Playground Association Makes Plan For Summer Activities

The Huntingdon Playground Association held a meeting on Thursday, February 12th, at the County Building and although the full board was not in attendance there was a good turnout.

The first item of business was to elect a Vice-President which was overlooked at the last meeting. Mr. Maurice Melnyk representing the Rotary Club and Huntingdon Academy was elected to this office.

The President, Mr. Liversidge, was in possession of prices for the equipment needed to stock the playgrounds and after a discussion on this matter it was decided to give the contract to Mr. Marshall Hooker to supply this equipment.

The association decided if the land can be made available, that they would have three playgrounds one on the square in Garden City, on the Town Lot opposite the Curling Rink and on Lake St. opposite West St.

The equipment required will consist of six junior swings, six senior swings, a junior slide and four seesaws at each location. The amount of money to be spent on this project will be about $2000.00. At the present time the Association has on hand $1050.00 that was recieved from the Department of Youth of the Province of Quebec. Plans are being made to raise the balance in a fund raising drive.

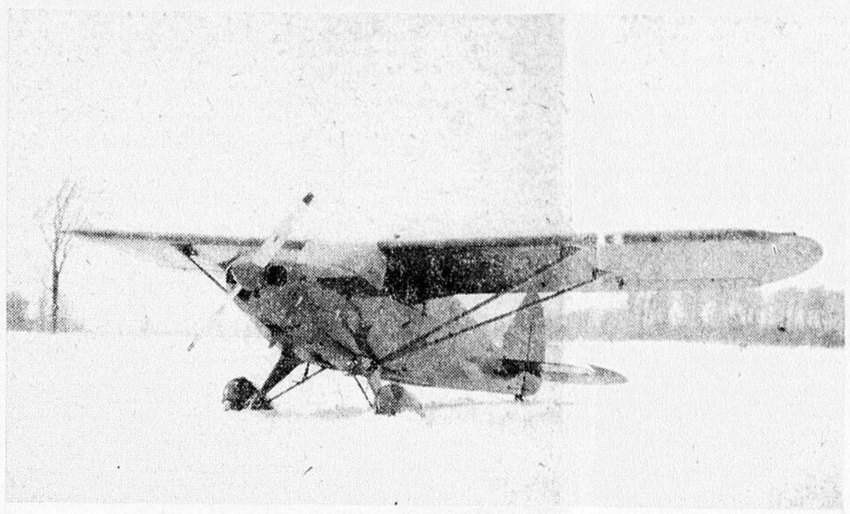
PLANE FORCED DOWN ON OUTSKIRTS OF HUNTINGDON



The stormy weather during the middle day of Monday was responsible for a plane being forced down in a field on the outskirts of Huntingdon. It was first reported that a large plane had been wrecked near here, but fortunately this was not so. The plane evidently landed without mishap in a field near the Roman Catholic cemetery and there was no damage whatever, as is seen in the picture above. There were four passengers beside the pilot in the plane and all were quite safe. Later the passengers were taken to Malone, N.Y. by Brunette's taxi and the pilot was left to get his plane into the air once again and away. This part took place on Tuesday. R.C.M.P. checked the plane and the occupants as is required by law and passed the passengers through to the States.

The pilot of the plane was Charles Stanley Podgers, of Ilton, N.Y. and he was accompanied by his brother Kenneth and his wife and 2 year old son. They left Plattsburg to return home to Ilton, but were off course and forced to land here as they were trying to avoid the storm.

Lacolle Residents Amazed To Learn Spinster Sisters Amassed Over A Million Fortune

A story has just been told concerning two spinster sisters who lived in Lacolle, Que. The people of this town of 1,500 were amazed to learn that the two sisters who lived frugally for years, left a fortune of more than $1,000,000 to Montreal charities. The story was all the more incredible because the secret has been kept for nearly two years after the death of the last remaining sister. The story was uncovered by a reporter of The Gazette, Montreal, and concerns two sisters, Martha and Anna Moore.

On Martha Phoebe Moore's death at 87, Feb. 24, 1957, she left an estate of about $825,000.

Her sister Anna, bequeathed some $250,000 to charity when she passed away in 1937.

As unbelievable as the extent of the Moore sisters' wealth was the fact that the fortune had been amassed from an estate of less than $10,000 left to them by their father early in the 1900's.

Distribution of Martha's estate was carried out quietly by C. J. Hodgson & Co., Montreal stockbrokers, who had handled the Moore sisters' investments from the time of their father's death.

It was this reporter who disclosed Martha's secret to people who had known her for scores of years.

"I knew she had money," said Mrs. Harry Van Vliet, a childhood friend, "but I never suspected it was anywhere near that figure...

"She was sort of eccentric. She lived in another age. She always acted as if she were so poor..."

Said Nelson D. Van Vliet, Martha Moore's grocer for many years:

"She would complain bitterly if the price of an article went up five cents. She'd demand an explanation.

"She bought only essentials like bread, butter and eggs. She didn't know the meaning of luxury."

She did not have electricity in her home, in fact, until a few years before a hip injury and sight failure made housekeeping impossible.

Though she finally consented to electricity — after refusing it for years — she still had to make daily trips to the adjoining hotel for drinking water.

She stoked her own fires with wood and coal and shovelled snow even in the bitterest weather.

J. A. Hodgson, who took over handling of Martha's holdings after the death of his father, frequently told her to move into an apartment in Montreal and to hire a nurse to look after her.

Martha balked. She knew she had money, though perhaps she never realized how much, but once told Mr. Hodgson "I shouldn't spend needlessly. It's nice to know I don't have to want..."

She had decided on the death of her sister to do as Anna did with her estate — leave it entirely to charity.

The beneficiaries of Martha's estate were:

The Montreal General Hospital, the Verdun Protestant Hospital, the Montreal Children's Hospital, the Montreal Association for the Blind, the Protestant House of Industry and Refuge, the Grace Dart Home, the Mackay Institute for the Deaf, St. Margaret's Home, the Church Home, the Synod of the Diocese of Montreal, St. Saviour's Church in Lacolle, the Canadian Red Cross, the Salvation Army and the Board of Management, Montreal Diocesan Branch of the Women's Auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada.

Martha listed specific amounts in her will to be given to each of these organizations.

In addition, she specified that the residue of the estate was to be shared among five of the institutions — the Montreal General, the Grace Dart, the Synod of Montreal, the Salvation Army and the Protestant House of Industry and Refuge.

These residuary legatees obtained over $100,000 more each.

Martha's home, unknown to her, was used as a tavern for two years before it was sold for $8,500 to its present owner, 53-year-old restaurateur Elzear Choquette.

Choquette tore down all the insides of the house and introduced modern conveniences.

"I didn't know Miss Moore very well," he said, "but I knew she must have had money because I found papers of hers showing she had done business with huge corporations."

It would not have been too surprising if Choquette had stum-

Factors Affecting Our Economy

Cheaper Coffee

Now at its lowest level in 10 years, coffee may slip another few cents a pound and then turn slightly firmer, say the Financial Post.

Futures have been stronger in New York under hedge lifting and short covering.

