'We had no choice'

Lennoxville's chief Wells to be replaced

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Kasimir Kryszak, of St. Michel, is the new Lennoxville Police Chief. Veteran Acting-Chief Russell Wells has been asked to resign.

Acting on the recommendation of the Quebec Police Commission, Lennoxville Council, in a special meeting Monday night, unanimously decided to hire Kryszak, a 32-year veteran with the Montreal Police Department.

At the same meeting the council unanimously passed a resolution demanding acting-chief Wells' resignation. The resolution called for the resignation as soon as possible.

Council police committee chairman Robert Nichol, who proposed the resolution that Kryszak be hired, said yesterday the new chief would begin work at soon as possible — probably within two weeks. In a telephone interview yesterday Kryszak said that he would begin work Monday.

Acting-chief Wells was informed of council's decision via a letter handed to him yesterday by Lennoxville municipal secretary-treasurer Jules Gervais. Last night he said his resignation would be forthcoming.

Nichol, in an interview yesterday said: "The council had no choice."

RECOMMENDED
The Quebec Police Commission had recommended Kryszak to us. They are experts and know what they were doing.

"None of us (the council) know that much about police work so we decided to accept their recommendation."

During the same discussion Nichol said there would probably be a job for Wells on the Lennoxville Police Force. "I don't know if he would accept a lower job but I think there will probably be one," the chairman said.

However Wells last night said that he wasn't sure if he would accept another job with the Lennoxville police. Although reluctant to talk about the decision Wells admitted he would "make up his mind on Monday" as to whether he will remain with the Lennoxville force.

'NO CHOICE'
"I don't have much to say," Wells commented. "I guess the council didn't have any choice."

Wells has been subject to criticism in the last few weeks because of his inability to speak French. A Sherbrooke judge recently threw a case out of court because Wells was only able to speak English. The case involved the detention pending trial of a French-speaking suspect.

"We weren't out to crucify Wells," Nichol commented. "He just couldn't communicate in French so we didn't have much choice."

Under existing conditions Lennoxville cannot employ Wells — who has occupied the acting-chief post for five years — as a policeman. Town bylaws limit the manpower in the Lennoxville police department to five.

BYLAW NEEDED
At present there are three constables, one officer and Wells. With the hiring of Kryszak the council would have to pass a new bylaw to be able to re-engage the acting-chief in another capacity.

However, The Record has learned that council is presently negotiating the hiring of an additional constable. The man, who lives in East Angus, is to be hired to replace one of the present policemen who will be sent to the Nicolet Police Academy this summer.

This means that council would probably be forced to pass a new bylaw to accommodate the new constable. An informed source said council will probably change its police bylaws next Monday.

Wells had been with the Lennoxville force for nearly 17 years. He started work with the local police in 1956 then left shortly afterwards. He returned to the Lennoxville Police Department in 1962 and has been with it since then.

COSTLY MOVE
The move by council will cost the municipality between $3,000 and $6,000 more per year. Wells was earning less than $10,000 a year and Nichol admitted yesterday: "It will cost us more than $10,000 a year to hire the new man."

Although Nichol declined to say how much more, one of the councillors said: "Kryszak will cost us about $14,000 a year but we think he is worth it."

If Wells is kept on the force and another constable is added the police department costs in Lennoxville could jump by as much as $18,000 a year, an informed source said yesterday.

The announcement of Kryszak's hiring comes just after Lennoxville council and the policemen's union reached an agreement. Secretary-treasurer Gervais said yesterday that the two bodies came to terms Tuesday night.

He said it is only a "matter of time" until a formal contract is signed. The signing would terminate four months of contract negotiations between the newly-formed Lennoxville Police Brotherhood and the town.

SOUGHT APPLICATIONS
The town, acting on the advice of the Quebec Police Commission, asked for applications to fill the Lennoxville police-chief post last November.

Nichol said Wells knew he wasn't going to be chosen as chief.

"I didn't even apply," Nichol remembered Wells saying. "The new chief was highly qualified and highly recommended," Nichol said.

"We didn't have much choice. It isn't as if we had something against Russ. We didn't have much choice," he repeated.

New chief: Experience and ambition

LENNOXVILLE — Kasimir Kryszak, 55, Lennoxville's new police chief, comes to the town with 32 years police experience and a lot of ambition.

In a telephone interview from his home in St. Michel, Kryszak, a Canadian of Polish descent, said he decided to come to Lennoxville because "it was a challenge."

"There comes a time in a department when you feel you are stagnating," he continued. "You are doing your best but you don't think you are going anywhere. You want to go somewhere and I think that going to Lennoxville is a challenge." Behind Kryszak is a world of police work qualifying him as one of Montreal's top detectives. "I am only interested in seeing justice done," said Kryszak, who is fluent in both English and French. "I went through the French school system so I am bilingual but I think that I am English at heart."

Lieut. Detective Kryszak will give up a job as head of the downtown Montreal detective squad to come to Lennoxville.

"I want to start anew and I want to start in Lennoxville," the father of two said yesterday. "I am coming to a place which is completely unknown to me. I want to make the Lennoxville police department something to be proud of."

"Some things have been neglected," he continued. "I know what I want — to make the Lennoxville police force into one no one can be ashamed of."

"I know that the people of Lennoxville are abiding citizens and I want to give them the service they pay for and deserve. I want to work with the other law enforcement forces but I want people in Lennoxville to feel safe."

Kryszak is noted for his efforts in both the police and social field. He was one of the organizers of the Juvenile Delinquent Office in Montreal.

He was a director of the first boys' club — the East End Boy's Club — in Montreal. He has worked on patrol, the armed robbery squad, the auto-theft squad and in police headquarters.

He was a liaison officer with the Social Welfare Court in Montreal as well as an instructor at the Montreal Police School. He was, at one point, head of the detective squad in Rosemount.

"I think I am qualified for the job," Kryszak concluded.

How Lennoxville got its new chief

LENNOXVILLE — The police chief question was brought about by the Quebec Police Commission; not by the Lennoxville town council.

● In a letter last year the police commission informed Lennoxville town council that a chief, not an acting-chief, was needed for the municipality. The commission informed the town that it should request applications from individuals for the post of police chief.

● The council requested applications and the different applicants were reviewed by the council and by the Quebec Police Commission. Finally the commission interviewed the candidates and recommended the hiring of Kasimir Kryszak.

● Acting on the advice of the Quebec Police Commission, which according to Police Committee Chairman Robert Nichol "knows what it is doing" the council, in a closed-session Monday night decided to hire Kryszak.

● "They know more about police work than we do," Nichol told The Record. "We listened to their advice because they are experts in the police field."

● The hiring of a new police chief was held up in Quebec because of illness. The council, at a meeting in early December, felt that a chief would be hired before Christmas.

● However the Quebec Police Commission employee who was looking after the case became ill and the decision was postponed.

BODY RECOVERED — The body of Roger Biron, 28, was recovered from what remains of the Manganese Steel Casting Plant yesterday morning. Fire destroyed the plant early Tuesday morning. Mr. Biron was the only person in the factory at the time of the fire. For more on the fireman's search, see p. 3.

Liberals face patronage charges

QUEBEC (CP) — The entire question period in the Quebec national assembly was taken up with questions about allegations of patronage Tuesday as Opposition members turned the heat on an already hard-pressed government.

The government was asked three times to call a sitting of the legislature's public accounts committee, the only committee which can summon witnesses and require documents to be tabled.

Each request had to do with a different case and each was turned down.

Opposition Leader Gabriel Loubier asked if the committee would sit to examine charges that a Montreal company was given a lucrative contract in an irregular manner for construction of a hospital in Asbestos, Que.

Remi Paul, Union Nationale house leader and Mr. Loubier's right-hand man in the assembly, asked the committee to sit to investigate plans, cancelled at the last minute, for leasing of a store in a shopping centre owned by Education Minister Francois Cloutier to the Quebec Liquor Corp., the government's outlet for alcohol sales.

Camil Samson, leader of the Creditiste party in the Quebec national assembly, asked the committee to look into allegations that a political organizer made a $74,300 profit on the purchase of a mill in Amqui, Que.

The buyer, La Societe Co-operative Agricole d'Amqui, was reported to have received a $74,300 government subsidy for purchase of the mill, with 75 per cent of the subsidy paid by the federal government.

Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay questioned the accuracy of the report about the hospital contract in Asbestos. But he confirmed that the government authorized an increase in the cost of the work to $475,000 from $250,000.

He also confirmed that the contract was let without a call for tenders, because the contractor was already engaged in other work at the hospital and the hospital board felt it would be best to have the additional work done by the same contractor.

Mr. Castonguay said the final cost of the additional work was $459,000, of which the general contractor's profit was 10 per cent. Subcontractors were chosen by tender, he said.

On the question of the Amqui mill, Gerard-D. Levesque, government house leader, said a federal-provincial committee made up of representatives of a number of bodies from both levels of government had evaluated the mill and approved the purchase price.

As for the profit made by the middleman, Mr. Levesque said it involved a "private transaction" which preceded the government's action in providing a subsidy.

Mr. Cloutier, replying to Mr. Paul's question about the shopping centre lease, said the centre has been administered by a trust company since January, 1970.

Third Gendron volume urges special program

QUEBEC (CP) — Programs designed to integrate immigrants into French-Canadian life and "selective" immigration are recommended in the third volume of the Gendron commission report, tabled in the Quebec national assembly Tuesday.

The report also recommends the government appoint an ombudsman to protect immigrants' rights, adopt a human rights charter and set up a human rights commission to guard against violations and all forms of discrimination.

The first two volumes of the report on the use of the French language also tabled in the national assembly Tuesday, were leaked earlier to Montreal Le Devoir.

They recommended that French become the official and working language of Quebec but that English retain legal status as a "national" language and no change be made in legislation allowing parents to determine their child's language of instruction.

Since coming to power in 1970, Premier Robert Bourassa has said no language policy would be prepared until the Gendron report was concluded.

When the report appeared, Education Minister Francois Cloutier said it would be a major part of any such policy but the government was not bound by it and could go farther if necessary.

CRITICS UPSET
The report's recommendation that no immediate changes be made in education legislation fuelled an attack by government critics who believe immigrants opt for the English system and should be forced to go to French schools.

In Ottawa, Heward Graffette (PC-Brome-Missisquoi) said the report will probably force the federal government to reconsider its bilingual districts proposals.

Prime Minister Trudeau had indicated, when the first two volumes of the report appeared, that the federal government would be examining it to detect where its recommendations might impinge on federal jurisdiction.

The Gendron report recommends setting up a permanent federal-provincial committee to improve immigrant recruitment by keeping Ottawa "aware" of Quebec's needs and priorities, channelling more complete information on Quebec to overseas immigration offices and streamlining immigration procedures in order to steer suitable immigrants toward Quebec.

The report also recommends the Quebec government support ethnic publications financially, using them to inform immigrants on French-Canadian culture, job opportunities and how to adjust to new institutions and customs.

WOULD PROTECT ETHNICS
Courses on French-Canadian culture should be given in English-language schools with similar instruction available for adults at convenient times; learning French and English should be obligatory; and the government should support privately-organized weekly classes of instruction in ethnic mother tongues, the report said.

The third volume also touches on the language rights of native peoples, recommending that Indians be educated on their own reserves and Eskimos within their own territory, with French-language instruction being introduced gradually into their school systems.

It suggests they be encouraged to conduct business co-operatives in French, but be left free to choose their language of work.

All derogatory and discriminatory references to Indians and Eskimos should be stricken from Quebec textbooks, it says.

The Gendron report is the work of a five-man royal commission headed by Jean-Denis Gendron, a Laval University linguistics professor.

Plenty at steak!

OTTAWA (CP) — How come that steak you can seldom afford costs about $1.59 or more a pound?

The Canadian Cattlemen's Association attempted to explain this Tuesday by pricing beef from the hoof at the ranch gate to the retailer.

Using prices of early this year, the association said in a brief to the Commons special food prices committee that a top-quality 1,000-pound steer nets the farmer 40 cents a pound, or $400 for the live animal.

The beast went to the packer who slaughtered it and got a carcass with about 585 pounds of usable meat. So he paid about 68.4 cents a pound for the meat he could sell.

He sold the carcass for about 70 cents a pound—a total of $409.50 and also picked up about $36 for the sale of by-products of the slaughtering—the hide and other inedible portions.

