Yukon MP claims encroachment of northern government utility

OTTAWA (CP) — Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) accused the northern development department Wednesday of trying to drive private electrical power companies out of northern Canada.

He said in the Commons that proposed amendments to the parliamentary act establishing the publicly-owned Northern Canada Power Corp. are aimed solely at pushing out private investment in the power field in favor of the government-operated utility.

The Whitehorse lawyer said the government utility was established in 1948 only to move into remote areas where private capital was unable or unwilling to go.

But gradually it was forcing its way into northern communities where it knew a profit could be made.

Judd Buchanan, parliamentary secretary to Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, said the proposed changes would allow Northern Canada Power to have more flexibility in meeting the growing needs of northern development.

The Crown agency now must get cabinet approval for all projects costing more than $50,000. This provision would be removed by the bill.

Mr. Buchanan also said that the publicly-owned utility wants to set regional rates. Under present law, the agency must recover capital and operating costs from each of its 22 generating plants in northern Canada.

As a result, the company charges a little more than one cent a kilowatt hour for supplying power to private companies in Yellowknife and Whitehorse and up to 15 cents a kilowatt hour to smaller, more remote settlements.

Mr. Nielsen said the intent was to inflict higher rates on residents of Whitehorse to pay off losses elsewhere.

It was in effect another tax for Whitehorse residents. Mr. Nielsen said losses suffered by the government utility in remote Arctic areas should be borne by all Canadian taxpayers.

Deputy Speaker Russell Honey said he would rule later on an amendment by Mr. Nielsen that in effect would kill the bill.

His amendment says that the new principle of regional rates should be studied by the Commons before the bill is given second reading.

Mr. Buchanan said another important clause of the bill calls for two northern Canada residents to sit on the agency's board of directors. The board now consists of three members, all of them federal government appointees.

Bud Orange (L.—Northwest Territories) urged the government to appoint an independent commission to assess future power needs in the North, new energy sources and the efficiency of the power commission.

He also said the government should review the policy of supplying power in the North to government agencies, such as RCMP stations, at lower rates than those charged private groups.

In future power developments the commission should consider the value of the environment to local residents and as a possible tourist attraction.

Rod Thomson (NDP—Battleford-Kindersley) disputed Mr. Nielsen's argument that private power companies should be given greater scope in the North.

Publicly-owned power companies could better take on longterm financing because of their size. They could also establish power capacities in remote areas in advance of private users and could lower costs through standardization of parts.

Accommodation reached on arms-sales proposal

SINGAPORE (CP) — African and Asian leaders continued to warn of a breakup of the Commonwealth Wednesday night after agreeing on a vague accommodation under which Britain is to continue consultations on the controversial arms-to-South Africa issue.

That accommodation, reached after two dramatic days of closed-door meetings at the Commonwealth conference, shelved for the moment but did not end the crisis brought about by Britain's proposal to sell arms to the South African navy.

A committee of eight countries, including a reluctant Canada, will study the British proposals and report to Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith of Canada as soon as possible.

But British Prime Minister Heath made it clear that Britain retains the obligation to sell arms to the South Africans to help guard the sea lanes of the Indian Ocean at any time it thinks necessary.

Africans replied with heated assaults and dire predictions of the future of the Commonwealth if the sale goes through.

The same warnings have been heard since Heath's government first proposed the arms sale last June and Africans said it implies acceptance of the white-minority South African government's apartheid policies.

Heath replied to the Africans strongly in kind, mentioning

Tanzanian agreement with Communist China.

Later in a midnight appeal for trust, Heath said:

"Of all the privileges we enjoyed in the days of empire, we claim only one: Acceptance of our word, trust in our good intentions and respect for our straight dealings."

"On this privilege the British people can reasonably insist."

In the early hours of the morning Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada rose with Canada's reply:

"Neither a treaty nor these political differences of the most extreme sort... are adequate reasons to jeopardize for our children the prospect of a world in which racial diversity is regarded as a cultural richness."

He said Canada is unwilling to make any gesture of acceptance of apartheid. Racial discrimination was perhaps the epitome of human indignity.

Thus if South Africa demanded the arms under the Simonstown Agreements with Britain, Britain could be forced to choose between the Commonwealth and the South Africans.

The meeting ended at 4 a.m. Some sources called the accommodation a "no defeat, no victory" formula. Trudeau said it "restores a decent measure of agreement to disagree" and that the Commonwealth is "still very much in one piece."

Ironically, however, South Africa still could force a showdown between Britain and the other 30 Commonwealth members.

Heath issued a statement, in a plenary meeting that followed Wednesday's private meeting, saying Britain is legally bound to sell certain arms if asked by South Africa. He added that the obligation would be nullified if South Africa used the arms to further its policy of racial separation.

Summations end, five-man coroner's jury to consider air crash verdict

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A five-man coroner's jury today heard summations of evidence into the crash of an Air Canada jetliner which killed all 109 persons aboard last July 5.

The jury, which next will consider its verdict, had previously been instructed not to investigate the cause of the crash, which was the subject of a federal inquiry completed last month.

Expert witnesses at the inquiry blamed First Officer Donald Rowland for the crash. They said evidence of a voice tape from the plane's recorder indicated he inadvertently activated the giant plane's spoiler lever, causing brake flaps to operate prematurely during a landing attempt.

Wednesday, the inquest, under Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, heard details of how all but 20 of the crash victims were identified through personal effects, dentures, jewelry, pathological research and fingerprints.

The elongated DC-8-63 jet was bound for Los Angeles from Montreal with a short stop at Toronto.

It was learned that Janine Chapdelaine of Santa Monica, Calif., carried $25,000 in cash on to the jetliner after buying $45,000 worth of insurance at Montreal's Dorval Airport shortly before take-off.

Provincial police found the $25,000 the day after the crash by sifting through the wreckage. The money came from sale of family property.

"The family was in the process of moving from Montreal to Santa Monica. The $25,000 has since been handed over to Mr. Chapdelaine, who was also named beneficiary in his wife's airport insurance policy.

Two sets of safety deposit box keys, also found with the money in a cosmetics bag, were traced to Montreal and this led to the identification of Mrs. Chapdelaine.

