No Acts of Violence Have Been Committed by Men.

COMPANY'S PREPARATIONS

Strikers are Interviewing New Arrivals and Inducing Them to Join the Association.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Sydney, N.S., June 4.—There are no new developments in the strike situation to-day. Both sides are as determined as ever to hold out. The company yesterday displayed a little more activity than usual in making preparations to get men on the plant. They have fitted up the top floor in the general office building with beds and other furniture, in preparation for labourers they expect to employ in the next few days. Arrangements have also been made for the housing of men in other parts of the plant. Quite a stock of provisions was taken in yesterday, from all of which it would appear that the company is preparing for incoming labourers. The strikers have now sentinels located at Truro, Halifax, St. John and other points to watch the railway stations and report upon any labourers that may be on trains coming to work at Sydney. Should there be any they are quickly taken in hand immediately upon their arrival at Sydney and urged to join the association. Nothing, however, is said against them if they do not join. About 150 Italians came in Thursday night. They were met at the gates by an Italian committee man, and yesterday afternoon were made members of the association.

The same thing occurred to a band of seventy that went out to Glace Bay. One union man went to work yesterday. The lodge will probably deal with his case later on. There was only one man working in the billet yard. A large number of men have already left the city either to visit their homes or to seek work elsewhere. The large majority, however, are still in the city and will remain to see the finish of the struggle. The strikers who occupy the company's houses will be asked to vacate immediately upon the expiration of the present tenantcy. Rents for these houses are paid monthly in advance. This will mean a good thing for the landlords who have vacant houses on their hands, and they are not a few in number.

Nothing has been heard from the Minister of Labour at Ottawa regarding Government intervention.

The business interests in the city are beginning to feel the effects of the strike. If the cessation of work continues any length of time, the result will be decidedly bad.

BUDGET SPEECH MAY BE DELAYED.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, Ont., June 4.—The budget and the National Transcontinental Railway Bill occupy the order papers for Tuesday in the Commons and Senate respectively, but it is almost certain that the two will not be gone into simultaneously. There is a strong suspicion that the budget will not be proceeded with on Tuesday, nor, indeed, for some days. What the exact nature of the hitch in proceeding with the budget is has not transpired, but it is stated that notwithstanding the fact that the session is now twelve weeks old the Government are not prepared to declare their fiscal policy.

Mr. R. J. Younge, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, is in the city, and it is hinted that his visit has to do with the expected delay. In response to the request of the Sydney Board of Trade the Department of Labour is communicating with the Dominion Iron and Steel Company and its striking workmen to learn whether its services are desired to promote a friendly settlement of the trouble. It will be very hard for Sir William Mulock or his staff to accomplish anything, though, unless his intervention is agreeable to the interests directly concerned.

LETTER FROM PIUS TO FRENCH CATHOLICS.

Paris, June 4.—The Siecle says that a well known Roman Catholic has admitted to the Pope that Catholics were at a loss to reconcile the meeting of Cardinal Svampa and King Victor Emmanuel at Bologna on May 30, with the Papal note protesting against President Loubet's visit to the King.

The Pope, replying, made the following declaration: "The note was directed only against France. I cannot renounce rights so long as no agreement has been concluded. I am not taking part in politics, I am simply doing for Italy what Leo XIII. did for France. He ordered Cardinal Lavigerie to have the 'Marseillaise' played in his episcopal palace. I requested Cardinal Svampa to listen to the Royal march in the town hall of Bologna. That is all.

"The possibility of an understanding between Church and state is amply demonstrated by the example of Germany. That great and noble country should serve as a motto to Italy. The French are an obstinate people who weary us with questions, and who obey only when the instructions of the Holy See are in accord with their own petty interests."

THE COSTS OF EXPROPRIATIONS

Big Bill Rendered Finance Committee by Commissioner.

MANUFACTURERS AND TAXES

Detectives Report Nothing Much is Being Done to Locate Absconding Paymaster.

The members of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon were given a startling lesson as to what expropriation proceedings cost the corporation.

One, of three expropriation commissioners, appeared before the committee and claimed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars for two months' work. As the other two commissioners will claim a similar sum they will have over four thousand to pay for the partial expropriation of but a few properties. The subject was submitted to the city attorneys for opinion and report.

A protest against certain new taxes, in connection with certain inflammable products, was read from the Montreal Branch of the Manufacturers' Association. It was decided to refer the letter to a sub-committee for consideration.

THE HAMEL CASE.

A communication was read from the Detective Department in regard to the absconding paymaster, Hamel. It said that at the present time little was being done to locate Hamel. There was considerable difficulty in regard to the treaties between Great Britain and Cuba, where Hamel was supposed to be. The communication stated that the detectives were willing to do whatever the Bank of Montreal decided should be done in order to get Hamel extradited.

The city, the bank, and the American Surety Company are all interested in the case. The company, however, contends it is liable only for the $180 that the paymaster took away out of his civic cash account. The company is ready to pay this, but not the forged amount.

The city attorneys were instructed to see that proper steps were taken in order that the city would not have to bear the amount of the forgery.

Before adjourning Mr. A. A. Masse was appointed advertising agent for the Municipal Gazette, the subscription price of which was reduced from $4 to $3.

CROKER SETTLES IN DUBLIN

From the Special Correspondent of The Montreal Star.

Dublin, May 22.—According to a Parliamentary paper dealing with emigration and immigration in 1903, the English formed 68 per cent., the Scotch 14 per cent., and the Irish 18 per cent. of the total number of native emigrants, as against 67, 13, and 20 per cent. respectively, in the preceding year. The proportion of Irish emigrants was lower than in any previous year. The relatively low percentage of children, and high proportion of females amongst Irish emigrants is a very notable feature of the returns, only 7 per cent. of the passengers of Irish origin being children, and the female adults exceeding the male adults by 1,704. The section of the report referring to destitute aliens resident in cities shows that in Dublin the number of aliens increased by about 40 persons. Only one immigrant was known to be destitute.

Mr. Richard Croker ("Boss Croker") and his wife were conspicuous figures at the late Curragh Race meeting, where "Boss" had several horses running. He told some friends he met on the course that he will end his days as a Dublin man, as he has almost completed the purchase of a pretty place near Stillorgan, a few miles from this city. The house was the residence of the late Judge Murphy, and is charmingly situated, with a noble view of Dublin and Wicklow scenery. Mr. Croker has become touched with the pedigree foible very strongly. He is a member of the old sporting Limerick family—the Crokers of Ballynagarde. This family is a branch of an old Devon stock, who have been made famous by the west-country couplet:—

"Croker, Crewes, and Coplestone,
When the conqueror came, were at home."

Mr. Croker himself was born at Mallow, County Cork, but bordering on the County Limerick. His brother was at one time manager of the Cork and Bandon Railway, but now holds a high position in an English line. Up to this, Mr. Croker, though he has a large stable of horses, has not had very good luck on the Irish turf, and has not yet won any prominent prize.

An historical "find" has just been made at Ballycotton Bay, County Cork, in the engines, pumps, and engine framework of the ill-fated steamship Sirius. This was the pioneer steamer from the old world to the new, having left Cork on the 5th April, 1838, arriving at New York on April 23rd, after a very adventurous passage, in which every thing available had to be burned to enable her to reach her destination. After her Atlantic experiences she traded for several years between Cork and Liverpool, and eventually met her doom by foundering in a storm, in Ballycotton Bay in 1847. The find was made by a firm of salvage contractors at Queenstown.

The supremacy of the Irish horse as a hunter is generally acknowledged, and the last feather in his cap—supposing a horse to wear such a thing—is that the Crown Prince of Germany, mounted on an Irish hunter lately, ran a dead heat for the Grand Military steeplechase at Berlin. What particular honour the Kaiser will confer upon this steed, which carried his son and heir so successfully, it is hard to say. Agents from the Continent are always at work here picking up all the best hunters they can get, showing how highly esteemed the Irish horse is all over Europe.

Sir Henry Irving, who is in Dublin at the Theatre Royal this week, had anything but a pleasant experience in this city on his first appearance some forty years ago. He first played to a Dublin audience at the old Queen's Theatre on March 5th, 1850, when he made his bow as Cassio. He had unexpectedly been called upon to take the place of a very popular member of the stock company, who had been dismissed for some trivial offence. The patrons of the Queen's were a very rough and ready lot, and they resented the dismissal of their favourite. Consequently, when young Irving came on, he was greeted with a storm of howls and hisses, and this lasted for the three weeks over which his engagement extended. As if by way of a portent a remarkable meteor was seen all over Ireland on the second night of young Irving's engagement, but an extraordinary thing about it was that whether seen in the north, south, east or west, every one who saw it was quite satisfied that it fell within fifty yards or so from the spot where he or she stood. Possibly, Sir Henry also took the meteor as a complimentary "Messenger from Mars," in spite of the reception he received. Sir Henry Irving certainly must say that of all the cities he has visited he has never experienced such vicissitudes as in "dear, ditry Dublin." To be eventually made an honorary Doctor of Letters in the same capital where, obscure and unknown, he had formerly been hissed and hooted for three weeks is an indication of work done, and distinction achieved, of which any man might feel proud. Sir Henry made his first appearance this week in "Becket." A very large house witnessed his grand acting with great pleasure. He will also appear as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," in "the Bells," "Waterloo" and "Louis XI."

The death of the octogenarian Marquis of Donegall last Friday at Brighton, has a good deal of interest for Canadians, as his widow is a Nova Scotian. The life of the late Marquis has been a very chequered one. Born on the 27th June, 1822, he was nearly 82 years of age at his death. He was for some time an officer in the 5th Regiment, but for the last half century had held the post of Clerk of the Peace for County Antrim, he also held the high-sounding but empty title of "Hereditary High Admiral of Lough Neagh." None of these positions brought him in the money which was so badly wanted, and the consequence was that he was often in very bad circumstances. His first ventures in matrimony were not happy. His first wife was a Miss Oliver, whom he married in 1859, but this marriage was annulled in 1865, in which year he married Miss Cobb. This was also an unhappy match, as the lady instituted proceedings for divorce, and got a separation, and afterwards the Marquis was summoned to the Police Court for failing to maintain. Subsequently this poor lady, after much destitution, died an inmate of Islington Workhouse. His third and last marriage was in 1902, when he was united in the holy bonds to Miss Violet Gertrude Twining, only daughter of the late Mr. Henry St. George Twining, of Halifax. This lady was only twenty-two years of age at the time of her marriage.

* * *

The birth of a son must have been a bitter disappointment to Lord Henry Fitz-Warrine Chichester, who was heir presumptive to the marquisate for such a number of years, and it was hard lines for him to see it slip from his grasp when it seemed just within reach. The infant Marquis, who, up to this, had borne the title of Earl of Belfast, will have a long minority before him, but that will be of little use so far as the revenue from the estate is concerned, as there is none. Except for his mother's money, the child would be a penniless peer.

* * *

On Monday an influential meeting was held in Dublin to promote a movement to raise a suitable memorial to the officers and men of the 1st, 2nd and 5th Battalions of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, who fell during the campaign in South Africa. The deeds of the men of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers are written in gold on the military records of Britain, and the day is far distant when the heroic valour of the boys who "danced to death with military glee," at Taluna Hill, Colenso, Pieter's Hill and Fort Itala, will have passed into oblivion. As Lord Kitchener said in the cable which he sent home when the Fusiliers returned to Dublin, "the story of their work constitutes a record seldom equalled and never surpassed," and therefore it is fitting that in the capital of the country upon which they shed such lustre by their prowess and bravery, there should be raised a suitable monument to their memory. It is proposed that the memorial shall take the form of a bronze group, which will be erected in Stephen's Green. The Earl of Meath presided at the meeting, and already very handsome subscriptions have been given and promised by our most influential citizens, so that there is no doubt but a splendid monument will be erected to the memory of the brave Irishmen, who did so much of the hard fighting in South Africa.

In spite of all that continues to be said about agricultural depression in Ireland, big prices are being given for farms and small bits of ground, showing that the land-thirst is still as strong as ever. In the County Leitrim, this week, a small piece of land, near the town of Mohill, containing 4 1-2 acres, Irish measure, or about five acres statute, held at a yearly rent of nine pounds for a term of forty-five years. After a spirited competition, it was knocked down for three hundred pounds, together with five per cent. auction fees, bringing the price up to £70 an acre for the tenant-right alone.

The rumour, after many contradictions, is being again revived that Lord Dudley will resign the Viceroyalty before the end of the year, the reason given being that the Countess continues in very bad health. Those who are mentioned as likely to succeed him are the Earl of Londesborough, the Duke of Marlborough, and the Marquis of Zetland. Lord Dudley's resignation of the post would cause universal regret in Ireland, as he has made himself a very general favourite. Some strength is lent to the rumour by the fact that their Excellencies are staying on at the Viceregal Lodge for the summer, instead of going to Rockingham, their beautiful place in County Roscommon, as was first intended.

The Dublin tailors are not satisfied with the appearance of the King when over here, and one of them, through the daily press, declares that if he left his orders in this city they "would make a new man of him." They find fault with the coats His Majesty wore, his boots "were not too beautiful to last," and even his hats did not fit him, being too small, which, perhaps, was the reason that some of the reporters said he gave his hat quite a knowing Irish "tilt" when here. The London trade journal, the Tailor and Cutter, states that the King took a special and varied wardrobe with him to Ireland. His favourite garments were "a double breasted Chesterfield with velvet collar, and cross-flap hip pockets, for outdoor wear, and a lounge jacket, buttoning four, well rounded away for indoor wear." The overcoat was worn over a stylish double-breasted frock coat of rather dark gray worsted. With the lounge he wore light trousers and a hard felt hat, and his neckwear was a double or turn-over collar, with a sailor-knot tie of light silk. I always thought he looked particularly well dressed, but then I am not an expert.

In connection with the rumoured resignation of the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland by Lord Dudley, it is said that, owing to the increased expenses of the position, it will be rather hard to find a successor to him. It is well known that it has been a very expensive billet for the present holder, who has spent upwards of £60,000 in the past year, whereas the annual Government allowance is only £20,000. Still, the privilege of exercising all powers of a sovereign, and the probability of a step in the peerage, will always prove great inducements for moneyed noblemen to take up the position.

Gas in the Stomach

Many people who are not really sick have very unpleasant sensations after eating. Gas forms on the stomach, presses up against the heart and causes great apprehension.

No remedy compares with Nerviline, it instantly imparts a gentle stimulus to the digestive organs and effectually prevents the unpleasant consequences of gas forming ing in the stomach.

OUR LONDON LETTER

Mr. Carnegie's Encounter With a Montrealer on the Continent.

WAS TAUGHT A LESSON

The Laird of Skibo's Pan-Americanism Properly Rebuffed—Board of Trade Figures.

London, May 24.—There was an amusing and not uninstructive encounter at a Continental spa the other day between a well known American and a well known Montrealer. They happened to be together in one of the places of general resort. The American had had a good night and was in expansive mood. "Beautiful morning, sir?" The Montrealer could not deny the fact. "New comer, I believe?" He was. "English, may I ask?" No, not English. "American, perhaps?" "Oh, no, not American; I am a Canadian." "Ah, well," replied the expansive American, "it's the same thing, really; we shall have you soon enough." The language of the Montrealer was such that the American beat a retreat. Now that American was Mr. Carnegie. The incident will do him good.

THE CARNEGIE SNEER.

An ally of Mr. Carnegie's and an advocate of pan-Americanism—Mr. Edward Atkinson, of Boston—occupies a column in to-day's Spectator on the subject of "Canada and the results of Preference." He shows all Mr. Carnegie's contempt for Canada's national and industrial individuality. Setting himself to prove Canada's commercial dependence upon the United States, he asks of what avail are the ports of Halifax and St. John, of whose openness during the winter Canada is so proud. If, he says, you measure the distance by rail from Manitoba and the great wheat-growing area of Western Canada (from one sixty-seventh part of which Mr. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Agriculture in Canada, computes the possibility of sending two hundred million bushels of wheat to Great Britain) "it may happen that my statement that the way out would be 'practically closed' would be justified. The railway on Canadian soil passes around the northern part of Maine in a very cold section where there is very little way traffic. The cost of getting the wheat from the wheat fields of Canada to these ports could not be computed at less than half a cent a ton a mile, if it could be carried as low as that. On the other hand, the cost of moving wheat by water is computed at one-fifteenth of a cent a ton a mile." And the United States wheat lands (in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, for instance) are so situated that their produce can be water-carried via New Orleans to British markets, "at so low a comparative charge as to make it surely probable that Mr. Chamberlain's proposed duty on wheat derived from the United States would have to be much higher than 10 per cent. before Canada would begin to get the advantage of a preference. In other words, the all-rail wheat from Manitoba to open ports cannot compete with the water-borne wheat from Oklahoma, so as to get a preference without a British duty much higher than 10 per cent., probably 20 to 25 per cent." And so and so on. It is a small variation upon the old, old story to which the last ten years of Canada's progress has been a perpetual denial. For one thing, Oklahoma wheat can never class itself with the grain of the Canadian North-West for British purposes either as regards quality or productive power. For another thing Mr. Atkinson ignores the developments in the means of water carriage from Canadian North-Western wheat lands, which the very near future is bound to see. In these matters all the wit and wisdom of the United States have not yet prevented Canada from finding a way out, and a very good one, too.

AN OLD FIGMENT.

The British Board of Trade is a really superb body. As though its emigration statistics had not been riddled into shreds by the criticisms of successive High Commissioners and such Canadians as Mr. Archer Baker, the European traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, it comes out again this week with its tale of 259,950 British emigrants" in 1903—"the greatest number since 1889"; and London journals talk at length about "our lost citizens: great increase of emigration last year." Mostly nonsense, as every student of these British statistics knows. There were not 259,000 British "emigrants" in 1903 or anything like it. There may have been 259,000 persons leaving British ports, but how many of them were real emigrants at all, and how many of them were not British at all, but merely passengers in transit, by way of British ports, from the continent of Europe and all parts of America? That Board of Trade statistical department stands in urgent need of a very stiff broom.

A CANADIAN APPEAL.

The Canadian Gazette is very severe upon the newly advertised Canadian Produce corporation which has just asked the British public to subscribe for 186,000 shares of one pound each. Says this journal:

"Hostory repeats itself, but we venture to add, rarely with such exactitude. In March, 1894, a company called the British and Canadian Stores, Limited, was formed with a capital of £200,000, but evidently died of inanition. Then, in January, 1899, a company called the Canadian Produce Corporation was formed with a capital of £200,000, and asked for $50,000, but we believe we are right in saying the company did not even go to allotment. Then, in October, 1902, another concern, also called the Canadian Produce Corporation, and also with a capital of £200,000, was advertised in the Westminster Gazette, and again attempted to bring the Canadian producer into more direct touch with the British consumer; and now we have the company first mentioned. Mr. Walter R. Nursey figured as a director of the 1902 production as he does on the new concern, with this distinction: that in 1902 he described himself as simply "formerly Deputy-Minister of Agriculture," whereas now he adds "and Provincial Auditor, Manitoba." But even with the addition we consider that the qualification, to say the least of it, is rather ambiguous, if not to say misleading, inasmuch that a quarter of a century has passed since he held the former position. In the prospectus just issued, nothing is said of the previous companies, and we are sure that it will be in the best interest of Canada, of Sir Frederick Young, and of investors here if this new scheme falls as dead as its predecessors."

Sir Frederick Young, the chairman of the company is, of course, the venerable and much-esteemed president of the Royal Colonial Institute, one of the first British champions of Imperial Federation. There is a growing appreciation here of Canadian opportunities for British investment and a widespread desire to see Canadian produce placed in the best possible position in British markets, but a business appeal of the kind which this corporation makes must come before the public under unimpeachable auspices if it is to command confidence.

A MARRIAGE.

There was a pretty and pleasant gathering of Anglo-Canadians at the Warwick Gardens Wesleyan Church this week to witness the marriage of Evelyn, the younger daughter of Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Canadian Commissioner of Emigration, with Mr. Ernest A. Alexander, a young London solicitor. Lady Strathcona, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Preston at the subsequent reception, and the fluent Mr. Charles Devlin, M.P., found many pleasant things to say.

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Winnipeg, Man., June 4.—A report sent out from here that there are hundreds of skilled mechanics roaming the streets of Winnipeg unable to secure work has little foundation, in fact, though it may be said that the labour conditions are not as favourable as they were a year ago. This is due to the fact that a large amount of the immigration from the old country during the past year has consisted of individuals who have not had a training in any particular line of work and having been raised in large cities, are not of a class to make good labourers on railway work, and the rougher occupations incident upon the development of a new country. These have certainly found it difficult in securing employment, and the market for clerks and office help in Winnipeg is much overcrowded. On the other hand, there is plenty of work in the building trades, and competent workmen in skilled lines do not experience difficulty in securing employment.

The class of immigration which is needed for the west is such as has means and inclination to go farming or of the labouring class qualified to go out and rough it on railway construction or in the lumber camps.

FRAE AULD SCOTIA

A Tour o' the Coast an' News o' the Fishers.

WEE BOATS GETTIN' FEWER

(Frae oor ain correspondent.)

Glasgow, May 25.—In fishin' for paragraphs a' ower Auld Scotia this week, I've been near aboot drooned in fishin' paragraphs, which thing is a mystery, but not much o' a mystery either. Ye see I thocht I wad mak a sort o' tour o' the coast to see if I could get onything new to write aboot. First, I ran across to Edinburgh. I didna gang by train, nor by boat on the Forth an' Clyde Canal, nor by cycle, nor by motor car, neither did I walk. The only ither way the common person wad think o' wad be by flyin' machine. But I dinna hae a flyin' machine, sae I had to fa' on anither plan. I shut my eyes an' thocht hard for five minutes. Then, a' at aince, like a flash o' genius, the idea illuminated my mental horizon (I cribbed that sentence frae a penny novelette), an' I proceeded to act on it. I went oot an' got a copy o' The Scotsman ! ! !

Nae sooner had I opened it than I was in Edinburgh, an' in the offices o' the Scottish Fishery Board. Mr. Angus Sutherland, aince upon a time M.P., for Sutherlandshire, an' noo president o' the board, wasna in, but the man that was in, when I asked him if he had onything special in the way o' news, shoved into my han' their annual report. This said that 1903 was a' ower fairly satisfactory, though the fish landed by Scottish fishermen werena sae mony, nor worth sae muckle in hard cash as the fish landed in 1902. But they made a total higher than the average o' the ten years afore, an' in value were the third on record. Includin' shellfish they were worth £2,474,885, as compared wi' £2,580,619 in 1902. The dooncome was maistly in herrin', as in white fish there was an increase. O' boats employed there were 11,008, 89 less than in 1902, but worth £230,631 mair, an' measurin' 8,839 tons mair. This shows exactly hoo the fishin' is driftin' oot o' the han's o' the puir men an' their wee boats into the han's o' the rich men an' the companies an' their expensive boats.

When I was in Edinburgh I picked up some news aboot the herrin' trade wi' Stettin that should, I think come in here. The British Consul at that German port says that 535,940 barrels o' herrin' were landed in 1903. The cargoes frae Scotland an' England were less by 215,350 barrels, but the difference was mair than made up by extra cargoes frae Norway, Holland, an' German ports. Dutch an' German herrin' were comin' in at lower prices than Scottish, an' besides the curin' o' herrin' in Norway was improvin', an' noo it was takin' the Scottish a' their time to haud their ain. Auld Scotia will need to open up a new herrin' market somewhere. America has been spoken o' mony a time, but it hasna yet been seriously tried.

Just when I was thinkin' what ither toon I wad gang to in my search for paragraphs, I wandered into the Court o' Session by mistake, an' what did I knock up against but news o' a decision by the House o' Lords in a fishin' case appealed frae the Court o' Session. The point was whether the Government had sic a strong richt to certain mussel beds an' fisheries in the Firth o' Clyde that common fishermen could be prevented frae fishin' for mussels there. It was a sort o' test case, as the decision settles the same question a' roond the coast. The House o' Lords decided in favour o' the Government, that is, that the mussel is in the same position as the salmon, an' naebody can even gather bait when the tide is oot unless he has the permission o' the King, through somebody actin' for him. This is hard lines, especially as the places where free fishin' can be got are gettin' fewer ilka year. Only the ither day Loch Ness was declared private, an' since then Paisley has been warned off twenty miles o' the Gryffe Water, its favourable fishin' ground.

Next I went to Dundee. That is, I went oot for a Dundee Advertiser. The first thing I heard in Dundee was that Sheriff Crawford was daein' a' he could to settle a dispute 'atween the herrin' fishers o' Broughty Ferry an' the sparling fishers o' Dundee. The herrin' fishers work wi' lang nets which drift up an' doon the river wi' the tide, an' they complain that their nets are torn an' destroyed by the nets o' the sparling or smelt fishers, which are fixed doon in certain places. The thing seems a puzzle, but Sheriff Crawford's advice, if it is acted on, should clear it up. He thinks there should be a line drawn across the firth at Broughty Ferry, an' that the smelt fishers should keep above it an' the herrin' fishers below it. Meantime the drift net men wish the line to be drawn at the Tay Bridge, an' the bag net men a good bit nearer the sea than Broughty Ferry, but they will likely dae what the Sheriff thinks wad be best. Then there will be an end o' the continual squabblin' 'atween them aboot damage to nets an' gear.

Frae smelts to whales is a big jump but I managed it easily. I went doon to St. Enoch Square, to the wee shop where a' the country papers in Auld Scotia are kept—there isna a country man in Glasgow that disna ken it—and invested a penny in the Shetland News. When wi' its help I got to Shetland, I discovered that the County Council there was discussin' applications for whalin' stations at Brae an' Collefirth. The fishermen o' Burra Isle had petitioned the Council to refuse the applications, as the killin' o' whales was bad for the herrin' fishin'. Whales let the fishermen ken where the herrin' were, an' if there were nae whales they wadna ken where to shoot their nets. If whalin' spoiled the herrin' fishin' the folk o' Shetland wad hae naethin' in the way o' an industry left. But the Council thocht that if whalin' is carried on without danger to public health in the way o' leavin' the carcases on the sea shore, they hae nae right to prevent it, an' the applications were granted. For mysel' I think the money paid oot in wages in Shetland by whalin' companies will mair than mak up for onything lost by the reduction in the number o' whales in the sea. But this is only my opinion.

Seein' I had been gettin' on sae weel in collectin' fishin' paragraphs I thocht I wad mak a week o' it. Sae I tried Aberdeen, travellin' to the granite City by means o' the Aberdeen Journal, the only paper that gets news o' Royalty direct frae Balmoral when Royalty is there. The auld Queen sent it a special copy o' the Court Journal ilka nicht, an' I suppose the King will dae the same. But ne'er a paragraph about fishin' could I get in Aberdeen. Instead I learned that Lady Marjorie Gordon is to be married to Captain Sinclair, a Scottish member o' Parliament. Lady Marjorie is the daughter o' the Earl o' Aberdeen, an' a young lady hardly o' the ordinary kind. She was aye o' a serious turn o' mind, learned the haill art o' housekeepin', frae scrubbin' the floor upward; has been a member o' Methlick School Board, an' the editor o' the bairns' monthly kent as "Wee Willie Winkie" an' o' the Childrens' Page in Lady Aberdeen's magazine "Onward and Upward." When she was editor o' "Wee Willie Winkie" — she was then the youngest editor in the world — she demanded an' got copy frae men that an ordinary editor wad hae paid big money to. It was for "Wee Willie Winkie" that Rudyard Kipling wrote:

"There was once a small boy of Quebec,
Who was buried in snow to the neck,
When asked 'Are you friz?'
He replied: 'Yes, I is,
But we don't call this cold in Quebec."

After this I thocht I wad gang awa' hame. Sae I went to the nearest shop an' got a Glasgow Herald.

❧ NEW BOOKS. ❧

Dorothea. By Maarten Maartens. (Toronto: The Copp-Clark Co.)

This novel has met with much favour both in England and in America. Its author was born in Amsterdam on August 15, 1858, and his first book, "The Sin of Joost Avelingh," was published in 1890. This was followed in 1891 by "An Old Maid's Love," and "A Question of Taste"; and, in the succeeding years, by "God's Fool," which was very successful; "The Greater Glory"; "My Lady Nobody"; "Her Memory," and several others. The sub-title of the present volume, "A Story of the Pure in Heart," is rather misleading, inasmuch as the novelist has made his bad people far more attractive than his good ones, who are so few that the story in the end impresses us as one not of the pure. The book well illustrates a line of Shakespeare: "They say best men are moulded out of faults." The author apparently intended to represent Egon, the husband of the ice-cold Dorothea, as a good and noble man—as men go—but even under the double pressure of a saintly wife, and of an alluring temptress, Ginlietta, his moral collapse spoils him as a perfect hero. It is, however, by means of this, which is purposely introduced, that the author subtly justifies the differing standards of purity to which men and women are held. As one of the characters, Mark Lester, says when dying: "God has willed it so: there should be a difference between man and woman, lesser measure, other passion, greater fault." As the volume contains 572 closely printed pages, it is almost impossible in our limited space to give any satisfactory idea of the story. Accepting it as a brilliant picture of life in its many phases, we can hardly, as an admiring critic observes, praise too warmly its variety, its insight into character, the breadth of its canvas and the glow of its colours. In a word, it is the work of a master, finished in masterly fashion to its minutest detail. The novelist comes to the decision that "man, at his best, in his virtues and his failings, is very like a fine-tempered dog; but woman, at her best, is first cousin to an angel."

The Crossing. By Winston Churchill. Illustrated. (Toronto: The Copp-Clark Co.)

Mr. Churchill's long-expected historical romance is even longer than "Dorothea," and demands so much time for its careful perusal, that only people who have considerable leisure are likely to read it as attentively as its writer would desire. But the book is not an ephemeral one, like so many of the present-day novels, and is, therefore, sure of eventually making its way in the literary world. The scenes which form the basis of the story follow in point of time those in "Richard Carvel." That book, it will be remembered, was the first in the series dealing with American life, which Mr. Churchill is writing, and dealt with the Revolutionary War. "The Crisis," which dealt with the Civil War, was the fourth, and there is yet another to come. The time of "The Crossing" is the opening years of the 19th century, and its theme is largely the conquest of the great Louisiana territory by American settlers—that is, the crossing of the great river; but it also recreates in the form of fiction the life of the age between the Revolution and the second war with England, and the ideals which actuated the American people in that age. The author himself, in an "Afterword," at p. 596, explains that he has named his book "The Crossing," because he has tried to express in it the beginnings of that great movement across the mountains, which swept resistlessly over the Continent until at last it saw the Pacific itself. The Crossing was the first instinctive reaching out of an infant which was one day to become a giant, and no annals in the world's history are more wonderful than the story of the conquest of Kentucky and Tennessee by the pioneers. The name is likewise typical in another sense. The old American political faith, of which the Constitution is the creed, was formed to fit a body of people who understood thoroughly the meaning of the word "Liberty." The question that Americans are now fighting out is, with the Constitution, made to meet the needs of the little confederacy of the seaboard, stretch over a continent. Readers of Mr. Churchill's books gain a more vivid impression, a more living picture, and a clearer conception of life in the days of which he writes than they could from any histories, and this is what makes his volume of so much value and interest. The volume is illustrated by seven coloured plates, the work of Sydney Adamson and Lilian Bayliss.

History of the United States of America. By Henry W. Elson. (New York: The Macmillan Company. Toronto: Morang & Co.)

This volume which, with its historical text, index, bibliography, and "suggestions to the reader," consists of 950 pages, illustrated with 8 full-page coloured maps, and 26 other maps interspersed through the different chapters. Published at a very reasonable price, it is the most comprehendious and handy popular history of the United States from the time of Columbus to the present day that has yet seen the light. It is in accord with the opinions of the most progressive and careful of modern historians—full and accurate in its facts, and entertaining in its style. Much space is devoted to the life and habits of the people, and to the principal figures in American history. The last date mentioned is February 3, 1904, and fully as much attention has been paid to recent events as to those which happened centuries ago. The compilation of the "Bibliography" of American history must have been the result of considerable labour, but is well worth the time and trouble that have been devoted to it. Mr. Elson treats the work of his predecessors with marked impartiality, and frankly acknowledges the great merit of some of them. It would be well, we think, for a student to examine the last part of the book first, and thus prepare himself for the agreeable task of perusing it from the very beginning. The work has aptly been described as authentic and trustworthy, intelligently planned and proportioned; doing in fact for the United States what the late Professor Green's "Short History of the English People" has done for England. Higher praise than this can scarcely be conceived.

The Complete Pocket Guide to Europe. By Edmund C. and Thomas L. Stedman. (New York: Wm. R. Jenkins.)

Mr. Jenkins, well known as an extensive publisher of books in all the European languages, has managed to get Pegasus into ordinary harness, and has secured the services of the poet Edmund Clarence Stedman and his brother to compile a neat travelling guide to Europe. The motto of the volume is "Infinite riches in little room," which is quoted anonymously; but as Mr. Clarence Stedman is, of course, well acquainted with "Marlow's mighty line," he must have known that the words occur in the dramatist's "Jew of Malta," and should have been quoted as they were written. "Infinite riches in a little room." It is absurd to misquote because "a little room" (meaning "a small space") would "sound funny" to some too literal people. The New York poet, by becoming practical for the occasion, is likely to be of great service to the increasing crowd of European tourists. For those who are not quite "au fait" in the matter of languages, there are in the appendix "Travel Phrases in Four Languages," besides tables of different moneys, &c., &c. Great care seems to have been devoted to the maps, which are numerous, and well engraved.

The Sons of Cormac. By Aldis Dunbar. (London: Longmans, Green & Co.)

This book, bound in light green, and illustrated with eight pleasing drawings by Myra Luxmoore, will captivate not only the Irish, but the public fancy. There seems to be a call for this kind of literature, and the supply is fully equal to the demand. There are twelve tales in the volume, which begins with "The Constant Green Jerkin," and ends with "The King o' the Three Winds," and they are told to the fascinated children by a talkative domestic Irishman, groom and gardener at the same time. The other stories, such as "Ethlenn o' the Mist," "Wild Apples and Golden Grain," and "Fair Ailinn," are full of Irish charm.

En Voyage. Conversations in French and English. By T. M. Clark. (New York: Wm. R. Jenkins.)

This volume, though not written expressly for that purpose, will form an admirable companion for English-speaking tourists in France. The book is not intended to teach accurate French grammar, which is beyond its province, but merely to give practice in using and understanding a variety of the expressions most commonly employed, more especially in travelling.

THE BIRDIE'S BALL.
(By Ashley Street.)

Spring once said to the Nightingale,
I mean to give you birds a ball,
Pray, ma'am, ask the birdies all,
The birds and birdies, great and small.
Chorus—Tra la la la, etc.

Soon they came from bush and tree,
Singing loud their songs of glee,
Each one fresh from its cosy nest,
Each one dressed in its Sunday best.

The Wren and Cuckoo danced for lift,
The Raven waltz'd with the Yellow-bird's wife,
The awkward Owl and the bashful Jay
Wished each other a very good day.

A Woodpecker came from his hole in the tree,
And brought his bill to the company,
For the cherries ripe and the berries red
'Twas a very long bill, so the birdies said.

They danced all day till the sun was low,
Till the mother birds prepared to go,
When one and all, both great and small,

Pronunciation, Etc., of the Word "Viking."

In answer to Miss E. L. M. (Montreal). I may say that at the present day there is apparently only one pronunciation of the above-mentioned word. It is Vi'king, with the first vowel long. The name was applied to any one of the piratical Northmen who, in the eighth, ninth and tenth centuries used to ravage the coasts of Western Europe. One of the most famous of these Vikings, a man named Hasting, whose name may be traced on the Baltic Coast, in Friesland, and in England, was long the terror of France, Spain and Italy. The word "Viking" is compounded of the Norse "wic" (Swedish "vic"), a bay, and the termination "inge" (in English "ing"), which means of or pertaining to. Hence Viking means a bay—man or "creeker," and is derived from the "wic" or creek in which the sea-rover anchored. It was the practice of the Vikings to retire during the winter months to one of the small islands off the coast, and to issue forth again in summer to recommence their piracies. The names of the innumerable islets of the Hebrides bear curious testimony to the prevalence of this practice, as, with few exceptions, they bear Norse appellations, while the local names on the mainland are almost wholly Celtic. "Wick," as a termination is found in both Anglo-Saxon and Norse names, but the student should observe the difference in its application. With the Anglo-Saxon it was "a station or abode on land," and we may compare with it the Greek "oikos" and the Latin "vicus": but with the Northmen it was "a station for ships"—hence a small creek or bay. The inland "wicks," therefore, are mostly Saxon, while the Norse "wicks" fringe the British coasts and usually indicate the stations of pirates rather than those of colonists. The whole coast of Essex is lined with names ending in "wick." It may seem almost unnecessary to add that "Viking" is not in any way connected with the word "King," though doubtless many novices have fallen into the trap. As the first syllable is "Vik" and the last "ing," the original word was probably pronounced "Vik'ing": but, as I said above, the only pronunciation that now prevails is "Viking." The most simple-seeming things sometimes need a full explanation.

GOOD APPETITE NOT EVERYTHING

You Must Digest Your Food as Well as Eat It—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Ensure Perfect Digestion.

A good appetite may or may not mean that you are in good health. If you eat well and your food is digested your body will benefit from the heat and strength the food contains.

But many people who eat well have simply a false appetite caused by one of the varied forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. These people need help. They need Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Take Mr. H. Bailey, of 206 Patrick St., Winnipeg, for example.

Mr. Bailey says:

"I have gained in weight eight pounds since I began to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Before that no matter what I ate I never seemed to gain or put on weight."

If you would have health and energy be sure your stomach is doing its full duty. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets ensure the stomach doing its full work.

The Higher Criticism.

No. 3.

(Specially written for the Montreal Star.)

The remark has been made and often repeated, that a great deal of controversy would have been rendered unnecessary if only the controversialists had in the first place defined their terms. To few discussions has this been more applicable than to those which have raged round the subject of these articles.

The term "Higher Criticism," has been singularly misunderstood, but in many cases the misunderstanding has been excusable, and it may frankly be admitted that the term is an unfortunate one. Many writers now use the expression "historical" criticism, which is better than "higher" criticism, but then the word "criticism," is as ambiguous as the word "higher." It will, therefore, be worth while to set forth in this article as clearly as possible what is meant by "The Higher Criticism."

The root from which the word criticism is derived means "separation," and is applied to the separation of the good from the bad, or of the more profitable from the less profitable. Such separation implies an intellectual judgment. Unfortunately the word criticism nowadays in popular use implies blame or condemnation. It is not surprising, therefore, that many people naturally and even rightly resent the word criticism as applied to the Bible, and regard the higher critics as a body of men who are seeking to destroy the authority of the Bible.

If this were the case we should not only excuse, but applaud, their righteous indignation. An illustration will, however, clearly show how mistaken is this conception of the meaning of the word criticism. The late Matthew Arnold is said to have been the finest critic of English literature that ever lived. Does this mean that Mr. Arnold sought to destroy English literature, or that he regarded it with contempt, or that he wanted to prevent people from studying it, or that he regarded himself as superior to Shakespeare and Milton, and Dryden and Johnson? To suppose any of these things would be erroneous in the highest degree. It was because he loved the English language, and profoundly believed in the excellence of English literature, and wanted to help people to appreciate it at its true worth, and to study it, with intelligence, that he devoted so many years of his life to English criticism.

Or, again, the late Benjamin Jowett was a great critic of the philosopher Plato. What does this mean, but that he loved and admired Plato, and sought to commend him to thoughtful readers? In like manner, we contend that, taken as a body, the higher critics of the Bible seek to render it more intelligible, and more useful, not because they have a low opinion of it, but, on the contrary, hold it in high esteem.

