Orford's jazz festival promises an exceptional summer

Sarah Rogers
SHERBROOKE

Fans of classical and jazz music are being courted by the line-up at this year's Orford Festival 2009, with the curtain rising on what promoters promise to be an exceptional summer.

The Orford Arts Centre announced programming this week for the 58th season of its popular concert series, which will bring over 200 artists to its own Gilles Lefebvre Concert Hall as well as a number of venues throughout the Eastern Townships.

"There's a lot of fresh new stuff this year," said the festival's director, Davis Joachim. "And the ones that are coming back are so enamoured (with the festival) they've cooked up these programs like no one else has."

Returning acts include classical pianist André Laplante and jazz performer Oliver Jones.

New to the festival is the Orchestre de la francophonie, as well as The Devil's Fiddler with Roby Lakatos performing a concert of gypsy music – the first stop on their North American tour.

The festival offers almost 70 shows, much of it featured through its week-end concert series.

The students at the Orford Arts Centre's Music Academy play their role in the Orford on the Road concert series. Back by popular request is the Mardis Bleus Classique series, regular outdoor shows at Bleu Lavendre, the Fitch Bay lavender farm.

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD - CIDI

I have always been inspired by people like Maurice Singfield, who put in countless hours of play. (not work) as he stated in a recent article, into making amazing programming at community radio CIDI a reality. Hats off to him and Tanya Singfield.

Eric Wabant having fun in creating a website. Constantly updating the blog.

"This is a fun thing and willingly we will make it work." The contagious spirit permeates the air at CIDI.

Meeting Maurice at last year's Brome Fair was a turning point in my life. After a 50 year hiatus, I had begun writing stories for children again. Furthermore, I immediately realized after his explanation of the mission statement of CIDI Community Radio that I wanted to be part of this volunteer association.

For more than thirty years, together with my better half, we had been organizing the transportation of patients arriving at Montreal's International Airport to the Shriners Hospital for Children on Cedar Avenue by volunteer drivers. Sadly, for me, after moving permanently to our beloved Eastern Township, I was deprived of the opportunity to transport them to the place of care they so rightfully deserve.

I missed the good feeling in doing something of help.

The uplifting feeling of easing someone else's anxieties of coming to a world class, huge city from a remote corner in Manitoba or Newfoundland-Labrador, seeking help for a physically challenged child.

I kid you not, mothers have crouched on the floor of my van, deathly afraid to look at multilane traffic moving at 70-80 km an hour. Never having seen tall buildings, or traffic of these proportions.

Of course, these people had seen images of big cities and skyscrapers on TV. Reality, however, is a totally different thing.

Doing what I'm doing at CIDI has made me feel good. Like I'm thirty again. Creative juices are flowing. Together with Wioleta Leska, I host "The Children's Corner". Heard every Saturday and Sunday at 8:00 a.m. Wioleta reads stories in the French language, and I try to bring my tales to life in English. We play music for children and have a great time at "Play."

Enjoying life in our beautiful community I've noticed Lions, Optimists, Oddfellows, and Free Masons doing their thing. They feel good in what they're doing.

Parker pens paeon

Homage to the golden age of Chandler

Putting aside the works of Edgar Allan Poe, the hard-boiled novel is arguably America's most distinctive contribution to crime fiction. Featuring a no-nonsense protagonist, an outsider battling the forces of evil almost always alone, and characterized by lean dialogue and fast-paced action, the genre saw its heyday in the late 1940s, in heroes exemplified on film by the likes of Humphrey Bogart, Alan Ladd, and Robert Mitchum. Its influence extends to the present day, in the novels of Sara Paretsky, Elmore Leonard, and James Lee Burke, and nowhere does it find a more polished expression than in the hands of Robert B. Parker. Reading a Parker novel is not unlike watching a master of Japanese brush painting at work: with a few, exquisitely-crafted strokes, he reveals the essence of his subject in stark relief. Shakespeare it ain't; but Parker's prose has its own kind of polish, and its own fascination, and it is beyond doubt quintessentially American.

