

LONG LIVE THE YANKEES!

The New York Yankees, completing one of the most remarkable comebacks in baseball history, used two popguns and a cannon to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series for the second straight year.

Shortstop Bucky Dent and Second Baseman Brian Doyle as well as "Mr. October" Reggie Jackson provided the punch to propel the Yanks to their 22nd World Series title. Catfish Hunter and Rich "Goose" Gossage combined to tame the Dodgers in six games.

THE WEATHER

Today sunny at first, then becoming cloudy. Chance of showers this evening and tonight. Clearing Thursday. Highs both days near 8. Lows tonight near zero.

Marion didn't believe...

Kidnap 'just pranksters'

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Marion, held for 82 days in a kidnapping last year, told a Superior Court hearing Tuesday he thought his abductors were "just young men playing cowboy pranks" when they appeared at his cottage near Sherbrooke.

The Sherbrooke credit union employee and his secretary, Aline Yergeau, were at the cottage at Stoke when "two hooded and armed men appeared at the door and said, 'this is a holdup.'"

Marion was testifying at the trial of Claude and Jeanne Valence, charged with conspiring to kidnap the loans manager, kidnapping him, forcibly detaining him from Aug. 6 to Oct. 27, 1977, attempted extortion and extortion.

Marion said his two abductors forced him and Miss Yergeau to lie on the floor. "One of the men put a revolver to the back of my neck, while the other tied Miss Yergeau's hands and feet."

One of the men dragged Miss Yergeau to the bathroom, tied her to the toilet bowl, then began tying him up, he said. KIDNAP UNEXPECTED "I thought they would take the money and we would later find a way to free ourselves."

"But then one of them asked if I was Pierre Charles Marion and I said 'yes.'"

"That's when they put a hood—it was a pillowcase they had brought with them in a bag, along with a rope—and taped it around my neck. When Miss Yergeau told them not to hurt me, they said they would bring me back soon."

"I was literally dragged out to my camper van." Marion testified the men drove for about 1½ hours before stopping to dress him in a twopiece snowmobile suit and to tape his mouth shut.

Marion said he was then led about 50 or 60 feet from the van and tied to a tree in "a very uncomfortable position with my head down."

Before leaving, one of the men told Marion not to scream—which would have been difficult with his mouth taped, he said. They also told him they would be back soon. Marion described one of his abductors as being about five feet eight inches tall and about 30 years old. The other was slightly taller and about 50 years old.

Marion is expected to continue his testimony today.

Postal bill passes despite NDP fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Tough legislation designed to force striking postal workers back to work passed the Commons Tuesday night after being given a rough ride by the New Democratic Party.

The legislation means that the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) must end its strike by Thursday or its leaders and its members could face thousands of dollars in fines. They must stay on the job until December, 1979.

There was no question that the bill would become law today after consideration by the Senate.

Meanwhile, CUPW scheduled a news conference for this morning to announce whether it would obey the legislation.

The union had kept the country guessing all day Tuesday on its reaction to the legislation and finally announced that its executive board must consider the bill and make a decision.

The legislation was the 13th back-to-work bill since 1951. Its penalties for violation of its provisions are the toughest ever.

By keeping the postal workers on the job for almost 15 months the government is seeking to assure labor peace in the post office while it is being transformed into a Crown corporation.

The NDP said the government is dreaming—that by ignoring some of the major causes of inside postal workers dissatisfaction the government will continue to have trouble.

Under the legislation, Andre Ouellet, acting labor minister, will appoint a mediator-arbitrator. This person will first seek to achieve a negotiated settlement between CUPW and the government. He will settle areas where there is no agreement possible through binding arbitration. He will report to the labor minister in 90 days, longer if the union and the government negotiators agree.

Ouellet told the Commons that he hoped to name the mediator-arbitrator rapidly. The man will deal with union wage demands of 15.5 per cent and a government offer of about six per cent. Basic salary plus allowances now averages $7.14 an hour.

If the workers go on strike during the life of the legislation they face fines of $100 a day. If union leaders counsel a strike they could pay $2,500 plus $250 for each day. The union would be liable to $10,000 plus $1,000 a day.

Some of the 23,000 CUPW members started striking early Monday, although the union did not call an official strike until Monday night.

Senate stalls postal hammer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate refused early this morning to rush through legislation forcing inside postal workers back to work, thus giving the union and the government an extra 24 hours to try to reach a negotiated settlement.

Accusing the government of "trying to make a fool of the Senate," Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn withheld the unanimous consent necessary to pass the bill through all three stages in one sitting.

The Senate resumed debate today on second reading—approval in principle—of the bill. Several Opposition MPs felt the delay by the Senate had been carefully engineered by the government to give both sides in the dispute some breathing room.

Legislation ending the strike by the 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW)—passed by the Commons in one day—would have come into effect at 12:01 a.m. (EDT) today if it had passed the Senate and had been given royal assent before midnight Tuesday night.

But because the Senate did not begin considering the bill until after midnight, there was no possibility it could take effect before 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

NO MORE POINT Senators decided there was no point in wasting sleep since there was no longer any urgency to their approval.

The government had expected the Commons to pass the bill by 9 p.m. (EDT), giving the Senate three hours to consider it. But after an evening of watching the World Series on television in Parliament Hill offices, senators decided not to proceed.

Supreme Court Justice Wishart Spence spent the evening with the senators, on call to give royal assent as the governor-general's deputy.

Flynn said it was not right to ask the Senate to approve a bill moments before it was due to take effect. "Do you think it would be fair to tell the strikers who are in a legal strike to go back to work in two minutes?"

CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot had already said his members would stay out at least until 11 a.m. (EDT) today.

Ray Perrault, Senate government leader, urged the Senate to speed the bill through all stages in the early morning hours today as a courtesy to MPs who sat late to pass it and to Spence.

NO TIME

However, some Liberal and Conservative senators objected that they hadn't had time to study the bill, which was photocopied rather than printed for distribution in the Senate in an effort to speed up the process.

Perrault reacted angrily to accusations that the Senate was being rushed. "There is no suggestion whatsoever that this measure is to be passed in any undue haste," he shouted at Conservative senators.

Walter Baker, Progressive Conservative leader in the Commons, and Stanley Knowles, his New Democratic counterpart, agreed the government delayed convening the Senate Tuesday night so it would not be able to deal with the bill.

SCOC revamp belittled

QUEBEC (CP) — Federal government plans to increase Quebec's representation on an expanded Supreme Court of Canada will likely not do much to redress a constitutional imbalance, Claude Morin, Quebec's intergovernmental affairs minister, said Tuesday.

Morin was commenting on a study he tabled earlier in the national assembly which says that the Canadian constitution, not the judges of the high court, are largely responsible for a tendency in Supreme Court constitutional rulings favoring Ottawa over the provinces. "It seems that the rulings of the Supreme Court will generally tend to be favorable to the federal government as long as the court will have to interpret a text which, in its wording as well as in the intentions of its authors, lends itself to a centralizing vision," the study says.

Morin told reporters: "So the number of judges on the court is not important." The federal government has tabled legislation that would expand the high court to 11 judges from the present nine. Under the new arrangement, Quebec would be guaranteed four judges instead of three.

TO BE DISTRIBUTED Morin said the study will be made available to other provincial government and likely will come up in discussions at the constitutional conference of first ministers in Ottawa at the end of the month.

The study, prepared by Gilbert L'Ecuyer, an adviser on federal-provincial relations in Morin's department, it the second on the ramifications of constitutional arrangements to be released. The first, on overlapping in federal and provincial services, was released in June.

A series of about 18 studies were commissioned by the government as a prelude to the referendum on Quebec's political independence.

HELLO, TRS-80: TOOL OR TOY?

By GUS HAIG

SHERBROOKE — The computer, Orwellian, complicated, and most of all, intimidating, Star Wars' R2 D2 did nothing to satisfy my skeptical outlook.

Yesterday I had the fortune of meeting another, called the TRS-80. Radio Shack, under Luc Lareau set up this momentous confrontation of man vs. machine at the Hotel La Reserve. After repeatedly assuring me that the TRS-80 would not spin, fold or mutilate me into the cheap seats, Lareau demonstrated that computers can be agreeable after all.

"A ten-year-old can operate this," he kept repeating, so oozing confidence I stepped up to greet TRS-80. Showing off its staggering versatility, Lareau continued, "Housewives, small businessmen and doctors are all benefiting from this little beauty."

Challenged over the work-eliminating and dehumanizing aspects of computers, Lareau defended his product and emphasized that the TRS-80 simplified work, rather than eliminating it.

Carefully following the BASIC (beginners' all-purpose symbolic instruction code) I began to realize all the computer asks for is perfection. Completely agreeable when programmed properly, the TRS-80 can be temperamental when not. A rude, to-the-point "What?" flashed on the screen when I mishandled the program, which can be taken either as a reflection on me or on the intelligence of the average 10-year-old.

Lareau then pulled out a biorythm program, informing me as to what days I'm at a "high", emotionally, mentally and physically and what days would be advantageous to stay in bed. Insulted that my presence might not be appreciated on certain days, I was relieved to find very few low days. Thanks, TRS-80 — who's to say computers don't have feelings, too?

Romans mob John Paul II

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Following in the footsteps of the pope whose name he took, Pope John Paul II has ordered an inaugural mass Sunday instead of a coronation. Like John Paul I, the new pope will not don the traditional beehive-shaped tiara for centuries symbolic of his office. Instead he will be vested with the white wool pallium or stole signifying his dual offices as Roman Catholic bishop of Rome and patriarch of the Western church.

The Vatican said it will announce later whether the mass will be held outdoors in St. Peter's Square, like the inaugural of Pope John Paul I on Sept. 3 and the coronation of Pope Paul VI in 1963, or inside St. Peter's Basilica where previous popes were crowned.

The church's first Polish pope drove from the Vatican late Tuesday afternoon, less than 24 hours after his election, to see an ailing Polish bishop and other patients in a Rome hospital.

FIRST OUTING

Thousands cheered the new pontiff and policemen stopped rush-hour traffic along the fourkilometre route. As traffic backed up, motorists first honked in protest and then got out of their cars to wave when they realized the Pope was on his first outing from the Vatican.

Riding in an open car, John Paul stood up repeatedly, waved and stretched out his hands and gestured to his driver to slow down when he saw the crowds hurrying to hail him.

Nurses, doctors and patients mobbed him in the entrance hall of the Gemelli Polyclinic Catholic Hospital in northwest Rome.

The Pope bent and kissed his Polish compatriot, Bishop Andre-Marie Deskur of the Vatican Curia. But the 54-year-old prelate was unconscious after suffering a blood clot last Friday.

"He is a colleague of mine but above all he is a very dear friend," the Pope said. Then he walked through the men's cancer ward, pausing at each occupied bed and wheelchair to chat with the patients and bless them.

Speaking to "my patients, my friends," on the hospital's intercom system, John Paul asked them to pray for him.

Labor prepares to take partisan stand

TORONTO (CP) — Organized labor has learned some hard lessons during the last three years and is prepared to take a strong partisan stand in the next federal election, Dennis McDermott, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Monday.

"Having demonstrated our ability to mobilize, we'll inevitably become involved in the political arena in the next election," McDermott told a Canadian Club meeting. He said the labor congress, rebuffed at federal government levels since the imposition of price and wage controls, has gained a great deal of insight into high unemployment and other economic ills besetting the Canadian economy.

He expressed concern that the large number of unemployed people under 25 years of age might turn to an alternative political system in which everyone might suffer.

Business and labor have come into closer harmony despite their frequently adversary positions, and an "intelligent, meaningful dialogue" between the two sides is essential if they are to continue working together, McDermott said.

"It's time to let go of the old anachronisms." Labor stood pretty much alone when it had the "intestinal fortitude" to oppose controls, he said.

"Now, three years later, it is completely vindicated. Everyone woke up. They have seen the high degree of inflation, the devalued dollar, the economic stagnation and unemployment.

"After the government got rid of controls—its political liability—it decided to call on business and labor to pick up the pieces.

"How about you two patsies forming a monitoring agent to replace the discredited AIB system, they asked us.

"Thank you, but no thank you is my reply."

McDermott said the Economic Council of Canada, staffed with bureaucrats, is now responsible for monitoring inflation and labor has no input and no presence.

CONTROLS AGAIN?

And already there is talk about reintroduction of controls, he said, adding that probably "some of the turkeys" who had been on the anti-inflation board are looking for a job.

"It is more expedient for the government to find a scapegoat than a solution to its problems.

"They should devote a little more time to governing than watching Gallup polls."

McDermott criticized proponents of free trade between countries, a practice he described as the trade anthem of multinationals, and said there should be a move instead toward fair trade.

Economic and political union with the United States would be an offshoot of free trade, he said.

Wholesale prices increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale prices increased by 1.1 per cent in August over July levels, Statistics Canada reported this week.

The federal agency's wholesale price index, an indicator of future trends in consumer prices, stood at 610.1, up from July's 603.3.

The index was up 8.1 per cent from a year earlier.

The change appears to counter a moderation in inflation seen in September when consumer prices dropped for the first time in seven years and the 12-month increase in the cost-of-living fell to 8.6 per cent from 9.4 per cent in August.

Alcan workers strike

BEAUHARNOIS, Que. (CP) — A wildcat strike by 400 workers protesting the suspension of several fellow employees, including two union officers, halted production Monday at Alcan's Aluminium Ltd. smelter here.

Plant manager Maurice Caron said about 100 employees formed a picket line outside the smelter and prevented the day shift from entering. At the same time, workers inside were ordered out and electric power to the electrolysis section was cut.

In Montreal, an Alcan spokesman said the smelter, which produces 50,000 short tons a year—five per cent of the company's Canadian capacity—may have to close indefinitely.

Conflict-of-interest bill tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government Monday reintroduced its conflict-of-interest legislation designed to keep public officials from using their jobs for private gain.

The bill was first introduced in the Commons in June, after five years of study and delay, but died when the third session of Parliament ended last week.

The bill would allow MPs and Senators to have business dealings with the government if a House or Senate committee "considers it just and equitable to do so."

In addition, MPs and senators could own up to $15,000 or five per cent of publicly-traded shares in corporations that do business with the government.

The legislation also permits parliamentarians to put assets into trusts, although the types of trusts have yet to be decided.

CNCP applies for rate hikes

OTTAWA (CP) — CN-CP Telecommunications has applied to the Canadian Radiotelevision and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) for rate increases that would yield the companies an additional $7.2 million in 1979.

The rates of increases vary among the services offered which include Telex, data Telex service, broadband exchange service, private wire service and public message service.

If approved, the increases would take effect April 1.

Nobel prize awarded

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Prof. Herbert Simon of the United States has won the 1978 Nobel Prize in economic science for his research into the way large organizations such as multinational companies make business decisions, the Swedish Academy of Sciences announced Monday.

The 62-year-old professor at the Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa., also was hailed by the academy for his broad research in social science fields.

"Simon would be able to help us understand the process which led to the choice of laureates," said Prof. Erik Lundberg, who heads the Nobel committee for the Swedish academy.

Simon, reached by telephone at his home in Pittsburgh, said he was "very surprised and pleased" at winning the award, worth $165,000.

Banks scramble to up rates

Canada's chartered banks scrambled Monday to increase their prime lending rates, leaving many to wonder how high is up.

The prime—the rate charged to the most credit-worthy customers—will climb to 11 per cent from 10 3/4 per cent today at most chartered banks. Some are waiting until Wednesday to boost the rate, highest since July 23, 1974 when it hit 11 1/2 per cent.

It follows the setting of a record high rate Friday by Canada's banking authority, the Bank of Canada, of 10.25 per cent. The three-quarters-of-one-per-cent jump in the central bank rate was the largest of five increases this year.

MacEachen questions APEC

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen questioned Monday some aspects of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council's (APEC) development strategy for the 1980's, saying he was surprised that those who prepared the study failed to connect national unity with the future of the region's economy.

"This naive attitude is surprising enough that I wonder if it actually prevails," he said. "A breakup of confederation would create economic dislocation and uncertainty that would inevitably stunt longterm growth in this region.

"Moreover, the prospect of a drastically weakened federal government is more dangerous to this region than any other."

MacEachen emphasized during a speech to APEC's annual meeting that strong growth in the Atlantic provinces depends largely on a healthy national economy.

Since 1973, the centre has been directing its energies towards developing better varieties of tomatoes for preserves such as ketchup and tomato sauces.

Petroleum companies parade unsellable natural gas

CALGARY (CP) — Five petroleum companies paraded their unsellable natural gas before the National Energy Board on Monday, pleading for resumption of large-scale exports to the United States.

The message was the same from Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd., BP Canada Ltd., Bow Valley Exploration Ltd., Chevron Standard Ltd. and Chieftain Development Ltd.

All said they have surpluses of gas because of energy board restrictions on new gas exports. With new export sales, they said, there would be increased cash flow to permit more exploration activity to meet future Canadian needs.

Amoco Canada led the gas sweepstakes, reporting that it has 1.5 trillion cubic feet lying idle for lack of markets.

That, an Amoco Canada

statement said, is enough to heat all the households of Metropolitan Toronto's almost two million residents for 10 years.

The companies' message, however, did not escape criticism.

CHALLENGES CASE

Bruce Willson, spokesman for the Committee for an Independent Canada and a former president of Union Gas Co. Ltd. of Chatham, Ont., used his cross-examination privileges to challenge the petroleum industry's case at every opportunity.

Confronting BP Canada officials, whose brief asserted that energy board bars to new gas sales amount to "needless undermining of the private enterprise system that has served Canada so well," Willson declared:

"I just can't understand your rationale when we see oil supplies dwindling so rapidly and gas supplies going down so rapidly and prices increasing so rapidly and you say the industry has served Canada well."

Willson concentrated most of his effort on Amoco Canada, which described how confident it is that large reserves of natural gas remain to be found in Alberta.

Vice-president Tony Neidermayer said the company is backing its confidence with cash, spending 102 per cent of its cash flow in the first half of this year on exploration, development and production.

But, under Willson's questioning, Neidermayer noted that later this year Amoco will pay its U.S. parent a dividend on the order of $30 million, lessening the percentage of cash flow devoted to exploration.

Shipping strike spurs layoffs

MONTREAL (CP) — Industry officials say the first layoffs as a result of the Great Lakes shipping strike could come as early as the end of the week unless an agreement is reached between the Canadian Lake Carriers Association and 800 striking marine engineers and deck officers.

The engineers and deck officers, members of the Canadian Marine Officers Union and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, walked off the job early Monday, paralysing most of the country's inland fleet at the height of the seasonal rush.

