Ky takes second place

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, rivals for the presidency of South Vietnam joined forces today, with Thieu going for the top spot and Ky running for vice-president, a spokesman for Thieu said.

The unexpected turn of events probably ended the danger of a split in the military which could have resulted from the competition of Ky and Thieu for the armed forces' 600,000 votes.

It also indicated that Ky had lost considerable ground in the last few weeks among the ruling military directorate. For him to agree to run as vice-president under Thieu appeared to mean that Thieu has gained the upper hand among the military.

There was no immediate comment from Ky's office.

The announcement that Thieu and Ky would run on the same ticket ended a week of speculation and rumors sparked by almost continuous meetings of the armed forces council made up of about 50 generals who run South Vietnam.

Reports of a caretaker government to run South Vietnam while Ky and Thieu ran for president had trickled out of the council meetings earlier.

Ky's vice-president candidate, lawyer Nguyen Van Loc, and Thieu's running mate, Trinh Quoc Khanh, a farmer, presumably will withdraw from the race.

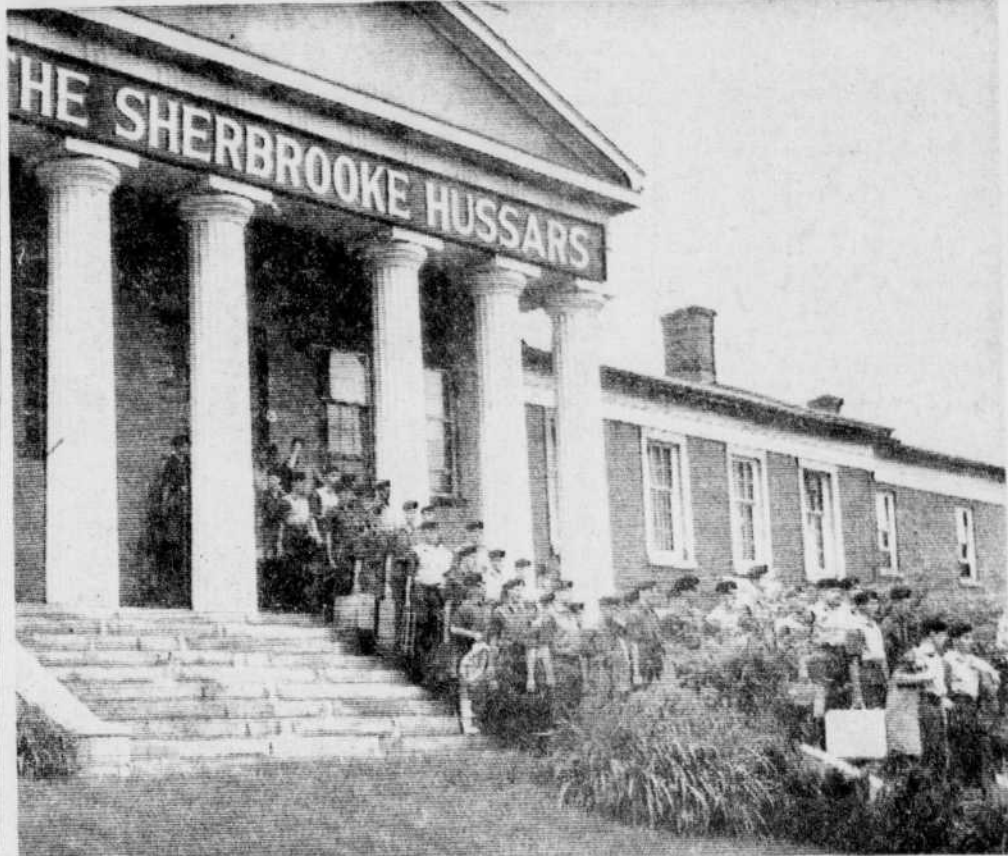

City boy drowns

A 17-year-old Sherbrooke boy drowned yesterday afternoon while trying to swim across the Magog River with a friend.

Daniel Boutin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Boutin, of 3135 King Street West dove into the water with friend Ludger Gagnon about 1:45 p.m., near the end of Raimbault Street, intent on crossing the Magog River.

For some reason—unexplainable at present—Daniel Boutin began going under. His friend, swimming alongside him tried to help him across but gave up after it was reported, he realized if he didn't let go he too would be dragged under and suffer the same fate.

The boy's body was only found several hours later when Sherbrooke Firemen and Rescue Squad dragged the river. Artificial respiration was practiced but in vain.

OFF TO OTTAWA — The first group of officers and men of the Sherbrooke Hussars are seen leaving for Ottawa today where the regiment will receive its colors July 5 from Queen Elizabeth. Other groups, for a total of 80 officers, NCOs and troops will leave during the weekend. (See also page 3.) (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Police are on the offensive to quell Buffalo race riots

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — quelled the disturbance early today. Twelve persons were wounded with shotgun pellets, 18 others injured and more than 100 arrested as roaming Negro youths rioted in this city's shabby east side for a third successive night.

Four hundred helmeted police, armed with shotguns and tear gas, moved in quickly to disperse crowds. Again and again, clusters collected and were broken up. Each time a police van carted defiant Negroes to headquarters for bookings on mostly minor charges.

Lack of jobs, educational and recreational facilities have been cited as reasons for the unrest.

Reporters described Thursday night's disorders as sporadic, despite the violence, and more subdued than Wednesday when large gangs rampaged through the predominantly Negro area, looting, smashing and burning.

CHANGE ATTITUDE

The subtle difference was in the attitude of the police, reporters said.

"They were on the offensive," a veteran reporter said. "The neighboring city of Niagara Falls also was affected for a second successive night. At least four persons were arrested and a policeman was struck by a thrown rock.

Police moved quickly into the troubled area, however, and area. Some plainclothes detectives also were ordered into uniform.

THREATEN MOTORISTS

As in the previous two nights, the rioters roamed the streets in gangs of various size, mulling about and harassing motorists. They quickly slipped away when police arrived.

The outbreak began slowly, growing in intensity between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 2 a.m. today. By 4 a.m. quiet prevailed.

Some of the older Negroes expressed anger over the fire-bombing of two Negro homes. "So-called soul brothers," said Lawrence Williams, a fireman put out a small fire in his apartment. Williams said youths threw a fire bomb after a neighbor had prevented them from looting a grocery store on the first floor.

Scattered groups of young Negroes lurked in the darkness. They were outnumbered by police who patrolled three abreast, riot guns at the ready.

NO RECORD TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Dominion Day, the Record will not be published. Regular publication resumes on Monday.

Security prepare for crowds

Queen begins tour

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip set out today on a brisk schedule of centennial - visit activities, starting with a tribute to Canada's war dead.

Security officials were braced for massive crowds after the turnout late Thursday afternoon that greeted the royal visitors following their 7½-hour jet flight from London. A senior RCMP officer estimated there were at least 60,000 persons lining the winding 10-mile route from Up-lands airport to Government House.

A threat of showers clouded today's program but tour organizers were hoping for a repeat of Thursday's weather when a similar forecast for the arrival ceremony was blunted by a wide patch of blue sky that opened up minutes before the BOAC Super VC-10 touched down.

The Queen was greeted by Governor-General Michener, Prime Minister Pearson and their wives. Prince Philip followed her with a jaunty wave of 1,600 persons seated in a cavernous hangar for the welcoming ceremony.

Waves of cheers and applause followed them down 140 feet of red carpet laid on the concrete floor of the hangar.

The Queen wore a brilliant yellow coat over a silk print dress in pink and citrus yellow. Her hat was of pink and yellow petals.

Prince Philip wore a dark brown lounge suit and carried a brown hat.

BREAKS IN PROTOCOL

There were two slight breaks in the usually-stiff protocol. The big BOAC aircraft nosed alongside the hangar entrance seven minutes ahead of schedule, an almost unheard-of occurrence that caused some protocol-conscious spectators to disbelieve their own watches.

BOAC Capt. Ron Hartley, a 56-year-old New Zealander, said the arrival time was stepped up slightly because of the weather threat.

"Not much of a worry though," he said with a glance at the serene sky. "Perfect weather all the way in."

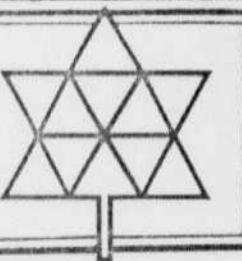

FOREVER AIRBORNE — Mayor Armand Nadan and members of the welcoming committees from the Sherbrooke Tourist Council and the Centennial Committee look at a circling helicopter that would not land in the space provided for it in front of the Sports Palace. The copter which hovered around the site for the better part of an hour before it finally gave up was a centennial attraction bearing a message for the mayor from all the Provinces' premiers. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

From Britain And France Came Creation And Crisis

(First Of A Series)
By WALT McDAYTER

The birth of Canada as a nation was unique in that it was a child born with two umbilical cords. To this day the cords have not been severed, but still stretch taut across the Atlantic to our two motherlands, Britain and France.

Canada owes much to other countries as well, but it is these two who provided us with most of our population, and gave us our language, laws, institutions and culture.

Yet, if it is the French and English who did most to create Canada, it is also the growing friction between them that is now the biggest threat to our continued existence as a nation. The split between French and English Canada has never been wider, and never has the cry in Quebec for separatism been louder. Many no longer speak of Canada as a nation, but as two nations-in-one.

The changes come down to such consumer items as whisky, furniture, watches, cameras and toys. Few categories are missed.

BARGAINED FOR MAXIMUM

Canada bargained all the way for a maximum reduction in the American tariff. In the end, the U.S. will be making top 50-percent cuts on $1,060,000,000 of the $1,920,000,000 worth of Canadian goods affected by its tariff changes.

