

Fall fashions fully featured for femininity

This long-napped frosted cranberry shag evening gown offers a sneak preview of Fall Fashions '63, a special section in today's Record.

The look this fall is more spirited, more delightful than ever, casual, colorful, sportive.

For evening, as in this gown of orlon and acrylic and velvety, it's sultry and sophisticated, ultra-feminine and flattering.

For the lowdown on high fashion, see Fall Fashions '63 in the second section of this issue.

Frank Sinatra hosts hoodlum

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Frank Sinatra, the gangster singer who branched out as an actor, businessman and gambling impresario, has been threatened with loss of his Nevada gaming licence. He is accused of allegedly allowing a crime overlord to stay at the Cal-Neva gambling lodge.

Sinatra, in New York Wednesday night, was not available for comment.

The Nevada Gaming Control Board said Sinatra's guest at the showman's Lake Tahoe Casino on the California-Nevada state line was Sam Giancana.

A five-point complaint submitted to the state gaming commission in Carson City Wednesday described Giancana, 54, of Oak Park, Ill., as "one of the 12 overlords of American crime." On Aug. 6 the justice department said Giancana was one of the rulers of the Casa Nostra crime syndicate.

KEEPS BLACK BOOK

Nevada keeps a "black book" that currently lists 11 persons, one of them Giancana, banned from any Nevada gaming establishment. Knowingly permitting one of them on the premises is grounds for licence revocation, though it is not a criminal offense.

The gaming board's complaint charges Sinatra knowingly played host to Giancana at Cal-Neva, located 20 miles from Carson City, between last July 17 and July 28. Specifically he is charged with allowing Giancana to stay in one of the chalets adjoining the casino.

4 NEW POLIO CASES IN SHERBROOKE AREA

Four new cases of polio have been reported in Sherbrooke the Sherbrooke Health unit said today. This brings the area's total number of cases to 17, with two deaths resulting.

In one of the four new cases, the symptoms were discovered early enough for paralysis-preventing treatment.

Three others were transported from Hotel Dieu Hospital in Sherbrooke to Montreal's Pasteur Institute.

Sherbrooke is the hardest-hit city in Quebec in the present outbreak of polio, and Quebec is the hardest-hit province.

In the last two weeks of August there were 25 cases in Quebec and none in the other provinces. Earlier in the year New Brunswick, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta each reported one case.

Labor Secretary to urge unions 'Clean up Lakes'

OTTAWA (CP)—U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz flew back to Washington Wednesday to urge responsible American labor leaders to launch a "private" clean-up of waterfront labor lawlessness on the Great Lakes.

Mr. Wirtz told reporters after meetings with Prime Minister Pearson and Labor Minister MacEachen that he hopes that the trade union movement in Canada and the United States will find a solution to the problem of gangsterism and violence on the Great Lakes.

He made it clear that he prefers a private remedy by labor itself, rather than the public cure proposed by the Canadian government—an unprecedented trusteeship by the government over five marine unions, including the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

"Whatever can be done privately is much better done privately than if it has to be done publicly," he said.

"I'm a great believer that in the free labor movement there are elements for dealing with a situation of this kind."

SEEKS SOLUTION

Mr. Wirtz expressed hope that "some way will be found whereby the assertion of the basic responsibilities of free trade unions in this country and the U.S. will produce an answer to this problem."

Later, Mr. Wirtz said in a television interview that the responsibility "to do the right thing" lies with the AFL-CIO, Canadian unions and other private interests.

Informants said Mr. Wirtz returned to Washington fully aware of the Canadian government's determination to press ahead with its trusteeship legislation when Parliament resumes Sept. 30—unless some alternative course is found to achieve the same end without direct government intervention.

Mr. MacEachen held out this possibility when he told the Commons Aug. 1 that "substitute action" may be taken if it would be "equally effective in accomplishing the objectives of the legislation."

BLAMED BANKS

The trusteeship was proposed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris after a year-long investigation of labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes. The judge blamed lake shipping troubles on a ruthless drive for power by SIU President Hal C. Banks, who was described as a "tyrant who terrorized both ship owners and sailors."

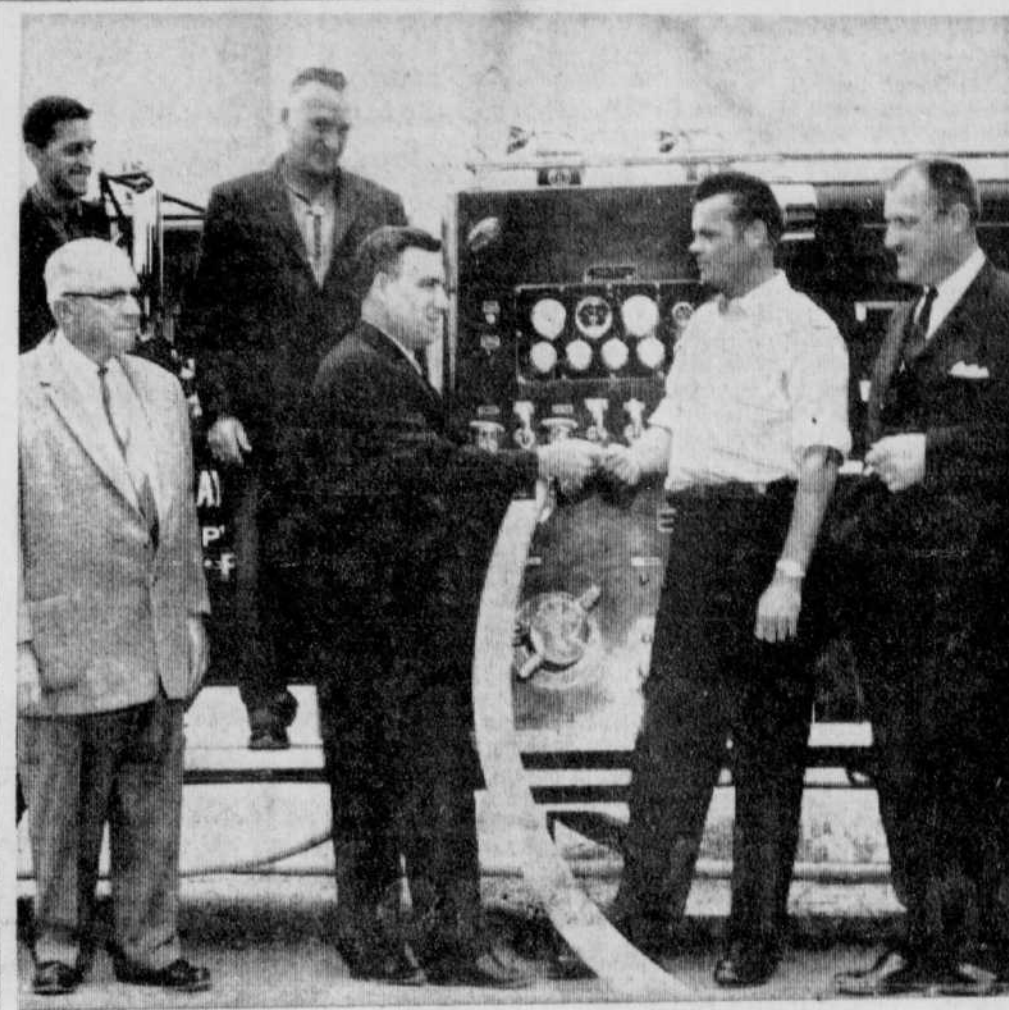

Mr. MacEachen said his meeting with Mr. Wirtz was "useful" because it gave them a chance to review the latest developments in the long-simmering dispute. It was their first face-to-face meeting since the Norris report was delivered and since the government announced its intention to impose the trusteeship.

Mr. Wirtz described the Great Lakes problem as a "matter of great common interest" between Canada and the United States, involving both public and private interests.

Plan 28 storeys

MONTREAL (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon and Arthur Rudnikoff, president of Terminal Central Corporation, Wednesday announced plans for a 28-storey building in downtown Montreal. The building will be constructed on CNR property on Dorchester Boulevard West between the CNR-owned Queen Elizabeth Hotel and the International Aviation Building. Estimated cost of the building is $12,000,000 and construction will begin next spring.

Vietnamese prelate upsets the Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Archbishop Pierre Martin Nao Dinh Thuc, brother of South Vietnamese president, appears to have confronted the Vatican with one of its most sensitive diplomatic problems of modern times.