* * * *

We do not, however, wish to mislead our readers. The higher critics do sometimes discriminate between scripture and scripture. They do not adhere to traditional views with regard to the authorship or the dates of all the books of the Bible, or the meaning of all its parts. But discrimination is no new thing, only the modern critic proceeds upon definite principles and carries out his work in a far more thorough-going fashion than did his predecessors. Professor McFadyen quotes from the Westminster Confession, a passage implying the power and right of all ministers to discriminate between scripture and scripture. After the statement: "It is requisite that all the canonical books be read over in order, that the people may be better acquainted with the whole body of the scriptures," occurs the passage: "We commend also the more frequent reading of such scriptures as he that readeth shall think best for edification of his hearers." "Here," adds McFadyen, "is conceded the right of criticism within the sphere of edification; but that right cannot be limited by this sphere. It will and must assert itself within every sphere that is to be brought within the unity of human knowledge or experience."

Criticism then may be described as the discriminating study of the Bible with a view to rendering it more intelligible. "The function of Biblical criticism," says Professor Kirkpatrick, "is to confirm, correct, or to supplement the traditional accounts of the origin of the Bible." "The attempt to decry the critical study of the Old Testament on a priori grounds can only prove mischievous in the end. The intelligent Christian will not say 'These views are contrary to my theory of inspiration' or 'They are incompatible with this or that dogma, and therefore they cannot be true'; but 'are these views grounded upon facts, and if so how must I modify the theory, or qualify the inferences I have drawn from the dogma, and perhaps re-state it ?'"

So much for the word "criticism." The word "higher" as applied to a certain kind of criticism is also sadly misconceived. By many people it is supposed to indicate an assumption of superior insight or knowledge, and the higher critic is regarded as a man of conceited and scornful mind. This is an entire, and were the subject a less serious one, we should say a ludicrous mistake. The "Higher Criticism" is so-called to distinguish it from the "Lower Criticism." And the lower criticism deals with the text (i.e. the words themselves) of the Bible. The Bible was, of course, in existence centuries before the invention of printing. Every copy was written by hand, and the copying of the scriptures came to be a regular profession. These copies are called manuscripts (MSS), and of the New Testament there are in the great libraries of Europe a very great number. They are not all written in the same kind of writing, nor do they all verbally agree. None of them are older than the fourth century of our era.

Here then is a very interesting problem, to discover which are the most accurate manuscripts, that is, which of them most nearly repeats the words of the author.

Take for example a very simple case as an illustration of the facts, and of the problem presented by the facts. Let the reader turn to the last verse of St. Luke's Gospel in the authorized version, and he will find these words: "And were continually in the temple praising and blessing God." Now, let him turn to the same verse in the Revised Version, and he will read : "And were continually in the temple blessing God." Here the word "praising" is omitted. Why is this ? The answer is that some of the manuscripts have (in Greek) "And were in the temple praising God." Some have "And were in the temple blessing God," and yet others "And were in the temple praising and blessing God." The problem is to discover which of these three readings was written by St. Luke. We cannot here describe the way in which the critics arrive at their conclusion, we simply draw attention to the problem presented by the facts and the necessity of criticism of the text. This is the "Lower" criticism.

The "Higher" criticism deals with such questions as the authorship, dates, authenticity and reliableness of the contents of the Scriptures themselves and, as the eloquent Bishop Boyd-Carpenter points out, is inevitable.

We propose, all being well, to describe the methods and some of the results of the Higher Criticism in later articles. In the meantime, we would earnestly warn our readers not to jump to conclusions or draw hasty inferences. Incalculable injury has been done to the church by this pernicious and unscientific procedure. When Copernicus and Galileo revolutionized men's thoughts about the relative positions and motions of the earth, the sun and other heavenly bodies, Protestants and Roman Catholics alike united to denounce the new discoveries. One said "the pretended discovery vitiates the whole Christian plan of salvation"; another, "it casts suspicion on the doctrine of the Incarnation." Luther, whom the present writer reveres as one of the very greatest of all interpreters of the Bible, nevertheless could write in this style: "People give ear to an upstart astrologer who strove to show that the earth revolves, not the heavens or the firmament, the sun and the moon. Whoever wishes to appear clever must devise some new system, which of all systems is of course the very best. . . . . but sacred scripture tells us that Joshua commanded the sun to stand still." Calvin says: "Who will venture to place the authority of Copernicus above that of the Holy Spirit ?" The profoundly learned and pious Melancthon declared that scripture asserts positively and clearly that the earth stands fast and that the sun moves around it, and accuses Copernicus and his followers of a love of novelty, or a desire to display their ingenuity and of a want of honesty and decency in making their assertions.

Is there one educated person in Montreal who would deny that Cardinal Bellarmin, Luther, Calvin and Melancthon were wrong, and that Copernicus and Galileo were right? With such warning examples before us, may we not earnestly appeal to candid and courageous souls to believe that the spirit of scripture is not tied to its letter, nay, that not seldom the destruction of the letter is the setting free of the spirit. "Every age," said Bishop Westcott, "which is moved by the spirit of God, feels keenly the searching, chastening power of that Divine Presence. . . . . We cannot hope to enjoy the splendour of a fuller, purer, light without enduring the pain which necessarily comes from the removal of the veils by which it was obscured. Gain through apparent loss; victory through momentary defeat; the energy of a new life through pangs of travail; such has ever been the law of spiritual progress. . . . . The difficulties which press us most sorely are really the discipline through which God is teaching us, veiled promises of coming wisdom."

The Higher Criticism.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star.

Sir,—In no mere spirit of controversy, but moved by the gravity of the issues at stake, I desire still to enjoy the privilege of communicating with your host of intelligent readers concerning the so-called Higher Criticism. It is fair that we should bear in mind that, except as to their methods of study, the critics by no means dwell together in unity. From Canon Cheyne to Sanday is a far cry. One is destructive, the other gravely conservative. It is the fatal tendency of the new theology which is to many thoughtful minds its danger signal. The novel teaching legitimately carried out does away with the supreme authority of the Scriptures and of the Christ.

We of the old theology have no unworthy or faithless fears concerning God's Holy Word. Nor has the Higher Criticism the least power to shake the faith of mature Christians, who know in blessed experience the inner life of the Gospel. We welcome fearlessly all possible light that genuine criticism can throw upon the Bible. But we are anxious, and with cause, concerning immature and unstable souls who are being on every hand misled by the groundless or at best improved theories of the would-be supplanters of the faith of centuries.

As Dr. Pierson has recently pointed out, the Higher Criticism which wages war with myths and fables, is itself built on fables. Rationalism has its miracles as well as faith. The same writer describes evolution as the "fruitful mother of a numerous progeny, as well as being the most monstrous fable ever invented." Evolution gives birth to "A fable about creation, making matter to be self-existent, the universe to be its own maker. . . . Evolution also has its fable about man. He also was a product. His mother was a monkey, or more remotely a codfish, or an oyster, or a monad, or mite. . . . It has also its fable about the Bible—that it simply marks a stage in literary evolution, is full of errors, and necessarily defective because only on its way at present to the final product. Yet further, it dares to enter even into the sacred domain of the nature and being of the Holy Son of God, making Him to be only a product—the most perfect man thus far, but ignorant of much that is known to modern critics, reflecting errors of His day, etc.; the best of teachers yet not an infallible, final authority."

It will surely be granted that Bishop Handley Moule is no uneducated alarmist, but a man of sound learning and deep spiritual experience. I would earnestly call the attention of reverent students to his grave words of warning: "If the present powerful movement commonly known as (I use the phrase not as accurate, but as practically intelligible) the Higher Criticism of Holy Scripture, achieves universal acceptance in the Church, and works itself to its legitimate issues, I am compelled to think that the days will be over in which the church will hear, on any great scale, the cry, 'What must I do to be saved?' and will see penitents coming to the feet of Jesus in the old way of simple and absolute faith. For the new criticism no longer hesitates to treat our Lord's thought and teaching about the Scriptures as being largely that of His contemporaries, and fully liable to their mistakes. But so great and so deep an element in His thought and in His teaching is His view of the Scriptures, that His fallibility there shakes the fabric of His infallibility all through; certainly in a way which (granted its becoming universal to think so of Him) will, unless human nature ceases to act as now upon familiar facts, profoundly alter the general receptivity of men towards the conception that He can be boundlessly trusted."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Hon. John Young.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—On the 1st July next, the ship channel passes from the control of the Department of Public Works to that of Marine and Fisheries.

Anyone reading the history of Canada or scanning a report on the Montreal and Quebec ship channel cannot fail but admire one particular figure that stands out prominently as the great projector; the man who persevered in educating the public to the great advantage to be gained and who ultimately succeeded in advancing the work to such a stage that its completion was only a question of time. I refer to the Hon. John Young.

Since 1846, he advocated the improvement of the ship channel, the construction of the railway between Montreal and Portland, the construction of a railway from Montreal to Kingston and Toronto, and in 1851, as Chief Commissioner of Public Works, he favoured the building of a railway from Halifax to Sarnia, established a fortnightly mail service between Montreal and Liverpool, built a number of lighthouses in the Gulf and River St. Lawrence, fostered the Belle Isle route, and developed the water powers of the Ottawa.

In 1849, when the St. Lawrence canals were opened for traffic, he sent the propellor "Ireland" with the first cargo of merchandise direct to Chicago and brought the first cargo of grain from Chicago to Montreal.

Dent, in his biography, says : "In the industrial history of Montreal he played an important part for forty years, and to him more than to any one else she owes whatever of mercantile prominence she possesses."

Why does not the city and citizens of Montreal show their appreciation, in tangible form, for services rendered by the Hon. John Young ?

I would respectfully suggest, as a fitting memorial, the erection of a bronze statue to be placed near the mouth of the Lachine canal and overlooking the ship channel which, in a great measure, was the fruit of his labours.

The "Star" would add an interesting page to Montreal's history by inaugurating the project, distribute lists and give the citizens an opportunity of subscribing to a fitting memorial; the cost would probably be about $10,000; surely there are 10,000 grateful and appreciative people in our great city who would cheerfully subscribe to such an object.

I have no doubt but the Board of Trade, La Chambre de Commerce, Corn Exchange and shipping interests would help on the good work.

As the channel is about to pass away from the control of the department which he so ably managed, in 1851, now, I think, is the fitting time to pay tribute to a worthy man.

The Italian Labour Troubles.

To the Editor of The Montreal Star.

Sir,—The attention of the public has been drawn to the fact that hundreds of Italians are starving in this city, possibly there are many now of the other nationalities in like condition.

We understand that the matter is to be gone into personally. I do not think the investigator's task a very easy or pleasant one.

In one report it is suggested that possibly an agent or some such person might be the cause of a good deal, if not all, of the suffering. Maybe the poor people, like many others, were told that it did not matter if they landed with scarcely a cent in their pockets, they would find plenty of work and get good treatment with an opportunity of making a fortune in a very short time.

We hear much just now about certain employers who are supposed to be getting plenty of men from England, New York and other places to replace those who are asking for just conditions of labour as others are enjoying.

It might be considered unreasonable to suggest that such actions as this helped to bring around such a state of things.

Doubtless you will remember that not long since a certain gentleman of this city, while in another country attending a congress, was asked his opinion respecting certain letters that were appearing in the papers at that place, with reference to the state of the labour market in some cities in Canada, he considered such statements were a crime and very unpatriotic.

Even these sad events have their advantages.

They afford the philanthropist an opportunity of seeing his name figure very conspicuously on a subscription list, which no doubt is more congenial than paying employes such wages as would enable them to live more humane and honourable lives. Again, when men are starving by reason of other incumbrances they can be forced into accepting low wages and thus help to make millionaires.

In conclusion, I hope the inquiry will be successful in discovering the cause of this state of things and that some measure will be adopted whereby a recurrence will be avoided.

(Signed) W. F. JOHNSTON,
Secretary Immigration Committee,
Montreal Trades and Labour Council.

The Wages of Italians.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I was considerably surprised to read last evening in your columns, that representations are being made to the council for monetary help in aid of destitute Italians, of whom it was stated, that there are several hundreds in the city. Two weeks ago, as superintendent of a large manufacturing concern, I sent one of our foremen to the "Italian Labour Bureau," for six (6) workmen, offering wages of $1.15 to $1.25 per day. He was most discourteously received by an official, and told to tell his manager, that no workmen would be engaged by him under $1.50 per day.

French-Canadians are glad to work for $1.25 a day, and I am somewhat surprised that these foreign emigrants would rather starve, or receive public charity, than agree to what is the standard rate of wages here for native Canadian help.

A SUPERINTENDENT.

"Spoliatory Legislation."

To the Editor of The Montreal Star:

Sir,—I desire to bring to the knowledge of the public, through the columns of your newspaper, facts connected with recent legislation, which, though affecting in this instance myself alone, are, I think, of sufficient general importance to justify me in submitting them to the judgment of your readers.

The Town of Chicoutimi introduced a bill, at the present session of the Quebec Legislature, amending its charter, in which was contained a clause dealing with the ownership of lands reserved for streets and squares at the time that the town was originally laid out by the Government.

When the bill came before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislative Assembly, the Chicoutimi Pulp Company obtained an amendment excepting from the operation of the bill, certain lands, and declaring them to have been and to be their property. The text of the amendment proposed by the Chicoutimi Pulp Company and carried in the Legislative Assembly was as follows:

"Nevertheless, the right of property in the town does not extend to any part of Montcalm street, upon which the wharves of the Chicoutimi Pulp Company are now built, nor to the lands bordering such street to the west, which lands had been reserved upon the original plans of the division of the village of Chicoutimi for a street, and upon which the said wharves are also built; nor to the lands which may have been reserved upon the said plans, for streets, which are now numbered 935, 910, 909, 882, 1130, 1148, 1149, 1161, and also that part of lots numbers 932 and 1162 bordering on the river Chicoutimi, of the official plan and book of reference of the Town of Chicoutimi, and which have been sold to the Chicoutimi Pulp Company or its predecessors by the Government of the Province of Quebec; and all the said lands are declared to have been and to be the property of the Chicoutimi Pulp Company."

Now, a portion of the lands described in this paragraph never have been and are not now the property of the Chicoutimi Pulp Company, but are my property.

When the bill came before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislative Council, I appeared, both personaly and by counsel, produced the titles to the property and so far satisfied the committee that I had at least a reasonable case, that the Attorney-General amended the clause so as to make it read as follows:—

"Nevertheless, the right of property in the town does not extend to any part of Montcalm street upon which the wharves now in the possession and use of the Chicoutimi Pulp Company are now built, nor to the lands bordering such streets to the west, which lands had been reserved upon the original plans of the division of the village of Chicoutimi for street, and upon which the said wharves are also built; nor to, the lands which may have been reserved upon the said plans, for streets, which are now numbered 935, 910, 909, 882, 1130, 1148, 1149, 1161, and also that part of lots numbers 932 and 1162 bordering on the river Chicoutimi, of the official plan and book of reference of the town of Chicoutimi, and which have been sold to the Chicoutimi Pulp Company or its predecessors by the Government of the Province of Quebec; and it is hereby declared that the town of Chicoutimi has no right of ownership in the said lands, notwithstanding any reserve that may have been made in any deed or any law with regard to the same, and that any rights which the town may have had to the ownership of said lands belong to the Chicoutimi Pulp Company."

The Chicoutimi Pulp Company were not pleased with this amendment; nothing but a declaratory act would satisfy them, and on the third reading of the bill notice to restore the clause as passed by the Legislative Assembly was given by the Hon. Nemese Garneau, president of the company. I had, of course, no opportunity of being heard before the House, and the following gentlemen voted to take my property and give it to the Chicoutimi Pulp Company: Hon. Messrs. Audet, Berthiaume, Bryson, Cormier, N. Garneau, Girouard, Le Rue, Lanctot, Mathieu, Methot, Rolland, Sylvestre and De Varennes. Of these gentlemen the Hon. N. N. Garneau and the Hon. V. W. La Rue are directors of the Chicoutimi Pulp Company. Those who voted against this act of spoliation were: Hon. Messrs. Archambault, Chapais, Gilman, Sharples, Turner and Ward.

The intention of the promoters was to obtain a legislative title to property which the Chicoutimi Pulp Company pretended to own, but its title to which was manifestly so insufficient that it was afraid to submit it to the test of a legal decision.

I think the public must conclude that the Chicoutimi Pulp Company had no confidence in their pretended title, otherwise the unheard of recourse to a declaratory law with respect to private property would have been unnecessary.

While the value of the land at issue may not be very great, the principle involved in legislation of this character is of supreme importance to the public; not alone to those persons whose property the Chicoutimi Pulp Company may covet, but to all people whose property may be coveted by others having sufficient influence to obtain legislation of this kind.

I may, however, add that I am advised that though the intention of the promoters is clear, it is doubtful whether the object has been attained, and I propose forthwith to test the question, and if necessary, carry it to the Privy Council; should I find that my property really has been transferred to the Chicoutimi Pulp Company, I shall come back to the Legislature and ask that body to undo the injustice done and return the property stolen.

I suggest for the consideration of the public whether legislation of this character is not calculated to prove injurious to Canadian enterprise seeking capital on the English or foreign money market. If companies can promote and carry legislation, transferring to them other people's property, they can also promote and carry legislation by which creditors will be deprived of their security, or, if desired, of their recourse against their debtors. Is it reasonable, under these circumstances, to expect that capitalists will invest money in this province ?

I have the honour to remain,
Your obedient servant,
WM. PRICE.

HON. H. R. EMMERSON'S SPEECH ON THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

How the Minister of Railways Broke His Long Silence During the Great Railway Debate in the House of Commons.

Following is a fuller report of the speech in which Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the Minister of Railways, finally broke the silence which so long was the astonishment and derision of Parliamentary circles. A perusal of this report, which is taken direct from Hansard, will confirm the view of the speech expressed by Mr. Bell, of Pictou, who spoke after Mr. Emmerson, and who confessed his surprise that Mr. Emmerson managed to occupy the attention of the House for an hour and a half without saying anything at all on the project under discussion. Mr. Emmerson dealt with the Grand Trunk Pacific project as first announced and no word did he say as to the amendments, all in favour of the company, which had been made in the contract between the two sessions. Mr. Emmerson's speech, as far as it referred to the bill itself, and apart from his explanation as to his silence and concerning his disastrous defeat in St. John city election, might have been delivered last session.

Mr. Emmerson spoke as follows :

Hon. Mr. EMMERSON (Minister of Railways and Canals). Mr. Speaker, I am sure I have every reason to be grateful for the consideration that has been shown me on this side of the House on all occasions since I first had the honour of having a seat here, and I appreciate at its true value the distinguished consideration—shall I say courtesy ?—which has been extended to me by hon. gentlemen opposite not merely to-night, but during the past two weeks. This measure, pre-eminent as it is above all other measures since the days of the Canadian Pacific Railway scheme, having reached this stage I may be pardoned, perhaps, even by hon. gentlemen opposite, if I venture to make a few observations, notwithstanding that I gave expression to my views last year at some length, and notwithstanding the further fact that the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding), has covered the ground in a most ample, able, and comprehensive way. I do not think I need follow at any great length the remarks of the hon. member for South Lanark (Mr. Haggart). I need not follow him in his wanderings; but I might avail myself of the opportunity to congratulate a gentleman, who is not now a member of this House on the very sudden conversion which he has been the means of bringing about. I do not think the conversion was direct, but that it was rather through the medium of the leader of the Opposition. We have noticed the very great change which has apparently come over his mind with respect to Government ownership. Since I first entered this House, time and time again, have I heard the hon. gentleman from South Lanark speak very forcibly against Government ownership and against Government-operated lines. But to-night he has tumbled in head first, feet up. He took the tumble, and he has certainly given an exhibition of a conversion as sudden as one of which we are told in Holy Writ. I do not intend, at this stage, to make any further remarks with respect to the hon. gentleman's attitude on the question. But there is a suspicion, in the Maritime Provinces, at least, that the hon. gentleman, when he had charge of the Department of Railways was disposed not to continue the operation of the Intercolonial as a Government railway. There is a suspicion that there was a scheme—a conspiracy, I might say—to have the Intercolonial Railway become the property of a great corporation. That was frustrated, very happily in my judgment, by the electors in the election of 1896. It seems to have been a well-founded suspicion because you cannot convince the people of the Maritime Provinces to-day that, if the hon. gentleman had continued as Minister of Railways, the Intercolonial Railway would not have ceased to be a Government-owned and Government-operated road. There is one other remark, made by the hon. gentleman to which, perhaps, I should refer. He referred to the remarks of Mr. Allen before the meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway, in London, in March last, and seemed to lay great stress upon the fact that the paper read by the son of Mr. Allen, who had resigned as a director, was written by Mr. Allen before the modified contract was made. If there was any point to be made against the Finance Minister's argument with respect to that, it would be from this standpoint—that the words to which exception was taken by Mr. Allen had been modified or changed by the contract which subsequently entered into the later contract. Let me call the attention of this House to the fact that the very points to which exception had been taken by Mr. Allen, the clause of feature contained in the first contract to which exception was taken is precisely the same. There is no serious change in the modified contract.

The hon. gentleman spoke of the Intercolonial Railway and its management, particularly during the past seven years, referred to the cheap purchases by that road. I do not propose at this moment to enter into a discussion with respect to the Intercolonial Railway. I quite agree with the hon. gentleman when he states that materials are purchased as cheaply, if not more cheaply by the Intercolonial Railway than by other corporations.

Mr. ROSAMOND. The hon. member for South Lanark did not say that. He said that could be done.

Mr. EMMERSON. The hon. member for South Lanark (Mr. Haggart) made a remark about cheap purchases and he admitted that the purchases of material in connection with the Intercolonial were very cheap. He based on that an argument in favour of government ownership and rather pointed to the extravagance in other directions than the purchase of materials. I do not think that point is material at this moment, nor do I think it material to discuss government ownership; a little later on perhaps I shall invite the attention of the House to the attitude of some of the leaders of the hon. gentlemen. I am sure it is no mere rhetorical declaration to state that we in Canada to-day are nation-builders—not merely the representative men on the floor of Parliament, not merely those who hold Cabinet positions, but the sturdy yeomanry of the country, the pioneer of the west, the man on the plains and the settler in the more settled communities of the east are all enthused with the determination to develop Canada, to build it up. It is an axiomatic truth that railways precede national development, and the extension of trade and commerce follows railway construction. It is a further truth that manufacturers cannot thrive or agriculture flourish in advance of transportation facilities. We have had this exemplified in the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. We first had it exemplified in the building of the Intercolonial, then later on with respect to the Canadian Pacific Railway. I need not elaborate that point, but if we go beyond our own country and look at our neighbours to the south, if we cast our eyes in that direction, what do we see ? Some fifty years ago the people in Ohio and some of the other eastern states made very great sacrifices with a view to extending their railways. They aided them very largely by land subsidies. The United States itself contributed to that, and if we take that country as an illustration of what has been accomplished, I am sure that in that very thought itself there is a justification for the attitude and the course of the Government with respect to the present proposal for the construction of the Transcontinental Railway.

In 1850 there was in the United States a population of 23,000,000. They had 9,000 miles of railway. Their internal commerce was $2,000,000,000. Their total wealth was $7,000,000,000. In 1903 their total population was 79,000,000. Their mileage of railway was 202,000. Their internal commerce, which is a synonym for their national commerce, was $20,000,000,000. Their total wealth was $100,000,000,000. Mark the increase in the short period of fifty-three years. Their mileage of railway had increased 2,000 per cent.; their population has increased 230 per cent., their internal commerce had increased 900 per cent. Their total wealth had increased 1,400 per cent. With these object lessons, with the object lesson to be seen in our own country and the object lesson to which I have just referred in connection with the United States, is it at all surprising that the people of this country, since the first proposition was made to have a second transcontinental railway, have looked eagerly to the Parliament of Canada with a view that their well expressed desires should be fairly and fully consummated with respect to this matter?

They do look for that, and when the right hon. leader of the Government brought his proposals before this House not quite a year ago, the hope which was evidenced in the country gave place to faith and the people looked forward to the early consummation of that idea. This hope and faith were not sectional. They were to be found everywhere throughout the country, not merely in the great west, but in the east. In the great west where there is a tide of immigration of about 100,000 souls yearly, where the people are rushing in by tens of thousands to find homes for themselves and for their families, it must be realized that among them and throughout the whole country there is a throbbing pulsation not merely in regard to the agricultural life of the country, but in reference to the industrial life of the country, and there is evidence that the people feel there is an urgent necessity for bringing closer together the remote sections of this country. People who have not crossed this continent have no idea of the vast distances. They cannot possibly realize the difficulties that there are in the way of having the remote sections of the Dominion brought more closely together. Those of us who have had the privilege of going through this country realize that unless the several provinces are bound more closely together, unless there is compression there cannot be that advancement either in our social, or our political or industrial life that the resources of this country justify. With the conditions prevailing to-day there is a feeling broadcast throughout this country that the time for action is ripe. There is a feeling which will be tremendous under the immigration which will arise in the future that inactivity on our part means the dwarfing of our future development, and supineness under existing conditions means that we are not building for the future as we should. This of course is but a very faint and inadequate picture of the sentiment that prevails throughout this country.

Have hon. gentlemen in this House realized all that this means ? Have they taken into consideration what the people of this country demand ? Are they realizing now, have they been realizing during the past month or more that there is an eager hope on the part of the people of Canada that parliament shall take such a step as will develop and open up this country and bring together its various sections? If they have realized this what have been their methods ? They have contributed in no way towards the advancement of the idea which prevails throughout this country that we need another transcontinental line. It will be admitted and it is admitted that there is a necessity for this road. It will be admitted that if that necessity exists we should have the road. There may very naturally and very properly be difference of opinion as to the attainment of that object in some form or other. I notice that all of the leaders on the opposition, and almost all of the hon. gentlemen opposite are leaders, or assume to be, have apparently united to obstruct in every possible way the carrying out of the idea of a second transcontinental railway. Let us briefly recite the history of this measure. In July, 1903, the proposals of the First Minister were laid before the House. Through weary weeks the measure was debated and it was discussed from every standpoint. We all had a share in the discussion. Finally, in the autumn months, the bill had reached the stage when it was pronounced to be a settled fact that in so far as the Government and Parliament of Canada were concerned this Dominion would have a second transcontinental railway. Then, the hope of the people turned to the company for the carrying out of their part of the transaction. With faith they looked to the Government for the execution of their portion of the contract. They had witnessed the obstruction in Parliament during the past session and they feared that obstruction in some form or other was being used out of Parliament, that perhaps in the financial world there were methods pursued that would obstruct the full carrying out of this project. At first, it was only a fear. Soon the country realized that it was all too true and the Grand Trunk Pacific promoters came back to Canada fully realizing that in some way the financial world had been turned against them. This was a very unfortunate condition of things—at least it was so considered throughout Canada. There was a feeling, and I am sure hon. gentlemen opposite must have shared it, of very great disappointment, fully proving and evidencing this fact that there was a very strong desire that the railway should proceed and proceed without delay and when it was found that it was impossible to have that scheme go through in its then condition there was very serious disappointment on the part of the people of the country. The promoters of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway came to the Government again and the Government, I think very wisely in the judgment of the country, decided to relax some of the original bands by which they had tied the company in the first agreement. The modifications and charges in the original agreement were but a degree. They involved no departure from the essential principles of the original contract. The people recognized that if this project was to be carried out, as carried out it must be, if the wishes of the people are observed, these changes must be ratified by Parliament. Parliament again assembled and the people of the country looked eagerly for a speedy ratification of the modified agreement. They realized that last year the matter had been fully and exhaustively discussed and they expected that these modifications would be at once ratified by Parliament and that there would be no delay. The thousands throughout the length and breadth of this country who were looking hopefully forward to participating in this great work, the men who were seeking employment, those who were looking forward to going out into the West and there aiding in the carrying out of this idea, those engaged in the industrial life of the country who were calling hopefully for markets for their manufactured products, have been disappointed, because there has been this unforeseen delay. And why has there been delay ? It is because of the obstructive tactics of hon. gentlemen opposite. It is because of their obstruction in this House; obstruction that has not a parallel in any Parliament in this or in any other country; an obstruction which was absolutely without justification.

Mr. Clancy—Did they obstruct the deposit of the $5,000,000 by the Grand Trunk Company ?

Mr. Emmerson — The deposit was made before this session of Parliament assembled, so that there is no point in the interruption of the hon. gentleman. The obstructive tactics of these gentlemen last year have been improved upon this year, and when every other avenue was closed to them they thought of debating whether the Minister of Railways should not have addressed the House.

Mr. Sam Hughes—And the Minister of Railways has spoken at last.

EXPLAINS HIS SILENCE.

Mr. Emmerson—My hon. friend (Mr. Sam. Hughes) has a very unbridled tongue, and I wish he had horse sense enough to know how to check it. Sir, I do not wish to make references to myself; personal references are not inspiring, certainly not to me. Let me, however, say that if the tactics which have been adopted towards myself by gentlemen opposite during the past few weeks, lend dignity to the House of Commons, I fail to appreciate the true spirit of parliamentary government in this or any other land. Let me ask the House to consider my connection with this matter. It is claimed that I have been inconsistent, and it is said that because I have the honour of being Minister of Railways and Canals, I should have taken charge of this measure and should have directed its passage through Parliament. I became Minister of Railways and Canals on the 15th of January last, and so I did not participate in the preparation of the contract or in the modifications thereto. I felt that it was not my duty to in any way take the matter out of the hands of those gentlemen who had so ably guided it through Parliament last session. I know that modesty is not a commodity in which my hon. friends opposite indulge to any great extent, but I did at least hope that they would have appreciated that virtue when they saw it exemplified in others. My hon. friend the Minister of Finance was acting Minister of Railways in 1903, and did he introduce the measure to Parliament, or did he guide it through its several stages ? No. As was natural, the right hon. the leader of this House, who is the father of this great measure, guided it through the Commons, and its legal aspect was very ably dealt with by the Minister of Justice. And why should there be any change from the procedure of last year ? I felt that there was no necessity for my engaging in the debate, or sitting in this House to hear repeated the time worn and stale stories with respect to this bill, and that I might much better be employed in looking after the affairs of my department. I gave my time to those who had business with the Department of Railways and Canals, and I may say that the duties of that department are not of a light character. Day after day while the discussion on this bill was dragging along, I sat in the office here receiving delegation after delegation of gentlemen who came to make representations to the Minister on important matters affecting public interest. The very afternoon that the leader of the Opposition indulged in his tirade I was listening to a delegation from North Sydney, in the province of Nova Scotia, who came to make representations as to the terminal facilities at that port. That question is a very important one, affecting as it does our trade relations with Newfoundland, and it is essential not only in the interest of the port of North Sydney, and of the province of Nova Scotia, but the interests of all Canada, that an effort should be made to provide ample terminal facilities there. I listened to that delegation, and I believe that their wants will be recognized by Parliament upon the advice of the Government. Why should my hon. friends opposite complain because I am doing this ? On an average four delegations have waited on me each afternoon, aside from those which visit me during the morning hours at the department. I felt that in doing this I was discharging my duty to my country as Minister of Railways and Canals; I felt that I was discharging my duty as I saw it, and in this light I conceive that the remarks indulged in by hon. gentlemen opposite have not done justice to themselves or to this Parliament. Of course, I know that these gentlemen are good natured; I was almost going to say that they are not sincere, but perhaps that would not be parliamentary.

Mr. Henderson—Oh, quite so.

Mr. Emmerson—I would not wish to use unparliamentary language towards any hon. gentleman, and especially is that the case in reference to my hon. friend from Halton (Mr. Henderson), but if his friends have seen fit to indulge in taunts against me, I have the satisfaction of knowing that they did me no harm, and as to the mystery which surrounded my silence, that seems to have worried these hon. gentlemen themselves more than it has troubled me.

CHARGE OF INCONSISTENCY.

And now with respect to the charge of inconsistency. We have had quires of extracts quoted to show that I have been inconsistent, and that my course during the discussion on the bill to incorporate the Grand Trunk Pacific Company last year, was not in harmony with the course that I have since pursued. Let us see about that. Certain gentlemen were desirous of being incorporated under the name of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company with a view to construct and operate a railway between the Pacific ocean and North Bay. I opposed that bill in the committee.

I felt that it was not a national line. I believed that it was not in the true sense a measure that would fulfil the expectations of the people in all sections of Canada. I did not take that attitude merely in the interest of the section of the country from which I come. I took it because I felt that it was in the interest of all Canada that if we were to aid any railway at all we should have a railway from the shores of the Pacific to the shores of the Atlantic, built across the continent on Canadian soil. I felt that if this line were constructed and aided by Government subsidy, it would simply mean that the products of the West would be transported down to North Bay and out through American channels to American seaports. I did not conceive it to be within the line of my duty to support such a measure. The bill was subsequently amended so that its eastern terminus would be at Quebec. That was a little better; but I felt that even with that amendment I should oppose the measure, and I did. I realized that if the products of the West were brought to the East by that company as far as Quebec, perhaps during the summer months shipments would be made from the port of Quebec, but during the winter months every pound of traffic would go via Portland or Boston or some other American port, particularly Portland; and I felt that would be in the interest of the company. I realized that it would not be in their interest to transfer their freight at Quebec to the Intercolonial Railway. I realized that if you wished to make that company interested in utilizing Canadian winter ports, you must compel them to operate a road into the Maritime Provinces with the view of utilizing a port there; and I did propose as an alternative that rather than build a railway aided by Government funds from the Pacific to Quebec, to be treated in the way I have stated, it would be preferable for the Government of Canada to extend the Intercolonial into the wheat fields of the West, where it could gather up the grain and bring it down to be shipped from Canadian ports during the winter months, even though it might be done at a loss. I argued that would be better to do that than to give this proposed company the opportunity of taking the produce out by way of Portland. It is said that I am inconsistent in that respect. Why, sir, I went further in that connection. When even the hon. member for South Lanark (Mr. Haggart) and other hon. gentlemen opposite in the committee were sneering at the proposition and scouting the idea that the Intercolonial would be extended into the West, I went further. I said: If you are opposed to extending the Government line into the wheat fields of the West, construct a line into the West and give the company the right to operate it; place upon that company the onus of operating the road, and give rights over it to all companies which gather the wheat of the West into the great city of Winnipeg. At that time the Government had not made its proposals. At that time there was nothing in the air; there were no whispers as to what should be done. It has been said that the suggestions which I made with respect to the extension of the Intercolonial into the wheat fields of the West were inspired by the then Minister of Railways. Let me say, in justice to that gentleman, that from the very beginning down to the close he did not consult with me nor confer with me in any way with respect to any policy in relation to the building of the transcontinental line; and when I made the suggestions which I did before the Railway Committee, I did it without any knowledge, other than what other hon. members had as to the views of the then Minister of Railways and Canals. One thing I never did propose was a Government-owned and operated road from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I did propose a Government-owned and operated road to the wheat fields of the West; or as alternative to that, a Government-constructed and Government-owned but company operated road to the wheat fields of the West. Opposition to Government ownership and Government operation was so strongly in evidence in that committee that I realized the utter futility of any attempt being made to have an extension of the Government railway into the west. There were very few who had any sympathy with the idea. I do not know of one hon. member sitting on the other side of the House who favoured the proposition in any degree. If the company has its terminus at a Canadian seaport in the east, there is no doubt that it will be to its interest to use it. That is the history of all railways. It is particularly the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway with respect to the city of St. John. When the Canadian Pacific Railway Company first got their short line railway it was with no idea that there would be an export trade through the port of St. John; and it was only after years of persistence on the part of the people of Canada and the people of the Maritime Provinces, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company made any movement towards the carrying out of that idea. Efforts were put forth by the people of St. John, the people of New Brunswick and the Legislature of New Brunswick all urging that there should be an export trade. Even steamship lines were communicated with, negotiations were had, and it was by reason of the co-operation of the steamship lines with the Government and with the Canadian Pacific Railway, that finally there was a start; and it is only, I believe, since this Government came into power that the full fruition of all that expenditure has been realized. Not the full fruition because the work is in progress. It is advancing year by year; there are a great many strides in that direction, and the port of St. John is destined to become a great port for Canadian exports.

Subsequent to the understanding referred to in connection with the Railway Commission, the Government announced its policy. True, it is not the original proposition as made by me, namely, the extension of the Intercolonial to the western wheat fields, but it was at least the carrying out of an idea which I had foreshadowed in that committee in connection with the construction and ownership and operation of the line. The proposition in a few words is this: The Government should construct and own the road from Winnipeg to the Maritime Provinces via Quebec, and this road should be operated by the Grand Trunk Pacific, but should be open to all companies gathering wheat in the west wishing to have running rights over it. I know that it is certainly popular throughout New Brunswick. I realize that there is a strong feeling among the people there in favour of this proposition, and they are only hoping that there shall be no more obstruction on the part of the Opposition to delay the carrying out of this scheme. The proposal is certainly all that I would ask for and really more, because it insures the construction and ownership by the Government, involving the control of rates, and the obviation of all the objections which were so often made by hon. gentlemen opposite to the operation of a railway by the Government. What is of more importance perhaps, it is the shortest possible line from the wheat centres of the west to the Atlantic seaboard, and that, considering our geographical position, is an element worthy of the greatest consideration. There is one thing lost sight of, it seems to me, in this discussion. We speak of this railway, as one intended for the sole purpose of emptying the rich fields of the west out on the Atlantic seaboard, but to my mind it is equally for the benefit of the east and will provide a market for the products of the east. It will not merely provide a market for the manufacturers of Montreal and Toronto and other great centres in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, but also for the business men of the extreme east. To-day I know of one concern, which has been in existence in Moncton a number of years, a very prosperous manufacturing company, which is making every arrangement for taking advantage of the markets of the west and is hoping for a speedy consummation of this project.

THE CONSERVATIVE POSITION.

I do not wish to repeat what has been so very eloquently expressed by my hon. friend the Minister of Finance, but I cannot refrain from making a reference to what we heard so much about last year, the proposition of my hon. friend the leader of the Opposition, known as the alternative proposition. That withering plant, which has never been watered by the favourable consideration of this House or even of the hon. gentleman's friends, around him, or stimulated by the nourishing sunshine of popular approval, is entirely neglected this year. We do not hear of it at all. It is true that the faltering hesitancy regarding government ownership which was so much in evidence heretofore has been measurably removed, and we now have a northwest and east policy of government ownership. Some of the leaders on the other side say that the road should end at North Bay. Some say that it should not be built at all, and others pretend that we should purchase the Canada Atlantic and utilize the waterways. Let me say once and for all that individually I look upon any scheme that will extend the Intercolonial to Ontario with favour, and if the purchase of the Canada Atlantic would tend to that end, I, as an individual member, would favour that proposition. But the Transcontinental Railway scheme now under consideration is in no sense a bar to the carrying out of what is called the Georgian Bay scheme. But I do recognize this fact, that the purchase of the Canada Atlantic by the Government and the operating of it as a part of the Intercolonial Railway system will not meet with the success which is hoped for, at least, by the people of the Maritime Provinces. When they get to Parry Sound, they will not find material there seeking an outlet to the Canadian seaboard. But a pertinent question that suggests itself is this: Is the Conservative party in favour of government ownership? I do not propose to discuss government ownership as an abstract question, but in a hazy sort of way we have been led to believe that the Conservatives do favour this principle. My hon. friend, the leader of the Opposition, in his amendment so happily described by the Minister of Finance, no doubt hopes that the country may think that he does believe in the government ownership of railways. But I ask, is he sincere, because that is the test we should apply to the attitude a public man takes on any public question? It is not sufficient that men should possess the genius of statesmanship, they should also be sincere in the exercise of that genius. And if the hon. gentleman is sincere in the attitude he took this afternoon, is he in harmony with those around him? Is he in harmony with the leaders of the Conservative party in the Senate? I want to invite the attention of the House and the country to the remarks of a gentleman, who is highly honoured and respected in the Conservative councils. I refer to the ex-Premier, Sir Mackenzie Bowell. When this bill was under discussion in the Senate last session, Sir Mackenzie Bowell made some remarks which were very pertinent and which the leader of the Opposition will find it difficult to harmonize with the views he has expressed during this debate.

