ET maple season prognosis looks brighter

The 1965 maple sugaring season has improved, in the estimation of Eastern Townships sugar bush operators from "poor" to "fair" to "not too good, but not too bad."

A few weeks ago, ET sugar farmers were predicting the end of what they called without exception, a very poor season.

They are now saying that, though not a good year, this season has been fair and almost up to par.

Kenneth MacRae of North Hatley told the Record yesterday that he boiled down more syrup this year than in 1964, although he wouldn't consider last year a good one for the multi-million dollar Eastern Townships maple sugaring industry.

The 1964 production, expressed in syrup, reached 681,000 gallons in the Eastern Townships, or 42 per cent of the province's total maple syrup output.

This was 360,000 gallons below the 1963 season, due to unusually high temperatures at sugar time last year, which considerably curtailed the flow for most sugar producing regions.

Eastern Townships farmers have described this season as

"fair" and "below average". Earlier this season, farmers expected a "very poor" year.

For a successful season farmers need freezing nights and warm days.

Canada's sugar industry export in 1963 - 850,000 gallons of syrup and 5,205,300 pounds of sugar — was worth $5,970,000. The bulk of these exports went to the United States.

From one of the best known producers in the Eastern Townships comes the complaint that most city people don't really know the difference between good and bad maple syrup.

A Richmond area farmer, says that many people don't really know what it's like to taste real "double A" syrup.

He says much of the syrup sold in the cities is a mixture of all grades of syrup, brewed by sugar factories trying to "stretch" their product.

He advised buyers to look for "thick", light colored syrup.

For the extra keen shopper with a pocket scale, the syrup should weigh 14½ pounds per gallon. Standard syrup usually weights 14 pounds two ounces, he said.

"Last wekend was tremendous", said Ken Dean of North Hatley.

He said it was about the best run they had this year.

He boiled 200 to 225 gal-

WANTS INVASION OF NORTH VIET NAM — Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of South Viet Nam's air force, says that air strikes are not choking off aid to the Viet Cong from North Viet Nam. Ky, a 34-year-old native of Hanoi, advocated a kind of 'National Liberation Front' in the north — similar to the Viet Cong in the south — in an exclusive interview with Associated Press Writer Malcolm Browne in Saigon today.

'Invade North' says Vietnam air commander

SAIGON (AP) — Air strikes against North Vietnamese roads, bridges and railways are not choking off aid to the Viet Cong, and a land invasion of the north should begin immediately, the commander of South Viet Nam's air force says.

"If we are just going to bomb communications lines, the Viet Cong will be able to stand up for a long time, I'm afraid," Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, 34, told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview today. "So the next step must be big—either a big escalation of the war or negotiations."

"The raids against communications are not really effective," he said. "The Communists can always find ways of moving through the jungle.

"But if we were to set up a kind of 'national liberation front' in the north, we could do the same things to the Communists that they've been doing to us here. We have superiority in the air over North Viet Nam's central area and we could easily supply guerrillas of our own there."

Ky, a native of Hanoi and probably the most powerful member of the Vietnamese high command, said:

"The people in that area are basically anti - Communist and I'm sure they would help us. Then we could really start cutting their supply lines and giving them something to worry about.

"For that matter, what's wrong with sending up regular troops now? Our intelligence proves that North Vietnamese regular units are already in our highlands, so there can be no bar to sending troops north."

Confidence tests seen

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition parties are expected to unleash detailed criticism and test the government with no-confidence motions today as the Commons opens a six-day debate on Finance Minister Gordon's federal budget.

Conservative financial critic George Nowlan will continue the assault he began Monday night following its delivery when he called the budget a "two-bit" gesture.

Other opposition parties, all critical of the budget despite the proposed 10-per-cent cut in the basic income tax, are expected to follow suit.

Commons rules provide for possible votes on the even-numbered days of the debate—Thursday, Monday and Wednesday in this case.

A Thursday opening for the budget debate had been scheduled to allow opposition spokesmen time to digest its contents. But Privy Council President McIlraith said Tuesday the opposition parties had expressed no objection to starting the discussion sooner.

While the criticisms were being prepared, MPs took on two other government measures—giving first reading to a bill to retire senators at age 75.

LBJ stands firm on Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson says he is "very hopeful" that some method can be found to bring about peace talks on Viet Nam, but the United States' desire for peace is coupled with a "refusal to retreat."

The U.S. is in Viet Nam to resist aggression, the president told a White House press conference Tuesday, "and as long as the aggressors attack we'll stay there and resist them whether we make friends or lose friends."

He said the moment that aggression ceases, the bombing of North Viet Nam will stop.

The clearest lesson from Munich to the present, Johnson said, is that to yield to aggression brings only "greater threats and brings even more destructive war."

"To stand firm is the only guarantee of a lasting peace," he said.

The air-jungle war in Southeast Asia dominated Johnson's press conference.

"I say again that I will talk to any government, anywhere, and without any conditions," Johnson added. "If any doubt our sincerity, let them test it."

STANDS FIRM

His comments were the latest in a round of government messages seemingly designed to drive home to the American public a determination to continue the expanding U.S. military role in Southeast Asia. They followed signs of some broadening public doubt about the course of the war.

In other matters, the president justified his postponement more than a week ago of scheduled visits by Pakistani President Ayub Khan and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India.

Johnson said he still thinks it is a good idea because he hopes later to have more authority from Congress to meet the needs of the two countries.

In his statement, Johnson said reaction by allies to his April 7 speech — offering unconditional peace talks and a billion - dollar Southeast Asian aid program—had shown "almost universal approval."

REFERS TO BOMBING

The president also referred to suggestions at home and abroad that the bombing of North Viet Nam be halted or called off to encourage negotiations.

GOLDWATER BACKS JOHNSON — Barry Goldwater defeated Republican presidential candidate last year, is interviewed by newsmen as he left a Paris building Tuesday after addressing meeting of Anglo-American Press Association of Paris. At the meeting, Goldwater said he wholeheartedly backed the policies of President Johnson in South Viet Nam.

Declares France free

PARIS (Reuters)—France today appeared more determined than ever to pursue an independent role in the world, following President de Gaulle's "declaration of independence" speech Tuesday night.

De Gaulle said the U.S. would one day be glad of France's independence.

His speech contained only a brief reference to the Viet Nam situation, and he called again for a neutral Southeast Asia free of outside influence.

De Gaulle condemned the war in Viet Nam but avoided any direct criticism of U.S. military action there.

He said French policy holds that "each nation be responsible for itself, free of any encroachments, and aided in its progress without conditions of obedience.

"Hence, our severe disapproval of the war which is spreading in Asia more and more from day to day. . . ."

STRESS INDEPENDENCE

In his televised speech, de Gaulle concentrated solely on the great issue of French independence, and ignored this year's French presidential election. He had been expected to set a date for the voting, in which the 74 - year - old leader might seek another seven-year term.

Shastri issues warning

NEW DELHI (CP) — Prime Minister Shastri warned Pakistan today that the Indian army will choose its own battleground unless Pakistan ceases attacks in the Rann of Kutch.

Pakistani attacks were continuing with tanks and armored vehicles on the strongpoint of Biar Bet, one of the focal points of recent fighting, Shastri told a tense Parliament.

(A Pakistan defence ministry spokesman said in Karachi Indian forces retired in confusion from Biar Bet and Pakistani forces occupied the area.)

India has claimed that at least 300 Pakistanis have been killed, wounded or captured in the fighting in the sparsely inhabited area. An official spokesman said nine Pakistani tanks have been destroyed and one disabled. He put Indian losses at 65 men killed, wounded or missing.

In Karachi, a Pakistani defence ministry spokesman denied the Indian claims of Pakistani losses.

The Pakistani spokesman said after four days of heavy fighting the Indian military outpost of Biar Bet fell into Pakistani hands and that Pakistani troops have pushed about 20 miles across what India claims as its border along the disputed frontier.

'National economics accounts system'

Gordon uses his own new math

OTTAWA (CP)—In his last two budget speeches, Finance Minister Gordon has referred to a new form of reckoning government income and spending. He calls it the national economics accounts system.

He reported in Monday's budget speech that on the basis of a finance minister's traditional method of accounting to Parliament, Canada had a deficit of $83,000,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31. But on a national economic accounts basis he reported a surplus of $332,000,000.

For the 1965-66 fiscal year, he is planning a budgetary deficit of $390,000,000, but a national economics accounts surplus of $152,000,000.

What's the explanation for these seemingly conflicting figures?

Mr. Gordon says that the traditional system of accounting to Parliament for revenues and expenditure doesn't represent the true impact of federal government operations on the economy of Canada as a whole.

The budgetary system used by finance ministers for generations represents the traditional approach that Parliament must approve every expenditure by the Crown, and that every bit of revenue must be accounted for by the treasury in the consolidated revenue fund.