TRIMS FAT
The retailer, having paid $409.50 for the carcass, proceeded to trim off about 25 per cent of its weight—fat, gristle and bone.

Final test soon in budget battle

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government faces its third and final test of the six-day budget debate today when the Commons votes on a motion to approve Finance Minister John Turner's financial and economic proposals for the next fiscal year.

Continuing New Democratic support of such items as tax and tariff cuts and pension increases leaves little doubt the government will survive without trouble. The 140-111 defeat Monday of a Conservative budget amendment was a clear indication of this.

At times the number of members in their seats Tuesday drifted dangerously close to the 20 needed for a quorum in the 264-seat House.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was home with the flu and most other front-benchers filtered away early in the afternoon.

The floor was left to novice members, many of whom were making their first Commons speeches. The subjects raised seldom had anything to do with economics, but rules allow members to wander freely in their discourse.

Gus Mitges (PC—Grey-Simcoe) declared himself foursquare for national unity and berated members who use bilingualism for "political or personal gain."

In-laws reject handicapped husband

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago, at the age of 17, I told my parents I was going to become engaged to a man they despised. They tried to talk me out of it but my mind was made up. I should tell you that Robert was six years my senior and handicapped. They informed me that if I accepted a ring from him I must move out of the house at once. So I did, and moved in with Robert.

Eleven months later our child was born. We decided to get married three weeks after that by the justice of the peace. I phoned my mother, with whom I had had little contact those several months, and told her about the baby. She said she had heard the news and she and my father would like to see me but Robert was not welcome in their home. He is very hurt but he feels I should take the baby and go see them.

I don't know what to do, Ann. I know my folks are doing to see their first grandchild, but I hate to hurt my husband. Please advise.—Asunder in Ohio

Dear Asunder: Take the baby and go see them. In time perhaps they will relent and accept Robert. If you reject this invitation, it might mean a closed door for all time. Don't risk it. Now is the time to build bridges—not burn them.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding a recent letter about interrupting people who are speaking, you seem to think, Ann, that it makes for a lively conversation when one person gets fired up and wants to hop in and say something. Where I was raised that was called "butting in."

When someone butts in on me it means he thinks what HE has to say is more important than what I am saying. When this happens I clam up or leave.

It has been my experience that the windbags who interrupt most frequently are the biggest bores. If I have to horn in when someone else has the floor in order to say something, I'd just as soon not speak.—One Who Waits in Calgary

Dear One: I've said it before and I'll say it again. In most spirited conversations, if someone didn't interrupt the speaker he'd probably go on forever. Usually I don't mind being interrupted. When I do mind, I'll say so and refuse to yield the floor. I respect their wishes.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 18-year-old girl and am writing about a very unusual problem. I have a brother who is seven years older than I but who acts like a ten-year-old.

We each inherited $15,000 from our grandmother about six months ago. The way he acts you'd think it was a million. The first thing he did was buy some goldigger tramp a fur coat and a very expensive piece of jewelry. She dropped out of sight a few weeks later. Yesterday he gave another girl his car because he is going to buy another one for himself. He says this is sort of an engagement present, which is ridiculous. The girl is still married. Last night he informed me that he is running a little low on cash and asked me to lend him $1,000. His ex-girlfriend needs an abortion. He says he is desperate. What should I do? —In A Spot

Dear Spot: He says he's desperate? He's also nuts. Don't lend him any money—unless he needs it for psychiatric treatment. This I would approve. Confidential to all readers who wrote to say: "Don't turn off the ignition if the accelerator is stuck": My advice was OK for the older models, but cars with power steering are another matter. Turning off the ignition will lock the steering wheel. Better shift into neutral and use the brakes.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room for one more letter about the wisdom of an adopted child locating his "real" parents? I hope so because I have a story to tell.

When our lovely daughter was 15 she made an announcement that floored her mother and me. This shy but pretty girl, no more than a child herself, said, "I am pregnant." Our whole world collapsed, but we were determined to stand by her and keep the child, if possible. Our minister helped with a plan.

We sent our daughter to friends in a distant state. She was in her fourth month and not showing.

My wife was 38 years old at the time and our youngest child was nine. We confided to our friends that we were trying to adopt a child. When our daughter had her baby my wife went out and brought them both back. The story was that we had adopted a child from an agency and our daughter had spent several months in Europe.

To day we are thrilled we have this little one. Our daughter is happily married and has two children of her own.

At times we are tempted to tell our little darling that she is not an adopted child but we dare not do it for fear of damaging the lives of several people.

Tell "Confused" not to try to uncover secrets. It might break somebody's heart and cause untold sorrow. I remain, of course, anonymous, but sign me—Luckier Than Most Dear Lucky: Here's your letter, an unusual one, to be sure, but the basic concept is one with which I agree. Not everyone could have pulled it off, but how wonderful that it worked for you. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann: Recently you wrote that when you saw a pre-schooler standing on the seat of a car while waiting for a stop light, you were tempted to roll down your window and shout, "Don't you care what happens to your child?"

I do better than that, Ann. When I see a youngster with his arm hanging out a window or standing on a seat, I write a postal card addressed to the car's license number and send it to the State Highway Department with a request that they forward it to the owner. I write thereon: "I saw you risk your child's life today, Saturday, February 3rd. Please be more careful."

I realize my cards might never reach the drivers, but I feel better knowing I tried. Please pass on the suggestion.—Lubbock, Texas Reader

Dear Lub: In Illinois this is how such complaints are handled: The State Highway Department forwards the card to the Information and Education section of the Illinois State Police. This department

U. of S. arts students vote to strike

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter
SHERBROOKE — Law students at the University of Sherbrooke voted yesterday afternoon to strike in protest against the new government regulations demanding tuition fees be paid at the beginning of each school year. At an assembly held earlier in the day, the faculty of Business Administration at the university voted against strike action.

Despite an anti-strike vote last week by all the students at the University the students on the faculty of Arts decided Monday to join their compatriots at the University of Montreal and the University of Quebec in Montreal who have been on strike for several weeks. The earlier vote against the strike, taken last Thursday, was declared illegal because it was alleged that students from the University of Montreal and Sherbrooke CEGEP participated. SEPARATE VOTE It was decided by the Student Association that each of the faculties should vote separately on the issue. Applied Science students and Medical students in the University of Sherbrooke have not yet held meetings to vote on the proposed strike.

Government regulations specifying that students pay tuition fees at the beginning of the year have come as a shock to many students, especially those in Montreal who have been allowed to postpone payment of fees until their graduation.

Students in the University of Sherbrooke have until now been permitted to pay tuition fees at the end of each semester with the provision that fees are paid before they can obtain end-of-term results.

For the year 1973-74, however, they would be required to pay the full year's tuition fees at the beginning of the year, which would cause the students a great deal of hardship — even those with grants from the government — it was reported.

Sherbrooke's garage mechanics' strike and the strike at Bruck Mills, Sherbrooke may become the strike capital of Quebec. (Record photo: W. McMullen)

NO WARNING GIVEN Students also feel they should have been warned of this new regulation earlier by the Minister of Education, Francois Cloutier, in order to prepare for it.

University of Sherbrooke students hope that the strike will force the administration of the university to declare their opposition to this new measure to the Minister of Education.

So far, the administration of the university has made no declaration on the subject, a representative of the Research Committee to Study Tuition Fees said at the assembly of the Faculty of Law yesterday.

Methods of tuition payments proposed at the meeting of the Faculty of Law yesterday were that students should be permitted to pay their tuition fees three years after they have completed their courses.

Body found in ruins of fire

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Fire inspectors combed through the debris of the Manganese Steel Casting plant yesterday in an attempt to determine the cause of the fire which claimed one life.

The plant, which employed between 30 and 40 persons, was completely destroyed by flames early Tuesday morning. The body of 28-year-old Roger Biron was removed from the ruins shortly after 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Biron was the only employee in the plant when the fire erupted. No officials from the company, owned by Cliff Singleton, were available for comment yesterday.

A spokesman for the Sherbrooke Fire Department said yesterday: "The cause of the fire has not yet been found. There is a possibility that it was caused by an explosion."

No estimate of total damages has yet been determined. "The damages are heavy but I can't give you an exact figure," the spokesman said.

Firemen received the first alarm at 1:05 a.m. Tuesday. Two additional alarms were sounded shortly afterwards. "There were more than 40 firemen fighting the blaze," the department spokesman said.

Sherbrooke police constable Marcel Samson was injured when an overhead electric wire fell on him. He was in satisfactory condition at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital yesterday.

Firemen remained on the scene throughout the day yesterday pouring water on the plant's ruins. Although the walls remained intact all of the interior and roof of the building, situated on Abenakis street, was destroyed.

$16,000 granted for work in Coaticook area

COATICOOK (WM) — A local initiative grant of $16,200 has provided outdoor skating rinks for three elementary schools and jobs for six unemployed people with enough funds left over to help older or handicapped people with house repairs and snow ploughing. And there is still money to clean churches and schools.

The project, organized by the Coaticook Community Improvement Association, was the brain-child of Paul Wright, principal of North Hatley, Coaticook and Ayer's Cliff Elementary Schools.

Mr. Wright applied for the grant at the end of November and received notification that the application had been accepted by the federal government at the beginning of this month.

"The first priority was the skating rinks for Coaticook, North Hatley and Ayer's Cliff elementary schools," Mr. Wright said yesterday. "We applied to Manpower and hired six local people who were out of work to make the rinks and to look after them."

Sherbrooke bankers discuss fraud

SHERBROOKE — Some 75 Sherbrooke and area bankers today attended a seminar dealing with the problem of frauds committed against banks.

This seminar, conducted jointly by the Institute of Canadian Bankers council in Sherbrooke and by Michael Ballard, director of security of The Canadian Bankers' Association, featured panel members from the Sherbrooke Police Department, members of the Quebec Police Commission and representatives from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. "The fraud problem is of significant importance in large metropolitan centres," according to Ballard, "but it is also one which prevails in smaller centres especially where there is a large influx of tourists, as well as in industrialized areas. "We are grateful to the Sherbrooke ICB Regional Council for this opportunity of discussing the fraud problem with local bankers. "More is lost each year through fraudulent operations than through the highly-publicized bank holdups which, in any case, have significantly decreased over the past years," he concluded. In the Sherbrooke area alone, there are more than 200 banker-students enrolled for individual courses at the University of Sherbrooke.

Organizer 'overjoyed' at decision COWANSVILLE (JD) — "I am overjoyed Dr. Goldbloom has seen fit to conduct an investigation into the urban renewal grants given Cowansville by the provincial government," said J. Noel Parenteau, chairman of the recently-formed Citizens' Committee. "His approval of our project, even before presentation of the petition, indicates he realizes our complaints are sound." Mr. Parenteau indicated the previously-mentioned global sum of $4.5 million was an exaggeration.

"The overall figure was $3,727,821 of which $2,795,865 came from Ottawa and Quebec and the remaining $931,956 from local taxpayers." Over 400 citizens endorsed the Citizens' Committee at a meeting Sunday when the executive called for a provincial investigation into the town's financial structure.

Dance on Saturday

NORTH HATLEY — A dance will be held at the North Hatley Elementary school on Saturday night, March 3, from 9 p.m.-1 a.m., sponsored by the School Committee.

Music will be generously provided by Albert Nutbrown's Orchestra. The proceeds will hopefully provide funds for the older students to take a trip to Ottawa. Admission is $1. for adults; $0.50 for children 12 and under.

HERE & THERE KNOWLTON A Pancake and Sausage supper will be served up in the Legion Hall, Main Street, Knowlton, on Shrove Tuesday, March 6, from 5:00 p.m. onwards. This annual event is prepared and cooked by the Legion Chefs and is always well patronised and a happy event.

Plans set for prayer week BORDER (IH) — Alert in our time is the theme for the 1973 World Day of Prayer. This is a day set aside when people the world over join as one in a day of prayer.

Here at the Border a bilingual, ecumenical service will be held on March 2 at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Derby Line at 7:30 p.m.

Msgr. Joseph Dussault, of Newport, a former pastor at St. Edward's, will be the speaker. Members from the congregations of St. Edward's, Stanstead South and Centenary United Churches; Christ Anglican, Stanstead; Our Lady of Mercy, Rock Island, Sacred Heart, Stanstead, and the Universalist Church of Derby Line will conduct the service in French and English.