Mrs. Chapdelaine was one of three persons who took out insurance from the airport machines and then boarded Flight 621. The other two, John McTaggart of North Vancouver, B.C., and Istvan Simon of North Hollywood, Calif., bought $150,000 and $105,000 worth of insurance respectively.

The inquest was told by Dr. James Purves, president of the recently-formed Canadian Society for Forensic Odontology, that 44 of the crash victims were identified through dental evidence.

He recommended that up-to-date dental records be kept on all crew members as well as fingerprints to make identification of crash victims easier.

Ceylon warns of nuclear intrusion

SINGAPORE (AP) — Ceylon warned Commonwealth leaders today that "cold war politics" could bring U.S. and Soviet intrusions into the states of the Indian Ocean region.

The warning was spelled out in a paper on Indian Ocean security submitted to the summit conference of 31 member-nations by Prime Minister Madame Sirima Bandaranaike.

Her document urged a general Commonwealth effort to work against the militarization of the Indian Ocean and its conversion into "a peace zone" where all nuclear weapons would be banned.

In listing "some of the important consequences" of importing cold war politics into the area, the Ceylonese government said:

"Contradictions and conflicts in the Indian Ocean area will tend to polarize."

"It would not be possible to rule out the likelihood of direct or indirect intervention by the superpowers in the internal affairs of states."

The document cited several causes and effects, as Ceylon sees them, of big-power interest in the region:

—Soviet and American movements of warships carrying nuclear weapons are increasing.

—Militarization of various islands and shore-based facilities is being stepped up.

—Colonial and racial problems in southern Africa are intensifying.

Manitoban denies guerrilla action

MONTREAL (CP) — A young Manitoban testified Wednesday that he and three friends discussed "urban guerrilla" tactics "in the political context of Quebec" last September, but he denied that they planned to take any revolutionary action.

Gilles Cormier, 20, who came to Montreal last June from his native St. Boniface, Man., was testifying at the trial of Come Leblanc on three charges connecting him with the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Cormier said he met three or four times a week last fall with a "study group" that included his brother Raymond Cormier, 23, and Jean Boisjoli, 21, both teachers originally from St. Boniface, and Leblanc, 23, an unemployed Montreal laborer.

Among other things, they compiled a list of Montreal gunshops from a telephone book and divided the list among them so that each man could visit a few. But Cormier said they had nothing specific in mind.

In mid-October, the group visited junior colleges in the central Quebec cities of Shawinigan and Trois-Rivieres where they distributed copies of an FLQ "manifesto" and another document calling for a general strike by students in support of the aims of the organization.

Cormier also identified a handwritten list of the names of 17 prominent Quebecers which police witnesses testified was found in his Montreal apartment, but he was not asked any questions about it.

At the top of the list was the name of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister and government house leader in the assembly who was kidnapped by terrorists Oct. 10 and strangled a week later.

Leblanc, a bushy-haired young man with a small beard and a moustache, is charged specifically with being a member of the FLQ, with advocating or promoting its aims and with communicating statements on its behalf.

Each of the charges is punishable by up to five years in prison or a $5,000 fine or both.

Cormier, who spent most of the opening day of the trial in the witness box, admitted having made two signed statements to police after his arrest in the apartment Oct. 24, but said police had "interpreted" some of his answers.

He denied having told police he was an FLQ sympathizer, or that he and his friends planned to steal guns "with the aim of holding up banks and other gunshop owners."

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Fluoride increase wanted

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Castonguay, social affairs minister, said Wednesday the Liberal government wants to increase the use of fluoride in the province's drinking water.

He told a legislative committee studying the possible extension of Quebec's medical care insurance program that his department would rather use fluoridization to prevent dental problems than have to increase the number of dentists needed to treat patients.

Demonstrations 'nonsense'

MONTREAL (CP) — The Jewish Labor Committee sharply scored the Jewish Defence League Wednesday for the militant group's recent harassment of Soviet personnel and facilities overseas.

Committee president Michael Rubinstein said that such demonstrations, held in connection with the recent airline hijacking trials of Jews in the Soviet Union, are "utter nonsense" and won't change the situation.

He was addressing a meeting called to discuss the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Protest Public Order

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 1,300 persons demonstrated here and at Quebec City Wednesday night in protest of what they called political interference with the judicial system involving persons arrested or charged under the War Measures Act.

The demonstrations, organized by the Movement for the Defence of Political Prisoners in Quebec, involved more than 1,000 persons here and about 300 at Quebec City.

Police reported no incidents at either demonstration.

Dr. Serge Mongeau, head of the movement, called for repeal of the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, which replaced the War Measures Act.

Ombudsman to submit report on Measures Act

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial ombudsman Louis Marceau said Wednesday he has received 95 complaints resulting from the invocation of the War Measures Act during last October's kidnapping crisis.

"I could not deal with some of the complaints," said Mr. Marceau in an interview, "because they questioned the invocation of the War Measures Act."

"Many questioned the validity of the law, which is something for the courts to decide, not me."

The War Measures Act was imposed Oct. 16 by the federal government at the request of the Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau following two Montreal-area political kidnappings by Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorists.

British diplomat James Cross was abducted from his home Oct. 5 but was released Dec. 3. His abductors were given safe passage to Cuba.

Former Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte was abducted

Oct. 10 and was found dead early Oct. 18.

The War Measures Act was replaced by the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, in December.

Mr. Marceau says that he and his staff have spent many hours in police offices, looking at files and searching for explanations of the reason and the method some raids were carried out. He said police have been co-operative.

Mr. Marceau said he plans to submit a final report on the 95 complaints to Justice Minister Jerome Choquette "by the end of February."

He recalled that after he submitted a preliminary report in late November Justice Minister Choquette said the government would give "serious attention" to any recommendations by the ombudsman that persons arrested without cause under the War Measures Act be compensated.

"The investigation has to be careful," said Mr. Marceau. "It must be determined whether people were mistreated and the police surpassed the powers given them under the War Measures Act."

Mr. Marceau said the final report "will give a general summation of all the complaints and will outline each case in particular."

He added that most of the 95 complaints received could be divided into three categories:

—Damage caused to personal property during police raids.

—Unjust conditions of detention.

—Personal injury suffered by people arrested, then not detained and against whom no charges were laid.

The ombudsman said he has only received "five or six" complaints in the past two or three weeks.