However, over the years revenues have developed that don't go into the consolidated revenue fund, but into special funds. There are payments by Ottawa which are not really for goods bought by or services performed for the federal government. Funds are transferred by Ottawa to other levels of government to spend.

The prime example on the revenue side is the old age security fund, from which old age pensions of $75 a month to everyone 70 and over now are paid.

This fund revenue comes from three-per-cent taxes on corporation profits, three percentage points of the 11-per-cent general sales tax, and a four-per-cent tax on personal incomes up to $120 a year per individual.

This income is not accounted for as a budgetary revenue, and is reported separately in government accounts. But it is a drain on the taxpayer.

On the expenditure side, payments are made by Ottawa to provincial governments through subsidies and tax-sharing arrangements.

Cost of gasoline mystery

VANCOUVER (CP) — How much does it cost to produce a gallon of gasoline? Nobody can say.

A royal commission inquiry into gasoline prices in British Columbia has spent more than a year trying to find out.

The question goes to the heart of the inquiry into why gasoline prices in rural areas of B.C. are markedly higher than those in the heavily populated lower mainland and on parts of southern Vancouver Island.

Scores of briefs, hundreds of witnesses and hours of cross-examination have failed to turn up an answer.

So far, no end is in sight for the hearing that began under Judge C. W. Morrow in January, 1964.

Boiled down, the reasons given for the absence of any exact cost come to this—gasoline is only one of many products manufactured from crude oil, therefore it is impossible to isolate the cost of any one of the products.

CAN'T SAY EXACTLY

Said R. S. Ritchie, Imperial Oil director:

"We have never said costs are not relevant but simply that they cannot be precisely determined for a single product such as gasoline."

Imperial said it gets less now for gasoline in B.C. than it did in 1949 when oil prices were government - controlled. Provincial price controls, begun in 1937, ended in 1951. Imperial said competition had forced prices down.

British American Oil Co. said the blame for the discrepancy in prices should be laid to distribution costs, dealer markups and absence of competition in rural areas.

Texaco said the company's prices to dealers "are those that result from competition in the market place and are generally equal to those of our competitors."

New Noyan span

QUEBEC (CP)—Works Minister Rene Saint - Pierre says his department plans to spend $44,100,000 before 1970 on new bridges in various parts of the province, including a $32,500,000 structure over the St. Lawrence River here.

He told a press conference Tuesday the new bridge here will be started in June with $5,000,000 earmarked for construction this year. It would be completed toward the end of 1967.

The new bridge is to be 709 feet upstream from the present span.

Mr. Saint - Pierre said that in addition to the Quebec bridge a $2,000,000 span will be built over Riviere des Prairies between Montreal Island and Ile Jesus.

A $5,400,000 bridge would be built over the Richelieu River between Sorel and Tracy and another worth $3,000,000 over the same river at Noyan.

Chinese attack

PEKING (Reuters) — China today spurned the possibility of peace in South Viet Nam, branded the United States as "utterly vicious" and said the Vietnamese "have no alternative but to resist . . . until they have completely defeated them."

The blunt statements came in an "explanatory publisher's note" to the fifth volume of speeches and statements by former Russian premier Khrushchev. It appeared as a major statement in today's press.

The "note" also accused Russian leaders of aligning themselves with the U.S. over Viet Nam.

Fresh rioting

CAIRO (AP) — Several hundred Egyptians attacked the Tunisian Embassy today, denouncing President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia as a "Zionist" and "son of a dog."

Several thousand others massed outside the Arab League headquarters where the Tunisian ambassador was conferring with the league secretary-general.

The demonstrators were protesting a mob attack Tuesday on the Egyptian Embassy in Tunis and Bourguiba's recent proposals for peaceful co - existence between Israel and the Arab world.

Water pollution is our man-made monster

Second in a series on water pollution

By JOHN BENNETT
(Toronto Telegram News Service)

There is no such thing as pure water. All water is polluted.

The rain falling in a wilderness, untouched by the searing hand of man, is polluted. It has gathered in gases from the upper atmosphere and in its fall to earth has collected dust, fungus, salts and bacteria.

To plead, then, for "pure" water is to cry upon the wind. The more sensible appeal would be for pollution to be checked and put under control so we may be allowed to enjoy "usable" water of the highest possible quality.

Pollution is also a man-created monster, nourished and fed by our careless acts. It threatens our health, our progress and even our way of life.

WASTES

Where people gather in communities to share toil and living and to use the natural resources, pollution becomes a by-product of urban living.

It rains down in an unseen fallout from the skies and destroys and sullies the waters if allowed to flow untreated down the waterways.

Yet water is such a wonderful compound that in its natural state it has tremendous powers of regeneration. Its built - in purifying properties can accept a certain amount of pollution without any great loss of its quality.

In areas of small population and ample water supplies the casting of wastes into stream flows does not greatly affect the health of the stream. It purifies, cleanses and regenerates itself through natural biological workings.

DEVILS

This for many years was the simple use of disposal of human and household wastes have been swamped by a devil's brew of multicomplex chemicals and industrial effluent.

Water courses which had easily handled limited amounts of sewage couldn't cope with the added broth of fertilizers, acids, poison sprays, detergents and other noxious materials.

Some of the new pollutants, are so complex in their structure they are difficult to break down through natural regeneration. In many places these gather and have built up into a menace.

Most people are aware that when an overload of sewage is dumped into a river there comes a time when that watercourse will be just a filthy, sludge - filled sewer that stinks.

It is correct to use water courses for the disposal of sewage and this in itself is not a bad thing. It is only when we overload, that trouble starts. It is only when we allow a buildup of unprocessed organic pollution that we destroy the vital water that we must have to exist.

DISEASES

To handle wastes, a stream or river must be in good health. It must hold its own in its own chain of living matter. There must be countless creatures supported in its cycle of existence, and there must be dissolved oxygen to overcome pollutants before they smother and kill the whole chain of life within the water.

Water can carry diseases in

NEW YORK (AP) — "What does Jackie Gleason drink from his cup? asks a reader, "Is it coffee?"

This occasional Gleason-watcher at once decided that if there is coffee in Mr. G's cup, it may possibly be the worst brew in the world if one judges by the great one's reaction to an occasional sip.

Attempts were made to get a more authoritative answer. Gleason, however, was incommunicado while cutting a new record album.

"Ah, yes," said the Gleason authority at CBS. "We get many requests for this information."

"We tell them that he says it is coffee."

There is, however, an unconfirmed rumor around Miami that the beverage in the cup is champagne. This too, may be discounted, because, unless it is very sour champagne indeed, no connoisseur ever had such a violent reaction to a sip of a fine wine.

Earlier this season, NBC's Mr. Novak got a new boss when Dean Jagger, who played the school principal, retired because of poor health. Burgess Meredith moved in to the headmaster's office.

The switch has not made much difference in the tone and pace of the series although Jagger was missed.

Next season, another series will have a new co-star: ABC's Ben Casey. Sam Jaffe, the distinguished character actor whose bushy hair and nervous mannerisms became part of the many lampoons of the show, will retire Dr. Zorba, Ben's boss and chief of neurosurgery.

BLACKWOOD BID DOUBLY MISUSED
By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners

Today we have a father-son discussion of misuse of the Blackwood convention.

Oswald: "What do you think of South's four no-trump bid?"

Jim: "When I was first learning Bridge you taught me never to use Blackwood when I held a worthless doubleton in an unbid suit or in one bid by our opponents. South violated this rule and missed a cinch slam because after his partner showed one ace, South was afraid to bids six because of the chance of losing two clubs."

Oswald: "If North had shown two aces, South would have bid six but might well have missed seven. Incidentally, when he dropped the bidding at five he violated another cardinal rule of Blackwood usage which is 'When you bid Blackwood you intend to bid a slam if your partner's response indicates that your side has at least three aces'."

Jim: "That is so right. Incidentally, South had a perfect bid at his disposal after North's jump to four hearts. All he had to do was to bid five hearts."

Oswald: "Yes. This particular bid is not too well known but every good player should have it in his kit. The idea is that when your side has bid three suits and found a major suit fit a bid of five in that major asks partner to go on to the slam if he can take care of the second round of the fourth suit."

Jim: "South certainly had the ideal hand with which to use this bid. Too bad he didn't know about it since the slam was about as easy a one to make in the play as I have ever seen."

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I am a teacher; I need students." with that simple comment, violin virtuoso Jascha Heifetz issued a call for young musicians to study under his guidance.

Heifetz is a perfectionist in all things. He devoted his entire life to the violin, and no one surpassed him in artistry. In his new work as a teacher he strives for perfection on a smaller scale, but perfections nonetheless.

