid of honor, Jean being in pink and Cindy in yellow. Jean carried a nosegay of white daisies and baby's breath tied with pink ribbons while Cindy carried a basket of yellow carnations adorned by yellow ribbons. Each wore flowers in her hair to match those in her bouquet.

Mr. Bob Allan of Lacolle, Quebec, friend of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Gary Oakley, brother of the groom, and Robert Davidson, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a soft green floor length gown with white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow sweetheart roses. The mother of the groom chose a pale blue floor length gown accented by white accessories and wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Lorne Davidson, paternal grandmother of the bride, wore a two piece gown of pale blue and a corsage of red carnations.

The reception after the ceremony was held in the Gertrude Scott Hall which was prettily decorated for the occasion. The head table was centered by the three-tiered wedding cake made by the mother of the bride and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Jean Naylor. On each side of the cake was placed a tapering white candle and a red rose.

Later in the evening a dance was held in the Lennoxville Rifle Club where many friends and relatives gathered to congratulate the newlyweds. Mr. Donald MacMillan was master of ceremonies for the evening. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Faye Scott and the garter by Mr. Lynn MacRae.

The bride and groom honeymooned in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia.

Guests attending the wedding were from Oakville, Ottawa, Montreal, Lacolle, Leeds, Kinnear's Mills, Sherbrooke and surrounding areas.

Prior to Denis and Bev's marriage, Bev was given two showers where she received many lovely gifts. One was given by Miss Cathy Coates and the other by the girls of American Biltrite (Canada) Ltd.

Ann Landers says:

Martyr complex evident

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from the woman who had to drag herself to the nursing home once a week to spend an hour with her semi-senile mother really got to me. Too bad she found the old lady's "crazy chatter" so depressing.

I wonder how she'd like to have had her mother living with her for the last seven years. And what if she had to drive her to the beauty shop, the bank, shopping, to the doctor, to church meetings — any place Mother decided to go on a moment's notice. What if she did all this and never received one word of thanks — only criticism and complaints?

I would be overjoyed if I could go visit MY mother every day in a nursing home. It would certainly improve my relationship with my husband and children. Our family has been in a state of upheaval ever since Mother came to live with us. They say I'm a fool to let her run me ragged. Maybe I am but I love my mother and feel it is my responsibility.

But at times I ask myself if I am being fair to my husband and children. One thing is certain, no child of mine will ever go through this kind of hell with me. — Seven Years Depressed

Dear S.Y.: Any person has been "Seven Years Depressed" is long overdue for counseling. I sense a martyr complex in your letter plus an enormous amount of ambivalence and resentment.

Is there no public transportation in your city? No taxi? Discuss these alternatives with a therapist and get your head together, woman. I'm glad you wrote. Your letter was a cry for help — even though you didn't mean it to be.

Dear Ann Landers: There was a time when my husband and I could travel and enjoy a full life. But now he is not well and we are both getting on in years. So we stay at home a great deal and make the best of it.

We have certain radio and TV shows that we like to listen to and watch. It is our major form of entertainment. This couple we've known for a long time has a habit of dropping in unexpectedly and it seems they always come right in the middle of a very good show. They stay only 25 or 30 minutes — just long enough to ruin a program for us. This puts my husband in a very bad mood.

Should we turn off the radio or TV when they show up — or say we'd like to finish the program and risk insulting them? — Sitting Ducks

Dear Duck: Don't do either. Simply tell them the next time they show up that you'd appreciate it if they'd call before coming. Explain that you and your husband watch and listen to certain radio and TV shows and when THEY come you'd like to give them your undivided attention.

Dear Ann: If my penmanship looks shaky it's because I'm still shook. I took an attractive woman to dinner last night. She has done some import buying in the Orient and is very sophisticated.

When the menus were presented, she took a wad of gum out of her mouth and stuck it behind her ear. I looked horrified. She said, "Relax — it's an old Chinese custom. Even the very aristocratic do it."

True or false? — Small Town Boy

Dear S.T.B.: False. And if this is your idea of "sophistication" — you need a dictionary, honey.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Aging prisoner refuses parole to maintain his innocence

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Leonard Ewing Scott could sign a paper and walk into the sunlight that splashes a rocky coast and touches the roses beginning to bloom beside San Quentin prison.

At 78, he refuses to accept the parole that would end his 17 years in prison. He did not murder his wealthy, socialite wife, he claims, and to accept parole would amount to a concession of guilt.

"Hell will freeze over before I go out on parole," declares the dignified, white-haired Scott, slamming his fist on a table and turning his back to the sunlight.

"Parole isn't freedom and I want to be free. To accept parole could be to admit guilt and bow to an unjust system."

Prison officials say Scott, a model prisoner, is the first man in California to refuse parole in order to maintain his innocence.

The case is one of a few in the world in which there was a murder conviction without a body. It still bears the scent of mystery.

After years of legal battles, Scott, a former investment banker, has asked the California Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus.

NO HARD EVIDENCE

He contends that there was no evidence of a crime; that the circumstantial evidence against him was insufficient for a murder conviction; that the trial court had no jurisdiction; and that his right to due process was violated by the judge's and prosecutor's comments about his not taking the stand in his own defence.