Robert B. Parker

Decked out in his customary brown leather bomber jacket and faded blue jeans, Robert B. Parker looks like something between the avuncular next-door neighbor and a crusty veteran from the Second World War. And indeed, he served in the U.S. Army in Korea before returning home to complete a Ph.D. in English from Boston University.

But for the past thirty-eight years Robert B. Parker has been turning out crime novels at the rate of more than one per year, to the delight of his many fans around the world. His output to date includes thirty-five Spenser novels (the basis for the long-running TV series starring Robert Ulrich), six novels featuring Boston PI Sunny Randall, and for good measure, almost another dozen standalone books. However, for my money one of his most interesting series, now spanning six novels and an equal number of made-for-television films starring Tom Selleck, center around Jesse Stone, the idiosyncratic police chief of a small New England town incongruously named Paradise.

Parker won an Edgar Award in 1977 for Best Novel of the Year (Promised Land), and in 2002 he was named a Grand Master by the Mystery Writers of America. He and his wife Joan live in Cambridge, Massachusetts with their two dogs.

Jesse Stone is a middle-aged chief of police in a small town on the shores of upstate Massachusetts. A failed minor-league ballplayer whose body betrayed him, he has a history of failed jobs and dead-end relationships, and a problem with the bottle as well. But he is fundamentally a decent man who struggles to bring a measure of meaning to his life. As he explains it to his shrink, he seeks redemption through his career. Jesse is on good terms with his ex-wife Jenn, a television reporter, and nurtures a hope of getting their relationship back on track.

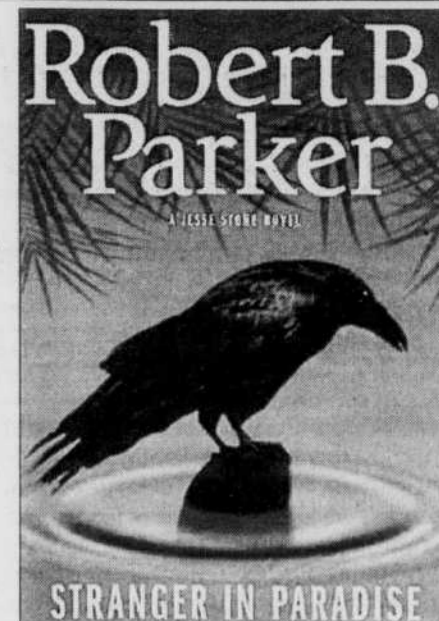

Stone is assisted in his duties by a team that includes Deputy Molly Crane, a worldly-wise married mother of four, and "Suitcase" Simpson, a deputy whose libido sometimes gets the better of him.

In this, his most recent outing, Jesse is confronted by two problems. A group of residents are rallying to fight the creation of a school for disadvantaged youngsters in their neighborhood. Local activist Miriam Fiedler argues that the mere presence of a dozen Hispanic six-year-olds is enough to bring organized crime to the area and threaten local property values. Stone is unconvinced, and wonders about her underlying motives. More worrying, a contract killer named Wilson Cromartie has recently returned to Paradise. The last time he was in town several people died, and Crow, as he is known, served ten years in prison for his involvement in the violence.

Not unreasonably, Jesse decides Crow is the larger of the problems. Crow has been hired to find Amber Francisco, the fourteen-year-old runaway daughter of a Florida gangster, and return her to her father. He seeks an uneasy alliance with Stone, and Jesse is torn: during the incident that sent him to prison, Crow prevented several men from harming women they had taken hostage, and Stone figures there must be some element of decency in the man. He has, it seems, his own personal ethic. The problem is, no one knows what it is.

Crow's task is complicated. Amber has fallen under the spell of Esteban Carty, the leader of a local street gang, the Horn Street Boys. A social misfit whose aspirations are all out of line with his abilities, Esteban unwisely decides to muscle in on Crow's contract.

But Crow is no newcomer to jungle warfare. Before long the streets of Paradise are littered with bodies, and Jesse Stone must decide how to safeguard Amber and deal with the threat of a very uneven turf war between a gang of local wannabes, an out-of-state crime czar, and a contract killer with his own agenda. Jesse must also balance the involvement of his ex-wife, who, as a television reporter, is understandably anxious for a story that could make her career. Lowest on his list is the manipulative Miriam Fiedler and her concern about neighborhood property values. Or is that her concern, after all?

