Red light? No, yellow

Adolph Mueller appeared before Westmount Municipal Court, Wednesday, charged with going through a traffic light while it was red.

After pleading guilty with explanation, Mueller asked Judge Stalker if it was all right for Mrs. Mueller to explain what happened.

The Judge sanctioned this request, and attractive Mrs. Mueller stepped into the witness box to declare that the lights were "yellow when we went through."

Mrs. Mueller added: "The police car following us went through the lights at red. I had the impression when they stopped us that they were not too sure what color they were when we went through."

Inspector J. Arsenault, of the Westmount police, told the witness that the patrol car may have gone through the lights at red, but the department were not charging her husband for an offence the police had committed.

"What was the color when your car passed through the lights?" he asked.

"Yellow" said Mrs. Mueller.

"Costs" said Judge Stalker.

Keep off the lawn

How would you feel if you ended up sitting in your car on the lawn in front of City Hall?

If you can't imagine this terrible situation, ask Arthur L. Bardwell, 65, 2420 Benny Crescent, Montreal, who found himself in this position, Tuesday.

Mr. Bardwell told the police he was travelling west on Cote St. Antoine road when a car ahead of him made a sudden stop.

"I applied my brakes and the car pulled to the left, went over the curb, and ended up on the lawn," he said.

Mr. Bardwell suffered no injuries, except maybe a slightly red face.

Unfortunately, the lawn was rather torn up and bushes damaged.

Westmount driver not criminally responsible

by Brian Kiely

The elderly Westmount woman driver who killed a 19-year-old girl, and injured seven other people, when her car ran amok in a bus line-up in front of 395 Victoria avenue, Westmount, on October 30, was said to be not criminally responsible at the inquest, Tuesday.

Joan Mary Stewart, only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stewart, 4051 Marcell avenue, Notre Dame de Grace, was killed instantly in this tragedy on October 30.

Coroner Richard L. Duckett conducted the inquest, Tuesday, without a jury.

He explained that he had gone over the available evidence with the Crown Attorney, and the Westmount police, and together they had decided that since no criminal negligence was involved, a jury would not be necessary.

Mrs. Duke James Patterson, 65, 358 Kit-chener avenue, Westmount, the driver of the late model, high powered, automatic car, related the story of the incident to the Coroner.

She said she had pulled up in front of the Steinberg store on Victoria avenue, just south of Sherbrooke street, to wait for the order she had purchased.

The store clerk carried the order over to the curbside, but was having trouble opening the car door. Mrs. Patterson then reached across the seat to help him.

"I put my foot on the brake, but I must have hit the accelerator instead, because the car jumped forward," she said.

"I got my foot off the accelerator but put it on the gas pedal a second time instead of the brake," said the driver

With the second application of the accelerator the car went forward, jumped the curb, and bowled over a crowd of people waiting at a bus stop some six feet away.

Joan Mary Stewart was killed instantly, and seven other people received varying degrees of injury.

According to the autopsy on the body of Miss Stewart, performed by Dr. J. P. Valcourt, death was caused by internal haemorrhage, and multiple head fractures.

Douglas Charles Cobb, Bergevin street, La Salle, a city of Westmount fireman, told how he was walking north on Victoria avenue, at about five o'clock on the day of the mishap.

Mr. Cobb said he saw a car in which the driver was leaning over towards the door on the passenger side of the front seat. The car suddenly mounted the sidewalk, but he did not see it strike the people.

Witness pointed out that two bus lines pick up passengers at the stop, and he estimated that on the day of the accident there were about 35 people waiting for a bus.

Steinberg clerk, Rosaire Marseau, 20, of 320 Prince Albert street, Westmount, said he did not recall Mrs. Patterson reaching over to the passenger side door of the car.

"As I was preparing to put down the parcel the car suddenly shot forward," he said.

Denis Decary, 13, 926 Laporte street, told how he was standing in the bus queue when people suddenly started to run. He started to run also.

He explained that he did not actually see the car hit the dead girl or the injured persons.

The back seat pilot

By Larry McInnis

There is some strange compulsion for friends to say to one who has just completed a trip by air: "Have a good trip?" or "Was your plane trip alright?" or "Have a safe trip?"

Sometimes the natural tendency is to reply: "No! It was awful! I plunged in from 16,000 feet and was killed!"

But one can't get away with such things. Politeness, y'know.

However, sober reflection of such conversation-openers reminded me of the type who travels a lot by air — the airline pilot.

Not the man who flies the aircraft from up front in the cockpit, but the man who sits in tourist-class seats, and by a secret brand of mental telepathy, makes sure the man up front does not do anything wrong.

I remember one individual I met several times on various trips. He was about 5-feet, 4-inches, getting along in years, thick glasses, lots of baggage, an over-stuffed brief case, and the traditional navy-blue trench coat.

"Always wanted to be a pilot," he confided on one such trip. "Too young for the first one, too old for the next." Obviously he was referring to those couple of wars we had.

First off, he opened the brief case and pulled out a sheaf of air maps, a builder's plumb and miniature carpenter's level, about four inches long.

"Are you going to remodel something?" I asked politely.

Then he told me about the "fly-from-the-backseat" gambit.

First he carefully placed the route-map against the armrest of his seat, after carefully adjusting his seat belt and strapping himself tightly into place.

Then — and much to my amazement — he tied the plumb to the back of the seat in front.

Lastly he put the level on the little fold-down table, carefully adjusting it so the Broadway glamor: gone forever?

By Margaret Aitken

Going to New York this fall? If so, here are some theatrical do's and don'ts. After a concentrated tour of Broadway, it is sad to relate that all the stars of yesteryear seem to be gone.

There is no Tallulah Bankhead in lights, no Katherine Cornell or Helen Hayes, no Gielgud or Sir Ralph Richardson, no Gertrude Lawrence or Beatrice Lillie. To my taste, only one actress now on Broadway has the magic of those stars.

She is Julie Harris — enchanting in an adaptation from a French comedy called 'A Shot in the Dark.' With her also are two Canadian actors, William Shatner of Montreal and Diana Van der Vlis of Toronto.

'A Shot in the Dark' is theatre at its best, with Julie Harris relaxed, light hearted and deliciously funny.

Five year return

Curiously enough, it is Miss Harris' first role on Broadway in five and a half years. In a New York Times interview she explained why ... "I never considered New York the be-all and end-all. Really now, I wouldn't care where I acted, as long as it was something that interested me and was part of a theatre and somebody wanted to see it."

In the course of her explanation she paid great tribute to Canada's Stratford Theatre ... "One of the times I have been happiest in the theatre was in Stratford, Ont., Canada. In Stratford I worked with a company that had been together for years in a theatre that was absolutely willed to be there, because people willed it to be there, a marvellous, marvellous theatre."

So 'A Shot in the Dark' is my first recommendation. Another play with a touch of the old magic is Noel Coward's 'Sail Away.' The critics panned it but no one has the sardonic, light wit of a Noel Coward and I liked the musical.

'Mary Mary,' with Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson and Michael Wilding is a hilarious comedy, built around the eternal triangle — two men and a girl. The author is that irresistible humorist Jean Kerr who wrote 'Please Don't Eat The Daisies.'