The judge told the jury it might reasonably infer guilt from his refusal to testify. After a long and highly publicized trial, Scott was convicted in Los Angeles in 1957 of murdering his 63-year-old wife who disappeared May 16, 1955.

Her assets were worth about $650,000, most of which Scott says he put in her name.

He was her seventh husband and she was his second wife.

Although her body was never found, partial dentures and an old pair of glasses were found in the back yard of their stylish Brentwood home. Charred bits of a woman's clothing were found in an incinerator.

Scott said he did not report her missing because she had disappeared before and he had hired his own investigators.

SUSPECTS KIDNAPPING

He believes his wife was alive long after he was convicted of her murder and says she may have been kidnapped.

In 1963, he says, a lawyer went to see him in prison and wanted him to sign papers divorcing Mrs. Scott. "I was told to either sign or get a shiv knife in the back. But how... can you divorce a dead woman?"

A model prisoner who keeps to himself, Scott was first eligible for parole in November, 1974. He says parole officials kept presenting him with parole agreements.

"Time and again they ask me," Scott says, "and I keep asking them, 'From what... do you propose to parole me?' They can't answer. I walk out."

"If I accept the parole agreement, I would be subject to the jurisdiction of someone for the balance of my life. Nobody's going to tell me where I can go or what I can do."

FILE APPEALS

Scott has filed one appeal after another and has accumulated more than 500 pounds of legal documents.

He spends virtually all his time working on his case with the help of a new lawyer, William Hestel of San Francisco.

"Scott's trial was a black eye for the entire judicial system," says Nestel.

"We're going to find, I think, that Mrs. Scott is dead. I believe she died several years ago. All I know is that my client didn't kill her. She was an emotionally unstable and imbalanced woman who fled when she felt there were problems she didn't want to face."

Scott has won some judicial support from United States District Court Judge Robert Peckham in San Francisco, who said Scott's case "is far from frivolous." But the judge denied his request for a writ of habeas corpus, saying he had not exhausted state remedies.

Scott says if he ever gets out of prison, "I'd like to live the way I was living — travel a lot, living in clubs, good wines, fine food. Maybe I'll go to Mexico, but I won't take a woman along."

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Another day when you can reap a rich harvest. The key to a bigger bank account is found in being practical in all your dealings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
The outcome of this day depends solely upon you. The quality of your efforts will determine the value of your rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your thinking is deep and pensive on this peaceful, quiet day. Put your serene mood to use. You'll benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Friends are reliable today. If you need their help, just ask. They'll make a concerted effort to give it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You'll probably feel you're in a rut today because the impetus needed to give your career that upward surge is lacking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Plan your actions well now. Build a good foundation, then put each small brick in place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Be firm and patient in any financial deals today. Don't let others hurry you beyond your chosen, comfortable pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
The spotlight is on your mate or partner today. Don't let it bother you. You're still a key part of the team.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
If you have in mind to start a diet or exercise program, this is a good time. You'll stick to what you begin now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You're a good manager of the money under your care today. If you make a point with a young person, the lesson will be long-remembered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You'll get as big a kick out of entertaining today as will those you entertain. Even extra guests won't upset you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Mental gymnastics won't faze you today. You're good at weighing facts, figures and propositions.

Your Birthday
Aug. 28, 1975

You'll strive to acquire a special type of knowledge which you'll put to practical, profitable use this coming year. It will come slow but be worth the effort.

English referees' school to be held

SHERBROOKE (BP) — Vaillancourt at 565-8839 in Sherbrooke.

As hockey season rapidly approaches us again, the annual search for referees to officiate during the winter months is on.

An English-language instructional school for beginning or up-and-coming referees in the Eastern Townships will be held in Sherbrooke around September 24 and 25.

The clinic will include complete detailed instruction application and interpretation of all playing rules, plus describe the new rules for the 1975-76 season.

The September school is a first, in that it is the inception of an English clinic where participants will receive accreditation from it. Anyone interested in refereeing minor, high school or major hockey is invited to follow the course.

Flames have high hopes for Mulhern

OTTAWA (CP) — Atlanta Flames will open their National Hockey League training camp here Sept. 14 and General Manager Cliff Fletcher said Tuesday he expects about 50 players to report.

The Flames will play Toronto Maple Leafs Sept. 19 in an exhibition game here and will break camp Sept. 24 for series of pre-season games in the United States.

The Flames, who compiled a 34-31-15 won, lost, tied record last year, are counting on Tom Lysiak, the team's leading scorer last year, Curt Bennett and Eric Vail, the 1974-75 NHL rookie of the year.

But coach Fred Creighton will have some new faces to look at as well, including Guy Chouinard, the rookie of the year last season in the Central Hockey League, and other CHL prospects, Pat Ribble and Ken Houston.

The team also has high hopes for two top amateur draft choices, Richard Mulhern from Sherbrooke, Que., and Rick Bowness from Montreal.

Montreal Canadiens will also play a pre-season game in Ottawa against Chicago Blackhawks Oct. 2.

Leafs look at Fergie as assistant coach

TORONTO (CP) — John Ferguson, former National Hockey League forward, may be the one Toronto Maple Leaf president Harold Ballard has in mind to become the Leafs assistant coach.

Ballard said Tuesday he hopes negotiations, already under way, will secure the ex-Montreal Canadian for this season. He would back up head coach Red Kelly.

