Sixty-Fourth Year

Blame taken by Lonsdale

LONDON — (AP) — Gordon A. Lonsdale, mystery man of the British naval secrets trial, dramatically acknowledged in court today that spy equipment found in a suburban bungalow belonged to him.

The key figure in the spy trial, variously represented as an American, a Russian and a Canadian, took full blame for a radio transmitter which could be beamed to Moscow, a cigarette lighter with secret compartments, photographic equipment with microdots used in espionage and some fake passports.

The house where Scotland Yard found the assorted paraphernalia was owned by Peter Kroger, 50, and his wife, Helen, 47.

Lonsdale said they were innocent of any connection with the suspect items. He also claimed that $2,000 in American money found in the house also belonged to him.

Lonsdale made his statement from the defendants' table in Old Bailey courtroom without taking the witness stand and without being sworn, a procedure that prevented his being cross-examined.

IDENTIFIED BY FBI
(The Krogers have been identified by the FBI in Washington as Morris Cohen and his wife Lola, American citizens and former residents of New York.)

Lonsdale spoke for seven minutes as soon as court convened. He made no mention of the remaining two defendants, Henry F. Houghton, 55-year-old British naval clerk, and Houghton's

Livestock market
MONTREAL — (CP) — Morning offerings on the Montreal livestock markets amounted to 20 cattle, 51 calves and 14 hogs.

Monday 513 cattle, 823 calves, 91 hogs and 53 sheep and lambs were offered.

Release story of all-out fight to save lives of Regina babies
REGINA (CP) — The story of brought back and the Red Cross notified of the immediate need of five infants, who died in the Grey Nuns' Hospital during the weekend was told Monday in a statement released by the hospital medical staff and officials.

The babies died after a solution of boric acid apparently was used by mistake instead of distilled water in their feeding formulas.

The statement says extra operating rooms were cleared Friday, laboratory technicians

Mercury plunges

The first day of spring brought sunshine to the Eastern Townships Monday but the pleasure was dulled by cold weather and by warnings of snow with a chance of freezing rain for tomorrow.

The predicted high of 38 degrees which was to accompany Spring in this area yesterday, just never came.

In fact, during the night the thermometer plummeted to a cold 12 below zero, while the highest temperature yesterday was 21 above.

Although this is no record low, it was not the exact kind of weather that Eastern Township residents could call for the first day of spring.

As soon as Lonsdale accepted full responsibility for the items found in the Kroger home, the Krogers made statements in a similar manner—not under oath—that they were innocent.

"Neither my wife nor I engaged in spying or any activities which may be considered or regarded as irregular," said Kroger.

All five defendants, charged with conspiracy to violate the Official Secrets Act, had pleaded not guilty.

Delegate's death delays UN talks
UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko reopens the explosive Congo question before the UN General Assembly today after an overnight delay because of the death of a Cuban delegate.

Manuel Biste, Cuba's 55-year-old permanent representative at the UN, collapsed outside the General Assembly hall Monday and died of a heart attack just before the Congo debate was to open. The assembly adjourned after observing a minute of silence for the dead diplomat.

Fire drives infants from nursery
By MALCOLM DAIGNEAULT (Record Staff Reporter)

Fire that broke out in a small room adjoining the nursery at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital here Monday afternoon, forced the hurried removal of 26 infants and caused damage estimated at more than $5,000.

Firemen laid hundreds of feet of hose through the corridors and up three flights of stairs to reach the blaze which they said was apparently caused by a short circuit in the wiring in the wall.

By the time they arrived, all the babies had been taken to another part of the hospital by "nurses who literally grabbed the little ones and ran with them" according to Business Manager J. H. St. Louis.

The statement says this treatment continued until Sunday afternoon, although by noon five infants had died.

Insists on 3-point arms plan

K. would agree to 'any' control

Did all he could Verwoerd claims

CAPE TOWN — Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd told parliament in a message today he had "done everything possible to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth, but matters reached a point beyond which he could not continue."

Verwoerd sent a message to parliament that he could not address it in person this afternoon as expected, but would do so Thursday.

He said he understood that British Prime Minister Macmillan would make a statement in the House of Commons Wednesday and "in these circumstances, I do not think I should make my statement until Mr. Macmillan has made his."

Nevertheless Verwoerd made his points in a message to parliament that he was forced to withdraw South Africa from the Commonwealth — a point which his political opposition sceptically challenged.

Indications earlier were that Verwoerd might make a dramatic announcement in parliament today, possibly the calling of a general election, Reuters reported.

SERVICES HELP
Verwoerd's message came as memorial services were held to mark the first anniversary of Sharpeville — a name which has become known around the world.

It was at Sharpeville that 69 Negroes were killed and 180 were wounded by police gunfire in an incident that provoked a five-month-long emergency throughout South Africa. The Negroes were protesting laws that required them to carry identification passes.

Police and defence forces were on the alert to prevent any commemorative demonstration.

LONDON — (Reuters)

Nikita Khrushchev today said the Soviet Union will agree to "any" control over its sweeping three-stage disarmament plan.

In a three-hour speech from the Asian republic of Kazakhstan broadcast throughout Russia by Moscow Radio, the Soviet premier said Russia will "accept any conditions of control on disarmament if our proposals on disarmament are accepted."

Khrushchev last September proposed a three-stage disarmament plan before the United Nations General Assembly in New York. The stages were:

1. Elimination of nuclear weapons, their means of delivery and manufacture.
2. Prohibition of all means of mass destruction, including chemical and biological warfare, destruction of stockpiles and further reduction of armed forces and armaments to levels to be agreed.
3. Completion of the abolition of armed forces, leaving only limited militia for internal order, destruction of all types of conventional arms and ammunition and destruction of military equipment or its conversion to peaceful uses.

(The West has previously dismissed this standard offer from Khrushchev as meaningless because it is never backed up by any agreement to specific control measures. In all disarmament negotiations, the Russians have insisted that control machinery can be worked out only after the nations agree to disarm until they can be assured such an agreement can be enforced.)

GIVEN BIG WELCOME

The prime minister, champion of apartheid, was welcomed by emotional crowds at Johannesburg and Cape Town Monday on his return from the London Commonwealth prime ministers conference where he withdrew South Africa's application for continued membership in the Commonwealth.

Rusk urges 'crisis' force
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — American State Secretary Dean Rusk Monday suggested creation of a permanent United Nations armed force to be available for speedy use in crisis areas such as the Congo.

In a speech prepared for Founders' Day ceremonies at the University of California, Rusk said a major question is whether the international community can forge instruments needed "to revolve conflicts and make co-operation more effective."

Severe storms lashed East Pakistan during the weekend, damaging more than 400 homes. The victims in the storm-hit church included many women and children.

Sees an end to recession

OTTAWA — (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson held out hope Monday that Canada's economic picture may brighten by summer — with no credit due to the government.

He told the Commons there is a chance the recession may be over by the end of the year — a recession, he said, that never existed so far as the Progressive Conservative administration is concerned.

Attacking the government on the job crisis generally, Mr. Pearson voiced this note of optimism: "It may well be that in the second and third quarter we will get out of the trough of this depression in the summer and will begin to move up in the autumn."

The Liberal leader peered at Canada's economic prospects in a Commons speech flogging the government's tax incentive program for new industries in areas of chronic unemployment.

He wondered how the government would take credit for curing a recession it wouldn't admit existed, but added that "they are pretty agile at that kind of illogicality."