An unforgettable episode

Another play well worth seeing is 'Write Me A Murder,' an English comedy by Frederick Knott who also wrote 'Dial M for Murder.' He is described as a meticulous craftsman who writes and re-writes to a glittering polish. Certainly I will never forget the denouncement in 'Write Me A Murder.'

Finally, I sat through half of 'The Complaisant Lover.' It has to be a pretty boring play to drive me from the theatre before the last curtain, and 'The Complaisant Lover' was just that.

It, too, is an English play (a comedy, the critics said), written by a distinguished British author, Graham Greene, and with equally distinguished English actors, Michael Redgrave and Googie Withers. But I found it heavy-handed, dull and phony.

The one musical I wanted to see is a sell-out for weeks ahead — 'How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.'

It is the hit of Broadway this season so I add it to my recommended list, sight unseen.

OUR professional work has brought many words of appreciation from the families we've served.

Drunken driver toured city

Two rather serious cases of motoring infractions appeared before Westmount Municipal Court, Yesterday, Judge Stalker presiding.

Leonard Sharples was fined $100 and costs, or two months, and had his licence suspended for six months for being drunk in charge of a vehicle.

Sharples, who pleaded guilty, was said to have driven around Clarke avenue, Sherbrooke street, Green avenue, and Prince Albert streets at two o'clock in the afternoon while under the influence of alcohol.

While on his tour of the city he bumped into a parked car, hit a building, and went through a red light.

The second case was a charge against Elaine Hendricks, who failed to stop after an accident, and who had no driving licence.

Hendricks pleaded guilty and passed a letter over to Judge Stalker, of which the contents were not disclosed in the court hearing.

The Judge fined her a total of $35 and costs.

"Gin-Rickshaw," an Operetta in two acts by William Maxwell Ford, was presented by the Westmount Junior High School in the Victoria Hall, and was the first "All-Westmount" theatrical production to be staged here on an ambitious scale.

Brig. Gen. Charles A. Smart was returned by popular vote of the people at the Provincial Election in which the Westmount stronghold of Toryism had its majority severely cut.

The Westmount Hi-Y Grads were victorious in a hotly contested debate, "Resolved that University Fraternities should be abolished," with the Junior Board of Trade. The affirmative was upheld by the representatives of the Junior Board, H. M. Baldwin and T. Kinna, while James Mills and John Lewis represented the Grads on the negative side.

Under the Property for Sale column was: "Brick semi-detached cottage near Loyola College, 7 rooms and bathroom, hardwood floors, large cement cellar, and furnace, $7,000, easy terms."

The circulation of the air in the Westmount Y gymnasium was considerably "stepped up" as the Intermediate team went through its paces under coach Alan Mills. Some of the principals of the team included John Crombie, Connal Davidson, John Eaves, Bill Grindley, Ross Loucks, Ernie Hall, Jack Falconer, Allan Mills, and Gordon Peacock.

Safe-Driving Week

Beware - 53 people to die

According to past experience, 75 people would be expected to die in the next seven days in Canadian traffic.

But starting today is Safe-Driving Week, and its sponsors, the Canadian Highway Safety Council, while expressing the hope that no-one will be killed in traffic, fearfully forecast there will be 53 road fatalities.

W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the Safety Council, said he would like to see no road deaths in the next seven days.

He considered this was possible if every motorist and pedestrian drove and walked in a careful manner.

"Unfortunately, human nature is predictable to the degree that we must expect 53 traffic deaths during Safe-Driving Week."

The Safety Council reports that normal experience for the first week in December is 10.7 persons killed per day, 286 persons injured per day, and 936 accidents per day in traffic in Canada.

"We find ourselves pleading with walkers and drivers to strive by every possible means to eliminate death and suffering from our thoroughfares at least for this one week," said Mr. Bryce.

"Any improvement they make will be their lesson for the rest of the year," he said.

Westmount Police Chief, Ed Harper, said: "We are not doing anything special for the safety week. We shall just stress to drivers and pedestrians that they take care."

Runaway truck wrecks car rear

Jean Doutre, 25, 4250 Dorchester street, Westmount, had the back part of his car demolished, Saturday, when a runaway truck crashed into his parked vehicle at the rear of his home.

Denis Lapalme, 21, 5635 Bordeaux street, Montreal, told the police he had to make a delivery at the rear of 4250 Dorchester, and had parked his truck facing south on the west side of the street.

He went to the rear of the truck after parking with the hand-brake on, and the front wheels turned to the curb.

He could not leave the truck in gear as he was using the rear platform, which was operated by the engine running.

"When I was at the back of the truck, it started to roll forwards."

"I ran to the front to try and stop it, but I was unable to get to the controls before it jumped the curb and struck the rear corner of the building, and then smashed into a car which was parked on a vacant lot," he said.

Damage to the building amounted to the verandah being pulled from its mooring, and the floor falling from the rest of the supports.

WE SAY YOU SAY

Those PTC buses are mostly ramshackle

PROVINCIAL Transport buses, long cause for complaint, have deteriorated under their newest ownership.

Except for the longer inter-city runs, new equipment appears unknown.

Buses are ramshackles. They jolt and rattle the passengers.

Their poorly maintained oil-burning engines spew smoke and fumes in city streets and country highways alike. Driving behind a PTC bus is nauseating, surely deteriorious. (MTC, with similar type engines, has relatively little such trouble.)

PTC drivers must and do break speed limits to maintain impossible schedules, specially when delayed by rush-hour jams.

Since buses supplanted now-discontinued trains to many areas of the province, the public is at PTC's mercy. But they shouldn't be.

The Provincial Transport Board and the Provincial Police jointly could bring PTC to book, require renewal of vehicles, maintenance of existing ones, and adherence to the laws governing all vehicles using streets and roads.

It's that time again! — Grey Cup fever

CANADA is championship-minded, a statement of fact borne out by a peculiar situation which occurs this time of year:

"Grey Cup fever."

Not long ago, it was World Series fever, and sooner than you think it will be Stanley Cup fever.

Many who are not sports followers all year hurriedly catch up on all the statistics so they may sound knowledgeable at the TV set during the championship game.

This is a good thing!

It shows we are adaptable to any situation; we are not stuck in the mud; we have an awareness.

This awareness may be taken up in sports at this particular time of year, but when the chips are down,

When is a shelter not a bomb shelter?

Sir: There's been a lot of talk about bomb shelters. People are saying they're a necessary thing, while others claim they won't be needed because there can't ever be a nuclear war as long as both sides are equally armed.

Anyone owning a house can remodel a section of his basement into a shelter, according to Federal Government plans and they're not supposed to cost too much. Although they are taxable for the time being. Several municipalities are, I understand, trying to get the Provincial Government to amend the Cities and Towns Act or the municipalities' individual charters to allow each community to tax-exempt improvements to the property which have been made to provide shelter for the family in the event of an air attack.

There are some rather sturdy but spartan models available for next to nothing to the do-it-yourself man and, of course, if you have money you can go to any extremes. I know of one family which has a five-and-a-half room shelter further below the ground than the British Admiralty offices shelter in London during the Second World War.

My only question is, what happens if you spend all that time and money to put up a safe shelter, only to find you're nowhere near it when the attack comes?

Puzzled.

Fall-out clouds are source of worry

Sir: By the way, whatever happened to the great fallout cloud which began sweeping across Canada some weeks ago and, according to some reports, was endangering the very existence of Canadians and Americans?

