Trudeau tries to upstage Stanfield

Party leaders take their campaigns to Prairies

Canada's national political leaders barnstormed the Prairies Thursday, competing for votes in the busiest day yet of the July 8 election campaign.

All took shots at each other's policies and proposals, but Prime Minister Trudeau added a new twist by trying to upstage the official campaign kick-off by Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

En route to Saskatchewan for his first western visit, Mr. Trudeau stopped briefly in Win-ipeg to announce 800 new jobs for the city's aerospace industry. Winnipeg was announced well in advance as the city where Mr. Stanfield would begin his campaign and the Conservative leader found himself competing for attention because of the prime minister's visit.

David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader, spent the day in Edmonton, fielding questions from a student audience and criticizing the federal and Alberta governments for their handling of a dispute over petrochemical projects.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette remained in Quebec, campaigning in his own riding of Temiscamingue.

STOPOVER WAS BRIEF
 Mr. Trudeau touched down in Winnipeg just long enough to hold a news conference and announce a new "third-level air carrier system" to improve local service in the Winnipeg - Brandon - Dauphin - Yorkton -

Saskatoon area.

He also said the government has authorized a $15-million purchase of two aircraft from a company at Gimli, Man., and will transfer overhaul operations for 707 military jets to Winnipeg.

The aim is to create at least 800 new jobs, he said.

He did not announce the transfer of Air Canada maintenance operations for Boeing jets to Winnipeg, as some had expected.

Mr. Stanfield was also confronted with questions on Air Canada maintenance facilities, a major election issue in the city.

He proposed decentralization of Crown corporations, including Air Canada, which now has most of its maintenance work done at Montreal.

PROMISES FAST ACTION
 On other subjects, Mr. Stanfield made his first major promise of the campaign, telling supporters at an evening rally that a Conservative government would act quickly to cut taxes for low-income wage earners.

Parliament would be called into session quickly and cutting taxes would be one of his first acts if elected prime minister, he said. He did not say how great a reduction he would propose.

He also said low-wage earners would not suffer from the Conservative proposal of wage and price controls.

A Conservative government would be "prudent to the point of frugality," he said, but it would not ignore the plight of those who find it hardest to pay for food, clothing and shelter.

The Conservatives opened their campaign in Winnipeg in the hope of unseating Defence Minister James Richardson.

Mr. Richardson, who has worked strenuously to upgrade the city's aerospace industry, appeared at the news conference with Mr. Trudeau.

KNOCKS PREMIER
 In Edmonton, Mr. Lewis criticized Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed and federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald for arguing publicly over petrochemical developments.

The NDP leader said the premier was acting like an Arab oil producer by threatening to cut off Alberta "exports" to Sarnia, Ont., if plans go ahead for a $250-million petrochemical plant in the southwestern Ontario city.

He accused Mr. Macdonald of "irresponsible and unacceptable behavior" for threatening to retaliate by using federal export-licensing powers to force Alberta to co-operate.

Both leaders should put the interests of the country first and try to negotiate an acceptable solution, Mr. Lewis said.

He was greeted by a mix of boos and cheers by an audience of about 500 students when he appeared for his first question-and-answer session of the campaign.

One student expressed relief when the NDP leader announced that his remarks would be brief.

"That you feel that way, I'm in sympathy with," he shot back, "but you really don't have to express it." He more than held his own with hecklers during the rest of the meeting.

The session produced questions on topics ranging from homosexuality and marijuana to the RCMP and language legislation in Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau, after stopping in Winnipeg, pushed on to Saskatoon where he visited a factory employing handicapped workers, and mingled with late-afternoon shoppers at a busy downtown arcade.

He flew to North Battleford, Sask., for an evening rally where he dealt directly with the issue of his own personality.

"Nobody is asking you to like Trudeau," he told an attentive audience of about 1,000 at a high school auditorium.

"I appeal to you to judge me not as a person but to think of the country we are living in and the times we are living in."

He said he is part of the Liberal team and asked:

"Has this government been bad to you? Haven't you had, by and large, a government that has come to grips with the problems it had to face?"

He received a warm reception and spent about an hour shaking hands.

He returned to Saskatchewan afterward and flies to British Columbia today for another full campaign day. Mr. Stanfield will campaign in Quebec and Mr. Lewis will spend the day in Saskatchewan. Mr. Caouette will remain in Quebec.

Watergate activity in high gear

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives judiciary committee has been advised by its two top lawyers that it can't rely on White House-edited transcripts in its impeachment inquiry.

Errors, omissions and deletions in the 46 conversations released April 30 by President Nixon make them unsatisfactory as evidence, say chief counsel John Doar and Albert Jenner, the chief minority counsel.

They told the committee Thursday there is "an absolute need" to get the tapes of the conversations if the impeachment verdict is to be based on the best evidence.

Nixon spurned a committee subpoena for 11 Watergate tapes Wednesday and said he will not respond to any other subpoenas it may issue for Watergate material. He turned over the transcripts in response to an earlier subpoena for tapes.

In another Watergate arena, today is the deadline for White House response to subpoenas for papers left behind by two former Nixon aides when they still were working for the president. U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell has said he may have to throw out charges against the five defendants in the Ellsberg break-in case if all relevant material is not provided.

LOSES COURT FIGHT
 And in still another tapes development, the Senate Watergate committee was told it has not shown sufficient need for five White House tape recordings it has been seeking. The U.S. Court of Appeals came to that decision Thursday in ruling against the committee's legal battle for the tapes.

In other Watergate developments:

—Attorney-General William Saxbe told the Senate judiciary committee that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski will not be fired. Saxbe told committee Chairman James Eastland (Dem. Miss.) that he will continue to guarantee Jaworski's freedom in the Watergate investigation.

—An Internal Revenue Service spokesman said IRS has declined to supply the House judiciary committee with information on Nixon's tax returns.

At a news conference following the House committee's session, Doar repeated the criticism of the White House tapes he had delivered to the members.

"I am concerned about their accuracy and about the judgments of the president and his counsel on matters of relevance," he said.

Doar's assessment of the White House transcripts is based on comparisons with transcripts produced by the committee from tapes of the same conversations it got from the special prosecutor.

Chairman Peter Rodino said the comparisons disclosed numerous misstatements, omissions, misattributions and deletions that distorted the meaning of some conversations in the White House transcripts.

Rodino has scheduled a meeting for next Thursday or Friday to deal with Nixon's refusal

Magog Lion's Club holds huge auction

MAGOG (CC) — The Lion's Club here will hold an auction extravaganza Saturday.

Members of the local Lion's club have worked for weeks to collect the merchandise which will be sold in the Magog arena starting at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Hundreds of articles will be auctioned off as the club undertakes its first auction ever. The club hopes to raise approximately $2,000 through Saturday's efforts.

"We didn't think we would have to ask regional co-operation," a club spokesman said at a press conference in Sherbrooke yesterday. "We have so many items to sell that we had to invite the whole region to attend."

The Lion's club, which already carries out many charitable and social action projects in the city, will set aside the funds collected Saturday for a project directed towards the city's elderly.

The 17 active members have worked hard on the auction, the first of its kind hosted by the club. As social action projects, the club finance the sending of 70 girl guides to camp during the summer and provides funds for an eye-glass campaign and provides funds for the eye bank located in Magog.

Anyone interested in attending the auction can view available merchandise at the Magog arena this evening between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.

A LESSON TO REMEMBER — This student driver learned an important lesson about slippery driving conditions and soft gravel shoulders yesterday outside Lennoxville. Hopefully, a lesson like this won't be easily forgotten.

WHERE THE UNUSUAL ALWAYS HAPPENS — Last year it was the pillow fight over a rill at the Thirsty Boot — this year was the advent of the first streaker on a motorcycle. Admittedly Wally Madison wasn't going to risk the crown jewels if his bike caught fire, so he decided to ride pillion on a motorcycle driven by Malcolm Allsop, a sometime denizen of the "Boot." His only garb was the helmet, had the event occurred 20 minutes later it would have been viewed by Corporal Marcel Grondin, QPF, Cowansville, who happened to be in the area in an unmarked car. Wally, who later cleaned off in Beaver Pond, said: "The water was damned cold!"

General strike begins to affect N. Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — "We're not starving—yet," said Neil, a victim of the crippling general strike by Northern Ireland's Protestant militants that went into its 10th day today.

A Protestant himself, Neil is a craftsman in a Belfast factory. He said he has not been paid since the strike began.

"If the strike goes on for much longer there are going to be riots, looting and killing as people are forced to take what they can find or starve," he said.

Neil is not his real name. He asked not be identified "because it could mean bad troubles for me and my family."

Protestant thugs have used strongarm tactics to enforce the strike, threatening men like Neil who would prefer to work.

Neil was "asked to stay away" from his downtown plant last week. He wasn't threatened directly, he said, but he knows men who defied the shutdown have been beaten or had their homes set afire by the strikers.

INDUSTRY HALTED
 The strike, called by Protestant extremists to kill plans to give the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish republic a voice in the affairs of Northern Ireland, has brought industry and commerce to a virtual standstill.

Electricity and gas supplies have plummeted to critical lows. Food stocks, especially fresh meat and vegetables, are diminishing rapidly and the stores that still are open report panic buying of canned goods.

There was a sign of a slight letup in the extremist grip Thursday night, when leaders of the Ulster Workers' Council, coordinating the strike, agreed to let power plants continue operating at their minimal scale. Supplies are down to 30 per cent of normal.

Neil, 29, lives in a comfortable two-storey house in Belfast's northern outskirts. Protestants and Catholics have lived peacefully side by side in the area since sectarian strife erupted in 1969. It was a refuge from the troubles.

SAVINGS DISAPPEAR
 Yet the brutal realities still reach them. Neil lost an eye when terrorists bombed his factory two years ago. He was off work for 16 months and underwent two major operations. He used up his savings, then borrowed money from a bank and his parents to support his wife and two infant sons.

Thousands of men and women have been left jobless by the strike, and hardship is widespread.

Banks have closed, putting cash in short supply. Credit is non-existent. Now the strikers have blocked fuel supplies, a move that may throttle those electric power stations still operating.

Many homes are without power for as much as 16 hours a day. At the few gasoline stations still open, militants are in control and decide who gets gasoline.

Neil's experiences are not unique. But now he has had enough.

"I was blown up by the Irish Republican Army, the Catholics, and I don't feel any great bitterness towards Catholics because of it," he says.

"Yet now my family is being put through more hardship by our own kind. Where is the sense of it?"

Y's Men's track meet Saturday

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Over 200 participants will compete at the 32nd Y's Men's Eastern Townships Track and Field Meet being held at Alexander Galt Regional High School tomorrow, May 25.

Teams from Richmond Regional High, Massey-Vanier Regional High, Stanstead College, Bishop's College School and AGRHS will take part in the local prestige track and field day.

The meet will be held at Galt instead of the Parade Grounds this year. There are several reasons for the change, which were explained by one of the organizers, Bob Jarjour, yesterday.

"Firstly, the track is measured in meters, instead of yards," he said, "which makes it more official than the old dirt track at the parade grounds. Anyone in training who might advance in the future to a provincial or Canadian team, would definitely have an advantage running on the Galt track."

"Next, the track has six lanes instead of four at the Parade Grounds. That factor should make the competition a bit keener because there are four places in each race. With more than four runners in each heat, the points will be up for grabs, as two won't get any."

"Lastly," Jarjour said, "it's the track itself. It is constructed of a rubber-asphalt compound, which makes it much superior to anything in the area. The facilities at Galt are just a lot better than those at the Parade Grounds."

Continuing, he agreed that they will lose some spectators because of the shift in locations. "But those who do come out and watch should see better competition because of the improved facilities," Jarjour concluded.

Because of the switch to the metric system for track events, it is very unlikely that records will be broken due to the extended length of the races. For example, the old 100-yard dash will now be a 100-meter dash, and will cover a distance of just over 108 yards. Field events will stay with the English system this year, though.

The BCS boys and AGRHS girls will be out to defend their over-all titles claimed after last year's events. One change in classes has been made this year. The junior and juvenile girls sections will fall under the category of senior girls.

The public will be in store for some very good interscholastic athletic competition when they attend the meet, which begins at 9:45 a.m. Saturday. Even though they have to travel by car to get there this year, the support will be well reciprocated by the participants.

The organizers of the meet, Bob Jarjour, Curt Bishop and Doug Guthrie, are hoping for better weather for the day. But as Mr. Jarjour explained, "Our average is pretty low in that area, ... in the last five years we might have had two good years."

