Nixon declares he will not be impeached for Watergate

PRESIDENT NIXON

WASHINGTON (CP) — "I do not expect to be impeached," said President Nixon who also repeated that he will not resign. And he said the chances for gasoline rationing in the United States are less than 50-50.

In a 38-minute news conference Monday night, his first in four months, the president also disclosed said he had been asked to testify before a Watergate grand jury but "respectfully declined to do so" on constitutional grounds.

Nixon also said: —He expects waiting lines at service stations to become shorter by spring and summer as more gasoline becomes available but "the price of gasoline is not going down until more supplies come into the country."

—He will pay the income tax if the Senate-House committee on internal revenue taxation decides that he should not have claimed a deduction for the gift to the government of his vice-presidential papers;

—The U.S. will pursue detente with the Soviet Union; and —"I believe that we will bring inflation under control as the year goes on, but I would not underestimate the problem."

ARABS WARNED

He also said efforts to arrange a Middle East peace could be hampered if the Arabs fail to end their oil embargo against the U.S. But he believes the Arabs will lift the embargo.

Meanwhile, State Secretary Henry Kissinger is visiting Syria and Israel this week to try to help arrange a disengagement of their forces.

Future U.S. diplomacy in the Middle East is not linked directly with oil supplies, Nixon said. The oil embargo—imposed against the U.S. during last October's Middle East war—should be lifted independently of what happens in peace negotiations.

"I believe we are going to make continued progress on the peace front. I believe that will be helpful in bringing progress on getting the embargo lifted."

"By the same token, if the embargo is not lifted, it will naturally slow down the efforts that we are making on the peace front."

WILL CO-OPERATE

On Watergate, Nixon repeated his offer of conditional co-operation in providing materials for the committee now considering his impeachment.

"I am prepared to co-operate with the committee in any way consistent with my constitutional responsibility to defend the office of the presidency against any action which would weaken that office"

Nixon said his lawyers are preparing a brief for the impeachment committee arguing that "a criminal offence on the part of the president is the requirement for the impeachment of the president."

The committee staff last week released a study that concluded a president could be impeached for abuse of trust without actually having committed a crime.

Asked if he would consider resigning if it becomes evident that the Republican party is going to suffer a disastrous defeat in November elections, Nixon said "No."

"I want my party to succeed, but more important I want the presidency to survive... we have a lot of work left to do, more than three years left to do it in, and I am going to stay here until I get it done."

MAY TELL HIS SIDE

Nixon said that although he won't testify before Watergate grand juries, he is willing to work out a way to tell his side of the story to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

"I did offer to respond to an interrogatory that the special prosecutor might want to submit or to meet with him personally to answer questions and he indicated that he did not want to proceed in that way," Nixon said.

Never before history has a U.S. president been asked to testify before a grand jury.

The president said the administration will bring inflation under control by increasing food and fuel supplies, rather than controlling prices, and he vowed to keep the economy from sinking into recession this year.

A home fuel oil shortage has been overcome and U.S. factories are running despite an oil shortage, he said. The major problem remaining is gasoline, and "... I now believe confidently that there is a much better than even chance that there will be no need for gas rationing in the United States."

He said he will veto a congressional energy bill containing an order to roll back oil prices because that would increase gasoline shortages and lead to rationing.

Instead, he urged Congress to approve legislation to tax windfall profits of oil companies, remove regulations from natural gas prices, and allow amendments to environmental laws permitting greater use of coal as a fuel.

Quebec in focus

Report knocks CEGEP system

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's junior colleges fail to give students a general education before allowing them to specialize in their chosen fields, says a report submitted Monday to the province's department of education.

The report, prepared by Robert Despres, president of the University of Quebec, said it is against "ill-considered specialization that is based solely on the field of study that a junior college student will pursue in university."

Professional training in junior colleges has currently become too technical at the expense of a general education that often appears to be added to the curriculum as an afterthought, the report said.

While urging greater co-operation with universities, it said junior colleges should preserve their autonomy in order to develop programs that give students a well-rounded education before entering the university level.

Junior colleges were introduced in Quebec in 1969 as an intermediary stage between high school and university.

English parents walk out of school board meeting

MONTREAL (CP) — English-speaking parents stalked out of a school board meeting in suburban Dorval Monday night after the board voted 8-1 to switch their youngsters with French-speaking students from a smaller school one mile away.

The switch was proposed Feb. 7 after a school board study committee reported that 450 English students attend St. Veronica's school which has room for 850, while 660 French students are crammed into St. Louis Marie school, which has a capacity of 450.

A school board spokesman said the decision was "in the best interests of the children involved," although he said it will cause some unhappiness.

Parents' spokes nan Lorraine Thomas denounced the decision as "the beginning of the end of the Anglophone Catholic community in Dorval."

"Excuse me, is this the unemployment line or the line for tickets to 'The Exorcist'?"

Gendron says Que. language legislation must be changed

QUEBEC (CP) — It will be impossible for the Quebec government to develop a new language policy without changing legislation which gives parents the right to choose the language of instruction for their children, Jean-Denis Gendron said Monday.

Prof. Gendron, former chairman of the commission on the status of French in Quebec, told a service club luncheon that the "collective psychology" of the French in Quebec will prevent any progress on the language issue as long as the legislation, known as Bill 63, remains in force.

"Bill 63 is a symbol for them of a kind of inferiority, that they cannot demand that immigrants join the majority," he said in an interview later.

"It polarized the language question so much that there could not be a language policy without changing Bill 63," the Laval University linguistics professor said.

The commission he headed recommended last year the retention of the 1969 legislation for at least five years while measures designed to woo immigrants and their children into the French-speaking community and education system were applied and evaluated.

PLAN ATTITUDE TESTS

But published reports last week said the government intends to change the legislation and institute attitude tests for immigrant children to determine which of English or French they know better and thus determine which education system they would enter.

Children without a working knowledge of either language would be given intensive French courses before being placed in the French school system, the reports said.

Mr. Gendron said the five-member commission did not realize what a stumbling-block the legislation would be to rational discussion and solution of the language problem.

Prof. Frank Scott, an expert in constitutional law at McGill University, has said:

"The right to choose French or English as their children's language of instruction was guaranteed at Confederation to the denominational schools in Quebec—Catholic and Protestant—and can't be taken away by the Quebec government."

ECC chairman warns guaranteed income plans must not create social and economic tensions

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal and provincial governments should be cautious about establishing guaranteed annual income plans so as not to increase social and economic tensions in the country, Andre Raynauld, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada (ECC), said Monday.

"The financial implications of such a plan must be studied and such a plan should be introduced gradually over a number of years," Mr. Raynauld said in an interview after addressing the Canadian Institute of Public Administration's local chapter.

"There should be less generosity towards citizens," Mr. Raynauld added.

If these gradual measures are not taken, he said, there could be "substantial tax increases over a short period which always contributes to worsening social and economic tensions."

Mr. Raynauld also criticized the federal government for injecting too much money into its new family allowance plan, the unemployment insurance program and old age pensions.

"Why did they decide to devote $1 billion in January, 1974, to the family allowance program. This program had not been touched since 1945 and no social pressure was on the government to increase the level of payments so much," he said.

In his speech, Mr. Raynauld reviewed the ECC's annual report to the federal government which said that growth in expenditures on social programs should be slowed down.

Last week, at the federal-provincial health ministers' conference in Edmonton, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said the ECC report was a little "naive"

Poor economic situation emerges as last-minute British election issue

LONDON (CP) — The country's perilous economic situation has emerged as the dominant last-minute issue in Thursday's British election.

Following the announcement of Britain's biggest-ever monthly trade deficit, the governing Conservatives reminded voters that all through the campaign they have been warning about the gravity of the economic crisis.

The Tories also argue that only a big parliamentary majority for them will allow the country to achieve prosperity once more.

Labor party chief Harold Wilson said Monday night the foreign-trade deficit for January—when exports fell $383 million ($842.6 million) behind imports—was final proof of how since 1970 the Tories had ruined the payments surplus achieved by the Labor government in the preceding six years.

The surplus had been "thrown away by the most spendthrift chancellor of the exchequer (Anthony Barber) in the history of this country," Wilson said.

The Liberals, revelling in more poll indications of their increasing popularity, also condemned the Tories over the trade figures. Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe went so far as to predict a landslide for his party Thursday.

ANOTHER VOTE SOON?

However, the spectre of another election was raised by Prime Minister Heath in a fresh effort to deflate the much-vaunted Liberal threat.

If the Thursday poll brings no clear decision by the voters between the two major parties, there will be another election "sooner rather than later," Heath said.

The Tories insisted that the record-January trade deficit resulted from the rocketing costs of oil and other imported raw materials, and that Labor would be incapable of handling the threat to Britain posed by such dire developments.

While Thorpe said the trade figures mean "the writing is on the wall" for Heath, rebel Tory Enoch Powell added his criticism of the prime minister.

Again virtually telling Britons to vote Labor if they want renegotiation of Britain's controversial entry into the European Common Market, Powell said Heath is less trustworthy than former prime minister Wilson.

"In acrobatics the previous prime minister, for all his nimbleness and skill, is simply no match for the breath-taking, thorough-going efficiency of the present one," the right-wing maverick said.