Is milk safe to drink? What about vegetables next summer?

How radioactive is the rain and snow now?

could show itself in solving world problems, improving our standard of living, our living conditions, and our in-born ideals of freedom of democracy, for which will fight if necessary.

But now it's Grey Cup time, so let's bend our energies to cheering on the team of our choice!

The aims of a National Separatist
By Pierre Berton

DR. BOURASSA GREBE, the well-known Canadian nationalist, announced recently the formation of an All-Canada Separatist Movement, to co-ordinate and channel the work of various local and provincial separatist and secessionist movements springing up across the Dominion.

The following groups are being approached to affiliate with the national organization:

- The Quebec separatist movement (designed to convert French-speaking Canada into an independent Republic of Laurentia.)
- The Victoria, B.C., secessionist movement designed to bring freedom to the oppressed Vancouver Islanders and make the island a separate crown colony with its own distinctive flag (a Union Jack.)
- The Duncan, B.C., secessionist movement, pledged to bring about the secession of Duncan, B.C., from the rest of Vancouver Island.
- The Newfoundland Freedom and Anti-Baby-Bonus League sworn to abolish all oppressive Ottawa domination and bring freedom back to Newfoundland.
- The Northern Ontario Independence Foundation which is attempting to form a separate province on the Canadian Shield, independent of the crushing heel of Queen's Park.

Through local - colored spectacles

Although sympathizing with the aims of these various groups, Dr. Grebe believes that they are looking at the matter of secession from too local a point of view.

"They are putting the cart before the horse," he declared at a press conference this morning. "The first object of our national movement must be to obtain our independence from the United States.

"We will have to move cautiously, of course. Our immediate goal is simply to get complete autonomy within the North American framework. But our ultimate goal is out-and-out secession — even to the extent of having our own distinctive Canadian foreign policy."

Once Canada becomes an independent country with its own culture, its own traditions, its own values and its own language, it will be time enough to encourage further separatist movements, Dr. Grebe explained.

"When that proud day arrives," he declared, "then the other groups who make up the national body can, of course, secede from each other. After all, nothing succeeds like secession."

Distinctive Canadian cola

The All-Canada Separatist Movement's first venture, Dr. Grebe announced, would be to establish a Distinctive Canadian Cola Drink.

"What we are trying to achieve," he said, "is a beverage redolent of the Canadian way of life, something that will evoke the pungency of say, burning maple leaves, or, if you will, burning books."

After that, the Movement will work to abolish all American TV and radio networks in Canada.

"It is our plan to replace the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation with a network providing distinctively Canadian programs," Dr. Grebe explained.

"I know that this is a novel concept, but strong measures are going to be needed if we are to secede."

Dr. Grebe admitted that the Movement's avowed goal of getting Canadian textbooks into the schools to replace U. S. - manufactured texts posed an extremely difficult problem, but he felt that it was one which was not insoluble.

'Vote Canadian'

Visionaries in the Movement even predict a distinctive Canadian Parliament and look forward to an era when Canadians will no longer vote in the U. S. presidential elections or take part in U. S. political conventions as has been the trend in recent years.

"As we see it, the new Parliament will be entirely independent of the Congress," Dr. Grebe declared. "We hope to establish an independent Prime Minister, an independent cabinet and even — though this is admittedly a difficult problem — an independent Department of External Affairs.

"I can even foresee a day when Canada will have its own representative at the United Nations," Dr. Grebe said, and listeners could detect a quiver of emotion in his voice as he issued this surprising (and, to some, alarming) manifesto.

In speaking of the newly designed Parliament, Dr. Grebe made it clear that the present Upper House would be retained without change.

"It is generally agreed within the Movement that the Senate is one of the few distinctively Canadian institutions that we have," he pointed out. "There is nothing like it anywhere else in the world."

The Movement's first goal, however, will be social and cultural rather than political or military.

Freeing Baffin Island

"Much as we would like to free Baffin Island from U. S. armed occupation, we simply do not feel the time is ripe for overt action," Dr. Grebe said, regretfully. "At the same time we want the freedom-loving peoples of Baffin to know that, when the moment comes we are prepared to strike and strike hard against oppression."

Meanwhile, strong emphasis is to be placed by the Movement on a distinctive Canadian culture.

"If it develops that there is no distinctive Canadian culture (as seems likely) then it may become necessary to invent one," Dr. Grebe stated.

Canadians, he said, would be encouraged to speak, think and write their own language. Indeed, at one time the Movement seriously considered a plan to convert the entire nation to a form of Quebec French. However, this met with strong opposition from the Quebec

The day that the snows came

"The North wind shall blow, and we shall have snow, and what will the robin do then, poor thing."

So runs the kiddies nursery rhyme.

With the city rocking from the first real storm of the winter, which the experts predict will leave 13 inches of snow before it blows out, most people have got more to worry about than the robins, or the experts, come to that.

Despite reports on all media that the public and the city authorities have been ready for the first downfall, the avalanche of white stuff caught everyone on the hop.

Cheerful newscasters predicted that workers could expect to be "anything up to a half hour" late. Those who managed to be anything less than an hour after their usual time were the exception.

Suburbanites travelling into the west end of the city from the country abodes found it almost impossible to cut their way through the jams at key points.

Icy conditions

Icy conditions added to the hazards of car drivers, but there were no serious or fatal accidents, were quickly on the job, but, like all the others, soon found that they were fighting a rearguard action. Even proud Westmount, shielding behind its reputation of clearing all roads for the morning traffic, was caught by surprise, and residents would have found sledges easier to handle on the hills.

The upper level was almost unassailable.

CPR and CNR traffic was the only stable transport on the island, with only two trains behind schedule.

In all the chaos and confusion, the only people who had anything to laugh about were the children, the younger, sturdier puppies, and the overshoe manufacturers.

FM is here to stay

By Giveon Cornfield

When FM broadcasts began here a few years ago they created quite a stir. Here was good music, received by the listener in high fidelity, free from interference.

It soon became evident that FM was here to stay, but the general impression was that it was a luxury. This was unfortunately quite true until recently.

From $20

The majority of the FM-less people that I encounter are still under the impression that to get FM sound in their home or office is an expensive affair that could easily run into hundreds of dollars. I am happy to report that this is no longer the situation.

It is true that an elaborate rig could run into a lot of money, but that holds true for any item. On the whole, prices have come down enormously, due to the great demand and heavy influx of imported sets and components.

The lowest price yet for an FM set is $19.95, and this really intrigued me. How good or bad could such an FM radio be?

Worth every cent

To begin with, these sets do not look cheap, and boast features found in much higher priced ones, such as an AFC control switch which helps to keep the station locked in position, and a trouble free printed circuit.

Application of a little know how can result in a barrel of fun, and here are but a few of the games that one could play with these little sets.

The sound coming from a four inch speaker is naturally not the highest fi, but this is due mostly to the limitation of the speaker.

Tapping the speaker wires and feeding the sound into a larger unit will improve results by about 100%.

Taking the signal from the volume control and using the set as a tuner, by-passing the amplifier stage, can result in real Hi Fi.

Another completely new horizon can open up for would-be radio hams — and by this I refer to the almost unlimited possibilities offered by the amateur and police bands. By squeezing or expanding the tuning coils the set can be altered to receive these bands. But I'm afraid we are getting a little too technical.