Its gravity was seen in reports by Vatican sources that a papal audience for the Roman Catholic prelate had been cancelled and Archbishop Thuc's admission that the Vatican had ordered him to be quiet about the political situation in his troubled homeland.

Church circles believe cancellation of an audience with Pope Paul would indicate the Vatican wanted to avoid any appearance of a stand on President Ngo Dinh Diem's government, embroiled in a bitter struggle with Viet Nam's Buddhists.

Vietnam church officials could not recall that any such situation involving a prelate with close ties to a ruling family had arisen since the Vatican ceased to be a temporal power a century ago.

Archbishop Thuc, who arrived in Rome six days ago, made an unexpected flight to the United States Wednesday, insisting he had not sought a papal audience at this time.

The 65-year-old prelate said the Holy See had ordered him to keep silent and that without permission from the Vatican secretariat of state, he could not properly speak out beyond the confines of his archdiocese of Hue.

The archbishop denied that he had told an Italian reporter on his arrival in Rome that U.S. policies in Viet Nam were aimed at replacing Diem's regime.

Vatican sources said a private audience with Pope Paul had been scheduled on Tuesday, then cancelled at the last minute.

Archbishop Thuc said in New York he was to see the Pope only on his return to Rome from resumption of the ecumenical council Sept. 29. He did not specifically deny, however, that any previously planned audience was cancelled.

Pope Paul has publicly decried the conflict in South Viet Nam. He sent a message Aug. 28 telling the Vietnamese people of his "painful concern" for happenings there.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—School officials, seeking to curb a wholesale boycott by white pupils because of integration, were confronted today with a move for private schools in Birmingham.

In the wake of a school board warning against truancy, several thousand white persons jammed an auto race track Wednesday night to protest integration and plan for private schools.

PERPIGNAN, France—A French airliner crashed into a mountain peak in the rugged Pyrenees today, killing all 40 persons aboard. Rescuers reaching the scene reported no survivors among the 36 British passengers and four French crew members.

Police and civilian rescue teams reached the disaster scene after struggling through thick forests amid rugged peaks.

Their terse radio report said: "First rescue team is on the spot. No survivors. Awaiting instructions."

The twin-engine Viking airliner crashed into a 5,250-foot mountain called Pic de la Roquette, 30 miles southwest of here, shortly after midnight.

It was on a flight from Britain to this town in southwest France over a mountainous area where peaks tower 6,500 feet and the valleys are covered with thick fir forests.

Witnesses who heard the last message from the airliner's pilot to Perpignan control tower said the pilot was preparing to land.

He said he was experiencing bad weather but gave no indication he was aware the plane was off course and flying into the dangerous mountain peak region, control tower officials said.

There was speculation thunderstorms in the area caused the pilot's electrical compass to "wander," making him think he was flying in a different direction.

The British-built plane was sighted early today by one of several search craft sent into the area by French civil aviation authorities.

Rescue teams were dispatched to the scene immediately.

A team of 10 gendarmes set out towards the point where the wreckage of the British-built plane was located by one of several search craft sent into the area by French civil aviation authorities. Its pilot radioed he had sighted the wreckage on the towering flanks of the mountain.

Skies were still lowering and grey today and storms threatened.

OIL BLAZES—Clouds of dense black smoke fill the sky over Sarnia's Chemical Valley after crude oil surrounding a storage tank at Imperial Oil's tank farm caught fire this week. The smoke enveloped the tank, leaving it blackened but otherwise undamaged. MONTREAL—A major purpose of the University of Sherbrooke's Institute of African Affairs will be to train French-speaking Africans in "the North American way of life."

A spokesman for the founding committee of the institute, formed of 10 Montreal businessmen who have been planning the project for three years, said this yesterday.

The spokesman preferred not to be named, but he said that the idea for an Africa-Canada program originated with Paul Martin, a Montreal chartered accountant who visited three years ago on behalf of the Prouvest interests of France, who have peanut plantations in Mali and Senegal.

The spokesman stressed the "American" aspect of the institute's job in spite of the fact that the man chosen to head it, Michel Struelens, was deported from the United States nine months ago as an undesirable alien.

A Belgian, Mr. Struelens had been chief representative in the U.S. for the secessionist regime of Moise Tshombe in Katanga. He was deported when Tshombe fell and Katanga was reintegrated into the formerly-Belgian Congo by United Nations troops.

STRUELENS WAS 'TOO COMPETENT'

But the Montreal spokesman said that all the Americans had accused Mr. Struelens of being "too competent." He said that he had spoken to both elected and appointed American officials who smiled on the institute and its choice of director.

The appointed officials were not in the State Department, he said, but he would not specify which part of the U.S. government they represented. The State Department took the steps to have Mr. Struelens deported.

Among elected figures, a number of U.S. senators, including Sen. Thomas A. Dodd, Democrat of Massachusetts, have reproached the Kennedy administration for not openly supporting the Tshombe regime.

The Record interviewed the Montreal spokesman in French, but he pronounced the phrase "the North American way of life" in English.

He said even American foundations—unnamed—had expressed interest in the institute because it fills a gap in American facilities for winning the favor of African students. The U.S. lacks institutions which can give instruction in French.

The names of founders and financial sources for the institute were not released at the Aug. 8 press conference which announced its founding. University officials have since pleaded that the institute is not part of the university, merely "annexed," and further details must await Mr. Struelens' arrival from Belgium, where he has returned to pick up his family.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCIERS

But the Montreal spokesman said that the institute would be financed by such donors as U.S. firms with subsidiaries in Canada and firms doing business in both Canada and Africa.

The spokesman dismissed suggestions the institute would be hurt in the eyes of African nations by having as its head a man who served what Africans have denounced as a "neocolonialist" regime, maintaining such white interests as the Union Miniere copper mining firm even after independence was officially granted.

"That might be so if he were an African," said the spokesman, "but Mr. Struelens is a European." At another point he said Canada enjoyed a good reputation in Africa because it had "no colonialist or imperialist ambition."

Mr. Struelens was chosen for the post when a member of the founding business group learned on a trip in the United States that he was available. He was qualified because of his African experience and his "Christian culture." The group had already been planning for such an institute for three years, the spokesman said, organizing in Montreal for African students at McGill and the University of Montreal.

Sherbrooke was chosen as a suitable home for the institute because of its bilingualism, he said, and also because of such contracts with

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

JTB OPENS WAY TO GRAND SLAM

In the course of a motor trip through the West this summer, Mrs. Jacoby and I spent several delightful days in Laramie, Wyo. We had the pleasure of playing duplicate with the Laramie Unit while there and picked up a wonderful hand for use of the Jacoby Transfer Bid (JTB).

Mrs. Jacoby's two diamond response to my opening no-trump was the heart JTB and my two hearts the automatic reply. Her three diamond bid was a game force and showed that she had a diamond suit besides her hearts.

Since I liked diamonds far better than hearts, I raised her to four diamonds. This suggested a slam and she invited it by a bid of four spades. In spite of my 15 point minimum no-trump, it appeared that I was holding perfect cards for her and I bid five clubs to show that ace.

At this point Mrs. Jacoby wanted to get to seven diamonds provided I held exactly two hearts to the ace. She decided to invite it by the unusual bid of six clubs. There was no danger that I would pass, but there was considerable danger that I would only go to six diamonds, but that danger was averted quickly. I felt in the mood for fireworks and jumped to seven diamonds.

The play was short, but quite good. Mrs. Jacoby drew two rounds of trumps, cashed my ace of hearts and her king, ruffed a heart, returned to her

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Some television experts are fretting about the unusual title of Imogene Coca's new comedy series, Grindl. They find it hard to pronounce—and wonder whether it will be confused with a different comedy series, Glynis, on a rival network.

But it doesn't really bother Miss Coca much in these days before her first plunge into television situation-comedy.

"With my own name, how on earth can I worry about Grindl?" she asked. "People are always having trouble with Imogene—probably most people call it eye-mo-jean, and Coca gets mixed up with cocoa. And then they settle for 'what's-her-name'."

Her fan mail is notable for the misspelling of her name. Imogene chuckles over one affectionate letter addressed to "Emma Jean Kosher."

She made several efforts to change the name when she got into show business.

TRIED OTHER NAMES

"I tried Donna Hill, Helen Gardner and Jill Cameron," Imogene said, almost wistfully. "But somehow they never stuck."

Harvest supper date is set by Gould L.A.

GOULD — A devotional period, led by the president, Mrs. J. O'Brien, opened the August meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Chalmers United Church, held at the home of Mrs. K. N. McIver. A psalm was read by Mrs. R. Morrison, and Miss F. Duffy presided at the piano, for the singing of the hymn.