A hardboiler for our times

Although in its cynicism and spare dialogue it owes a lot to the classic hard-boiled novels of the 1940's, Stranger in Paradise is very much a story for today. The omniscient point of view gives readers an overview of events as they move toward their inexorable climax. Its appeal lies in the interaction between the nuanced characters, especially Jesse Stone and his adversary, Wilson Cromartie.

Jesse nodded slowly. "As long as I have you in town," he said, "I'm going to do everything I can to put together a case against you."

"I figured that," Crow said. "I say you won't be able to."

"Limitation is sort of complicated," Jesse said. "There was bank robbery involved, kidnapping, these fall under federal statutes. I'll talk to an ADA tomorrow, see what they can tell me."

"Ten years covers most things," Crow said.

"We're going to watch you all the time you're in town," Jesse said.

"But you're not going to harass me."

"If we can put a case together, we'll arrest you."

Essentially an outsider in a flawed world, Stone strives to live by his own values and do the right thing. It is a sense of duty that Raymond Chandler and Dashiell Hammett would have perfectly understood.

'Mad' Mike on the mic

BY BRIAN GORMAN

Years before Iraqis showed the world how to vote with their feet, "Mad" Mike Milbury became famous as a Boston Bruin for beating an abusive fan with his own loafer.

To be fair, we should point out that Milbury, who is something of a showman with a gift for turning a phrase, is the one who came up with the "Mad" nickname.

This goes a long way toward explaining his apparently effortless transformation from hockey executive to announcer since he left the game in 2006.

Milbury joined the Hockey Night in Canada team this year as a "panelist and analyst," and he'll be on the scene through the playoff season, which began last week and continues Sunday, April 19, on CBC Television. Before that, he was with TSN, and he continues to cover weekend games for NBC in the United States.

But let's return to the shoe incident for a moment. As Milbury says, that was the least of what happened during a game between the Bruins and the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden in 1979.

On that evening, the Rangers fans got so far under the collective Bruin skin that the entire Boston team waded into the stands to shut them up.

Although Milbury's contribution was actually minimal, it was the most theatrical.

While he was trying to pull a Rangers fan off a teammate, the fan tried to kick him, and Milbury grabbed the guy's foot, pulled off his shoe and whacked him with it.

The scene made for hilarious TV — which is probably why it lives on at YouTube and comes up whenever anyone talks to Milbury about his 31 years in the NHL as a player, coach and general manager.

"It was obviously a spur-of-the-moment thing," Milbury says. "I was in the locker room after the game had ended, and I realized that no one was following me."

He asked an assistant coach where everyone was. Hearing that "there was some kind of beef going on," he ran out into the stands to help.

"The guy kicked out at me and I grabbed his shoe, whacked him once on the thigh.

"The worst thing I think I did was throw it out onto the ice. So he had to walk home with one shoe."

As Milbury points out, it was one small incident in a 12-season, 754-game career with the Bruins that ran from 1975 to 1987.

"I think there are more important things in my life," he says. "But I guess the images of TV stick with people."

but they're only available for sale in Canada or on the Internet. Though these candy bars are delicious on their own, there are ways to make them even more delectable, like deep-frying a Mars Bar. And what about different ways to eat a chocolate bar? In one episode of "Seinfeld," they used knives and forks. This show explores the world of chocolate in Canada and the many ways to enjoy this heavenly treat.

MAC'S "THAT'S MAKEUP": MAC Cosmetics has stores across the globe, but its home base is in Canada. Its makeup and skin and nail care products are top-notch, and anyone who loves makeup knows about MAC. Not everyone who loves makeup knows how to apply it properly, however, but they will after watching this show. Methods for applying eye shadow and mascara are but just a few of the things viewers will learn when tuning in to this new series. There's also a section of the show called "Good Technique/Bad Technique," where people are taken off the street and scrutinized for the way they put on their daily face.

