GARBAGE: Westmounters underproduce it!

BY TONY MacGREGOR

An inquiry by the city engineering department into the garbage-producing habits of Westmounters reveals that the city is probably inhabited by an exceptionally thrifty or clean-living lot of people.

While the average North American is usually cited as producing just over five pounds of garbage per day, or nearly a ton per year, Westmounters produce only 2.4 pounds per person per day, if the city's work-in population is included. If only residents are counted, each produces 3.4 pounds per day.

The city's official population is just over 32,000 but about 10,000 of these are transients who only work here.

City Engineer Ed McCavour and city works staffer Jim Miller, who gathered the figures at the request of The Examiner, offered the explanation that the five-pound figure usually quoted must include commercial and industrial waste while Westmount is largely residential.

Affluent area

Mr. McCavour also speculated that because Westmount is a relatively affluent area, many residents may spend much time away from the city.

The total amount of garbage produced by the city per year is about 14½ thousand tons. But some commercial establishments within the city cart away their own garbage. Also, the 14½-thousand-ton figure does not include the types of garbage which cannot be incinerated, such as old stoves and refrigerators.

Has the amount of garbage produced by Westmounters increased over the past 10 years?

Yes, if one compares the 1961 figure of 10,300 tons to the latest figure. The 1961 Westmount population figure is listed as 31,840. However, 1961 may have been an unusual year.

It's just about impossible to figure out the rising cost, from a strictly economic point of view, of disposing of garbage because city accounting methods have changed drastically over the past 10 years.

The city has never made a clear distinction between operating costs, which includes labor (labor costs have risen sharply of course) and disposal costs. Also, in some years the cost of major repairs were included in operating costs.

"But it is safe to conclude that Westmount does produce less garbage than other cities," said Jim Miller.

No glass, paper figures

The city has no figures on the percentage of its garbage which is paper and glass, but a booklet produced by the American Iron and Steel Institute lists paper as 50 percent of household waste while glass is about seven percent. Both these products can be recycled, providing they can be separated from the rest of the garbage economically.

Mr. Miller asked Westmount's incinerator foreman if he had noticed any change in the type of garbage passing through his unit during the 12 years he had been working at the incinerator.

The foreman said the only change he had noticed was that the garbage was more compressed now and more difficult to burn.

Is there any method of getting rid of garbage without polluting in some way or another?

"No," said Mim Miller who wrote a university paper on the problems of garbage disposal.

He said there were three ways of getting rid of garbage — burning it, using it as land fill and depositing it in open dumps.

All three pollute

"All three methods," he said, "pollute the environment in one way or another."

He said using garbage as land fill often created gases or

Camaro search goes on

The search for the car which struck and killed 76-year-old Westmounter Charles Herzberg, 250 Clarke avenue, three weeks ago continues as Lt. Stanley Hugman and Cst. William Kavanagh trace recently sold cranberry red Chevrolet Camaros of 1970 or later models.

Nothing has turned up yet. No new witnesses have shed light on the fatal accident and none of the vehicles checked thus far has proven to be the killer car. The two Westmount policemen have to check about 200 cars.

They have completed a dealer-by-dealer tally of every firm in the Montreal area which sells Camaros and have been checking the purchases of the vehicles or subsequent purchasers if the cars have been resold.

That's a long job.

January real estate:

Transfer boom still continues; prices hold up

For the third month in a row, property transfers in Westmount flourished with 37 listed for January compared to 40 in December, 40 in November and 25 in January, 1971.

Sales prices of the 20 fully listed properties were only one percent greater than the city's valuation of them. The properties sold for $1,010,019 and were valued at $998,600.

Of the 37 properties transferred, 20 were fully listed, seven were sold for $1 and considerations, six were declarations, two were donations, one was a cession and one had no city valuation listed because it is now included in another property.

Least expensive fully listed sale of the month was 55 Clandeboye avenue which sold for

Pinned nurse okay

The 27-year-old woman who was pinned under her car for three hours on a deserted stretch of Selby street last week has recovered and has suffered no permanent damage to her leg.

The woman, Miss Carol Taylor of Nun's Island, a nurse at the Montreal General Hospital where she was treated, slipped under her car when she put it in reverse and attempted to push it out of the mud.

It was feared she may have suffered internal injuries and permanent damage to her leg which was caught under the wheel. But she is expected to be functioning as normal within a few days.

Land transferred

Lowest valuation of a transfer was some land on Westmount avenue at $18,400. It was bought for $1 and considerations from J. Jacques Elie by Mr. Gaston Elie.

Ouimet back; nil on MUC

Mayor Paul Ouimet, fresh from a visit to Russia, presided over Monday night's statutory March council meeting but had no business to report from the Montreal Urban Community.

He said Municipal Affairs Minister Maurice Tessier would be meeting soon with MUC representatives and he expected to have more to report at the next council meeting.

Ald. Leeds Nelson welcomed the mayor back.

Book money

The Westmount Public Library has received a Quebec department of cultural affairs grant of $16,600 and the Atwater Library, $8,300.

Bills paid

The city's bills for January amounted to $825,620 of which $276,971 was spent on the payroll while $548,649 was allocated to accounts payable.

Meighen advocates binding arbitration in federal disputes

Binding arbitration, negotiation with department heads rather than the Treasury Board, simultaneous bargaining with groups in the same essential services, and longer bargaining periods were proposed for the federal public service by Michael A. Meighen, prospective Progressive Conservative candidate in Westmount, in a speech before the Lions Club of Montreal at mid-day today.