He has been disturbed by the progress of his classes at the University of Southern California. He feels they have been successful, but limited. That was what he wanted to talk about one afternoon at his villa atop Beverly Hills.

"I want to let students know that I am looking for outstanding talent," he said. "I know there is talent out there, but I haven't been getting it in large enough numbers. I would like to appeal to the violin teachers and professors of the country to loosen up and send me their best pupils.

"They should not be so stingy. I believe in exchange. I send them students, and I wish they would send me students. I will audition them and send them back if they do not qualify."

STANDARDS CURIOUS

The Heifetz master class, a title he is a bit uneasy about, is a curious one by academic standards.

"We don't go by the book," he explained. "I give no medals, no diplomas, no grades. Students can now get credit for the course, but that is something recent. While I do not give grades, I may flunk a student. I am a teacher; it is my duty.

"We meet twice a week, but there is no set time for the length of the class. There are six or seven in the class now, plus auditors. Each student plays with the others listening; that is how they learn. A student might play five minutes or two hours, according to how well prepared he is."

Heifetz said, some of his students have gone on to concert and orchestra work. One of his problems is that they want to move too fast.

"One semester and they want to start on concerts," he said shaking his head. "There is too much money around, too many prizes and scholarships. The students don't study enough; the greatest lack today is discipline. They must practice self-denial in order to achieve."

Discuss Quebec apple industry

RICHMOND — (Special) — Apples, their growth, production and processing, was the topic of Gilles Lasnier, director of the Apple Production Division of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Mr. Lasnier was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Richmond-Melbourne Board of Trade held Monday evening at the Belleview Golf Club. Introduced by local agronomist Jacques Martin, the speaker was thanked by Robert W. Simpson, chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

Mr. Lasnier explained production of apples in Quebec, noting five counties in which 85% to 90% of Quebec apples are grown. These are Rouville, Two Mountains (Oka), Missisquoi, Huntingdon and Shefford.

There is a possibility of developing Richmond County for apple growing.

Mr. Lasnier noted there has been a decrease in the number of trees and the government is attempting completion of the present unit.

In Quebec there are one million trees compared to two million 50 years ago. This is attributed to new systems of production. The new system averages five million bushels of apples as compared to one million bushels. For the consumer processing of these apples comes more quickly and they can buy the finished product for example in sauces, juices, etc.

Prior to the meeting, Mr. Lasnier gave a demonstration of pruning and grafting of apple trees on the property of Dr.

Mayor of Rock Forest raps annexation

ROCK FOREST — (Staff) — Rock Forest Mayor J. Wilfrid Bernier is protesting Sherbrooke's annexation moves saying that Sherbrooke cannot offer immediate water and sewer services.

The Sherbrooke city council Monday night decided to set up a committee to study annexation and showed special interest in the Bourque Boulevard sector, now within Rock Forest.

Mr. Bernier said today he received several phone calls from residents against annexation to Sherbrooke. "They don't want annexation because taxes are cheaper here," he said.

The Rock Forest municipal mill rate is 40 cents per $100 evaluation, he said.

(The Sherbrooke rate is $1.10 per $100 evaluation.)

Mayor Bernier stated that Rock Forest is undertaking a $300,000 water and sewer construction project for the Bourque Boulevard area.

"The project, to be started soon by Bosco Construction, will extend facilities to one - third of municipal residents," he said.

Mayor Bernier said that Rock Forest will provide water and sewer services to the $2 million Woolco shopping centre to be built on Bourque Boulevard.

"Thus Rock Forest is offering immediate service to the Bourque Boulevard area. A Sherbrooke alderman has said that city could not service the area for another six years," he said.

Rock Forest has no police service and has arrangements with Sherbrooke and Magog fire services.

The municipality has 3,500 residents and covers about 27 square miles, estimates Mayor Bernier.

Mayor Bernier said that the Bourque Boulevard area is, industrially and commercially, the best sector of Rock Forest.

Sherbrooke city council is interested in the land. City alderman termed the area "a very important section of land for Sherbrooke" at their Monday night meeting.

Liberal congress on Sun.

Liberal partizans from seven Eastern Townships provincial ridings will gather in Sherbrooke Sunday for the regional congress sponsored by the Eastern Townships Liberal Association.

Counties to be represented at the Congress are Brome, Compton, Richmond, Shefford, Sherbrooke, Stanstead and Wolfe.

In announcing the program for the day-long sessions, Gerard Drouin, president of the Association, said the opening meeting would be held at the St. Francois School at the corner of Galt and Bowen streets at 10 a.m.

Delegates would be assigned to one of six committees—Agriculture and forestry; industry and commerce; health and education; winter work; electoral organization and an English - language committee presided over by Glen Brown, MLA for Brome.

These committees, meeting in the morning, would prepare resolutions to be submitted at a general meeting to meet at 2 p.m. Sunday, also in St. Francois school.

The Congress will wind up with a banquet at Hotel Sherbrooke at which the chief speaker will be Labor Minister Carrier Fortin, MLA for Sherbrooke.

In addition to Mr. Fortin members of the provincial legislators expected to attend the meetings through the day are Welfare Minister Emilien Lafrance, MLA for Richmond; Georges Vaillancourt, of Stanstead, and Glen Brown, of Brome. Dr. Irenee Lapierre, president of the Liberal Federation of Quebec, is another invited guest.

These regional rallies have been organized at the suggestion of Premier Jean Lesage, Mr. Drouin explained, with the object of learning the views of the Liberal supporters on the issues of the day.

Resolutions adopted at the Congress will be submitted to the Provincial Congress being held in the fall of 1965.

City's RC school commission would abandon regional board

The Sherbrooke Catholic School Commission yesterday passed a resolution asking to withdraw from the Estrie Regional School Board.

The city has nothing to gain and a lot to lose from the regional board, said Sherbrooke commission chairman Francois Thibault. He was presenting the six-page resolution for approval at the weekly commission meeting.

The motion was vigorously opposed by commissioner Michael Marengo who is president of the Estrie regional board.

The resolution was presented by Mr. Thibault and seconded by commissioner Dr. Adrien Berube. English-Catholic commissioner William Steele supported it because it affirmed Sherbrooke's autonomy in education.

The other commissioner Conrad Cayer supported the resolution though he said he considered it more a request for information from the department of education than a demand for withdrawal.

The withdrawal request will now be sent to the department of education which will decide whether or not to allow it.

Mr. Thibault declared that Sherbrooke had complete educational facilities before the regional board was constituted, though the surrounding region did not.

Thus Sherbrooke would have to spend its money and teaching resources to help the other schools in the region.

Sherbrooke's monetary resources do not allow this, said Mr. Thibault, pointing to a recent increase in city Catholic school tax rates.

Mr. Marengo declared that this rate increase had nothing to do with the regional board. It was decided on before the regional board was created, he said.

He denied that the regional board would cost Sherbrooke extra money. Sherbrooke has a scientific evaluation system and the other school boards do not, he said. On the basis of this Sherbrooke has one-third of the region's evaluation. However when scientific evaluation is introduced throughout the region Sherbrooke evaluation will only make up 26 per cent of the total, said Mr. Marengo.

Mr. Thibault replied that he had discussed the question for three hours with the education minister last week. "He was unable to convince me that Sherbrooke would not suffer from the regional board."

"In this resolution we are undoing in 45 minutes what it has taken eight months to accomplish," declared Mr. Marengo.

The resolution asks for the formation of a regional board made up of Sherbrooke and its immediate area. This smaller regional board could include Ascot, Bromptonville, Deauville, Johnville, Lennoxville, Martinville, North Hlaley, Rock Forest, St. Elie d'Orford, St. Denis de Brompton, Stoke and Waterville.

Mr. Thibault said that if this Sherbrooke area regional board was formed, another board could be organized for the rest of the region.

"There are regional boards for areas of 40,000 or 50,000 people. Since there are 180,000 in the Estrie region there would still be enough for a regional board should the Sherbrooke area withdraw."

Mr. Steele, in declaring his support for the resolution, termed it a historic document showing Sherbrooke's autonomy. "Sherbrooke is a metropolitan area like Montreal," he said. "We don't want to chase outsiders out but do want to affirm our autonomy."

Budget not election or growth; truth lies somewhere in between

The Liberal government's new budget is neither an election budget nor a growth budget. The truth lies somewhere between the two extremes, the Sherbrooke Rotary Club was told last night.

Nicholas Takacsy, research economist at Greenshield's Ltd., Montreal, addressing the weekly Rotary meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel said that the two most important features of the budget were the personal income tax cut and the creation of a Canada Development Corporation.

Concerning the income tax cut, he felt that it had three main justifications.

One is that this was the only tax cut formula which the Federal government could introduce which would prevent the provinces from entering the vacated field.