A few weeks ago 2c was whacked off the retail price of bags. There was no reduction on canned coffee at that time.

A cut is brewing now, according to one Canadian distributing house, following a new 3c slash in the U.S.

More Small Cars?

Major question now facing Canadian auto-makers: Should they build smaller cars in Canada if their parent companies decide to build them in the U.S.?

It is no secret reports The Financial Post, that design and engineering work on smaller models has been virtually completed by the U.S. Big Three. All have had crash programs.

But the decision on when to introduce them has yet to be made. It is largely a question of how well the current models sell this year.

Several other factors affect the decision in Canada.

Imported European cars accounted for almost one-fifth of all new cars sold in Canada last year.

More Bullish

Despite the likelihood of a nagging unemployment problem over most of this year, some predictions about the over-all pace of business are sounding more bullish, writes Dalton Robertson, in The Financial Post.

Most buoyant of these was brought out this week by Prudential Insurance Co. of America officials. They predict that the sum total of all goods and services produced this year (GNP) will be 6.8% higher than last year in Canada and up 7.7% in the U.S.

In two key areas they expect Canadian recovery will be faster than the comeback in the U.S.:

1. Business outlays for new plant and equipment in Canada will do a turn around from 1958's decline and expand between 7%-8%. In the U.S., the increase may be little more than 5%. Bulk of Canada's increase in building activity will be in the field of offices, supermarkets and other commercial structures rather than in factories or engineering projects. Business outlays for new machinery, by contrast, seem likely to rise only modestly.

2. Consumer spending in Canada will rise by almost 6%, say Prudential officials, out-pacing the expected increase in the U.S. of 5%-plus.

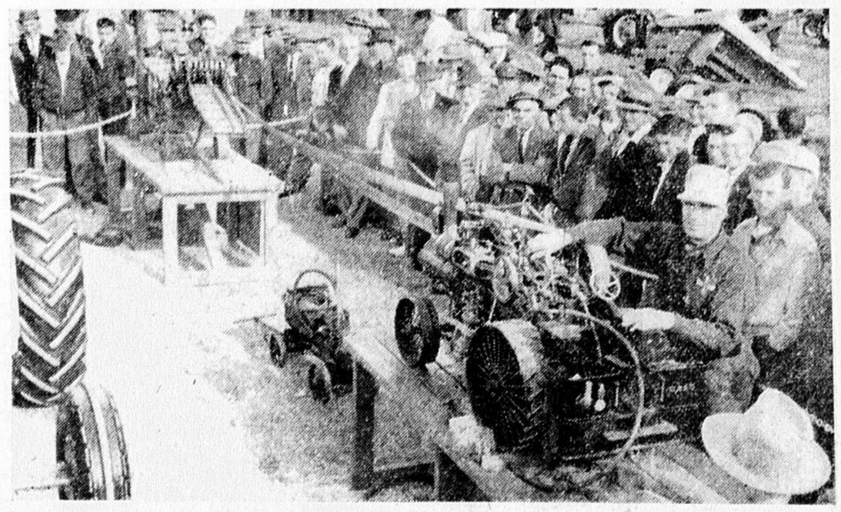
SEEN AT SALON OF AGRICULTURE AT SHOW MART, MONTREAL



Above is a working model of an old time steam engine tractor and a separator, both of which actually work, seen at the Show Mart, Montreal, during this week. The models were made in spare time by the operator, who made a hobby of reproducing these replicas of the old time original. Both machines work and the separator actually threshes grain. They created much interest for visitors fo the exhibition. The engine is reproduced in the minutest detail and was made from odd pieces and turned out by lathe work and other means. For this reason it is a most unique exhibit.

Mr. Walter Cleland of Alburg, Vt., lost his barn and two silos by fire on Saturday, February 7th.

About 10.30 in the forenoon one of the men was in the loft, when he saw a bale of hay on fire. He put it out but then seemingly a ball of fire fell onto the hay and he could do no more. He called the other help and succeeded in getting out the 90 head of high class Holsteins. The barn was destroyed with the contents and the hay and feed, also two silos. Report says one tractor was burnt. Loss is estimated at $40,000. Mr. Cleland is already making plans to rebuild in the spring.

The service in Knox Church was cancelled Sunday morning, as the driveways were filled in with snow. There was 8 or 10 inches of fresh snow Saturday night and a wind with it.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Aaron Churchill entertained the neighbouring women to a Shower for Mrs. Paul Lattin. Upon arriving, Sheila was greatly surprised to see her friends. She was ushered to a nicely decorated chair. Upon opening her parcels, she passed the gifts around to be admired, and thanking eveeryone for them. Later Mrs. Churchill served delicious refreshments, including a lovely Valentine Cake.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Scriver, Hampstead and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Andrews, Town of Mount Royal.

The severe weather continues and it would seem to strike hardest at the week-ends. Despite the fact that it is not deemed feasible to heat up the local church, services are carried on nevertheless. Last Sunday service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wood.

A letter of appreciation has been received from the Salvation Army, acknowledging two cartons of old and new clothing valued at $181.00 sent by the Powerscourt Women's Association. This is a very small group of women, but it is amazing the work it accomplishes.

Mrs. E. M. Wood thanks all the interested folks who continue to send in used stamps. The ones received lately have been properly trimmed ¼ border of paper which helps a great deal.

Letter To The Editor

Ormstown, Que.
Feb. 16, 1959

Editor of "Gleaner",
Huntingdon, Que.

Dear Sir:

There recently appeared two letters in the "Gleaner" signed "Fair Play" and "An Interested Ratepayer" respectively; commenting on our Police Force and Hallowe'en tricks. Allow me to heartily endorse what these writers have said. Generally speaking, these tricks, especially after this lapse of time, are entirely forgotten. But retaliation, from the general public for the vicious "trick" that has been the cause of the controversy in these columns for the past few weeks, would seem to be steadily growing rather than diminishing, which in my opinion is as it should be.

While it would be wholly impossible to compensate the innocent parties, in this case, to the full extent of their injuries, worry and expense, which of necessity must be extremely high, I can only hope that justice will eventually prevail and the unfortunate victims of this horrible "trick" will be rewarded, in some degree at least both financially and otherwise.

Thank you for this valuable space.

ANOTHER INTERESTED RATEPAYER.

Another Week-end Storm

It seems that hardly a week-end passes without we have a storm, and the past week-end was no exception. From 8 to 10 inches of snow again fell from Saturday evening until Sunday and snow shovelling was the order for those who had to get out. It was not too cold, but the snow was wet. Temperatures have gone higher the past few days and Tuesday was quite mild with water running. Monday morning was mild, but a storm blew up at about noon and looked as if it would be a real bad one. High winds drifted the snow as well as some more falling and it attained blizzard proportions at times, but by about three o'clock it had subsided and was calm once more. Possibly less than an inch of snow fell.

The members of Pioneer deeply appreciate and gratefully accept the use of the Masonic Hall, until such time as they can become re-established.

United Church Activities

World Day of Prayer

As the chimes of the carillon of the United Church rang out their sweet tunes on Friday afternoon, a goodly number of women from the Anglican, Presbyterian and United Churches gathered in the United Church Hall to take their part in the World Day of Prayer.