He also said he plans to meet with Jacques Hebert of Montreal, chairman of a three-man commission of the Civil Liberties Union formed last October to investigate the treatment of prisoners being held under the War Measures Act.

This step is aimed at getting the information compiled by Mr. Hebert and his committee," Mr. Marceau said.

Ulcer Is End Product Of Mind and Emotions

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Did you know that the amount of acid digestive juice manufactured by the stomach is influenced by your brain? This is why the brain and emotions can induce ulcers. A nerve (vagus) from the brain to the stomach, stimulates the stomach to manufacture hydrochloric acid and pepsin (used to digest meat and other proteins).

The smell of fresh-baked bread, the sight of a steak just off the grill or thinking about your favorite dessert sets off a signal to stimulate the flow of digestive juice. The stomach may produce over a cupful of acid-pepsin juice while anticipating food. Well over a quart of acid-pepsin juice is formed each day.

An attractive table, a roaring fire in the fireplace, soft music and good companions all enhance the flow of digestive juice or "whets the appetite." An unattractive table or unappealing food has the opposite effect. The gourmet is right when he insists on the little touches that go along with food to enhance the appetite as well as the enjoyment.

The emotions affect the stomach through the vagus nerve. With sudden fear or anger the stomach lining becomes pale because of decreased blood flow and the flow of digestive juices slows or stops. The opposite effects are observed if anger, hostility or anxiety are prolonged. It is the persistent, long-term stress that causes an excess flow of acid juices.

The stomach becomes a mirror of the mind and emotions.

Food in the stomach increases the flow of digestive juices. Many fluids pass almost directly through the stomach to the intestine. Solids accumulate in the center of the stomach. The muscles in the wall of the stomach contract in a rhythmic fashion, squeezing the solids against the outlet portion of the stomach, then relaxing and squeezing again. This creates a churning mechanism.

No solids are allowed to pass into the intestine. Once the food is in a liquid or semifluid state the valve at the outlet of the stomach opens just enough to slowly empty the stomach contents into the first portion of the small intestine—the duodenum.

Certain foods inhibit the stomach from emptying. A very fatty meal may remain in the stomach for hours. Proteins are emptied more rapidly but not so rapidly as carbohydrates. Cold food slows the action of the stomach.

Stimuli from the brain that cause the flow of digestive juice also stimulate the stomach to more rapid and forceful contractions. Thus, both the flow of digestive juice and the contents of the stomach are influenced by the brain.

As long as the food remains in the stomach, the small intestine is protected from the acid semifluid material. The stomach that empties rapidly is constantly squirting its acid contents out against the inner wall of the duodenum where most ulcers are located. Factors that influence how much acid digestive juice is formed and how rapidly the stomach empties are very important in causing ulcers.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — A rather depressing day when you feel at odds with the world. You can snap out of it if you really try.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Try to appease friend who is pained by your attitude. Avoid estrangement if at all possible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Concentrate on each detail and you are less apt to make errors and duplication of effort.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Your natives have a fine gift of combining the artistic with the practical and making both pay.

NEW EXECUTIVE — The Sherbrooke Community Concerts committee has elected its new executive. Seen above are Jean Gaudreau, president; Jacques Custeau, treasurer; Louise Zahl, Columbia Artist representative, and Dr. Jean-Denis Lemay, past president.

Ambulance service extended

MAGOG (CC) — Magog will have ambulance service until the end of January.

The two-week extension agreed to by Securite Quebec, came after an appeal instigated by the Magog Textile Workers' Syndicate. This organization, spearheading a campaign to have regular ambulance service for this community and the surrounding rural areas, has elected Rosaire Gagnon as president of a committee to see that these emergency measures are established. Mr. Gagnon is assisted by Stewart Hopps.

In an appeal to the City of Magog, the new committee has received assurance that this municipality will make a grant for permanent ambulance service. The group will go after similar financial backing from the municipal councils of Omerville, Cherry River, Katevale, Eastman, Austin and East Stanstead which encompasses Fitch Bay and Georgeville.

One of the plans voiced by the new Magog ambulance service committee, is to get membership within their administrative and funds raising group, from service clubs and other regional associations are interested in community welfare.

The ambulance service problem in Magog began more than a year ago when funeral directors withdrew their services. At the time service from Sherbrooke was tried and found unsatisfactory due to distance. Magog was approached for a grant, as was the provincial government, but both refused financial aid.

Several counter proposals were made, one being accepted on a limited time basis by Securite Quebec. The contract has now expired. The new committee will strive for financial guarantees to a firm providing stand-by ambulance service for this area, basing new agreements on quarterly contracts.

Urban community needs citizens' control

By DAVID MAGIL
SHERBROOKE — The laws creating the Hull, Montreal and Quebec urban communities must be improved to allow easier access for their respective citizens. Henri-Paul Lemay told the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce at the Wellington Hotel last night.

The Sherbrooke-born lawyer, who headed a government feasibility study into the integration of the South Shore communities across from Montreal, stressed the obligation of all civic-minded groups and individuals to be vigilant in ensuring that urban communities be representative and financially and administratively viable.

He suggested existing urban communities could end up "destroying existing societies" and could "suffer from illusions of grandeur" which would result in "incurable attacks of administrative incompetence."

"The super-city has never been able to prove itself more desirable or viable than the smallest municipal entity," he said.

As an alternative to the unwieldy large city "like New York or Chicago, where the best experts have not been able to find the solutions for the sickness resulting from illusions of grandeur," Mr. Lemay proposed a regional system under which certain services would be set up, but only if by doing so the existing services would be improved and their costs diminished.

"For example," he said, "water pollution control necessitates the construction of intermunicipal sewers used in conjunction with intermunicipal water purification plants."

Similar services can be set up but only on the condition that they "don't cost more to the consumers than those which resulted out of previous agreements entered into by one or more municipalities of the same region," he asserted.

UP TO CITIZENS

Continuing on to financial accountability, Mr. Leamy contended "the tax-payer has the undeniable right to know the exact cost of each service he receives."

"In a period of electronic systems, it is unthinkable that an Urban Community can issue bills without at the same time clearly indicating to each tax-payer what taxes are being levied for what services," he said, referring to the MUC.