The trade deficit added yet another imponderable to an election full of puzzles. A deficit of $31 million, less than one-twelfth of this one, was widely credited with ousting Wilson from the prime ministership in 1970.

Wilson's Labor party was ahead that time on all but one of the polls.

This time the polls are unanimous in giving the Conservatives the lead.

But the rising stature of the Liberals, who held 11 seats in the outgoing Parliament, could upset all that.

Allende widow sparks Soviet, Chilean clash

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Representatives of Chile and the Soviet Union clashed in the human rights commission Monday after the widow of deposed Chilean President Salvador Allende called on the UN body to condemn the military junta which overthrew her husband last September.

Charging that between 15,000 and 80,000 persons had been killed during and since the Chilean coup, Hortensia Bussi de Allende appealed to the commission to call a halt to the "genocidal massive repression" in the South American country.

When the representative of the new Chilean regime, Raul Bazzan Davila, delivered a 90-minute rebuttal, he was repeatedly interrupted by the Soviet and Byelorussian delegates. They charged him with straying from the subject and indulging in irrelevant propaganda.

Several spectators in the packed public gallery interrupted with partisan comments and bursts of applause, mostly directed against the Chilean junta.

They were cautioned by UN security guards but no one was ejected.

Bazan accused the Soviet Union and Cuba of conniving with the Allende government to smuggle arms into the country and subvert the Chilean constitution.

EXECUTIONS ENDED

He said the military regime had made arrests on grounds of public security, but denied allegations of torture and said no executions had taken place since Dec. 19.

Scrap steel shortage may force small mills to close

TORONTO (CP) — A shortage of scrap steel may force output cutbacks and even the closing of some small and medium-sized steel mills in Canada, representatives of Canadian steel producers say.

"A number of mills are in jeopardy of closing down," said Gordon Flett, purchasing manager for the Burlington Steel division of Slater Steel Industries Ltd., Hamilton.

"If the present situation continues, there would be production cutbacks," said a spokesman for Industrial Metal Co. of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of Lake Ontario Steel Co. Ltd., Whitby, Ont.

Steel scrap, in short supply for the last 12 months, is the basic raw material for mills equipped with electric arc furnaces.

The scrap shortage forced the federal department of industry, trade and commerce last September to restrict Canadian export permits to volumes not exceeding 1,000 tons to any one destination in a month.

With the price of No. 1 heavy melting scrap in the United States hovering between $110 and $125 a ton, Canadian dealers are eager to export their product to the higher-priced U.S. market. The posted buying price in Ontario is $65.

The situation has been compounded by the removal of price controls in the U.S. on all secondary steel by the Cost-of-Living Council.

Although the U.S. move was designed to expand supplies within the domestic market, it has had the effect of further increasing scrap prices in a number of U.S. centres and reducing the limited volume of exports to Eastern Canadian mills.

In a further action, the Cost-of-Living Council has lifted wage and price controls from the $6.5-billion U.S. iron and steel industry.

"There's no question there is a shortage of scrap and Canadian mills must pay market prices," said Jerry Golden, president of Bristol Metal Industries Ltd., Toronto.

A spokesman for Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., Toronto, describes the Canadian government controls on steel scrap exports as "reasonable." American scrap prices, he added, have been "very strong" for more than a month and have surged in some areas.

SOURCES SPECULATE
Some steel industry sources are speculating the federal government will impose a special export tax on scrap.

A number of factors are exerting pressure on steel scrap supplies. These include higher prices that followed the Cost-of-Living Council move, the difficulty encountered by U.S. scrap exporters in obtaining export permits and extremely firm domestic demand for scrap.

The removal of price controls on the U.S. iron and steel industry is unlikely to have a significant impact on the Canadian industry.

Any increases in U.S. steel prices to offset recent increases in material and production costs should make the Canadian industry even more competitive, said a spokesman for Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., Hamilton.

Analysts say speculative boom in gold shares is far from over

TORONTO (CP) — The speculative boom in gold shares on Canadian stock markets is far from over, analysts say.

Yorkton Securities Ltd. says removal of the U.S. interest equalization tax, making Canadian stocks cheaper for U.S. investors, has been particularly significant since it is illegal for Americans to own gold.

The investment firm says that while a gold price of $80 to $100 an ounce is justified by current demand and supply fundamentals, the desire to hold gold and the resulting speculative forces "could conceivably push the gold price to the $160 to $200-an-ounce price range."

Rosmar Financial Report

comments: "The way things look at the moment, there's nothing much to stop gold from going to $200 since it now is providing the 'safe haven' hedge against weakening currencies and an absence of any real solutions to the economic trauma caused by the impact of the energy crisis."

It says it prefers the trend to junior exploration and development golds.

The shares are highly speculative but "a new discovery, even on a former gold producing property, could touch off a big new round of trading with the market so alert these days to anything with a good chance in gold."

Bell, Gouinlock and Co. Ltd.

says that price-earnings ratios, the relationship of market price to earnings a share, of gold shares should be between five and 10 during stable periods. Anything higher than this is "a speculative component."

This current cycle in long-term increases in the price of gold may have much higher to run, particularly if a financial panic were to develop, but the time is approaching when part profits should be accepted as a precaution, it says.

Yorkton recommends long-term investments be made on evaluations based on a gold price of $80 to $100 an ounce, taking into consideration that in the $160-to-$200 range, at least half the price is based on speculative forces.

Pounds, inches, quarts out the window

Metric system expected here by 1980

OTTAWA (CP) — Pounds, inches, quarts and other weights and measures of the Imperial system will go the way of the dodo bird by about 1980, when Canada's conversion to the metric system is complete, says Stevenson Gossage of the federal metric commission.

They will be replaced by the International System of Units, a refined metric system, often abbreviated SI for System International. It has seven basic units, all inter-related and based on the number 10.

By comparison, the British- evolved Imperial system has 83 unrelated basic units.

Mr. Gossage said the mourners will be few for the Imperial system, which dates from the time of the Anglo Saxons. In any case, "it'll thrive in the museums" and the terminology of the Imperium and the language, said Mr. Gossage.

It would be a "grave mistake" to use both systems, he said. Confusion would reign, especially in the marketplace, where price-conscious shoppers are trying to determine best value.

WILL AID SHOPPERS

During the peak period of conversion, expected in 1977 and 1978, cost-comparison charts will be available in retail outlets.

Shoppers will be able to calculate, for instance, how meat at $1.40 a pound compares with meat at $3 a kilogram or how dress material at $2.99 a yard compares with similar material at $3.50 a metre.

Canada undertook a 10-year conversion program to adopt universal measurements for industry, commerce and science, simplifying domestic and international communications.

Many sectors of the economy are already gearing for the switch. Don Chutter of the Canadian Construction Association said builders welcome metrication.

It will simplify design calculations and enable the industry to implement modular dimensions so different building materials can fit more easily together.

The metric commission, set up under the federal industry department to co-ordinate the changeover, is selling the metric system as the route to more exports. The switch is not compulsory but obviously holdouts will be left out in the cold.

EXPORTERS SUFFER

The commission estimates $200 million a year is lost in trade because product lines produced under the old system can't be used handily in approximately 90 per cent of the world which is on the metric system.

However, the commission is concerned that Canada may be on the metric system several years before the United States. Measurement communications between the two countries, especially for Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms, will be complicated if the switch is delayed there.

The British were to have completed conversion to the metric system by 1975. But the program has fallen behind because of political and economic instability in the United Kingdom, said Mr. Gossage.

The Imperial system has been built on folklore dating from the Roman Empire. Roman legionaries strode out their mile—or mille—as 1,000 paces or about 1,618 yards.

Because a pace is a variable unit, the mile was inexact until the British set it at 1,760 yards.

Other Imperial units were just as inexact when they originated.

The inch was the length of the thumb's knuckle. An acre was the amount of land a yoke of oxen could plow in a day.

Sweetsburg Court

Stolen hogs, television net thieves time in jail

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — Sessions Court Judge Bernard Legare sentenced Robert Jalbert, Granby, to one year in jail. Jalbert had earlier pleaded guilty to two counts of theft, in Roxton Pond.

Crown Prosecutor Claude Noiseux told the court Jalbert had previous antecedents of a similar nature, and asked for a prison term of at least 18 months. Mr. Noiseux added the pre-sentence report suggested continued detention in Robert Jalbert's case, while the probation officers suggested a discontinued sentence in the case of his brother Jean.

The brothers stole hogs valued at $900 and a television set worth $100.

Mr. Noiseux then asked for 60 days in the case of Jean, to be served on conditions.

Defence Counsel Jacques Guertin cited the antecedents of the accused, concurred with Mr. Noiseux on the discontinued sentence for Jean, however stated the pre-sentence report suggested Robert would not become an anti-social criminal, and suggested a lesser term.

Judge Legare agreed with Mr. Guertin's sentiments concerning the life-style of the accused, and suggested Robert ask to be transferred to the Waterloo Correctional Institute as soon as possible. He then sentenced Jean to eight weekends in the Sweetsburg Jail, from 9 a.m. Saturday until 4 p.m. Sunday.