By 1972, the average level of U.S. European Common Market and Japanese tariffs for Canadian manufacturers will be less than 10 per cent. This is regarded as insignificant, when natural advantages such as supplies of power and raw materials are considered.

The two-nation principle dates back to 1774, and is in many ways a consequence of the American revolution. After defeating the French on the Plains of Abraham in 1759, the British later feared the French colonists might join the 13 English colonies threatening revolution to the south.

To ensure French-Canadian loyalty, the British were extra lenient to the French, guaranteeing them rights to their separate religion, language, custom and even French civil law by the Quebec Act of 1774.

The Constitutional Act of 1791 divided Canada not only geographically into Upper and Lower Canada, but into race and religion. In Lower Canada were the French Catholics, in Upper Canada were the English Protestants, primarily recently-arrived United Empire Loyalists.

There was an attempt in 1841 to re-unite these two groups into the single Province of Canada,

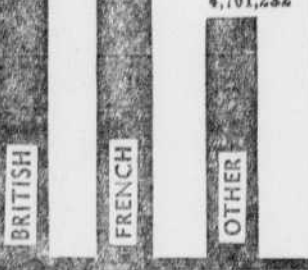

POPULATION: 18,238,247

7,996,669

5,516,346

4,701,232

BRITISH FRENCH OTHER

According to the 1961 census, about 75 per cent. of Canada's population can be traced to either British or French descent.

but the line of separatism between English and French had been there too long, and could not then be erased.

In 1867, French-Canadians agreed to Confederation on condition that their French heritage would be preserved, and their separate identity protected. And so, even in union, the seeds of separatism were planted.

But despite the ever-present controversy over separatism, 100 years have passed and Canada will soon celebrate the centennial of Confederation.

Many didn't think we'd make it. The New York Tribune predicted in 1867, "When the experiment of the 'Dominion' shall have failed . . . as fail it must . . . a process of peaceful absorption will give Canada her proper place in the great North American Republic."

But Canada has not failed! It has survived as a nation, and there are few Canadians who wouldn't bet a beaver pelt that it will continue to do so.

Geneva agreements smash tariff walls

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and its trading partners sign agreements today that will smash many barriers to world commerce and challenge industrialists to think big.

For Canada alone, tariff changes wrought by the Kennedy Round negotiations affect exports worth $3,000,000,000 last year and imports worth $2,500,000,000.

The 47 members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade have altered the terms of $15,500,000,000 in annual trade, fourth-fifths of the world total.

Detailed schedules were released Thursday night, containing columns of bell-ringing tariff reductions for Canadian exporters already thriving in world competition.

Any industries that have been satisfied to live behind comfortably-high tariff walls and sell only at home face the prospect of stiffer competition from foreign products.

For them, the alternatives appear to be to specialize in products they can sell successfully around the world, or to go under.

GATT members make the first of their tariff cuts next Jan. 1 and the rest by 1972.

REDUCTIONS BY '68

The Canadian consumer should start watching for price reductions during 1968. Importers have a chance to pass along savings on the foreign goods they buy. Canadian manufacturers may be able to cut prices because the imported materials that go into their products and processes will be cheaper.

Finance Minister Sharp declared Thursday that "no country in the world has more to gain than Canada" from the results of more than three years of negotiations at Geneva.

Trade Minister Winters said the Kennedy Round "may in future be regarded as the turning point for Canada from a resource-based economy to a major industrial country."

Documents were tabled in the Commons Thursday night and Mr. Winters' departmental spending estimates were to be called today, providing an opportunity for debate on the Kennedy Round.

The trade minister said he will convene a meeting of Canada's export advisory council Tuesday.

Both Mr. Winters and Mr. Sharp put emphasis on the performance of Canada's manufacturers as the key to Canada's long-term benefits from the tariff changes.

With the chance to sell more abroad on better terms, they said manufacturers should be able to cut their per-unit costs on longer production runs.

To sweeten this all-important pot, Canada has made its most impressive tariff reductions in a catch-all item that includes imported machinery in general, with accessories, attachments, control equipment and tools used in connection with machines.

Some $550,000,000 in 1966 trade is represented by this category, in which existing tariffs of 22½ per cent and 2 per cent will be cut to 15 per cent. The tariff is being lowered quickly—before July 1, 1968—to encourage rapid expansion.

Besides this consolidated rate, Canada will establish a board empowered to remit duties on machines not available in Canada. This will take the effective rate on imported machines to nine per cent or less.

Canada also offers big tariff cuts on imports of forest products, agricultural goods, fish, sophisticated chemicals and metals.

City man sent to trial on charge of bombing

A Sherbrooke man charged with damage to property in the Leclerc home bombing on Friday, June 9, had his preliminary hearing yesterday before Judge Benoit Turmel who maintained the charge and sent the case to Court of Assizes.

Leo Parent, 43, of 198 Gillespie St., chose to be tried before a judge and jury on Saturday, June 10, in Sherbrooke court.

He was represented by lawyer Dewey Zaar yesterday. Gaston Leclerc testified that he had laid off the accused from Sherbrooke Coach Co., where he was foreman about two weeks before the incident.

He said he was awakened by the blast around 4 a.m. Friday morning and upon investigation found a bomb had caused about $1000 damage to his car and another $200 to the side of his house.

Bernard Pelet, an expert for the Medico-Legal Institute testified that the equipment found on the site could have caused the explosion.

Gilbert Cloutier, 23, of 1180 Hamelin Street, Sherbrooke, was fined $200 and his driver's licence suspended for one year after he pleaded guilty to a hit and run charge.

The man whom he hit, Herbert Joliffe, 53, of 1032 Courcelle Street said he had been hit by a car while crossing Queen Boulevard North on December 23, 1966 and had broken his leg and hurt his shoulder.

The man who was accompanying him that night—it was about 8 p.m.—Milton Cruickshank, said he saw the car hit Joliffe, back up and drive around him and away without stopping.

Lawyer Georges Savoie, for the defence, said his client went to the police the next day and confessed exactly what happened.

This was corroborated by a detective. In giving the sentence Judge Benoit Turmel said he would have given the accused the maximum penalty were it not for the fact that he gave himself up the next day.

EXPORTS MUST RISE Economic experts estimate Australia must export $7,500,000,000 worth of goods by the mid 1970s.

Chief's death ends long feud

ACTON VALE — (Staff) — Yesterday's incident in this small Bagot County community which resulted in the death of the police chief and another man, was the climax in a long period of animosity between the two men.

Constable Jean-Louis Merette, of the Acton Vale Police, said this morning that for three or four years, Gyslain Simard, 24, of Montreal and Acton Vale, had been threatening to kill the police chief.

This friction between the two men was the general result of the "trouble-causing" nature of Simard, said the police.

The three-hour affair began at about 2 a.m. on Thursday, when Simard was speeding through the town, causing as much noise as possible.

Mr. Merette, 22, an Acton Vale policeman for the past seven months was called to the scene to try to stop the commotion.

He chased Simard's car in the town's patrol car, but lost him.

Several minutes later, Simard returned to the center of town in the car driven by a comrade, Andre Lalancette, of Acton Vale. Constable Merette picked up Simard, and took him to the police station in the patrol car. The QPP at St. Hyacinthe report that Lalancette followed the patrol car to the station.

When the two were in the station, Simard managed to escape, and he jumped into the car driven by his friend and escaped.

At about 4:30 a.m. again, Simard was reported to be driving through the town in a dangerous fashion. This time chief Merette and Lalancette came to the center of town in the patrol car. After letting off the chief there, Merette proceeded on his own to look for Simard.

As Martin was standing on the street corner, Simard's car came towards him. Martin fired a warning shot, the car bypassed him, and stopped short at the curb. Martin went to open the door of the car, and as he did was shot by Simard with a .303 carbine rifle. As the chief staggered to the sidewalk, he emptied his gun into Simard.

Both men were taken to St. Croix Hospital in Drummondville in the same ambulance, where they were pronounced dead on arrival. The bodies of the two men are at the Boisvert and Sons morgue in Acton Vale.

Shortly following the incident, Lalancette was arrested by the police and he is presently being held by the St. Hyacinthe detachment of the QPP.

Some 20 spectators watched the incident at some time during the night.

Chief Martin, the father of six children ranging in age from 13 to three-and-a-half, will be accorded a civic funeral on Monday.

Acton Vale and St. Hyacinthe QPP are still investigating the incident.

Historic Sherbrooke Hussars travel for colors from Queen

Eighty officers, non-commissioned officers and troopers of The Sherbrooke Hussars leave for Ottawa today and during the Dominion Day weekend, to take part in the July 5th pageant, when Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II will present colors to the local unit, three Ontario regiments and two regular force regiments.

The honor holds considerable significance for the Hussars, inasmuch as this is their centennial year, having received their identity March 22nd, 1867, following seven months for parliamentary consent, first asked in September 1866.

Lt-Col. James M. Strickland,

By CHARLES CATCHPAUGH (Record Correspondent)

CD, Commanding Officer of The Sherbrooke Hussars has instituted a special program for this year, to commemorate both the unit's 100 years of service, and Confederation year. Regarded as one of the most integrally involved groups contributing to Eastern Townships' history, the Hussars perpetuate the former Sherbrooke Regiment and 7-XI Hussars, from which the present unit is formed, and were known as the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and 117th Eastern Townships Battalion in the First World War. They fought as The Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, and part of the Royal Rifles of Canada in the Second World War.

Members of the original formations took part in the Fenian Raids, the South African War, and members from the groups also saw duty with forces fighting in Korea, and serving later with the United Nations troops in other theatres of international duty.

