NDP calls for senate abolition after money stall

OTTAWA (CP) — It isn't anywhere on the agenda, but the Senate's action last Friday night in stalling a government money bill is sure to be a big item in today's Commons proceedings.

Officially, the order paper contains only one reference to the Senate: Presentation of a bill by Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) calling for abolition of the 102-member upper chamber.

The bill, however, isn't debatable on first reading. There would have to be unanimous consent — highly unlikely — for second reading and automatic debate.

Various other devices exist, however, for MPs to thrash out the Senate's refusal to pass immediately a Commons bill that included authority for a loan to the unemployment insurance fund to pay jobless benefits due today.

The Commons today is supposed to be tackling the cleanup of supplementary estimates for the fiscal year that ended last Tuesday night.

Originally, the government asked the Commons to finish up those estimates on Thursday, March 26, and adjourn that night for the traditional 10-day Easter recess.

The Conservative Opposition decided to balk, insisting on a detailed study of the $240,000,000 involved. Details of this spending were given to the Commons March 6.

SAT ON GOOD FRIDAY
Result: A brief Good Friday sitting and the whole recess week taken up with bickering about various government departments.

The Senate, which had been planning to recess itself on March 26 and come back April 20, sat around all last week waiting for the money bill which finally arrived late last Friday afternoon.

Senator Gratton O'Leary (PC-Ontario) rebelled at the idea of the Senate giving three readings to the bill. He refused the unanimous consent needed for this rubber-stamp process.

At that point the Senate wound up its Friday proceedings, electing to sit again tonight.

Five die in fire

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Five persons, including a mother and her three children, died in a fire that destroyed a two-storey home here today.

Dead were Mrs. Francis O'Neil, her three children, Reginald 3, Mary, 1, and two-month-old John, and Miss Annie Deveau who boarded with the O'Neil family.

Mrs. O'Neil was reported in her early 20s, Miss Deveau in her early 40s.

Stowed away

HALIFAX (CP) — Two soldiers who stowed away on the aircraft carrier Bonaventure March 28 and who were discovered while she was en route to Cyprus, have been sentenced to seven days detention in the army guard room cells here.

Army headquarters here announced today that Cpl. C. V. Lane, 31, of Bouillier's Point, near here, and Pte. C. C. Bell, 32, of Halifax, were returned here during the weekend and tried by their commanding officer, Maj. D. G. Duncan.

Chinese purged

HONG KONG (AP) — Hsi Chung-hsun, a vice-premier and secretary-general of Red China's powerful state council, has been purged for opposing Mao Tse-tung's internal policies, a university professor from Red China reported today.

The professor, who arrived from Peking recently, said Hsi's fall was well known among the intellectual circles in the Communist capital. He could not tell exactly when the purge occurred.

Likes subsidy

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The federal dairy policy, including the $50,000,000 butter subsidy, should continue after May 1 with no drastic changes, President J. M. Hartwick of the National Dairy Council of Canada said today.

The subsidy of 12 cents a pound, inaugurated in 1962 to stimulate demand, has resulted in almost perfect balance between milk production and demand, said Mr. Hartwick, head of the voice of the dairy processing industry.

Soldier fades away; world pays homage

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans and much of the world began paying a hero's homage today to Douglas MacArthur, gallant old soldier who has faded away.

The 84-year-old general of the army died at 2:39 p.m. EST Sunday at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington after three serious operations.

Soon thereafter the body of the man who etched his name on so much history—St. Mihiel, Bataan, Corregidor, New Guinea, Manila, Tokyo and Inchon—began the funeral journey to New York.

From 10 a.m. Tuesday until 10 p.m., it will lie in repose at the famous old Seventh Regiment Armory on Park Avenue.

Wednesday, the body will be returned by train to Washington where it will lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda, where so recently the body of the martyred president Kennedy also reposed.

Then it will be flown to Norfolk, Va., for funeral services in St. Paul's Episcopal (Anglican) Church and burial in the MacArthur Memorial cemetery nearby. All along the funeral journey there will be the military pageantry reserved for the nation's great.

BURIAL NEAR MOTHER
The general had expressed a wish to be buried in Norfolk because there his mother, the former Mary Pinkney Hardy, passed away. He had given of himself with exceptional strength and valor and will be remembered as one of the great military men in our history.

Messages of sorrow at MacArthur's passing — and praise for his exploits in both world wars and the Korean War — poured in from around the globe. One, from former president Truman, recalled a great controversy with which historians will be wrestling for decades.

Truman said Sunday night: "I am deeply sorry at the passing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has given of himself with exceptional strength and valor and will be remembered as one of the great military men in our history."

One of three international agreements under which Cyprus won her independence from Britain in 1960, the treaty of alliance gives Turkey and Greece the right to station troops on the island. The Turkish garrison numbers 650 troops, the Greek 950.

The Turkish press said the government considered Makarios' decision to cancel the treaty of alliance a prelude to abolishing the other agreements, which include the right of Greek, Turkish or British intervention to protect the Cypriot constitution. Under one of the agreements, Britain also retains bases on the island.

Protest Lakes pact

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Association of Marine Engineers has sent a strong protest to Labor Minister MacEachen over the terms of the Great Lakes peace pact between the government's marine union trustees and the Seafarers' International Union of North America.

In a telegram sent Sunday night, Richard Graves, national president of the Engineers' distress about the arrangements announced Friday by the trustees and Paul Hall, United States SIU chief.

Mr. Graves' protest was the first public reaction by any of the unions that would be involved in an ultimate integration of the other marine unions now under trusteeship along with the SIU. Copies of the wire also were sent to William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and to the trustees.

Mr. Graves said the agreement will permit the hoodlum empire within the SIU to continue under the SIU's executive vice-president Leonard J. McLaughlin.

Under the peace pact, Mr. McLaughlin is expected to assume the presidency of the SIU, replacing Charles Turner, appointed earlier by the trustees after the dismissal of Hal C. Banks.

GRAVES RAPS TRUSTEES
Mr. Graves said the trustees appear to be ready to accept rigged and bogus elections in the SIU, which made Mr. McLaughlin vice-president.

"Marine engineers will not accept a hoodlum empire under any circumstances," he said.

"We strongly oppose Canadian seamen being handed over from the Canadian hoodlum empire of Banks, McLaughlin et al to the American hoodlum empire of Hall."

The Doctor Says

ANTIBIOTICS CAN CONTROL PAINFUL BONE INFECTION

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—How does osteomyelitis affect a person? Can it be cured without an operation?

A—Osteomyelitis is an infection in a bone. It is painful and slowly destroys the bone. In the past the condition has been treated by opening the bone and establishing drainage but, although this relieves the pain by allowing the pus to escape, it rarely cures this chronic disease.

With the advent of antibiotics, treatment of this condition has improved, but special techniques are required to get a sufficient concentration of the antibiotic in the actual site of the infection. This treatment is applied only after opening the bone and scraping out the devitalized parts. Dr. Stuart Mudd, working at the Veterans Administration hospital in Philadelphia, has been using a bacteriophage which is a virus that destroys the staphylococcus that cause the osteomyelitis and has reported good results. This would be a nonsurgical form of treatment but it is still experimental.

Q—My doctor says I have porphyria. Is this an allergy? How will it affect me? What causes it?

A—Porphyria is not an allergy. It appears to run in families. The underlying cause is an excessive production by the liver of porphyrin, a pigment. The victim usually has recurring attacks of severe abdominal pain, constipation and extreme muscular weakness — especially of the hands and feet.

Some victims get dark pigmented spots on their skin. Exposure to sunlight may cause severe blistering. The urine may appear normal when it is first passed but if it is allowed to stand in the sunlight it turns the color of burgundy wine or darker.

You must avoid barbiturates because they aggravate this condition. Reserpine, cortisone, diuretics and other drugs are frequently given but it is hard to evaluate the results because even without treatment most victims have remissions.

Q—What makes me have a salty taste in my mouth all the time? How can I get rid of it?

A—Excessive smoking is a cause in some persons. In others it may be due to sleeping with the mouth open or to an acid saliva coming in contact with a metallic dental filling. Such medicines as ammonium or calcium chloride, sodium or potassium iodide and bicarbonate of soda taken over a long period will cause a salty taste. If any of these causes apply to you, you can get rid of it by removing the cause. You should also eliminate table salt from your diet.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Sellers sat on the couch of his Goldwyn Studio dressing room, holding hands with his $1,500,000 baby.

That is the amount for which he and his new wife, Britt Ekland, have been sued by 20th Century-Fox for her alleged desertion of her role in Gunga Bati. The studio claims that she walked out on the British-based film to be with her new husband, who is here making a film, Kiss Me, Stupid.

Mr. and Mrs. Sellers made no claims whatsoever. In fact, Mrs. Sellers said nary a word, merely snuggling against her husband and gazing at him with her cool-blue eyes. She is a stunning blonde, and some who meet her claim that Fox set too low a figure.

Sellers wasn't saying much either.

"I'm not a good interview; don't care much about talking about myself," he remarked.

PLAYS THREE ROLES

This is the first Hollywood film-making for the British star who is almost a one-man industry—his films in release and completed: Pink Panther, The World of Henry Orient, Shot In The Dark and the explosive Dr. Strangelove, in which he plays three roles. "I have finally come to Mecca," he said wryly. "No, I don't detect much difference from shooting elsewhere. I think studies are pretty much the same the world over."

The social life is different, however. He has studiously avoided becoming enmeshed in Hollywood's party circuit.

"I went to a couple of affairs when I was here last year," he said, "and that was enough for me. I suppose that kind of life is all right if you like to talk films morning, noon and night. Personally, I like to be rid of it when I leave the studio."