The grandson of onetime Prime Minister Arthur Meighen, while zeroing on policies of the present Liberal government and particularly in the area of responsibility as president of the Treasury Board of the sitting Westmount member, Hon. C.M. Drury, the young local lawyer surveyed the labor field—particularly large bargaining units in essential services—and declared the strike weapon as now used out-moded and a threat to members of the labor force themselves as consumers.

He cited AFL-CIO President George Meany in support of his assertion that the costs of strikes outweigh their gains.

Cites Australia

He also cited, in support of curbs on strikes in Canada, the experiences of Australia "where the stated benefits are enviable" resulting from binding arbitration—speedy settlements, uniformity of wages and working conditions, stable rather than militant unionism, and penal sanctions which reduce drawn-out work stoppages.

Mr. Meighen deplored inconsistencies in federal government settlements with its own employees which "make nonsense of the national economic policy." Taxes, postal rates and other costs rise in consequence.

He said the consequence of "irresponsible" government wage leadership are country-wide, setting the tone for industrial bargaining. He found it incredible when the government "has in part legislated away the right to control such pressure points in the economy and, secondly, that the inevitable discomfort for 20 millions of people is set in motion by a few well organized groups with competing claims."

Provincial and municipal employees have begun to build on the example of the federal situation and to exercise the strike weapon more frequently, he claimed.

Montreal hard hit

"Montreal has been particularly hard hit," he said, "having experienced strikes by bus drivers, police, stevedores, teachers, hospital workers, and latterly having experienced the frightening absence of snow removal crews."

He thought it an anomaly that these should have occurred when unemployment in Canada has been higher for longer than at any time in recent history.

"If then the Canadian public is obliged to interrupt itself to arbitrate through popular opinion in the press and other channels in a dispute between their elected representative and their civil service, then it is high time we recognize the situation and insist on formal arbitration," he declared.

of the pollutants people are most concerned about today.

Jim Miller said the biggest problem of recycling garbage is separation of different types.

"It costs money to have men separate the garbage," he said, "because at the moment it can't be done mechanically." The cost is high, he said, because of high labor costs.

The city can get between $6 and $7 a ton for old newspapers and about $15 a ton for glass, at optimum conditions.

"A man would have to separate an awful lot of garbage to make it worthwhile economically," he said.

But City Engineer Ed McCavour added that it was impossible to look at the problem from a strictly economic point of view.

He added that during the war years the city did employ a man to separate garbage, but at that time it was a paying proposition.

Mr. McCavour said he was convinced we would see improvements in garbage recycling and in solving pollution problems in general because "a lot of people have started thinking in recent years."

Mr. Miller saw the pollution problem as highly complex with no easy solution.

"Just going around banning products could aggravate the unemployment problem and upset the economy," he said.

"You have to look at the problem from all sides."

He said one of the big problems was that it is cheaper to make new products from new materials rather than recycling used products.

He emphasized that the city's present methods of attempting to recycle glass and newspaper were experimental and would be evaluated.

The city has set up two glass deposit boxes on Tupper street opposite the Reddy Memorial Hospital and has requested residents to bundle up their newspapers.

Thrown to one side

The newspapers are thrown to one side of the garbage truck and later separated at the incinerator. This idea emanated from one of the lead hands of a garbage collection crew, O. Boulerice, who realized that the city's first experiment of having a separate truck collect the newspapers was just not feasible.

produced acids which caused water pollution. Burning it produces air pollution and open dumping creates visual pollution, smells and disease-causing vermin.

Apart from the small amounts of garbage which cannot be incinerated, Westmount burns its garbage at its plant in The Glen.

How much air pollution is the plant producing? It hasn't been absolutely established yet, but the city has hired a firm of consultants to look into the question.

The Montreal Urban Community has passed anti-air pollution by-laws but City Engineer Ed McCavour reports that the by-law isn't clear on the type of incinerator which the city uses.

He added that the federal and provincial governments will soon be passing anti-air pollution by-laws and the city government wants to know how stringent these laws will be before making modifications to the plant.

"We don't want to modify the plant and then discover we'll have to change the plant all over again because of a more stringent law passed by one of the other governments," he said.

He added that the studies conducted so far revealed the plant was producing only minute amounts of sulphur dioxide, one

Westmount Police praised:

Youthful gang broken at plaza

It looks as if Westmount Police have smashed a loosely organized gang of youths who were playing havoc in Alexis Nihon Plaza and committing crimes in Montreal shopping areas also.

The Westmount detective office reports arrests of members of the gang probably will take place soon as a result of the capture of a 17-year-old juvenile on Sunday, Feb. 26 (see Examiner March 2).

The arrest of the juvenile, who had been cornered in Brooks Pharmacy after grabbing and swallowing pills, has given Westmount Police leads on other youths who had been preying on merchants in shopping centres.

A detective said the youths would try such tricks as attracting the attention of subway attendants by causing some disturbance and then attempt to slip into the Metro ticket office and steal money while the Metro man was chasing one of the youths.

That trick didn't work because the Metro ticket booths have self-locking doors.

Under control now

"We feel we have the problem under control now," said Det.-Lt. Frank Pilkonis of the Westmount Police.

Westmount community workers Tommy Critelli and June McLellan, who work out of the Office for Community and Social Development praised the sensitivity and "humanistic" approach of most of the Westmount Police constables and detectives who attempt to minimize crime in the plaza.

Miss McLellan said many of the kids who "hang out" at the plaza—and it is a popular hang-out—are not criminal types but just wish to have some place to talk and meet members of the opposite sex.