There will be special music. These arrangements are by the Altar Society women of St. Edward's. All are urged to attend. After the service there will be a gathering in the parish hall with continued Christian fellowship.

president of the Sherbrooke Branch; Reverend Canon John Franklin, president of the ministerial association, and Gerald Armstrong, vice-president of the campaign.

Investigation into Farnham fire

FARNHAM (CC) — Specialists attached to the Quebec Police Force Arson Squad in Montreal were called in late yesterday afternoon to determine the cause of a fire which destroyed a local hotel here Tuesday.

The fire, which erupted at 5:05 a.m. Tuesday, left the Blue Bird Hotel in ruins. A fire department spokesman told The Record the arson squad had been called in but the exact cause of the blaze which left more than $125,000 in damages is not known.

"The hotel is in ruins," the spokesman said. "It has practically all fallen down." More than 40 firemen from the combined volunteer forces of Farnham and Bedford fought the flames for over four hours before bringing the flames under control.

"The last truck left the scene at 5:30 p.m.," the spokesman said. "Many of the men had left earlier." Farnham Fire-chief Guy Guertin directed the firemen's efforts.

Police in Farnham had not yet been able to determine the hotels owners late last night.

"They're from out of town and we don't know who they are yet," a police spokesman said.

The hotel, which is situated near the Canadian Forces Base, had only been re-opened for five months after having been closed for more than three years.

Before re-opening, the 15-room hotel had been completely renovated. Firemen said that the approximately 20 persons, who were in the building when the fire broke out, were able to flee safely.

Approximately five hotel employees have been left jobless.

The Ides of March

Three months after the Fanfare of Europe solemnly ushered Britain, Denmark and Ireland into the enlarged European Common Market, the Nine of Western Europe watch anxiously the gathering French storm. Will their fragile, and by no means finished, craft weather it? Or will the beautiful dream be shattered by a rude awakening when, early next month, Communists and their Socialist allies assume power in France, beginning thus a disintegration of the free-enterprise, democratic liberalism that represents the philosophical foundations of the European Community? It is a frightening thought, and neither the opinion polls nor Raymond Aron's brilliant but sombre analysis of France's prospects under a Socialist-Communist regime offer much comfort.

The joint Communist-Socialist program provides for immediate nationalization of all financial institutions and of the private industrial sector that accounts for four-fifths of France's exports. It also provides for free union action on company time within industries that have remained in private hands, and which will be subjected to a special surtax. Since France's largest labor union group is Communist-led, it would mean that in a Socialist-Communist coalition power would be divided between a powerless government, presumably dominated by the Socialists as the major party, and industry, where the Communists would rule supreme.

France's frontiers would be closed — in defiance of the Community rules — to prevent a flight of capital. Multinational corporations would be expropriated. Francois Mitterand, the Socialist leader and would be prime minister, has said that if he had to choose between freedom and power, he would unhesitatingly choose freedom.

But how freedom is to be guaranteed by Mr. Mitterand's Communist partners, who are all unrepentant Stalinists, is as much a question as is the promise of a "Japanese type" economic growth pledged by the new "popular front." "How can one increase government expenditure to an unprecedented level," asks Mr. Aron, "expropriate shareholders, nationalize all credit institutions and still maintain a growth economy and participate in the building of a free Europe?"

Castro in Cuba did not wish to have the harvesting of sugar cane handed over to the army, nor did Allende desire to ruin Chile's economy. Growth, Mr. Aron remarks, may not be a universal panacea, but one begins to appreciate its virtues — as one does those of freedom — only when it is no longer there.

For the first time in this century France's economy is surpassing that of all its advanced competitors. This then, Mr. Aron writes, is the moment France's Socialists, schizophrenic and undaunted, have chosen to impose upon the country the ideas of their grandfathers, ideas that had failed miserably wherever they had been applied.

President Pompidou has hedged on what he would do were a Socialist-Communist majority elected. He has a number of options open to him, and the secretary-general of the Gaullist party, Alain Peyrefitte, warned that it was unlikely.

Mr. Pompidou would hand the reins of government to the new "popular front." Georges Marchais, the leader of the French Communists, retorted that if "the masses were to be robbed of their victory" he would call out "workers and democrats" — people's democrats presumably — "to ensure that law and democracy are respected."

The second, decisive, round of the French general election, on March 11, takes place four days before the Ides of March.

Protectionist bill causing apprehension here

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Burke-Hartke bill, probably the most protectionist legislation proposed in the United States in the last 40 years, is sending a ripple of fear through Canadian labor and business.

Although not aimed specifically at Canada, the bill—which has yet to come up for debate in the Senate or House of Representatives—is seen by influential Canadian labor leaders as a potential blow to the solidarity of major international unions.

And some of its tax-credit proposals have shaken U.S.-based multi-national corporations with large investment abroad.

The bill likely will surface in a few weeks in the ways and means committee of the House, where it is sponsored by Boston Democrat James A. Burke. The Senate—where the bill is sponsored by Democratic Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana—likely will defer hearings until the House has dealt with it.

The bill would put quotas on all U.S. imports and place heavy penalties on American foreign investments.

It would repeal the foreign tax credit meaning—broadly—double taxation on foreign earnings. The multi-national corporations of the U.S. employ about one-third of the Canadian industrial labor force.

There are specific proposals to limit the outflow of technology and prohibit any U.S. patent holder from manufacturing the patented product abroad.

PROVIDES FOR QUOTAS
It would provide permanent quotas, based on an average of imports during 1965 to 1969 period, that might require other countries to reduce exports to the U.S. by as much as $15 billion overall annually.

Proposals of the bill go too far for the Nixon administration and the president has gone a long way to try to improve White House communications with the AFL-CIO before bringing down his own trade propositions which still are in the drafting stage.

The Burke-Hartke bill was first proposed in late 1971. It lay dormant during 1972 as legislators—in an election year—steered clear of its controversial proposals.

Representative Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House ways and means committee where the bill will get its first test, is an opponent of the proposed legislation.

Although not a protectionist, the Arkansas Democrat has proposed his own solution to the current trade troubles—a 15-per-cent import surcharge to provide "a needed impetus to serious action" on monetary reform and to correct the deficit in the U.S. balance of international payments.

"If the administration and other governments were to take action calculated to inspire confidence that a resolution was reasonably at hand, I would be the first to call for removal of the surcharge."

Hartke, on the other hand, isn't prepared to go that far. For one thing, Hartke is displeased with the Canadian auto pact and "he thinks that that agreement should be looked at again," one of his aides says.

For the last two or three years the U.S., under the agreement with Canada, has been importing more cars and parts from north of the border than she has been exporting in that direction.

When the Canadian situation is raised, Hartke says he does not feel Canada should have automatic exemption for two reasons:

1. There is flexibility enough in the bill for the president to amend such reductions in quotas as he sees fit.

2. "We do have a serious imbalance of trade with Canada."

Experts claim it would not be permissible for the U.S. to exclude one country from trade measures under an omnibus bill without being in conflict with its obligations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—and GATT bargaining is to resume later this year.

Labor claims that almost a million American jobs were lost during the 1966-72 period as a result of the increase of imported goods from low-wage areas such as Taiwan, Korea, Japan and Mexico. Many of these products were produced by branches of U.S.-based multi-national corporations favored by U.S. tax laws.

AREA IS SENSITIVE

These tax credits—which exempt such corporations from taxation of funds paid in taxes to the host country—comprise one of the most sensitive areas under the Burke-Hartke bill so far as business is concerned.

Pressure has been such that Senator Hartke said recently he may leave this situation untouched.

The Burke-Hartke bill, containing as it does major AFL-CIO proposals, is seen by some as legislation written by big labor. Certainly the bill has strong AFL-CIO support in the U.S.

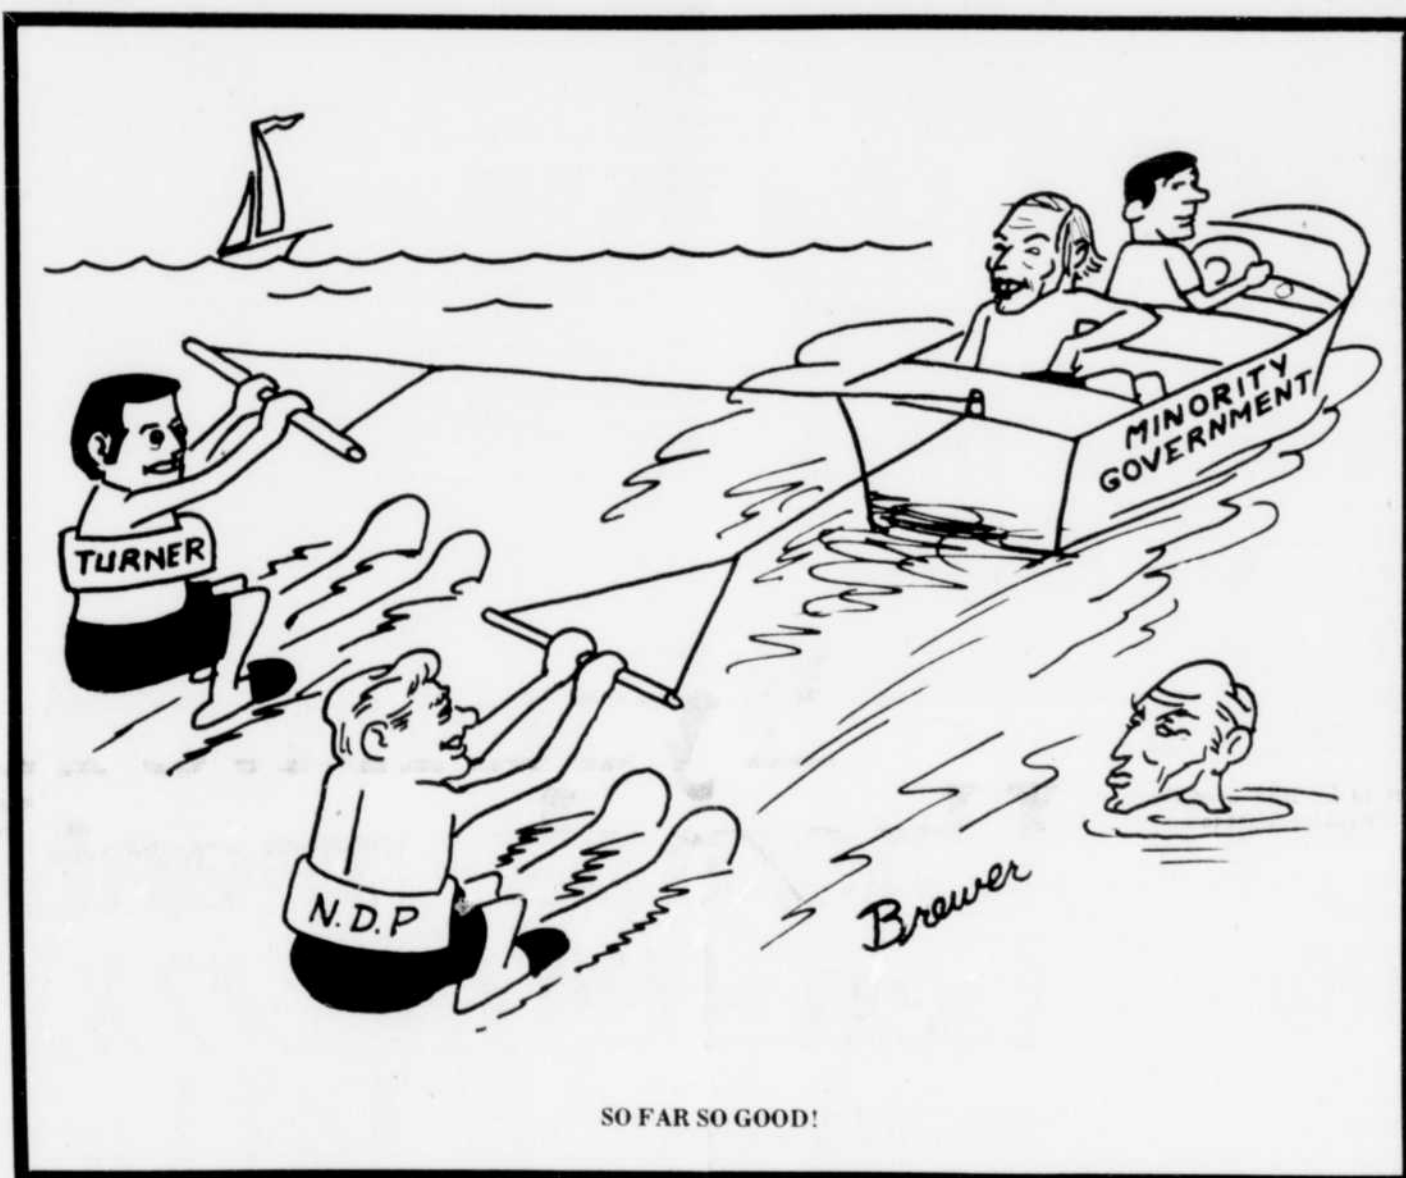

Conversely, it's big labor in Canada that is in the forefront of opposition to some of the measures which—it feels—could have a devastating affect on Canada.