Estimates cost of pack-a-day
TORONTO (CP) — The man who smokes a pack of cigarettes a day probably cuts eight years off his life and the two-pack man likely loses 18 years.

Dr. Linus Pauling told 1,300 University of Toronto students Monday night.

Dr. Pauling, 1954 Nobel Prize winner in chemistry, is chairman of the division of chemistry and chemical engineering at the California Institute of Technology. He is an authority on proteins and other "giant molecules" of the human body.

Could live through atom war

ARNP RIOR Ont. (CP) — Canada and Canadians can survive a nuclear war and the sooner defeatists realize this the better prepared the country will be to meet possible attack.

This opinion was expressed Monday by Deputy Director J. F. Wallace of the Civil Defence College here.

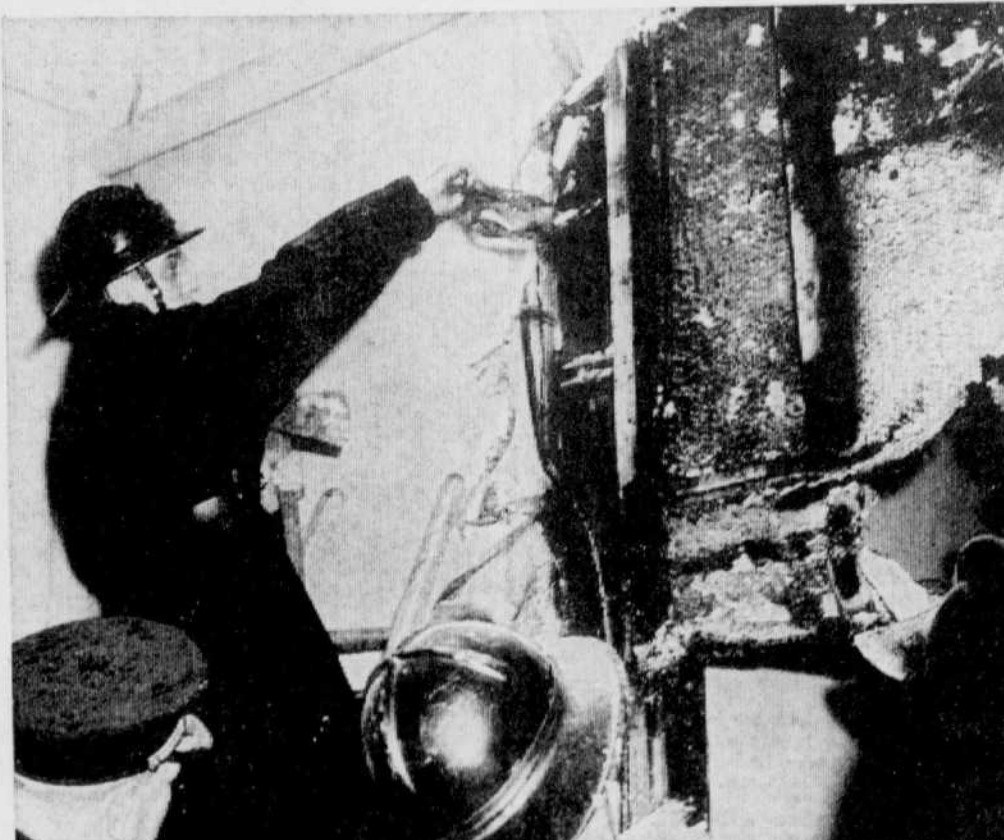

He told 17 municipal officials starting a four-day course that the intention of the course is not to create "a war mentality" but to counteract the emotional tendencies of the people who think they'd be better off dead than going through a nuclear war.

Although the continent could get as little as 15 minutes warning of attack, even the most likely Canadian targets would be secondary to strategic objectives in the United States, Mr. Wallace said.

The main threat to this country is radioactive fallout, he said, and the first duty of Canadian officials, especially at the municipal level, is to encourage people to have fallout shelters close by.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some fellows collect stamps, others green-eyed blonds. Tom Ewell's pastime is houses.

He's not one of those who deals in real estate. He just likes to look at houses, and he's been doing it for years.

This preoccupation has finally paid off. A publishing firm has commissioned him to write about houses he has known.

How did he get started? "I guess it started when I came out here about 10 years ago," he said. "I didn't know many people in Hollywood. I found that looking at houses was a wonderful way to occupy the weekends."

"One of my drives was the actor's yen to have his own place where he can settle down; we never have that, you know. And it also gave me an outlet for my actor's imagination. I liked to imagine what happened to the houses I visited. Each has its own personality. There are sad houses and there are happy houses. You can tell them immediately."

"I never look at new houses. There is something repugnant about a new house; usually it has been built on speculation and no love has gone into them."

"I have studied houses both in California and around New York. Each has its own style. Out here the houses seem to be influenced by the movies. I saw one house that looked inspired by Spartacus. I've seen others that seemed to date back to Shirley Temple with story-book houses."

Food problem topic at Sutton Mission circle

SUTTON — The topic presented by Mrs. Andrew Moffat, in the absence of Mrs. Fred Knights, at the monthly meeting of Olivet Baptist Church Mission Circle held at the home of Miss Hazel Bates on March 16, was the problem of world population explosion and essential food supplies.

Even back in early mission times in India, it was shown, William Carey, took some seeds to plant in India and now, in connection with the agricultural part of Baptist missionary work in that Commonwealth nation and in Bolivia, specialists are sent to experiment and increase food production. More will join these in future years.

All members were glad to hear from Mrs. G. Gillespie that Rev. Gordon Allan, in Sutton some years ago as a student pastor, has now accepted a call to serve the Baptist church at Point St. Charles and that he signed soon to visit here. He resigned his Sutton charge about six years ago.

Mrs. Roland Gibson presided. Mrs. Moffat conducted the devotional. There was a routine business meeting. The hostess served refreshments.

Met at the door by former Girls Auxiliary members, Mrs. Jean West and Mrs. Glenna Dustin, also Mrs. Don Lyon, her sister, the surprised guest was presented with a rose and escorted by Mrs. West to the tables, followed by Mrs. Dustin and Mrs. Lyon, as Mrs. Howard Rollins played Here Comes the Bride on the piano. More than 50 well-wishers were present.

Mrs. Westman read in verse a welcome to everyone, and to the bride-to-be. Mrs. Lyon assisted in unwrapping the gifts. There were three special gifts, from fellow teachers, several of whom were present, Girls Auxiliary and a number who presented an electric kettle, also a large number of individual gifts all most useful.

Miss Huckins thanked everyone for their generosity.

Lunch was served at large tables and at a smaller table, for the former fellow G.A. members and the bride elect, by Guild members.

Two shower cakes had been made by Mrs. Jack Kington and Mrs. Leonard Flanders.

Ask new tax for education

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Province Roman Catholic School Boards Federation is to form a "march on Quebec" by 400 school board members Thursday to urge a general provincial sales tax for education purposes.

The federation has been advocating a general sales tax since 1951. It represents 1,360 of the province's 1,530 school boards.

President Paul Desrochers announced the "march" after a meeting of the federation's executive committee here to prepare a brief to be presented to the government Thursday.

PROPOSES WOODEN SIDEWALK TO BORDER HOWARD'S PARK

Mayor Armand Nadeau suggested Monday night that the proposed sidewalk on the south side of Portland Street between Ontario and Argyle Streets should be constructed of wood where it borders Howard's Park, to lend "harmony" to the area.