"Often the Westmount Police take time out to talk to the kids, counsel them and educate them," she said.

She said community workers had been active in the plaza since 1968, referring youths with problems to appropriate agencies and government bodies.

The community workers, she said, had been co-operating with the Montreal Council of Social Agencies, the YMCA, the Salvation Army and the John Howard Society in attempting to help the youths.

At times, she said, crisis intervention was needed to transport kids to hospitals, the police station or to welfare offices.

"Lords of Hell"

She said last December Sgt.-Det. Brian Hunter and Det. Richard Hawley held a meeting with a gang called "The Lords of Hell" in order to defuse a potentially explosive situation.

She added that the architecture of the plaza with its layers of balconies around a central well attracted youths, often from some distance away, because it's nice place to just stand around and watch things happen.

It's very difficult, she said, to evaluate the work of the community worker in assisting youth and in steering them away from anti-social and self-destructive activities but she was convinced that some good was being accomplished by the workers and by the approach of the Westmount Police.

Lt. Pilkonis said the youth they had captured had hidden a starter's gun under the seat of a Metro car and had taken down the number of the car so that he could retrieve the gun at will.

Westmount Police searched where the youth had claimed to have hidden the gun and, sure enough, it was there.

Ald. Ian Craig Monday night complemented the city works department for ensuring that fire hydrants are clear of snow during the winter months.

We Say

Your calls to the police

SUBURBAN residents, not least of all Westmounters, have been in something of a fools' paradise for over two months now.

While our superb police department became, on paper at least, a part of the new Montreal Urban Community Police Department Jan. 1, nothing much appears to have happened.

The familiar, friendly men of the Westmount force continue to perform all the highly valued services and courtesies upon which Westmount citizens have come to depend.

The painstaking work of the various divisions continues unbroken. Vehicles still proudly carry the Westmount coat of arms. Persons with troubles, complaints and problems get prompt, efficient attention to their calls to 934-0711 at 21 Stanton street headquarters, right here still in Westmount.

ALL OF this is thanks only to the cart-before-horse creation of the MUC force.

It came into being Jan. 1, the Quebec-controlled security council was then formed and then the director was named. Director Daigneault in turn began gathering a staff about him. And now they are planning the new integrated department, after the fact.

Before long, the plans are going to be put into action.

One of the early steps which can be expected—early because it will signal the assumption of centralized control—will be a new communications setup.

It is known that greatly enlarged phone and radio facilities are being installed downtown.

One central phone number for police, embracing the centre city and the outlying areas now locally served, likely will be announced soon.

At the same time, the radio equipment in erstwhile suburban vehicles will be changed over to new frequencies.

The major, vital steps will then have been taken.

AT THAT point local control of policing will have ended for all practical purposes.

If you hear suspicious sounds in the night; if a strange car is blocking your driveway; if a child or an elderly person has wandered off; if there is any one of the many reasons why you might, as in the past, phone the police for help or reassurance—no longer will it be a Westmount matter.

The decision as to whether or not even to respond to your call will be made downtown.

Beyond that, the decision as to just how many police vehicles may be patrolling at any time in Westmount, or within easy reach of Westmount, will be made downtown. Response time will be decided downtown and its reasonableness after the event will be a downtown judgment.

In short, while it has been "business as usual" in the policing of Westmount since Jan. 1, be prepared for some early change.

IT COULD, of course, be that the new MUC Police Department will be a great boon to the Island of Montreal.

Massive centralization could, if imaginatively handled, provide forms of service to the whole community not now enjoyed. Certainly, there is no uniformity in quality of police service on the island now.

But improvement is yet to be demonstrated.

Some Montrealers believe that municipal boundaries somehow are an aid to crime, organized or otherwise; that abolishing these borders, with one force, will be a blow to law-breakers.

That, too, is yet to be shown. Smaller, closely-controlled units have demonstrated flexibility and efficiency in the past which big forces, such as the City of Montreal's heretofore, could envy.

+ + +

INTERGRATION, now on paper, soon will be with us in fact.

We must keep our fingers crossed.

We must pray that Director Daigneault is the solid professional he is reputed to be, that his planning is sound.

We must pray that Judge Coderre, as chairman of the security council, can balance the interests of the suburbs with those of Montreal, and the interests of our officers and men with those of Montreal.

We must pray that the Quebec Police Commission will temper a maximum of watchfulness with a minimum of interference.

We must pray that Policemen's Brotherhood President Marcil's disproportionate say in Montreal police affairs will not be enlarged in the new force. And we must pray that our calls to the police, in the future, will be answered as they have been, in Westmount, in the past.

Federal election in local air

THERE is little doubt that a federal general election is in the Westmount air.

As noted in our newspapers a few weeks ago, and in his own regular column this week Westmount's sitting member, Hon. C.M. Drury, has been "showing the flag" in the constituency with greater regularity, mainly by visiting organizations and projects which have been in receipt of federal grants.

Monday he visited the Children's Service Centre in Werendale Park.

Officially this is a good thing for the president of the Treasury Board, which holds Ottawa's pursestrings, to do. He should see first-hand what is happening to the Canadian taxpayers' money.

But it is a safe bet these visits are, in the main, being done in his own riding. Which again is a good thing for a local MP to do.

Even so, it is a reminder to local voters of the name and the face of their member which should help attract "Xs" to the Drury square on the ballots in . . . when is it? . . . June?

Meanwhile, Mr. Michael A. Meighen is also taking more time out from his law practice and his hearthside hours these days, also getting his name about as the Progressive Conservative challenger to Liberal Drury.