Secondly, he said, the tax cut will offset, from January 1966 on, the compulsory contributions which individuals will have to make to the federal and Quebec pension plans.

The tax cut also retains the advantage of lower income tax rates in Canada compared to those of the United States. He said this may help to stop the drain of Canadian technical and professional men to the U.S.

"What worries me about the tax cut,' he said "is that it may overheat or generate the trend of economic inflation."

He said that, "In Canada we have now reached an unemployment rate of 3.9 per cent which is close to full employment."

"This means that several areas such as the Prairies and Ontario have full or overemployment while some areas of the Maritimes and Eastern Quebec are still the opposite."

Concerning the Canada Development Corporation he said: "I share the criticism of the development corporation in its present form, although presently it is a les frightening prjoect than it was originally conceived because of two softening elements.

"These are that private investors will be able to play a major role in its function, that private enterprises when they prove themselves deserving, will be given government funds."

Mr. Takacsy also touched on the long range economic outlook envisioned by the Economic Council of Canada.

"But let me say first," he said, "that the Economic Council of Canada acts as an advisory committee, not as a planning one. It advises the federal government through annual reports the progress that is being

Financing plans need explanation

Sherbrooke's need for a new sports centre, the cost of which is estimated at $1,100,000 in addition to the amount involved in the purchase of the Sherbrooke Exhibition property, is a matter upon which the local ratepayers will be called to decide in the near future.

The Council is fully justified in preparing plans for the project and submitting it to the taxpayers for their approval or rejection. This will be done on the basis of the information supplied to them as to the cost and need for such a centre.

But there are certain details of the financing and other proposals outlined by the mayor in his initial official statement which require clarification.

The mayor indicates that he hopes to save considerable sums in architectural and engineering fees by using plans prepared for the construction of a similar building in London, Ont.

However it is to be doubted if there can be any substantial saving in this respect. Most engineers and architects include strict provisions in their contracts that plans used for one structure cannot be used for another project elsewhere without a second fee being paid to the firm preparing the orignal plans.

And provincial law requires that architects and engineers be engaged to supervise construction work above a certain figure.

Proposed economies from the "savings bond" plan for financing the scheme also appear somewhat optimistic.

It would be rather naive to try to convince the citizens that a million-dollar bond issue could be marketted without the payment of a commission to somebody.

Even if the city sought to sell the bonds directly to the inhabitants, there would be inevitable outlays for publicity, salaries for sales personnel and other items.

Suggested interest rates also are below what the city might reasonably expect to pay.

The current issue of Quebec Saving Bonds is being sold at a five to five-and-a-half per cent coupon rate and there is no reason to believe that any large sum could be raised at a lower rate on a municipal bond issue, regardless of any fancy name that may be given it.

Hopes for popular aproval of the sports centre plan would be materially improved if it stood on its own merits rather than being accompanied by some vague hints at financing miracles.

Budget aids water pollution drive

Public interest in the new federal budget was so focussed on the matter of personal income tax reductions that many other important facets of the documents received little or no attention.

One such item is the proposal to permit corporations to charge back fifty per cent of the capital cost of water purification projects for income tax purposes.

Water pollution surveys have shown that the greatest individual contributor to the deteriorating water situation on this continent has been the dumping of industrial wastes into river and lakes, far outweighing the damage cause by failure to treat sewage.

Demands that industries take steps to eliminate the practise of dumping unprocessed waste into water-courses have been frequent. And most industrialists have accepted their responsibility in this respect.

Some have taken steps to meet the problem. One Eastern Townships paper mill spent several millions of dollars in equipment for treating its waste products and others have made smaller but substantial outlays.

Unfortunately many concerns are unable to meet the high costs out of their own resources without undermining their financial structure.

The budget provision will permit them to recover at least part of these outlays through income tax credits and should speed up the water purification campaign in all parts of Canada.

U.S. steel strike threat removed

Decision of the United Steel Workers and the major American steel producers to accept a compromise formula which would delay the steel industry strike scheduled for this weekend for a four-month period removes one of the chief dangers to the continued expansion of the North American economy.

Steel plays an important role in virtually every branch of the economy. In one form or another it enters into almost every manufactured article from sewing machine needles to interplanetary rockets. To cut off a plant's supply of steel is to enforce its closing sooner or later.

Stockpiling may delay the process for varying periods of time but few industries have the financial resources to build up the stocks required for any extensive shutdown of the steel mills.

And even if an individual firm has all the steel it needs for its own operations, very few indeed are so self-contained that they are not dependent upon outside suppliers for vital parts.

Thus a shutdown imposed upon a comparatively minor segment of an industry because it cannot obtain the particular type of steel required for its production will soon affect the entire national economy.

The agreement reached Tuesday is only a temporary stopgap but it is an indication of a softening in the attitude of the contestants that should permit the signing of a permanent agreement before the summer is out.

Students, artists and unemployed

Plan demonstrations in school

VANCOUVER (CP) — In an old green house not far from the University of British Columbia, the young people meet to plot their war for peace.

Peter Light, head of Peace House, calls it a "school for non-violence."

The young people—some university students, some artists, some unemployed "peace workers"—meet there to paint their signs and plan their demonstrations.

Four were arrested early in April for sit-down picketing in front of the United States consulate in Vancouver.

The signs they carried read Hands Off Viet Nam, and Replace War With Love.

In court, they all gave the same address: the Peace House.

Peter Light opened it Feb 1, pays $175 a month rent and gets the rent money by subletting six upstairs rooms.

IS POLITICAL ANARCHIST

He is 22, a former UBC student who describes himself as an anarchist politically.

"The question of peace crosses all political lines I don't think political parties can do the job. I agree with the aims of democracy. I'm not convinced society could be organized without some form of government.

"But I won't work for political parties and I won't vote for any of them. In Canada, I suppose the New Democratic Party is closest to my ideals, but if they got in power they would compromise."

In April, his followers were practising for a march June 4 and 5 to Comox RCAF base on Vancouver Island, where they plan a sit-down protest against nuclear arms.

Each Wednesday night, they watch movies of the horrors of atom-bombed Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The Young People at the Peace House practise up on passive resistance, sitting stubbornly, going limp all over, curling up for protection against kicks and clubs.

They read peace literature, wear boots and beards and bluejeans. Their average age, says Peter Light, is 19.

Feels article worthy of reprinting

Dear Sir:

I was wondering if it would be possible for you to enter the enclosed article, on your "letter to the editor" page?

I got it from the Cornwallis Ensign, a paper that my son has been sending me since he's been in the Navy. I couldn't help thinking as I read it, how true it was, and if more people, would read it, that there might be far fewer accidents on our highways.

I would appreciate it very much if you'd print it, as I really feel that it might help someone.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. J. Macdivitt,
Richmond, Que.

SPRING FEVER

With the approach of spring the fever to hit the road in the family flivver strikes every person and brings with it the attendant dangers of highway travel.

For some strange reason every driver feels he is the perfect driver and all others are incompetent. It comes therefore as a great blow to a person's ego to find that, after an accident he is at fault.

If monetary loss was the only aftermath this would not be overly serious, but in conjunction with accidents comes human tragedy, loss of life and permanent injury. How does one console himself when he finds that the person he put into the morgue was the father or mother of several young children who will now be without parental guidance the rest of their lives.

Accidents are brought about in most cases by one factor and that is the human behind the wheel. It is far better to be safe than sorry. Before a person throws the dice on the black asphalt table he should remember that there are only two sides on the table — PASS and DON'T PASS —

With these few thoughts in mind, I pass on to you the following:

THE FIFTH COMMANDMENT

"Thou shalt not kill." With gun or knife
'Tis sin to take another's life
'Tis also sin, you will agree,
To murder with a Mercury.
I think I would offend the Lord
To kill a fellow with a Ford.
The same applies, I think you'll say
To slaying with a Chevrolet.
'Twould prove that love to man you lack
To hit him with your Pontiac.
So drive with common sense and care
Your Tempest, Falcon, or Corvair
This instruction includes all
The foreign makes, however small.
It's sin to murder with a car,
Fiat, Rolls-Royce, or Jaguar.
Thou shalt not hot-rod, drag or peel
While sitting at thy steering Wheel
Excessive speeds thou shalt avoid
Lest thou and others be destroyed.
And when thou meetest in the night
Another car dim thy light.
Whether thou drivest night or day
The traffic safety rules obey.
Thou shalt not pass on curve or hill;
'Tis the law: "THOU SHALT NOT KILL"

Fears church terms are confused

Dear Sir:

I noticed with some dismay your report in the Thursday, April 22, 1965, edition on an allegedly Russian Orthodox monastery being built near Mansonville.

Since the first news of this monastery was published in the Record several years ago I have consulted with a number of people well informed in such matters who assure me no monastery is being built there by any of the autocephalous Orthodox churches in North America.