He had some difficulty convincing North Ward Alderman Everett Nicol that his suggestion was a serious one, but finally succeeded after discussing the aesthetic qualities of such a sidewalk.

However, Ald. Nicol did not approve of the suggestion and held out for a conventional cement construction.

Even in the face of a general outback of allotments for public works to each ward, he insisted that the sidewalk "must be built this year for the safety of the schoolchildren."

Several aldermen attempted to persuade him to postpone the project and devote the money to more extensive street paving in the North Ward, but he said, "I will not give that up. We've been after it for five years and you all agreed that it would be built this year. It's not just the expense—the safety of the schoolchildren is at stake."

The latter point silenced his opposition.

And there was no further mention of a wooden sidewalk.

Contracts awarded to Ingersoll-Rand

A contract for two jackhammers was awarded to Canadian Ingersoll Rand Co. Ltd. Monday night after the third consecutive week of discussion on tenders which were opened March 6.

At that time, it was discovered that two firms were offering the machines made by CIR at lower prices than the parent company itself was asking.

And two other firms submitted lower tenders on a different make of jackhammer than Ingersoll Rand did.

Plans for a 180-car parking lot on Wellington Street South which would cost the city $183,000 less than the one proposed by the merchants in that zone were submitted to city council by Director of Services Charles Langlois and Engineer Jacques Lemieux Monday night.

They also submitted an alternate plan for a 163-car capacity parking lot which would cost the city $79,000 less than the 129-car capacity lot proposed by the merchants.

The merchant's plan, called Project A, would be similar to the Webster Parking Lot, except that it would have four stories, and would be constructed at a cost of $656,000.

The plan which would save the city $79,000, called Project B, would be similar in construction to Project A, but would occupy different, less expensive terrain.

Total cost would be $577,000.

A third plan, called Project C, would occupy the same terrain but would differ in construction. It would utilize an elevator to move cars from level to level, rather than runways as used in the Webster Parking Lot. It would have a 180-car capacity with room for expansion to 290-car capacity and would cost $473,000.

Although considerably less expensive than the other two, it would cost an estimated $5,500 more annually to operate. And annual revenues would be only $744 more.

Project A would be constructed adjacent to Depot Street with an entrance from Wellington Street, necessitating the expropriation of the Hotel Windsor, the War Surplus Store, Povey's, and buildings owned by Mrs. A. Brault and G. Rouillard.

Projects B and C would be constructed adjacent to Wellington Street and would necessitate the expropriation of the I. Salois, G. Rouillard and G. Giroux buildings. This land and property would cost the city an estimated $199,600 whereas the holdings mentioned in Project A would cost an estimated $271,000.

All three are in the same general area and all provide for an exit and entrance on Depot Street and an entrance only from Wellington Street.

Compared in cost to the Webster Parking Lot, all are more expensive. That lot was built at a cost of $1,700 per place for a car. Project A would cost $5,085, Project B would cost $3,540 and Project C would cost $2,630 per place.

The 43 proprietors from Zone 5 in the South Ward who petitioned for the lot have agreed to guarantee payments and interest on the loan which the city will have to obtain. If the lot pays for itself, they will not be called upon for donations.

Mr. Langlois concluded his report by telling the aldermen that all three of the plans would be satisfactory from the point of view of parking space and said that the problem was simply one of finances.

$2,500 in damages

ET fires leave 11 homeless

Two fires in the Eastern Townships Monday forced 11 people from their homes and burned two automobiles causing total damage estimated at $2,500.

Fire broke out in a three family tenement in Bury Monday night about 8:30 p.m.

Honore Lapierre who owns the building, his wife and five children, Mrs. Eudore Savage and her two children, and Arthur Lapage were all in the building when the fire broke out.

The fire apparently started in Mr. Lapage's apartment which was almost completely gutted.

Damage to the other two apartments was mostly caused by smoke and water.

Fifteen members of the Bury Volunteer Fire Department under chief Walter Atkins fought the blaze for about two hours.

The building which had been converted from an Oddfellows hall into apartments was insulated with shavings which made the firemen's task more difficult.

The fire was extinguished about 11:30 p.m. According to Chief Atkins the fire was probably caused by faulty wiring.

No estimate of the damage was given. Mr. Lapierre was the only person who was injured.

A combination barn and garage containing two automobiles was burned to the ground Monday morning in Fulford after a fire broke out about 9 p.m.

Members of the Knowlton fire department who arrived a short time later were unable to save the cars but managed to prevent the fire from spreading to another garage and the home of the owner of the building, Arthur Wright.

In addition to the two automobiles, furniture and toys were stored in the 24 by 30 foot building.

Mr. Wright had tried to get the cars out when he first noticed the fire but was forced back by the flames.

No one was injured in the fire, and the origin of the blaze is not known.

Kiwanis speaker

Income tax changes said little help now

The last Federal Income Tax Amendments may have in future years some very beneficial effects but they offer very little for solving the immediate problems facing us, the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke was told Monday night.

Professor Jean Lanctot of the University of Sherbrooke said: "It is to be hoped that the next budget will look a little more closely at the short term picture."

During the week preceding last Christmas two baby budgets were tabled, one Federal and one Provincial. These budgets brought with them important tax amendments for Canadians in general and Quebecers in particular, and Professor Lanctot briefly reviewed these changes.

A recent tax measure, double depreciation, for an initial period of two years commencing with 1961, will be deducted in any of the first three subsequent years for certain assets, he required, he said, but this tax measure "will not cure our market can absorb them all."

serious unemployment problem although it could be a step in the right direction if it had a wider and a longer application."

Commenting on changes in withholding tax the professor explained that certain concessions to the 15 percent withholding tax on transfer of bond interest and dividend to non-residents have been made over the years.

"These concessions will no longer apply in the case of bonds issued after December 20, 1960 and the normal 15 percent withholding will have to be deducted from interest payable to non-residents on these new issues," he said. "This measure should favour more bond issues in any of the first three subsequent years for certain assets, he required, he said, but this tax measure "will not cure our market can absorb them all."

Education and job opportunities

If there ever was a time when it was necessary to impress upon the Canadian people the importance of education it is right now. One would think that the vital part of an adequate education in improving the position of our youth would have been long acknowledged. But every day educators and those dealing with employment problems feel called upon to urge Canadian parents to leave their children in school for as long as possible.

Appearing before the Senate manpower committee, Prof. W. D. Wood of Queen's University said there was an employment problem as well as an unemployment problem. There were high levels of unemployment among unskilled and semi-skilled groups but there is a rapidly growing demand for more highly-trained manpower.

There are many difficulties in the way of putting older men presently unemployed through courses that would give them greater skills. Many are family men with family responsibilities. The training course sometimes is fairly long, during which time the trainees would be required to support themselves and their families.

But such a condition — a scarcity of workers amid large-scale unemployment — could be alleviated in the future if every young person at present in school were encouraged to take further studies. Not only would his prospects be brighter but he would not be seeking to enter a labor market that is already over-saturated.

The ideal comes first

One of the criticisms that has been levelled at Prime Minister Diefenbaker for the prominent role he played in the events leading up to the withdrawal of South Africa from the Commonwealth is that other Commonwealth countries are far from free of abuses of human rights similar to those of which South Africa was accused.

Critics both at home and abroad point out that Dr. Nkrumah of Ghana jails and deports those who oppose his regime.

They point out that in India, Pakistan, and Ceylon, freedom of the press is far from complete.

They note that Canada's immigration policy is designed to discourage the emigration of colored people and Chinese to this country.