His is tackling the policies of the government in print and on the speaking circuit and, not insignificantly, is focussing attention on the labor relations policy of the Treasury Board, Hon. Bud's domain.

It is good strategy. Federal labor policies have many chinks inviting well-aimed spears and Mr. Mike can gain much sympathy for his point of view from potentially everyone in the riding who has suffered — and who hasn't? — from the effects of strikes in the public service ranging from the postal mess through the more recent airport tieups, and now the CBC fiasco.

The issues in a federal election campaign at this time as they are thus shaping up locally are interesting and, fortunately, on a high plane.

Indeed, it should be an enjoyable confrontation in Westmount between a senior cabinet minister and the grandson of a former prime minister as principal protagonists.

Editorial Note

ELEVEN months ago, hanging on the ropes toward the end of a hard winter like everyone else, we wept a little publicly in this corner about how we had had to cancel at the last minute a long-planned holiday visit to Antigua. This is just a postscript to say that, we finally made it. The bronzed, rested character behind this typewriter this week has replaced the pale-faced, weary grump who labored here before. While you hardier stay-at-homes braved and swapped stories about your storm recently, we basked and swam and dined in the Caribbean's Leeward Islands in 75-85-degree sunshine. Local angles? By coincidence we stayed at the same resort where ex-Mayor Peter McEntyre likes to unwind, and where he is well-remembered by taxi-drivers, bar-tenders and beach-boys. And we waited a four-hour delay last Sunday at Antigua while Air Canada patched up a fuel leak in one of their stretched DC-8s, commiserating in the airport bar with a number of Westmounters who shared the pleasures of rum punches and iced Dutch beer and who included at least two prominent local physicians and one prominent local lawyer who probably would wish to remain unnamed. The editorial "we" in this item is fully justified: holidays like these include wives and, indeed, it is doubtful any wife would permit a husband to get away with a junket of that type without including her in. And here's a lovely little anecdote for those with military experience: in the old Anglican cathedral in the Antiguan capital of St. John's is a plaque dedicated by the officers, NCOs and men of some regiment which had once served there to their deceased drill-sergeant. His epitaph "Thy will be done"!

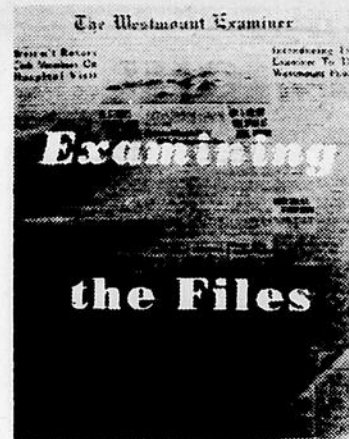

You Say

Teacher editorial is 'questionable'

Sir: It is difficult to understand what bee got into your bonnet over the meeting called by the School Committee and the Home and School Association of the high school to hear the teachers' side of their difficult negotiations with the Government. (Examiner editorial March 2) You have seen in the calling of the meeting and the sending of a letter to parents asking for their support signs that the parents have been "manipulated" by the teachers or by the "militants" among them. Allow me to suggest that you have it wrong.

In the first place, in the past when the teachers have felt it necessary to go on strike, the parents have been quick to criticize them for not taking their case to the parents beforehand so that the latter might understand

"By the death of Howie Morenz, we have lost the most spectacular player hockey has known. But it is not for his greatness as a player that Howie will be mourned, but for his greatness of heart and soul. Howie played the game for all it was worth; he never knew the meaning of quit, and he was one of the game's cleanest and most sporting players. He loved the game as few players love it. Although the fastest player in the fastest league in the world, he enjoyed watching others play. Howie was always ready for sixty minutes a game if called upon and his name will without a doubt go down in hockey history as the greatest of them all."

Local initiatives programs performance in Westmount

On the majority of my regular fortnightly trips to Westmount since the New Year, I have taken time out to visit a few projects operating either in the City of Westmount or in the federal constituency of the same name with the help of "local initiative" funds.

I would now like to prevail upon my readers' patience by relating my observations on the imagination and creativity that many of their fellow citizens and neighbors have injected into these projects.

The youth habilitation demonstration is a pioneer organization endeavoring to "habilitate," as opposed to "rehabilitate," men and women who have never lived in the kind of environment that condition people for normal participation in society. By selecting a tiny number of individuals whose behavior will be carefully studied, the project organizers, with the help of highly trained human resources available in Sir George Williams University, hope to teach behavioral patterns and psychological attitudes which will give them an infinitely greater chance of realizing their potential.

The Children's Service Centre, located in Weredale Park, is using its grant to provide recreational activities for some of the 900 foster children under its jurisdiction, and to teach courses to volunteers on how to help disabled or unwed mothers manage their families.

Senior citizens

The Westmount Park Church has turned over part of its facilities to a group of senior citizens who are for the first time meeting regularly throughout the week. This project is being co-ordinated with the well-known Interfaith program of the Temple Emanuel, which means that the participants in the project should not be restricted to parishioners of the church.

STOP, also known as the Society To Overcome Pollution, is employing the funds allocated to it by hiring new personnel who will conduct studies on air pollution, work on projects and displays, develop an environmental education program, and help operate the Beaconfield Recycling depot.

Green Spaces, another of the projects which I have personally visited, is testing public reaction to the concept of a "Green" or "open spaces" plan for the Island of Montreal by promoting debate and discussion and by holding a public conference in the spring. A number of experts in the urban planning field are co-operating with the group's research operations which means that their final report to the City of Montreal ought to be pretty enlightened.

