

Terminal opens for supertankers

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Canaport, North America's first deepwater terminal for supertankers, was opened Wednesday at nearby Mispic Point with the docking of its first official customer, the giant oil tanker H. J. Haynes.

The 12,000-ton vessel loaded with crude oil from the Persian Gulf, is the largest ship ever to cross the Atlantic. One of the biggest ships afloat, it arrived in Bay of Fundy waters near the terminal Tuesday night and docked Wednesday morning.

Capable of handling tankers up to 350,000 tons, the Canaport was built at a cost of more than $14 million by interests of Saint John industrialist K. C. Irving.

Mr. Irving, who also owns the Irving Oil Co. Ltd. refinery at Saint John East and the Saint John Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. Ltd., said at opening ceremonies the terminal represented "the beginning of a new era" for the city and province.

The terminal, refinery and shipyard are part of an over-all development plan, he said, "and we are looking forward to the day when conditions will warrant expansion of the shipyard to enable repairing, refitting and eventually the building of tankers such as the one that is here today."

The H. J. Haynes is 1,037 feet long with a 62-foot draught and a 160-foot beam.

LOCATED OFFSHORE
The actual mooring terminal at Canaport is located about 4,100 feet offshore, offering tankers unlimited manoeuvring room and a water depth of 140 to 170 feet, depending on tides.

After docking, the H. J. Haynes began preparation to pump its cargo through underwater pipes.

Is summer really over?

It seems like only yesterday when he left school in June to reap a summer full of happy days. There were fairs to go to, horse shows to compete in, great strips of sandy beaches to run on, hay rides and berry picking in the woods.

Next Tuesday, it will be back to school time for Patty Harrison, Daniel Liddle and Jimmy Booth of Lennoxville. Their summer acquaintances and those lovable colts will become dear memories to relish during the long and windy winter that lies ahead.

Iraq threatens Jordan Arabs quarrel in mideast

Clashes between Jordan's regular troops and Palestinian guerrillas threatened Wednesday to generate an all-Arab crisis situation within the over-all Middle East crisis.

Iraq threatened to intervene with her 12,000 troops in Jordan to help Palestine Arab guerrillas in any prospective show-down with the Jordanian army.

Clashes between the Jordanian regulars and the commandos began last week and continued for five days. The situation was aggravated by another attempt Tuesday night on the life of Jordan's King Hussein.

Outside observers were disturbed by the developments. In London, the British government showed concern and sources there said it hoped other Arab nations, such as Egypt, would persuade Iraq not to make the situation worse.

Baghdad radio claimed that Iraqi troops had moved into position alongside Palestinian guerrillas "following the shelling of Palestine refugee camps and civilian quarters of the capital."

Jordan's Prime Minister Abdel Monem Rifai called an emergency cabinet meeting in Amman and told his ministers of the Iraqi threat to use the troops already stationed inside Jordan.

Jordan sent a protest note to Baghdad, denying all the Iraqi charges. It said Jordanian forces fired on guerrillas only in self-defence and that the firing ceased before the Iraqi threat to intervene was delivered.

Jordan's prime minister said effective measures would be taken to prevent recurrence of the shooting between Jordan's troops and Arab guerrillas. He did not say what those measures would be.

For both 1969 and 1970 the maximum average temperature was 77, with the 56-year average being 76. The average minimum last month was 56, a degree below a year ago but substantially higher than the long-term mean of 52.

The maximum temperature for the month was 89, set on the 15th. This is some eight degrees below the all-time record of 97 set Aug. 18, 1935.

Minimum temperature last month was 42 on the 30th, as compared with the long-term low of 30 in 1918, 1934 and 1963.

August 1970 was brighter than usual, with 258.7 hours of sunshine, the 1969 figure being 202.7 hours.

Over 56 years the August sunshine averaged 225.3 hours, August, 1960, being the sunniest with 295.4 hours and August, 1968, the darkest with 171.6 hours.

Nor was the past month unusually dry. Total rainfall was 4.8 inches, up slightly from the 4.6 inches last year but substantially ahead of the 3.77-inch average for 56 years.

August, 1963, was the dampest month with 8.64 inches and August, 1947 the driest with a bare .87 inches of rainfall for the month.

This August 1947, total barely exceeded the .86 inches which fell on Aug. 2 this year. The greatest one-day precipitation on the record book was 2.25 inches on Aug. 9, 1916.

At the Montjoie Good sounds from drums

EXPONSIANS OF THE STEEL BAND

NORTH HATLEY — An experiment in sound, the Exponians Steel Orchestra, are entering their final weekend of performance at the Domaine Montjoie here.

As incredible as it may seem the instruments of the steel bands, which are made from empty oil drums, can represent any conventional instruments. The oil drum tops are sunken and burnt and then notes are grooved various sizes and tuned to the musical scale.

The versatility of the instruments makes it possible for the group to play every thing from calypso to modern pop music. Some of their numbers include such favourites as "Love Is Blue", "Mary in the Morning" and "Goin' Out of My Head".

The band was formed in March 1967 when the Trinidad Government wanted a representative at Expo '67 in Montreal. The members of the band were selected from the services and by the time of their performances at Expo had reached a high level of competence.

The band made such a name for itself in Canada that two months after its return to Trinidad it was invited to return for a cross-Canada tour.

Since this time the band has experimented in their media and produced a number of new and interesting arrangements. They have combined the steel with vocal numbers and in many pieces the band members hum along. The range of the drums has also been increased to include 24 notes. Amplification has also been used.

Municipal election Head-counting complete

By CUTHBERT JONES

SHERBROOKE — Following a week of doorbell ringing, the enumerators compiling the electoral lists for the Nov. 1 civic elections are today busily engaged in the task of typing out the preliminary lists and should have them in the hands of City Clerk Henri-Paul Emond early next week.

Mr. Emond is the returning officer for all the 11 contests expected — those for the mayoralty and the 10 aldermanic posts.

This marks the first time in the history of municipal elections in Sherbrooke that the voters' lists have been prepared by door-to-door enumeration.

Previous lists having been prepared from the valuation roll. And in other respects, the new roll will establish some firsts.

In previous years the franchise was limited to property owners whether or not they were in arrears of tax payments and to those subject to tenant, poll, or business and professional taxes.

Coming from almost all over the province, the teachers assembled at the Philippe Perier School in Montreal to take part in an improvement session lasting a week and essentially devoted to the means of communicating by telephone.

The first of its kind to be given in the Province of Quebec, this teacher training course was the result of close co-operation between Bell Canada and the Quebec Department of Education. Its purpose was to allow teachers to become familiar with the subject of telephone protocol which constitutes an important part of the course for receptionists.

This course will be taught at the secondary V level in a number of schools throughout the province during the coming school year.

In his remarks about his firm's participation in perfecting the subject of telephone protocol, Louis Lapiere, General Traffic Supervisor, stressed the importance of adequate co-operation between teachers and the enterprises which make up the labor market.

"As such an enterprise," he said, "it is our opinion that such co-operation is necessary if we want our young people to be equipped with a good store of knowledge and be well trained when the time comes to undertake the career of their choice."