The marshalls, Rollie Dewar and Gordon Ross, will be on hand as usual to oversee the proceedings as they have in the past. Come out and support this local service club and the local schools in an exciting day of track and field events.

Alberta moves into private enterprise

EDMONTON (CP) - While flying the banner of free enterprise, Alberta's Progressive Conservative government has been moving into areas once reserved for the private sector.

Premier Peter Lougheed and his cabinet ministers consistently stress their commitment to the free enterprise system.

But in efforts to exercise more control over the province's economic future, the government has increased its participation in areas once the exclusive domain of private business.

Premier Lougheed, who has worked closely with the NDP premiers in the other three Western provinces on issues of mutual concern, assures businessmen the government isn't interested in eliminating their role.

But as the owner of depleting natural resources, the province has to make sure that it gets a fair return and that small investors have an opportunity to share the wealth.

The throne speech opening the spring session of the legislature clearly presented the government's view:

"This citizen partnership approach, involving Alberta shareholders and their government, will strive for the appropriate balance of Alberta resource control and private enterprise management."

TWO VEHICLES

The government has two main vehicles for implementing this policy—the Alberta Energy Co. and the Alberta Resources Growth Co.

The energy company, which will be operational later this year, will be a joint government-investor undertaking that will allow expanded citizen participation in resource development.

The province will sell the company its natural gas reserves in the Suffield Block, estimated at four trillion cubic feet, and turn over its option to buy 20 per cent of the $800-million oil sand extraction plant being built by Syncrude Canada Ltd.

The first share offering of $150 million will be split between the government and private investors. Small investors, normally unable to afford resource company shares, will be encouraged to buy shares that are not expected to cost more than $20 each initially. An instalment plan is being formulated to help the small investor buy into the company.

AIDS SMALL INDUSTRIES

Legislation establishing the resources growth company is scheduled to be introduced later this year. Based on the same government-investor concept as the energy company, it is expected to be given government interests in secondary processing plants.

As outlined in the throne speech:

"It will provide Albertans with the opportunity to invest in resource, petrochemical and resources-upgrading projects in the existing decade. By this means, balanced growth involving smaller centres throughout the province will be achieved."

A 20-per-cent interest in Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp. Ltd. of Regina was recently acquired by the Alberta government at a cost of $10.8 million.

MUST INTERVENE

Industry Minister Fred Peacock says it is not a departure from the government's concept of free enterprise. If the economy can't be developed fully through private enterprise, Mr. Peacock reasons, then the government must intervene.

The government has taken an active role in oil marketing with establishment of a petroleum marketing commission that makes sure the best possible prices are obtained for Alberta crude. The commission buys and sells oil produced from Crown leases.

The government also has set up its own export agency and has conducted a series of trade missions.

Another government move into once-forbidden areas was its acquisition for $1 of controlling interest in a financially-troubled chemical plant. Mr. Peacock said the government was only acting as a caretaker to protect 45 jobs and is looking for someone to buy the plant.

Inflatable bags salvage logs

VANCOUVER (CP) - Wes MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Cascade White Pine division.

His quarry is the sinker—the log that noses to the bottom because of a density heavier than water.

Mr. Maggs, 30, dives to the bottom and feels his way across the murky mud until he encounters a log. Next, he chains a white vinyl and nylon flotation bag to the log, which he fills with air from an auxiliary hose and air gun fed from his breathing tank.

Inflated, the bags have a buoyancy factor of about 100 pounds each. That's generally all it takes to raise a sinker to the surface, although some of the bigger logs require two flotation bags.

Mr. Maggs, 30, of Fraser Burrard Diving Ltd., is a 10-year veteran of underwater industrial work. Salvaging logs from the bottom of the muddy Fraser is becoming a regular feature of "We pay for the logs and if we lose them through sinkage it costs us money," said Mr. St. John.

"Right now it's so black down there you can't see a thing," said logs back. The system works Mr. Maggs, who spends shifts of quite well and we plan to continue with it."

Mr. St. John said most of the sinkers are dense hemlock and balsam logs.

When a bundle is broken open on arrival at Canadian White Pine, a small percentage of the logs sink to the bottom, safely inside the booming area where they pose no threat to deepsea or river traffic. These are the logs Mr. Maggs brings to the surface.

Booming area foreman Bill Young said it took Mr. Maggs only four days to float all the sinkers to the surface in the first trial of underwater logging. He estimated that Mr. Maggs salvaged about 80 logs from the river mud and saved the company about $2,500.

To force a return to work American Bilrite may take court action

SHERBROOKE (CC) — American Bilrite management in Sherbrooke is expected to go to court in the near future, maybe today, to get an injunction preventing employees, who are undertaking their third consecutive day of walk-outs, from disrupting plant operations.

The more than 400 employees, affiliated with the Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques, walked off their jobs for the second time within one week, Tuesday. They haven't yet returned to their jobs and there is no indication that they will do so today.

Union spokesman says the employees would like a cost of living bonus to cover inflation. The company representatives say the company pay scale under the collective agreement takes into consideration the increase in the consumer price index.

Furthermore, the conflict is at a stalemate because the company, according to local general-manager Michael Weight, will not consider the employees' demands until such a time as company operations return to normal.

Union representatives, on the other hand, say the employees won't return to work until the company gives in to a cost of living clause.

The company's position is that a collective agreement is signed in good faith by both the union and management and should be adhered to by both groups throughout the contract's duration. Without such a bond between the two groups, company officials argue, there is little validity in a collective agreement.

The injunction which the company may seek would allow management to fill orders by shipping stock which is already in the inventory.

Employees not working would be unable to prevent salaried employees from entering the Bank Street plant.

Mr. Weight calls the employees' action "illegal" and today company officials are planning to send a letter to their workers explaining the situation. Company lawyers prepared the bid for an injunction Thursday.

More than one year is left in the last contract signed between the union and American Bilrite officials.

The contract, signed in January, 1973, but retroactive to September 1972 was to be in effect until September 1975.

"We are willing to take an objective analysis of the union's demands," Mr. Weight said. "We will not do so until the employees return to a legal status; that is, until such a time as the employees return to work."

Mr. Weight is surprised at the employees' actions. The company has never been the scene of a strike since the company established here in 1913. "We have always had excellent employee relations," he said.

"We were stunned by last Thursday's actions," he added. "We had no knowledge that the employees were discontent."

The employees, who earn an average $3.68 an hour in Sherbrooke, walked off their jobs last Thursday and Friday. They returned but gave the company a 48-hour ultimatum demanding a cost of living escalator clause.

Wednesday the workers, most of them men, left their jobs and voted 74 per cent in favor of continuing their "study sessions" until a solution is found.

Historical sites named

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS (MI) — Denis Hardy, minister of cultural affairs, has labelled two Eastern Townships mills 'historical monuments'.

The first, the Denison flour mill, is located in Richmond County. Built in 1850, its style is 'Loyalist'. It is a wood building very representative of the initial population of the Eastern Townships and of historical industrialization.

Powered by water, it was in operation until 1963. More than two stories high, the building is constructed of large quartered logs, panelled with thick boards, and covered with planks.

Its foundations is of field stone. Its roof slopes in two directions at a slight angle and is covered with corrugated iron. All machinery is still in place.

The second, the Frelighsburg flour-mill, in Missisquoi, is of the 'New England' style. The mill in question was built to replace an older one, built on the same site in 1974. Both mills operated on water power.

Being worked until 1965, the Frelighsburg mill's last miller owned it from 1920 to 1967. A stone building, it consists of two stories and a loft.

It measures 42 feet by 36 feet. From water level to top it measures 43 feet. Its walls are three feet thick.

Both mills should be available for public visits in the future. Mr. Hardy's decision to classify the buildings as historical monuments came in the wake of recommendations to do so by the advisory commission on cultural well-being. The mills are subject to law which specifies that they may not be moved, destroyed, altered, allowed to run down, restored, repaired or otherwise involved in construction without the prior approval of the minister of cultural affairs.

Two staunch E.T. SC MPs leave politics

COMPTON (CC) — Although the July 8 federal election campaign is still in its early stages, residents of the Eastern Townships were stunned for the second time this week.

Henri Latulippe, who has served the voters of Compton county for the last 12 years, announced Wednesday that he would not seek re-election.

The Social Credit party representative said there were many reasons why he was dropping out of active politics. Among the reasons was his willingness to see a more youthful candidate take over the reins of the party in the county, and wanting to spend more time with his family and business concerns.

Mr. Latulippe's announcement comes only days after Leonel Beaudoin, another staunch Social Credit supporter, said he would not seek re-election in Richmond riding. Mr. Beaudoin, who has served two consecutive terms in Ottawa, won the riding by a more than 5,000-vote majority during the 1972 federal election.

In Mr. Latulippe and Mr. Beaudoin, the Social Credit party has lost two of its major leaders in the Eastern Townships. Both stood an excellent chance of re-election in a region which has voted heavily for Social Credit during the past few elections.

OFY grants unveiled

SHERBROOKE (MI) — The Canadian ministry of manpower and immigration has approved 85 Eastern Townships Opportunities for Youth (OFY) projects.

Between them, the projects will create 801 jobs and represent $845,236 of federal support. The global OFY objective, across Canada, is to create 24,000 jobs for students with a budget of approximately $30.5 million.

Of the four projects granted to English-speaking groups, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Dixville and Stoke Lake will each boast one. Between them, they will create 36 jobs and represent a budget totaling $40,170.

The Sherbrooke project, entitled Operation Concern, is a combined church renovation and care of elderly persons effort.

The Lennoxville project is for the development of an aquatics program for that municipality.

The Dixville project, conducted by Champlain College special education students, is a continuation of last year's project. It is aimed at establishing an intellectual and recreational program for the mentally retarded children of the Dixville Home.

The Stoke Lake project is devoted to the organization of an open air camp site.

The Sherbrooke project will employ eight students; Lennoxville, eight; Dixville, 10; and Stoke Lake, 10.

5,000 more voters here

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The chief federal returning officer in Sherbrooke riding predicted yesterday that there could be as many as 5,000 more voters than in 1972.

If all the riding is well covered I would expect about 5,000 more voters than last time," Roch Guertin said. The local offices are located in the King street west shopping centre.

Mr. Guertin already is planning 30 additional polling stations for the July 8 vote and there is a possibility that even more polls will be added.

In the 1972 federal election there were 254 polling stations while 284 polling stations are planned for this summer's election. "That doesn't take into account the stations we will have to divide because there are too many voters," Mr. Guertin said during an interview.

In 1972 there were 64,327 eligible voters in the riding which was won by Liberal party candidate Irene Pelletier by a 4,804 vote margin over Social Credit representative Maurice Couture.

In the last election only 49,592 persons voted, according to statistics provided by Mr. Guertin.

PRIZE AWARDED — A tent was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Germain Fontaine and their four children Thursday night at Carrefour de l'Estrie as part of the Outdoor Living Show which will run until June 1. Council spends money on traffic lights

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Sherbrooke council decided to purchase traffic lights for eight city intersections earlier this week.

The city awarded the contract for the traffic lights to Adrien Vachon Ltee., which had submitted the lowest tender amongst four firms. The lights will cost the city $142,190.

The sets of traffic lights will be installed at the intersections of Wiggott and Jacques Cartier streets; Portland and Farwell; Portland and Meilleur; Port and Lauzon; Parc and Terrill; McManamy and Kingston; University and Galt west; and University and Chemin St. Catherine.

Residents shouldn't expect that the lights will be installed shortly. Delivery dates for all the materials are between 22 and 28 weeks.

City officials will go about having the lights installed in a different manner than has usually been the case. Previously, city officials ordered the roadwork needed for the lights completed before the lights actually arrived.

That policy has led to many traffic problems in the city. In many cases the road work has been completed but the lights failed to arrive on schedule.

That is the case in the south exit of the Jacques Cartier bridge in the West ward and at the intersection of Queen, Portland, Montreal and Belvedere streets in the North ward.

The intersections have been ready for nearly six months. The lack of lights causes many problems for local motorists.

"We will wait until we have all the materials before we start anything," Mayor Bureau said. "We don't want to create the same problems."

In other traffic business, Sherbrooke council has awarded a contract to a Montreal-based firm to study methods of traffic light synchronization on King street. De Luc Inc., of Montreal, has been awarded the four part study for $20,400.

The traffic consultant firm will analyse the different types of synchronization equipment available, and make a recommendation as to what type the city should purchase. It will make recommendations as to what parking bylaws should be changed and will prepare estimates of the costs of synchronization.

De Luc was awarded the contract over the firm of Lalonde, Valois, Lamarre and Associates, of Montreal, despite the fact that the Lalonde firm had tendered a lower bid. They would have undertaken the project for $19,500, which was $900 less than De Luc.