Rejean Valcourt, who had earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of simple theft, was sentenced to seven weekends in Sweetsburg. Defence counsel Jacques Meunier told Judge Legare the goods had been recovered, and although Valcourt had had previous minor scrapes with the law, he felt a discontinued sentence would be acceptable for the purposes of justice.

Crown prosecutor Noiseux asked for a sentence exceeding seven days. Judge Legare told the accused one of the reasons he extended the sentence was his non-appearance in court. Valcourt was the object of four bench warrants.

Etienne Bousquet, Valcourt, was examined by a physician who told the court the accused should undergo psychiatric examination. Bousquet was before the court on his third count of public mischief in less than three months.

Crown Prosecutor Noiseux asked for an order to send Bousquet to Bordeaux for a period not exceeding 60 days to determine whether or not he was fit to stand trial.

Legal Aid lawyer Gilles Poussard argued Bousquet was fit to stand trial and the only time he found himself in trouble was when he was drinking and couldn't control his actions. He asked that Bousquet be allowed to plead guilty to the charge and that a pre-sentence report be prepared.

Mr. Noiseux then withdrew his request for the psychiatric examination, and asked for a pre-sentence report returnable prior to March 25.

Bousquet was ordered held in preventative detention until that date.

Judge Legare remanded sentence in the case of Raymond Goyette to March 25. Goyette, of Sutton, was found guilty of impaired driving.

Crown prosecutor Noiseux pointed out there had been a fatality as a result, and asked for a driving prohibition, and mentioned he had no special representations concerning a fine.

Defence counsel Louis Grignon said his client was employed by Bell Telephone in St. Jean, and his work required him to use his own as well as company vehicles. He suggested the prohibition be termed to allow Mr. Goyette the opportunity to continue working.

Special prosecutor Gilles Theriault produced sufficient evidence to have Mrs. Abel Racine, Frelighsburg, convicted on two counts of practising medicine illegally.

Raymond Monast, a 69-year-old Montreal pensioner, told the court he visited Mrs. Racine on November 27, 1973, when he complained of pains in his stomach and right side.

"She produced a pendulum which she waved for approximately 10 minutes, and told me I had liver trouble. She suggested I watch my diet and sold me some pills. The pills cost $3.50, and asked her if I owed her anything for the consultation."

She said: "Give me whatever you feel like."

I asked: "What's the usual?"

She replied: "About $3."

"I then paid her $3 in cash."

Mr. Monast indicated he returned to the same house on December 13 and underwent a similar exam. He said Mrs. Racine told him to watch his diet and to exercise. He added she told him she didn't have any pills available then, however if he still felt ill to return in two weeks.

Judge Legare found Mrs. Racine guilty on the two counts. She was fined the minimum $100 and costs, on each charge, in default 120 days.

Defence counsel Jean-Paul Couture told the court he would accept corroborating testimony by an inspector for the College of Physicians and Surgeons, without his taking the stand.

Andre Emond, 19, of Quebec, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to utter a cheque he knew to be false. Legal Aid lawyer Gilles Poussard met with no objections to his suggestion of a suspended sentence.

Judge Legare suspended sentence and placed Emond on probation for one year.

Jean-Paul Daunais, Longueuil, pleaded guilty to an act of gross indecency on a person aged under 18. The offence occurred between Granby and Eastman, December 23, 1973. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days, and placed on two years probation.

Defence counsel Andre Bachand obtained an unconditional release for his client, Guy Turner, Farnham. Turner had been accused of theft of a ring valued at $50, the property of Marguerite Turcotte, Farnham. Mr. Bachand told the court Mr. Turner found the ring, and seeing it needed repairs took it to a jeweller, and the ring appreciated in value.

C.H. Smith, R.R.3, Magog, was one of several individuals who pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving in the District of Bedford. Mr. Smith told the bench he needed his vehicle to travel the 13 miles from his residence to Magog, and this was his first encounter with the law in 42 years of driving.

Judge Legare said: "You are supposed to be sober."

Mr. Smith replied: "It doesn't happen very often."

Others who were also fined $75 and costs, in default 15 days, included: Roland Daigle, Granby; Jean Tessier, Granby; Marcel Gobeil, West Brome; Yvon Boucher, Dunham; Jacques Gagne, Foster; and Adelard Gravel, Farnham.

Jean-Guy Auclair, Roxton Pond, pleaded guilty to a count of disturbing the peace, December 15, 1973. He told the court it was a squabble with a neighbor and proved restitution. He was handed a suspended sentence and placed on one year's probation.

Alexander Monty, St. Lambert, pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering, in the Town of Brome Lake, January 7. Preliminary hearing was fixed for March 4.

Michel Larocque, Ste. Brigitte, pleaded guilty to a charge of hit and run in the Town of Brome Lake, December 25, 1973. Defence counsel Jacques Meunier proved restitution in excess of $600 had been made, and asked for the minimum fine.

Judge Legare agreed to the request. Larocque was fined $50 and costs, in default 15 days.

Mrs. Raymonde Boisvert, Mont Rolland, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault on her husband, in Bromont, January 13. Trial was set for April 10.

Serge Rivard and Jacques Gagnon, both of Magog, pleaded not guilty to charges of having rifles on the back seat of their cars. The offences took place in Iron Hill, November 3, 1973. Trials were fixed for April 16.

Bread price to climb

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Major bakeries will increase the price of bread within the next few weeks in the Eastern Townships.

A survey of local bakeries yesterday showed that the price of a loaf of bread will increase anywhere between three and four cents. The increase will depend on the type of bread.

The increase will go into effect around the middle of March, the survey showed. The increase will be for both home delivered and store purchased bread.

A spokesman for Larocelle et Freres Ltée., one of the largest Eastern Townships home-delivery bakeries said that a three or four cent increase for a loaf of bread will go into effect around the middle of March.

Demers Bakeries will put the increase into force on March 11. All others will follow suit at approximately the same time.

The increase will rise the price of a home-delivered ordinary white loaf of bread from $0.34 to $0.38 in most cases. Grocery chain store bread will be slightly cheaper. Bakeries blame the price increase on escalating raw material costs. The price of flour, they point out, has increased by more than 50 per cent in the last few months.

License deadline approaches

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Local vehicle registration bureau employees expect a heavy week as the last minute rush for 1974 Quebec license plates takes place.

All vehicle owners must purchase 1974 plates before midnight Thursday if they want to take their vehicle out Friday.

Spokesman for the government license bureaus in Lennoxville and Sherbrooke told The Record yesterday that regular operating hours will be lengthened as the March 1 deadline nears.

No word has been received from the Quebec ministry of transport that the deadline for the purchase of new plates will be extended.

"As far as we know the 1974 plates will be needed by Friday," a spokesman for the Sherbrooke office said. "That decision will only be taken when the offices close Thursday."

Arnot discusses science program

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — According to Colin Arnot, Bishop's University science programs graduate a large number of excellent students, though he claimed that this feature is the result of the university's ability to attract highly motivated students in the first place.

Dr. Arnot, chairman of the university's science division, contended in a recent interview that evidence for his position may be found in the high frequency with which Bishop's graduates receive scholarships. He said that most of the university's honors graduates are accepted into the post-graduate programs of their choice.

Presently, some 100 students are enrolled in science programs at the university, and 14 faculty members instruct courses in the division. Herein lies the key to Bishop's success, according to Dr. Arnot.

"The orientation of the faculty position at Bishop's is toward a teaching function, while at McGill, for instance, the position is one of research with teaching added," Dr. Arnot remarked. Since only two of the division's faculty members are currently involved in research projects, Dr. Arnot asserted, instructors are in contact with students an average of 18 hours per week. Further, he noted, the professor-student ratio is low and the students are exposed to large amounts of instructor attention.

According to Dr. Arnot, honors programs in the university's science division have, as their general aim, the goal of providing a general education in science with sufficient specialization to enable students to enter post-graduate work without penalty.

The majors programs have similar aims, without the same degree of specialization, the chairman explained. He noted that more than half of the university's annual number of science graduates have followed honors studies.

Dr. Arnot believes that the future direction of Bishop's science programs will be toward liberal science, a non-laboratory orientation which attempts to introduce non-science students to scientific method and to a broad overview of science in general.

He claimed that Bishop's already has more than its share of "serious scientists" and predicted that enrolment in science programs will not appreciably increase beyond 130 students, regardless of the extent of the increase in the university's total enrollment.

Biology facilities include one large general laboratory and smaller ones for physiology, genetics and zoology. Chemistry has main laboratories for inorganic, organic and physical study and smaller ones for research projects which are equipped with specific instruments.

The physics department uses two multi-functional laboratories. Dr. Arnot also counted a computer calculating room among the division's facilities.

City officials claim backlog will be cleared in two weeks

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The backlog of work brought on by last week's public works strike should be cleared up within two weeks, city officials claimed yesterday.

The employees were all back on the job yesterday following the acceptance of a new contract last Friday. The city's director-general, Serge Racine, said Monday that the men "returned to work mentally prepared and without any form of aggressiveness."

Department officials claimed that very few problems existed and that the public should suffer little if any inconvenience as the men bring their work up to date.

The only major problem, which department officials hope to clear up later this week, is the one of ice on secondary streets. At present it is too cold and too much has to be accomplished before city employees can break up the ice which coats the streets.