Importance of antenna

The importance of the antenna in FM reception cannot be too strongly stressed. Whether your set is a $20 or $200 job, it needs more than a piece of wire to receive the signal properly. Built in antennae are rarely sufficient, and usually consist of a strip of 300 ohm wire tacked to the rear cover of the set.

Some good tuners do have an adjustable antenna, but in most cases it will be found that by adding ordinary TV "Rabbit Ears" (either one of the two wires will do) to the system, the signal strength is increased a great deal.

This is most apparent in sets that have magic eye tuning, where the difference can actually be seen as well as heard.

In the past there used to be on the market a few special antennae designed for FM reception, but they were rather dear. But as in the case of the sets, prices have come down considerably and a good antenna can now be had for a very moderate price.

Christmas is now just around the corner, and in all earnestness I can't think of a nicer gift than an FM radio — for that is giving the gift of music.

'Let's make music'

The second of a series of four concerts for all Montreal school children, ages six years through teenage, will be given at St. George's School, 3100 Westmount boulevard, on Saturday morning, at 11 a.m.

Jan Simons, baritone, accompanied by pianist, Elizabeth Dawson, will sing songs about the country, and J. Lecomte, W. Levesque, T. Elstrom, and G. Vaillancourt will introduce the children to the world of brass music.

Mario Duschenes will be the commentator.

Y Campaign . . .

The sum required for the overall Montreal area is $250,000, and returns to date stand at $201,600, or 80.6 per cent.

Mr. Love pointed out that the campaign officially closed yesterday, but a number of subscription cards are still outstanding.

"Westmounters are urged to help us round-out the campaign by sending in any outstanding subscriptions as soon as possible," he said.

G. Lloyd Welton, executive secretary, commented that the Westmount division was five or 10 per cent further ahead of its objective than in 1960.

Clues to Cashword Explained

ACROSS

1. FADDISH is best. It may be felt that a FADDISH individual lacks good sense, for he is likely to adopt fads indiscriminately and carry them to extremes. A CADDISH individual may be presumed to lack good manners. BADDISH and MADDISH persons are likely to be lacking in more important virtues than good sense.

6. TASK, yes. A TASK may call for preliminary study, as when accomplishing it may require some knowledge of problems that may arise. A TALK may merely call for expressions of opinions that one already has. TANK is remote.

10. RAVINGS is wanted. A man's RAVINGS may be the result of years of privation for his mental and physical health may have suffered from lack of necessities. A man's SAVINGS are more likely to result from good judgment in managing his income. WAVINGS is remote.

11. BIGHT is accurate. A BIGHT, or bay, may attract people from a distance for water recreation. A SIGHT, or spectacle, may just attract passerby. A FIGHT may be a private one and attract no audience at all. LIGHT is vague. MIGHT and WIGHT are remote.

12. NOTE, to be sure. Holding a NOTE, as a musical NOTE, may be difficult, because one runs out of breath or because of the pitch. Holding a TOTE, or load, may be easy if it is a light one. ROTE and VOTE are not favored.

14. GYRE is preferred. An island prisoner may not be closely guarded, for authorities may assume he prefers imprisonment to risking death by swimming into a GYRE, or vortex, in an escape attempt. A GYVE, or shackle, may eliminate close guarding even on the mainland.

16. STUB, yes. A farmer may STUB an area of land with trees, whether he clears it of weeds or the stumps of trees. He may prefer to cultivate an area, rather than STUD it with trees.

19. SLINGS is chosen. A young man may find SLINGS, as a type of alcoholic drink, best taken in moderation, for too many are likely to have an undesirable effect. He may consider it best to avoid FLINGS, or escapades, entirely, for even one could be injudicious.

22. INCULT is the word. A man may take exception to an INCULT, or crude, remark, for he may feel it showed a lack of consideration to others. "Take exception" is not favored with "INSULT"; he is more likely to demand an apology or ignore it completely rather than argue about it.

24. FUMBLING is favored. One might enjoy the FUMBLING, or awkwardness, of an exceptionally self-assured individual, for it would be proof that he is not perfect, even as you and I. HUMBLING suggests such a drastic reduction in his self-esteem that one might feel sorry for him. Anyone's TUMBLING, or falling physically, is likely to be a shock. RUMBLING is remote.

DOWN

2. DIVERT is better. A mother may DIVERT a young child who is getting muddy in a puddle, as to provide him with some tidier pastime. She is not likely to DIVEST, or undress him; he may get messy no matter what he plays at.

4. SIGN, yes. His wife's SIGN, or gesture, may make a man reconsider his decision not to buy an expensive car, for it may indicate that she is determined to buy it. He may take her SIGH as resigned acquiescence.

6. TIDING is preferred. A TIDING, or message, may call for speedy action, as when it may contain urgent information. TIMING may call for delayed action, if such will be more effective.

8. KNITTED is chosen. A closely KNITTED scarf may keep one's throat warm on a blustery day, for it is not likely that the cold can penetrate its close stitches. A closely KNOTTED scarf may do little good, however securely it is held in place, if the fabric is too thin to give warmth.

13. OPTING is wanted. Timid people are not likely to enjoy OPTING, or making a choice, for they are likely to fear that whatever they pick will be wrong. There is little reason for them to fear an OUTING, where there will be

15. YARNING over YAWNING. A host's YARNING may speed his guests departure, for they may be bored by his determined efforts to hold the floor. His YAWNING may not if he is politely careful to conceal it.

16. SPIEL is selected. A SPIEL, as a sales pitch, may take people's weaknesses into consideration; it would be designed to lure them into buying from motives that do not involve good judgment. A SPIER, or SPIES, may just take advantage of people's ignorance of his intentions rather than of any weaknesses.

bubble was exactly in the centre.

"Presume the plane is nearly level on the ground," he explained.

The aircraft was soon into the weather, and my little friend glanced watchfully from map to plumb to level.

"My instruments," he said. "When we're in the milk like this, can't look outside. Gives you a false sense of the plane's attitude. Got to watch the instruments."

I watched, fascinated.

The plane banked steeply to the right. The bubble moved quickly to the left. The imaginary line (with the plumb) down the back of the seat in front described a 30-degree angle.

"Most people don't know we're in a bank," he said.

"Too steep! Too steep!" the little man cried in anguish as the angle increased.

"Don't lean the opposite way, like you would in a car," he warned. "It will make you airsick."

I "rolled" with the plane, which then gradually pulled out.

"Got him out of that one," the man said.

Later, when he had obviously put the aircraft on his "automatic pilot," he told me that he preferred flying "by instrument" because it was safer and reliable, and lack of visible outside reference, makes for tough work, but a smoother ride.

But, poor man, has had some trouble with his instrument panel. He finds the rudder pedals (the back of the seat in front) a little stiff, and has not yet been able to design a fully functional control column.

Further, he has had trouble developing an altimeter and a rate-of-climb instrument.

"Coming down it's okay," he said. "They do it at 500 feet-per-minute, and that's standard."

"It's going up that bothers me."

Also, in spite of the fact that a beautiful stewardess had just announced we would be cruising at 16,000 feet, and the level and plumb instruments indicated we had just levelled off, the man was still disturbed.

"How can I help that pilot

if I don't know until after?" he asked, shaking his head.