In Hamilton, Canada Steamship Lines said about 40 freight handlers face possible layoffs. "We still have a quarter of the shipping season left," said a spokesman for the company, "but unless a settlement is reached quickly it will be lost."

A spokesman for The Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. in Hamilton said: "There is no immediate effect on our operations, but a prolonged strike could create problems."

In Regina, the second vice-president of the Saskatchewan wheat pool, Bill Marshall, said a strike would have a serious effect on prairie farmers and the Canadian economy in general.

Marshall said grain should be kept moving while negotiations take place.

SEEK INTERVENTION

In Winnipeg, the Canadian Grain Growers called for federal intervention to end the dispute before it causes widespread damage to the economy.

In Montreal, Iron Ore Co. of Canada president Brian Mulrone said if the strike continues for any length of time it will have dire consequences for iron-ore producers on the Quebec-Labrador border.

In Thunder Bay, Ont., a union leader for 1,500 grain handlers predicted widespread layoffs if the strike lasts into next week.

Officials in the ports of Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton warned of serious economic consequences if the shutdown of 122 freighters in the Canadian Lake Carriers Association is a long one.

Corporate grocers shrug off complaints

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporate grocery spokesmen said Monday that thousands of consumers complain to them each year about food that is infested, sickening, awful tasting or otherwise unsatisfactory.

However, they told a consumer services conference workshop, the complaints are few compared to the volume of groceries sold daily and that there has been no dramatic increase in the last few years.

They said complaints vary depending on the day, the season, the geographic region, and, added Canada Safeway representative Don Jarvis of Toronto, "whether the moon is full or not."

Jarvis said Safeway gets 800 to 1,000 calls weekly from consumers, some complaining and some merely making inquiries. In an average week the Safeway Stores sell between $40 million and $50 million worth of products to between 1.5 million and 2 million shoppers.

Jarvis and George Beatty, representing the Toronto-based General Foods manufacturing company, both recommended consumers bring complaints about food back to the store where the product was purchased.

They said this is the quickest way to have the product replaced or a refund granted, a policy both representatives said their companies practice.

FOOD INFESTED

Beatty said only 33 of 7,000 complaints last year were considered critical and were handled immediately. Examples were infested food and pudding that made a woman and her daughter sick.

Beatty said General Foods sent disgruntled consumers about 5,000 free packages of food last year to replace unsatisfactory products.

Beatty said General Foods received about 30 inquiries about food prices and about 800 requests about nutrition last year.

General Foods got about 1,000 letters containing compliments and suggestions and others with requests for information on pets, facts about the company and educational material for school projects.

Complaints rise sometimes after press reports about a product. Recently, for example, an individual got more than $200 from a restaurant owner after blaming a broken tooth on food eaten at the restaurant.

Act IV

Bill 67 covers Quebec residents

During the mail strike, letters to Act IV can be dropped off at our offices at 2520 Roy St., just up from Combustion Engineering. We'll also take all calls relating to consumer and marketplace affairs at 569-6345, between 10 a.m. and noon.

MORE ON AUTOPAC

Whether you're visiting friends in Florida, vacationing in Spain, walking, driving or cycling and you're a Quebecer, you're covered by Bill 67, Quebec's no-fault auto-insurance scheme if you're involved in any accident involving a motor vehicle.

Bill 67 entitles all Quebecers who suffer bodily injuries in an automobile accident — whether they be pedestrians, drivers, or passengers; whether the accident occurs in or outside Quebec; whether or not they are responsible for the accident — to compensation from the Regie de l'Assurance Automobile du Quebec.

Non-Quebec residents may also be covered by the plan in the case of injury resulting from a motor vehicle accident occurring in the province. However, the proportion of benefits they may claim depends upon the extent to which they were responsible for the accident.

In other words, if Aunt Mary from Toronto (eighty-one and still driving) while visiting relatives in the E.T., gets creamed by a joker who ran a red light; can claim 100 per cent of the compensations that a Quebecer would be eligible for.

However, if Aunt Mary is found to be 50 per cent responsible for the accident, she can claim only 50 per cent of the benefits to which she would otherwise be entitled.

Note that this concept of proportionality of responsibility applies only where non-residents incur bodily injuries. Quebecers are entitled to 100 per cent compensation, regardless of the extent of their responsibility for the accident.

What kinds of compensation can an injured person claim? The benefits range from compensation for injuries, scars, mutilation, pain, and loss of enjoyment of life to compensation for being unable to work and death benefits. Included in the list are medical and paramedical costs, ambulance fees, replacement of damaged clothing, and the purchase of artificial limbs.

If you have the misfortune of being injured in an automobile accident, contact the Regie de l'Assurance Automobile, 1335 King St. West, Sherbrooke, tel. 566-4770 or 1-800-361-7620. They will provide the necessary forms to be completed, and give you more information on possible compensation.

WARRANTY WARNINGS

We have come to expect a warranty with anything and everything we buy. Like Linus' blanket, it's a symbol of security. The warranty will protect us if ever unforeseen problems crop up, or so we believe.

Never has a piece of paper been so valued, yet so ignored. Part of the reason lies in the great expectations that we have of newly purchased products. The other part rests in the assumptions that we make about what a warranty guarantees us.

The technicalities, conditions, and limits of a warranty are seldom realized. Few of us are aware that the consumer, as well as the manufacturer, has obligations to meet for the warranty to be binding.

Mrs. Doe purchased an R.C.A. automatic washing machine four years ago. Only recently did she read the fine print of the warranty. The conditions stipulated by the company for the warranty to be valid amazed her, as did the discrepancy between her assumptions concerning the coverage she was entitled to and the reality described in the warranty.

The terms of the warranty require Mrs. Doe to operate the washer according to the manual provided, for "single family use only", and for its "designed purpose". (Does this mean that the warranty is not effective if Mrs. Doe's daughter brings her family's wash over once a week?)

In return, the company agrees to repair or replace free of charge any defective parts during the first year of ownership, and to repair or replace defective parts on the transmission assembly for an extended four year period, with the parts supplied free of charge, but not the labour or transportation charges.

However, the company will assume responsibility only if the repairs are done by the dealer she bought the product from (or his authorized service agency), only if Mrs. Doe is the original purchaser of the product, and only if the washer is used in Canada.

Also, the R.C.A. company stipulates in the warranty that they will provide no compensation for "special or consequential damages resulting from any failure of the washer or from service delays beyond their (the manufacturer's or the dealer's) reasonable control."

Your warranty may entitle you to less, or more, than you expected. Check it out.

C.E. talks progress

It looked as if the union of Combustion Engineering workers was settling in for a long strike when the men began insulating their strike headquarters, but an end to the six-week-old dispute could come as early as this morning as some 480 Combustion Engineering workers will be voting on the latest series of company offers. On strike since Sept. 6, the members of Local 1530 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers will be asked to decide on the offers handed to union negotiators over the weekend.

The Combustion Engineering workers struck when management refused to consider their demands for a 12-per-cent increase; the company was offering six per cent and the union protested this wouldn't even cover the increase in the cost of living.

Today's vote, to take place in the Marie Mediatrix Church Hall, is said to be on an eight-per-cent offer over two years, although neither the company nor union officials would elaborate pending the poll.

Hospital's name changes

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA
SHERBROOKE — It's a sign of the times — the Sherbrooke Hospital changed its name to Centre Hospitalier de Sherbrooke — the Sherbrooke Hospital Centre during the course of a special general meeting last night.

About 100 people were in attendance in the lounge of the hospital's Norton Annex as reports for the 1977-78 operating year were read by the Bursary, Finance, House, Staff Relations and Public Relations committees as well as the Council of Physicians and Dentists, director of nursing, Ladies' Auxiliary, chaplain representative and general manager.

Hospital President B.D. Allanson stated in his report that although the 1977 operating permit stipulated 101 acute-care beds and 30 long-term beds it was decided that if it was implemented, the hospital would experience a disastrous deterioration in the variety of services which it provides to the community.

In May of this year a request for review was made and the 1978 operating permit permitted 125 acute-care beds and 16 long-term beds - 10 more beds - on the proviso additional funding would not come from the Government. Allanson said the hospital had reconsidered following the new 1978-1979 budget considerations and that it will be meeting with the Ministry of Social Affairs and the local Conseil regional de la sante et des Services sociaux to haggle over the matter.

Allanson stressed that although the CRSSS was still a recommending body, its advice will now carry more weight with the ministry. Recent amendments to Bill 65, the respecting health and social services, designate the Eastern Townships region as a pilot project to delegate more power to the local C.R.S.S.S.

He also stressed the Board of Directors' disappointment in the CRSSS attitude toward the new forensic Psychiatry Unit; the unit wasn't approved for a year and the local CRSSS refuses to help finance the year delay before granting approval and to its not participating in the critically-needed unit. The unit which consists of eight forensic psychiatry beds and six general psychiatry beds, is under the direction of Dr. Pierre Gagne.

Present government policy, said Allanson, requires a 2-per-cent cut in the annual payroll this year and four per cent slice in 1979.

In presenting the Finance Committee's report, E. Ashford Lothrop said that although a surplus of $25,131 had been realized in the past 12 months, the hospital faced an estimated $200,000 deficit this year. Both budget revision and deficit will be discussed with the Ministry of Social Affairs and the CRSSS. He too mentioned the recent pilot project whereby the CRSSS has been mandated to deal with all budgetary requests and noted that as early as the 1979-1980 fiscal year budgetary allocations may be eventually given as one sum to the CRSSS for the region and that they in turn will allocate the budget to each institution.

Using the recent Ripplecove Inn tragedy to illustrate the point that the hospital is the only Eastern Townships medical institution capable of communicating with sick, elderly patients in English, Lothrop said that a large proportion of the hospital's patients are over the age of 60, and are basically unilingual, usually anglophone. He also stated,

Quango-hunting: Different names for the same beast

In Britain, as in Canada an election is not too far off - spring at the latest. The usual rituals associated with the sport have begun - disputes over leadership and image presentation, over party advertising and finance, and so on. A new one is emerging, and in these times of tax revolt, it has a good chance of becoming really popular and spreading to other countries. Quango-hunting is in style.

There's a little disagreement on where the term comes from - does it really stand for quasi national and governmental organization or, the more popular definition, quasi non-governmental organisation? Either way, quangos are, the critics feel, closer to the government than is comfortable.

What we're talking about here is any body appointed by the government which concerns itself with the operation or regulation of any aspect of public life. It is appointed, not elected and thus its accountability is often at best dimly perceived. The taxpayer puts up the money for a whole host of committees, commissions, boards, councils, tribunals, but who checks, and how, if he or she is getting their moneysworth?

The term 'quango' applies to a wide range of organisations, big and small, mighty and puny, in energy, labour relations, social services, transport, communications, sport and culture, and other basic aspects of public life. The expression would seem to apply particularly to the sort of middle range: the big transport, communications, energy and other such enterprises are public enough and thus exposed to continual scrutiny - those in between are not.

Quangos, and those who run them - 'quangos' rather than 'quangeroos', apparently - are common to all western democracies. One British politician visiting Ottawa recently for the first time was astonished at how he couldn't move a step without bumping into yet another quango. There has probably been more federal-provincial consultation over the last ten years than in the hundred before that, so this factor alone must help to bring Canada close to the estimated British total of 900 quangos with 20,000 members, costing over $25 million in wages alone. In Britain they tend to be a form of public service replica of the private business sector. Ministers appoint people prominent in other areas of public life, so that often a leading trade unionist, for example, will be a sort of director of half a dozen or more corporations, boards or tribunals.

Who opposes the quangos? In Britain the opposition is also made up of the Conservatives at present. They find quangos a favourite target. Some MP's in particular fire salvos at them as a perfect example of the dangers involved in expanding government too recklessly, out of the taxpayer's pocket.

In Aberdeen recently, for instance, the local Tory MP Iain Sproat attacked 'quangolitis'. "In addition to those 'Quangos' with U.K. powers, there are now some 250 bureaucratic bodies in Scotland all eating up taxpayers' money, and many providing cushy jobs at fat salaries or with fat expense accounts... frankly, the system stinks. It increases the bureaucracy, red tape and interference. It costs the taxpayers even greater sums. It gives more power and patronage to the State, at the expense of the individual. It pays off debts to friends and buys off potential trouble-makers."

Quango-hunting enjoys the support of sectors of the media and of the public. This is easily understood - 'quango' often is simply another way of saying 'jobs for the boys'. Some public bodies in particular are notorious for their tradition of appointing unqualified, overpaid, underworked people whose main interests lie elsewhere.

Yet part of the sanctimonious resentment at 'official favouritism' and 'patronage' is only that of outsiders, who, past experience indicates, would willingly follow the same pattern when their side is back in power.

A lot of the opposition to quangos, however, is more substantial. The more of them there are, and the more power for them to become, the more parliament's power is diminished. Can members of parliament keep up with information about them, let alone supervise their activities?

One Labour MP complained in Westminster in August about "the biggest quango of them all", the House of Lords, and said it should be abolished. But Upper Chamber-bashing, as members of the Senate in Ottawa know, is, while always a popular sport, particularly rife at periods of electoral and other constitutional comings and goings.

The ultimate quango of all, in fact, is the public service. It is not so much the king of the quango jungle as a sort of mother hen, gathering these small groups, sometimes led by ex-bureaucrats under its wings: civil servants always prefer dealing with small interest groups who think and act along similar lines.

Some people, in Britain as in Canada, see the dangers of a decline in the powers of parliament while the strength and influence of interest groups grow, virtually unchecked. Quangos represent a form of institutionalized, publicly-funded pressure group, and it is the role of parliament, not of the public service or of the government, to supervise them. Governments govern. Parliaments, ideally, check and supervise that process.

In Ottawa there have been murmurs about Joe Clark's 'enemies list', or 'reserve talent bank' to give it its milder, more Canadian name. But leading Conservatives have disagreed on what party policy will be if and when they take over office. So opposition policy on supervising the administrative process is difficult to discover, let alone assess.

From the point of view of improved accountability and openness of government, quangos can best be scrutinized by the public through its elected agents in parliament. In Britain, the opposition is calling for the strengthening of parliamentary committees to enable more continuous and competent inspection of government activities. They want more power, for instance, to approve appointments to quangos.

The 'insistent tide of government regulation' seems a basic fact of life - as evidenced by the way the topic recurs in, for instance, management courses in Britain. In Britain, as in the US and Canada, the public sector has seemed to grow relentlessly, in terms of costs and personnel above all, over the last ten or fifteen years. If the public is to get maximum responsiveness from government, the quango phenomenon will have to be properly assessed and scrutinized.

Down, but not out

The Grits took a drubbing at the polls Monday, and the feelings of a few million Canadians were summed up pretty well by a jubilant David Crombie's terse: "We're poundin' 'em."

Well, the Liberals may be down, but they're far from out. They lost two seats they should have won, a couple of others they could have won and a major chunk of the popular vote.

But they snapped up two Quebec seats at a walk and came second to the Socreds in Lotbiniere, cutting the margin of winner Richard Janelle to half that enjoyed by defunct Socred Chief Andre Fortin, and the big cut they took in the popular vote is a two-edged weapon at best.

Less than 24 hours after their seeming defeat, the Grits recouped by sending the postal workers back to work; the show of force was what Canadians needed and it wiped out any feelings anyone might have had that the Trudeau government was demoralized by the beating at the polls.

Can we trust 'em? Nope. Nothing's changed.

Congratulations

In choosing Karol Cardinal Wojtyla as the new pope, the cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church have made a bold move.

The choice is particularly significant for two reasons. First, John Paul II is the first non-Italian pope in 455 years. Second, and more important, he is a native of Poland, a member of the Warsaw Pact.

The new pontiff's years of service as priest and bishop have been served in a communist country whose civil authorities do no more than tolerate the Church's existence. Relations in Poland between church and state, have been difficult since the communist takeover. As recently as November 1976, a pastoral letter was read in all the Polish churches deploring the constant menace against the Catholic faith in that country.

In spite of this context the Polish Church is flourishing, which is a reminder to all that the human spirit will not be circumscribed by purely material considerations.

It appears to us that the remainder of this century will see an ever increasing confrontation between the world's two dominant ideologies, Communism and Christianity. John Paul II is in a unique position to guide his church through these years.

The Kremlin must view Cardinal Wojtyla's elevation with some misgivings. This choice is made at a time when the Polish Church is showing unmistakable signs of vigor and at a time when in the U.S.S.R. itself, there are indications that religious faith is reaffirming itself in spite of official oppression. The example of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, a child of the revolution, turning to the Christian faith while in the gulags, is eloquent testimony of this.

The nomination of John Paul II proves that the Church is far from dead. Whether he likes it or not the new pope will be seen as a symbol of affirmation of the quest for higher values which has marked the human spirit since the beginning of recorded history. Good luck to him.

Grits vow to try harder

Byelection results bring mixed reaction

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau pledged Monday night to use the next few months before a spring general election to regain the confidence of the Canadian people that 15 byelections showed was lacking.

He made the pledge after his party won only two of the byelections that were held across the country.

Meanwhile, jubilant opposition leaders forecast great gains for their parties in the general election after Progressive Conservatives won 10 byelection seats, the New Democrats two and Social Credit one.

In Newfoundland, where the NDP had an upset victory in Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe, the provincial Liberal leader raised the question of the future of Trudeau's continued party leadership.

Trudeau brushed off any question of that, first saying his leadership is not in question and then saying "let's wait and see."

Trudeau agreed with Opposition Leader Joe Clark and NDP Leader Ed Broadbent that voters were expressing dissatisfaction with the government.

HAS SIX MONTHS

He said the important thing is for the government to set about correcting the situation. He had at least six months before the general election that he has promised will be called next spring and "I can take all the time I want to show people that I can run the country."

"I'm not going to be crushed by losing a few byelections," Trudeau said.

Trudeau, who watched the election results on television at home alone, rejected Clark's statement that the Liberals have been reduced to a Quebec base and that they have no support in English Canada.

Clark said that despite the Conservatives losing one of their two seats in Quebec—the Liberals won St. Hyacinthe—he still is optimistic about the Conservative showing in that province.

The party had so improved its popular vote in the three Quebec byelections that he could forecast the Conservatives would win 15 seats in the next election.

"I'm very pleased, naturally, at our great victory in Ontario, although I'm discouraged that we didn't win in Quebec."

He was happy that Conservatives had won seats that had been held by five Liberal cabinet ministers.

Clark watched the results in his Parliament Hill office with his wife, some MPs and his staff members.

Following is the Canadian Press list of members elected in the 15 federal byelections, majorities being approximate in many cases, with party gain shown unless seat unchanged.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

The environment: Can we afford the cleanup?