"Fergie is the type of guy we need here," said Ballard.

'My number was up, was all'

"Red isn't forceful enough and is easy going. Fergie won't take flak from anyone. He'd punch them right in the face."

Ferguson's only exposure to coaching was as Harry Sinden's assistant in the 1972 Team-Canada Russia series. Of late he has been involved with the National Lacrosse League Montreal Quebecois, both as a coach and general manager. He recently resigned both posts.

DiMaggio soothes a cabbie's guilt

By Ira Berkow
NEA Sports Editor

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — (NEA) — A curious nugget of folklore is that Joe DiMaggio, named the "Greatest Living Baseball Player," and who holds what may be the single most stunning record in sports — hitting safely in 56 straight games in 1941 — holds no other regular-season major league record.

However, he does share a few regular-season records, and holds a sprinkling of World Series marks, but nothing your average Greatest Living Player would write home about.

"But I am very proud of that hitting streak. I can tell you that," DiMaggio said recently at the American Airlines celebrity golf tournament here. "There wasn't one cheap hit to keep the streak going. I earned every one."

After his streak, there was a story that the Heinz Co., makers of 57 varieties of food, would have used DiMaggio in its promotions if he had hit in one more consecutive game.

"I never believed that," said DiMaggio. "After all, I got a hit in the All-Star game, which came about midway in the streak. And they could always have said that that made it 57."

DiMaggio in recent years has made up for that by doing several commercials, including one for a bank in New York and one for a national coffee-making machine company.

He is 61 years old, his hair is white and there is a bald spot in the back of his head. He looks in good shape, though he says his throwing arm is ragged now, and his knees were hurting him like a toothache. Although he retired in 1951, he remains trim by playing much golf. "It's not so much the physical aspect of

IT'S SAD TO SEE THE old neighborhood change — especially when you're Joe DiMaggio, and the old haunt was Yankee Stadium, now under renovation, where you spent the happiest years of your life.

Yankee pitcher Lefty Gomez, Joe's roommate, immediately gave the cabbie hell and then pulled DiMaggio out of the taxi. The two walked the rest of the way to Municipal Stadium.

"Now this is over 30 years later," said DiMaggio, "and the guy is very serious. He apologized. Well, my God, I felt awful. I mean, he might have been spending his life thinking he had jinxed me. But I told him he hadn't. My number was up, was all."

record for most runs scored, rookie season, 155.

He does hold some World Series records for outfielding: Most scoreless games without error, 45; most chances accepted, total series (10 Series, 51 games), 150. And shares most hits, inning, 2, and most putouts, inning, 3.

"But some of those were what I call marathon records," said DiMaggio, his rather rheumy eyes expressing a kindly but certain contempt.

He also does not prize fielding records terribly highly. "The best outfielders are those who try for a lot of balls, and of course make some errors in the process," he said. "I remember one year Zeke Bonura made only one error in the outfield all season for the White Sox. But he never moved off the spot where his two feet were planted."

It is the hitting record, though, that people still talk to DiMaggio about. The strangest encounter occurred a few years ago with a man who said he once was a taxi driver in Cleveland. It had been written several times that on the day DiMaggio's streak was stopped, the cabbie driving him to the game in Cleveland that morning predicted he would go hitless.

Joe's roommate, immediately gave the cabbie hell and then pulled DiMaggio out of the taxi. The two walked the rest of the way to Municipal Stadium.

"Now this is over 30 years later," said DiMaggio, "and the guy is very serious. He apologized. Well, my God, I felt awful. I mean, he might have been spending his life thinking he had jinxed me. But I told him he hadn't. My number was up, was all."

Ealey's running carries Winnipeg to 25-22 win

WINNIPEG (CP) — A pair of second-half pass interceptions sparked Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 25-22 win over Calgary Stampeders and a share of first place in the Western Football Conference on Tuesday night.

The Bombers trailed 21-9 in the second half before the Winnipeg defence came up with the key plays that led to the win.

Winnipeg now has eight points, the same as Saskatchewan Roughriders. Calgary is tied with Edmonton Eskimos with six points.

Brian Herosian picked off a Joe Pisarcik pass early in the third quarter and after having been given the ball on Calgary's 19-yard line, the Bomber offence took full advantage.

Quarterback Chuck Ealey ran for 12 yards and rookie Richard Crump went the remaining seven to give Winnipeg a 22-21 lead.

After Calgary tied the score on Allan McFall's single, Pisarcik threw an interception right into the hands of Bob Toogood on the Stampeders 37-yard line. Kicker Bernie Ruoff, who had missed two lengthy field goal tries earlier in the quarter, made no mistake this time from 33 yards out at 14:12.

Bob Larose on an eight-yard pass and Jay Washington on a three-yard run scored the other Winnipeg touchdowns. Ruoff added a convert and a second field goal.

McFall booted 10 points for Calgary with two singles, two field goals and two converts. Willie Burden on a one-yard run and Rick Galbos on a 12-yard pass play scored touchdowns.

CAPACITY CROWD

The victory before Winnipeg's second consecutive capacity crowd of 25,210 was an uphill struggle all the way.

The Stampeders could do little wrong in the first half after marching 67 yards in 11 plays to take a 7-0 lead on the first offensive series of the game. Burden carried eight times in that drive for 49 yards.