All in all, the trip was different, and I thought of the times I've been caught "up front" in weather with unreliable instruments.

Nex time I'll carry spares — a level and carpenter's plumb.

My friend's telepathy (plus 20,000 hours the pilot had) got us in safely, despite the weather.

I may recover my senses in a month or two!!!

Orchestra fund nearing target

Sixty-five percent of the $175,000 objective has been collected during the current fund-raising campaign of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, Peter Kilburn, a chairman of the drive, announced recently.

"We need everyone's co-operation in making up the balance," Mr. Kilburn said. "We are slightly ahead of last year's campaign."

The success of conductor Zubin Mehta's performances with the orchestra this season is reflected in the response to the campaign.

Famed organist to play tonight

An organist of world renown, who has performed with orchestras of Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, the London BBC, Canadian CBC, Salzburg, Austria, London promenade, the London Philharmonic and many others, E. Power Biggs, 'America's Favorite Organist,' will perform at the Oratory tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Acclaimed as the creator of a modern renaissance of the organ, Mr. Biggs has been a pioneer in introducing new or unfamiliar works to audiences.

He has performed on the concert circuit both here and abroad and has been accorded great praise by music critics everywhere.

Tickets are available at the Shrine.

Christian Science

How spiritual understanding of God's creation helps a man to meet his everyday problems, will be brought out at the services in the Montreal and Westmount Christian Science churches today, in the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "God the Only Cause and Creator."

The Father's continuing care for what He has created is epitomized in the Golden Text from Acts: "Known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world."

Relevant selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "Jesus of Nazareth was the most scientific man that ever trod the globe. He plunged beneath the material surface of things, and found the spiritual cause."

Resentment

by

The Venerable

R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.

Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

No French Canadian could resent Douglas Fisher's remarks at Laval more than this English-Scottish-Welsh Canadian does. But the effect on me is to want to keep my French Canadian friend in close association with me that I may show him that I resent the remarks as much as he does.

That opening note to be made but what I really want in these weeks is something quite different. I should like to drown out the raucous noises of a mechanical Christmas with the softer music of the shepherds and the angels. But before the shepherds and the angels there is the preparation, a preparation that is both negative and positive.

First there is the casting away of the works of darkness. They are the same as the works of the flesh of which St. Paul spoke. They are a thoroughly nasty list of sins, and we acknowledge that we must be rid of them before we can be ready to share in the rejoicing over the coming of the Son of Man. Then, having tidied up our lives, by the grace of God; being ready to take on the armour of light, which again is the same to all intents and purposes, as the fruit of the Spirit, then with calm confidence await Him. There is a lovely old prayer which begins: "God who makest us glad with the yearly remembrance of the Birth of Thine Only Son Jesus Christ, grant that as we joyfully receive Him as our Redeemer we may with sure confidence behold Him when He shall come to be our Judge."

All the readings of this weekend remind us not only that our Lord came in humility many centuries ago, but that He will come again in power and great glory at the end.

The prophets foretold the Coming of the Messiah many ages back; the angels gave the immediate warning, and finally John the Baptist tried to prepare the people for the Manifestation.

So today the Church is the voice of one crying in the wilderness of this world: "Prepare!" The written Word of God, and the visible Sacraments are offered as a means of preparation; the Ministry is there to present them but back of all is the grace of God to make the means effective.

Separatists. They pointed out with great logic, that if all Canadians spoke French their own attempts at secession could hardly be successful. As a result, the Movement has confined its efforts to a daring attempt to abolish the American "Z" from all Grade Three spelling classes.

'Go home, Yank'

Meanwhile, Dr. Grebe and his colleagues are working on a long-term plan to erect some sort of tariff wall between Canada and the U. S. as a first practical step to ultimate secession.

Such a wall was absolutely necessary, Dr. Grebe said, if this country is to develop and encourage local industry. He foresaw the day, for instance, when an independent Canada might even support a thriving textile industry, with looms in home workshops turning out simple garments of jute. Patriotic Canadians would be encouraged to wear this distinctive dress as a mark of their independence, he said.

Following Dr. Grebe's press conference, a second press conference was held by representatives of one of the affiliated groups - the Yellowknife and Coppermine Separatist Association - who outlined plans now under way to secede from the parent body.

Miss Michaela Cullen weds Jack A. Gleason

The marriage of Michaela Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lawrence Cullen, of Westmount, to Mr. Jack Arthur Gleason, of Bronxville, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shirley Gleason, of Harrisburg, Pa., took place in the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, Westmount, the Rev. Father Eric Smith officiating, Prof. J. E. Savaria played the wedding music, and Mr. L. P. Lecours sang during the service. The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of white poul de soie, having a fitted bodice with a high neckline and a bouffant skirt, falling in two panels from the waist into a double train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a poul de soie wreath of petals, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Master Alfred McCann Cullen, and Master Gregory Lyons assisted at the altar.

Mrs. Cullen, mother of the bride, was in a gown of avocado green silk brocade, fashioned on sheath lines with back fullness. She wore a hat of tiny green flowers, and a corsage bouquet of green cypripedium orchids.

The reception was held in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton, where arrangements of white flowers and greenery were used as decorations.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Gleason left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a two-piece frock of light beige wool under a beige wool topcoat, trimmed with white beaver, and wearing a white beaver hat and black accessories.

"Without their knowing where we came from"

"Sometimes just a visit" is how Mrs. Mary Daly of 5095 Hampton avenue, N.D.G. expresses part of the work being done by the N.D.G. Section of the Canadian Cancer Society, formed about 18 months ago.

"We manage to arrange a free transportation service when necessary in the area," she explained, "and we help a few patients, sometimes just a visit without their knowing where we came from." An important facet of the Society's work is making dressings for patients, which is part of the section's work, too.

"We often see that a family finds out where to go for the dressing service," she said.

Among the gifts the women have prepared for Christmas are bed jackets, socks, and fitted toilet bags, toys and books for children.

Meeting every Thursday at Mrs. Daly's home, the Section comprises a president, three branches (education, campaign and welfare) with chairmen for each. The group meeting Thursdays is the cancer dressing one, but all pitch in and help in other ways.

"All work is done by volunteers," Mrs. Daly said, "and no funds are provided by the Society, though we can average through the Society for funds for various services for needy patients."

But one of the needs is to find women who can spare a few hours a month; men, possibly retired who might wish to do a few hours driving a month, according to Mrs. Daly.

"And more important is to make people in N.D.G. aware of us when they need help from the Canadian Cancer Society," she concluded.

Dear Abby...

Oh Lady!

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about a man who has taken up a woman's time for 14 years "talking" about marriage, but using every excuse in the book to avoid it?

That is the story of my life, Abby. First, he couldn't leave his widowed mother. After she died he came down with allergies, and it took him two years of doctoring to discover he was allergic to rag weed and sunflower seeds. Now when I get after him to set a date he drives me around to "look at" houses and to "pick out" furniture, but that's as far as it goes. I will be 40 soon, and he is 46. Do you see any hope for marriage here? Please help me.

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Your boy friend still has an "allergy"—orange blossoms. Give him until Christmas to marry you. If you wind up with a stocking full of excuses, accept the fact that this man is "I do-proof," and act accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I am positively going out of my mind over a situation that has developed at my place of work. A woman who works with me constantly brags about her children, Abby, no matter what the topics of conversation is, she turns it back to her children. Their honors, their brilliance, their popularity, their superiority!!!