The telephone protocol course has been prepared for the benefit of young women who wish to become receptionists, whether in a business firm, a clinic or even a travel agency. It includes the latest standards known to the labor market, covering the competence required or expected by employers when they engage a receptionist.

In it, such subjects are dealt with as etiquette, politeness and efficiency on the telephone as well as diction, or, while remaining courteous, how to get required information quickly and a number of other skills.

Communications techniques and the operation of the telephone service, of course, are also included in the programme.

During the study sessions, the teachers had an opportunity to become familiar with various available teaching aids, such as a practice instrument making it possible to simulate telephone conversations.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation governing municipal elections, the lists will be posted in various parts of the city in order that would-be voters can determine whether or not their names have been included on the preliminary lists.

A board of revision will sit from Oct. 1 to 15 to hear applications for addition or deletion of names or for the correction in spelling etc., after which date no alterations to the lists will be accepted.

In all, 185 enumerators have been engaged in the work of preparing the lists.

The number of polls to be established for election day will only be determined after the total of names on the lists has been determined, but Mr. Emond predicts that the number of polls will exceed 180.

More humanity in war

The United States is now moving toward ratification of the Geneva Protocol of 1925, which outlaws the use of chemical and biological weapons in war. In asking Congress to add the United States' signature to those of more than 80 other countries which are party to it, President Nixon has proposed certain reservations. In the respect he has followed the procedure of 39 nations, including France, Russia and the United Kingdom, which signed with particular reservations of their own.

For one thing, Washington while renouncing "first" use of chemical weapons, totally renounces any use of bacteriological weapons. In this it goes a step further than any other signatory.

President Nixon wishes to see reserved for the United States the right to use tear gas and defoliation herbicides without being in violation of the agreement. It is to be expected that certain sections of Congress will be in disagreement with this reservation when the issue is debated.

The international treaty, in any case, does not rule out entirely the possible use of biological weapons in future wars as it stands and thus may be considered an imperfect instrument.

Hopefully, as marathon disarmament talks in Geneva and elsewhere proceed, agreement will be reached some day ruling out all possibility of such weapons being used.

Meanwhile, of course, none of the major nations is likely to divest itself entirely of weapons of poison already carried in its arsenal against the dire possibility of having some day to use them in retaliation. As long as such weapons and the means of making them exist, the spectre of mass horror will also exist.

What, grasshopper jam?

There's a bright side in the battle against the bugs, which is one front in the larger war against pesticide pollution and worldwide hunger.

"If we can't beat 'em, we'll eat 'em," cheerily predicts Dr. Howard A. Schneiderman, dean of the school of biological sciences at the Irvine campus of the University of California.

"In the event we start to lose the battle, the war itself is not really lost," he says, "for insects themselves are an excellent source of protein. Eating bread fortified with insect meal (is) no different than eating bread fortified with fish meal."

Proteinwise, that is.

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass. — Each person celebrated Women's Liberation Day last Wednesday in her own way, and even on a beautiful island such as Martha's Vineyard the women protested in their fashion.

I hadn't even realized it was Women's Liberation Day until I got to the tennis court and my wife said at the start of a doubles game "I'm not going to serve today."

"What do you mean you're not going to serve? You have to serve."

"I'm sick and tired of serving all the time," she said.

"But if you don't serve, we can't play."

"Aha," she said. "That's the first time you've even acknowledged that my serving meant something."

"I've always admired your serve," I said. "You serve very well."

"Well I'm not serving today. You can serve for the both of us."

I looked hopelessly across the net at the Styrons who were in a serious argument.

"You ready?" I asked.

"Rose says she's not going to serve today," Styron yelled.

Then it dawned on me it was Women's Liberation Day. I glanced at the other courts. None of the wives was serving.

"Rose says I have to serve for her," Styron yelled. "She says all the women on the island have pledged not to serve today. They're sick and tired of being oppressed on the tennis court."

Martha's lib

"All right," I said. "We'll serve for them if it means that much."

"We also want child-care centers on Martha's Vineyard," my wife said. "We're fed up with taking care of our children all day long."

"Can it wait until after the tennis game?" I asked.

Styron yelled across the net. "Rose says she won't play the net unless women can have abortions any time they want them."

"It's okay with me," I said. "Are you ready?"

"I'm not going to play the back court," my wife said, "unless women have equal opportunity in jobs."

"You've got it," Styron said.

The game began grimly. I served to Rose who hit it out.

"Male chauvinist!" she screamed. Styron hit a smashing ball past my wife's ear, and my wife yelled "Sexist."

Despite their cursing, the women played extremely well. We discovered later that the Martha's Vineyard chapter of Women's Lib had advised all women playing tennis on Wednesday to pretend the tennis ball was their husband's head.

It seemed to improve every woman's game.

Styron and I had to serve the entire three sets of tennis, and when we walked off the courts the women were fresh as daisies.

"I want you to know," my wife said that evening as we were retiring. "I'm not a fanatic about Women's Lib. I'm prepared to fulfill my wifely duties."

"That's very decent of you," I said. "But it really doesn't matter because I'm too bushed from serving."

Peace won at Israel's expense?

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — (TNS) — Now that the Middle East indirect peace talks are underway, what are the chances of bringing peace?

Excellent, if Israel is willing to accept a Munich-type settlement; pretty slim if the Jewish state insists on what it regards as secure and recognized borders negotiated directly with the Arabs.

Every conflict has a simple solution if one side gives up struggling and simply surrenders to the other. This can be done not only on the battlefield, but also at the conference table. As a rule it happens only when one side reaches the point of complete exhaustion and has no choice but to acknowledge defeat.

A memorable exception from this rule in recent history was the 1938 Munich Pact which imposed a big power settlement of the "Sudetenland" crisis. In that memorable instance, a small country was forced to surrender without a fight on the assumption that her sacrifice would save world peace and her survival within the resulting indefensible borders would be guaranteed by those who imposed the settlement.

What followed has not been forgotten, certainly not by Israel which has repeatedly vowed not to allow itself to be subjected to a Munich-type treatment.

There are some similarities as well as major differences between the situation in the Middle East and the crisis in Central Europe 32 years ago.

The basic similarity is in the steadily-spreading notion that Israel has a moral obligation to save world peace by accepting a settlement imposed from outside by the big powers. The major difference is that Israel, unlike Czechoslovakia, has repeatedly fought for its survival and has in fact only three years ago defeated its enemies.

This is an important difference. For unlike Czechoslovakia, which had every reason to anticipate destruction in a military conflict with Nazi Germany, Israel has proven its defense capability and therefore sees no compelling need for accepting a settlement dictated by the interests of the big powers.

With this frame of mind, no Israeli government that represents the majority of its electorate can contemplate any peace terms that would leave the country in an indefensible position.

Had there been no big power involvement and intervention in the Middle East conflict after the 1967 war, there can be little doubt that the defeated Arab states would have been compelled to enter into direct talks with Israel, recognize its existence, and sign peace treaties with the U.N.-created Jewish state.