This first Friday in Lent is the day set apart when together the women of the world meet for prayer, recognizing their fellowship with God and with each other. As we took our places in the line which extended around the earth we joined the praise and thanksgiving and made our offerings to be used for the building and extending of His Kingdom.

Mrs. W. Rennie gave a very appropriate address, and Mrs. S. Ruddock rendered a very sweet solo.

The leaders were Mrs. S. Smith, (Anglican); Mrs. F. Bruce, (Presbyterian); Mrs. H. L. S. Patterson, (United).

The afternoon Auxiliary of the United W.M.S. held their regular monthly meeting at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon at the kind invitation of Mrs. R. Beal.

The President Mrs. H. L. S. Patterson took the chair and led the meeting. The subject 'Race Prejudice Exposed' was the theme and was taken from the Book of Ruth. After Mrs. Patterson had commented on the subject, Mrs. E. Surette read the story of Ruth written by Edith Deen. It is the story of race prejudice overcome by love and devotion, and because she trusted God of whom she had come to know and love.

After a short business session the meeting closed with the mizpah.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess with the help of her daughters, during a social hour which followed.

-o-

The Explorer Group of Huntingdon United Church held their annual skating party at the Huntingdon Memorial Arena last Saturday afternoon. After a period of skating, the group enjoyed a social hour when refreshments were served by the leaders.

The C.G.I.T. Group of Huntingdon United Church observed the Women's World Day of Prayer service at their regular meeting last Friday afternoon. The special service was conducted by Miss Dorothy Sherry, President of the Group, and Miss Susan Ferns, treasurer.

Dundee

DUNDEE — The possibility that the area may have a new television station seems to be more than just a rumor with the announcement from Cornwall sources that the new outlet may be on the air by Labor Day. Stanley Shenkman of Montreal, who is the originator and will be the owner of the new station has announced that E. W. Miller will be the station manager. He has set up two Quebec City Stations previously.

The application for a license for the new station which was forwarded to the Dept of Transport in Ottawa some time ago is now in the hands of the new Board of Broadcast governors and will be considered the first week of March. It is planned that as soon as the license is granted work will get under way immediately. The new station will be on Channel 8. Its call letters have not been announced. The transmitting tower for the new station will be at Lancaster, 14 miles east of Cornwall City where the studio will be located. The owner plans to carry many favorite network programs both Canadian and American. The station will be a member of the C.B.C. network and some programming will be in the French language due to the large number of French speaking residents in the area. No doubt residents on the South Shore of the St. Lawrence in Dundee, Fort Covington and other nearby points will be able to receive the new station without even rabbit ears. It is not known what power is contemplated for the new outlet. W.P.T.Z. at Plattsburgh operates on a power output of 12000 watts video and 7000 watts audio while Montreal's C.B.M.T. is about twice as much.

The newly formed North Franklin Kiwanis Club held their charter night proceedings at the Dupuis Hotel on Saturday evening, Feb. 7.

The Charter to the new Kiwanis Club was presented by Past Governor Fred R. Melone of Irvington near New York City and was accepted by Kenneth W. Stewart of Fort Covington the Club President. Lt. The Rev. David T. Owen, past Pres. of the Malone Club, gave the invocation.

Introductions were made by Mitchell C. Tackley of Malone, who is a past Lt. Governor of Kiwanis. The second meeting of the new Kiwanis Club was held in the cafeteria of the new Salmon Central School in Fort Covington, on Monday, Feb. 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Melone had a difficult time to get to Dundee due to severe weather conditions. Their plane was delayed in landing at Montreal for 45 minutes by a snowstorm. They then had to rent a car and drive out from the airport over strange roads in the drifting snow but they made it safely. Mr. Melone despite his rather harrowing experience gave a very inspiring talk on "Kiwanis" and its aims and ideas.

Police Blotter

Chief Roland Lussier reports that Mr. Ernest Dupont, Insurance man of Chateauguay had his car stolen on Saturday, February 14th. Mr. Dupont was a Referee for the Broom Ball Game being held at the School Rink on Abbotsford Avenue and around about 9 p.m. decided to warm his car up, only to find it had been stolen. Chief Lussier was called and he toured around accompanied by Mr. Dupont looking for the car, without success. Finally at 2 p.m. the car was found abandoned on Crepin St., Chateauguay Station and was undamaged. Mr. Findlay MacDonald, Gordon Avenue reported a car which had been at the corner of Dupont St., and Mountain for one week. Upon investigation by Provincial Police who were notified by Chief Roland Lussier, it was found to be a car which had been stolen in Montreal.

The owner of a Vanguard was unpleasantly surprised on Sunday morning when he returned for his car which he had left on Salaberry Blvd some time Saturday night. Upon his arrival he saw his car being towed away and the Police on hand. The car was found lodged against a tree with about $50.00 worth of damages. The owner claimed to have left the car on the opposite side of the road to which it had been found by Police.

Mrs. Margaret Rice, 19 Laberge Avenue, The Heights called Chief Lussier on Sunday morning to report damages to her car which was parked in front of her home. Chief Lussier contacted the Provincial Police who are investigating. Because Laberge Ave is not a through Street, Police feel sure they will trace the culprit.

A collision involving a Sacco Oil Truck and a Truck driven by Mr. Mercil, Contractor of Valleyfield tied up traffic on Salaberry Blvd Monday morning. The truck came off second best with damages amounting to around $200.00. Damages to the oil truck were approximately $75.00.

Hockey

Three games were played in the C.V.H.L. this week, the first between Fort Covington and Cazaville on Monday. Cazaville was leading 5-4 up to the 19-minute mark of the 3rd period, when Fort Covington scored. As this goal was disallowed the Fort Covington team walked off the ice and Cazaville was credited with a win.

On Wednesday night Cazaville were visitors of Clydes. They were the only team to defeat Clydes this season and had aspirations of shortening Clydes lead for first place. The game was fast and clean and Clydes won the encounter 9-5 and became the league leaders the second season in a row.

Friday night, Feb. 13th, Fort Covington were visitors to Clydes and spectators became cross-eyed watching the red light go on in both ends of the rink — a total of 21 goals were scored, nine in the first, eight in the second and four in the last period. Clydes served 12, Fort Covington 9.

Scorers for Fort Covington were: Lauzon (3), Sunday (3), Mainville (2) and W. Sunday (1).

For Clydes: Racine (4), Saumier (2), Diamond (2), L'Heureux, Pilon, Steele and Curran, one each.

A total of 12 penalties were called, six to each team.

Ormstown and Howick will play this Wednesday night to decide second place and the winner of this game will meet Clydes in the semi-finals which will probably start this coming Friday in Huntingdon.

Youngbloods Hockey

Saturday morning the Ormstown Boys Club paid a visit to Huntingdon and in the ten years old and under group they defeated Huntingdon by a seven to one count.

In the twelve and under group the teams played to a three to three tie. This has been a good series these boys have had this winter with Ormstown holding the edge in the ten and under group with two wins and a draw. And Huntingdon holding the edge in the twelve and under group with one win and two draws.