I am forced to believe, then, that this monastery is being operated by Roman Catholic monks of the Eastern (Byzantine) rite.

Uniats — as the Orthodox church calls former Orthodox who, at various times, have attached themselves to the Roman Catholic Holy See of Rome — are in no way attached to the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople.

They cannot, legitimately, be called Orthodox and doing so only confuses the issues.

Uniats submit themselves to Rome's authority and it is its refusal to follow their example that distinguishes the Orthodox church from them.

Needless to say, there are other factors, of a historical and theological nature, involved in this division. But the question of Papal supremacy and infallibility does remain an important, if not the most important, issue.

It follows, naturally, that these monks are not under the jurisdiction of the Orthodox patriarchate of Moscow, since they are not, apparently, Orthodox.

Even if they were, I think the manly defence of Christendom by Patriarch Alexius against the propaganda and indirect persecution levelled at it by Russia's Communist regime would suffice to make it quite clear these monks are not Communists.

I have yet to hear of members in good standing of the Russian Communist party being well known for their faithful attendance at religious services or belonging to religious orders.

There are a number of good citizens of this country who make no bones about being attached, in religious matters, to the authority of the Patriarch of Moscow.

I do wish, therefore, you would verify the attachment of these monks. If they are, in fact, attached to any of the three autocephalous Russian Orthodox groups in North America then, by all means, call them Orthodox and accept my apologies.

If they are not then you might refer to them as Eastern Rite Roman Catholic monks, or use some other suitable term.

Thank you,
Yours sincerely,
Fred J. Pattemore,
Quebec City.

Author's name omitted in error

Dear Sir:

I wish to reply to a letter printed in the editorial page of the Record, April 22 in regard to an article printed in the Annual Record number concerning the Parish Silver of Trinity Church, Frelighsburg. I noticed at once when the article came out that the credit to Dr. Millman was missing.

Now, the only reply to that is that in some way, which after such a long time I cannot remember, (as I did send this article into the Record in either 1963 or 1964), it was inadvertently omitted. No one, more than myself, can regret this omission.

Mrs. Whitcomb says, with the possible exception of a few words it is written exactly as Dr. Millman published it. Of course, it was never intended to be done any other way.

I am not a plagiarist, and have never tried to claim someone else's material as my own. It is an unfortunate, and I can only say, careless mistake on my part, and should teach, me a lesson about not checking over material that I send in a hurry to the paper. I am writing at once to explain this to Dr. Millman, who is a kind friend of the Missisquoi Historical Society. We are all aware of the many fine books he has written. Just in February, 1965 he contributed a splendid article for our Historical report, and has sent material for our Library files. I am trusting that my explanation to him will prove that I did not intend any "gross injustice" to him. Also, this will be my last contribution to any paper on historical articles, as I feel that a mistake like this cannot be easily overlooked by readers.

With sincere apologies,

Ruby G. Moore,
Cowansville.

Onslaught of dignitaries

Dick and Pal Joey: no encore, please!

By PETER WORTHINGTON

MOSCOW — (TNS) — For those who like politics (or publicity) Moscow is a tempting target. In many ways it's a built-in publicity source. For the band of roving American senators there's the whole American press corps here eager to immortalize their visit.

Moscow becomes fairly blase about the lightning visits of VIPs and not-so VIPs. So do the Western Embassies here, though they shudder slightly when they learn that another onslaught of dignitaries is due.

They come and they go, and they're quickly forgotten.

But the day the political song-and-dance act of Newfoundland's fast-stepping Joey Smallwood and tricky-toed Richard Nixon hit the Moscow stage is one that few will forget — or want to remember.

It was an act that had the Russians (and Canadian and U.S. Embassies) holding their breath.

A couple of pros took Red Square by storm.

It was the first visit to Moscow of Richard's pal Joey, and he startled everyone by knowing more about the history of the revolution than even the Intourist guide.

Of course their one-day visit was an impromptu affair. Both were in Helsinki where Nixon was the lawyer for a $50,000,000 deal whereby a Finnish firm will help construct a pulp and paper mill at Comebychance, Newfoundland.

It was understandable that everyone was interested in whether Nixon would try and see his old kitchen-debating opponent Nikita Khrushchev. The U.S. Embassy suspected he might try.

U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler specifically asked Nixon not to endanger American-Soviet relations by attempting to visit Khrushchev at his apartment near the Canadian Embassy.

It seemed inconceivable that Nixon would be so indiscreet, anyway, but the ambassador, knowing the perennial candidate, took no chances. He laid it on the line that such a gimmick would be unwise.

So, after attending the theatre that night, Nixon took his pal Joey off to meet his other pal Nikita.

Dropping into the Canadian Embassy before the assault on Khrushchev's apartment (to sign the visitor's book,) and coming in again after the venture, he annoyed Canadian diplomats for appearing to involve them in the escapade.

"We're thinking of putting a sign on the front door saying: 'Nikita lives thataway,'" said a harrassed Canadian diplomat. He and others are alarmed at how everyone seems to think the embassy knows all about Russia's famous "unperson."

Anyway, Nixon didn't get into the building to see Mr. K and had to content himself with sending in a note via the CBC's David Levy — and with getting the stunt mentioned in every newspaper in North America the next day.

It was one long political rally, with Nixon strolling slowly through the Kremlin while TV cameramen and journalists noted his every opinion.

"This is non-political," said Nixon at the outset. "I'm just a tourist here on a visit — I don't want to talk politics...

At Moscow University, Nixon debated with the vice rector about Beria, Trotsky and Stalin while the professor mentioned the Ku Klux Klan, Kennedy's assassination and the John Birch Society.

Joey Smallwood poured oil on the fiery dispute by suggesting Nixon should run for election in Russia, Khrushchev campaign in the United States.

A horrified interpreter refused to translate the remarks to impressionable students.

Then came a formal press conference at the U. S. Embassy, a cocktail party, the theatre and the sortie on Khrushchev's apartment. The whole U.S. Embassy staff is stil incoherent with indignation over what they feel was a betrayal by Nixon.

For family farm to survive higher support prices needed

OTTAWA (CP)—An appeal for higher farm support prices was made to the federal cabinet today by the Ontario Farmers Union. It said the move is essential for the survival of the family farm in Canada.

An OFU delegation presented a 30,000-signature petition marshalling facts and figures to support its theme that farmers caught in the cost-price squeeze are not getting a fair share of the national income.

It said "severe economic problems" are facing thousands of Ontario farmers.

Support prices set a minimum guaranteed amount farmers get each year for specified products. If average prices on the market fall below the support level, the government's agriculture stabilization board pays the difference on a basic amount of production.

The petition, supported by the National Farmers Union, said the higher support prices should be related to rising farm costs and domestic consumption. Deficiency payments should be calculated on a regional basis and paid quarterly instead of annually.

It also urged that powers of the stabilization board be expanded to have it serve as a master commodity marketing agency until new legislation is passed allowing the establishment of national marketing boards for major farm products.

Among other things, the board should be able to take temporary surpluses off the market—presumably by buying them—and thus protect against serious short-run price declines.

The petition and brief noted that federal expenditures on agricultural price supports fell to $57,000,000 in the 1964-65 fiscal year from $122,200,000 in the previous year.

Farm policy seemed to be designed "to provide an abundance of cheap food to consumers primarily at the expense of producers."

The presentation attacked "the myth of well-being through efficiency," arguing it could not be applied to farming.

The new dairy policy, announced last month, was criticized as failing to meet the production requirements of dairy farmers.

The OFU complained that the income protection afforded by support prices has been steadily declining since 1958 while farm costs have gone up almost 20 per cent.

Suggests more Canadian cars may bite into U.S. market

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States tariff commission suggests increased Canadian automotive production will bite into the American market under the agreement signed between the two countries.

This view contrasts with evidence given Tuesday before Congress by senior U.S. government spokesmen.

The tariff commission report was requested by the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives studying the agreement.

Commerce Secretary John Connor in his testimony Tuesday in support of the agreement said the government "anticipates that the same dollar surplus will persist" with Canada—a surplus running in excess of $500,000,000 annually in automotive trade.

The tariff commission says that by 1968 under the agreement, Canada's share of the North American market "will have grown significantly (though it will still be small) and the U.S. share will have declined commensurately."

It says—and government witnesses agreed — that Canada's share of North American production has been about four per cent annually.

The tariff commission says that conservative estimates of the continental picture indicate the Canadian slice of output will exceed six per cent by 1968.

FIGURES CONFLICT

This clashes somewhat with testimony Tuesday by Robert McNeill, deputy assistant secretary for trade policy in the commerce department, who took the government line that the U.S. expects to hold and expand its auto export trade with Canada.