Arab refusal to acknowledge Israel's right to exist unmolested and to negotiate peace after the Six-Day War was only made possible by Russian military intervention. It is safe to say that this intervention, which now includes Russian pilots and missile-manning troops, was not motivated by a desire to strengthen the Arab position in an eventual negotiation with Israel, but by consideration of Soviet global strategy and prestige.

Pressure from Moscow on the Arabs to accept the American-proposed temporary ceasefire and indirect peace negotiations came only when the Kremlin attained its basic strategic and political objectives in the Middle East and judged further escalation of the Arab war of attrition against Israel to constitute a risk of a Soviet clash with the U.S.

Watching these moves by the two giants and the concurrent Soviet diplomatic triumph in Europe, the Israelis can hardly be blamed for fearing a Moscow-Washington deal in the Middle East at their expense. Yet, like the Czechs in 1938, they also fear being charged by foes and friends alike with endangering world peace.

Hence the Israeli government's consent to the far-from-secure temporary ceasefire plan and to the indirect peace negotiations which in some respects resemble the preliminaries of the Munich Pact disaster. But hence also the adamant refusal to withdraw from any of the occupied Arab territories before an acceptable (as distinct from an imposed) settlement is reached.

Since the Arabs insist that no substantive negotiations can take place unless the Israelis withdraw from all the occupied territories, U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring faces a virtually insoluble dilemma.

To get anywhere, he must secure a compromise from both the Israelis and the Arabs but has no means for allaying the mistrust and suspicions of either side which have so far scuttled all attempts to produce a workable peace formula.

Assuming, as one has to after three years of vain efforts, that Dr. Jarring has no new magic approach to the problem, the only way out of the predictable impasse seems to be a settlement dictated by the big powers.

This is what Israel fears and, suspecting American cave-in to Soviet Middle East peace terms, is sworn not to accept come what may.

With the spectre of Munich before its eyes, Israel cannot be expected to take any other position.

U.S. — Canada report is bland

OTTAWA — Most belittling of the Canada-U.S. relations report issued recently by the House committee on external affairs and national defense has centred on the corporation-investment analysis and recommendations.

Two other aspects of the report which bother me: Overall it is poorly-organized, badly-expressed and loaded with undigested quotations. It is repetitious in data and argument and the section on American-based trade unions is so bland it is useless.

MP Ian Wahn (Lib., Toronto-St. Paul's) has been given most of the discredit for the report, although there are a number of members of the committee with greater firepower and more expertise in the subject filed, (e.g.) David Lewis and Andrew Brewin of the NDP, Gordon Fairweather and David MacDonald of the Conservatives, and John Roberts, the young York-Simcoe Grit who was once a foreign service officer.

The report is so bad it raises the question why its publication was rushed. The obvious answer — to influence the policy paper on American investment by Herb Gray, minister without portfolio.

My inquiries among the parliamentary workers below the public surface turned up a more complex explanation. "It's a botch," said one man, "but credit it to a clever power-play by David Lewis. He fed Wahn's vanity, he preached urgency vis-a-vis the Gray paper; he wanted it set and published to support the general NDP line on American investment, but not in so concrete or persuasive a form as to bypass NDP policy or to be useful to the Government."

Was the report a consensus of committee opinion? "Not very," came the reply. "It was put together with scissors and paste without long editing or the impress of a single author. It's not even a good digest. If you took out the long quotes from some of the witnesses you'd have little left but the recommendations, and often these have no links with the quotations used. It's terribly wanting in both straightforward exegesis of the evidence taken and extended coherent analysis."

Not one area of Government's six-pamphlet publication of Foreign Policy for Canadians was centred on U.S.-Canada relations. The so-called Wahn's report, launched by Walter Gordon and dropped by the Pearson government before the '68 election, has had an indifferent, or hostile reception (except from the NDP).

Despite the continued advocacy of the issues implicit in it by Mel Watkins.

Now the Wahn report has failed to help the cause of Canadian autonomy. The pity is that these failures make Canadian nationalists so much more dependent on the policy outline which Herb Gray will be presenting to the Cabinet next month.

The analysis and recommendations in the Wahn report on American Unions in Canada (the international unions) is so innocuous and generally favorable one can appreciate why David Lewis might be happy with it. There's nothing to put the big international unions who back the NDP on the defensive, and the case for more autonomy for Canadian unions is so sweetly along the careful path of nudging advocacy adopted last spring by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee decided that legislation is not required to deal with any problems created by the fact that over 60 per cent of our union members (and most of the locals in our strongest industries) are in American unions. Fine. But nowhere is there any appreciation that most of this membership, most of these powerhouse unions, operate on provincial labor jurisdictions, not the Federal one.

Further, there isn't a paragraph, not even a sentence, on the prime question about American penetration of our economy — does it distort our political decisions and inordinately influence our political parties? For example, there's nothing on the relationship of the UAW, the Steelworkers, the Packinghouse Workers, etc., to the NDP; there's nothing on the SIU and its present "purchased" influence in the Democratic Party (witness Rusk scuppering the extradition of Hal Banks) or its strong support in the past for the Liberal Party in Canada.

There's little evidence and no research on how Canadian issues are handled and how Canadian members function at the regular conventions of the internationals. There's not a word on such issues as "parity", so meaningful and central to the UAW and the U.S.-Canada Auto Pact.

Yet this form of continentalism with its high profits for foreign car-makers in Canada and its jobs bonus for UAW members, probably represents the toughest problem of economic distortion in the bifurcated issue of U.S. unions and U.S. corporations in Canada.

There's nothing in the report that more than 40 of the international unions operating in Canada have constitutional clauses which forbid political affiliation of their Canadian locals or direct political contributions. Most of these unions can fiddle indirect contributions — as they do to back the Democrats in the U.S. with Canadians helping foot the bill — but these cannot be made in Canada by the Canadian leaders. The decisions have to be made at the head offices.

There have been literally scores of studies and books on the American trade union movement and of specific unions, many of them serious and scholarly. Only two or three give more than a passing reference to how Canadian locals and districts or conferences are run within the union as a whole. It's hardly the Americans' fault if they do not analyze or illuminate what international unions mean for Canadian workers.

The stupefying non-feature of the Wahn report is that it ignores this situation beyond vouchsafing that "there is not now sufficient information available with regard to the workings of international and, indeed, national unions in Canada."

Then it asks for another division in the Department of Labor, more civil servants, to gather and publish the necessary information. If the data-gathering and the analysis of it is still to come, how slipshod do you think the committee's section on American unions in Canada is? That's right. Very.

LABOR DAY '70

Road safety must be observed this weekend

The rapid approach of the Labour Day Weekend means the heightened use of Canadian and American freeways, as millions of citizens snatch at the last long summer weekend of 1970.

"Increase in the amount of traffic, speeds travelled and the incidence of night driving, combined with the special demands made on the motorist by freeway driving, sets the stage for Labour Day Driving Disaster," stated R. W. Trollope, President of Dominion Automobile Association.

"Time-wise," says President Trollope, "freeways are extremely efficient, but the advantages of freeway driving can become dangerous if the proper precautions are not observed, for this type of driving makes special demands on the motorist."