No one will deny these arguments, but they are beside the point.

There is an ideal to be aimed at when one talks of human rights.

The way to achieve progress is to set up the ideal first, and then aim at it.

Waiting until reality corresponds to ideal accomplishes nothing.

By showing a willingness to accept the ideal of universal human dignity, Canada and the other Commonwealth countries showed that at least, they were aware of their own shortcomings as compared with the goal set up.

South Africa showed no such awareness.

Concealed weapon craze

Police concern over the number of firearms, especially revolvers and pistols, and other offensive weapons in the possession of the people of this province is understandable.

According to spokesmen for the Quebec Provincial Police and Montreal municipal police, there are over twenty thousand registered revolvers and pistols in Montreal alone. And the number registered is estimated at a bare ten per cent of the total number of concealed weapons hanging around.

Law enforcement officials are not so worried about the weapons, registered and unregistered, being used by ordinary citizens to start a crime wave. But the existence of these weapons in the hands of individuals hold a dual menace to law enforcement.

First, they encourage house-breaking by would-be lawbreakers seeking to obtain possession of a revolver or pistol. Then, when serial numbers are filed off, they permit the thief or hold-up artist to proceed with his career of crime.

The psychology of some people toward the owning of a revolver is difficult to fathom, the reasons offered when applying for a permit to carry the weapons sometimes verging on the fantastic. For the most part, revolvers are useless and dangerous weapons around the house or as a hunting instrument. Their effective range is too limited for use in hunting and at home they may be mistaken by youngsters for some of the realistic toy guns now on sale.

And as a means of preventing hold-ups, the belief that the intended victim carries a gun is more likely to cause violence than to halt the robbery attempt.

Worth asking if only for record

Why did South Africa walk out?

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Why, finally, did South Africa decide to leave the Commonwealth?

The question seems worth asking, if only for the record. So far, accounts differ on how the fateful decision came to be made.

British reports of the closed conference sessions suggest that

South Africa could have remained in the Commonwealth if she had been willing to offer one millimetre of concession.

Premier Hendrik Verwoerd reports that he was in effect frozen out by the vindictiveness of some countries, namely Canada and the Afro-Asian nations.

He says that he was all set to sign a Commonwealth statement outlining the condemnation by the other countries of racial discrimination.

What, then, went wrong? What is the true story?

Allowing for the fact that private meetings between the leaders of 11 countries, on a subject that arouses strong partisan feelings, are bound to lead to varying accounts of proceedings, it seems reasonable to give this outline of the events that forced out South Africa:

All the countries present were willing to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth and sought sincerely for a formula that would make it possible.

Verwoerd valued the Commonwealth association highly and he, too, tried hard for a solution.

Last Wednesday, after 2½ days of dignified but tense discussion, rare in the history of Commonwealth conferences, it seemed certain that the "club" would remain intact. Negotiators had come up with a "piece of paper" containing a conference communiqué apparently acceptable to all.

Then by some odd chemistry of the conference, some interaction of personality, the picture changed. Perhaps the decisive factor was that it became clear that Verwoerd did not intend to allow non-white diplomatic missions in South Africa.

Since consultation is the lifeblood of the Commonwealth, this was regarded as a cardinal point. The attitude of the Afro-Asians suddenly stiffened. There were indications by some members that they would continue to raise, at future conferences, the question of South Africa's race policies.

Some hinted they might have to leave the Commonwealth if South Africa remained.

It became clear to Verwoerd that the issue was fundamental, that there was no point remaining in an association many of whose members had so clearly indicated that South Africa's presence was an embarrassment.

To other members, it became clear that no compromise, no form of words, would do any lasting good.

In broad terms, that may be a reasonably accurate version of how the Commonwealth took the way out of its founder members. It was, as the magazine the Economist says, a "curiously stirring" episode, one greatly in contrast with the Commonwealth's usual method of solving problems by simply taking no decision at all.

One Bow pamphlet scored snobbery in the party. While most Bowmen are graduates of Oxford and Cambridge, the pamphlet played the party leader for picking most election candidates from graduates of the top schools.

Their most sensational line urged a liberal colonial policy on the Conservative government a few years ago when Britain was hesitant in meeting the demands of African nationalism.

The Bow Group first promoted the idea of a world refugee year, taken up by the government and put into effect in 1960.

A defence blueprint published by a Bow committee recently proposed scraping Britain's independent H-bomber force in favor of a NATO nuclear deterrent. It said NATO nations should draw closer together and form an Atlantic common market.

Hay fever havens

Large cities rag-weed-ridden

OTTAWA (CP) — The worst places in Canada for a hay fever victim to live or visit are the two largest cities—Montreal and Toronto.

Both cities—and for that matter all Southern Ontario and the St. Lawrence and Ottawa River valleys as far east as Quebec City — are polluted with rag-weed, the main cause of hay fever.

The conclusion is reached in an up-to-date study of airborne pollens. It was conducted by I. J. Bassett and Dr. Clarence Frankton of the agriculture department's plant research institute here.

Results of their work have been incorporated in a 31-page booklet called Canadian Hayfevers from Hay Fever, distributed by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

It lists most communities in Canada and says that those with a pollen index of more than 10 should be avoided by persons cursed with the eye-watering, sniffing, wheezing, throat-tickling malady. The count of 10 is the number of pollen grains found in one cubic yard of air.

Highest index in Canada is in the eastern part of Scarborough, a Toronto suburban area, with 67.4. Other Toronto-area indexes include 65 in the central part of Etobicoke, 58.8 in Willowdale and 39.3 at city hall.

Farnham, Que., southeast of Montreal, has an index of 64. In Montreal the indexes include 58.8 at Dorval, 55.4 at St. Martin, 51.9 at Caughnawaga and 27.7 at McGill University.

Other indexes include 11.1 in Quebec City, 15.4 in Ottawa, 59.7 in Hamilton and 38.5 in London, Ont.

Where are the havens? It depends largely on which places have the least amount of rag-weed to distribute its toxic pollen through the air.

Newfoundland is a "safe haven," as are most parts of the other Atlantic provinces except for Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley and a few other areas.

Best spot in Quebec is the Gaspé Peninsula. Other good areas include the Lake St. John district, the big northern counties of Temiscamingue and Abitibi, as well as several localities

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

in the Laurentian area north of Montreal.

Virtually all of Northern Ontario is considered a safe retreat. This includes Kirkland Lake, Timmins, Cochrane, Kapuskasing, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. Nearly as good are some of the wooded areas in the Muskoka Lakes area of central Ontario.

Riding Mountain National Park and the northern part of Manitoba are that province's main havens. Ragweed pollen sufferers are safe in all of the other two Prairie provinces except possibly the extreme southern part of Saskatchewan and Alberta's southeast corner, around Medicine Hat.

But the best of them all is British Columbia. "Undoubtedly one of the safest areas in Canada," the report says. Ragweed is rare. This applies to the entire province.

For those fortunate enough not to know, hay fever is an inflammation of the eyes, nose and throat. Sometimes it involves the bronchial tubes and produces asthma. It is a non-contagious malady that affects an estimated 10 per cent of the population.

These people over-react to airborne pollens. All flowering plants, including weeds and trees and grasses, produce pollen but not all of them figure in hay fever.

Pollen from insect-pollinated plants usually is large and sticky and falls to the ground close to the plants. Among these is the goldenrod—often falsely accused of causing hay fever. Its pollen can cause the symptoms but seldom gets into the air.