WASHINGTON — President Carter's chief inflation fighters are engaged in a crucial struggle with top regulatory officials over how much the country can afford to pay to clean up the environment.

The influential Charles Schultze, the president's chief economic adviser, has been leading a quiet effort to dilute or delay regulations that would protect the health of millions of Americans. The economic experts believe these regulations would fuel inflation by adding billions of dollars to the cost of doing business.

The failure to protect workers and consumers from devastating diseases, however, would be even more costly to the economy, environmental officials argue. They complain that the economists have singled them out while ignoring other costly issues such as the special tax breaks and outright subsidies that big corporations have wangled out of Washington.

Now we have learned that Schultze may have violated the law by personally putting pressure on environmental officials long after the deadline for public comment had expired. Schultze made several phone calls to Douglas Costle, the environmental chief, in an attempt to influence his agency's ruling on the amount of lead that will be tolerated in the air. The calls came well after the official deadline had expired. Schultze asked Costle, according to competent sources, how he could convey his concern over the proposed lead standard. Costle carefully warned him not to raise any information that wasn't already in the public record or the regulations could be invalidated. "The game has to be played by the rules," Costle reportedly told him.

A spokesman confirmed to our reporter Vicki Warren that Schultze "has been in touch with Costle after the public comment period was over." He insisted, however, that Schultze had not violated the law because he didn't introduce any new information. The law, he noted, "is enormously complicated."

But other White House economists also lobbied with the Environmental Protection Agency over the lead standard more than two months after the comment period had ended. At a two-hour meeting in early August, the economic aides handed over a thick report which criticized the lead standard as too severe. The rules on public comment were established, it should be noted, to prevent any improper pressure from industry executives or other special interests.

Most of the lead in the air comes from gasoline additives and is sprayed out of automobile exhaust pipes, although some billows out of industrial smokestacks. The problem is most severe in urban areas, where the lead settles on the children's playgrounds. High levels of lead also add to air pollution and make it difficult for persons with respiratory ailments to breathe.

The proposed lead rules would require an initial capital outlay of $620 million, followed by $140 million a year for maintenance. Industrial firms are bitterly opposed to any new regulations. But the Environmental Defense Fund may take Schultze to court over what it considers his illegal intervention on the issue.

Lead pollution is not the only issue in this high-stakes struggle between the environmentalists and the industrialists. All environmental regulations have come under increased scrutiny after one of Carter's quiet advisers, Robert Strauss, singled them out as a major cause of inflation.

This was followed by a backroom skirmish between the president's economic advisers and safety officials. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration tried to set limits on workers exposure to cotton dust. This was intended to protect 600,000 textile workers from brown lung disease. But Schultze, supported by wage-price adviser Barry Bosworth, tried to water down the standard. The backroom fight eventually involved the president himself.

One safety official later complained that the confrontation with his own White House colleagues "was harder than fighting the industry." The economic side of the White House won at least a tactical victory. The deadline was extended for four years, and the cost of controlling cotton dust was scaled down from $2.7 billion to $625 million.

The next battle involved pollution control in areas of the country where the air is already clean. This time, the wage-price control council intervened two months after the comment period ended. But the environmental agency didn't retreat from its strict standards to prevent the deterioration of clean air.

The two sides are still feuding over efforts to remove cancer-causing substances from the nation's drinking water. There has already been a scare over the high levels of carcinogens found in the New Orleans drinking supply.

Similar sniping has broken out in nearly every industry. The White House economists have weighed in at the Interior Department on new standards to control strip mining. And there has been White House pressure at the Transportation Department over plans to make the nation's mass transit systems more accessible to the elderly and handicapped.

The question of whether all these regulations are worth the inflationary impact has divided the Carter administration into two bitterly opposed factions. It is not likely to end anytime soon.

'Boat people' increasing pressure on nations

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The flood of refugees from Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam, now averaging more than 9,000 a month, is increasing pressure on the international community, now faced with a growing and costly resettlement problem.

Refugee camps in Thailand, Malaysia and Hong Kong are bursting at the seams. However, only about one-third, roughly 3,000, are being resettled each month in France, United States, Canada, Australia and other countries willing to accept them.

During the first nine months of 1978, about 40,000 have fled Vietnam by boat, reaching safe haven in some Southeast Asian country. Thousands of others have fled by land.

FOOD SCARCE

Part of the reason is the severe tropical storms of September, the worst in 75 years, which damaged the rice crop to such an extent that only generous foreign help can reduce hunger among the Vietnamese.

But probably a much larger reason is the reported repression in Cambodia and Vietnam.

The Paris newspaper Le Monde says the Hanoi-run regime has created another Gulag Archipelago in Vietnam. A correspondent for the French newspaper wrote that three years after the downfall of the South Vietnamese Thieu regime, the so-called re-education camps for thousands of former supporters still are full. So are other types of political prisons.

The Vietnamese campaign against ethnic Chinese also has added to the refugee exodus as well as the continued killings in Democratic Kampuchea, formerly Cambodia, where a new revolutionary agriculture-based society is evolving. And the age-old rivalries between Cambodians and Vietnamese have resurfaced in another border war.

Canada found evidence to support reports of Cambodian atrocities and urged the United Nations to launch an immediate investigation of the human rights situation in Democratic Kampuchea. The Kampuchean told Canada to mind its own business, saying it was a lackey of the United States anyway, going back to the days of the Vietnam war.

CANADA ATTACKED

In a bitter condemnation of Canadian interference in the domestic affairs of another country, the Kampuchean delegate to the United Nations recalled that his country was trying to rebuild after being almost destroyed by the secret U.S. B-52 bombings of 1969-70 and the ensuing invasion of his country. He placed the war-related death toll at more than one million Cambodians.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said that until Canada and other countries undertook independent investigations, there was lack of hard evidence about the atrocity charges.

"Therefore, it was possible for people to argue—if it suited their purpose—that these sort of things were propaganda and were exaggerations."

But Jamieson explained during his visit to the UN last month that several countries indicated to him they had similar information. They felt some form of international action ought to be taken.

"I think where the difficulty rests is in trying to determine what form that action ought to take. I think the No. 1 step is the one that's already under way, namely to bring to bear the indignation and concern of the United Nations and democratic countries with the kind of activities which we know is going on."

Rather than condemning Canada, the Kampuchean government would have been better advised to allow some sort of independent investigation to get all the facts, Jamieson added.

"The best way for them to prove that we're wrong is to allow that kind of investigation."

...while others stay to suffer

CBC correspondent Sheldon Turcott has just returned from Vietnam where he witnessed the border war between Vietnam and Cambodia. Here he describes the suffering inflicted on the peasants and the impact of the war on the future of Vietnam.

By SHELDON TURCOTT

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam (CP) — A vicious border war between the Vietnamese and the Khmer Rouge of Cambodia has inflicted shocking atrocities on innocent men, women and children.

The fighting which may explode into full conflict is linked to a bitter power struggle between the Soviet Union and China for dominance in Indochina.

Cambodia is using Chinese arms in border raids on Vietnamese villages, slaughtering women and children under darkness and mutilating their bodies.

Equipped by the Soviet Union, Vietnam has one of the largest armed forces in Asia. Until now Vietnam has been fighting a defensive war, fending off attacks, striking occasionally inside Cambodia.

Now the raids have increased, intensified by Vietnamese air support and artillery fire. Aside from fear of Chinese intervention, only the weather appears to be holding up a full Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia.

But all the signs point to full invasion, possibly when the monsoons end in November.

During a tour of the border area, this reporter saw convoys of trucks delivering new arms and ammunition to the front, Soviet T-54 tanks, heavy guns and truckloads of soldiers.

In Chinese eyes, Indochina will never be a zone of peace if it is dominated by Vietnam which depends on the Soviet Union for economic survival.

Vietnam is virtually bankrupt, unable to feed or clothe itself. After years of fighting American forces, the Communist regime was hit by drought followed by floods that now cover a huge area of the productive Mekong delta.

The country's grain shortage this year may run to three-million tons, or 20 per cent of the basic needs of the 50 million Vietnamese. A huge international aid program will be required to fill the gap.

Even now, every vital commodity in the country is rationed. The monthly food ration for each person is 13 kilograms of rice or other grains. To get more, a Vietnamese must buy on the open market. At the time of the American withdrawal from Vietnam rice cost 20 cents a kilogram. It now costs more than $2.

PRICES JUMP

Each Vietnamese is allowed five metres of cloth a year—enough for one pair of trousers and two tops for a very small person. A blouse which cost $1 three years ago now costs $5.

The government has closed many shops in this city which formerly was Saigon and has tried to move many of the city people to new economic zones in the countryside.

Medicine:

Technology fears grow

OTTAWA (CP) — Rita O'Reilly died last year at Riverside Hospital after a cancerous tumor was removed from her breast.

A coroner's inquest found Mrs. O'Reilly, 39, died from brain damage due to lack of oxygen because of a defective anesthetic machine.

Although a federal bureau of medical devices was established in 1974 to guard against unsafe devices in Canadian hospitals, health officials remain concerned about the effects of rapidly growing medical technology.

Dr. Al K. Dasgupta, bureau director, says there are more than 250,000 different kinds of devices on the market in Canada.

"So there is a tremendous amount of concern on behalf of those who have to use the devices. It is also true there are a lot of devices on the market which simply don't work and it's true there are a lot which are unnecessarily hazardous."

In its last quarterly report, the health protection branch reported 12 defective medical devices recalled or banned from sale or use from late December, 1977, to April this year.

CITES U.S. STUDY

Dasgupta says studies from the United States show that roughly 30 per cent of medical devices in hospitals may not be up to par. No such studies have been done in Canada.

"The fact that there are figures to say that up to 30 per cent may not be adequate is ample proof that there is need to improve the situation."

The branch has the authority under the Food and Drugs Act to control the importation, manufacture, distribution and sale of medical devices.

Products are generally recalled voluntarily by manufacturers or banned for sale by the health department when it is suspected a device may be hazardous to health, fails to conform to manufacturers claims or doesn't meet performance standards.

"We get concerns fed to us on the average of one per day about defects," says Dasgupta.

And since nearly 90 per cent of medical devices are imported, largely from the United States, manufacturers and distributors must have test results on medical devices available in Canada before products can be sold.

DOES NO TESTING

But the bureau does not test devices before they go on the market here.

"The testing of the device to see that it works is the responsibility of the person who is making it or selling it," he says.

"He claims that his product can do these things and he has to stand behind his claims. We do not believe it feasible to have a government or regulatory agency testing other people's products and saying they are OK."

Can you imagine the cost of that?"

In the case of the anesthetic machine, the device was banned for sale after the defect was discovered.

Nearly 3,000 hospitals were quickly notified of the danger by the branch and the manufacturer followed suit by sending warnings to customers about the machine's defect.

Unfortunately for the O'Reilly family, the machine was not modified until after a death had occurred.

The bureau does not say how a device can be improved and the manufacturer returned twice before a modified design was accepted.

LABELS REVISED

"It's not our function to tell them because we're not the manufacturer's designer," says Dasgupta. "But when I'm talking with an engineer and I know what's wrong, I'm certainly not going to say 'I know but I won't tell you.'"

Manufacturers of about 50 classes of devices were asked to revise their labelling last year because the information was simply untrue or inadequate.

Mandatory standards have been applied to a limited number of devices including condoms, hearing aids and incubators which are relatively stable in design.

But the bureau prefers to use standards sparingly, as a last resort, if there have been repeated problems with defects.

"They are not necessarily the last instrument for controlling the safety of a product because they freeze technology and they are expensive," Dasgupta says.

With rapidly advancing medical technology and the increasing number of revised and new devices coming out each year, the bureau allows such products to enter Canada for what is called pre-market review.

DATA REVIEWED

Dasgupta says all scientific data available are reviewed and if there is a potential benefit for a large segment of the population such products as prolongwear contact lenses can be used by physicians who must carefully watch the patient's reactions.

The health protection branch, in co-operation with the Canadian Association of Manufacturers of Medical Devices and the Canadian Medical and Biological Engineering Society, recently held a second workshop in Toronto to discuss possible new standards, cost effects and various issues concerning medical devices.

"There must be communication among the three for effective interaction and reasonable recognition of benefits and dangers," Dasgupta says.

Moreover, he travels around the country talking to medical groups, marketing agents and others who must use devices to explain the bureau's function and how an effective dialogue should work.

Editorials from the French press

Following is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated by The Canadian Press from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir—Before commenting on the main principles or assumptions governing negotiations which the Quebec finance minister is anticipating with the unionized public and parapublic sector, it behooves us to review the situation within the wider context of the relations between the Parti Quebecois government and unionized labor. The Levesque government and the big federations have no choice. They must apply limited and politically-moderate pressures on each other to keep from playing into the hands of the Liberal Opposition.

To be sure, even the union leaders who most favor the Parti Quebecois political thesis cannot sacrifice the interests of their members; they must negotiate firmly. And the more conservative of the Parti Quebecois leaders have underlined the peril involved for a government which flirts with the union federations; but when the time comes to add up the score, they will be relieved not to have to go through the wringer which broke the former government's back.

On the one hand, therefore, the labor movement must spare a government which is useful to it in the middle of economic difficulties which are making some employers more rigid than ever. On the other hand, the Parti Quebecois government cannot scuttle "social peace" within its own public and parapublic sector but must find, before the referendum and before the (provincial) elections, if not a new social contract, at least a satisfactory compromise for the state, its employees and the Quebec taxpayers.

It is in this context that it is worth while to consider Jacques Parizeau's statement. The government treasurer says no, in advance, to any social peace which costs too much, that is to say, at the price of an increase in income taxes or a delay in economic recovery and development projects which are more than ever imperative in Quebec. But the minister says yes to improved working conditions and to whatever flexibility negotiators find suitable.

What the overwhelming majority expects this time from negotiations is that there will be no need to pay for further progress by costly disorganization of the public service. And the majority expects the whole of the public and parapublic sector to stop being a public burden and to become a more active agent for economic and social recovery. These are historic stakes.—Jean-Claude Leclerc (Oct. 14)

Montreal-Matin—It's a fight to the finish between the post office department and the powerful union of 24,000 postal workers. As for the department, the bottom of the barrel has been scraped and, if the workers persist in their strike threat, special legislation will force them back to work. As for the union, it recommends an unlimited general strike. On the one side as on the other, insults, threats and ultimatums of all kinds are competing with each other.

Workers' impatience is so great after 18 months' unproductive negotiations that the strike has already begun in Quebec and in other parts of Canada before the national call. The postmaster general, for his part, is multiplying his awkward, provocative and even incendiary interventions.

We remember that last summer the union had high hopes of the conciliation board's work to get progress on the issue. The results were scanty, not to say depressing. The chairman of the conciliation board, Louis Courtemanche, could only return the negotiating teams to the bargaining table.

It seems to us that with a little good faith and without going beyond its wages policy, the government could offer more. We know from a reliable source that the union is open to compromise on wages.

The latest news is (acting labor) Minister (Andre) Ouellet may be a mediator. At first glance, the idea is interesting because he was successful with the letter carriers. However, how can we forget that in 1974 Ouellet came a cropper as postmaster general? We can ask ourselves whether in the circumstances and taking the past into account, mediation by Ouellet is the ideal instrument.

In short, Prime Minister Trudeau was right in a letter which he addressed to the post office workers' union June 29 when Parliament was getting ready to vote on Bill 45 which prohibited strikes during federal election. "The government," he said, "believes that the process of collective bargaining, including the right to strike, remains the most efficient and just means to determine the level of wage and working conditions in the public service." So why not negotiate in good faith and entrust the task to an experienced mediator?—Matthias Rioux (Oct. 14).

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Chester Mackay of Sawyerville who will observe his 95th birthday on Sunday, Oct. 22. He resides with his son Lawrence and Mrs. Mackay.

Chase-Woodard wed

The marriage of Dena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Woodard of Sherbrooke, Quebec, to Mr. Frank Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isreal Chase of Moncton, New Brunswick, took place in Plymouth Trinity United Church, Sherbrooke, on September 30, the Rev. Frederick A. Tees officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white polyester-jersey, with a fitted bodice gathered by a pearl brooch and long sleeves. From the waist fell a Watteau train. She wore a beaded cap with a finger tip veil of tulle illusion edged in lace. The bride carried a nosegay of rust daisies, green, yellow and white mums. The maid of honor, Miss Sherry Coates of Toronto, Ontario, was in a long mint green polyester crepe gown and carried a nosegay of yellow, white and green mums. The best man was Mr. Donny Landry of Montreal, Quebec and Mr. Ross Woodard, brother of the bride, was an usher.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of deep rose polyester and a corsage of a dark, pink and beige orchid, while the groom's mother chose a two-piece long black and beige gown with a beige and blue orchid corsage.

The buffet-style reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The tea table was centered by a two-tiered fruit cake, decorated in white and autumn colors, with a bell on the top, which the bride and groom cut and passed to their guests.

When leaving for their honeymoon in the New England States, the bride wore a beige lace trimmed dress with brown accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Chase are residing in Rosemount, Quebec.

Long distant relatives and friends were from Toronto, Ontario, Sept-Isles, Quebec and Moncton, New Brunswick.

Mrs. G. Philbrick entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Frank Chase, the former Miss Dena Woodard prior to her marriage.

The bride, on a mission for her mother, was taken completely by surprise when she was greeted by the hostess and presented with a corsage of kitchen utensils. Mrs. Woodard, mother of the bride and Mrs. Richard Morin, sister of the groom, who sat on either side of the bride were presented with corsages of roses.

The many gifts were presented to the bride, which were concealed on and under a card table, which was covered by a bride doll in a long flowing skirt.

After opening the many and varied gifts, the bride thanked the guests for the lovely gifts and invited all to her home.

The hostess served refreshments assisted by her daughter, Miss Kerry Philbrick. Mrs. Woodard, mother of the bride, poured the tea and coffee. The bride cut and passed her shower cake to the guests.

Mrs. Chase was also entertained by the staff on 5 Main Floor of the St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, Quebec. She was presented with a vacuum cleaner and later taken out to dinner.

ANN LANDERS SAYS:

Seek help for sexual abuse

Dear Ann Landers: I am glad someone has the courage to write openly about young girls who are abused sexually by their fathers and stepfathers. I would like to correct you on one point, however. Telling Mother is not very practical advice. Most mothers already know what is going on.

I am a newspaper reporter. My husband is prosecuting attorney in an adjacent county. We have seen dozens of cases of sexual child abuse. Mothers are the first in the courtroom, begging the judges to let their husbands out of jail so they can go back to work and, yes — return home.

Most women are afraid to stand up to their husbands when this kind of trouble rears its ugly head. They are also afraid of losing whatever security they have — regardless of how perverted the man is.