It is affecting my work. Other people in the office feel the same way about her, but no one wants to tell her what a bore she is for fear of hurting her feelings. Is there a solution?

FED UP TO HERE

DEAR FED UP: You can (1) avoid her as much as possible, (2) Level with her in a "friendly" way by telling her that she is overdoing the "commercials" on her children and, unless she wants to be entirely without friends, she should cut it out.

DEAR ABBY: I am the luckiest woman alive 364 nights of the year, but on New Year's Eve I wish I were dead!

We always go to the New Year's party at our club, and this is the one night my husband really lets all the bars down. He gets himself loaded, and makes a fool of himself kissing all the women. He tells me he loves only me, that it doesn't mean anything, but I get so jealous and mad I could choke him. What should I do this year? Should I tell him I can't take it any more and send him alone? I can't go through another New Year's Eve like the last five.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Level with your husband. Tell him you are going to invite a few couples in for a private New Year's Eve party. Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a husband who sends his wife a birthday card which reads, "TO MY SWEETHEART ON HIS BIRTHDAY" — and on the inside it says, "HAPPY BIRTHDAY, FELLA"? I was never so hurt in all my life to think that my husband didn't care enough about me to read the card more carefully before he sent it. What should I do?

VERY VERY HURT

DEAR HURT: Come on, now — your husband might have been in a hurry when he bought the card, but he DID think of you. If you can't bring yourself to kid him about his boo boo good-naturedly, forget it.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town and my problem is becoming so serious I think I will not have any peace of mind unless we move. We have four children (I will not mention their ages, but they are now all in school). There are four other children in the same school who look so much like my children that the teachers and students are forever getting them mixed up. Two of these children (not mine) were "adopted" and the other two are children of two families with whom my husband and I have had friendships of long standing.

People laugh and joke and gossip about this "coincidence." My husband laughs, too. But to tell you the truth, Miss Van Buren, I can't hold up my head any more.

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN DOUBT: I don't know what your husband does for a living, but whatever he does, he can do it in another town. Ask him to quit laughing and start thinking about relocating.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23, well-behaved and live at home. I give my mother half my pay check in return for room, board and laundry service — which is all right with me.

My problem is that I am treated as though I were still 16. I could move out and share an apartment with another girl, but I know my parents can use the money so I have continued to live at home.

When I come home from a date, the minute the car pulls up, my mother starts flashing the porch light off and on. It is very embarrassing for a girl my age. Have you any suggestions?

LIGHTNING BUG'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Your mother's signalling is childish. Tell her respectfully, that you have seen the light and if she doesn't stop embarrassing you in this manner you will move out.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is not unique. It's that age-old in-law problem. My in-laws couldn't be nicer, but I am getting sick and tired of seeing them. They come over every night of the week and all day Sunday. My husband and I both work, and when we get home at night we spend the entire evening entertaining his folks. Every Sunday I have to cook dinner for four. If we tell them we are having company, they come anyway, and share our guests. I really have nothing against them, but how can I let them know that too much is too much?

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: This is a "job" for your husband. He should tell them, in a nice way, that their visits should be less frequent. It's a touchy business which can result in serious problems later if it isn't corrected now.

Christmas Spree

Members of St. Thomas Anglican Church, Somerled avenue, are invited to come to the Christmas spree of the Double or Nothing Club, Friday at 8.30 p.m.

Young fry demand fancier presents

It doesn't seem so long ago that children were amused by the simplest of things, cards stacked as houses, and other simple devices guaranteed to hold their rapt attention for hours at a time.

But today the trend seems to be toward more and more complicated toys and more and more expensive ones.

The doting mother or father who tries to get away with simple Christmas presents this year will be hooted out of the house by the young fry, who are only too conscious of the "status symbol" effect of their gifts.

Across the border in the U.S. the youngsters can even get a chemistry set for which the ad says, "Have the fun of making your own nuclear explosive!" Now that Santa has rolled into town, a mammoth buying binge has begun that will account for a sizeable share of the $120 million expected to be spent in Canada this year on toys.

West End mothers will not be alone in racking their brains to decide what will give Junior the most pleasure.

A quick survey of the West End shops disclosed that for only $12.98 youngsters can build their own 3-D plastic globes. No glue is required, it simply snaps together with the finished product showing mountains and valleys in 3-D.

Dolls, have taken on a more glamorous air, with figures to make a beauty queen envious. They come complete at all prices with formal gowns, tiara, bathing suits and even with their own sun glasses!

And there is a beatnik doll, with long black hair, slacks and turtle neck sweater.

Not everything is expensive in the West End. There is a set of building materials which urges boys to "build the way real modern buildings are built." For only $5.95 they get polythene girders and plastic panels which can be made into skyscrapers, bridges, apartment buildings and other such edifices.

"Sketches" to entertain

A feature of the Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club upon meeting Friday afternoon at Victoria Hall, Westmount will be two dramatic sketches, called "Oriana's Nightmare" and "The Exhibition of Modern Painting" to be presented by monologist, Miss Doreen O'Brien.

There will be a Christmas basket collection for which members are requested to bring suitably wrapped gifts to be distributed by the Cheerio club for the blind and cancer patients.

Mrs. H. H. Schurman, president with Mrs. J. W. Craig, the 1st vice-president, and Mrs. J. A. McLay, 2nd vice-president, will receive members and their guests.

Tea hostess will be Mrs. W. A. Falconer. Mrs. F. H. Stanway and Mrs. Cecil Nelson will preside at the tea table.

Bank of Montreal has record year

Bank of Montreal resources, deposits and loans all reached new high levels in 1961, according to the bank's 144th annual statement for the year ended October 31, published this week.

The statement, covering the most active year's business in the B of M's history, shows resources increasing 13 percent over 1960 — or nearly half-a-billion dollars — to $3,950 million.

Deposits reached $3,647 million, up 14 percent from the $3,200 million figure of a year ago, and total loans rose nine percent to a record of $1,934 million.

The year's operations of some 890 offices at home and abroad produced record net earnings of $14,578,817, an increase of 2.5 percent over 1960. Taxes, also at a new high, amounted to $18,043,- 791, compared with $17,352,044 a year ago.

Dividend

The bank's 22,000 shareholders are receiving $12,453,750 of this amount, in dividends totalling $2.05 per share — five cents more than in 1960. The balance of $2,125,067, plus undivided profits of $1,150,859 from 1960, totals $3,275,926, and to this amount, the bank has added $2,000,000 from inner reserves after income taxes.

From the total of $5,275,926 in undivided profits, an amount of $4,000,000 has been transferred to the rest account, bringing it to $145,850,000, and leaving $1,275,926 to be carried forward.

"Quick" assets are shown at $2,042 million, an increase of $270 million compared with 1960, and representing 55 percent of B of M liabilities to the public of $3,742 million, versus 54 percent last year.

An increase of almost 30 percent in the "acceptances, guarantees and letters of credit" entry, from $59,721,096 last year to $75,792,918 in the current statement, indicates extensive growth in business being conducted abroad for B of M customers.

The value of premises is shown at $63,063,000, an increase of 13 percent over the 1960 figure of $55,661,000, an indication of the extent of the bank's building and modernization program.