It is the wind-pollinated plant that causes the trouble, if that pollen is toxic. Spruce trees put enormous quantities of pollen in the air but it isn't toxic.

Main culprits are a few weeds such as ragweeds, Russian thistle, summer cypress, wormwoods, pigweeds and plantains; some grasses such as timothy, Kentucky blue grass and orchard grass; and a few trees, including alder, poplars, oaks, ashes, birches, beech, elm and maples.

Ragweed, because of its abundance and specific toxic qualities, is the worst.

The Bow Group

Celebrate 10th year of stirring up politics

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of young men who hardly ever get angry but still manage to stir up British politics celebrated the 10th anniversary of their society recently.

They call themselves the Bow Group. Their self-appointed mission is to stimulate the political movement of their choice, the Conservative party, with a constant flow of ideas on topics ranging from colonial policy in Africa to river pollution in Wales.

The Conservative party bosses scarcely noticed when the original band of 30 youthful businessmen, lawyers, advertising men and journalists clubbed together in East London's Bow Bells tavern and started to pepper the political atmosphere with pamphlets. But the leaders soon had to pay attention.

The proposals, designed to spur the old Tory warhorse out of its plodding ways, often scorned sacred principles and sometimes seemed shocking pink to the diehard wing of the party.

Among the early members was Lord Altrincham, who wants to modernize the monarchy. Former track star Chris Chataway, the man who paced Roger Bannister to the first four-minute mile, is one of a handful of members of Parliament who helped give the group a name as a fast-moving reform body.

OUT AT 36
Bowmen, who must retire from the group when they are 36, believe there is no conflict in linking the words progressive and Conservative, as in Canada's governing party.

They dissent dynamically from a 19th-century view of conservatism, given by a Conservative prime minister, as a process of drifting lazily down stream, occasionally putting out a diplomatic boathook to avoid collision.

CLUBS BETTER THAN NO-TRUMP

South called for dummy's ace of diamonds and then proceeded to cash dummy's three high hearts in order to discard his queen of diamonds and five of spades. Then he led a spade from dummy and wound up losing two spades and two clubs for a plus score of 110.

South would have made an overtrick if he had played East for king-queen-small of clubs.

It looks like a very normal result, but at the other table in the team match South chose to rebid to two no-trump after North's two diamond rebid. North raised to three and West selected the five of diamonds for his opening lead.

South played low from dummy—there was no point putting up the ace, and East was in with the king. Needless to say, East shifted to the jack of spades and the defense had five tricks in before South could do anything except follow suit and discard. Later on, the defense collected one more trick so South was minus 200 and his team lost 310 points on the hand.

This hand illustrates the luck in team competition. Change the North hand slightly and he would bid exactly the same way and yet three no-trump would make.

Grosart, Trade Minister Hees and Senator Gunnar Thorvaldson, president of the Tory association, hammered so hard on this theme as to indicate either they are aware the base is soft and are concerned, or that there's something in persistent predictions of a fall election—maybe both. The test is whether agitation at the Tory top can stir up the x percentage of delegates who didn't seem to care much last week whether John Diefenbaker would be reelected or not.

The convention was built around Diefenbaker the leader—"the greatest living Canadian," Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia called him. Perhaps too much so, as when delegates were asked that their identification badges were a picture of the PM under which you had to scrutinize the small type for their names. There were seminars for discussion of the

Why are slogans limp?

(Chatelaine)

Why is it that slogans for worthy causes are often so limp? Probably there are few campaigns more deserving of attention and action in this country than Canadian Library Week which runs from April 16 to 22. But what is the slogan?—"Reading is the key."

Now what does that mean? The accompanying literature says, "Reading is the key to education and in the modern world education is the key to national as well as personal prosperity."

And that saddens me, too. Why do we have to "sell" reading, of all things, by persuading Canadians that if they read more they will end up making more money?

However, let's stop being cranky about slogans and go along with this slogan as it stands. The "key" with which Canadians are to open up endless doors of culture or wealth or what-have-you, seems a bit small for the job and rusty to boot.

OTTAWA — It would be too pat to describe last week's Conservative convention here as a flop, because in a contrary sort of way it can be the Tories a lot of good.

Most persons I've talked to agree that the convention never really got off the ground. There was no wild enthusiasm, not even when Prime Minister Diefenbaker addressed the delegates. Committee meetings failed to evoke much discussion, and many delegates showed their disinterest by staying away.

I had been prepared for complacency. After all, a government that has 204 of the Commons' 265 seats should have no election fears. I didn't find complacency, but I did find evidence that a good many delegates were disillusioned, disgruntled and apathetic. They did not blast the brass over the quality of leadership, policies or performance, or even politely debate these matters. At least, not in public. Some did in shirtsleeved bull sessions over crocks of rye in their rooms. And they may also have talked frankly in tape recorded personal messages to Diefenbaker—an ingenious gimmick cooked up, it appeared, to give delegates an outlet for steam other than open convention sessions.

The prime minister, the cabinet, the Tory association executive, and especially the party's national director, Allister Grosart, may be jolted by the convention's flatness into finding out why. This may be the convention's greatest contribution: a warning to the party brass that the base of the party is soft, and needs to be retempered and re-enthused before an election.

The Liberals are jubilant, comparing the egg the Tories laid with the enthusiastic and productive Grit rally in January. But their jubilation will be premature if the Tories take fright at their tenuous tenure and set to work with resolution to mend and rebuild.

Grosart, Trade Minister Hees and Senator Gunnar Thorvaldson, president of the Tory association, hammered so hard on this theme as to indicate either they are aware the base is soft and are concerned, or that there's something in persistent predictions of a fall election—maybe both. The test is whether agitation at the Tory top can stir up the x percentage of delegates who didn't seem to care much last week whether John Diefenbaker would be reelected or not.

The trouble with golf is, it's too much fun. In the 1400s, Scottish leaders thought people spent too much time on the links. They worried lest the addicts lose their archery skills and weaken national defense. In 1457, in 1471, again in 1491, decrees were issued forbidding playing of golf.

de Gaulle ignores his new hippo

PARIS (AP)—A 285-pound baby hippopotamus from Africa basked placidly in the sun at the Vincennes Zoo here Monday, though totally unrecognized by its owner—President de Gaulle. The hippo is a present from President Leon M'Ba of the Republic of Gabon, a former French territory. He sent it to Paris by jet plane Saturday as a forerunner of an official visit he will make Wednesday.

There is no immediate spot on de Gaulle's calendar for a visit to a hippopotamus.

Dean and British delegate David Ormsby-Gore will hold a press conference after the conclusion of the session, expected to last about three hours. The United States worked out the new proposals in consultation with Britain, the third participant in the conference. The two Western delegates met twice Monday to put the finishing touches on the American proposition before the 27th session of the conference, begun Oct. 31, 1958. Ormsby-Gore said there was a "very real chance" of agreement on a treaty in a matter of weeks.