McNeill forecast a growth in Canadian output by 1968 of perhaps 5.1 per cent, adding that Canadian market expansion should absorb this and "preserve our share of the past." He said this forecast had been worked out in detail.

The divergence, while small numerically, is of importance because of possibilities that opponents of the agreement with Canada can better argue that the deal favors Canada.

The agreement would abolish tariffs on most motor vehicles and the parts going into them in the factory. But this would apply only with the industry. Benefits to Canadian consumers, who pay 10 to 15 per cent more, would come after a period of adjustment.

Tense but orderly on St. Pierre-Miquelon

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre-Miquelon (CP)—A St. Pierre businessman said late Tuesday the situation on these French islands off the Newfoundland coast was tense but orderly.

He said in an interview, in which he asked that his name be withheld, that there is no need to bring in extra gendarmes. "We already have 29 gendarmes on the island and there has been nobody in jail for the past six months."

Army riot police from Paris landed here early Saturday with jeeps, trucks and weapons while Governor Jacques Herry and most of the townspeople attended a dance.

The appearance of the 65 army police has angered the 5,200 inhabitants of the islands but there were no demonstrations Tuesday. The original unrest was caused by demands of about 100 workers on a breakwater project for an increase in their $4-a-day wage.

Business and industry closed their doors in a general protest of the arrival of the French militia and shops opened only briefly Tuesday morning to permit necessary purchases.

Residents of the islands place full blame for the shutdowns and police landing, on Governor Herry who said he called the gendarmes because of "direct and indirect threats" from a small agitation party.

Mayor Joseph Lehuenan of St. Pierre said: "There was nothing to justify their coming and we don't like the way they came."

The mayor, town council, Vice-President Albert Penn of the general council and all union representatives met Tuesday to demand Governor Herry's recall to Paris. The police stood guard around the governor's mansion Tuesday night.

Election of a new president of the general council is forthcoming Sunday. President Albert Briand resigned after he rejected a committee recommendation for a 20-30 per cent increase for workers on the breakwater project.

Meanwhile, Canadian immigration officials in Halifax said they had been alerted for the landing in the Nova Scotia city today of another 67 police from Paris en route to St. Pierre.

Windfall commission

Gave both buy and sell orders

TORONTO (CP)—Viola MacMillan gave both buy and sell orders for shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. stock last summer, the Windfall royal commission was told Tuesday.

Ted Hastie, a floor trader for the brokerage firm of Moss Lawson and Co., identified various transaction slips and said in some cases Mrs. MacMillan directed both the sale and purchase of the same block of shares.

Mrs. MacMillan is the promoter of Windfall and wife of Windfall President George MacMillan.

One transaction slip showed the transfer of 3,000 Windfall shares between Golden Shaft Mines and Marjorie Oliver. The witness said Mrs. MacMillan directed the transaction.

Mrs. Oliver is a director of Windfall and Golden Shaft is controlled by Mrs. MacMillan.

Mr. Hastie was testifying before a royal commission appointed to investigate the circumstances surrounding the rise of Windfall shares to $5.60 from 56 cents and their subsequent collapse to 80 cents on the Toronto Stock Exchange last July.

Earlier, Eric Watson, head trader for Moss, Lawson, said Mrs. MacMillan had a direct telephone line to the trading floor of the Stock Exchange and was, as far as he knew, the only Moss, Lawson client with such a line.

FARNAM'S CORNER

Services at the Farnam's Corner United Church, which were resumed Easter Sunday, will continue to be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m., until further notice.

GIBE BECOMES BUSINESS

SHREWSBURY, England (CP)—Prisoners at the grim old English jail here were so bored with stitching mailbags that one suggested derisively, "We might as well be stitching golliwogs." The prison governor thought this a splendid idea, and the convicts now are turning out about 1,000 a month for a local toy factory.

Handing over of duties in Cyprus is a complicated job of rotation

By PETER BUCKLEY

KYRENIA, Cyprus (CP)—The names sound like a sampling from a world atlas or the decisive clashes in some obscure battle: Mountainside, Bellapais, Paquin's Hill, Zulu 8.

They are, in fact, key titles in the working lexicon of two Canadian Army sergeants, one of whom has just finished a six-month stint with the United Nations forces in Cyprus, the other taking over as his replacement.

Blonde, tanned Sgt. Gerald Chisholm, a 28-year-old bachelor from Halifax, has been with the Canadian Guards since 1954 and returned with them to camp at Picton, Ont. His successor is Sgt. John McDonnell, 32, a moustachioed father of two from Creighton Mines, Ont., who arrived with an advance party of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada from Victoria to take up duties with the 1,100-man Canadian contingent here.

In a rotation that began in late March and continued through much of April, the 700 members of the 1st Battalion of the Canadian Guards, 95 of the Lord Strathcona's Horse (Royal Canadians) from Calgary, and 325 officers and men who handle administrative duties for both the Canadians and the UN's Nicosia zone of operations were returned to Canada and replaced by others.

TOURS OVERLAP

In many of the jobs, the newcomer's tour overlapped his predecessor's so the change of duties could be handled as smoothly as possible. Others arrived the same day as their predecessors left and were on their own.

Chisholm and McDonnell were given nearly two weeks for a hand-over.

For the greater part of six months, Chisholm had been responsible for keeping an eye on nearly 15 square miles of mountainous coastal territory to the east of this quiet port city.

The area, rich in green orchards and farms, dotted with picturesque villages, is being increasingly fortified, particularly by Greek-Cypriots.

Chisholm's main responsibility was to give the UN high command a clear picture of the disposition of the opposing Cypriot forces, both Greek and Turkish. His information came from a small chain of observation posts—part of a wider network set up around this Eastern Mediterannean island by the UN — supplemented by mobile patrols and other tricks of the reconnaissance trade.

The two sergeants' familiarization patrols carried them by jeep in a daily swing from their base camp in the mountains three miles south of Kyrenia, through this town and then east along the coast road through the mixed Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot village of Kazaphani. Then they continued down to the easternmost of the fixed observation posts, called Zulu 8 from its position on an army grid map.

ISOLATED SPOT

Zulu 8 perches on a small knoll about 15 feet above the main road a few hundred yards from the glistening Mediterranean. It is manned by a corporal and four men,in two tents surrounded by barbed wire.

"It's one of the most isolated posts on the island," Chisholm said during one patrol. McDonnell added: "But it's a good spot for observation of troop movements and convoys. There's a sharp bend in the road where vehicles have to slow down, and there's no chance of anything racing by without being observed."

After checking with the post for any developments, the sergeants retraced their route and then cut up into the edge of the Kyrenia mountains through the historic village of Bellapais, site of a centuries-old ruined abbey with a commanding view of the seaside landscape.

Nearby is the post called Mountainside, where a non-commissioned officer and nine men are stationed in three tents. In the hills around them, Greek- and Turkish - Cypriot armed positions are within shooting distance of each other, and Mountainside has the dual role of observing troop movements and keeping the two sides apart.

Paquin's Hill is about three miles farther west, a four-man outpost atop a rocky spur that runs between St. Hilarion Castle, an 11th-century relic high in the mountains which is manned by Turkish - Cypriot fighters, and the Turkish village of Temblos at the foot of the mountain, crowded with refugees.

NAMED AFTER CANADIAN

Paquin's Hill was named, Chisholm said, for a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment from Quebec which formerly manned the post. The Canadians on the hill watch for movement of Turkish fighters down into Temblos and keep tabs on the large Greek - Cypriot armed concentrations which surround the Turkish village under an uneasy truce.

And, just as important, the Canadian presence on the hill means it can't be used by either side against the other.

Apart from touring the fixed locations every day, Chisholm said he had shown McDonnell another job that the Queen's Own sergeant will have.

"We make an occasional patrol out past Zulu 8 to the east for about 15 or 20 miles beyond," Chisholm said.

"It takes a full day. Even though there isn't much in the way of troop concentrations down there, we go through all the little towns along the way and hit all of the side roads, looking for any buildups or changes."

The territory that McDonnell will be covering is touchy. There are Turkish-Cypriots living, generally without incident, in Kyrenia and Kazaphani alongside the dominant Greek-Cypriot majorities. But given the strong feelings between the two races, the possibility of trouble is never remote.

In addition, both sides have had six months of truce in which to build up their forces and improve their training.

Device allows tank manoeuvres in utter dark

By DAVE McINTOSH

SOEST, West Germany (CP) Tanks and armored scout cars of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade now can manoeuvre over foreign terrain in fog or total darkness.

The reason is "Navaid," a revolutionary navigational system designed and developed by the Canadian Army equipment and engineering establishment Ottawa.

Lt.-Col. A. C. Smart, 44, of Ottawa designed several of the major parts of the system starting in 1957 and was in charge of the development.

"Its unique aspect is an automatic plotter which gives the position of the vehicle and its direction of travel," the signals officer said in an interview.