Many mothers blame their daughters for "leading Daddy on," and the child gets punished.

My husband and I can recall only two women who left their husbands after they found out he had sexually abused his daughters. One filed for divorce and got counseling for her four-year-old child immediately. The other finally got mad when she discovered her husband was abusing the six-year-old. (She had known about the eight-year-old and decided,

Defeating a 'pot belly'

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You had an article in our paper on sit-ups not helping a "pot belly." Could you please send me the information and exercises that may remedy this? Also, are there any other methods or exercises that will trim and firm a thick middle? I am short and tend to gain weight in my stomach and abdomen. I exercise daily but my waistline never loses any inches.

DEAR READER — There are two basic reasons for having a "pot belly." One is a lot of fat, either directly under the skin which you can feel, or inside the abdomen around the abdominal organs. Most people don't realize that there is usually as much fat inside the abdominal cavity as there is outside, under the skin.

The second reason is loss of muscle tone, because the lower abdominal muscles aren't exercised.

Walking and most running exercises do not use the lower abdominal muscles, particularly if all of the walking, jogging or running is done on a flat surface.

If you lie down and do an ordinary sit-up, regardless as to the technique of doing the sit-up, you are only going to use the upper abdominal muscles. If you want to test this, put your hand on the upper abdomen while you are doing a sit-up and you will see.

The lower abdominal muscles are worked by doing leg lifts. This means lying flat on the floor and using the legs as a weight against the lower abdominal muscles. I would caution that anyone who has back troubles of any sort should not try these without having seen their doctor first. But you can do simplified versions of these that do not strain the back.

breast cancer in May 1976. In this series of excerpts from her new book, "One Year and Counting," she describes her adjustment to the physical and emotional scars of mastectomy while sustained by her close-knit family, sense of humor and deep religious faith.

In this first of four parts, she learns of her mastectomy. Faintly, from far away, I heard my name being called. "Susan? Susan. Take a few more deep breaths for me now."

More deep breaths? Have I taken some already? ... I drifted off to sleep again. "Susan!" More insistent now. "Take some deep breaths for me. It's time to wake up."

No. I just want to sleep. Dr. Garrett is going to operate. Oh, no! Don't let him operate yet! I'm not asleep!

"Susan? Listen to me. It's over. You're in the recovery room." Slowly I opened my eyes. This was not the operating room. There was a man in the bed next to mine, snoring loudly.

I began to feel. "I'm so cold. Please get me a blanket. I'm so cold." My teeth were chattering so that I could hardly speak.

"You've already got three blankets. You'll be warmer soon."

I've got to think. I've got to wake up. Closing my eyes, pretending to sleep, I tried to get my head together.

I'm not in heaven. I wouldn't have to listen to that snoring in heaven. I must still be alive!

Okay. I'm alive and I'm cold. The nurse isn't looking. Slowly, I moved my right hand under the covers toward my left breast. Bandages, lots of them.

I can't really tell. Oh! Pain!

Quickly I moved my hand. All right. I'm alive, I'm cold, I hurt. Now what?

"Susan? Take some deep breaths."

As I struggled to comply, it came to me.

I know. I'll ask the nurse. "Nurse? What happened?"

Simple! Why didn't I think of that before?

"Dr. Garrett will be here in just a minute. He'll tell you all about it."

So much for that brilliant maneuver. Activate Plan B. Okay, sweet nurse. Here comes the biggy. "What time is it?" "Oh, about 1:30."

Suddenly I didn't feel so smart. Six hours. Six hours since I came up to surgery. Even an idiot could figure out what that means.

I heard Dr. Garrett say my name. I didn't want to open my eyes. (If I don't open my eyes, he'll go away.)

"Susan?" He said my name so gently. I could hear the pain in his voice.

He's hurting, too. He doesn't want to tell me this. I have to help him. It's not his fault.

"I know. It's okay. I know." I looked up and he was smiling — a strained smile, but a smile. And I smiled back.

"You really messed up my day," he said, trying.

I wanted to reply in kind: Business slow this morning, huh? Thought you'd get a little extra practice? But all that came out was, "I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry, too. I'm so sorry."

There was an awkward silence. I had my eyes closed, fighting tears. I don't know what he was doing.

"Listen," he said, struggling for words. "I have to tell you about it; then you can go back to sleep. It was malignant. I did just what I said I'd do if it turned out that way. There didn't seem to be any in the lymph nodes. I'm sure we got it all, but we'll have a more definite report in a few days."

"Does Jim know?"

"I told your family before I did the operation. They know."

What else was there to say? "Dr. Garrett?"

"Hmmm?"

"I'm so cold. Why is it so cold in here?" And I went back to sleep.

Millionaire's children lose bid

QUEBEC (CP) — Despite pleas of poverty from their lawyer, the three children of a late Montreal millionaire lost in a bid Tuesday to get more money out of their father's estate.

Members of the national assembly's justice committee threw out a private bill which would have changed the terms of a will written by J. Donat Langelier, a wealthy Montreal furniture merchant who died in 1964.

Opposing the bill were three charitable organizations who were also beneficiaries of the will. They said the assembly, in effect, was being asked to write "a new will" which would not reflect the intent of Langelier and could rapidly drain the estate. Under terms of the will, Langelier left his two daughters $600 a month each for life and his son Maurice half that amount. The balance of the revenue from the $2-million estate goes to the three charities and another group of relatives.

The three charities—a home for the handicapped, a residence for women in distress and a fund for the teaching of French outside Quebec—have received about $700,000 so far from the estate.

IN 'BLACK MISERY'
Lawyer Charles Tremblay said the three children, now in their fifties and sixties, were living in "black misery" and that without an increase in their allowances, "they would die in poverty."

He cited the case of 58-year-old Maurice who moved to the West Coast because of a heart condition, which has left him incapacitated.

"He lives in a basement in Vancouver and he shares this slum with another man because he cannot afford to pay for it himself," the lawyer said.

The bill proposed that the monthly allowance for each of the three be fixed at $1,650.

ESPIONAGE STORIES MISINTERPRETATIONS

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest round of French espionage stories likely emanates from a misinterpretation of French aid to cultural associations, a leading spokesman for French-Canadian minority groups said Tuesday.

Francine Lalonde, research director of the Federation of French-Canadians, said in an interview that France does help finance groups such as the France-Quebec Association and the France-Acadie Association but only for cultural purposes.

The Federation of French-Canadians Outside Quebec is an umbrella organization representing French-Canadian groups across the country.

Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt maintains the French government is sending money to Canada for the promotion of Quebec independence. The financial aid, he claims, is part of a 25-year plot beginning in the 1950s to help Quebec separate from Canada.

Chibougamau hotel owner testifies

CHIBOUGAMAU, Que. (CP) — A hotel owner in this northern Quebec mining community told the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime Tuesday he had lost much of his clientele because of frequent fights involving members of a local motorcycle gang.

Michel Levasseur, who along with Henri Truchon owns the Hotel Gwillim, also told inquiry commissioners that Les SexFox gang members used his establishment as a base for drug peddling.

More than a dozen residents of this town of 12,000 have agreed to testify before Judge Denys Dionne and inquiry commissioners Judge Jacques Coderre and Romeo Courtemanche. The inquiry commission has been travelling through Quebec for several months looking into the activities of bike gangs.

On Monday, Chibougamau police Chief Gilles Potvin described the beating of one of his officers by gang members when police tried to intervene in a hotel bar fight.

Levasseur said he and Truchon had been threatened on several occasions by Les SexFox members and also by a local merchant named by Levasseur as the brains behind the gang and the supplier of drugs the gang used to "furnish the whole town."

MANY FISTFIGHTS
Levasseur said his hotel was the scene of many bloody fistfights. Another witness, waitress Johanne Maltais, also told the commissioners of frequent fights. The owners of the hotel said that when complaints were made to police, gang members and their merchant friend would threaten them.

Said Truchon: "Every week there were battles starting without apparent reason. These bikers would toss anyone who got in their way across the room. At any time they would attack people with chairs, bottles or baseball bats."

Levasseur admitted fear of the gang members was such that the proprietors would ignore members rolling marijuana cigarettes at the bar or sniffing harder narcotics.

The gang was so confident of its power, Levasseur said, that members even robbed a pinball machine in a restaurant he owns near his hotel, then crossed the street with $200 worth of quarters to demand Levasseur change them into bank notes.

Korchnoi concedes chess crown

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (Reuter) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi conceded the world chess crown to champion Anatoly Karpov today.

Distraught, Korchnoi accused the Soviet Union of putting him under severe psychological pressure before Tuesday night's showdown 32nd game.

Korchnoi, who had made a stunning comeback to tie the series at 5-5 all in the search for six victories after being down 2-5, crumbled before a relentless onslaught from Karpov Tuesday night and was in a hopeless position when the match was adjourned on the 41st move.

In a resignation statement, Korchnoi said that as a protest he will not follow the traditional procedure of signing the scoresheet of the 32nd game, acknowledging the result as accurate.

Cullen relaxes rules for Lebanese

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has relaxed immigration rules to assist Lebanese, especially those with relatives in Canada, to avoid staying in or returning to war-torn Lebanon, Immigration Minister Bud Cullen said Tuesday.

Cullen told Bob Muir (PC Cape Breton—The Sydneys) in the Commons that priority in the government's efforts is given to processing Lebanese in Beirut, with relatives in Canada, who are applying for visitor's or immigrant status. Also, Lebanese visiting Canada can apply for landed immigrant status from inside the country, a practice normally not permitted.

Chretien tables borrowing bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien introduced a bill Tuesday that would allow the government to borrow up to $17 billion.

Meanwhile, a cabinet colleague was warning that further spending or tax cuts would "mortgage our features."

Whooping cranes spotted

AUSTWELL, Tex. (AP) — About a dozen whooping cranes were spotted Tuesday at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge near Austwell—the first of the rare birds to arrive for the winter.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service sent a plane over the marshy coastal bend and spotted the birds. Refuge manager Frank Johnson said about 12 birds were found.

SCOC overrules challenge

OTTAWA (CP) — A Quebec City man has lost a bid to beat a conviction of driving with a blood alcohol level above legal limits by casting doubt on the accuracy of testing equipment.

The Supreme Court of Canada, in a 5-to-4 decision, overturned a ruling of appeal courts in Quebec and restored the conviction against Claude Moreau.

Dave Price dead at 74

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Price, known for nearly 25 years as Canada's radio voice in Florida, died Monday in a Fort Lauderdale hospital. He was 74.

Price, a former RCMP, was once a sportscaster for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

While covering spring baseball training in Florida in 1952, Price decided there was a big market for news from home for Canadian visitors to Florida.

Taping the programs in Toronto, he sold a show called Canada Calling to one Florida station in 1952.

After suffering a heart attack in 1960, Price moved to Florida and set up broadcast facilities in his home. He received Canadian news from Broadcast News Ltd.

Blakeney seeks third term

REGINA (CP) — The future of the leaders of Saskatchewan's three political parties will be largely determined by how voters cast their ballots in today's election.

NDP Leader Allan Blakeney, 53, is seeking his third term as premier. He has often said his nature makes him more inclined to govern than to sit in opposition and defeat would raise speculation about how much longer he would stay in active politics.

Liberal leader Ted Malone inherited a party with 15 seats in the legislature and has watched that dwindle to 11. While Malone has been largely a victim of circumstance, his party would have to question whether it picked the best leader in 1976 if Liberal fortunes were to nose-dive.

Dick Colver, leader of the Progressive Conservative party, built the party from 320 members and no representation in the legislature in 1973 to 40,000 members and a crack at forming the government today. But if the party fails to do well, many will point to the leader as the cause.

TARNISHES IMAGE
Colver has been hit with back-to-back lawsuits that have tarnished his image and given the NDP and Liberals ammunition in a whispering campaign about who can be trusted to be premier.

Although Blakeney should have little trouble holding his Regina-Elphinstone seat, there is cause to wonder whether the other two leaders will be back in the house.

Colver's Nipawin riding is notorious for electing a different party each election. And Malone, in Regina-Lakeview, faces strong bids from both the NDP and the Conservatives.

Resources and style of government have been issues as prominent as leadership. Saskatchewan stands ready to benefit from uranium development that should feed provincial coffers by the billions.

Blakeney intends to continue his party's policy of using Crown corporations as a tool of economic development. Malone and Colver want the private sector developing resources with the government confining itself to taxation and regulation.

Both opposition parties have tried to jump on the trend toward less government. Colver has campaigned on decentralization of power and elimination of political appointments in the civil service. Malone wants to hold a referendum seeking public approval to reduce government services by $50 million.

Arab summit to halt phalangists

BEIRUT (AP) — Seven Arab nations pledged at the end of a three-day summit Tuesday to neutralize the right-wing Christian militias which have been fighting for months against Syrian forces in Lebanon.

They also threatened in an eight-point statement to use force if necessary to end collaboration between the Christian militiamen and Israel.

Vietnam, Cambodia clash escalates

BANGKOK (AP) — Cambodia claimed today its troops killed more than 1,000 Vietnamese soldiers and wounded more than 2,000 others in the sharpest fighting reported between the former Communist allies in recent months.

Radio Phnom Penh, monitored in Bangkok, said tanks, artillery pieces and other war equipment were captured in the fighting from Oct. 1 to 10.

Rhodesian deaths top 53

SALISBURY (AP) — The military command reported 53 new deaths Tuesday in Rhodesia's six-year war with black nationalist guerrillas.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Ian Smith, on a visit to the United States, announced willingness to join U.S.-sponsored peace talks with guerrilla leaders.

Hatfield blasts name-calling

FREDERICTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Joe Daigle took another shot at Premier Richard Hatfield's credibility Tuesday while the premier complained that the current New Brunswick election campaign has been reduced to the level of juvenile parlor games.

"In the course of this campaign, I've been called a terrorist, the worst enemy of national unity in Canada, a plunderer, a squanderer, and a person just one step ahead of the law," Hatfield said at a Progressive Conservative rally in Moncton.

Byelections 'devastating'

QUEBEC (CP) — The results of Monday's 15 federal byelections "are probably more devastating than we could have imagined for the federal Liberals," says Claude Morin, Quebec minister of intergovernmental affairs.

Even in Quebec, where the Liberals took two of three ridings, the Trudeau government cannot rest easy, Morin told reporters Tuesday.

For one thing, "it seems that the Creditistes may not be as dead as some observers might have thought," Social Credit candidate Richard Janelle said. A former organizer for late party leader Andre Fortin, Janelle took Lotbiniere riding, southwest of Quebec City.

Postal picketer drops dead

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A picketing postal worker collapsed and died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack, police said. Ted Rice, president of the St. John's local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, whose members are on strike across Canada, said the 63-year-old man collapsed while running to reinforce a section of a picket line. Rice said police were escorting management personnel across the line when the incident happened.

Canadian dollar yo-yos

MONTREAL (CP) — Corporations which dumped Canadian dollars on international money markets Monday came back to buy them Tuesday, helping the madly-fluctuating currency gain more than a half-cent against its American counterpart.

The dollar closed on the interbank wholesale market at 84.85 cents U.S., the highest close since Oct. 6. It finished trading Monday at 84.25.

Americans share Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Two Americans whose work with microwave radiation supported the big bang theory of the creation of the universe shared the Nobel Prize in physics Tuesday with a scientist from the Soviet Union. The prize for chemistry went to a Briton.

Dr. Arno Penzias, 45, and Dr. Robert Wilson, 42, both of the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New Jersey, shared the $165,000 physics prize with Prof. Pyotr Leontevich Kapritsa of Moscow. Kapritsa, 84, was honored for his work in low-temperature physics.

Stricken tanker fouls Welsh coast

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (Reuter) — Oil from a stricken supertanker washed on to Welsh beaches Tuesday, and a gale forced salvage men to suspend efforts to prevent a major pollution disaster.

The 34,000-ton Christos Bitas was badly holed on a rock last Thursday. It wallowed in heavy seas Tuesday midway between Wales and Ireland, and was in danger of sinking, salvage company officials said.

Quebec fights 'sieve' role

QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation currently before the Quebec national assembly introduces a decidedly specific Quebec character to immigration policy, Immigration Minister Jacques Couture said Tuesday.

In the past, Quebec was "almost a sieve" for immigrants, he said. Many came here only to move on to other provinces.

MPs urge end to 'freeloading'

OTTAWA (CP) — A flood of new demands on the federal treasury broke out in the Commons Tuesday as MPs from all areas insisted the federal government stop freeloading on municipalities and pay its way.

The federal government pays municipalities annual grants, instead of business or property taxes, to use local services. The amount of these grants was last revised in 1956.

QFL backs right to strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking postal workers can count on the labor movement's full support if they defy the government's back-to-work legislation, the secretary-general of the Quebec Federation of Labor said Tuesday.

Fernand Daoust told reporters that the legislation, introduced in the Commons by Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne, makes a mockery of free collective bargaining and threatens all workers in the public sector.

Flu vaccines a waste — Sabin

OTTAWA (CP) — Millions of dollars are being wasted by medical researchers and drug manufacturers seeking influenza vaccines which do little to prevent death or the chances of contracting the flu, says Dr. Albert Sabin, discoverer of the live polio vaccine.

About 90 per cent of all clinically-diagnosed cases of influenza "are not caused by the influenza virus," said Sabin, 72, whose oral polio vaccine has saved thousands of lives since its creation in 1960.

U de S awards contract

The University of Sherbrooke has awarded the contract for the construction of a tunnel, sewer and aqueduct to the firm of Dorilas Grenier Ltee, for $354,130. The council also has launched a competition in honor of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the University.

"La petite" at Centre Culturel

Coming to CINEMAFEUS, Centre Culturel, Universite de Sherbrooke, October 19-20 is the French translation of Pretty Baby, LA PETITE. It is the story of the daughter of a prostitute raised in New Orleans who at the age of 12, is considered ready to take her place in the trade, and her virginity is put up for auction.

Garbage requirements...

The City of Sherbrooke reminds the citizens of certain requirements regarding the preparation and disposal of garbage. Proper containers or plastic bags must be placed in receptacles which are easily accessible either at the side or rear of the residence.

Scouts launch campaign

KNOWLTON (KT) — The group committee for the Knowlton Boy Scouts Troop and Wolf Cub Pack is holding a finance campaign by mail. It is hoped that the public will give their support and respond generously to the appeal.

The Knowlton Scout Troop is comprised of 20 boys and 4 leaders. The Cub Pack involves approximately 50 boys and 8 adult leaders.

Card of Thanks

HEALY — We wish to thank our family for the Open House given us in honor of our 15th wedding anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Healy, also relatives, friends and neighbors for calls, cards, gifts and flowers which were all much appreciated.
RALPH & ALINE HEALY
Richmond, Que.