The main business discussions of the meeting were planned for a harvest supper to be held in the town hall on Sept. 20. Refreshments followed an enjoyable social hour, the hostess being assisted by Miss Anna McIver and the Misses Janet and Susan Morrison. Helen O'Brien and Marlene Matheson.

When recognition came, it was as Imogene Coca, in New Faces of 1934, a Broadway revue. Sixteen years later, she became a favorite comedienne in the wonderful Your Show of Shows with Sid Caesar on NBC television.

As Grindl, she'll play a naive, well-intentioned itinerant worker. The show begins on NBC Sunday evening.

Another doctor arrives on the television screens this month—Dr. Richard Kimble. He won't be a dedicated healer but an innocent man who has been convicted of murder. David Jansen, once the jaunty private eye, Richard Diamond, will play the doctor in The Fugitive, a new ABC entry starting next Tuesday.

BROOKBURY —

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fox and son J. B., of West Stewartstown, N.H., were visitors of Mrs. Walter Nourse and were accompanied home by Mrs. H. Brown, of Hereford, who has been a house guest of her sister-in-law for a week. Other visitors at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. W. Gilbert of Sherbrooke, and Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Brown, of Windsor, Ont.

Mrs. B. Lavallier of Sherbrooke, spent a few days the guest of Mrs. J. H. Martin. Other guests were Mrs. Bert Matchette and daughters, Heather and Wilma, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chapelle, of Boston, Mass., and Mrs. S. B. Coates.

Miss Barbara Allison, who now has a position in Montreal and has taken up residence at the Julia Drummond, is spending the weekend here.

Recent visitors of Mrs. Walter Nourse were Mr. and Mrs. A. MacDonald, of Sherbrooke, Mrs. John Nourse of Bishopston, Mr. Clement Fee, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nicholson and Alan, of Bishopston. The Kentucky fried chicken supper held at Willowdale, Aug. 31, was a great success and the proceeds were most gratifying.

Show Business

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, who has calmly faced millions in person and on television, is nervous. He's going to trade jokes with Jack Benny.

"And he's not half as nervous as I am," says Benny. Benny, who is Jewish, was on the platform last Sunday night when 134,254 people jammed Los Angeles Coliseum for the windup of Graham's crusade.

Graham will tape the show Friday for showing Sept. 24. "I have been on all kinds of television programs but usually just as a guest being interviewed," says Graham. "I've never been a comedian before. When Jack asked me, I accepted because he is such a wonderful man, a man of great character who has given so much of his time and talent to make the world forget its troubles."

"I told him that I have been a fan of his since I was five years old—which is hard to do since I'm 44 and he's 39."

GIVES SAMPLE

A sample of the dialogue between Benny and Graham:

Benny: "I was so nervous when I called you. But I guess you didn't detect it."

Graham: "Yes, I did."

Jack: "How?"

Graham: "After the conversation, you reversed the charges."

Benny: "Well, I... I always do that."

Graham: "On a local call?"

Graham tells Benny he has always considered him a fine violinist.

This so shakes up Benny that for the first time in his radio and television career—he admits he is older than 39.

"I'm really 47," quips Jack. To which Graham counters:

"Jack, I'd suggest that you come to some of my meetings."

VALE PERKINS —

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cole, were in Vergennes to attend the funeral services for Mrs. Orville Davis and little Donna, who met an untimely end in a car-train collision near Swanton, Vt. Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Kathy, Tim and Donna, had recently moved to Alburg, Vt., from Vergennes, where Mr. Davis had purchased a farm. Mrs. Davis, with five-year-old Kathy and Donna, four months old, was driving her car to St. Albans, when the accident occurred. Little Kathy miraculously escaped death but is still in hospital.

Mr. Gordon Jones Jr., was a weekend guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Kate Jones.

Gould

Miss Bonnie Matheson has returned from several days visiting relatives in Lennoxville.

Miss E. MacLean and Mrs. A. MacDonald of Somerville, Mass., are spending several days at the home of their brother, Mr. Albert MacLean.

Mr. Murdo MacIver has returned from Springfield, Mass.,

where he spent a few weeks with relatives.

Miss Pamela Robinson, after spending six weeks at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. MacIver, has returned to her home in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. She was accompanied back by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee and family, who had also spent several months at the same home.

Holiday guests of Mrs. Peter MacIver were Miss Muriel

MacIver and Miss Wendy Le-bette, of Montreal. Mr. J. J. Ont., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alan Matheson.

Miss G. Allard, of Verdun, and Mr. Ernest Wells, of Montreal, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Brien.

Miss Anna McIver, who was a visitor of her aunt, Mrs. A. E. Johnston, has now returned to St. Lambert, to resume her teaching duties.

'Arsenal' of machinery ready City prepares for the coming of winter snow

By JAMES DAVIES
(Record Staff Reporter)

MISS MARY LOUISE ARNOLD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. L. Arnold, Sherbrooke, has been awarded the Sherbrooke I.O.D.E. Memorial Bursary. This bursary, was offered to applicants wishing to follow a teachers' course at Macdonald College. It has a value of $300. Miss Arnold is a graduate of Sherbrooke High School and is taking the teachers' course leading to a class II diploma at Macdonald College.

Community Chest drive outlined to Y's Men

Art Wright, President of the Sherbrooke Y.M.C.A., was the guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting of the Sherbrooke Y's Men's Club last evening at the Magog Hotel. President Jim MacKinnon presided at the meeting.

Mr. Wright spoke on "The Community Chest Campaign." A nearly complete club membership listened to the speaker's talk and had many questions to ask of the speaker at the question and answer period.

Mr. Wright was introduced by Hal Evans and thanked on behalf of the club by George Bishop.

Sam Elkas and Rollie Blanchard, co-chairmen of the gas days' project being held on September 27th and 28th urged the club members to go full speed on the advance sales.

The project is to raise funds to carry on the work at the boys' camp at Shore Acres which the club sponsors.

Seated at the head table with the guest speaker were President Jim MacKinnon, Hal Evans and Curtis Bishop.

Sherbrooke municipal officials and employees of the Public Works Department are up to their necks in plans to provide the city with effective snow removal service when winter hits in a few months.

Among projects passing through the mind of Public Works Department head Felix Thibault is the purchase of a $100,000 snow melter, a $35,000 snow blower, and the control of his $226,000 budget for the seasonal chores.

City officials intend to study the snow melting machines, this year, but will not, Mr. Thibault said, decide definitely on its acquisition until they have received reports from Montreal on the effectiveness of the one in operation there.

The machine is known to melt between 500 and 600 tons of snow per hour.

More immediate plans of the Sherbrooke officials include a study in the near future of the possibility of adding a new snow blower to the undersized force of 10 or 12 now in use, Mr. Thibault said.

The funds for any purchase of machinery are taken from the profits which the city gets on the rental of their machinery, Mr. Thibault said.

In addition to the snowblowing vehicles the city has in its winter arsenal 14 snow plows, and three tractors to clean sidewalks, three sanding machines for the roads, three graders, five loaders and three bulldozers.

The regular city crew of 195 permanent members of the Public Works Department will be on hand during the coming months, although the city may find it necessary to call up as many as 300 employees to clear snow in emergency operations.

With additional lots and 11 more miles of road the total surface will need about 3,000 tons of salt and the same amount of sand this year plus an undetermined quantity of cinders, Mr. Thibault said.

The increased mileage to be handled this winter is respon-

ROAD PAVING—Paving of a one-half mile stretch of road servicing summer cottages in the Ripplecove area at Ayer's Cliff began Wednesday. Above, from the left, Leland Mosher, secretary-treasurer of Ayer's Cliff, Eugene La-Flamme, foreman for Brome-Missisquoi Construction, Mayor Leonard Henderson and Georges Vaillancourt, MLA Stanstead County go over estimates on the cost of the work already done on the road. Total costs of the paving and groundwork will total $12,000. Paving of a one-mile stretch of Brown's Hill at Ayer's Cliff was completed Wednesday at a cost of $28,000. The government pays 50 per cent of the groundwork and 100 per cent of the cost of paving. Downtown fire damages restaurant

A fire spreading from the kitchen of a downtown restaurant yesterday afternoon caused "moderate" damage to the four storey brick structure Sherbrooke Fire Department officials said this morning.

Beginning in the grease of an overheated French fried potato making machine in the back of the store, the flames shot up the aluminum exhaust pipes on the outdoor rear wall and caught in the walls and roof of the d'Arctagnan Restaurant at 75 King Street West.