MEC'S "THAT'S CAMPING":

Mountain Equipment Co-Op is a central one-stop shopping spot for Canadian campers. In this new series, MEC staffers update viewers on the newest in camping gear and the best spots to set up camp around the country. Find out where the bears are so you can make sure you're not there.

DUMAURIER'S "THAT'S HEALTH":

Everyone knows smoking is bad for you, so it's a little strange that a tobacco company would sponsor this new show. The reason behind it is, if you're going to smoke cigarettes, then at the very least, eat healthy and exercise regularly. This series provides the ins and outs of the healthiest picks at fast-food restaurants and the easiest ways to stay fit using the least amount of effort.

SECOND CUP'S "THAT'S COFFEE":

Canadian coffee company Second Cup knows what a coffee break is all about. With Dufflet pastries in the showcase, this is a uniquely Canadian coffee experience where viewers can learn the art of "high coffee time," if you will.

Orlando Jones, just a 'Rules' guy

BY KATE O'HARE

As played by Patrick Warburton, long-married Jeff Bingham of CBS' Monday comedy "Rules of Engagement" is just a regular guy, a guy who loves his wife, Audrey (Megyn Price), beer and softball – but not necessarily in that order.

As of this season, though, Jeff has a new pal, Brad, played by recurring star Orlando Jones. In some ways, Brad is like other pals Jeff has had, and in another way, he's not.

"What trouble is Brad causing?" Jones says. "Trouble of the Brad variety. I think he's probably causing more trouble for Jeff than anything else, since Jeff is exploring a new relationship. I don't think he's ever had a friend who was outside of his bailiwick in the way that I am.

"Brad is gay, so I think Jeff's trying to figure out where the common ground is."

As to what Jeff and Brad do together, Jones says, "Oddly, we do couples stuff, because I have my partner, who has bonded with Audrey. We're two guys, and our approach to things is very much like two guys.

"We both lie to our spouses when we want to go out and hang with the boys and watch sports. I'm into sports; he's into sports. So, it's really the same relationship you would have with any other guy.

"Occasionally he goes off the deep end and starts talking to me about breast augmentation or whatever, and I'm, 'Sorry, wrong crowd. You've got the wrong guy for that.'"

Jones – a vegan who learned to cook from his grandmother – likes to bust stereotypes in real life as well.

"I'm a weird vegan," he says, "because I don't mind cooking meat for my friends. I don't subscribe to the theory that meat is going to kill you. I'm in the 'anything in moderation' camp."

"Lost Untangled" <http://abc.go.com/prime-time/lost/index?pnlostuntangled>

If you watch an episode of "Lost" and still are a little confused, ABC's Web site helpfully provides these hysterically funny online vignettes. They explain the plot intricacies of the most recent installment with a mix of miniatures, action figures, cardboard cutouts, silly vocals and cartoons. And if you're still puzzled after reviewing last week's episode, all the previous weeks are archived for your convenience and will play in reverse order.

"Supernatural," <http://supernatural.warnerbros.com/>

Of course, The CW maintains a Web site for the spooky drama "Supernatural," but studio Warner Bros. has one as well, and it's pretty sweet. Using a graphic interface that looks like the interior of Dean Winchester's classic Chevy Impala (which makes awesome car sounds), you're guided to pages focusing on different aspects of the show. Among the coolest: a journal with pages you can turn and a laptop screen with research links.

OF 'SAMANTHA WHO?' ON ABC

Q: What's your sense of the prospect for "Samantha Who?" to continue into a third season?

A: I've always been kind of "live with it, live without it." I'm fine either way, but I can't imagine not being around these people. There isn't a sense that we wouldn't (come back), and I think everyone feels pretty positive, especially given the odd nature of our run.

We were a brand-new show, then the writers strike happened. We haven't really gotten a fair chance to get into a groove, though we've been doing the show practically for two years straight. I couldn't imagine our not being given the opportunity to just have a regular, full season. We're just hoping it does really well with this round.

Q: While you're playing recovered coma victim Samantha as a new person, what do you think about the other characters having to forge new relationships with someone they thought they knew?

A: I can't imagine what went on in their heads when they were approaching it. This is essentially a stranger, and it was very interesting to watch what they were going to do.