"In some places there is a foot of ice," Mr. Racine explained. "When it gets warmer we will use all our crews to break it up."

City crews are expected to start that task on Wednesday when weather forecasters predict the temperature will rise over 30 degrees. Yesterday the men placed warm sand on the icy streets and sidewalks.

Garbage removal crews will be on streets all week but should arrive later than usually scheduled. With one week's garbage backlog, more trips will have to be made to the dumps and therefore it will take longer than usual to clean up the mess.

But city officials guaranteed Monday that all garbage will be picked up at least once this week. If by Friday the crews have not covered the whole city then additional crews will be put on the roads Saturday.

"We will pay the men overtime on Saturday if we need to," a public works department spokesman said yesterday. "By the end of this week everything will be cleared up."

As the men returned to work most officials said they considered the contract reasonable. The public works employees were given two $0.40 raises across the board. One raise was retroactive to January 1, 1974 and the second will be payable on September 9, 1974.

"Considering the different factors," Mayor Marc Bureau said, "I would say it was a good settlement."

Those factors, according to the mayor, were the recent increase in the cost of living, the salaries paid similar employees in similar positions with other municipalities, the wages paid employees doing similar jobs in private industry and the amount of funds budgeted for wage increases in the contract.

Mr. Bureau noted that the city did not go over the amount of funds it had allocated for the public works contract in the 1974 and 1975 budgets.

However, he admitted that the city couldn't make an offer similar to what the final settlement was because the union was asking for too much.

The union had sought, initially, three $0.50 increases during the two year contract.

Mrs. Margaret E. Frost 839-2185

Eight members of Maple Leaf Lodge braved the elements of high winds and heavy wet snow to attend the meeting on Tuesday evening, Feb. 19. It was a short meeting, but all enjoyed the social hour which followed, as the members had brought enough lunch to have the members of Golden Link Encampment, who were to also hold their meeting that evening, as their guests.

Richmond Division Girl Guides held their February meeting in St. Anne's Church, Richmond on Thursday evening, Feb. 14, with a rather small attendance. So far there has been no one found to replace Mrs. K. Frost as Camp Adviser. The May meeting will be held in Danville. Plans were made for the sale of cookies in April; the price this year will be 60 cents per box. Proceeds from these sales are used for many of the Guiding activities and to help maintain the various camps.

First the good news...

If one were to read only the top of the story emanating last week from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, one would conclude that everything is economically rosy in Canada and that, relatively speaking at least, this favorable picture will continue. For example, the OECD does not think that this country will be as hard hit by the oil crisis as other countries; and it notes that for the years between 1955 and 1973 our rate of inflation was 1.5 percentage points below the average increase for European and other overseas countries.

But as one reads on, one finds that this is by no means the whole story. Right at the end, for example, it is stated that there are enough problems bedeviling the Canadian economy to make the picture "clearly troublesome." Admittedly, the report says that this country is fairly well off compared with others. Which is a bit like saying that we only have a moderate case of pneumonia while our friends are coughing their lungs out.

Some of the problems are mentioned in the report. Taken in toto, they overshadow the first favorable impression. For example, oil shortages in other countries will reduce the growth of foreign markets for Canada, leading to a drop in export trade and a consequent loss of jobs at home. Already we have a persistently high rate of unemployment, running about 5.5 per cent.

Inflation is a major concern and although from 1955 to 1973 Canada did better, on average, than other countries, most of the advantage was lost in the latter half of this period, and the loss of price stability — at least in relative terms — has been as bad as in most other OECD members. Government policies, particularly with regard to unemployment, have added to inflation; and wages, have contributed to the problem by increasing considerably faster than was justified by gains in productivity or in output per man.

Undoubtedly Prime Minister Trudeau and his colleagues, when the subject of inflation is tossed again at them by Conservative Leader Stanfield, will rush to quote the OECD report as proof that things aren't so bad. That is a weak and flimsy defence. Some of the inflation from which Canada suffers is imported, and nothing can be done about it. But much can be done to cut back on inflation spawned in this country; and the Canadian voter may well be inclined to look with favor on the political party which shows that it intends to take strong action in this direction.

Restrictive

The health ministers are apparently in earnest in pressing their absurd plans for limiting the supply of medical doctors in this country. It would appear on the face of matters that we have endured one federal-provincial conference too many.

It may be that we need a new batch of health ministers. Possibly both conclusions are valid.

We have never suffered in Canada from a surplus of medical talents and we are not in that dire situation now. The ministers are not addressing themselves to a problem: They are tackling a theoretical calculation. They are not as yet in agreement on the details of their restrictionist policy: They are merely determined to be restrictionist.

The Quebec minister, Lise Bacon, says her department is prepared to limit the number of foreign-trained (why foreign-trained?) doctors entering the province to practise. Marc Lalonde talks about regional quotas and licensing, using the health insurance program to ensure that physicians perform their services where the government thinks they ought to perform them and not elsewhere.

It appears to be common ground that action should be taken to limit doctor immigrants and Mr. Lalonde will make recommendations to cabinet for changes in the Immigration Act.

The medical profession, in common with others — and some trades, also — has been accused in the past of being too restrictionist. There was particular criticism at the time of the Czech migration after the Russian invasion.

But the profession now will be encouraged by the example of 11 governments to be more restrictionist.

Doctors should beware, however. When their pretended political protectors talk about quotas, they are proposing to limit the freedom of movement of physicians and surgeons in their own country.

There is an argument that we should not, for reasons of decency, go out of our way to encourage immigration of trained medical people from countries already suffering from a serious shortage of medical services. If this is the concern, no barriers are necessary. It does not appear, however, that it was the consideration in ministerial minds. For one of the sources of the frightening influx is reported to be the United Kingdom, which is scarcely an underdeveloped country.

Are the ministers appalled by the prospect of more British doctors? Or are they simply obsessed by a desire to regulate to restrict, to fit people into nicely manageable regional compartments?

The problem of distribution is, of course, a challenge. In the search for solutions, various incentives might reasonably be considered. Instead, the conference appears to have agreed, at least in principle, on a course of action which is probably irresponsible, certainly restrictionist, thoroughly illiberal in spirit and which ought to be condemned by public opinion.

Violence theme recurring in China

TOKYO (AP) — Though there have been no official reports yet that it has happened, the dark threat of violence is a recurrent theme in China's wordy campaign against Lin Biao and Confucius. For months, Communist party organs, mass organizations, working men, soldiers and peasants have poured out millions of well-orchestrated words against Lin, China's late, disgraced defence minister, and Confucius, its greatest philosopher.

This is the first phase of a new purge and its chief target, the "superstructure"—that is, the political and cultural elite of the People's Republic.

Less clear is which individuals are going to come under fire. At the moment, sweeping general attacks on what Lin and Confucius stood for appear aimed at snuffing out the guilty.

The difficulty in all such purges is determining what is guilt and what is not. The side with the biggest club and the widest power, usually draws up the rules and makes the definitions.

'OUTS' VERSUS 'INS'

But the current campaign suggests that the "outs," with little power, are aiming their big guns at the "ins." They are invoking the slogan "Go Against the Tide" to support their assault on the party and cultural establishment. They are denouncing Lin's echoes of the Confucius saying: "One should do unto others what one would have them to do to you."

The Confucian ideals of "benevolence," moderation and nonviolence are being held up to scorn.

Benevolence is a disguise, say the attackers—generally believed to be ultra-leftists—which conceals keeping people in slavery, exploiting them economically. Non-violence and moderation, they continue, seek to maintain the status quo while forcibly keeping the masses down.

"We will meet counter-revolutionary violence with revolutionary violence," the leftists cry.

The credentials they claim are seemingly spotless. In "going against the tide" and clamoring for revolution, they invoke Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's 1966-69 Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

CONSOLIDATED POWER

In that tumultuous purge, Mao almost singlehandedly took on the party and government establishment, decimated their ranks and consolidated power while proclaiming the right of all Communists to rebel against the leadership.

Mao insisted that the polemics be verbal, without any rough stuff thrown in. But the excitable young Red Guards soon forgot this as the purge developed and bloodshed resulted. Lin Biao's power and influence mushroomed when the army had to be called in to curb them.

The present purge follows the 1971 death of Lin, accused of high crimes and treason. Identified with the left wing during the Cultural Revolution, he has been conveniently shifted to the Hades of ultra-rightism. This makes it possible for leftists to assail their old colleague while piously denouncing, as they have always done, those who want moderation, a certain dash of liberalism and continuity in Chinese politics.

More and more it is becoming apparent that the "Long March" veterans, those who made the 6,000-mile military retreat across China with Mao in the 1930s, are in the line of fire. They came out of the 10th party congress last summer more powerful than ever.

To young leftists such as Wang Hung-wen, the new No. 3 man in the party, and Yao Wenyuan, the protégé of Mao's wife, they must seem like a great wall barring their paths.

A visit to Riyadh

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-go-round

night, drinking coffee, eating dates and praying to Allah. Next morning, they attacked the emir as he emerged from his mud fortress with his bodyguards.