"Traditionally, The Sherbrooke Hussars mean more to Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships than any other single organization," a noted historian remarked, adding "it has been with this regiment, and its forerunners, that hundreds of men served for the glory of their country, and with whom many other gave their lives."

The quote adds a nostalgic air to the importance of the role military service has had for this region, and realizing that originally, the Townships were basically pioneered for reasons of protecting the area against possible invasion, many of the founders here possess long and colorful army heritage. The respect and natural call to duty has beckoned for generations, as evidence in the fact that many of the serving officers, NCOs and men of the Hussars can trace ties with this unit through their fathers, grandfathers and even great-grandfathers.

Sentiment plays a major role in keeping the old unit alive, according to former commander Lt-Col. Earle P. Hall, as observed, regardless of former rank, veterans with the unit.

their sons and their sons' sons lean toward affiliation and service with the Hussars. There is no wonder this regiment's roll in Sherbrooke, commemorating Canada's Centennial Year is one of the most ambitious programs, and there is little doubt that their presence and the honors they'll receive at Ottawa shall go on record as another mark of glory for the old unit, the district's finest!

Stress clouds if you wish, but well

Clouds in black and white pictures: do we need them showing that much?

This is of course, a matter of personal opinion. For one thing, if they are there, they should be seen, but how much, is where personal preference comes in.

There are times when clouds are of minor importance. Actually they could make a picture too fuzzy or confusing. The lacey effects of branches and leaves will be lost in close-ups of people or beautiful trees, which become the important subject, if the sky is too dark. But with the broad expanse of countryside, mountains and lakes, the clouds are a necessary part of the scene. Having decided whether to use clouds or not, here is how to photograph clouds.

First, for best cloud effects, they must be fairly clear-cut when you look at them. The day should not be the kind where the clouds look soft against the blue.

Next, to improve the quality of the clouds, the blue sky must be darkened through the use of filters. Your choice could be a yellow or a red filter. The red filter does a fine job, but slows your film down considerably as it needs more exposure: either less shutter speed or opening up of the lens by three stops.

However, the yellow medium K 2 or G. I find the best, and in conjunction with a polarizing filter, just as good as the red, with better greens. This combination has a filter factor of 5 instead of 8 for the red, but it is a bit more expensive to buy.

For those using only color film, the only filter for cloud effects and all around improvement in color slides or prints is the polarizing filter. It has no effect on the color balance, but does require an adjustment in film speed, a factor of three is needed, but what a difference in the color of your pictures!

The only other requirement is, of course, a lens shade and this should be on at all times, coupled with the filter adapter which holds your filter.

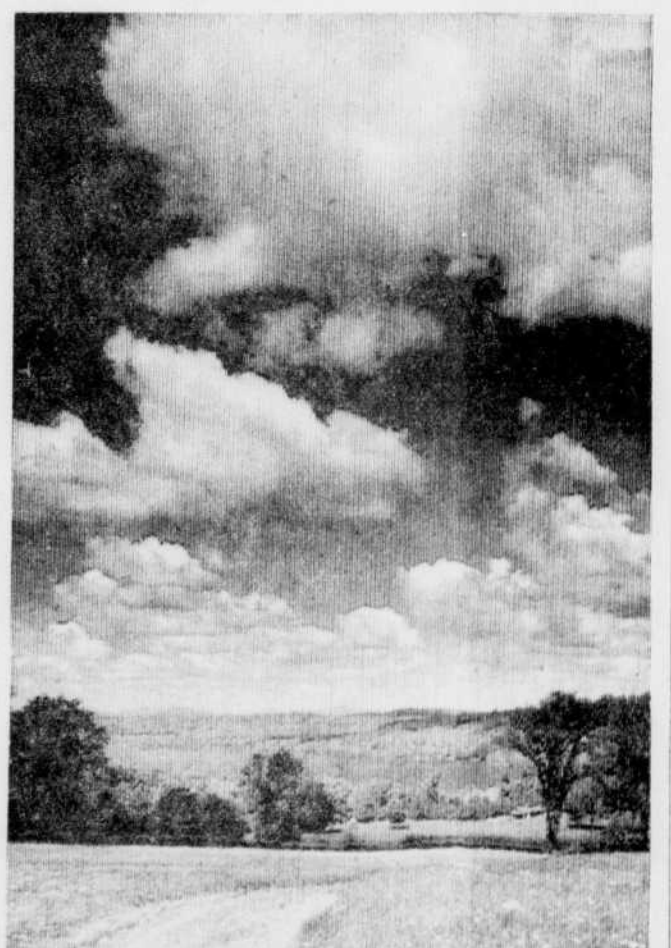

Good cloud hunting, and see the difference in your picture.

Serious thoughts for Dominion Day

By now all Canadians must know that their country starts its second century tomorrow — July 1, 1967.

For the past six months information media have been pouring out millions of words about the many events that are being staged to impress the people of this nation that this year marks the centennial of Confederation.

Certainly from the material viewpoint, the grandeur of the celebrations leave little to be desired.

In fact many of them astound not only Canadians but visitors from other nations with the magnitude and success of their conception.

They range from Expo 67 at Montreal, acknowledged as the greatest World Fair of all time through the Confederation historical train and caravans, special centres in the provincial capitals to local projects in the participating municipalities.

But perhaps Dominion Day — the half-way point of Centennial Year — is the time for Canadians to pause and consider just how much they have accomplished in the less materialistic but equally important fields.

Have they given the people a stronger realization of each other's problems? Have they contributed to the strengthening of the moral fibre of the nation?

If the answer to these and many other similar questions is in the affirmative, then the Centennial Year manifestations have proved useful and profitable.

But if, at the half-way mark, doubts persist in the minds of the ordinary Canadians that such results have been achieved, it is the duty of each individual to spend the next six months working towards an improvement in conditions.

Summer is the season when, even if you have plenty of get-up, you don't have the go.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR:

Among rocks and boulders, a rose

The simple loveliness of the pasture rose offers its beauty on thin-soiled pasture hillsides. The soft pink of the fragile petals forms patches of color along pasture lanes and on the banks of country roads. It is a humble trailing plant that has been called Martha of the family; but it is the parent of all the beautiful roses that adorn gardens and parks.

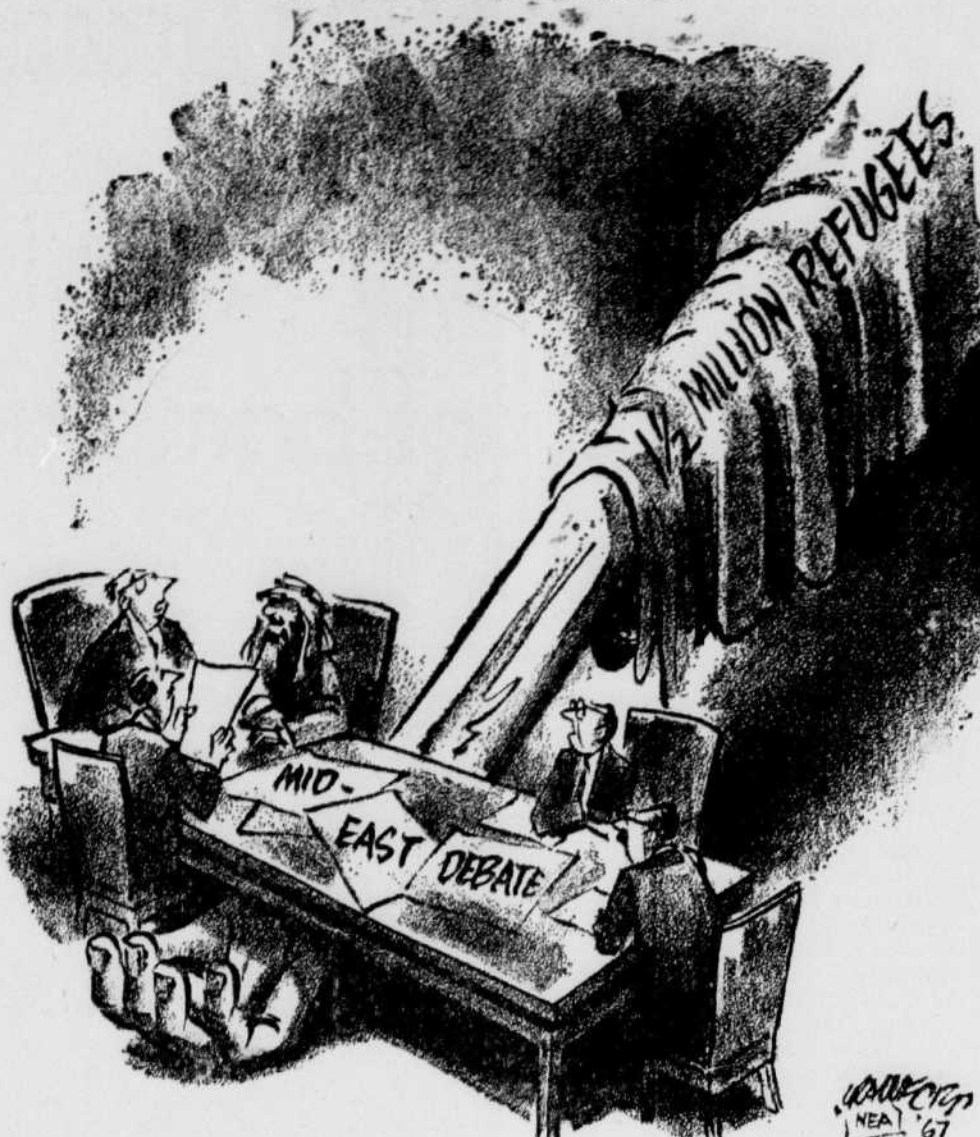

Sometimes it seems that the loveliest colors in nature are wrung from adverse conditions. In light soil with little humus, and in the acid soil of lowlands, some of earth's most appealing blossoms develop their beauty. The wild pasture rose is a good example. Among rocks and boulders where grass is thin, the pasture rose thrives and spreads its loveliness.