These are only five out of the 32 projects being funded by local initiatives grants whose principal activities or whose "head offices" are located in the federal riding of Westmount.

There are many more which I have not had an opportunity to visit but which I understand are equally imaginative and popular. I think that my high praise about the quality of the proposals put forward by Westmounters is substantiated by the fact that the federal government officials saw fit to allocate to these 32 projects grants totalling $736,847 — a not inconsiderable sum.

Word of caution

I feel compelled to add a word of caution at this particular point and it has to do with the future of "special employment plans" such as the local initiatives program: present and future organizers should be discouraged from expecting financial assistance on a permanent basis from the federal government for similar types of work.

For as it looks increasingly probable that the unemployment figures are going to decline steadily, so will it be less and less necessary to create emergency and temporary jobs.

In the meantime, I am convinced that with the very rare but well publicized exception, the monies are being very fruitfully spent, and I commend the many Canadians who are participating in this program for their ingenuity and initiative.

You Say . . .

their reasons. So now they are doing this at the high school and whose point of view do you think they should present, the government's?

This brings out another point clearly; there is no one in the community to explain the government's position, although it spends the taxpayers' money on advertisements in defence of it. The local board cannot defend the employer's position, being completely out of the negotiations. If the PSBGM has any views on them, they are not being publicized.

No, the teachers are here in the community and are trying to make themselves heard. They are defending themselves, true, but the danger to education in Westmount does not come, so far as I can see, from teacher militants so much as from Government policy at Quebec.

Take two of the most burning issues in education in Quebec in the last few years, pupil-teacher ratio and teacher classification. In both cases the policy has come from Quebec.

During the last round of negotiations the teachers tried to reach the parents on the question of the pupil-teacher ratio but without much success. It was only when parents realized, for instance, that a ratio of 27 to 1 in the primary school could mean classes of 36, 37, or 38, with fewer and fewer specialists even so, that they grasped the importance of the problem.

In the matter of teacher classification, the teachers are rightly upset by the arbitrary decision of the government to classify teachers on its own, contrary to the previous collective agreement and in such a way as to down-grade large numbers of them from the classifications under which they had been hired. As these classifications had been established by the PSBGM, one may hardly say that the teachers are being greedy in asking that they be respected.

Sure, the negotiations are complex and the education bill is high. Of course parents who attend the meeting will realize that they are hearing one side only. So what? Nothing is preventing the government from explaining its case to all who are interested.

Police, fire sirens respect is urged

Sir: I feel that the attention of the citizens of Montreal, and Westmount, needs to be called to the Highway Code. Unless they have changed the law, and I am sure they haven't, it states that any motor vehicle upon hearing a siren, either police or fire, should pull over as close to the curb as possible. If it is impossible to pull off the road, the vehicle should come to a complete stop, allowing the emergency vehicle to do the manoeuvring necessary. (This I know is not the correct wording, just my interpretation.)

Several weeks ago, on the Saturday when there was a bad fire on Crescent street, between St. Catherine and de Maison-neuve, I was waiting to cross Mountain on foot. It was a three-

Community problems' solutions

How every individual can find an effective way of helping toward the solution of community problems, through obedience to God's guidance, will be explained by a Christian Science lecturer Monday evening at a free public meeting. Speaking in the auditorium of the Christian Science church at McGregor and Cote des Neiges, John Richard C. Kenyon, CSB, of London, England, will have for his subject the question "Where Do We Look for Guidance?"

Mr. Kenyon served with distinction as a major in the British Army in the Second World War. He was a chartered accountant until he entered the public practice of Christian Science healing in 1950. He became a teacher of Christian Science in 1958. Currently he is on tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

There is no admission charge at a Christian Science lecture and no collection is taken.

Only spiritual discernment brings the recognition of those elements in human life which are truly substantial, according to the Bible lesson-sermon to be read at the services in all the Christian Science churches this Sunday. The subject for the week is "Substance".

The Catholic Family and Children's Services is a Federated Appeal agency. Its services include foster care, adoption services, adolescent help, services to unwed parents, homemaker services as well as family guidance and counselling.

On Wednesday mornings in Lent, following the 10 o'clock Eucharist, a discussion group meets to study The Lord's Prayer. Interested persons are cordially invited to attend. The leader of the group is the rector, Archdeacon J.N. Doidge.

UC speaker from Shaar

Mrs. Victor Elkin of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue will be guest speaker at the St. Andrew's UCW study-discussion group next Tuesday. Her topic: "The Life of Jewish Women in the Community".

The monthly organ recital this Sunday evening at St. Andrew's United Church will have as guest recitalist Larry Phillips, young American organist presently studying in Montreal. The public is invited.

A School for Adults who wish to prepare for church membership is currently underway on Wednesday evenings conducted by Rev. E.A. Kirker.

"Why Do Good People Suffer?" is the topic of Mr. Kirker's sermon this Sunday at 11 am.

Simon Solomon was appointed postmaster when the first post office was opened at St. John's Nfld. in 1806.

The Dominion-Douglas Literary Society is holding a Shamrock Festival next Wednesday in the church hall. A light lunch will be served at 12:30 pm after which Miss Barbara Whitley will speak. Visitors are welcome. This is the season's final meeting.

How to sell war poster exhibit

"How To Sell A War," an exhibition of posters and graphics from the First World War, will be presented by Gallery 90-40, 353 Prince Albert avenue until March 31.