Three employees in the kitchen eluded the flames and dashed to safety. The call was then put into the Sherbrooke Fire department who arrived on the scene minutes later, about 2 p.m.

The fire was extinguished within a half hour after four team firemen from station number one pumped water from four fire hoses and a carbon dioxide extinguisher into the building.

The French fried potato machine was damaged by the flames, as were the walls, while the upper floor apartments were slightly affected by smoke, fire officials reported.

Urges trade hike

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev called for increased Anglo-Soviet trade in talks Wednesday with Frederick Erroll, president of the British Board of Trade. Khrushchev greeted Erroll in his Kremlin office as "the representative of a great country with which our trade relations are very good. But of course it is desirable that such relations should be come better."

Quebec-Ottawa storm clouds up over education of the Eskimos

By JAMES NELSON

Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

This year, the provincial Liberal government of Premier Lesage asked the federal government to turn this jurisdiction in northern Quebec over to the provincial authorities. A conference was held, and later Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque accused the federal government of dragging its heels in the matter.

ASK QUESTIONS — The conflict between the Liberal governments at Ottawa and Quebec City naturally prompted pointed questions from opposition MPs in the Commons, particularly the Quebec Conservatives sparked by such members as Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette—L'Assomption—Montcalm).

They upheld the principle that Quebec only wants to exercise its constitutional right to supervise primary school education within the borders of Quebec. Federal Resources Minister Arthur Laing returned Wednesday from a three-week 7,000-mile tour of the far northern and arctic regions, including visits to Eskimo settlements in Quebec—Fort Chimo and Great Whale River, on Ungava Bay and the southeastern shore of Hudson Bay, respectively. At both places, the natives called meetings to impress on the minister their fears of a change in the educational set-up. Most of their schools are run by Protestant missions, and education has been in English. They fear a switch to French, saying most of their contact with white men so far has been with English-Canadians.

Mr. Laing told reporters Wednesday night on his arrival here that the Eskimos are genuinely concerned, but seemed to be "more afraid of a devil they don't know than one they do know." There are about 23,000 Eskimos in northern Quebec.

He gave no hint of what the federal government intends to do about the problem. But he admitted his lack of enthusiasm for the progress of education under the present system in such places as Great Whale River, which he described as the most backward spot he visited.

To discuss building activities

Construction activities in the Eastern Townships, and particular problems found by construction organizations here, will be discussed today when a presidential party from the Canadian Construction Association visits Sherbrooke.

Five delegates each from construction association of Sherbrooke, Granby, Drummondville and St. Hyacinthe will meet with the Canadian Construction Association's national president, the national, provincial and assistant provincial vice presidents.

Others in the party are CCA General Manager S.D.C. Chuter, G.S.C. McNeer, director of public relations, and B. E. Poirier, legal and Quebec liaison officer, all of Ottawa.

Thomas A. Somerville of Toronto is national president. The national vice president is Donald H. Jupp of Toronto. The Quebec vice president is Armand Trotter and P. A. Savard, both of Quebec City.

Arrangements for the Sherbrooke meeting have been made by Henri Baudot. Delegates will include J. W. Roy of Sherbrooke, A. Malouin and M. Marier of Drummondville, P. Vaillancourt and R. Cote of Granby, M. Pothier of St. Hyacinthe and G. Nadeau of St. Cessaire de Rouville.

The day's activities were to begin with a civic reception, 3 p.m. at the city hall, followed by a press conference. A reception at the St. George's Club, courtesy of the Eastern Townships Construction Association, will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by supper an hour later.

Welfare court needs trained help

The setting up of a social welfare court for the District of Bedford, as suggested by Mr. Justice Louis P. Cliche earlier this week, would be a first step in the right direction.

But it would only be a beginning.

Social welfare court deals mainly with children and with teenagers who run afoul of the law and society. By its very nature, it becomes more concerned with family and individual character problems than with crime as such. Ideally, a social welfare court exists to help youngsters and families in trouble, not to punish them unless punishment is judged part of a cure.

In order, then, to do its work properly, any social welfare court must have the services of professional social workers in addition to legal personnel. An experienced social welfare court judge can do much from his position on the bench, to help youngsters, but he is severely handicapped if he does not have the aid of social workers. His position and his duties as judge of necessity restrict his capabilities in this direction.

The Sherbrooke area has been served by a social welfare court for a number of years, and well-served at that. But it has been evident right from the start that its good work is hampered by the lack of trained, professional social workers.

Voluntary service has done a great deal to fill this gap. There are people who spend many hours of their own time and sometimes considerable amounts of their own money working in conjunction with the social welfare court. Welfare organizations such as the Community Chest usually are instrumental in initiating this kind of service.

It is valuable and necessary service, but it needs complementing by professional, full-time staff. And this is true wherever a properly functioning social welfare court is planned or operated.

You can't feel sorry for people who do such a continual job of it on themselves.

Welfare plans reduce savings power

Paradoxical as it may seem, probably one of the best arguments against the increasing incursion of the state into the field of social welfare is a claim made by an Ontario NDP supporter of the medicare program of his party.

Speaking in Toronto the man claimed that state medicare would give everyone more money to spend because people would not have to lay away any money for possible medical expenses.

But he fails to mention that the medicare program would have to be financed through increased taxes, either direct or indirect, just as the increase in the old age pension rate will result in higher individual income taxes. Thus, in effect, state welfare programs substantially reduce the spending and saving capacities of the people by siphoning off a large portion of their earnings before they receive their pay cheques. And the buying power of the income that remains is reduced by inflated costs resulting from property taxes, direct and indirect sales taxes and excise taxes.

The citizen not only has to pay for any benefits he may receive under the various welfare programs but he must also meet the heavy administrative costs that inevitably accompany any state-operated scheme.

Thus his ability to save is reduced and wage increases, which generally add to the cost of living, are siphoned off to meet the higher tax burden.

Proponents of the welfare state frequently claim that modern conditions prevent the citizens from making provision for his own future and that he must be cared for by the state. Probably the true explanation is that the undue interest of the state in the individual's welfare makes it impossible for him to look after himself.

It's not so bad to drop your wealth if it's into government bonds.

Judge concludes lengthy service

During his sixteen years as judge of the Magistrate's and District Court for the St. Francis District, Judge Edouard Boisvert, who is retiring next month, has earned an enviable reputation as a jurist.

Specializing in municipal, school board and fabrique law — the latter governing the activities of religious institutions in relation to civil matters — Judge Boisvert has been called upon to make decisions in many contentious matters, ranging from judgments on municipal boundaries to charges of irregularities in the election of municipal officials. Many of his decisions have become guideposts for the solution of similar problems which have arisen in other districts of the province.

But he did not confine his work to his preferred field and has won universal respect for his handling of the many civil and criminal cases which have come before him.

Although he was a man who preferred to spend his leisure hours with his family, Judge Boisvert also served with many community cultural and welfare organizations.

Other papers say:

Longer school year deserves study

Very few parents, harassed after a long summer at home with the children, have not heartily wished for the institution of a longer school year.

For a long time, mothers and fathers must have been the only ones in favor of the idea. Now, however, education authorities are considering it, and several districts in one jurisdiction of which we are aware (the state of New York) are planning experiments next year with the longer school day and/or year. Only one of the suggestions being discussed is an eleven-month academic session for high school students.

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

In Nova Scotia, too, the subject is drawing attention, although no changes are planned at present.

During the past year, a committee composed of teachers, trustees and Department of Education officials canvassed the topic, during the course of which exercise all teachers and school boards were asked their opinions. And although the consensus was in favor of present policy, we strongly suspect that the study is far from the last word that we will hear about the matter.

Several arguments on behalf of the status quo were presented. Among them were the claim that insufficient use is being made of the time at present allotted; the suggestion that teachers must have at least two months' holidays in which to study and improve their standing; and the hint that, in the rural areas especially, work opportunities for the children would be lost.

As for the longer school day issue alone, the reply that the day is already long enough for students who must attend consolidated schools with lengthy bus routes was cogent enough.

But as for the arguments cited above against the longer school year, less may be said — or, at least, more in contradiction can be offered.

For one thing, there is the vast increase in human knowledge to be considered. It is a factor which is helping to cause what pressure exists in favor of adding an extra year or years to the high school course — a dubious development which could be thwarted by the establishment of lengthier school terms.

For another, there is the growing urbanization both of the province and the country to take into account — a trend which has as one of its consequences the growth in numbers of idle youth during the summer recess, young boys and girls whose desire to do something could be satisfied by school work at once more intensive and extensive.