After quoting Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. Emmerson continued: These are the views expressed by the Conservative leader in the Senate. It will be interesting to observe when he comes to criticise this contract on behalf of his party in the Senate the attitude he assumes. If he can take this tumble with the speed and alacrity shown by my hon. friend from South Lanark (Mr. Haggart) he is to be congratulated on one standpoint at least.

THE ST. JOHN ELECTION.

Referring again to my silence during this debate a further reason has been given by hon. gentlemen Opposite in connection with the result of an election held in the city of St. John in February last. That contest is put forward as a proof of the fact that the people of that section of Canada are opposed to the Grand Trunk Pacific. I wish simply, without comment, to invite the attention of members of the House to the figures of the last three elections held in the city of St. John since 1900. In the general election of 1900 there was a total vote of 8,043. Of these, the Hon. George E. Foster received 3,523, while the Hon. Andrew Blair, the then Minister of Railways, received 4,520. In 1902, there was another election. It is true it was an election for the local legislature, but it was one in which the Federal party lines were as distinctly drawn as it was possible to draw them. In that election 7,890 votes were polled. Mr. Wilson was the Conservative candidate who received the highest number of votes given. The number which he received was 3,286. Mr. McEwen, the Liberal candidate, and a member of the administration, received 4,064 votes. Now, coming down to the election of February, 1904, the election which is of such vast importance in the eyes of the hon. gentleman who was successful at that election that he made serious complaint that it had not been referred to in the speech from the Throne, we find that in that election there was a total vote of 7,149 votes. Dr. Daniel, the successful candidate, received 3,709 votes. Mr. McEwen, the unsuccessful candidate, received 3,440 votes. Now, what do these figures tell? That in 1903 the Conservative candidate, with 3,826 votes out of a total vote of 7,890, was unsuccessful, and a year later the Conservative candidate, in the person of Dr. Daniel, with 3,709 votes, over 100 votes less than did Mr. Wilson the year previous, was the successful candidate. Then in 1903, the total vote was 7,890; in 1904, the total vote was 7,149, a much smaller vote. Why? Did the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme have anything to do with it? Was the Conservative vote in any way increased? It is 100 less than in 1903; and, therefore, if the Conservative party, who are the champions as against the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme in 1904 got 100 votes less in the city of St. John than they did in 1903, surely they cannot contend that the voting strength of their party has been in any way increased by reason of the unpopularity of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. The truth is that these figures are due to the fact that by reason of local conditions and local causes a great many Liberals refrained from voting, while the Conservatives polled practically their whole strength. Yes, by reason of local causes, and my hon. friend knows them. It is not a matter of great importance, but there is one thing which the House and the country realize, and that is that the Conservative party has not gained in strength, while it is true there was an apathy on the part of the Liberal party, an apathy which will not be in evidence at the next election, whenever that may come.

It is said that the result of the election in St. John demonstrates that the eastern section of Canada is opposed to this Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. What was the attitude of the east during the discussion of this measure last session? We must remember that that attitude was assumed under circumstances of very great difficulty. Remember that the leader of the Liberal party in the Province of New Brunswick had not seen eye to eye with his colleagues; that he had gone out of the Government on this scheme, and naturally his friends, supporters and followers in that section of Canada were very much disgruntled. They knew not what to do. Yet, under these circumstances, what were the conditions? Let me quote from a newspaper, whose authority the hon. leader of the Opposition will not seek to discredit—the St. John Sun.

Mr. Emmerson here quoted extensively from the St. John Sun passages in which that journal expressed the view that a railway was needed to develop the region between Chicoutimi and James Bay, and urged the necessity for a new and short line bringing the traffic to Maritime Province ports. He then continued:

MR. BLAIR'S ATTITUDE.

These quotations from the Sun suggest the attitude of Mr. Blair on this question, and if I may be pardoned I will make some reference to that attitude. What was it? It certainly is pertinent to notice what Mr. Blair's advice to his colleagues on that question was. We have heard what he said to the St. John Board of Trade. We have heard what he said to Mr. Jarvis. We have heard what his attitude was in the Railway Committee. Now, we refer to that celebrated confidential document, a document that was made famous by the fact that it was purloined and then introduced into the debate by the hon. leader of the Opposition thereby taking away its confidential character. We learn from that what Mr. Blair regarded as the ideal railway policy. At the close of his memorandum of the 10th December, 1903, Mr. Blair said :

The ideal policy, as it appears to the undersigned, for the Government to adopt, so soon as it shall be deemed necessary to take up the subject of a third transcontinental railway, would be to insure, first, that the railway shall be wholly Canadian. That it shall not promote the carriage of our export products, or our imports southerly by way of United States lines of railway; but to and from the St. Lawrence in summer and the ports of Halifax and St. John in winter. That the Quebec bridge be utilized as a part of said line, and that the railway be pushed westerly from that point by degrees to the Peace River District, through the Rockies to the Pacific Coast. In the meantime, it would be well to decline all assistance to railways to which Government is not already committed, and propose to parliament that railway charters covering this territory be withheld.

The essential features of what Mr. Blair calls the ideal policy have been adopted in the measure which was brought before Parliament by the right hon. gentleman who leads the Government. Now, the principal change is in respect to the Quebec-Moncton section. I am not going to argue in respect to that. My views were stated at some length last year in connection with the Quebec-Moncton section. I could, if time permitted, read the evidence of prominent lumbermen in the province of New Brunswick as to the importance from the local standpoint of developing and opening up the immense areas of rich timber and agricultural and hardwood forests which exist there. I shall not take up the time of the House by referring to these letters, but the evidence is voluminous and it is at hand if any hon. members of the House wish to refer to it. But it is obvious that Mr. Blair, outside of the exception of the Quebec-Moncton section, as respects the remaining portion, the portion from Quebec to the Pacific coast which he apparently accepted, wanted the government to proceed at once, declaring that if they hesitated they would not show their ability or courage to cope with great difficulties and he felt that the time was ripe for action.

THE COST OF THE ROAD.

It is said that this railway will cost a lot of money. Railways do cost money. They cannot be built without money and I am sure that if a comparison were made as to the estimated cost of this road, with the proposal put forth by hon. gentlemen opposite, there is certainly going to be a very great saving to the country by reason of the adoption of the Government proposal. But, the very moment you admit that the work is necessary, you admit the element of cost.

No one, of course, knows exactly what the precise cost will be, but it is safe to assume that it will not be one dollar more than is absolutely necessary. Can the Opposition, say that their scheme for a transcontinental railway will cost any less than that which has been proposed by the Government? Since no one denies that another railway spanning the continent is absolutely and imperatively necessary, let us see what it will accomplish. First, it will afford an outlet for the rapidly growing products of the great West; secondly, it will create needed competition in the transportation of merchandise to as well as from the West; thirdly, it will open up vast areas to settlement over the entire line; fourthly, it will create a new source of wealth to the Dominion; fifthly, it will allay the persistent irritation in the West over the transportation problem; sixthly, it will demonstrate to the world the enterprise and financial strength of the Canadian people.

I am sure that this last is a matter of very great importance to the people of this Dominion, because we wish to be recognized abroad as a country, young it is true, but strong in our youth. We wish to let the world know that we have resources, and that we have both the courage and the ability to advance. I say boldly, that this measure has the approval of the country at large; it is popular in the West; it is popular in the East. Now, Mr. Speaker, I have, perhaps, taken up more time than I had intended, and let me say, in conclusion, that I have not changed my views one whit on this subject. As they were last year so are they this year. I believe that this scheme is one of the best that could be propounded in the interests of Canada, because it means a minimum of expense with a maximum of advantage to the people of this country. The proposition appeals to me even more strongly than it did last year as being in the highest interest of all Canada, and its consummation will be an epoch in the history of our land to which we may all look forward with the happiest expectations. It will make the beginning of national greatness for us. Let us trust that in the future the great author of this scheme will have the satisfaction of knowing that he built wisely and well for the future of Canada, and if perchance some day a great artist will arise to paint an allegorical picture descriptive of the right hon. gentleman leading the hosts of Canada up the steep declivity of national greatness, the right hon. Prime Minister will be represented carrying a banner on which will be inscribed "Canada's development and victory;" while in the valley below will be seen the Lilliputian figures of hon. gentlemen opposite who have tried and tried in vain to obstruct the passage of this great national measure.

Boils were so painful could not sleep at night.

It is well-known to all that bad blood is the direct cause of all skin diseases and it is necessary for the blood to be cleansed before the eruptions will disappear. For this purpose there is nothing to equal Burdock Blood Bitters as the thousands of testimonials we have on hand will testify.

Mr. Willard Thompson, McNeill's Mills, P.E.I., writes us as follows : "I wish to state to you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Some time ago my blood got out of order and many boils appeared on my neck, legs and arms. They were so painful that I could not sleep at night. After having tried many different remedies without any success, I finally decided, on the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

THE LATEST FOREIGN FASHIONS.

Exquisite Gowns That Meet All the Requirements of the Summer Girl.

Special Correspondence of the Montreal Daily Star.

Paris, May 23.—June sees the crystallization of the summer girl and the summer style. And what a charming picture the June girl makes in all her dainty finery! From the coarsest linen to the sheerest organdie and chiffon she runs the gamut of fashionable fabrics, and appears charming in each and every one of them.

The coarse linens are inexpensive, but when she has braided and embroidered them they look things of beauty, and incidentally give the impression of large and lavish expenditure. For her linen gowns this year's summer girl is more than likely to learn the Hardanger embroideries, those effective drawn and buttonholed designs which the peasant women of Norway execute so beautifully in their simple stitcheries. The English eyelet work, or broderie Anglaise, will decorate many of these; and braidings, which can be just as beautifully executed with the sewing machine as by hand—will appear in the most intricate designs, which are delightfully simple to work when you know how.

And these braidings and embroideries appear not only upon the gowns—whether these be of the coat and skirt variety, the shirt-waist suit or the new princess model which the couturieres here are turning out in linens—but being adept in all the latest whims and wrinkles of fashion she has entire costume en suite, and so designs sufficient of the fancy work to cover a parasol and to make more or less of a lingerie hat, with quantities of lace to supplement her own handiwork.

For early morning wear, when she makes her tramps after health and complexion, the linen shirt-waist suit is in high favour. Many are the little marks which enable the initiated to tell this year's suit from that of last season. The wrist puff has moved up considerably; the sleeve cap, both the real and the simulated, has disappeared; the belt is markedly deeper and points sharply in the front; and the skirt is cut much fuller, and must be short enough to display the shiny black leather shoe.

The pongees and the shantungs, are accorded a generous measure of favour for the early summer wear; and these the summer girl likes best when fashioned in the little blouse coat and skirt, beneath which she wears the very filmiest and sheerest of lingerie blouses. In these she runs to the extremes of bouffantry, which, however, are very cleverly held in check by the deftly fitted girdle, which is so built as to suggest rather than reveal the curves of the waistline.

A new wrinkle in the pongees and shantungs calls for the use of the Oriental embroideries; and these must have more or less gold in their composition to exemplify the very latest mode. In fact, all of the metal threads are in high favour; and some of the exclusive houses are showing bandings and appliques which show not only the gold and silver, but likewise copper in several tints, and aluminum are put to exquisitely artistic uses.

Then for luncheon, which is often taken al fresco, there are the most charming blouses of lace and embroidery and chiffon and mull, to be worn with separate skirts. All of the new laces—the Paris; the repousse, with its intaglio-like design; the many adaptations of the modern Italian and filet laces; the Irish crochet, in both the real hand-made and the marvelously successful machine imitations, and a thousand and one others to which no genre can be ascribed, but which, nevertheless, are most modish for the moment, all of these are mountd upon fitted feather-boned linings of silk, and yards upon yards of chiffon, either in a matching or a faintly contrasting tint, are used with a lavish hand.

And speaking of laces, there are those frivolous-looking little wraps, which truly seem to be designed for show rather than for use. They are so daintily fascinating that no daughter of Eve can possibly resist the temptation to have at least one of them, and lucky is she who can count several in her wradrobe. The allover laces have now to share their popularity in this direction with the flouncings, these being, if anything, a little newer mode, and delightfully do they lend themselves to that deft manipulation which is so necessary to the success of the short coat. Every line of these is just as fluffy and frilly as can be accomplished. The lace is posed over chiffon, and the serrated edges of the flouncings are ruched and ruffled with this filmy fabric cut double. The sleeves are wide and loose and flaring, with as many bouffant ruffles of chiffon as the design will stand; and well do the smart dresser and the clever girl both know that even a large hand will look so small and fairy-like peeping out from beneath all this bewitching fluffiness that but to see is to admire.

Then for the days when she makes a short trip to town to vary the monotony of her country retreat, here is a decidedly smart costume in one of the little pinhead checks that are so popular here. These are in black, brown, blue or lavender and white, and with braids and velvet ribbons they combine smartness with utility to a most delightful degree. One model which a really clever dresser is wearing, is in the black and white checked mohair, and has a fitted Eton with a little vest of white cloth braided in narrow black and gold mixed soutache, the band cuff to the moderate sleeve being en suite. The skirt has a plain front panel, the sides and backs being cleverly fitted over the hips by means of long, pinched tucks. Three very scant volants are posed at equal distances from knee to hem; so scant are they that they resemble deep nun's folds cut on the bias, and each is headed with the mixed black and gold braid, with diamonds in black braid to relieve the plainness. This little model just barely touches the ground all around, and there is a very broad facing of black velveteen in lieu of a hem.

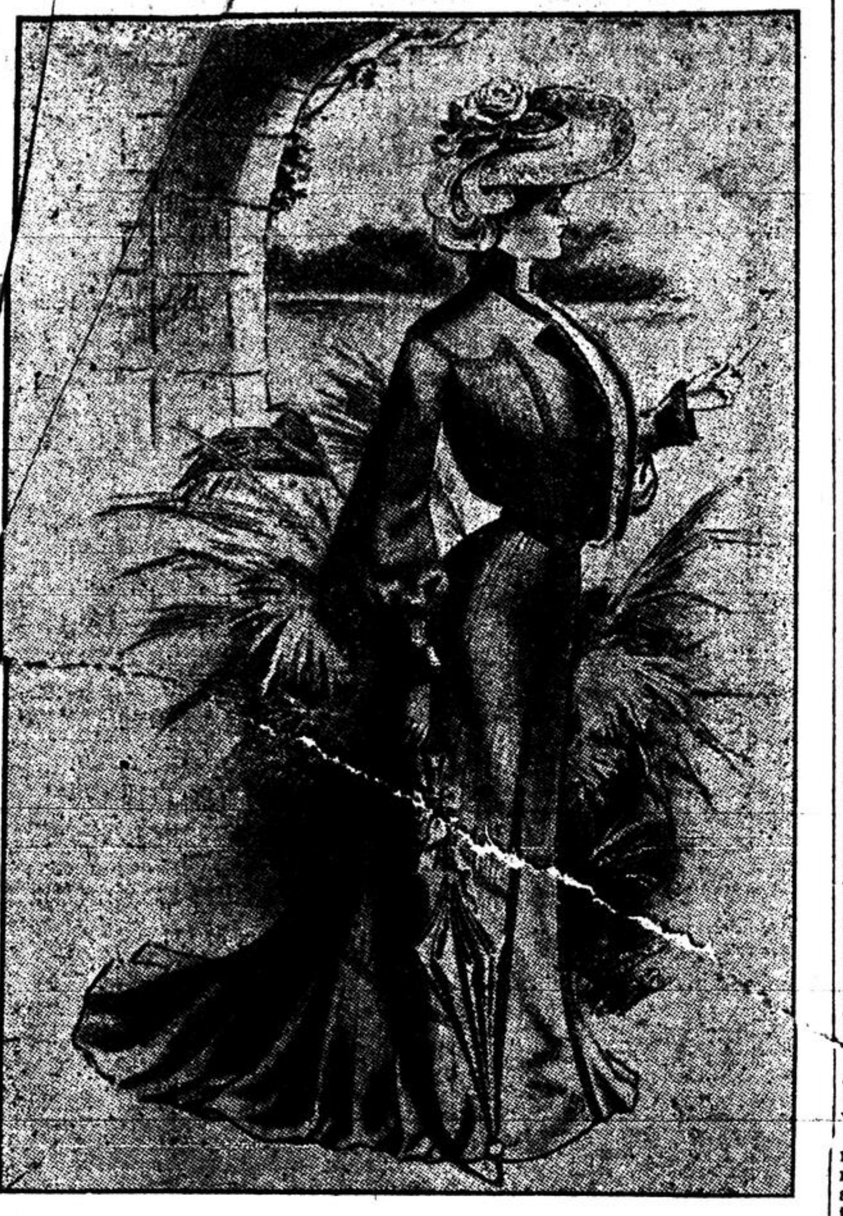
With this is worn a modified torpedo toque, fashioned of a fancy black straw, and the only trimming is a broad scarf of black liberty drawn through a smart jet and gilt buckle which is placed at the left side well toward the back.

But all of her summer millinery is not of the severe order—far from it. There are the bebe and the lingerie hats, which are composed of rows upon rows of lace rufflings, placed one over the other, hanging over the edge of the broad brim and shading the face in the most bewitching fashion. These are fashioned on silken wire frames, and the girl who cannot bend them to curves and angles most becoming to her particular style of beauty had best abjure the bebe hat entirely.

Between these two extremes there are many smart shapes which will fit in for almost any occasion. There is the short-back sailor which comes again to us, but with a far larger brim than of yore. There is the little roll-brim sailor, the Breton sailor, various turbans, chip and Leghorn flats, which, flower-trimmed, can be tortured into almost any desired shape. Indeed, it would seem as though almost any shape, provided that it be becoming to its fair wearer, may be said to be fashionable.

Then the parasols which shade these dainty creations of the milliner's art are to be considered. In the morning, as already hinted, the linen parasol matches the linen gown; and there are the coloured coachings, both in plain and plaids, for various occasions. With the fluffy lingerie hat there is worn an equally fluffy parasol; and these are frequently covered with the lace which fashions the frivolous-looking lace coat, and are much beruched and beruffled with the same chiffon. The plain and dotted silks have appliques and incrustations and empiecements of lace and embroidery; and some of the newest show fancy patterns cut from plaids and appliqued to the plain silks, and vice versa.

But no matter what the style of the parasol, it must have a long shaft handle to proclaim it this season's style.



TAILOR-MADE GOWN OF SMART DESIGN.

LEAVES FROM A NOTE-BOOK.

Eccentricities in Attire.

It is a sign of vulgarity to run to the extreme of fashion. Moderation in everything is the keynote of success.

But there are some women—more particularly girls—who seize upon a certain fad and, like a cat with a mouse, are not happy until they have worried it to death.

Take the pretty style that came in early this year, of wearing frills at the wrist. As long as the frills were fresh and dainty and worn with the right clothes and at the right time, it was altogether a desirable custom. But the fashion, like all fashions, ran to seed. We now see frills on all sorts of garments at every hour of the day, and what was once a fad for a dressy occasion, now flaunts its bedraggled head at market, on a picnic, on the golf links, anywhere in fact.

Another dainty and becoming style was the wearing of tulle around the neck with a chou in front or behind. This too was, and is, a pretty fashion, but to be successful the tulle must be in a state of absolute crispness and freshness. Nothing looks more miserable when limp or soiled than a piece of tulle and it is no small expense to keep oneself in fresh tulle.

Hats and Pompadours.

Another fashion run mad is the wearing of huge hats that flare off the face. A great number of young girls are at present making guys of themselves by wearing hats that flare up in front to the height of a foot or more. Underneath the hat is generally an immense pompadour that suggests all sorts of mechanical devices to inflate it to the required dimensions. The pompadour was hailed as a relief from fringes and bangs, but in its present exaggerated state it is quite as objectionable as they were.

Our young girls should learn to discriminate between being in the fashion and running beyond the fashion. It is better form, as far as that goes, to be a trifle old-fashioned than to run any fashion to an extreme. There is no prettier way for a girl to do her hair than to roll it softly off her face, and there is no uglier way than to puff the soft natural hair out with "rats" and wires and celluloid inventions. All such things make it so obviously artificial.

The World of Women.

Lady Ormonde, who, with her husband, has been entertaining the King and Queen at Kilkenny Castle, in Ireland, is a daughter of the late Duke of Westminster. Although a grandmother she is said to retain her beauty in a wonderful manner.

Kilkenny Castle is the most interesting and beautiful of places, and is of great antiquity. Some of the rooms are almost precisely as they were one thousand years ago. There is an article on the Castle in the Pall Mall Magazine, which is well worth reading. During the visit of the King and Queen to Kilkenny Castle, Lady Ormonde was assisted in entertaining them by her two daughters, the elder of whom, it will be remembered, married an officer who came out of the South African campaign with flying colours—one of the few who did—General Pole-Carew.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, the charming young American actress and a niece of John Drew, is delighting London audiences as "Cynthia," in the play of that name, by H. H. Davies, at Wyndham's Theatre.

"Cynthia," Montrealers will remember, was the light and dainty little comedy in which Miss Margaret Anglin played while on her last visit to this city. It is the story of a young and extravagant American girl, who marries an Englishman and gets into all sorts of financial difficulties from which she is finally extricated.

An exhibition of interest to women is being held in London, namely, that of the Dress Designers. Enamel ornaments seem to form the greater part of the exhibition and are of wonderful beauty.

Among the dresses is one designed by Walter Crane. It is of red linen, edged with white linen, and embroidered with black fleur-de-lys. It is made up in a style at once modern and suggestive of mediaevalism. No doubt it is a splendid picture, but, as the Outlook remarks, probably no one would be more surprised than Mr. Crane should he meet a lady walking down Bond street with it on.

That is always the difficulty with gowns meant to be artistic. They are apt to be unwearably conspicuous. Such efforts are generally seen at their best in the house, with appropriate surroundings.

HER SUMMER COMPLEXION.

Soothing Creams and Lotions the Clever Girl Can Prepare at Home.

The strawberry properly used is the best known cosmetic. It clears the system, cleanses the skin, takes off spots, removes freckles and gives the complexion that pretty glow which is the delight of those who love beauty.

It can be taken internally and it can be applied externally, and in either capacity it is good.

But best of all, at this time of year is the strawberry when applied externally, for there are those who cannot partake of the fruit freely for fear of a rash and there are others who cannot touch it at all because for some reason it acts as a poison.

But, as a cosmetic, the strawberry is above reproach. If the berries can be eaten, it is a very good thing to take them on rising. A pint of strawberries, eaten with plenty of sugar but no cream, makes a very good appetized for the breakfast that is to follow. The ideal beauty breakfast is a pint of strawberries well sweetened, but eaten without milk or cream. This should be followed by a cereal and a well cooked hot bread.

At a sanitarium for wealthy invalids, where people go as much for the complexion as for more serious ills, they give the patients large dishes of oatmeal or other cereals, with freshly sliced strawberries laid in a thick layer over the top. The whole is sweetened, and eaten with a fork. They also spread hot breads thick with unsalted butter and with this dish they serve sliced strawberries, or large berries on the stem.

Obstinate spots on the face can have strawberry juice applied to them and left on for half an hour and afterward washed off with hot water.

For the face, the ripe mashed berry makes an excellent bath, but it cannot be used by all alike. The brown skinned beauty will find her complexion wonderfully improved thereby. The acid will cleanse the complexion, while the rosy glow of the [illegible] berries will impart just a pleasing tinge to the skin.

There are olive beauties who depend upon the strawberry bath from season to season. They use the first berries that come and keep on with the berry bath until the last bit of the crimson fruit has disappeared from the fruit stalls. They claim that it gives them the half rosy look which is so essential to an appearance of youth.

Those who are too fair to use the clear juice of the berry can make a nice complexion bath. Take half a cup of very ripe berries and squeeze the juice into a basin, straining it through a fine cloth. To this quart add a pint of boiling water and a cup of red wine vinegar. This makes a nice bath for the hands and arms, and it is excellent for the face, though the eyes should be kept tightly closed while using it. It can be daubed upon the cheeks and forehead without touching the eyes.

There was an old lady who made her fortune one summer at a famous watering place selling cream of strawberries for the complexion. The recipe for this cream is as follows: Take a heaping tablespoonful of mutton tallow, heat on the fire and into it stir about a tablespoon of powdered oatmeal as fine as flour. To this add half a cup of strawberry juice, stirring vigorously over the fire until it is all of a cream. Finally pour it into little jars and set away to cool. It should be about as thick as corn starch.

The summer woman who wants a complexion as clear as cream and as ripe as peaches should eat spinach. She should take it well cooked, without the addition of hard boiled eggs, and without vinegar. Watercress and all sorts of greens, not forgetting the ever nutritious and delicious lettuce, should also be eaten in plenty.

But it is with lettuce that the summer woman should deal with just now. Lettuce, made into a cream for the skin, is delightful. It should be cut into tiny bits and only the thick, juicy part should be used, the stalk where the acids are. The stalk should be chopped fine and stirred in cold cream while in a liquid state. The juices of lettuce can be extracted with good results and a mixture made which is called lettuce milk. This is very good for the skin.

Take enough lettuce juice to fill half a cup. Add to it half a cup of boiling water and a tablespoon of boracid acid. To this add about ten drops of tincture of benzoin. Bottle and keep for the skin. A more economical recipe is this: Cover a head of lettuce leaves with boiling water. Let simmer, strain and add enough benzoin to make the water milky.

And it is not only to lettuce that credit must be given for the preservation of the skin, for cucumbers claim their share of healing properties. Cucumbers split lengthwise and bound upon the face are a wonderful restorative, while the milk of cucumbers is famous.

To make good milk of cucumbers cut up two large cucumbers and cover them with water. About half a cup is the right amount. Let simmer half an hour. Keep covered so that the water does not simmer off. Take off, strain, add a cup of boiling water, ten grains of powdered borax and enough tincture of benzoin to make the water look milky. This is a delightful skin preparation, and one that can be used freely upon the face and neck and arms.

For freckles there is a remedy which is very good, indeed. It consists of chopped cucumbers, or cucumbers cut in slices with all the juice left in them. They are then bound upon the face in such a way that all the juice will dry on.

There are those who are opposed to the use of hot water on the skin, claiming that it chaps and dries out the cuticle, taking away the natural oils, and makes it more liable to chap and tan. But this is an erroneous idea. Hot water does not injure the skin, but it should be properly prepared.

To every basin of water, intended for the complexion, put enough powdered borax to soften it. And, if soap be used, there should be at least half a dozen waters for rinsing. Soap, left on the face, will dry out the skin almost beyond repair. There should be enough to rinse the face until one can tell by the feeling of the skin that the soap is all off.

The face should be lathered, though this is a thing which a woman rarely does. The complexion can be treated to a heavy coat of soap lather, which is afterward washed off, though not until it has been left upon the skin long enough to soften it. When washed off it leaves the complexion very fine and pink.

Never go out for at least an hour after washing the face with soap, or, indeed, after applying any lotion whatsoever to it, for the skin is very tender after washing, and is more liable to chap. Those who are addicted to summer freckles would do well to remain in the house for at least an hour after washing the face, or the sun will bring out the freckles in great yellow batches.

The Stowmarket Mystery,

Or A LEGACY OF HATE.

Brett gave him a resume of events. A chance allusion to Sir Alan caused the young man to exclaim:

"By the way you have never seen his photograph. He and I were very much alike, you know, and I have brought from my rooms a few pictures which may interest you."

He handed to Brett photographs of himself and his two cousins, and of the older Sir Alan and Lady Hume-Frazer, taken singly and in groups.

The barrister examined them minutely.

"Alan and I," pointed out his client, "were photographed during our last visit to London. Poor chap! He never saw this picture. The proofs were not sent until after his death."

Something seemed to puzzle Brett very considerably. He compared the pictures one with the other, and paid heed to every detail.

"Let me understand," Brett said at last. "I think I have it in my notes that at the time of the murder you were twenty-seven, Sir Alan twenty-four, and Mrs. Capella twenty-six?"

"That is so, approximately. We were born respectively in January, October and December. My twenty-seventh birthday fell on the 11th.

"Stated exactly, you were two years and nine months older than he?"

"Yes."

"You don't look it."

"I never did. We were always about the same size as boys, but we matured at an earlier age than I."

"It is odd. How old were you when this group was taken?"

The photograph depicted a family gathering on the lawn at Beechcroft. There were eight persons in it, three being elderly men.

David reflected.

"So your cousin Margaret was sixteen?"

"Yes."

"She was remarkably tall, well-developed for her age."

"That was a notable characteristic from an early age. We boys used to call her 'Mama,' when we wanted to vex her."

"The three old gentlemen are very much alike. This is the baronet. Who are the others?"

"My father and uncle."

"What! Do you mean to tell me there is another branch of the family?"

"Well, yes, in a sense. My uncle is dead. His son, my age or a little older, for the youngest of the three brothers was married first, was last heard of in Argentina."

"Good Heavens!" he vociferated, "when shall I begin to comprehend this business in its entirety? How many more uncles, and aunts, and cousins have you?"

"I never thought—" he commenced.

"You come to me to do the thinking, Hume. For goodness' sake switch your memory for five minutes from Miss Layton, and tell me all you know of your family history. Have you any other relations?"

"None whatever."

"And this newly-arrived cousin, what of him?"

"He was in the navy, and being of a quarrelsome disposition, was court-martialled for some small outbreak. He would not submit to discipline, and resigned the service. Then his father died, and Bob went off to South America. I have never heard of him since. I know very little about my younger uncle's household. Indeed, the occasion recorded by the photograph was the last time the old men met in friendship. There was a dispute about money matters. My Uncle Charles was in the city, the two estates being left by my grandfather to the two oldest sons. Charles Hume-Frazer died a poor man, having lost his fortune by speculation."

"Have you seen your cousin Robert? Did he resemble Alan and you?"

"We were all as like as peas. People say that our house is remarkable for the unchanging type of its male line. That is readily demonstrated by the family portraits. You have not been in the dining-room or picture-gallery at Beechcroft, or you must have noticed this instantly."

Brett flung himself into a chair.

"The Argentine!" he muttered. "A nice school for a 'quarrelsome' Hume-Frazer."

He had calmed sufficiently to reach for his cigarette case when Smith entered with a note, delivered by a boy messenger.

It was from Winter:

"Have found Okasaki. His name is now Numagawa Jiro, so you were right, as usual. He and Mrs. Jiro live at 17 St. John's Mansions, Kensington."

CHAPTER XI.

MR. "OKASAKI."

In fifteen minutes Brett was bowling along Knightsbridge in a hansom, having left Hume with a strict injunction to rack his brains for any further undiscovered facts bearing upon the enquiry, and turn up promptly at ten o'clock next morning.

Although the hour was late for calling upon a complete stranger, the barrister could not rest until he had inspected the Jiro menage. No. 17 was a long way from the ground level. Indeed, the cats of Kensington, if sufficiently enterprising, inhabited the floor above.

He rang, and was surveyed with astonishment by a very small maidservant.

"Is Mr. Numagawa Jiro at home?" he enquired.

"No, sir, but Mrs. Jiro is."

An infantine wail from one of the apartments showed that there was also a young Jiro.

Brett suggested that she should inform her mistress of his presence.

"Please, sir," whispered the girl, "are you from Ipswich?"

"No: from Victoria Street."

"I only asked, sir, because master is particular about people from Ipswich. They upset missus so."

She vanished into the interior, and came back to usher him into the drawing-room. The flat was expensively furnished, but very untidy. He at once perceived, however, that the "former" Mr. Okasaki was not romancing when he boasted of his artistic tastes. The Japanese articles in the room were gems of faience and lacquer work.

The entrance of Mrs. Jiro drew the barrister's eyes from surrounding objects. He was momentarily stunned. The woman was almost a giantess, and amazingly stout. In a tiny flat, waited on by a diminutive servant, and married to a Japanese, she was grotesque. Originally a very tall and fairly good-looking girl, she had evidently blossomed out like one of the gorgeous chrysanthemums of her husband's favoured land.

Assuredly she had acquired no Japanese traits either in manner or appearance. At first she seemed to be in a genuinely British bad temper, but Brett excelled in the art of smoothing the ruffled plumes of femininity.

"What is it?" she demanded, surveying him suspiciously.

"I wish to see Mr. Jiro," he said, "but permit me to apologize for making such an untimely call. As he is not at home, I must not trouble you beyond enquiring a likely hour to see him to-morrow."

He smiled so pleasantly that the lady became more complaisant.

"He may not be very long—" she commenced, but the youthful Jiro's voice was again heard in fretful complaint.

"My baby is not well to-night," she explained.

"Poor little darling!" said Brett.

He was tempted to add: "What is its name?" but refrained.

"Won't you sit down?" said Mrs. Jiro. "As I was saying, my husband may not be very long—"

She was fated not to complete that doubly accurate sentence, for at that moment a key rattled in the outer door.

"Here he is," she announced; and Mr. Jiro entered.

It was fortunate that the gravity of his errand, no less than his power of self-control, kept Brett from laughing. As it was he smiled very broadly when he greeted the master of the flat, for the little man was small even for a Japanese.

The contrast between him and his helpmate was ludicrous. He could not possibly kiss her unless she stooped, nor would his arms encircle her shoulders.

"And how is my pretty karasu?" he asked, regarding his wife fondly.

"Don't call me that, Nummie!" she cried.

Turning to Brett she explained: "He calls me a crow, and says it is a compliment, but I don't like it."

"In Japan the clow speaks with the voice of love," grinned Jiro.

"Well, it sounds funny in London, so just attend to this gentleman. He has come to see you on business."

Mrs. Jiro forthwith seated herself to listen to the conclave. Brett, though warned by the maid's remark, could not help himself, so he went straight to the point.

"Over a year ago," he said, "you were in Ipswich."

Instantly a severe chill fell upon his hearers. The man shrank, the woman expanded, but before either could utter a word, the barrister continued:

"Personally, I know no one in Ipswich. I have only visited the town twice, during an Assize week. It has come to my knowledge that you gave the police some information with reference to a Japanese weapon which figured in a noted crime, and I have ventured to come here to ask you for additional details."

Mrs. Jiro heaved a great sigh of relief.

"My gracious!" she cried, "you did startle me. I can't bear to hear the name of Ipswich nowadays. I was married from there."

"Indeed!" said Brett, with polite interest.

"Yes; and my people are always hunting me up and making a row because I married Mr. Jiro. Sometimes they make me that ill that I feel half inclined to go with him to Japan. He is always worrying me to leave London, but the more I hear about Japan the less I fancy it."

"Ah, my own little gan—" broke in her husband.

"There you go again," she snapped. "Calling me a gan—a goose, indeed! Now, Mr. Brett, how would you like to be called a wild goose?"

"I have often deserved it," he said.

"I understand enough to keep away from Japan, a place where they have an earthquake every five minutes, and people live in paper houses. Besides, look at the size of your women folk. Just imagine me, Mr. Brett, walking about among those little dolls, like a turkey among tom-tits."

"We give fat people much admilation," said Jiro.

"Nummie, I do hate that word fat. I can't help being tall and well developed; but it is only short women who become 'fat.'"

She hissed the word venomously, as if she possessed the scorpion's fabled power to sting herself. Evidently Mrs. Jiro dreaded corpulence more than earthquakes.

De Miracle

It is better than electricity, because it does not scar or produce new growth. Better than X-ray, because it does not burn, scar or paralyze the tissues under the skin. Better than depilatories, because it is not poisonous; therefore, it will not cause blood poisoning, or produce eczema, which is so common with depilatories, and does not break off the hair, thereby increasing its growth.

Electrolysis, X-ray or depilatories are offered you on the bare word of the operators and manufacturers. De MIRACLE is not. It is the only method which is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

De MIRACLE will be mailed to any address, sealed in plain wrapper, on receipt of $1.00. Your money back without question (no red tape) if it fails to do all that is claimed for it.

DEPRESSION IN G. T. R. STOCKS

Is Due in Part to Government Ownership Proposals.

THE COUNTRY'S PROSPERITY

It is So Assured That Future Benefits Should Not Be Handed Over.

Special Cable from our London Correspondent.

London, June 4.—The depression in Grand Trunk stocks is ascribed in part to bad traffic, and in part also to Mr. R. L. Borden's government ownership proposals. Regarding the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme a strong feeling is held among many Anglo-Canadians that Canada got far beyond the necessity of extravagant state encouragement to any railway. Her prosperity is so assured that the community generally should take care not to hand over future benefits that prosperity to any private concern however well intentioned. A leading authority told me to-day that Canadians here knew that the state ownership proposal had the secret, if not the avowed, approval of many Government supporters.

WINDERMERE.

HOW FINLAND SAVED SCANDINAVIA.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Christiania, June 4. — Scandinavia is anxious that Russia may receive a blow from Japan, so that she may learn to leave neighbouring nations in peace. The improved relations between Norway and Sweden were long ago determined by the Russian attitude toward Finland. The subversion of the Finnish constitution was not only a treachery against Finland, but it also involved a plot against the Scandinavian kingdoms. Russia supposed that the Finlanders would take to arms. A Russian army could then have marched in and drowned the Finnish resistance in blood. The Russians thought the Finlanders' death-cry would ring painfully in Scandinavian ears, provoke the united kingdoms to commit imprudence toward Russia or involve them in complications that might give Russia the desired pretext for letting her army advance further west and take possession of the North Atlantic coast. Finland's submissive attitude has saved Sweden and Norway from the plot. Scandinavia has received a useful lesson to settle its internal affairs amicably.

HOLLAND'S WAR WITH ACHINESE.

Special to the Montreal Star.

The Hague, June 4.—Heavy fighting is going on in Atjeh, in Java. Gen. Van Heutz, commander of the forces, has ordered each captain sent out to operate against the enemy to act on his own responsibility. This is easier for the commanders, as they know exactly what they have to do on the spot, and cannot await orders from the General-in-Chief. Of course, Gen. Van Heutz fixes the plan of campaign. The heaviest recent fighting in the war which has lasted for more than thirty years, has been done by Major Van Daalen, who operated against the village Gajoe Loeos. In the latest battle 163 Achinese were killed, while the Dutch lost three killed and thirty wounded.

GERMAN DOCTORS ARE WELL ORGANIZED.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Frankfort-on-Main, June 4. — War between the Leipsic physicians and the sick benefit organizations has resulted in a decisive victory for the medicos, as the directors of the benefit organizations could not find physicians to fill the ninety-eight vacant district positions. In all parts of Germany physicians had been warned by advertisement not to accept any of the organization's vacancies in the medical line.

To Look for Lost Treasure.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Madrid, June 4. — Authority was recently given an Italian banking house to equip a diving expedition for the purpose of searching the bottom of Vigo bay for the lost silver treasure of the galleons sunk there in 1702 to avoid capture by the Angli-Dutch fleet. The treasure amounts to 50,000,000 pesetas ($9,650,000). Already one galleon has been raised. It contained $2,500,000 pesetas ($482,500) in silver ingots.

The Transportation Commission.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 4. — The Transportation Commission will visit the Government shipping yards at Sorel on Wednesday next. The Commissioners have arranged for the sittings in the province of Quebec and will spend Monday and Tuesday in Montreal. They go from Sorel to Three Rivers and thence to Quebec.

CHAMBERLAINISM IS HAVING EFFECT

Foreign Nations Are Being Influenced in Their Tariff Policy.

THE KING'S VISIT TO KAISER

The Spectator is Worried for Fear Kaiser May Mislead the King.

Special Cable from a Montreal Star Correspondent.

London, June 4.—The Cobden celebrations are in progress and many are the paens in his honour. Foremost among the celebrants are, of course, what have been called the germs of the renewed Manchester school, who claim as their dominant inspirations the love of peace, prudence, economy, and fraternity with other civilized nations— in fact, inspired cosmopolitanism.

Curiously enough, the Cobdenites point to the Anglo-French convention of the Balfour Ministry as the best illustration of their policy in beneficent action, namely, a policy of negotiation and settlement with a view to wide intercourse, not that of war and conquest, whether by armies or tariff.