As regards the mandate of such an urban community, Mr. Lemay said "one can entrust to one system the establishment of basic norms without at the same time intrusting it to establish zone-by-laws, in order not to go against the wishes of the citizens of a particular territory who have the sole right to decide what type of community they want to live in."

THE SUBURBS

The family, the basic cell of society, must be allowed to grow and avoid overpopulated areas which always have a high incidence of crime, he said.

And the family can best flourish "in the suburban region where city-workers can find the peace, tranquility and calm and can lead a family life not confined to apartment walls as is often the case in Montreal."

We must reject the argument that population density must be increased in order to reduce the cost of the establishment of public services, he said.

REPRESENTATION

In the domain of popular representation "it is logical to admit that the expenses of the Urban Community are allotted between the municipalities of the Communities jurisdiction without any of the council member's being specifically elected to that function?"

The government of the MUC "is remote from the elector and the tax-payer" he contended and used the proposed integration of all police forces as an example.

"The attitude of the mayors of many municipalities is that the MUC project doesn't propose an actual integration but rather a fusion of existing police forces to that of the City of Montreal."

"The majority of suburban leaders are opposed to the

HENRI-PAUL LEMAY

(MUC'S) idea. They favor a partial integration of some regional services as those involving criminal acts."

He advocated the seating of representatives specifically elected to serve on the MUC, and accordingly directly responsible for their actions.

"This (the police integration) debate shows the remoteness of the Urban Community government."

To undergo rules soon-snowmobiles

SHERBROOKE (CJ) — Canada soon may have uniform regulations covering the operation of snowmobiles according to information received here.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson has announced that his department, which has already laid down its own safety rules for snowmobile construction, is working out uniform operating rules with the provinces. The minister has held two meetings with his provincial counterparts to establish running rules to match the federal construction regulations which took effect January 1.

Vehicles built after April 1 this year will have to have minimum braking ability as well as front and rear lights and reflectors.

1972 models must have accelerators that stop automatically when the driver removes his hands and easily-gripped handles for passengers.

Snowmobile engines must be muffled to a noise level of 82 decibels.

Under federal regulations, snowmobiles will be required to have one or more white headlights with high and low beams, one or two tail-lights, one or two red stop lamps on the rear and one or two rear reflectors.

In addition, they will be required to have red reflectors on each side of the vehicle and reflective material forward on the handlebars or steering mechanism on each side.

Cutters — the unpowered trailers — also must have reflectors at the rear and sides.

Every vehicle must bear the maker's registration number, similar to that on a car.

The edge of the skis on snowmobiles and cutters will have to be protected by a bead large enough to completely cover the edge and extending around the nose of the ski.

Brakes on the vehicles will have to stop the machine and a 175-pound driver in 40 feet from a speed of 20 miles an hour.

Snowmobile trailers must be equipped with one or more tie-down crossbars for each snowmobile and cutter they carry, as well as clamps for the skis.

Working parts of the engine must be covered so that clothing cannot be snarled.

The tow bar of the cutter must be rigid, but allow the cutter to roll 90 degrees on either side.

Court briefs

By DAVID MAGIL

SHERBROOKE — Steinbergs Ltd. and its Miracle Mart division continued their concerted attempt to discourage shoplifting and brought 15 people before Sessions Court on charges of each stealing merchandise valued at less than $50.

In handing sentences of $25 fine or eight days in jail to those who pleaded guilty, he remarked he found it incomprehensible that people would risk being accused of theft and acquiring a criminal record by taking merchandise less than $10. He termed the actions of the accused "thoughtless" and told them they would be "marked for life."

The accused all were arraigned and pleaded guilty to the charges against them at the same time.

They are Therese Gagne, Pierre Belisle, Denise Boivin, Luc Fortin, Mariette Gauthier, Adrien Lajoie, Gilles Lacroix, Pauline Langlois, Christian Leclerc, Mrs. Lise Leclerc, Francine Lesage, Mrs. Claude Rivard, Mrs. Alain Sevigny and Patrick Vallieres.

Bertrand Blanchard, 18, of Sherbrooke, found himself coming and going at the same time in Sessions Court yesterday.

Scheduled to appear for sentence on a snowmobile theft count, he found himself faced with another charge for another snowmobile theft.

He pleaded guilty to the second charge and had his case postponed to Feb. 3.

Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel sent three men and a woman charged with being the principals in a Magog break-in Jan. 9, to trial before judge and jury in Court of Queen's Bench after they had appeared before their preliminary hearing.

Defence counsel Roch Fournier took advantage of the recent Criminal Code amendment which allows defence lawyers to ask that testimony heard at the preliminary hearing stage not be published.

Fernand Laplante, 27, of Lennoxville, Gaston Brochu, 27, of Sherbrooke and Mario Roy, 29, also of Sherbrooke are charged with breaking and entering the home of arms collector Bernard Gingras while Christiane Boivin, 21, of Martinville, is accused of being an accomplice to the crime. Their case will proceed in September, 1971.

Michel Groulx, 20, of Bromptonville, was sent to trial by judge and jury in Court of Queen's Bench on a charge of possession of four stolen hub-caps after he had appeared before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel for preliminary hearing yesterday.

Quebec Police Force officers Noel Bolduc and Gilles Harvey testified they found the stolen hub-caps in Groulx's possession at the Fina Garage in Bromptonville where the accused works for his brother.

Judge Turmel released Groulx on bail of $100 pending the start of his trial in September, 1971.

A charge of hit and run against Paul Benjamin, 63, of Rock Forest, was rejected after he appeared before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel yesterday for preliminary hearing.

Crown prosecutor Jacques Page contended that Mr. Benjamin had hit the car of Alain Tardif, accelerated for approximately 150 feet before being cut off by another car driven by Gaston Gaulin, returned to the scene of the accident at the intersection of Bourque Blvd. and a secondary road to St. Elie d'Orford, inquired whether any injuries were suffered while neglecting to give his name and then continued on to his home.

Mr. Tardif testified he had not asked Benjamin to identify himself immediately following the accident and neither he nor his female companion at the time were injured.

Mr. Benjamin then took to the witness box for his voluntary statement and testified he hadn't been drinking the day of the accident, was on his way home at the time of the accident from Sherbrooke where he had bought a pizza for his family and stayed at the scene of the accident for "four or five minutes" before transporting an injured woman companion to hospital. The woman was not identified.