Long, uninterrupted stretches of straight road, engine drone and the general fatigue that comes with driving long distances can dull the senses. However, reactions must be especially quick at freeway speeds.

The Dominion Automobile Association recommends that all motorists be sure that they themselves are in good physical condition and that their motor vehicles are in maximum operating condition — brakes, lights, tires, and windshield wipers are especially important. It is wise to enter a freeway with a full gas tank and high oil level.

Common sense and alertness, coupled with a knowledge of safety rules reduces the possibility of serious, high-speed freeway accidents. For this reason, the Dominion Automobile Association stresses that the motorist try to remember the following aids to safe freeway driving.

1—WHEN ENTERING A FREEWAY: Stay to the right and increase speed in this lane to the speed of the vehicles already on the freeway.

2—OBEY POSTED SPEED LIMITS: Beyond these maximum speed limits, it is not possible to react and stop quickly enough in an emergency.

3—MAINTAIN STEADY SPEED consistent with the other traffic. Sudden bursts of speed can confuse other drivers. Slow-pokes cause impatience and risky driving.

4—KEEP YOUR DISTANCE: To avoid serious "chain reaction" collisions allow one car length for each ten miles of speed between two vehicles.

5—SIGNAL LANE CHANGES — with lights or hand signals and by flickering high beams at night.

6—AVOID LANE-HOPPING: Stay in the right hand lane unless passing another vehicle. Do not impede traffic by driving in the passing lane or by straddling two lanes.

7—PASS ON THE RIGHT WITH CARE: The responsibility for this rests with the driver who is actually doing the passing.

8—GUARD AGAINST HIGHWAY FATIGUE: Steady speed, less activity, engine drone, and fixed staring reduce alertness. If the motorist tires, he should immediately pull into a rest area or leave the freeway entirely.

9—RESPONSIBILITY TO OTHER MOTORISTS ENTERING THE FREEWAY: Each driver should adjust his speed in order to allow new traffic to merge safely and smoothly with existing traffic.

10—IN AN EMERGENCY get as far off the road as possible. A car parked on the road shoulder can easily become involved in an accident.

11—LEAVE THE FREEWAY WITH CARE: Choose the correct exit and move into the right hand lane. Do NOT slow down in the driving lane — signal to turn, slow down in the speed change lane, and reduce speed to a safe ramp speed.

12—CHECK RAMP SPEED: Even 40 m.p.h. will feel like a crawl after freeway speeds.

Dominion Automobile Association statistics show that the hour of day, and the light conditions also affect the number of accidents that occur. "The possible combination of reduced vision and freeway fatigue should be viewed with horror," the President warned, "and avoided at all costs."

"With the headlights on low beam," said Mr. Trollope, "the driver first sights an unlighted object at a maximum of only 150 feet. Travelling at 50 m.p.h., it takes the driver a minimum of 250 feet to stop on dry pavement after he first notices a road hazard."

Add to this situation, the fact that the ability to see at night, which is not good to begin with, decreases with age. After an individual reaches age 20, the amount of light he will need to see objects at night doubles every 13 years. Thus, at age 60, he will require 8 times as much light as he would have at age 20 to see the same object clearly.

To begin with, light, hour of the day and age factors combined with a number of other variables such as the condition of the driver, and of the motor vehicle make night driving hazardous.

"If all drivers combine the use of freeway driving safety tips with an effort at keeping night vision at a peak, their chances of enjoying many more Labour Day Weekends are considerably increased," emphasized the President of Dominion Automobile Association.

The Labour Day Holiday is the last long weekend of Summer, 1970. Don't let it become the last weekend of your lifetime! Use a little caution and live to enjoy many more Holiday Weekends.

Labor Day is more than just a day of rest . . . it is a day of tribute to the men and women who are united together in the working forces. Magog man spends 50 years with Dominion Textile right, Edouard Hains of the Progres-Chronique de Magog, 51 years in journalism watches as Edward F. King, Chairman of the Board for Dominion Textile Ltd., presents a clock to Mr. Demers. At right, Robert F.

Cooney, Magog plant manager, presented Mr. Demers with a service certificate, and later Mr. Demers was given a pin denoting his half century service.

MAGOG (Special) — An informal dinner was held at the Cabana Lodge Monday evening, August 24th, when Arthur Demers received a handsome clock, certificate for 50 years service and his half century service pin from the Dominion Textile Company.

Mr. Demers is somewhat of a gentleman farmer, living on a large rural wooded lot south of Magog, where he hopes to retire after leaving the Magog print works. For 50 years, Arthur Demers has however been very much of a textile man and Monday evening his faithful service to the Dominion Textile Company was suitably acknowledged.

Two other half century veterans attending this pleasant dinner were Edward F. King, Chairman of the Board for the Dominion Textile Limited, and Edouard Hains, who is celebrating 51 years as a journalist. Mr. Hains now writes for the Progres-Chronique de Magog, to which he sold his former weekly, La Chronique, several years ago.

In honoring Mr. Demers, it was noted that he considers himself a farmer, as he lives in the country south of Magog on a large forested lot, which he has partially cleared, and hopes to farm after retirement. However, it was noted, Mr. Demers is still very much of a textile man at heart, and most efficient in his role as a Thermosol operator at the Magog Print Works.

At Monday's dinner, considerable attention was given to Mr. Demers' wonderful physical condition. He attributes his good health and condition to the fact that he has been living in the country for the last few years. "It is a wonderful site close to Magog and Georgeville limits only six miles away from the plant," says Mr. Demers.

His farm is dense with trees which he had to cut in order to be able to build his own house where he lives with his daughter, his son-in-law and three grandchildren.

Arthur Demers is very imaginative and very skillful as one can realize in seeing the rather complicated saw-bench made out of an old 1931 Chevrolet car frame on which the saw-bench is mounted and activated by a Studebaker motor mounted in lieu of the car seats. And this is really a "moveable" saw-bench!

This lovely place in the country is not a farm as yet but Mr. Demers intends to pursue the clearing of new grounds and to add gradually to his livestock.

Although the Monday dinner wasn't Mr. King's party, he too gained compliments by those attending, for his half century with Dominion Textile Limited.

Hired as a stenographer in 1920, Mr. King gained a varied experience and starting in 1945, he assumed various managerial duties in the Company and its subsidiaries. After having been President for three years, he was elected Chairman of the Board in 1969.

Mr. King is also Chairman of the Board of Caldwell Linen Mills Limited and Penmans Limited, Director of The Esmond Mills Limited, member of the executive committee of various other subsidiaries and associated companies. He is an active member of the board of directors of the Canadian Textiles Institute, of the Board of Trustees of Loyola College, Governor of St. Mary's Hospital, and member of the General Council of Industries of Quebec.

Concerned about the necessity of having a permanent dialogue between unions and management, he initiated the creation of a Labour-Management Committee for the textile industry. This Committee is having regular meetings to study specific problems relating to this sector of the Canadian economy and has presented a brief to the Federal Government to stress the necessity of spelling out a Textile Policy for Canada.