In any case, there is room for a constructive debate in Nova Scotia on the subject. Perhaps the discussion will emerge sooner than might be expected.

Nikita Sergegeevitch Khrushchev

He's "a rather noisy chap" but he changed the world forever

Exactly 10 years ago today in Moscow, a new force was suddenly turned loose on the world. And the world, as so often is the case, didn't recognize it until several years later.

The force? Nikita Sergegeevitch Khrushchev, stubby, bear-like and bursting with vitality and earthy humor; a man who was at first regarded by fellow "Comrades" and foreign observers as a crude enigma with a flair for survival.

On Sept. 12, 1953 this one-time illiterate coal miner from the Ukraine took over as First Secretary of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party — and Russia and the World would never be the same again.

It was a crucial moment in Russian affairs.

Stalin, who had died six months before, had recently been mummified and put on proud display in Moscow's Red Square. Russia's first Hydrogen bomb had been exploded that summer. The dreaded Beria, chief of the secret police, had just been arrested (and would be executed before Christmas). Riots and strikes had swept East Germany and Poland. The Korean war had ended. The Indo-China crisis was at a peak.

Not surprising, then, that few noticed Khrushchev and instead looked with interest at the new Russian Premier, Georgi Malenkov. It was considered irrelevant that Malenkov was not Party Secretary too — as Stalin had been.

But Khrushchev knew what he was doing and where he was going.

By 1955 Mr. K. had "negotiated Malenkov's resignation and replaced him with the pliable Nikolai Bulganin. The world began to look at this fellow Khrushchev with curiosity. Kremlinologists began to explore his personality and wonder what made him tick.

They are still wondering. In 1954 Lord Attlee, visiting Moscow, was buttonholed at a reception by the rudely eloquent Khrushchev. With some distaste Lord Attlee referred to him later as: "A rather noisy chap."

On April Fools' Day, 1958,

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Khrushchev answered many questions about himself; he became premier of Russia.

Khrushchev was 23 at the time of the Russian revolution. He joined the attack on Tsarist rule, and was a guerrilla leader in 1918.

He had no schooling until he was 27, but showed a quick intelligence and an aptitude for not making fatal errors.

A key to his success — and perhaps survival in the suspicious Stalin days — was that colleagues felt they were smarter than he.

One diplomat called him a "brilliant bonhead," and another once remarked candidly that Khrushchev was "certainly no genius." But he had common sense, which, among diplomats as among military people is "Sometimes so rare that it's often mistaken for genius."

Under Stalin K. returned to the Ukraine where, with brutal willingness, he liquidated political foes and re-organized the farming of the area.

Shortly before Stalin died K. referred to him in glowing terms as 'Our Saviour' — a military genius — the hope of the world.

TONES CHANGED

Yet less than three years after Stalin's death the same Khrushchev led the denunciation of calling Stalin "an egomaniac and murderer... military blunderer... an unparalleled barbarian."

This was in 1956. It set the stage for remarkable changes in Russian policies and Russian life.

Under Khrushchev Russia has moved from a one-man dictatorship to a collective party control. Life has become more complex, with economists, businessmen and technicians boosted to high positions of influence and authority.

Ironically though unschooled himself, Khrushchev recognized the value of science and pushed Russian technology to enormous advances in space travel.

Under him Russian life became freer... consumer goods became available...

artists and writers were given more latitude... tourists were encouraged to visit... censorship of foreign correspondents was relaxed... terrorism of the populace decreased.

MANY RUMORS

During this time rumors and anecdotes about Khrushchev flourished. He was rumored, at various times, to have suffered strokes, heart attacks, kidney and liver ailments, to be on the verge of retiring or being overthrown. It was suggested he was a near-alcoholic and a glutton.

Still, Khrushchev plunged onward.

He is a master showman. He turns on engaging charm or furious malevolence whenever the American U-2 spy flights over Russia were exposed — and admitted by President Eisenhower.

His peasant's humor and earthy charm were flaunted during his 1959 visit to United States.

His shoe-thumping performance at the U-N in 1960 both horrified and amused an incredulous world.

And his easy flexibility and sanity over the President Kennedy Cuba ultimatum last fall made the world sigh with relief and gratitude.

Now his recent urging of a partial nuclear test-ban has made many forget that he was the one who broke the original agreement in 1961.

GREAT SPLIT

His split with China seems to have driven him to greater efforts at co-existence with the West.

The first 10 years of the Khrushchev era have been without a dull moment. He is the most interesting and compelling character of our times.

What will the next 10 years be like?

Certainly Khrushchev is unlikely to be a Russian leader by 1973. Whoever is will have inherited an enormous pair of boots to fill.

The personality of Khrushchev has never been satisfactorily defined. In a sense him at his Black Sea Resort Robert Frost, after meeting, summed him up best as "that kindly old ruffian."

Need not be luxury

Executive plane can save money

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian businesses are beginning to find that owning their own planes can save them time and money, says John Timmins, who says the trend to corporate aviation in 1955 and founded a business to serve it.

Mr. Timmins estimates there are more than 400 business aircraft operating in Canada.

That the Timmins Aviation Limited payroll has grown from 35 to 175 employees is another indication of commercial aviation's growth.

By REFORD MacDOUGALL

"This is a question a lot of people ask me," says Mr. Timmins, "and the answer depends on how a company wants to use a plane.

"Take an Ontario contractor and his engineers going to a site in northern Quebec. With a commercial airline they would probably have to stop over several times and would need to drive perhaps 100 miles to the site. "This would take them at least a day and would mean they would have to stay overnight. Two or three days would be involved in this trip, not to mention the men might be exhausted at the end of it.

spread out blueprints in their spacious high-altitude office." Mr. Timmins says having a plane also means a contractor can go to a construction site as often as necessary, instead of putting off such trips because of the time and trouble involved.

A plane can save a company many hours, Mr. Timmins says, though how much it saves is difficult to calculate.

"It's like my dictaphone here. Many people would call it a luxury and I couldn't say what it actually saves me. All I know is that it makes my business much more efficient by enabling me to turn out many more letters."

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — In 20 years of exposure to political speeches here I have rarely been so impressed by keen discernment and lucid analysis as in a recent speech by Social Credit leader Robert Thompson.

In a sense it was a throwaway speech, because it was delivered only to the Ontario Young Socialists in convention at Cooksville. But if the audience was second or third class, the speech was first class plus.

Mr. Thompson spoke on the subject of "Canada — Looking Forward." By coincidence Prime Minister Pearson spoke at Charlottetown two days later on much the same theme. Even recognizing that Mr. Pearson has the present responsibility of shaping Canada's future, and thus is inhibited in thinking aloud on the unresolved vital question of national unity, he fares poorly in the comparison.

Mr. Thompson led his listeners back to Canada's beginnings, showing that each passing century advanced the political and social organizations of this land. Now, nearing the end of another such epoch, "the time has come for a vast amount of undergirding and a clearing of perspective." We must examine our form of government, he said, "to see whether it is appropriate and adequate for the times," and if not, what to do about it.

He saw as basic to national unity the purpose of the founding fathers to respect "the freedom of every inhabitant to preserve his traditional culture and way of life." Yet today "the stresses and strains of economic pressure, of cultural and racial pressure, of political ups and downs, threaten to blow the country to pieces."

He does not believe the point of explosion will ever quite be reached, but significantly he puts his faith in the people's "basic spirit of tolerance" rather than in any French-English togetherness. Canadians lack a national consciousness, a sense of national unity and purpose, he says, so that provincial loyalties are stronger in many cases than loyalty to the nation. Consequently federal politics thrives on sectional division, and gutless federal governments are ivory-towered apart from the main issues of day-to-day living that concern the provincial authorities.

Mr. Thompson sees education as the key to national unity. The failure of constitutional guarantees to safeguard French-language instruction in most of the English-speaking provinces, he pointed out, has produced "a strong polarization of Canadian culture" with Quebec becoming more exclusively French-Canadian, and French culture atrophying in most other provinces. Thus "the nation has become progressively more divided in background and culture."

He asserts it is a federal government responsibility to eradicate the causes of cultural polarization before the country cracks asunder. He says Ottawa should review with the provinces the sensitive areas of the form of government, the pattern of education, the division of taxation, and the need for federal-provincial lines of communication, bridges of understanding and links of cooperation.

Bob Thompson is not a power in the land. His party leadership is scarcely recognized in Quebec. Many think he's a lightweight with a sincere TV manner as his main asset. But I think there are few MPs whose departure from the Commons would be a greater loss to the country.