The rose family has over 1200 species grouped in some 75 genera. It includes strawberries, hardhack, spirea, raspberries and the cinquefoils. Until recently experts included apples, cherries, pears and plums in the family. It is good to know these facts, but to most persons a rose means a flower that is the epitome of beauty.

The wild pasture rose does not pretend to compete with the large blossoms in the garden. It opens its five-petal blossom in the morning and closes the petals at night to prevent moisture sticking to anthers and pistils. Recurved sharp prickles discourage cattle and mice from eating the foliage and seed hips. The pasture rose is a humble plant, but its colorful blossoms are an appealing addition to the flowers that give us a flowering world.

French Canada says:

Centennial, a chance to correct Americans' ignorance of Canada

Montreal La Presse—A few months ago we were fairly scandalized to learn that not one of 600 pupils in a state-supported secondary school in France was able to name the capital of Canada. Now the ignorance of Americans of the same age—senior pupils in high schools—has been exposed in a book entitled One Continent, Two Voices: The Future of Canada-U.S. Relations.

The authors, Stanley Tupper and Douglas Bailey, (the former now is U.S. ambassador to Expo) submitted a text consisting of 11 elementary questions to 1,000 Canadian and 1,000 American students. And if we can be reasonably proud to note that the Canadians averaged 69.7 per cent in replying correctly to questions about the United States, we cannot help but attribute the pitiful results of the Americans, who averaged only 19.3 per cent in correct answers on Canada, first of all to the deficiency of their teaching programs at all levels, and also to the almost total indifference of American television, newspapers and periodicals towards our country.

It is interesting to note, however, that the French Fact is not only recognized but overestimated, if we can use the term, because 230 adolescents named Quebec and 178 Montreal as the capital of Canada and a large number mentioned French rather than English as being the language of the country, with only 10.5 per cent being conscious of the existence of two official languages. This may prove at least one thing, that is that the different and particular face of French Canada made a greater impression either on them or on their parents.

On the eve of the great peaceful invasion during July when several millions of visitors from below the 45th parallel will visit Expo, the occasion appears appropriate for us to hope that at least a part of them will return home animated with a desire to know Canada better and that the many excellent suggestions made by the authors of One Continent, Two Voices may be taken into consideration by those to whom they are addressed, that is the government in Washington and the governments of the states, those responsible for higher education and Yankee businessmen.

Quebec La Presse—If General de Gaulle was entertaining any thoughts about intervening as a mediator in the Middle East conflict, he has just cut all bridges by his recent statement on the question of responsibility for the outbreak. He accuses Israel of having started the war, he reserves his opinion on the question of freedom of navigation in the gulf of Aqaba and finally he states that the war in Vietnam is responsible for the latest Israeli-Arab clash.

The foreign policy of President de Gaulle is a skein of wool difficult to untangle. He makes his decisions as an autocrat, withdrawn in splendid isolation. But it can be asked if, in fact, his foreign policy is not simply dictated by sterile anti-Americanism.

How can the launching of hostilities in the Middle East be linked directly with the war in Vietnam? The most casual observer of the international scene knows very well that from the very creation of the state of Israel, the Arab states promised to annihilate it. . . . Since its creation, the state of Israel has had to put up with ceaseless harassment by Arab commands as well as anti-Israeli propaganda which has spread uninterrupted for 20 years among her Arab neighbors. The preponderant fact anxious to gain power is the practical aspects of the problem of using French. Mr. Diefenbaker may be very sympathetic. His inability to speak French . . . did not get on our nerves too much due to the fact that Mr. Lester Pearson could hardly give him lessons.

Their disappearance will mark the end of a political era in Canada, one where in the eyes of political strategists it was not necessary for a leader to be bilingual. . . . Hector Heroux (June 22) in the last Israeli-Arab war was not the war in Vietnam, but the refusal of the Arab states to accept the existence of Israel.

It is possible that the Soviet Union is not angry that the Middle East conflict embarrasses the West, particularly the Americans who are already involved in Vietnam. But General de Gaulle's point of view implies that the Russians wanted to open a second front in the Middle East in order to place the United States in a position of inferiority, it being already busy in Vietnam. This is an insupportable point of view. (June 23)

Trois - Rivieres Le Nouvelliste—Why shouldn't the next prime minister of Canada be bilingual? And why shouldn't the leaders of all parties in Ottawa speak both French and English?

It is no longer sufficient for a leader to be able to recite in French a text which has been prepared for him. Our era can no longer tolerate this, not only among the Progressive Conservatives, but among the Liberals or the New Democratic Party.

Bygone days

TEN YEARS AGO

WINNIPEG — There are three drawbacks to writing novels in this country — sex, scenery and the spoken word — Mrs. Gladys Taylor, of Thetford Mines, told the annual gathering of the Canadian Authors' Association here Thursday.

Mrs. Taylor said that there has been a prevalent idea that Canadian novels contained no dialogue except some Indians saying "Ugh".

Also many persons thought Canadian authors described nothing but scenery, she said, and as far as sex was concerned, Canadian novelists "are really on the fence".

"If a Canadian author does not have enough sex in her book, she doesn't have a chance with American readers, and if she does, she is likely to be slapped by Canadians, who are more conservative", she said.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The City Council and the Harmony Band played host yesterday to the Philharmonic Society of St. Hyacinthe, for one of the customary exchange visits between groups in the amateur band association of the province.

Prior to the concert in Portland Square which was the climax of the day's activities, two receptions had been tendered to the visitors.

At the City Hall in the afternoon, members of the executive of both bands were welcomed by Alderman Leo Cadorette, acting for Mayor Emile Levesque, and the guests were asked to sign the Golden Book.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

HATLEY — One of the pre-war attractions of the Eastern Townships, the Hatley Dominion Day celebrations, is being revived this year by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Fannie Bowen, the net proceeds of the event going to aid the funds of the United and Anglican Churches.

The day will start off with a parade led by the Junior High School band of Canaan, Vermont, scheduled for 10 o'clock in the morning. Following the display of the various floats, a hot lunch will be served at noon.

Shattered crowd estimates

Centennial arouses Canadianism

By GERARD McNEIL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Some elemental Canadian appetite evidently was awakened by the centennial celebrations.

The hunger for things Canadian has been expressed in a trail of shattered crowd estimates.

Color has flooded into the grey old image as the citizenry not only seeks, but provides, fun.

In a country where nationalism was always regarded as a foreign disorder, a song called Can-a-da is suddenly the all-time best-seller.

The delighted self-regard has flabbergasted officialdom who spent public millions to generate it.

As late as last Christmas, centennial planners were pessimistic. But no more.

The reason is that everything has clicked, including the turnstiles. Evidence was turned up in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press.

In winter, westerners lined up in numbing weather to visit the Confederation train whose drawing power had been considered dubious by some.

BIG CROWDS AT EXPO

Incredible crowds began to hit Expo 67 the day the world's fair opened and continued through the coldest May on record.

Ballet, theatre and folk companies touring on centennial subsidies have run into overflow houses.

With summer here, the fun has just started.

The voyageur canoes are sprinting east, leaving a trail of celebration along the 3,500-mile water route from Rocky Mountain House, Alta., to Expo.

Winnipeg is preparing for the Pan-American Games, perhaps the biggest sports event in Canadian history.

An international ballroom race begins at Calgary July 6, taking over from the fabulous Stampede.

Rodeos, old home weeks, pioneer days, clan gatherings, blueberry festivals, ox pulls, dory races, company picnics all have the centennial tag this year.

About $90,000,000 worth of cultural centres, parks, arenas, municipal swimming pools are being opened, all concrete hometown mementoes to the Centennial.

CARAVANS ON MOVE

The eight Confederation truck caravans now touring regionally are the basis for many a small-town holiday when they arrive.

What fascinates the centennial planners most is the degree of individual involvement.

Residents of Rathenally Avenue in Toronto, for instance, beat the blue laws by declaring themselves independent and establishing The Republic of Rathenally. They seceded from Metropolitan Toronto, set up barricades, and held a picnic.

The Sarnia Observer claims to have made centennial history—and undoubtedly did—by delivering a live tree with every paper May 9.

Enlightening excerpts from issues a century ago grace many newspapers across Canada.

A western pilot put the centennial flag on the North Pole. Similar antics are on schedule for the summer.

Gravelbourg, Sask., for instance, is spearheading a 130-mile centennial wagon train journey along the old Wood Mountain Trail.

FIRST FERRIS WHEEL

In the North, a Mackenzie River barge will carry a ferris wheel into the territories for the first time.

Dozens of climbers are preparing to assault a series of towering Yukon peaks, which will be named, if climbed, after the provinces.

The University of Saskatchewan will hold what it calls the first university class—a field course in the study of Eskimos—within the Arctic Circle.

Saskatchewan is billing the July 20-22 official opening of the multi-million-dollar Gardiner Dam as the nation's second largest centennial event.

Arabs flee to Jordan

Hussein, King of the Refugees

JERUSALEM (CP) — Hussein of Jordan now is little more than King of the Refugees.

There were already some 430,000 Arab refugees living in the desert kingdom before the six-day Israeli-Arab war. They had fled from Israel in 1948 when the Jewish state was created under former Arab lands.

Now it is estimated they have been joined by 150,000 more refugees from the west bank of the Jordan, occupied by Israel after its 48-hour victory over Hussein's Arab Legion.