Featuring over a hundred original and reproduction posters, ads, broadsides, magazine covers and circulars, the show contains material from every nation involved in the Great War.

This unique exhibit highlights the fact that in a world without radio and television and where newspapers were still the preserve of a literate minority, the poster was the one big instrument of mass communication.

It was the quickest and cheapest way to reach and arouse the most people, urging them either to enlist in the armed forces, hate the enemy or part with money for loans, bonds and charities.

The majority of the material on view is being exhibited in Montreal for the first time and all of the items are for sale.

The city's planning and redevelopment commission will meet residents of the urban renewal zone on Tuesday, March 21, Ald. Charles Aspler announced at Monday night's city council meeting.

He was replying to a question from Robert Legault, 3225 St. Antoine street, who asked council if it had done anything about the brief which had been presented earlier to council by St. Antoine street residents.

Some residents of the urban renewal zone have been asking for municipal assistance in revamping the area which, they claim, has deteriorated because of provincial and municipal government policies.

On Wednesday at Victoria Hall the urban renewal area's liaison committee will be discussing the problems of the St. Antoine street area.

The meeting will take place at 8 pm and will discuss suggestions to improve the area. The public and press are welcome to attend and anyone may participate in the meeting with the committee's assent.

A BARGAIN...
A REAL VALUE
IS NOT A MATTER OF PRICE ALONE!

It's what you get for what you pay.

The house dress or shift at $1.98 is no bargain if—the seams pop the first time you wear it or it shrinks inches the first time you wash it.

A cheap product just for the sake of low price is no bargain. A quality product at a low price, that's a bargain... that's a real value... that's our A&P Brands.

More than 40 years ago we decided our own brands would be our finest values.

They are... and we're proud of it.

So proud... so sure,

we unconditionally guarantee your full satisfaction.

Are A&P Brands a good reason for shopping A&P?

They're one of many.

All prices shown in this ad guaranteed effective at all A&P Stores located in the City of Montreal and suburbs, plus Valleyfield, through Saturday, March 11th, 1972.

Marriage failures studied

A failure in marriage can be just as distressing to a person as addiction to alcohol or drugs. The whole family-life area, encompassing physical and mental as well as spiritual needs, will be part of the "health" message that Seventh-Day Adventists will explore in the 1972 "Reach Out For Life" crusade now in its second week in Montreal.

Functioning as open-house community sessions, the series of lectures, films and discussions are being held at 7:30 pm in the evening to March 15 (Monday and Thursday excluded) at Victoria Hall, and from March 17 to 26 (Monday and Thursday excluded) at 7:30 pm at 571 Victoria avenue.

On hand to provide scientifically advanced answers, Dr. William Wagner, MD and Pastor G.J. Bertochini, of Narcotic Education Inc., Washington, will examine the grey areas of the marriage lifestyle.

One problem to be aired will be the lack of understanding arising between marriage partners and its subsequent loss of love. This in turn breeds insecure relationships that generally repeat themselves for the children involved, thus giving rise to a host of other problems.

While a person may succeed in ignoring a marriage failure, other failure patterns that enter into the professional, social and spiritual areas cannot be ignored.

Magic formula?

Is there a magic formula to cure a distressful marriage?

The scientific answer points out that it's a matter of attaining maturity. To achieve this definite steps are involved. Further, the person who develops good mental, physical and spiritual health will provide oneself with the basic tools for successful everyday living.

Of special interest to people who wish to quit smoking, there will be programmed teaching sessions in various communities on "The Five-Day Plan" to break the habit. For drug addicts or alcoholics requiring treatment, there will also be special assistance.

The "Reach Out for Life" crusade is scheduled for the second week as follows:

Saturday, Mar. 11 — Film: One in 20,000, on cancer due to tobacco; lecture on A Matter of Life and Breath, and ensuing discussion;

Sunday, Mar. 12 — Film on A Crutch For All Seasons; lecture on Destiny Suicide, and ensuing discussion;

Tuesday, Mar. 14 — Film on Marijuana; lecture on To Be Burned Up, and ensuing discussion;

Wednesday, Mar. 15 — Film on Just One; lecture on Drinking and Thinking, and ensuing discussion;

Friday, Mar. 17 — Film and lecture on Lawlessness and ensuing discussion.

Saturday, Mar. 18 — Film on Narcotics — The Decision; lecture on Control or Controlled, and ensuing discussion.

Admission is free. All are welcome.

BOOSTING THE MONTREAL SYMPHONY: Mrs. Henri Lafleur, 332 Olivier avenue, co-chairman of Opus 72 and a member of the Junior Committee of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, presents a John Fox gouache from Galerie Godard-Lefort in the recent third fortnightly drawing at Place des Arts to Mrs. Jeannine Vinet, the winner. There will be 13 drawings. Meanwhile, the Women's Committee of the MSO is busy planning its "Bazaar" for Monday, April 17 at Victoria Hall of clothing, furniture, toys, sports equipment, kitchen utensils, bric-a-brac, etc., and appeals to Westmounters to start sending items now to the local depot at the home of Mrs. Anthony Wait, 685 Grosvenor avenue. Last year $10,000 was raised.

St. Mary Aux. holds annual

Charles Lynch club speaker

The Auxiliary of St. Mary's Hospital is holding its Annual Meeting and luncheon next Thursday at noon in the hospital auditorium when the guest speaker will be Denis F. Kindellan, president of the board of directors of St. Mary's. Mrs. G. Herbert Cook, 438 Strathcona avenue, president of the Auxiliary, will be in the chair.