Q: What is your assessment now of your bout with breast cancer last year?

A: Hopefully, because of the position I'm in, I'm going to be able to help a lot of people. My foundation (Right Action for Women) is kind of my mission now, to make sure that women do get to catch this early and are taken care of.

'Rome' stars well known across the pond

Kevin McKidd

Q: I loved the series "Rome." Can you tell me something about the actors who played Pullo and Vorenis? —Mary Devereaux, Toronto

A: Kevin McKidd, who played Lucius Vorenus, is a 35-year-old native of Elgin, Scotland. He got his start onstage and made his big-screen debut in Danny Boyle's "Trainspotting" in 1996. Since then, he has worked regularly on British TV and appeared in such movies as "Nicholas Nickleby" and "Hannibal Rising." He can be seen in three films this year: the action drama "Bunraku," the thriller "Catwalk" and "Dylan," a biopic about Welsh poet Dylan Thomas. He is married with two children.

Ray Stevenson, 44, played Titus Pullo. He was born in Northern Ireland and raised in Newcastle, England. He studied acting at the famous Old Vic acting school in London and made his screen debut in a 1993 British TV movie called "A Woman's Guide to Adultery," which starred Theresa Russell and Amanda Donohoe. Before "Rome," he was almost unknown on this side of the Atlantic, although he had a string of British TV movies and series to his credit. He is divorced from actress Ruth Gemmill. He can be seen on the big screen this year in the horror thriller "Cirque du Freak" and next year in the sci-fi drama "The Book of Eli."

Detective Casey Shraeger from 'The Unusuals'

When actors wear a relatively simple outfit, say a plain suit and tailored blouse, it's not as if they reached into the closet and threw on whatever was handy. Costumers and actors discuss outfits, and a small staff checks the tightness of each button, the sharpness of each crease.

On ABC's "The Unusuals," Wednesdays, Amber Tamblyn's character, Casey Shraeger, could be wearing haute couture as the daughter of an extraordinarily wealthy family. Instead, Shraeger is a detective.

In the pilot, her mom (Joanna Gleason) tells her that she looks "like a lesbian."

"I'm not sure what a lesbian looks like," Tamblyn says while cameras move behind her. "It's just real generic suits," she says. "She enjoys the simplicity of a suit, practical shoes. Even in scenes where she's off duty, she'll wear a cardigan sweater and Converse. She doesn't have anything very luxurious."

Shraeger's closet — characters on shows have closets from which their outfits are chosen — is in the wardrobe trailer on the show's set. There, a few Gap tags hang from shirts in cramped but perfectly organized rows. Plain button-down blouses hang next to unobtrusive blouses in muted colors.

"We are dealing with detectives here," says Victoria Farrell, the show's costume designer. "It's not a fashion thing; it's a little more relaxed."

Farrell describes Shraeger's look as "a bit softer. I looked at real detectives to get a good idea. She has good suits — a little better than most detectives would buy."

Shraeger's suits are from Theory.

"I like their fabrics and the cut," Farrell says. "They are cuts that work, a longer jacket and a shorter jacket. They also stretch; they're beautiful fabrics that hold their shape."

She also wears suits from Zara and Esprit.

Beautiful as they are, the linings of Shraeger's suits are filled with nicks, tears and runs — from her badge.

Her coats are from Banana Republic, Kenneth Cole and Zara. She has some scarves from Portolano.

Farrell, a Canadian, describes the show's palette as "New York for everybody — blacks, grays, blues, navy blues, plum."

Many of Shraeger's tops are from James Perse, where the T-shirts drape beautifully. The costumer favors Madewell for layering under the suits.

Farrell shops at Bloomingdales and Saks. She buys the character's shoes at Steve Madden.

what we learned from tv lately

BY BEVERLY FOSTER SEINBERG

Rick Mercer

"RICK MERCER REPORT"

Sam Jacks, director of parks and recreation in North Bay, Ont., invented the game of ringette in 1963 to give females an ice-based team sport to play.