Mr. Winston Churchill, the most eager of latter day Cobdenites, carries the war into the Chamberlain camp by bluntly declaring that he must resist any policy of a self-contained Empire, which is a kind of lonely fortress victualled for a siege and armed at all points for war. Official Liberalism is more guarded, for it realizes that Imperialism makes an overwhelming appeal to the majority of the British electorate. Its desire is not to decoy this Imperialism, but to foster it along sane and unaggressive lines.

GERMANY AND CHAMBERLAINISM.

The secretary of the Cobden Club exultantly declares that the celebrations are a funeral oration over Chamberlainism. Official Germany clearly thinks otherwise. This week a high Berlin authority has been in London, making authoritative inquiries as to the exact progress of the fiscal movement with results which are likely to affect German commercial policy considerably. Foreign office authorities also declare that the Chamberlain movement, whatever its ultimate results may be, is inducing foreign ministers with no tariffs in contemplation to adopt quite a new and even conciliatory attitude. In the cases of Roumania, Switzerland and some other countries, intended new duties have been actually abandoned or postponed upon British trade representations. They at least see reasons for caution, lest fresh fuel be provided for Mr. Chamberlain's fires.

MR. BRYCE'S HISTORY.

Both Mr. Bryce and Literature, are to be congratulated on their escaping from a loss which might have been irreparable. He is preparing a new edition of the Holy Roman Empire for publication. This edition will be published in America. The Manchester Guardian announces that an interleaved copy containing all his fresh notes and additions went astray a short time since, from a railway station near his house, at Hindleap, and disappeared for a fortnight. It had been sent, by mistake, to the residence of Mrs. Benson, the widow of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, who was then from home, and it lay there until her return.

THE SPECTATOR IS WORRIED.

Th Spectator shivers over the terrible possibilities of the King's visit to the Kaiser at Kiel, recalling the Venezuelan tangle. It fears that the occasion will be seized to work mischief between England and France, or to injure England's ally, Japan. It notes how a multitude of German papers suddenly have been moved to urge an Anglo-German understanding or alliance, and argues that the Kaiser is bound to do something to show his people, who are sore at German isolation, that he is still a potent force in the diplomatic world.

Men best qualified to speak declare that the Spectator is needlessly nervous. The King knows English feeling too well to make a false move in order to keep step with the Kaiser. Mr. Balfour's own declaration will provide the keynote of whatever discussions may take place at Kiel, namely that no British Minister ever seriously contemplates a military alliance with Germany.

TWO PARTIES IN RUSSIAN COUNCILS

The Court Party Is Criticizing Lamsdorff and Kuropatkin.

COURT PARTY SOUGHT WAR

Special Cable from a Montreal Star Correspondent.

Copenhagen, June 4.—Confidential advices from St. Petersburg represent the quarrel between the so-called court party and the Lamsdorff and Kuropatkin element as so violent as seriously to hamper the administration. The court party, inspired by Admiral Alexieff, Gen. Sakaroff, Minister of War, and the notorious Councillor of State, Besobrazeff, eager to clear itself of responsibilities for the war, is heaping abuse on the Foreign Minister and the Commander-in-Chief. Lamsdorff's diplomacy is savagely belaboured and Kuropatkin's administration of the War Office is condemned.

The empty show of these tirades is evident to the intelligent student of recent Russian history. Count Lamsdorff tried all in his power to keep the Czar's Government within reasonable bounds in treating with Japan. Kuropatkin, while co-operating with that effort at the same time hastened military preparations with the utmost energy. The dominant men in the Czar's councils, however, indifferent to the warnings of their enlightened colleagues, contemptuous of the Japanese and consumed by ambitions more personal than national, provoked a rupture in scorn of consequences. Their struggle to distort facts and to reverse the history that preceded the war is quite intelligible in the light of the embarrassments and perils that now encompass the throne.

PROF. KOCH HAS FOUND NEW SERUMS

SCOURGE OF AFRICAN HERDS

German Scientist Was Paid $150,000 for Services by Rhodesian Government.

Special Cable From a Montreal Star Correspondent.

Berlin, June 4.—Prof. Koch has returned to Germany, after eighteen months' research in British Africa, with the announcement that he has discovered serums for the prevention of the cattle, horse and mule epidemics which have been killing 90 per cent. of the African herds, especially animals brought from the United States.

Prof. Koch has further determined that the African rinderpest is altogether different from Texan variety, which, by American importation, has heretofore been considered the chief cause of cattle mortality in South Africa.

Koch's new cattle serum consists of a chemical solution of blood taken from animals that had the disease. The inoculations are harmless and eventually render the animals absolutely immune.

It has been found possible to combat the horse and mule disease by treating healthy animals with the blood of animals which have died and then administering the serum, whereupon the animals experience a light attack of sickness, finally becoming immune.

For his services Koch received $150,000 from the Rhodesian Government. He declined, however, a rich offer which would have involved his leaving the service of the German Government and settling permanently in Africa.

JAPAN'S FIELD TELEPHONE IN A COREAN HUT.

LETTER FROM WIFE OF ONE OF RAISULI'S CAPTIVES.

London, June 4. — Mrs. Cromwell Varley has sent her relatives in Norfolk an interesting description of the seizure of Ion Perdicaris and Mr. Varley, her husband, by bandits near Tangier, Morocco. After describing the sudden attack of the bandits and capture of the outbuildings, she continues:

"Hearing a noise, uncle and Cromwell rushed out to see what was the matter. They were immediately surrounded and overpowered and bound. When we reached the scene the bandits threw mother and myself down a flight of steps, warning us not to interfere in any way, so we retired. One of the maids, however, with great pluck and presence of mind, slipped away to the telephone and shouted: 'Thieves, they are killing us.'

"Before she could say more Raisuli dashed the instrument from her hand and said he would shoot us if we called for help. We waited ten minutes while uncle, as we thought, was arranging terms with the bandits, when a soldier informed us that Raisuli had carried off uncle and Cromwell."

The letter confirms the receipt of communications from Mr. Perdicaris acknowledging that he is wel treated. The captives are lodged in a Moorish hut, with an ante-room in which one of Perdicaris' soldiers sleeps. This soldier voluntarily became a captive so that he might accompany Perdicaris. The letter concludes: "I have been able to send them clothing and provisions."

Tobacco in Switzerland.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Geneva, June 4.—Tobacco is largely cultivated in Canton Fribourg. Many small land owners have taken up the cultivation of the weed. Several villages have entered the field of competition. Swiss tobacco is not of particularly good quality. It is cheap and is used as cigar filling.

A Berthier Railway Project.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, Ont., June 4.—The Railway Committtee of the Senate yesterday considered the St. Maurice Valley Railway bill which was explained by Mr. Jacques Bureau as being a line from the St. Lawrence River to the Grand Trunk Pacific, in the county of Berthier. Mr. Landry objected to it being pronounced for the general advantage of Canada, because it connected with another line which did not yet exist. The bill was reported without amendment.

PRINCESS MATHILDE'S JEWELS SOLD.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, June 4.—The chief feature in the sale of Princess Mathilde's jewels was a pear-shaped pink diamond, which was knocked down after lively bidding to Mme. Frank, for 69,100f. ($13,820). A dog collar, with five rows of 320 pearls in all, capable of division into two bracelets, went to M. Hutter for 53,150f. ($10,730). A small travelling carved clock in bronze and gilt, made by Breguet, in 1810, for Napoleon I., was taken by M. Ducrey for 10,400f. ($2,080).

PORTUGUESE ARMY BEING REORGANIZED.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Lisbon, June 4. — As the Anglo-Portuguese convention provides that Portugal must keep open the ports of Fayal in the Azores and Lagos for the use of British squadrons in case of war, active preparations to that end are being made in view of the far-eastern crisis. The Government, at British expense, it is reported, has purchased a new fortress and field artillery equipment and overhauled the army in all its branches.

WILL CLAIM ALL OF CANADA SOON.

Special to The Montreal Star.

New York, June 4.—The New York Sun, referring to Canada's disposition to assert and maintain proprietory rights in Hudson Bay, says: "The real question concerns Canada's possible loss of title to part of the bay, through the abandonment and operation of what may be called 'squatter sovereignty.' The unsatisfactory Alaska boundary award awoke the Canadian recollection of the still more unsatisfactory Ashburton treaty of 1842, and Canada is inclined to determine the whereabouts of her northern line for herself. The question to which we have referred as 'squatter sovereignty' arises from the fact that hitherto Canadians have made no effort to profit by the opportunities afforded by the region, while American whalers have for many years operated profitably in those waters virtually unmolested and have established themselves in winter homes on the land."

The Laurier bill recently introduced proposes that a license fee be enforced against all aliens whaling in those waters or using the Canadian shore for trying out the blubber obtained at sea beyond the three mile limit. The mission of the steamer Neptune is to ascertain the condition and extent of American activities in the vicinity. Canadian attitude opens the possibility that another commission will be necessary at no distant date. If Canada shows a strong inclination to stand by her claim, a highly interesting situation is likely to result."

BIG PRICES PAID FOR TAPESTRY.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Paris, June 4.—The sale of tapestries of the late Mlle. Leclerq has attracted an enormous crowd of amateurs and men and women of fashion to the Hotel Drouot. The top price was attained by the Beauvais tapestry, "Psyche Entering the Temple of Hymen," after Boucher. The bids came slowly to 60,000f. ($12,000), when a sudden contest arose between MM. Machain, Neighe and Mme. Agenor Doucet. The last obtained the prize at 101,000f. ($20,200). The tapestry is of remarkable quality, but the colors are somewhat faded.

A Louis Seize sofa and four armchairs, covered in Anbusson tapestry, were bought for an amateur by Joras at $599,000f. ($11,800). The tapestry represented pastoral scenes after Boucher, and hunting scenes after Oudry.

HER HUSBAND WAS A DRUNKARD

A PATHETIC LETTER

"I had for a long time been thinking of trying the Tasteless Samaria Prescription treatment on my husband for his drinking habits, but was afraid he would discover that I was giving him medicine and the thought unnerved me. I hesitated for nearly a week but one day when he came home very much intoxicated and his week's salary nearly all spent I threw off all fear and determined to make an effort to save our home from the ruin I saw coming, at all hazards. I sent for your Tasteless Samaria Prescription, and put it in his coffee, as directed, next morning, and watched and prayed for the result. At noon I gave him more, and also at supper. He never suspected a thing, and I then boldly kept right on giving it regularly, as I had discovered something that set every nerve in my body tingling with hope and happiness, and I could see a bright future spread out before me—a peaceful happy home, a share in the good things of life, an attentive, loving husband, comforts and everything else dear to a woman's heart; for my husband had told me that whiskey was vile stuff and he was taking a dislike to it. It was only too true, for before I had given him the full course he had stopped drinking altogether, but I kept giving him the medicine till it was gone, and then sent for another lot, to have on hand if he should relapse, as he had done from promises before. He never has, and I am writing you [illegible] this letter to tell you how thankful I am. [illegible] I honestly believe it will cure the worst cases."

FREE SAMPLE and pamphlet giving full particulars, testimonials and price sent in plain sealed envelope. Correspondence sacredly confidential. Enclose stamp for reply. Address The Samaria Remedy Co., No 25 Jordan Street, Toronto, Canada.

Also for sale by J. A. Harte, 1780 Notre Dame street, and J. H. Harte, 2450 St. Catherine street.

The Tourist Season and the Hotels.

Notwithstanding the wet weather of the past days there is a hopeful feeling among the hotel men at the prospects of the opening season for tourist traffic.

The hotel men expect the tourist travel will begin as soon as the weather man smiles on the land once more, and summer starts in real earnest.

Although there is practically little or no tourist traffic so early in the year as the first week in June, especially from the United States, there had been a considerable increase in the number of European travellers up to date at the Windsor, as compared with this time last year.

Every boat brings scores of wealthy old country men and women who have heard of the fame of Canada and wish to see for themselves the things of which they have heard.

The record to date of United States tourist travel for year does not does not some effect on the numbers coming to the travel from England and the continent.

The Montreal hotel man, therefore, does not look upon the future through gloomy spectacles.

Before the season is over there will come the crowds that wish to see old Ville Marie, and when they do come, everything will be in readiness for them.

The Queen's, Carslake's, the St. Lawrence Hall, the Place Viger, all report fair prospects.

The St. Louis Exposition may have some effece on the numbers coming to Montreal this season, but the opinion is expressed that such effect may very easily be overestimated.

Railway Notes.

General Manager McNicoll, of the C.P.R., is on a tour over the Company's lines west of Toronto.

Mr. James P. Gay has been appointed manager of the Milwaukee and Michigan line and the G.T.R. Despatch, with offices at Bush street station, Detroit.

In the city yesterday were Mr. Fred. Sopher, travelling agent of the Union Pacific in Boston and Montreal; Mr. H. G. Locke, general agent in Boston for the Chicago and Alton Railway.

The C. P. R. has now in the press its folder called "Open Season," this is published annually and reates to fish and game. It is later this year than usual, owing to the fact that new legislation in the provinces on game could not be obtained until late.

As a result of the recent meeting held at the Windsor Hotel between the Classification Committee of the Canadian Freight Association and the stove manufacturers of Montreal and Toronto, some minor changes were made in the freight rates. These were satisfactory to the manufacturers.

The announcement is made by the G.T.R. that Mr. R. W. Long has been appointed divisional freight agent at Stratford, in the place of Mr. James P. Gay, resigned, and that Mr. Long will be succeeded as commercial agent at Buffalo, N.Y., by Mr. E. J. Hilliard. Mr. Hilliard, for the past year, has been travelling freight agent at Moncton, N.B., and was for many years prior to that in the company's division freight agent's office here.

"Routes and Fares for Summer Tours for season 1904," is the title of an interesting brochure just issued by the G. T. R. The publication deals extensively with the many and varied trips the public are offered to various resorts on and reached via the lines of the Grand Trunk System. It tells you how to get there, what the journey will cost, what hotel accommodation is provided at the different resorts, in general the publication is one that is recommended to the public to look over before deciding on their outing for the summer of 1904.

The Central Vermont and Delaware and Hudson railways will run excursions from New York to Montreal for St. Jean Baptiste day, June 24, good coming the day preceding. Tickets will be sold at single fare for the round trip, valid to return from this city on or before July 2nd. These tickets on the Central Vermont will be sold via Springfield and on the Delaware and Hudson via Albany. The Delaware & Hudson Railway will also sell tickets from Troy, Albany and Schenectady to Montreal and return, via Rouse's Point, on the same basis.

A prominent passenger official had something to say to-day in regard to a discussion which took place in the House of Commons the other day over the inability of the G. T. R. and C. P. R. to make connections at Brockville. He pointed out that the G. T. R. express from Toronto arrives at Brockville at 2.38 in the afternoon, while the C. P. R. train for Ottawa leaves Brockville at 2.45 p.m., arriving at Smiths' Falls at 3.40 p.m. The C. P. R. express from Toronto leaves the latter point at 3.46 p.m., arriving in Montreal at 7.15 p.m. The C. P. R. express for St. John and Halifax leaves Montreal at 7.25, while connections on the Rutland and N. Y. C. are made at Montreal Junction at about the same time.

In view of these schedules, the official in question says, it would be absolutely impossible for the C. P. R. train to delay its run out of Brockville for more than ten minutes. If it did so, while accommodating possibly a score of passengers anxious to get to Smith's Falls and Ottawa from along the line of the G. T. R., hundreds would be discommoded by missing connections for points further afield.

The Grand Trunk Telegraphers.

Mr. D. Campbell, the third vice-president of the International Order of Railroad Telegraphers of America, after having had two conferences with General Manager Hays regarding a dispute that has arisen between that company and its men on the question of wages, has returned to Ottawa. Negotiations will be resumed at a later date. Neither Mr. Hays nor Mr. Campbell was willing to speak when asked for a statement of what transpired.

PROCESSION OF CORPUS CHRISTI

Routes Which Will Be Followed in Various Parishes.

CITY CHURCHES COMBINE

Notre Dame, Cathedral, St. Patrick's, and St. James to Celebrate Together.

To-morrow will witness the grand and imposing ceremony of Corpus Christi procession. The Blessed Sacrament will be taken from the Tabernacle and carried in solemn procession through the streets of the city. According to recent regulations of Archbishop Bruchesi, each parish may have its own procession.

As far as the centre of the city is concerned, the four great parishes—Notre Dame, Cathedral, St. Patrick's and St. James, with the new parish of St. Helen, will form but one for that occasion. Notre Dame Church will be the point of departure, and the ending of the procession.

From Notre Dame Church, the route of the procession will be along Notre Dame street to St. Lambert Hill, then up St. Lawrence street to St. Catherine, to St. Alexander street, thence to Lagauchetiere, then to Beaver Hall Hill, Victoria square, St. James street, Place d'Armes square and back to Notre Dame Church, where a low mass will be celebrated.

The main repository will be at St. Patrick's Church. Smaller altars will, however, be erected along the route, at the Nazareth chapel and the Sacred Heart convent, on St. Alexander street.

In St. Mary's parish, the procession will pass on the following streets: Craig, Notre Dame, Iberville, Logan, Fullum and Demontigny.

At Mile End—La Haye square, St. Lawrence, Laurier, Casgrain, Maguire, Gaspe, Cadieux, Gaspe, Villeneuve, St. Hippolyte streets and St. Joseph Boulevard.

In St. Henri—Place St. Henri, Notre Dame, St. Augustine, St. Ambrose, St. Rose and Notre Dame streets.

In St. Ann's, St. Anthony's, St. Michael's and St. Agnes, the procession will take place in the church.

On Sunday, June 12, St. Ann's will have the procession around the parish.

GRADUATION OF NURSES AT JEFFREY HALE HOSPITAL

The ceremonies in connection with the graduation of nurses from the Jeffrey Hale Hospital, Quebec, took place recently. Five ladies graduated, Misses M. MacKedie, F. L. Imrie, H. A. MacKay, H. H. Hunter and J. E. Martin. Each was presented with a diploma and a pin badge.

Dean Williams at the request of the chairman, delivered a short address in which he referred to the approaching departure of the matron, Miss Brown, and the regret felt at her loss. He complimented her successor and prophesied great things from her. He eulogized the nurse's profession and stated that they were following in the steps of Jesus Christ.

Mr. J. C. Thomson, the oldest governor of the hospital, then delivered an address in which he referred to the fact that the hospital, while it did not solicit money from the public, still it did not refuse it when it was offered. It could not, however, accept money when it was realized from theatrical entertainments, fancy dress balls, mask balls, etc.

DOMINION EXHIBITION.

Transportation of Goods to the Big Winnipeg Fair.

Both the C. P. R. and the G. T. R. have issued circulars regarding the transportation of goods intended for exhibition at the Dominion Industrial Exhibition, which is to be held at Winnipeg between July 25th and August 7th.

On either line goods will be carried from points in Ontario and Quebec, all rail, at full tariff rates plus cartage charges at cartage points, all charges thereon to be prepaid.

The exhibits, if returned over the same route by which forwarded, will be carried to the original shipping point at half tariff rates provided they are accompanied by certificate from the Secretary of the Exhibition to the effect that the property has not changed ownership. If such certificate is not produced when the property is presented for return shipment, full tariff rates will be charged. The certificate should be made in duplicate, one copy to be used as mentioned in the following clause:

Should it be desired to forward the exhibits to other exhibitions before returning to the original shipping point, same will be carried from Winnipeg to such subsequent exhibition points at half tariff rate, and from the last exhibition point to final destination, viz., original shipping point, at half tariff rate provided the conditions set forth in the second clause as to certificate and non-change of ownership are complied with.

LINEN MILL FOR NORTH-WEST.

Mr. Dickson, of Edmonton, Goes to Scotland for Machinery.

Mr. Dickson, of Edmonton, N. W. T., who left by the Tunisian, yesterday, is on his way to Scotland for the purpose of purchasing machinery for a linen mill, which he intends to establish in Edmonton. Mr. Dickson remarked that he was going to "talk Canada" while in his native land. He believed that when the advantages that were to be gained by coming to Canada were pointed out to Scotchmen, hundreds would cross the sea to the land of the maple.

Mr. Dickson said the crop prospects in the West are of the brightest. Seeding operations have been a little backward as compared with last year, but the height of grain at the present time is equal to what it was at this date last year. There had been a sufficient rainfall, and he was looking forward to a record harvest.

LONGUEUIL HAS NEW PROTESTANT SCHOOL.

Opening Ceremonies Were Attended by Many Prominent Educationalists.

The Protestant ratepayers of Longueuil now have a school of which they may well be proud. The new structure was formally opened a few days ago, and is now occupied by the teaching staff and the pupils. The principal of the school is Mr. D. M. Gilmour, and he is assisted in his duties by the Misses A. Hamilton and E. Hutler.

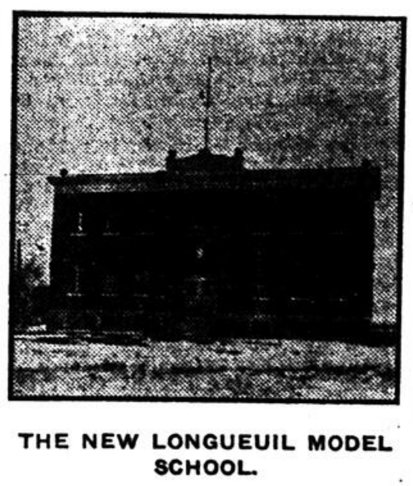
The new school is situated on a plot of ground containing 70,000 feet, donated by the Dominion Government. The building cost a little over $10,000, and is sufficient to accommodate two hundred children.

This school is the model school for the town and parish of Longueuil. It is set apart as a separate school municipality, and although the Protestants are in a minority, they were, by an order in council, adopted some six years ago, erected as a school municipality with commissioners, instead of trustees.

The first Protestant school was opened at Longueuil about sixty years ago, quite near the site of the new structure.

The opening ceremonies were presided over by Mr. Andrew Hardie, chairman of the School Commissioners. The other school commissioners were also present, viz.: Messrs. William Baker, Peter Ferris, William Murray and John Smiley. Mr. W. Simpson Walker, the secretary-treasurer, addressed the gathering.

Among the visitors were: Rev. Dr. Scrimger, principal of the Presbyterian Theological College; Rev. Dr. Amaron, moderator, of the Presbytery of Montreal; Rev. F. P. Walker, of New York, and Rev. Mr. Brown, of Montreal South. All spoke of the necessity for more expansive and extended interest in education.



THE NEW LONGUEUIL MODEL SCHOOL.

A WESTERN WONDERLAND.

The Glories of the Yellowstone and the Rockies.

"Wonderland, 1904," is the title of a daintily illustrated brochure descriptive of the American North-west. It embraces a number of articles on a variety of topics. The initial article carries one to "The Haunts of Wild Game" in that vast region lying along the Canadian border, particular mention being made of the points where large game are to be found in the greatest abundance. Some attention is also given to a description of localities that are most apt to delight the angler. In this way the traveller is carried clean across the continent from the great lakes to Puget Sound by way of the Northern Pacific. At the latter point the tourist may depart in search of Alaskan game, which is in a class by itself and is now claiming the thoughts of many hunters. Indeed, the recent construction of the White Pass and Yukon Railway across the White Pass from Skaguay has opened up a region to tourists and hunters heretofore an unknown land and one full of surprises and beauties. "The Greatest Park in the World" naturally refers to the Yellowstone National Park, and is applied to this reservation on the testimony of innumerable world travellers. In recent years quite a number of improvements have been made in the park which add immeasurably to the pleasure of the traveller. The Northern Pacific has erected a station at Gardiner, Mont., within a stone's throw of the new lava arch that constitutes the official entrance to the park. If one desires to gain an idea of what luxury in travel may become one has only to read the article under the caption "What Travellers Say of the North Coast, Limited." In "The Lewis and Clark Renaissance" some idea is given of the growth of the American West, which found its first and greatest territorial expansion in the Louisiana Purchase and its initial overland exploration in the Lewis and Clark expedition. "Wonderland" may be obtained on application to Mr. George W. Hardisty, who, as representative of the Northern Pacific in this city, has his office in the Temple Building.

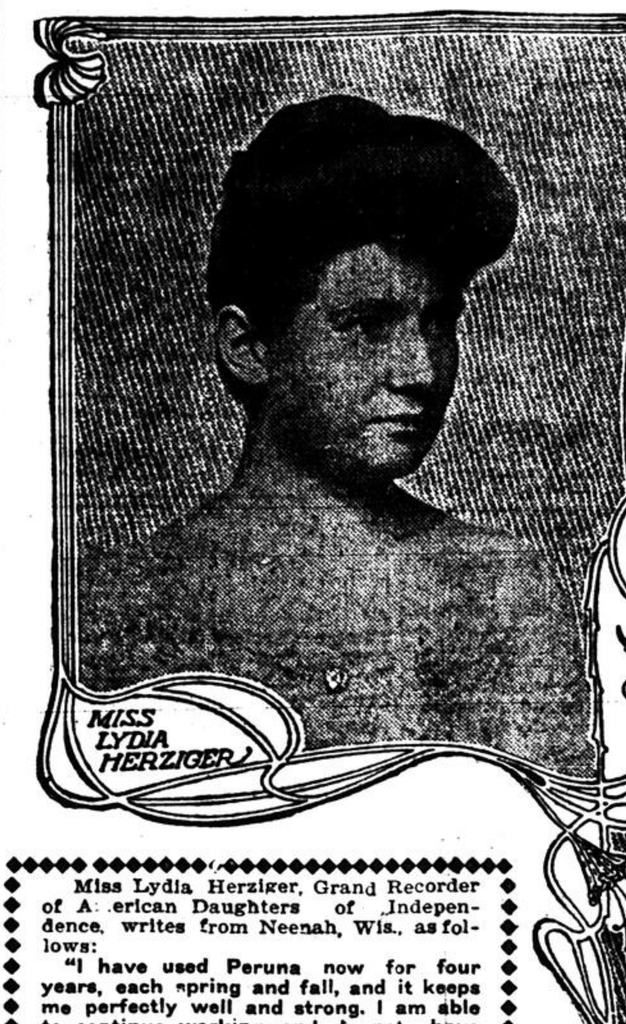
HOW TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN ESCAPED DREAD CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Catarrh Robs Women of Health and Beauty. Pe-ru-na Makes Women Healthy and Beautiful.

Miss Ellen Crawley, 241 S. Madison Avenue, La Grange, Ill., writes:

"For years I have been a sufferer with catarrh of the throat and larynx. I got hoarse on the slightest provocation, and my voice became weak and tired very easily. I could not talk for any length of time, and it was very annoying. I was very much discouraged, as nothing seemed to help me until a friend persuaded me to give Peruna a trial. I did not have much confidence in it, as everything else had failed me, but I tried it just to please my friend. My delight, therefore, may be imagined when I began to improve at once, and I have kept on improving until my voice is strong, and I am never hoarse now. Peruna has done a great deal for me."—Miss Ellen Crawley.



MISS ELLEN CRAWLEY

"I have used Peruna now for four years, each spring and fall, and it keeps me perfectly well and strong. I am able to continue working and do not have to take a three months' rest, as I used to do every year. This is a great comfort to me, as I was not able to afford such a long rest. I find that it is a great preventive for colds and coughs, and soon rids the system of all disease and is an admirable medicine. I can honestly endorse it."—Miss Lydia Herziger.

Dr. Hartman has probably done more than any other physician toward popularizing a means of escape from the facial deformities, such as watery eyes, twisted nose, offensive breath, dry, cracked lips, due to the ravaging effects of catarrh.

He has made chronic catarrh a life-long study. His remedy, popularly known as Peruna, is the most famous remedy for catarrh in existence.

Probably there is not a man or woman, boy or girl, within the bounds of the United States that has not heard of Peruna. By far the largest majority have used Peruna.

The multitude of people that have been cured of chronic catarrh by using Peruna can never be known.

Many a girl has regained her faded beauty, many a matron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by using Peruna.

The women have not been slow to discover that a course of Peruna will do more toward restoring youthful beauty than all the devices known to science.

While it is true that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located, yet it is advisable for everyone to use Peruna as a preventive, and not wait until catarrh has fastened itself in some part of the system.

Peruna acts quickly and beneficially on the inflamed mucous membranes lining the different organs of the body. Thus it will cure catarrh wherever located.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HUMANE SOCIETY MEDAL AWARDED TO MR. NUNNS.

Mr. George Gillespie, honorary secretary, Montreal branch, Royal Canadian Humane Association, has been advised that the medal of the society has been awarded to Mr. Frederick Lorne Nunns for bravery in saving life. The following are the particulars: On the 12th of August, 1903, Miss Carrie Trenholme and Mr. Frederick Lorne Nunns, of Montreal, were sailing on Lake Massawippi, when a sudden squall upset their canoe. Miss Trenholme and Mr. Nunns held on to it for about two hours, hoping to be seen and rescued. At the end of this time they decided that the only chance was for Mr. Nunns to swim to the shore about a mile distant. This he succeeded in doing with great difficulty, the water being very rough. On landing in an exhausted state he had to make his way for a mile or so through thick brushwood to a boat-house, the door of which he found locked. With assistance he broke open the door, got out a skiff, and rowed to Miss Trenholme's assistance, rescuing her when she was greatly exhausted.

THE ILLS OF CHILDHOOD.

Every child in the country needs, at some time or other, a medicine to correct the ills incident to childhood. If Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house and occasionally given to the little ones they will prevent illness and make the little ones rugged, strong and cheerful. Mothers should insist on having this medicine because it contains no opiate or harmful drug, and children take the Tablets as readily as they take candy. If you have a neighbor who has used the Tablets ask her and she will tell you what splendid satisfaction they give. Here is what one mother, Mrs. Wm. Sinclair, Hebron, N.B., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets with so much satisfaction that I do not feel safe when I have not got a box in the house. I am sure that other mothers will be quite as well pleased with them." You can get the Tablets through your druggist or by mail at 25 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Boy Died of Excess of Joy.

Ottawa, June 4. — Francis James, the eleven-year-old son of H. F. James, of Kemptville, has died in St. Luke's Hospital from a paralytic stroke, brought on by sudden joy. The boy had been ill of an abcess of the brain and all hope of his recovery had been given up. Under the doctor's care, however, he began to recover. But when the good news of his possible recovery was told him, the shock to the brain was so great as to bring on paralysis of the respiratory organs, which proved fatal.

An Australian Fleeced in New York.

New York, June 4.—The Times says a wealthy Australian, who arrived in New York ten days ago from London, was swindled out of $25,000 by a band of wire-tappers a week ago in a Broadway Hotel near 42nd street. On account of his large business connections and also because of the fact that he was equally guilty with the wire-tapping operators, the Australian made no report of the matter to the police, but sailed on the following day for London.

MANY ITALIANS GETTING WORK

Fewer Applied for Relief This Morning Than for a Week.

EXPERIENCE OF DELEGATION

Went to City Hall to See Mayor, But Could Not Tell What They Wanted.

The Italian situation shows signs of improvement. At least, the clouds have lifted to a certain extent, and the gloom which was the result of hundreds of Italians hungry, and unable to get work, is beginning to pass away.

About thirty have obtained employment on the farms in the neighbourhood of Montreal. Farmers, reading in the Star of the number of men looking for work, have called at the office of the Italian Immigration Aid Society, and engaged men. In addition fifty have been engaged for work in the asbestos mines, and last night a few called upon Mr. Candori to say they had obtained jobs on the C.P.R., and to thank him for his kindness in their time of need. The number applying for bread this morning was smaller than on former occasions.

About two hundred Italians went to the City Hall yesterday to see the Mayor, but instead of going in as a deputation they waited without while one of their number entered. Unable to make himself understood he wandered about, until some kindly disposed person gave him a quarter. As he could not explain his errand he returned to his companions.

The Aid Society is now considering the prospects for the winter when these men will return from the farms without enough money to keep them through the cold months. Work in the lumber camps is what many of them are well fitted for, but unfortunately their time with the railroads is never ended when the lumber camps are engaging men.

SERUM FOR TYPHOID AND TUBERCULOSIS.

Hygiene Committee Asks Dr. de Martigny to Obtain a Supply.

The Hygiene Committee of the city is taking steps to provide against the spread of tuberculosis. At the meeting held yesterday, Dr. Adelstan de Martigny, who is leaving for Europe, was commissioned to secure some of the serum discoverd by Dr. Marmoreck, of the Pasteur Institute, and also some of Dr. Miragliano's anti-tuberculosis vaccine. These have been tried with good effect in Europe, and the aldermen believed it would be well to use them in this city.

Dr. Dagenais, president of the Health Committee, announced that he would try to secure from the City Hall sub-committee apartments at the City Hall where tuberculous patients could be treated.

Dr. de Martigny will also be asked to try and secure some of Dr. Chantenesse's serum against typhoid, as well as that for the same purpose discovered by Dr. Marmoretti.

The committee recommended the immediate construction of sewers on Christopher Columbus avenue, between Mount Royal and Marianne street.

Dr. Louis Laberge, the Medical Health Officer, was instructed to see whether the houses where the unemployed Italian labourers are staying are kept in a sanitary condition.

STONECUTTERS' STRIKE NEARING SETTLEMENT.

What the Bookbinders, Plumbers, and Steamfitters are Doing.

Indications are the strike of the stonecutters will be at an end in a day or two.

The only thing which now separates the masters and the men is the question of the eight-hour day.

At the meeting of the stonemasons and contractors it was agreed, after considerable discussion, to pay the union schedule rate of wages, but exception was taken to the eight-hour clause.

No effort was made to-day to settle the bookbinders' strike. The men are waiting for an answer from their headquarters regarding the calling of a general strike. In all likelihood the question will be decided at next Wednesday night's meeting of the union.

The plumbers and steamfitters last week received $1,000 from the various local unions in the United States.

The 'Longshoremen will hold their annual meeting to-morrow afternoon at 1242a Notre Dame street. The Labour Department, the Labour Gazette and the immigration policy of the Dominion Government will be again up for discussion.

LORD DUNDONALD ON PEACE ESTABLISHMENTS

Reception to General Officer Commanding at Military Institute.

At the reception held in his honour in the Military Institute yesterday evening, Lord Dundonald, the General Officer Commanding, made a brief address, in which he dealt principally with the peace service establishments. The subject, he said, was not yet clear to all minds.

According to the new arrangements the companies would be increased in strength by the addition of an additional captain and a subaltern. These officers would draw pay in peace times and in war time they would be left behind to recruit a duplicate regiment. It would now be possible to recruit the regiments up to a thousand men, but it would not be essential that all should drill. They could be recruited and sworn in for three years for war service. There would, however, be one day in each year set aside, known as Muster Day, at which every man on the roll must report.

Regarding the duties of the extra officers, the General stated that he had not yet decided how they should be divided. He had thought of putting a 2 opposite their names, but afterwards it appeared to him that this would be putting an earmark on them. Then he thought that the best way was to make only one list, and allow the commanding officers to divide the work. He asked those present for their opinion, and it was unanimous that only one list should be made.

The General also stated that the new order of things would add 1,500 officers to the strength of the militia, and that the regiments would be 1,000 men strong, and the cavalry corps 700.

Speaking of the service (khaki) uniform, the General said that he did not know how soon the Government intended to issue it.

LAW SETS A SLOW PACE FOR AUTOMOBILES.

Chauffeurs Indignant at Limitations Legislature Has Placed on Them.

Those who operate automobiles in the city are much perturbed over an enactment just passed by the Legislature saying these machines must not run faster than six miles an hour in cities and towns. The City Council was considering the speed of automobiles, but the Legislature has settled the question, both for Montreal and outside places.

The enactment passed by the Legislature says these machines must not run faster than six miles an hour in villages, towns and cities, and fifteen miles on country roads. Six miles an hour is the gait at which horses are allowed to trot by the civic by-laws.

Another important provision of the new statute is to the effect that should horses display any sign of fear, on the approach of an automobile, the chauffeur or person in charge of the latter must first slow up considerably, and, if required to do so, by the simple wave of the hand, on the part of the horse driver, come to a full stop, until the horse has become manageable.

The new law further enacts that the word "automobile" includes all vehicles operated by any other power but muscular force, excepting railway or tramway cars or motor vehicles, run on rails, and it provides a penalty of $20 or one month's imprisonment for an infraction of any of its provisions.

THE MYSTERY OF THE ARTIST, BARNSLEY.

Report That He is at Woodlands—Rumour That He Has Been Killed.

The absence from home of James M. Barnsley is still a mystery, but two Montrealers say that they saw him near Woodlands, the next station to Chateauguay, yesterday, and that a number of children were teasing him. Friends will leave for Woodlands this afternoon.

There is another story to the effect that the man who was found mangled to death on Thursday morning on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks, near St. Dominique, was Barnsley. A piece of cloth found near the place where the accident occurred is said to correspond with the cloth of the coat worn by Barnsley when he left home.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Tuddenham, wife of Mr. Albert E. Tuddenham, who died Wednesday night, took place yesterday afternoon. The deceased lady was an elocutionist, well known throughout the city. Her talent, which was highly appreciated, was always available for any charitable purpose and especially in connection with the entertainment of the aged, infirm and afflicted. The service in the Westmount Baptist Church, was conducted by Rev. Frank S. Weston, the pastor, assisted by Rev. Dr. Gordon, and Rev. J. R. Webb. CONFERENCE VOTES FOR CHURCH UNION

Methodists Pass Unanimously a Motion Favouring It.

ALMA COLLEGE IN TROUBLE

Conference Protests Against Church Institutions Obtaining Aid From Public Taxes.

The afternoon session of the Montreal Methodist Conference was occupied principally with discussions and resolutions which arose out of the speech of Dr. Carman, the general superintendent, in the morning.

The question of church union came up for considerable comment. All the speakers were in favour of it. A deputation was received from the Congregational churches of the city, consisting of Rev. Hugh Pedley, Emmanuel Church; Rev. Dr. Warriner, of the Congregational Theological College, and Rev. E. H. Tippet, of Calvary church. Each gave a short address. A resolution was moved by Rev. Dr. Antliff, seconded by Mr. J. W. Knox, of Montreal, and was carried unanimously. It read:

"That this Montreal Conference desires to place on record its satisfaction that the resolution passed by the General Conference, looking for the organic union of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches has met with such widespread approval, as is indicated by the action of the various ecclesiastical and other gatherings; and we hereby express our hope and prayer that the spirit of union may deepen and extend and the several churches concerned may be so guided by the head of the Church that all obstacles to such union may be removed, and that in due time the churches concerned may become one."

THE CHURCH AND STATE AID.

The fact that Alma College, St. Thomas, was accepting pecuniary aid from the municipality, came up for considerable discussion. Rev. Mr. Kelley brought up the matter in the afternoon and dissented strongly from the action of the college.

Rev. Dr. Potts replied that the donation of money to keep the institution in existence was purely a business transaction on the part of St. Thomas citizens. People of different denominations had supported the movement.

Rev. Dr. Elliott, of Montreal, feared that a precedent of state help for a religious institution might be established by the acceptance of such money.

Rev. E. Thomas was of the same opinion and presented the following motion, seconded by Rev. Isaac Hall, embodying his views:

"That this Conference has learned with regret that in the city of St. Thomas an institution owned and controlled by the Methodist Church has been apparently willing to receive a grant of public funds. While not expressing any opinion as to the action of the college authorities in the matter, this Conference places itself on record as deprecating any recognition of the principle of the diversion of public funds contributed under compulsion by members of all religious faiths to the accomplishment of denominational purposes."

Two-thirds of the votes were cast for the resolution.

A report from Stanstead College was read.

The following elections took place: Rev. C. D. Baldwin and Mr. Irwin Hilliard, assistant secretaries; Rev. M. L. England, journal secretary, and Rev. C. E. Bland, conference reporter.

From Montreal District came the request that $200 be granted to assist the "Aurore," the French organ of Protestantism in Quebec.

A resolution passed by the Kingston District was read in which the District asked "the Conference to take some action to make a strong representation to the Government against the way in which chaplains of penetentiaries are appointed.