The Vigers and their boarders were not home at the time of the fire. The cellar, and rooms upstairs were left a charred wreck. The fire was believed to have started in the cellar. Cause has not been determined yet.

Firemen under Fire chief Leslie Rattray and Ernest Dancause sped to the scene and managed to confine the blaze to three rooms and the cellar. Other parts of the one-storey brick house suffered heavy smoke and water damage. All belongings are a complete loss.

Mrs. Viger keeps five boarders and they lost all their clothes and personal effects.

They are: Roger Beauchene, Gaston Marcotte, Madeleine Marcotte, Lucie Lacroix and Gerorgette Lussier. All are employed in local factories.

Beauchene had left with Mr. and Mrs. Viger shortly after twelve noon for lunch at a local restaurant and at about 1:15, the alarm was turned in by a neighbour, Armand Comeau, who noticed smoke billowing from the house.

Viger was on his way after lunch to a job when he was stopped by a neighbour.

sin, Marcel Viger, who informed him of the fire. They quickly rushed back home to find the house a charred ruin inside. The kitchen and living room were not damaged by fire but smoke and water caused considerable damage to the furniture and walls.

Six years ago, an explosion occurred in the same house when Mr. Viger was in the process of doing some cleaning in the garage.

The couple will live with relatives until their home is back in order once again.

The boarders will also find other quarters.

Craftsman compares our art with Japan's

Canadian potters bow too much to conformity, usefulness

NORTH HATLEY — Canadian potters have been swept away on a tide of conformity, according to a well-known potter here.

Hidden amid the confusion of too many technical means, richness and completely overrun by tools, the Canadian craftsman has lost sight of the spontaneity and beauty that Japanese craftsmen mould into their wares.

These are some of the views potter Gaetan Beaudin presented in comparing the craftsmen of two countries.

Potter Beaudin has just returned from a year's study in Japan among the craftsmen whose work the world's potters most admire. "Japan's the place to go!" he says.

The handsome - bearded craftsman compared Canadian and Japanese crafts as he poured coffee in big mugs in his workshop home on a hillside overlooking Lake Massawippi.

Crouched on a bench, Mr. Beaudin hugged his knees and toyed with his pipe as he recalled his impressions of Masters of one of the oldest arts known to man. He met many during a study of techniques that took him to—among other places—Viet Nam, Hong Kong, Singapore, Bombay, Suez, India, Barcelona and France.

ONLY 300 POTTERS

Canadian craftsmen — they number only about 300 he says—have bowed to conformity, submitted to functionals become conditioned by the demands of market, engineers and machines.

Canadian potters, he said have confused beauty with something that is well done. "A Japanese potter will make something and behave like he is writing a letter. It is his. And the ending is a surprise," he said.

He said a Japanese potter will slap the pot and even throw it away if he finds it is losing its individuality.

"They want it to be imperfect—like a human being," he said. "Things do not have to be well done to be beautiful," he claims.

Mr. Beaudin said Japanese pottery has an austerity about it which is most appreciated. "Austerity is not accepted here," he said.

Japanese pottery is made spontaneously, he said. Canadian potters are limited, he claims.

"Here they are conditioned by standards set by the market, engineers and machines which can match what is made almost perfectly," he explained.

Japanese potters are individuals, he said. Canadian potters are more universal. "We have a tendency towards submitting to functionals — dishes, cups — things like that are useful and serve a purpose," he said.

Mr. Beaudin himself enjoys his work in "functional pottery."

Japan has some 100,000 potters, "some better, some equal," he said.

Canada has only about 300 who can call themselves potters. It is hard to determine the number. Most either teach the art in school departments or take it up as a hobby, he said.

Attitudes towards pottery in the two countries contrast sharply.

In Japan whole villages produce pottery. Everyone is making a living as potter, he said.

"You can tell what town the pottery has come from by design and color," he said. Pottery is not a rarity in Japan, it exists as a reality," he added.

In Canada, earthenware is artistic. "One goes to a showing to see pottery here where it is presented as something exceptional," he said.

Potter Beaudin claims Canadian potters must stop being universal. They must "live with their work," he said. "He must live like the peasant... get up early, go for a long walk... change his state of mind," he says.

Mr. Beaudin has been influenced by what he has learned abroad, but says he doesn't think it will change his way of doing things.

"If I had been young it might have but I have been a potter for 17 years. I know what I can do best now. I do it and it has to be my own," he said.