"MANSFIELD PARK"

Looking like a younger version of a big star is career gold. Ask British child actress Julia Joyce, who has played younger versions of Billie Piper's character on "Doctor Who," in the TV movie "The Ruby in the Smoke" and in this TV take on a Jane Austen tale.

"THE LAST WINTER"

It's not nice to mess with Mother Nature.

"RUN FAT BOY RUN"

It is possible for someone completely out of shape to get into condition to run a marathon in just three weeks - and get the girl, to boot.

Kevin Smith

Zaib Shaikh

"LITTLE MOSQUE ON THE PRAIRIE"

Choose your friends carefully. Mom was right about the dangers of running with the wrong people.

"LAST CALL AT THE GLADSTONE HOTEL"

Revitalizing a neighborhood - or even a single building - without displacing the existing residents is a lot easier said than done.

"SPEED RACER"

No matter how cheesy, the cartoons we grew up on have heart - which somehow gets lost when those cartoons are remade in live action.

"SOLD OUT: A THREEVENING WITH KEVIN SMITH"

A medical problem that makes it difficult to sit for long periods won't excuse you from jury duty ... but it should.

Burt Lancaster

"SAVAGE GRACE"

Some mothers never learn when to back off.

Denzel Washington

"TRAINING DAY"

The end justifies the means if it gets bad guys off the streets. Anyone who's seen a "Dirty Harry" movie knows that.

Best Beauty Pageant Movies

Abigail Breslin

"Little Miss Sunshine" (2006): A Volkswagen bus full of eccentric relatives hits the road from Albuquerque, N.M., to Los Angeles, where 7-year-old Olive (Abigail Breslin) hopes to win the title of Little Miss Sunshine. While the sharp writing makes this film a real gem, the inspired casting -

Breslin, Toni Collette, Steve Carell, Greg Kinnear and Paul Dano - really give it life. And Alan Arkin as Olive's promiscuous, heroin-snorting grandfather nearly steals the movie.

Sandra Bullock

"Miss Congeniality" (2000): It's not a great movie by any stretch, but Sandra Bullock saves it as a clumsy FBI agent who goes under cover to root out a serial killer whose next target is at the Miss United States pageant. Her character is as unladylike as they come, as she clomps around in heels, snorts when she laughs and finds new ways to misuse makeup. A beauty consultant brilliantly played by Michael Caine oversees her transformation from tomboy to legitimate contender, but the conspiracy runs deeper than originally thought. Candice Bergen and Benjamin Bratt also star.

Kirsten Dunst

"Drop Dead Gorgeous" (1999): The treacherous motives of stage mothers at a teen beauty pageant get a workout in this so-called comedy. Kirstie Alley plays the well-heeled Miss Teen Princess America chairwoman, a former winner herself who will stop at nothing - including murder - to ensure her daughter (Denise Richards) follows in her footsteps. The primary competition is a trailer park dweller (Kirsten Dunst) whose mother (Ellen Barkin) is a burn victim who has a beer can permanently fused to her hand. Yep, the image is as ugly as it sounds.

"OVER THE RIVER AND THROUGH THE WOODS", Sponsored by Saputo Inc., By: Joe DiPietro, Directed by: Steven Schipper, at Leonor and Alvin Segal Theatre, 5170 chemin de la Cote-Sainte-Catherine, Montreal, from April 19 to May 10, 2009. Tickets available at the Box Office: (514) 739-7944, Admission: (514) 790-1245, www.admission.com. Love of family is the central theme of this endearing, warm-hearted comedy. The play takes us on a sweet and sentimental journey as Nick, a dutiful, young marketing executive, goes to visit his grandparents to give them some exciting news: he's moving far away. Thus ensues a familiar, tragi-comic dialogue between the generations, transcending ethnicity and cultural background. www.segalcentre.org

Atkins shows he's ready for mainstream with new album

It's not an easy task to follow-up an album that produced four mega No # 1 hits, as has been the case with Rodney Atkins' last effort titled If You're Going Through Hell. He recorded a new album of songs that should produce a few more #1 hits.

Indeed, Atkins is back with It's America, an album that simply picks up where his previous effort leaves off. It contains a perfect blend of classic and modern country songs that will have every listener wanting more.