RICHMOND — A successful St. Patrick's tea and sale, sponsored by the Emerald and Ruby Groups of the W.A. of Richmond and Melbourne United Church, was held in the church hall on March 15. The hall was tastefully decorated with Irish motifs and spring flowers. The many guests were welcomed by Mrs. Lyall Simpson and Mrs. Frederick Wintle, captain of the Ruby Group. particular recession," Mr. Pearson said that the problem of hard-core unemployment is a continuing ache to Canada. Mr. Pearson put forward a six-point program to deal with the problem of areas of chronic unemployment. The program called for a federal area rehabilitation agency to work with the provinces and local authorities in an overall plan of economic aid to depressed areas. It also urged a flexible fiscal policy including capital grants for development, tax incentives for distressed areas, special public and winter works projects, easier credit facilities, special vocational training and special urban renewal measures for blighted areas. Mr. Pearson attacked the government for putting the onus on individual areas to declare themselves as labor surplus sections in order to qualify for the depreciation incentive. Later in the discussion, Labor Minister Starr chided the Liberals for rushing forward with criticism of the double-depreciation plan without producing an alternative. "What is all the rush to say that this is not going to work out?" said Mr. Starr, who announced the plan March 2. Since then, he told the house, the government has had inquiries from Cornwall, Windsor, Drumheller, Alta., and a "few other areas." He said the relatively few inquiries received were an indication that "not too many areas regard themselves as depressed areas."

MISCONCEPTIONS CONCERNING DIETS DISPELLED BY TESTS

A dietician suggests I am "downgrading" the importance of selected foods in the treatment of disease. I'm truly sorry if I've given this impression for I have nothing but respect and admiration for all those who aid in preventing and controlling illness by any means. Perhaps the impression I've created in the mind of my critic is rather due to my "upgrading" of the wondrous capacities of the human body. It is difficult to doubt the ability of the living organism to "make bricks from straw" - after observing an infant convert mother's milk into muscle, bone, blood and all the other tissues and organs whose continuing growth and replacement are essential to normal development.

In this light, it's even more difficult to put much stock in the recommendation of self-styled "experts" such as a popular author who has just issued a list of "healthy foods," presumably capable of converting an ugly duckling into a bird of paradise.

But let me be more specific. Not so long ago, among the

MANSONVILLE —

The Women's Association of the United Church met on March 15, with Mrs. George Lavery, at the parsonage. The Spring rummage sale was discussed but no definite date set. It is thought that it will take place in May. Mrs. Ernest Bradley took the devotional reading. The next meeting will be held March 29 at the home of Mrs. Guy George.

Mrs. Gertrude A. Perkins, one of the oldest residents of this place passed away at the Courville Nursing Home at South Stukely on March 12th, after a long illness. Funeral service was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church on March 15, Rev. Gerald Tulk officiating.

Re-atives from out of town present included: Mrs. Flossie Richards, of Providence, R.I.; Mrs. Levi Perkins, Sutton; Mr. and Mrs. David Perkins and sons of Orleans, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. William Wood and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins and Mrs. Ruth McLoughlin, Montreal; Miss Barbara Perkins of Newport, Vt. Interment was in the Mansonville Cemetery.

principal diseases treated by diet were "sugar" diabetes, stomach ulcers, gout, kidney troubles and gall stones. Since insulin was introduced, diabetics pretty much eat what they like within reason.

Studies conducted here and abroad indicate that ulcer patients on a "permissive diet" improve more rapidly than those maintained on the old Sippy routine of milk and cream mixtures.

Students of gout and gall stones are agreed that attacks are neither decreased by strict diets nor increased by permissive diets, within reason. Restrictions on "red meat" that formerly prevailed in the management of nephritis and hypertension have gone down the drain together with other dietary myths such as water drinking at meals as a cause for obesity.

Not for a moment do I seek to "downgrade" the current tendency to urge folks to accomplish weight reduction by adherence to a mixed diet that yields fewer calories than are expended in the course of daily activities.

I am far from convinced that it's necessary to get rid of animal fats to achieve a greater reduction in blood cholesterol values than can be accomplished by simple low calorie intake.

I'll want a great deal more proof before I give up a spot of cream in my morning coffee, a strip of crisp bacon on my helping of honest-to-goodness butter on a slice of honest-to-goodness bread.

And, in the words of Patrick Henry, "If this be treason, make the most of it."

Boy strangled by own book strap

WATERLOO — The second son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Taylor, 116 Buckingham Street, Pointe Claire, died tragically on March 15 at his home.

Bobbie, age 12, had returned from school and was apparently playing alone with his school bag. He had placed a strap around his neck and somehow slipped, hooking the strap on a door knob.

He was found by his 13-year old brother, who went to see what the younger boy was doing. Death was ruled accidental at the coroner's inquest.

The child's father, a former resident of Waterloo, was the fourth son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, Court Street.

Fashion Show highlights Home and School Tea

A very successful tea was held last Saturday afternoon in the Gymnasium of the Sherbrooke High School when the Sherbrooke Home and School Association welcomed over 250 people to the Fashion Tea.

Garments made by the students of the Home Economics department of the High School included well-made dresses, blouses, skirts, and sportswear formed a delightful prelude to the tea in which over 50 models paraded.

Among the fashions shown was a printed corduroy sheath the deep V neckline highlighted with a brilliant red scarf, worn by Diane Westerman. Elizabeth Marshall modelled a charming gold corduroy dress with three-quarter sleeves and a rolled collar.

Velma Haddad wore a black and white checked suit with a box jacket buttoned at the back, while Gloria Spafford was in a brown flannel suit Checked your snob quotient lately?

Do you reckon we really are as big snobs as a lot of advertisers seem to think we are? Snob appeal in advertising started out in subtle vein. But it gets more frankly snob-appealish all the time.

"How's your S.Q.?" asks an ad in a recent magazine. (At the bottom of the ad S.Q. is explained as standing for Snob Quotient.)

The reader is asked to answer three questions with a "Yes" or "No." "Do you yearn to wear a Christian Dior original?" "Do you adore the thought of gliding down Fifth Avenue in a Bentley Continental?" and "Do you thrill to travel to Europe—private suite by Cunard?"

How does the reader score herself? Well, says the ad, one Yes out of three is fair. Two out of three is "good." And three Yes assures her that her Snob Quotient is "excellent."

And presumably she is just the fair-haired girl to really appreciate the product being advertised. But what about the woman who doesn't yearn for a Dior original, or think that having a suite on an ocean liner would be the living end?

Well, that poor soul flunks her quiz so badly that she doesn't even rate a grade.

Her "S.Q." probably stands for snob quotient in the copy writer's opinion.

And if you think this is just an isolated case of snob appeal advertising how about the interior decorator who boldly advertises: "The home is now the No. 1 status symbol. Why not let us plan a decor that will be the envy of your friends?"

Or the department store that recently advertised "His" and "Her" private planes? Watch the advertising directed at women (especially in the fashion and decorating journals) and see if you think we women have as high a Snob Quotient as the advertisers seem to think we have.

A tasty team for spring

The scarlet lobster is a delicacy which all too often is reserved for special occasions. True it is a luxury food, however, if placed on the menu occasionally, it will make the family feel important. Moreover it need not stretch the budget. Combined with the frugal egg, now in good supply, it makes a variety of moderately priced luncheon or supper dishes. Here are a few suggestions.

One cup of cooked or canned lobster, prepared in a soufflé, can be counted on to serve four. With the help of a trust-worthy recipe, such as the following one supplied by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries, you can make a puff-perfect one which comes from the oven almost doubled in size, its golden crust quivering over a soft, richly-flavored interior.

LOBSTER SOUFFLE

1 can (5 ounces) lobster or 1 cup cooked lobster meat, 3 tablespoons butter, melted, 3 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 3 eggs separated, 1 tablespoon snipped parsley, 1 tablespoon sherry or lemon juice.