McFall ran the score to 14-3 before Ealey stunned the visitors with a 72-yard pass to Mark McDonald that took Winnipeg to Calgary's three yard line. On the next play Washington went over and the Bombers got out of the half down by five points.

John Helton blocked Ruoff's punt early in the third quarter and Pisarcik quickly hit Galbos for a 21-9 margin.

But the Bombers then marched 82 yards in nine plays to cut the margin to 21-16 on Larose's touchdown at 6:51. That set the stage for the key interceptions that produced Winnipeg's second come-from-behind victory over the Stampeders this season.

Burden, leading rusher in the CFL this season, ran for 171 yards, the fifth straight game in which he has picked up more than 100 yards. Winnipeg's net offence was 336 yards, 237 of it on the ground.

Fan Violence—what is the answer?

The cop at the ballpark in the United States used to have a choice beat. He could watch a game, and rarely did he have to watch anything else. Occasionally he would have to chase some youngsters from seats they didn't pay for, or remove some fans whose beer drinking got the best of them.

But today, the cop on the baseball beat sometimes isn't equipped to handle fan rowdiness and violence and the riot squad is called.

"We are on the threshold of a possible major disaster, and the possibility is not subsiding," says Dr. Arnold Beisser, a Los Angeles psychiatrist who is concerned over the growing incidence and intensity of fan rowdiness in the U.S.

Yet spokesmen for major league baseball, who have handled with less authority and have been occurring with more regularity.

More examples:

—In this year's National Basketball Association playoffs in Seattle, Super-sonic fans assaulted Rick Barry, scratching the Golden State Warriors star on the face and arms and banging up his knee. Warriors coach Al Attles and a fan had to be separated by players and coaches as they brawled on the floor outside a dressing room.

—Boston Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn threatened to pull his team from the court in a playoff game against Houston Rockets this year when fans at Hofheinz Pavilion threw golf balls, bottles, ice and other projectiles at his players.

—National Hockey League playoff viewers were rocked by obscenities on national television this spring from New York Rangers' and New York Islanders' fans. In Buffalo, some fans tried to join a fight Philadelphia Flyers' Dave Schultz was having with a Sabres player. Schultz defended himself by hitting the man who had hold of his hair squarely on the jaw.

—Last fall in New Orleans, Saints fans, annoyed at two successive calls against their National Football League team, began booing and stomping on the metal stands. The noise was so intense the game with Philadelphia Eagles was delayed 22 minutes.

Fan rowdiness that included thrown bottles and chairs provoked Madison Square Garden to recently call off a weekly series of boxing matches.

Then there is soccer, which often turns the game on the field into a war on the battlefield, fueled by a nationalistic fervor unseen in any other sport.

LEEDS FANS RIOT

When Leeds of England lost to Bayern Munich in the European Cup last May in Paris, an angry horde of Leeds supporters carried their chanting and missile-throwing from the stadium into the streets, causing a diplomatic rift between France and England.

"A norm of violence has grown up around soccer," says Dr. Brian Lipton, a psychiatry instructor at Columbia University. "In most sports, there is a shared concept of control and aggression. But in the case of soccer, a tolerance and even an anticipation of non-sports-oriented violence poses greater risks."

Dr. Beisser says people have new attitudes toward rowdiness. He calls it "the recreational use of violence" and says at many sporting events violence is inherent in the recreation, hockey and football being good examples. The end result, he says, seems to be a carryover of violence from the field to the stands. What's accepted behavior from the player becomes accepted behavior from the spectator.

And Dr. Beisser points out that fan violence in sports is just symptomatic of increased violence in other phases of society.

"The developing generation does not have the same sense of horror about violence that traditionally we have had. They see it in the recreational context. We have emphasized violence, and where violence once was a safety valve for people it is now an accepted thing."

Wally Buono doesn't mind substitute role

MONTREAL (CP) — One of these days, perhaps Wally Buono will find himself in a regular starting role with Montreal Alouettes, but for now, he does not appear to mind his role as "the permanent substitute" with the Canadian Football League club.

Buono will be filling in tonight at left linebacker for the injured Chuck Zapiec and Carl Winfrey. Zapiec's injured original replacement, as the Alouettes play host to Toronto Argonauts in an Eastern Conference clash.

"No matter how well I play, I don't think it will matter that much whether I nail the job down," Buono said Tuesday. "When it comes to the linebacking position it's a matter of numbers, Americans and Canadians."

"Sure I'd like to have my own position. But I always remember what (Alouettes general manager) Bob Geary told me. He said: 'Remember, even if you aren't a regular, we have to have 32 men on this club.'"

Buono often replaces a lineman on second down, long-yardage situations and is also Montreal's No. 2 punter behind veteran Sonny Wade. He is also used on the punt, punt-return, kickoff and kickoff-return squads.

Buono, who often practised his punting during his high school years, explained the Alouettes strategy for punts this season as the result of the CFL's new punt-return rule.

"We're not going for distance with the new rules," he said. "We're going for the hang-up (height) times. You have to hang it up for at least 4.6 seconds to allow your men to get down under it. Sonny's average is 4.8, I think. I know one time he hung it up there for 5.4 seconds."

Despite a work stoppage by Montreal's bus and subway, the Alouettes front office reports a good advance sale for tonight's clash.