In the evening six young ministers were received into the ministry and granted their license to preach. They were Revs. Alfred L. Boyd, Burton B. Brown, Jacob I. Hughes, J. Howard Philp, Robert C. Armstrong and Arthur E. Hagar and T. Anson Halpenny.

APPEALS TO THE PRIVY COUNCIL

Canadian Associated Press.

London, June 4.—The Liverpool Mercury comments favourably on Mr. Donald Macmaster's memorandum on the legal anomalies in appeals to the Privy Council. The Mercury declares that a simplification in the procedure in appeals would improve the relations between the Motherland and the Colonies. "The useless practice of affixing the summons in a conspicuous place in the Royal Exchange with the consequent delay wants to be abolished forthwith."

MR. T. B. HALL ARRESTED IN VICTORIA.

Victoria, B.C., June 4.—T. B. Hall, provincial assessor, with special supervision over the Victoria district, was arrested and taken to the provincial gaol last evening, charged with the embezzlement of over $5,000 from the funds of the department over which he has control. Mr. Hall is one of the best known men in the province, having come here fifteen years ago. He soon became very prominent in commercial circles. He obtained from the city of Victoria a substantial bonus to establish a rice mill, which was run at a steady loss from the start. The firm was declared bankrupt. He then drifted into one business after another, occupying various secretaryships, until the position of provincial assessor was left vacant by the death of Mr. Moreland. The Government appointed Mr. Hall to the general satisfaction of the public, who felt that he was well fitted and deserving of his position. In his palmy days Mr. Hall built a palatial mansion in the fashionable quarter of Victoria and dispensed hospitality with a lavish hand. The news of his arrest came as a surprise to his large circle of friends in this city, who looked upon him as a model of integrity. Hall will be formally charged in the provincial police court.

MARINE NEWS.

Date of Sailing of New Donaldson Liner.

The new Donaldson liner, which arrived in port during the last week, will sail on Wednesday next for Glasgow. The new vessel is a leviathan in size, and has four masts. Rigged with derricks from one end to the other, she is one of the most modern freighters afloat, being from the yards of Vickers, Sons & Maxim, Limited, who are the builders of some of the largest battleships, and have several big boats now on the stocks, including the new battleship Dominion for the British Government.

The Athenia is 478 feet long, with a breadth of 55 feet 10 inches, and a depth of 25 feet 6 inches. She has six large holds with a measurement of 363,933 feet, with a correspondinig number of 'tween decks; capacity 125,126 feet, with space in the shelter deck for cattle or cargo to the extent of 170,459 feet, or over 16,000 tons measurement. Her engines are triple expansion with cylinders 27x44x72 inches, and six steel boilers with 180 lbs. pressure, and developed a speed of 15.2 knots on her trial trip.

A portion of her 'tween decks has been insulated with the latest system of cold storage, which is divided into separate compartments, enabling the successful carriage of fruit, butter, dressed meats, or any kind of produce which requires different temperatures. Her system of ventilation is perfect throughout the ship, and in addition she is fitted with a number of electric Sirocco fans, and is admirably adapted for the carriage of fruit, eggs or any other perishable cargo.

The cattle trade has not been lost sight of. Her deck fittings are of a permanent character, with high 'tween decks and large alleyways, water pipes and connections conveniently arranged throughout the decks, making the watering of the live stock a very easy matter. She is lighted throughout with electricity. The Athenia has accommodation for 25 saloon passengers. Her dining saloon is on the upper deck, and large airy cabins on the deck below.

The Donaldson line as well as the port of Montreal are to be congratulated on this latest acquisition to the fleet. Her commander, Captain W. B. Webb, formerly of the Kastalia, although a young man, is well known in the trade, having sailed to the St. Lawrence for the past fifteen years in the employ of the Donaldson line.

NEW IDEAS FOR SEAWANHAKA DEFENDERS FRESH FROM DESIGNER F. W. SHEARWOOD'S BRAIN

Bilgeboards Will Have an Outward Flare—No Fear That Burgess' Copied Boat Will Do Much Harm.

Although the White Bears will avail themselves of the plans of Mr. Burgess and his partner, who used their visits to Dorval and the time they were entertained at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club by carefully measuring the details of the Seawanhaka Defenders, so that as an appreciation of hospitality received, they could build a boat exactly similar to oppose to those of their hosts in the next International races, there will as usual be some novelties in connection with the local boats which the smart designers from the United States could not foresee.

There have been novelties every year since Mr. F. W. Shearwood started to take an active part in the designing of our defenders. There were the bilgeboards one year and there was the double rudder the next. This year there will be other things.

It is rather early to go into details of these, but it may be stated that one of the novelties will be found in the matter of the leeboards.

These will have an outward flare, which it is expected will give a better resistance to the water, and thus prevent the boat, as much as possible, from drifting to leeward.

There is no fear here, whatever, that Mr. Burgess's copied boat will win the cup.

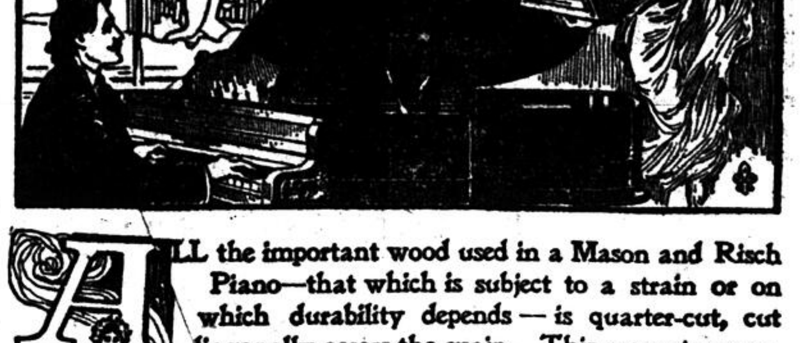
MASON AND RISCH



ALL the important wood used in a Mason and Risch Piano—that which is subject to a strain or on which durability depends — is quarter-cut, cut diagonally across the grain. This prevents warping and splitting.

Every piece of wood is finished on all sides by a planing machine. This gives a perfectly level smoothness that cannot be given by hand planing. Then the sand-papering machines finish it with the smoothness of a piece of glass.

It's a beautiful piece of wood when it gets to this stage. You can read the stories of the forest in its grain and it will sing them to you later when it finds its voice.

There is a sweetness to the Mason and Risch Piano's voice which comes very near to tone perfection.

Gossip of the Stage World.

Plays and Players of Interest Here.

Mrs. Langtry's unexpectedly successful tour last winter, for it will be remembered she played to good business in nearly all cities, with the exception of Montreal, has made her undecided about going on a trip to South America. It is likely we shall see the actress again next autumn, as she now thinks the chance for profit is greater in North America than below the equator, where a revolution might lead to a romantic end little to be desired by the Jersey Lily in her present peace with herself and all men. Mrs. Langtry has a French play up her sleeve, which she is sure will be more popular than "Mrs. Deering's Divorce." It is "Varennes," in which Sarah Bernhardt found favour in Paris, and from that city comes the news that in comedy, tragedy and quick action through six acts it is particularly fitted for audiences over here. There is much speculation about the fate of "Varennes," but no one in Paris or London will confess to a doubt of the play winning the approval of audiences through the length and breadth of the land. "Varennes" is the work of Henri Lavedan and G. Lenotre, and deals with the court of Louis XVI. Paris was amused at the first four acts, and a trifle irritated at their disjointedness; but in the fifth there was a sudden appeal in tragedy that made the French overlook all faults. It was the general opinion that until the performance was two-thirds over there was nothing more than a suggestion of a play, but in the fifth and sixth acts the feeling grew that the collaborators had turned out an intense and powerful drama. What Mrs. Langtry will do in the emotional scenes is a problem that will be open to doubt until she has appeared here. In Paris much of the success of the play was credited to Bernhardt's magnetic power in a tragic scene around which the play revolves, and should Mrs. Langtry imagine she will equal the Frenchwoman in this respect she is doomed to disappointment.

Sarah Bernhardt has signed a contract with Frank McKee to play a twenty-weeks' engagement in America the coming season, commencing in January.

The great success of the vaudeville engagements of Charles Hawtrey and Jessie Millward has stimulated a demand for dramatic attractions in that quarter, and strong financial inducements are being held forth to well-known stars to follow their example. Several are likely to turn a favourable ear to these gentle and timely allurements. Mr. Hawtrey received, it is said, $2,000 a week from Mr. Proctor for his appearances in two of the Proctor theatres daily, and Miss Millward's remuneration was not much less. She has been offered a thirty weeks' tour over the vaudeville circuits, and it is likely that she will accept the offer. The audiences that witnessed the performances of Mr. Hawtrey and Miss Millward, in New York, last week, were not only large, but intelligent and appreciative of all their finer points.

It is said that Margaret Anglin's stellar vehicle will be "The Eternal Feminine."

Robert Drouet, who played in stock at Proctor's in 1902, and who recently closed his long engagement with Clara Bloodgood in "The Girl With the Green Eyes," began his summer season as leading man of the Broadway Theatre Stock Company, Denver, Monday evening in "The Gay Lord Quex." In the autumn Mr. and Mrs. Drouet will take a month's holiday in Europe, returning in time for the opening of the regular dramatic season.

Chauncey Olcott is to revive "A Romance of Athlone" and begins his season on August 25.

Forbes Robertson is to produce at the Duke of York's Theatre in London, a play called "The Edge of the Storm." The play is by Margaret Young.

The Ben Greet company played "As You Like It" on the grounds of Smith L. De Garmo on Hooker avenue, Poughkeepsie, Monday afternoon of last week. The performance was given for the benefit of the Vassar Endowment Fund, every dollar of which up to $200,000 raised before June 8 is to be duplicated by John D. Rockefeller. In the evening the company offered "Much Ado About Nothing," for the same fund.

It will be welcome news to all to learn that Mr. Ben Greet and his notable company of Woodland players will visit Montreal this June, and will again be seen in pastoral plays, which gave such delight and pleasure last summer. These plays will be seen at McGill University, where the beautiful trees and delightful surroundings make an ideal spot for the production of Shakespeare out of doors. The plays to be presented will be: "A Midsummer Night's Dream," a rarely beautiful production, "Much Ado About Nothing," "As You Like It," and "Twelfth Night," in which last, Mr. Greet and his company made the most remarkable feature of New York's legitimate season. Mr. Greet's company includes these sterling artists, who have already endeared themselves to the public: Miss Edith Wynne Mattheson and her husband, Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy, Mr. B. A. Field, while there will be a number of notable additions from Mr. Greet's English forces who came out for this season. The dates for Montreal are Friday and Saturday, June 17th and 18th.

A theatrical engagement of the highest order of excellence will be the appearance at the Academy on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, of Miss Viola Allen as Viola in Shakespeare's delightful comedy, "Twelfth Night." The coming of Miss Allen to Montreal is a matter for congratulation and augurs an evening of unalloyed enjoyment. There is no actress before the public to-day who is held in higher esteem than Miss Allen, and her career, since becoming a "star," has been one of the most remarkable known to the history of the stage. Her success as Glory Quayle in "The Christian" was extraordinary, and then followed two equally surpassing hits with "In the Palace of the King," and "The Eternal City." Shakespeare's delightful comedy, "Twelfth Night," has been a great favourite with the public for over three hundred years, and Miss Allen has enjoyed a great success in it. Pepys mentions seeing a performance at the Duke's House in 1661, yet the first production noted by Genest, the dramatic historian, was given at Lincoln's Inn Fields in 1663, with Betterton as Sir Toby, Ann Marshall, the first performer of female roles, being the Viola. "Twelfth Night" was given for the first time in America in 1794, and in New York in 1804. Almost every actress of any note since the days of Shakespeare, has essayed the role of Viola. Among the famous Violas of the long ago were Peg Woffington and Dora Jordan. Of the Violas of modern times who have been especially successful were Adelaide Neilson, Ada Rehan, Julia Marlowe and Mme. Modjeska. Viola is a character which in Miss Allen's keeping should prove most delightful; but hardly less satisfying should be the achievement of the supporting company, a cast of superlative excellence. John Blair, who was lately Mrs. Patrick Campbell's leading man, will be the Malvolio; Clarence Handyside, who has enjoyed success with Nat C. Goodwin and Julia Marlowe's companies, will impersonate Sir Toby Belch, and Frank Currier will be the Sir Andrew Augecheek. Mr. Currier has made many successes in this role, the last time being with Julia Marlowe's production of the play. Six years ago he journeyed to Australia where he staged "Twelfth Night" for George Ringold and appeared as Sir Andrew. The part of Feste, the clown, will be taken by Edwin Howard; James Young, who lately appeared in Sir Henry Irving's company in England, and who some years ago was a member of Augustin Daly's Shakespearean company, will be the Sebastian. Scott Craven, who was the Duke Orsino of Ben Greet's famous production of "Twelfth Night," in England, enacts the same role with Miss Allen; C. Leslie Allen will enact the role of Antonio, and F. Percival Stevens, of Beerbohm Tree's, His Majesty's Theatre, London, who in staging the comedy, will be the Fabian. May Taverner will be the Olivia, and Miss Zeffie Tilbury, who made a great success in Mr. Tree's production as Maria, will impersonate this role with Miss Allen. The production, which is a very massive one, is from the studios of the best American scenic artists.

Though the weather has not been all that could be desired for the opening week at Sohmer Park the attendance, nevertheless, has been very good, and there has been a general appreciation of the excellent entertainment served up by Messrs. Lavigne and Lajoie. For the coming week, there are a large number of good acts. Zano, the magician, comes here with a reputation as an up-to-date performer, and it is said that he has lots of new tricks. Leonard and Drake, the animal imitators, have been making a great hit in Europe. This is their first appearance since their return. Occilier, the baritone, is always a favourite in Montreal, and he has prepared some new songs for the week. The Nelson-Farnum troupe of floor acrobats, have a reputaion as fearless and interesting entertainers. They will be here all week. The Roman ring act done by the Wood brothers, is also a very daring bit of work. In feats of balancing Camille and Foria will surprise Montrealers. Mr. Lavigne says that his band will be more perfect than ever before by next week, so that an all round treat may be expected.

For the week of June 13th, at the Francais, the Aubrey Stock Company will present "Lost in New York," a stirring comedy-drama of New York life.

"The Bowery Girl Burlesquers," will make their first appearance next week at the Royal. This is said to be one of the strongest organizations on the road. The opening is a scream from start to finish. This is entitled Mr. Pee Wee. The olio includes "The Bartelles," a high class and novel musical act. Russell and Tillyne will present their acrobatic act. The Punchinelo troup of pantomimists will appear in one of the most laughable acts now before the public. The closing burlesque is entitled "The Two Senators," which is a fitting closer. The amateur night will occur on Friday as usual.

MR GEORGE LUND,
Of the Aubrey Stock Company.

"Devil's Island," the present offering of the Aubrey Stock Company at the Theatre Francais, is meeting with success. For next week, "Wife for Wife," will be the offering, and promises to be one of the most pretentious plays to be seen here during the engagement of the stock company. "Wife for Wife" is a play full of heart interest, and deals with a young married couple who put too much dependence in a supposed friend who is, unbeknown to the husband, in love with the wife. The latter does not suspect that her husband's friend is serious in his attentions, and the climax is not reached until the husband suddenly comes upon them and finds his wife in a position which could easily be explained, but the demon, jealousy, has been aroused and a quarrel ensues, which ends in bloodshed and separation. The husband loses his mind and during this period some exciting and heart-rendering scenes take place. "Wife for Wife" is a play calculated to suit all classes.

The attractions next week at Riverside Park, beginning to-morrow afternoon, will be the best ever seen at this popular amusement resort. Every act will be new to Montreal. The following are a few who will appear at each performance:—Mr. Archie Ouri, late of the famous Ouri family of jugglers; Burdock Sisters, singers and acrobatic dancers; Torro trio of comedians and trick house comedy. And as a special attraction, the four Delrentos will appear in their original silent comedy act entitled "A Bit of Everything." Some new moving pictures will be displayed.

Owing to the immense amount of work necessary for a proper production of Parsifal, Mr. Charles L. Durban, manager of the Durban Stock Company, has been obliged to postpone the presentation of it, which was scheduled for June 13 at Proctor's Theatre. Instead, the company will present that week an elaborate scenic version of the dramatization of Rudyard Kipling's novel "The Light that Failed." This play was introduced to Montreal last season by Mr. Forbes Robertson, who afterwards made a great success with it in New York. "The Light that Failed" will be presented with special scenery and cast to the full strength of the company.

The Academy of Music will be used by the Symphony Orchestra for its concerts the coming season. The acoustic properties of the theatre will be improved by the use of a specially made sounding board, which is being built.

The success of the Durban Stock Company's summer engagement at Proctor's Theatre is now assured. Each night of their stay has seen an increase in the partronage extended to them. Next week's bill is an English society drama, "Captain Swift," especially chosen by Mr. Durban because of its great strength and the opportunity it gives for beautiful scenic display. Captain Swift has been included in the repertoire of many of the stars, and in England and the United States was one of the record holders for long runs. It deals with the interesting question "Can a man live down his past, even when he is painted a far worse sinner than he really is?" Around this the playwright has written a wholesome yet thoroughly entertaining four-act drama that holds the entire attention of the audience throughout. The hero of the play is an Australian bush ranger — at one time notorious. In the bush he is known as Captain Swift, but he tires of the life, determines to reform, and goes to England to commence life anew under the name of Mr. Wilding. At this point the action of the play opens. Relentless enemies pursue him from Australia, and while in England he meets a man who knows of his former life and career, and who recognizes in the wealthy Mr. Wilding the one-time Australian law-breaker. The plot is carefully and logically worked out, and Captain Swift in his final triumph over his enemies finds a sympathizer in every person in the audience. The stellar role in the play will be taken by Mr. James Wilson, but it is by no means a one-man play, and every part is a strong one. Miss Lansing Rowan will play Stella Darbyshire, a part in which she has won marked success wherever she has played it. The same standard of scenic display which characterized the productions of "Robespierre" and "Brother Officers" will be adhered to next week.

VIOLA ALLEN,
As "Viola" in Twelfth Night.

The out-of-door Shakespearean production of Ben. Greet, will be given on the McGill grounds again this year. The programme will be: Friday afternoon, June 17th, "As You Like It." Friday evening, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Saturday afternoon, June 18th, "Twelfth Night." Saturday night, "Much Ado About Nothing." The following have consented to act as patrons: The Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Chancellor of McGill University; the governors of McGill University, John Molson, Esq.; Sir William C. Macdonald, Edward B. Greenshields, Esq.; Hon. J. S. Archibald, C. J. Flett, Esq.; R. B. Angus Esq.; Sir William C. Van Horne, James Ross, Esq.; Charles S. Campbell, Esq.; Robert Craik, Esq., M. The management of the Arena have definitely decided to put on a short season of opera at the Arena, commencing Monday, June 20th. Negotiations, which have been pending for some time with the manager of the New York Opera Company, have now been closed and this organization will produce several of the best known royalty operas at popular prices. The company numbers, in all, thirty-five people. Their repertoire includes "The Isle of Champagne," "Belle of New York," "Girl from Paris," "Pearl of Pekin," "Jack and the Beanstock," "El Capitaine," "Telephone Girl," and "Lady Slavey."

The Bioscope Company, whose moving pictures has been seen here before, are to open for the week of June 13th, at the Windsor Hall, with a new series of moving pictures, which include some of the most recent scenes from the seat of war. These Russo-Japanese war pictures give a fine idea of the present war. The London Bioscope Company have the men right on the ground. As well as the war scenes, many new pictures will be shown.

Military Happenings.

An interesting spectacle will be the inspection of the Montreal Garrison this afternoon, by Major-General the Earl of Dundonald, at 3.45. Following the inspection there will be a Garrison Dinner at the Windsor Hotel, the following being the guests of honour: Lord Dundonald, Lord Borthwick, Mayor Laporte, Hon. Raymond Prefontaine and Capt. Newton, A.D.C.

PAYMASTER-SERGT. DAVIDSON,
Montreal's Only Representative on This Year's Bisley Team.

Paymaster Sergt. W. J. Davidson, of the 1st Prince of Wales Fusiliers, the only member Montreal has on the Bisley team this year, joined the Prince of Wales Fusiliers in 1896. He won the Nursery in the P. Q. R. A. matches of that year, and was promoted first to the rank of corporal, and then to that of sergeant, the following year, 1898. Again promoted to colour-sergeant, which position he held for four years, he is at present Paymaster-Sergt. He has attended the P. Q. R. A., O. R. A., and the D. R. A. matches and has appeared in the honour roll since 1897. Paymaster-Sergt. Davidson is well liked by both rank and file, and the best wishes of the whole regiment go with him. His companions in arms sincerely hope that he may be so fortunate as to achieve that much-coveted distinction—the King's prize.

The new quarters of the Montreal Military Institute were en fete last evening on the occasion of the formal opening, when Lord Dundonald, the general officer commanding, received the officers of the local garrison. The spacious apartments were crowded with officers on the active, reserved and retired lists. Evening dress was the order. The reception commenced at 9.30, and sevral hours of agreeable social intercourse were enjoyed. Naturally the members of the Institute were very attentive to their guests, who were granted the freedom of the establishment. The new club house is situated on Beaver Hall Square, and, as now arranged, is easily among the most complete establishments of the kind in the Dominion. Not a little money has been spent on furnishings and everything is new from basement to attic. For the past six weeks the house has been in the hands of the decorators, and these have succeeded in making a most tasty display of their art. There are three flats and a basement. On the ground floor, opening from a capacious corridor, are two large rooms, the front one of which is to be devoted to the strangers and the one immediately adjoining to the reception of members. Contiguous is a small dining room, where parties of four or eight can be readily accommodated, and contiguous the bar, where a choice assortment of wines and cigars will always be obtainable. On the second floor, immediately at the head of the stairs, is a private sitting room overlooking the square, and adjoinng, with a similar outlook, the reading room. A very neatly appointed library is in the rear, only separated from the reading room by a cloak room, which was an accessory badly needed in the old home of the Institute. In the rear also of the second flat, are a wash room and a committee room. The third flat is devoted to a billiard room, which extends across the entire front of the house, and to two card rooms, which overlook adjacent convent grounds. Here also are bath and toilet rooms. In the basement is a grill room from the walls of which are suspended variegated coloured lights. To the rear is a capacious kitchen, furnished with a new range of the latest pattern. All the dishes used in the Institute bear the crest of the organization upon which is inscribed the words "Montreal Garrison Mess." The furnishings throughout are most luxurious and have been selected with an idea at once to comfort and durability. The present reception committee is composed of the following gentlemen: Major J. L. Peltier, Major R. Starke, Major W. A. Lilly, Capt. Ewing, Capt. E. W. Bonham, W. O. H. Dodds, Major K. Cameron, Mr. L. J. Desrosiers, Major W. J. Stewart, Mr. M. Freeman, and Mr. D. E. Cameron, secretary-treasurer.

The Military Institute was organized in 1893, and can look back upon a career of unvarying success. Lieut.-Col Butler was the first president, and, following him in the order mentioned were: Lieut.-Col. George R. Starke, Lieut.-Col. E. B. Ibbotson, Lieut.-Col. Labelle, Major W. M. Blaiklock, Lieut.-Col. F. W. Campbell, Major J. E. Pelletier. Commencing at the time of organization the secretaries, in the order in which their names are given were: Major Raddeger, (deceased), Capt. Goddard (deceased), Major Freeman, Capt. Stewart, Capt. Bonham, and the present incumbent, Lieut. Donald Cameron.

Last Saturday the Mount St. Louis Cadets passed a highly creditable inspection on the Champs de Mars. They richly deserved the compliments they received on all sides, for their military appearance and their precision in all their drills. Sergeant-Major Phillips, the drill instructor, was in general command. Colonel Gordon, D. O. C., accompanied by Major Stewart, R.A., and Major Lafferty, D.S.A., conducted the inspection. Honorary Colonel Wilson-Smith, who so generously contributed the silver cup, for which the corps has competed, from year to year, was present. After Col. Gordon put them through squadron drill and independent drill, also battalion drill and physical exercise, a hollow square was formed and the commanding officers of the regiment, Lieut.-Col. A. A. St. Pierre and Majors Latourelle and Kieffer were called forward and officially congratulated on behalf of the corps by the inspection officer. Col. Gordon complimented them on the soldier-like bearing of the boys, on their well kept uniforms and the correctness and precision of all the movement. Col. Wilson-Smith followed and praised the faculty of Mount St. Louis College for promoting such a strong military enthusiam among the students. As in the past years, No. 1 company won the cup. The full result of the competition follows:

No. 1 under the command of Captain Cousineau, 92 points out of a 100.
No. 2, Captain Cordel, 87 points.
No. 3, Captain Latourelle, 85 points.
No. 4, Captain Jackson, 78 points.
No. 5, Captain Vinet, 75 points.
No. 6, Captain Coffin, 75 points.
No. 7, Captain Lecompte, 72 points.
No. 8, Captain Moquin, 72 points.

The judges were: Major Carriere and Major Charest.

The cup offered by Lieut.-Col. Carson, the commanding officer of the Royal Scots, for the best drilled company in the Royal Scots was won by No. 2 Company, which obtained 82 per cent. of the total number of marks obtainable. The other seven companies followed in very close order—so close, indeed, that Col. Gordon, D.O.C., who acted as judge, could not give his decision upon the instant, but took some time to figure out the result. The commanding officers inspection, held on Thursday night, was eminently satisfactory. All the companies drilled splendidly—so well, in fact, that Col. Carson was able to tell them at the close of the parade that if they did anything like as well this afternoon at the Garrison inspection, he would be quite satisfied.

The Amherst Rifle Association has issued a pamphlet setting forth the prize competitions under its auspices for the season of 1904. During the present season there will be nine competitions for the Amherst Rifle Association Cup, at which will be given ten individual badges for the ten highest scores made at each shoot. The winner of the cup will be discounted 15 per cent. at next shoot and if he should win a second time the discount will be 25 per cent. Not winning the second time he would be eligible to shoot again without discount. To the individual making the highest aggregate in these competitions a special badge will be given. The Rifle Club in question has at present 125 members—a number which a local authority says could be readily doubled if more rifles were obtainable. The club only has 25 now. They have a 1,000-yard range wide enough for six targets, four being now in use. The range is one and a half miles from town. There are range telephones and the club house on the grounds is connected by telephone with the Nova Scotia Telegraph Company in town. The club hopes to be able to buy the property so soon as a sufficiently large grant is forthcoming from the Federal Government.

At the eighth annual dinner of the New York Society of the Order of the Founders and Patriots of America in New York city, recently, General Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A., said: "It has been my privilege to see most of the armies of the world. I have studied carefully the armies of Japan and China and the soldiers of Russia, and the success in the East to-day of the soldiers of the Mikado is due to their wonderful skill, faithful performance of their duties, and their remarkable enterprise. The Russian soldier is courageous in saying his prayers before going into battle, but the same thing may be said of the soldiers of the Sultan, and I have found that on the battlefield it's the fighting and not the praying that wins. Of all the armies of the world ours seems to differ in that the men are serving for a principle. Our flag represents the sovereignty and the freedom of manhood. It is a pleasure as well as an honour to serve under it."

The Highland Cadet Battalion's engagements for the coming week are: Monday, 6th June, recruits; Wednesday, 8th June, battalion drill, uniform, band and buglers to attend; Saturday, 11th June, recruits and bayonet class: Ex-members and others holding uniforms are reminded that they are liable to prosecution by law, and will be proceeded against if same are not returned to armoury at once. Fred. Lydon, Major.

Following the example of the militia officers in Toronto and this city, an effort is now being made to establish a military institute in Ottawa. As the movement has been initiated by Lieut.-Col. Hodgins, D.O.C., M.D. No. 4, it will no doubt meet with the success which it deserves.

After the garrison inspection this evening, the 65th regiment will entrain for Quebec, where they will spend to-morrow. The regiment will be back in Montreal on Monday morning.

Corporal Benton announces that the Canadian Army Service Corps bugle band will practice on Monday, June 6, at 8 p.m., sharp. Every member must be present.

A meeting of the committee of the 1st Prince of Wales Fusiliers' sergeants mess will be held on Monday, June 6th, and the mess meeting on Wednesday, June 8th.

Col. Gordon, D.O.C., intimates that the garrison parade last Sunday was the largest in recent years, over 3,000 of all ranks being in line.

The officers of the Victoria Rifles on Thursday evening made a presentation to Captain Hiam on the occasion of his marriage.

MISS MURIEL McINTYRE

Cured of Insomnia and Anaemia by St. James Wafers Stomach and Nerve Remedy.

When Ill You Should Start to Strengthen Your Stomach. A Weak Stomach is the Cause of Poison Being Absorbed by the System. You Will Never be Well if Your Stomach is Not Strong.

When the stomach is impaired, you are at the mercy of any disease. When the stomach is well your food makes rich red blood—that is health. When your stomach does not work, your food becomes tainted and poisons are absorbed by the system, and every portion of the body may be disturbed. St. James Wafers Stomach and Nerve Remedy are a specialty for the stomach. Their object is to set the stomach right. They are performing their work to the satisfaction of thousands in Great Britain and Canada.

Miss Muriel McIntyre, 74 Albermarle street, Piccadilly, London, W., writes:

"I take very great pleasure in advising you what high appreciation and value I place upon your St. James Wafers, which lately completely cured me of insomnia and anaemia, from which I had been suffering for several months. The first box of Wafers gave me relief, and after the eighth box I was completely cured. I always keep a box handy and use them now directly I begin to feel a little run down. I believe the cause of my trouble was due to irregular hours and irregularity in meals, through constant travelling and too much social pleasure. I am travelling companion to an English lady of title, whose name I am not at liberty to mention; but it was this lady who not only insisted on my trying St. James Wafers, but who actually gave me my first six boxes. Furthermore, I know that Her Ladyship herself uses St. James Wafers and derives great tone and benefit from them, and she assures me that quite a number of her personal friends find them of the greatest value as a strength giver to the stomach and nerves, in the life of social rush and stress so many of them have to live. I am so grateful to St. James Wafers for the good they have done me, that I willingly give you permission to make any use you like of this letter, and in connection with it, of the photograph which I send you herewith, at your request."

MURIEL McINTYRE.

All sufferers will find St. James Wafers an admirable remedy. Under their influence the stomach is at once strengthened, the various organs and tissues of the body all show improved activity. The eyes become brighter, the complexion more healthy, the thin and nervous gain flesh, all backache and headaches disappear, functional wrongs of women are set right. The improvement made is real and genuine, because St. James Wafers go to the root of the trouble, always to be traced to the stomach.

St. James Wafers should be taken regularly. If you adopt the treatment it should be carried on systematically, as little good can be effected by taking the Wafers spasmodically.

St. James Wafers are sold in wooden boxes which are easy to carry around, ensuring regularity in the treatment.

Kindly remember that St. James Wafers are a thoroughly honest specialty, and medical men are specially invited to investigate their value in stomach and nerve disorders. They are sold by all chemists and drug stores at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, or on receipt of cash remittance from our sole Canadian agents, Messrs. Lyman, Sons & Co., Wholesale Druggists, 38 St. Paul street, Montreal.

After all, the thing I like best about "FORCE" is the enjoyment I get from eating it.
It makes little difference how "good" a food is if you don't like it.

Sunny Jim

You can relish "FORCE" for a longer time, without change, than any other food I know of.
But it isn't such a bad notion, now and then, to switch off onto something else for a day or so—
Even though you can't change to anything quite so good.

POINTE CLAIRE.

These are the days when all Pointe Claire goes afishing. Although receding, the water is still so high that lines are cast from points on shore that have always been considered quite inland. Big strings of dore, perch, and pike, not to mention cat-fish and other small fry, are proudly exhibited by absorbed watchers, in response to such enquiries as "Bonne place pour catchez le fish la?"

Since the winds and waves have permitted, boats are coming out into the bay looking very smart and trig in their new coats of paint. Some of the good old yachts, like the "Cruiser," and the "Eloise," are among them. The "Claire" which was driven ashore in one of the big windstorms, is being repaired and will soon be ready for the water again.

Mr. Trimmingham is bringing up his new yacht, one of last year's raters, from Dorval.

A CLUB OF MONTREAL'S LITTLE WOMEN.

MAY LEONARD TREASURER ALEXANDRA CLUB

ISABEL SCOTT PRESIDENT ALEXANDRA CLUB

EVA NALL SEC'Y ALEXANDRA CLUB

ADA TAYLOR PRESIDENT VICTORIA CLUB

VIOLET LOWE VICE PRES. VICTORIA CLUB

DOROTHY JOHNSON VICE PRES ALEXANDRA CLUB

MAY REICHLING SEC'Y VICTORIA CLUB

ETTA FREEMAN TREASURER VICTORIA CLUB

There's a club of small girls in Montreal—two of them to be strictly accurate—which can give points in Parliamentary law, and the running of meetings to any organization of women in the city. Not that they are conceited about it at all. Far from that. They address the chair, and rise to points of order, and move and second resolutions with all the ease of veterans.

The average club woman would regard them with respectful admiration, but then the average club woman is not invited to their meetings. Even at the annual only a few mothers and big sisters were present, with the exception of a stray newspaper woman who gasped for breath as she gazed at a small person with curls presiding over a meeting of about seventy-five girls. Whether being a president has an effect on the locks, or whether the presidents must have curls, is a dark mystery, but the fact remains that both the Victoria and Alexandra Clubs have presidents who boast of curly hair.

The secret is now out, and the names of these successful clubs have been revealed.

The clubs are in connection with the Young Women's Christian Association, which fully realizes the importance of the Junior Department, remembering that it has been said, "Give us the children, and we are sure of the men and women."

Montreal was the pioneer in a Junior Y.W.C.A. department, for the Helping Hand Sewing School was organized in 1875 and is still in existence. The Creche or Day Nursery, now incorporated, was begun in 1886, and in 1888 kitchen garden classes were commenced and carried on for some years. Happy Morning Circles for little girls started in 1899 and went on successfully, and on November 9th, 1901, Miss Sarah Carson, field worker, organized the Victoria Club and the Alexandra Club. In the first the average age is between 12 and 13, and in the latter the average age is from 10 to 11. The first officers of the Victoria Club were: President, Agnes Shaw; vice-president, Maggie Peard; secretary, Florence Cole, and treasurer, Marjorie Abraham. In the Alexandra Club, the first officers were: President, Olive Bowen; vice-president, Stella Peard; secretary, Christine Cole, and treasurer, Corinne Hardman.

The names of the present officers of both clubs can be learned from a glance at the photographs on this page.

The idea of such clubs is not only that the little girls shall learn to manage their work in a methodical and businesslike manner, cook, sew and have gymnastics—important as all these things are—but that they may be trained to fill later the places of those at present actively engaged in Association work.

The girls have a splendid time at the club meetings. Each organization has a hymn, song, text, cheer, and badge, and the amount of enthusiasm with which the song and cheer are given is a credit to the lungs as well as the hearts of the members. The dues are only one cent per week. Each club elects its own officers. There are ballot slips and scrutineers, and all the proper forms, and though no one has been guilty of "stuffing the ballot" it is on record that members, convinced of the worthiness of the cause, have been known to vote for themselves. But perhaps this is merely doing simply and directly what older persons are often inclined to do.

There are classes in cookery and sewing in which the children delight, and it speaks well for the comfort of the homes of the rising generation that they are learning early to make wholesome and dainty dishes. In their first annual report the girls proudly recorded the fact that the Victoria Club had learned to make cocoa, fried mush, golden rod toast, pea soup, rice soup, oat meal mush, ginger snaps, potato omelet and many other dishes. That was in the first year. Since then they have learned to make any number of other delicious concoctions. Mothers and fathers encourage their little daughters in their fondness for cooking and there is comfort in the thought that there are a good many girls to whom the oft-repeated jokes about Mrs. Newly Wed's ignorance in the matter of bread-making and marketing will never apply. A decimal savings fund encourages the habit of thrift among the children.

The children combine thought for others with their classes and fun. At Easter they take plants and flowers to some of the institutions, and go to sing to sick children and others to whom a visit is a cheerful and welcome event. The members are visited and great attention paid to any invalids.

At their annual meetings the two clubs between them voted $5 to the building fund of the Y.W.C.A., and also $5 to the work of the Fresh Air Fund, which appealed to their sympathies strongly.

The minutes of the meetings are kept with great exactness, and the annual reports are models in their line. To be sure there is some slight tendency to "vain repetitions" in recording the new members, and the manner in which the time of each meeting was occupied, but this is from over-conscientiousness, and a desire to be perfectly exact.

The membership has grown steadily, and there are more girls applying for admission continually. There are now 173 members. This year several honorary members were admitted, including several of the ladies who assist the children with advice and kindly oversight, as well as by playing for them, and in other ways.

An urgent need is for more workers. Helpers who are interested in children and willing to come regularly to assist them in all their little club interests. When the meetings begin again in the autumn it is hoped that these helpers will be forthcoming.

There are great possibilities about such organizations. The children learn a spirit of unselfishness and thoughtfulness, and a practical knowledge of useful subjects, as well as a feeling of being bound up with the interests of the Young Women's Christian Association which promises well for the future.

MURRAY BAY AND CAP A L'AIGLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson, of New Jersey, U.S.A., will take possession this month of the house they had built on the highest land in Pointe au Pic last season by our local architect, Mr. Warren.

Miss Gable, of Baltimore, U.S.A., is among the early arrivals and will occupy the pretty cottage at Cap a l'Aigle, where she spent last summer.

Mr. Kennedy's house on the ridge, near the Golf Club links, is now ready for occupation. The views from it are magnificent.

Mrs. and the Misses Cundill, of Westmount, are among the arrivals expected this month.

The severe winter and unusually heavy fall of snow do not seem to have interfered with the bursting into luxuriant blossom of our spring shrubs and flowers. On the contrary, vegetation is actually in advance of this date last year. The district of Murray Bay is famed for the beauty of its lilac trees, and they certainly surpass themselves this month of May. The wild cherry is another of our natural ornaments, and often grows in the hedges and ditches of the driving roads. The woods are gay with the early flowers, and many orchids reward the early visitor who penetrates to their quiet haunts by some little brook or streamlet, shaded by the white birches.

Chief Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court of Washington, Mrs. Harlan and party are expected during the coming week, and will occupy their handsome summer residence, built within the last few years. The Chief Justice and his sons are very familiar to all golfers, and are most enthusiastic players.

Mr. Justice Harlan and family, of Cincinatti, U.S.A., will spend the summer, as usual, in their pretty cottage on the hill side.

The Hon. H. B. Rainville and family, of Sherbrooke street, Montreal, have secured rooms at the Manoir Richelieu Hotel for the coming season.

Dr. and Mrs. Ward, of Albany, N. Y., arrive shortly, and will again occupy the handsome villa on the main road that they have rented for several seasons.

Mr. S. Prentiss Stearns, Mrs. Stearns and her family, of Peel street,Montreal, will again patronize the Manoir Richelieu Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowditch, of New York, and family, will occupy their house near the Quebec road.

Mrs. George Wellesley Hamilton and Miss Beatrice Hamilton, of Stanley street, Montreal, have taken a suite of rooms at the Manoir Richelieu for the summer.

Mr. C. F. Sise and family, of Sherbrooke street, have secured apartments at the Manoir Richelieu.

Mr. and Mrs. Bury Austin, of Sherbrooke street, are among the Montreal people who purpose enjoying the summer in Pointe au Pic.

Mr. D. Morrice, jr., and family, of Stanley street, Montreal, have secured accommodation at the Manoir Richelieu Hotel, and are shortly expected.

Mr. James King and family, of Mackay street, Montreal, have taken rooms for the season.

TADOUSAC.

Tadousac has been enjoying the most delightful summer weather the past week, and the place is looking lovely and everything so bright and clean. The cottages are beginning to open and each week now on will bring new and old guests.

The fishing is excellent and the old fishermen promise us still better during the month of June.