Council agreed to have De Luc undertake the project because it is already undertaking a study of traffic conditions in Sherbrooke. The firm also has some Universite de Sherbrooke traffic engineers who already know the traffic problems in the city.

At present there are 16 sets of traffic lights on King Street and the city plans to add nine more sets in the future. The city had already authorized a loan of $20,000 to cover the cost of the project.

City officials are debating whether they will purchase land and a large house owned by Roger Marcoux located directly under the Joffre bridge and city officials plan to expropriate the land in the future in order to revamp the intersection of the bridge, Galt and Laurier Street. The intersection is a main traffic congestion area in the city and motorists have problems turning left along Federal street to head in the direction of Lennoxville.

City officials had not included the site as a major priority but Mr. Marcoux informed council that he wants to undertake a major reparation to the house on the land making the building a series of apartments.

City officials, who hadn't planned to revamp the intersection for five years, are holding back Mr. Marcoux's building permit until a decision is taken.

Mr. Marcoux has asked the city for $43,800 for the building and to pay a compensation of $5,600 for lost rent revenue. The city has asked Frank Mascolo, the city director-general of technical services, to decide when the project will be undertaken.

"If we aren't going to fix the intersection for five years then we should allow Mr. Marcoux to make the reparation," Mayor Bureau informed council earlier this week. "We will buy the building when we need it."

"With interest rates at 11 or 12 per cent, and it doesn't look like they will go down, we shouldn't buy the property and then not use it," he said.

Director-general Serge Racine predicted that leaving the land for five years after purchasing it immediately would cost the city double the amount. "We will pay nearly 100 per cent interest during five years," he said.

Mr. Mascolo is to give a detailed report to the next council meeting scheduled Monday.

City officials are going to try an interesting method to undertake public works projects this summer. Approximately one half of sidewalk work will be undertaken by municipal work crews while the remainder will be undertaken by a private construction firm.

The city crews will begin work on June 3 and will continue their efforts until September. A team of workers from the Maurice and Claude construction firm will begin sidewalk work on June 17 and will work until September.

Maurice and Claude, the lowest of four tenders for the sidewalk, was awarded the contract this week for $103,870.

India's nuclear test

On the surface, it's hard to equate the large sum of money India must have spent to test her first nuclear device with the pressing needs of a chronically poor population. Shortage of food is a main problem.

Last week, Henry Labouisse, executive director of the United Nations Children's Fund, reported that between 400 million and 500 million children in the world suffer from severe malnutrition.

At least 80 per cent, and perhaps more, of the world's severe malnutrition is in two geographical areas, says Lester Brown of the overseas development council in Washington. They are:

—The Indian sub-continent, which includes about 750 million people of all ages in India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. Of course, not all of them are undernourished.

—Africa, particularly the Sahel countries of West Africa, plus Ethiopia, where prolonged drought has made the problem severe.

The income per person in the industrialized countries is about 17 times that of India. Their budgets are able to finance production of nuclear weaponry if they desire.

INDIA MAKES SIX

The United States, Russia, Britain, France and China were the sole members of the nuclear club until India joined them at the weekend.

India's atomic energy program is a relatively modest one, running an estimated $40 million a year for development.

But turning out nuclear devices, preparing the sites and maintaining security, is a far more costly proposition even under a budget-conscious setup as in India.

India has brushed aside talk that she is developing a nuclear arsenal. No doubt she has such potential but as far as is known lacks a delivery system.

India says her nuclear test Saturday, conducted 328 feet underground in a remote desert area, was strictly a peaceful nuclear experiment.

In that context, the nuclear devices might be used for such peaceful purposes as opening up new underground oil and gas reserves, and saving the country the extra millions it now must pay for imported oil and fertilizer.

COULD AID MINING

Peaceful nuclear explosions also might be used for earth-moving projects and to uncover mineral resources, a job that would take too long by conventional means.

One Washington opinion given after the Indian blast was announced was that it wouldn't grow more rice in the part of India where rice is the staple food.

Perhaps that is a short-range view.

India must import wheat and other commodities and is short of foreign exchange.

When the cost of imported oil went up 400 per cent, India was one of the countries hardest hit. Her huge import bill, not only for oil but for food and fertilizer, could affect the basis of her next five-year plan.

In 1973, India's bill for petroleum alone was $415 million. This year, it is expected to reach $1.3 billion, overshadowing the total aid effort from the outside world.

MAY QUESTION NEED

But it now will be harder to convince aid-giving countries of India's needs. The question will surely be asked: How come your needs are so great when you can afford a nuclear weapon?

But if India can blast out a new domestic oil and gas source with a nuclear device, the picture might change drastically in her favor.

Ammonia, a key ingredient of fertilizer, is made from natural gas. The so-called "miracle" varieties of wheat and rice take huge amounts of fertilizer.

The world fertilizer shortage has slowed the "green revolution" on which India in particular had depended for food self-sufficiency.

NDP position in House enabled early campaign preparation

OTTAWA (CP) — Being able to decide when and how it would bring down the minority Liberal government gave the New Democrats a slight jump on the July 8 federal election campaign.

The party was 75 per cent prepared for the campaign 10 days before the election date was announced, says a party campaign spokesman.

It was "the earliest date for this state of preparedness that anyone can recall," he says.

Other party officials say the decision to have posters, lapel stickers, leaflets and candidates' calling cards prepared in Ottawa is a chief reason for the state of readiness.

The material was mailed to NDP provincial and riding offices where it may be printed as is or changed to suit local campaign objectives.

Murray Wepler, executive assistant to leader David Lewis, says this saved considerable time and effort for local campaign organizers, who in the past often spent several days preparing such material.

FIRST TIME

"It's the first time we've moved ahead in material, and the first time we've had the same colors and logo across the country," Mr. Wepler says.

The party expects to spend about $75,000 on radio, television and newspaper advertising, but emphasis will be on radio, Mr. Wepler says.

Spending would be done at local and provincial levels. There would be no national television advertising.

"We just can't afford it."

The party's total campaign spending may be as high as $2.5 million, with the central campaign committee spending about $425,000, largely on Mr. Lewis's tour. Party spending in the 1972 campaign was about $2 million.

Mr. Wepler says one-third to one-half of the $425,000 will come from union contributions. The rest of the money for the central committee would filter up from contributions at the riding level.

He says the most to be spent in any one riding probably will be about $25,000, while in some ridings it will be as low as $1,000.

Spending at the riding and regional level probably would reach $1.5 to $2 million, all from personal contributions.

"The $10 to $50 personal donation is still the backbone of our campaign," Mr. Wepler says.

So decentralized is the NDP approach to campaigning, that while Mr. Wepler expects there will be 75,000 to 100,000 volunteer NDP workers in the field by election day, there will be only about 25 workers at national headquarters in Ottawa.

They include campaign director Cliff Scotton, a staff of about 10 workers in the federal office and an election planning committee of NDP provincial secretaries or presidents.

Provincial organizations are headed by a similar structure, although fewer people are involved in some cases.

Most of these people are paid, says Mr. Wepler. But the rest of the election workers would be volunteers, sometimes headed at the riding level by paid volunteers.

Some riding organizers were paid by the provincial parties, some were donated by union locals.

The bulk of NDP campaigning will be door-to-door and large-scale meetings or rallies will be restricted mainly to appearances by Mr. Lewis.

FEW BIG MEETINGS

Mr. Wepler says large meetings take time and money, and "you're talking to the converted."

Mr. Lewis plans to visit every province and both territories during the campaign. Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick were omitted from his tour in 1972.

He also plans to extend his tour in Quebec to five visits totalling 5½ days, compared with 1½ days during the 1972 campaign.

Mr. Wepler says Mr. Lewis has been in Quebec—where the NDP has never elected a member—about once a month since the last election.

Mr. Lewis will travel by commercial airliner for most of the campaign, switching to a chartered turbo-prop Convair 440 for the last three weeks.

The plane seats about 10 more passengers than the 30-seat Dart-Herald—dubbed "Bum Air"—that the leader used in the 1972 campaign.

More postal back-scratching

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-go-round

WASHINGTON — As part of our continuing investigation of the Postal Service, we have uncovered a secret, back-scratching relationship between postal authorities and the giant Ernst and Ernst accounting firm.

The firm was second highest of eight bidders for the lucrative postal auditing contract in 1971. Yet Assistant Postmaster General James Hargrove, now retired, ignored six lower bidders and overrode the recommendations of the professional staff to give the contract to Ernst and Ernst.

Not long afterwards, Hargrove instructed the accounting firm over the telephone to recruit two top postal executives. The firm billed the postal service $20,000 for recruiting assistant Postmaster General Richard F. Gould and financial officer John R. Bowen.

Now the same two men who were hired by Ernst and Ernst are in a position to repay the favor. For they help oversee the firm's auditing of the mail system.

Indeed, Gould has repeatedly urged the Postal Service to renew the firm's contract without bothering to seek other bids and Bowen has certified the contract each time it has been renewed.

In 1972, for example, Gould wrote a memo, intended for the eyes only of his supervisors, recommending: "From our point of view, we think it is undesirable to enter into solicitation of bids again...."

"It is our opinion that Ernst and Ernst has developed considerable understanding of many of our problems. We see no point to repeating the learning process and ask for your approval as we continue to work out an extension of the Ernst and Ernst contract."

Again in 1973, Gould sought another renewal of the Ernst and Ernst contract without competitive bidding. He didn't even want to bother with the formality of acquiring a financial statement from the firm.

Reports one internal memo: "On December 19, 1973, (Assistant Postmaster General Robert) McCutcheon called and advised that Mr. Gould had raised the question of the necessity of obtaining financial statements of Ernst and Ernst, as he had been requested, in connection with the renewal of the contract for accounting services." McCutcheon agreed it wouldn't be necessary.

The Ernst and Ernst contract reached $460,000 in 1973. Perhaps out of gratitude, the company's employees contributed $88,000 to President Nixon's re-election campaign. This fascinating fact was found on the White House list of secret contributors which the President's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, kept.

Footnote: An Ernst and Ernst spokesman denied that the Nixon contribution had anything to do with the firm's postal contracts. He confirmed that the firm received $20,000 for recruiting Gould and Bowen but rejected an inference that they showed their gratitude thereafter by seeking to renew the company's contract.

A Postal Service spokesman denied that the recruiting of Gould and Bowen was done under the table. He pointed out that the two employees do not have final authority over the Ernst and Ernst contract. He denied, therefore, that they had a conflict of interest.

Another Zieglerism: White House falsehoods, like chickens, come home to roost.

On February 7, 1973, we reported bluntly: "The word has gone out from the White House to 'nail' Jack Anderson and the Washington Post. This language was used, according to the sources who heard it, by President Nixon's crew chief of staff H. R. Haldeman...."

"The President, we added, has been heard, in reference to the Washington Post, to explode angrily: 'We've got to take care of those people.'"

This story brought an anguished response from the President's spokesman, Ron Ziegler, who insisted it was "wrong, wrong, wrong!" The White House transcripts now show who was "wrong, wrong, wrong!"

An exchange, which the White House deleted from the transcripts, has now come to light. This quotes the President as telling Haldeman and John Dean on September 15, 1972: "Main thing is the (Washington) Post is going to have damnable problems out of this one."

As added evidence of the President's vindictiveness, the transcripts show he also instructed Dean: "I want the most comprehensive notes on all those who tried to do us in.... We have not used the Bureau (the FBI) and we have not used the Justice Department but things are going to change now."

At another juncture, the President snorted: "Well, one hell of a lot of people don't give one damn about this issue of suppression of the press, et cetera...."

Less than four months later, four challenges suddenly were filed against the Washington Post's TV stations in Jacksonville and Miami, Fla.

And my associate Les Whitten was arrested on the street by eight FBI agents who had been expecting me. His notes were ripped out of his hands while he was covering a story for this column and he was clapped in jail. A grand jury subsequently refused to indict him for any crime and the Justice Department was compelled to drop all charges.

Liberal election machine said best-equipped ever

OTTAWA (CP) — The man the people see and know is Pierre Trudeau, but as part of the Liberal party campaign the prime minister is only the tip of a vast pyramid.

Under him is a complex election machine comprising key personalities, candidates, workers and a campaign nerve centre. Party officials say it is the biggest and best-financed Liberal machine ever.

They have not released figures on the projected cost of the July 8 election campaign, but it likely will match or exceed the $4.2 million the Progressive Conservatives expect to spend.

Prior to the campaign, the operations centre for the party was the national Liberal federation in Ottawa, directed by Blair Williams. With the race now on, Mr. Williams and his staff will spend most of their time dealing with provincial organizations, local ridings and administration.