SARGENT — I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to our relatives, friends and neighbours for the many acts of kindness shown during the death and burial of my dear wife, Lorraine. Special thanks to Wynn and Faye Dustin and Gloria Dion for the work they did. My grateful thanks to Cass Funeral Home and the priest of Sacred Heart Church, Stanstead. My grateful thanks to the bearers and organist and those who sent flowers, messages of sympathy, memorial donations and called at the funeral home and attended the service. I also wish to thank those who phoned and served lunch in my home and helped in any other way. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

Obituary

MRS. EARL GEORGE of Highwater

After a very long and painful illness, Laura Davis, wife of Earl George, passed away in her home on Saturday, September 30, 1978.

She was born on November 25, 1907, in the Highwater area, the daughter of Mr. George Davis and his wife, Ella Aiken, and was the youngest of a large family of which only one survives.

Nearly 40 years ago she was united in marriage in Glen Sutton, Que., to Earl George who survives her, also one son, Lewis, one sister, Mrs. Nina Fuller of Sutton, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Their son, who has been handicapped all his life, was cared for by his parents and he will sorely miss his mother, who was always patient, kind, and sympathetic in her attentions toward him for as long as she was able, even during her prolonged illness.

The funeral service, conducted by the Rev. Neil Wallace, was held in the Mansonville Funeral Home on Monday, October 2.

The bearers were four nephews of the deceased, Reginald Davis, Sutton, Wilbur Cook, West Brome, and Gordon Davis, South Bolton.

Interment took place in the George Cemetery at Vale Perkins, Que.

PNG Club enjoys outing

KNOWLTON (KT) — The Past Noble Grand's Club, Colfax No. 29 held seven meetings during the year. For one of these meetings, they were invited to Sister Doris Williams for the evening. There were 10 members present and one guest, Sister Theodora Musgrave. A delicious lunch was served by their hostess and much enjoyed by all. During the year a Cold Buffet Supper was held and a 500 Card Party, both of which were a success. Two pins were bought, one a PNG pin and a 30-year jewel for Sister Muriel Inglis.

The last get-together was a Social Evening out, with 11 Sisters present. A splendid Chinese supper was enjoyed in Waterloo by those present and all enjoyed watching Sister Laura who it was thought enjoyed her meal the most of all! This outing brought to a close the PNG Club after another successful year. The meetings will re-open next April.

Once again it is with deep regret that the opening paragraph in the Inverness news must report the deaths of two more former residents of this area. The first one of which was that of Mr. David E. Currie who passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, Ont., at the age of ninety-two. Mr. Currie operated a farm in St. Pierre Baptiste since early manhood until failing health compelled him a few years ago to move to Hamilton where he made his home with his son, Gerald, Mrs. Curry, and family, where he enjoyed life fully visiting with the many "Down Homers" who reside in that district until a short time before his death.

The other death was that of Mrs. Roy Walker in Lennoxville, "Ruby" as she was known to a host of friends was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.G. Wright, of Millfield. She and her husband, who predeceased her, farmed near here for many years and they both enjoyed fine reputations as friends and neighbors.

The interment of Mr. Currie took place in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Adderley, and that of Mrs. Walker in the Anglican Cemetery at the same place, the two cemeteries being scarcely more than a stone's throw apart. It is worthy of mention that this was the first time that a funeral took place in each cemetery at almost the same hour.

Many former friends of those who had departed gathered to pay their last respects. Following the committal ceremonies at the graves some eighty-five persons enjoyed lunch and a visit together in the I.O.O.F. hall at Inverness with the ladies of St. Andrew's Auxiliary and the ladies of the Rectory Hill-Inverness Guild as joint-hostesses. The sympathy of all those acquainted with the deceased is extended to those bereaved.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carroll were Mr. Howard Carroll, Roger and Monica of Brampton, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Carroll and daughter, Rosemary, Belleville, Ont.; Mrs. Clarence Nutbrown, Beebe, Mrs. Norman Champagne, Thetford Mines, Mr. Henry Robinson, Mrs. Jessie Beattie, Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere, Mr. Fred George and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford George, Glen Lloyd.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little were Mrs. Ann Little daughter, Lauralie and Miss Ann Tucker of Lennoxville. Other guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Marshall, Henderson Vale; Mrs. Hattie Learmonth, Mrs. Oliver Batley and Mr. Charley Little, Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nutbrown, Beebe; Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnear, Mrs. Norman Champagne and son Martin, Thetford Mines, Mr. Buddy Dacres and friend of Milton, Ont. While in town to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Susan Dacres, Mr. Charley Cruickshank, Cookshire, was also a caller at the Little home.

Our good wishes go out to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Melrose who are in Dallas, Texas, visiting their daughter Mrs. James Rediker, Mr. Rediker and family. This is their first trip by air and we do hope they enjoyed it. A safe return wish is now on the village bulletin board.

A Low-Cost Meal Fit for a King
Did you ever try to roast a crossrib of beef at low temperatures (250° F - 275° F)? When slowly oven cooked, the results are as juicy, tender and delicious as the most expensive standing rib roast. Relatively tender cuts, such as crossrib roasts, are worthy of our special attention, especially when other, more tender cuts are very expensive. The secret of success is a slow, dry roasting, without using liquids or a cover. You can get the meat done "just right" by using a thermometer. You can allow 22-25 minutes of cooking per pound for a rare roast, 25-28 minutes per pound for medium, and 30 minutes per pound for well done. Leftovers can be a treat! You can stretch your budget by reheating the meat in a slow oven... You can continue enjoying Sunday's roast on Monday and Tuesday.

Yankees world champs for 22nd time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The miracle New York Yankees capped the most improbable of all baseball comebacks Tuesday night by winning the final game of the 75th World Series with a pitcher who was supposed to be washed up and a puny infielder who some had written off as a major leaguer.

Catfish Hunter found one more victory in his relic of a right arm, while second baseman Brian Doyle made major offensive and defensive contributions, leading the Yankees to a 7-2 triumph over Los Angeles Dodgers for their 22nd World Series title.

By winning the sixth game, the Yankees beat the Dodgers in major league baseball's grand finale for the second year in a row. And the team that was 14 games behind Boston Red Sox on July 20, beat those Red Sox in a one-game playoff Oct. 2 and defeated Kansas City Royals for the American League pennant, won the World Series the hard way.

The Yankees became the first team in World Series history to win four consecutive games after dropping the first two.

"Nobody's ever done what this club did," said Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who has won three AL pennants and two World Series since taking over the club in 1973.

TREATMENT WORKED

The fact that Hunter could start the sixth game, pitch seven innings and win the final game of the 1978 season was a medical miracle. His right shoulder, so painful in June that he swore he would never pitch hurt again, was manipulated by Dr. Maurice Cowan. The treatment, a stab in the dark at best, worked and allowed Hunter to fuel the Yankees' late-summer comeback with a 9-3 record down the stretch.

Hunter was relieved by Rich Gossage in the eighth after giving up six hits—including Davey Lopes's third homer of the series leading off the bottom of the first.

"(Catcher Thurman) Munson came out and told me I didn't have anything, that I should just hit his target," Hunter said.

He zeroed in on that target and allowed his double play combination of shortstop Bucky Dent and Doyle to do the rest. Doyle's backhand stab began an inning-ending double play, with Dodgers on first and second and trailing only 3-2 in the third.

"That was the biggest defensive play of the game," said Dent, the series' Most Valuable Player, who batted .117 with seven runs in— including three in the finale. "I'm very happy for the little man (Doyle)." Doyle, who toiled six years in the minors and was only added to the Yankees' roster because regular second baseman Willie Randolph was hurt, said: "I feel like Cinderella."

Doyle's double, his first extra-base hit in the majors and only his second RBI, tied the game 1-1 in the second. The next batter was Dent, hitting in the ninth position, and he singled in two more runs.

Dent and Doyle both drove in runs again in the sixth and Reggie Jackson laced reliever Bob Welch's first pitch for a two-run homer in the seventh to complete the scoring. After touching home, Jackson tipped his cap twice to the Dodgers fans who had booed him. The homer, his ninth in World Series competition, moved him into sixth place on the all-time list.

Big hits are expected of Jackson, who was on his fifth championship team. But no one expected Doyle to have seven hits in 16 at-bats, except the five-foot-10, 165-pound infielder himself.

"I know why I was in the minors for so long," said Doyle, who shuffled between New York and the Yankees' top farm club in Tacoma, Wash., all season. "I don't have outstanding speed. I don't have an outstanding arm. And I don't have outstanding power. What else do the scouts look for?"

"I've believed all along there's a spot for the little man in this game—the man who can do the fundamental things and make the routine plays."

At five-foot-11, 181 pounds, Dent is another one of baseball's little men. It was Dent's three-run homer that was the big blow in the Yankees' 5-4 playoff win over Boston and, two weeks later, he's the MVP in the series. Dent suggested the Yankees' real MVP this season was manager Bob Lemon, who replaced Billy Martin at midseason.

Series facts and figures

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York Yankees broke four World Series team batting records for a six-game series—all of them held by the 1936 Yankees—when they defeated Los Angeles Dodgers in 1978 series.

The Yankee total of 68 hits broke the mark of 65. They also had 57 singles, surpassing their record 49, and a .306 batting average—better than the .302 compiled in 1936.

Also their 222 at-bats broke the mark of 215.

New York also extended its records for most games won in World Series competition, 107, and most World Series won, 22.

The two clubs used a total of 47 players, breaking the record of 45 which had been reached three times—by Los Angeles and New York in 1977, by New York Giants and Yankees in 1951, and by Los Angeles and Chicago White Sox in 1959.

The total of 120 hits by the two 1978 teams tied the six-game Series record set by Brooklyn Dodgers and Yankees in 1953.

Dodgers pitcher Don Sutton tied two negative records. He allowed 10 runs, tying the Series mark shared by Don Gullett of the Yankees in 1977, Slim Sallee of the Giants in 1917, and Red Ruffing of the Yankees in 1936.

Sutton's two losses also tied the record shared by many pitchers and last done by Clem Labine of Brooklyn in 1953.

The Dodgers had no complete games in the Series, tying the record set in 1959 by both Chicago White Sox and Los Angeles.

The Yankees had no saves in the series, tying the record they set along with Los Angeles last year.

The Series provided a record gate receipt of $4,667,542.57—breaking the mark $3,978,825.33 set by these two teams last year.

The players' pool, which totalled $3,301,863.78, including income from the league championship series, broke the record of $2,778,300.31 also set by the Yankees and Dodgers in 1977.

Lasorda: 'They played great'

Dodgers gloomy in defeat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Disappointed and downcast, Los Angeles Dodgers tried to look forward to next year, but they had trouble doing even that.

"We were against a team a little better than we were," said Dodgers captain Davey Lopes after the 7-2 New York Yankees victory that won them the 1978 World Series.

"Two years in a row—you can be lucky one year, but not two years in a row."

A year ago, the Yankees also beat the Dodgers in six games.

"There's nothing to be sorry about," said Dodgers' third baseman Ron Cey who came up with two fielding gems in the finale. "It's disappointing to get this far and be outplayed the last four games, one way or another."

"Just about everybody in their lineup hit the ball well. . . . Dent and Doyle, those two guys hurt us with the bat. We didn't anticipate that."

Nettles hurt us with those plays in the third game. We were outpitched, out-hit, out-defenced. They didn't make any mistakes."

Cey defended the much-maligned Los Angeles infield, which did not have a good series.

"You don't win three pennants in the last five years by having a bad ball club or being bad in one aspect of the game," Cey said.

SPEAKS SOFTLY

The often volatile Dodgers' manager Tom Lasorda was speaking softly.

"We didn't get the breaks, and they played just great," said the skipper, who succeeded Walt Alton last year and has hung up two National League pennants. "I just feel very bad for my ball club, the Dodger organization and the fans."

Lasorda is sure to be criticized, rightly or wrongly, for his handling of the club in his second World Series. But it isn't his fault that the club's leading batter, Steve Garvey, failed to drive in a run in any of the six games.

"You go through periods where you don't swing the bat as well," said Garvey. "The first three games, I was 4-for-12. The last three games they pitched me well."

There might be changes in the Dodgers before they begin their quest for a third consecutive National League pennant.

Left-handed pitching star Tommy John, who won and lost in the World Series and was slated to pitch game No. 7 had it been necessary, still hasn't signed. Neither have outfielder Bill North or utilityman Lee Lacy, a flop as designated hitter in the World Series.

"We're not thinking about making any personnel changes," said Lasorda. "It's too early to think about that. I'm going to take a vacation, I think, and just think about the season and the World Series."

WATCHING SITUATION

John, who won 17 games in the regular season, a playoff victory and was 1-1 in the World Series, said: "I won't do anything until this stuff settles down. I would like to be with this club. We'll find out what happens."

Apparently at issue is whether the Dodgers will give John, 35, a two-or-a-three-year contract. They have offered two at a reported $275,000 a season.

Rookie Bob Welch lost his World Series duel with clutch-hitting Reggie Jackson. Welch won the first round by striking out Jackson to end the second game for a 4-3 Dodgers victory. Then Reggie singled in the 10th against Welch as the Yankees edged the Dodgers 4-3 in the fourth game. In the finale, Reggie homered in the seventh against the ex-collegian.

COACHES AGE IN WHA THRILLERS

The World Hockey Association offered two good examples Tuesday night of why coaches go grey, or at least turn in the direction of Grecian Formula.

In Quebec, Mike Gartner scored with two seconds left in regulation time to give Cincinnati Stingers a 5-5 tie with the Nordiques. The 10-minute overtime period failed to break the deadlock or the pain in the stomach of Nordiques' coach Jacques Demers.

A little later in the only other WHA game in Edmonton, Johnny McKenzie scored with 52 seconds left in regulation time to give New England Whalers a 2-1 victory over the Oilers. As a result of the goal, Edmonton's coach Glen Sather wasn't feeling so well either.

McKenzie scored after he escaped the clutches of Pierre Guite directly in front of Edmonton goaltender Dave Dryden and fired home the winner.

"It's depressing to lose like that but it was the way hockey should be played," Sather said somewhat philosophically. "It was a super game even if we didn't win it."

Webster flops as Sonics blast Knicks

(CP) — Seattle SuperSonics don't seem to miss Marvin Webster at all.

"We're a better club now than we were last year," contends Seattle coach Lenny Wilkens, whose team raised its record in the young National Basketball Association season to 3-0 Tuesday night with a 120-109 decision over New York Knicks.

The victory was especially sweet because it was the Knicks who wooed Webster away from Seattle, the club he led to the NBA final last year. But the seven-foot-one centre, who became a free agent and signed a five-year, $3-million contract with New York, managed only seven points and 10 rebounds in his first game against his former team-mates.

"I played badly," Webster conceded. "I felt bad when we were losing by 20 points to my former team-mates."

On the other hand, Lonnie Shelton, part of the compensation package that commissioner Larry O'Brien awarded to Seattle after the Knicks signed Webster, had 20 points and 10 rebounds in just 22 minutes of action.

Shelton came in with four minutes to go in the opening period and helped Seattle outscore New York 28-11 over a span of 10½ minutes. The Sonics methodically built the lead to 26 points in the fourth period and only a late burst by the Knicks made the final score respectable.

Fred Brown and Dennis Johnson also had 20 points apiece as eight Seattle players scored eight points or more.

In other NBA games, Portland Trail Blazers topped Kansas City Kings 115-112, San Diego Clippers defeated Chicago Bulls 99-94, Washington Bullets edged

New Jersey Nets 113-109, New Orleans Jazz defeated Detroit Pistons 114-109, Cleveland Cavaliers trimmed Los Angeles Lakers 113-111 and San Antonio Spurs edged Phoenix Suns 110-107.

93% better traction in snow—25% better traction on ice than summer radials—

That's why this is the best winter tire you can buy!

That's right! Goodyear's Ice Radial (F32 All-Winter Radial) gives you 93% better traction in snow, 25% better traction on ice than summer radials. Just think of the extra gripping power—the extra measure of safety—when you need it most.

No doubt you've heard that summer radials are suitable as snow tires. In a sense this is true; but you don't get the traction you really need—particularly when the going gets tough.

The F32 All-Winter Radial is the tire that Goodyear built to take on the worst ravages of winter and get you through safely. It performs so well that we call it "The Ice Radial." Winter traction tests comparing "The Ice Radial" to our Custom Polysteel Radial showed that the Ice Radial gave:

- 93% better dynamic traction in snow*
- 25% better dynamic traction on ice*
- 23% better hill climb in snow
- 23% better breakaway traction in snow

*For details available on request.

So why take chances with your summer radials? Play it safe—get the traction you need—with the Ice Radial. It's the best winter tire that Goodyear makes.

Traction on ice without studs—and more!

Why does the Ice Radial perform so well on icy roads? The secret is in the special rubber compound that stays "bendable"—even at below freezing temperatures—to conform to icy road surfaces.

This is Goodyear's finest traction tire, built tough with Flexten cord belts—pound for pound stronger than steel. It also has a unique tread design with hundreds of biting edges for traction on ice as well as in snow. Get a pair of Goodyear Ice Radials for your car. You'll enjoy many winters of confident driving with the best traction money can buy.

Beavers game time change

SHERBROOKE — This Sunday's home contest for the Beavers is being advanced to 4 p.m. from 7:30 to allow live cable transmission of the contest against Chicoutimi Saguenens.

This televised game will be blacked-out naturally in the local viewing area.

The Sags are only one point presently behind the Beavers and the rivalry between the clubs should make it an interesting match. Friday's game at the Sports Palace against Trois-Rivières Draveurs will still be played at 8 p.m.

Saints tie Cascades

BEAUPORT — The Sherbrooke Saints came up with a much improved performance against the Cascades here last night as they brought home a 2-2 Junior 'A' draw.

The Saints took a 9-5 loss at the hands of Beauport on the road last week in a shoddy exhibition. Dany Garand put Sherbrooke in the lead Tuesday at 13:08 from Luc Tremblay and Mario Guillemette. The count stood until the second period when Beauport scored twice. Pierre Longpre hit the mark with the tying marker, assisted by Pierre Girard and Donald Dupre, at 10:00.

Sherbrooke's netminder faced a barrage of 35 shots while the Saints tested their opponents 23 times.

The locals have been playing with 'hot and cold' consistency but they will have to be very warm this evening as they host league-leading Sorel Survenants. The premier between these two teams this season will begin at 8 p.m.

The Saints are presently in sixth place of the seven-team circuit, one point behind Beauport, while the Survenants are currently undefeated in six starts.