Mrs. Price, of Quebec, and family, are expected the second week in July, and will take possession of "Fletcher Cottage," their summer home.

Miss M. Russell-Jones arrived this week, and has opened her cottage, and will be joined by Miss Russell-Jones, the end of June.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dwight, of New York, are expected the third week of June.

Mr. Cameron and the Misses Cameron, of New York, are to spend a few weeks here, as they did last summer.

Mrs. Wm. Robertson and family, who are still in England, will not open their cottage this season.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLeod intends spending two weeks at the hotel in August.

BUILDING PERMITS TAKEN OUT IN MAY

Over Three - Quarters of a Million in Value.

MORE BANK BUILDINGS

Real Estate Sales Registered Last Week Fell Off in Value to $118,729.

Permits for the erection of new buildings to the value of $664,395 were issued at the City Hall during the month of May, those for repairs amounting to $92,985, making a total of $757,380, or over three-quarters of a million dollars worth of building operations—to be put through in the near future.

The month of May consequently exceeded, in this respect the month of April by $256,242, of which $226,152 was the excess of permits for new buildings and $30,090 the excess for repairs.

During the month, 108 permits for new buildings were issued. These were classified as follows: 92 houses of 132 dwellings, 3 stores, 2 warehouses, a factory, a hospital, an office building, 8 stables and 15 sheds. It will, therefore, be noticed that the great preponderance of the building operations will go towards increasing the housing accommodation throughout the city.

The large increase in the month of May over the previous month, noted above, was more than half due to the issue of a permit for the new ten-story office building of the Sovereign Bank of Canada, at a valuation of $150,000.

Other permits during the past week were the following:

Four houses of two stories each, 20 feet by 42 feet, on Hutchison street, for J. G. G. Kerry, at a cost of $7,200.

Two warehouses, 50 feet by 70 feet, on Notre Dame street, for J. W. Orkin, at a cost of $40,000.

Two houses, containing two dwellings each, two stories high, 48 to 37 feet, at 1502 St. Hubert street, for V. Boisormeau, at a cost of $5,000.

A one story building, 49 by 72, at 1000 Notre Dame street, for the Canadian Rubber Co., at a cost of $8,000.

A three story building, of three dwellings, 38 by 34 feet, at 72 and 74 Visitation street, for Onesime Depatie, at a cost of $4,000.

Permits issued in June, up to Thursday night, amounted to but $4,825, of which $4,000 was for a three story building, of three dwellings, 31 by 40 feet, at 270 to 272 Maisonneuve street, for Mrs. Lisa Rebes

The Merchants Bank of Canada is now commencing the work of erecting two more fine branch bank buildings for the accommodation of its business in the city of Montreal.

One of these, the East End branch, will be situated on the corner of Fullum and St. Catherine streets, where excavation has already commenced with that object in view. The building will be of cut stone, three stories high, with roof and dome of copper. It will have a depth of 65 feet on Fullum street and a frontage of 50 feet on St. Catherine street. The ground floor will be subdivided into a banking room, 26 feet wide, and a store, 48 feet wide. The banking room will occupy the corner subdivision. Its counters and the different portions of its wood work will be of oak, and its fixings will be of the most modern type. The two upper stories will be the residence of Mr. J. A. Chagnon, who for the past four years and a half has managed the business of the bank and devoted himself to its success. The architects, Messrs. Hutchison and Wood, expect to have the work finished by December.

The contracts for the work of erecting the building have been awarded as follows: Mr. Louis Payette, masonry and brick work; G. W. Reed & Co., roofing; The G. R. Locker Co., marble and tiling; Gordon & Eagan, plumbing and heating; Dominion Bridge Co. steel work; Montreal Electric Co., electrical work; G. E. Blackwell, painting; D. M. Long, carpenter work, and G. H. Randall & Co., fittings.

The other building, that of the Ville St. Louis branch, will be erected at the corner of St. Lawrence and St. Louis streets, opposite the new town hall. It will be carried out in something the same architectural style as the East End branch. Its dome will be of copper and it is expected that its walls will be of limestone. The building will have a depth of 51 on St. Louis street with a frontage of 42 on St. Lawrence and a height of 64 feet from the summit of the dome to the sidewalk. The banking room will occupy the whole of the ground floor and will be finished in hard wood, the floor being tiled and all the appointments of the latest model. A large hall, for the accommodation of lodge meetings and similar functions, will occupy the top floor, while the first floor will be the residence of the manager, Mr. J. D. Bergeron, under whose guidance during the past four years the bank has flourished.

The work of erecting the building will be proceeded with immediately, and Messrs. Hutchison and Wood hope to have it completed by November.

The contracts for the Ville St. Louis branch building have just been given out, as follows: Latreille Bros., masonry and brick work; D. M. Long, carpenter work; J. Morrison & Son, plastering; G. H. Randall & Co., bank fittings; Castle & Son, painting; C. Mariotti, marble and tiling; Collyer & Brock, electrical wiring; Dominion Bridge Company, steel work.

The work of demolishing the western section of the Queen's Hall block will be undertaken immediately. The new building which will take its place will have a cement foundation and be carried out, in respect to architecture, in all respects the same as the eastern section of the same block, so as to form a harmonious whole. The architects, Messrs. Hutchison & Wood, are endeavouring to have it completed and ready for the new occupant, Mr. W. H. Scroggie, next March. It is expected that the central portion will be entirely occupied by Mr. Scroggie in a month or so, a portion of the upper floor being already taken over to the requirements of his business.

The contracts for the work have been awarded to the following: J. H. Hutchison, masonry and brick work; Simpson & Peel, carpenter work; J. Morrison & Co., plastering; Dominion Bridge Company, steel work; Arcand & Co., painting.

The country is beautifully green and fresh and the air is sweet with the perfume of apple blossoms, lilacs and other budding and blossoming things. Everything grows apace and the farmer and gardener are happy. BOLTON SPRINGS.

The weather though somewhat cool has not discouraged the seekers after health at this famous shrine. Annual visitors to the White Sulphur Spring find the water stronger, colder and purer than ever this season, and the Spring House, having been fitted with heating appliances, is comfortable for invalids and others regardless of the outside temperature.

Mr. Hurd, K.C., of Sherbrooke, with Mrs. Hurd arrived at the Spring House on June 1, having enjoyed the drive through "Bolton Pass."

New Summer Resort.

In order to indicate a new charming resort in which a summer holiday may be pleasantly spent, the C. P. R. has just issued a carefully illustrated pamphlet telling something of "Canada's Gibraltar," which is situated just off the beaten path of travel midway between Toronto and Ottawa. This mountain of rock, rising abruptly out of a placid lake, is from 300 to 500 feet in height, and is two miles in length. Lake Massanoga, with its unique rock, has been the centre of attraction to settlers and Indians for generations, though only recently has it become known to the tourist. Lake Massanoga is twelve miles long and north of the Cliffs is five miles wide. Massanoga is reached by taking the day train from Montreal at 8.55, arriving at Kaladar at 2.43 p.m. Arrangements may be made for a sleeper to be dropped at that point when the party consists of ten or more.

Lively Time in Mississippi.

Greenville, Miss., June 4. — John Simms, a prominent white planter, of Trail Lake, thirty miles from here, and William Cato, his manager, were killed by two negroes in a dispute over a trivial matter. The negroes, whose names were Samuel Clark and Van Horn, escaped, but Horn was captured and lynched to-day. Clark returned to Trail Lake, where he was shot and killed by Mr. Crow, the bookkeeper for Planter Simms. The posse which arrested Horn shot and killed another negro named Mayfield, probably thinking he was Clark.

MORE EVIDENCE FROM MONTREAL

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Always Cure Dropsy.

Montreal, Que., June 3.—(Special.)—Every day brings forth fresh proof that dropsy is caused by diseased kidneys and that the one sure way to cure it is to make the kidneys strong and healthy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Geo. Robertson, 392 St. James street, this city, is one of those who has proved this beyond the shadow of a doubt. Mr. Robertson says:

"My feet were so much swollen from dropsy that when I got out of bed in the mornings I could hardly put them on the floor. My arms used to swell at times so that I could not put on my coat.

"I had to be tapped to relieve me of the terrible pains.

"On the advice of a friend I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had used the second box I began to feel better. Seven boxes cured me completely."

Rheumatism, diabetes, Bright's disease are some of the many forms of kidney disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure promptly and permanently.

It has been said, are the only things which are certain in this world. There is another, however. That is the certainty with which you can, by means of life insurance, leave an estate for your family. THE WAR SITUATION.

A despatch from Tokio, which at present lacks confirmation, states that the Japs have occupied the first line of the outer fortifications of Port Arthur after a feeble resistance, and that Japanese troops have occupied Kwan Tung heights, on which they have placed heavy artillery, dominating Port Arthur. Reports which appear to be reliable state that the Russians have been engaged for some days in removing munitions and stores from Liao Yang to Kaiyuen, seventy miles north-east of Mukden, and that already seven thousand cart-loads have been removed. There is little doubt that the fall of Port Arthur will be the signal for a general retreat of Kuropatkin's army, and the probabilities are that the Russians will fall back to Harbin. All rumours of any serious attempt to relieve Port Arthur may be safely discredited. We may hear of the fortress being carried with a rush any day, but the Russians, being cornered and with no possibility of retreat the Japs are likely to pay a heavy price for their victory

THE STAR AT SUMMER RESORTS.

Readers of the Star leaving the city for the summer months may have the Star by mail for any period, one week or longer, at city prices.

SPOLIATORY LEGISLATION.

In another column of this paper we publish a letter from Mr. William Price, of Quebec. If the facts are as stated by our esteemed correspondent (and he is a reliable man), the Quebec Legislature has this session beaten its own record for spoliatory legislation. To take one man's property away from him and give it to another by act of Parliament is a pretty high-handed proceeding. Even for the Legislature to undertake to determine to whom a property belongs is to usurp the functions of the judges. Such acts are undoubtedly injurious to the country, and we are glad that Mr. Price has determined to carry the issue if need be to the Privy Council.

MR. EMMERSON'S SPEECH.

The speech of the Minister of Railways, on the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill, the full text of which is published in this issue of the Star, is one of the most remarkable utterances ever delivered by a Minister of the Crown. It is chiefly remarkable for what it does not say. Mr. Emmerson had little to say in defence of the Government's railway policy, nor did he define his own policy very clearly. His speech was chiefly an apology for his deliverances on the subject of Government ownership last session and for his long silence during the Grand Trunk Pacific debate this session. As a curiosity in Parliamentary oratory, it is decidedly interesting. The best and most obvious justification of Mr. Emmerson's silence would have been that he has no very decided opinions on the transcontinental railway question and really knows no more about it than does Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself.

MR. BORDEN'S MODERATION.

Mr. Borden, with the characteristic moderation for which he is noted, forebore to take advantage to the full of the awkward position in which the Government leader was placed, because of the "confidential" petition. He might have turned loose a few of his "back benchers," as did the Government when M. K. Cowan was put up to deal with the Blair memorandum; or have put up some one to act as did the Westerners, Scott, Davis and Oliver, when the Government deemed it necessary to defame Mr. Osler. The opportunity would have been seized upon by a less gentlemanly leader than is the senior member for Halifax. In dealing with the matter in the House, it can be seen that Mr. Borden really spoke more in sorrow than in anger. His obligation to the public prevented him from lightly passing over the attempt to withhold from Parliament this petition; and this duty he performed with effective force and great dignity. It was when he came to the Premier's personal statement that all documents had been brought down that Mr. Borden showed his consideration for Sir Wilfrid personally. The material lay ready to his hand for an onslaught, such as Mr. Fielding made upon Mr. Borden over the Blair memorandum or such as Sir Wilfrid himself made upon Mr. Borden, without, however, either of the Ministers having a tittle of the justification that the leader of the Opposition had. It was not to be expected that Mr. Borden would lightly pass over the use of the petition made by Mr. Charlton, and here again, after having passed lightly over the personal part of the matter, in which the Premier occupied a rather peculiar attitude, Mr. Borden lent his usual force and pungency to his remarks.

It was an incident that put Mr. Borden in a good position. He set his opponents an example of courtesy in Parliamentary debate that unfortunately is rather rare. It should serve as a precedent. Such incidents serve to show that Mr. Borden is not only a dignified and effective Parliamentary leader, but is also a courteous gentleman under circumstances when the general tendency is in some other and less pleasant direction.

HOW TO ANTAGONIZE THE CLERKLY HABIT.

A pretty good analysis of the clerkly habit of mind as developed in Government employés is given in the Washington correspondence of the Boston Transcript. The writer says that it is hard to define the "clerkly habit"—the term is his own—without appearing to disparage a very worthy and deserving class of persons who have it. It is the habit, however, he says, of looking at everything through the eyes of a superior, and, even in cases where one's advice is requested effacing one's self immediately after giving it. The victim of the habit — unhappily we must consider him a victim — has trained himself to consider his personal notions a thing apart from the duties he is performing as the representative of a higher authority, and even when he is empowered to act independently he has always the sense that the final decision rests with his chief and not with himself. This habit the writer correctly observes does not help to fit a man for a struggle with the world, and the men are very few whom an official career of any length leaves with sufficient elasticity of spirit or independence of judgment to enter successfully on any other employment.

All this is true, and yet if a man entering the Government service wishes from the start to combat the effects of a life of routine in a subordinate position, there are means of doing it more or less successfully. What is wanted is not that he should set up his will or opinion against that of his superiors, for that would not be loyal in the first place, and might get him into trouble in the second; but that he should use his best intelligence in every case with which he has to deal, and try to take at least as wide a view of it as his superiors — if possible a wider. Then without assuming too much responsibility — by which he would simply compromise himself and others — he should use at every moment all the responsibility really vested in him. The man who follows these rules will never degenerate into a mere machine or a mere echo of the opinions of others. When the time comes for him to leave the public service he will have resources of his own that will serve him in good stead either in other spheres of labour or in the enjoyment of the conventional "well-earned rest."

SOUND ADVICE FROM THE VATICAN.

Monseigneur Lacroix, Bishop of Tarentaise in Savoy, had an audience lately with His Holiness the Pope, in the course of which the question was discussed as to whether priests ought to take part in electoral conflicts. His Holiness on that occasion said in effect that, when he was Bishop of Mantua, and afterwards when he was Patriarch of Venice, he had found that the conflicts between the people and their parish priests almost always originated in some question affecting the elections. In those matters the faithful were very susceptible and suspicious. Should a priest be tempted to encroach on their independence in order to induce them to vote in a particular way, and above all should he afterwards reproach them for having voted on the wrong side, he was sure to arouse a bitter animosity, and more or less compromise his sacred functions. His Holiness approved entirely of a priest taking advantage of his rights as a citizen to vote in accordance with his conscience; but if, not content with this, he rushed into the fray, he would soon lose the esteem and sympathy that were necessary for the fruitful exercise of his sacred mission. Monseigneur Lacroix says that he received substantially the same counsel from the late Pope Leo XIII. From these remarks made by the head of the Church it is clear that the conscience of the priest does not make a binding rule for the members of his flock. The priest votes according to his conscience, but if some of his parishioners vote on the other side, he is not at liberty even to reproach them for having done so. It would be a good thing, however, if the obligation to vote according to conscience were not supposed to be confined to the clergy. The rule of conscience is equally binding on all, and the layman who votes otherwise than according to his conscience incurs just as much sin as if he were a priest.

TABLE PROBLEMS.

NOTTS vs. SUSSEX.

"That is a very remarkable thing," said a spectator at the Notts vs. Sussex match at Brighton on Monday.

"Fry and Vine, you remember, caused the figures on the board to appear in the proportion of 5 to 4 respectively. Fry then made made two runs, which made the proportion as 4 to 3; and Fry next made a boundary hit—four—which made the proportion as 3 to 2."

What were the respective figures on the board?

The answer to yesterday's problem, No. CXI., "How much was it?" is "2s. 6d." Since the whole piece of bacon and ten eggs cost as much as half the bacon and 25 eggs, it is obvious that half the bacon equals 15 eggs, i.e., the cost of the bacon was equal to the cost of 30 eggs. As 50 eggs were offered with the bacon for 6s. 8., it is clear that the same sum would buy 80 eggs. The eggs, in other words, were a penny each, so that the 50 eggs offered with the bacon represented 4s. 2d. Therefore the price of the bacon was 6s. 8d. minus 4s. 2d., or 2s. 6d.

The Death of Former Montrealer.

Burlington, Vt., June 4.—Word has been received here of the death at Brooklyn, N. Y., of W. H. S. Whiterule, general manager of the Equitable Insurance Company. Mr. Whiterule was born in Montreal, in 1835.

THE PASSING HOUR.

After all, the bride should remember that it is a proof of luck that she is getting married at all.

It is quite proper that the beautiful Sydney Fisher should be the Minister of the St. Louis Exhibition.

The report that Boer widows are marrying Englishmen indicates that hostilities are likely to be renewed.

It would appear that the London financiers are now "waiting," after having heard Mr. Borden's declaration.

The opinions of the rest of the Ministers on Mr. Fielding's wisdom in reading that G.T.P. petition is marked "confidential."

Toronto is threatened with a street car strike; but the gloom cast by the brewery strike is so great that they will not notice it.

The market gardeners think that men who live in glass houses should not be allowed to throw early vegetables on to this market.

The Libs. don't see why the people are kicking at Cox ownership. They have always found Cox ownership "grateful and comforting."

If George W. Ross of Ontario would get 'George W. Ross of Guysboro' up to edit the Globe, they would have Gamey talked to a standstill.

The newest departure at Ottawa brings into being a Ministerial Laughing Stock. The headquarters are in the bureau of the Minister of Railways.

Now that the freedom of London has been bestowed on Lord Curzon, there is nothing left to do but to bestow the freedom of Chicago upon "the American Vice-Reine."

Bryan is going to lead the Kansas "braves" to the Democratic Convention, where he will give an exhibition of how "cross" the "gold" movement has made him thus far.

In the absence of a Master of the Administration, Mr. Borden appears to be Master of the House; and it looks as if another title for him—Master of the Situation—were not far off.

Fair Painter—"I hope you don't mind my sketching in your field."

Farmer—"Lor', no, missie! You keep the birds off the peas better'n a' ordinary scarecrow."—Stray Stories.

Mr. Fielding was glib enough over the Blair memorandum. He should have given Sir Wilfrid a hand with that "confidential" petition—especially as he dug the ditch into which the Premier tumbled.

It appears to be the Liberal notion that when a man who is a "civil servant" by profession is on his holidays, he must be expected to rest himself by being an uncivil dictator—i.e., an offensive partisan.

The worst of it is that that statement of Mr. Borden, that he intends to appeal this G.T.P. agreement to the people, will make the "company" reluctant to come down too handsomely for the Lib. campaign fund, for the scheme may not go through after all.

If you are fond of peanut and parish politics; if you like illogical and loosely worded reasoning; if you like clap-trap and cheap "adjectival" effects—take a glance at Mr. Emmerson's speech in today's paper. It's a "great piece of work."

"Confidentially speaking," do you think Sir Wilfrid feels proud of the petition business? asked Mr. Fitzpatrick of Mr. Sifton.

"Speaking without equivocation," replied the young Napoleon, I am durned sure he doesn't!

THIS DATE 30 YEARS AGO.

Messrs. E. Carter and Kellar have applied for writs of mandamus to compel the license commissioners to issue licenses to Privet, Brand, and some dozen others.

THE Board of Commissioners, of which the late Mr. Brehaut, Police Magistrate, was the chairman, went on with their duty undisturbed with threats of legal proceedings. The law of Quebec Province, unlike the Ontario act, gave civic corporations no power to limit the number of saloons. Both Mr. Carter and his partner, Mr. Kellar, have been dead many years. They were able advocates. The latter died in New York.

The Natural History Society rooms, having been kindly and gratuitously placed at the disposal of the "members of the Flower Mission," the first meeting will be held there on Saturday morning next, June 6, at 9 o'clock. All contributions of flowers and fruits will be gladly received during the summer at the same place and distributed among the sick.

THE work inaugurated by the Flower Mission, it is pleasing to record, continues in vigour to this day.

It is rumoured in political circles that Mr. W. Dorion, brother of the Minister of Justice, will present himself as a candidate for Napierville.

THE late Judge Wilfrid Dorion was a younger brother of the late Chief Justice Sir A. A. Dorion, and a very distinguished jurist. He was also a pungent political writer to the press before ascending the Bench. At the general elections in 1867, he contested the County of Chambly for the Federal House, and Drummond and Arthabaska for the Local, but was defeated by Mr. Senecal, his opponent. He was a very able judge and highly esteemed for his sound opinions. He died many years ago.

There were forty members of the family present, including all their children with the exception of Mr. Harry Ferguson, who is resident in Revelstoke, B. C. The gentleman who acted as best man fifty years ago, Mr. William Pierson, a member of the iron manufacturing firm of McGee and Pierson, Merrickville, was also present. The happy couple were in receipt of many valuable presents.

PROVERBS OF THE WORLD

By Geo. Murray, B.A., Oxon.

In my last paper I showed briefly how the sacred instinct for "home, however homely" had inspired "all people that on earth do dwell" to embalm, as it were, their love of it in national proverbs. I met lately with a passage in the writings of Charles Dickens, which I feel tempted to quote for the delight of readers, as a pleasing degression from my own dull practical remarks. It is thus that the great Master of our smiles and tears has expressed himself on the subject of home. "If ever household affections and love are graceful things, they are graceful in the poor. The ties that bind the wealthy and the proud at home may be forged on earth, but those which link the poor man to his humble hearth are of the true metal, and bear the stamp of heaven. * * * His household gods are of flesh and blood, with no alloy of silver, gold, or precious stones; he has no property but in the affections of his own heart; and when they endear bare floors and walls, despite of toil and scanty meals, that man has his love of home from God, and his rude hut becomes a solemn place." In a kindred spirit a noble and eloquent preacher, the late Dr. James Hamilton, wrote: "Are you not surprised to find how independent of money peace of conscience is, and how much happiness can be condensed in the humblest home? A cottage will not hold the bulky furniture and sumptuous accommodations of a mansion; but, if God be there, a cottage will hold as much happiness as might stock a palace." There is a touching simplicity in the Italian proverb, "Legami, Mani e piei, e gettami tra' miei," i.e., "Tie me hand and foot, and throw me among my own." But it is when we call to mind noted exiles from home and wanderers over the earth that we realize most deeply the blessings of home-life. It matters not whether their names occur in history or in fiction, the hopelessness of their fate claims our silent commiseration. Even now, as it echoes sadly through the mist of many ages, we can hear the voice of Cain crying unto the Lord: "My punishment is greater than I can bear. Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from thy face I shall be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth." That glorious dreamer, Coleridge, was impressed with the horror of the picture, and wrote a prose fragment entitled "The Wanderings of Cain," which contains a vivid description of the hapless fugitive. Subsequently, when the poet, "more suo,' 'abandoned the theme, he wrote, as he himself tells us, "The Ancient Mariner," instead. Can we ever forget that weird and mystical poem, or cease to be haunted by its solemn words?

"I pass, like night, from land to land;
 I have strange power of speech;
That moment that his face I see
I know the man that must hear me;
 To him my tale I teach."

Finally, the miseries of homelessness have been pathetically described by numerous romance-writers, who have selected as the hero of their narratives an imaginary personage, whose existence is owed to a legend connected with the hictory of Christ's passion. He is known in Latin as "Judaeus non Mortatis"; in German as "Der Ewiger Jude"; in French as "Le Juif Errant," and in English as "The Wandering Jew." The legend seems to have been evolved from the words of Jesus to Peter, recorded in "St. John, xxi., 22: "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?" At one time, we find the Jew named Ahasuerus, at another, Cartaphilus, and in the 14th century he was called Isaac Lakedion or Laquedem. We are also gravely informed that his last recorded apparition was at Brussels in April, 1774. I have merely referred to him on this occasion as the most striking instance in fiction that I can recall, which illustrates the terrible calamity of being without a home. But though the hallowed instinct for home seems universally prevalent, and one of man's ineradicable characteristics, cynical philosophers have traced the feeling back to innate selfishness, which they declare to be the most marked feature of humanity. It was this quality that I intended to illustrate by the proverbs of different countries, when the recollection of the words of Dickens about "Home" beguiled me from fulfilling my intention. In reference to such misunderstood sayings as "Charity begins at home," and "Honesty is the best policy," the late Archbishop of Dublin well remarked: "Doubtless there are proverbs not a few, which move in the region of what has been well called "prudential morality"; and did we accept them as containing the whole circle of motives to honesty, or other right conduct, nothing could be worse or more fitted to lower the moral standard of our lives." I must reserve the consideration of proverbs about selfishness, self-love, and self-interest for another paper.

MISSIONS AND COLLEGES DAY

MORE FUNDS ARE NEEDED

Special to The Montreal Star.

St. John, N.B., June 4.—Attorney General Campbell, in the General Assembly yesterday, had charge of the report on the Church and Manse Building Fund. It is twenty-three years since the Church and Manse Fund was established, and within that time it has assisted in the erection of 589 buildings, valued at about $173,000. Twenty-nine loans were made during the year and that these loans amounted to $18,150, an average of $625 to each building. The repayments on account of principal amount to $10,278.27, and the repayments on account of interest to $2,370.77. To this amount of interest earned must be added the interest on investments other than churches and manses ($475), and interest on bank account, $575.48. In other words, the total amount of interest earned was $3,421.25, while the total number of grants (not loans) was $2,665, and the expense of management $423.05, a total of $3,088.05.

PINE HILL COLLEGE.

After the adoption of the report the Assembly passed on to the consideration of the large subject of colleges. The first in order was the theological institution at Halifax Pine Hill Seminary. Dr. Sedgwick and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario made the presentations to the Assembly, which included announcements of the appointment of Rev. Robt. Magill, Ph.D., of Moghera, Ireland, to the chair of Systematic Theology, and of Principal Pollock's resignation, with the recommendation to appoint Rev. R. A. Falconer, L.L.D., as his successor, and the nomination of Rev. Arthur S. Morton, B.D., of St. Stephen, N.B., as lecturer in the college for three years on practical theology and church history, at a salary of $1,500 per annum. The board reports that the daughters of the late Senator Carmichael have made a gift of $2,000 to institute a scholarship for post graduate study. The board has decided to designate the scholarship "The James William Carmichael Scholarship." The receipts for the year were $13,300.76, an increase of $560.22 over the preceding year. The income from interests and rents was $8,214.32; from donations, $455, and from congregational contributions, $4,629.44, an increase of $293.63 over the previous year.

KNOX COLLEGE.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the chairman of the board, had charge of the report of Knox College. The number of students enrolled in the various classes for the past year has been seventy-one. Of these twenty-three received their diplomas at the close of the session. The board observed with satisfaction that forty-three of the students are university graduates. The total receipts for the ordinary fund, including the balance of $328.08 brought forward from last year, have been $20,076.08. The disbursements during the year have amounted to the sum of $19,898.96, leaving a balance to the credit of income account of $177.12.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada outside of its own bounds was brought under the review of the General Assembly by Rev. Mr. Martin's report of the Foreign Mission Committee. Dr. Millar, from the Maritime Provinces, and Dr. J. F. Smith, who served both in the home church and in India, spoke to the report, Rev. G. A. Sutherland, of British Guiana, and Rev. John Sinclair, the head of the Regina Industrial Home for Indian Children, were the other speakers. The fields of operation are the New Hebrides, Trinidad, British Guiana, Corea, Formosa, Central India, China, the mission to the Chinese in Ontario and Quebec and British Columbia, and the mission to the Indians in the North-West and British Columbia. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society, an auxiliary to the Foreign Mission Committee, had another successful year, their total receipts amounting to $55,706.95, being $3,422.20 more than the receipts of last year. Their auxiliaries and mission bands number 1,078, with total membership of 23,698. The total receipts of the Foreign Mission Committee for the year were $107,818.27, of which $40,200 was received from the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. The year closed with a debt of $25,603.57. The receipts from legacies—$1,745—were the smallest for many years, the average income from this source being about $9,000 annually. In the hope that contributions would be forthcoming, the committee in September last adopted estimate for the current year requiring an expenditure of about $103,000. They were, however, reluctantly compelled at a later date to reduce this to $93,000, which is fully $25,000 in excess of the revenue of last year.

An urgent appeal made in April has so far resulted in receipts of $6,000, and the committe fear that unless more is forthcoming they may have to curtail the work.

On the completion of the missionary reports the Assembly rose for the day.

A HOSPITAL AT DAWSON.

During Friday morning's session, Dr. Pringle, from the Yukon, was given a quarter of an hour to state a matter bearing upon the maintenance and future prospects of the Samaritan Hospital at Dawson. The matter was sent to a committee.

The Moderator then named three committees, on the nominating of standing committees, on the reception of ministers and on special cases of application of ministers to be received, with the following convenors, respectively: Dr. Falconer, Dr. Armstrong and Dr. Boyce.

WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' FUNDS.

The three funds, Church of Scotland, Maritime Provinces, and the western section, dealing with the widows and orphans of departed ministers were taken up one by one. Dr. Campbell, of Montreal, and Rev. Dr. Morrison had charge of the first report (Church of Scotland), which was received and adopted. The funds are in good condition. The roll of annuitants is 42. Two names were removed from the roll since the Vancouver Assembly, and arrangements were made for the amalgamation of this fund with the fund of the western section.

The report from the Maritime Provinces, which was handled by Dr. Sedgwick and Prof. Scrimger, was most encouraging. The assets of the fund at this date are $145,814.68, as against $134,488.56 last year. The number of widows in receipt of annuity is 18, and of orphans 11. The receipts for the twelve months amounted to $19,135.77.

In the absence of Mr. Henderson, the convener, Dr. Warden and Rev. D. Strachan, had charge of the fund belonging to the western section, from which one hundred and twenty-six widows and fifty-three children are drawing. At the close of the ecclesiastical year there remained to the credit of the ordinary fund over one thousand dollars. There are at present 374 ministers connected with the fund by the payment of rates. This number has considerably increased during the last few years, but nearly one-half of the ministers in the western section are not connected with the fund.

RARE OHANOE FOR SPEOULATION AT ST. LAMBERT!

P. N. MAILLOUX,
L. CHARLES GRAVEL,
to sell at their rooms, No. 86 St. Peter street, on Thursday, the 9th June,

at Eleven O'Clock A. M.

that valuable farm situated at St. Lambert, facing the city. The frontage on the river is over THREE ARPENTS by an irregular depth, the whole forming about 228 ARPENTS, 130 of which is in a high state of cultivation; balance in pasture and maple bush. There are five houses on the property, stone and wood, with out-buildings, ice house, barns, granary, stabling, etc., etc., with fine garden planted with fruit trees; bounded in front by the River St. Lawrence, one side by Mr. Marcil's farm, on the other bv an avenue 80 feet wide, and the road called Coteau Rouge, leading to Chambly.

This is certainly one of the finest opportunities for speculators, capitalists and others of making money, as the property is most advantageously situated for dividing into building lots.

It is intended to open an avenue from Longueuil to St. Lambert, which would run through the widest part of the property.

The Montreal and South Shore Auto Car Company, Ltd., has just established a regular service of automobile 'buses between Montreal and St. Lambert.

Terms of sale, plans and all information can be obtained from the undersigned.

The French Naval Budget.

Paris, June 4.—The naval budget distributed to the members of the Chamber of Deputies provides total appropriations of $62,000,000, which is $1,050,000 in excess of the budget for the current year. The increase is largely in a provision for reserve division of armoured cruisers for the northern squadron, and a division of torpedo destroyers for the Asiatic squadron. A general reorganization of the coast defence is also provided for.

Special Notice.

Interesting Doings at the Big Store.

On Monday morning The Carsley Co., Limited, will commence a week of Herculean efforts to command the greatest offerings in stylish goods to wear—pure foods to eat—and reliable goods to use. First in importance comes the Silk Sale—we won't spoil your pleasure by describing them. Come and see them. The Dress Goods Sale ranks equally as interesting, in many cases the price-concessions amount to one-half the usual prices. The Great Shirt Waist Sale has enlisted two new recruits for Monday, priced at 96c. Great doings are expected by their combined efforts. The Linen Store is looking after requisites for the Bath Room, such as Towels, Bath Sheets, etc., but the basement is the Mecca to which all thrifty housekeepers will turn. We've prepared a special Bargain Carnival for Monday that will repay a prolonged visit.

AMERICAN RIFLE AT BISLEY MEET

Statement Given Out by General Spencer is the Trouble.

OTHER TEAMS COGNIZANT

From the Special Correspondent of the Montreal Star Resident in New York.

New York, June 4.—Referring to the cables from London, in relation to the Palma trophy match, shot last year at Bisley, England, and won by America, Gen. Bird W. Spencer, president of the National Rifle Association of America, said yesterday.

"Gen. Spencer was not the captain of the American team, Col. Leslie C. Bruce, of New York having filled that position. Gen. Spencer did not accompany the American team to England. A rifleman by the name of Milton Farrow, Washington, D. C., sent an article to the Washington Evening Star, which was published on July 29, 1903, in which it was stated that the American riflemen used non-regulation arms and that foul play was charged against the American team.

"After the publication of this article, the secretary of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, Col. C. R. Crosse, addressed a communication to the National Rifle Association of America, asking for an explanation as to the article and for categorical answers to certain questions, giving description of the rifle used in the contest, and particularly stating: 'In asking you to lay this letter before the National Rifle Association of America for their consideration and reply, I have to say that my council have no other object in view than to dispel the doubts which have arisen in connection with this match.'

"The letter from the National Rifle Association of Great Britain was submitted to the Board of Directors of the National Rifle Association of America at a meeting held in Washington, D. C., January 19, 1904, and the president (Gen. Spencer) was instructed to reply thereto, which he did.

GEN. SPENCER'S REPLY.

"In the first place, by authority of Major James E. Bell, who was quoted in the article referred to in the Star, he denies that Major Bell had made any such statement. The statement attributed to Major Bell, being that he took the view that the rifles in question could not properly be used.

"Gen. Spencer's communication further stated that the team was equipped with two rifles, both of Government standard, model of 1892, but that to one of the rifles was attached a barrel which barrel conformed in rifling, this being the only difference between it and the 1892 model, to the new army rifle which was not yet obtainable. Instructions were given to Col. Bruce, the captain of the team, at the last moment before sailing that if there was the slightest objection to the use of the rifles to which were attached the special barrels, his team was to immediately discard them and shoot with the old-model rifles taken with them.

OTHER TEAMS COGNIZANT.

"At a meeting of the directors of the National Rifle Association of America, January 19, 1904, Col. Bruce distinctly stated that the character of the rifles which were used was thoroughly ununderstood by every team captain, and no objection whatever was raised; further, that it was known by everybody that these rifles were to be used by the American team; also that the rifles referred to were freely passed over to officers and members of other teams, to the officers of the competition, and others for examination and trial if desired; he also stated that the rifles with the special barrels attached were fully and publicly sanctioned by the National Rifle Association of America. He then proceeded to give a description of the rifles as requested, which agreed with the pitch of the spiral and the grooving of the new army rifle.

"In the article published by Mr. Farrow in the Star the statement was made that an enlarged barrel was used, cal. .303. This Gen. Spencer distinctly denied and stated that the barrels were the regulation 30 cal. rifle. Gen. Spencer further quoted from articles published in the Shooting Times of London and the Volunteer Service Gazette, which articles gave description of the rifles used by the American team and stated that the whole matter had been carefully gone into by a selected committee of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, and that the rifles were unanimously permitted to be used."

THE BRITISH RIFLES.

Dr. W. B. Short, a corporal in the Seventh Regiment of the State militia, and one of the members of the American team which won the Palma trophy at Bisley in 1903, states that the conditions under which the match was shot had been the same for the English as for the Americans. He said also that the Englishmen were thoroughly aware of the fact that the American team was using rifles with special barrels and specially made ammunition. He said:

"Fully two weeks before the shoot, Mr. Cross, secretary of the National Rifle Association, asked me if our rifles and ammunition were the same as we would receive were we sent out on service. I told him that our rifle barrels had been made by the Stevens Arms Company after the specifications governing the rifle which had been adopted by the War Department for use in our army. Also I told him that our ammunition, while being specially made for the match, had been made by the company furnishing ammunition to the Government and identical with it.

"In turn I asked him the question he had asked me, and his reply was that the rifle barrels of the English team had been made by a private firm and afterwards sent to the Government arsenal for inspection, approval, and stamping with the Government mark. Mr. Cross told me that the ammunition also had been especially made, so it is clear from his answer that while the rifles and ammunition used by the British team were not literally of service character, they were practically so; and this may also be said, with equal veracity, of the pieces and cartridges used by the American team.

THE AMERICAN ADVANTAGE.

"The advantage we derived from having the barrels made in private works was a more careful workmanship, but in every way these barrels were constructed to conform to the Government pattern. The reason we had them made was that we knew that the English team would do the self same thing. To sum matters up, it is a fact that not a man who shot on the English team used a rifle made in the Government works.

"Further than my talk with Mr. Cross, let me say that the captains of the two teams had a conference a week before the day of the match and this matter of rifle barrels was taken up and thoroughly discussed, and there was never the vaguest thought of a protest on the part of the Englishmen."

THE NEW RIFLE.

At the office of the Winchester Arm Company it was said that on July 11, 1903, the date of the Palma trophy shoot, there were two rifles in service use in the United States army, the Krag-Jorgensen and the Springfield model.

The new rifle of the army, which has supplanted the Krag piece, is made at Springfield, and the members of the American team claim that the special barrels they used at Bisley were manufactured in entire accordance with the specifications governing the construction of the new Springfield piece.

A WARNING FOR MILITIA OFFICERS

Green Men Should Not Be Allowed to Handle Rifles.

THE VARIOUS SUMMER CAMPS

Special to the Montreal Star.

The attention of all officers of the militia, and captains of rifle associations, is called to the extreme danger, to the public, even on the safest range, in allowing untrained men to handle the rifle without supervision. Practically when men have received a reasonable preliminary training, it should be impossible for a shot to miss the target by more than five or six feet, except in the cases where shots strike the ground first and ricochet. In the latter case the life of a bullet is always limited to a comparatively short distance, and the danger is to that extent minimized, but in the case of wild shooting, a bullet may travel a very long distance to one side or the other before coming to the ground.

There is no possible excuse for a man being allowed to shoot until he has been taught to hold his rifle, and the senior officer of each unit will be held responsible that proper precautions are taken in regard to this matter before untrained and new shots are allowed to practice without close and sufficient supervision.

When detachments of foreign troops of a friendly power, bearing arms and in uniform, desire to enter the Dominion of Canada, it is necessary that permission be previously obtained from the Canadian Government to do so.

The requisite permission should be applied for on behalf of the visiting troops through their respective Governments.

The Supreme Master Workman Dies at Battle Creek.

Battle Creek, Mich, June 4.—Supreme Master Workman William H. Miller, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, died at a sanitorium from kidney trouble, after an illness of several weeks. Several of the Supreme Lodge officers, as well as his wife, who is prominent in the ladies' auxiliary of the A.O.U.W., were with him when he died. He was 61 years of age. The remains will be taken to St. Louis to-day.

The Palma Trophy Matter.

London, June 4.—With reference to the statement made yesterday by General Bird W. Spencer, president of the National Rifle Association of America, that the committee of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain had carefully considered the matter of the American special rifles, and had agreed to their use, it is pointed out here that the reply of Col. C. R. Crosse, secretary of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, April 13, to General Spencer's letter containing similar statements, absolutely denied that the question of the American barrels was ever brought before the council or committee of his association at or before the Bisley meeting.

MONTREAL BILL AS IT IS TO-DAY

Measure Was Amended Almost Out of All Recognition.

SOME IMPORTANT CLAUSES

Special Taxes That May Now Be Levied—Clauses That Were Killed.

There was considerable interest among the aldermen upon the receipt from Quebec of the Montreal bill as it finally passed the Legislature and became law.