"This is shown on a standard map by a lighted arrow which changes direction every time the vehicle does."

GREATER FREEDOM

The army says Navaid has greatly increased the deployment of tanks and other vehicles in night operations and day exercises held in poor visibility.

In the past, ground forces have navigated by reference to landmarks, which can be pretty scarce in Arctic or desert terrain. They thus have been severely hampered at night or in conditions of fog or smoke.

The new system comprises four major components: an electrical gyro-compass which seeks true north; a computer which translates signals from the gyro-compass into heading and position; a receiver which shows the heading and gives the driver a map reference of his position; and the automatic plotter.

All components are made in Canada with the exception of the gyro-compass, which comes from the United States.

Britain and the U.S. are both expected to adopt the system.

"One of the main advantages of Navaid is that it requires no training to operate it," Col. Smart said. "Any soldier can run it."

Sutton resident enjoys trip to foreign lands

SUTTON — Among local citizens recently returned from abroad is Miss Mary Amos, leaving on a Canadian airliner on March 15, Miss Amos flew first to Portugal. From there she went on to visit Rome and Venice. Besides that, too, she enjoyed a cruise through the Mediterranean and a visit to the Holy Land.

"Some of the sights on a number of the little islands were very entertaining," recalled the traveler. "I especially remember an amusing incident in a shop kept by a woman. While I was examing her wares, in walked a big pelican. Trained to act like a floor walker, he made sure no one would do any shop lifting. When I started to pick up some dress material for a closer inspection the great bird sternly laid his broad bill across it to prevent such action. He might actually have attacked me, I think, if the shop owner hadn't checked him. One could see that shop was under really efficient protection!"

Another note from the memory diary of Miss Amos is relative to her trip through a narrow high banked canal between some Greek Islands. "There wasn't more than three feet between the boat and land on each side," said the Sutton lady, "and with such high walls of bank hemming us in,one had a very eerie sensation as though one were deep down in an underground tunnel. It was a canal without locks—and it's about a mile long! But it was a very interesting experience."

After that sea cruise across rather choppy waters of the blue Mediterranean, Miss Amos went to spend a few days at Copenhagen. "I liked it very much there," she said. "All the people were very friendly and hospitable."

She flew home to Canada from there on April 15, and then visited friends in Montreal for a few days, returning home Easter weekend.

If your beneficiary dies first, what will happen to your life insurance benefits?

When the unexpected happens, as it sometimes does, it's important to know what steps to take. That's why the competent advice of your Manufacturers Life representative is so valuable. Here are some of the practical points he'll cover.

1. Unless you originally named an alternative or contingent beneficiary, the money from your policy would be payable to your estate. This may tie up the money and subject it to creditors claims and unnecessary estate costs. In the end, it might not even go to the person you would have chosen unless your will is up to date.

2. If young children were also originally named as beneficiaries, and they are still under age, another problem arises. Unless you make special provision, the policy proceeds at your death would have to be paid into court and held until they reach their majority.

But don't wait until something like this happens. Call your Manufacturers Life representative to-day. He will review your beneficiary arrangements—and suggest changes if they are necessary. He is experienced in matters of this kind, and he offers you the kind of counsel you can rely on.

lons of syrup. The average yield from the 1,000 buckets he places on the trees is about 250 gallons.

A crop even 25 gallons below average can mean a sizeable amount of money to Eastern Townships sugar bush operators who sell their world famous product for from $5.50 to $10.00 a gallon.

Most of the syrup produced this year has been good quality, although much of the syrup produced during the last few days has been "factory syrup".

Producers of mass produced maple products often buy inferior quality for their artificial syrup and mix good and poorer quality syrup for their pure syrup mixtures.

An optimistic note came from Ways Mills farmer Stanley Holmes: if freezing nights and warm days continue, there might be another week of sugaring.

Mr. Holmes runs a sugar bush with his father and put up about 2,000 buckets this year.

He had a rather poor year this year. An average good year, according to Holmes, will yield about 300 gallons from his trees. So far this year he has collected only about 140 gallons.

WATER POLLUTION

Through the world and down through history, whole nations have been decimated through waterborne diseases. They didn't know from where the killers struck and went on using water which was polluted over and over with their own wastes.

Water can and must be reused if we are to grow and develop. The supply is fixed. There's no more to be had. We must settle our pollution problems in order to survive.

Man has used his dominance over the world and created the ill. Now he must use all his skills to effect a cure.

Teenagers steal car, caught when gas gone

Two boys, one 16 years of age and the other 15, who had stolen a car and made a trip through the Eastern Townships last weekend appeared at the Sherbrooke Social Welfare Court yesterday.

The boys were arrested by Asbestos municipal police on Monday after they abandoned their stolen car in Richmond when it ran out of gas.

The 16-year-old boy had escaped from the Boscoville reform school and met the 15-year-old Asbestos boy in Asbestos.

The older boy was sent back to Boscoville by Social Welfare Court Judge Roger Bouchard while the younger boy was sent back home as it was his first offense and Judge Bouchard felt that he should be given a chance, Gerald Bessette, Social Welfare Court clerk said.

A 16-year-old Sherbrooke boy was sent to a Montreal protection home yesterday, after he pleaded guilty to a complaint of vagrancy, his third this year.

The boy was arrested Monday night in Sherbrooke for being drunk and a public nuisance.

A 45-year-old Sherbrooke father of six appeared in the Social Welfare Court yesterday and pleaded guilty to several charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

This Friday he will be sentenced by Judge Bouchard.

The man was to appear last Friday at the Social Welfare Court but failed to do so. A warrant of arrest was issued and he was arrested in Sherbrooke yesterday morning at his job.

The man was frequently drunk, beat his children and was generally a bad example at home, Mr. Bessette said.

made towards our economic objectives.

The five basic aims of the council are, full employment which the council defines as three per cent of unemployment; rising living standards; levelling of the consumer price index, viable balance of payments and equitable distribution of rising incomes.

But the central problem which the council must solve, he said, is providing jobs for a rapidly increasing labor force.

"During the next five years we must provide jobs for one and a half million people," he said.

During 1964, 250,000 jobs were found for the rapidly increasing 20 to 25 years of age group, he said.

The following sat at the head table last night, Wilf Crowley, Herbert Paetow, Bob Jussaume who introduced the guest, president Bill Richardson, Nicholas Takascy, Art Kerridge who thanked the speaker, Hawley Griffith, Fred Stegmaier and Forrest Lord.

News flashes from around the world

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Tuesday to make a ruling on a question which has been a subject of debate among lawyers for some time.

In accepting a motion granting Bradford Smith of Toronto leave to apply an Ontario Court of Appeal decision the court is to decide whether an accused person must be present when his appeal is being heard.

Smith was convicted April 16, 1964 on a charge of housebreaking and sentenced to two years in jail. The sentence later was increased to five years.

He appealed his conviction to the Ontario Court of Appeal. It rejected his appeal July 7, 1964.

In his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada Smith said he did not know his appeal was being heard in the Ontario court. As a result he was not present nor was he represented by a lawyer.

QUEBEC (CP)—La Corporation de l'Observatoire de Quebec, an organization promoting the construction of a planetarium here, was fined $4,500 Tuesday for staging lotteries between September, 1956 and October, 1964.

Edouard Desnoyers, 43, former manager of the corporation, was fined $500, or three months in jail, for his part in the lotteries.

Both the directors and Desnoyers pleaded guilty to the charges.

Desnoyers is scheduled to appear for voluntary statement in June on a charge of stealing some $700,000 from the corporation while acting as its manager.

BOSTON (AP)—Fists, missiles and curse words were flung in the city council chamber Tuesday during a hearing on a proposed controversial $41,000,000 urban renewal project in the city's Charlestown district.

Some 30 policemen restored order after ejecting several persons.

At one stage, spectators in the balcony swarmed onto the council floor, flailing about with fists and shouting insults at proponents of the measure.

DISCUSS QUEBEC

Noel Lapierre, Craig Road, where several members looked on as he outlined the different stages of an apple tree from planting to full production.

Following the talk by Mr. Lasnier, Mr. Simpson addressed members and guests, which included farmers from the district invited for this special occasion.

Mr. Simpson stressed the importance of a Board of Trade as a community builder. The board is not just a fellowship organization, he said, but one that strives to improve the community in town and country. For the farmer, the national organization strives to better the agricultural policies and if more farmers joined their local board, then there would be better understanding among members.

Simpson then spoke on the dairy industry noting that the government has termed this agriculture year and is developing short term policies to carry over the transition period. In the future, long range policies will be developed that will assure the efficient farm operator a fair standard of living.

The federal dairy policy states a guaranteed minimum of $3.50 per hundred to manufactured milk shippers on milk domestically used. Butter, therefore, will be supported at sixty-four cents as a year ago with the consumer still reaping the benefit of butter ten cents or so lower.