Dominion Textile Limited has taken a new dimension during the last decade and Mr. King has been directly concerned in this evolution. Diversification within the textile business has been the key word for many years and Mr. King is continuing to implement this orientation as one of the principal leaders of Dominion Textile.

Having a summer home at Magog, where he resides much of the time, Mr. King considers himself a citizen of this community.

Edouard Hains, who attended the Monday function in his official capacity as a journalist, actually found himself as one of the celebrities of the evening, and proceeded to relate some of the interesting events he has experienced over the years.

HARD WORK KEPT MR. DEMERS FIT during his 50 years at the Magog Print Works, however he worked harder on his

Once at La Tribune de Sherbrooke, Mr. Hains was active in politics, and later published a paper in Granby with his brother. After this, he started the Chronique de Magog, which he sold several years ago to the Progres, which still carries the name in a coined name, Progres-Chronique.

Now in semi retirement, Edouard Hains still works with the Magog French weekly and maintains his reputation as a leading journalist of the French language.

Denison Mills W.I. welcomes provincial president as guest

DENISON MILLS — The August 15 meeting of the Denison Mills Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. Brock. There was a good attendance of 11 members present.

Mrs. V. R. Beattie, Provincial President, of the Quebec Women's Institute was welcomed as a guest and presented with a corsage of pink Sweet Peas. Eight members of the Spooner Pond W.I. were also welcomed as well as several ladies of the community.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Richmond County Fair, stating there were entries for all prizes offered by the branch this year and enclosing the prize winner's names.

Since the president, Mrs. Carson and several members were absent, it was decided to hold the drawing of the Afghan over till the September meeting.

Mrs. Stalker, acting president, then asked Mrs. Beattie to speak on the Quebec Extension Fund. Members enjoyed her talk very much as well as that of Mrs. Beattie on the need for help in the Far North. She also said it had been suggested that all members donate their October tea money to this worthy cause.

Mrs. Stalker thanked Mrs. Beattie for her interesting talk.

Miss Ethel Rief on behalf of the members presented Mrs. John Andrews with a prettily wrapped gift saying how much the members will miss her when she goes to live at the Wales Home and hoped she would get to the meetings often. Mrs. Andrews, taken by surprise, thanked the members for their thoughtfulness. Mrs. Walter Parkes led the singing of For she's a Jolly Good Fellow.

Mrs. Beattie, assisted by Mrs. W. Lampron, acted as judges for the flower arrangements. Miss Ethel Rief won the prize on her bouquet of purple asters in a dull blue teapot.

At the close of the meeting Miss Ethel Rief acted as auctioneer for the sale of new and used articles. Mrs. Duncan Rief, treasurer, reported the sum of $50 at the close of the sale. Mrs. Stalker thanked all those who had helped.

Rock Island twins celebrate their sixth birthday at party

ROCK ISLAND — The twin daughters, of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fisher, Diane and Elizabeth recently observed their 6th birthday. It was celebrated with a party held at their home and attended by a group of little friends.

The youngsters had a good time playing outdoors and later enjoyed lunch in the house, where Mrs. Fisher had arranged a table with a pretty birthday cover. All received noisemakers, baskets filled with candies and other novelties to make the party a success.

The refreshments served included the birthday cakes, made and decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon in the designs of ball room dancers, with white and green hooped skirts. Happy Birthday, 6, and under the dark hair doll, the name Elizabeth and the blond doll was Diane, the two dolls were holding white satin ribbon and the cake was further enhanced with roses.

The celebrants received several gifts from their guests and other relatives and friends, as well as good wishes for many happy returns. Some of the children were accompanied by their Mom's and afternoon tea was served to them by Mrs. Fisher. The little folk at the party were Jodi West, Lisa and Denis Carboneau, Paul Martin, Daniel and Helene Dube, Scott Hill, Claire Alger, Cindy Hatch, Cindy Dustin and John Bushnell.

The ladies appreciate the help of David McLaughlin in doing errands and that of Michael Wood, delivering fliers to the campers in the area.

The ladies would like also to thank all those who donated food and money and assisted in any way to make the event a success, both socially and financially.

Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. R. Waite, Mrs. L. Piercy, Mrs. G. Decoteau, and the Misses Donna McLaughlin, Jane Pierce and Charlene Smith, Mrs. H. McClary and Mrs. Ida McComb were in charge of tea and coffee.

New Manpower man explains federal projects

By GERRY FLAHERTY

SHERBROOKE — He believes he'll miss driving a snowmobile to the office as he did in Timmins, Ont., but the new manager of Canada Manpower's Sherbrooke area office feels that here he can put his bilingualism to even greater use.

The name is Graham Dixon, and he is the 39-year-old overseer of the local staff of 43 persons whose job it is to ensure a continued supply of trained workers for business and industry.

Effective? Well from April 1, 1969, to March 31, 1970, Canada Manpower — Sherbrooke placed 4,550 persons in positions of regular employment.

And this summer's Student Placement Centre program was very successful, Dixon said, with more than 1,100 youngsters finding work. "It was almost an 800 per cent increase over last year," he said.

Dixon is married, and the family includes a 17-year-old daughter, four horses and three cats. The group set up a home in Bromptonville upon arrival, in order to permit Mrs. Dixon to improve her French, he said.

His office is located in the new Canada Manpower Centre at 437

Manpower's Dixon: no more snowmobiling to work

King St. E., and six branch offices in area municipalities such as Richmond and Coaticook are directed from here.

"More than 8,000 persons are listed on our active file," Mr. Dixon said.

Speaking with The Record Tuesday afternoon, he outlined some of the numerous federal programs designed to aid employees and employers alike.

"Money for staff members and offices is limited, but the federal government has guaranteed huge amounts of money for the training programs themselves," he said.

An example is the Canada Manpower Training Program for machinists located at the plant of Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd. which is operated in conjunction with the Quebec Government and the French and English School Boards.

Fifteen trainees study and work for a period of 20 weeks, with Canada Manpower paying so much per day, per student.

The school at Ingersoll-Rand gives trainees experience on the most modern equipment, and has the school boards from having to install workshops which might be out of date in a few short years, Dixon said.

The training in industry course provides persons with portable skills as quickly as possible, and the particular firm is paid for the cost of training.

And course development aids an employer to set up a specific training program, suggesting everything from the number of hours of instruction a particular program should require for a given worker, Mr. Dixon said.

As of last week, 21 proposals to area businesses for various training programs were being considered, he said.

The mobility program solve.

"As little as possible is left to chance," Mr. Dixon said.

The Sherbrooke area labor force numbers 58,654 at the moment, with a 7.1 per cent unemployment rate. This number is projected to be 61,000 with the same unemployment rate for 1970-71, and 69,000 with a 5.4 per cent unemployment rate for 1975-76.

The federal government pays Graham Dixon to serve you, so give him a call at 569-7521.

Anyone who can handle four horses and three cats, along with two female members of the family, should find your employment problems easy to solve.