In rejecting the charge, Judge Turmel reasoned Mr. Benjamin had been in a nervous state and was anxious to get his injured companion to a hospital.

Kitchen fire strikes

Belvedere restaurant

SHERBROOKE (DM) — Ten people were forced to evacuate their apartments early this morning when fire struck the Belvedere Luncheonette at 41 Belvedere Street.

Mrs. Germaine Desrosiers alerted the fire department when the oil in the potato fryer caught fire at 12:27 a.m., and four trucks and 10 men, all under the direction of Lt. Raymond Fournier, arrived on the scene shortly after and had the fire under control within five minutes.

They remained on the scene for two hours to insure the fire wouldn't start again.

Lt. Fournier reported the fire had spread to the walls on the interior and rear exterior of the building which housed five apartments above the restaurant. He said damages are estimated at $8,000 to the inside and $1,000 to the outside.

The apartments above suffered little damage. They were occupied by Gerard Nadeau, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lebel, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Houle and their one-year-old son Daniel, Alphonse Skilling and Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Marie Demers and their three-year-old daughter Rebecca. The management of the Royal Hotel near the fire scene offered to take the displaced people in for the night.

Restaurant owner Andre Dube was alerted to the fire by Gilles Nantel, one of three customers in the restaurant at the fire's outbreak, and arrived on the scene to recover the receipts in the cash register. He said he was covered by fire insurance.

Bombing mercy misplaced

Political bombings which have inflicted most countries of the world for years have spread to Great Britain, with the bombing of a cabinet minister's home near London.

These acts of terrorism, which have become all too frequent in recent years, originated on the lunatic fringes of politics. A curious tendency seems to have developed in the Western society to excuse this type of criminality by giving it the label of extremism.

It is really attempted murder carried out in a way that is likely to leave a victim horribly maimed for life if it does not succeed.

This particular attempt was made in a way that could have resulted in death or serious injury being done not only to the cabinet minister but to his family and to visitors as well.

Police have a difficult time tracking down the perpetrators of such nasty crimes, as the authorities in this province have learned the hard way.

On the rare occasions when someone is caught, cries may be expected from bleeding hearts calling for rehabilitation rather than punishment of a type and severity which would deter other criminals from repeating similar acts.

It should be remembered that terrorists show no mercy toward their victims.

The increasing frequency of these deadly sneak attacks calls for stronger protective action by society for if society does not take steps to protect itself there may be no society left to protect before long.

Unreasonable examples

The Council for Basic Education, a private non-profit organization in Washington devoted to combating the insidious influence of Dick and Jane and the look-say method of learning to read, has given its cautious stamp of approval to Sesame Street.

As almost everyone knows by this time, Sesame Street is the immensely popular educational television program initiated last year to teach disadvantaged children of pre-school age.

On the basis of a study of nearly a thousand Sesame Street regulars by the Educational Testing Service, "it seems unmistakably clear," said the CBE, "that television can sell letters, numbers, and other rudimentary knowledge and skills to disadvantaged pre-schoolers in the same way it sells patent medicines and cosmetics."

However, there are some nagging doubts, says the Council.

"Are there unmeasured disadvantages in hawking the letter H and the number 3 in the same manner and on the same medium as are hawked indigestion pills and overpriced toys? In encouraging children to watch a worth-while show like Sesame Street, are we encouraging indiscriminate television watching as well?"

This seems a little like fretting that when we give a copy of an exciting classic like "Treasure Island" to a child we may be running the risk of encouraging his interest in trashy literature.

Most people will consider the risk, in both cases, well worth taking.

TIMELY QUOTES

Cities can't pay salaries with good intentions. One does not have to be an expert in finances to recognize the cities are in deep financial troubles. Inflation, rising costs and lower tax bases are pinching city treasuries.

—Sam Zagoria, labor relations expert for the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

The Lord also spoke unto Joshua, saying, Speak to the children of Israel saying, appoint out for you cities of refuge, whereof I spoke unto Moses. — Joshua 20:1 and 2.

Our homes should be a refuge for the rearing of our youth and our cities should be kept as a sanctuary for people as well as for birds and trees.

We would like simply to see social responsibility become, like profits and earning figures, a standard by which corporate practices are evaluated and exposed to the investing public.

—Alice Pepper, founder of the Council on Economic Priorities, a new research organization.

Post Office

Sir:

I would like a little space in your paper to air my views on the closing of the Bondville Post Office and the way it was done. Also why it was shifted from Knowlton R.R. No. 3 to Foster R.R. No. 2 at the last moment.

About ten days before the office was to close, two men from the Post Office Department in Montreal ordered us to put up mail boxes in the middle of the winter. They were closing the Post Office on January 4. We would be receiving our mail from Knowlton R.R. No. 3 which is only about three miles away with bank, stores, drug store and garage.

Then on December 31 these men came back to inform us our mail would be coming from Foster R.R. No. 2. They did not know why it had been changed.

Why we should go to Foster as it has no more to offer than we have at Bondville.

I have lived in Bondville over 50 years. There has been a post office here for 90 years. I was postmaster for 27 of those years.

We need an office more than ever as there are a lot of people coming here to live to get out of the rat race of the city. They enjoy going to the post office to get their mail. It gives them something to do.

I would like some of these things answered and some comments.

Sir:

In common with many other English-speaking Quebecers I am more than disgusted with the alleged remarks of Premier Bourassa declaring that French would be made the "working language" of this province. Had such remarks been made by some separatist we could easily classify it, but when these words come from one who claims to be a federalist, it is high time for those who do not believe in coercion to stand up and be counted.

Why Premier Bourassa has adopted such a stand is a puzzle to me, because he definitely cannot find any basis in our past history to prove that such a move would be advantageous to this province. We must remember that Jacques Cartier took possession of this land in the name of the King of France in 1534, and ended, as such, in 1760, with the capitulation of Montreal to General Amherst.

This means that during this period of 226 years that French was the working language of the colony. Let us see what progress was made in that time.

We are told that the total population of New France at the time of the conquest was less than 100,000. Except in furs, New France had no trade worth mentioning — there were no schools outside the towns — there was not a printing press in the colony, and no resident of it was allowed, without the King's permission, to have anything printed in France. Montreal had less than 3000 inhabitants when Vaudreuil surrendered to General Amherst, and Quebec, outside the fortifications, was little more than a village.