Boxing nights begin

SHERBROOKE — The CAP Boxing Club of the CEGEP de Sherbrooke will be holding its first in a series of six boxing nights this evening at 8 p.m.

Headlining the 10-bout card, Marc Fabi will meet Jean Briand, a Montrealeur with more than 50 fights to his credit, in the 156 lb. program final while the semi-final in the 165 lb. category will put Ben Valence against Tony Lani. Fabi and Valence, both from Sherbrooke, are gold medal recipients at the 1978 Golden Gloves championships.

The evening will start out with two youngsters in the 55 lb. class from the St. Zephyrin boxing school. Various other fighters from this reputable school are also competing during the night. Other bouts will see boxers from Drummondville, Coaticook and the CAP club in action.

The sports centre is located on Parc St. across from the Sports Palace and anyone interested in taking in the evening of entertainment should arrive early, as the best seats go fast.

Rockies lose Kitchen

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Rockies defenceman Mike Kitchen will be lost to the National Hockey League team for the next two months and possibly the remainder of the season because of a broken left wrist, a club official said Tuesday. Clayton Pachal, a left winger acquired from Boston Bruins last week, has replaced him. Kitchen was hurt in the first period of the Rockies' 4-1 loss to New York Rangers on Sunday night, when he missed a check and slammed into the boards with arms extended.

Al Sims recalled

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins recalled defenceman Al Sims from the Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League on Tuesday to bolster the National Hockey League club's ailing corps for a two-week road trip. Brad Park is recovering from knee surgery and Mike Milbury has a sprained knee. Sims appeared in 43 games with the Bruins last season.

Detroit goalie farmed out

DETROIT (AP) — Ron Low, the Detroit Red Wings goaltender whose acquisition last year ultimately forced the retirement of Ed Giacomin, has been farmed out by the National Hockey League club.

The Red Wings sent Low to their Kansas City affiliate of the Central Hockey League on Tuesday, leaving Rogie Vachon and last year's first stringer, Jim Rutherford, to handle the goaltending chores.

Rutherford had been offered to Los Angeles as part of the compensation for the signing of Vachon, but an NHL arbitrator said Detroit's offer wasn't good enough and ordered the Red Wings to send centre Dale McCourt to the Kings.

QMJHL roundup

Unanswered third-period goals by Ghyslain Gelin and Rejean Lemieux propelled Verdun Black Hawks to a 4-2 victory over Trois-Rivières Draveurs in one of two Quebec Major Junior Hockey League games Tuesday night.

Elsewhere, Cornwall Royals dropped Hull Olympiques 3-1.

Normand Aubin and Raymond Bourque also scored for the visiting Balck Hawks, while Pierre Lacroix and Robert Mongrain scored for Trois-Rivières.

The Draveurs are 4-2-0, tied for third place in the Dilio Division, while Verdun is 9-2-1 and on top of the LeBel Division.

Mark Hanley, Mark Crawford and Mike Corrigan scored for the Royals at Hull, where Michel Masse hit for the Olympiques.

In games tonight, Sherbrooke Beavers visit Montreal Juniors and Shawinigan Cataractes are at Trois-Rivières.

Potvin shines as Islanders end jinx

(CP) — Attempting to beat Montreal Canadiens is not an uncommon problem among the other 16 National Hockey League teams.

New York Islanders finally solved that particular puzzle Tuesday night when they registered a 3-1 victory over the Canadiens at Uniondale, N.Y.

The last time Montreal lost to the Islanders was just over three years ago—Oct. 14, 1975, to be exact. In the interval, Montreal had 11 victories and New York Islanders none.

"The guys acted as if they were possessed and there wasn't anything we weren't going to do to win this game," said Glenn Resch,

New York's goaltender.

In the other NHL games, Atlanta remained unbeaten after four games with an 8-2 pounding of Colorado Rockies and St. Louis Blues outgunned Vancouver Canucks 8-6.

Dennis Potvin, winner of the Norris Trophy as the NHL's top defenceman last year, led the Islanders with a goal and one assist.

Canadiens' Steve Shutt opened the scoring at 1:53 of the first period on a slap shot from inside the left faceoff circle. But Resch shut the door the rest of the game.

POTVIN TAKES CHARGE Then Potvin took charge. The all-star defenceman tied the score with 2:30 remaining in the opening period and it was all New York after that.

Rookie John Tonelli, a former World Hockey Association player, put the Islanders ahead 2-1 with his first NHL goal at 5:08 of the second period. Bob Lorimer's shot bounded off Tonelli's body past Montreal goalie Ken Dryden's glove hand and into the net.

Bryan Trottier added the clincher on a power-play rebound of Clark Gillies' slap shot at 11:42 of the same period.

The Flames kept Colorado winless after four games as Willi Plett scored his first two goals of the season. The goals came in the third period after Atlanta had built a comfortable lead against Rockies' goaltender Doug Favall who was replaced by Bill Oleschuk in the third period.

Atlanta got a single goal from Bill Clement in the first period. Guy Chouinard scored a powerplay goal in the second, then Bob Macmillan, Eric Vail and Harold Phillipoff also scored. Bobby LaLonde added a third-period goal.

Colorado's Clayton Pachal and Nelson Pyatt scored in the third period against goalie Dan Bouchard, who faced 24 shots for Atlanta.

FIRST CANUCKS LOSS Larry Patey and Garry Unger scored 23 seconds apart with less than six minutes left to hand the Canucks their first loss of the season after four games.

The goals by Patey, his first of the year, and Unger his second of the game, highlighted a five-goal Blues rally in the final period.

Wayne Babych with two, Mike Walton, Doug Palazzari and Brian Sutter also scored for St. Louis.

Curt Fraser scored twice to lead the Canucks. Singles went to Pit Martin, Tom Gradin, Stan Smyl and Ron Sedlbauer.

MATES URGE BOUCHARD TO PLAY

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — The retirement of defenceman Pierre Bouchard has upset some members of Montreal Canadiens who hope they can convince him to return to the National Hockey League this season.

Several players scheduled a news conference for today in the Montreal restaurant owned by Bouchard's father, Butch, but few would talk about it after Tuesday night's 3-1 loss to New York Islanders.

Guy Lafleur, nursing a fivestitch cut over his right eye, said it was bad for Bouchard, 30, to quit the NHL now with so many good years left in his career.

Lafleur, who had a miserable night against the Islanders with only one shot on goal—mainly because of the effective shadowing of Islanders' centre John Tonelli—said he thought a few players would attend the news conference.

"We're still all his friends," he said. "I think we'll try to convince him to return to hockey, go to Washington for a year—at least try it. He might enjoy it. "There's feeling for him in everybody's heart. It's tough to see a guy like him retire. But that's his decision to make."

Then in good humor, Lafleur said that with the devalued Canadian dollar, Bouchard would do better in Washington anyway—being paid in U.S. dollars, which are worth more than $1.15 in Canadian funds.

After playing his entire pro career with the Canadiens, Bouchard was left unprotected in this week's waiver draft and was claimed by Washington Capitals.

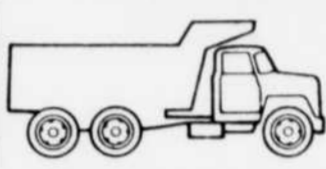

Less than 24 hours after the Capitals picked him in the first round, they traded him back to Montreal for Rod Schutt, a high-scoring minor leaguer.

NHL president John Ziegler ruled that such a trade was illegal in accordance with league bylaws and he was upheld by the board of governors. As a result, Bouchard announced his retirement rather than leave Montreal.

HUNTING & FISHING INFORMATION

FOR THE COUNTY OF BROME & PART OF MISSISQUOI

Recent government announcements regarding Fish & Game Clubs in the province of Quebec may have confused some people. It has been announced that all private fish & game clubs have had their leases cancelled and are no longer in operation.

THIS IS NOT THE CASE

PRIVATE FISH & GAME CLUBS LOCATED ON PRIVATELY OWNED LAND ARE NOT EFFECTED BY THIS LEGISLATION AND ARE STILL VERY MUCH IN OPERATION. These clubs are in reality landowner's associations, and as such, are not classed with the clubs located on Crown land.

There are five Fish & Game clubs located in the regions shown below. They are in operation as they were in the past... if not stronger in many ways. They are organized to protect all private lands leased to these clubs, enforce all government hunting & fishing rules and regulations, and control the hunting & fishing within their areas by limiting the number of sportsmen who have access. All of these clubs have a number of "Club wardens" with real power to control unwanted trespassing on leased lands.

These clubs are private and are available for the use of their members only. A small number of non-resident memberships are available and each club should be contacted separately for their individual regulations and requirements.

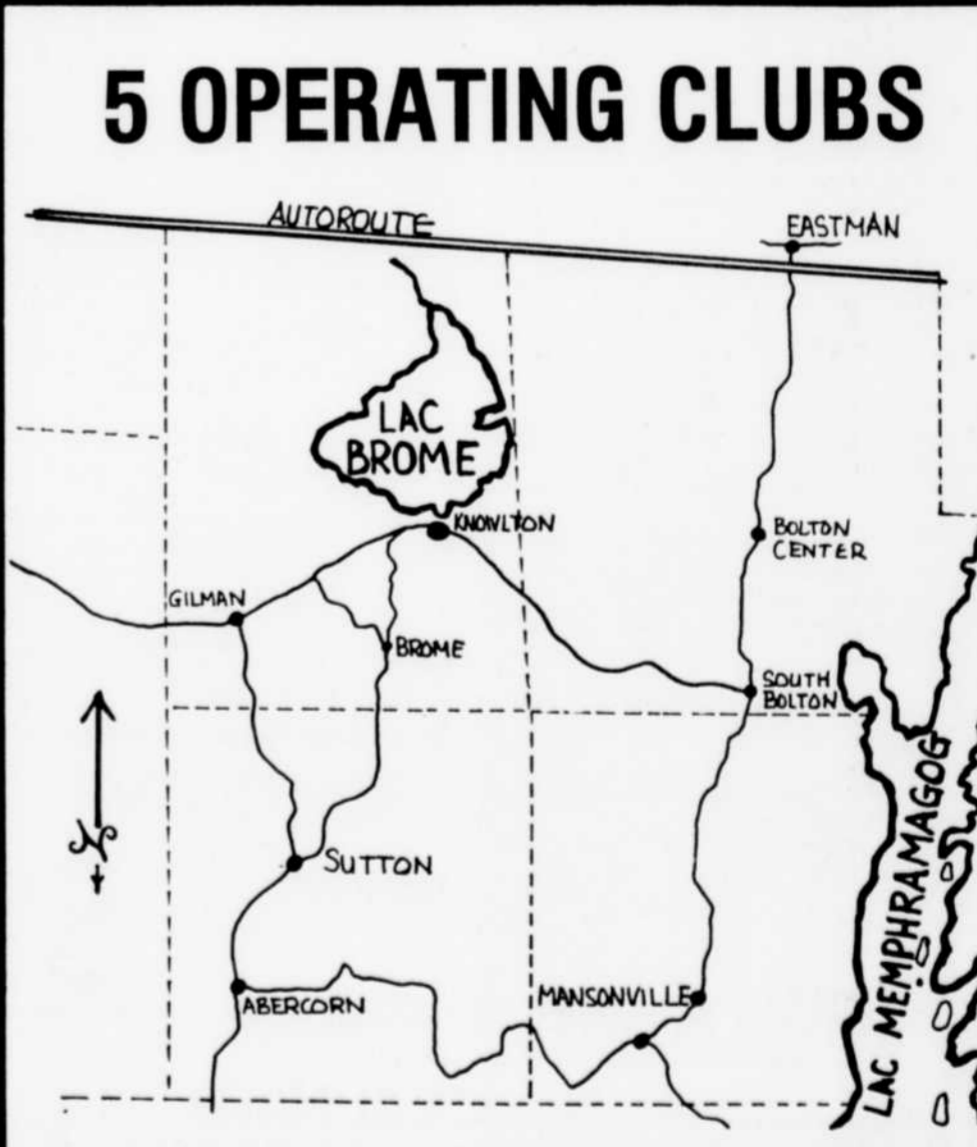

NON-MEMBERS TRESPASSING ON LEASED LAND WILL BE PROSECUTED UNDER EXISTING PROVINCIAL LAWS OF TRESPASS.

In the past many hunters have misused their hunting and fishing rights in these areas. These clubs were formed by local residents to protect their property and local wildlife, and to assist the government in enforcing their conservation laws and regulations.

YOU CAN CONTROL YOUR SUGAR INTAKE!

LUCILLE LOUBIER
NUTRITION CONSULTANT

It is surprisingly easy to cut down on the amount of sugar you consume once you know where it is hidden. The first step is to have less. Turn a heaping teaspoon into a level one and next week make it a scant spoonful — done gradually that way you can reduce your taste for sweets without noticing it. Try to buy processed foods made without sugar (read the labels), and replace sweet desserts with fresh fruits. Be warned that artificial sweeteners won't solve the problem, because they sustain your taste buds craving for sweets.

100 DES GRANDES FOURCHES SHERBROOKE

John Pitt: 'I don't feel more than 25 or 30'

You might remember John Pitt from last Christmas when he played Santa Claus for the kids at North Hatley. Or perhaps you've seen him astride his motorcycle, woolly white beard and pony tail jutting from his helmet, on his way to a real estate appraisal job or to give a talk on aging.

If you remember back 45 years you might recall him on the rodeo circuit travelling with Roy Rogers and earning $500 a week as Iron Man Kelly, Superman and John Pitt, America's Ace Daredevil Driver.

His irrepressible energy and zest for life have spurred him through a life as colorful as taking a 32,000-mile motorcycle trip to the southern tip of South America at the age of 61. (He did that too).

He talks about the past with as much enthusiasm as the present. Busy building another house on his lakefront property three miles from North Hatley, Pitt has built five others, including two round ones.

His eyes snap, his sturdy hands slice the air, and he's apt to leap up or fling himself to the floor to illustrate a point. His words tumble like water over rocks in a sometimes futile attempt to keep up with his rapid mind. Adventure and humor spice his stories.

He believes in keeping the mind and body fully tuned, and he doesn't hesitate to display a solidly flexed arm muscle to prove it. He doesn't smoke, drinks only moderately and is a vegetarian. He's playful and he says he hasn't matured yet, although he wonders if any of us have.

Life is a challenge to be met head on like a man on a motorcycle charging through a wall of flaming barrels (which he's also done). It's as interesting as working a cattle boat to Russia, weak stomach, vomit and all, and then travelling the country for a year. And it's as much fun as living in a Montreal penthouse with five young women - John Pitt and the campfire girls, as he puts it.

To him immorality is not treating another person with warmth and humor and interest. Immorality is backstabbing to get to the top of the money and status heap.

Born 66 years ago in Montreal, Pitt comes from a family that was English with a capital E. A direct ancestor was a British prime minister, Sir William Pitt. His father built a Montreal real estate business, Ernest Pitt and Co., into Canada's largest. He became a well-respected member of parliament, but to John his father was a tyrant who never called him 'dear' or even 'John'. "He treated me like a piece of dirt. I think that's why I'm so friendly with people because I realize the importance of human contact. We're people and what's the purpose of being cold and aloof. Life is beautiful."

He spent his late teens and twenties resisting family pressure to become part of the real estate company. He took off for more exciting careers in film and rodeo. However, he later operated his father's office and became a real estate appraiser, a profession which has allowed him to work freelance and to follow varied paths.

He says he's done everything he could. That includes speaking five languages, getting a law degree in the States, flying his own airplane, doing photography for National Geographic, and being the first skier in Canada to turn a somersault on skis (on purpose) and then teach others how.

He's reached countless people through writing and lectures about real estate appraisal, his South American trip, building ecologically sound houses, and aging.

Having left Montreal for the Townships 13 years ago to escape the tension and impersonality of big city life, he now lives with his third wife, Margarita, whom he met in Argentina. He has five children by his two previous wives.

He's been, and still is, a rebel with a cause: his cause being to live to the fullest and to help others do so too.

I was brought up in a family that was fairly well established. So I had to go to Lower Canada College and McGill University and wear good clothes with my father's big car and all this damn silly nonsense.

It started to dawn on me when I was about 15 years of age. One day I met a man and I asked him what he did for a living. He said, "I ship cattle to Russia."

I said, "What do you mean? You put them in a rowboat and show them how to row?"

"No, no, you stupid. I put them in a big, big boat and carry them."

"Well, how do they look after themselves?"

"We hire guys to look after them. We send them over and we give them 20 dollars and free passage back."

"Can I go?" I said.

"Sure, do you want to go?"

I was now 18, and my dear mother didn't want me traipsing around with the boys, maybe drinking in a bar. She wanted her little Johnny to be quite safe and she had it all planned for me to go to a camp and then something else instructive.

So by gosh I came home one day and the whole family's in a fit. I said, "I'm going to Russia on Thursday morning." And then oh my dear, what a hullabaloo! She tried to have the man cancel it but I wouldn't tell her where he lived.

So I got a little, weeny packsack and away I went.

There were 20 of us on board and we had 410 cattle to look after. For 13 days all I saw was vomiting. Vomit, vomit, vomit from morning till night. I've got a weak stomach.

I got into Mermansk and the whites of my eyes were whiter than this paper. I went to see a doctor and he said, "There's nothing wrong with you. Your liver is as if you were born yesterday."

The guys waited there for three days and they took the next boat back. I stayed for a year and a half. I started at Mermansk at the very top of Russia and I went all the way through working at whatever I could.

Pitt returned to studies and to his father's company in Montreal. Then one day the rodeo came to town and he got free tickets for displaying posters in some of his father's St. Catherine St. stores.

The very first night I'm there, the guy on the motorcycle doing a stunt, going through two wooden walls that are on fire, turned upside down and burned himself to a fare-thee-well. So by gosh, the promoter was tearing his hair out and I don't know what happened to me.

I do these things involuntarily: I went over to see him and I said, "Gee, it's tough about that guy. What are you going to do?"

He said, "Do you know anyone who can ride a motorcycle?" And I said, "I can ride a motorcycle." And he said, "Can you do that?"

"Well," I said, "Show me how."

So by gosh I got my little old motorcycle and they built a wall and said, "Now look, don't be a damn fool. Put your helmet on and all you've got to do is go through this wall at 30 miles an hour. Come on, try it!"

Gee, I'm scared as hell. So they're holding these posts up for this wooden wall. It's the same idea as in karate - it's just a matter of speed and force and doing it. I went through the wall time and time again.

So the first thing I know I've joined the rodeo and father had a fit. Oh my gosh, he dumped all my stuff out on the sidewalk and that was it.