Regional schools indispensable

Rural school system overhauled

QUEBEC (CP) — Regional school boards are coming to rural Quebec as part of a vast overhaul of the province's educational system.

But the going isn't easy. Plans to create "les regionales" are bucking the still-strong tides of tradition.

Regional secondary schools are indispensable to Quebec's educational progress, says Youth Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, responsible for education in the government.

He admits there are "physical and psychological" problems to be overcome but insists they must be met if the education system is to be adapted to the age.

Some of the psychological problems are rooted in the days when schooling was obtained in the parish. Now many children will have to journey outside their communities for part or all of their high school education.

Few local boards nowadays can provide the wide range of subjects needed to fit a student for today's world, says the 43-year-old minister who is spearheading far-reaching changes in Quebec education.

Another factor working against speedy creation of the boards is rivalry among neighboring municipalities. Two communities of the same size may both want to be the centre of a regional board. And small communities fear they will be dominated by larger ones.

Thinly-spread population is another problem. Government experts feel a reservoir of 50,000 population is needed to support a regional board able to provide full secondary education. But in some places—the Gaspé, for example—population is scattered over a wide area.

and it has been decided to trim the minimum to 40,000 where necessary.

Even so, territory covered by some boards runs for 50 miles on either side of the hub community.

There are some 25 regional boards in the province. Another eight will soon be created. When the chore is done two years hence, there will be roughly 60 boards covering all the province except Montreal and Quebec City.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie is touring the province, primarily to drum up support for an education ministry. But he devotes a lot of his talks to the benefits of regional school boards.

Every meeting is followed by a question-and-answer period and the most-asked question concerns transportation.

Has the minister thought about problems involved in travelling over winter roads? Won't students be too tired after riding buses two or three hours a day?

Yes, replies Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, the problems have been considered, but children adapt quickly and longer travelling time shouldn't cause a problem after the first few weeks.

Sept. 12, 1963

A daring raid by German paratroopers rescued Benito Mussolini from a clinic near Aquila, Italy, 20 years ago—in 1943—after he was taken into custody when forced to resign as dictator of Italy. Mussolini was taken to Germany to rally Italian fascist resistance against the Allied armies in Italy and returned to set up a puppet government in the north of his country. But anti-fascist partisans captured him as he attempted to flee, with the gradual defeat of the German armies pressing on. Mussolini was executed by the partisans and his corpse hung in public display in Milan.

Strike at la Voix de l'Est still without solution

GRANBY, Que. — A newspaper in this city 45 miles east of Montreal, said Wednesday an "illegal lock-out" rather than a strike has shut down la Voix de l'Est, the Canadian Federation of Printers, Voice of the East only daily and Publishing, an affiliate of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The statement was made by Gerard Picard, president of la Voix de l'Est, said Sunday in a statement for the management, that the company's striking employees have been discharged and that a study of the situation will be made before there can be any question of rehiring.

His statement said a strike of employees began Aug. 27 and affected la Voix de l'Est, radio station CHEF and a printing plant, all owned by the same company. About 100 employees were affected.

SEEK FIVE-DAY WEEK

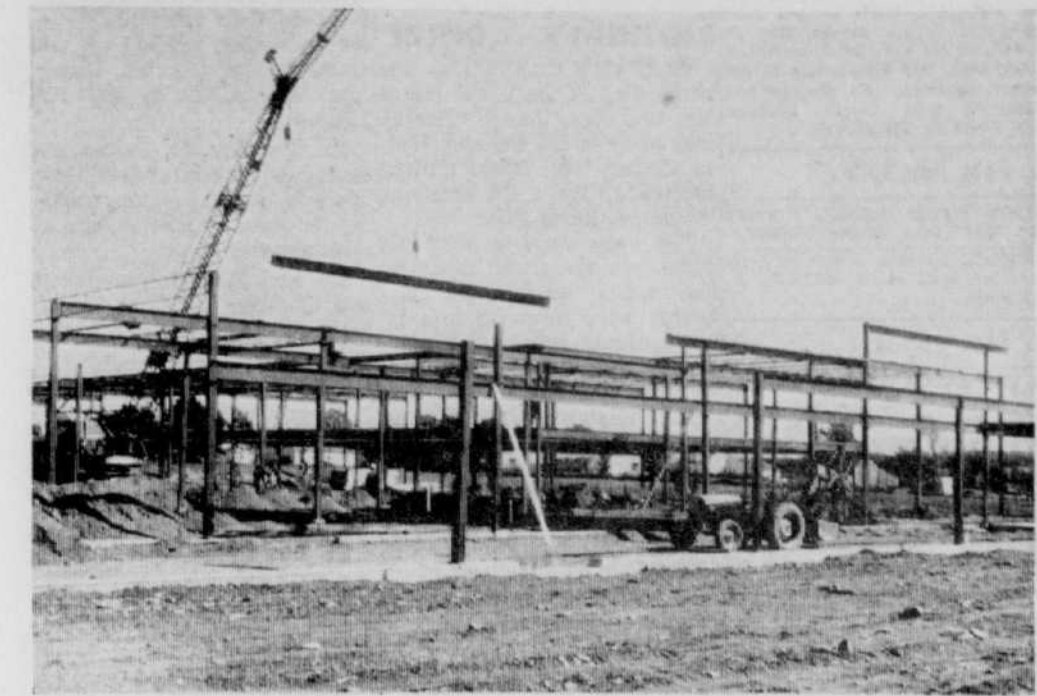

Mr. Picard said in an interview the employees had been fired by Mr. Laurion for having refused to become strike-breakers by handling work normally done by the strike-bound Progress du Saguenay, a Chicoutimi weekly. Mr. Picard said Mr. Laurion is one of the main shareholders of le Progrès where a strike started Aug. 13.

Strikers at le Progrès are seeking a five-day week. About 37 workers are affected by the strike.

Mr. Picard said: "Mr. Laurion claims that representatives of the provincial department of labor have told him that the Granby strike was illegal. He does not give their names. I would very much like to know the names of these representatives of the labor department who intervened to give him legal opinions on strikes."

Aid dairy farmers

Calls for island waterway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vermont dairy farmers could save $6,000,000 annually in feed grain transportation rates with a waterway between the St. Lawrence and Hudson rivers via Lake Champlain, Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt.) said Tuesday.

Aiken, long an advocate of the inland waterway, said a Senate commerce committee analysis shows water shipment of grain from Duluth, Minn., to Burlington, Vt., would cost $6.10 a long ton, as opposed to a current estimated rail rate of $19.04.

The Canada-U.S. International Joint Commission is currently studying improvement of existing water routes between the two rivers.

Sweetsburg

Friends of Harry Strange will regret to hear he recently suffered a stroke. Many relatives called at his home during the Labor Day weekend, including Mr. and Mrs. L. Parker, of Fitchburg, Mass.; Miss Beatrice Laraba, Washington, D.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Barrette and three children, from Monapack, N.Y.; and Mrs. Daniel McArthur, Bedford.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Taylor and family were Mr. and Mrs. William Leathersbarrel, of Montreal.

Arthur Reed for their work and time rendered towards the judging of the school gardens and the School Fair.

Another vote of thanks was extended to Fred Marsh for the use of his bulldozer and a donation of gravel on the Foster Road picnic grounds, also to Fred Allen for making the brick fireplace.

KNOWLTON — Several local children, who are keenly interested in Junior Red Cross work, held a delightful puppet show at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mizener in aid of the J.R.C., on Aug. 27.

Twenty-eight guests attended the play, entitled Maggie Muggins and Her Friends. Between the three acts Alvin's music was enjoyed.

The cast included Diane Royle, Leslie Mizener, Stephanie Best, who played two parts, and Shirley Page. Announcements were made by Leslie Mizener and Stephanie Best.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Norman Page.

At the conclusion of the performance, Mr. and Mrs. Mizener served refreshments.

Proceeds amounted to $7.

40th anniversary marked at Sutton

SUTTON — In honor of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Sweet, a family dinner party was held on Aug. 31, by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sweet at their home.

Also present to share in the celebration of this 40th wedding anniversary event were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bresee, of Sherbrooke and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sweet and daughter, Laurie, of Macdonald College.

A gift of money was presented to the honored couple from the sons and daughter.

Canadian International Paper Company has announced a $5 increase in prices for bleached sulphate pulps effective October 1st for Canadian and United States customers. British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. will spend $18.5 million on expansion of its Kraft Pulp Plant at Crofton B.C. by 1965. This follows a $6.4 million expansion announced earlier this year to feed the company's $25 million newsprint mill scheduled to go into operation in mid 1964. The two pulp expansions will increase B.C. compared with a daily average operation level of 550 tons in 1962.