FASHION

Trend is to shorty

No woman feels really well-dressed for a Canadian winter unless she has a fur coat.

But it's not a matter of warmth, according to authorities on the subject.

Like everything else today, it's a status symbol!

And don't think the Canadian beaver isn't suffering by comparison.

Time was if you owned a Beaver coat you were in the upper echelons of the better dressed, but not so today.

Today because of a different processing, beaver coats are more popular and less expensive, according to furrier J. M. Winters.

"The fur is not so long now and does not mat, and it's cheaper, than it used to be," said Mr. Winters.

The real status symbol in fur

IF ANYONE LOVES YOU ENOUGH to spend $900 on your Christmas present, try drooling over this picture in front of them! It is a finger-tip-length jacket of deep, deep brown ranch mink, cut from a Paris couture pattern to this simple shape; deep standaway collar, dropped shoulder line, big pockets.

coats remains the unsurpassed Winters said, "so jackets and shorter fur garments are popular."

"Not that mink is warm," he remarked, "but it sure warms the heart!"

Cools off the pocket book, though, one might say.

Women are buying more shorties and jackets in fur, again not with the thought of warmth, but keeping in mind style and the winter practice of stepping in and out of taxis and cars into the stores and restaurants.

"Women don't need as much protection now in the winter," Mr.

Why buy a fur coat at all? Why not cloth?

Said Mr. Winters wisely, "Because it makes the ladies feel like Cinderella."

Medicine discovers the teenagers in a new clinic at the Montreal Children's Hospital under the direction of Dr. John Elder, Sherbrooke street west. The new centre is not a psychiatric clinic, but it has a deliberate policy of sympathy toward its teenage patients.

Up to the present time, the pediatrician took care of babies and children up to the age of 15. Then the patient could no longer be hospitalized under the care of his familiar doctor because of the age limit imposed by children's hospitals, and the 15-year-old to 19-year-old had to be registered at a new hospital and turned over to a new physician.

This, added to the ailment of the patient, very often produced other symptoms. To alleviate this problem, and to help the teenager cope with the problems of growing up, the new clinic was established.

"The linkage of emotional and physical health is perhaps stronger in the teenager than at any other time of life" claims Dr. Elder.

"A boy's acne, a youngster's fatness, may just as likely be based in some emotional difficulty as in any physical weakness. A 14-year-old's headaches may stem not from a migraine condition or bad food, but from hating school. Intensely conscious of themselves and their development in all phases, the adolescent may fret over what he thinks is an abnormality until both physical and mental alertness are affected."

MRS. J. A. GARLAND, St. Catherine street west, chess player for more than 40 years, is one of the three female contestants taking part in the annual chess tournaments sponsored by the Montreal Branch of the Canadian Chess Federation. From Sunday November 12, for 12 consecutive Sundays (excluding time for holidays) games are held at the N.D.G. Community Hall.

"High school students, college students, and grown ups take part in the games every year" declared Mrs. Garland.

"The college girls were especially good players last year. If people would only not take the game so seriously, I'm sure there would be more people interested. Most of the time they sit very quietly, and partners are not allowed to speak or to make a sound. This makes everyone concerned more nervous, and the game is affected because it's harder to concentrate."

Outstanding players taking part in this year's tournaments are: Lionel Joyner, several years champion, who at one time played blindfolded against several members in a hall; Miss Doris Robertson, champion for about nine years; and Mrs. Turcotte from Dorval, who attended the tournaments for the first time this year, and showed remarkable capacity by winning games every time she was present. Prizes for final winners are usually cheques in the amounts of $45 or $25.

The gas station at Western and Victoria is one of this year's depots for donations of used and new toys which are repaired by firemen of the Montreal Fire Department. This annual drive is carried out to add a little bit of Christmas cheer to the lives of underprivileged children.

MISS SONIA CHAMBERLAIN, of the Staverton School of Dancing, St. Catherine street west, had some students who wished to have special instruction in curtseying, so that they could be gracefully presented to Governor General Vanier,

Unity Boys' Club

Excitement over, back to routine

Now that the excitement of Unity's two major special events is over for another year, club members have settled down to a regular routine of every day club life.

All arts and crafts classes have resumed, group clubs are holding their regular weekly meetings, the gymnasium is active once again with basketball, general gym, and gymnastics. The lending library is functioning, and both the senior and junior games rooms are attracting large numbers of boys and girls daily.

The staff is now working out details for the Christmas-time festivities when a gala party will be held for the small fry members, and a Christmas dance for the older teenagers. Watch this column for further developments.

Talent parade

The Unity Boys' Club talent parade is faced with a heavy schedule of entertainment commitments during the month of December. It actually started last Wednesday, when the group entertained at the St. Luke's Anglican Church in Rosemount.

On Thursday, December 7, the talent parade will perform at the University Settlement for the Dalse Welfare Club on behalf of the Multiple Sclerosis Organization.

Other events are on December 12, at the Ritz Carleton Hotel, for the Bell Telephone Company; on December 10, at Legion Hall, for the Guaranteed Pure Milk Co. Employees Association; on December 17, at the Police Athletic Club, for the Canadair Management Club; on December 26, at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, for the family day Christmas party of the Montreal Rotary Club; and on December 28, at Prospect House, for the Westmount Rotary Club.

The Unity Boys' Club talent parade provides entertainment to worthwhile organizations as a public service.

The talent parade is composed of youngsters who have talents in singing, dancing, and the playing of musical instruments. Musical Director is Fred Johnston.

Word has been received from the Flatbush Boys' Club of Brooklyn, New York, that a representative team in the juvenile age category will travel to Canada during Christmas week to play a series of basketball games with local clubs.

They have asked the Unity Boys' Club to host the visitors and act as liason in arranging other exhibitions.

The Unity Boys' Club has accepted the challenge because of its great interest in cementing relations with American Boys' Clubs, and also in fostering greater aspects in brotherhood and sportsmanship.

Details of games are to be worked out and announced as soon as possible.

The Unity Majorettes, under the capable leadership of Margaret Smythe and Carole Gill, continue to hold sessions every Saturday morning.

The Westmount YMCA is looking for weights to round out its weight room.

Wanderers II take rugger title

Wanderers II won the Quebec Rugger Union Intermediate League Play Off last week with a convincing 24-0 win over Ottawa II at Monklands.

In the first five minutes, play was mainly in the Wanderers' half of the field until their backs were given the ball and play was carried well into the Ottawa half of the field. A scrum followed and George McDonagh, the Ottawa wing forward was penalized for off side.

John Goodman kicked the penalty and Wanderers took a three point lead. Shortly afterwards

Ottawa was penalized again for handling the ball in the scrum and John Goodman again kicked the three points from a difficult angle.

Just before half time Goodman hit the crossbar when having a go at another penalty, but the Wanderers' forwards just stood and watched, allowing the ball to bounce back into play, and Ottawa was able to clear.

Ottawa power play

After the interval, Ottawa put on the pressure and it was only by good touch kicking by Lionel Varnish, the Wanderers, full back kept them from crossing the line.

Following a loose scrum on the half way line, Ian Morrison threw a long pass to John Taylor, the stand-off who cut inside, beat his opposite number and passed out to Jack Fergusson, for the latter to sprint down the middle, draw the full back and give the ball to Dino Casari on the wing.