Drain canned lobster. Break lobster meat into bite-sized chunks, removing the cartilage from the meat of the claws. Melt butter; blend in flour and salt. Add milk gradually and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove sauce from heat. Beat egg yolks until thick and light in color; combine with sauce. Add lobster, parsley, and sherry or lemon juice. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold sauce into egg whites until all patches of white disappear. Turn mixture into an ungreased 1 or 1 1/2 quart baking dish and set dish in a shallow pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes, or until set, puffed, and lightly browned. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Some Sunday for brunch try a Lobster Scramble served on toast points. It's colorful, delicious, and different.

Farm and city children share new experiences

MONTREAL (CP)—An agricultural exhibition here annually gives many city children their first taste of farm life and many farm children their first view of a city.

Wandering about wide-eyed at the National Salon of Agriculture this year were 62 sons and daughters of farm families from distant communities of the province.

Recipients of young steers from the provincial department of agriculture and colonization last year, they had brought their fattened calves to the salon to be judged and sold.

The winner, an Aberdeen Angus, brought his 17-year-old owner, Leopold Tremblay of Abitibi West, a record $4,823.75. The tall, slim boy lives 100 miles north of Rouyn, Que.—the biggest centre he had hitherto seen. The son of a former gate-man at Parc des Laurentides who homesteaded in the desolate bush country in 1940, he has nine sisters and two brothers.

FIRST INDOOR SWIM

Leopold danced for the first time in his life when he came here for the salon, and swam in the first indoor swimming pool he had ever seen. This group of 10 girls and 32 boys also had banquets and sightseeing tours arranged in their honor, as well as having the run of the salon.

Dressed alike in navy blue and white slashed by colorful homespun sashes, the "young colonists" strolled from booth to booth, looking at farm machinery, minerals, food, handicrafts, fashions and exhibits of all kinds.

Organized nine years ago by a group of agronomists who won the backing of the provincial and federal departments of agriculture and the city of Montreal, the salon is the largest agricultural show held annually in Quebec.

A fall fair atmosphere, but without the usual prize pumpkins, permeates the showmart during the 10-day exhibition. An added attraction was an impressive garden of wonders slap in the middle of the salon. This display included a boa constrictor, cockatoos, some parrots and pheasants and a silk guinea fowl.

Downstairs there were a few goats, some sheep, several dogs and, of course, all sorts of steers.

A pie-baking contest was won by a Quebec woman who crossed the traditional recipe for apple pie with one for apple strudel.

Giving the salon its national flavor was an information booth on agriculture in Saskatchewan and several contest entries from other provinces.

Everything bigger, better

Ultra-modern centre gives service, comfort for tops in shopping

The all-New United Store, 124 Wellington Street, North in Sherbrooke, is holding its grand re-opening starting tomorrow, with a huge four-day bargain sale — the greatest sale at the largest department store in the Eastern Townships.

Twenty-two thousand square feet of floor space in this giant store, "All under the same roof", offers the widest variety of everything to Eastern Township customers. Its ultra-modern design and layout brings the best in comfort and service for shopping.

The continued support of the Eastern Townships shoppers has made the enlargement of this store possible and now the United Store staff look forward to steady growth and expansion, at the same time offering their customers tremendous values and convenient shopping in an ultra modern, air-conditioned building.

United Store has the biggest selection of merchandise in the Eastern Townships to please a growing clientele in all departments.

Probably the most eye-catching feature of the United Store is the all new lunch counter. Before the store was renovated, the counter seated a crowded 23 persons. Now, customers are offered the biggest and the newest lunch counter in the downtown shopping area. Seating 47 people, the lunch counter offers light lunches, beverages, and homemade cooking.

More space has been allotted for eight new fitting rooms, where people may try on and have fitted new coats and dresses. Before there were only two fitting rooms for the convenience of the customer.

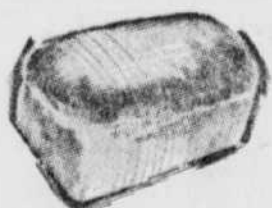

All old departments now have three times as much room and some new ones have been added. A shoe department is open on the top floor offering fashionable shoes in a wide range of styles and colors. A candy department has been opened and features a wide range of Easter surprises.

The men's department, which used to sell only men's shirts now offers a full assortment of clothing from sports hats to smart suits.

A greeting card department is another attraction. It includes wrapping papers, ribbons, and of course, cards for every occasion.

Parking is no problem when you shop at United. The Store is right opposite to the Webster Parking Lot, and two hours free parking is guaranteed to every customer who purchases merchandise valued at $3.00 or more at the United Store. A side entrance door is only a few feet from the parking lot entrance on Meadow Street.

The United Store would like to take this opportunity to thank all their many clients and friends for the patience and consideration they have shown during the past few months while renovation and reconstruction was going on, and especially to those who co-operated in various ways, to make the realization of this project possible.

Beavers Hosts To Drummondville Tonight

Clash In First Tilt Of E.T. Final Total-Point Series; Beavers Downed Granby Lions To Advance Into Finals

Sherbrooke Junior Beavers, guided by Coach Pat Murphy, will be at home tonight against Drummondville in the first tilt of a two-game total point series at the Arena. The game is booked to commence at 8:00.

The Drummondville Jets, who are members of President Connie Dion's Eastern Townships Junior Hockey League, are rated a tough club. They finished second in the regular season but then eliminated Asbestos Meteors in the playoffs. Coach Murphy is confident but it will be a hard battle.

Sherbrooke Junior Beavers moved into the Eastern Townships Junior finals by knocking over Granby Lions in Granby Sunday evening. It was the second half of a two-game total points affair and the Pat Murphy crew won the round 11-8.

In the first game, played in Sherbrooke, Granby edged the Beavers 5-4 but in the return fixture, in Granby, the locals won the tilt 7-3 but required overtime to post the victory. At the end of regulation time the round was deadlocked at 7-7.

In the first period Deal Dault evened things when he got the only goal of the frame. In the second session Guy Desrochers put the Beavers out in front 2-0 in the game and one up in the round. Cameron knotted the count and in the third period each club tallied the deadlock the series and sent it into overtime.

In the overtime Granby went ahead when Dubois tallied but then the Beavers hit the form they showed in winning the local loop and ran into four play. With four minutes left to go within five minutes of play Coach Murphy had his squad play it close to pick up the win.

The Beavers will now meet Drummondville in the E.T. final in another two-game total-point series with the winners representing the Townships in the Provincial playoffs at Quebec or Chicoutimi. These two will meet and the finals will be staged in the home town of the winner.

Amherst Wins Maritime Title, Granby City Council Votes More Money To Vics In Allan Cup Bid

Amherst Ramblers square off on home ice with Granby Vics of Quebec Saturday night in the first game of their best-of-five semi-final Eastern Canadian zone Allan Cup playoffs.

Amherst ensured itself of a playoff spot with Granby by shutting out Charlottetown Penguins 14-0 Monday night to take the best-of-five Maritime finals in three straight games.

A small crowd of about 900 fans was on hand for the one-sided drive which saw Moe Lamirande chalk up four goals. Three-goal hat tricks went to Frank Dorrington, Lou Kiley and Bill Payne. Dick VanSnick scored the remaining goal.

The series wound up in high style when Kiley drew a major and misconduct and Dorrington and Penguin George Trainor were handed majors for a five-man fight around the penalty box in the third period.

Other games in the series between Ramblers and Vics are scheduled for March 27, 28, 30 and April 1.

The Granby City Council voted another grant to the Vics in order to continue their battle in the Allan Cup playoffs. An additional $700 was accorded to the Vics in addition to $300 already received.