Certainly we cannot see anything in the line of progress made in that period to justify a return to the working language of French only.

Now let us examine what progress was made in Quebec since 1760 when the working language was the language of the worker, English, or French, striving hard to achieve success in the fields of mining, lumbering, finance, development of power sites, the construction of huge business establishments, schools, colleges, and universities, and did not the two races work together to have a World's Fair, which if I remember correctly, attracted more than fifty million visitors to Montreal, which in 1760 boasted a population of 3000 — Montreal now, of course, is the metropolis of the nation, and, as for Quebec what would Cartier, Champlain, or Frontenac, say about that city if they could return for a visit?

The reason for this phenomenal progress was that men of vision, of different tongues, worked together as a single unit — there was no coercion to speak any single language, such as Mr. Bourassa advocates. If Premier Bourassa's desire had been law at that time do you think that Quebec would be as it is today?

Frankly, I do not, because a short time ago I read an article which stated that some of 70 per cent of the major industries in Quebec were financed to the extent of 80 per cent by British and American firms. If their figures are not correct, I invite anyone to provide me with the exact statistics.

Many people feel that Mr. Bourassa would contribute much to the well-being of the people of this Province if he advocated the teaching of English in the schools, from the kindergarten grades upwards as French is being taught because those who had such a knowledge of English, who could not find employment here (where unemployment is usually the biggest in the Dominion) they would be qualified in respect to language, to move into the labor market serving more than two hundred million people on this continent.

To support this view we have noticed that whenever Premier Bourassa wishes to refill the Provincial coffers that he also wanders far afield, and adopts English as "his working language".

Double talk

Dear Sir:
In the light of Prime Minister Trudeau's suggestion that Canada might pull out of the Commonwealth if Britain sells arms to South Africa, Government double-talk grows increasingly cynical, increasingly irritating and increasingly obvious.

Why, for instance, did we not threaten to pull out when Biafra began to slaughter its Ibos?

When Kenyatta and his Mau Mau were waging war upon the whites and when Maoist-financed Zambians crossed the Zambezi River to infiltrate Rhodesia? What is so different about Canada financing the training of Tanzania's Air Force and selling arms to the U.S.A. (for possible use in Vietnam) and Britain selling arms to South Africa (to defend itself against possible sea attack by Soviet warships currently dominating the Indian Ocean?)

Not to be overlooked is the cynical argument that we must be "realistic" in recognising Red China "because it exists" but not in our approach to Rhodesia which also "exists" (and is a lot less hostile!) How much longer will citizens swallow the red herring of Government double-talk which seemingly favours such left-leaning nations as Zambia, Kenya, Algeria, Tanzania, Biafra and Red China while snidely attacking our friends, including Britain, the U.S.A., Rhodesia and Nationalist China?

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON — That fountain of wishfulness, the American State Department, is spouting again. The word is being passed that there are "real prospects" that the talks being conducted by U.N. negotiator Gunnar Jarring will produce a Middle Eastern settlement.

If you take a look at the hard facts, however, the chance of any settlement appears to be painfully, cruelly slim. The place to begin is with Jarring's recent visit to Israel, and his talks with Prime Minister Golda Meir.

On this occasion, Prime Minister Meir did what the Israelis ought to have done two years and more ago. She gave the U.N. mediator a rather detailed outline of the "principles of settlement" that Israel regards as basic and essential.

The principles were contained in three separate papers, covering settlement with Egypt, settlement with Jordan and settlement with Lebanon. The problem of Syria was not covered, for the good reason that the Syrians still insist there never can be a settlement, and are even criticizing the Egyptians for discussing the subject.

The papers, as statements of principle, were both sensible and generous. On the one hand, the need for eventual Israeli withdrawals from occupied territory was squarely faced. On the other hand, there was nothing picaresque, such as the former Israeli insistence that any settlement must lead to diplomatic recognition by Israel's Arab neighbors.

Yet "principles" was still the key word in this exchange between Jarring and Mrs. Meir. To give only one example, although the need for Israeli withdrawals was frankly admitted, the kind of withdrawals might be prepared to make was nowhere specified.

Mrs. Meir told mediator Jarring, in fact, that Israel had to know what kind of peace might lie ahead, before Israel could decide what to do in order to get peace. For instance, one of Israel's requirements, perhaps Israel's biggest requirement, is to be left with defensible frontiers.

But one kind of frontier would be defensible against the Egyptians alone, and would justify withdrawal to that frontier if the Egyptians were in fact alone. Whereas quite another kind of frontier would be needed for defense against the Egyptians, with the "unlimited" Soviet backing they now claim, and with Russian soldiers and airmen in uniform fighting at their sides, as is now the case.

With Mrs. Meir's principles of settlement, in sum, Israel skillfully put the ball into the other side's court. This even caused considerable temporary disarray among the Soviets and Egyptians. One sign of this, a day or so ago, was the press conference that was first loudly proclaimed, and then hastily canceled, by the Egyptian U.N. delegate, Mohammed El Zayat.

But now the ball is in play again. So perhaps one should applaud the fact that the talks have reached the stage of an opening round. On the other hand — and here is where the wishfulness comes in — it is most unwise to forget that the Soviets and Egyptians long ago announced their own principles of settlement.

Two such principles were outlined, with brutal clarity, in the joint communique that followed Gamal Abdel Nasser's visit to Moscow last summer. Principle One was total Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territory. Principle Two was free re-distribution to Israel's extinction. To begin with, the frontiers of 1967 are no longer really defensible in 1971, because of the enormous Soviet arms deliveries to their Arab clients. And above all, the return to Israel of a million or more Palestinian refugees, financed and spurred on, of course, by the Soviets and Egyptians, would automatically swamp Israel as a state.

Yet even when he has been trying to appear conciliatory, Egypt's new president, Anwar El Sadat, has not really departed from the principles of the Moscow communique. Both principles were also loudly reasserted, only a few days ago, by the Egyptian propagandist, Mohammed Hussein Heikal.