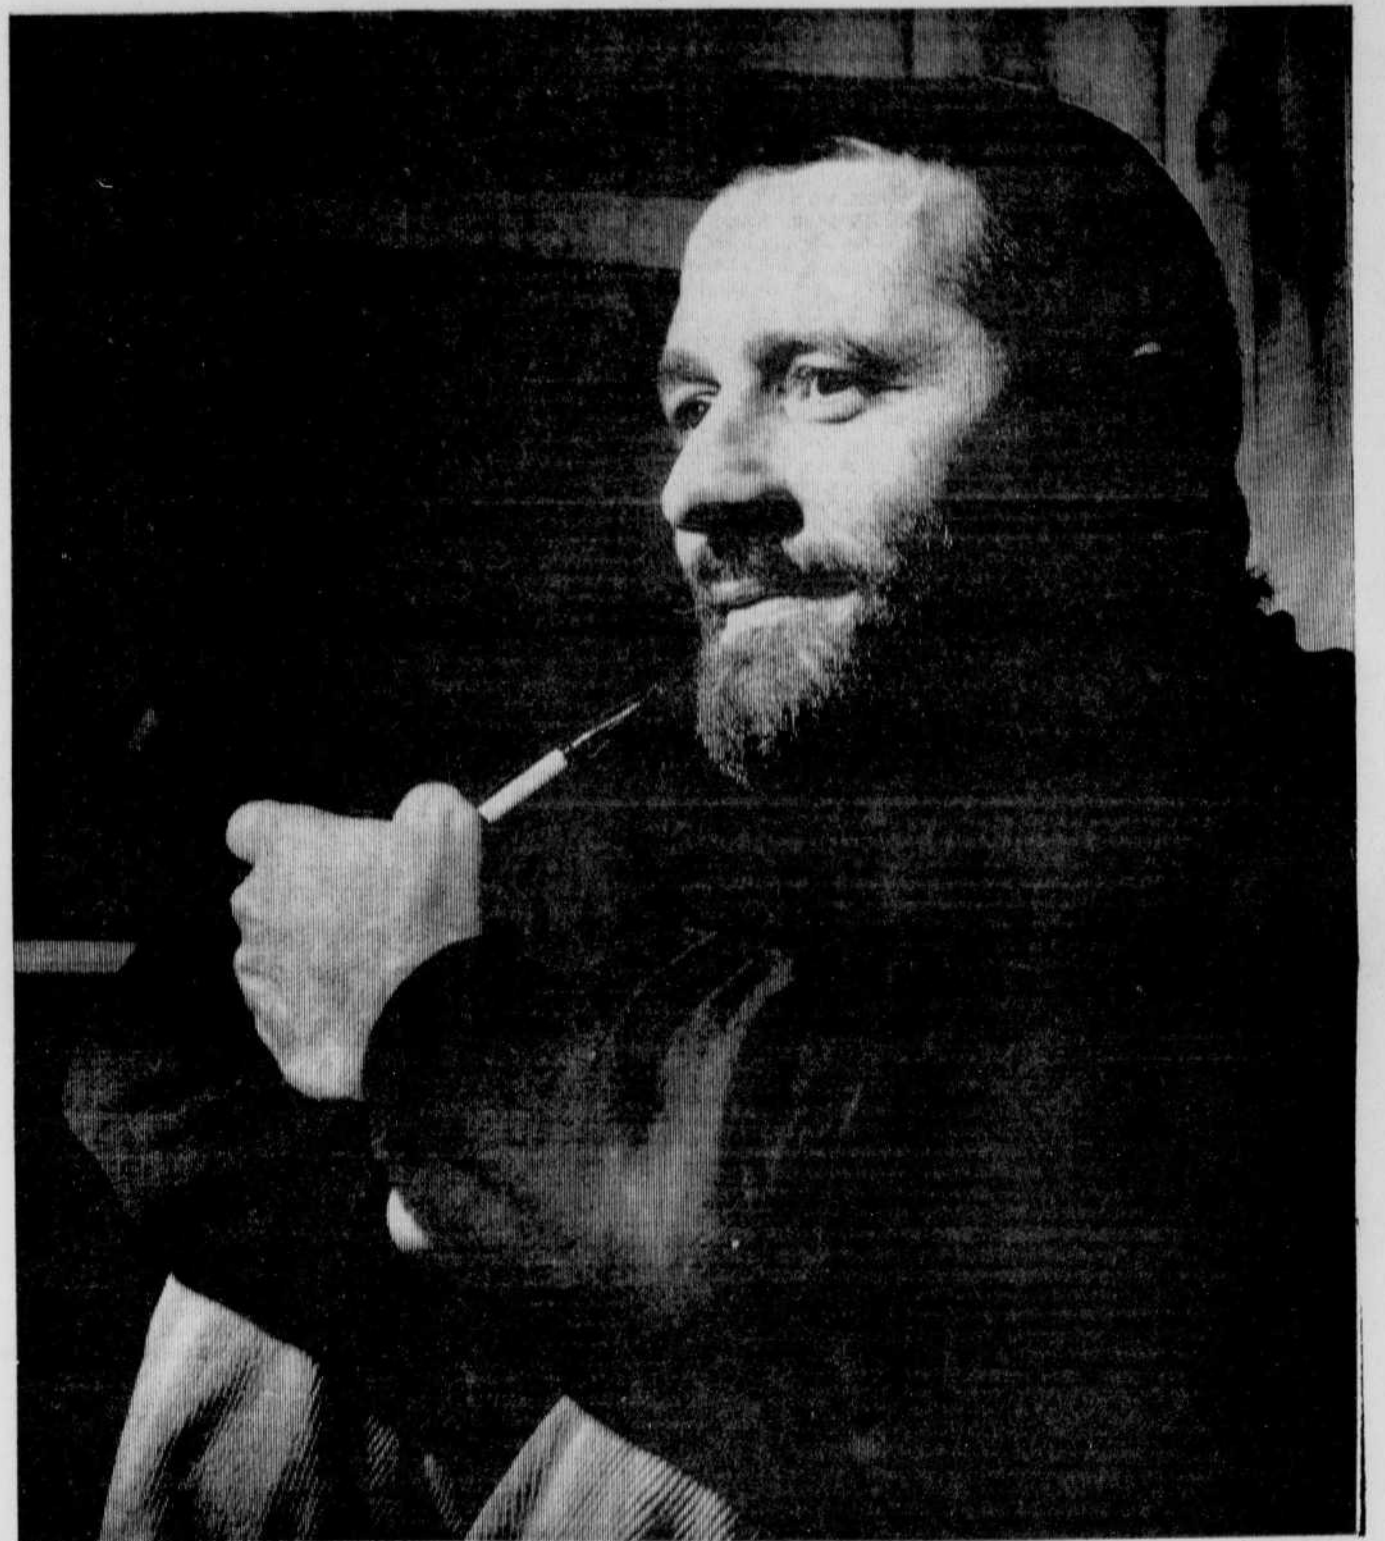

"But I have seen more being done with few technical means," he said. "Canadian potters are too rich. They are confused with too much. They are completely overrun by tools."

During his stay in Japan Mr. Beaudin lived in a potter-fisherman's village near Okayama. He visited three different parts on the island and collected over 500 pieces of Japanese pottery. None of the pieces are for sale, he says.

The pottery — along with a motorcycle and movie projector is scheduled to arrive here this month.

Fire destroys barn; kills 70 Holsteins

HOLLAND, Vt. — (Special) — Fire Sunday night gutted a 100-foot long barn, killing 70 head of registered Holsteins and the family dog owned by Reginald Page here.

Mr. Page had one of the leading dairies in this area. The Derby Line fire department answered the call about 9:15 p.m. but the barn was completely ablaze when the call was answered. The firemen could do nothing but stand by and watch.

The barn was the original building on the farm of the late Judson Page, a grandfather of Reginald Page. Since Mr. Page took over the farm he had spend hundreds of dollars modernizing the inside of the barn. Mr. Page was at home at the time of the blaze. He was playing checkers with one of his three boys when he noticed the reflection of the blaze on icicles on the house.

Cause of the fire is not known. It is believed that the blaze started through a short circuit.

Magog Township bylaw requires enclosing of outdoor junk yards

MAGOG—(Staff)—A new by-law regulating zoning and the use of buildings and grounds was approved at a recent meeting of Magog township proprietors.

The highlight of the bylaw is a clause aimed at camouflaging roadside eyesores and automobile "burial grounds" from the pedestrian and drivers' view.

Open-air warehouses storing wood, coal, junk, and automobile "burial grounds" now have to be enclosed by a wood or corrugated metal fence at least six feet high.

Land where building contractors store material and machinery are also subject to the regulation.

Other clauses of the law include a 12 month limit on completing the exterior of a building after a building permit has been issued. Exterior surfaces in wood or metals other than aluminum copper or chrome must be painted when necessary.

The law also states that no construction of any kind can be undertaken without prior granting of a permit from the city's building inspector. This clause does not apply to construction for agricultural purposes on land under cultivation.

All requests for building permits must be submitted to Magog Township's health authorities and approved.

New construction, except for annexes or secondary buildings must be supplied with sewer pipes and connected to a septic tank.

New minimum standards for the size of lots were also set in the bylaw. Corner lots must have an area of at least 10,000 square feet, with minimum depth and width of 100 feet.

The area of interior lots must be 7,500 square feet or more, with minimum dimension of 100 feet in depth by 75 feet in width.

Messrs. Robert and Walter Haines, of Brookline, Ont., were visiting friends and relatives in town over the weekend.

Teaching French before first grade

One of the problems connected with the teaching of French in English-language schools in Quebec is that of emphasis.

Teachers point out, and rightly so, that students must also learn many other subjects besides French in their classes if our education system is to turn out people with the rather large store of formal knowledge modern living requires.

This is one criticism that has been leveled against an attempt in an English-speaking school system near Montreal to have substantial if not all portions of the regular lessons taught in French.

Teachers point out that it is difficult enough for many students to grasp literature, history, geometry, physics, algebra and the other subjects needed when they are taught in English. Teaching them in French, they say, would only compound the problem.

They also point out that where French is started in Grade One, as it is in Sherbrooke, it must be kept in mind that the students must learn other things, too, and it is vital that at this beginning stage as good a foundation as possible is laid in the other subjects.

Yet, nearly all agree that in Quebec, every possible opportunity must be taken to promote bilingualism.

Perhaps the time to begin is before Grade One.

At nursery school and kindergarten level, formal schooling, as such, is at a minimum.

It would appear that this would be the ideal time to carry out all activities in the French language. It would in no way interfere with a child's development at this level.

Indeed, there are signs that it would aid it, for most respected authorities now agree that at ages four and five, it is easier and more natural for a child to learn a second language than later on. English-speaking parents who send their four and five-year-olds to French-language schools — and there are many in the Townships — know that at this age, nearly all children achieve a spectacular degree of bilingualism that is, in some cases, as complete as could be expected for the age level.

Few schools at the present time have both nursery and kindergarten classes. Not all even have kindergarten classes. With the teaching of French in mind, perhaps more school boards in Quebec should be considering setting them up.

For it is true that as a student advances in school, learning becomes more challenging, more complex, often more formidable. For many students, the load is a heavy one. French, under these circumstances, almost always becomes simply another subject to be struggled with. The student seldom has the time, or by then, the inclination, to win.

Library exciting, energetic place

The days when a library was regarded as a stuffy repository of dry academic knowledge and even drier academics has gone the way of the five cent cup of coffee and cigar store Indians. In the library's case, the change has been for the better.

Today, a library is as vital an asset to a community as schools, newspapers, radio and television.

The reference facilities of a library are still important — perhaps now more important than ever in a world where events move so fast as to eclipse themselves — but they are only one side of a modern library's character.

A community library today is a dynamic service. It provides not only the classics, but also the very latest in reading matter, from the most recent best-sellers to important non-fiction of the day and even, in some cases, current periodicals and newspapers.

A librarian today is trained to enable library patrons to take maximum advantage of the facilities a library offers. Modern librarians do far more than simply check books in and out, and keep track of who has borrowed what. Most of them can provide a wide variety of services connected with reading needs and desires.

Today's library is an exciting, energetic place.

Ask those who are in the habit of using its services. They will tell you what a treasure trove of riches a properly-used and supported library is. They can tell you what precious benefits libraries like those in Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Knowlton and other Eastern Townships centres can give to a community.

They can tell you too, that although this is Canadian Library Week, and a time to focus attention on the importance of libraries, a library deserves everyone's attention all year round.

These Will Never Fade Away

Ontario's underworld

Claim no organized crime yet, but syndicates have been active

By PETER BRUTON

TORONTO—(TNS)— On a warm summer day in 1930 Guelph bootlegger Joseph Nasso was seen getting into a car on his way to an Italian picnic. He never arrived and hasn't been heard of since.

About a year earlier, the body of Sam Sobara, another Guelph bootlegger, was found in a culvert near the city limits. He had been thrown face-down in a few inches of muddy water and left to drown. The case has never been solved.

In October, 1959, Niagara Falls gambler Peter (Scrip) Mitchell, a small-time hoodlum employed by Canadian and U.S. gamblers to handle alleged payoffs to police, left a gambling establishment known as the Ramsey Club and climbed into a car with an unknown man and woman, and hasn't been seen since.

The Ontario Police Commission is convinced these three men were murdered and claims that the cases, stretching over a 20-year period, have one striking thing in common—each man is believed to have been the victim of "Mafia-like disciplinary punishment."

Mysteries such as these provide only a fraction of the reasons why the three-man Commission, in its 223-page report on organized crime, believes that U.S. syndicates—the Mafia or the Cosa Nostra—have tried, and are trying, to muscle in on profitable underworld activities in Ontario.

And it was the urgent necessity to combat this threat to law and order that launched Frederick McIntosh Cass on the tragic path that was to end with the shattering of his political career as attorney general.

EVERYWHERE

The report — the second major review of crime in Ontario to be released in the past 12 months—paints a frightening picture of organized criminal activities in narcotics, gambling, counterfeiting, highgrading (the theft of gold and other precious ores by miners), armed robberies, the disposal of stolen property such as bonds, jewelry, furs and automobiles, extortion, "white collar" rackets, art frauds and even the neighborhood church bingo game.

But, using the definition that "syndicated crime" means the control monopoly of an illegal activity by one particular group, the report declares: "There is not sufficient evidence before us that such organized crime in Ontario has become syndicated." It's not through lack of trying.

The Commission found that a number of Canadian criminals such as Alberto and Vito Agueci, John (The Enforcer) Papalia and possibly Rocco Scopelitti were "members of the so-called Mafia or Cosa Nostra and made unsuccessful efforts to obtain control of certain organized criminal operations in Ontario."