And U.S. labor is worried that President Nixon may use his rapport with the Democratic-oriented AFL-CIO to win extraordinary tariff-raising and quota powers from the Democratic-controlled Congress. Whether he would then use such powers to the extent that big labor would like him to is where the worry comes in.

Across the border, the Canadian Labor Congress has denounced the Burke-Hartke concept in strong terms.

In a recent statement, the CLC said:

"There is no doubt whatsoever that the AFL-CIO position on the bill is aggravating existing tensions in the international union movement."

Trudeau's choices

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — Having stolen from the programs of his opponents all he deemed necessary for avoiding a quick defeat in the House of Minorities, Prime Minister Trudeau has to choose between going to the country within a few weeks or abandoning the course of fundamental socio-economic changes he charted for Canada after his 1968 election victory.

There are two schools of thought on Parliament Hill about the PM's intentions.

One, which sees Trudeau as a pragmatist concerned primarily with preservation of power for his party, expects the PM to pay any price for staying in office for at least two years, and perhaps longer if possible.

The other school, which regards Trudeau as the first ideologically motivated prime minister in Canada's political history, expects him to call, or if need be force, an election very shortly.

I find the reasoning of the "pragmatists" unconvincing. For if Trudeau were concerned, as they maintain, solely with keeping his party in power by any and every means available to him, he wouldn't have systematically forced on the country policies he knew a great many Canadians would find disturbing.

Nor would he now be displaying programmatic bankruptcy by stealing sound reform ideas wherever he can find them.

A pragmatic politician need not necessarily be an all-out opportunist. He may, occasionally, defy public opinion with momentarily unpopular measures he considers to serve the best long-term interests of the country. But he would never seek to implement purely theoretical conceptions which fly in the face of reality rooted in the moral and political values that have shaped the social structure of free man.

Only a man who follows a path charted by ideological preconceptions of "social change" would systematically and relentlessly pursue goals incompatible with the fundamentals of his country. And that is what Pierre Trudeau, estranged in the intellectual arrogance of his penthouse socialism from the people who put him in power, has been doing between June 1968 and October 1972.

Convinced of setting Canada on what his ideological obsession makes him believe to be the "historically inevitable" course of regimented collectivism, he miscalculated the force of resistance his thrust would generate.

All the concessions to reality and common sense Trudeau has made since his rejection by the majority of voters in nine out of 10 provinces last fall have been dictated — not by some miraculous conversion to genuine pragmatism, but by the tactical necessity of survival for return to the temporarily untenable ideological course.

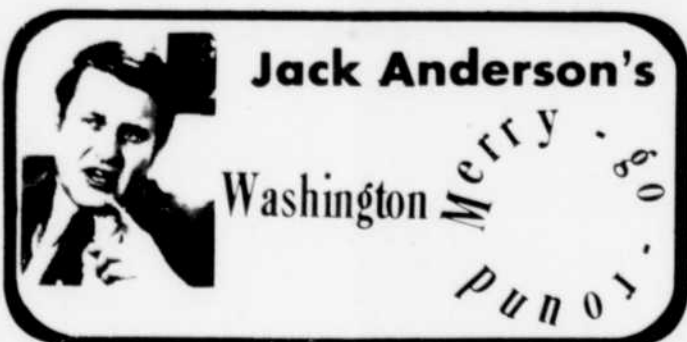

If this assessment of Trudeau's political makeup is correct, then he really has no choice but to gamble on an early election.

The alternative of clinging to office in the present impotent position, though perhaps feasible in view of the determination of the NDP Parliamentarians to postpone the next election for as long as possible, would entail giving more ground to the Opposition groups and to the pragmatists in his own party than Trudeau's survival tactic meant to cede. It would happen only if the anti-Trudeau Liberals felt strong and confident enough to force such a course with the hope of changing the leadership of their party before the next election.

While the anti-Trudeau Grits have found spokesmen in Cabinet and caucus after the October election, as yet there are no definite signs of a palace revolt in the making. The possibility of the PM being overruled by his colleagues and forced to do their bidding seems remote.

Assuming that this situation will not change in the next few weeks, the timing of the next election will be essentially Trudeau's decision. And assuming that he intends to resume his ideological thrust if his anticipation of fooling the electorate with "pragmatic" window-dressing into voting him back into a secure majority position proves correct, he'll go to the country this spring. The budget is clearly geared to a June election, for the commencement of higher pensions and personal income tax reductions has been set for April when the campaign for a June polling date would have to start.

Nixon's warning helped

WASHINGTON — The real reason for the rapid warming of Chinese-American relations, according to sources who have talked to President Nixon, is that the United States has used its impact with Moscow to forestall a Soviet attack upon China.

We were the first to report on June 12, 1969, that hard-liners in the Kremlin were contemplating a preventive attack on China's nuclear works. Our story has been confirmed by a number of top journalists with access to the Kremlin's inner politics.

This was on President Nixon's mind when he sat down with Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, in Moscow last May. The two leaders discussed their national interests in the frankest possible terms. By laying their cards on the table, the President hoped to prevent any future misunderstanding that might lead to war.

He surprised Brezhnev by warning that the United States would consider a Soviet attack upon China to be against our national interests. This was another way of saying that the United States might be compelled to intervene.

Brezhnev responded with equal bluntness by demanding who had made the United States the arbiter of disputes between Communist countries. Nixon replied that a war between Russia and China would shake the world and endanger world peace.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko made a joke about "throwing in Cuba for good measure" and the discussion ended in good spirits. But Moscow got the message.

Henry Kissinger has informed the Chinese of the American attitude toward a Chinese-Russian war. This has improved U.S. standing in Peking.

The Russians, meanwhile, are highly suspicious of Kissinger's activities in Hanoi and Peking. The President will reassure Moscow, however, that the United States is merely protecting its own interests and not working against Soviet interests in Asia.

Those who are familiar with the President's diplomatic maneuvers say he is totally dedicated to creating a world balance that will ease tensions and preserve peace.

PHILLIPS VS. POOR
Last Tuesday, thousands of poor people stood on Capitol Hill to let President Nixon know they were "somebody."

In reply, Howard Phillips, the appointed executor of the nation's anti-poverty programs, will troop up to Capitol Hill next week and let all those "somebodies" know why the President is cutting off funds for the poor.

To prepare for what should be an ordeal for Phillips, the young conservative has hired a because each had at least one top Republican official in office, according to the affidavits.

SPECIFIC INSTRUCTIONS

OEO official Elizabeth Goud swears in her affidavit that she and other field representatives were given specific instructions on how to nominate community action agencies for the grants.

They were told, she claims, to list the political affiliation of the local officials seeking the grants. Adds Ms. Goud: "A number of staff persons questioned our having to provide partisan political information of this nature."

When staff members protested to regional director William Walker and his deputy John Dyer, Ms. Goud quotes Dyer as saying "the information had been requested because he and the Regional Director were trying to be realistic and secure the maximum number of grants for our region."

Dyer said he could not get a grant through that was "straight down the line Democrat."

Asked who the selecting official would be, he replied it would be Howard Phillips.

Footnote: Both Walker and Dyer deny that the grants were made on a partisan, political basis. "We never asked for party affiliations," said Walker. "The list was compiled only to make sure that the mayor or congressman in the city that received the grant was not strongly against the experimental program." A spokesman for Phillips denied any wrongdoing.

Rustic donkeys protest use of "Horsepower" in CBC programs

OTTAWA (CP) — When the CBC news got over-serious about whether Toronto city fathers would appease women voters by eliminating the phrase "man-days" from official use, the corporation received a telegram roughly to this effect:

"We, the members of the Donkey Association of Western Quebec, protest the use of 'horsepower' in CBC programs."

"Signed, Charlotte and Apricot Jennings."

Retired CBC vice-president Charles Jennings, who spent most of his working life trying to keep CBC affairs in perspective, had struck again from his 50 acres at Lucerne, Que., where donkeys Charlotte and Apricot are part of his rustic layout.

It was just by way of letting his old employer know that Mr. Jennings, a single-minded devotee of program quality long after he left the studios for the life of inter-office memos in the executive suites, still had his mind on the shop.

HAD MANY ROLES

In a 43-year career that was a mixture of dedication and irreverence for the sacred cows, the amiable Mr. Jennings had been everything from golden-voiced announcer to general manager of regional programs. He was one of the young broadcasters who helped put the CBC together in 1936 and he was 63 when he retired Oct. 31, 1971.

Older Canadians may remember him as the authoritative though disembodied voice of CBC radio news of the 1930s, more portentous even than that of Lorne Greene, a successor who became the international father figure of Bonanza.

Though he moved to the anonymity and paper mountains of administration years before retirement, he says he still firmly believes in the view expressed by the 1965 Fowler committee on broadcasting:

"The only thing that really matters in broadcasting is program content; all the rest is housekeeping."

"System analyses, charts and computers are not his meat," a former colleague says of the retired executive, who had a philosophic rather than bureaucratic approach to broadcasting and whose disenchantment with some of the upper workings of the corporation sometimes showed in offbeat ways.

RESEARCHED TOILET

There was the time, for instance, when a higher-up applied considerable executive talent to a memo on the evils of water wastage from a toilet at Ottawa headquarters.

Mr. Jennings called up the fire department and got enough facts and figures for a mildly devilish piece of counter-propaganda good enough to take up the attention of Max (Rawhide) Ferguson, the CBC's resident satirist and a man of similar sympathies.

Another yarn told by friends is of Mr. Jennings giving a hotshot titleholder an uncomfortable time by paying a quiet visit to the rear of his office radio. When the pre-transistor machine was turned on, its warmed-up tubes soon sent out the ripe aroma of old Limburger along with the CBC's latest.

"Charles Jennings is the only sensible man in the CBC — the only one who has discovered how to enjoy it without marrying it," an acquaintance said during his working years.

DUBBED THE SQUIRE

Around the CBC, the tall and florid Mr. Jennings went in for tweeds that gave him the appearance of a British country squire. In fact, some referred to him as The Squire, though not within earshot.

Bluff and breezy externally, he brought considerable erudition to the job—though a college dropout—along with an attachment to program originality and creativity without gimmicks.

He stepped into programming from Trinity College in Toronto in 1928, joining radio station CKGW, whose last two letters stood for Gooderham and Worts, the distillery owning the station.

His first job, as he puts it, was to broadcast "the glad message of Gooderham and Worts" across Lake Ontario to the prohibition-parched United States, where it arrived concurrently with moonlight cargoes of Canadian whisky.

In an analogy along that line, a former co-worker observes: "He was a 20-per-cent-overproof broadcaster. In earlier days he was great at the microphone but, much more important, he always had a sure sense of what is good broadcasting and what is not."

Says another, paraphrasing the apostle Paul:

"Though we speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not Charles, we are become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

His preoccupation with the serious side of radio leaned to uplifting quality in talks, drama and music. Though himself no musician, he announced Toronto Symphony Orchestra programs for years and developed many close associations in the music world. He also twisted the CBC's arm to have it provide the Toronto Conservatory of Music with an electronic music studio, a big step in that field in this country.

For a long time after moving up from the studio, he continued regular Bible readings over the air, anonymously.

But colleagues were sometimes hard-put to tell when the executive Jennings was being serious. Once he got up at a board meeting and deadpanned a proposal that all board members and senior executives should sit for their portraits in oils.