Institute meets at Way's Mills

WAY'S MILLS — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. E. F. Hovey on Sept. 4. The letter from the Leadership Committee was tabled till the October meeting, and the request for books for West Indies will be held till more information has been received.

Money was voted for the purchase of articles for the fish pond at the School Fair and Mrs. G. H. Cass was requested to make the selection.

In response to the call for help toward the Coupon 367 it was decided to hold a card party in the Union Hall Sept. 13. Mrs. P. M. Standish and Mrs. S. Molony to be in charge of all arrangements.

Membership in the Consumers Association of Canada was renewed as was the Federate News. The Chateleine is being sent again to the Cross in Hand Institute in Sussex, Eng.

Mrs. Roy Aldrich gave an interesting report of the county meeting held in Way's Mills in August.

At the close of the meeting a picnic lunch was served. The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. Molony.

Lions Club of Derby sponsors horse show

DERBY LINE — An estimated 3,000 people from all over the United States and Canada gathered at Baxter Park for the second annual horse show, held on Labor Day under sponsorship of the Derby Lions Club.

Events commenced at ten o'clock with a parade, headed by Derby Academy band, horses, ponies, decorated bicycles, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, officials of the Lions Club and guests.

The fun had been in planning for some weeks and the weather man provided an excellent day.

GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP

Cimarron, a handsome Bay steed, owned and ridden by Gilbert Richard, of Foster, won first place in six of the 22 classes with a total of 30 points, taking the Grand Championship trophy.

Cimarron placed first in the cloverleaf, open quarterhorse, pleasure horse, western, working stock horse, pole bending, western seat and hands classes.

The Reserve Championship, a horse, Ina Walker Maid, owned by J. W. Mitchell, Lennoxville, totalled 16 points, with first finish in the open saddle and gentlemen's turnout classes, as well as several second and third place finishes.

Pat Drown, Lyndonville, was winner of the English equestrian class in which the riders are judged for their English type of clothing, and was a very colorful display.

There were 81 horses entered in the day's events; last year there were 51 entries.

TROPHIES PRESENTED

St. Houghton, president of the Lions Club, presented the grand championship trophy, awarded annually by the Butterfield Division of the Union Twist Drill Co., to Mr. Richard, and the reserve championship trophy was presented by K. E. Smith, chairman of the show to Mr. Mitchell. This trophy is donated by Derby Line National Bank.

Bob Kerr was announcer; Mrs. Louise Gallup, secretary; Earl Rexford, ringmaster; and Paul Rexford, judge. Other members of the Lions Club were on hand to assist where needed.

Lunches were served on the grounds and there were booths of the Scouts, Modern Woodmen of America, home made foods, and others, all of which were well patronized by the large crowd.

BICYCLE PRIZES

Bicycle prizes were awarded to Marjorie Wheeler, whose theme was Vacation in Vermont. Craig Buckland and Earl and Debbie Hackett received second and third place respectively.

The Lions Club also operated rides for the kiddies and at the end of the day a pony was awarded to some one who held a lucky raffle ticket.

The Lions members were assisted by Charles Gallu, Bert Curran and Dick Scott, in duties such as directing traffic, etc.

The show was a success even beyond the expectation of the club members, all of whom deeply appreciate the interest shown in this event by entering horses and by others who helped in various ways.

Richmond Legion Street Fair is to be held September 14

The annual Richmond Street Fair, sponsored by the No. 15 branch of the Canadian Legion will be held September 14 beginning at 8 p.m. in the Richmond Coliseum at the Richmond Fair grounds.

Some 2,000 persons are expected to attend the Street Fair. Arthur Bieber of Richmond, in charge of arrangements says there are 15 booths at the Street Fair this year. For nickels, dimes and quarters the population of Richmond and district can try for a delicious ham, warm blankets, chocolates, fruit, dolls and men's and boys' clothing.

There is also a household sundries booth that will attract many housewives. Bingo, the game that attracts hundreds at any event, will also be played at the Richmond Street Fair. There is also a fish pond, ball game, dart game and a refreshment booth by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the No. 19 Canadian Legion.

Proceeds of the fair go towards the Legion's welfare activities. The Legion depends heavily on the funds derived from the fair to help ex-servicemen—the Legion's main endeavor. The Ladies' Auxiliary are raffling a barbecue set this year. All those who attend the fair are reminded to keep their tickets stubs, for there are going to be 12 door prizes this year. Admittance stubs are placed into a box for the door prize. Door prizes and the raffle drawing will be awarded whether the winning person is at the Coliseum when the drawing is taking place or not.

Winners who are not at the Fair at the time of the drawing are asked to call Mr. Bieber at 826-2243, to collect their prizes.

President of the Legion this year is Alton Mills. Vice-president is George Berwick and second vice-president is Wilbur Lyster. Ted Nixon is secretary and Ronald Butler is treasurer.

We'll see you at the Legion Street Fair in Richmond, Sept. 14th!

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Yanks favor Dodgers for annual clash, 50,000 seats main issue, knock over A's, Twins stop Indians

New York Yankees are all wrapped up in a pennant race—the other pennant race. There's loot involved, lots of it.

The Yankees, who always count the winning World Series share in their annual income estimates filed in April, are openly favoring Los Angeles Dodgers for the National League flag in the battle with St. Louis Cardinals.

They figure a World Series with the Dodgers will be worth some $6,000 a man more than one with the Cardinals. The arithmetic is simple. There are some 55,000 seats in O'Malley's house in Los Angeles, and all within naked eye distance of home plate are called boxes, at $12 a copy. St. Louis has only 30,000 seats, few in the $12 class.

Meanwhile, the Yankees moved a step closer to their own annual American League pennant—clinging party by whipping Kansas City Athletics 8-2. The second-place Minnesota Twins also won, 9-3 over Cleveland Indians.

NEED 3 WINS

That left the magic number at three. In other AL action, Chicago White Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Washington Senators trimmed Detroit Tigers 6-5 in 10 innings and Aubrey Gatewood pitched a four-hitter in his major league debut as Los Angeles Angels defeated Boston Red Sox 4-1.

"This nonsense has gone far enough," Yankee manager Ralph Houk told his players at Kansas City, after the Yankees had lost two straight to the Athletics.

Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford agreed. Mantle smacked a three-run homer in the first inning and added a single and double. Ford won his 22nd game, against seven losses, his fifth straight.

Joe Pepitone also hit a two-run homer, his 24th, for the Yankees.

HITS GRAND SLAM

Harmon Killebrew hit his 38th homer—a grand slammer—and Earl Battey hit his 25th as Minnesota stayed one-half game ahead of the White Sox in their battle for second place. Lee Stange, tagged for two solo homers by Cleveland's Fred Whitfield, won his 10th game for the Twins.

Eddie Fisher went the distance for the White Sox against Baltimore, winning his eighth with a three-hitter. Dave Nicholson homered for the Sox and broke a 2-2 tie with a sixteenth-inning single. Camilo Carreon also homered and rookie Pete Ward, a native of Montreal, stroked two doubles.

Dick Phillips led off the 10th inning with his 10th homer for the Washington victory. Hank Aguirre working in relief, gave up the homer. Dick McAuliffe homered for the Tigers.

Gatewood, a 25-year-old right-hander just brought up from Memphis, lost his shutout bid in the ninth when Dick Stuart tripled and scored on Russ Nixon's sacrifice fly.

Warren Spahn made his first major league appearance back in '46 with Braves, now owns 2,200 acre ranch

NEW YORK (AP) — On the night of June 17, 1946, Dizzy Dean, while broadcasting the Boston Red Sox - St. Louis Browns game in St. Louis, formed his listeners that the Cardinals were ahead in their night games in Boston.

"Spahn now is pitching for the Braves," said Dizzy and then added: "Who in the world is Spahn?"

Then 25 years old, Spahn, home from overseas where he had served more than three years, was making his first appearance of the season for the Braves. Four years before, he had made his first appearance ever for the Braves. Casey Stengel was the manager.

"I'll never forget it," recalled Spahn. "I was pitching against the Dodgers, who had been stealing our signs all spring. Casey thought he could discourage this thievery by switching signals. In other words the usual sign for a fast ball would mean curve, and vice versa."

"Pee Wee Reese was at bat with a runner on second who could see our catcher's signals. Casey called for a brush-back pitch. I threw three straight inside fast balls that never fazed Reese. He merely leaned back and took them for balls and Casey came storming out to the mound."