Various women led in the readings and offered prayers. The address was given by Mrs. W. Bernardt, which was in harmony with the theme and the purpose of the World Day of Prayer. The Ladies of the following churches in this district, viz-Franklin, Rennie and Gore United, Franklin and Herdman Episcopal, and Rockburn Presbyterian met in the Rockburn Church the afternoon of February 13th, to observe the World Day of Prayer with a very good attendance from each church.

Several ladies from the different congregations took leading parts in the different sections of the program.

The guest speaker, Mr. J. Anderson, minister of this Congregation, gave an excellent talk on Prayer, as the mightiest power in the world. He was thanked most graciously by Mrs. W. H. Clarke. The offering was taken up by a couple of the Franklin C.G.I.T. girls, after which the Group of Explorers sang a two-part sacred number very sweetly with Mrs. Nickerson at the organ.

The meeting closed with the Benediction pronounced by Mr. J. Anderson.

One new name was added to the membership. The business meeting closed with a hymn and the "Lords Prayer." A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Arthur and a pleasant social hour spent.

Pleased to report that Mr. B. H. Pennington in the Neurological Institute, Montreal is improving and Mrs. Pennington accompanied Mr. Maurice Maither, Miss Melba Maither and Mrs. Godin to Montreal, Sunday morning, to see her husband and spend a few days with her son, Mr. S. E. Ames.

Father and Son Agreements

A satisfactory father and son agreement is important to many farm families according to Quebec Farm Forums. Such an agreement permits the orderly transfer of the farm from father to son, eases the work load on the father and helps establish the son on a farm and frequently is the fulfilment of the family's dreams.

All agreements should be drawn up with the help of a notary and should provide security to the parents and a guarantee to the son that his interests are protected. The forums also believe that when thinking of an agreement it is first necessary to determine if the farm is capable of supporting two families. They emphasize that the

Sporting Activities:

Since Christmas time school athletic activity has centred around hockey.

Our Senior School boy entry in the Quebec Association of School Administrators Hockey League has had considerable success. Their section of the league includes Valleyfield, Huntingdon and Chambly County High Schools. With the exception of one tie with Valleyfield, they have won all their games. At the time of writing they have only one game to play and that is with Chambly County High School. However, they will enter this game with a four goal lead.

Our Senior girls too play a very keen brand of hockey. In exhibition games with Huntingdon and Howick they have been victorious.

Detailed results of games played are as follows:

Boys

Ormstown 4 at Huntingdon 1
Huntingdon 1 at Ormstown 5.
Valleyfield 3 at Ormstown 3.
Ormstown 7 at Valleyfield 1

Girls

Huntingdon 0 at Ormstown 5
Ormstown 4 at Huntingdon 1
Howick 1 at Ormstown 4

Our Intermediate boys, 12 to 15 years, have been playing in a league which includes Huntingdon High School, St. Joseph's, Huntingdon Notre Dame of Ormstown and Ormstown High School. While they have not recorded a single win however, they have gained some valuable experience in good sportsmanship. Most of the present team will be in that same age group next year.

Why Don't Farmers Make More Use of Extension Services?

The Quebec Department of Agriculture, the Federal Department of Agriculture, agricultural schools, the Quebec Department of Forestry Extension and farm papers offer Quebec farmers a multitude of services. Do farmers make the best use of these? If not, who is at fault—the farmers or the extension agencies?

Three Quebec farmers, Owen Hearty of Vinton, Pontiac Co., and Claude Whitcher and Stanley Quilliams of Foster, Brome Co., will grapple with this problem in a special broadcast March 9th.

The broadcast will be heard over CBM at 8.30 on March 9 and over CBO at 9.00 p.m. of the same Monday. It is a special broadcast for Quebec Farm Forum listeners.

Just Or Unjust Criticism Of Police?

JOHN Q. Public is a hard master, as anyone who has dealings with the general public will tell you. He is quick to find fault with many things, but not so ready to give praise. His target is anything which does not act to his individual ideas of what he thinks should be. He finds fault with every little thing which displeases him whether there is true cause or not. He invariably fails to investigate the whys and wherefores before launching complaint. He enjoys seeing the other fellow in discomfort because of complaints or gossip he has caused to be circulated.

Much talk is heard all the time on the work our police are doing, both as to members of the Provincial Force and those of the Town Force. This may be due to the fact that it is not the habit of police to tell about all the various jobs they have to do and how they go about doing them. A newspaper often works quite closely with the police and thus feels it knows more of the inside than most of the public. When something happens, the first cry is: "Where are the police?" The public seems to think that a policeman should be right at the scene of every occurrence ready to apprehend the misdoers as soon as an offence has been committed. A little thought and consideration would immediately brand this type of thinking as unfair.

No person bent on committing an unlawful act, does so in full sight of an officer of the law. Cunning is a craft of crime and great pains are often taken to conceal the fact that a crime has been committed, or is about to be. Sometimes, of course, it so happens that an unlawful act is committed and a policeman is near enough to be aware of it. Mostly however, it is only after the crime, that the police are made aware of it. Then they must follow a line of investigation which may, or may not, lead to a culprit being arrested and brought to justice. Sometimes it takes many months and sometimes years before a crime is solved and justice done. The police have many cases on their files where a crime was committed, but the person committing the offence has never been traced. However, these cases often form a pattern as to other crimes and by a follow up the unsolved crime of months or years ago, is linked to a later one.

We have such cases in this area. The public however, has immediately accused the police of not attending to the case and putting it out of their minds. It must be remembered that whoever did the crime, is also trying very hard not to be found out. Sometimes through a slip of the tongue, or a boastful story, the culprit is traced and finally made to pay for his crime, or crimes. For the police to go around telling the full story of all their investigations, would mean information getting to the one involved and enabling him to cover his tracks still more.

It is said: "we never see the police and especially if they are wanted". Yet when something does happen, the police are not long in getting on the job. Policemen are human, even as you, and they cannot be expected to be everywhere at once, or on duty for 24 hours day in and day out. They are not inexhaustible, although they are expected to be. A little encouragement and co-operation once in awhile, would assist the members of the police forces far more than heaping criticism against them. If the police were continually jumping on every person who breaks the law, there would soon be a hue and cry about that. Laws are made for protection and guidance and if we all try to observe the law there would be less need of criticism of the way the police try to enforce it. If it were not for the fact that we have policemen, our town and surrounding area would soon become unsafe for anyone to be abroad.

Brotherhood - - It Is Needed

THIS is Brotherhood Week, which is sponsored by The Canadian Council of Christians and Jews Inc., which is composed of Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews working together. Brotherhood for Peace and Freedom — Believe It! Live It! Support It!

The Christian way of life is to love thy neighbour as thyself. Unfortunately we do not all live up to it. How many times do we hate our neighbours and perhaps do them some hurt. A whispered story, a pointed finger of accusation, a little trick, and so on all tended to make a neighbour's life miserable. In this case we are speaking of the word neighbour in a broad sense and not just the fellow next door, or on the next farm.