Journalist Charles Lynch is to speak on "The Next Federal Election" to the Women's Canadian Club of Montreal Monday at 2 pm in the Royal Bank auditorium, Place Ville Marie.

The princesses are the Misses Miriam O'Grady, Christine Sweeney, Lorraine Larkin and Ruth Auchinleck.

The parade which will commence at Fort street and proceed east on St. Catherine street to City Councillors will see many floats, bands, the sea, air and army cadets as well as the famous Irish jaunting car along with several other marching units accompanied by several thousands walking Irishmen.

The parade will be followed by the annual dinner-dance being held at the Windsor Hotel at 7 pm.

You Say . . .

that low-cost rental subsidized housing projects (such as the proposed one) especially are the very worst of all municipal evils.

The article's reference to "a Frankenstein monster" and "instant" and "dismal slums" (even where a given project had received the very highest architectural honors) does truly little to allay our concern in respect of the one now being readied for implantation in our city.

These important disclosures by Fortune are timely, and strikingly in line with our previously-expressed views, and we would particularly like to point up the following conclusions to be drawn therefrom

(1) Glaring and very unfair inequities always exist in public housing, both vis-a-vis the contributing taxpayers, and the occupants themselves;

(2) Project housing, it seems, forms a haven for social disorder and crime, and is a destructive blighter of neighborhoods. They are unjust, most of all to their own occupants. (Without the added disadvantage of being crowded against both a transcontinental railway and a highway!);

(3) Only the welfare, etc. cases will stay; the rest move out when they are expected to pay anything more than the rock minimum rent;

(4) They are virtually impossible of administration (setting aside, of course, the added ludicrous traffic problems inherent in this particular one!);

(5) Each rental type unit (not "building") eventually costs $180, to $200,000 over the long term — representing a crushing burden on the taxpayer!;

(6) Where absolutely necessary to "publicly house" people, it has been consistently found that rejuvenated older existing buildings are far less costly; (for obvious reasons) — see our letter, Westmount Examiner, Feb. 10.;

(7) The concept of a cash or scrip payment (or series thereof) so that individual personal arrangements can be made for private housing, is strongly recommended, in preference to any type of public housing.

Like all long-term Westmounters, we are proud of our well-run city, and our police and fire protection second to none in America. We nonetheless deem it foolhardy to think that as neophytes in such a pernicious field, we could expect "ipso facto" to do much better than our American counterparts. Their professional expertise as well as

The Westmount Examiner, Thursday, March 9, 1972 - 11 their sad experiences with public housing span a third of this century.

None of us are in any measure reassured by the mass of euphoria which has accompanied the promotion of the city's proposed project. We think it will change nothing in the poor history of such programs.

With city mergers and MUC taxes upon us, surely our citizens at large need to be protected from such untrod and potentially astronomical fiscal burdens — quite apart from all other detrimental considerations. This is doubly true for those of us being asked to bear the added extraordinary personal sacrifices of living quality, abased property values, overcrowding, etc., in our daily lives.

In light of the foregoing, all our people ask that the public housing concept be abandoned as obsolescent, in our public accommodation problems, whatever they are, can be more easily solved in an imaginative, happier, and far less costly manner.

Do we really want the thorny, degrading problems of public housing for Westmount? We urge a change of direction while there is yet time.

Respectfully yours,

Historical Association exhibit ends

The photographic display of the Westmount Historical Association was dismantled Tuesday evening after being in the Westmount library for two weeks.

According to historical association members, the display which paired modern and old shots of the city attracted much interest and comment.

David Gibson was responsible for the contemporary photographs which he attempted to take from the same angle and spot as were the older photographs.

Beside shots of old buildings, churches and streets, the display included photographs of old Westmount families, classes, teams and military groups.

For readers of The Examiner there was special section identifying pictures used in the newspaper's historical quiz last fall.

President Miss Alice Lighthall with the display committee acquired the photographs and documents after much searching. The display committee consisted of Mrs. C.H.D. Connell, Mrs. L. Fuller, Mrs. A. Senecal and Mrs. H. Cotton.

Weredale whips Unity by 26-13 in floor hockey

By DAVE PETERS

Last week saw the Weredale Senior Floor Hockey Team led by Robert Aerial with seven goals whip Unity Boy's Club 26-13. The team seems to be playing much better now and should be in good shape for their next game this week against the "Old Boys," a game that is always a lot of fun for all involved.

The woodwork shop has reopened and Mr. Fair has returned again this year to give classes during the day, with Bill Rhyno coming in evenings to give classes to all those interested. There has been some new equipment added and the boys are turning out some nice projects such as lamps, bowls, tables and book shelves.

The games rooms and lounges have been completed and the boys are once again enjoying the activities they offer. New pool tables have been installed, and the activities now consist of pool, billiards, bumper pool and table tennis.

Another new activity that has been started is photography. There is a fairly well-equipped darkroom and Bob Bradley has been coming in twice a week giving instructions to both beginners and experienced photographers.

The interest in skiing has really picked up lately, and aside from the nightly trips to Murray Hill park with the various instructors, the Weredale Camp is now being used on the weekends.

Mrs. Lightman's art exhibit Mar. 15 - Apr. 2

Mrs. Terry Lightman, well known in Westmount particularly for her organizing of the city's annual September Fair, will be displaying a group of her paintings representing the Chassidic philosophy at Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, 450 Kensington avenue, from Wednesday at 8:15 pm.

The paintings will be on display daily from 1:30 pm to 5:30 pm except Fridays and Saturdays. A special tour will be held Wednesday from 7 to 10 pm and Sunday from 10 am to 1:30 pm. Born in Washington D.C., Mrs.