When in earnest, he was emphatic. During one meeting in his office — cluttered with mementoes of travel — he seized a paddle and punctuated his remarks with such vigorous floor-banging that an older officer below practically climbed the wall.

Mr. Jennings, who always had an aversion to "creeping Americanism," says now that CBC radio did much to develop a Canadian consciousness after

United States radio threatened to engulf Canada in the early 1930s.

In an interview he said, too, that a fully-subsidized TV network — without advertising — could build a large audience for good programming.

YEARS FOR RESULTS

Such a system, aimed at improving the critical faculties of viewers, would need 10 to 15 years to show solid results. In that time, it would build a "thoroughly respectable, decent-sized audience."

In retirement, he continues an unremitting interest in the CBC along with travel, reading and writing of some memoirs in the company of his wife, Elizabeth. The donkeys and three dogs round out the menage at Klock House in the Quebec Gatineau country across the Ottawa River from here.

A serious illness slowed the Jennings pace drastically in 1972 but he was up and about again once more this year, a bit more stooped than in the past and walking a shade more slowly but still a keen-eyed observer.

He also has left a legacy to broadcasting in son Peter, a foreign correspondent with American Broadcasting Co. at Beirut, and daughter Sarah, a free-lance frequently heard from the CBC here.

Peter, who combines something of the good looks and good sounds of his father, began in Canadian broadcasting but has been through some of the top ABC news jobs, including news anchor man, before reverting to his first love, which was news reporting with ABC around the world.

EVE'S APPLE TREE

FOOD FOR LOVE by Betty Chaisson

For centuries men and women have carefully watched the effects of foods on the ardor of the diner. The result is a collection of aphrodisiacs that boggles the senses.

I doubt that few would go so far today as to dissolve pearls in vinegar as Cleopatra did. She then drank the fluid to increase her own responsiveness.

Of course, there is another extreme, far from dissolved pearls. Who would consider such a common thing as beans to be aphrodisiac in action? St. Jerome, that's who. He forbade nuns to eat them! Perhaps the obtainability of beans made them more dangerous. It's more difficult to get a supply of the fat from the hump of a camel, the gall of a jackal, the horn of a rhinoceros or lion fat.

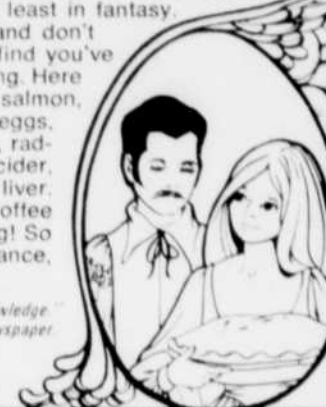

But, don't despair. On a regular trip to the grocery store you will find yourself literally surrounded by innocuous-looking products which have served as stimulating foods—at least in fantasy.

I will list some here and don't be too disappointed to find you've been eating them all along. Here are a few: sesame, salmon, quince, crab apples, eggs, ginger, dates, chocolate, radishes, cinnamon, trout, cider, celery, cucumber, and liver.

A word to the wise: Coffee will undo the whole thing! So if you're looking for romance, serve cider.

CF-HRS, Cessna 210 Centurion, in low flight over the Hamilton area. This aircraft, white black & red, is normally bargained in Hamilton and used for business and pleasure trips. HRS owner J.C. Turcan, along with B. Gore as navigator, will attempt to fly HRS over the Atlantic during a record breaking flight to take place between Hamilton and Paris, in the latter part of May 1973.

Record-breaking flight

HAMILTON — Two Hamilton pilots will soon set out to prove the spirit of adventure is still very much alive and kicking.

Jean-Claude Turcan, a former artillery officer with the French army, and Brian Gore, former British Navy diver, are busy preparing for a non-stop, record-breaking flight from Hamilton to Paris in a small, single-engine Cessna aircraft.

The Cessna 210 Centurion is a standard production plane with a normal flying range of 600 to 800 miles. For the Hamilton-Paris flight the 84-gallon tank will be complemented with a specially molded tank that virtually fills the cabin space and has a capacity of 300 gallons, so more than a ton of fuel will be on board. This will extend the flying range to about 4,000 miles.

The tank is molded in such a way that it becomes seating for the pilots in the cockpit. That's why J.C. Turcan, a fairly heavy smoker, is learning to curb his desires. "There's no way I can smoke while I'm sitting on a ton of gasoline," he says.

Both pilots learned to fly at nearby Mount Hope Airport.

They are now fully experienced.

B. Gore, who will act as navigator and relief pilot on the flight, is a freelance pilot and part-time flying instructor. J.C. Turcan, owner of the Cessna, has logged upwards of 400 hours during the past 18 months.

They will take off sometime in May and will arrive at Le Bourget Airport, after a 22 to 24 hour flight, during the International Air Show which runs from May 25 to June 5.

Following a brief stopover in Paris they will embark on what could be a second record-breaking flight — along the east coast of Europe and Africa, over the south Atlantic to Brazil, then northward over the West Indies, the United States and Canada.

Navigation will be carried out with a bubble sextant for star shots during complete darkness and a marine sextant during daylight or twilight. Over land, navigation will be simplified by the use of radio navigational aids.

It will also be Gore's task to maintain optimum fuel mixtures, manifold pressures and rpm settings — and to advise the pilot on the true airspeed required for maximum performance under existing flight conditions.

In the words of Turcan: "He's the guy who's responsible for how the hell we get there."

The overall length of the Cessna, prop to tail, is 28 feet, 2 inches, with a wing span of 36 feet, 7 inches. Normal load is 1,095 pounds, but for the transatlantic flight this will be stretched to 4,800 pounds. Included in the freight will be life rafts, a bailing bucket, flashlights, police whistle, buoyant and water-resistant radio transmitter, and other survival gear as specified by DOT regulations.

There will also be lots of camera equipment aboard, since the pilots intend making a full-length color movie of their adventure. This will be available for world-wide distribution.

During the first part of their flight there is a good possibility of contacting Air Canada's regular Paris flight for a chat with the pilots' wives who will be speeding to France to await the Cessna's arrival.

Left to right: J.C. Turcan, 37 years old, pilot and B. Gore, 36 years old, navigator, standing in front of CF-HRS. Both from Hamilton, they intend to fly non-stop over the Atlantic from Hamilton, Ontario, Canada to Paris, France, in the latter part of May 1973. Both Hamilton business men they believe this flight should generate interest in general aviation and recognition to their city.

New approach to antiques

The fourth in the series of Winter Evening Programs, arranged by the Brome County Historical Society, was held Wed. Evening, February 7, 1973, at the Centennial Archives Building in Knowlton.

The subject for the evening was "New Collectibles - What Grandmother Threw Away." The speaker was Mrs. Ola Carr of Sutton. The evening proved a great success in every way, there was a large attendance of people interested in this new and modern trend in collecting.

Mrs. Carr defined "New Collectibles" as things not necessarily old, not being made now, something handmade or just plain different. She mentioned that young people are ardent collectors, almost as though they want a bit of the past before it is all gone.

The idea is to get well started on a collection before it becomes too difficult to find or too expensive, also that people are collecting weird and wonderful things from spark plugs, anything made in occupied Japan, beer trays, telephones, bottles, preserving jars, postcards, to Campbell Soup Dolls.

Mrs. Carr posed a good question as to which of the present day paintings will be collected and treasured in the future? She said, "We would all like to save something that might become as famous as a Kriehoff or an A.Y. Jackson."

Mrs. Carr brought many interesting articles to demonstrate her talk, and, displays of depression glass, tin and tole articles were kindly loaned by members. There were also excellent books and publications for collectors shown and recommended, one being, "How to collect New Antiques" by Ann Kilborn Cole.

There followed a social hour with refreshments when Mrs. Carr very kindly answered many questions and would be collectors shared each others interests in friendly exchange of ideas.

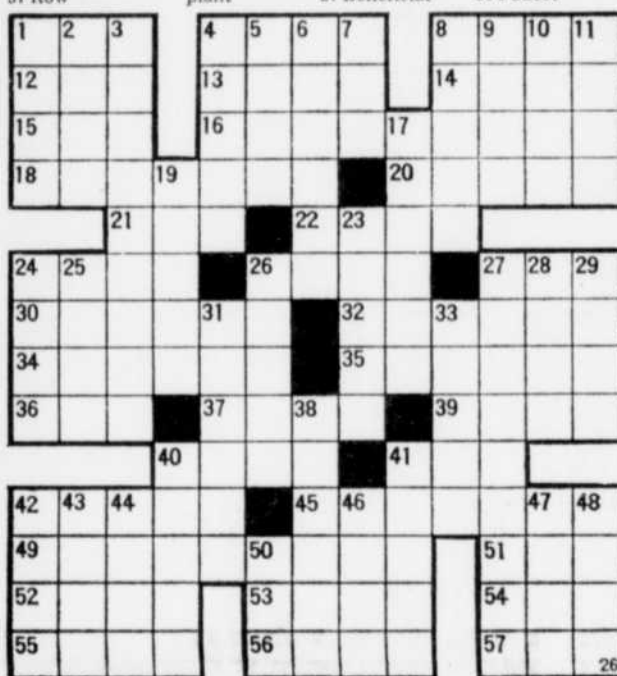

The last of the Winter Evening Programs will take place on Saturday evening, March 10, when the talk is to be given by Heward Graffey, Federal M.P. for Brome-Missisquoi, on the subject of Medical and Health Services in Brome County.

LIVE LONGER!

Youth Begins at Breakfast

By LELORD KORDEL
Number Nine of a Series

A 64 year old student of mine stopped me on the street and, with a twinkle in her eye, said, "Guess what? I'm whistle bait again."

"I was walking along the beach in shorts, when a couple of college students drove up and started whistling—you know, real wolf whistles."

This was today's healthy woman talking. But how well I recalled our first meeting ten years earlier. Her husband's recent death came as a great shock. She stopped caring what happened to her.

To cook only for herself, seemed too much trouble. She resorted to eating snacks. Her nutritional intake became very lopsided.

As a result she lost weight. Her arms and legs became scrawny, emaciated. Her torso was distressingly lumpy from poor muscle tone.

There was nothing organically wrong, yet she was listless, dull-eyed, bored. She had lost interest in life.

But now, ten years later, her figure, filled out, was straight and slender. I could well understand the college boy's whistles.

It was such a simple thing, as so often is the case.

Her "recovery" came about when she learned the importance of a good breakfast. It was hard trying to convince her.

IMPORTANT MEAL

"I consider breakfast to be the most important meal of the day."

The Complete Book By Lelord Kordel Is Now Available

Lelord Kordel's popular book "Eat Right and Live Longer" is now available to readers of this newspaper. Only a very small part of this book was used in the series of articles you have been enjoying. The complete 144-page book contains so much more you'll find of value.

To get your copy, send $1.00 to Lelord Kordel Book, c/o Name of This Newspaper, 17255 Redford Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48219. Please allow two weeks.

day." I had told her. "It is exactly what its name means—the breaking of the night's fast. As such, it should be given the time and attention it deserves."

Why is breakfast so important? Because the beginning of the day is the time when the body needs the most energizing fuel. That is, if it is to function at maximum efficiency.

You cannot expect a hasty, ill-planned breakfast, a sugary mid-morning snack, and a quick, protein-poor lunch to keep your body fueled and energized throughout the very hours of the day when you put the greatest strain on your nerves, brain cells and muscles.

The habit of saving up all day for a heavy meal at night is what puts the "s-p-a-r-e" around the waistline.

Because you go to bed shortly after the evening meal, your body does not require the energy it does throughout your long waking hours.

For this reason, the food consumed at this late meal is stored rather than burned. Stored as fat deposits around the liver, the heart and the arteries.

This is why I teach that your breakfasts should be high protein meals. Not stop-gap snacks.

Your evening meal can be a light one, so unburned energy foods are not allowed to store overnight as unwanted fat around the waistline. Or in the most dangerous of all places—the arteries.

Breakfast is the nutritional foundation of your activities for the next twelve hours. Your day can be no better than its foundation.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS

Here are a few general suggestions:

• First: Take your time while eating breakfast, even if it means getting up half an hour earlier. You cannot get the maximum good out of breakfast if one eye is on the clock.

• Second: Eat all the fruit you want at breakfast, preferably whole fruit. It is an excellent way of preparing the stomach for the other food to follow.