The key headquarters men until July 8 are Senator Gil Molgat, president of the Liberal party of Canada; Senator Keith Davey and Transport Minister Jean Marchand, co-chairmen of the campaign; and James Couits, Mr. Trudeau's political adviser.

Senator Molgat, 47, was elected president last September. He was the youngest Manitoba member of the legislature in history when he was first elected in 1953 at age 26. He became provincial Liberal leader eight years later and held the post until he retired in 1969. He was appointed to the Senate in 1970.

MADE PLEDGE

His first pledge as national Liberal president was to work on the "critical communications problems" between the party and the public.

Senator Davey, 48, a former Canadian Football League commissioner, steps into his campaign role with extensive experience behind him. He was campaign director for the late Lester B. Pearson in 1962, 1963 and 1965—elections in which the Liberals failed to win a majority.

With the exception of Mr. Marchand, who is concentrating on Quebec, Mr. Trudeau has been meeting this group daily. He also meets frequently with his three main speech writers—Alan Grossman, Jim Moores and Ivan Head.

A major function of the federation during the campaign is to bring regional viewpoints to the prime minister.

"We get a pretty good idea of the feelings in each area through our daily contacts," says a federation official.

Prior to the campaign, Mr. Trudeau established a caucus committee on communications, under Regional Expansion Minister Don Jamieson and Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier. This was established specifically to recommend ways in which the federal—in this case Liberal—presence could be better established.

Party spokesmen say Mr. Trudeau was particularly annoyed by provinces announcing, and taking most of the credit for, programs financed by both governments. Useful campaign suggestions apparently came from this committee, but it is no longer functioning with Parliament dissolved.

As in previous campaigns, other committees will be established—some to discuss reports from provinces, others to study press reaction, and perhaps others to recommend strategy changes.

But, despite a massive communications network, tons of literature and hundreds of employees, the main thrust of the Liberal campaign is coming from the prime minister and a small group of advisers, including the cabinet, who keep in touch on a daily basis.

And once Mr. Trudeau is on his chartered DC-9 jet, accompanied by about 10 officials, secretaries, press officers, technicians and security staff, his main advisers become Mr. Couits and Senator Molgat. The senator plans to travel with the prime minister on most of his campaign.

Mr. Trudeau told a national Liberal executive meeting several months ago he would go flat out in the next election campaign.

Now, he has come out swinging in a tough, old-fashioned and uncharacteristic style.

FOLLOWING ADVICE

"His approach is a response to everything he has heard since the 1972 campaign," says one key official.

"He is following a consensus that has been clearly expressed in cabinet, by party officials and by rank-and-file members."

The party's 10 provincial campaign organizers are reported solidly in favor of the new approach, along with all senior officials of the national federation.

At the moment, officials say, there is unanimous agreement that Mr. Trudeau, until he has visited all regions of the country, should abandon prepared texts and shoot straight from the hip at the Conservatives and New Democrats.

Once his new style is established, the plan is to work from abridged texts when new policies and platform material are being announced.

Oil rights dispute simmers

The simmering dispute between Greece and Turkey over oil rights in the Aegean Sea, with threats that it may develop into an armed conflict, is causing deep concern within the Atlantic alliance.

An open clash between the two countries controlling the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's south-eastern flank would be a strategic catastrophe, in the view of many observers.

Diplomatic sources say that NATO authorities and United States diplomats have intervened, urging both sides to avoid a clash that would threaten the West's defence structure in that area.

The quarrel started about four months ago when Athens protested against a Turkish government decision to grant oil drilling rights near seven Greek islands, some located closer to the Turkish coast than to Greece.

OTTAWA SIGN HOPEFUL

One hopeful sign in the conflict between the two countries already divided over the Cyprus issue is that they have agreed to a meeting between their foreign ministers in Ottawa June 20, following the NATO foreign ministers' conference there.

Some observers suggest that if the two governments agree to a proposal to resume negotiations in Cyprus, on the future of that divided island, then the atmosphere might improve for fresh attempts to work out a compromise on the Aegean oil dispute.

Joseph Luns of the Netherlands, who as NATO secretary-general has a voice in Greek-Turkish relations dating back to the 1967 Cyprus crisis, has used his office to appeal to both countries to apply restraint. Sources say that NATO ambassadors from the two countries sought to assure Luns the situation is not as critical as many commentators suggest.

EXPERTS WATCH

Nevertheless, NATO experts are watching developments as the Turkish government goes ahead with plans to send an oceanographic vessel into Aegean waters in the next few weeks to take soundings preliminary to oil exploration. Some Greek sources have warned that this challenge to Greece's preponderance in the Aegean, stretching between the two neighboring countries, might provoke a dangerous dilemma.

Several incidents between fishing boats and naval patrol craft have added tension to the situation.

Meanwhile, Greece is moving swiftly toward rearming and modernizing its forces. This has led to Turkish accusations of alleged Greek war preparations and Turkish demonstrations against the Greek consulate in Istanbul.

Greece, which first discovered the presence of exploitable oil deposits in the Aegean, is negotiating with both France and the U.S. for arms.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Teen-age arousal is normal

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 17 and have an embarrassing problem. Every time I wake up in the morning I have an erection. I've had this problem for as long as I can remember. Even if I'm lying on the floor to watch t.v. this happens. Sometimes it's embarrassing. All I look to do is have a look at a girl with a short dress or low-cut bustline and it happens. If I get married this could be very embarrassing for me. Could it be because I have never been circumcised? Please tell me what is wrong and how I can get it cured.

DEAR READER — Nothing is wrong. At 17 this is to be expected. You are at the peak of your sex drive for a male. It's normal that you should be easily aroused. Nocturnal erections or those you note on awakening are common and are directly related to brain-rhythm mechanism over which you have no control.

And, I don't think that you will be embarrassed after you get married. You would be much more embarrassed if you didn't have this type of reaction. Your response has nothing whatever to do with whether you have been circumcised or not. It is more directly related to functions of the brain and the presence of a normal amount of male hormone. The thing for you to do about this problem is stop worrying about it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please write anything you can on the vasectomy. My husband had the surgery eight years ago. I got pregnant about six months after the surgery. The doctors checked and found out he had three cords instead of two, and so they did surgery again. Now I am two months without a period, and the doctors are running tests to find out if I am pregnant again or whether the enlargement of my uterus is because of a fibroid tumor. Now I have to wait for more tests. Meanwhile my husband is saying, "It's not mine, I'm sterile." What can I do to speed up the tests or something. I'm nearly berserk. By the way, I'm 40 and already have three children.

DEAR READER — By now you should already know the results of your subsequent tests and it could be that the enlargement of your uterus is due to a fibroid tumor. If not, I would like to assure you that not all vasectomies work. One of the problems is that a vasectomy is an injury to the male reproductive organs.

Our bodies are designed to heal or correct injuries, so it's not surprising that in some instances the tube is able to form a new channel around the segment which has been removed. In essence, nature repairs the damage that's been done.

The Private Life

When a new channel of communication has been established, it's like developing a detour around a dam in a river. The result is that once again the husband will be able to produce live sperm. This happens in only a small percentage of the cases, but, nevertheless, it still does happen.

The fact that your husband's first operation was not successful and it was necessary to repeat the surgery suggests that he might be a bit unusual. That is, he may have more repair capacity than some. Of course, your husband can be tested to find out if he has started producing sperm again.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been married for five years, and I we are without children, and I would like a family like anyone else. I have been to three doctors, and they have found that I am very capable of getting pregnant, but my husband has a low sperm count. The doctor has him on vitamin E, 800 units a day, and it has been a year and they have not done a thing. We are not discouraged, but I keep thinking that it will happen and we will get our baby. But my husband is so discouraged. I want to know if I can have artificial insemination without my husband's consent.

I have talked to him about it but he said, "no." Our marriage is going downhill because he thinks he is half a man. I don't want to hurt him, but I have thought it over for a couple of months and it is what I want.

A woman can get an abortion without anyone's consent. Why can't a woman get pregnant without anyone's consent but herself? I am going to get my baby one way or another. Can I have artificial insemination without my husband's consent?

DEAR READER — Vitamin E is usually of no value whatsoever in improving a man's fertility. It's useful in rats in the event that they are deficient in vitamin E, but there is no evidence that it does anything for the sex life of people. Sometimes when the man has a low sperm count, giving thyroid is helpful. In other instances, very little can be done.

In most fertility studies, before a man's specimen is studied he is asked to avoid sexual activity for two and sometimes three days. The reason is that the doctor wants to see a specimen with the maximum amount of sperm cells. It follows that by restricting sexual relationships to every three days a man is more likely to produce specimens containing larger amounts of live, healthy sperm.

Another point in raising a man's sperm level is his general health. Anything which detracts from a person's over-all health detracts from his fertility. I received a letter from another woman recently about the same problem and her husband was taking pills to stay awake. Fatigue, medical problems, drugs, anything which detracts from the over-all general health tends to decrease fertility. It follows that good health habits are conducive to optimal fertility.

Now about that artificial insemination without your husband's consent. In the first place, no reputable physician would do this unless both of the prospective parents were in agreement. I don't believe that you will be able to maintain a satisfactory marriage if you attempt anything of this nature without the full consent and support of your husband.

While you state a woman can get an abortion without anyone's consent, my opinion would be that within a marriage this too should be a decision made by both individuals and not just one. Marriage means sharing. That includes sharing of decisions, responsibilities, joys and sorrows. A married woman who is pregnant and deliberately has an abortion without talking to her husband about it is not being fair to her marriage agreement. If a couple is not willing to share problems and make decisions together, it's not much of a marriage.

A more ideal solution for the two of you might be an adoption. This too should be accomplished through proper agencies to ensure that you would get a healthy, normal child that would be a joy to your household and not a burden. But, any such decision would have to involve both of you. After all, it will require the efforts of both of you to provide a satisfactory home environment for any child.

Drinking to be sociable?

Dear Ann Landers: I read someplace that you don't drink and never have. I don't care much for liquor, but I always find myself having one or two because people keep insisting. Some hosts won't take no for an answer.

What do you say when people pressure you to "be sociable" or "have just one"? Sign me — A Drinking Dry Who'd Rather Not.

Dear D.D.: I have a very simple answer for people who keep trying to shove a drink in my hand. I say, "If I don't mind YOUR drinking, you shouldn't mind my NOT drinking. Please don't ask me again." (P.S. After that little speech I have very little trouble.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column from women who say they are always fighting off men. It seems these poor dears are forever getting propositioned by the butcher, the druggist, the doctor, bus driver, lawyer, plumber and meter reader. I know two women like that.

Why don't the simpletons realize what they are telling about themselves? Don't they know that when a man sees a sign in the window that says "welcome", it's an even bet that he will accept the invitation?

Women who get all those propositions are hanging out little signs, whether they know it or not. Usually it's in their eyes. Wizen up, Ann. — Hip in Harrisburg

Dear Hip: Generally speaking, you are right. But some men don't look for invitations. They issue 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with your advice to the 55-year-old man who is stuck in a marriage that has lost its meaning. It was astute of you to guess that his wife may be as unhappy as he and would probably be glad to end it.

Our marriage is stone-cold dead. We speak only to argue. My husband thinks he'd be happier elsewhere, and I'd be glad to let him go — on fair terms.

But I've given 25 years of my life to this man. I've raised his children, entertained his bosses and scrimped so he could have good clothes because he had to "meet the public". Now my "generous" husband wants to split everything 50-50. This means I end up with $40,000. I'm 52, with no business experience. He has a good job, medical insurance and a fantastic pension.

I'm not arguing. The marriage is a fraud. But when you give advice to middle-aged men, please tell them to be fair. — Wilted Rose

Dear Rose: If your husband has a shred of decency, he will provide for you as best he can. A competent lawyer (yours) will help him decide what is honorable and financially feasible and see that he does it. In the meantime, you can't get blood out of a turnip, lady. But please remember, while you are doing your arithmetic, that freedom from a loveless marriage can be worth plenty — and I am not talking about money.

Confidential to Where Will It End?: Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without tea or soap until the 17th century, gas or matches or electricity until the 19th century, canned or frozen foods until the 20th century. I think we'll make it.

Father and Son banquet

RICHMOND — The Scouts Father and Son Banquet was held in the United Church hall on Tuesday evening, April 30, at which there was a good representation. After being seated Grace was offered by Rev. R.A. Cameron. A delicious supper was then served by members of the United Church W.A.