Vito Agueci and Papalia have been convicted in New York on drug smuggling counts and Albert Agueci was tortured and "rubbed out" in gangland fashion, near Rochester, N.Y.

FOILED

Cosa Nostra informer Joseph Valachi, a convicted murderer and dope pusher, told the Commission how the Agueci and Papalia had tried to take control of some operations in Toronto but had been foiled when Papalia was jailed for the beating up of gambler Max Bluestein in the Town Tavern.

"I think they had plans to break in, in Toronto, in juke boxes and other things but never really got going," Valachi testified in his cell at the District of Columbia jail in Washington.

"That beating up that Papalia got sent to jail for ended that. They're really rough up in Canada."

Valachi, the first member of the Mafia to violate the solemn oath of secrecy, claimed there were about 20 members of the Mafia operating in Ontario but that they were members of the Stephen Magaddino gang in Buffalo, and not of a separate Canadian Mafia family.

Several Ontario cities—Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Niagara Falls, Windsor—were singled out for special attention by the Police Commissioners and, in nearly every case, persons said to be involved in shady and illegal activities were of Italian ancestry.

AFRAID

Police are convinced that the Italian community in Guelph know the identity of the murderers of the two Guelph bootleggers in pre-war days but are afraid to speak.

In Guelph, where 40 per cent of the population is of Italian ancestry, there are two families who bring discredit to these citizens.

The Cipolla family has a fruit market and restaurant as a legitimate "front," said the Commission. Matteo Cipolla, the 83-year-old father, has been active in bootlegging and selling illicit alcohol, has little regard for the law "and no doubt raised his sons to resent authority."

Charles Cipolla, 52, is regarded as the "brains" and has criminal contacts throughout Canada and the U.S. including outlets for stolen property at Montreal. His record includes counterfeiting and trafficking in narcotics.

"Frank Cipolla, 47, acts as a 'tool' for Matteo and Charles Cipolla," continued the re-

Flanders fields after fifty years

Old soldiers return to remember

YPRES, Belgium (CP)—The soldiers will be returning this summer, 50 years older, to the little Flemish town among the poppies they called "Wipers." Born from the ashes of the First World War, Ypres is commemorating the anniversary of 1914 this year with a special program for veterans of the salient's trenches.

The inaugural ceremony takes place April 16 in the cobbled market square with its Gothic cloth hall and brown gabled houses that were rebuilt stone for stone after the town's three-year ordeal by shellfire.

Ambassadors from 14 nations that fought at Ypres, including West Germany, will watch their flags hauled up here to signal the start of a summer of remembrance. Afterwards they will be received by the burgomaster (mayor) and take part in a wreath-laying ceremony at the Menin Gate, the white marble monument to the Commonwealth dead where the Last Post is sounded every night.

Canada will be represented by Sydney Pierce, ambassador in Brussels.

The town council is keeping the anniversary program flexible to meet the requirements of veterans' groups wherever possible. Guided tours of the Flanders battlefields will be arranged on request.

MEMORIES FRESH

Scheduled events include band and carillon concerts, exhibitions in the expanded Salient Museum and memorial services in St. George's English Church—shrine of many a regimental banner—and the Toc H Hayloft Chapel at Poperinghe.

About 40 groups of veterans have indicated they will make a pilgrimage to Ypres this year. The first Canadian contingent arrives in May and a group of survivors from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Julien and Frezenberg Ridge, Restaurant Associates, which operates some of New York's swankiest eating spots, will have four at the fair. The Festival, in the American Gas Association pavilion, will feature regional American delicacies—from Maine lobster to southern grits. They are also running the native restaurant in the Indonesia pavilion, a snack bar in the Missouri exhibit and a restaurant in the Ford pavilion which is just for Ford employees and guests.

Dishes from all over the world will be available — in Africa's Tree-House restaurant; in Argentina's restaurant where a whole steer will be barbecued; in Belgium's immense beer cellar; Danish aquavit, French wine tasting, Greek taverna; the food of Japan and Hong Kong and Malaya and Mexico and Morocco; kimchee from Korea and smorgasbord from Sweden; Swiss chocolate and Lebanese lamb.

Spain will have two especially fancy restaurants, with lunch starting at $4.50 and dinner at $7.50. Al Schacht will have a restaurant at the Pavilion of American Interiors, featuring favorite recipes of baseball players — such as Babe Ruth's pet Yorkshire pudding.

The food manufacturers will have exhibits at which they will make and serve their own candies, pizzas, cheeses, soft drinks and beer. So, when you come, bring your appetites. And, of course, a well-fed wallet. You'll both diet later.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Woodshed filling not happiest job

There are certain essential farm tasks, but any 12-year-old knows they vary in appeal. Working in the woodlot is pleasant; hauling down the wood with the Morgan mare and stacking it in the backyard is a good Saturday task. Helping to saw it when the sawyer came with his steam engine, was acceptable labor.

But on a sunny Saturday when Father said, "Son, better start filling the woodshed today," a lad knew he was in for a monotonous job. The wheel, we are told, is one of the epochal inventions of history and doubtless the wheelbarrow has served man well. However, when a boy looked at the pile of several cords of split wood, plus the heap of knotty chunks for the parlor heater, he was not in a mood to appreciate the invention of the wheel.

Hour by hour one worked along. Gradually the tiers began to grow. "Keep the outside a bit higher than the back," Father said, "and the tiers will not fall." As with so many tasks the hard part was getting into the work. The old woodshed floor was covered with sawdust, bark, bits of wood and splinters. There was the pungent, heady fragrance of the split oak, maple, ash and old apple wood.

And of course, on a Saturday, a lad was expected to go to the kitchen frequently to see how Mother was coming along with the doughnuts, cookies, turnovers and bread. A young man needs nourishment when he is filling the woodshed, and with sufficient fuel for himself, he can do a respectable job of stacking the fuel for the months ahead.

Other papers say:

Police power may threaten liberty

It has been necessary recently to apply checks on the arbitrary use of power by police in Canada and the United States.

In Ontario, legislation giving police the right to arrest and hold anyone without trial was thrown out after it had been introduced into the provincial legislature.

Police in California and Kentucky were slapped down by the U.S. Supreme Court for overreaching themselves in the matter of searching a hotel room and a car without proper consent in the case of the room and a warrant in the case of the car.

Foretelling crime was the argument advanced for these dangerous trespasses into vital areas of human freedom. But the argument doesn't stand up. When police resort to wilful tactics, they are robbing the individual of his rights. It should never be necessary to fight crime with violations of principle.

It is reassuring, however, that the courts and legislators in this part of the world are alive to the danger of sliding back into slavery.

It is especially important that the individual's rights are safeguarded in this age of electronics which has given police forces insidious devices for invading the privacy of the individual on the pretext of crime prevention.

What has happened in Ontario, California and Kentucky should be viewed as a reminder that the individual cannot take his rights for granted. Constant public vigilance is still the price of freedom from arbitrary state control.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room.

There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. (1 Corinthians 15:44)

PRAYER: We thank Thee, our Father, that because Jesus arose from the dead, death means not the end but rather the beginning of a new and greater life with Thee. Use us in the proclaiming of this good news to others. For the Savior's sake. Amen.

Chairman of cancer society in Waterloo announces drive to get ten volunteers

WATERLOO — The launch of a drive to enlist ten volunteers for the 1964 Cancer campaign in Waterloo was announced today by Mr. Beaudry, campaign chairman, Waterloo of the Canadian Cancer Society. The educational and fund-raising drive will begin April 13th.

The leader of the Canadian

Cancer Society campaign here appealed for a record turnout of volunteers "to help in the many jobs that need to be done in the community during April." Last year, the Waterloo enrolled five volunteers. Those who would like to serve this year are urged to call 539-0793. They will join groups conducting publicity, and door-to-door canvass, special gifts, trades and industry, and organized group campaigns.

"Because cancer touches each of us, either directly or indirectly," Mr. Beaudry said, "each of us must do his share to combat the disease which will eventually strike so many thousands now living—unless the trend is reversed."

"Here in Waterloo, we can help save lives by serving as volunteers, by contributing our money to the Crusade, or by doing both," Mr. Beaudry said.

"Crude volunteers will not only ring doorbells to collect funds, but will leave at each home a life-saving leaflet which tells how to protect your family from cancer. This free educational material stresses the value of annual checkups and the importance of knowing cancer's seven danger signals."

Last year, Mr. Beaudry pointed out, some 6,000 men, women, and children died needlessly of cancer because the disease was discovered and treated too late. "Our volunteers will urge every adult in every household to get a health checkup yearly," he said, "and they will also ask for a contribution to help the Canadian Cancer Society continue its programs of research, education and service to cancer patients."

Holiday weekend guests of Mrs. Ethel Bailey were Mrs. C. Marchant and Mr. Fred Skelcher, of Montreal.

Mrs. Ethel Bailey accompanied Mrs. Marchant and Mr. Skelcher to West Brom, to visit Mr. Skelcher's father, who is a resident of the Edith Kathman Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy George accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Armand Lemay, of Waterloo, to Barre, Vt., to visit Mrs. George's sister, Mrs. K. Bowen, who is a patient in Barre City Hospital. They attended a family reunion dinner in Barre. Other members of the family present were Mr. and Mrs. R. George and family, of Rosindale, Mass., and Miss Natalie Bailey, of Hartford, Conn.

Section president speaks

Plight of the small postmaster stated at Cowansville meeting

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — A postmaster in a Graded post office, serving 15 to 20 families, makes $305 a year. Out of this he or she must pay the electricity, lighting, insurance and rental of the premises.

"Generally, the postmaster loses out in this business proposition," said Arthur Tremblay, president of the Quebec section of the Association of Canadian Postmasters, here yesterday.