The west bank represented two-thirds of Jordan's usable land. The new refugees—or doubtful refugees because some of them had also fled Israel 19 years ago — are squatting in only 7,000 Arab refugees in the tents on the desert plateau Gaza Strip. The refugee population around Amman, swelling the Jordanian capital's population by one-third.

There are also some 350,000 Palestinian refugees in the Gaza Strip and another 150,000 in Syria. In their squalid camps, hatred of the Jews has been festering for two decades.

Israel has also occupied the Syrian heights overlooking the Sea of Galilee and 6,000 Arabs fled for a second time.

All told, there are thus some 1,100,000 Arab refugees which the United Nations tried to feed on a ration of 1,500 calories a day per person.

The UN has been able to find them had also fled Israel 19 years ago — are squatting in only 7,000 Arab refugees in the

TODAY IN HISTORY

William Howard Taft was appointed chief justice of the United States by President Harding 46 years ago today—in 1921. The appointment followed 30 years of public service, including a term as president of the U.S. from 1908 to 1913, marked by Taft's vigorous application of the antitrust laws. Taft died in Washington March 8, 1930.

1797 — Royal Navy Nore mutiny suppressed.

1908—Meteorite landed at Vanover, Siberia, devastating 3,000 square miles.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917 — British forces advanced towards Lens over a four-mile front; Gen. E. H. Allenby assumed command of British forces in Palestine; in East African campaign British and Portuguese forces drove German troops from the Nyasaland border.

"Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head." (Luke 9:58, RSV).

PRAYER: Dear Savior, we bless Thee that Thou hast suffered loneliness and persecution on earth because of Thy love for us. We offer our lives to Thee without making any conditions. We rejoice in the living hope of a blessed home with Thee in heaven. We pray in Thy name, Amen.

New addition at Le Baron Hotel opens today

A 42-room addition to Sherbrooke's Le Baron Motor Hotel will be open to the traveling public tomorrow. The new wing, built at a cost of more than $400,000, increases the number of bedrooms in the $1.6 million hotel from 84 to 126.

A five-month construction and renovation program, completed this month, also included air-conditioning three private function rooms enlarging the landscaped area around the hotel's swimming pool and additional parking space for the new units.

Hotel Manager Peter E. Monaghan says Le Baron is now in a position to serve more effectively the needs of its regular guests and an increasing number of convention groups. Canadian Pacific Hotels Limited operates Le Baron under a long-term lease arrangement with industrialist Jacques Corbeil of Valleyfield. Mr. Corbeil built the hotel and retains ownership of the building and property.

The modern, tastefully decorated bedrooms in the new wing are identical to those in the rest of the hotel. In other words, guests will find there the same gracious living conditions and complete privacy they have grown accustomed to at Le Baron.

In addition, the new wing overlooks a tree-lined bend in the scenic Magog River, and one of the finest swimming side rooms are available and to the interior of the hotel. All the new wing has been attractively landscaped. Each room has an outside enclosed music systems and television sets built into West Indian leak dressing tables. Canadian Pacific's years of experience in the hotel business ensure unexcelled cuisine, lounge facilities and service at Le Baron. Attractive modern decor creates a relaxed atmosphere that heightens the enjoyment of fine food and beverages in the 120-seat Chevalier dining room and the 60-seat Baronet lounge.

The Roland Trio provides entertainment for listening or dancing on Friday and Saturday nights.

Le Baron has always been one of the outstanding convention centers in the Eastern Townships. Now, with the extra conditioning in the three private function rooms (the only rooms in the hotel that weren't already air-conditioned), it offers even finer inducements to a wide variety of convention groups.

La Salle d'Armes, the main convention hall on the second floor, and the three smaller conference rooms, L'Echanson, L'Ecuyer and Le Page, can accommodate a total of approximately 750 people for meetings or almost 600 for banquets. La Salle d'Armes alone can hold up to 550 for meetings and 450 for banquets or it can be divided into two separate rooms for smaller groups. It has a direct entrance from the street and a separate entrance for exhibits of almost any size — including the largest makes of automobiles.

Manager Peter E. Monaghan has more than 23 years of experience in the Canadian Pacific hotel chain and his young staff, all bilingual and hired mainly from the Sherbrooke area, has received a thorough grounding in the Canadian Pacific system.

Mr. Monaghan, a native of Quebec City, began his career at the Chateau Frontenac in 1943. During the ensuing 10 years he divided his time between the Chateau and the Algonquin Hotel at St. Andrews-by-the-sea, N.B.

He filled various accounting positions at the Algonquin until, in 1963, he was appointed hotel accountant. In 1966, he became assistant manager of the popular summer resort and, in September, 1966, he was transferred to Calgary as chief accountant at the 480-room Paliser Hotel.

Mr. Monaghan was appointed manager of Le Baron in 1964, just three months after the hotel opened.

Le Baron's reputation for fine cuisine is a tribute to the head chef Ernest Leblanc, one of the original members of the staff. He is an advocate of "grand service" techniques and his Sunday night buffets are gourmets' delights.

Chief Clerk Gerry Copeman, a native of the Gaspé, has an impressive personal and family background in the hotel business. He has had 14 years of experience at well-known hotels and restaurants in Montreal and the Laurentians as well as at Le Baron. A brother and two promotion duties.

The addition of the new wing at Le Baron has increased the responsibilities of Head Housekeeper Mrs. Marguerite Du-

Patterson has learned many facets of the hotel business over an 11-year period. In addition to her experience as a waitress in hotel restaurants and cocktail lounges, she has worked behind a reception desk and as a switchboard operator. Mrs. Patterson supervises all dining room personnel plus staff hired from time to time for banquets in the hotel's four private function rooms.

Le Baron has everything for the traveler

Air-conditioned meeting facilities capable of accommodating over 750 people at one time make Sherbrooke's Le Baron Motor Hotel one of the outstanding convention centers in the Eastern Townships.

Other amenities such as fine Canadian Pacific cuisine and service, comfortable guest rooms and quick access routes to and from major centers in Quebec and the north-eastern United States add up to an ideal location for convention business.

Le Baron was designed originally to lure convention and tourist traffic to the thriving Eastern Townships area as well as to cater to a steady flow of regular travelers.

The addition of 42 units in the new wing opening tomorrow plus air-conditioning of three meeting rooms is evidence that Le Baron has not only achieved its objectives but is now equipped to handle even larger and more diverse gatherings.

The main convention hall, La Salle d'Armes, can accommodate 550 people for meetings or 450 for banquets. The hall can also be divided into two separate rooms for smaller groups.

It is attractively decorated, completely air-conditioned, has controlled lighting which can be adjusted to suit any occasion, and 18 public address speakers distributed throughout the room. The floor is inlaid hardwood suitable for dances but also able to withstand the heaviest exhibition equipment.

La Salle d'Armes has its own crescent-shaped entrance drive off King Street and the walk from the driveway to the entrance is covered by a marquee. There is also a separate exhibit entrance large enough for exhibits of almost any size, including automobiles.

Another feature of La Salle d'Armes is an intimate cocktail lounge for the exclusive use of patrons of the hall.

A service elevator connects the main hall to the kitchen and also links the kitchen to three smaller function rooms situated below the main hall.

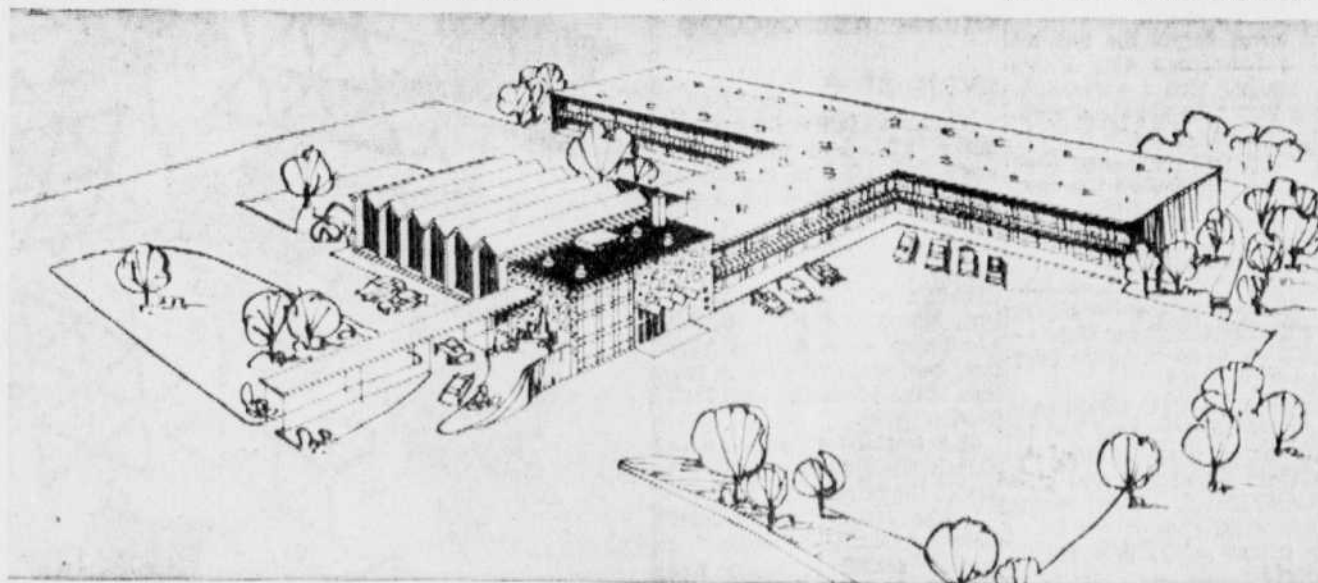

L'Echanson, the largest of the three, holds 125 people for meetings or 75 for banquets. L'Echanson holds 60 for meetings and 40 for banquets and Le Page accommodates 25 or 16, depending on the function. These three rooms have just been air-conditioned as part of the construction and renovation program completed this month.