Seated at the head table were Mrs. H.I. Apps, who presented Craig Dewar with the Scout of the Year Award, Mr. Donald Bergeron, chairman of the Richmond group committee, and son Tommy; Mr. Leroy Lyster, District Commissioner, and two sons Leslie and Laird; Mr. Milton Leet, Vice President; Mr. J. Roland Gaudreau, guest speaker, of Sherbrooke and Conservation Agent for Richmond region; Mr. Claude Smith, President of the Board of Recreation and Mr. Arnold Healy, Treasurer of the Richmond Group Committee.

The Richmond Group Committee was composed of Mr. D. Bergeron, Mr. Arnold Healy and Mr. Evan Smith, Financial Chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Bedard and members of other committees.

Among the guests seated at the table were Rev. R.A. Cameron, Rev. W.E. Walker, Mr. John Barrington, Mr. Wm. Murphy, Rev. J. Jacks and Mrs. Frances Dewar, District Service Team.

After the supper Mr. Bergeron introduced those at the head table, the guests and Group Committee members.

The chairman Mr. Bergeron then introduced Mr. Paul Paulson, the Scout Leader who then called on Mrs. H.I. Apps to present the Scout of the Year Award to Craig Dewar.

The Past Scout of the Year Award winner was Chuckie Storry who introduced the guest speaker Mr. Gaudreau who explained the position and agents work in this area concerning Wild Life, Fisheries etc. and stressed their importance.

The speaker was afterwards thanked by Craig Dewar. The chairman introduced the leaders of the Scouts, Cubs and Venturers.

Mr. Bergeron in his speech stated that 80 boys had been involved in Scouting this year, a slight drop as to past years but that it is very difficult to plan and organize such a group, with the minimum or less than the required number of leaders.

He stated that next year's registration night, which is for parents to register their children for the coming year of Scouting, is also the annual general meeting for the election of their Group Committee members. Volunteers are also required to help out as leaders and they may do so at this meeting. Mr. Bergeron hoped this special meeting will be kept in the minds of all, to be present, as all were present at this banquet.

He also reminded everyone of the financial campaign and its importance to the organization. The campaign is about to start and as soon as the list is completed for each, then the leaders would like to have it completed in about 30 days, and if everyone does his best or a little more it would be successful. So with their co-operation the financial campaign chairman Mr. Evan Smith will be able to complete his work in the least possible time.

Mr. Bergeron then invited Mr. Leroy Lyster, District Commissioner to speak. He afterwards asked Mr. Milton Leet the Vice-President to say a few words and he impressed on the group the importance of Scouting in the area.

for the most unusual. Kim Fuller with her worm in a container was a runner up.

Kyle Barry took a blue first ribbon with his pig. It was a show of shows with enthusiastic interest by everyone.

This finished about 12:45 and then people assembled in the school front entrance where a food sale was held and where one for a dime purchased a ticket to the carnival.

Once inside all games were well patronized, some were a dime, some a nickel and some three for a quarter, all of which added up, along with an auction of a wide variety of donated items, to a financial success.

Games included peanut guessing game; wild animal hunt; dart throw; bingo; toss a ball; bowling; ball toss; bean bag toss; put out a candle shoot; and a penny pitch.

Now what's a carnival without cotton candy, it would not seem right, so it was there and proved a popular treat with all age groups. Another attraction was a cartoon show every half hour. The cartoons were Pierre Bear, and Road Runner.

WI meeting

BROOKBURY — The May meeting of the Brookbury W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Rufus Stevenson on the regular date.

Mrs. Ralph Coleman, President, opened the meeting in the usual manner with the Ode, Collect for Club Women and the Salute to the Flag.

The Roll Call, Name a farming tool used in the Bible was answered by thirteen members. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Osborne Lowe, and approved as read.

Correspondence consisted of letters of thanks for cards of sympathy and gifts sent to friends who were ill or had been hospitalized.

It was decided to send a letter of thanks to the Pope Memorial School for the materials used, and assistance given, in making our 1974 Cookbooks of Tasty Supper Dishes.

A motion was made to send a donation of six dollars towards the prizes for Public Speaking at the School which will be held in the near future.

Special thanks were expressed to Mrs. Sterling Batley for making the candy for our Branch to be sold at the W.I. Amateur Night held in Sawyerville on April 24. She was paid from the W.I. funds for the materials she used.

Mrs. Rosemary Lowe was given sincere thanks and appreciation for the many hours of work making the cook books. The W.I. voted a small sum to Mrs. Lowe to help compensate her for her part in this worthy project.

The Cook Books are to be sold for $1.00 each, several were ordered by members at this meeting.

Plans were made for the annual meeting held at the Brookbury Hall for all Branches of the Women's Institute in Compton County on Monday, May 6 at ten o'clock. Our branch served the dinner at noon.

Convention at Macdonald was discussed and Mrs. Rufus Stevenson will be our delegate with a possibility that some other members may attend for one day.

The conveners reports were then given.

Education - Mrs. Flora McIntyre read an article on the Introduction of the Metric System into our Schools and indeed into all our system of measurement.

Delicious refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Stevenson, brought a very busy meeting to a close.

Amsterdam. For Canadians it's the friendly city... with friendly prices.

External Affairs / Affaires extérieures

The special good feeling the Dutch have towards Canadians is only the first of many pleasant surprises you'll get in Amsterdam. Another is the fact that almost all Amsterdammers speak English, so you'll never feel lost, foreign, helpless. In fact, everything about Amsterdam and Holland is so "gezellig"—a Dutch word meaning warm, friendly, fun—that sightseeing, shopping, eating, drinking are all surprisingly delightful experiences. Even more so, when you realize that this year, the dollar is up in value again, so your money buys more of what Amsterdam has to offer.

First, sightseeing starts on a glass-topped boat, cruising the canals of Amsterdam. You'll float through the most entertaining history lesson of your life, as you glide by the fine houses of the 17th Century merchant princes! A 90-minute cruise through this fascinating, timeless world costs a mere $1.50.

No visit to Holland would be complete without at least one windmill... and why not dine in a windmill? Just outside Amsterdam is a historic old wooden windmill which has been converted into a superb restaurant, where fine Dutch and French cuisine is served in a truly beautiful—and romantic—setting. And you can enjoy a marvellous 5-course meal here for as little as $7 per person.

To complete your immersion in the glories of Holland, you really must see one of the largest and grandest art collections in the world. The Rijksmuseum is an incredible journey through the history of art, climaxed by an almost dizzying display of Rembrandts! And this incredible experience costs a mere 35¢!

But perhaps the best part of any trip is the people you meet. And in Amsterdam the place to make new friends is in one of hundreds of marvellous pubs, or "brown cafes", where you can also make friends with friendly Dutch beer and zesty Dutch gin. (And friendly is the word—they cost 35¢ each!) In fact, before you finish your first drink, you'll forget you're a tourist and not a native!

Amsterdam's list of eye-openers is virtually endless. But one that still surprises many people is Amsterdam's location. It's the perfect starting point for a European trip, right in the middle of the most popular part of the continent, only minutes by air from London, Paris, Brussels, Frankfurt. And it's the hub of rail and road networks leading to every part of Europe.

Now that you've read a little about Surprising Amsterdam, isn't it time you planned a personal visit? On KLM, the reliable airline of those surprising Dutch. The moment you board your spacious wide-bodied KLM jet you'll begin to experience that special Dutch welcome for Canadians. Every KLM staff member sincerely wants your flight to be the most comfortable and enjoyable one you've ever had. And now you can fly KLM direct from Toronto* or Montreal.

A few final words about prices: KLM has put together a new book "Holland and Europe in Budget-Wise Fashion", that's full of cost-cutting travel tips... on hotels, restaurants, car rentals, camping—even night life! It can help you discover all the surprises of Europe without breaking your budget—and these days, that's something worth having.

So are KLM's two other free folders. "Budget-Wise Tours of Europe" contains a fabulous choice of all-inclusive holiday packages, at the lowest prices you'll find anywhere. And KLM's "Catalogue of European Vacation Ideas" is full of fascinating mini-trips and sightseeing excursions, perfect for incorporating into your own personal European itinerary.

Send us the coupon for your free copy of the booklets mentioned above, as well as the Travel Books listed, which cost just 25¢ for handling and mailing. Of course, always remember to consult your Travel Agent when planning a trip.

He's the most helpful person we know. *Subject to government approval.

When your friends rave about Amsterdam, believe it.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): You are attracted by unusual places and people now. A little excitement is just what you need!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Unexpected support of family and friends perks you up considerably. You don't feel so alone now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't believe everything you hear without verifying facts which don't sound quite right to you.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): A good time to tackle all those chores you neglect because you dislike doing them. Start early.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You seem to be out of tune with the world (and yourself in particular). Outlook improves later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): You have a new way weren't in the driver's seat before evening arrives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Consider all propositions from the standpoint of future merit, not just from immediate gain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your enthusiasm and friendliness impress people you meet in a social situation. A relaxed, fun day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Keep your counsel today. The less you say, the less others have to criticize you for. A negative day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't let any grass grow under your feet this week. There will be plenty of opportunities. Action is up to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't idle the hours away. Do something constructive instead of brooding about dissatisfaction.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Some bone-deep anger in the neighborhood or in your home makes this a less-than-happy day of rest.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Don't act on impulse. Results could be costly as well as worrisome. Try to be more objective.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Listen to that little voice of conscience. It will make your decision much easier to arrive at ultimately.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): If you know you don't have a leg to stand on, don't waste time blustering—give in gracefully.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): You feel exceptionally cheerful when you wake up, but events may change your attitude by evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): News that shakes you up early in day may turn out to be less serious than you think at first.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Not much going on today, but you won't care as you don't feel very energetic in the first place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): If you expect the worst, that is often what you get. Try to take a more positive approach to situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you fail to watch your own words and actions, you can't expect restraint from others involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Your views will be more readily accepted (and respected) if they are presented in a calm, factual manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You want something, but not badly enough to make the necessary sacrifice to get it. It seems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can get the information you need, but it will take some digging, which you aren't anxious to do.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Family affairs play a prominent role today. You may resent the time taken away from business.

Celebrate 35th anniversary

BEEBE PLAIN, Vt. — The 4-H Welcome Club House was on Sunday the scene of a delightful 35th wedding reception held to honor the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin "Bill" Jones of Beebe Plain, Vt.

The couple knew "something was in the wind" but on arrival and entering the hall they were greatly surprised to be greeted with "surprise, surprise" by their immediate family and relatives from a distance as well as from the area.

The couple's sons, Richard and Elwin, Jr., pinned on their mother's frock a green orchid corsage and their dad's coat lapel, a green carnation boutonniere.

Good wishes were extended the couple informally and several pictures were taken. The hall was attractively decorated with green and white garlands and wedding bells and with arrangements of garden daffodils.

The afternoon was spent chatting, some dancing to the recorded music played and the youngsters played games.

Fruit punch was served and a toast proposed by Mrs. Jones' sister, Mrs. Margaret "Peggy" Jones from Norton, Mass., who had been maid of honor at the marriage in 1939.

A buffet supper was served from a lace-covered table. Tables were set up and decorated with daffodils. The chairs of the anniversary couple at the head of a long table were marked with coral ribbons to mark the 35th anniversary year.

The anniversary cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Anna Sanville in white with coral roses, silver leaves and sugar wedding bells. The top tier was raised on lacy pillars and topped with a pair of love birds in front of a tulle and pearl heart.

The couple received a wishing well, the "roof" marked with "Happy 35th wedding anniversary" which contained currency; there were other gifts for their home and a very special ceramic plate made by Mrs. Elwin Jones, Jr., and given the couple by their sons and daughters-in-law. The plate featured flowers and marriage symbols, the back was engraved in gold writing "With love from Elwin and Lucy, Richard and Lorraine and family". Writing on the face of the plate was Ruth and Bill, May 12, 1939.

This will undoubtedly become a family heirloom.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jones' nephew and his bride of one year who joined in the celebration and received congratulations and good wishes. They were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones of Auburn, Maine, who were married on May 12, 1973, and May 12 being Mother's Day, this was also marked at the anniversary reception.

Guests attended from Norton and Quincy, Mass.; Auburn, Maine; Newport Center, Beebe Plain, Vt.; Irasburg and Boundary Villages.

Mr. Jones and Ruth Rhoades were united in marriage on May 12, 1939 at Stoneham, Mass. They have two sons and daughters-in-law, Elwin and Lucy, Richard and Lorraine and seven grandchildren.

For most of their married life they have been resident here at the Border. Mr. Jones is an employee at the Butterfield American plant, Derby Line.

Their many friends join with the family to wish them more more years of happiness together.

Queens aids East-West relations

Jim: "Now see what happens if East plays the queen. South can still duck and win up a winner, but will he?"