Mr. Tremblay, attending a regional information conference, said that the provincial executive held these meetings twice a year, "to let our members know what we're doing, and what success our negotiations have obtained."

A series of resolutions was presented to the post office department in Ottawa last year, "and we have just received the replies to our resolutions."

Although "our relations with the post office department are at their best level ever, they still refuse some of our requests," said Mr. Tremblay.

Pertaining to salaries, Mr. Tremblay told the Record that a post office must remain open at least 44 hours a week, regardless of the number of families. "We're asking them to establish an hourly weekly rate in direct proportion to the salary earned according to grade classification, and to families served."

Mr. Tremblay said there was no indication from the post office department that this request would be met.

Another item that will probably be presented in resolution form after the Quebec section's annual meeting in Sorel from May 31 to June 3, will be a request to have a watchman or night guardian in every federally-owned post office.

As the situation now stands, "the postmaster must leave his house, after all employees have left the post-office, and close the doors around nine and ten o'clock. We're asking the department of public works, owner of every federal building, to ask that provisions be made in tender calls for post offices that a watchman would perform this function."

Mr. Tremblay said this request was made before, and was denied.

Mr. Tremblay said that supervising postmasters furnish the post-office department with their own money. "A supervising postmaster must outlay finances to cover an inspection trip, and this money is not refunded until about one month later. At this time, there are more debts to clear, and the situation becomes quite complex at times."

He said the association was asking for advances, but "technical difficulties seem to prevent our obtaining this advance that we need."

Out of the approximately 2200 post offices in Quebec province, the Quebec section of the Canadian Association of Postmasters has about 1700. "Up until 15 days ago we ranked second in numbers, then we campaigned and got 400 more members, and we are now the leading section," he said.

Over 150,000 trees to be planted in massive reforestation program

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — The Ministry of Forests will undertake a massive reforestation program in May, through its local office in Cowansville. Over 150,000 trees will be planted in Brome, Missisquoi and Shefford Counties on private lands not suited to agricultural development.

A spokesman for the department who have such lands that are not agriculturally productive will benefit from this problem.

Among trees to be planted are firs, pines and spruce.

Cold spell slows up syrup season says Cowansville forest engineer

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — The main reason behind the drop in maple syrup production is due to the recent cold spell we've been having, said Michel Belanger, forestry engineer here.

He explained that the ideal temperature for a smooth sap flow was about 28 degrees at night and about 40 degrees during the day, while the last week, temperatures hovered around the 30 degrees mark during the days.

He said that if the mercury doesn't climb over 40 during the next few days, especially during the afternoon, and doesn't lower gradually to the frost point every night, the run will regress. "If the temperatures do go to 40 and lower, then the runs will be smoother and will show a greater quantity of produce," he said.

4. THE FOURTH NECESSITY

Do you provide it?

4 out of 5 fathers don't.

Like most people, your family probably takes life's first three necessities for granted:

1. Food 2. Clothing 3. Shelter.

But what about the Fourth Necessity?

Doesn't it stand to reason that the Fourth Necessity is enough life insurance to guarantee that a family will always have the other three? Why, then, have four out of five fathers failed to provide enough? Probably because they think they can't afford it. They don't know how little the Fourth Necessity costs. Take a man of 28 with one child now only five. Just $25.00 a month for life insurance could mean the following benefits: If he should die tomorrow, not only will his policy pay a lump sum of $10,000—but, in addition, it will guarantee his wife $250.00 per month until the five-year-old is twenty. But the chances are good that he'll live, in which case he can use the same insurance for a substantial retirement income. Is your family as certain of its future? Why leave the Fourth Necessity to guesswork?

Metropolitan's Family Security Check-Up will give you the answer.

A specially-trained Metropolitan man will add up your savings, property and present insurance. Estimate your family's future needs. Show you what's needed to secure their future—and the most economical way to do it. Most likely you'll discover the Fourth Necessity—enough life insurance—costs far less than the others. Find out for yourself. There's no obligation—except to those you love.

Tragedy averted in Levis fire in home for orphans and aged

LEVIS, Que. (CP)—Orderly evacuation of 630 children and 120 aged persons and fire walls that prevented the flames spreading quickly were credited with averting tragedy Sunday as fire raged through a home for orphans and the aged.

Only one of the 75 Grey Nuns who operated the 85-year-old Institut St. Joseph de la Delivance had to use an aerial ladder to escape from her fourth-floor room. The children, aged persons and 75 other nuns were escorted out quickly.

Firemen from Levis, Quebec City and Sillery, Que., were still pouring water into the smouldering five-storey building late Sunday night and battling 30-mile-an-hour winds and 20-degree temperatures that had hampered them since the fire was first noticed at 9 a.m.

Fire doors saved a portion of the institution and kept intact the wing where the children and aged were assembled in a large hall.

STARTS IN BASEMENT — Officials said the blaze started in a basement cloakroom while mass was being said in the chapel for the 800 in the institution and many other persons. They were immediately evacuated and many of the aged were taken out on stretchers.

Three-quarters of the large building, including the chapel, was destroyed but several sisters were able to retrieve holy vessels and vestments before flames enveloped the chapel. Others rescued sewing machines and other equipment.

Sister Ste. Benoit, the institution's administrator, located the fire with the help of indicators in her office and almost immediately the aged persons were carried out by staff members and the children brought out by relatives and friends.

When the 18 firemen from this city across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City began their fight, one wing was already a mass of flames. They soon called in Quebec City and Sillery firemen to help.

The flames shot high into the sky and were visible from Quebec City. The institution has a 400-foot stone facade overlooking the St. Lawrence River.

Five firemen were injured during the blaze, but none severely.

An estimate of the loss was not immediately available. "The heroism of the nuns allowed the premises to be evacuated without the least disorder or complication," said Dr. Charles Leflamme of the institution's medical staff.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — A child's sleigh can be made by cutting off the legs of an old high chair, just below the seat and fastening the seat to a sled.

• Every time you make a dress or other garment, put a scrap of the material and an extra button or two on a page of a scrapbook kept for this purpose. When a button is lost or you need a patch for mending, it is easy to locate the needed item.—AUDREY.

DEAR POLLY — My grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Since she is unable to go shopping for gifts, she keeps a big "hankie box." All her relatives contribute handkerchiefs for the box and she has the joy of selecting one for each birthday. If this is printed I will use the Polly Dollar to buy a handkerchief for her 95th birthday.—MRS. D. L. P.

DEAR POLLY — Anyone with boys knows how they accumulate things and then never want to part with them. Periodically, it becomes necessary to clear out some things but I would never do it without my boys' consent. Now about twice a year, without telling them, I put the clutter in a bag hidden in a storage closet. Should they look for any of these articles. I can always produce it from the junk bag. This, of course, does not apply to good toys which I encourage them to pass on to younger children or to a charitable organization.—MRS. E. T. M.

DEAR POLLY — I know this sounds funny and you won't believe it until you try it but just blow into your thimble and quickly put it on. It will not drop off all the time you are sewing.—MRS. E. E.

DEAR POLLY — Before a trip to a coin laundry, I sort the clothes into separate washers and place each stack in a separate plastic bag. Upon arrival all I have to do is to dump the contents of a bag into a machine. This saves considerable time that would have to be spent in sorting. This method is especially good when the male members of the family go to do the laundry.—MRS. G. T.

DEAR POLLY — With spring planting time just around the corner, a handy trick to know if you want even rows of flowers or vegetables is to dip a wet string into a pan containing the seeds to be planted. The moist string will pick up the small seeds evenly. Simply plant the string and you even rows with no waste.—MRS. D. H. H.

DEAR POLLY — I save your column to enjoy when I finally have time to sit down and relax in the evening. I often take a cookbook as a gift to a sick friend in the hospital. It not only gives her something to look at but seems to help the appetite, too.

I always carry a $20 traveler's check for an emergency. One is not tempted to cash it as one would be to break a $20 bill. This check is good anywhere it is needed.—MRS. L. N.

DEAR POLLY — To fill nail holes in the wall, rub a cake of wet soap over the holes until they are filled. When dry, paint over the holes. I did this in my living room after I had changed my pictures and you can't tell where they hung before.

—GRACE.

GIRLS — To my surprise, this worked for me. I wiped off the excess soap that had gotten on the wall. Do remember that the new wall paint may not match exactly if the walls were painted sometime ago.

by the fact that growing numbers of Christians are leaving the Moslem country, she said.

More than 75 per cent of Pakistani women still remain in seclusion, seeing no men other than members of their families, said Miss Rowles. And very few can read or write.

Miss Rowles, in Toronto, on a nine-month leave before returning to Karachi, Pakistan, the second half of her term, told a meeting at the national YWCA headquarters that she has serious doubts about the value of a Christian organization in a predominantly Moslem country.

Miss Rowles is to select a Pakistani successor to fill her position before her three-year term expires, but she said she can see no likely candidate for the position.

Doubts whether Y.W.C.A. should be in Pakistan

TORONTO (CP) — Jeanne Rowles, a Toronto woman who was sent to Karachi, Pakistan, 1½ years ago to direct the Young Women's Christian Association there, said Thursday there is some doubt whether the association should be in Pakistan at all.

Miss Rowles, in Toronto, on a nine-month leave before returning to Karachi for the second half of her term, told a meeting at the national YWCA headquarters that she has serious doubts about the value of a Christian organization in a predominantly Moslem country.

Miss Rowles is to select a Pakistani successor to fill her position before her three-year term expires, but she said she can see no likely candidate for the position.

The problem was aggravated day, May 9.

Must choose—Drapeau

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau said Sunday Quebec eventually will have to choose between "binational Confederation" and independence.