The country singer did not take this album lightly; he has invested his heart and soul into every tune. This is an album featuring pure and simple country music, something that is rare to come by these days.

The new CD was recorded in his home studio and the music is honest and laid-back. It is refreshing because there's no over-production. It is also mostly upbeat, featuring lyrics which are easy to relate to.

Also, the fact that Tim McGraw is preparing to leave Curb Records after his next studio album might serve Rodney Atkins quite well. He will be the main male country artist left on the major label, so the label will be able to invest more on his career.

This baseball cap wearing singer has lady luck on his side. The new album is filled with radio friendly tunes; most of which come from Nashville's best songwriters, including Doug Johnson, Dave Berg, Rivers Rutherford, Brett James, Casey Beathard, Neal Coty just to name a few.

COUNTRY CONNECTION

Atkins has selected plenty of subjects that are well liked by radio, including patriotism, working man, rowdy party anthems and inspirational material. There's really something for everyone.

Atkins offers a passionate delivery with the right blend of great guitar licks and irresistible hooks on the very catchy 'Chasin' Girls'. It has 'summer hit' written all over it. Similar to the last album, many songs have been inspired by his family and his own life.

'Got It Good' shines as another hit single as he realizes just how thankful he is about everything he has. The great message in this song is that you should count your blessings not your problems.

'Simple Things' is about realizing that the important things in life are often the simplest and smallest things. In this high stress world, Atkins comes as a very down-to-earth guy with refreshingly simple upbeat country music.

'15 Minutes' is about a man who is trying to behave, stay home with his wife instead of going out with his friends.

Pianist Richard Raymond closes concert season at Centennial

Richard Raymond closes out concert series at Centennial.

Pianist Richard Raymond will close the 2008-2009 Concert Music Series at Centennial Theatre on Sunday, April 19th at 3pm. On the programme, Ballad no 2 and Venezia e Napoli by Liszt, two waltzes and the Scherzo no 2 in B-flat minor by Chopin, as well as 4 rhapsodies by Dohnanyi. Afternoon concert music performances are free of charge for children 12 and under when they are accompanied by an adult (1 child, 1 adult).

Richard Raymond has won virtually every award there is to win in Canada: all the top prizes at the Montreal Symphony Orchestra Competition, the "International Stepping Stone" of the Canadian Music Competition, and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Young Performer's Competition. In 1992 he was finally recognized on the international scene: He became only the second Canadian to win the prestigious Montreal International Competition triumphing over 49 contestants from 18 countries. He is the recipient of the prestigious Virginia Parker Prize awarded by the Canada Council.

Raymond's performances with the Montreal Symphony, the Toronto Symphony, and essentially every major orchestra in Canada have been met with great excitement. Recitals, festival appearances and chamber music engagements have taken him across Canada, to Italy, Taiwan, Mexico, China, Georgia, Germany, France and the United States.

Richard Raymond has recorded five compact discs for the Analekta and Musica Viva labels. He was nominated for Best CD and Artist of the year at the East Coast Music Awards in Halifax, and at the OPUS Awards in Montreal. The Dallas Morning News gave his Chopin CD a special Grade A rating in May 2003. Richard Raymond's newest CD, released on Analekta, features the fascinating Reubke Piano Sonata in B-flat minor and Beethoven's Piano Sonata No.21 (Waldstein).

Visit his website at www.myspace.com/raymondpiano for excerpts of Richard Raymond's music.

Raymond is currently Associate Professor at the Schulich School of Music-McGill University in Montreal.

Tickets can be purchased at the Centennial Theatre Box Office 819-822-9692.

ATKINS:

One of them lets him know that he quit smoking and chasing women but it was the worst '15 Minutes' of his life. The change sure didn't last long.