Brotherhood week is intended to be a week set aside each year for all of us to think in brotherly terms of all our neighbours. To do brotherly acts and set our ways to greater brotherhood in general throughout all the year. We are taught through our Christian faith to look upon all men as brothers, no matter their race or religion. Missionaries go forth into all corners of the world bent on making all people Christians and building a brotherhood of man. In part it attains a certain degree of success, but there still remains instances of hate or dislike for other fellow human beings. This hate is both individualistic and national. That is the individual hates another individual and nations hate nations. This hate is brought about for various reasons. The individual hates another individual for something that has been done, or it may be the color of his skin or any other number of reasons. Nations hate nations because one nation is more prosperous than another, or has something which the other wants. From Nation hatred wars spring and humans fight one another and kill thousands of their kind. This is certainly not the teachings of our faith, which is the foundation of our civilization. Without the teachings of the various religions, we would have no civilization and would still be living in a savage state. Few peoples of the earth live as savages today. The missionaries have gone forth at great sacrifice to themselves, to convert all people to God's way of life. They have created a brotherhood among the peoples of the world through living as God's people. The Jew and the Gentile should live together in harmony and peace. The Black and White, or the other colored peoples should live in harmony.

Unfortunately, this is not the case. It is thus that Brotherhood Week is held in order to cause people to think on these matters and to take steps to change the course to brotherly love of all peoples. It is not only for those in close association with us, but for all with whom we come in contact during the time of our daily living. Of late there has been much said about integration, that is that the black and white people in the United States should work together, play together, go to the same schools and so forth. It has been the cause of great strife. Then we have heard of race riots in England and other countries, there is trouble in Africa for the same reason. White people do not seem to care for it to be known that they have friends of the black race, or to associate with them. On the national side we have a hatred of Russia because we feel that they are not to be trusted and they seek to take us under their control. There have been other national hatreds over the years. The United Nations, if it could truly perform the ideals for which it was set up, would mark the greatest step forward for world brotherhood. On the matter of the white and black races, the trouble is far deeper than hatred, it is a matter of inter-breeding which would naturally follow if the social lines were allowed to run full course. It is thus felt that while integration can run to certain points, a line must be drawn and black marry black and white marry white. However, nothing is said when a person of one nationality of the white races marries a person of another nationality of white race. It is therefore that a barrier is raised between the white and black races which can never produce true brotherhood of the two. There is no reason why both should not live in harmony and peace and be allowed to go their way as citizens. When they commit a crime, let them be punished as a white person is and do not look upon their crime as so much worse than what a white person would do. We can be fair in our treatment and thus carry out the theme of Brotherhood Week. If we put the plan to work no doubt improvement would be seen in due course all over the world.

Bright And Dark Spots

THE world situation in general has some bright spots to help soften feelings on the dark spots. For instance the Cyprus situation appears at last to be coming toward a peaceful solution for all concerned. Such trouble spots are better if they can be settled in face of some of more far reaching proportions. When there are too many dark spots, attention is divided and danger is greater.

Despite all that has been said about Mr. Dulles of the United States, the fact that his illness will take him out of public life at this time could hold serious potentialities. Mr. Dulles is a key man in the forthcoming talks with Russia and for another man, no matter how well acquainted, to take over at this point, will mean a certain setback. True, Mr. Dulles will probably be available for advice, but such will mean delays.

The Berlin situation is the dark spot at the moment. Much can hinge on the results obtained and whether there is a peaceful solution, or a controversial one.

Another trouble spot is Iraq, where Russian arms and personnel have been shipped to bolster the Iraqi army. This part of the world has been a hive of conjecture for some time now and at one time was considered as serious. The seriousness seemed to subside, but this latest development could again arouse feelings and lead to trouble.

France seems to have settled down under the regime of General de Gaulle and his strict plan of trying to put the country back on its feet. It is probably the longest time for many years that the country has remained quiet and free from political disturbance. It is to be hoped that the plan will be a success and once again that France will regain its former importance in world affairs.

CHAPTER XIX

THE RAID ON MALONE

When word came that the American army had gone into winter quarters at Fort Covington — the boats moored in the Salmon river and sheds run up on its banks to answer as barracks, — it was seen a new danger had to be provided against. In a few weeks the St. Lawrence would be frozen, when the Americans would be within an easy march of Cornwall. Their occupying Cornwall would mean the cutting off of all communication between Lower and Upper Canada, for the only road that united the two provinces was that along which the straggling houses which composed Cornwall was built. The preservation of communication between Montreal and the upper provinces was vital to the British interest. So long as there was a probability of the American army making a dash across the ice, Cornwall must be defended, and to do so it was agreed sufficient men be left with Colonel Scott to defend that village. Among others ordered to stay, was Morton. In Cornwall the one subject of conversation among soldiers and civilians was the American camp. Spies told all was not going well, that there was no order maintained, and the building of huts was being done in a bungling fashion. A fortnight after they landed the winter set in with intense frost and found nearly all in tents. Wood was abundant, for they were planted in the midst of the all pervading forest, but it was green, and camp fires took care to give out much heat. Frostbites were common, colds universal. Before November was out sickness appeared in malignant form, typhus and pneumonia and a strange affection accompanied by paralysis of the legs, ending in mortification, caused, the doctors surmised from biscuit made from the flour of smutted wheat. By Christmas half the men were unfit for duty, and daily sleighs with the worst cases left for Malone. General Wilkinson led the way. Declaring he was unfit for duty, the day after he landed he was carried on a stretcher by six men and lodged in one of the best houses. When the ice bridged the St. Lawrence, Cornwall had new visitors. Deserters dropped in and were encouraged by being paid five months' arrears of pay assumed to be due them by the U.S. government and given assurance they would not be asked to bear arms against the Republic. Colonel Scott represented to Governor Prevost the disorganized condition of the enemy, which invited attack, but was ordered not to run the hazard. After New Year conditions grew intolerable, cold, hunger, and disease made the soldiers mutinous, and their demand was that they be marched to Sackett's Harbor where they knew there was food and shelter. The authorities at Albany and Washington, hugging still the idea that the army, in the coming spring, would be available to sail to Montreal, refused permission. It was not until the men showed their determination to leave by a regiment actually starting to march from the scene of their sufferings, that the order came to break camp. One day in February the inhabitants of Cornwall saw a huge column of smoke rise from the vicinity of the camp, and, when night set in, the sky was red from the glow of flames that were plain to be seen. There was no sleep for Cornwall, its people intently watching the scene. A sleigh dashed up to headquarters with a spy, who told the Americans had set fire not only to their huts and storehouses but also to the 328 boats in the Salmon river. "His Excellency can no longer refuse our crossing the river", remarked Colonel Scott, and a thrill of satisfaction was felt by the officers around him, among whom was Morton. Preparations were at once set afoot. The word spread like wildfire all over the Lunnenburg district, and settlers 25 miles from Cornwall got ready to join. There would be spoil left by the retreating army and they were set on getting their share of it. Colonel Scott's plans were not to collect material, but to cut off the bodies of men who were on the march to Plattsburg or Sackett's Harbor, and he chafed at the delay in getting official consent.