He was addressing the annual banquet of the La Ligue d'Action Nationale, (The League for National Action) a French-language group.

Mr. Drapeau said French-speaking Canadians were faced with three "tendencies"—cooperative federalism, binational Confederation and independence of Quebec.

"There is no doubt that the choice will have to be made some day mainly between the last two," the mayor said. It was necessary that all accept the right of the three schools of thought to speak freely, he said. It was important that at the very start "a trial of intention or of conviction not be held among French-Canadians."

Besides the constitutional battles, Mr. Drapeau said, it was necessary to build first "the Quebec of tomorrow."

That involved establishment in all fields solid institutions belonging to French-Canadians; spreading among French-Canadians a passion for competence; fighting against the plague of unemployment and underdevelopment; making education accessible to all; establishing a policy of scientific research; developing the economy and mobilizing capital; spreading civic "so cruelly absent," and giving our people the understanding, the knowledge and respect of our language.

TRAIN WRECK — This is all that remains of 11 cars of a 16-car Santa Fe passenger train which was derailed Sunday when it smashed into a rockslide 15 miles west of Williams in north central Arizona. Engineer George Crawford died 10 hours after the pre-dawn pile-up and three other crewmen were injured seriously. The five passenger cars on the end of the train remained upright and no serious injuries were reported to the occupants. The wreckage in the upper portion of the picture is that of the five diesel units which pulled the train. (AP Wirephoto)

News flashes from around the world

GORHAM, N.H. (AP)—Two Massachusetts climbers were missing on Mount Washington Sunday night and feared buried under an avalanche Saturday.

The U.S. forest service identified the men as John A. Griffin, 40, of Assinippi, Mass., and Hugo Stadtmueller, 28, of Cambridge, Mass.

Jack A. Golden, information officer for the forest service, said Stadtmueller's hat and a length of climbing rope, both identified as belonging to the men, were found at the scene of the avalanche.

There also were "patches of blood, quite a bit of blood," he said. A 30-man team will reach the snow with 12-foot aluminum poles today.

SYDNEY (CP)—The Dominion Coal Company swung back into full operation today following Sunday's settlement of a strike by 47 technicians that had closed down four big coal mines employing more than 3,000 miners.

The strike started March 23 and quickly closed the mines when trainmen refused to take locomotives across picket lines. Miners lined up for unemployment insurance benefits.

GANGTOK, Sikkim — An unknown assassin shot and killed Bhutan's Prime Minister Jigme Dorji Sunday night near the frontier of the little Himalayan kingdom which has become a buffer zone between India and Red China.

There was no indication whether personal or political motives lay behind the slaying of the 45-year-old prime minister, who has been described as strongly anti-Communist despite Chinese pressure. Sketchy reports reaching the neighboring kingdom of Sikkim said Dorji was struck by a single bullet in the back as he sat in a travellers' bungalow in the town of Phuntsholing, near the Indian border.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Byron De La Beckwith, a crusading segregationist, goes to court today for a retrial on charges he killed Negro integration leader Medgar Evers.

The first trial of the fertilizer salesman from Greenwood, Miss., ended Feb. 7 with a deadlocked jury. The all-white jury had deliberated for 11 tense hours, finally splitting 6-6.

Whites and Negroes alike gasped with surprise. Most had expected a quick acquittal.

Beckwith, 43, is accused of gunning down Evers from ambush when the Negro leader returned home last summer from thirty-five years and was an Elder of this Church. His activities included membership in the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club of which he was a Past President. He was also a very active member of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club for many years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Annie B. Dick of Sherbrooke, his mother, Mrs. J. A. Thompson and a sister, Mrs. Lee Simonds, both of St. Johnsbury. He is also survived by a niece, Mrs. Willard Woolford, of Burlington, Vt., and a nephew James B. Dick of Sherbrooke.

He was very well known throughout the Eastern Townships and Northern Vermont, and relatives and friends attending the funeral came from St. Johnsbury, East Angus, Leeds, Inverness, Thetford, Mines and also from Montreal.

BRUSSELS — Two Belgian doctors from Herentals, in northern Belgium, have been placed under "provisional arrest" following the death of a 15-month-old baby in a clinic there Sunday.

A court was investigating the causes of the death on the basis of reports there was a delay in obtaining medical treatment for the child, Eric Moons, the youngest of a family of five children, as a result of the six-day doctors' strike.

The two doctors were in charge of the skeleton emergency service in the Herentals area organized by the medical unions to deal with the most serious cases needing medical attention during the strike.

Bird watcher's notes

By J. GRAHAM PATRIQUIN

Birders-of-the week is none other than young Gary Weiss, of Lennoxville, whose capture of a Saw-whet owl with his hands rates him as the most accomplished field man of the young 1964 season.

Gary has had one season's organized birding in the field, and, fresh from the stimulating film-show that accompanied the Bird Club's annual meeting of the night before, he simply saw, reached for and secured a Saw-whet, snatched in the centre of the residential section of Lennoxville. Dr. Jim Lowie, his near-neighbor and well-known, promptly banded the tiny mouse-eater, and so it was.

That will be an experience the young naturalist will remember for a very long time to come.

Everywhere, observant eyes and expectant curiosity are recording the early returns, and since the last batch of notes were completed, friends have reported Mourning Dove, Great Blue Heron, Woodcock, Ring-necked Duck, Canada Goose and Song Sparrow. Personally, there has been the annual frustration of being second! One Monday, recently, we thought to have first sight of three Killdeer, feeding on a warm, grassy slope where they had been reported a previous year. However, colleague Ron Owen, spying near the U.S. Border at East Hereford, reported seeing Killdeer two days previously.

When competitors play immigration officer to migrant Plover, what chance has a stay-at-home to record a first viewing? The question is rhetorical.

The annual meeting of the St. Francis-Massawippi Bird Club produced a very satisfactory review of the club's activities, a new slate of officers with several key changes, a sound report from the treasury, and a positive suggestion that soon the Club will move toward the ownership of property to develop as a wildlife refuge. Two excellent National Film Board movies, Life in a Woodlot and The Changing Forest, completed the evening.

Mrs. Freeman Clowery, reporting for the Field Trip Committee, gave statistical facts on 11 trips for the year with an average attendance of 22 persons, and the Big Day census count of 107 species. The Clowerys have set an extremely high standard of enthusiasm, efficient organization and imaginative planning as Field Trip leaders, and their term of office has been very profitable for all members. Bus and Pauline McLennahan, the new co-chairmen, have already introduced numerous members to the delightful regions in the vicinity of the Watopka River, Salmon Creek and Kingsbury slate quarries, and are, like their friends and predecessors, tireless birders.

The work committee convened, Mrs. H. Keeler, gave out material to be made up. The hostess committee completed the entertaining slate.

It was agreed that the April activity be, Talent Money, from each member of the group. The cent-a-meal money for Lent was turned in and at the close of the business session a modified version of, Front Page Challenge, was enjoyed as a game, with all members participating.

Following adjournment refreshments were served to members and visitors and a pleasant social enjoyed.

MELBOURNE RIDGE

Mr. and Mrs. David Lall and daughter Wendy, of Toronto and Mrs. R. Monks, of Hemmingford, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Stainthorpe and Mr. Garnet Dawson. LAC Mike Marshall and Miss Thelma MacAllister, of Sudbury, were Easter weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marshall.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Taber for Easter were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Taber, of Toronto, and Miss Diane Taber, of Cowansville.

DUDSWELL JUNCTION — Mr. Marcel Gauthier, of Bagotville, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Knight George for a few days.

Liverpool seems certain to win English First Division, posts 3-0 win over Manchester United LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool seems certain to win the English First Division soccer championship. It beat Manchester United 3-0 Saturday and now is three points ahead of second-place Everton, with two games in hand.

Everton, the reigning champion, lost valuable ground by losing 3-2 at Stoke City.

Liverpool, a strong young side has never been far from the top of the standings this season. Following three important Easter weekend victories it quickly went into the lead in Saturday's match.

Right-winger Ian Callaghan scored his first goal since Dec. 7 for the first goal and Liverpool was two up at half time.

Everton was shaken by two goals in five minutes from Stoke, and trailed 2-0 at half time.

It rallied well in the second half but failed to gain the tying goal.

Only an unexpected upset now can prevent Liverpool from taking the championship.

TWO POINTS BEHIND

Behind Liverpool and Everton are Tottenham Hotspur and Manchester United, both with 47 points—two less than Everton but with one match more to play.

Liverpool has to play four of its five remaining matches away.

Tottenham, leading 4-1 at half time, appeared to be heading for an easy victory over last-place Ipswich, but centre-forward Gerry Baker, who completed a hat trick in the second half, led an Ipswich recovery before Spurs drew away to the 6-3 win.

In the Second Division Leeds United kept its three-point lead over Sunderland by winning 2-1 against Leyton Orient.

Sunderland beat Swansea 1-0 but Football Association Cup finalists Preston dropped behind by losing 4-2 at Rotherham.

Preston still has an outside chance of achieving the rare feat of winning the Football Association Cup and promotion in the same season.

REVIVAL CONTINUES

In the Third Division Coventry City's revival continued with 1-0 victory against Bristol Rovers.

This reduced the gap between Crystal Palace, the leaders, and Coventry, to two points. Watford and Bournemouth, two of the other challengers, both dropped home points, which further improved Coventry's position.

Carlisle remained at the top of the Fourth Division by beating Chester 3-1 but three clubs—Exeter City, Workington and Bradford City, are only one point behind.

Julius Boros wins playoff at Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Julius Boros generated a hot 66 in a 45-degree temperature to catch Doug Sanders and then went on to beat him in a one-hole playoff in winning the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament Sunday. It was a sharp final competitive tune-up for the Masters championship.