He tried to scramble back into the fortress through a trap door in the huge wooden gate. One of Saud's fighters hurled a dagger, which thudded into the gate a few inches from the emir. Other attackers raced to the gate and grabbed the emir's feet before they disappeared through the trap door.

There was a brief tug-of-war between the attackers on the outside and the bodyguards on the inside before the emir was pulled through. Meanwhile, Saud's men clambered over the high mud-brick walls on palm ladders. Although they were outnumbered two to one by the bodyguards, they won the short, fierce battle and killed the emir whom they found cowering in his private, one-room mosque.

The fortress still stands in downtown Riyadh, although the desert thunderstorms are slowly washing it away. My hosts proudly pointed out the blade of the dagger still imbedded in the great wooden gate. And the mud walls are still spotted with the blood of the emir and his bodyguards.

The fierce Saud subjugated the desert tribes, drove out the Turks and finally, in 1932, founded modern Saudi Arabia. He also fathered more than 40 sons. The third son, Faisal ibn Saud, fought at his father's side in some of the later desert battles.

Faisal is an expert horseman and has killed enemies in close combat. He is a stern Moslem, who rules his people by the laws of Islam. Religious police still stop women in the streets of Riyadh and order them to lengthen their skirts and a thief may risk having his hand chopped off.

The king still rules like a tribal chief, holding weekly Thursday morning majlis ceremonies at which any male in the kingdom can present a grievance. Desert sheikhs and lowly herdsmen alike appear before him and address him, man to man, as "Faisal."

The king is austere, frugal, hard working. He has a strong sense of honor and loyalty. He is fiercely anti-Communist and anti-Zionist. Despite U.S. aid to Israel, he also remains pro-American.

He cut off oil to the United States, partly to bolster his influence in the Arab world, partly to remind the United States not to take him for granted. But at Arab summit conferences, he argues for moderation.

His representatives have also quietly encouraged the other oil producers to ease the Arab oil embargo and to hold down prices. The king is deeply concerned about the enormous price hike and fully realizes what it is doing to the world economy. He is reluctant, however, to be the first to break the oil cartel.

To the devout Faisal, oil is Saudi Arabia's "bounty from Allah." He is determined to use it to build up his country, particularly to broaden its industrial and economic base.

Already, modern glass-and-concrete buildings have risen alongside the castellated mud walls of Riyadh. Cadillacs and Mercedes roll over six-lane roads where camels and donkeys also plod.

And gasoline, more plentiful than drinking water, sells for 13 cents a gallon.

Government policies

Sir:

As to the apparent effort of this Quebec Government to hivel the old people.

A Mrs. George Knowles of Melbourne had a real home for older people, where they were really happy, and of course an inspector, so-called, saw to it that she had to close down and get rid of them — and in January.

The results must have been pleasing to the Bourassa Government.

First a Mr. B. had a bad attack and nearly died when he found he had to find other lodging.

Secondly a Mr. L. felt so cut up that he died within two weeks. Also several wept at being evicted by government edict. So much for our big hearted government bureaucrats.

I, in my time saw how the Germans acted in occupied France and Belgium. They were just as big-hearted.

I soldiered several years in the first Great War and certainly never thought to see such heartlessness in Canada.

Community participation

Sir:

I read with great interest an editorial by Gordon Bachman in the Feb. issue of The Macdonald Journal circulated to WI members, which I quote in part as I wish to pass it on to all small or rural communities — reluctance to get involved.

"There just doesn't seem to be the number of people today who are willing to take on the countless jobs that used to be done in order to maintain a vibrant active community. The few local community leaders find it extremely difficult to get out even a few people in the entire community to help organize some program...suspect the real culprits are the complaints and lack of cooperation received. A former mayor of a small rural community once remarked that the greatest problem facing the community is the 'dirt' local citizens receive when things don't quite go as expected and the lack of appreciation received when things do.

This probably accounts for the increased reluctance to get involved. Nothing will discourage a local organizer more than to put in countless hours of hard work and then get 'put down' by someone who hasn't contributed even the slightest interest in his work.

The eventual result is that tasks will gradually be taken over as government responsibilities — from local, to county, to provincial levels. You as a citizen in your community, will have less and less of a say about how your community is run.

I wish to add my own comments: Let the above words serve as the handwriting on the wall advance warning to those communities it may apply to: As for the Township of Potton, especially the Town of Mansonville, we do have quite a few active citizens, some of whom settled in the area in recent years, who put in much time and effort for the betterment of the area and its citizens and I am proud to be a part of this very cosmopolitan community and to have the opportunity to be of service in my efforts to keep the Mansonville Area "on the map" as the saying goes.

opportunity to be of service in my efforts to keep the Mansonville Area "on the map" as the saying goes.

Good Samaritans

Sir:

As I look around at our peaceful communities and lovely homes, I think of the people whose past dreams have become our present realities.

These gifts our Senior Citizens have helped to create for us, will, of necessity, be the foundation upon which we must build our dream world of tomorrow.

As the future tends to mystify the human mind, we busy ourselves with the present and make constant reference to the past.

When the past and present are brought into focus, we immediately discover the greatest of all human assets — our Senior Citizens, better known in this area as the Sher-Lenn 50 plus Club.

It is hard to realize, but there is not a single person out there who has not in some way, at some time, been encouraged or influenced for the better, by someone who is now a Senior Citizen. Therefore, we must constantly remind ourselves that we do have an obligation to these people to help them to live honourable and dignified lives.

For some unknown reason, during the past two or three years, a sort of "Renaissance Movement" has gradually spread throughout the Eastern Townships focusing attention on our Senior Citizens. They have suddenly become human beings once more, and important people too — part of our national wealth.

I am not sure how it started, or exactly when it started, but the Sher-Lenn 50 plus Club was born and it has been growing by leaps and bounds, ever since. Having started from a humble beginning it now has approximately 265 members.

The real purpose of this letter, however, is to extend my heartfelt thanks to the directors of the Sher-Lenn 50 plus Club — Mr. Douglas Armitage, President; and all the members of the Executive: Mrs. Irma Mutchler; Mrs. Harold Munkittrick; Mrs. Dorothy Hughes - Games; Miss Helen MacGregor; Mrs. Annie Hunting; and the co-ordinator of activities, Mrs. Sadie Gaulin, are to be sincerely congratulated for their great efforts, and the countless hours that they have spent, planning the many useful activities that are listed on the schedule for the 50 plus Club.

These Good Samaritans are largely responsible for the great success the Club is now enjoying. The Club is certainly serving a useful purpose in the community, and if gold medals were plentiful, I certainly would give one to each member of the executive for a job well done.

I thought this little note of appreciation for their wonderful accomplishments would be in order at this time, as I do not believe the public, as a whole, is fully aware of the excellent work that is being done by the executive of the 50 plus Club for our Senior Citizens.

Orchids and red roses should be given to those who take the time to help these citizens find friendship and a certain measure of happiness. The world does not need to be reminded, that each day can be made more beautiful when kindness touches it, and perhaps it might be well to remember that time moves on and some day we will all be Senior Citizens.

The family

Miscellaneous shower

COOKSHIRE — A very pleasant evening was spent recently at the home of Miss Karen Irvine, with Miss Karen Lebourveau as joint hostess, when about twenty-five friends gathered to honor Miss Lois Vogell with a miscellaneous shower.

The living-room was decorated with pink and white streamers, attached from the seat of honor to the fireplace, and a large pink umbrella was suspended above the seat of honor.

The prettily-wrapped gifts were laid out on the coffee table, these were opened by Miss Vogell, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Barbara Vogell, and by her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Dwight Forgrave, of Sawyerville, and were then passed around for all to admire.

Miss Vogell expressed her thanks and appreciation to all for this very enjoyable surprise.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Stork Showers

MANSONVILLE — A very enjoyable Sunday afternoon was had on Feb. 10 by some 40 guests including youngsters and one tiny two-week old baby girl in the Mansonville Elementary School gym, an appropriate setting for the guest-of-honor, Mrs. Homer (Thelma) Cote, head teacher of this school, on leave awaiting the blessed arrival of her infant.

The stork shower was really showered with many variety of gifts and quite a few crib blankets and quilts, to which Thelma replied that they will be put to good use as the baby will have three homes to use them in one at daddy and mommy's apartment, one for the daytime with the Leon Eldridges and one in North Hatley at the baby's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gemmell, where the Cotes go for the weekend.

A teacher for many years and now retired, Mrs. Erma Perkins pinned a corsage to Mrs. Cote's dress, made up of colorful loops of ribbon, and baby rattles and other items.

The head table had streamers and balloons leading to the wall behind the seat-of-honor and a baby shower tablecloth which also covered the long table for the guests who were served tasty sandwiches and delicious squares, cakes and cookies.

A specially made cake in the form of a bassinet holding a tiny baby doll wrapped in a blanket, of white frosting trimmed in red, was presented by the hostesses, Mr. Raymond (Kay) Schoolcraft, Mrs. Thayne (Arlene) Hamilton, and the Misses Joyce and Jane Cote, all sisters-in-law of the gracious guest, who circled around visiting with the ladies and serving the individual pieces of cake that she cut as she stopped at each place setting. Mrs. Bruce (Bertha) Nichols assisted the Thelma's mother-in-law, Mrs. Ed Cote of Vale Perkins, and Mrs. Leon Eldridge, who sat in place of Thelma's mother, (who was unable to attend the occasion), both helped with the gifts, while the junior Misses Amanda and Fawn Patch passed the gifts to the table and on to the guests respectively.