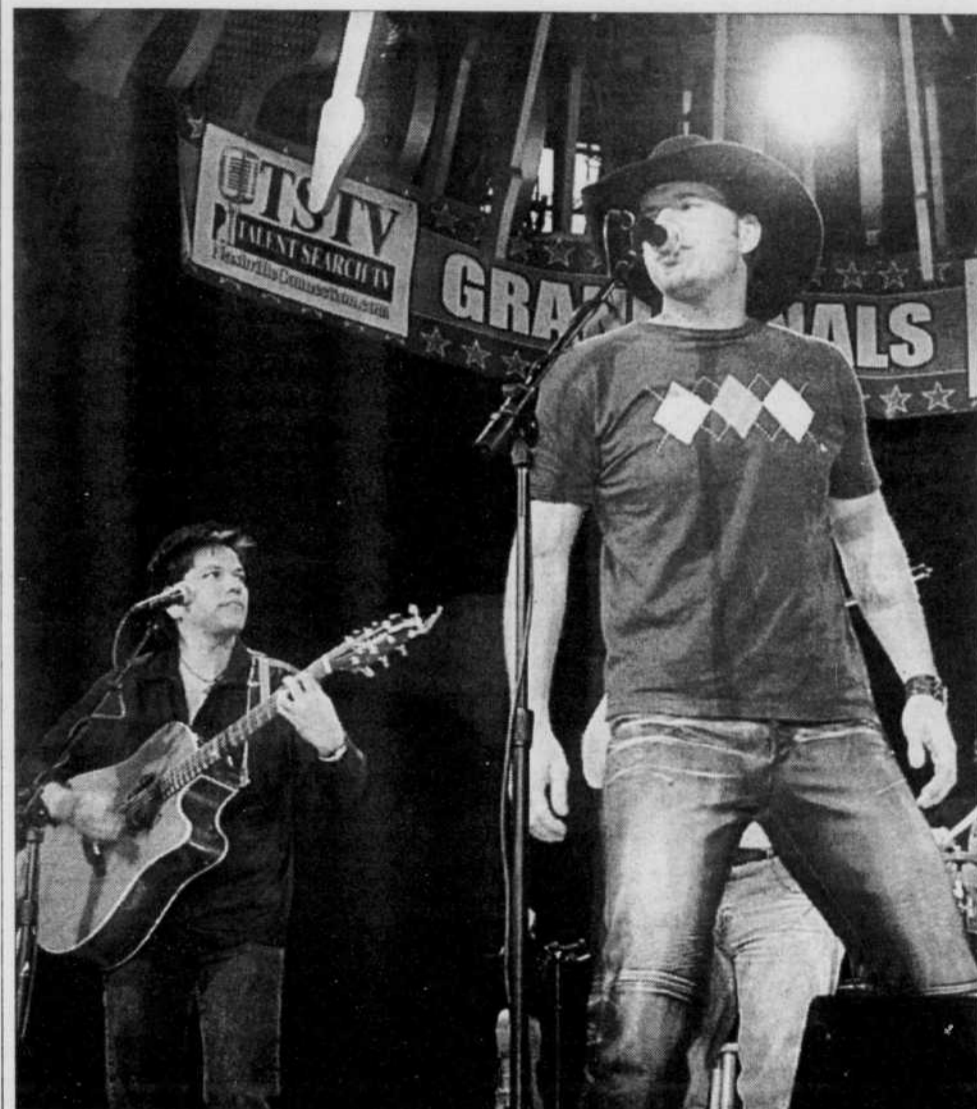

The first single released and also the title track is already climbing up the charts. It's America is a song about America being the best place to live. Although it is kind of cliché, it still has a nice sing-along groove to the chorus.

There's also the humorous 'Friends with Tractors', a number first recorded by its co-writer Rhett Atkins a few years ago. Fans will also like 'Tell a Country Boy' set to banjos and guitars, about the pride of living in the country.

There's also two inspirational songs 'Rockin' of the Cradle' and 'It's My Time' while 'Best Things' in which the singer offers a salute to women. People will find that this album lacks nice slows and romantic ballads.

Those who have loved Atkins' first hit 'Honesty' will not find anything similar on this new album. The only ballad is the Dave Berg, Anne and Sam Tate penned 'The River Just Knows', a clever story song about meeting a man by the river, leading to a message of forgiveness.

Atkins is a talented singer and the songs he has picked for this album are all radio friendly. This is the album that you will carry with you in the car all summer long. I think this will take him one giant step further in his career. Everything about it has mainstream potential.