Casari crossed the Ottawa line about ten yards ahead of everybody else and was all set for a score but for some unknown reason dropped the ball, but luckily for Wanderers, Jack Lewis, who was following up, dropped on the ball to score. Goodman added the points with the convert.

Two quick tries

The home team was now going at full speed and Ian Morrison scored two tries under the posts in quick succession following scrums on the Ottawa '25'. John Goodman was again on the mark with both kicks.

Just before full time, Wanderers were awarded a penalty about thirty yards from the Ottawa line and five yards from the touch-line, and John Goodman who was really in form, made it 24 points to nil for Wanderers.

This was the final score, but in the last five minutes Ottawa attacked strongly, using the 'Garry-owen' to advantage, but the Wanderers were always under the ball.

Wanderers stars

Goodman was the star player in the Wanderers' side kicking 15 points, with Morrison playing an elusive game at scrum half, giving John Taylor an immaculate service.

In the forwards, Flaherty at hooker won most of the set scrums and was ably supported by Barry Freeman and Andrew Lemaitre.

Wanderers II have now finished the season with a no loss record, having scored 126 points with only 35 being scored against them, which is their best season since 1959, when that old war horse, Tom Clarke, was captain.

Red Smith on sport

Ailments of the working press

Col. Red Reeder, of the Army Athletic Association, doesn't say how long it took to write this letter but apparently it was started last Sunday:

"Yesterday Joe Cahill, who shoulders the burden of running the West Point press box for our football games, telephoned me and said, 'Red, the 'Trib' is not staffing the game today and I'm up to my ears. How about giving me a hand?'"

"I was delighted. I have written 17 books and I felt confident. I could see The Only Living Left Tackle Who Studied Latin Six Years (nine years, Stanley Woodward says, Ed.) in his office reading my copy. I took along six new ball-point pens."

"When I arrived, the assorted geniuses of American letters were tuning up their typewriters. I thought of the only lead I could remember. Grantland Rice, one of the greatest sportswriters who ever lived, wrote it in 1924: 'Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again . . . Perhaps I could turnout something as stirring. Or maybe I'd write humor of the sort Tom Meany gets off. Earlier this year, when Army had twelve men on the field, he yelled at Joe Cahill, 'I thought you people stressed mathematics here.' I got ready to write."

The view from on High

"While the officials were going through their tableau to determine who would kick off and who would have the wind at their backs, I studied the William and Mary Football Yearbook, which is printed in green ink. In the November light it was already hard to decipher."

"The game was only a few minutes old and I had 50 unintelligible notes when Dan Henning of the Williamsburg Indians threw a long ball to his teammate, Ernie Phillips. A black jersey with Cadet Tom Culver inside leaped to knock down the pass. An official tossed a red handkerchief and did some calisthenics. An observer sitting nearby said, 'I don't think that was interference, do you?'"

"I didn't think. In order that this game be written into history accurately, I was busy recording the yard line on which the play started, who threw the pass, who the people were fighting for the ball, and what yard line the receiver was on. A sportswriter at a football game has to trust the officials. If they are no good he has to perceive this by osmosis."

A nice class

"When Dick Eckert, Army quarterback, was streaking downfield on a rollout, Col. Hank Adams, director of athletics, almost dislocated my shoulder with a friendly tap. By the time I recovered, Al Rushatz, Army fullback, was tackled on the W&M 14. I asked an usher how Army got there. This was a mistake. The usher sensed that I needed help and started to move into my seat. With the assistance of the usher, confusion grew. I knew the Old Curmudgeon of the 'Tribune' would smell bush league copy. I moved the usher back into the aisle."

"A man, so huge he had no difficulty forcing his way past the pressbox guards, plumped down beside me. I had met him about ten years ago. 'Red,' he said, 'just came up from Laurel, Miss. Saw your brother.' Eckert rolls out to the W&M 6. 'He had his Cadillac stolen.' (This branch of the Reeder family drives an old Chevrolet.) Rushatz gains a yard. 'It was parked out at the golf club.' Rushatz TD on dive left, 10-11. 'They found the car up in Arkansas. Its spare tire was gone and all the chrome stripped.' Key play in that drive, Rushatz for 28 yards. I exploded. I lost an acquaintance but I was back in the communal solitude of the press-box."

"At the half, I started back over my cold notes. Wally Girling, the clock operator, took pity on me and brought me two hot dogs, a cup of coffee, and a Coca Cola. My notes looked like frozen chicken tracks."

"Joe Cahill said, 'I just got a wire from Stanley Woodward. He has someone else covering.'"

Home is the author

"Joe Cahill said, 'I just received a wire from a paper in Oklahoma asking for 200 words. Will you write me two lead paragraphs?' The second half started and the note-taking went on. It would be a shame to mislead these people in Oklahoma."

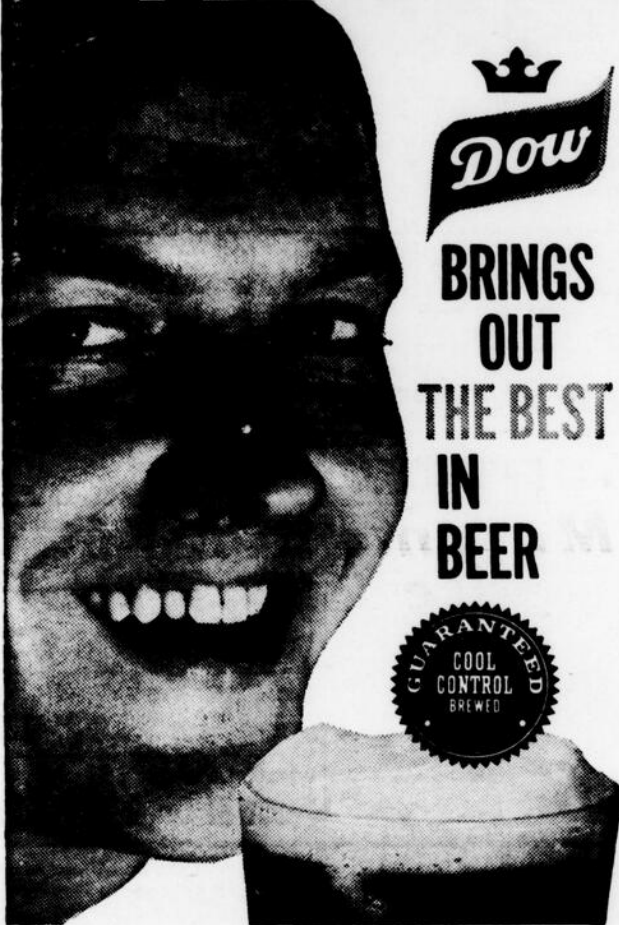

"It was dark when I left the stadium. I obtained a ride to my home, about a mile away. When I walked in, Dort said, 'Where in the world have you been? The game has been over an hour and a half.'"

"I've been writing two paragraphs for Joe Cahill and some cowboys out in Oklahoma."

"The kitchen and dining room were full of plebes about to bite into beef. It is against the rules here to set a Bad Example in front of plebes, so I went up to my study and reached under the skirts of a Morris chair where I keep a bottle of Old Bushmills that Gen. Babe Bryan gave me long ago. It is safe under that chair even from the cleaning woman."

"It was nice and quiet up there with just my books."