TO BUILD A GOOD DAY YOU NEED A GOOD FOUNDATION

• Third: Have one or two high protein foods. The healthy Argentinians enjoy a pan-broiled steak and an egg for their first meal of the day. You might like this on occasion.

Scrambled eggs fortified with skim milk powder for extra protein can keep you going all morning.

Two boiled or poached eggs with a helping of cottage cheese, or a cube of Cheddar, is another idea.

These are only suggestions to help you get started according to your own tastes.

GREATER ENERGY

This type of breakfast will give you energy without a feeling of stuffiness. This is because smaller amounts of high-protein foods more readily appease the appetite than the bulky (and high-calorie) carbohydrates.

My 64-year old student had taken this advice. Within a month she perked up and started eating three regular meals a day.

Her muscle tone improved. She stood straighter. There was no hint of "abdominal droop" that formerly made her figure lumpy and unattractive.

Even hair and fingernails improved. Arms and legs filled out. She began bursting with new energy.

Is it any wonder the college boys whistled as she walked along the beach in shorts? Not bad for 64!

TWO MINUTES

WITH THE BIBLE
BY CORNELIUS R. STAM, PRES.
BIBLICAL BIBLE SOCIETY

AN OLD-FASHIONED DOCTRINE

How many there are whose hearts would be thrilled if they understood the old-fashioned Bible doctrine of sanctification!

Sanctification is not a negative matter, don't do this and don't do that. It is rather the positive truth that God wants us for Himself as a sacred possession, much as a bridegroom considers his bride his very own in a special, sacred way.

Bible sanctification is a two-fold truth, affecting both our standing before God and our spiritual state. In one sense every true believer in Christ has already been sanctified, or consecrated to God, by the operation of the Holy Spirit. Thus we read:

"...God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, THROUGH SANCTIFICATION OF THE SPIRIT..." (I Thes. 2:13). "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, THROUGH SANCTIFICATION OF THE SPIRIT..." (I Pet. 1:2).

This has nothing to do with our conduct. God did it. Sanctification begins with Him. Thus, Paul could write to even the careless Corinthian believers and say: "Ye ARE sanctified!"

(I Cor. 6:11; cf. Acts 20:32, 26:18). This phase of sanctification is based on the redemptive work of Christ in our behalf, for Heb. 10:10 says: "We are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." But now God would have us appropriate this fact and conduct ourselves accordingly, consecrating ourselves ever more completely to Him. This is practical, progressive sanctification. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification" (I Thes. 4:3). Hence Paul's benediction: "The very God of peace sanctify you wholly" (I Thes. 5:23), and his exhortation to Timothy to be "a vessel unto honor, sanctified, and meet (fit) for the Master's use" (II Tim. 2:21).

How can believers be more wholly sanctified to God in their practical experience? By studying and meditating on His Word. Our Lord prayed: "Sanctify them through Thy truth: Thy Word is truth" (John 17:17). And Paul declares that "Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it that He might sanctify and cleanse it with THE WASHING OF WATER BY THE WORD" (Eph. 5:25, 26).

MANSONVILLE — La Soiree Canadienne was held Sat. evening, Feb. 17, at the Mt. Owl's Head Ski Chalet, sponsored by the Niteriders Snowmobile Club of Mansonville.

A Torch Parade of approximately 30 skiers and 60 snowmobilers came down the mountain side, each skier carrying a red torch flare and a snowmobile flanked on each side with its white headlights turned on, which gave a beautiful festive effect. The drivers are to be commended for their excellent skill in manipulating their machines down the steep incline.

Approximately 400 people from near and far gathered for this event after which everyone enjoyed dancing to the continuous music of two orchestras, Les Icks from Granby, directed by Roger Guay, and the Bavarian Trio.

The door prize donated by Clair Canada of Knowlton, an electric curler hair set, was won by Mr. Yvon Dostie of Mansonville.

Ladies Aid card party

WINDSOR — A very successful 500 card party was held on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, sponsored by the Ladies Aid, with eighteen tables in play. Despite the very cold night an excellent turn-out was reported. It seemed to be that the young folk had the good cards with three top prizes going to young players.

First prize for the ladies was won by Shirley Paterson, second by Mrs. Gaby Fontaine and third by Mrs. Bert McGee.

For the gents Doug Perkins and Don Paterson were top scorers, with Doug winning by a 20-point majority. Mr. Philippe Therrien had low score for the men. The special prize for bids taken by eight of hearts resulted in a tie between Camille Simoneau and Osborne Wilkins.

Mr. Simoneau held high card in the cut of cards.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Melvin McCourt and Donna Oakley. Mrs. Bert McGee held the lucky ticket on the quilt. A satisfactory amount was realized from the evening's activities.

Another card party was announced for March 24. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Melanoma Caught in Time

Column Saves Reader's Life

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I hope this letter reaches you personally, because I want to thank you for saving my life. I had a melanoma on my back and did not realize it, or how serious they are. I knew I had a mole and that my clothing was irritating it. I read an article you wrote on moles—malignant melanomas—in our local paper six months ago and promptly called my doctor. The mole was removed and a biopsy revealed it to be malignant. After an operation, X rays, and examination of my lymph nodes, my doctors told me they felt it was caught in time. I have had two three-month chest X rays since and both were clear. I thank you for what you have done for me personally and appreciate the many fine articles you write.

Dear Reader — Of course, I am always pleased to learn that people like my column, but my greatest satisfaction does come from learning that the column has done something useful for somebody. It is a great personal satisfaction to me to know that the information in the column provided information to help someone as in your case.

Your letter also points out that individuals who act promptly can oftentimes save their lives from cancer. Perhaps your experience will help pass this knowledge on to other people and in the long run there will be even more individuals who will profit from this knowledge. Anybody who has a mole anywhere on his body which is enlarging, changing in size or shape, or is constantly irritated, should see a doctor about the mole. Moles about the waist or anywhere on the body where straps or clothing or shaving is irritating them are the ones most apt to change to cancer.

I wish everyone who has a mole of this sort would be as wise as you have been and seek immediate medical attention when it is first noted.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Recently I heard two parties discussing a medical problem. One said it was okay to lay a semi-conscious person who was vomiting and bleeding in the throat flat on his back. The other person said an individual in this condition should never be placed flat on his back. Who is right? Is there ever an exception?

Dear Reader — That is a good question and an important one. In general, an unconscious person should never be placed on his back. Even in the operating room when this is done, a tubular instrument is placed in the windpipe at the back of the throat (usually for artificial respiration) which prevents the tongue from falling back and blocking the airway. To prevent airway blockage by the tongue an unconscious person lying down should be on his side or at least positioned in such a way that the head is turned to the side.

Obviously, if the unconscious or semi-conscious individual is vomiting or bleeding, this material can be inhaled into the trachea (windpipe) obstructing respiration, or if small amounts enter the lung, causing a serious lung infection.

It is all right for a person to be on the back if some one is careful to see to it that the airway remains open. A good example of this is a person who has sudden cardiac arrest and needs external cardiac massage as an emergency, lifesaving procedure. While the individual is on his back, the head is turned to the side and if necessary, mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration is also administered. Other than these situations, it is better to have the patient lying on his side.

Exhaust purifier erases danger

TORONTO — While the automakers are moving towards government environmental standards by 1975, a Toronto firm is already applying anti-pollution controls to the propane and gasoline fueled lift trucks that industry operated indoors. Now they are zeroing in on the ice surfacing machines that spew carbon monoxide into indoor rink atmospheres.

Engelhard Industries of Canada has for some time been marketing the platinum catalyst exhaust purifier. Applied to the lift trucks that traverse warehouse floors, factory areas and ships holds, the PTX exhaust purifier removes up to 97 per cent of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons from the exhaust emitted by both propane and unleaded gasoline engines.

Because the system works within a minute of engine warm-up, reduces need for air exchange, and would cost only a few cents per hour of rink time, it is particularly applicable to the machines that resurface skating rinks.

Ironically the health hazard to indoor skating rink occupants from carbon monoxide went virtually unnoticed until three years ago when Minnesota health authorities began investigating what has become known to American doctors as "the icedrome syndrome." Young girls practising figure skating developed headaches and nausea; a bantam hockey team had trouble breathing after a practice session. Adult coaches and rink attendants found the symptoms lasting nearly two days.

The indoor ice rink was a relatively new facility in most parts of the U.S., the great majority of some 700 indoor rinks have been built in the past few years. When the tell-tale symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning appeared, paint fumes or food poisoning were suspected.

The Minnesota health authorities triggered studies that pinpointed the trouble in skating arenas from Seattle to Boston. In every case it was traced to the exhaust from LPG or gasoline fueled machines which shave, melt and resurface the ice up to twenty times in a long-day's operation.

"Indoor rinks are no novelty in Canada and perhaps we have taken their wholesome atmosphere for granted. But where ventilation is inadequate to quickly extract exhaust fumes from the ice-surfacing machine, carbon monoxide is a real hazard," says J.W. Minton, Marketing Manager of Engelhard Industries Canada.

He points out that even where adequate ventilation facilities exist, ice-makers are reluctant to draw in outside air in milder weather because it creates fog over the ice and causes condensation to drip from the ceiling to form drops on the ice surface like curling-pink pebbles.

Arena ventilation is further complicated by the large capacity of the building, the cold ice sheet which creates temperature inversions, the bowl-like confinement of the boards and plexiglass screening. Moreover, the ice surfacing machine emits its exhaust within a few inches of the ice surface. It takes about an hour for the exhaust gases to thoroughly mix with the building air in a poorly ventilated arena.

Engelhard is using the same type of purifier that Ford, Volvo, Datsun and Toyota will use in their 1975 cars. Engelhard PTS claims two basic advantages, its cost, less than $500 to apply to ice surfacing machines, is substantially less than altering rink ventilation systems to adequately cope with the carbon monoxide emission and because it reduces required air exchange by up to 50 per cent it reduces heating costs. But even more important, the platinum honeycomb catalytic they use meets the critical requirement of fast (60 second) warm-up.

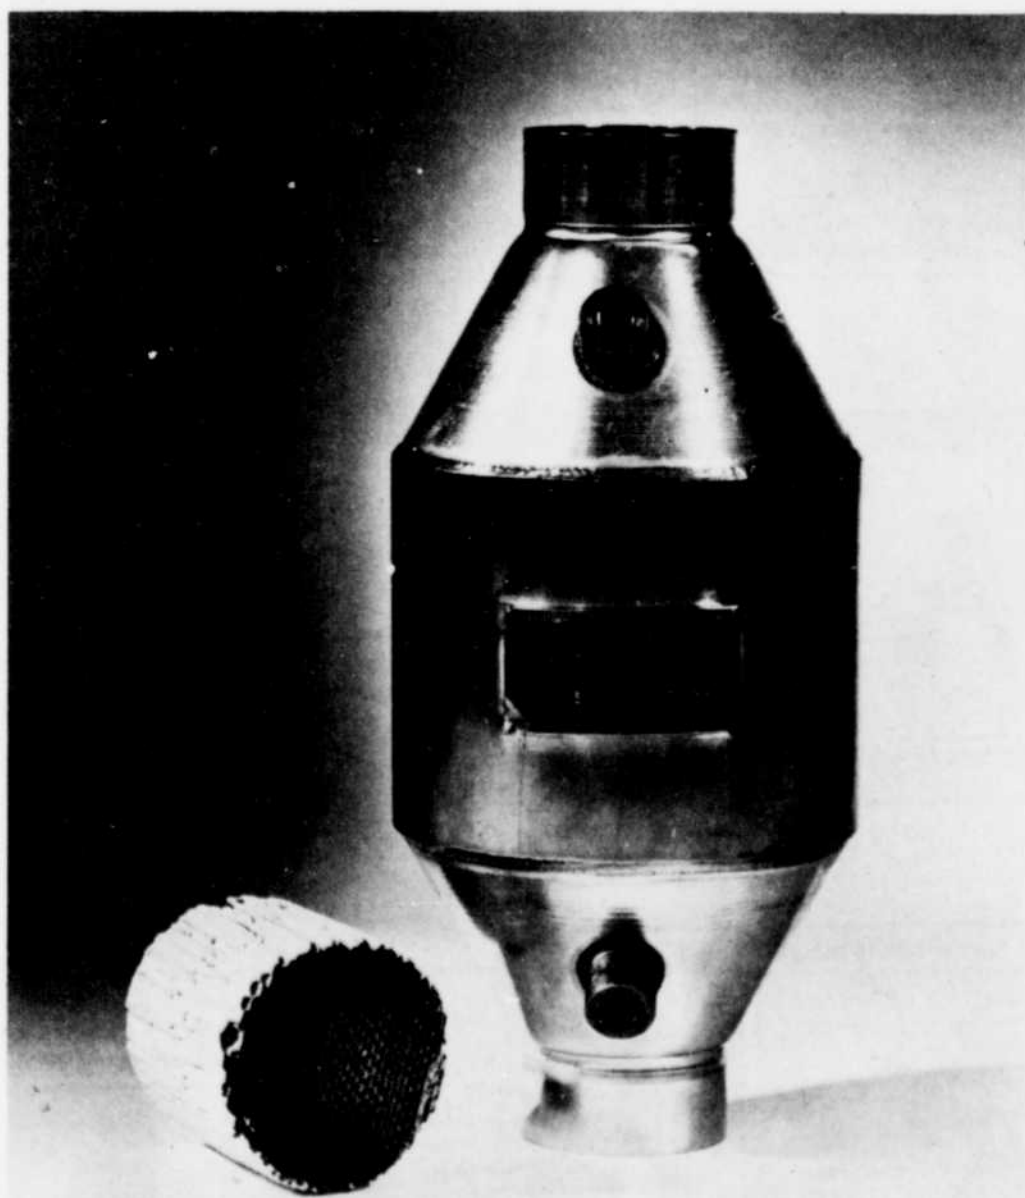

Catalytic mufflers previously developed using pelletized catalyst took three to five minutes to warm up making them useless for a third to half the time the ice surfacing machine was actually in use.