Bedrooms in the 126-room Le Baron Motor Hotel afford guests spacious living quarters and complete privacy.

All bedrooms are sound-proofed, air-conditioned and furnished to deluxe standards. The five different models contain one or two double beds except in the case of four two-room suites in which one of the connecting rooms is furnished with single beds.

The beds make up in such a way that in minutes the bedroom becomes a living room—an ideal arrangement for private business meetings. Each of the rooms in the suites can be rented separately if so desired. Each bedroom is equipped with an individually controlled music sound system placed on the wall for stand-up dialing. Four channels bring either continuous relaxing background music, French and English AM radio, broadcasting, or FM broadcasting.

Television receivers are built into every West Indian teak dressing table. Le Baron's special cable television service brings to guests the best in television programming in French and English on five major television networks. The spacious window area can be covered with brightly colored "blackout" draperies for guests desiring extra sleep during the daylight hours. Floors have wall-to-wall carpeting.

THE NEW LOOK — Le Baron Motor Hotel's new look is illustrated in this artist's impression of the 126-room hotel. The original L-shaped structure containing 84 bedrooms has become a 'T' with the addition of 42 more bedrooms in a new wing extending toward the top of the photograph. The main building is in the foreground at the foot of the 'T' and beside it is La Salle d'Armes convention hall with its distinctive six-peaked roof.

Smoke signals

By HELEN GAGEN

Smoke signals will start to go up from patios and picnic grounds, from beaches and back yards.

And they'll all be saying — "barbecue".

I'd like to suggest something you may not yet have tried — barbecued turkey. It's as elegant as steaks, and much less expensive. And even the youngsters will enthuse about it as a change from their ever-favorite hamburgers.

LEMON BARBECUED CHICKEN

5 or 6-pound turkey (or turkey pieces)

Soft butter
 Salt, freshly-ground black pepper

1 small clove garlic, crushed
 1/2 cup salad oil

2 tablespoons minced onion
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme

Cut turkey in serving pieces, or buy cut up turkey. Place each piece on a square of heavy foil and spread generously with soft butter. Place on grill over rather low heat, skin side up, and grill for 1 to 1 1/2 hours, depending on size.

Meantime, mix 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper with remaining ingredients. Refrigerate.

After cooking turkey in the foil, remove foil and place turkey pieces on greased grids of barbecue.

Brush turkey pieces again with soft butter, season and continue barbecuing, turning often and brushing often with the barbecue sauce, until fork tender — about 1 to 1 1/2 hours longer. Broiling must be done over moderate to low heat, to assure cooking through without burning.

ZIPPY TURKEY BARBECUE SAUCE

This is a quite different type of sauce for barbecuing turkey — it should be used in the same way as the lemon mixture.

1/2 cup vegetable oil

1/4 cup butter
 1/4 cup vinegar
 1/2 cup water
 1 teaspoon grated onion
 1/2 to 3/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 teaspoon powdered oregano
 1/2 teaspoon paprika

Combine and simmer for 5 minutes. Use to baste turkey and also as sauce for dunking.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

Every barbecue fan has his own favorite recipe for spareribs — but everybody is ready for just one more recipe for cooking them.

4 pounds pork spareribs
 Barbecue sauce, pineapple slices sugar, cloves.

Cut spareribs in 2 or 3-rib portions. Simmer or pressure-cook until tender, then drain well.

Place over glowing coals on barbecue and grill, basting often with sauce, until richly browned — about 10 or 15 minutes. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Serve with grilled, sugar-spiced pineapple (TNS)

Baby may be suffering from iron deficiency

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mama, baby may be suffering from "iron-poor blood."

Iron deficiency anemia isn't an exclusive ailment of old codgers, as you might have thought.

For that, you have the word of Dr. Patricia A. O'Connor, a pediatrician at the University of Michigan Medical Centre.

And, she adds, too much milk may be what's ailing baby.

"When baby's appetite isn't satisfied with a quart of milk a day, or when he is two or three months of age, it's time to start feeding iron-enriched baby cereal," she says in an article in the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society.

She reports that one or two children are seen each week at University Hospital with nutritional anemia due to lack of iron.

She says these usually are drinking so much milk that they have no appetite for iron-rich foods such as baby cereal, meat and eggs.

Her advice: Cut down on the milk. Offer baby more eggs, meat or cereal — which he'll get hungry enough to eat.

She says:

"Lack of knowledge about iron needs and the danger of too much milk, insecurity about setting limits for their child, lack of time to spend feeding solids, reluctance to let baby cry, and a tendency to use a bottle of milk as a pacifier are characteristics commonly seen in parents of children with nutritional anemia."

Personals</

By JOSEPH and SUSAN WEARING

WAGNER — Die Walküre: Regine Crespin, soprano; Gundula Janowitz, soprano; Josephine Veasey, mezzo-soprano; Jon Vickers, tenor; Thomas Stewart, baritone; Martti Talvela, bass; Berlin Philharmonic, Herbert von Karajan, cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON Stereo 139 229/233) — My perfect recording of Walküre would have Hans Hotter as Wotan and Kirsten Flagstad as Brunnhilde. Hotter could really make one believe he was a god and Flagstad was gloriously superhuman. But Hotter is past his prime and Flagstad, also, is dead. Both Stewart and Crespin give excellent performances, although there were moments when each strained my credulity in these two superhuman roles. Vickers and Janowitz are superb as Siegmund and Sieblinde — a really believable pair of youthful lovers — and Tavela has a wonderfully resonant bass as Hunding. As usual, von Karajan keeps the musical excitement in rein until the flood of emotion comes at the last moment. On the whole, this album provides first-class competition for the very highly praised recording of the opera on London Records.

BRUCKNER — Symphony No. 8: Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra, Eugen Jochum, cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON Stereo 139 136) — Jochum takes all but the second movement faster than Klemperer did in his much admired 1965 recording with the New Philharmonia. Jochum's brisker tempo in the first movement comes closer to being maiestoso than Klemperer's somewhat prosaic approach. However, Jochum's tempos were less successful in the last two movements. The third movement may be labelled scherzo, but it is a pretty daemonic joke and Klemperer's more deliberate tempo makes it terrifying in a way that Jochum's is not. On the whole, the New Philharmonia has the edge on the Bavarian Radio Symphony for sheer beauty of sound.

BRUCKNER — Symphony No. 7: Three Motets: 150th Psalm; Bavarian Radio Choir; Berlin German Opera Choir; Berlin Philharmonic, Eugen Jochum, cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON Stereo 139 137-38) — Jochum's interpretation of this glorious symphony is remarkably similar to Bruno Walter's on the Columbia recording.

Ecumenicity and the secular clergy

THE UNCERTAIN SOUND
by John H. McGoeey; S. F. M. Longmans; 224 pages; $5.95.

This book is one of many which have been published in the aftermath of Vatican II. Its purpose is to express the opinions of the secular priests of the Roman Catholic Church, rather than those of the bishops or laity. The writer points out that there are innumerable discussions taking place in rectories by interested priests to which neither the bishops or the laity are party.

THE UNCERTAIN SOUND is the result of opinions gathered through a questionnaire set up and given wide geographical distribution among the clergy. The questionnaire with the answers make up an appendix to the book.

In a sense McGoeey is trying to be the mouthpiece for the secular clergy. He takes a hard look at his church He assesses its strengths and its weaknesses. He concludes with some specific recommendations on (a) Clergy (b) Seminaries (c) Bishops, (d) Pastors, (e) Canon Law, (f) Liturgy and (g) Foreign Missions.

The chapter on, What History Could Teach Us, is very revealing. McGoeey claims that the great religious schisms of the past thousand years would have been unnecessary had the personalities involved taken the time and had the coolness to sit down and discuss their differences with intelligence and goodwill.

Regarding the Reformation, the writer states, that there were momentous wrongs, misconceptions, ignorance and bad will on both sides. There was not then sufficient time lapse between mind, emotion and muscle to make thoughtful consideration of the issues a factor in the conflict.

Nor was there for all concerned, easy access to a place of parley, and had they been so disposed. It has taken four hundred years of mellowing and now both sides are closer to agreeing that the only acceptable answer to any problem is the truth. There are some interesting observations given to the Questionnaire at the end of the book. This will have general interest to all readers but should be of particular interest to the Roman Catholics who would be interested in knowing what other Catholics think about the priesthood, foreign mission, liturgy, Catholic education, etc.

In these days of ecumenicity when the great religious faiths are seeking new lines of communication, and becoming increasingly involved in dialogue one with the other, this book should prove extremely valuable as source material.

TV show shrinks

LONDON (AP)—The first live round-the-world television program, Our World, shrank yesterday to 13 participating countries from 18 after the Communist countries pulled out to protest reporting of the Middle East crisis by Western TV stations.

It will be shown in Canada. The two-hour program Sunday was to have used one Soviet and three U.S. communication satellites but the Soviet Union withdrew Wednesday, saying that in the current international situation the program "has lost its original humanitarian idea."

New Zealand is changing from pounds, shillings and pence to decimal coinage on July 10, and I have just received in advance a souvenir set of the seven decimal coins from the first minting by the Royal Mint, London, England. The obverse of these coins depicts the effigy of Queen Elizabeth II, similar to the one presently used on Canadian coins, and the inscription "Elizabeth II, New Zealand 1967". Reverses were mentioned in a previous column.