As the sun rose on the 18th of February it threw light on such a scene as Cornwall never knew. It was overflowing with excited men eager to get away, forming a jostling crowd of soldiers and civilians, whose shouts and cries filled the air, while restive and neighing horses, and barking dogs, added to the tumult. Women stood in the snow watching the scene and giving help when needed, adding to the clamor by their shrill exclamations of delight as they recognized acquaintances, while boys and girls darted amid the throng in exuberant spirits, wanting to join. "No, Donald, you cannot come, but I will bring you back a Yankee kebbuck, so be a good boy and take care of your mother". At the sound of the bugle the militia fell into rank and presently Colonel Scott came, heading a body of regulars. No small effort was called for to bring order out of the confusion, for each settler wanted to be in the lead. Finally a procession was formed, Morton with a small detachment of scouts, at the head, with orders, when the river was crossed, to make sure there was no ambush. At a long interval was a company of regulars, then a body of militia, after whom followed the settlers in the sleighs which they hoped to fill with plunder. A company of militia brought up the rear. As the long line began to move the shouting and cheering of those who remained behind grew. "Bring me back a barrel of pork", cried a woman. "And me your sleigh loaded with biscuit",

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, (CP) — The government, in accumulating stockpiles of farm products under its support programs, is exporting some of these products at below cost, with the federal treasury absorbing the loss.

"But this is not dumping," said Agriculture Minister Harkness in an interview last week. "We are selling agricultural products in competition with the United States and other countries. Naturally, we have to meet general world prices."

Under support schemes, the administration has accumulated a wide assortment of products, including cheese, butter, pork, skim milk powder and eggs. Because of a world glut, it has found milk powder particularly difficult to sell, or even to give away.

Most of the surplus cheese has been sold to Britain at slightly below cost and surplus eggs are moving steadily into export markets, mainly Venezuela, again below cost.

Support Continues

Officials said this trend of subsidizing exports is continuing this year. Last year the government boosted the support price on eggs to 44 cents a dozen, basis Grade A large at Montreal, from 38.

Just how far the government is running in the red in its egg operations has not been made public, but Mr. Harkness estimated that on the administration's over-all price support operations for the current fiscal year, the federal loss may run to $18,700,000, one of the largest in recent years.

The major portion of this loss may be in milk powder. The egg operations loss may be $2,000,000. Smaller losses may be borne in dealing with surplus pork, canned tomatoes and others of the 23 products under support.

Some consideration is being given to whether some support prices should be reduced. Mr. Harkness told a federal-provincial conference in November that if serious surpluses develop which cannot be sold, "it will become impossible for us to maintain the present levels."

Hit Loan Sharks

Commons members administered their annual thumping to the loan sharks but—as in former years—without reaching a firm decision whether to control lending activities by limiting rates of interest on loans. CCF House Leader Hazen Argue, in a repeat of performance at former sessions, presented a private bill to limit the interest rate finance companies may charge to 12 per cent,rather than the present 24 per cent.

The CCF instigated a second major Commons debate on another day last week when they proposed a massive program to combat unemployment, including larger unemployment benefits paid to all workers whenever they are out of jobs.

In all, the program contained 15 proposals, among them complete federal responsibility for welfare of employable unemployed; job opportunities for all willing and able to work; and reduction of interest rates on provincial and municipal borrowings.

Erhart Regier, member for Burnaby-Coquitlam in southern B.C. who presented the proposals as an amendment to a motion of supply, said the CCF "is quite prepared to tell the government how they can find the money" for such a program. But the Progressive Conservative majority voted down the amendment by 171 to 49.

Death Penalties

Opposition Leader Pearson sees indications that the government is doing away with the death penalty and says Parliament—not the cabinet—must make the decision whether to move toward abolition.

He raised the matter as the Commons last Friday was debating justice department estimates, remarking that since the Progressive Conservatives came to power in June, 1957, the cabinet commuted to life imprisonment 17 of the 21 death sentences that came before it for review, and that only four of the 21 had carried jury recommendations for mercy.

"The question is not one of whether to abolish the death penalty," said the Liberal party leader. "The question is whether, if action is to be taken in that direction, it should be taken by means of executive action."

Justice Minister Fulton replied that Mr. Pearson seemed to suggest the cabinet "should not continue to exercise the prerogative of mercy." It should be realized that "this being a prerogative, each individual case is dealt with on its merits."

However, Mr. Fulton refused to be drawn into discussion of the principle of capital punishment on grounds it was out of order at this time, and Mr. Pearson did not press it further.

Farmer Aid

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture told the federal government in a brief that deficiency payments for western grain gowers are urgent and "altogether necessary."

Federation President H. H. Hannam said the cabinet received the brief favorably. He said he got the impression deficiency payments are not yet out of the question.

A march on Ottawa by Western grain growers is scheduled for March 10 to further impress on the government demands for payments to provide additional returns to farmers on wheat, oats and barley delivered since the 1953-54 crop year. The payment on wheat would be 22 cents a bushel on 1953-54 deliveries and 36 cents on deliveries in subsequent years. Delegation representatives have estimated the deficiency payments would cost the federal treasury $300,000,000. They will propose a limit of $1,500 per farm.

Seaway Opening

Montreal has been given the honor over Cornwall, Ont., as the site of the official opening June 26 of the St. Lawrence Seaway. Mr. Diefenbaker announced in the Commons that President Eisenhower has agreed to travel to Montreal to join Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip aboard the Royal yacht Britannia for an opening ceremony at the Canadian-side St. Lambert lock.

The Queen arrives in St. John's, Nfld., June 16 and opens the Seaway during an extended yacht trip through the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes before concluding their six-weeks tour by land to Western Canada and the Northwest Territories. They leave Halifax Aug. 1.

was the exhortation of another. "Sandy, lad, mind you, a barrel o' beef would be handy", and so the shouted orders grew amid laughter and waving of plaids. Nearly all the residents of Cornwall had suffered at the hands of Brown's cavalry or Boyd's infantry, and exulted at the thought of the Americans getting a taste of their bitterness in having outbuildings rummaged and cellars cleaned of everything eatable. "I hope they will wring the necks of the Yanks who emptied my store", said a quiet looking man who had been ruined by the invader. The settlers had all arms of some sort, many with muskets, others with pistols, swords, and dirks that might have been carried in the rebellion of 1745, while a few had only their chopping axes. Getting on the ice the procession lengthened out and moved faster as it wended its way towards the Salmon river.

The Late Jack Black

Last Thursday, a number of Ayrshire breeders and adherents of that breed journeyed from Huntingdon and Howick to pay their last respects to the late J. H. ("Jack") Black of Willowhaugh Farm, Lachute, Que. One carload was comprised of Douglas A. Ness (as driver), Dr. Wilfred Watson, Gilbert Macmillan and this writer. In another car were Allister McArthur, Russell Logan and Archie Roy. At the funeral service at the Roger Memorial Presbyterian Church were similar groups, of former compatriots, from other parts of Quebec and Eastern Ontario.