Engelhard recently tested the PTX system in a large Canadian company's plants across the country. Fifty-eight tests with specialized gas detectors were made over a three-week period.

The normal exhaust level of 3,000 to 20,000 parts per million of carbon monoxide from propane fueled engines was reduced by PTX to between 50 to 70 parts per million.

Their equipment has now had more than 10,000 hours of operation with no loss in effectiveness.

last spade on dummy's club jack.

Do you see why South elected to play the seven of clubs? No, it wasn't because East held the queen and not the ace. It was because when South reviewed the bidding he remembered that East had passed in second seat.

East had shown up with the ace of hearts and was marked with the queen of diamonds. If he didn't hold the king of spades, South was sure of his contract. If he did hold the king of spades, he couldn't also hold the ace of clubs but might hold the queen.

Therefore, when South played the low club he had given himself the best chance to make his contract.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South won the diamond lead with dummy's king and led a low heart. East played the eight and South won the trick. He played his ace of diamonds, ruffed his last diamond in dummy and threw East in with the ace of trumps.

East led the five of clubs and after a slight amount of thought, South played his seven-spot. West took his ace and shifted to a spade, but the defense had all the tricks they were going to get. South rose with dummy's ace; led a club to his king and since East's queen of clubs had fallen, South was able to return to dummy with the 10 of trumps and get rid of his

What do you do now?

A—Bid six hearts. You have little interest in seven since your partner bid just three no-trump at his second turn to act.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has bid three clubs over your two spades. What do you do now?

Question: We've just finished enjoying our first winter with our new snowmobile. However, in preparing it for summer storage I noticed that some of the paint has burned off metal areas around the engine.

I'd like to repaint these areas, but is there a paint I can use that will resist engine and exhaust heat and yet is easy to apply?

Answer: Yes, there is. Try Tremco Heat Resistant Enamel. It's made especially for metal surfaces that get hot. It'll stay on wherever temperatures don't exceed 650° F. and where surfaces don't come in direct contact with fire.

Tremco Heat Resistant Enamel comes in a handy spray can and in colours selected for best heat resistance and durability - flat black, orange, metallic aluminum, and metallic gold.

To get a lasting finish, prepare the surface by removing any rust down to bare metal with a wire brush. And make sure the surface is free of oil, grease, dirt, and wax. When the surface is clean and dry, spray the paint directly on the metal without a primer. It will dry to touch in 3 to 5 minutes.

Tremco Heat Resistant Enamel is also ideal for beautifying and protecting such things as home barbecues, auto engine blocks, power mowers, home heating radiators, and camping equipment.

If you have other questions about Tremco Heat Resistant Enamel, write to Tom Tremex, The Tremco Manufacturing Company (Canada), Ltd. Toronto, Ontario M4H 1G7.

Missisquoi Chapter IODE holds annual meeting

BEDFORD — The annual meeting of Missisquoi Chapter IODE was held on Monday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Oakes. The meeting was opened with the Prayer of the Order by the regent, Mrs. Lennox Ames, the minutes read by the secretary, Mrs. Oakes and the financial statement given by the treasurer Mrs. Hannibal Sheltus. An invitation was received from the Longueuil Chapter to attend the 50th anniversary of their Chapter's foundation, also the report that a new junior Chapter had been formed, the Lord Dorchester Chapter.

The resignation of the provincial services secretary, Mrs. Rowell, is deeply regretted. Mrs. Rowell having filled this position most successfully over the past years, the provincial president, Mrs. Gibbs is taking over Mrs. Rowell's work until the appointment of a new secretary.

Living Adventure is a new project of National IODE, for the summer for the primary chapters, from which one member is chosen to attend from June 23-July 7 a conference at Upper Canada House, those attending are in the age group 15-17.

A sum of $20.00 was voted to the administration fund. The annual meeting then took place, the minutes of the 1972 meeting being read by Mrs. Oakes, who in her report stated that eight meetings had been held, with an average attendance of twelve. The Chapter has twenty members with one life member.

Donation was made to the Grey Cup float, a former member, Mrs. Cyril Chrysler, was instrumental in forming a new chapter in White Rock, B.C., a member attended the semi-annual of the Provincial Chapter, at each meeting a member read articles dealing with pertinent topics of the day, while several members of the Chapter were in England.

Mrs. Sheltus in her treasurer's report showed expenditure of $199.15, with disbursements of $73.00 for education, $90.36 for social services (wool) delegate's expenses. The Chapter's books were kindly audited by Mr. Hannibal Sheltus. Mrs. Sheltus in her report for "Echoes" stated that $40.00 had been sent and that one notice had been sent in.

In the Educational Secretary's report, Mrs. W.H. Taylor, prizes for the most improvement in French were given in both the Butler Elementary School and in the Stanbridge East school; donation was sent to Frontier College, Missisquoi Chapter being one of the few chapters who support this work. The prizes were presented at Stanbridge East by Mrs. Ruby Moore and in Bedford by Mrs. Taylor.

Social Services report was given by Mrs. Richard Craighhead, a wreath was purchased for the Remembrance Day service at the soldiers monument, eight afghans and 18 articles (knitted) were sent to the shipping fund, the Peace Garden, also to National and Provincial funds, and a shower was held for the Douglas Hospital. Mrs. Craighhead thanked all those who had worked. This year the Chapter's funds have been augmented by the sale of knitted articles.

Mrs. Neil Creller, special fund, showed that gifts, cards, etc., and flowers had been sent.

Mrs. Lewis Bockus, social convener, reported that refreshments had been served at all meetings.

The Chapter's officers for 1973 are: Mrs. Lennox Ames, regent; Mrs. Lewis Currie, first vice-regent; Mrs. Ralph Oakes, secretary; Mrs. Hannibal Sheltus, treasurer; Mrs. W.H. Taylor, educational secretary; Mrs. Richard Craighhead, services secretary; Miss Lottie Casey, membership; Mrs. William MacArthur, standard bearer; Mrs. Lewis Bockus, social convener.

Among the various projects that the junior chapters are sponsoring across Canada are T.N.T. (Toys for Northern Tots) articles needed, stuffed animals, puppets, etc.; hardy rubber dolls with wardrobe; dolls beds and pull-along toys; good grooming kits, denim or heavy cotton bags with drawstring; soap toothbrush; small toy, small book, suitable for either a boy or a girl, hair clips, small mirror, comb, etc.; these kits are given to children in hospital, who in many cases are far from their homes.

Another project is the Resubaby, which has done much for northern babies. Resubi-Babies equipment is located as follows: Baffin zone, Frohisher, N.W.T.; Keewatin zone, Fort Churchill, Man.; Mackenzie zone, Yellowknife, N.W.T.; Inuvik, N.W.T.; Yukon zone, Whitehorse, N.W.T. Last year, 52 Junior Chapters across Canada realized articles for Help-A-Baby contest, valued at $10,000, forwarded 650 tapes to the Dominion Stores, spent $800.00 on education; were active in citizenship programmes and gave thousands of hours as volunteers in various areas. A proud and impressive record for the junior members.

The date of the next meeting will be announced. The regent closed the meeting with singing of God Save the Queen, after which refreshments were served, tea being poured by the regent.

Down the hatch and fill it up

EDMONTON (CP) — Clutching two battered shopping bags, the skid road alcoholic joins a lineup next to the downtown car wash. Behind him, a station wagon carrying a father and his three children pulls into the queue. Vehicles and people all inch forward for the next 30 minutes.

What brings them together is Alberta's new beverage container regulations, described by the government as the most far-reaching in North America.

But the problems are far-reaching, too. Alberta's handling of them is being watched closely by other governments.

One-and-a-half months after the system started, some Albertans still had to wait as much as two hours to return their bottles and cans. The government is gradually increasing the number of firms it allows to operate container depots, but this has aroused cries from existing depots who claim financial success is impossible unless their volume is huge.

And once the bottles are collected, there is no place for many of them—except warehouses for some and landfill sites for others.

Back at the lineup beside the car wash, the alcoholic has reached the head of the queue inside a former garage. He produces 13 empty wine bottles, for which he receives 65 cents; five mikes that once held rye or rum, 25 cents; four soft drink bottles, 20 cents; and three rusty beverage cans for six cents.

ENOUGH FOR REFILL

This nets him a total of $1.16, enough to buy another bottle of wine, with one cent left over.

The station wagon driver takes five minutes to transact his business, since the bottles and cans have to be placed in the appropriate cartons and boxes so they can be counted easily. He has 38 wine bottles from a neighbor's garage, 14 liquor bottles from the last two months, including the supplies from Christmas and New Year's, eight dozen soft drink cans and two dozen soft drink bottles.

He pockets $5.56.

For his part in the transaction, the operator of the bottle depot makes 25 cents for dealing with the alcoholic and $1.72 from the station wagon.

But he hasn't quite earned his money yet. The soft drink bottles must be sorted by brands so they can be picked up by the appropriate bottler.

The Beverage Container Act, proclaimed Jan. 1, declares that all beverage containers, including liquor and wine bottles, may be returned for a refund.

An estimated 300 million such containers were sold in Alberta last year.

In the first month, 4.6 million liquor and wine bottles were returned throughout the province for a refund of five cents each. There were 4.3 million non-refillable bottles and cans brought back, the cans for a refund of two cents each and the bottles for two, five or 10 cents according to size.

RATE REMAINS HIGH

In the first half of February, the rate of returns has been only slightly lower and probably will never diminish greatly, says Dave Beck, general manager of Contain-A-Way Ltd. of Calgary, which oversees container collections.

He says that even though home stockpiles of containers may be used up, more people will start to return all their beverage containers for a refund, instead of continuing their present practice of throwing non-refillable containers in the garbage.

What happens to all the containers after they are collected?

The refillable soft drink bottles are little problem, once they're sorted. The bottlers themselves send their trucks to the depots to collect them.

The steel cans are picked up by Contain-A-Way's trucks and taken to a Calgary plant for crushing, shredding and then recycling into low-grade steel.

However, there is no market yet for the non-refillable soft drink bottles and they are stored at high cost in warehouses throughout the province while the company looks for buyers.

Most of the wine and liquor bottles are made of colored glass for which there is even less market potential and these are all taken to landfill sites and buried.

Beer bottles are handled through separate, long-established depots.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES [Born March 21 to April 19]: The sooner you get down to business, the sooner the job will be finished. Then, and only then, sit back and relax.

TAURUS [April 20 to May 20]: Try to restrain your impatient impulses. Decision made in haste could turn out to be costly.