So it is early, as yet, to start being optimistic. Indeed, optimism will almost surely continue to be grossly premature until, and if, this country takes the needed steps to force the Soviets to recalculate the risks in the Middle East.

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

WASHINGTON — The federal budget was rolled into the operating room where the Administration surgeons were waiting to go to work on it.

"It looks awfully fat," one of the doctors said. "Someone give me a knife."

"Wait a minute," said another doctor. "What are you going to cut out?"

"I thought I'd start on the arm."

"That's the military arm, you idiot," another doctor said. "You can't cut anything off the military. As a matter of fact, we have to graft on to it, as it's too weak as it is."

"Why don't we begin with the fat under here?" a surgeon said.

"That's part of the pork barrel," a doctor cried. "If we cut anything out of there, every senator and congressman will bleed to death."

"Well," said another surgeon, "we can at least cut something off this Vietnam leg."

"Leave that leg alone. If we cut it now, we may have to sew it back on later."

The doctors stared at the groaning body on the table.

"We're surgeons," cried one of the doctors. "We should be able to cut something."

"What about cutting out the SST?"

"Don't you dare touch the SST," another surgeon said. "It stays in."

"Say, this AMB looks swollen. We better get to work on that," a doctor said.

"You fool," his colleague said. "You cut anything off the ABM and we'll be sued by the Defense Department for malpractice. A little swelling in an ABM never hurt anybody."

"How about cutting around the low-cost housing tract?"

"That's a good idea. How much should we take off?"

"Let's cut it in half and see what happens."

A surgeon started cutting away and suddenly there was a loud scream.

"Good, God, didn't anyone give it an anesthetic?" the surgeon asked.

Someone slapped a mask on the budget as the doctor continued cutting.

"Hey look, I can get at the education arteries from here. What do you say I scrape them while I'm at it?"

"Go ahead," his colleague replied. "We'll stand over you so no one in the galleries can see what you're doing."

While they were doing that, a foot surgeon was neatly cutting off each toe of the poverty program. "You don't need toes to walk," he explained to a nurse.

The next things they cut off were the legs of the science and medical research programs.

But every time one doctor cut one thing out of the budget, another doctor grabbed it and grafted it on to another part. By the time the operation was finished the budget was bandaged from head to toe, but it was fatter than it had ever been before.

"I guess we better order a money transfusion," one of the surgeons said.

Richard Nixon, the father of the budget, was in the waiting room when the surgeons came out.

"How's it doing?" he asked anxiously.

"It isn't pretty," said one of the doctors, "but we think you can live with it."

Betsy's back

SCHRUNS, Austria (CP) — World champion Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, disillusioned with her efforts when she flew home two weeks ago for a brief rest, returned to international skiing competition today and won her second big World Cup race of the season, the special slalom of the Golden Key competition here.

Miss Clifford, a 17-year-old from Camp Fortune near Ottawa, finished ahead of Britt Lafforgue of France and Wilfrid Drexel of Austria.

The Canadian champion, who won her world title at Gardena, Italy, last year, was clocked in one minute 33.50 seconds for two runs today. Miss Lafforgue's time was 1:34.03 and Miss Drexel's 1:34.04.

Skiers improvise equipment where manufacturers fail

By CHARLES CATCHPAUGH
MT. ORFORD — Don't compromise—improvise!

With the boom in interest in skiing that has seen thousands take to the slopes for winter fun, there has been a concomitant explosion of equipment and products to cater to the innumerable needs of the enthusiastic sportsmen.

Often, however, individuals can exercise their imaginations and derive a creative enjoyment out of modifying conventional gear to their specific wants. There's something of a thrill in finding a better way on one's own.

Mrs. Dorothy Macintosh, who found it difficult and unpleasant breathing outside on extremely cold days, sat down to try to find a solution to her problem short of sacrificing skiing time.

The resourceful sportswoman overcame her dilemma and now can take pleasure in her winter pastime no matter how brutally cold the air might be. With her self-styled mask, she has licked what was once a problem.

Another skier found that he could substitute snaps for the buckles on a well known binding design and eliminate the cumbersome attaching grip-buckles. His innovation works every bit as well as the manufacturer's.

There are hundreds of other similar improvisations that unheralded inventive geniuses have discovered and put to use in making their leisure activity more enjoyable.

Makers of ski gear spend great amounts of time and money testing their wares and attempting to foresee difficulties and needs which may arise when their products, supposedly fine in theory, are applied in practice.

Alouettes clobber Beavers

ST. JEROME (SA) — St. Jerome Alouettes followed the leads of Michel Desfosses and Michel Robert to an 8-2 victory over Sherbrooke Beavers in Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League action last night.

Desfosses scored four goals in the opening period and Robert kicked out 51 shots in the Alouette net, 16 of the drives in the first stanza.

Jean-Denis Royal, Serge Roch, Rowry McKay and Mario Desjardins completed the scoring for the winners.

Rejean Beaudoin and Normand Dube with his 46th marker of the season tallied for the Beavers.

St. Jerome took advantage of Beaver penalties and racked up three power-play goals. The Beavers allowed five such tallies in a 9-6 loss to Verdun Maple Leafs in their last outing Sunday evening.

In action elsewhere on the QJHL scene, Shawinigan Bruins surprised Quebec City Ramparts on their home ice and handed the league leaders a 5-4 setback. It was Quebec's first loss at home this season and only their fourth reversal anywhere.

A crowd of 9,864 saw Maxime Quochu, Rene Levasseur, Rene Villeneuve, Yves Bergeron and Guy Dolbec score. The Beavers next see league action against the Dukes tomorrow night at the Sports Palace in Sherbrooke.

Athlete's footnotes

Seemingly all the West Division all-stars have needed is a little scoring punch, evidenced by their 2-1 win over the East in Tuesday's National Hockey League star classic. A couple of Chicago Black Hawks to score goals and an outstanding performance by the West defence paced them to a win over a potent East Division squad that never got untracked offensively. In a one-game affair, it wasn't all that surprising.

The trade that brought Frank Mahovlich from the Detroit Red Wings to Montreal and the Canadiens will no doubt go down as another of the milestone exchanges made by NHL teams. First place is out of reach for the Habs, but the Big M may serve as an inspiration to the club and give it back a little of its lost confidence preparatory to a playoff run at the Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Black Hawks. It's unlike the Canadiens to trade for a big name from another club — all the flow has traditionally been from Montreal — but if Mahovlich can lend the Habs a little glamor in this most unglamorous era of their existence, so much the better.