The aldermen, after carefully perusing it, admitted it had been cut and doctored in a way by the legislators that scarcely one of them recognized their original handiwork.

The bill showed that whole pages, asking for expropriations, had been ruthlessly blue-penciled; as had also the clause asking that the City Council be allowed to borrow money, without restriction, for public works and expropriations. This famous clause read as follows:

"461b. Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary, the council may, by resolution or by-law, decide to do public works, such as the development of the water-works service, the building and enlargement of municipal buildings, including markets, fire and police stations, city hall and others; the making of squares or public parks in accordance with the lines of the homologated plan or of any special plan, and to expropriate, at its discretion, immoveables or parts of immovables it may need for any such improvement, and may sell by public auction or private contract the remainder of the land or buildings not required for the proposed improvements."

Another pernicious clause which was killed was that proposing the city should pay "market" values for property instead of "assessors'" values; and that interested parties should be allowed to grant awards.

THE MOST IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS.

The most important amendments were those relating to the punishment of persons found guilty of corrupt practices at elections. As the law now stands persons guilty of bribery can get off by paying a fine. The amended clause reads as follows:

"The first paragraph of article 227 of the Act 62, Victoria Chapter 58, is replaced by the following:

"227. Every person shall be deemed guilty of bribery and shall be punishable accordingly, who, to induce a person to allow himself to be nominated, as a candidate or to refrain from becoming a candidate, or to withdraw if nominated, having the qualification required to be legally nominated as candidate. This provision shall not apply to pendng cases.

"230. Any person guilty of the act of bribery mentioned in articles 223, 226, 227, 228 and 229, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $200, nor more than $400, and in default of payment, of an imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than twelve months. This provision shall apply to offences committed, but not yet judged."

ALDERMANIC QUALIFICATIONS.

"No person can be validly nominated or elected as mayor or alderman, who is not a British subject, of the full age of twenty-one years, or if he has been declared guilty of a criminal offence by a court of justice, and confined in the common gaol, or penitentiary therefor, or who is in holy orders or a minister or a teacher of any religious denomination, or a judge or clerk of any court, or member of the Federal or Provincial Government, or who has any contract with the city for the performance of any work, or who is surety for any such contract, or who as an advocate, conducts or carries against the city in any court of justice or in any expropriation proceedings, or who is a party to or interested in any suit against the city, or whose firm or any member thereof conducts a case against the city, or who is, directly or indirectly, interested in a cause, suit, or claim against the city, or who is in any way accountable for the city revenue, or in the employ of the city or who is indebted to the city for taxes, assessments on real estate or water-rate, — special assessments for local improvements being excepted."

A BATCH OF NEW TAXES.

"A special tax not exceeding fifty dollars on every person selling or offering for sale by retail any bankrupt stock or stocks exclusively, and a special tax not exceeding one hundred dollars on every person temporarily opening a shop or temporarily occupying any other premises to sell or offer for sale therein any articles or goods whatsoever."

"A special tax, (not exceeding two hundred dollars on every life, accident, or guarantee insurance company, doing business and taking risks in the city), and a special tax, not exceeding one hundred dollars, on every marine insurance company doing business and taking risks in the city."

"When a fire insurance company combines other branches of insurance an additional special tax shall be levied upon such company, that is to say, the tax the rate whereof is the highest on any of the said branches of insurance respectively."

"A special tax, not exceeding four hundred dollars on every bank doing business in the city, with a paid up capital of one million dollars or less; a tax, not exceeding five hundred dollars on every such bank, the paid up capital whereof is more than one million dollars but does not exceed two million dollars, and a tax, not exceeding six hundred dollars, on every such bank, the paid up capital whereof is above two million dollars."

"Every such bank shall further pay a tax of one hundred dollars for every branch it has within the city limits."

"A special tax, not exceeding one hundred dollars, on every detective agency, and a special tax, in the form of a licensé, not exceeding five dollars, on every constable (not being in the exclusive service of the municipality, of the Government, or of railway, or navigation companies)."

"A special tax not exceeding five dollars on every automobile, vehicle or other vehicle not drawn by horses, used exclusively for purposes of business or pleasure, and a special tax, not exceding twenty dollars on every automobile, vehicle or other vehicle not drawn by horses, serving for the conveyance of travellers."

"A special tax, not exceeding fifty dollars, on every carriage or other vehicle used for advertising purposes."

"A special tax, not exceeding twenty dollars, upon every person, firm, comber of Augustin Daly's Shakespearian pany and upon every corporation not residing or having a place of business within the city limits of the city, who shall come therein to carry on retail trade, or who therein shall cause to be delivered or delivers by waggons or vehicles, goods so sold in the city."

"A special tax, not exceeding thirty dollars, on every vehicle drawn by three or more horses not already taxed."

"A special tax, not exceeding one hundred dollars, on every person or agent of a person or company not occupying any stall, store or warehouse, licensed for the sale of butcher's meat, game or poultry within the limits of the city, and taking orders for any one or more of such victuals, or for salted or smoked meat, or hog meat, or offering for sale one or more of such victuals from door to door, or from shop to shop."

"A tax, not exceeding one hundred dollars, on all brokers who are members of the stock exchange, and on all other brokers or persons carrying on the stock exchange business, either as agents, correspondents or representatives of brokerage or exchange brokerage firms exempting the members of the corn exchange."

> "24. The city, in accordance with the resolution passed on the 4th May, 1904, may widen St. Lawrence street from Pine avenue to Mount Royal avenue at an approximate cost of $223,000. This improvement shall be made in 1905, and paid for as follows: One half by the city and the other half by means of an assessment levied on all the proprietors of real estate on both sides of the said street from Pine avenue to Mount Royal avenue, in 20 annual and consecutive instalments, with interest at 5 per cent. per year, payable annually from the date of the coming into force of the assessment roll."

OTHER NEW CLAUSES.

There are various other new clauses which are:

"The city may, by creating an insurance fund, insure itself against risks by fire, wholly or in part, in the discretion of the council, provided a sum not exceeding five per cent. of the value of the buildings as shown on the valuation roll, be entered every year in the estimates, be put aside, and capitalized as an insurance fund to be employed solely for that purpose."

"To protect members of the city fire brigade against accindents resulting from false fire alarms, and to that end inflict an imprisonment, not exceeding fifty dollars and costs or both penalties at once, and in default of payment of the said fine and costs, a further imprisonment, not exceeding three months for infringement of any by-law adopted under this paragraph.

The exemption enacted by the foregoing article shall not apply to persons occupying buildings or lands, belonging to His Majesty or to the federal or provincial governments otherwise than in their official capacity, which persons shall be taxed like other proprietors, lessees or occupants of immoveables, notwithstanding the exemption of such buildings or lands."

"The city is authorized to correct an error of calculation with regard to the expropriation of a property belonging to the Canada Life Assurance Company, in St. Peter street, according to which the total price to be paid for the expropriated property was entered as six thousand dollars instead of eight thousand dollars, to pay the difference and complete the expropriation on this basis as rectified."

The clauses asking that the city build conduits and buy out the Montreal Gas Company were killed.

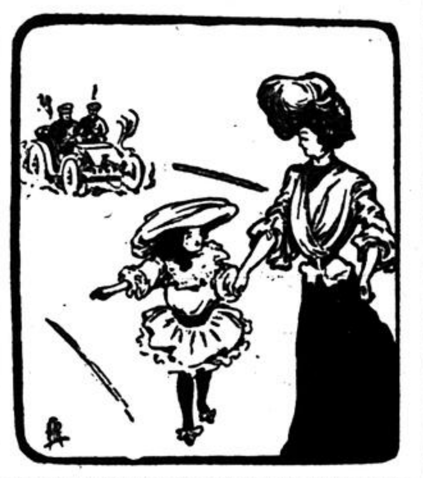
Automobiles in Montreal.

Numerous and bitter have been the complaints concerning the speed maintained by automobiles in this city. It is stated, and the allegation seems only too open to proof, that in their perambulations many chauffeurs of this city maintain a speed that is dangerous both to pedestrians and vehicles.

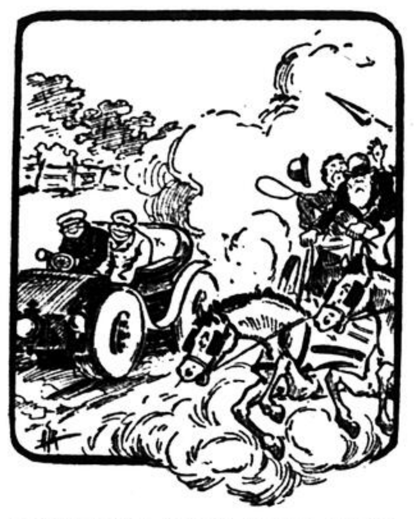
If Thomas, the weird old wizard of Ermistoun, were to be suddenly transported from the limbo proper to deceased wizards, to Sherbrooke street, west or Western avenue, almost any afternoon or evening, Thomas would assuredly go wild with joy. He would see another of his prophecies fulfilled. He would see the sons of men propelled, moving whither they will, apparently by no human agency. Thomas would be delighted,—for a moment. Then, as he crossed the street, the hair on the head of Thomas would rise and his very blood would curdle. An eildrich screech would split his ear drum. Thomas would instinctively dodge,—if he were lucky he would escape. Then a huge tonneau car would whiz past him and the occupants would utter a delighted laugh at the amusing contortions which Thomas had gone through.



THEY WERE CROSSING THE STREET.

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

The other evening, it was at the corner of Drummond and Sherbrooke St., a lady and a little girl were walking hand and hand. They were crossing the former of the two streets, the little girl was smiling up delightedly into her mother's face, when suddenly there was a swirl of dust, the child gave a cry of alarm, a horn gave a hurried squack, and a large family car filled with a jolly company passed by, missing the poor startled wayfarers by the fraction of an inch. They walked on, but the little girl clung closer to her mother's gown, the smile came more seldom, and the shock she had received was only too apparent to the eye of a close beholder.



SOMETHING DARK FLEW PAST.

Two evenings later, as a party of picnickers were returning from a favoured spot in that region of mystery, lying beyond the mountain, they received a shock that it will take them some days to recover from.

The van was preceeding along the Cote des Neiges road. The driver perhaps was not as attentive as he should have been, he couldn't help listening to the laughter and jokes behind him,—the horses, two sober, very correct and proper horses, were jogging along at that gait which their progenitors used when they bore old farmer Giles to market. Just as they neared the corner of Westmount Avenue, something dark flew past, with no heralding toot or warning cry.—Something dark that emitted an odor of gasoline. Dobbin stood up on his hindlegs, Nancy sparred frantically with her forelegs, the laughter of the picnic party turned to cries of alarm, the horses regaining their feet swerved. The van was upset, luckily with little damage to its occupants, but the $2,700 family touring car, with its six occupants went on its way rejoicing, despite the curses and execrations, both loud and deep which the discomfited picnickers hurled after them.

THE VAN WAS UPSET.

The same evening but a little earlier, a runabout driven by a solitary young man had telescoped a cab at the corner of Beaver Hall Square and Dorchester Street fortunately with little damage, except to the strenuous chauffeur.

That the frequent complaints about excessive speed of autos are not without foundation the several incidents referred to, occurring in the same week, bear witness. That there are some real grounds for complaint, none will deny.

It is very probable that the city officials will shortly interfere and legislate aginst the excessive speed which a number of the votaries of the fad delight in. That such action on their part would be in the best interests of the sport itself as well as that of every citizen of Montreal, is undoubted. Hasten the day.

The Mouse and the Woman.

It was just a little wee bit of a mouse. That's all.

It poked its brown head out of a hole in the woodwork of a building on St. Catherine street and proceeded to investigate its surroundings. By the der way there was a small sized feminine riot.

Opinions differ concerning the first woman to see the mouse. Circumstantial evidence points in the direction of a stout lady in black silk who gave one short scream and collapsed on a bootblack. Whether that agonized cry startled Mr. Mouse is not certain, but one thing is sure, he began to break all records in the mouse sprinting line.

Then he seemed to get the habit and lose his head. He sidestepped a portly gentleman's foot and caromed neatly against the high heeled fours of a dainty bit of femininity, who gave a stifled moan and tried to faint, but couldn't get further than the preliminary stages. By this time half the women in the shopping district had learned the alarming news that a dreadful thing was abroad seeking what he might devour.

Half the women in the vicinity seemed to be making preparations to go in paddling. Never was there a bigger display of hose, not even at a big fire. And how they did seek the safe sanctuary of steps and doors! With what horror they gazed upon the poor little mouse, who, by this time, was wondering what all the blooming row was about!

No one knows what would have happened if suddenly he had not spied the little hole in the wall. With a scamper of little feet he darted across the road and in a twink was down and out. Then each woman said to her neighbour: "My dear, wasn't it perfectly horrid?"

And so it was.

SHAKY NERVES.

Sufferers from Nervous Troubles are in a State of Continuous Torture—Suggestions as to How the Trouble Can be Overcome.

When your nerves are shaky your self-control is shattered — your will power is broken. Sudden sounds startle you; your temper is irritable; your hands tremble; there is weakness in your knees; your skin is pale and parched; you are restless at night and tired when you wake. It all comes from nervous exhaustion, perhaps due to overwork and worry, late hours, hot days, and want of blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only cure. They make new, rich, red blood. They brace up jangled nerves and strengthen tired backs. They give health and energy to dull, weary, despondent men and women. Strong proof is offered in the case of Mrs. Wm. Westcott, of Seaforth, Ont., who says: "For a long time my health was in a bad state. I was subject to headaches, dizziness and nervous exhaustion. My appetite was poor, and I was so badly run down I could not stand the least exertion. I tried several medicines and consulted different doctors, but they did not help me any. One of my neighbours strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before the second box was finished the turning point for the better had been reached, and by the time I had used a half dozen boxes, to the surprise of my friends and neighbours I was again enjoying good health, and have since been strong and well. I do not know anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down.'

What the pills have done for others they will do for you, if you will give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sunshine Furnace

Don't Sift Ashes;

What then? Waste good coal? Increase expense?

No, use a furnace that burns all the coal, that does not shake down some ashes and a lot of coal.

Use a furnace with a grate that drops ashes, but holds the coal — a furnace with such perfect combustion that all the coal is burnt and gives off all the heat that's in it.

An incident took place yesterday on Bleury street that is worthy of a high place in the records of animal fidelity.

A fox terrier, sorely injured, was dying on the road side. A cart had run over him, and it was but a question of a few moments ere he would breathe his last. The passers-by were too preoccupied to play the good Samaritan to the dying dog by the road side. A little Scotch terrier ran up. Apparently taking in the situation, she hastily scurried hither and thither, as if trying to attract the attenon of the pedestrians. Failing in that, she ran back to the sufferer on the cobble stones, and began to minister in her own way to its comfort, now licking its face, now springing out and barking furiously when any passing vehicle seemed to threaten further injury.

A man came out, dragging a hose after him, about to water the pavement in front. Whether in a wanton spirit, or with the idea that the cool stream would benefit the injured animal, he directed it upon him. The little Scotch terrier's anger almost choked her. Before the stream had been upon the injured dog for half a second, she sprang over him and stood warding off the icy shower with her own body, until the man desisted.

Nor even then would she leave her position. When passersby offered to intervene, she snapped viciously at them, standing over the dead animal for a full half hour after the breath had left its body. Then, apparently realizing the uselessness of her task, she licked the motionless head a last time, and trotted off sorrowfully.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Solicitor-General for Canada, will go to England on June 17th to represent the Dominion Government before the Privy Council at the hearing of the appeal of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick against the redistribution of parliamentary seats in the last census.

LACROSSE

Joseph Mercier, of the Nationals, will act as referee for this afternoon's game between Montreal and Shamrock, at the M.A.A.A. grounds.

After several conferences between representatives of both clubs, it was found impossible to agree upon anyone for the position, so the matter was finally turned over to Mr. Meunier, president of the N.A.L.U. Mr. Mercier is a well known athlete, and formerly captain of the National team. Everything is ready for the great struggle.

The Match at St Catherines,

What promises to be the hardest fought battle in the history of the senior series of the C. L. A. will be played in St. Catharines to-day, when the Minto Cup chasers will attempt to get revenge for last Saturday's defeat. A crowd of six hundred people goes with the team.

Brantford, despite the jeers of some eastern sporting critics, has a much stronger team this year than last, according to the management. The weak spots have been patched up, and the fact that the team was defeated on home grounds does not prove that it is not capable of lifting the Minto Cup.

Ladies Form Lacrosse League.

A Ladies' Lacrosse Association was formally organized in Vancouver last evening. Miss Ellice Webber was chosen as captain, Mr. W. Durrand as coach. There is a strong desire among daughters of prominent citizens to join the association, the movement being very popular.

An Indian Association.

The National Indian Lacrosse Association has organized, elected officers and arranged a schedule for 1904. F. Roundpoint is president and P. White secretary-treasurer. The schedule is as follows:—June 4th, Snye at Cornwall Island; June 18, St. Regis at Snye; July 9, Cornwall Island at St. Regis; July 23, Cornwall Island at Snye; August 6, Snye, at St. Regis; Sept, 17, St. Regis at Cornwall Island.

Trouble on the Coast.

Owing to Vancouver refusing to play a tie game with Westminster to settle last year's lacrosse championship, the Westminster have withdrawn from the league of Senior lacrosse, and the game is killed for this season.

Lindsay played a C. L. A. game at Orillia. The home team won by 19 goals to 2. Peter McMillan refereed.

The Swarthmore College lacrosse team won the intercollegiate championship of America by defeating the University of Toronto team by a score of 4 to 2.

Word has been received by Secretary W. H. Hall that there is no truth in the report that Tottenham will disband. The team will finish out their season as scheduled.

Mr. F. C. Waghorne, of Toronto, has been appointed by Vice-President Nelson as referee of the Brantford-St. Catharines game at St. Catharines today, and has accepted. Mr. Waghorne was agreed on by both clubs as the desired official.

Holders of reserved seat tickets will enter the M.A.A.A. grounds by the St. Catherine street gates, and general admission can be obtained at all gates. It would be advisable for reserved seat holders to get to their places early and avoid any confusion, as there is sure to be a huge crowd in the stand.

The new intercollegiate champions were trained by Mr. Bert. Davis, of Toronto, who some years ago was considered one of the best defence players in the business. Mr. Davis worked wonders with the material at hand, never at any time having more than a squad of 35 from which to select a team. Swarthmore won the American college championship by defeating Johns Hopkins, in Baltimore, the first time the trick was ever done, by 8 to 3.

The last Tecumsehs' practice was well attended at the Island. The team is now in the best of shape for the match with Orillia at the Island. The match should be one of the best of the season, and as the Orillia team will be strengthened by the services of a couple of new men, they should put up a good fight against the Indians. Swayne will be home from the 'Varsity trip for this game, and will play on the home field. Donaldson will make his first appearance with the Tecumsehs in this game, and will play at outside home. The probable line-up for the Tecumsehs will be: Goal, James; point, Hanley; cover, Shore; defence, Menarey, Rowantre and Lambe; centre, Kirkwood; home, Querrie, Murray and Swayne; outside, Donaldson; inside, Henry. This will be the strongest team that has represented the local club this year.

THE TURF

The Woodbine Race Results.

Toronto, June 4.—The Woodbine races yesterday offered no particular features, although the racing was good. The track is muddy, but drying up fast. The day was a bit foggy to start with, but cleared up fine. The only outsider was Dr. Rowell's The Don, at 5 to 1 ,in the fifth race. The owner himself was surprised, for he had bet on the favourite, Dr. Gurnsey, to be first or second, but the best he could do was just outside the money. Wonderly rode two winners.

First race, 5½ furlongs, galloping,purse $400, for 3-year-olds—Reticent, 105, Wonderly, 8 to 5, won by three lengths; Sir Bath Beach, 105, Finnegan, 9 to 2, second; Loch Goil, 110, H. Michaels, 10 to 2, third. Time, 1.10½. Minamoto, Tricula, and Mike Clancy also ran.

Third race, 6 furlongs, Aberdeen purse, $500, for 3-year-olds and upward—Chatelaine, 106, Wonderly, 6 to 5, won by two lengths; Yarrow, 103, Rhead, 50 to 1, second; Mary L., 106, Romanelli, 10 to 3, third. Time, 1.19¼. Violent II., Nesto, Conspiracy, Chappell Boy, Butterladle, Narod and Safe Haven also ran.

Smith, 5 to 1, won by half length; Alpaca, 109, McCafferty, 3 to 1, second; Gold Cockade, 92, Grogan, 25 to 1, third. Time, 1.17¾. Dr. Gurnsey, Lamontagne, Begulle, Artificial and The Bronze Demon also ran. Charley Moore and Ohnet left at post.

ODDS AND ENDS

The advice given by Mr. G. H. Corson, the well known Toronto swimmer, is as good as it is timely. It is "never enter a canoe if you cannot swim, and never take anybody into one who cannot." If generally acted upon it might save many lives this summer.

BASEBALL

We Won a Close Game.

Rochester, N.Y., June 4. — Montreal won a close and exciting game from Rochester, in which both clubs showed good form. The victory was well earned. The game was long, but interest did not flag, as brilliant playing was in evidence at all stages. Pappalau did the twirling for Montreal, and he had the locals guessing most of the time. Leary pitched his first game for Rochester and was equally effective. He would have won his game had his support been as good as was that of Pappalau, but Lynch made two bad errors, one of which resulted in a run. An error by Joyce contributed to Rochester's run getting.

For four innings but three men faced the pitcher in each inning for either Montreal or Rochester. This stage of the game was marked by clean, fast work by both teams, and while Rochester made two of her hits in the second and third they did not amount to anything, as Smith was caught trying to stretch a single into a two-bagger, and Nichols was retired on a double play after he had hit safely. In the fifth inning Rochester scored once on hits by Carey, Smith and Lynch. Pappalau hit Degroff, the next man up, and forced the run on Rochester. Nichols dropped one in front of the plate, which Pappalau fielded to Gibson, and Gibson threw to Clancy in time to complete a double play. Lynch came to third on the play, and when he tried to get home on a ball which Gibson allowed to get away from him he was thrown out from Gibson to Pappalau. There was nothing doing for Montreal in this inning, although Leary got himself into a tight hole. After Hartman had got out on a foul fly, Joyce was given a pass; he stole second and got to third on a single by Hoffman. Hoffman stole second while Gibson was being struck out. Luyster came to bat, and Leary, thinking he looked dangerous, passed him to first rather than give him a chance to hit the ball. Pappalau went out on a fly to right field.

Rochester was blanked in the sixth, Leary and Carey striking out, and Kuhn going out on a foul, but Montreal got one. In tieing the score, Clancy hit and Yeager sacrificed. Atherton struck out; Hartman then singled, bringing Clancy home.

Degroff for Rochester drew a pass in the seventh, stole second and got to third on a wild throw by Gibson to prevent the steal. He was prevented from scoring when Nichols went out on a fly, retiring the side.

Montreal gained a lead in this inning. Hoffman got to first when Lynch juggled his sizzling grounder. Gibson sacrificed, advancing him to second. Luyster hit one at Lynch, when he gathered in all right, but threw wild to Carey, the ball rolling to the stands. Hoffman had scored and Luyster was on third base before it was recovered. Pappalau went out on a grounder, but Luyster was held at third. He crossed the plate, however, when Clancy singled. Clancy was caught trying to steal second. In the eighth Montreal got one more. After two men had gone out Hartman singled. Joyce also hit safely, Hartman going to third. Joyce then took a big lead from first. Leary threw to Carey and caught Joyce off the bag, but while they were running him down Hartman scored. Rochester scored two in this inning on three hits and an error by Joyce. Montreal was retired easily in her half ninth. After one man had gone out for Rochester, Degroff singled and stole second. A hit at this stage would have meant a run, but Nichols struck out and Macauley, who was put in to bat for Leary, went out on a grounder to Hartman.

The Girl With the Flags Gone.

In the past two years at every game in which Montreal and Toronto have played here a young lady has been present with two Canadian flags and has waved them in the stand and cheered for Toronto and Montreal. Thursday the regulars looked for her but she was not to be found.

After Montreal finishes up with Rochester the Buffalo team will leave for the Flower City to tackle the Broncos. Later the Bisons will meet the tail enders in Buffalo.

Eastern League Games.

At Providence, R. I., the home team shut out the champions in a well played game. The only run scored during the game came in the fifth inning. McCann was very wild, hitting five men and giving a base on balls. Attendance 1,500.

Mascotte and Farnham To-day.

Farnham and Mascottes meet this afternoon on the Mascotte grounds at 3 o'clock. The game promises to be a hard-fought one, as both teams are on edge. As it is the only ball game booked for to-day, a large turnout of the fans is assured. The Mascottes go to St. Hyacinthe to-morrow, and the club will run an excursion, leaving Bonaventure station at 9.15 a.m.

Powers Wants Them Stronger.

President Powers had his eye on several players for Rochester and Toronto, two teams which he says he will strengthen so as to place them in a position to cope successfully with the other clubs in the Eastern League circuit.

Umpire Gifford is Missing.

Umpire Gifford has not been found. He refuses still to act in Buffalo, and it is thought that he has left the city.

He is too sensitive for an indicator handler.

Milligan Not Yet Certain.

Up to the present writing it has been undecided where Milligan will patch, he was seen in Buffalo to-day and said that it would probably be Montreal or Providence for him. Of the two teams he prefers the Royals.

Montreal Started Them Down.

Jersey City has struck a toboggan that is highly greased. Yesterday the Clam Diggers took them into camp and they have been dropping games with great regularity ever since Montreal trimmed them in a series.

Gardner Disliked in Buffalo.

Buffalo fans don't like pitcher Gardner, who twirled for Toronto against Buffalo Friday. He was pounded hard in the third inning, much to the delight of the Buffalo spectators.

Lynch's errors were costly for Rochester in the seventh inning, being responsible for two runs.

Rochester can and will support a team which plays ball as in the Montreal-Rochester series.

Gibson caught for Montreal in place of McManus, who was bruised in yesterday's game by being hit twice with foul tips.

He was charged with two errors, but lack of playing regularly is probably accountable for this.

THE GOLFERS

How Travis Won Championship.

London, June 4.—The sky was overcast, with occasional flurries of rain and a stiff, raw wind from the northeast, which, however, appeared to have little effect on Travis' driving, while his approach work and putting maintained the wonderful accuracy which characterized his game throughout the tournament.

W. J. Travis and E. D. Blackwell started to play the final tie of 36 holes, for the amateur golf championship, in a high wind, which greatly affected the driving. Travis won the first in five to six, and running down one of his long putts, on the second green became two up. Blackwell missed a yard putt for the third, which was halved, and he lost the fourth, where Travis holed out by a long putt. The American also won the fifth by getting down a fifteen yards putt, and then missed a short putt for sixth, where he sustained his first loss. The seventh was halved and Travis won the eighth, where Blackwell missed a five foot putt. The Scotchman took the ninth hole, where Travis drove into a bunker.

The American lost the tenth. The next two were halved and Blackwell lost the thirteenth by bad putting. Travis finished the first round with four up. His score by strokes was eighty, Blackwell taking eighty-three.

Travis throughout gave the same remarkable display of putting which has gained him here the reputation of being one of the finest exponents in the world of the short games.

On re-starting Travis pulled his second shot into a rough and was bunkered from his third. Blackwell essayed his second into the same bunker and took two to recover, but he won the hole in six to seven.

Travis won the next, but lost the third, where he failed at a five yards putt for a half in three. The American, however, was again four up at the fourth, where Blackwell was weak on the green.

Two straight shots and a ten yards putt gave Travis a three at the fifth, where he stood five up.

Travis took the sixth and lost the seventh. The American lost the ninth and turned four up.

The next five holes were halved, Travis going somewhat off his long game, but saving holes on the greens. Travis became dormie four, halved the next and won by four up and three to play.

Although the sympathies of the gallery of 500 persons were with Blackwell, they could not refrain from applause at Travis' brilliant game and the American's superiority over the Scotchmen was admitted. The best feeling was manifested on both sides and the winner was heartily cheered. The only breach of the highest sportsmanship occurred during the afternoon when a few spectators applauded Travis' failure in putting at the third hole. This offence was instantly hissed by the majority of those present. As a general thing the American's brilliant game elicited bursts of applause at almost every hole.

Blackwell, after the match, said:

"Travis is a great golfer. He deserved to win. I was a trifle off my game during the morning and lost several holes I ought to have won. The strain told on me."

Travis must defend the championship on this side, next ar. The Prestwick Ayrshire, green has been selected for the contest.

Mr. Blackwell is acknowledged to be the longest driver in the United Kingdom, and it is on record that he not only drove the home green, at St. Andrew's—some three hundred and fifty yards—but his ball hit the steps at the back so hard that it rebounded to the green. At the spring meeting recently at St. Andrew's Mr. Blackwell, in a match against Mr. Fairlie, returned 81, and eventually won the Bombay medal with 82. The previous year he won the silver cross, the chief honour, with a card of 79.

Possibly Mr. Blackwell, of all his performances, is the victory of himself and the late Mr. "Fred" Tait over Andrew Kirkaldy and "Willie" Auchterlonie in a thirty-six hole match at St. Andrews. In this match Mr. Blackwell only played the odd from the tee once. Furthermore, playing the ninth hole, both Auchterlonie and Kirkaldy ran down in two, while Mr. Blackwell holed out from the tee.

Mr. Blackwell is admittedly the grandest exponent of the game through the fair green in the country, but he has always lacked the knack of judging his puts. He spent some two years in the West in America, and it is said whatever touch he had with the putter was lost to him when he returned.

sions of keen disappointment that Am-

No international sporting event for a long time has created the widespread interest that has been excited by Travis' victory. In extended descriptions and discussions of play at Sandwich, in long editorials and commentaries, all the newspapers this morning pay tribute hearty and ungrudging to Travis' superb playing. Mingled with expres-erica has succeeded in wresting the championship from England and Scotland of the peculiarly national game, are questions whether the event will not compel some revision of Anglo-Scottish ideas regarding golf. Admitting that Travis' style of play is more scientific than British players are accustomed to see, his personality, his clubs and his method are all carefully analyzed with a view to finding if a lesson can be learned. The wish generally is expressed to see him pitted against the best professionals.

The Morning Post editorializing, asks what Scotchmen like Andrew Lang, who formerly protested against Englishmen invading their ancient game, will say to American domination: "If we are not mistaken," says the Morning Post, "the United States will claim ere long to have something to say as to the rules of the game. There is talk already of the innovation in stymie playing, and Travis' well-earned success shows that a younger generation is knocking at the door."

The Daily Mail, says:

"Truly our glory has departed. Travis has opened a new era in a game which will henceforth be an international one."

The Daily News calls it: "Another bunker hill."

The Daily Graphic incidentally expresses regret that a dispute has arisen out of the Palma contest, and hopes that, although Gen. Spencer may be right on the technical point that an official protest was not made at the time, some proper acknowledgment of the breach of etiquette will be given so that other national teams may reverse their decision not to compete again.

The Daily Express also, in commenting on the golf result, expresses regret that the Palma dispute has arisen because it says "however much in the right technically speaking we may be, there is no doubt the question would never have occurred had the Americans been beaten."

The final round of the spring competition for the club trophy, resulted in favour of Mr. J. C. Walsh, who beat his opponent, Mr. W. B. Strachan.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Winnipeg, Man., June 4.—The Henley Four Oared Crew of the Winnipeg Rowing Club will go to Rat Portage to-day, for the purpose of making a series of time trials which are to decide whether the crew shall be sent across the Atlantic to compete against the cracks of the English rowing world. The crew will leave here in good shape and will make three trials on Saturday, one in the morning and two in the afternoon. The standard set is a difficult one, as they must make the Henley distance in 8.10, which is better than any crew on this continent has negotiated the distance. Unless the four attains this standard it will not be sent to England. Indications are that the time will not be made and that the trip will be abandoned. The club instead sending our eight to the National Regatta at St. Louis. The four to make the trial are composed of Selby Henderson, stroke; T. Hamber, 3; Pud Kent, 2; Con Riley bow. If the time set is made it will characterize the four as a phenomenal crew, as it has had scarcely a month's work together and the weather has been cold and unfavourable.

DON'T PAY A CENT
IF I DON'T CURE YOU, PAY ME NOTHING

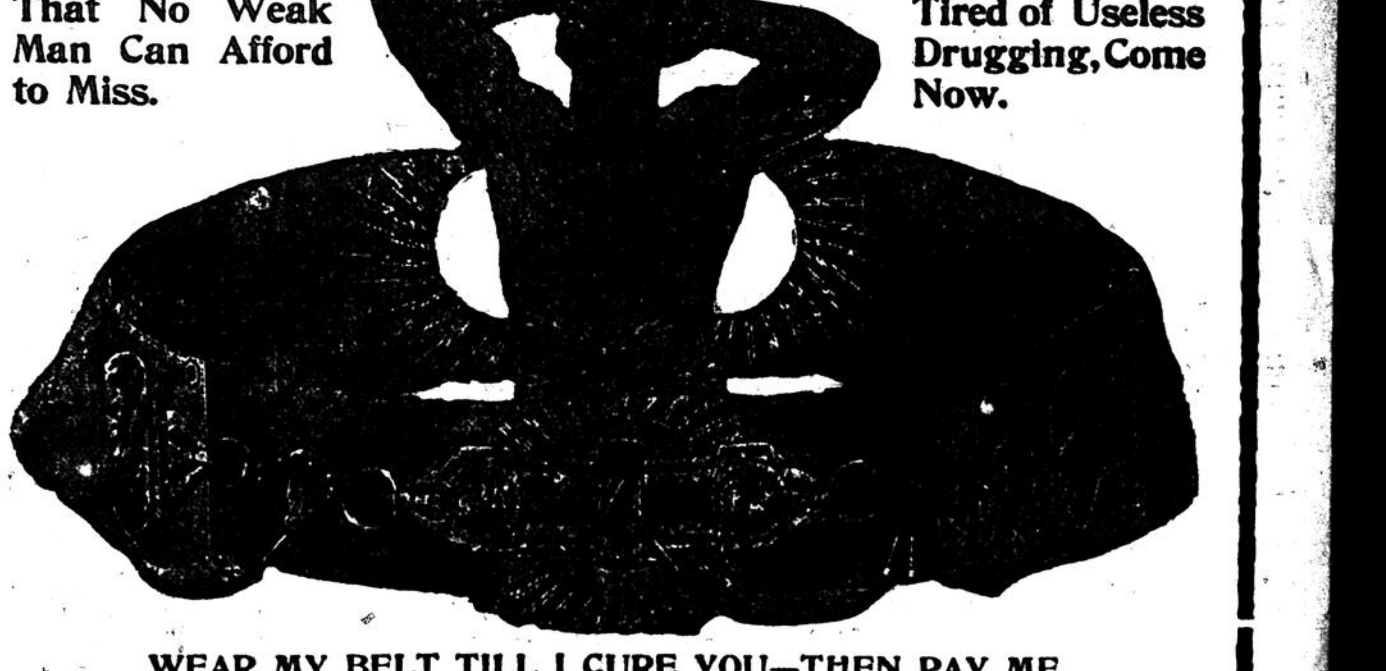
If You Are Tired of Useless Drugging, Come Now.



WEAR MY BELT TILL I CURE YOU—THEN PAY ME

TO MEN WHO ARE RUN DOWN, WEAK AND PUNY, WHO HAVE LOST THE FORCE OF VITALITY, WHO FEEL Gloomy, Despondent and unable to battle with the affairs of life; who have Rheumatism, Back Pains, Weak Stomach and Kidneys and feel generally as if they needed to be made over. If that means you, come to me and if I say that I can cure you I will do so or no pay.

I don't want money that I don't earn. I don't need it, and am not after it. But I am after the dollars that are now going wrong in the quest of health. Look at all these poor wrecks of humanity that are spending all they earn on drugs—dope that is paralyzing their vital organs—that have spent all they earned for years without gaining a pound of strength for the hundreds of dollars wasted.

That is the money that I am after, because for every dollar I take I can give a thousand per cent. interest and I don't want it at all until I have cured you if you will secure me. I have cured so many cases right here that I can prove my claims to you, but if that proof is not enough I'll give you the names of men right near you—where you are. Is that fair?

Just lately I have received letters of praise from these men:

It is only two months since I started to wear your Belt, and the drains are stopped completely. I had tried different remedies and doctored with many leading specialists.—WM. ANDERSON, Queen's Hotel, Dresden, Ont.

After wearing your Belt one month I have gained five pounds in weight. I sleep better, and that awful nervousness is almost gone.—JAMES LENNIE, 103 Lock Street North, Hamilton, Ont.

I have been wearing your Belt one month. It has toned up my system and made a man of me. I consider it a wonderful invention.—D. G. BURGER, Hudson, Que.

Wherever you are, I think I can give you the name of a man in your town that I have cured. Just send me your address and let me try. This is my twenty-fourth year in the business of pumping new vim into worn out humanity, and I've got cures in nearly every town on the map.

Come and see me if you can and I'll fix you up; or, if you can't call, write to me and I'll do the same. I've got a nice book on men that I'll send sealed free if you inclose this ad.

VEIL DRAWN OVER SCENE OF CONFLICT

PLANS OF KUROPATKIN

Russian General Will Stay at Liao Yang—Yamagata to Command the Japanese.

St. Petersburg, June 4.—The best informed military circles attach no importance to the reports that General Kuropatkin has detached a large force from his army at Liao-Yang and despatched it southward to relieve Port Arthur, and it distinctly is denied that Emperor Nicholas personally ordered such a move. It can be stated authoritatively that the Emperor's confidence in Kuropatkin is unshaken, and His Majesty is not attempting to interfere with his plan of campaign. While no such army has been despatched southward, it is natural that Kuropatkin will do all possible to harass General Oku's rear.

Field Marshal Marquis Yamagata, the Wellington of Japan, who has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the field forces.

The railroad has been kept open as far as Vafangow, twenty-five miles above Kin Chou, and it is not unlikely that when the Japanese have failed to push through a line across the head of the Liao Tung peninsula that several thousand Russians may be sent down the railroad to impede the Japanese operations, and inflict as much damage as possible, as these easily could be withdrawn by railroad if the enemy threatened to cut the line of communication above.

Even the loss of a few regiments would be considered cheap if the Japanese operations against Port Arthur, thereby was retarded for an appreciable time. However, it is realized that with the Japanese occupation of Port Dalny and Talienwan as bases for landing siege guns, the small force above Kin Chou could accomplish but little and now is more likely to be withdrawn, destroying the railroad as it retires northward. For strategic purposes, Kuropatkin may be trying to make the Japanese believe that a movement southward is contemplated, in order to divert Kuroki's attention in that direction.

The impression is being thrown out in certain quarters here that Kuropatkin is about to take the offensive, and that an engagement with Kuroki is imminent. But, so far as can be ascertained, there is no solid foundation for this. It is unquestionable, however, that the railroad is pouring troops into Manchuria, almost at the rate of 2,500 a day, and it will not be long at the present rate before the Russian commander-in-chief, at least, will be on equal terms with any force the enemy can bring against him.

The general staff is keeping very dark about the whereabouts and purposes of the Cossacks reported to be working around Kuroki's rear, and the number of the raiders operating in Corea.

SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT VIEW.

London, June 4.—Despite contradictory reports, it is now generally believed that General Kuropatkin has directed part of his army to move against the Japanese protecting Gen. Oku's rear in the hope of relieving the strain on Port Arthur, although he himself, with his main force, is remaining at Liao Yang. From Mukden, Tokio and elsewhere, reports of daily fighting, which is sometimes severe, in the northern part of the Liao Tung peninsula, are continually received, although of the composition of the Russian forces engaged little can be learned as the accounts from New Chwang, Che Foo and other places, are seldom wholly reliable. It is emphatically denied from good sources in St. Petersburg, that Gen. Kuropatkin is taking such a hazardous, if not foolhardy step as to himself move southward with Gen. Kuroki, ready to enwrap his left flank, but many sources there concur in the belief that he has probably sent a force to do its utmost to help the Port Arthur Garrison.