"We went over the 20,000 advance ticket sale yesterday," said Geary Tuesday. "That's the largest we've ever had since the Alouettes have been in the Autostade."

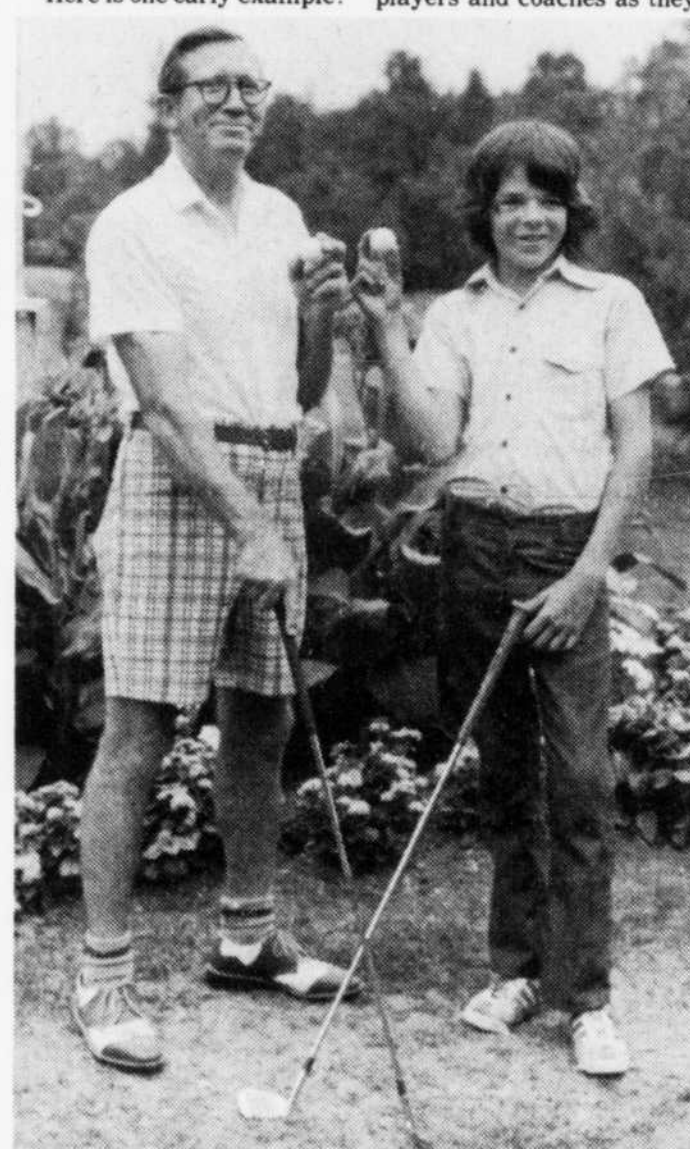

The Alouettes drew over 22,000 fans Aug. 5 for a game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats during a walkout by the transit workers.

LOOKING FOR FOURTH

Montreal will be looking for their fourth win in six games tonight and their first win in three games on their home field. The Argos are hoping to even their record at 3-3.

Argos coach Russ Jackson will start Mike Rae at quarterback tonight in place of Bill Bynum, who was Toronto's No. 1 quarterback last week. Montreal coach Marv Levy is expected to use Jimmy Jones as his starting signal caller.

Levy seldom names his starting quarterback until the day of the game, but since Jones finished strongly in the Als defeat of Hamilton nine days ago, it appeared likely he would get the starting call.

MASTERS OF LUCK are George Lindsay, left and Peter Brown who have sunk hole-in-ones at the old Lennoxville Golf Club this summer. Both made their feats on the third hole. George with a seven iron, while Peter used an eight iron. It was the first one-shot affair for both, but Peter has the edge — this is only his second year of golfing.

PAUSE THAT REFRESHES — A farm pond is a refreshing spot for a herd of Holsteins on a hot summer day, and a good place for wading before heading back to the barn for milking.

Plant breeders improving oats

OTTAWA — Oats have been second class citizens of the cereal world.

But they may become its crown princess with an assist from plant breeders and food technologists.

"Oats have the potential to help solve the world's food needs," says V.D. Burrows, a plant breeder with Agriculture Canada's Ottawa Research Station. "History has shown that they grow better than other cereals on the poorer drained soils in Canada and are tolerant of widely differing levels of acidity. They can be used as an emergency crop if seeding is late. Best of all, the methods of growing feed oats are well-known, and no new techniques have to be worked out for food oats.

"When all the world's best agricultural lands are growing high value crops such as wheat, rapeseed, barley and corn, its poorer soils will have to grow the extra food demanded by an increased population."

Until now, oats haven't been bred specifically for human consumption, Dr. Burrows says. But international collections of wild and cultivated oats offer endless reservoirs of useful genes to the plant breeder.

In 1963, when the United Nations became concerned about a threatened world protein shortage, Dr. Burrows began breeding experiments to produce a high protein oat. He came up with Hinoat, a variety whose flour has 25 per cent more protein than regular varieties.

"That was during an era of surplus grain — we couldn't give it away," he says.

Three years ago, a major processor of pre-sweetened breakfast cereals was confronted with consumer criticism of its products' "empty calories."

The manufacturer used Agriculture Canada's Hinoat to produce the first pre-sweetened, processed breakfast cereal with a high protein rating.