Denominations consist of cent, two cents, five cents, ten cents, twenty cents, fifty cents and dollar. Cupro-nickel (75% copper, 25% nickel) is used for all the denominations except the bronze cent and two-cent pieces. The dollar is being issued in limited quantity only for commemorative purposes. It is not intended for circulation.

New Zealand first issued its own silver coinage in 1933 to replace British coins. These coins were in 50% silver alloy. Cupro-nickel was introduced in 1947, and has been used since then except for the 1949 crown which was a silver alloy. New Zealand first bronze coins (half-pennies and pennies) were issued in 1940 at the time of New Zealand's centennial celebrations. All coins have been struck by the Royal Mint, London.

The reverse designs of the sterling coins remained the same since the first issue, except when a special half-crown was issued in 1940 to commemorate the centenary of the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi. Commemorative crowns of a face value of five shillings or fifty cents were issued in 1935, 1949, and 1953.

Collecting

in the

Townships

Canadian covers have never been more popular than they are at the present time. Stamp collectors will find that the field is indeed a large one and that all types of cancellations are now collected. Many collectors want the "squared-circle" cancellations and some of these are very difficult to obtain, although a rather novel collection can be assembled without too much difficulty. We now find that the Barred Circle postmarks are wanted, and the duplex cancellations, patriotic slogans, three ring markings, and in fact all kinds of covers. There was a time when collectors wanted only the Cork Cancellations or other fancy items but all that is changed.

Thought laws

ATHENS (Reuters)—Greece's army-backed government has assumed power to suspend university professors for six months if their ideas do not conform with the "national ideal."

An act providing for this and published Wednesday in the official gazette, said such suspensions could be extended a further six months.

The prime minister, deputy premier and minister of education and religion would decide on such cases, it said.

It said reasons for action against university professors would be activities which could be construed as incompatible with the status or moral qualities of a university professor.

Québec family allowances

In response to many letters received by the Family and Social Welfare Department, this information is published to supplement that given in the folder which you received.

ENTITLEMENT TO QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Québec family allowances are payable for children under sixteen years old as of April 1, 1967, provided they attend school if of school age, unless prevented from doing so by physical or mental disability; children aged sixteen or over are not eligible even if attending school, although they do qualify for schooling allowances until their eighteenth birthday.
- The fact that a child is outside Québec does not cancel the entitlement of mother or father, as the case may be, to an allowance for such child. Thus, an allowance may be payable for a child who lives outside Québec for educational or health reasons.
- It is not necessary to register new-born infants. The Department is automatically informed of births and takes them into immediate account.

PAYMENT OF QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Québec family allowances are payable to the mother or the person taking her place, or to the father or the person taking his place; recipients must have had their domicile in Québec on April 1, 1967.
- Québec family allowances are paid in addition to those from the federal government. Some time after next July 1, if you qualify, you will receive a cheque covering allowances for April and May 1967. Twice yearly thereafter, on December 1 and June 1, you will receive cheques covering six months' allowances. Please note that introduction of the Québec plan has no effect on entitlement to or registration procedures for federal family allowances.
- The amount of Québec family allowances paid to the qualified person is based on the number of eligible children.
- Except for children who are wards of Québec in either foster homes or public charitable institutions, or under the Youth Protection Act, Québec family allowances are added to social assistance and security payments.
- Québec family allowances are not subject to income tax.

FORMS REQUIRED.

- If you receive a second application form, kindly complete and return it, even if you have already filed one. Payment of family allowances depends on your prompt attention to all forms sent you by the Québec Government.
- If you move, be sure to notify the postmaster of your change of address.
- The first Québec family allowance cheques will be mailed in stages beginning in early July. Since this is a large-scale operation, not all families will receive them at the same time.

INFORMATION ABOUT QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Persons who have written to inform the Department that their applications were not made out to their satisfaction may be sure that their case will receive special consideration and that they will not lose any allowances to which they are entitled.
- Those who are still waiting for the English folder they have requested will receive it within a few days.
- Your folder on Québec allowances answers many questions which people have been writing to ask the Department. This text answers still others. If, after reading both, you need more information, write to:

BORDER IODE

meets at home 100 years old

BOUNDARY — The last meeting of the season of Stansstead Chapter IODE was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Elder on the shores of Lake Memphremagog.

This being the Centennial Year of Canada it was especially interesting to the large number of members and guests that this gathering was held at this lovely home which was built in 1886 or 1887. Although moved from its original site, the house has been preserved in its original state.

The business meeting was held on the spacious lawn near the lake, with the regent, Mrs. W. T. Greer, presiding. Reports were heard and plans made for the next meeting to be held in September in Stansstead College reception rooms.

Mrs. Mabel Wallace, treasurer, distributed tickets for advance sale for the fall bazaar. Scrapbooks made by the grade five students of Sunny-side School were on display. These were left with a panel of three judges to make the final decision and Centennial medals, struck for the Stansstead Historical Society, are being presented for the best book and to the runner up.

Hunting and fishing in the E. T.

By NORM NICHOLL

WITH THE CELEBRATION of our hundredth birthday as Canadians this weekend, it might also be the opportune time to ponder what our streams, lakes and forests will be like in another hundred years.

It might be well to think for a few minutes on some facts that are becoming more evident now after a hundred years. Will these trends continue? Will our streams dry up without reforestation or will indiscriminate cutting reduce our watersheds? Will our lakes and rivers become so polluted they will be of no use for fishing, recreation and in fact for human use? Will the shorter working hours of labor and the longer fishing and hunting seasons allow for sufficient natural breeding of wild life or can we maintain such a balance of nature through the maintaining of rearing stations? (Are we willing to pay for such efforts?). Will there still be enough forest for our deer and other game animals?

Many say now "so what." In a hundred years from now we won't be around. Yet as citizens in a land of plenty where many of our forebears have bled and died for Canada, might it not be an eternal memorial to them to ensure green forest and blue waters where recreation, hunting and fishing will show our appreciation for their sacrifices?

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Quebec Wildlife Federation migratory birds committee along with representatives of the Canadian and Quebec Wildlife Services has been held. Reports showed that on the flyways the number of black ducks was six per cent fewer and dabbling ducks were some eight per cent less. Snow geese, after a good reproduction season, were reported to be some 60,000 while the Canada Goose population was estimated to be some 604,000, the highest ever recorded by the Canadian Wildlife Service. Here in Quebec it was recommended that steps be taken to maintain wetlands for breeding of migratory birds.

Dates set for the 67-68 season were:

Northern zone: Sept. 9 to Dec. 17; Central zone: Sept. 16 to Dec. 17; South zone: Sept. 23 to Dec. 17; Schefferville and North: Sept. 1 to Dec. 10.

Wilson Snipe: Same dates as ducks and geese; Woodcock: Sept. 16 to Nov. 19.

Plessisville rallies to down Als 5-1, Miners here tomorrow

Sherbrooke Alouettes dropped their sixth straight decision last night as the Plessisville Braves rallied for five big runs in the seventh inning to clip the hapless Als 5-1.

Big Simon Perez made his first appearance in three weeks to pitch seven innings. He was tagged with the loss while Henry Corbell limited the Als to three hits to win the game.

Lachine Mets slipped into first place, one half game ahead of Granby, as Al Gomez connected with two doubles and a single to lift the Mets over the lowly Quebec Indians 11-6. Jack Fitzpatrick registered his third victory on the mound against only one defeat while Labossiere suffered his fourth defeat against two wins.

Coaticook Canadiens won their fourth straight as they toppled Granby 9-2 behind the outstanding pitching of Pedro Siera. The win puts Coaticook in third place, just two games off the pace set by Lachine.

In the only other game played, the Drummondville Royals slew the Thetford Miners 9-4. The Thetford squad, which played what must be its worst game this season, has lost nine out of its last ten starts and is currently tied with Quebec in sixth place, six games behind the leader.

Tomorrow night, the Alouettes play host to the Thetford Miners at the Park Avenue Stadium in their third meeting this season. Sunday night, Sher-

Little league oop

by Ted Anderson

It is becoming very evident lately that the desire to win, by the coaches and managers, and the main objective of Little League is being lost. Little League baseball is for the benefit of the boy and I hope it remains as such.

Too much stress is being placed on winning and in some instances the coaches and managers overlook the principle factor in Little League, "win or lose I will strive to do my best." The boys are supposed to be leaders and the coaches the guiding hand but at times this being overlooked in order to win and this is bad.

The stress of going out to win each game puts the boys under tension and this way they don't get much fun out of the game. The "Boy" is still the big factor in Little League and the leadership shown to him he will always remember.

Tigers are still leading the loop and a big win over White Sox the past week puts them well in front. Their hitting is very prominent in their wins.

Red Sox are slowly creeping up on the leaders and this team is beginning to play as a unit. In the other games played during the week much improvement has been noticed. Team work is beginning to tell and the boys are getting to know each other's play and close games have been the result.

The Cowansville Little League is rolling along, Tigers and Pirates are fighting it out for top spot. Beauregard, Boucher and Blanchett, all pitchers, are showing up well. President Monast must be pleased with his circuit.

Starting this week, Bert Dussault, Tigers, Peter Bishop and Steve Richardson, both of the Twins.

Tigers blank White Sox while Senators and Orioles battle to stalemate, two games tonight

Tigers' power again was evident in their 8-0 win over White Sox last night as they slugged out 14 hits in the victory. Senators and Orioles battled out to a 4-4 tie in the other game played.

Tonight the Red Sox meet the Senators and Orioles play the Indians. These games were slated for June 22 but were postponed by wet grounds.

Tigers waited until the third inning before they hit the scoring column. A home run with one aboard by Polquin started things off. Hits by Raban and Rose sent in two more runs and at the end of four it was 4-0 in Tigers' favour.