MANSONVILLE — Mrs. Wayne (Eleanor) Clark of Knowlton's Landing (formerly of Mansonville) was guest-of-honor recently at a stork shower held in the Mansonville Royal Canadian Legion Hall. As she entered, her sister Miss Carolyn Aiken of Montreal pinned a traditional baby trinkets corsage to her dress at the shoulder and she was led to the table-of-honor laden with many colorful wrapped gifts, some from ladies who were unable to attend that day.

She was flanked by her mother-in-law Mrs. Harold Clark and her youngest sister, Tammy Aiken, and Miss Brenda Clark handed the packages to the ladies at the table and Miss Leidy Aiken, another sister of Eleanor, passed the gifts to the guests.

The color scheme of the trimmings, yellow, orange and white, matched the nursery of the expected baby and the tables held center pieces and colorful tablecloths.

The well-attended shower was buffet style served by the hostesses which included another sister from Montreal, Mrs. Jeffrey (Violet) McKelvey. A cake, made by Mrs. Grace Robinson of Dunkin, and another sent by an aunt in Montreal, both prettily decorated, were presented and a wonderful fellowship enjoyed.

World Day of Prayer

STANSTEAD — The World Day of Prayer bilingual service will be held here at Stanstead on Friday evening, March 1st at Christ Anglican Church at 7:30 p.m. Standard time.

This service will be participated in by all women of the churches in Rock Island, Stanstead and Derby Line. They will be joining with people all over the world in prayers for peace. The theme this 1974 year is "Make us Builders of Peace".

Women especially, but men and youth also, in 168 countries and this 87th World Day of Prayer will be praying together regardless of color or creed.

The World Day of Prayer began in 1887 with a small group of women who firmly believed that the mission work needed support of prayers as much as giving. From those 1887 days the World Day of Prayer has mushroomed and developed to an ecumenical and international celebration with roots in thousands of local communities.

World Day of Prayer is under the auspices of an International committee with a liaison officer or representatives from each country that has a national committee. The International committee chooses the theme and appoints a group of women from a different part of the world each year to write the service materials that is used by all the World over, each in their own language.

Women have climaxed their effort as they worship with Japanese women in Japan on World Day of Prayer.

World Day of Prayer provides the opportunity in a nationwide offering which goes into a fund called intercontinental Mission, the process by which Church Women United fulfills its goals of justice and peace through agencies. The primary focus this year is a contribution to an international fund for rehabilitation tasks as a result of the Biafra-Nigerian conflict.

SHERBROOKE — A meeting was held in St. Patrick's church hall to make arrangements for the World Day of Prayer being held this year at St. Patrick's church on Friday March 1st, 1974 at 2:30 p.m.

There were representatives from seven churches.

Mrs. Maura McKenna presided as chairman and Mrs. C. Fortier acted as Secretary. The Minutes of the 1973 meeting were read and approved.

"Make us Builders of Peace" is the focus for the 1974 World Day of Prayer. More than 300 communities across Canada and 150 countries around the world will be sharing this inter-denominational day of prayer and fellowship. The service was prepared by the National Christian Council of Japan.

The guest speaker will be Sister Gladys Hayward C.N.D. of Marymount Convent, Sherbrooke.

The World Day of Prayer is sponsored by the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada.

Offerings are used to support ecumenical programs that meet human need, both in Canada and other countries.

Everyone is invited to join in the service being held at St. Patrick's on March 1st.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Lecithin and cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please explain to me about taking lecithin for cholesterol trouble? My cholesterol has been high, from what the doctor tells me, and I have been taking lecithin, at least four table-spoons a day, but it doesn't seem to help. I watch my fats in the diet and anything that is cooked, eliminating all fatty foods, butter, whole milk, etc.

Will lecithin help lower my cholesterol? Am I wasting my money in continuing to take it? The doctor says it will not help, and he has never heard of lecithin helping cholesterol.

DEAR READER — If you are on a proper diet to begin with, it will not help in any way except to decrease the amount of money you will have available to spend on food. Lecithin is a fatty acid, combined with choline and a phosphate. When you swallow it, the lecithin will be broken down into these three parts before it can even be absorbed. You get plenty of phosphate anyway. If you eat lean meat you will be getting plenty of choline. The remaining fatty acid is just fat, and you don't need any more of that. Sometimes the fatty acid is unsaturated fat, and if a person is deficient in fatty acids, it might help. But you should be getting plenty of polyunsaturated fat in your food from fish, vegetable oils and cereal. In my opinion, encouraging healthy people who eat a normal diet to take lecithin to lower their cholesterol borders on fraud.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I really need your help. My nose has really fixed me. I have a feeling just like a headache in the nose (just the left half). Six years ago I had this a few times, then it rapidly disappeared.

Recently it appeared almost every day for a month. I tried very hard to discover the common causes and to analyze the similarities, but I failed. It usually happens in the morning and it's just like an electronic pulse hits me once every few seconds. The frequency and amplitude become higher and bigger as time goes on. After a peak it becomes slower. It lasts about an hour, and it makes me feel terrible (sometimes intolerable).

During the period of discomfort, my left eye can feel some tears coming out, and my left nostril may gather some liquid. I am 27 now and in good health except the nose problem.

Any piece of advice from you would be highly appreciated. Thanks a million, Doc!

DEAR READER — You have given me a classic description of a cluster headache. They are so called because they occur in clusters and may occur every day for a week or month and then stop suddenly. After the cluster of headaches are over, the person feels just fine. Some authorities consider them to be related to migraine headaches. During the cluster of attacks, alcohol seems to induce attacks. Unlike migraines, they are more common in men than in women.

Cluster headaches usually begin at around age 30. The tearing of the eye and the fluid in the nostril are common characteristics, and they are usually on one side.

Your doctor can treat your problem. You will need to take medicines during the time the clusters strike. In between time, you should be all right.

By Ann Landers

Succumbed to temptation

Dear Ann Landers: I did a terrible thing. I succumbed to temptation and read my daughter's diary this morning and now I am heartbroken.

Before I read that terrible thing, I had a wonderful relationship with my child. I trusted her and believed everything she said. We had long talks. I was sure she was the kind of 16-year-old girl every mother hopes her daughter will be. Now I know she's been lying to me and it's more than I can bear.

Please, Ann, tell children not to write anything in their diaries that they don't want their parents to see. I can't describe the emptiness and anguish I feel because of what I now know.

I hope my child reads this letter and will be among the first to destroy her diary. I hate the sight of it — Know Too Much

Dear Mother: You are right. You did a terrible thing by invading your child's privacy. But don't believe everything you read. Some girls have vivid imaginations and transcribe their fantasies in their diaries. The diary becomes a third party and they weave some incredible yarns.

While the blame for your heartbreak lies mainly in your snooping, I agree with you that nothing should be put in writing that could not bear examination by any member of the family. I hope every girl who has a diary will ask herself, "How would my mother feel if she read it tomorrow?"

Dear Ann Landers: Last week I had a "dirty birthday" (when a woman goes from a number with a nine at the end into another decade).

My husband bought me an expensive gift that was positively hideous. My initial reaction was to feign pleasure, but the next day I decided I would be crazy not to exchange the gift for something I liked.

When I asked Leroy if he'd mind, he said, "If you feel strongly about it, go ahead." I was furious when I learned his secretary (who doesn't like me) had picked out the gift. I'm sure she chose something ugly on purpose. Furthermore, I was crestfallen to think Leroy would consider my birthday a "business duty."

Should I tell him how I feel or keep quiet? — Hurt

Dear Hurt: I agree, a gift selected by a third party becomes less meaningful. But your feelings about Leroy's secretary probably intensified your anger and magnified your hurt.

Tell him. If your marriage is any good it should be able to tolerate such openness. In fact, this might be a splendid opportunity to open the windows and let a little fresh air in.

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed on your advice to the woman who didn't want a fourth child. Her husband refused to have a vasectomy and she couldn't go on the Pill for medical reasons. You told her to have her tubes tied after she delivered the third child. In some states the husband must give his consent.

After my fifth baby I wanted my tubes tied but my husband wouldn't sign. So my doctor inserted an intra-uterine device and told me to keep my mouth shut. It was the best thing that ever happened to me — No Longer Barefoot And Pregnant

Dear N.L.: True, a tubal ligation needs a husband's signature in some states. Since the IUD doesn't work for everyone, the wife might check with a lawyer and learn which states don't require two signatures — and take a trip.

What's prurish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

North's jump to four spades was intended to show good spade support and a minimum hand. He sure had what he advertised, but no one can find any fault with South's investigating seven and finally settling for six after North showed no kings at all.

Looking at all the cards the slam is not a good one. South needs a good break in diamonds to collect 12 tricks.

The best percentage play is to lead a diamond to dummy's nine. If it loses to the king or queen declarer comes back to his hand and finesses the jack.

As you can see this play is going to work. West holds the queen and 10!