Place Desjardins names GM

MONTREAL — Daniel Wermerlinger, widely known in Canadian engineering circles, has been appointed general manager of the new $100,000,000 Place Desjardins commercial and community complex which will rise opposite Place des Arts, Montreal's cultural showplace.

Launched this year by la Corporation Immobiliere Place Desjardins, through the initiative of the Mouvement cooperatif Desjardins, this ultra-modern five-building complex will be built on the block bounded by St. Catherine, Jeanne-Mance and St. Urban streets and Dorchester Boulevard. It will be the largest such project ever undertaken in Montreal.

Until taking over these important new responsibilities, Mr. Wermerlinger was vice-president and manager of operations for Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corporation. Before that, he had been manager of engineering and assistant project manager for the same firm.

Mr. Wermerlinger was previously a partner in the engineering firm of Cartier, Cote, Piette, Boulva, Wermerlinger & Associates, where his activities included directing various Hydro-Quebec projects and studies. He was also general secretary of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers.

Between 1948 and 1957, he was professor of electrical power systems at Laval University in Quebec, after beginning his professional career with Shawinigan Water and Power in 1946.

Born in Verdun, Que., Mr. Wermerlinger became President of the Corporation of Engineers of Quebec in 1965. He is also a former member of the Science Council of Canada.

Thus, Mr. Wermerlinger

brings an especially wide experience to his duties with Place Desjardins, a project which will contribute notably to the renewal of a depressed area of downtown Montreal.

Of the five buildings proposed for the project, one will house the head offices of various institutions of the Mouvement cooperatif Desjardins located in Montreal. Another will be reserved for Federal government offices and a third for the Quebec government, with a fourth set aside for general offices. There will also be a large hotel, as well as extensive facilities planned for community, social, cultural and commercial purposes.

About $100,000,000 will be invested in this imposing complex which will create thousands of jobs during the next five years and will require several hundred employees for permanent operations.

WORLD REPORT

Bombers' bomb bombs

AHENS (Reuters) — A Cypriot man and an Italian girl were killed outside the United States Embassy Wednesday when a bomb they were carrying in their car exploded, the Greek public order ministry said.

The victims were identified by police sources as George Tsekouris, 25, a Cypriot believed to be studying in Italy, and Maria Angelini, 31, a secretary from Italy. They arrived in Athens a month ago from Italy and had been planning to return late Wednesday.

They drove up to the embassy in a car with Swedish plates, and drove around the embassy several times apparently seeking an opportunity to plant the bomb in the embassy building or grounds, sources said.

The car finally stopped in the embassy parking lot and a few minutes later it was blown to pieces.

Yankees lead immigration list

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States is challenging England as Canada's major single-country source of immigrants.

Figures released Wednesday showed that 9,858 English immigrants entered Canada from England in the first half of 1970, compared with 9,741 from the U.S., a difference of only 117.

Immigration to Canada from England declined while that from the U.S. rose.

For the same period last year, England accounted for 10,242 emigrants to Canada and the United States 8,595.

The immigration department figures list 70,835 immigrants from all countries in the first half, compared with 71,121 in the same period of 1969.

Fraud: the crime that pays

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Hardcore criminals are putting aside their burglary tools and holdup guns for the more lucrative crime of fraud, the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police was told Wednesday.

"It appears that not only is the pen mightier than the sword, but it is also more lucrative," says a report on organized crime compiled by a committee of senior officers of the Ontario Provincial Police, the RCMP and municipal forces in Canada.

The report was read to delegates attending the association's annual conference by OPP Assistant Commissioner Harold Graham, in the absence of Eric Silk, OPP Commissioner and committee chairman who was unable to attend because of illness.

The fraudulent cheque racket has become a multi-million dollar business in Ontario, the report says, with more than $3,000,000 loss in Toronto alone in 1969.

Arrest four Wisconsin bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents Wednesday charged four young men, including an editor of the student newspaper, with sabotage, destruction of government property and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 24 explosion at the University of Wisconsin mathematics centre.

Fugitive warrants against the four were issued after what FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover described as "a very extensive investigation."

A 33-year-old physicist, Robert E. Fassnacht, was killed and four others were wounded when the blast tore through the university's Sterling Hall Aug. 24.

Three other persons were injured.

Those charged included Karleton Lewis Armstrong, 22, and Dwight Ala Armstrong, 19, brothers. The Milwaukee Journal, a copyrighted story published Wednesday, described the two as admirers of Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Ends privileges of potentates

NEW DELHI (AP) — India's PARLIAMENT VOTED Wednesday to do away with the country's maharajas.

Under a constitutional amendment approved by the lower house the country's 279 former princes will lose on Oct. 15 their annual stipends totalling $6.4 million, special privileges and even the right to be called maharaja.

While reducing the maharajas to commoners, Parliament boosted Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's political prestige to a new high.

lead-free car takes clean race

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A car powered by lead-free gasoline was declared over-all winner Wednesday night in the clean air car race, a marathon cross-country test of automobile pollution and performance.

The winner, a Mercury Capri, was judged the most efficient in controlling pollution while maintaining a standard of performance in the 3,600-mile trip from New England to Pasadena, which ended Sunday.

It beat out other internal combustion entries and cars with engines that ran on propane gas and steam.

Judges did not announce what pollution control devices, if any — the car carried, a Post-race seminar was scheduled today to establish what was learned from the race.

The week-long test, which did not check speed, included ratings at intervals along the route on such things as urban driving, exhaust emissions, country driving and over-all performance.

More postal talks today

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal mediator Thomas O'Connor, appearing tired and troubled, said Wednesday night he will hold still another meeting today with both sides in the deadlocked postal dispute.

Mr. O'Connor was unusually evasive in a brief encounter with reporters following Wednesday's 14-hour bargaining session.

He confirmed he would meet government and postal union representatives again today but he would not say whether the meetings constitute a continuation of the 15-day-old mediation talks.

The mediator, a Toronto labor relations specialist, offered a curt "no comment" when asked if the talks have broken down without a settlement in the year-old contract dispute.

Spokesmen for both the unions and the federal treasury board said later, however, they understood that the mediation talks will continue.

Mr. O'Connor said he will talk today to Jacob Finkelman, chairman of the Public Service Staff Relations Board, concerning the talks. Mr. Finkelman appointed the mediator.

Beavers' Richard Bibeau already geared for '70-'71

SHERBROOKE — With the Sherbrooke Beavers setting up training camp sessions this Friday at the Sports Palace for the coming 1970-71 Quebec Junior A hockey season, Richard Bibeau has already established sights on one objective in particular — a 30-goal year.

Playing last season with the Rouyn Citadels of the Quebec Northwest Juvenile League, Bibeau notched 44 goals and assisted on 36 others in only 30 games for a 76-point total. That was good enough for third place in the circuit's scoring race behind teammates Denis Gagnon and Yvon Cloutier, both of whom collected 82 points during the course of the regular schedule.

Gagnon, Cloutier and Richard Bibeau along with Gingras and Rancourt will all be performing in Beaver uniforms this winter after guiding their Rouyn club to the loop championship last year.

Bibeau, 18, stands 5'11" and weighs 165 pounds — a frame sturdy enough to take all that's dished out during a Junior A campaign.