The Sherbrooke Hi-Y Boys' Invitational Basketball Tournament Saturday at Alexander Galt Regional High School should provide a most interesting day of court action. With teams from Montreal, Vermont and Ontario in addition to the Eastern Townships, the event may provide an insight into different cage styles and strengths. The AGRHS Pipers have to be regarded as contenders for the tourney title.

The Sportsman Celebrity Dinner organized by the Sherbrooke Jaycees to assist the Sher-Lenn Little League in playing host to the Quebec and Eastern Canada Little League championship tournament is an enjoyable way for local fans to contribute to the baseball organization's efforts. From all indications, the dinner will feature some top names in the sports world and will be an event to remember. Tickets can be obtained from any of the local service clubs.

Next week, Jan. 23-30 is Minor Hockey Week. Take part actively whether as player or parent.

TORONTO, January 21st — Did you know that for many, many years a fine Canadian product has brought welcome relief to those who suffer from asthma... or who cough night and day with chronic bronchitis? Templeton's recommend RAZ MAH GREYS SPECIALS. For children with bronchitis and bronchial asthma, Templeton's recommend RAZ MAH GREYS JUNIORS. At all drug stores.

THE BEST PARTIES... are not always the elaborate ones. Sometimes a little touch transforms a casual get-together into a memorable evening. BRIGHTS DuBARRY SPARKLING VIN ROSE, the million bubbled wine that comes in a champagne bottle, is the perfect 'happy touch'... and surprise! its price is so modest you'll be delighted. BRIGHTS DuBARRY Vin Rose is a real 'fun' wine that seems to galvanize a party right from the pop! of fun to drink it... fun to serve it! Like every wine that bears BRIGHTS label, DuBARRY Sparkling Vin Rose is made from special grapes grown in the Niagara Peninsula. This is a wine that deserves to be in your wine cellar.

Cleveland W.I. members appoint program committee

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Gordon Healy, Jan. 9. The President, Mrs. Kenneth Stevens, was in the chair and opened the meeting by all repeating the Mary Stewart Collect. She welcomed one guest, Mrs. Percy Tozer.

The January motto was: Doctors urge us to eat less but food prices are taking care of that. The roll call was answered by giving health hints.

Mrs. L. Eastman, acting as Secretary for the afternoon, read the minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence which consisted of thank-you notes for Christmas cheer sent out to shut-ins. The Treas. Mrs. Gordon Healy, gave her report, showing a satisfactory balance on hand.

The following ladies were appointed to act on the program committee. Mrs. Kenneth Stevens, Mrs. Lorne Eastman, Mrs. Chas. Johnston and Mrs. Gladys Perkins. The members were asked to bring suggestions to the February meeting. Mrs. Ralph Healy was asked to prepare a slate of officers for the coming year.

Citizenship convener: Mrs. Gordon Healy, read an article concerning an elderly citizen who had just died at the age of 108 years. Home Economics: Mrs. Chas. Johnston, read an interesting article from the C.A.C. bulletin.

Publicity: Mrs. C. Pease, read an item Does your geranium need a vacation? Welfare and Health: Mrs. R. Healy, held a jumbled word contest on sickroom aids. Mrs. Kenneth Stevens had the most correct answers and was presented with a prize.

The regular monthly drawing brought in by Mrs. R. Healy was won by Mrs. K. Stevens.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 6 at the home of Mrs. Ralph Healy. Each member is asked to bring a Valentine for a shut-in. At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments.

W.I. members hear report of Maplemount Homes

HATLEY — The first meeting of the New Year of the Hatley Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. William Sharman, Thurs. afternoon, Jan. 7. Despite the stormy weather fourteen members attended and answered the roll call with helpful household hints.

Among the correspondence was a letter from Dr. W. J. Klinck of a report of the work with young children and young teens in the Eastern Townships at Maplemount Homes Inc., which now consists of four homes each with house parents and situated in the Cookshire area.

Conveners reports were as follows, education — Mrs. Wright read bits from the outline on education which stressed the importance of learning French. Home economics — Mrs. Sharman read proposed projects from Mrs. Graham, provincial President. Publicity — Miss Esther Miller stated that McGill University was observing its 150th anniversary in January. Welfare and health — Mrs. McClary reported having sent Christmas cards to shut-ins.

It was decided to again enter the Craft Exhibit (Dominion Textile) at the County Fair in August. The home economics convener gave the members a list of the detergents, soaps and automatic compounds and this list gave the amounts of p.e. phosphate in each and its manufacturer's name.

After the meeting adjourned, tea was served by Mrs. Sharman and Mrs. Archie Moulton with Mrs. Lattin presiding at the tea table.

Before the members left for home, Mrs. Clinton Knapp and Mrs. Sharman displayed braided rugs which they are making. Two types of finishing rugs were noted — one sewing the braids together and the other by lacing them together. To those interested in this art it was an interesting ending for the meeting.

We know a philosophical gambler who feels that you should gamble some every day. Otherwise, you might get into a streak of good luck and never know it.

We aren't going to go into the merits and demerits of this theory except to point out that the winning bridge player avoids gambling any time he has a sure-thing play.

South ruffs the second round of diamonds and draws trumps. At this point he has three ways to gamble with his contract. The first is to lead a heart toward dummy and finesse the jack.

If it works he can discard one of dummy's clubs on the king of hearts and be sure of 10 tricks. If the finesse loses he will still make his contract if East holds the ace of clubs.

The second is to lead a club from dummy and play East for that same ace of clubs.

The third is to assume that West holds the ace of clubs and East the queen of hearts, but that West will only have two clubs so the ace will have to be played if South just plays two low clubs.

Any one of these gambles might work. If South chooses the right one he will be in one of those lucky streaks.

If South is a winning bridge player he will take the sure-thing play.

He will win the second trump in dummy and ruff a diamond. Next will come three rounds of hearts, with the third round ruffed in dummy. Then South will lead dummy's last diamond and discard a low club from his hand. West will score a surprise diamond trick, but South will make his contract.

West will either have to play a club or give South a ruff in dummy and discard a club from his own hand.