The cereal is available only in Canada, and received a "good source of protein" rating from the Department of National Health and Welfare.

Although the firm contracted for 5,500 acres of Hinoat oats in 1974, it felt production would not meet the demand so the product has not been advertised. Acreage has been increased this year.

As the protein content of oats increases, its yield per acre decreases by about 25 per cent.

"Saskatchewan-grown Hinoat oats have been coming in at more than 20 per cent protein in the flour," Dr. Burrows says. "Considering the 25 per cent decrease in yield, we're getting about the same amount of protein per acre as before."

It is known that oats, given an early start in the spring, will produce yields 10-25 per cent higher than if seeded late.

Dr. Burrows set out to produce an oat variety that could be seeded in the fall. He crossed a wild oat seed with a cultivated oat, and finally produced

"dormants" a new class of oats that can be fall-seeded. One more breakthrough was needed before oats could become a universal crop. Unlike barley, oats is "daylight sensitive". It needs the long days and short nights of higher latitudes to flower properly.

By crossing different species of oats from Turkey with cultivated oats, Dr. Burrows released the grain from its prison of sensitivity to long days.

Livestock Market

Receipts Monday at the Montreal livestock Market totalled 643 head of beef, 711 calves and five hogs.

Cattle receipts were more numerous than last Monday and were mostly made up of dairy cows of diverse quality. After a good demand, the market was active with all classes receiving generally stable prices compared to those of last week at the same time.

Calf receipts were also more numerous than last Monday and were made up mainly of common and medium quality calves. Following moderate demand, the market was slow and Monday morning sales generally took five dollars less a hundredweight than last week. Too few replacement calves were received to establish a price.

Prices are as follows:
Commercial steers: $17 to $32.75; commercial heifers: $22 to $26.75; Cows: D-1, D-2: $20.50 to $23.50; D-3: $18 to $20.25; D-4: $12 to $17.75; bulls: $17.50 to $26.50.
Good dairy calves: $40 to $50; medium: $30 to $39.50; common: $20 to $28.50.

Colostrum can be soured before use

FREDERICTON, N.B. — Expensive storage of colostrum — the first milk a cow produces after calving — is not necessary, research studies here show.

J.R. Seoane, a research scientist at the Agriculture Canada Research Station here, recently ended tests that proved it is acceptable for colostrum to turn sour before being fed to calves.

Many dairy farmers throw away colostrum, because it is usually contaminated with blood and cannot be used for human consumption. But it has high nutritive value, with more than double the solids, protein and fat of ordinary cow's milk. A cow usually produces colostrum for about four days after calving.

Storage of colostrum has, however, represented an expense and bother, so farmers disregarded it as a food source for calves.

"Allowing it to sour under sanitary conditions is a good way to preserve colostrum," says Dr. Seoane.

The souring process can be speeded up by adding yogurt or buttermilk. This produces lactic acid, which pickles the colostrum and discourages the growth of micro-organisms which could spoil it.

Other steps which the researcher recommends include filtering the fresh colostrum, storing it in clean plastic containers in a clean room, stirring daily until used, and using separate containers for milk from each cow.

"In this way, colostrum can be preserved successfully at room temperature for four to six weeks," says Dr. Seoane.

The scientist cites several advantages of feeding sour colostrum, diluted with an equal part of water at feeding time:

- it is free;
- it decreases the incidence of diarrheas, sometimes common in calves, because of the beneficial micro-organisms it contains; and,
- it is a natural milk replacer, easily digestible and of high nutritive value.

COLOSTRUM, the first milk produced by a cow after calving, is highly nutritious and helps protect the young animals against disease. Research has proved that colostrum can be soured and stored without refrigeration.

RADIALS

PROVEN ECONOMY IN THE LONG RUN

Three Great Radial Tires to choose from... with the introduction of Super-Lastic Supreme!

Motorists who expect extra long service from their tires, with high performance at low cost per mile, should think in terms of Radials. True, they cost more but they deliver more: Safety, long mileage, superb handling and gas economy. In other words, the performance more than justifies the higher initial cost.

Until now, we've been able to offer two fine Radials—both in the "70" series sizes—Glide-Air, the lowest-priced, and steel belted Safety 99 for a little more. Now we are adding Super-Lastic Supreme, a "78" series steel-belted Radial with top-quality features—but a "middle-of-the-road" price. All three Radials are at pared-down Canadian Tire prices we don't believe can be surpassed anywhere!

All 3 Radials are 5-Year Road-Hazard Insured, with big mileage ratings

†Tread not shown

A. GLIDE-AIR RADIAL

If price is of first importance but you still want Radial performance, Glide-Air is a good choice. Firmly constructed with 2 polyester plies plus 2 Glass Belts—for 4 plies under-tread. Sacrifices some mileage potential to ensure a soft ride. Tread wear rating: 35,000 miles.

B. NEW SUPER-LASTIC SUPREME RADIAL

with Steelastic Steel Belts

Identical quality to many original-equipment Radials, but much lower in price. Super-Lastic Supreme has 6 plies under-tread: 2 Polyester body plies, 2 cut-resistant Steelastic steel belts plus 2 Nylon cap plies (on all but 13" size) to ensure high-speed durability. Designed for improved traction and mileage, crisp handling and cushioned comfort. Treadwear-Rating: 40,000 miles.