Last year when Jack Nicklaus won at Augusta, Boros finished third, two shots off the pace.

The 44-year-old U.S. Open champion said: "With my improved putting and this win behind me, maybe I can go down there with greater confidence."

Nicklaus, who defends the Masters title starting Thursday, began the final round here with a three-shot edge over his nearest rivals and was five in front of Boros.

Nicklaus had trouble. But Nicklaus shot a five on the par-three third hole and struggled the rest of the way. He finished two over par with 73 for 279 and fourth place.

Another Masters favorite, Arnold Palmer, ended in a tie for 13th place with 286. He shot par 71 for his final trip.

On the extra hole, Boros was on the green in two, 12 feet from the hole. Sanders shanked his second into the crowd, chipped out to the fringe of the green and putted just inside Boros with his fourth shot.

Boros rapped his putt inches from the hole and that was it. Sam Snead, seven-time winner here and leader through the first two rounds, finished third at 278 to win $3,000.

Al Johnston of Montreal, up with the leaders in the early rounds, finished with a 77 for a total of 286, good for $850. Will Homenuik of Winnipeg was out of the money with 293.

Dortmund, Germany—Gustav Bubi Scholz, Germany, won by disqualification over Giulio Rinaldi, Italy, 9.

Mexico City—Vicente Saldívar, 123, Mexico, outpointed Eduardo Guerrero, 123½, Mexico, 12.

The Yankees went along with the gag until the eighth inning, when they rallied for four runs to put the Colts in their place, 6-4. An error by John Hoffman, a catcher filling in at first base, let in the tying runs.

The rest of the Colts, incidentally, were plenty good enough to hand a 4-2 beating to the Athletics, their 15th defeat in 20 exhibition appearances.

Elsewhere, Orlando Cepeda hammered his sixth home run of the training season as San Francisco Giants overcame Boston Red Sox 5-2 and Ray Washburn and Bob Gibson combined for a four-hitter to give St. Louis Cardinals a 2-1 edge over New York Mets.

Detroit Tigers shaped Philadelphia Phillies 3-2.

Thirteen singles and a two-run double by rookie Lou Jackson gave Baltimore Orioles a 6-1 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers while Milwaukee Braves got three singles in the 11th inning to top Washington Senators 5-3.

Camilo Pascual scattered five hits in a seven-inning stint as Minnesota Twins downed Chicago White Sox 4-1 and Andre Rogers contributed four hits to Chicago Cubs' 8-6 victory over Cleveland Indians.

Two home runs by Bob Hammon of the Mets 10-1, the Bailey and a three-run effort by Jim Pagliaroni fell short for Minnesota downed the Athletics Pittsburgh Pirates as they 7-4, the Reds nipped the Dodgers 8-5 decision to Cincinnati 7-6. Pittsburgh walloped Detroit 14-6, the Yankees shaded Johnny Edwards putting to the White Sox 9-8, Boston out-gather three doubles and a sin-lasted the Cubs 9-8 in 14 in-gle for a perfect day at the penings, the White Sox B team plate. Canadiens stop Leafs 4-2, Hawks edge Red Wings 3-2

Montreal now 13-to-5 favorites to win series, Bobby Rousseau pats winner in hard-hitting tilt

MONTREAL (CP) — Like the monster in the Grade B horror movie that finally turns on its creator, Punch Imlach's awesome power play pulled an about — face, jeopardizing Toronto's hopes for a third straight Stanley Cup.

Imlach's stratagem of five forwards against the short-handed opposition connected for four goals last Thursday but backfired Saturday night. The Montreal Canadiens took advantage of that act of sabotage for a 4-2 victory over the Leafs and a firm 3-2 grip in their best-of-seven semi-final playoff.

The Canadiens, now 13-to-5 favorites to win the series, travel to Toronto by train Monday afternoon for Tuesday's sixth game. If a seventh is necessary, it will be played Thursday in Montreal.

The Leafs power manoeuvre features forwards manning the point instead of defencemen but Imlach explains there is no defensive sacrifice because swift Dave Keon can cover roaming penalty — killers and intercept breakaways.

KELLY REPLACED KEON

Keon, however, isn't at his greatest these days and Imlach removed him from the power play last week and inserted 36-year-old Red Kelly in his place. At the other point Saturday night stood a winded Andy Bathgate, who had just finished a regular shift.

With Dave Balon off for elbowing, Canadiens penalty-killer Jim Roberts stole the puck from the Leafs power play and fed a perfect pass to Bobby Rousseau, who had been cruising outside the blueline.

Rousseau outraced Bathgate and Kelly to the Toronto goal and beat Johnny Bower for the winning goal at 19:35 of the second period. The Canadiens held the 3-2 lead until Claude Provost added another, into an empty net, at 19:30 of the final.

"Jim gave me a perfect pass," Rousseau said afterwards. "Bower moved to his right side — he knew that's where I usually shoot—but left a foot or so open on his left. Somebody tried to pokecheck me but didn't hit my stick hard enough and I managed to shoot into that little opening."

ROUSSEAU ENDS DROUGHT

Rousseau's goal—his first in 11 games—and an assist, plus his outstanding play both ways and creditable penalty-killing, removed him from the Canadiens doghouse.

"I was just up for this game more than I have been in quite a while. A couple of little talks this afternoon had something to do with it."

The "talks" were discussions with coach Toe Blake and club vice-president Kenneth Richardson, who have not been too enthused with Rousseau's uninspired play in this series.

Don McKenney scored both Toronto goals by tipping in

Had about one foot to shoot puck, says Bobby Rousseau, on winning goal, Roberts made a perfect pass

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Rousseau thinks not just positively but quickly as well.

The lithe, 165-pound right winger potted the winning goal Saturday night for Montreal Canadiens' 4-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Young Jim Roberts, the Hawks' rookie defenceman, put Rousseau in the clear while the Leafs' power play team was storming the Montreal citadel.

"It was a perfect pass," Rousseau said, drying himself after a shower in the Canadiens' noisy dressing room.

Leafs goalie Johnny Bower moved to his right side, "which is where I usually shoot," Rousseau said.

"But he left about one foot for me on the other side. Somebody tried to pokecheck me—I don't know who it was—but he didn't hit my stick hard enough. I just let the puck go in that little bit of space."

PEALE DISCIPLINE

Rousseau scored 25 goals during the National Hockey League season, and credits much of his success to reading Norman Vincent Peale's The Power of Positive Thinking.

Claude Larose, a 22-year-old Hearst, Ont., winger playing his first Stanley Cup game, fired one of the Habs' four goals, the one that put them ahead briefly 2-1 in the second period.

His ankle-high shot from about 10 feet out, beat Bower on the short right side. "He didn't get a part of it," said Larose, who has the build of a Mr. America while weighing only 170 pounds.

Dave Balon, digging all night like a fanatical coal-miner, picked up a loose puck outside the Toronto blue line and zig-zagged his way around a confused Leaf defence to score the first Montreal goal.

Quebec Aces dump Pittsburgh 4-1 to take 3-0 lead in their series, Cleveland and Hershey Bears clash

Quebec Aces need only one more victory against Pittsburgh Hornets to take a holiday prior to the American Hockey League finals. Their first three performances in the best-of-seven semi-finals indicate the rest may be soon arriving.

Sunday the Aces dumped the Hornets 4-1 to take a 3-0 lead in the series. They can wrap it up Wednesday with a victory in Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile Cleveland Barons and Hershey Bears, winners in a quarter-final round, open a best-of-five semi-final set Tuesday night.

Saturday Cleveland defeated Rochester Americans 4-1 to take a best-of-three series 2-0. Hershey advanced to the semi-final with a 3-2 win over Providence Reds, capturing the best-of-three series 2-1.

Quebec was quick to take advantage of their opportunities—scoring two goals on breakaways and the other two with the opposition short-handed.

Wayne Hicks in the first and Cleveland Morton in the second, accounted for the Aces' breakaway goals. Cliff Pennington and Bill Dineen fired the power-play markers. Ted Hampson saved the Hornets from a shut-out with a goal in the middle

The Hornets were playing with amateur goalie, Joe Daley, because their ace netminder Roger Crozier was called up by Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. Pittsburgh's other goalie, Hank Bassen, has been hampered with an injury.

Joe Szura of Cleveland had his second three-goal performance in as many games in leading the Barons to victory. Jim Mikol had the other. The lone Rochester goal was attributed to Lou Angotti.

At Hershey, the Bears used a goal by low-scoring defenceman Ralph Keller to down Providence. Keller, scoreless since Jan. 5, tallied on a 30-footer drifting shot midway through the final period.

The rest of the scoring came in a rough first period when the teams were often short-handed through penalties. Danny Polizani and Bob Leiter registered Hershey's first two goals.

Matt Ravlich opened the scoring for the Reds and Norm Corcoran got credit for their second goal. Corcoran was nearest the puck when Hershey defenceman Barry Ashbee accidentally knocked it into his own net while attempting to clear.

NO REBOUND — Goalie Johnny Bower of Toronto stops a high drive from the blueline in the fifth game of the Stanley Cup semi-final series in Montreal Saturday evening.

John Ferguson (22) of Montreal looks for a rebound which never came. Montreal won the game 4-2 to take a 3-2 lead in the series. (CP Wirephoto)

Northern Dancer wins $116,500 Derby

MIAMI, Fla. (CP-AP) — Northern Dancer, Canadian-bred and owned three-year-old colt, established himself as one of the favorites to win the Kentucky Derby in May by capturing the $116,500 Florida Derby in easy style Saturday.