City invites keen curlers to Caledonia

The city's recreation department is sponsoring an "open house" at the Caledonia Curling Club on Tuesday evening, March 21, in an attempt to determine the interest of Westmounters in curling.

Any Westmount adult who wishes to curl but does not belong to the club is invited to the Caledonia Club, 11 Hillside avenue, for the evening.

Experienced curlers will assist officials of the recreation department to arrange friendly games and will conduct brief instructional sessions.

If the open night is a success and sufficient interest is shown by those who attend, Westmount will consider including curling as a regular part of its winter recreation program.

Lightman is a graduate of George Washington University and attended the Corcoran Art School in Washington and the Students' Art League in New York City.

She has held shows in South America, India and the United States and her works are represented in private and public collections in North and South America.

Her paintings will be on display from March 15 to April 10. The public is asked to use the Kensington avenue entrance to the synagogue.

ROTARY MEETS AT WEREDALE: This is general view of the newly refurbished auditorium, damaged in a fire last year, of Weredale House boys home in Weredale Park where yesterday the Rotary Club of Westmount held its weekly luncheon meeting prior to a tour of the building. Rotary President Russell King, standing right, is seen thanking Executive Director George Brugman of Weredale for the hospitality and commending him for the work of the House.

Westmount Rotarians tour Weredale House

Westmount Rotary Club members yesterday changed the venue of their weekly luncheon meetings from Victoria Hall to the newly refurbished auditorium of Weredale House.

In the words of Executive Director George Brugman, the Rotarians thus comprised the first official gathering at the local residential school for boys since its recent extensive renovation.

And very thorough have been the renovations, as the service club group saw in a tour after lunch. Members of staff were on duty in the various units to ex-educational work, said that after Westmount High School, which is attended by 31 Weredale boys, the biggest group receive their schooling in Weredale where there is a concentrated effort in behalf of the under-achievers. Nineteen other institutions in the Montreal area participate in Weredale education, in special and regular classes.

Roger Cote, the resident director—all other staff members live out—said that the capacity of Weredale now is 173 boys, divided into some 10 regular as well as special units ranging up to maximum security.

Younger boys from age 8 upward, are housed four to a room though seniors are two to a room, giving them a more home-like atmosphere than in the former days of dormitories. Bedrooms are wall-to-wall carpeted and suitably furnished. The boys are encouraged to provide their own wall decorations to their own individual interests and tastes.

At the head table with Rotary President Russell King and Mr. Brugman was Dr. P.C. Staples, a Westmount Rotarian and member of Weredale's board, who cited the long association of the club and of individual members with the House and its Laurentian camp.

There were four visiting Rotarians—including Mr. Brugman, a member of the Montreal Rotary Club.

WHS students shape up fashion show Tuesday

About 50 Westmount High School students will present "Fashion Encounter," a modeling show of the latest teenage fashions on Tuesday at 8 pm at Westmount High School.

Initiated by two members of the Westmount High Home and School Association, the purpose of the show is to raise money for the Westmount High scholarship fund which is at a dangerously low level.

Said Mrs. Frank Engels, 1 Douglas avenue, one of the initiators: "Everything will be done by the students - the music, commentary and modeling."

She added that the students had

13-min. session; Tribute paid Walter Turner

One of the big stories to emerge from Monday night's uneventful March city council meeting was that the gathering lasted only 13 minutes.

But that isn't a record. According to Montreal Star Reporter Walter Turner who, it was announced by City Manager Norman Dawe was celebrating his 38th year of reporting, said he remembered a council meeting which lasted only 3½ minutes.

Ald. Ian Craig asked Mr. Turner if he had seen any improvement around city hall during his long reporting tenure. Mr. Turner just laughed.

Mayor Paul Ouimet added that Mr. Turner had been a great asset to Westmount and to other island municipalities.

WHS band goes to Mass.

The Westmount High School concert band, under the direction of Mrs. S. Wyjad, is making an exchange trip with Swampscott High School in Massachusetts.

This event will take place 15 miles northeast of Boston. This event will take place from Thursday, March 16, to Sunday, March 19.

Other features to help promote the band program include: On Friday, March 10, in Westmount High School at 2.30 pm, a music clinic for grade 4.5, and 6 pupils of Westmount Park School and on Tuesday, March 14 at Roslyn School at 11 am, a music clinic for grades 4.5, and 6 pupils of Roslyn.

'Y' drive on

Some 2,000 convassers this year are involved in the financial campaign by the YMCAs of Greater Montreal. It runs March 6 to 18, with a city-wide objective of $400,000. The Westmount objective is $12,800.

worked enthusiastically to bring about the show and that it was a first ever for Westmount High.

Other initiator of the show is Mrs. Mervin Kerman, 40 Aberdeen avenue.

Both male and female models will display the latest fashions and will be assisted by Audrey Morris, manageress of a Montreal modeling agency who will assist the participants in make-up and modeling techniques.

The initiators are hoping for a sell-out of the 800 tickets available. Tickets will be sold at the door or may be purchased at the box office at Westmount High between 12:15 and 1:15 pm.

plain the work and the facilities.

Mr. Brugman spoke briefly at the luncheon, detailing some of the changes which have taken place in the care and treatment of the disadvantaged boys who are sent to Weredale by social agencies, social welfare court and parents.

He described the various sections, including diagnostic, remedial and orientation and the kind of treatment given in these units and in the continuing care provided up to the age of 18.