At the table, West made things more difficult to South. West went up with the queen of diamonds on the first diamond lead. South, the late Albert Morehead covered with dummy's ace; stripped the hand of hearts and clubs and led a second diamond.

West played low, but it was one of those cases of Greek meeting Greek. Morehead knew that West was capable of playing queen from queen-10-small. He finessed the nine and made the slam.

IODE marks birthday

February 13, 1974 marked the 74th birthday of I.O.D.E., a Canadian women's organization with chapters in every province and territory.

I.O.D.E. members give generously of their time as volunteers in hospitals, homes for mentally and physically handicapped children, Citizenship Courts, blood donor clinics, V.D. clinics and many other community services. Money is raised for scholarships, bursaries, awards, welfare assistance and institutional equipment. In addition, members support I.O.D.E. Provincial and National programmes in the Canadian North and overseas.

Recently, a project to supply specialized equipment to assist in teaching Eskimo children with hearing disabilities was suggested by Her Excellency, Mrs. Roland Michener, Honorary President of I.O.D.E.

An initial gift of twenty-five hundred dollars was sent to the Northwest Territories to purchase ten desk-model trainer sets and since then, over four thousand dollars has been donated by chapters to "Operation Sound" for additional equipment.

Again this year competition was keen among Canadian scholars for the fifteen War Memorial Scholarships awarded by I.O.D.E. Seventy-six students made application for the scholarships which provide five thousand dollars each, for post-graduate study overseas or three thousand dollars for post-graduate study in Canada.

Last August, H.M.C.S. Protecteur made a six week voyage to the far north to restate Canada's sovereignty, carrying a cargo of books, games, puzzles, toys, magazines, sets of encyclopaedia and all manner of sports equipment collected and donated by members of I.O.D.E. The cargo was divided between the twelve northern communities visited by the ship on her six thousand mile voyage of the Arctic. The long, dark, monotonous hours of the northern winter should pass more quickly for the inhabitants of many isolated settlements, thanks to I.O.D.E. and the Canadian Navy.

In the seventy-four years I.O.D.E. has existed, there have been many changes in Canada and in the Order. One element that has remained constant is the need for dedicated volunteers. The Junior Chapter program for girls age 12 to 18, teaches leadership skills and enthusiasm for volunteerism and ensures that I.O.D.E. will have members ready to serve whenever and wherever the need arises.

Parent committee meets

AYER'S CLIFF — The regular monthly meeting of the Parents' Committee of the Ayer's Cliff Elementary School was held on February 11, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting began in the gym where the parents and a few students had gathered to hear about the March taught in our school. Mr. W. Walls, principal, introduced the four teachers involved in this program — Mrs. Neeve, Mrs. Barron, Mrs. McVety and Mr. Dyer.

Each teacher gave a summary of the Math program they teach in their respective classes. After the speakers were finished a question and answer period followed.

Then Mr. Dyer called on his students, who were present, to come to the front of the group, and to bring their parents with them. He explained the game of "Buzz" that is used in his classroom, which involves numbers and concentration. A lively game followed with the winner being one of the students.

This was another informative and interesting evening. We are grateful to our teachers for being present.

The meeting was adjourned to the Staff Room where the Committees business was attended to.

Tentative plans were made for fund-raising projects. These will help to defray the costs of trips to be taken by the students in the spring.

Mr. Aubrey Greer, school commissioner, was present and explained the concern about Bill 63. After much discussion, it was decided that a letter be composed by the chairman and signed by the Committee members. This is to be sent to our MNA, Mr. Georges Vaillancourt.

A copy of the controversial Cumulative Report was circulated. This report is to be studied further by the Committee.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on March 11. At this time, a tour of the school will be made in order to make recommendations for repairs and improvements to the building.

There were 27 members present with 18 officers and 11 Past Noble Grands answering the roll call.

She will be there for another couple of weeks and anyone wishing to send her a card can get the address from Sis. Greta. Sister Jean Scott visited Sis. Dorothy McKell in Hospital. She is expected to go home on Tuesday.

It was also reported that Brothers John Melrose and James Foster are not well. Reports of Committees: Sister Elaine Grubb thanked all the members for their help with the card party on Sat. Feb. 16 which was a huge success. Plans were discussed for another one to be held, on Sat., March 30. Plans for a Hot Dish supper were cancelled for the time being.

Unfinished Business: Sister Winnie Holliday read Study No. 5 from Sister Viola Noble, Secretary of the Rebekah Assembly.

A donation was sent to the Tournament of Roses Parade committee. The Oddfellows and Rebekahs enter a float in the parade every year and it is felt that this is a very good way to advertise our order to the millions of Canadians and Americans who watch the parade on T.V. every year.

Sister D. Clark, Secretary, is to write to the planning Board asking for more information concerning the possibility of sending a boy or girl to Camp Neofa.

The Noble Grand appointed Sister Lesley Clark as membership chairman. Sister Irene Williams reminded us that February is the month to visit our shut-in members.

New Business: Brother Steve Hunt told us of a proposed meeting with the Masons and suggested we send three members to this meeting, namely Sisters Donna Luce, Frances Arnaud and Dorothy Clark. The Oddfellows will let the committee know when the meeting is.

The Secretary has the tickets for the Planning Board Drawing. Anyone wishing to sell these tickets can get them from the Secretary, Sister Mary Knight is to make some more dishes and silverware.

Good-of the Order: It was reported that a Sister in Farnham is in bad need of some domestic help. Her name is Mrs. Ruby Riddick. Anyone who can help her could get in touch with some of our members and they will tell you how to get in touch with Sister Riddick.

Closing the Lodge: There being no other business to be brought before the members, Lodge closed in ritual form.

The members retired to the dining room for delicious refreshments served by the hostesses. It was also the birthday of one of our YOUNGER members and Sister Donna Luce had made her a cake. The members sang Happy Birthday to Sister Jean who cut the cake and passed it around.

The drawing then took place and Sister Ruth Sweet won the prize.

Here's an idea for leftover vegetables

A dilemma many homemakers face often is what to do with leftover vegetables. Maybe there are beans, cauliflower, carrots and boiled potatoes or small amounts of corn, peas, asparagus or broccoli.

Put any of these together with cream of mushroom soup, a little instant minced onion and some grated sharp cheese. Baked with a flavorful, crunchy topping of grated Parmesan cheese and crisp corn flake crumbs, they provide a perfect accompaniment for a simply prepared entree such as broiled or baked meat, poultry or seafood.

VEGETABLE MEDLEY

- 2 cups corn flakes or
- 1/2 cup packaged corn flake crumbs
- 1/4 cup regular margarine or butter
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- +++
- 1 cup cooked cut green beans
- 1 cup cooked cut cauliflower

- 1 cup sliced, cooked carrots
- 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- 1 8-ounce package (1 cup) grated Cheddar cheese
- 1 10-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1 cup sliced, cooked potatoes

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Melt margarine in small saucepan. Remove from heat. Add corn flake crumbs and Parmesan cheese; mix well. Set aside for topping.

Place green beans, cauliflower, carrots, onion, Cheddar cheese and cream of mushroom soup in greased 1 1/2 quart baking dish; stir until combined. Arrange potatoes in a layer over vegetable mixture.

Sprinkle corn flake crumbs topping evenly over potatoes. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) about 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 8 servings, 3/4 cup each.

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of hockey fans broke down and cried Monday at the funeral of defenceman Tim Horton of Buffalo Sabres, who was killed in a car crash Thursday near St. Catharines, Ont.

People began filing into the church more than 90 minutes before the start of the service for the former National Hockey League all-star.

The 400 seats in the church were filled as were two side aisles and the choir loft. Another 200 chairs were set up in the basement to accommodate the overflow crowd.

It was a short, simple service, with a eulogy delivered by Rev. Gordon Riggs, a friend of the family.

The United Church minister announced there will be a Tim Horton memorial hockey camp for underprivileged children set up on 150 acres of land owned by Horton and his wife near Orangeville, Ont., about 30 miles northwest of here.

He said the camp would start this summer. No further details were announced.

Professional hockey was well represented.

WHA roundup

Cleveland Crusaders and Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association will be missing some of their regular players for the next few games—but for different reasons.

Defencemen Wayne Muloin and Wayne Hillman and forward Jim Wiste are expected to miss a week of action with the Crusaders because of injuries, while defenceman Larry Mavety of the Cougars will sit out at least one game as the result of a suspension imposed by the league Monday.

Most seriously injured Crusader is Muloin who is in hospital suffering from a pulled abdominal muscle. He is sidelined for an indefinite period.

Hillman, who suffered a severe muscle cramp in Sunday's game against Minnesota's Fighting Saints, may not be available until March 5, and Wiste's hand injury is likely to keep him out of Thursday night's game against Minnesota.

Mavety's immediate suspension from the Cougars was announced Monday in Los Angeles by Dennis Murphy, WHA president, because of an incident in a game Sunday night in Winnipeg. Game reports said Mavety, a native of Woodstock, Ont., after receiving a cross-checking penalty, a misconduct and game misconduct for waving his stick at an official, then struck referee Bob Kolari with his stick.

APPEAL MADE
The management of the Cougars has appealed the suspension and a hearing will be held in Chicago Wednesday.