Eighty-three years of age, Jack Black had a long time distinguished record as a breeder, importer and showman of Ayrshire cattle. He also had a distinguished record as a director and president of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association; likewise with respect to the Laurentian Ayrshire Breeders' Club of which he was one of the founders. He was also one of the group which helped to build-up the Lachute Spring Fair to its present high standard of excellence, as a longtime director and for several years as President.

Burnside Import-Export

We recently learned that late last fall R. R. Ness & Sons, Burnside Farms, Howick, Que., imported from Scotland two choice, choicely bred young bulls, and three choice, choicely bred heifers. All of which, following their quarantine at Levis and Burnside, have been recently shipped to customers in the United States.

All three were bred by G. & R. Templeton of Carnell Home Farm and Pocknave, Hurlford, Kilmarnock, Ayrshire.

The bulls, both around 6 months of age, were:

Carnell Highland Monarch, by Carnell Special Blend and out of Carnell Hyacinth 9th.

Carnell Worthy Wonder, also by Carnell Special Blend, and out of Carnell White Hyacinthe.

The heifers were:

Carnell Cherry Fine 27th, by Carnell Trump Card.

Carnell Maria 3rd., by Carnell Top Hat, in calf to Knowe Winsome Lad.

Carnell Florrie 10th., by Carnell Fine Art, in calf to Carnell Special Blend.

Association Meetings

While neither of them were able to present spectacular reports like those of the Holstein Friesian Association (reported last week) the Guernsey and Jersey annual meetings, as reported by The Farmers' Advocate, were very successful indeed. Both meetings were held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, during the same week as that of the Holstein-Friesian Association.

Jersey Cattle Club

The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club reported that sales and demand for Jersey milk are reaching new highs almost daily and are responsible for a rejuvenation in the Jersey business.

"But," the president reported, "it is difficult to understand why we are not receiving the expected increase in registrations and transfers. At the moment this should be of concern to every member in the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club."

It is our understanding that the increased sales have been as of the "Two-per-cent" Jersey milk and not of the regular naturally high testing Jersey milk.

The new President of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club is Pierre Veillon, Sweetsburg, Que.

The Guernsey Association

The Canadian Gurnsey Cattle Club reported that sales of "Two-per-cent" Guernsey milk have jumped sharply. Likewise registrations and transfers, but membership figures showed a decline.

Rabies in Cattle

Also held in Toronto was the annual meeting of the Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association — comprised of official Ontario delegates of National Purebred Beef and Cattle Breeding Associations.

One of the chief subjects discussed was Rabies. Dr. Glen Collicut, Chief Veterinarian in Ontario of the Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, said that the prevalence of rabies depends on the fox population. He felt that getting rid of the foxes was the best way of keeping down the incidence in cattle. Only a few cattle (in Ontario) are coming down with the disease at present, but it could easily flare up again in the summer.

In reply to a query, he said he did not advise wholesale vaccination, but to depend on the advise of the local veterinarian. Vaccination was not without risk and might actually be more costly than doing nothing. In New York State it has been found cheaper to pay compensation than to carry out a vaccination programme.

One of the members suggested that the Government should pay compensation. However Dr. Collicut pointed out that since cattle are not carriers of the disease this was not possible under the present act (Animal Contagious Diseases). A special act would have to be passed by Parliament to permit the payment of compensation for cattle affected with rabies.

Dr. Kenneth Wells, Veterinary Director General said he hoped rabies in Ontario would soon eliminate itself. The disease, he said, appears to go in cycles; it started in the West about three years ago and it has gradually been working itself eastward. Rabies has now practically disappeared in the West.

What About Quebec

So far it would appear that Quebec, at any rate this area has been free of the rabies scourge which has beset so many districts of Ontario; has resulted in considerable losses. And in that respect, Dr. Wilfred Watson of Howick recently told us that he had been fearful that infected foxes might migrate to Quebec from Ontario.

It is suggested that in view of Ontario's experience all farmers should be on the alert; should destroy any foxes seen on their property.

Brucellosis Eradication

Dr. Collicutt also told the Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association that while the Brucellosis eradication campaign was going very well as a whole, it was still meeting with some passive resistance. To date in Ontario 374,000 head of cattle in 14,092 herds have been tested and that out of that number there has been approximately 3,000 reactors. Government compensation had amounted to $183,492.00. Calfhood Vaccination has made the brucellosis eradication practical, he said.

So far we have not been able to obtain definite figures of the result of the area testing in Huntingdon and Chateauguay Counties, but it would appear that the percentage of losses is much smaller than has been the rule in the Ontario districts quoted by Dr. Collicutt.

Dewittville

DEWITTVILLE — A meeting of the Dewittville Branch of the Q.W.I. was held on Thursday evening, February 5th, at the home of Mrs. K. Markovich. The President, Mrs. Cameron Bryson, opened the meeting with the Ode and the Collect for Club-women. Seventeen members answered the roll call, by giving A Household Hint.

The members decided to hold a food sale on Friday afternoon, February 20th, in Heath's Store. Mrs. Royce Ruddock and Mrs. Archie MacIntosh were appointed as nominating committee and will present the slate of officers at the March meeting. Mrs. Roy Moore, Mrs. Rolland Greenbank and Mrs. Howard MacLean were appointed to the program committee. The members voted to continue meeting during the summer months.

Mrs. Clarence Moore, Convener of Agriculture, Mrs. Ernest Martin, Convener of Education, Mrs. Nelson Beattie, Convener of Citizenship, and Mrs. Howard MacLean, Convener of Health & Welfare gave interesting items.

Mrs. Bruce McKellar was appointed chairman of the committee in charge of the Nearly New Sale of children's clothes which is to be held on April 11th.

Mrs. Rolland Greenbank introduced the speakers, Mrs. Carol Petch and Mrs. Ina Clelland of Hemmingford, who spoke on the Leadership Training Course they attended last Spring at Macdonald College. The members were given an outline of the course in Home Decorating and a number of useful and attractive articles that had been made in the handicraft classes were exhibited. The members were also given a demonstration of Egyptian Card Weaving. Mrs. Tom Quinnell expressed the thanks of the group to Mrs. Petch and Mrs. Clelland for their interesting program.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hugh Rennie and Mrs. Roy Moore. The March meeting, which is the annual meeting, will be held at the home of Mrs. Archie MacIntosh when the roll call will be answered by telling a joke.

Adapted from this service the World Day of Prayer had as its theme: "He said, I believe, and he worshipped Him". At 4 o'clock the Canadian Girls in Training and The Explorers Group of St. Andrew's and the Junior Auxiliary and the Girl's Auxiliary of St. George's held a Vesper Service as their part of the World Day of Prayer.

MORE AND MORE TASTES APPROVE OF O'Keefe ALE

People with a discriminating taste are creating a trend. Every day more and more people are discovering mild O'Keefe Ale. Next time you're thinking of refreshment try O'Keefe — your taste is sure to approve of its natural mild flavour.

THE O'KEEFE MILDNESS SECRET

Ever bitten into a grape seed? It's bitter, unpleasant. Grape growers found by experiment that they could develop seedless grapes with nothing to spoil the delicate flavour. It's the same with hops.