C. SAFETY 99 STEEL-BELT RADIAL

Our leading Radial and top-tire. Tough construction: 2 body plies of polyester, 4 rayon belts capped by a steel belt, adding up to 7 plies under-tread. A superior tire that ensures big mileage, great wet traction, sure stops and starts, on-track steering, yet a soft cushion-ride at low speed. Treadwear-Rating: 40,000 miles.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South didn't know just how to bid his hand. The one thing he was sure of was that there was no reason to use Blackwood. He didn't really care whether or not his partner held the ace of clubs.

Six was a good contract, but careful play was necessary and South gave the hand the correct careful play.

He ruffed the club lead and drew two rounds of trumps while leaving the jack of trumps in dummy.

Then he went after the diamonds by cashing his ace of diamonds and leading towards dummy's king.

This play left West right between a rock and a hard place. If he ruffed, South would play low from dummy and be able to ruff a losing diamond in dummy later on.

West saw this danger and discarded, but his didn't faze South. He went up with dummy's king and led back the suit. East was in but could not lead a trump so South got to ruff one diamond which was all he needed.

Ask the Jacobys

Today's question is "What is an elimination play?"

The answer is that it is a name given to a group of plays in which declarer eliminates all the cards in one or two suits and then throws an opponent in to force him to make a lead that will be favorable to declarer.

Culinary tips from Sister Berthe

Meringues will slip easily from a foil-lined cookie sheet.

Meringues are baked in a slow oven which does not have to be pre-heated.

A soft cooked egg is done when only the white is firm. The yolk should be liquid but hot.

Chicken livers become tough and bitter if seared over high heat; simmer gently over low heat.

Chance encounter may lead to nuclear energy inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Two years ago, mathematician Gordon Edwards attended a lecture at University of British Columbia by nuclear physicist George Griffiths.

That chance encounter may lead to a federal inquiry into the use of nuclear energy in Canada as more and more questions are raised about this strange new industry. At least, that is his hope.

Dr. Edwards listened as Dr. Griffiths emphasized that there had ever been serious accidents at a nuclear power plant, then he asked: "What would happen if a plane crashed into a plant?"

The young mathematician said in an interview later the reaction from nuclear physicists in the audience was hostile. An argument led to public debate between Dr. Edwards and Dr. Griffiths.

Now living in Montreal and a major voice in a campaign for greater control of nuclear development, Dr. Edwards answered his own question and many others.

SAID LITTLE OF RISK
In preparing for the Griffiths debate, he went to the main university library, where he found an array of books and pamphlets that said little about nuclear risk.

He then went to the science library, where another world of almost unimaginable danger was described in studies rarely seen by laymen.

Although a nuclear power plant has never had a serious accident so far, "core melt-downs" have occurred in three nuclear reactors, with human error a key factor.

A core meltdown occurs when the cooling system in a reactor fails and decaying radioactive materials heat up, melting their way to the outside.

The United States Atomic Energy Commission predicted the worst result of such an accident within 30 miles of a major city in these terms: a direct loss of tens of thousands of lives, a later loss of thousands more through cancer and other diseases; property damage of $7 billion. Genetic effects on humans, animals, birds and insects were not estimated.

CLOSE TO CITY
Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear power plant, one of the world's largest, is less than 30 miles from Toronto and its reactors are larger than those involved in the U.S. study. Dr. Edwards said that if a major airport is built at Pickering, there will be an additional risk.

A meltdown at the Fermi experimental reactor in Michigan was blamed on faulty welding. A piece of metal blocked the coolant to two fuel channels, creating a situation in which authorities briefly considered evacuating Detroit.

Human error accelerated a meltdown at Chalk River, Ont., in 1952, when wrong buttons were pushed accidentally and the core temperature zoomed. Dr. Edwards said hydrogen gas explosions threw a four-ton door four feet into the roof.

The third reactor meltdown occurred in Wales, where "Wigner radiation," a sudden release of heat from graphite rods, was discovered. A fire blazed in the reactor for 2½ days before it was noticed.

RADIATION ESCAPED
Four hundred square miles of land and a portion of the Irish Sea were contaminated by radiation that escaped from the isolated plant.

"Nobody knows what the probability of a nuclear accident is," Dr. Edwards said, dismissing as "scientific charlatanism" the assurances of the nuclear industry.

Parliament passed a nuclear insurance bill in 1970 but the government has not proclaimed it, because after five years of negotiation, it cannot get a consortium of private companies to insure nuclear plants.

These companies include as a standard clause in homeowner's or auto insurance policies an exception for nuclear accidents. They are not covered.

"There is no such thing as a safe dose of radiation," said Dr. Edwards.

EXPOSURE TAKES TOLL
The Atomic Energy Control Board bases its maximum safe exposure standards on the amount of radiation humans absorb from natural sources in the earth and atmosphere. But even this exposure takes its toll in cancer, some scientists think.

"What the emission standards say is that it is permissible to have twice as many people die from radiation-induced cancer and genetic damage," he said.

The effect of constant low-level exposure to radiation isn't known but some scientists fear the worst.