"The incident calls for a 10-game suspension," said Murphy. "But Mavety has requested a hearing so whatever action is taken rests with the determination of the hearing board."

Murphy has appointed WHA trustees Paul Racine of Quebec and Irv Kaplan of Minnesota to hear the case along with WHA executive director James Brown.

Two previous altercations with game officials this season resulted in five-game suspensions and fines to Doug Barrie of Edmonton Oilers and Mike McMahon of the Fighting Saints.

The Cougars are scheduled to play host tonight to Los Angeles Sharks.

MIAMI (AP) — Baltimore Orioles opened their spring training camp in Miami Monday with manager Earl Weaver greeting 15 players, all but two of them pitchers.

Catchers Elrod Hendricks and Jim Hutto, both on the roster of the Orioles' Rochester farm club, were the only non-hurlers present as Weaver put the players through a light, two-hour workout.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Since the National League is relaxing its stand on the designated hitter (DH) rule during this spring training session, St. Louis Cardinals manager Red Schoendienst said Monday he was "leaning a little toward it."

The only time the Cardinals and other National League clubs can use the DH rule will be when they are on the road against American League teams.

Schoendienst said: "I have guys like Louis Melendez, Jose Cruz, Tim McCarver, Ken Reitz and others who might be on the bench whom I might want to use as a DH. We'll just wait and see."

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Fritz Peterson, who signed his 1974 contract Sunday afternoon, started working out with New York Yankees Monday, but fellow pitcher Mel Stottlemyre still is waiting for more money.

Stottlemyre's agent met with Yankee president Gabe Paul, but nothing was settled. Stottlemyre is reported to be seeking $90,000 while the Yankees are willing only to match last year's salary of between $80,000 and $82,000.

Stottlemyre had a 16-16 record last season.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Montreal Expos were advised Monday that the salary dispute of shortstop Tim Foli had been arbitrated in favor of the National League baseball club.

No details were announced. The salary case of Foli, 23, had been submitted to an arbitrator in New York last Wednesday.

The Expos' regular shortstop, Foli earned about $24,000 in 1973. He played in 126 games, missing one month of the season due to a multiple fracture of the jaw, and batted .240.

Meanwhile, the club's pitchers and catchers worked out in spring training camp Monday for the fourth straight day. Infielders and outfielders are due in camp Thursday.

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Kansas City Royals opened spring training Monday with their No. 1 catcher missing and one of the probable starting pitchers nursing a knee injury.

When manager Jack McKeon greeted his batterymen and invited players, catcher Fran Healy was still at home at Holyoke, Mass. Nelson Briles, veteran right-handed pitcher obtained from Pittsburgh last winter, jogged with a noticeable limp.

Briles said he "dislocated my left kneecap working out in

Snowmobile Club annual meeting

BOUNDARY — Arthur

LaPenna of Beebe was elected the new president of the Three Villages Snowmobile Club at the annual meeting held on Tuesday evening, February 18 at Salon Bavarois in Beebe.

Mr. LaPenna replaces Ramsay Williams who established this Club three years ago. Since then Ramsay has thought of little less than making a success of the Club and has been very successful through leadership and hard work.

Mr. Williams opened the meeting and called for the annual reports which were indicative of the hard work he has done and has also been done by Secretary Bill Parrish and directors as well as a large portion of the close to 250 members of the club.

Bridges have been built, fund raising projects carried out successfully, trails established, a J5 machine purchased to work on the trails, which is only a small portion of making the year a success.

The donut and coffee project at the Club House is paying for itself. It is not losing or making money but does provide refreshments on the honor system to snowmobilers.

Two first aid kits have been purchased and a third will be.

Robert Alger presented the slate of officers which were duly elected. Directors for two years, Larry Reynolds, John Galazzo, Alton Wing, Paul Lacroix, Pierre Gosselin and Donald Bernais. The other directors are Rosario Richard and Keith Leney with G. Lageux completing the unfinished term of Bert Delisle.

Mr. LaPenna was elected president, Gordon Archer, vice president, and Mrs. Diane Gosselin, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Williams upon vacating the chair thanked everyone who had supported him morally and by labor to make his three years, good years, and to the local businesses who have given the Club their support.

With Mr. LaPenna in the chair, appreciation was extended to Mr. Williams for his endeavours during the three years and a resolution was approved to make Mr. Williams a Life time honorary member.

There has been a problem to cross highway 55 on Kennedy Blvd. between the Customs and Dewey Street intersection. Signs prohibiting the crossing were put up the weekend of February 15-16. Mr. LaPenna said he had been in touch with the Head police office in Quebec and has advice about how this can be acted upon. At the present the Club is awaiting maps showing the trail locations which will be forwarded to Quebec for approval.

Meanwhile the location is being checked by police and it is reported fines will be in order if people continue to use the passing.

A committee of Robert Alger and Ramsay Williams were named to look into the matter of having a snowmobile supper in March, details to be made known at a later date.

The meeting quickly adjourned when Club members were asked by police to establish a search party for an RCMP officer who had been overdue into the Stanstead office.

The Mansonville Winter Carnival, in its second year, officially opened when Mayor Bruce Armstrong was introduced to the approximately 400 people gathered for the occasion and he handed the key to the town of Mansonville to the Bonhomme (Michel Leduc, owner of Cantine du Voyageur) who received a standing ovation.

QUEEN JOANNE PARENT

The Mayor wished success to the Carnival participants and its outcome and then introduced the Princesses, mentioning their sponsors: Lucie Sabourin (Miss New Glendon), Francoise Ducharme (Miss Mansonville Hotel), Joanne Parent (Miss Garage Ducharme, Sno-Jet), Nancy Lessard (Miss Owl's Head Ski Chalet), and Louise Deschene (Miss Restaurant Chez Gisele).

The girl selling the most raffle tickets was automatically chosen as Queen of the Carnival. These tickets were counted by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Fullerton of Mansonville.

Prior to announcing the Queen, Mr. Fullerton brought the sealed envelope to the platform and the winning young lady with 1095 books (of five tickets each) sold, was Miss Joanne Parent. Last year's Queen, Miss Carnival 1973 Joanne Marcoux, placed the crown on Miss Carnival 1974, Miss Parent and each girl received a corsage donated by Labatt Breweries and presented by last year's Princesses; the Misses Solange Ducharme, Josee Bernier and Lorena Frazer, Nite Rider's Club Wife of the Vice-Pres. Mrs. Omer Prive and wife of Director, Mrs. Larry Ethier; "Warm Suits" donated by the Nite Rider's were presented by Mrs. Prive and Directors Pierre Giroux, Claude Marcoux, Ian and Kevan Heath; Labatt's donated a large bouquet of fresh flowers which were presented to the Queen by the owner of the Mansonville Hotel, Mr. Louis Lacaille.

Mrs. Phyllis Marcoux, wife of the Nite Rider's Pres., placed the ribbon over the Queen which read "Miss Carnival 74", who then received her many lovely gifts after which Bonhomme, Mayor Armstrong and the Potton Township Councilors, the executives of the Nite Riders Club and its Directors with their wives, and the Queen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reola Parent, came forward to congratulate her and the entourage of Princesses.

The gala affair topped the evening off with an enjoyable dance held for the many guests.

Scenes from North Hatley's Winter Carnival

By DR. RAY LOSITO
Special to the Record
NORTH HATLEY — On February 16 and 17, it was carnival time for the children of North Hatley. Old Man Winter was very cooperative by offering plenty of sunshine and ideal temperatures.

The carnival started on schedule with the opening ceremonies performed by Dr. Paul Beaudoin only after the able repair work of Mr. Tony Ditchburn on the P.A. system.

Close to 180 children were given snowmobile rides by the Massawippi Snowmobile Club.

The seven snowmobiles covered more than 90 miles.

Activities switched to the rink where skating races consisted of boy or girl relay teams. More than 12 teams were entered in these races. The winners (and losers) were given ribbons by Mr. Gordon Stuart of the E.T.R.C. Rumor had it that a bit of pushing between the speedsters escaped the eyes of the judges.

Then thing really started to happen! It seems that the referee-in-chief of the hockey game was skating for his life when chased around the rink by Bozo, the town clown. It is said that Bozo came back to town after a long engagement with the Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Bozo received a 10-minute misconduct penalty and the hockey game started. The Honorable Mayor of North Hatley, Mr. Georges St. Pierre, dropped the puck for the opening face off.

Although the Pee Wee team beat the Mosquito team 4-0 and won the Legion trophy, another rumor has it that the smaller team outhit and outskated their opponents. After the climax of the hockey game, a slower pace was evident by having the Magog

The girls drew the applause of all the spectators. Following the skating presentation the program moved over to the North Hatley Curling Club where movies were presented with the compliments of Mr. Bob Yuile.

All afternoon the Women's auxiliary of the Canadian Legion of North Hatley worked feverishly to quench the appetite of the young folks.

On Sunday, the children's curling bonspiel was held with four teams entered in the competition. The bonspiel was followed by a dinner for the participants. Mrs. M. Taylor was in charge of the bonspiel activities.

All during the week the children submitted entries for the art and snow sculpture contest that was held in conjunction with the carnival. Mrs. Pauline Beaudoin and her committee had a difficult time in choosing the winners.