Ordinary hops contain seeds which give an unpleasant bitterness to ale. However, O'Keefe master brewers insist on costlier "Seedless Hops", result—there's no unpleasant bitterness, just the right, natural mild flavour.

Drink O'Keefe The Mild Ale!

Needs And Wants

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Arithmetic was my pet aversion at school. I entirely agreed with the writer of that old rhyme:

Multiplication is vexation,
Division is as bad;
The Rule of Three doth puzzle me,
And Practice drives me mad.

The very sight of a column of figures made me drowsy, and the mere mention of economics could put me into a sound sleep.

With this apology to the reader I am venturing into the realm of economics, and if what I have to say is not clear and convincing, it may be explained by the probability that I am talking in my sleep.

The best and briefest definition of economics that I have come across is as follows: "The study of the supplying of man's physical needs and wants." It is brief and yet all-inclusive. If economics were confined solely to the supplying of man's physical needs it would be much simpler and might be an exact science like mathematics, for man's physical needs under certain conditions can be estimated and supplied. In Central Africa, for instance, there is no need for economics where the natives live on bananas and other wild-growing vegetation, build their own krails of rushes, wear no clothes and do not need television sets for entertainment, which is provided for them free in the form of war-dances in the open air.

Economics originated in colder countries when man found that he could not live without working regularly for his physical needs. He needed a substantial home and clothing for protection against the weather and something more than wild vegetation for his sustenance. He had to cultivate the soil, sow seed in season, breed cattle and store his products for the winter.

Tihus man developed an elementary economy to provide for his domestic needs. If the process had stopped there, all might have been well. But man became socially conscious and had to form some sort of ordered society and he developed what we now call a political economy. He was not satisfied with his bare needs, he developed wants.

It is the multiplication of these wants that has bedevilled our political economy today. We call it INFLATION. There is no remedy for that condition other than the cutting down of those wants or the building up of the means of providing for them at prices we can afford to pay. In Soviet Russia they have solved the problem by eliminating the wants in accordance with the Marxian doctrine of "To every man according to his need." On the face of it, that seems a simple solution, but its application under conditions of advanced civilization and scientific progress is not so simple, because wants have become absolute needs for the maintenance of our standard and way of living.

The question arises as to whether we can go on wanting more and more indefinitely without running into debt and thus devaluing the purchasing power of the dollar? The economist's answer to that question is NO. He would tell us that we are living beyond our means, and that we must cut down our wants according to our ability and willingness to work and pay for them.

Police And Fire Department Activities — 1958

At the recent Council Meeting, the report of the Police and Fire Dept. was submitted by Chief L'Heureux and gives an outline of the activities of 1958 and a comparison with some previous years. It is often heard that the police do nothing, one never sees them and such remarks. It would seem by the report that they are busy throughout the year, and in fairness, the report should be studied.

Lacolle Residents

bled onto some gilt-edged securities.

Martha had no faith in banks, though she was finally talked into renting safety deposit box, and kept her stocks among her clothes, used envelopes and annual reports in a bureau drawer.

Sometimes, when she visited the Hodgson offices at 360 St. James St. West, she carried securities worth many thousands of dollars within pockets in her petticoats.

Said Mrs. Van Vliet:

"Her clothes were incredibly old. She kept patching them and mending them. When she couldn't see well anymore, she used safety pins to keep her petticoats from falling apart."

Even though the clothes were tattered, she valued them highly.

Forced by failing health and eyesight to leave her white wooden house at the corner of Church and du Moulin Sts., she moved into the adjoining Lacolle Inn.

It was later swept by fire and Martha had to be rescued three times. Each trip back had been to save her clothes.

She stayed for a week with Mrs. Van Vliet, a widow of 82 living in a handsome home across the street from the hotel.

Her eyesight — one eye had been removed and she had a cataract in the other — made the arrangement impossible.

Mr. Hodgson arranged to have Martha move into a Cartierville nursing home, though she complained that the $150 a month fee was exorbitant.

When the rate was raised to $175 a month, Mr. Hodgson "forgot" to tell her. He feared she would insist on moving back to her own home.

She had, in the meantime, consented to let the hotel use her home after the fire.

"Martha thought they were using the house for rooms while rebuilding the hotel," Mrs. Van Vliet said.

Actually, it was serving as a tavern. The hotel had felt it might lose its liquor-selling license if it ceased to operate competely during the rebuilding operations.

"Martha would have been shocked if she had known," Mrs. Van Vliet continued. "She always kept a bottle of brandy in her house — but that was only for medicinal purposes."

Eventually, the house was sold to the hotel. It, in turn, sold it to Choquette.

Lot Of Money And Effort

"I worked for six months with a carpenter making this into a home," Choquette reported. "It took a lot of money and effort."

Choquette put up a restaurant next to the house and connected the two structures with his restaurant kitchen.

Though she was frugal with herself, Martha gave generously to charity even in her lifetime. She gave money to her church, the Red Cross, friends in need. She made quilts for the Red Cross. Some unfinished examples — her eyes prevented her from continuing — were found in her home.

"She was a good old soul but a little peculiar," opined Grocer Van Vliet. "She just didn't keep up with the times. She was of the old generation and there are few like her left today."

Mrs. Van Vliet, who knew the entire Moore family — there was another sister who died 40 or 50 years ago and a brother who died as a child, echoed the grocer's views.

"It was almost pathetic the way she lived," she recalled. "She had only the bare necessities and many people wouldn't eevn call them that. She lived in another age.

"When she moved into the hotel, all she did all day was sit by her window. But she could hardly see a thing.

"When she was still at home, she used to sit with her overcoat on so she wouldn't have to put more coal or wood on the fire. I remember seeing her that way many times.

"She lived completely in the past. She didn't know what was happening in the modern world. She always refused to have a radio."

Each month, she received a $100 allowance — the amount she asked for — from her brokers but sometimes she didn't cash the cheques for months. She also received $55 a month in old age pension.

"Even as a young girl, she was different from the rest of us," Mrs. Van Vliet continued, "Martha with a beau? She'd never hear of it."

Mr. Hodgson said the Moore sisters' holdings had grown from the estate of their father, Ralph Moore.

It consisted only of a 100-acre farm which, it was estimated, was sold for less than $10,000.

"The sisters bought some stocks," Mr. Hodgson said, "and they came to my father for advice in 1912. My father took over the account and we handled it from then on."

In more recent years, Martha gave power-of-attorney to Mr. Hodgson. He transacted all her business, paid her bills.

"She was a strange woman but she was also very competent in business," he recalled.

"She was prepared to take advice but she sometimes followed her own opinions."

Most of her securities were industrial stocks and it was only in recent years that bonds were added to her account. She personally hadn't had much faith in them.

"She was very secretive. She was a real old-fashioned lady, and nearly always dressed in black," he said.

The Moore sisters first had a joint account with their brokers. On Martha's death, it totalled nearly $500,000 and this was split in two, Anna's share going to charity and Martha's staying invested.

"During her life, Martha lived on next door to nothing," Mr. Hodgson declared.

This was while interest and dividends on her investments amounted to about $25,000 a year.