Dr. Edwards is a founding member of the Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility. In the 1960s it might have been regarded as a "radical" group. In the 1970s it includes not only the ban-the-bomb advocates of the last decade but an array of worried citizens that numbers Nova Scotia fishermen. British Columbians fearful of blast-induced earthquakes and Manitobans worried about storing radioactive waste.

WANTS PUBLIC INQUIRY
Environment Minister Jeanne Sauvé recently gave Dr. Edwards a hearing on his appeal for a public inquiry into the nuclear energy problem.

"I find the fact that I'm considered the person to be called on this subject appalling," said Dr. Edwards. "I'm just an amateur."

He said this illustrates the need for a broad inquiry before Canada becomes committed to huge expenditure on nuclear-generated energy.

Dr. Edwards left UBC after the Griffiths debate generated what he describes as a hostile atmosphere in which one scientist threatened to throw him out of a hall bodily.

The hall was filled with pamphlets from the nuclear industry, and he was distributing a paper outlining the risks.

He worked on a mathematics project for the Science Council of Canada and now teaches at Vanier College in Montreal and edits Survival, a private journal with subscribers in a dozen countries.

What is causing low blood sugar

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We have just found out after a glucose tolerance test of four hours that my wife has or is a hypoglycemic. Her test results were: First hour, 110; second hour, 80; third hour, 36; and fourth hour, 40.

The doctor here is treating her as a diabetic, but with no medication, just an 1800 calorie diet with six meals a day. But she is very tired 90 per cent of the time.

The doctor said this was just the opposite of diabetes. We would appreciate anything you could tell us about this.

DEAR READER — It would be interesting to know why your wife had a glucose tolerance test. Was she actually having symptoms of low blood sugar? When I first tested athletes, I was surprised how many endurance athletes had relatively low blood sugar levels on repeated tests but had no symptoms at all and were in optimal health. These young men were in training for the Olympics. The point here is that the blood glucose level is not always a reliable indicator of how much glucose is getting into the cells and that is what counts.

A diabetic can have relative hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) even when the blood level is quite high, because the level is not high enough for him with his problem of getting glucose into the cell.

In general, it is true that low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) is the opposite of diabetes. There are several different ways low blood sugar can be caused. Some diabetics have episodes of low blood sugar because the islets of Langerhans, where insulin is formed, are not functioning right and release too much insulin at the wrong time. Later the islets get worse and true diabetes develops. So, low blood sugar and diabetes can be part of the same disease process.

What you mean by treating your wife like a diabetic is also of interest. Most people think that a diabetic should be treated by avoiding carbohydrates. That idea is on the way out. Many diabetic specialists today think that a person with diabetes should restrict the fat intake and use more carbohydrate in the diet. This may help to prevent heart and vascular disease so common in diabetics.

The carbohydrate recommended, though, for diabetics is from unrefined foods, such as fresh vegetables, fruits, salads, and cereals. You can usually use these foods, even when low blood sugar is the problem.

I would guess your doctor wants to decrease your wife's weight and also to provide her with small continuous feedings to avoid attacks of low blood sugar. That is good practice. The fatigue may be a symptom of her low blood glucose. If she can tolerate it, a regular program of mild to moderate physical activity may help relieve some of her fatigue. Too much exercise could use up her glucose and make her blood sugar fall still more. Walking and general light exercise, though, sometimes help to mobilize fat and other food stores that provide energy.

The treatment for low blood sugar depends on what is causing it. For more information about hypoglycemia, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, and ask for The Health Letter number 3-9 on Low Blood Sugar. Send a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC
MUNICIPALITY OF ASCOT

CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS
LAVALLEE, GIRARD, MARTIN, CROCKETT, C.A.

To the Ratepayers of the aforesaid Municipality PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, Secretary-Treasurer of the aforesaid Municipality, THAT:

At a regular meeting held August 20, 1975 the council of aforesaid Municipality adopted By-law No. 380 ruling "construction, dividing into lots and zoning," in replacement of the old By-law no. 363 concerning "zoning and construction." A public meeting for owners-electors is convened at the Town Hall in Huntingville, Monday September 8, 1975 at 7:00 o'clock p.m. in order to approve the said by-law. The said by-law including the maps indicating zoning are available at my office for examination.

Property-owners qualified to vote on this by-law have the right to ask for a polling on this by-law and that the owners of immovables situated in a zone or sector adjacent to the one affected by part of the said by-law are also permitted to vote, upon presentation to the secretary-treasurer, within five days following the period of posting of this public notice, a petition signed by at least twelve electors who are property-owners in the adjacent zone or sector in question, or by the majority of them if their number is less than twenty-four.

GIVEN at Huntingville this twentieth day of August one thousand nine hundred and seventy-five.

CITY OF SHERBROOKE
CITY CLERK'S OFFICE

NOTICE BY-LAW NO. 2361

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of property owners of zone G-19 for the approval of by-law no. 2361 amending the zoning by-law of the City of Sherbrooke will be held at the City Hall, on September 9th, 1975, from 19:00 hrs to 20:00 hrs.

By-law no. 2361 amends zoning by-law no. 1071 so as to permit sewing and needleworks in zone G-19.

Property owners in zone G-19 who wish to oppose this by-law must attend the meeting.

Property owners from zones adjoining zone G-19 can request to take part in the consultation by sending to the undersigned, within the next five days, a petition signed by at least twelve property owners of each of the adjoining zones who wish to take part in the consultation.