The best critical opinion here is that the Japanese have a division not far from Port Adams, holding a position where it can check any Russian southward advance, and that so protected and holding the Nanshan Hill position, Gen. Oku is quite safe as the fleet is able to keep him supplied. The Russian troops south of Kaiping, are accordingly regarded as being engaged in a hopeless effort and as being in danger of being severely handled, if not cut off. The reports that Gen. Kuropatkin is sending supplies north, cannot be confirmed. According to St. Petersburg advices, he is completing arrangements to hold his summer quarters at Liao Yang during the rainy season, when the country will be impassable, and that he is elaborating his preparations to combat cholera and enteric fever, which may then be troublesome.

FIVE DAYS' FIGHTING.

Despatches to the Morning Post, from Shanghai, and to the Chronicle from New Chwang, repeat the reports of the movement of 15,000 Russians to Kaiping. The correspondents assert that five days' fighting took place at Wafangtung, and that the Russians are employing 4,000 carts to remove munitions from Liao-Yang to Kai-Yuen, 70 miles north of Mukden.

The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent also says that General Mistchenko has sent 4,000 cavalry of the Imperial Guard from Kuang-Cheng-Tsu, to cut off the Japanese at Pitsewo. No great reliance, however, should be placed on these despatches, which evidently have some common Chinese origin.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Mukden, telegraphing under date of June 3, says that fighting occurs daily beyond Liao-Yang, but that a decisive battle is not expected for some time. The Japanese plan of campaign is regarded at Mukden as having now been definitely disclosed. They occupy the Liao-Tung peninsula in three divisions between Nengalen and Wafangtien, with a line of communication by the coast to their present position at Feng-Wang-Cheng.

The Standard's Tokio correspondent mentions the discredited rumour that General Stoessel proposed a surrender on the condition that the whole of Port Arthur garrison should be permitted to retire to New Chwang under arms.

REMOVING AMMUNITION.

Shanghai, June 4.—According to reports received here from New Chwang the Russians for some days have been removing munitions and stores from Liao-Yang to Kaiyuen, 70 miles northeast of Mukden. Seven thousand cart loads are stated to have been drawn from the neighbourhood of New Chwang and the posts about the railway in the Haicheng district. Three thousand carts passed Tashichao, bound for Kaiping, on May 31, taking munitions and provisions for that place. It is reported that General Mishtchenko has sent 4,000 cavalry to join the troops at Kaiping. It is also stated that Gen. Stalkenberg's orders are to protect the railway and harass General Oku's communications to the utmost with the view of detaching part of the force besieging Port Arthur. There has been frequent skirmishing during the past few days, especially in the neighbourhood of Wafangkau and Lichiatun. Two train loads of wounded Russians went towards Mukden on May 31st. General Kuropatkin's army remains at Liao Yang.

KUROKI'S ADVANCE GUARD.

Liao Yang, June 4.—General Kuroki's outposts now hold the line at Liao Pudza, Se-Liud-Jan and Chan-Li-Dzy. The Japanese forces disembarking at Taku-Shan have reached Ulaosa. A division of the guards forms the connecting link between Ulaossa and Feng-Wang-Cheng.

YAMAGATA WILL COMMAND.

London, June 4.—A despatch to the Express from Tokio says it is stated that Field Marshal Marquis Yamagata has been appointed commander-in-chief of the armies in the field. It is expecetd that he will shortly proceed to the Liaotung Peninsula, presumably to command the final assault on Port Arthur.

The despatch adds that it is expected that Japan will shortly declare a blockade of all the Gulf of Liaotung, in addition to the peninsula, the blockade of which has been already announced, with a view of stopping the enormous smuggling which is being carried on in junks.

Field Marshal Yamagata was commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in the Chinese-Japanese war. He is a member of the Genro or Elder statesmen, and next to Marquis Ito is the most important subject of the Mikado.

DO JAPS OCCUPY OUTER FORTIFICATIONS ?

London, June 4.—The Rome correspondent of the Central News telegraphs: "A Tokio despatch to the Giornale d'Italia, says that the Japanese have occupied the first line of the outer fortifications of Port Arthur after a feeble resistance."

The correspondent at Tokio of the News Agency Liberas, says that four divisions of Japanese troops have occupied Kwan-Tung heights, on which they placed heavy artillery dominating Port Arthur.

The same correspondent adds that the Russian squadron attempted a sortie, but was forced to return, being threatened by the Japanese fleet.

ZIONISTS OF AMERICA.

Will Discuss Acceptance of British Offer of Land in Africa.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 4.—One hundred delegates, representing twenty-nine states, were in attendance yesterday when the convention of Zionists of America was called to order. The most important question to be discussed by the convention will be as to whether the Zionists are in favour of accepting the offer of England of land in British East Africa for the purposes of opening up a new Judea.

The Union Hat Works.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Brockville, Ont., June 4.—The meeting of the creditors of the Union Hat Works, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon has been indefinitely postponed. This week J. C. Saulnier, the senior member of the firm, informed his creditors that he would be willing to make a compromise at twenty-five cents on the dollar. This offer appeared satisfactory to all the Canadian creditors, Banque Nationale included, but the American creditors asked for further details concerning the compromise, and no answer having been received from them the meeting was cancelled.

The Railway Commission.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 4.—The Railway Commission will go to the Pacific coast early in July to hear a number of cases, in which the cities of Vancouver and New Westminster and the C.P.R. and the Vancouver, New Westminster and Yukon Railway are interested. The Commission will need a private car for its use, and the Government is now considering the meeting of its wishes in this respect.

WILL PROPOSE AMENDMENTS.

Toronto Grain Men Find Fault with Grain Inspection Bill.

Toronto, Ont., June 4.—A series of proposed amendments to the grain inspection bill will be laid before the Dominion Government by a committee of local grain men. At a meeting of the grain section of the Board of Trade yesterday the bill was discussed and several objections to it were referred to a special committee. The Montreal grain men forwarded a letter containing a list of their objections to the act, chief of which was the great power which the measure gives to grain inspectors. Messrs. W. D. Matthews, Wellington Kay and C. B. Watt, with others to be selected later, will represent the grain section when the bill comes before the parliamentary committee next week.

The members of the Board of Concurrence were not all present when the consideration of the matter was taken up, but another meeting will take place this evening, and it is believed that the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, who was always very popular in Lennoxville, will be the unanimous choice of the board. Mr. Wilkinson is at present in St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Most of them are now in the detention hospital here suffering from trachoma, and the selection of those who are to be deported will be finally made today by Dr. Bryce, Medical Commissioner of the Department of the Interior, who arrived here yesterday on an inspection tour and who is being assisted by the local officers of the immigration department.

WARFARE AT SEA.

The Mohonk Arbitration Conference Wants International Congress Called.

Mohonk Lake, N.Y., June 4.—Yesterday's session of the conference on international arbitration was opened with the presentation of the platform of principles which was adopted. Justice Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court, said the day of universal peace is yet far away but it is surely coming. Arbitration has the power of public union behind it, which, after all, is supreme. It has already compelled a general acceptance of the principle of arbitration. The institution of The Hague tribunal, said Judge Brewer, was the beginning of the end of war.

Among the other speakers were Signor Agnoli and Senor Bambra, the Mexican delegate to The Hague.

The following resolutions were adopted before the conference closed:

"Resolved, that this conference endorses the sentiments expressed by President McKinley in his annual message of 1898 and reiterated by President Roosevelt in his annual message of 1903, in favour of the exemption of unoffending private property at sea from capture during war, and as such a rule would tend to minimize, and alleviate the disastrous consequences of war.

"Resolved, that the president of this conference appoint a committee of three to prepare and present to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State and both Houses of Congress a memorial urging that an international congress be called to consider this question with a view of incorporating into the permanent law of civilized nations the principle of the exemption of all unoffending private property at sea, not contraband of war, from capture or destruction by belligerent powers; and, further, that this congress be requested to consider the adoption of a code of rules for the general conduct of warfare upon the sea."

Seven-Year-Old Boy Killed.

Special to the Montreal Star.

London, Ont., June 4.—The fast express on the G.T.R. entering the city yesterday afternoon struck Harry Cake, a seven-year-old boy, killing him instantly. The accident happened at the Cove Bridge, from which the boy was in the act of escaping when struck. Cake was the youngest son of a widowed mother.

The Bell Telephone Company, as shown by its annual report for 1903, earned $16,545,632, paid $8,619,150 in dividends, and carried a reserve surplus of $2,[illegible]

RED ROSE TEA "IS GOOD TEA."

Grocers all over Canada recommend Red Rose Tea, and usually give it the preference over other teas.

The profit on Red Rose is considerably less than the profit on most other brands, so there must be some good reason for the grocers pushing it.

More sickness is now cured by Liquozone than by all medicines combined. Won't you let us buy you a 50c bottle to try?

More people use Liquozone now than use medicine. Yet thousands still use drugs to cure germ troubles—to do what drugs can't do. If you are one of them, won't you let us buy a bottle of Liquozone and give it to you to try?

We Paid $100,000

for the American rights to Liquozone, because it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. There is nothing else known which will do that. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine cannot destroy the cause of a germ trouble.

Liquozone is so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables, and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen gas—is deadly to vegetal matter. Liquozone invariably destroys the germs of disease, wherever they are; yet to the human body it is the most helpful thing in the world.

Acts Like Oxygen

The value of Liquozone lies in the fact that it does what oxygen does. Oxygen is the nerve food, the blood food, the scavenger of the blood. It is the very source of vitality, the most essential element of life. There would be no weak nerves, no impure blood, no inside germs if we could get into the blood an excess of oxygen. But oxygen is a gas, and unstable. An excess cannot be held in the blood.

In the making of Liquozone, we get the virtues of 1,250 cubic inches of the gas into one cubic inch of liquid. The gas is derived in large part from the best oxygen producers. The process of making takes 14 days. The result is a wonderful product, stable and concentrated, holding all the virtues of the gas. It goes into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. No germ can escape it and none can resist it. The results are inevitable.

But Liquozone is more than a germicide. Oxygen is Nature's greatest tonic, and Liquozone is a vitalizer with which no other known product can compare. It not only destroys the cause of a germ trouble, but it quickly repairs all the damage which the germs have done. It gives to every organ just the help that it needs.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

SPOKE AT BARRIE.

Mr. R. R. Gamey Attracts Large Audiences.

Barrie, Ont., June 4.—Mr. R. R. Gamey, the member for Manitoulin, made his first appearance on a platform in Simcoe County here last night, and received a great reception. The Opera House was crowded, people having driven in from the country for miles to hear the man from Manitoulin tell his story. Dr. Palling, president of the Barrie Conservative Association, presided, and on the platform were several members of the Legislature. K. A. Duff, M.L.A., Dufferin, opened the meeting with a short speech, and was followed by Mr. Gamey, who spoke for nearly three hours, dealing with his subject in such a manner as to hold the close attention of the audience throughout.

STREET GOSSIP AND STOCK EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Star Office, Saturday, June 4.

The record of five months' price changes in the stock market shows that trading has run within a decidedly narrow groove for such a comparatively lengthy period. This was in a large measure due to the striking contraction in the volume of operations owing to the gradual elimination of the public as a factor in the trading. Left to professional traders, the market maintained some attraction for a time, but finally fell into a state of almost complete stagnation. There were slight revivals of interest a few times, when attempts were made to create a public following, but all such efforts failed dismally. At the end of the five months, prices for the part hung about midway between the high and the low levels of that period. The local market is by no means an isolated instance of the kind, as practically all the markets of the world have been troubled with lack of public trading. The general feeling is that any change from the prevailing conditions will be deferred until after the presidential election in the United States. If Wall Street brightens up after that, there is a probability that local traders would take courage and create a better market.

In an appreciative article the Wabash Railway System, and more particularly the prospects for the preferred stock, Hermann Kaiser, banker and broker, New York, says: The Pittsburg line of the Wabash will be opened for traffic in July, and by contract with the Carnegie Steel Company it will receive 25 per cent. of the tonnage from those works. This will bring new revenue to the amount of $2,000,000 per annum, and, assuming that it can be handled for 50 per cent., the net profit will be $1,000,000 per year. Adding $500,000 to the net earnings for the Exposition business and the actual surplus of the Wabash System for the current year, and also for 1905, will be about $2,300,000 after paying 6 per cent. on the debenture A bonds. This is equal to the full 6 per cent. on the debenture B bonds, and 3 per cent. on the preferred stock, and these results are obtained from only two sources of new business.

Wabash is run by George J. Gould, who has the backing of such men as John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie. At the time that Jay Gould died railroad affairs were very much mixed, rates were being cut ruinously, earnings were decreasing and receiverships were frequent. George Gould's inheritance, from more points of view than one, looked like a white elephant, but he not only kept the Missouri Pacific out of the hands of receivers, but vastly improved the property, and established the stock on a 5 per cent. dividend basis as well as the confidence of investors in it. In the same period he has raised the Wabash from two streaks of rust between Toledo and Kansas City, to the dignity of a trunk line that is capable of handling tonnage on an equal basis with Pennsylvania and other first-class roads. In the matter of management, Wabash is in the front rank.

HOW BUCKET SHOPS FLEECE THEIR PATRONS.

President Pomroy's announcement, on assuming the presidency of the New York Stock Exchange, that the governors were determined to maintain a high standard of business honor, and discipline members guilty of illicit practices, together with the exposure, failure, and prosecution of concerns forced out of the Consolidated Exchange on charges of "bucketing," have attracted wide attention, says the Philadelphia Stockholder. Nearly every prominent bank in the Wall Street district has been written to by anxious customers of concerns whose business methods resemble those followed by the firms exposed. Such suspicions in many cases have been groundless, but the distrust has been universal, with the result that the business of many reputable brokerage houses has been seriously interfered with. This has led to the question being asked generally, "What is a bucket-shop?" The query has been put by doctors, lawyers, merchants, and many other private parties unfamiliar with the Wall Street routine.

In general it may be said that a bucket shop is a brokerage office where orders are never executed, and the funds of customers are fraudulently appropriated.

One of the most successful New York bucket shops has an extensive suite of offices, fitted up with all the paraphernalia of a stock exchange house. Operators appear to be receiving despatches over private wires, and a score of clerks are busy posting quotations on the bulletin board. The rooms are always filled, and the office does a very heavy business. But the wires do not go outside the building at all, leading only to a basement room, from which despatches are sent and the fake scheme directed.

All the business is done on a one or two-point margin, no one being allowed to put up more than five points. In that way a variety of small customers are reached, who deposit ten, twenty or fifty dollars, as the case may be. If half a dozen persons buy Union Pacific at 84 on a one-point margin the manager of the office gives the signal for a fictitious quotation of 83. That wipes out the contingent, and the office "buckets" the proceeds, which sometimes amount to as much as ten or fifteen thousand dollars in a single stock. In cases where fictitious quotations are not possible, the more wealthy bucket shop men club together and depress values on the regular stock exchange to a point where their customers' margin becomes exhausted. They may spend ten thousand dollars in doing this, but where several hundred thousand shares are involved their relative profits are enormous.

In this way the bucket shop always wins, except in a continually rising stock market, where some concerns have been forced to the wall. The public, as a rule, only buys for an advance, and never sells stock short.

New Incorporations in May.

Special to the Montreal Star.

New York, June 4.—The monthly compilation by the Journal of Commerce of new incorporations in the Eastern States shows that in May these incorporations reached an aggregate of $132,000,000, which amount is largely below the totals of 1903, 1902 and 1901. However, the figures were $57,300,000 larger than those for the previous month of April, but this gain is the result of two new companies alone—United States Realty and Improvement Co. and Lake Superior Corporation.

MONEY MAKER

Published in the Interests of Meritorious Industrial Enterprises.

20TH CENTURY PROGRESSION

Our fathers used the goose quill—
We employ the typewriter.
We use the mowing machine and self-binder.
Our fathers used the hand printing press,
Our fathers used the telephone and cable,

But to-day we use the greatest of all known inventions, detailed information of which has been carefully prepared and is described in the MONEY MAKER.

A MARVELLOUS WIZARD.

The greatest profit ever made by shareholders who purchased stock in any commercial enterprise was a profit of two thousand dollars received for every one dollar invested. The raise in value of this stock from one dollar per share was as rapid as the success of the enterprise was considered by the world to be phenomenal. A wizard was at work and the public benefited.

A marvellous wizard is at work again. Same opportunity exists once more, but for the moment only. Being ever on the alert, I have secured a block of stock. I have taken advantage of the labours of this genius for my own benefit and for my clients, and I now invite the public to participate. What I can offer you to-day for one dollar promises to equal in a short time the world's greatest investment, in which every one hundred dollars invested returned the investor two hundred thousand dollars.

Endorsed by the world's greatest scientists, by men renowned for having achieved success in leading commercial enterprises, who have individually invested thousands of dollars in the proposition, I am now about to place on such a footing by my unique plans, as to allow the smallest investor to participate upon such easy terms as to permit even the lowest salaried people to get in on the ground floor on practically their own terms, and thus secure an interest in a proposition unparalleled in the history of finance.

The story of Aladdin's lamp and the wonderful things it accomplished for its possessor is being surpassed to-day by the fairy-like actualities accomplished through the corporate ownership of meritorious inventions.

Blazing Bold before the Civilized World

Fully protected, as one more golden opportunity which will be eagerly grasped by the few who will be fortunate enough to secure a portion of the limited number of shares I can dispose of, before the inevitable enhancement in value takes place, in what promises to become in a short time one of the world's greatest industrial enterprises.

Originator of "I WILL BUY." "I WILL SELL."

Few readers of the principal newspapers published in Canada and the United States can have missed reading during the past five years my quotations for the purchase and sale of stocks under the headings of "I Will Buy—I Will Sell."

This advertising method which I have originated has cost me thousands of dollars, but I now hold in return:

The LARGEST LIST OF CLIENTS IN CANADA.

The BEST PLEASED LIST OF CLIENTS IN CANADA.

The BROADEST STOCK KNOWLEDGE OF ANY BROKER IN CANADA.

My advertising has brought me into correspondence with a multitude of investors who write me either with a view to purchase or to sell stocks which comprise the shares of every active company on the continent.

The unique position I now hold over the financial market cannot but make money for my clients. My information is sure.

If a stock is weakening not to rise again, I receive urgent selling orders. If strengthening in value for solid causes, buying orders come pouring in. In either case I am kept early and well informed. The pulse of the market beats constantly through my large list of clients by way of either my Telegraph service, Long Distance phones, or methodical correspondence. My position enables me to advise the purchase or sale of stocks.

THE PROFITS OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

New York's greatest financial newspaper, the standard investment publication of the United States, in a recent consideration of the earning possibilities of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, published the following:

"The rapidly increasing importance of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph as a commercial factor has aroused great interest among both prospective stockholders and the general public in the prospective earnings of the company. The following estimates give a clear insight into the marvellous earning possibilities of the new system and its comparison with the cable system now in use.

"Mr. Marconi in a recent interview pointed out the great profit of the wireless service to steamships both for the Wireless Company and for the publishers of the ship newspapers. One news message will be received by all ships alike at an initial expense of but one message. The ships, however, will each pay the full rate for the service as though separate dispatches had been sent to each. Supplying 1,000 words to 50 ships will bring the revenue of 50,000 words, though no ship unsupplied with the Marconi instruments can receive a word of the dispatches.

"There are 40 trans-Atlantic ships now equipped with Marconi instruments. Let it be assumed that only ten ships out of the total number equipped receive the daily news service. The complete news would require about 100,000 words daily, but estimating only 5,000 words per day at 5 cents each, (one-half the present press cable rate,) the annual receipts will be $912,500. Estimating the cost at 10 cents per word, the daily expense would be $500, or annually $182,500. This leaves the enormous net profit of $730,000 annually even at this remarkably conservative basis. The present contracts of the Marconi Co. for news services are on the basis of 25 cents per word.

"The earning capacity of the prospective commercial trans-Atlantic service can also be estimated from the data now known. The entire cost of a Marconi system, with a terminus in America and in Europe, is $100,000. This system is capable of handling 30 words per minute with one set of instruments. The cost of cable operation is less than 25 per cent. of the gross revenues. The normal cost of the Marconi system will probably be less than one-half this figure, but for the purposes herein it can be assumed as equally as large. The present cable charge is 25 cents per word. The wireless charge can be assumed at 10 cents. As an additional factor of safety 50 per cent. may be deducted from all factors of income and 100 per cent. added to all those of expense.

POSSIBLE REVENUE.

One station, 30 words per minute, for one year dispatches 15,768,000 words, 50 per cent. deducted from number of words and from hours of operation, at 10 cents per word, gives a gross revenue of $394,200. With three sets of instruments the gross revenue would be …… $1,182,600

PROBABLE EXPENSE.

Cost of one station as described—$100,000, plus 100 per cent. factor of safety equals	$200,000
Interest on this at 8 per cent	16,000
Depreciation	20,000
Maintenance and repairs	20,000
Cost of operation at 25 per cent. of gross revenue of station	295,650
Aggregate expense per annum	351,650

Thus leaving a possible profit of $830,950 on each station. There are fourteen cable stations working at full capacity. Fourteen Marconi stations required for the world's business would clear $10,000,000 as profit.

"The great advantage of the wireless system over those now used is in its low initial cost of establishment. The Congressional Committee of the 56th Congress presented an estimate of the probable cost of establishing a Government cable totaling $25,176,780. This was for a cable from San Francisco to Manila. To parallel such a cable with the Marconi system, capacity equally as great, would cost $850,000. There would be a saving in interest charges annually of more than the total cost of installing the Marconi plant.

"The profitable results to stockholders in such a system can be shown equally clearly. Estimating the present cable revenues at present charges and full capacity, the gross income is $8,760,000 per annum. Conservatively estimating the wireless system capacity and charge at one-half the cable system, the gross income to the wireless system is $2,190,000. Estimating cost of transmission per word as the same, the cable company at the end of the year has a balance available for dividends of $3,045,250, or a little over 12 per cent. on investment. The Marconi system, on the other hand, has $976,000 balance available, or a little over 100 per cent. annually on investment."

We would like to send you a picture of Marconi suitable for framing and a copy of the Marconigram for May. Send 10 cents to cover the cost of mailing.

June 20, 1904, the Price of Marconi Securities Advances 20 Per Cent.

If you hesitate much longer over the question of buying into the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, it will be too late. The allotment of $5.00 certificates is nearly gone. None can be purchased after June 20th. After that date the price will be advanced 20 per cent. to $6.00.

The Company is capitalized at $6,650,000, all common—no preferred stock or bonds. Of this amount $460,000 is as yet unissued and may be issued for the benefit of the company's treasury, only. The company has six stations in the United States through which connection is had with over 40 transatlantic steamships and with foreign stations in England, Canada and Italy. The revenues of the company increased over 700 per cent. during the last year. The English company earned a net profit of over $50,000 during the same period. The system has been developed faster than either Morse's telegraph, Field's cable or Bell's telephone. Fortunes were made out of investments in all those enterprises. Greater fortunes will be made out of Marconi stocks. There are no bonds or preferred stocks to take precedence over the common stock we offer. Every stockholder is on an equal basis.

As managers for the underwriters who control the stock of the company now offered for sale we are enabled to accept applications for the $5.00 certificates in amounts of not more than $1,000 nor less than $100 up to and including June 20th, 1904. After that date no application will be received for less than $6.00.

ALIEN DIRECTORS FOR RAILWAYS

INEFFICIENT QUARANTINE

Special Staff Correspondence:

The Press Gallery, House of Commons, Ottawa, June 4.—Everybody was tired in the House of Commons yesterday and there was an absolute lack of the snap which ordinarily characterizes the proceedings. A good deal of business was done. Mr. Fisher, like everybody else was tired, consequently he did not talk very much and, therefore, a considerable part of the estimates of his department were passed.

Mr. Marcil, of Bonaventure, introduced a bill respecting the Huron & Ontario Railway Company.

ALIENS AND RAILWAYS.

Mr. Casgrain asked when the Government would bring down the promised bill to require that on all railways in Canada a majority of the directors shall be British subjects.

The Premier replied that the bill is ready, but he did not say when it will be introduced.

Mr. Borden for the third time on three successive days, asked whether the Government was represented by counsel at the enquiry respecting the employment of aliens on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway survey.

Sir Wilfrid for the third time answered that he did not know. It is a matter under the jurisdiction of Sir Wm. Mulock and that gentleman is still absent from the capital.

THE CANADA-MEXICO LINE.

Mr. Earle asked whether Victoria, B.C., would be a port of call for the steamers of the new line to be established between Canada and Mexico.

Mr. Daniel asked whether the vessels for the service between Canada and Mexico on the Atlantic coast would call at St. John, N.B.

On this point Sir Richard was not so sure, but he was hopeful that it would be possible to make an arrangement which would be satisfactory to St. John.

THE FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE.

Mr. Clarke asked whether any negotiations were going on with respect to the establishing of a fast Atlantic service.

"There are no negotiations going on at present," replied Sir Richard.

"The whole thing is over then,?" asked Mr. Clarke.

INEFFICIENT QUARANTINE.

Dr. Vrooman illustrated the laxity of the quarantine regulations of the Dominion by instancing the case of the steamship Athenian, one of whose passengers developed smallpox after being landed at Vancouver, B.C. The steamer's passengers were inspected at Victoria, where a clean bill was given. When the passengers were landed at Vancouver it was found that one of them was afflicted with smallpox. When the case was discovered nearly all the steamer passengers had departed. Fifteen of them were rounded up at North Bay, where they are now quarantined at Ontario's expense. Forty of them are being looked after by the city of Vancouver. Dr. Vrooman and other members of the Opposition held the Government responsible for these conditions.

R. Macpherson, of Burrard, B.C., suggested that an investigation be held with a view to determining if the case of smallpox developed between Victoria and Vancouver.

The following quarantine items were passed in supply: Steamer for quarantine service, at Grosse Isle, $30,000; steamer for Victoria, B.C., $20,000; cattle quarantine and veterinary division, $100,000; salaries and contingencies, $150,000.

The next items to be taken in supply will be those of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

The bill respecting the Ottawa electric company came up in the evening. A strong fight was made to have it referred back to the private bills committee on the ground that it amounts to an evasion of the contract now existing between the city of Ottawa and the Consumers' Electric Company, which latter company the Ottawa electric will be able to buy out if this bill becomes law.

The House adjourned at 10.45.

Proceedings in the Senate.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Ottawa, June 4.—In the Senate the Canadian Northern Railway bill, the Manitoba and Keewatin railway bill, the St. Maurice Valley Railway bill, the Nepigon railway bill, and the Alberta railway and Irrigation bill were all read a third time. The following bills from the Commons were read a first time: To amend the G. T. P. Act; respecting the Essex Terminal Railway; to amend the Criminal Code; respecting the punishment of fraudulent debtors.

The following bills were read a third time and passed: Respecting the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway and Navigation Company; respecting the Canadian Fire Insurance Company. A number of bills were given a second reading, and the Senate then adjourned.

May Locate in Cornwall.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Cornwall, June 4.—The Tough Sole Shoe Company, of Toronto, are negotiating for the location of their factory in Cornwall. They agree to erect a factory 40 by 100 feet to instal machinery to cost $16,000, and to employ forty hands, with a pay roll of $14,000 a year to start with. For this they ask the town for a free site and a loan of $7,500, with an additional loan of $3,750 when they employ sixty hands, and another $3,750 when they have eighty hands and a pay roll of $28,000, the loan to bear interest at 4 per cent., repayable in fifteen annual instalments, beginning the third year after they commence operations.

Grief Led to Attempted Suicide.

Montpellier, Que., June 4.—Mrs. Louis Bissonnette has attempted suicide in a fit of mental aberration, caused by grief over the loss of a child by drowning last autumn. Mrs. Bissonnette made the attempt on her life with a razor, with which she cut herself in the abdomen, afterwards seeking to drown herself in the lake where her child was drowned. Her husband arrived in time to prevent the latter act, but the doctor called in considers that the abdominal wound will prove fatal.

BELANGER WISHED TO MAKE HIS WILL.

Ste. Scholastique, Que., June 4—Theophile Belanger, as the day of his execution approaches, is turning his thoughts more towards the members of his family. The other day he expressed a desire to make a will so that there would be no trouble over the succession to his property. Gaoler Mireault, however, informed him the law would not accept the testament of a man condemned to death, and Belanger appeared to be much depressed by this news.

There have been rumours about that if the sheriff attempted to exclude the public from the execution, an attack would be made on the gaol to force an entrance. The doors of the gaol yard are wooden and would be easily forced, and it is stated that, with a view to being prepared, the sheriff has appealed to the Attorney-General for a detail of the provincial police to protect the gaol and sustain the privacy of the execution.

ST. PATRICK'S BOYS' SCHOOL.

The Catholic High School building, Belmont Park, is now the St. Patrick's boys' school.

At a meeting of the church wardens of St. Patrick's parish, held last evening, under the presidency of Rev. Martin Callaghan, P.P., negotiations in connection with the acquiring of the Belmont Park building were concluded.

The pastor was given full authority to sign a contract with the Christian Brothers and to make all arrangements to transfer the classes from the Cote street school to the new building as soon as possible. Father Martin expects to install the higher grades on Friday next, the feast of the Sacred Heart.

TORONTO-SUDBURY LINE.

Upon his return from Ottawa yesterday evening, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy stated emphatically that the company undoubtedly had the right to build the line without obtaining any additional legislation, and that it would most assuredly act upon its rights in this respect.

The president also said that tenders for the work had been received, but that none of these had as yet been let. He denied the report that United States contractors alone had been requested to submit tenders, claiming that Canadians had been asked as well. Construction would, he anticipated, commence at an early date.

Mr. A. R. Creelman, the company's chief solicitor, was in Toronto yesterday to see the Commissioner of Crown Lands regarding the Crown lands to be crossed by the company's Toronto-Sudbury line.

LEADERSHIP OF QUEBEC LIBERALS

COURSE OF THE GOVERNMENT

Owing to Unpopular Legislation There is Little Desire to Appeal to Electors.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Quebec, June 4.—Now that the Legislature has been prorogued the quidnuncs are discussing anew the future leadership of the provincial Government, and the choice that is to be made between general elections and another session of the Legislature. The prevailing opinion here is that there will be no general elections for the Assembly until after another session.

The Land Bill pleases nobody, not even its authors for they connived at its amendment by the Legislative Council and then yielded to the clamour of certain members of the Assembly who demanded the killing of the most important of these amendments. It displeases the friends of colonization to such an extent that some of them among the Government's own supporters in the House unsuccessfully tried to amend it in committee of the whole. It is still more distasteful to the lumber merchants who have been refused the protection which they asked of the Government against the speculators whose robberies are exposed in the report of the Colonization Commission.

In view of the general unpopularity of this measure, the Government is said to shrink from an immediate appeal to the country. They would find it extremely difficult also to excuse some of the other legislation of the session and especially the insertion of the whitewashing clauses of the Montreal bill, the attempted interference by legislation with a pending election contestation, and one or two shameful cases of interference with private rights, the full iniquity of which is only now becoming apparent.

In one case interested parties are said to have secured the passage of a bill giving the right to utilize certain waters which are entirely private property and the owner of which knew nothing of what was going on in the connection until after the adoption of the bill. In another case, Mr. Wm. Price declares over his signature, that the Chicoutimi Pulp Company have succeeded in obtaining from the Legislature a declaratory act declaring them to be the owners of certain property in the city of Chicoutimi, a portion of which never was and is not now their property, but is his own, and this despite the fact that he protested against the clause in question before the committee of the Legislative Council, and produced his titles to the ownership of the land in question. Mr. Price declares his intention of coming again before the Legislature to ask that body to undo the injustice done and return the property stolen. He will, if necessary, carry the case to the Privy Council. He rightly declares the question to be of supreme importance to all whose property may be covered not only by the Chicoutimi Pulp Company, but by others having sufficient influence to obtain legislation of this kind.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

The financial condition of the province is one, too, that the Government is not particularly anxious to have to discuss at the present time before the electors.

When Hon. Mr. McCorkill moved the House into Committee of Ways and Means on Thursday afternoon, just before the introduction of the Supply Bill, Hon. Mr. Flynn compelled the virtual admission from the treasurer, that, without taking into consideration the amount of money which might be realized from the approaching sale of timber limits this month, there would be a deficit for the fiscal year in the provincial finances of some $175,000.

There is, no doubt, that unless the Government is prepared to take the odium of introducing special taxation, to reduce expenditure or to secure a large increased provincial subsidy from Ottawa, the receipts can only be made to equal the expenditure by the sale of some of the remaining provincial assets in the shape of timber limits.

Mr. Parent's present visit to Ottawa is said to be in relation to the demand for an increase in the subsidy as well as in connection with Quebec's bridge affairs. Upon the success of the increased subsidy demand, may depend to a considerable extent the date of the general elections. If Mr. Parent fails to obtain the increase, it may be taken for granted that he will not lead his party through the elections.

A MEASURE LAID OVER.

A measure from which the Government hopes to secure a good share of sympathy and support was introduced into the Legislative Council at the eleventh hour of the session, in order to place it before the public. No attempt was made to have it accepted by either House, the idea being to defer its adoption till next session. This measure is to be respecting the compensation for damages resulting from accidents to workmen. It was explained at some length by Hon. Mr. Archambault, and then laid over till next session. The underlying principle of the bill seems to be that accidents of any kind, whether arising from the fault of the employer or not, which temporarily or permanently capacitate any workman for work entitle the victim to such accident to compensation.

Gritism in Guysboro.

(From the Amherst Telegram.)

The Liberal press of Nova Scotia generally, and the rising young Liberal "statesmen," who attempt to dictate political matters in Pictou and Guysboro Counties, are getting more and more nervous and fidgety, and, let it be said—"real cross," over the exposures of the scandals connected with the by-election in the latter constituency. Their future line of defence is not perceptible. That pursued in the past has not been at all effective. As soon as one of their rather flimsy barricades has been stormed, they have hastily retreated to another. Not always dignified has been their change of base. After having thus "been on the run" their present stand is General Denial fortified by that good old stand-by of bitter partisanship—Personal Abuse.

Do they deny that there was robbery of the St. Mary's lists? Yes. But George W. Ross, one of their own appointees as Revisor, admits that over forty names of qualified voters were left off.

Do they deny wholesale bribery? Yes. But Alphonse LeBlanc, one of the "heelers" is swaggering over the country, boasting of how he bought up the "whole shooting match" at Larry's River.

Do they deny the use of money at all in Guysboro? Yes. But evidence can be produced to show that friends of the Liberal party got valises full of it at a bank in New Glasgow, a few days before the election. To a persistence in the denial it might be avowed, further, that it is possible, as we are informed, to put a hand on the Halifax Bank, through which the Liberal corruption fund came from the Central Campaign Fund.

Do the Liberals deny any wrongdoing whatever in connection with this now justly celebrated contest? Yes. But we submit that the participation of Messrs. LeBlanc and Kirk, besides a large number of lesser Government officials, was of itself a very grave scandal. Both LeBlanc and Kirk have forfeited their positions and we doubt not, they will be pilloried in Parliament, when the items of their salaries come up for passage in the estimates.

Do the Liberals deny the debauchery of certain sections of Guysboro County by "Laurier and Victory" Whiskey? Yes. But the fact stands that a historical "white horse" arrived at Marie Joseph from Sherbrooke, on the eve of the election, and its load of whiskey was deposited in a historical woodshed. This is the point at which "statesman" George Patterson, M. L. A. operated. . . . .

No—say the Liberals—there was:

No Bribery.

No Vote Stealing.

No List Robbing.

No Whiskey!!

No Coercion of I.C.R. Employes.

No Grit Campaign Lies.

No Grit Newspaper Canards.

No Nothing.

The General Denial of the Liberal Leaders, and the Liberal press is in vain.

WORK DONE BY WOMEN'S COUNCIL

WOMEN HAVE BEGUN TO VOTE

"We are closing the first decade of our existence as a Women's Council in Montreal," said Mrs. W. G. Macnaughton, who presided at the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women yesterday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A., "and, if for nothing else, our efforts to arouse an interest in municipal affairs among the women of the city should encourage us. Much has been accomplished in that ten years. Prison matrons appointed, public playgrounds opened during the summer, Victoria Order of Nurses supported, something done in the direction of pure milk depots, health talks given to mothers, women encouraged to be of use in municipal matters, and realize their responsibility, and in many ways the Council has stimulated the life of the women of Montreal."

The great work of the Council this year was the campaign undertaken at the time of the municipal elections, when, as a result of the circulars sent to all the women voters in the city, urging upon them their duty in the matter, twenty-five per cent. of the number exercised their franchise. In former years, the secretary said, on the authority of an official, the number was too small to be taken seriously into consideration.

WORK OF LOCAL COUNCIL.

The secretary, Mrs. Rutherford, read a full report of the work of the Local Council, and of the affiliated societies, which include almost all the organizations engaged in philanthropic, charitable and artistic work in the city. With regard to the Montreal Women's Club, it was stated that that organization was hopeful of obtaining medical inspection in schools, and had been able to check the immigration to Canada of factory girls, who were unable upon arrival to find positions. Among other work was a course of lectures on tuberculosis, given this winter, under the auspices of Madame Thibaudeau. The Women's Immigration Society reported 500 women brought out during the year, and the arrival of larger numbers than usual. On behalf of the French branch of the Aberdeen Society Mme. Thibaudeau reported that literature was distributed in country districts, and this year was being sent to the keepers of lighthouses which had never been done before.

The treasurer, Mrs. D. Macpherson, reported receipts to have been $223.35, and the year closes with a small balance on hand.

A letter from Mr. W. T. R. Preston was read, asking the Council to assist in a discussion in a London journal on the subject of women emigrating, which was at present interesting a large number. The chairman read the agenda of the annual meeting of the National Council, which will be held in Winnipeg in September, as well as of the International Councils, to be held in Berlin beginning on June 13. The Canadian representatives are: Mrs. Thomson, president for Canada; Mrs. Sanford, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Fitzgibbon.

The election of officers was postponed until the autumn, on account of the small number present at the meeting, which had been unavoidably postponed until a late date. Mrs. Walter Lyman was elected secretary to take the place of Mrs. Rutherford, who is leaving for England. A special vote of thanks was presented to Mrs. Rutherford, with good wishes for the future, and to the assistant secretary, Mrs. Coker. Another resolution of thanks was to Miss Reid, of the Presidential Board, who has been most active and helpful during the year, in spite of indisposition. Those present included Mrs. Cox, Mme. Thibaudeau, Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. D. Macpherson, Mrs. Bovey, Mme. Gerin Lajoie, Mrs. Leo, Mrs. F. H. Waycott, Mrs. James Thom, Miss Perkinson, Miss Macdonald.

THE INNOCENT HAS SUFFERED.

Ransom's Conviction Vindicates Man Unjustly Condemned.

Joseph Ransom was convicted in the Court of King's Bench yesterday afternoon of assaulting and robbing a man named Charbonneau. Charbonneau said that two men attacked him; and sometime ago, two men, named Christin and Laporte, were found guilty of the offence and sentenced to the penitentiary. Christin has confessed his crime; but he says that Laporte is innocent, and the conviction of Ransom confirms his statement. Efforts will be made at once to secure Laporte's release.

MARRIAGES.

BENNETT-GAMMON — At St. Stephen's Church, Lachine, by the Rev. Canon Chambers, on June 1st, Ada, eldest daughter of Mr. E. Gammon, to Edward Bennett, of Montreal. Hamilton papers please copy.

It is impossible in any kitchen to use with good results the cream of tartar and soda found in the shops, because they contain impurities and vary so greatly in strength that they cannot be mixed in proper proportions. Royal Baking Powder is uniform in strength and absolutely pure. Its results are perfect and always even. Dr. Valade, one of the public analysts of the Dominion, in reporting upon the different leavening agents, says Royal Baking Powder is superior and should be used in every household.