GEMINI [May 21 to June 21]: Everything seems rosier than it has for some time. A change is beginning to shape up and you're ready.

CANCER [June 22 to July 21]: Someone may make what you consider outrageous demands on you. Don't comply if you don't feel like it.

LEO [July 22 to Aug. 21]: Problem is more annoying than serious but it gets you off stride and hinders your performance.

VIRGO [Aug. 22 to Sept. 21]: Unforeseen development could interfere with plans, but delay will do no harm so don't fret.

LIBRA [Sept. 23 to Oct. 22]: Try to complete all household and other tasks in the morning so you can enjoy a free afternoon.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23 to Nov. 21]: Avoid compulsive buying. It will take much self-control, but you can manage it if you really try.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 22 to Dec. 21]: Others may not be as willing to pitch in so you'll just have to "go it alone" for the moment.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22 to Jan. 20]: While there are still doubts and uncertainties continue to postpone decision. Delay will do no harm.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21 to Feb. 19]: Others wonder just what you're up to, but it's a good idea to keep them guessing in this instance.

PISCES [Feb. 20 to Mar. 21]: Pool resources. True, profit is less when shared, but so is loss if project doesn't work out.

Western rinks unbeaten

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Saskatchewan and Manitoba continue to struggle along in the Canadian women's curling championships towards what appears to be a decisive showdown in Thursday's final draw.

Neither rink has had an easy time since round one but remain the only undefeated rinks after four rounds.

Their latest conquests were 5-4 over Newfoundland and 7-4 over Quebec respectively Tuesday night but they had their troubles with the two eastern clubs which have yet to win.

Ann Bowering's St. John's crew took the last two ends against Saskatchewan and just fell short of tying the game when Vera Pezer of Saskatoon eliminated one of the two Newfoundland counters, then rolled out herself with the final stone.

Joan Ingram of Winnipeg survived erratic shooting in the early ends to hand Quebec a 7-4 setback by picking up seven straight points in four ends.

IMPRESSIVE WIN

And New Brunswick's Sheila McLeod, whose Fredericton rink is the provincial representative for the second straight year, finally ended its winless streak with the most impressive victory curling observers of Canadian championships, both men and women, could recall.

The New Brunswick rink, which learned earlier in the day it would be losing second Agnes Freeze for the remainder of the bonspiel because of a death in the family, ran up a 14-0 score on Betty Hodgins of Dartmouth, N.S., after six ends their fellow Maritimers conceded.

Blue takes only Galt win

LENOXVILLE (BP) — In the world of sports at Alexander Galt Regional High School yesterday, the bantam 'Blue' boys' hockey team notched the only win of the day, while the senior girls tied.

Both games were against Bishop's College School. The bantam 'B' and senior basketball Pipers were both defeated by Richmond Regional.

The bantam 'B' squad lost 24-15 to RRHS, but were behind by only four points at one time. Coach Mac Learned said the boys weren't overly aggressive, but noted that Mitch Lepitre played a good game until he fouled out in the third quarter.

Judy Hobbs was the lone scorer for the Pipers. She scored early in the first period.

Lee Gerrish cops award

LENOXVILLE — The Eastern Townships was recently represented at the Provincial School Boy Curling Championship held in Howick, Que., by the Alexander Galt Regional High School rink, consisting of Lee Gerrish, skip; Frank Wilson, third; Randy Taylor, second; and Gary Ditchburn, lead.

The team had a record of three wins and six losses in the round-robin style draw. At the end of regular play, Lac St. Jean and Val D'Or were tied, resulting in a playoff.

Alma of Lac St. Jean won, sending them to the Dominion Championship in Moncton, N.B., which is being sponsored by Pepsi-Cola.

Each of the 40 players in the bonspiel was given a vote for the skip they thought best exemplified ability and sportsmanship. Lee Gerrish of North Hatley was selected winner, and received a new trophy as the first recipient in the 1973 School Boy Provincials.

Gerrish and his team curl out of the North Hatley Curling Club. Doug Guthrie, the AGRHS coach and Eastern Townships Regional Officer for provincial school boy curling, offered his congratulations to Lee and the team on a job well done.

and Lee Robinson of Green House were second and Carol St. Laurent and Danny Fortin of Red House were third.

A figure-skating demonstration was presented by Caroline Muir. Even though the music she practiced to was not available, she performed excellently.

Saturday, February 17, the Junior Girls and Boys Basketball team played Laurentian Regional on a return invitation. The Seniors were unable to come as they were playing in a tournament.

The Junior Girls lost by the close score of 29-26. Cindy Day and Jane Nadeau were the high scorers for RRHS with six points each. The Junior Boys won by the score 37-27. Gerry Lapalme scored 14 points. Alan Gagne notched seven points.

Monday, February 19, the Junior Boys and the Senior Girls Basketball teams had games. The Junior Boys lost to Galt 27-12. Scorers were Gerry Lapalme, eight points, and Andy Illick and Steve Jandron with a basket each.

The Senior Girls Basketball team defeated Champlain in the dying seconds of the game. The final score was 39-34. They came from far behind and for an unbelievable victory. Ann Mountain tallied 16 points and Gaye Landry made 10.

Tuesday, February 20, the assisted by Wendy Olson and Holly Blenkhorn. BCS came back soon after to tie 1-1 and the game ended in that fashion.

The bantam 'Blue' hockey Pipers took on BCS in exhibition play downing them 3-1. Greg Goodsell assisted by Keith Judson and Alain Fontaine got the first Galt goal. Steve Distefano tallied next from Randy Cook and Dave Dubois.

Kim Smith was the last scorer, aided by Peter Logan and Nick Bean. Coach Dave Shields said: "The boys really skated well and Kevin Frost played well in nets."

The team has now finished its season and has a two-win, six-loss record in league play. With exhibition games counted, their total record is 3-6-1.

Tallies 1st as Hawk

Backstrom helps Hawks break streak

Chicago Black Hawks have chased the wolf away from their door, at least for the time being.

Last week, the Hawks were floundering dangerously close to losing their National Hockey League West Division lead. But, after a weekend trade that helped them win another game Tuesday night, Chicago's lead over Philadelphia Flyers has gone back up to nine points.

Centre Ralph Backstrom, acquired in a trade Sunday from Los Angeles Kings, scored his 21st season goal in helping the Hawks to a 5-3 victory over New York Islanders, in Tuesday's only NHL game.

It was the first stop on a seven-game road trip for the Hawks who picked up the 35-year-old Backstrom in exchange for 22-year-old winger Dan Maloney.

"We hated to give up Danny," said Hawks general manager Tommy Ivan. "But we've been looking for a centreman all year and, of course, now our situation is desperate."

The situation became desperate two weeks ago when Stan Mikita, Chicago leading scorer, was sidelined with a broken bone in his left heel which may keep him out another two weeks.

The win over the Islanders, led by Bill White's goal and three assists, was the Hawks second in a row after they had lost four straight, while the New York expansion club suffered its 52nd defeat of the season, putting it within one loss of matching the league record 53 set by California Golden Seals in 1970-71.

Tonight, the Hawks visit New York Rangers before a hectic weekend of meeting the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday and the Bruins in Boston Sunday. After that, they swing to the West Coast for three games.

Crusaders lose to weak-sisters

Cleveland Crusaders appear to be having problems in taking their lesser rivals seriously in the World Hockey Association.

Cleveland, the Eastern Division leader, lost to third-place New York Raiders and to Chicago Cougars, Western Division cellar-dwellers, during the weekend.

Tuesday night, the Crusaders went against Ottawa Nationals, the last-place club in the East, and lost again, 2-1.

Winnipeg Jets, on the other hand, made good on their easy rivals with a 5-1 win over Chicago, led by Bobby Hull's 41st and 42nd season goals.

That maintained the Jets' lead in the West by 11 points over Houston Aeros who edged Alberta Oilers 5-4. In Tuesday's other game, Minnesota Fighting Saints whipped Philadelphia Blazers 3-0.

Cleveland's slump leaves them in a precarious position with only a two-point lead over second-place New England Whalers who now have a game in hand over the Crusaders.

Guy Trotter's 22nd goal of the season broke a 1-1 tie at Ottawa in the third period after Gavin Kirk had given the Nats an early lead. Joe Hardy scored for the Crusaders who have had Gerry Cheevers in goal during their last two losses.

At Winnipeg, Hull's two goals, and two more by Milt Black, led the Jets to their 38th season victory, tops in the league. Chris Bordeleau got the other Jets goal while Rosaire Pailment scored for the Cougars.

Mike Curran recorded his fourth season shutout for Minnesota while taking a minor and game misconduct penalty. The minor came with two minutes left in the game when Curran tripped Philadelphia forward Johnny McKenzie in the goal crease.

Curran stopped eight shots during the power play to preserve his shutout and when the final siren sounded, he raced to centre ice and threw the puck at referee Ron Ego who had handed him the minor penalty.

Carnival Night was a great success. Starting off the night was a game of Broomball between the teachers and the students. Everyone had a good time. Following was a hockey game between the Drummondville Old-timers and the Montreal Alouettes. The Old-timers didn't play as if they were old. They beat the Alouettes 7-6.

Next was another hockey game, at a slower pace, between the Senior Boy's Basketball team and the Girl's Hockey team. The girls were on skates but the boys weren't. It ended in a one-all tie.

The King and Queen were crowned. Julie Watson and Harvey Johnson of Blue House were chosen. Mary Pat Quinn and Lee Robinson of Green House were second and Carol St. Laurent and Danny Fortin of Red House were third.

A figure-skating demonstration was presented by Caroline Muir. Even though the music she practiced to was not available, she performed excellently.

Saturday, February 17, the Junior Girls and Boys Basketball team played Laurentian Regional on a return invitation. The Seniors were unable to come as they were playing in a tournament.

The Junior Girls lost by the close score of 29-26. Cindy Day and Jane Nadeau were the high scorers for RRHS with six points each. The Junior Boys won by the score 37-27. Gerry Lapalme scored 14 points. Alan Gagne notched seven points.

Monday, February 19, the Junior Boys and the Senior Girls Basketball teams had games. The Junior Boys lost to Galt 27-12. Scorers were Gerry Lapalme, eight points, and Andy Illick and Steve Jandron with a basket each.

The Senior Girls Basketball team defeated Champlain in the dying seconds of the game. The final score was 39-34. They came from far behind and for an unbelievable victory. Ann Mountain tallied 16 points and Gaye Landry made 10.

Tuesday, February 20, the Bantam Boys Basketball team played Mitchell, losing 25-14. The scorers were Marty McKeena, Dick Watson and Jeff Fieldsan.

Wednesday, February 21, the Junior and Bantam Boys Basketball teams played Galt at home. School was out for the afternoon for Carnival activities. The full crowd cheered the Bantams to an 18-9 victory.

Marty McKeena scored six points. The Juniors, however, lost by the score of 47-21. Andy Illick scored five points and Steve Jandron made four points.

Thursday, February 22, the girl's hockey team came up with another victory. They defeated BCS 6-1.

Goal scorers were: Donna Duffy with two, Donna Butler, Louise Desmarais, Debbie Brock and Sandy MacDonald, each with one.

Friday, February 23, the Senior Girls' Basketball team travelled to Thetford Mines. They lost 42-25.

Ann Mountain scored 14 points and Sandy MacDonald tallied six points.

No hockey monopoly in Canada

QUEBEC (CP) — "We didn't think we were good enough," Louis Vairo said Tuesday night, "but when we got here and saw some games... we realized that Canadian kids don't have a monopoly on hockey anymore."

Vairo had just coached the New York Stars, a group of 11 and 12-year-olds from Brooklyn and the Bronx, to a crushing 9-1 win over Montreal St. Jean de Matha and into the AA quarter-finals of the Quebec International Peeewee Hockey Tournament.

The Stars, along with the Boston Peeewees and the Boston Braves, are threatening to clean up on the honors in the AA section, the top level in the 14th annual tournament here.

The Boston Peeewees entered the quarter-finals by clipping Toronto Leaside 5-0. Boston Braves have a chance to make the quarter-finals tonight against Toronto Ted Reeves after a win over Toronto Olympic Monday night.

In other Class AA action Tuesday, Quebec Limoilou dumped Ottawa Voyageurs 6-4 and Montreal Elite downed Quebec Centre 5-2.

In Class A play, one Quebec and nine Ontario teams saw ac-