Four hits in the fourth inning gave the Tigers three more runs. Pariseau, Cabana, Ducharme and R. Roy connected. Dussault and Ducharme hitting in the fifth knocked in the final Tiger tally. Bert Dussault allowed the Sox batters four scattered hits and had 12 strikeouts in his win.

Indians stop Tigers, Orioles edge White Sox

Fred Whitfield left the once high-flying and healthy Detroit Tigers beaten and bruised again.

The Cleveland Indians first baseman relaxed on the bench for seven innings, Thursday night, watching the Tigers roll merrily along with thoughts of victory dancing in their heads. Then stepping off the bench, he dashed them unmercifully with a pinch-hit, three-run homer in the eighth inning that gave the Indians a 5-3 triumph.

The loss was the 15th in 21 games for the second-place Tigers, who led the league until June 11. Detroit also lost another outfielder, Gates Brown, who joined all-star Al Kaline on the sidelines.

Brown suffered a dislocated left wrist trying to make a catch and will be out two weeks.

Still worse, the Tigers missed a chance to pick up a game on Chicago White Sox, who never had much reason for hope as Baltimore's Tom Phoebus cut them down on three hits, 4-1, in the only other American

Indians edge Clippers 3-2 in Massawippi tilt

Sherbrooke Indians of the Massawippi Baseball League profited from two ninth inning errors Wednesday night to squeak by Ayer's Cliff 3-2 in a game played at Sangster Park.

It was a crucial win for Sherbrooke as they are now nursing a 6-4 record and stand only four points behind the league-leading Cliff. The two teams have met five times so far with Ayer's Cliff having won three of the matches.

By the top of the eighth the Cliff was in front 2-1 on hits by Denton and Murphy. The Indians scored two unearned runs in the ninth as Cliff hurler Hall walked two men with a pair of costly errors and a lone hit by Roy bringing in the game-winning tallies.

Winning pitcher Marcel Caron allowed a total of five hits while loser Wayne Hall limited Sherbrooke to a mere three singles.

Ayer's Cliff plays two games this weekend, hosting Ascot on Saturday and meeting the same team again on Sunday in Ascot Corner.

AWESOME POWER
The first eight Giants to bat against Gibson reached base, and seven of them scored. San Francisco bunched 10 hits in the 11-run inning against Gibson and reliever Nelson Briles with Jim Hart's three-run homer clobbering the assault.

It wasn't quite as bad for Drysdale against the Reds. He was charged with six of the runs as the Reds charged to an 11-0 lead in the first three innings.

Tony Perez, Don Pavletich and Deron Johnson each slammed home runs and drove in three runs apiece as Cincinnati raked four Dodgers pitchers for 18 hits.

MONTREAL — (CP) — He considers himself a rabbit but looks more like a hawk — a hungry one.

That's 24-year-old Laurie Hammer of Sarasota, Fla., who suddenly plummeted himself into golfdom's spotlight with a five-under-par 66 and the first round leadership of the Canadian Open Thursday.

A rabbit on the tension-packed pro golf circuit is a newcomer who has to chase the field for a qualifying spot in the big tournament. Hammer qualified last Monday.

With only 18 months experience behind him and just $2,103.58 in earnings this year, the 6-foot-4, 205 pounder took a tip from veteran Gary Player of South Africa which apparently paid off.

"He (Player) told me that all players have a tendency to decelerate on the downswing because of their long backswing," Hammer said. "That's bad because you should accelerate on the downswing to have maximum club speed at contact."

Hammer said he was concentrating on this for "my best round of the year." It included five birdies and no over-par holes.

PLAYERS FADES
Meanwhile, Player, who had burned up the course with practice rounds of 66 and 65 Tuesday and Wednesday, found himself far back at 75.

Tied behind Hammer in second spot with four-under-par 67s were two other relative unknowns — Roger Ginsberg and Steve Reid, Veteran Art Wall.

Dave Stockton and Gardner Dickinson each registered 68s. Both are recent tournament winners, Dickinson won the Cleveland Open last Sunday and Stockton won the Colonial Invitation tournament at Fort Worth several weeks back.

Bunched at 69 was a mixture of old faces and newcomers. Labron Harris, Jack Nicklaus, Argentina's Roberto De Vicenzo, Hugh Royer, Jr., and Arnold Palmer, whose rivalry with Nicklaus never falters, finished with a 72. He said he hit "a couple of bad drives . . . worse today than in a long time."

FAST START
Nicklaus said he missed five putts inside five feet and "I hit a lot of half-sloppy shots, but I'm pleased with a 69 in an opening round because I'm not a fast starter."

Stockton counted seven birdies in putting together his 68 and had 10 one-putt greens. Unlike most of the contenders, Stockton stayed out of trouble on the controversial 17th. The 230 yd. par-three hole has been described as a wasteland and a disaster area since the practice rounds started Monday.

Two men, Luc Brien of Montreal and Steve Opperman of San Francisco, five-putted the hole.

Worried tournament officials decided treatment is needed after an astounding 78 players missed par on the hole, 21 and others missed it by two strokes late in the day.

By WALKER RILEY

Macdonald College

So help me, I used to think life was pretty hectic at times at home on the farm once haying started. Old Sally, who had an instinct for timing such things would choose not to come up for milking the day that you were racing a thundershower and trying to squeeze chores between loads of hay. And your neighbour would phone that your young cattle were in his barn for the third time that day, and if they weren't out in half an hour, someone would be having fresh beefsteak for supper. And the hay fork pulley jammed in the peak of the barn, the one beside the hornet's nest, and the temperature something over ninety, if anyone took time to look.

But all that was sweet peace compared with the last few days at the College. Being Expo year, we have found ourselves hosts to more agricultural organizations than I ever knew existed.

And there is something in that word "Extension" on the sign over our door that leads people to think it is the place to come in any emergency. Anything from a pitcher of water, ("Quick, please") for the guest speaker; to locating a lost delegate, ("Have him call operator 26 in Vancouver, please, it's urgent"); babysitting a batch of convention orphans, ("We know they would just love to see the little lambs"); to producing a spare part for a tape recorder, ("You must have one around somewhere"); to conjuring six men out of thin air at four minutes to five to move a massive display, ("Now come on, are you that tangled up in red tape?"); to being an impromptu printing service, ("Do you think you could have someone run off a hundred copies of this in Spanish? We need it in ten minutes"). And always they come six at a time.

It's all part of the job of being a good host. And it all totals up to helping solve some of the world's problems. But at the end of a day, you can't count the bales in the hay barn.

It's fun, though. And you meet people from all over the world. Last week, for instance, there was the First International Congress of Farm Writers, Agricultural Journalists, Broadcasters, TV people from 15 nations pooled their experience to help solve the problem of the world food shortage.

That convention overlapped with the College's own Centennial Symposium, "The Food Resources of Mankind". I did manage to hear Dr. Glen Burton's talk, "Food Resources in the Plant Kingdom". Dr. Burton is principal geneticist, crop research division, with the US department of agriculture.

Dr. Burton said that out of 350,000 known species of plants, fifteen fed the world. He said a careful search had failed to turn up any other useful ones. Half the world's supply of protein now comes from cereal grasses, but in an unbalanced form.

The extra food needed by a hungry world, he said, would most likely be met in three ways. First, plant breeders would make use of hidden genes to improve present varieties. He quoted corn for an example, which is short of two essential amino acids, tryptophan and lysine.

Amino acids are the building blocks of protein. And it is lack of protein that's the first cause of malnutrition in most of the world.

Plant breeders at Cornell. Dr. Burton explained, had discovered that "opaque 2", a hidden gene in certain kinds of corn, also had the characteristic of high lysine. Now they are on their way to a commercial corn with a higher and better balanced protein. Dr. Burton sees an untapped potential of protein for human food in the forage species. At present, we process forages, inefficiently, through animals. The animal eats the forage. We eat the animal. And we lose most of the original value. He doesn't doubt we will find a way to extract the amino acids we want.

Melbourne

Mrs. Philip Smith, Montreal West, spent a few days guest of Mrs. Bertie Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wells, Joliet, Mich., were here to attend the funeral of Mr. Stanley Farquhar of Upper Melbourne. Mrs. Emma Hall, Laurier, Man., is spending some time with Mrs. Gladys Perkins.

Mrs. F. N. Fleming, Pointe Claire, Mrs. John McManis, of Grand Forks, B.C., and daughter, Mrs. Jack Cobbin, Vancouver, B.C., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Fleming and called on several friends.

EXPERT SKILL, AMATEUR LUCK

Stories of the unlucky expert and the very bad bridge player have appeared in this column before. Usually even the unluckiest of experts comes out all right against a very bad bridge player. This time the bad bridge player's ineptness led to defeat for the expert.

South's three no-trump contract was normal enough but the spade lead was slightly embarrassing. He ducked the first spade on general principles but West continued the suit and South was in. The hand was one of those typical laydowns. As you can see, the club finesse was on and South could take it and bring him his nine tricks.

South was ready to try clubs eventually but he saw an extra chance. East just might happen to hold the singleton king of diamonds so South played out the ace of diamonds.

As far as East knew he did hold the singleton king and he played it. South smiled happily and led a diamond to dummy's 10. East discarded a spade and South was about to lead another diamond when West asked, "No diamonds, partner?"

"No diamonds," replied East.

An adjacent laundry room makes this three-bedroom house especially convenient to handle. Nice extras are two terraces, one private for the master bedroom, the other as an outdoor entertaining area beyond the living room. Living area is 1,100 square feet (not including service area). Plans for CN-7101 are available from Progressive House Plans, 48 West 48th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036.