Always known as an aggressive checker, Richard spent 101 minutes in the penalty box last season.

Beaver General Real Veilleux is high on Bibeau's ice talent. "Richard is a tireless skater, blessed with natural puck savvy. As a left winger, he has a blistering shot that's very accurate to boot, and if it was required of him, Richard could switch over to a defence position without any difficulty."

RICHARD BIBEAU

A 30-goal objective over a season may be hard for some Junior A prospects to visualize but you can be sure that with Richard Bibeau in a Beaver uniform this year, the Sherbrooke management will be encouraging their new left winger all the way.

Lynch, Rougeau to renew wrestling wars Saturday

SHERBROOKE — Last week's main wrestling bout at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace will be re-staged this Saturday night when badman Danny Lynch of England tackles Montreal's Jacques Rougeau, brother of Johnny, titleholder of the International heavyweight crown.

Last Saturday's unpopular win by the 280-pound Lynch looms as the greatest factor influencing grappling promoter Claude Genest to prepare the rematch before the Sherbrooke fans.

Lynch emerged the victory by taking the first and final falls of the scheduled best two-of-three falls encounter. More than 3,200 fans were on hand to grimace through the bout. Lynch immediately went to work on his opponent with his belt before the match started and continued on to merit the first fall. Rougeau came back to capture the second with his patented submission hold. In the third frame, Rougeau was sent flying from the ring and was unable to make it back in before referee Gerry Petel's count of ten.

The semi-final this Saturday evening will feature a tag team clash between 230-pound Andre Carpentier of Paris, France and popular Gino Brito of Montreal against Sugi Suto and Chen Lee of China in a scheduled one fall or 30-minute duration bout.

Promoter Genest has also prepared three preliminary encounters beginning with a meeting between Quebec's Michel Vigneault and Butch Morgan of Montreal. This will be a one fall or 20-minute battle.

Two Quebec City natives will go at it next when Juan Lopez, a 197-pounder, tangles with Pat Lawrence at 214 pounds.

In another one fall or 30-minute match, 225-pound Len Shelley of Montreal will face Gerard Dugas also of Montreal at 230 pounds.

As in previous weeks, all children under 12 years of age and accompanied by their parents will be admitted to the action free of charge.

The evening card Saturday night slated for 8:30 p.m.

Half & Half discontinued

SHERBROOKE — Loto-Quebec Wednesday advised the Sherbrooke Beavers, members of the Quebec Junior A hockey league, to cease the weekly drawings of the Half and Half raffle.

Directors of the year-old money raising scheme said they would oblige by the government order.

The weekly drawing scheduled for yesterday was postponed indefinitely.

The Half and Half had been launched last year to help raise funds for the Junior "A" hockey club.

Boccabella & Co. dump Pirates

MONTREAL (AP) — John Boccabella smashed a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning Wednesday night, moving Montreal Expos to a 10-7 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

It was the seventh loss in the lasteight games for Pittsburgh, leaders in the National League's East Division.

Boccabella connected against reliever Bruce Dal Canton, who came on after Joe Gibbon walked Jim Fairey and Bob Bailey in the Expo ninth. The homer was his fifth of the year.

The Pirates had tied the score with two out in the ninth on Bob Robertson's pinch hit home run after Montreal had burst from behind with four runs after two were out in the eighth.

Pittsburgh used Gene Alley's inside-the-park grand-slam home run to a six-run sixth inning that wiped out a 1-0 Expo lead.

Doubles by Dave Cash and Roberto Clemente and an RBI single by Manny Sanguillen started the big inning for the Pirates. Montreal got two back in the bottom of the sixth on hits by Marv Staehle, Bob Bailey and Jim Gosger, and then rallied for four more with two out in the eighth.

Rusty Staub's one-out walk started the Montreal comeback rally. Bailey singled and after reliever George Brunet fanned Adolfo Phillips for the second out, Dave Giusti took over on the mound for Pittsburgh.

A wild pith advanced the runners and then John Bateman walked, loading the bases. Boots Day followed with a double for two runs and then Wine added his single, delivering the tying and go-ahead runs for the Expos.

Bridal shower

KNOWLTON LANDING — On August 23 the Women's Institute Club Room was the scene of a miscellaneous surprise shower in honor of Lyn Potter, St. Lambert, a September bride-to-be. The hostesses were Susi Ethier and Fern Tomashut.

Upon arrival, Miss Potter was met by one of the hostesses, presented with a corsage, and then escorted to a decorated table, laden with gifts.

Mrs. E. Potter, mother of the bride and Mrs. P. Ethier, mother of the groom-to-be, were seated on either side of her and assisted in unwrapping the gifts which were passed around to be admired. Mrs. F. Tomashut fashioned an attractive hat from the ribbons and bows and presented it to Lyn who wore it for the remainder of the evening. Miss Potter thanked the guests for the lovely gifts and the hostesses for the shower.

A buffet lunch was served to about 30 guests from the tea table centered by an attractively decorated shower cake, flanked by candles.

Guests were from St. Lambert, East Farnham, Cowansville, Knowlton, Mansonville, Bolton Centre, Vale Perkins and Granby.

BULWER — Recently Mrs. P.A. Moore, Mrs. Lindsay Nutbrown and Mrs. Raymond Mastine were hostesses at a surprise, miscellaneous shower, for Miss Marjorie Robinson, a popular September bride-to-be.

Upon her arrival at the hall the bride-to-be was presented with a gladiolus corsage, as was her mother, Mrs. Charles Robinson, her maternal grandmother, Mrs. A. Nugent, her sister, Mrs. James MacKinnon, the groom's mother, Mrs. L. K. Spafford and his sister, Mrs. Bruce Caswell. These corsages were made and pinned on by Mrs. Stuart Merrill.

The bride was escorted to the seat of honor by Mrs. P. A. Moore, who made the presentation of the gifts and extended warmest wishes on behalf of her friends and relatives.

The bride was assisted in opening her gifts by her mother, Mrs. Spafford. After the gifts had been opened and admired, the bride thanked everyone for the gifts and her hostesses for the party. She invited them to visit her in her new home.

The hall was decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. The bride's table was covered with a pink and white shower cloth, with white candles in silver holders at either end, centered with a rose bowl, floating a glad floret.

At the table with the bride were her mother, her grandmother and the groom's mother. The hostesses were assisted in serving by other friends.

Design is important in furs

NEW YORK (CP) — Fashion designers have taken over the traditional role of the furrier, and fur now is treated as if it were just another fabric — in suits, dresses and tunics.

And fur coats no longer are basic but are designed for specific occasions from city wear to after-ski relaxation.

Top designers who have created collections for the fur manufacturers include such well-known names as Pauline Trigere, Donald Brooks, Geoffrey Beene, James Galanos and Hollywood's Jean Louis. In Canada, Leo Chevalier does a collection for a Montreal national fur house.

And what about the furs themselves?