The E. P. Taylor colt, which has shown a penchant for earning United States dollars since being turned loose on U.S. tracks this year, won the 14-mile race at Gulfstream Park in 1:50 4-5, four seconds off the track record and well behind the time of 1:57 4-5 with which he grabbed the Flamingo Stakes March 3 at another Miami-area track.

But the colt wasn't pressed in this victory, 10th in 13 starts for the Canadian colt which has never finished worse than third, convinced most of the experts that the Dancer is the best of the three-year-olds in the East, and set the stage for a head-on clash with Hill Rise, current best in the Western U.S.

By winning first money of $76,500 Saturday, Northern Dancer raised his career earnings to $261,365, a record for a Canadian-owned horse. The old record of $250,076 was held by another Taylor colt, Victoria Park in a two-year career and only 15 starts.

The Scoundrel, from California, made a strong stretch run at Northern Dancer Saturday but didn't seriously menace the Canadian flyer, guided by Willie Shoemaker.

The handsome bay colt which first saw the light of day in Toronto was 1-to-5 favorite, and paid only $2.60, $2.40 and $2.20. The mutuels opened with a single show bet of $50,000 on Northern Dancer, creating a minus pool which the track had to make up in order to pay the 10 cents on the dollar required here. The anonymous $50,000 better picked up $5,000 in winnings.

The Scoundrel paid $4 and $2.20 and Dandy K. was $2.20 to show.

Northern Dancer was ignored by stable owners when Taylor asked $25,000 for him at his yearling sale in 1962. The next year the Dancer won $90,635, best ever for a two-year-old running in Canada.

Disputed goal causes plenty of trouble in Chicago, fans think Wings are victims of larceny

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks are sitting pretty today because rookie goalkeeper Roger Crozier of Detroit Red Wings lifted a leg and there, for everyone to see, was the puck.

But, did it get there before or after referee Frank Udvari had tooted his whistle? If it went in after he played his music, it's no goal. The question now is: was it a legitimate score or, as some non-partisan observers here are saying, were the Wings the victims of some grand larceny?

This probably never will be answered to the satisfaction of all concerned but the National Hockey League book will record a goal by the Hawks' Ken Wharram at 5:25 of the third period of Sunday night's contest before 16,585 horn-blowing and, possibly, whistle-toting Chicago fans.

It will record that the goal tied the score at 2-2 and the Hawks, by courtesy of Stan Mikita's goal nearly 11 minutes later, left the Chicago Stadium madhouse 3-2 winners with a 3-2 edge over the Wings in their best-of-seven cup semi-final.

The Wings can holler from here all the way back to Detroit for Tuesday's sixth game but nothing can change the result or the controversial goal. Here is Udvari's version of the Wharram goal:

"I blew the whistle when I saw the puck lying on the mesh on the outside of the net or inside. I wasn't exactly sure where the puck was at the time . . . but I knew the puck was dead and so I blew the whistle. As I skated toward the net, I noticed the puck was inside."

"Nuts," said Red Wing defenceman Bill Gadsby and his teammates. Amen, echoed coach Syd Abel and Crozier.

"Wharram put it in after Udvari had blown the whistle," said Crozier.

"I LET UP" — "The puck . . . wasn't in the net when (Udvari) blew the whistle," said Gadsby. "I let up when the whistle blew. Do you think we'd let up if the whistle hadn't blown? I don't know how the puck got into the net, but it wasn't in when he blew the whistle."

"All I can say is nuts," exploded Abel.

And, true to the tradition of winning coaches in situations such as this, Billy Reay of the Hawks wondered what the fuss was all about. "I didn't hear any whistle. The puck hit Crozier's pads and went in."

"I didn't hear any whistle," echoed Wharram. He said he first backhanded a shot and missed the net and then went after the puck and backhanded it again. "It hit Crozier's pads and went in."

Whatever it was, it caused all sorts of confusion.

HULL GETS ONE — The Hawks had opened the scoring in the first period on a power-play goal by Bobby Hull, his first score of the series, when the puck caromed off Detroit defenceman Marcel Pronovost's back. Gordie Howe tied it 1-1 in the second period on a low 10-footer, also on a power play.

Andre Pronovost had put the Wings ahead 2-1 at 5:12 of the third period on a backhander. The disputed goal came 13 seconds later.

Wharram's shot from the right boards hit the side of the net. Crozier appeared to have it trapped with his stick and glove and in the ensuing action he was sitting in the goal with the puck under his leg a foot over the line.

He was squatting there for a couple of seconds when he lifted his leg and goal-judge Grant Easson of Toronto pressed the red-light button. Maybe an experienced goalkeeper would have slid out the puck with him but that is conjecture.

Udvari skated around making motions with his hands. Some interpreted these gestures as meaning no goal. The Hawks skated around him in a talkative mood.

He had a couple of consultations with the goal judge, made signals that a goal had been scored and the fun started.

Meanwhile, the red light had gone on twice.

"Udvari asked me if it went in and I said yes," said Easson. "He asked me a second time and I said yes again. I signalled the light the first time and when there seemed to be confusion I signalled again."

"There's no doubt the puck went in the net."

Gadsby wagged a big finger under Udvari's nose. Detroit players fenced him in at the boards and Larry Jeffrey made the mistake of pushing him. That called for a 10-minute misconduct. While this was going on, the Hawks were conducting their own war dance. They had the tying goal and were waiting to get on with the game.

Mikita's game-winner was the niftiest of the night, a 20-foot screened shot that Crozier waved at as it went by. The Wings used five forwards for the next four minutes and increased this to six in the final five seconds by yanking Crozier but Hawk goalkeeper Glenn Hall held them out.

CAMPBELL'S VIEW — NHL President Clarence Campbell, who watched the game from the press box, said it appeared from where he sat that Crozier may have tucked Wharram's shot into the net himself. That seemed to be the consensus of most experts.

This was the third time in five nights that Crozier had lost a playoff game by a 3-2 score. He lost in overtime to Quebec Aces with Pittsburgh Hornets in the opener of the American Hockey League semi-finals Wednesday and to the Hawks in overtime at Detroit Thursday.

Crozier has the reputation of fanning on high shots. The Hawks were shooting for his chest and shoulder and he effectively gathered in all of these.

He had taken over from injured Terry Sawchuk early in the second period of the fourth game with the Wings ahead 2-1. Sawchuk, in traction in a Detroit hospital with a pinched nerve in his left shoulder, may be ready to take over Tuesday night.

Referee Udvari called 17 penalties, 11 to the Red Wings. Howe's goal made him the highest point-scorer in Stanley Cup play with 127, one more than Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens. He has played 122 Cup games to the Rocket's 133.

George Savard hit in eye by hockey stick

TORONTO (CP) — George Savard, 18-year-old defenceman for Montreal Junior Canadiens who suffered an eye injury in Sunday's Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff games here, was to enter hospital in Ottawa today for examination by a specialist.

Savard was given emergency treatment in hospital here after he was struck accidentally by a stick in the third period of the game which ended in a 5-5 tie between the Canadiens and Toronto Marlboros. Force of the blow shattered a contact lens and fragments caused hemorrhaging in the eyeball.

Andre Pronovost had put the Wings ahead 2-1 at 5:12 of the third period on a backhander. The disputed goal came 13 seconds later.

Wharram's shot from the right boards hit the side of the net. Crozier appeared to have it trapped with his stick and glove and in the ensuing action he was sitting in the goal with the puck under his leg a foot over the line.

He was squatting there for a couple of seconds when he lifted his leg and goal-judge Grant Easson of Toronto pressed the red-light button. Maybe an experienced goalkeeper would have slid out the puck with him but that is conjecture.

Udvari skated around making motions with his hands. Some interpreted these gestures as meaning no goal. The Hawks skated around him in a talkative mood.

He had a couple of consultations with the goal judge, made signals that a goal had been scored and the fun started.

Meanwhile, the red light had gone on twice.

"Udvari asked me if it went in and I said yes," said Easson. "He asked me a second time and I said yes again. I signalled the light the first time and when there seemed to be confusion I signalled again."

"There's no doubt the puck went in the net."

Gadsby wagged a big finger under Udvari's nose. Detroit players fenced him in at the boards and Larry Jeffrey made the mistake of pushing him. That called for a 10-minute misconduct. While this was going on, the Hawks were conducting their own war dance. They had the tying goal and were waiting to get on with the game.

Mikita's game-winner was the niftiest of the night, a 20-foot screened shot that Crozier waved at as it went by. The Wings used five forwards for the next four minutes and increased this to six in the final five seconds by yanking Crozier but Hawk goalkeeper Glenn Hall held them out.

CAMPBELL'S VIEW — NHL President Clarence Campbell, who watched the game from the press box, said it appeared from where he sat that Crozier may have tucked Wharram's shot into the net himself. That seemed to be the consensus of most experts.

This was the third time in five nights that Crozier had lost a playoff game by a 3-2 score. He lost in overtime to Quebec Aces with Pittsburgh Hornets in the opener of the American Hockey League semi-finals Wednesday and to the Hawks in overtime at Detroit Thursday.

Crozier has the reputation of fanning on high shots. The Hawks were shooting for his chest and shoulder and he effectively gathered in all of these.

He had taken over from injured Terry Sawchuk early in the second period of the fourth game with the Wings ahead 2-1. Sawchuk, in traction in a Detroit hospital with a pinched nerve in his left shoulder, may be ready to take over Tuesday night.

Referee Udvari called 17 penalties, 11 to the Red Wings. Howe's goal made him the highest point-scorer in Stanley Cup play with 127, one more than Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens. He has played 122 Cup games to the Rocket's 133.