I stayed with these guys. I got better and better. In a rodeo you've got to do two or three stunts yourself. I was Superman driving a little old car over a continental bus and five other cars - leaping it up over the air and landing it farther along on old cars.

Then I was Iron Man Kelly - that's letting a truck ride over me. Four matinees and seven nights a week - letting a truck drive over me!

Then I was Captain John Pitt, American Ace Dare Devil Driver on the motorcycle.

I did all these, but I was getting $500 a week and that's bloody well more than selling stupid old real estate to people who don't know what they want.

We'd break the show at midnight wherever we were and pile everything into the cars, and then we'd get a bus, or whatever means of transport we could, and we'd get into Chicago or Minneapolis. Roy Rogers joined us. He was the star of the show.

I had a card from him not long ago - every Christmas we have cards. He's getting on now. A very, very nice quiet guy. Dale Evans was with him and then she had to go back with their children.

But then one day Pitt was injured during his Iron Man Kelly act when the plank cracked as the truck drove over him. So he left the rodeo and returned to his father's business.

Later, growing restless again he picked up and headed for London. I'm selling real silk hosiery from door to door and I'd sell three or four; but I'm starving.

One day I go to Canada House to get my mail and I meet Robert Newton whom I'd gone to Lower Canada College with years ago. And Robert Newton is living in London and he's actually a star in the movies and he says, "What the hell are you doing?"

And I said, "I'm starving, what are you doing?"

"Well, come down to the studio tomorrow morning."

I found my way to LC studio and he got me a little, weenie part acting. Then by a fluke of good fortune I was talking to a girl in French and as we were going through a doorway and a man brushed past us. He stopped and said to us, "Attendez un moment. Vous etes francais?" And he gave me his card. He was president of Franco-London films.

In those days they did a film in two languages all at the same time before striking the set. They would find actors and actresses who could talk English and French fluently.

I got a job doing real acting in French and English.

Story by Barbara Verity Stevenson

I loved it, but after a year and a half, I suddenly realized it's terribly immoral. There was a saying and it was so true - very few girl stars get to stardom except through the bed of the director; and homosexuality; and stuff that just wasn't nice. It's not a good life. It's all artificial.

Oh yes, it's glamorous but after a while you realize the people round you are all glamorous but underneath they're not solid people. You wouldn't like to live with them and I wouldn't want to live with them - stabbing behind the back and lies and cheating and everything else.

So I left and I came back. The war came along and I went over there and flew a pilot bomber for four or five years.

Later, with his second marriage on the rocks, Pitt found himself lonely in his Montreal apartment. He put an ad in the paper: "Wanted to share an apartment, girl."

And by gosh a lovely German girl came along, Christina - beautiful blonde hair. She moved in the next day with me and we lived there for about six months. It was going fine but the apartment's getting small for the two of us. I just heard there's a big penthouse apartment up on the 15th floor, so I said to Chrissie, "We're both working. Why don't we rent the big apartment upstairs? There's six rooms and it's $600 a month but there's four bedrooms and there's two bathrooms. Why don't we get a whole bunch of other people in. We'll get some more furniture and we'll charge them all rent and we'll be living rent-free."

So that worked out pretty well. But let me tell you the fallacy there. I think to myself, all these girls are paying me $75 or $100 a month and they're using the refrigerator and the bathrooms. But every morning it's the same story - 8 o'clock and we're all eating breakfast and they say, "Oh my gosh, I'm late. The bus is going to leave and I promised to be in early for dictation. I'll do the dishes tonight."

I hate mess in the house. I'm organized, so I start doing people's dishes. After a while - bathrooms - instead of just my shorts and my sox, there's brassieres and there's pantyhose, all kinds of things that girls wear all over the place drying on lines and everywhere else. And I'm wading through all this stuff, and all day long I'm by myself because I have my office in my apartment too.

And I hate dirt. In the end I'm cleaning the floors, putting things neat and washing the dishes, just because they don't want to wash the dishes. Mind you, I swiped their ice cream sometime and I'd swipe their cakes.

That was John Pitt and the campfire girls - me and five girls. And it was a real harem up there. But I only made love to two of them.

Pitt once taught public speaking in Montreal. He currently addresses groups on various topics, including aging.

The biggest fallacy about old age and retirement is the very word, retirement, and that's a terrible mistake. The only time you're retired is when you're in a big box down in the ground. Then you're really retired.

For heaven's sake, change your whole way of thinking and say you're not retiring at all. You're just changing your mode of life.

And I tell people don't let any of your young folks say, "Dear old grandpa, take it easy. Look it's a bad day; don't go outside today. Oh, don't work so hard. Come and lie down."

All this nonsense - you've got a lot more sense. Your head's full of things. These kids don't know anything to what you've learned. Sure, you can't walk and you can't jog as fast as they can, but you've got a heckuva lot more on the ball than they have. So let's say you're changing your life to something more productive and much more enjoyable.

To me the devil's invention is the television. All some people do all their lives is sit on their big fat bums and watch TV from 7 in the morning 'til 9 at night - sitting, sitting, sitting, sitting.

We have been able to get a man up on the moon but with all our vaunted knowledge, we can't even build a leaf - one of God's little leaves with all the beautiful sap that goes up in the springtime and something tells it in the fall, now let the sap go out of us, down the veins into the roots of the tree where it won't freeze.

And the little leaves have no more sap and they die. In springtime they come up; chlorophyll starts; and photosynthesis takes place with the sun's rays. It manufactures energy for the tree.

We can't do that. God has made a wonderful body. Your brain is a muscle; every part is a muscle. Muscles will atrophy unless you work at them all the time. Keep your muscles - your brain, your back, your legs, your arms - everything. Work work work. Do something.

Life can be so exciting if you have lots of things to do. The more you can crowd into your life, the happier you're going to be.

There's an old saying: an idle mind is the devil's playground. It's so true. It's the people who don't have a thing in their head and who start thinking about booze and pot and murder and violence. But if they had something creative to do and lots of variety. Keep busy and creative. Variety - that's the fun of life!

There must be something wrong in my birthdate because I don't feel more than 25 or 30 all the time. I'm just bursting with energy, but I attribute it to a proper outlook on life, getting away from the city, eating good foods and working hard.

Pitt heading for Russia at 18: "I got a little, weeny packsack and away I went."

As stuntman in the rodeo, Pitt did three different daredevil stunts, earning $500 a week.

Belvidere Women's Institute

The monthly meeting of Belvidere Branch Women's Institute was held at the home of Miss Hazel McGee on Saturday, October 7. Due to the indisposition of our president, Miss Margaret Kinkead, our first vice-president, Mrs. Jack Tarte presided. The meeting opened with the Mary Stewart Collect and the Salute to the Flag. The motto was "He liveth long who liveth well." Members were welcomed, and we were glad to have our Ethel Drummond with us, as well as little Miss Margaret Pegg. The roll call, "Bring an antique and tell its history," was answered by nine members. The display of antiques proved to be most interesting. One of the items was a travelling inkwell with screwed-down cover, which was intended for use with a quill pen. The minutes of the September meeting, read by the secretary, were approved as read. The treasurer's report by Irene Paige showed everything in order. A motion was made that all outstanding bills be paid, including the Q.W.I. Service

Fund. The October tea collection goes to the Quebec Extension Fund. We are sending $7.35 for Pennies for Friendship, which is collected from the monthly drawings at branch meetings, and is sent in twice a year. Correspondence included an interesting and encouraging letter from our Q.W.I. president, Mrs. Ina Kigour, which was read and appreciated by the members. There was also a letter from Alexander Galt Regional High School to thank us for a donation to the Scholarship and Bursary Fund. A note of appreciation and thanks was read from Michael Parker, who received the Bursary given by the Belvidere Women's Institute Branch at the Awards Night held at this Regional School on Thursday, October 5.

Standing Committees' reports were as follows: Agriculture Convener Dorothy Montgomery gave a detailed and interesting report of the School Fair. Exhibits were of good quality. Concern and disappointment were expressed that more of the teachers and the public did not visit the Fair display during the afternoon to give the children encouragement. Dorothy was thanked for an interesting report. Citizenship Convener Margaret Smart read a letter from CanSave, acknowledging ten Handbags received and thanks expressed for these as well as for knitting done. Information was received from Q.W.I. convener Mrs. Lucy French concerning changes in the CanSave Handbag project. CanSave would prefer that in future the articles be sent mostly in bulk, as they would know best where various articles could be used to best advantage. Fifteen balls of wool were distributed to be knit into articles for CanSave. A small number of Handbags would be welcome. Home Economics Co-Convener Eva Beaton and Phyllis Hazard were absent, as was Education Convener Kathleen Reid. On behalf of the Home Economics Co-Convener, Margaret Smart read for them The Outline on Home Economics for 1978-79. Eva Beaton turned in a completed quilt made from a piece of fabric donated by a friend. Seven articles were turned in on the work calendar. A vote of thanks was moved by the members to Eva for a wonderful job done in completing the quilt.

Health and Welfare Convener Hazel McGee read two items on eating foods that keep us well and slim. One of the amusing items in this feature was the fact that garlic is one such food. The work at the cancer dressing rooms in October was discussed, but there was uncertainty about members being able to work during this month. Used stamps, bread tags and Dominion store slips were turned in. Publicity Co-Convener Myrtle Pitman and Mary Campbell reported the September meeting to the Sherbrooke Record and to the County Publicity Convener. Brochures from UNICEF and CanSave displaying their Christmas cards were passed around, and copies of "Shopping for Food and Nutrition" obtained from Agriculture Canada were handed out. Members expressed sympathy on the death of Pope John Paul I, after such a short time in office. Q.W.I. Convener's outlines for 1978-79 were received and handed to branch convener.

Sunshine Convener Mickie Povey visited friends in hospital. Cards were sent to friends and members on various occasions. Edna Smith sent a message expressing thanks to all who remembered her with cards. A motion was made by Mickie Povey that a donation be made to UNICEF. Mickie was in charge of the programme and held a guessing contest with highest prizes going to Margaret Smart, first, Irene Paige, second, Hazel McGee and Myrtle Pitman won consolation prizes. Little Margaret Pegg won the prize for guessing the number of beans in a jar. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Edna Smith on November 4, with Mrs. Florence Page as co-hostess. Members gathered round the table for a delectable salad luncheon, with lemon pie as dessert. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Francis Paige.

Sunday School Rally Day

AYER'S CLIFF — The Beulah United Church Sunday School held its annual Rally Day Service Sunday, September 24th, in conjunction with the regular morning worship. With families and children in mind Ron Coughlin chose the theme, "God is Here" divided into four parts for this family service. The first part under the heading, "We come" began on a quiet note as families gathered to pray together. The second part - "We listen", was emphasized with the responsive reading, Psalm 148, which was led by a senior pupil, Angus MacKinnon.

The congregation then enjoyed two musical numbers from the Sunday School group "Happy Little Children" and "If I were a Butterfly". The scripture lesson was read by Heather Dunn, a primary-junior pupil and was taken from the book of Mark 8: verses 1 to 9. The senior choir rendered a gospel number, "Holy Bible, Book Divine." Everyone listened with interest to Ron Coughlin as he presented his theme talk "Fuzzies", a folk fable for all ages. The little ones enjoyed the exchange of the fuzzies at the close of the service. The hymn "Magic Penny" closed out this portion of the program. "God is Here, we respond," began with the weekly announcements followed by the presentation of the offering.

Alfred Keeler, Acting Superintendent, gave the Sunday School report beginning with the names of the teaching staff including the helpers and replacements and the departments for which each is responsible. He praised his staff for their dedication and hard work throughout the past year. He reported 32 regular pupils on the roll with an average attendance of 21. He then read the names of the pupils being promoted and passed out the promotional certificates. These promotions were as follows:

Nursery to Kindergarten: Susan Lachapelle and Anthony Badham. Kindergarten to Primary: Natasha Hibbard, Joel Rich.

Happy Gang
SAWYERVILLE — The Happy Gang Senior Group met on Oct. 10 in the Church Hall and all enjoyed an afternoon of games. Lunch was served and each place was marked with numbers and drawings took place. Winners were Mr. Jerry Ord, Miss Evonne Giroux, Mrs. A. Luce and Mrs. Eleanor Blair.

Cards were signed by all to go to Mrs. Ruby Davies and Mr. Ernest Cragg, both patients in the Sherbrooke Hospital and to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ord on their wedding anniversary. The Bury Jolly Seniors are to be guests at the next meeting on Oct. 24.

Golden Age Club meets

MANSONVILLE (OJ) — Thirty six Golden Agers met at the Mansonville Town Hall for their meeting on October 3rd.

Door prize winner was Dolores Champagne. Card prizes went to Bessie Barnett and Mickey Lamothe. Game prizes were furnished by Ethylin Burnham, W. White, W. Smithers and V. Aiken and were won by Lena Tomuschat, Flora Drouin and Harold Aikens.

A welcome back was extended to Ethylin and Bill Burnham, Myrtle Bullock and Willie Allen from their recent trip to Calgary, Alta. The Golden Agers Table at the Flea Market Sale recently was a great success.

Hostesses at this meeting were Bessie Barnett, Yvonne Robin, Iris Milroy, Julieanne McDuff, Annie Macdonald, Verlie Aikens and Minerva Lamothe.

ardson and Troy Smith. Primary to Primary-Junior: Nancy Smith, Heather Dunn and Shawn Hibbard.

Primary-Junior to Junior: Kathleen MacKinnon, Tiffany Standish.

Junior: Krista Whipple and Melanie Watson.

Junior to Junior-High: Helen MacKinnon and Carolee Whipple.

He mentioned with pride, the excellent attendance record of many pupils particularly among the younger ones. To reward these little ones for their interest and efforts he presented a story book chosen for each to the following: for perfect attendance, Natasha Hibbard and Nancy Smith, for near perfect, Anthony Badham, Lana Dunn and Paul Johnson, for excellent attendance, Crissy Gustin, Sue Ann Johnson, Shawn Hibbard and Heather Dunn. He closed his remarks by voicing his concern with the downward trend in the numbers of pupils on the roll and asked the congregation for their support in extending a helping hand so that we may, together, invite and encourage new members.

He thanked Mrs. Jessye Pierce for her assistance at the piano who is kindly sitting-in for Mrs. W. Keel.

For Thursday, Oct. 19

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday
October 19, 1978
New and adventurous interest will be awakened in you this coming year and you'll set more ambitious goals. Don't be discouraged if things get off to a slow start, the momentum builds.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely careful as to whom you take into your confidence today. One who does not have your best interests at heart might try to use what you have to say for his own ends. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The old adage that too many hands in the kitchen could spoil the soup applies to you today. Do your own thing. You'll be far better off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Because you're willing to cooperate and give a little doesn't mean others are going to do the same. Be wary today of one who only knows how to take.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep an active hand in all your undertakings today. Nothing will get done properly if you depend on subordinates to think for themselves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Insist that all business transactions or financial dealings today be put in writing. If you don't, someone may try to pull the wool over your eyes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An old, unresolved domestic issue is likely to rear its head again today, so be careful how you handle any family matters. Don't you do anything to stir things up.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're quite willing to share your know-how with friends, however, you'll make it clear you won't be imposed upon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your paternal instincts are aroused today. Your concern is admirable. However, don't let a spoiled person abuse your generosity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try using some of those encouraging considerate words you have for everybody else on yourself today. Self-negativism is destructive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stick to activities that don't call for heavy or deep concentration. You might have a difficult time keeping your mind on what you are doing today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Get it out of your head today that you have to try to keep up financially with everyone. People like you for what you are, not for what you have.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) To keep peace today, you're apt to let a bully have more influence over you than you should. Ignore this person. Do what you know to be best.

er. He also thanked the congregation for their continuing support throughout the year, as well as their presence at this particular Children's Day Service.

The fourth and final part of the service under the heading, "God is Everywhere," "We Go Out," was closed with the singing of the hymn, "Can a Little Child Like Me," followed by the benediction.

ACW Meeting

KNOWLTON (KT) — St. Paul's A.C.W. opened the Fall season's activities with a business meeting held on September 15 in the church hall. There was a good attendance with Mrs. Elsie Stanbridge presiding.

The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Doris Mandigo. The treasurer, Mrs. Peggy Donald gave a detailed report which included the results of the very successful annual Garden Party and Tea which had taken place in July. The president extended her thanks to all who had helped with, and attended the event.

Dates were set for the following: The Fall Rummage Sale, September 23; The Fall Supper, Saturday, October 21; The Christmas Sale and Tea, Wednesday, November 22.

At the close of the meeting a delicious tea was served by Mrs. Madge Bryan.

The second meeting of the month was held at the home of Mrs. Stanbridge on September 27. Mrs. Stanbridge announced the splendid results of the Rummage Sale held the previous week. Thanks to Mrs. Trixie Mathews, the very able convenor and all who gave their time and goods for the sale.

The Fall Supper, planned for October 21st, was discussed, with Mrs. Ann Windle, convenor, who asked all present for their support. Posters were to be made and distributed in the near future, when detailed plans were completed.

A happy social hour followed the business session. Refreshments were provided by Mrs. E.C. Pilson and Mrs. Stanbridge. Thanks were extended to the hostess for the opportunity to visit the "Glen" at this time, enabling the members to enjoy the foliage and mountains in all their glorious colours.

trump, driving out East's ace. East returned a spade which declarer ruffed. South then drew East's remaining trumps, played a diamond to dummy's ace, played the A K of clubs and ruffed a club.

Most declarers would now take the diamond finesse and complain bitterly when it lost. South was made of sterner stuff. He realized he had one extra chance, and he took it.

He ran off all his trumps. When he led the last trump, South had the trump he led plus the jack-eight of diamonds. West had the queen of clubs and two diamonds. Dummy had the king-10 of diamonds and club seven. East's hand was immaterial.

West had to discard a diamond on the last trump lead. To do otherwise would establish dummy's club as the 12th trick. Declarer countered West's discard by pitching dummy's now worthless seven of clubs.

Declarer led the jack of diamonds at trick 12, and when West played low declarer immediately played dummy's king of diamonds, dropping the queen. Declarer had not seen East's cards, but he had "seen" West's. Since West's last card was known to be the queen of clubs, the diamond finesse could not succeed. By running the trumps and delaying the finesse, declarer had given himself the slight extra margin that in the end proved decisive.

UCW Meetings

MAGOG — Two meetings of St. Paul's United Church Women have been held since the summer recess. The President, Mrs. Doris Walker, chaired the meeting held in the Church Hall on Wednesday, September 6. The roll call was answered by sixteen ladies.