"He lifted me because I hadn't decked Reese, then stopped me in the dugout and told me to pick up my railroad ticket to Hartford."

BLASTS SPAHN

"You, man," he said, "you've got no guts."

This is the same Spahn whom youngsters regard as a model and oldsters regard as a self image. Youngsters play baseball because of what happened to Spahn. They dream it should happen to them.

He grew up poor. He signed his first baseball contract at $80 a month. Today, he pulls down $75,000 a year, not including the money he gets from endorsements, commercials and occasional appearances on television and radio.

Born of parents of moderate means in Buffalo, N.Y., Spahn today owns a 2,200-acre ranch in Hartshorne, Okla., roamed by 800 white face Herefords. He has oil stock and real estate. His most valued possession, however, is his indestructible left arm.

"I guess I've been blessed with an exceptional arm, at that," the 42-year-old wonder pitcher acknowledged. "I take care of it but I've never babied it."

How well Spahn has taken care of that precious left arm is attested by his incredible durability which has carried him through 18 big league seasons, more than 600 starts, nearly 5,000 innings, 347 triumphs and 13 20 - game winning seasons.

1963 Asian Games in Jakarta seem headed into political camps and may help fan Moscow-Peking feud

NEW YORK (AP) — A sports organization formed by President Sukarno of Indonesia may push international athletic events, particularly the Olympic Games, into political camps and fan the Moscow - Peking feud.

Sukarno's Games of the New Emerging Forces, commonly called GANEFO, were created after the International Olympic organization suspended Indonesia for barring Israel and Nationalist China from the 1962 Asian Games in Jakarta.

GANEFO plans an "anti-imperialist" Olympic-type athletic show every four years, beginning Nov. 10 this year at Jakarta.

The Olympic suspension of the small country devoid of world class athletes has spawned a movement that has put Olympic leaders on the bristling defence. On Aug. 2, the International Amateur Athletic Federation warned world members against the dangers of competing in the November Jakarta Games.

Red Wings add two more games to exhibitions

DETROIT (CP) — Manager-coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings announced Wednesday two extra games are to be added to the National Hockey League club's pre-season schedule.

The Pittsburgh farm club will provide opposition for the Wings in an exhibition game Sept. 24 and again Oct. 2 at Stratford, Ont.

The Wings now have 10 pre-season exhibition games scheduled.

Peanut League to hold picnic Sunday, Sept. 15

BOUNDARY — Because of inclement weather for the closing picnic of the Peanut Baseball League teams of Rock Island, Stanstead, Beebe and Derby Line, only a few attended.

The boys worked hard all summer and at a league meeting, held Monday evening, September 9, it was agreed to stage another picnic Sunday, September 15, 2:00 p.m., at Bernie's picnic grounds in Stanstead.

The committee will provide hot dogs, rolls, ice cream and drinks for all the players and bat boys. Parents and friends of the boys are invited to attend but must bring their own food. If the weather is cold the picnic will be held the following Sunday.

The committee will be grateful to anyone wishing to make donations for the continuance of the Peanut League. These may be given, or sent to the coaches, Bob Gosselin, Derby Line, Delmar White, Stanstead, Denis Parent, Rock Island and Irving Davio, Beebe.

The league kept the boys occupied all summer and helped to teach them good sportsmanship. The support of the public is needed to continue this wholesome activity.

Cards - Dodgers keep at it, both win

The experts pointed a finger at St. Louis Cardinals when they began their belated bid to overtake the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, and turned thumbs down.

The verdict: Pitching not strong enough. They may have something there. Just last Sunday Cardinal pitchers gave up two runs.

They haven't allowed any since Ray Sadecki and Toronto's Ron Taylor combining for the Cardinals third straight shutout, a five-hit, 4-0 job against Chicago Cubs Wednesday night that kept second-place St. Louis three games behind the Dodgers.

The Sadecki-Taylor combine followed up a five-hitter by Curt Simmons and a six-hitter by Bob Gibson, extending the Cardinals' latest winning streak to five games while producing the 14th victory in the last 15 games.

Tonight, it'll be Ernie Broglio's turn for the Cardinals. He should be ready, although right now he ranks as the weak link in the pitching staff. He was tagged for two runs by Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday.

While the Cardinals kept up the pressure, Maury Wills applied some for the Dodgers against Pittsburgh, stroking four hits, starting three rallies and driving in two runs as Los Angeles maintained its grip on the top spot by belting the Pirates 9-4.

In other NL action, Vada Pinson collected two homers, including his 1,000th major-league hit, and Gordy Coleman hit a grand slam in Cincinnati Reds' 14-3 chumping of Milwaukee Braves, Houston's Dick Farrell four-hit Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 and New York Mets defeated San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Sadecki, (9-8) started against Cub ace Dick Ellsworth, (20-9) and pitched strongly, allowing only four hits in 5 2-3 innings, but was bothered by periodic wildness and manager Johnny Keane decided to bring in Taylor. Taylor allowed only a single the rest of the way.

The Cardinals got to Ellisworth for two runs in the fourth inning after Dick Groat, playing with a bruised chest, lifted off with a single. Singles by Bill White and Ken Boyer then filled the bases and Stan Musial lifted a long sacrifice fly that brought in the only run St. Louis needed. The second run of the inning scored on Curt Flood's grounder. Mike Shannon's two-run homer in the eighth wrapped up the scoring.

Wills led off the first and third inning for the Dodgers with singles and each time stole second and scored—Tommy Davis driving him in both times with a single and a sacrifice fly. Wills drove in two of three Los Angeles runs in the fourth with a double, then doubled in the sixth and scored on Frank Howard's single.

Don Drysdale started for the Dodgers but gave way to Pete Richert, who in turn needed Ron Perranoski's relief help. Richert, tagged for a homer by Smoky Burgess, got the victory for a 4-1 record. Bob Veale, 2-2, took the loss.

Jim Maloney won his 22nd game as the Reds pounded the Braves. And, in an eye-opening bit of strategy, Don Pavletich was lifted for a pinch-hitter by manager Fred Hutchinson in Cincinnati's nine-run fourth inning rally after hitting a two-run homer his first time up in the inning. The pinch hitter was Coleman.

Five key positions at stake as crew starts work, Dickie Moore reports, Hawks-Leafs to meet

It may be coincidence, but the two teams which led the National Hockey League last season have already advanced their training to the exhibition game stage. And the two teams which missed the playoffs have yet to begin training.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who won the Stanley Cup playoffs after finishing first, and Chicago Black Hawks, who finished second, are ready with experiments for their three games together during the weekend.

The teams will clash Friday night in Peterborough, the Leafs' training camp; Saturday night in St. Catharines, where the Hawks work out; and Sunday afternoon in Kitchener.

Boston Bruins, who finished in the cellar last season, were to begin training today in Boston. But New York Rangers, who came in fifth, don't open camp until Sunday in Winnipeg.

Montreal Canadiens, third-place finishers last year, opened training at home Wednesday, while fourth-place Detroit Red Wings began last Saturday in Detroit.

In the Toronto-Chicago weekend series, the teams will be experimenting with numerous new players, including juniors and minor leaguers from last season.

INSERT NEW MEN
The Leafs will insert a new man on each of their three regular forward lines from last season. A major experiment has Mike Corbett, 20, up from junior ranks, playing with Frank Mahovlich and Red Kelly.

HOWE WARMS UP
In Detroit, Gordie Howe warmed up for his assault on Rocket Richard's all-time goal scoring record by netting the opening goal in the Red Wings' 5-0 victory over the Bruins.

He also has Jim Pappin, a tired.

Stanstead County Fish and Game Club holds meeting, resolutions passed regarding rearing ponds

AYER'S CLIFF — The Stanstead County Fish and Game Club at a meeting held Tuesday evening, September 10th, in the County Hall, agreed by a majority vote to release O'Malley pond to Yamaska Conservation Association for a period of three years on a trial basis and under the same conditions as operated by the Stanstead Club.

A resolution on this matter was made at the July meeting, all officers and directors were notified by mail and the vote taken at the meeting.

The club will again offer a trophy to the hunter who, as a member of the club, shoots the largest woods dressed buck deer.

In the absence of Charles Brewer, chairman of the Molson's Fishing contest, his report was read by President Philip Poaps. The club made several fine entries in the contest and urged all anglers to enter their catch.

The lease for a rearing pond on Lee Farm property at Rock Island has been completed and the Quebec Federation.