The Vics will leave Friday evening to clash with Amherst in the Eastern semi-finals. All games will be played in the East. This sum comes from part of the tax collected at the Arena during the regular season and playoffs.

Coach Roger Bedard and Manager Gaston Fausse and the team will leave Friday evening at 8:30. It is expected that several fans will accompany the team on their Eastern jaunt.

Canadians Don't Take Ping-Pong Serious Enough, Says Nick Gadanyi, Who Is Ranked As Canada's Best

MONTREAL (CP)—The trouble with ping-pong in Canada is that no one takes it seriously, says Nick Gadanyi, 24-year-old Hungarian immigrant ranked as Canada's top player.

"There is so much other sports activity available here that table tennis is, for the great majority of Canadians, simply a pastime."

Gadanyi and his wife Louise, ranked as Canada's No. 2 woman player, practise strenuously every day.

Gadanyi, who came to Canada after the Hungarian uprising of 1956, admitted that in his own country he was little more than a better-than-average player whereas in Canada he is a star.

Japan and Hungary have dominated international ping-pong for years and the quality of "average" players in those countries is astoundingly high, he says.

If Canada were to get anywhere in international competition, ping-pong first must be "accepted as a sport, not a recreation."

"Then it will be necessary for the government or some private organization, or the public, to donate some money to the table tennis federations to promote the sport; in short, to educate the public."

Gadanyi has been playing ping-pong for eight years and met his wife, the former Louise Parent of Montreal, during a friendly match. They were married 1 1/2 years ago.

"Ping-pong, he insists, 'is the fastest sport in the world.' 'A good player hits the ball at 130 miles an hour. It calls for very quick reflexes.'"

Granby Girls Win MacLeod Trophy

GRANBY. — Led by Judy Hamilton, a tall, graceful, easy-going sharp-shooter, Granby High School's Senior Girls basketball team won the MacLeod Trophy, emblematic of the provincial championship, at Macdonald College Saturday. In the three games, Miss Hamilton piled up a total of 83 points, which exceeded the totals made by the other teams in the tournament.

Friday night, the Granby girls met the Asbestos-Danville team, defeating them 50-11. Saturday morning, the opposition came from Chamby County High School, who led the Granby squad through the first three quarters, only to fall behind.

34-37, in the last few minutes of play. Shawinigan High School, the other finalists, put up a stubborn fight before yielding to the superior play of the Granby High School team, 32-26.

Granby's trio of tall guards, Captain Donna Neil, Janet Reed, and Coleen Taylor, broke up countless rushes in all three games, and fed the ball with steady accuracy to the forwards.

Jane Porter, second high scorer with 39 points, set up play after play for Judy Hamilton with her deceptive ball-handling and pin-point passes. Other scorers for Granby were Sandra Hooper (8), Elizabeth Davidge

(2) and Sabine Georges (2). The Granby team is coached by Wilfred Anderson, Director of Physical Education at the school. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Irene Porter, French Specialist at the school, and Mr. and Mrs. George Reed accompanied the team and their supporters to Macdonald College for the tournament.

After the banquet which closed the games, the students saw a gym display put on by Macdonald College students under the direction of Susan Porter and Joan Neil, physical education students who are recent graduates of Granby High School.

Coach Serge Gregoire and his St. Pat's Juveniles move to Asbestos tonight to clash with the Asbestos Underground in the second tilt of their two-game total-point series for the Eastern Townships juvenile championship.

In the first game of the series played in Sherbrooke Sunday afternoon St. Pat's eked out a 2-1 win and hold a one-point lead going into tonight's tilt in the Mining Town.

In their first series the local champions eliminated Granby 6-4 on the round. In the opening game in Granby it finished in a 2-2 deadlock but on their home ice St. Pat's posted a 4-2 victory to walk off with the series and move into the finals.

Bert Desbiens and R. Leblanc were the big guns for St. Pat's in their affair with Granby. They each tallied two goals while Dubois and Menard were the marksmen for Granby.

In Sunday's tilt Bert Desbiens and Jeff Mills tallied for the Gregoire squad while Bach and got the lone tally for Asbestos. St. Pat's were obliged to come from behind to tie and win the encounter with Desbiens getting the tying goal and Mills the winner with twenty-one seconds left in the game.

John Woods Is Proving To Be Most Colorful Competitor In Pacific Coast Soccer League, On All-Star

VANCOUVER (CP)—A player who signed with Scotland's top professional club at the tender age of 14 is proving himself one of the most exciting and colorful competitors in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

John Woods has the instinctive touch of soccer artistry known the world over as "Scottish style."

Grudging acknowledgment of his ability was paid when managers and coaches of the five Pacific Coast League teams selected their all-star team.

Woods was the only name to appear on every ballot.

It was in 1957 that Woods decided he had had enough of professional soccer and came to Canada. He lived in Winnipeg for almost a year before coming here in 1958.

As a member of St. Andrews he was selected to play for the B.C. All-Stars against the touring Admirals Wien side of Austria. The game marked the first of a regular string of appearances with the all-stars.

In 1959 he played against England's West Bromwich Albion and Municipal of Lima, Peru. Last summer he played against Scotland's Hearts and the Soviet Union's Leningrad Zenit.

HELPED DOWN TORONTO
Woods also toured the Soviet Union and Britain with the Canadian team last summer and played in every game of the schedule.

Last October Woods joined perennial Canadian champion Westminster Royals for the Dominion Cup final against Toronto Golden Mile. He scored two goals and led the Royals to a 4-0 win.

The jaunty redhead began his soccer career as an inside-right.

at the age of 13. He has kept the position ever since.

The dream of every Scottish schoolboy is to wear the Royal blue shirt of the storied Glasgow Rangers. Woods was signed to a Glasgow form when he was 14 and a year later played with the Rangers' reserve side in a game against Airdrie.

He scored a goal in that game and was on his way.

When he was 16 Woods got his first chance to play with the Rangers' first team in an exhibition game. He scored two goals in that game.

The Rangers' subsequently loaned Woods to Hamilton Academicals and he played with that team for a year before coming to Canada.

Champ Johnson To Defend Title Against Von Clay

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A National Boxing Association official said Monday night that NBA world light-heavyweight champion Harold Johnson has agreed to defend his title against Von Clay April 24 in Philadelphia.

Johnson, of Philadelphia, won the NBA crown in a bout with Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis at Miami Beach Feb. 7. Clay, also of Philadelphia, recently defeated Chic Calderwood of Scotland in London. Calderwood was ranked number one challenger by the NBA.

Cancer Fails To Slow Down Golfer Porky Oliver

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Cancer has eaten away one lung and part of the liver of golfer Porky Oliver and his doctor tells him he may have less than a year to live.

But the "curse," as he calls it, will not sap his spirit, nor vision committee have had a number of discussions with CBC representatives.

The CBC last year showed 11 Western Interprovincial Football Union games on its western network. Discussion is expected on the possibility of carrying western conference games into Eastern Canada this year.

his faith, nor his good will toward others. Despite two operations and Gerald Rainer, of Denver, Colo., that he may have only 4-to-6 months to live, Porky Oliver has not crawled into any dark corner to sit back and await death. He abounds in faith and is making his life useful by aiding cancer research.

"Hell," he said, "miracles happen. I've known some cases where people were told they had only a few months or years to live and they lived 20 or 30 years."

The 45-year-old Wilmington, Del., native, who has been in countless tournaments in his 28 years of golf and is known the country over, has started a "Porky Oliver Memorial" with the proceeds going to cancer research.