Oswald: "Possibly, if East goes through a long ceremony of thinking before playing the queen, but South players are human. South would look mighty silly if West had led from ace-jack and his duck gave away the whole spade suit. Therefore, South will take his king and hope for a 4-4 spade break which will let him make his contract irrespective of the location of both missing aces."

Jim: "How about showing some unusual false-card plays?"

Oswald: "Here's a fairly simple one by third hand. West opens the five of spades against South's three notrump contract. Here, East should play the queen not the ace."

Jim: "This isn't really a false card. It is the play of third-hand second high instead of high."

Oswald: "Whatever you call the play, it is important that East play the queen. If he plays the ace and continues with the queen, South will duck, win the third lead of the suit, knock out the ace of diamonds and make his contract since East won't be able to lead a spade."

WI meeting

DANVILLE - The May meeting of the Shipton W.I. was held on Friday afternoon, May 3, beginning with a food sale at 1:30 p.m., which was one of the largest and best attended food sales ever held by this Branch with food going so fast that these ladies hardly had time to place it on the tables.

This being Agriculture day, our convener of Agriculture, Mrs. F. McKeage cared for a large table of potted plants, slips, tomato plants and a number of other items. She was assisted by Mrs. I. Morrill. In less than one hour these tables were nearly empty and members sat down to the meeting very pleased with the successful food sale.

The President, Mrs. J. Olney was in the chair and opened the meeting with the Mary Stewart Collect and the Hymn of all Nations, reading in unison.

The Secretary, Mrs. J. Saffin, read the minutes of the April meeting which were approved as read.

Roll call - Bring a potted plant was answered by 13 members.

Motto - Plant a seed of kindness, it yields a host of friends; plant a seed of bitterness, tomorrow you'll stand alone.

The Mystery Prize was won by Mrs. S. Taylor.

The President, Mrs. Olney then asked the conveners for their reports, which were as follows:

Agriculture - Mrs. McKeage reported that she was pleased with the success of her table.

Home Economics - Mrs. F. Cleveland presented patterns and other items cut from newspapers.

Publicity - Mrs. L. Perkins read a clipping cut from a 1945 paper titled Consumer's members agreed that if this was true in 1945 it was more true today.

Final plans were made to combine the June and July meeting and this meeting will be held on June 8 at 10:30 a.m. followed by a dime Fair at 1:30 p.m.

This being Treasurer's and Publicity's day, plans for the afternoon are in charge of Mrs. A. LeRoux and Mrs. L. Perkins.

This is a new venture for our Branch so we hope for a good turn out on the afternoon of Saturday June 8, in St. Augustine's Church Hall.

The meeting adjourned and tea and home-made bread was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Jennie Bell and Mrs. F. McKeage.

67th annual Lodge meeting District No. 6

SHERBROOKE - The 67th annual district meeting of District No. 6 was held at 1:30 p.m. on April 6 at the Oddfellows Hall, Wellington St., Sherbrooke. Members were welcomed by Sister Ruby Bachelder, T. Emeritus, Sister Vercl Hazle, P.D.D.P.; Sister Ruth Stoddard, P.P. Sister Georgeline Alberts, Noble Grand of Princess No. 4, opened the meeting. There were 100 present.

Sister Margaret Currier, District Deputy president was then introduced and welcomed. Introduction of Assembly Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment officers then took place.

Address of welcome was given by Sister Lillian Robinson, P.D.D.P. of Princess No. 4, with response by Sister Rhoda Pratt, P.D.D.P. Myrtle No. 28.

Sister Gertrude Elliott read the minutes of the last district meeting held in St. George's Church Hall, Lennoxville.

Sister Dezan of Fidelity Lodge No. 33 was recommended for District deputy president, 1974.

The meeting was recessed and Brother Fred Currier introduced Miss Martha Jameson and Miss Nancy Currier who had made a trip to the United Nations in July, 1973. They gave an excellent report of their trip. They were thanked by Sister Ruth Stoddard.

Myrtle Lodge 28 then gave an item of instruction about how flags should be carried. This was most instructive.

This was followed by an item from Fidelity Lodge No. 33. Grand Master Leon Bennett brought greetings from the Grand Lodge of Quebec.

Sister Doris Gordon, assembly president, was introduced and welcomed and gave an address. Sister M. Currier thanked all for attending the meeting.

Lunch was served by St. Mary's Guild, Sherbrooke.

Price.

The members then enjoyed dining out at a local hotel.

Mrs. Bruce Bishop was thanked on behalf of the members, by Mrs. L. Pike, for providing the prizes for the Bishop Trophy each year.

Curling Club closing meeting

NORTH HATLEY - The ladies branch of the North Hatley Curling Club held their last meeting of the season at the home of the president, Mrs. N. Pike.

This will be jointly with the Afternoon Unit and the menfolk are invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Greer, Mountainview Street for a combined lawn supper. In case of rain this will be held in the church hall.

Allegra Unit meets

A note of thanks was read from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merriman to whom a plant had been sent on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary reception.

After the meeting adjourned everyone sat around to chat while and to enjoy the delicious refreshments served by Mrs. Probyn and Miss Probyn.

WI meeting

Mrs. Eugene Naylor, Jr., of Moe's River, hosted the May meeting Monday evening, May 6 of the Milby Branch of the W.I.

The President, Mrs. Allan Sutor, opened the meeting with members repeating the Collect and Salute to the Flag, followed by the singing of the Ode.

The minutes of the April meeting were read by Mrs. Olive Painter. Sec'y. also Thank-you cards and other correspondence including a letter from Mrs. Westover regarding the Provincial Convention. Entry rules for J.P. Cotts contest. Each branch will send $1 registration fee. The Q.W.I. pens will be ready for sale at the Convention.

New members' names are to be submitted to Mrs. Westover. Also recommended were donations to Operation Eyesight and greater effort in "Pennies for Friendship" Project.

Financial Report was given by Mrs. Roy Sutor, Treas. It was moved by Mrs. S. Cairns, seconded by Mrs. Dorothy Green, that the delegate, Mrs. Allan Sutor, be paid expenses to the Prov. Convention.

Conveners' Reports: Agriculture - Mrs. Ian Kirby read an article showing the excessive rise in vegetable prices.

Citizenship - Mrs. Wm. Sutor asked members to submit by May 30 articles for filling 12 ditty bags, and also read an interesting article about a 10,000 ton Gothic Church being moved in its entirety, 12 miles, which required 22 days for this incredible operation.

Education - Mrs. Robt. Sutor reminded members of the A.G.R.H.S. Paper Drive coming up soon, and also spoke briefly of the Physical Fitness Program, and decentralization under consideration at the present.

Home Economics - Mrs. Dorothy Green read an article on the needs and benefits of Community Health Center to overcome the skyrocketing costs of drugs - dental care, optometrists, visitation nurses, etc., and provide Doctor care outside Hospitals. Mrs. Green added a light touch with a comic article "Locks on Bathroom Doors".

Publicity - Mrs. C. McKee read an article entitled, "Privileges and Duties of Citizenship" written by a former Compton resident, Miss Addie Todd, who is fondly remembered by many as a most competent teacher and kind friend.

The book of poems from which this article was taken, sent recently to Mrs. McKee by the late Miss Todd's brother and sister-in-law is of special meaning as Miss Todd was her first teacher, and always a treasured friend.

Mrs. Eldona Turner read an article about the pitiful conditions among the children of Bangladesh where 150,000 are blind because of a lack of Vitamin A and nearly half of the infants never reach the age of five years. This article was written by Anne Lapatto, senior official in New Delhi for UNESCO, which organization is implementing a program to provide the Vitamins necessary to cope with this problem.

Health and Welfare: Mrs. R. Patrick and Mrs. E. Naylor reported former member Mrs. Isobel Chapman was home again from a long stay in Hospital in Vancouver. Easter cards were sent to several shut-ins, also a gift to a baby, and food to ill and shut-ins.

Club Room Committee reported arrangements had been made to repair damages made by wash out where water pipes were laid.

Mrs. Painter suggested the library Books and W.I. Books be returned to the Club Rooms owing to lack of storage room at her home.

Arrangements were made for props for play and transportation means and coverage to Macdonald May 30. It was moved by Mrs. Patrick seconded by Mrs. Powell that Betty Deacon's way be paid by Milby W.I. to accompany players and assist in dressing room at Mac.

Mrs. Robt. Sutor gave a report on the meeting with East Clifton W.I. May 2nd where Mr. D. Macmillan was guest speaker.

It was decided not to have a Floral Contest this year. Other plans to follow.

Five members reported they would attend the next County Meeting at Brompton Hall.

The Ro. Call was answered by 16 members, each giving the name of a tree or flower mentioned in the Bible.

After meeting adjourned, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Eug. Naylor, Jr., assisted by co-hostesses, Mrs. A. Fairbrother and Mrs. Ian Kirby.

The next meeting, Grandmother's Day, will be held at the Club Rooms, with a family supper, in charge of the Social Committee.

Odd Fellows hold Grand Sessions

SHERBROOKE — At the Grand Sessions of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows taking place at Le Baron Motel in Sherbrooke on May 24 and 25, J. Douglas Moore, Sovereign Grand Warden of Sovereign Grand Lodge of the IOOF will be attending. He is from Perth, New Brunswick, and is slated to be installed as Sovereign Grand Master of the Sovereign Grand Lodge when they meet in session in Portland, Oregon, in September of 1975.

Mr. Moore will then become the youngest international leader of the Order. He also holds the record of being the youngest Grand Master of the Maritime Jurisdiction in 1968-69. He was born in New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, and there attended elementary school. Later, with the family, he moved to Perth. He graduated from Perth High School and attended the University of New Brunswick.

Mr. Moore is in business with his father, is married and has two children. He is active in community and civic affairs, is chairman of the emergency sectional chief of reserve and transport for community disaster, serves on several boards, including hospital, school and community betterment, and is secretary of his Masonic Lodge and a member of St. James United Church.

In Odd Fellowship, Mr. Moore is a member of the Rockwood Lodge and is an Associate member of Aroostook Odd Fellows Lodge, Empress Rebekah Lodge, Vimy Ridge Encampment and Canton Loyalist. His wife and parents are all members of Empress Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. Moore's pet projects are visual research and the anti-drug program, the youth branches and an awareness of the Order, and so provide challenges and opportunities so the membership will want to be involved in Odd Fellowship and achieve a prominence for the Order unparalleled in its great history.

Also at the May 24-25 sessions, Mrs. Jennie Sue Pearson of Rockville, Maryland, President of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies will be attending at Sherbrooke.

Mrs. Pearson is employed by the State of Maryland Motor vehicles administration as a Title Examiner in the Rockville office. She is a member of the Maryland classified Employees Association and Montgomery County Co-operative Agriculture Center.

She has also served on the committee for the pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown. She was elected Warden of the International Association of Rebekahs assemblies at the 1971 session in Vancouver, B.C., and brings to the presidency a wide fraternal experience.

Another distinguished guest to be in Sherbrooke will be Lady Marion de Thestrup of Burlington, Vt., President of the International Associations Ladies Auxiliaries Patriarch Militant. She is a member of Beatrice Rebekah Lodge.

In the Vermont Rebekah Assembly she has been United Nations Pilgrimage chairman on the State Youth Committee, a member of the Grand Bodies Planning Board, and is business manager of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah News Letter of Vermont. She is also an associate member of the Press Association.

Lady de Thestrup was instrumental in organizing Tanta Theta Rho Club of Burlington and is its advisor. Always active in the Ladies Auxiliary Patriarchs Militant, she served as Department Association President in 1968-69 and in the International has held several offices and was elected second vice-president at the Sovereign Grand Lodge session in Vancouver, B.C.

Her family are all members of the Order. Her late husband Frants de Thestrup was a Past Grandmaster, commander of the Patriarchs Militant.

May 24 and 25 will be the 94th session of the Grand Lodge of Quebec opening on May 25 with Leon C. Bennett of Knowlton, the Grand Master, presiding.

May 24 will mark the 66th session of the Grand Encampment of Quebec with Frank Smith, Grand Patriarch from Ayer's Cliff, presiding.

And the 77th session of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec will open on May 24 with the president, Doris Gordon, of Granby, presiding. This session will continue on May 25.

It is anticipated a great many members of these fraternal Lodges will be attending from both sides of the Border.

Special for all asparagus lovers

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A fresh idea for a summer luncheon combines chunks of Alaska King crab and tender asparagus. The asparagus may be canned but real asparagus lovers will want to use this delicacy fresh while it is in season. Mix finely diced crab with celery, green onion, lemon, tarragon and sharp Cheddar cheese. Partially cook fresh asparagus and wrap all ingredients in triangles of refrigerator crescent biscuits. Make these Crab Asparagus Roll-ups before guests arrive, wrap and refrigerate and bake just before serving with a Mock Hollandaise sauce.