"Furs should make a woman look unbelievably slender or should have unconfined sweep and bulk," says Maximilian, the famous fur house. If you are plump or short, choose short-haired pelt fur such as swakara lamb, mink—demoted now from its status symbol—nutria or seal. Also choose a coat with a lean look, with the new high armholes, slim sleeves and a small collar. A cinch-in belt will also help to diminish the waistline.

However, if you're slim and tallish you can afford some bulk. In long-haired furs there's medium-priced fox, racoon, wolf, muskrat and the more expensive stone marten. For example, Leo Ritter likes a natural blue fox with subtle widened shoulders and a high-hipped leather belt.

SHOW WRAPPED LOOK

As for the fall silhouettes, all the popular fabric coat styles are duplicated in fur. The wrapped look includes everything from a suede-edged mink to a black-dyed seal, belted with a purple-fringed leather belt. There are officers' greatcoats and trench styles. There's even a cuffed shirtcoat in broadtail lamb.

Capes are back. Some have wide borders of another fur, as an ankle-length Persian lamb bordered in blue fox. Some are tight on the shoulders and fall straight. Others are great circles to wrap around the body. Almost every fur is used. Even a long-haired racoon appeared in a midi length, with a huge shawl collar. Incidentally, shawl collars are popular, as are hoods. There's a feeling for muffling the head.

Ponchos, too, are part of the fall fur fashion story, although not as popular as in fabric. Generally, short-haired furs are used.

But the fur fashion news is in the return of the short jacket. Longer skirts make the jacket important again. The battle jacket was shown in such unexpected furs as chinchilla and dark ranch mink. Cardigan styles include a mink rimmed with tweed knit.

SPOTTED LOOK OUT

Almost totally absent from the fall lineup are the spotted furs—leopard, tiger, jaguar.

This is due to the increased public pressure to save these animals from extinction. The skins have been so popular for coats over the last few years that concerned people have formed societies to stop this destructive fashion trend.

As for coat lengths, midis were the feature at the press showings but most furriers agree that the knee-cap length is more likely to be the more acceptable.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Gardner of North Hatley are happy to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, MARY ANN to MR. DAVID TURNBULL, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turnbull of Boston, Massachusetts. The wedding has been arranged to take place on October 17th, 1970.

Silver wedding anniversary

SAWYERVILLE — On August 22, 1970, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dempsey were pleasantly surprised when relatives gathered at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Lister, to help them celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Upon arrival, their son-in-law pinned a corsage of tangerine roses on Mrs. Dempsey, while Mr. Dempsey received a boutonniere from his daughter. The attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Davies, also received a corsage and boutonniere. A corsage was also presented to Mrs. Mabel Morrison, mother of the bride. The groom's mother, Mrs. Louise Dempsey, was unable to attend.

The honored guests received congratulations and best wishes from the guests and then a buffet supper was enjoyed. The bride's table was centered with a two-tier anniversary cake, made by the groom's sister, Mrs. Bert Arbery, and decorated by Mrs. Kenneth Morrow of Island Brook. Silver candles in crystal holders and gladioli completed the table arrangement. The room was decorated with silver 25's and blue streamers.

Mr. Howard Davies, on behalf of the guests, presented the couple with several gifts and cards. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey expressed their thanks and appreciation for the gifts and the celebration.

The evening was spent playing

The marriage of Althea Olive Richmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elson E. Richmond of South Durham, Quebec, to Mr. Brian M. Nelson, son of Mr. Magnus Nelson and the late Mrs. Nelson of Montreal, Quebec, took place on August 1st, at Chalmers United Church, Richmond, Quebec. Rev. R. A.

MONARCH, September 3rd — A PERFECT CAKE EVERY TIME! And it's perfect! I mean light, moist and with good, old-fashioned flavour. I've used MONARCH CAKE MIXES for many years — first because of their consistently high quality and because they are packed in pouches, which I find ever-so-much more convenient than bulky boxes. Like all housewives concerned with today's food prices, I appreciate Monarch's substantially lower cost. And the size is just right — when I want a single-layer cake, I use one pouch — when I want a 2-layer cake, I use 2 pouches. Simple. The directions are on every Monarch Cake Mix package.

WHAT SHOULD WE LOOK FOR when we shop for hamburger—the beef with the most appeal to Canadian families? DOMINION STORES—who really know meat—tell me the best assurance of good-tasting hamburger is to shop where you can have every confidence it is freshly ground several times a day. It should be bright red in colour. (If it's grey—it's just not fresh!) Government regulations state hamburger must be comprised of a minimum of 70% lean beef and a maximum of 30% beef fat. Dominion Stores aim at 85% lean beef and only 15% beef fat. That extra beef content really makes a difference!

Arthritis Sufferer Needs Extra Calcium

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

(First of Two Related Columns.)

Q—I have a friend who is taking calcium tablets for his arthritis. Isn't calcium the cause of arthritis?

A—No. Rheumatoid arthritis is probably caused by a virus and the cause of osteoarthritis is not known. Since arthritis is often associated with a loss of calcium from the bones, it is essential that supplementary calcium be given.

Q—What is the difference between rheumatoid and degenerative arthritis?

A—Degenerative and hypertrophic arthritis are synonyms for osteoarthritis, which comes on late in life and is much milder than rheumatoid arthritis, which may occur at any age.

Q—How can X rays tell whether you have arthritis?

A—The earliest changes due to arthritis that can be seen on an X-ray film are soft tissue swelling, decreased density of the bones caused by a loss of calcium and narrowing of the joint space due to the destruction of the joint cartilage. Diagnosis of the type of arthritis present, however, must be based on other findings.

Q—Is it harmful to use a heating pad on my back every night for a couple of hours for my arthritis?

A—No, provided you don't fall asleep and burn yourself.

Q—I have heard that cod liver oil is the best thing to take for arthritis. Has this been proved?

A—Cod liver oil is a good source of vitamin D but a victim of arthritis needs no more of this vitamin than is to be found in a well-balanced diet.

Q—I am taking Indocin for my arthritis. What are its side effects? I have heard that chipping the excess calcium away from the joints is helpful. What do you think?

where in no-trump. Why waste a round of bidding?

The play was even quicker than the bidding. Hal won the first trick with dummy's king of diamonds. Then he led a heart to his ace, West's queen dropped and it was a matter of seconds for Hal to concede a trick to East's 10 and claim his slam.

The Maestro's play of the heart suit would be routine for any one of a thousand or more players today. Back in 1930 it is doubtful if more than a corporal's guard of experts knew this safety play.

Hal needed four heart tricks to make his contract.

If hearts were going to break 5-0 then four tricks were not available. If they broke 3-2 any line of play would succeed. If they broke 4-1 then this play would guarantee four tricks for declarer against any 4-1 combination.

If the queen had not dropped, Hal would have returned to dummy and led a heart toward his jack. We'll leave it to you to work out the rest of the play.

Culbertson and Sims were bitter rivals in the bridge business but never let their rivalry interfere with a great personal friendship. Ely called Hal "Maestro" and Hal called Ely "Professor."

In today's hand the Professor sat North and the Maestro, South.

In those days four-card suits were bid indiscriminately and there was a tendency to rebid a five-card suit almost automatically.