Worship was conducted by Mrs. Thelma Ruck and Mrs. Joyce Robinson. During the business meeting, several letters of thanks were read. The Treasurer, Mrs. Doris McLaughlan, reported a healthy bank balance and a donation was sent to World Development and Relief. A gift was presented to Mrs. Bea Labrecque, who is leaving to make her home in the United States.

The program took the form of a Skit from Exchange magazine, entitled, "Madam X and the U.C.W.," with parts taken by Mrs. Ruck, Mrs. McLaughlan, Miss Joyce Broadbent and Mrs. Cathy Gillick.

A social time was enjoyed as refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Gillick and Miss Broadbent.

On Wednesday, October 4, fourteen ladies met in the Church Hall with the President, Mrs. Walker, chairing the meeting.

A special Thankoffering Service for U.C.W. groups, composed by Jean Little and printed in the latest issue of Exchange, was led by Mrs. Phyllis Wilson with Mrs. McLaughlan at the piano.

Mrs. Walker opened the business meeting with a quotation on language from the Museum of Man in Ottawa. She then paid tribute to the late Mrs. Helen Powers and after a moment of silence, led the group in prayer.

Mrs. Alicia Patterson gave a report from Mrs. Margaret Hall on the luncheon catered to the group of Senior Citizens from Outremont, and thanked all who had assisted in any way.

The President reported that tickets are now being sold for our Fall Supper to be held on Wednesday, October 18, and Mrs. Vivian Barron will make posters.

At an executive meeting held at the home of Mrs. McLaughlan, the following dates were chosen for activities in 1979: Spring Supper - April 18; Spring Rummage Sale - May 11; Fall Supper - October 17; Christmas Tea and Sale - December 1.

The President stated that the nominating committee are contacting members to fill offices for 1979 and the slate of officers will be presented at the November meeting.

Mrs. Frances Harris reported she had received $23.00 for box tops sent in. Mrs. Ethel Whittier thanked everyone for the gift, and supper and refreshments served by the U.C.W. at their 50th wedding anniversary party in August.

For the program period, Mrs. Wilson gave a report on the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial Mini-Retreat held in conjunction with the executive meeting in Granby in June, and she and Mrs. Walker reported on the Fall Rally held in Waterville.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Patterson, and a social hour enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held in the Church Hall on Wednesday evening, November 1st, with Mrs. Joyce Robinson and Mrs. Thelma Ruck as hostesses.

KNOWLTON (KT) — Unit 2, Knowlton U.C.W. held their opening meeting on Monday afternoon, September 18 at the home of Mrs. Ann Thayer. The six members attending reported making 21 calls on shut-ins during the previous month.

Irene Hines was leader pro-tem as May Doherty acted as secretary in the absence of Jean Miller. The minutes of the last meeting of June 19 were approved. A good bank balance was reported by the treasurer.

Several coming events were discussed and plans completed for unit 2 providing afternoon tea, at a nominal charge to a group of 45 senior citizens from Fairmount St. Giles Church in Montreal the following day, Tuesday, September 26. Arrangements were made for some members of units 2, 3 and 4 to carry out housekeeping duties in the church and hall on Wednesday, September 27. Hosting of the Fall Rally of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery on October 19 was also discussed.

The offering was received and dedicated and a devotional period followed under Letitia Cousens, the theme being "Family and Youth", also an interesting poem was read, called "Flower Growers" based on the 23rd Psalm. A book called "Patchwork Pieces" containing a good number of poems relating to Church Women's work groups was passed around.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Thayer and a pleasant hour of fellowship was enjoyed.

SUTTON — The regular meeting of the U.C.W. of Calvary United Church met on Wednesday afternoon, October 4 in the Church Hall, with Mrs. H. Boyce and Mrs. Beth Travers as hostesses.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Boyce the President. She welcomed everyone and all repeated the Church purpose in unison. Then she asked Mrs. Irene Thompson for the Devotional Period, who read a beautiful poem and its meaning by Jean Little United Church, Ont. and Donna Sinclair.

Everyone was pleased to know Mrs. D. Mudgett and Mrs. W. Millmore were both home from hospital and gaining slowly. Cards were sent to them and also to Mrs. Fryer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read.

Correspondence was a note of thanks from the Evangelical Church of Central Angola for articles sent to Dr. Burgess, signed by H.E. Daniel, Secretary. Mrs. Boyce had received a nice thank-you note from Miss Nancy Travers, Vice-Principal of Lorne School, Montreal, for all the nice clothing sent to that school.

Plans were made for our usual visit to the Wales Home in Richmond on October 26.

Final plans were made for the Rummage Sale taking place October 12-13.

The Treasurer reported all bills to date were paid. The Fall Rally is to be held at Knowlton United Church October 19.

The Church Calendars have been received and will be on sale.

The Church is to be decorated for Thanksgiving Sunday.

There being no further business, Mrs. L. Sherrer declared the meeting closed.

The ladies present then packed seven boxes of bandages to be sent to Phobe Hospital in South Africa.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour spent.

KNOWLTON (KT) — The general meeting of Knowlton Church Women was held in the church hall Tuesday evening, September 12, following the summer recess, with an attendance of 15.

The leader, Ann Thayer, called the meeting to order and the minutes of the previous meeting in June were read by the secretary May Doherty and approved.

The treasurer, Irene Hines gave her report, showing a satisfactory bank balance.

Mrs. Mary Pille reported the refrigerator at the Manse had been repaired and payment of the bill was approved. She also reported a mobile cupboard will be made in the very near future for use in the hall by the U.C.W. members.

A thank-you for a miscellaneous shower in her honour was received from Joan (Page) Dudley. The dates for the Christmas Sale and Tea was set for Saturday, December 2. A committee is to be formed to organize this event and endeavour to increase its interest and make it more successful.

The Fall Rally of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery will be held at the Knowlton United Church on October 19. Ladies are asked to bring box lunches. Tea and coffee will be served.

The Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Irene Norris of unit 4 taken from a book by the Reverend D.H.

MacFarlane, a former pastor of the church at Knowlton.

Regarding "Happenings", it was agreed that it will be decided at the unit meetings whether or not individual members would wish to order.

The Rummage Sale is scheduled for Saturday, October 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Knowlton United Church Hall.

The next meeting will be held on November 14.

Miss Christine Miller moved adjournment of the meeting and refreshments were served by unit 3.

KNOWLTON (KT) — Unit 3 of the United Church Women held their first meeting of the season in the church hall on September 13 with eight ladies attending.

Mrs. Lillian Godefroy presided in the absence of the leader Mrs. Norah Sellars and the minutes were written by Mrs. Doris Beerwort on behalf of the secretary Mrs. Rose McLean who was absent.

The devotional sections were read by Mrs. Gwen Badger and the treasurer's report given by Mrs. Louis Stern.

The following coming events were discussed: Thursday, October 19, the Rally of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery which will be held in the United Church at Knowlton, commencing at 9:00 a.m. All those attending are asked to please bring a box lunch. Coffee and tea will be served.

Saturday, October 28, a Rummage Sale is to be held in the United Church hall from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Saturday, December 2, the Christmas Sale will be held in the afternoon. Further particulars will follow.

Mrs. Godefroy and Mrs. Stern served refreshments at the close of the evening.

BIRCHTON — The evening of October 4 Mrs. Stanley Logan and Mrs. M. MacKinnon hosted the October meeting of the Birchton U.C.W. at their home, when the President, Mrs. Nick Turchny, led in the unison-repeating of the Purpose, after which the Worship convenor took over, the theme being Thanksgiving, giving thanks for all our many blessings in this fair land of Canada, and emphasizing the many good things contributed by our ancestors.

Reference was made to the hundreds of times the Good Book exhorts us to "Give Thanks to our God", with a prayer for true appreciation. Mrs. Marie Nutbrown, in her inimitable voice, sang part of the touching composition, "Thank You, God", followed by the Lord's Prayer led by Mrs. George Latewood, were read by the group.

Minutes being disposed of, the President expressed appreciation of the refreshment-donors, from Birchton and Cookshire, to the social evening following the Song Service.

Favorable reports were given on the Fall Rally held in East Angus and ably handled by our area Vice-President, Mrs. Basil Prescott and her committees.

Each present chose a contact-friend from the dozen names requested from the Dixville Home. Plans were finalized for the Tea and Sale on October 21, 3-5 p.m.

Mrs. Latewood reported three boxes ready for Welfare, and will keep the boxes open for another month for further donations. Got any?

Community Friendship and Visiting had been active, chiefly in cheerful calls, providing conveyance, etc., during September. Folks were sorry to know that Miss Myrtle Chute's health was not as good as wished for.

A goodly amount of talent money was turned in.

The Mandate was voted to be renewed for 1979; help for the Sunday School is to be given; the new chalice and plate would, hopefully be used at the Communion Service on October 8, at 9:30 a.m.

The Programme, by Mrs. Arthur Rogers, assisted by Mrs. Prescott, on our Live Love Project, The East Labrador Parish, was interesting and informative.

After business, the ladies enjoyed the dainty refreshments, lively and interesting conversations resounded all around the place for some time, while Mrs. Prescott's display of cards and gifts was well patronized.

The November meeting will be at the Todd home, when all are invited. Don't wait for a special call, support God's work by living presence!

COOKSHIRE — The U.C.W. of Trinity United Church held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Pauline McVetty, with Miss Esther Farnsworth, co-hostess.

Mrs. Pauline Thorneloe was in the chair, and called on Miss Aleta Mackey to conduct the worship period. She read Psalm 95, then gave a meditation related to Thanksgiving. She maintained that we should appreciate all things in life - sight, hearing, flowers, rivers, hills, fresh air, water, etc., and that we should not take God's manifold blessings for granted. She then read a poem entitled, "Take Time", and closed with a short prayer.

The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Elkie Rodger, and approved.

Thanks were expressed to the ladies for their donations of food and other articles for the sale tables at the sale held for the Senior Citizens' Home in Sawyerville.

Mrs. Barbara Vogell gave a satisfactory treasurer's report.

Miss Farnsworth stated that she and Mrs. McVetty had called on Mrs. Edith Waldron in the Sherbrooke Hospital and had taken a gift to her from the U.C.W.

It was decided to clean the church on Thursday, Oct. 26, starting at 1 p.m.

Plans were made to have the autumn sale, tea and sweets held on Sat., Nov. 11th, from 2:30-4:30 p.m. There will be a fish pond for the children, a mystery table and miscellaneous tables of interesting articles.

Mrs. Nellie Parker will make the posters. The ladies will meet at the church hall on Friday, Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. to set up the tables, etc.

Final plans were made to cater for the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R.G. Hodge on Oct. 14.

Miss Farnsworth stated that four large-type Bibles had been sent to the Wales Home to four of the former members of the Cookshire U.C.W., and that one had been presented to Mrs. Mary Heatherington at the Sunday morning Thanksgiving service held in Birchton from the U.C.W., the congregation and the Pastor, the Rev. G.C. Simons, in recognition of her devotion to the work of the church. Mrs. Heatherington had on hand her treasured Bible for all to see, as some were not in church that Sunday. She thanked the members for their kind gesture and thoughtfulness.

Following adjournment, Mrs. C. Cruickshank conducted a game; giving out slips of paper on which the contestants wrote down the names of the pictures which had been circulated. Mrs. Elkie Rodger won the first prize, and Mrs. Heatherington was second.

WINDSOR — St. Andrew's U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Robert MacDonald on Wednesday evening, Oct. 4. Eight members answered the roll call.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Wm. Jandron reading a selection. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer then gave her report.

Plans were made to decorate the Communion table prior to the Thanksgiving service. A wreath is to be purchased for Armistice Day.

The date for the fall tea and bazaar was set for Saturday, November 4, to be held at the church hall from 4-7 p.m.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 1 at the home of Mrs. Clifford Morey with Mrs. M. Thomas as hostess.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, followed by a social hour. Refreshments were served by Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Harper.

Presentations made at church gathering

KINNEAR'S MILLS — There was an excellent attendance at Kinnear's Mills United Church when the congregation of Thetford Mines United Church worshipped with the Kinnear's Mills congregation for the Sacrament of Holy Communion. Some ninety persons were in attendance.

After the close of the service, a luncheon was held at noon in the Community Hall. Following this, with Mr. Ralph Stewart as Master of Ceremonies, a short program was held, opened by a hymn sing with Mrs. David Scott, as pianist.

After the close of this, two special events took place. A gift was presented to lay minister Mr. David C. Scott and Mrs. Scott by both congregations, in appreciation of their wonderful help here. This gift was a beautiful hand painted, framed picture of Candlish United Church, Kinnear's Mills. This lovely painting was done by Mrs. Harry Marshall of Thetford Mines. Mr. Bob Gale mentioned the great help the Scotts have been, since taking the duties of lay Minister of Thetford Mines-Kinnear's Mills charge in 1972. He spoke of how punctual Mr. Scott is, always on time for both services, 9:15 in Kinnear's Mills and 11 o'clock in Thetford Mines.

When the Thetford Mines United Church was built, around 25 years ago, Mr. Scott was chairman of the building committee. At that time Mr. Scott, being an engineer, worked in industry in Thetford Mines. He chooses wonderful sermons and is a forceful speaker. He has been a great help and comfort to sick people in the community.

Mrs. Scott also has been a great help in the community during the past six years since her husband has been lay minister for Thetford Mines-Kinnear's Mills charge. She is very active in both Thetford Mines and Kinnear's Mills, U.C.W., and teaches Sunday School in Kinnear's Mills, where she also substitutes as organist on occasions.

The presentation of the gift was made by Mrs. Murray Nugent. The Scotts expressed their appreciation and thanks for the gift and assured them that it would be placed on the walls of the Manse.

The president of Kinnear's Mills U.C.W. Mrs. Everett Reid, then took the floor and said how Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allan would be married fifty years on Oct. 10. Mrs. Allan has been a very active member, formerly of the W.M.S. and now United Church Women, for the past fifty years. Mr. Allan owns a mill five miles from Kinnear's Mills, which is said to be the only steam mill in Megantic County. In recent years he has not been as active in winter months but in spring, summer, and fall the mill is in full swing. Dick, as he is better known to his friends, has done much work at repairing the Church and he also made many things, including a case to hold the first communion set, a place for the In Memoriam book, and a case to hold a visitor's book in Riverside Memorial Cemetery. Mrs. Murray Nugent presented a plaque to the honored couple suitably engraved, from their United Church friends.

Dick and Barbara were married Oct. 10, 1928 and spent their entire married life here. The couple have a son, John, of Dartmouth, N.S. and a daughter Sheila of Montreal. John teaches in Caledonia Junior High, Dartmouth, N.S. Sheila is employed in an office of the National Trust Co., Montreal.

The couple expressed thanks for the gift. Several

History of the Church of the Epiphany

By CARL MAYHEW
It really started in 1862 when the Bishop sent the Rev. John Foster to the Mission of Barnston, Barford, Hereford, and Coaticook.

Up to 1871 Mr. Foster had Coaticook, Dixville, Hereford, Barnston Corners and Norton Mills, Vermont. In 1874 it was divided, leaving just Barnston and Coaticook. In 1885 Barnston became part of Way's Mills and Coaticook was on its own.

Before 1887, Rev. Albert Stevens of Hatley held services in the Libbytown schoolhouse. Then Rev. Joseph Eames was appointed for Way's Mills as well as Barnston and Baldwin's Mills. The building was started in 1887, finished in 1888 and dedicated in November, 1888. The Rectory was built the next year and Mr. Eames moved there from Barnston. He left the parish in 1891 and was succeeded by Rev. C.H. Brooks, a Missionary from Turkey. Rev. Norman M. Bayne came from the Gaspé in 1899 and was only 34 years old when he died a year later in 1900. Rev. Ben Watson came in 1900, married Grace Paul and stayed until 1909. In 1910 Rev. J.M. Bradshaw and family came and stayed until 1915. He was the last one to live here, because in 1915, it was changed to Hatley, where they had a Rectory.

The following clergy served Way's Mills and lived in the Rectory at Hatley: The Reverends: - Newton Kerr, C.R. Eardley-Wilmot, W. Smith, H.W. Parry, W.J. Belford, Mack Brett, C. Jensen, and Canon Harry Denton, who was the last one to stay in the Rectory in Hatley.

The 50th Anniversary was observed July 28, 1938, and in 1953 the 65th Anniversary was held.

As part of the Ayer's Cliff - Hatley Parish, in November, 1964, we helped celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the building of the new St. George's Church at Ayer's Cliff. When the Rev. Newton Kerr came, it was decided to build a new church, which was finished in 1914. The former church building is now a private residence, owned and lived in by Kenneth Taylor. Also on Sept. 30, 1968, as part of Hatley, we joined in the 150th Anniversary celebration of the beginning of Hatley Parish in 1818. Archdeacon T.J. Matthews gave the address and 200 people were there and given refreshments after.

Then in 1970 another change was made when Way's Mills and Hatley were put with Coaticook instead of Ayer's Cliff. Therefore the last three clergy, Canon Jarvis-Read, Ed Schmitt and Ron Smith have lived in Coaticook.

In 1973 this church started having combined services with the Union Church. This has worked out very well and has led to many joint efforts in the community, such as the combined UCW and ACW meetings, church suppers, etc. Also in 1973 we joined the new Greater Parish of Coaticook with ten other congregations. Rev. Ron Smith and Canon Church conduct most of the Anglican services now. During the winter months all the services are held in the Union Church where there is an oil furnace.

The 90th Anniversary of the church was held on October 8, 1978.

The 90th Anniversary of the church was held on October 8, 1978.

ACW Meeting

NORTH HATLEY — The Anglican Church Women of St. Barnabas Church held a meeting on October 4 at the Community Hall with an attendance of 17 members and one guest, Mrs. Rita Bowen, a former member now residing in Drummondville. The meeting was chaired by Miss Hazel Ireland.

Devotions were conducted by Mrs. R. Springins, the theme being Courage.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. C. Coleman and the financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. E. Detchon.

Mrs. J.H. Whelton reported on a meeting of the Community Club. The Altar Guild Committee reported that Miss Jean McCrea will assist on the Altar Guild. Church calendars may now be obtained from Mrs. N. Pike.

A donation of money was voted to UNICEF.

Tea was served by the hostesses Mrs. F. Warner and Mrs. D. Spice, assisted by Mrs. N. Pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clark have returned from a month's holiday spent visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Lyndall and Michael Atterbury and family in Lahr, Germany. While there, they visited many interesting places in Germany and also toured France, Austria, Italy and Switzerland.

Friends of Mr. Robert (Bob) Distefano will regret to hear that he underwent surgery for the amputation of a foot, in the Sherbrooke

Hospital. He is in Room 211, second floor. Miss Sylvia Laro is staying in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley George in Sherbrooke to be