- CRAB ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS
- 1 (7-1/2 ounce) can Alaska King crab, or
 - 1 (6 to 8 ounce) package frozen Alaska King crab
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 1/2 cup diced celery
 - 2 green onions, chopped
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/2 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
 - 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 - 24 stalks fresh or frozen asparagus
 - 1-1/2 packages refrigerated crescent biscuits
- Drain canned crab and slice. Or, defrost, drain and slice frozen crab. Combine crab, lemon juice, celery, green onion, seasonings, cheese and mayonnaise. Cook asparagus until barely tender. Place a spoonful of crab mixture and 2 stalks asparagus on each individual triangle of dough. Roll from shortest side of triangle into crescent shape and place with point down on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees 10-12 minutes, or until golden. Serve with Mock Hollandaise Sauce. Makes 12 crescents.

MOCK HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

- 3/4 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1/4 teaspoon salt
Combine above ingredients. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until heated through and slightly thickened. Serve over Crab Asparagus Roll-ups. Makes 1 cup.

'Tunnies' are not the same old tuna

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The British may call them "tunnies," but as one American put it, "it's plain tuna fish to me." However, Tuna Pastries are not plain and are far from the familiar tuna fish sandwich. These pastries make good appetizer servings which may be eaten with the fingers or may be served in quantity as an entree.

TUNA PASTRIES

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 can (6-1/2 or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1 cup cooked peas and carrots
- 1 cans (8 ounces each) refrigerated flaky buttermilk biscuits

1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon water
Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt; gradually stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in tuna, peas and carrots. Separate each flaky biscuit into 2 parts and roll or stretch into 3-inch circle. Place 1 tablespoon tuna mixture in center of each biscuit round. Fold half of biscuit over filling to make half-circle. Seal edges with fingers or by pressing down with rim of glass. Place on lightly greased baking sheet and brush with egg yolk. Bake in a 475-degree oven 8 minutes, until golden brown. Makes 40 appetizer servings.

From the May 19 meeting came up the following topics that will be discussed at the Diocesan Synod to be held June 7 and 8 at Gaspe: The Plan of Union; The Ordination of Women; The new Concepts of the Initiation Rites of Baptism and Confirmation.

At St. George's Church in Lennoxville on May 28 and 29 the biennial ACW of the Diocese will be taking place. This will start the morning of the 28th with a church service and will continue through until the afternoon of May 29 with a full and varied program.

The former May Isadore Morrill was born February 17, 1888, eldest daughter of Herbert Allan Morrill and Margaret Jane Rutherford of Nicolet Falls, Que. She married Harry C. Barlow of Nicolet Falls October 21, 1915.

They resided at Nicolet Falls for many years where Mr. Barlow was manager of the Lotbiniere Pulp & Paper Company. Following retirement they moved to a small farm near Danville to live. In 1961 they moved back to Danville.

Funeral services were held Monday, April 29 at Trinity United Church in Danville and were conducted by the Rev. Robert McCulloch and Rev. Watson Glover, Interment in Danville Protestant Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Messrs Burt Lockwood, Duncan Kerr, Alden Boreham, Galen Vance, Scott MacAllister and Guy Leroux.

Mrs. Barlow leaves to mourn her passing her husband, Harry C. Barlow, two nieces, (Freda) Mrs. Larry Hughes, (Margaret) Mrs. Dean Paynter, a great-niece, Linda and two great-nephews, Wayne and Robert. Many friends and neighbours will miss her presence in the community.

SHERBROOKE — A brief but thought-provoking glimpse of life in present day French Guiana and the Caribbean islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique was the highlight of the annual meeting of the Sherbrooke branch of the Canadian Bible Society, held Tuesday, May 14 in St. Peter's Church Hall.

Mr. A.J.M. Reynolds, Pastor of Assemblée Chrétienne, Sherbrooke and the Society's guest speaker, described his seven week tour of the French-speaking areas of the Caribbean to the large and interested gathering. Mr. Reynolds' remarks were illustrated with his colored slides.

Dr. A.C. Hill took the chair for the election of officers and representatives of the Sherbrooke branch of the Society for the coming year. Those elected were: Honorary President, Mr. S. MacLean; Vice-President, Mr. A.G.J. Steeves, and Secretary-Treasurer, Miss C. Wark.

The list of 1973 contributions to the work of the Society, totalling $1633, was announced to the meeting. This was an increase over last year's giving. The Rev. Donald Campbell expressed the meeting's appreciation of the fine work done by Mr. Ed Mills during his five years on the executive, the last two as President of the Branch. The meeting was preceded by a casserole supper provided by the women of the Sherbrooke Protestant Churches.

This year, for the first time, the Eastern Townships Division of the Cerebral Palsy

National Cerebral Palsy Week begins

SHERBROOKE — This year, the period from May 25th to June 2nd will be National Cerebral Palsy Week. To mark this event, the Eastern Townships Division of the Association, which is celebrating its tenth anniversary this year, has undertaken a number of activities including an informational program featuring radio and TV appearances and articles in the local paper.

This week of activities will be brought to a close on Sunday, June 2, by the annual picnic for members and their families. There will also be a bridge tournament organized by the Sherbrooke Bridge Club, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the Association.

The Cerebral Palsy Association of Quebec is now province-wide, numbering divisions in Montreal, Quebec, the Eastern Townships, Saguenay-Lake St. John, Three Rivers, Hull, Seven Islands, Rimouski and Rouyn-Noranda. The aim of the Association is to study the needs of the cerebral palsied and to promote their welfare, always working toward their integration into the daily life of their communities.

To this end, the Association keeps itself abreast of new developments in the field of cerebral palsy and endeavors to inform the public at large of the needs of the cerebral palsied, who, as experience continually shows, can learn to help themselves and find satisfaction in fulfilling a useful role in society.

Association is organizing a Flower Day, to be held on Friday, May 31. This day will be given over to the sale of carnations in all the hospitals of the city and in the shopping centers as well. Incidentally, anyone wishing to make a personal gift that day is invited to get in touch with the Association by dialing 567-4821.

Bringing a few flowers means bringing a little sunshine into the lives of the cerebral palsied — right here in our own community.

CFL strike threat diminishes

TORONTO (CP) — Prospects of a players' strike in the Canadian Football League diminished Thursday following a meeting between player representatives and management.

However, a strike still could take place if money matters are not resolved.

George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, president of the CFL Players Association, said: "We haven't settled anything, but we are closer on some things."

The problem area is still financial, of course. The pre-season, the post-season and Grey Cup pay and pension are problems. But we have looked at it and we will wait for further proposals from the league following their meetings in Edmonton next week."

Reed made his comments following an all-day meeting which both he and Norm Kimball, general manager of Edmonton Eskimos and spokesman for management, described as worthwhile.

EXPECTS AGREEMENT

"I look... at the possibility that we will come to an agreement very shortly after the meeting of general managers next week," said Reed.

Kimball said: "I'm optimistic that we are working and attempting to find a solution to the problems and I'm optimistic that if we apply ourselves we'll avoid a strike."

Kimball said he will report on the meeting to the CFL's semiannual meeting next week and another meeting with players will be held as soon as possible "after the semi-annual meetings are over."

The players association is seeking a minimum salary of $11,000 a year and wants each veteran to receive $17 a day for 44 days of training camp, compared with $10 last year.

For pre-season games the players want $150 a game for each veteran compared with $50 last season.

WANTS $6,000
It is also asking that players on the Grey Cup winner in 1974 receive $6,000 each and $7,500 in 1975. Last year the winners got $3,000 each.

For the losers the association is asking $3,000 in 1974 and $4,000 in 1975. The 1973 losers received $2,000.

Playoff money is also being negotiated, but one of the bigger issues is practice times for Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference.

One of the unique parts of Canadian football has been that players have been able to hold fulltime jobs while still being professional football players. Non practices would end that.

Having only evening practices "is one of the areas that has set Canadian professional football apart from any other professional sport," said Reed.

"They (management) know how we feel about it and they're going back to talk to their people about that."

"We've presented this problem to general managers at a previous meeting, a meeting held in Calgary, and at that time it was decided it was an individual club matter," said Kimball. "We've talked further with the players... and I think we have an understanding of how strongly they feel about it."

"It is the intention of the committee to represent that viewpoint again to the executive committee in Edmonton. Hopefully we'll come to some conclusion that is satisfactory to the players."

Indianapolis 500 will be run as scheduled

INDIANAPOLIS (CP) — The Indianapolis 500-mile race will be run as scheduled this Sunday.

A lawsuit which would have delayed the 58th running of the most famous car race in North America was dismissed Thursday.

The suit, which asked damages of $1 million for owners of cars which hadn't had a chance to qualify for the race, asked that the race not be run until every entrant had been given a chance to qualify.

Judge Frank Symmes Jr. of Marion County Supreme Court, announced his decision on the second day of a hearing on the suit, filed by five owners, which charged a breach of contract because they were unable to make a qualifying attempt during last Saturday's rain-shortened time trials.

In dismissing the suit, Judge Symmes made no determination on whether the car owners' complaint was valid.

The suit was filed against the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the United States Auto Club (USAC).

SHOW OTHER AVENUES
The judge said the owners must carry their appeal completely through non-court channels, including the full USAC board, before seeking legal remedy.

Henry Rider, USAC's lawyer, told the hearing earlier that the five owners had not exhausted administrative remedies and therefore the action should be thrown out of court.

While Ryder and the judge said an appeal could be made to the USAC board, the lawyers for the owners said the process would take too long with the race only three days away.

The plaintiffs were Roy Woods Racing, Carl Gehlhausen, K and L Racing Products, Eldon Rasmussen Racing Products and Webster Racing.

FEAR COMPLICATIONS

Joe Cloutier, Indy's vice-president, told the hearing Wednesday that if qualifying was re-opened and one of the non-qualified cars got into the field of 33 starters—thus bumping a car which had already qualified—it "might win the race and that would bring the other cars in the field down on us."

There were two days of qualifying, Saturday, May 11 and Sunday, May 12. Because of rain and other problems some cars didn't get to make a qualifying run before 6 p.m. last Saturday.

Under Indy rules that meant they didn't get a chance to run in the race, scheduled to start at noon EDT Sunday, even though the owners had paid their non-refundable $1,000 entry fee.

While the action was going on in the courtroom, most of the 33 qualifiers took to the track for the so-called carburetion test—even though the cars don't use carburetors.

A. J. Foyt, the polesitter and heavy favorite to win his fourth 500, got off a lap of 197.735 miles an hour.

WEATHER IMPROVES

The weatherman finally gave the Indy participants a break as Thursday dawned sunny and warm after little sunshine and a lot of rain nearly every day since practice was opened May 6.

The carburetion testing is the only time the race cars are allowed on the 2½-mile paved oval from the end of qualifying until a few minutes before the race is run.

Johnny Rutherford, starting the race in ninth row despite having the second-fastest qualification run, was the quickest on the track Thursday. He pushed his McLaren around the track to a lap of 193.424 m.p.h.

Rutherford lost his chance to win the pole for the second straight year when U.S. Auto Club officials ruled he failed to get his car into the qualifying line prior to the deadline on the opening day of time trials, May 11.

Another quick lap was turned in by Gary Bettenhausen. The fourth-row starter did a 187.383 m.p.h.

The open period on the track was followed by a two-hour session of pit practice, giving the crews of the starters an opportunity to get squared away in their cramped pit-area quarters.

Did America peak in 1927?

By Ira Berkow

NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The way some people are partial to butterscotch sundaes and forms of blondes, others are stuck on the year 1927. It is for them a glorious year in a golden era.

For glamor, 1927 had Lindbergh making the first trans-Atlantic airplane flight, Al Jolson warbling in the first "talkie" movie, the crossword puzzle making its first piebald appearance, and flowing down from the top of the '20s was bathtub gin, gangland blood, Gatsby-like parties, raccoon coats, mah jongg, the Charleston.

But 1927 had something else special — the indubitably indomitable New York Yankees of Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig and Waite Hoyt and Tony Lazzeri and Wiley Moore and Bob Meusel.

In "The Greatest of All. The 1927 New York Yankees" (The Dial Press, $7.95), John Mosedale's affectionate dispassionate new book takes us for a spin through those flappered days, and is the next best thing to making the trip in a Tin Lizzie rumble seat.

"This book is about a baseball team in a kind of funny-paper world," Mosedale tells us in the introduction.

Realism, however, is not hidden behind the color caricatures which too often are a part of a fond look at the past. Mosedale makes it clear that the Golden Era for some could be the Jaundiced Era for others.

There is the grimness of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, the sensationalizing of the Snyder-Gray murder case, and there is columnist Heywood Brown writing on American involvement overseas: "The Marines got into a jam and killed some 300 Nicaraguans. Of course we were told that those victims of our battle planners were all bandits. A bandit is any South American who has just left this life through the courtesy of the U.S. armed forces..."

We get no caricatures of the great players either. Here is second-baseman Mark Koenig on the legendary, in more ways than one, Babe Ruth when the team was on the road: "You never saw him. He was always up in his room with his girls."

Must have been proper medicine for the Babe, since 1927 was the year he hit his 60 homers, and led the Yankees to 110 wins (an American League record then) and the pennant (19 games in front, another A.L. record then) in which they never spent a day out of first place, and then swept the Pittsburgh Pirates in the World Series in four games.

That team also led the American League in every offensive department except doubles (they were second), and stolen bases — which was an unnecessary activity, since base runners knew they'd be scoring in due time. In pitching, they were league leaders in earned run average and shutouts.

An argument can barely be brooked that this 1927 Yankee team was the most dominant ever in one season. However, some still argue over which was the best team of all time.

Who was the greatest heavyweight champion? What was the greatest movie? What's the greatest flavor sundae? Prediction and preference overrule fact. Actually, fact only entangles the situation more because, for each hydra-like fact cut off, you get two more questions.

Contenders for the crown of best baseball team in history include the Chicago Cubs of 1906, the Philadelphia A's of 1914 and 1931, the St. Louis Cardinals of 1934 and 1942, the Chicago White Sox of 1919, the Baltimore Orioles of 1896, the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1902, the Brooklyn Dodgers of 1955 and the New York Yankees of 1928, 1936, 1938 and 1961.

Records and statistics help little. For teams other than the most storied seem to pop up in the most unexpected categories.

The Hitless Wonder White Sox of 1906 hold the record for team pitching shutouts; the 1931 Yankees hold the record for most runs scored; the 1930 Phillies hold the mark for most hits; the 1930 Giants hold record for highest team batting average.

In and out wind the 1927 Yankees: tied for 14th in batting average, fifth in winning percentage, third in wins — and first, still, in slugging average. But nowhere in pitching, or home runs despite Ruth's 60 and Gehrig's 47 (the 1961 Yankees of Mantle and Maris hold that record with 240).

Under the rustle of facts, however, glamor can be drowned. So we must rely on our fantasies when selecting and now reason pins us to the wall — the unselectable.

America was still intoxicated with having helped win "The War to End All Wars." There was the desire to believe in the government, particularly the presidency. There was the passion for sports, for Bobby Jones and Red Grange and, in 1927, the Dempsey-Tunney long-count fight. It was unquestionably the "Age of Nonsense." "It was," says Mosedale, "the coming together of all these things at a time when life seemed as exuberant as the moment of Ruth's sixtieth homer."

So if there was a greatest year in our history then 1927 comes closest to qualifying, despite the Red scares, the unspeakable lynchings of Blacks, the gangland slaughters, the Babbity symbolized by Prohibition.

And if there was a greatest baseball team, then it ought to have been the indubitably indomitable Yankees of '27.

Expos option Moore

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of the National League today announced they have optioned left-hander Balor Moore to Memphis Blues of the Class AAA International League and have purchased the contract of Dennis Blair, a righthander, from the Blues.

Moore, 23, has suffered control problems so far this season and has been unable to go past the fourth inning in his only two starts. He is 0-2 this year and 16-29 lifetime in the NL.

Blair, 19, was 4-0 in six starts with the Blues so far this season and boasted an earned run average of 1.61. In 39 innings, he struck out 36 batters and walked 13. He is to be inserted into the starting rotation.

He was Montreal's fifth selection in the June, 1972, draft and pitched in the Expos organization at Cocoa Beach, West Palm Beach, Jamestown and Quebec City in 1972-73.

Running game keeps them ahead

Brewers play to keep Milwaukee on top

The Brewers most famous these days in Milwaukee are the ones that play baseball, not the ones who make beer. Long known as the stronghold of suds, Milwaukee's cup is suddenly running over in the American League East Division pennant race. "Pressure is what baseball's all about—and we have a team that can keep the pressure on," Milwaukee's George Scott said Thursday after a 7-3 victory over Detroit Tigers. "We have guys who can run, guys who hit for average and guys who hit for power. We should keep the pressure on all the time." The Brewers have raced into first place in the East with a running game. Against the Tigers Thursday, the Brewers stole a club-record five bases and had 11 in the four-game series, which they won, 3-1.

"We were running the whole series and they've got to make mistakes," said Milwaukee catcher Darrell Porter. In other American League games, California Angels beat Kansas City Royals 3-1, Chicago White Sox whipped Texas Rangers 9-6 and Cleveland Indians blanked Baltimore Orioles 2-0.

The Tigers had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the seventh when Jim Northrup singled, advanced to second on a passed ball and scored on a two-out double by Rodriguez. Don Money doubled to start a two-run Brewer first inning against loser Joe Coleman, 6-3. Gaylor Perry pitched a three-hitter and George Hendrick singled home the only run he needed, leading Cleveland over Baltimore.

Bobby Grich in the fourth and Brooks Robinson's double in the fifth. Bobby Valentine hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, scoring Ellie Rodriguez and capping a two-run rally that gave Nolan Ryan and California its victory over Kansas City. The Angels scored their third run in the eighth on Rodriguez' RBI bouncer. Carlos May, Ee Herrmann and Ron Santo provided the key hits in three different rallies, leading Chicago over Texas.

Taylor in relief

Rogers wins his seventh for Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Right-hander Steve Rogers, with relief help from Chuck Taylor in the ninth inning, won his seventh game in nine decisions Thursday night as Montreal Expos edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 in National League play.

STEVE ROGERS ...wins seventh

Rogers breezed through the Pirates batting order in the early going, striking out six of the first nine men he faced, while his team-mates got three runs off Bruce Kison, 2-2. Rogers was replaced by Taylor after giving up a single to Ed Kirkpatrick and a double to Al Oliver. Kirkpatrick and Oliver eventually scored, Kirkpatrick coming home on Stargell's single and Oliver on Richie Hebner's souble-play ball. Taylor's save was his fifth of the season. Ron Hunt led off the Expos first with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Larry Lintz. Willie Davis then hit a tailing line drive just beyond the grasp of a lunging Willie Stargell in left field for a triple to score Hunt.

Davis lofted a high pop fly into short left field which Pirates shortstop Frank Taveras finally spotted and caught just before it hit the ground. Montreal was not as lucky in the next inning when, with two out and a man on base, Oliver hit a routine third-out fly to left center which neither Davis nor Day could see. It fell in for a triple, scoring the run. At that point, time was called and a 56-minute weather delay ensued. When play resumed Rogers put his second pitch to Stargell into the dirt and Oliver scored on the wild pitch to narrow the Montreal lead to one.

The Expos came back with a single run in the bottom of the inning when they tagged reliever Bob Noose for three singles and a double and added a fifth run in the seventh when Lintz walked, stole second and moved to third on Manny Sanguillen's throwing error to score on a sacrifice fly by Davis. With the Expos ahead 3-0 and Rogers holding a comfortable edge over his opponents, fog rolled into Jarry Park and began to have bizarre consequences on the game. With one out in the fifth inning,

CAHA teams fare poorly financially

WINNIPEG (CP) — Barrie Flyers lost money while capturing the Allan Cup, delegates to the annual Canadian Amateur Hockey Association convention learned Thursday. Figures released by administrative director Pierre Turmel of Ottawa showed the Flyers and Cranbrook Royals, their rivals in the 1974 senior hockey final, shared a profit of $67.31—after both clubs had lost money in their previous playoff series. The six-game national final at Cranbrook drew gross receipts of $28,914. Rink charges were $11,565 and expenses $11,498. The CAHA received 15 per cent, a total of $4,337. The clubs paid $1,045 for insurance and a rebate is possible, said Turmel. Release of the figures indicated again the depths to which the status of the Allan Cup has dipped. A plenary session Thursday afternoon was expected to discuss a proposal that intermediate championships in the nine CAHA branches that do not have senior leagues should play for the Allan Cup while the runner-up in each branch would compete for the Hardy Trophy emblematic of the national intermediate title. CHAMPS LOSE MONEY Selkirk Steelers, who won the Centennial Cup and the national junior A championship, made about $12,000 in their success while Warroad Lakers, national intermediate champs, lost money. Exact details on the Memorial cup playoff were not released but spokesmen for the major junior organization said the CAHA and three competing clubs, Regina Pats, St. Catharines Black Hawks and Quebec Remparts, were expected to share about $60,000. Every Allan Cup playoff series was costly to both clubs, Turmel's figures showed. St. John's Capitals and Thunder bay Twins lost more than $900 in their eastern semi-final while Barrie and the Twins shared a $360 deficit in the eastern final. Cranbrook and St. Boniface Mohawks lost $125 in their six-game western final. The deficit could be wiped out by the anticipated insurance refund. By comparison, Selkirk shared a $2,700 profit in their western semi-final with Prince Albert Raiders and each club netted $3,600 in the seven-game western final between Selkirk and Kelowna Buckaroos. Kelowna and Red Deer Rustlers shared $2,500 for their five-game semi-final.

Charlottetown Colonel Gray shared a loss of $1,800 for their series with Gander Flyers in the east; then shared a $1,400 deficit with Moncton. Smiths Falls Bears, who lost to Selkirk in the Centennial Cup final, lost about $2,828 before Smiths Falls broke even in their Eastern final with Thunder Bay. In the lucrative final, Selkirk and Smiths Falls shared a surplus of $15,379, bearing out secretary-manager Gordon Juckes' contention that the Centennial Cup has achieved recognition as a significant part of amateur hockey in Canada. Only one of four intermediate playoffs in Western Canada—the Rosetown-Warroad semi-final—showed a profit; the clubs shared $3,866. The national final between Warroad and Embrun lost $1,200 while Coquitlam and Warroad shared a $3,500 deficit in their series and Calgary and Coquitlam shared a deficit of $1,200.

Seaver gets award

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver was presented with the National League Cy Young Award Thursday, before the New York Mets' baseball game against Chicago Cubs. The award was for his pitching last year, not this one. The 1974 season has been a nightmare for the pitcher like to call Tom Terrific. Terrific, he has not been. Something is wrong with Seaver and it is becoming more serious with each sorry pitching turn for the Mets' ace right-hander. After 10 stars this season, he shows a 2-4 log and a distinctly un-Seaver-like 3.72 earned run average. That compares with a 19-10 record and 2.08 ERA in 1973. "What's most depressing is being very inconsistent," said Seaver after being shelled for six

Two share golf lead

MEMPHIS (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa and brand new winner Rod Curl matched course-record 66s for a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis golf tournament. Curl, the Wintu Indian who scored his first career victory only last Sunday in the Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex., birdied his three closing holes to tie Player at seven under par. "Hey, a man could get used to this in a hurry," Curl said. "It's a wonderful feeling." Player and Curl shared a one-stroke lead over four golfers tied at 66, six under par. Just one stroke off the pace were Hubert Green, a two-time winner this season, Larry Ziegler, Jim Colbert and Bob Wynn. Dave Hill, the defending champion and a four-time winner of this event, was in another large group at 67, just two shots back. Lee Trevino, a two-time Memphis champion and one of the pre-tourney favorites, took a double-bogey seven on the last hole for a 73, well back in the field. Many of the game's glamor names are skipping this tournament. Among the missing are Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Miller, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Australian Bruce Crampton. "I started like a hot dog and finished like a pro," enthused Curl.

A taste treat at the end of the line

There is nothing to surpass the taste of fresh fish which you have just caught yourself. We agree with you on this point because we know that in addition to its savoury taste, there is a mixture of self-satisfaction and sportsman's pride.

While there is nothing to surpass this taste, did you know that there are wines which will improve the flavour of fish when you cook it, and enable you to appreciate it to the fullest measure when you taste it.

Whether grilled, or prepared "meuniere" style, fish such as grey or speckled trout, salmon, pike, maskinonge, bass, walleye or doré, for example, are delicious when accompanied with a dry white wine.

If you serve your fish either boiled or in a sauce, we suggest a semi-dry white wine.

In most cases, it is recommended that you serve the same type of wine which you used in the preparation of the fish.

Our store managers will be pleased to assist you with your selection.

Wine... the difference between good and delicious.