Mr. Simpson outlined other important aspects regarding the work of the farmers noting how farmers can assist each other by uniting.

Mr. Simpson was thanked by president Paul Delaney. This was followed by a film on conservation and paper production. This was shown by Albert Nixon of Montreal, of Crown Zellerbach Corp.

A short meeting followed and main item on the agenda concerned completion of route 32 which is to join the new bridge being built here. The board had corresponded with Hon. B Pinard, Roads Minister and Hon. Emilien Lafrance Health and Welfare Minister. The local board is again writing the ministers regarding this route of which some four miles remains to be finished.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Habs' power-plays payoff, dump Hawks

Pot four with man advantage for 6-0 win in one-sided battle, switch to Chicago for sixth tilt

MONTREAL (CP) — For Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup hockey games really don't begin until someone is in the penalty box.

When that happens, however, they have a very simple—and eminently successful — formula:

If it's an opposing player in the box, they score goals. If it's one of their own, they check the other team into the ground.

The Habs, closing in on a record 11th Stanley Cup championship, played that theme to the hilt Tuesday night and emerged with a 6-0 triumph over Chicago Black Hawks that brought them within 60 minutes of the title.

The Montreal power play, which ranks with John Ferguson's right hand as the most devasting weapon in the playoffs, got five chances against the Hawks and produced four goals.

The Hawks also had five chances, but, like everything else they did on this particular evening, their power play efforts produced exactly nil.

Toss in two more Montreal goals and that about sums up the most one-sided contest of the current series.

The scene now switches to Chicago for game No. 6 Thursday night with Canadiens, leading 3-2 in games, needing only one more win to clinch their first cup since 1960.

The Hawks, whose last victory was in 1961, must win Thursday night at home and then repeat the process back at the Forum in a seventh-if-necessary contest Saturday.

The latter, if the opportunity arises, will involve no small achievement in a playoff year in which the home team has won 16 of the first 18 contests, counting the semi-finals.

Thursday night's game, witnessed by Prime Minister Pearson and 14,761 other fans, was a Canadiens' cakewalk.

The Habs, who dropped the third and fourth games in Chicago, poured in two power play goals in the first period, another one in the second, and a fourth, along with the two "regular" efforts, in the third.

Big Jean Beliveau, a leading contender for the Conn Smythe Trophy as the playoffs' top performer, led the way with his sixth and seventh playoff goals and a pair of assists. Other markers went to Dick Duff, Bobby Rousseau, Henri Richard and defenceman J. C. Tremblay.

Canadiens now have scored 19 power play goals during the playoffs, 11 against Toronto in their six-game semi-final and eight so far against the Hawks. On the other side of the ledger, Montreal's penalty killers, led by Tremblay and hard-working Jim Roberts, have given up only five goals while a man down.

With the teams at full strength, Canadiens have been out-scored 20 to 11.

Montreal coach Toe Blake, a changed man from his attempted post-game assault on the referee after Sunday's fifth game in Chicago, said—to the surprise of no one—that he considered the effort his team's best of the playoffs.

"But then, things always look easy when the other team is not playing," he added.

Chicago's Billy Reay said: "We weren't in the game at all."

The Canadiens out-shot the Hawks 37-23, out-skated them, out-checked them, and even out - slugged them. Chicago couldn't even win the penalty parade, taking 10 minors to 10 minors and a major for the winners.

The major went to Ferguson, the Canadiens left winger with the sturdy right hand. He let it fly several times at the head of Chicago's Eric Nesterenko, leaving the Hawk forward a bleeding and almost unconscious pile on the ice.

The shutout, Montreal's second of the finals, went to tiny Charlie Hodge, who rebounded from a shaky performance Sunday to turn in a steady effort. Few of the 23 shots fired at him rated in the dangerous category, but he had the answers for all of them.

NESTERENKO FLOORED — John Ferguson (22) of Montreal Canadiens winds up to hit Eric Nesterenko of Chicago Black Hawks during a first-period fight in Tuesday night's Stanley Cup final game in Montreal. Ferguson went after the hawk forward after being struck on the head by his stick. (CP Wirephoto)

Twins' Camilo Pascual comes up with double offence holds Indians to two hits and belts grand slam

Minnesota Twins have so much power they play one of their sluggers only once every four days.

The part-time slugger drove in five runs with a grand-slam homer and a single Tuesday night as the Twins bombed Cleveland Indians 11-1 for their seventh victory in nine starts.

Beside sparking the offence, pitcher Camilo Pascual also held the Indians to two hits while winning his second game against no defeats.

The grand slam was the second in Pascual's career and the second in the American League this season.

The right-hander climaxed a seven-run first inning with the homer, connecting against Stan Williams, who had just relieved Cleveland starter Sam McDowell. He than capped a three-run fifth inning by lashing a run-scoring single.

Pascual, 31, a 12-year veteran, is off to a rapid start in his effort to recapture the title of the AL's best right-handed pitcher he lost to Dean Chance last season.

He is also out to convince Minnesota owner Calvin Griffith the slight salary slice he took for this season was a mistake. Pascual won 15 games last season after spenging two years as a 20-game winner.

HAGGLED OVER TERMS

The Cuban, a perennial holdout, didn't agree to terms—about $46,000 worth — until March 9 this year. Originally, it was reported, Griffith had wanted him to accept a $9,000 cut in pay.

In other AL games, Los Angeles Angels nipped Detroit Tigers 4-3, Chicago White Sox walloped Boston Red Sox 10-1 and Washington Senators defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-2. Rain washed out Kansas City at New York.

The Indians' only hits off Pascual were Dick Howser's leadoff double in the first inning and Camilo Carreon's single in the eighth. Before the single, Pascual retired 21 straight batters.

Jim Piersall's alert base-running led to the Angels' victory over Detroit. Piersall forced Willie Smith at second base in the eighth, then stole second which had been left unprotected. Jim Fregosi followed with his third hit of the game, a single that scored Piersall.

Don Buford rapped four singles and drove in two Chicago runs as the White Sox took advantage of three Boston errors for five runs.

Felix Mantilla's error helped the Sox to a six-run seventh inning. Buford started it with a bunt single and closed it out by driving in a run with another single.

Washington downed Baltimore behind Frank Howard's hitting and Steve Ridzik's pitching. Howard batted in four runs, three with a first-inning homer. Ridzik rescued Washington starter Bennie Daniels in the fifth and allowed the Orioles only one hit the rest of the way.

Giants outlast Phillies in slugfest to win 14-13 on Alou's homer, Mets edged by Astros, Dodgers win 5-4

Anyone have a spare dome for sale.

Mail it, special delivery, to Horace Stoneham, president, San Francisco Giants, Candlestick Park.

And hurry, before the address changes to San Francisco Bay.

The Giants could use a top on Candlestick Park to cut off the wind-tunnel effect that led to a 29-hit slugfest Tuesday night.

They finally outlasted Philadelphia Phillies 14-13 on Matty Alou's ninth inning homer. It was the eighth homer that sailed out of the park with an assist from the wind.

Meanwhile, under the dome, Casey Stengel could have hit the roof, even though it's scientifically impossible.

The 74-year-old manager was shaking his head over New York Mets' inability to reach the .500 level for the first time in their four-year history.

ASTROS PULL IT OUT

For 8 2-3 innings, plus two strikes, Stengel and his perennial last-placers had it within their grasp. Then, suddenly Houston Astros had won 3-2, the Astrodome scoreboard was firing and Stengel was burning enough to lift off the launching pad.

Elsewhere, Frank Robinson and Tommy Harper each collected four hits in Cincinnati Reds' 3-1 triumph over Chicago Cubs, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 despite Roberto Clemente's four hits and Milwaukee Braves rode homers by Eddie Mathews and Denis Menke to a 9-5 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

The Phillies were outhit by the Giants 16-13 but hit six homers to two for San Francisco. Nevertheless, Alou's homer proved decisive when he tagged the two-out shot off Ed Roebuck.

Willie McCovey also connected for the Giants while Richie Allen hit two for Philadelphia and Johnny Callison, Clay Dalrymple, Tony Gonzales and Wes Covington one each.

LEAD 2-1

The Mets scored in the second inning on Ray McMillan's two-run single and still led 2-1 tin the ninth when Bob Aspromonte doubled off starter Jack Fisher with one out.

Al Jackson relieved and got the second out, but Stengel then switched to Dennis Ribrant. The former Hamilton junior hockey player walked Ron Brand and Eddie Kasko followed with a two-run double that stretched the Astros' winning streak to six games, the longest in the majors this season.

The Mets now are 0-4 in attempts to reach .500 this season after moving within one victory of the mark.

The Reds collected 12 hits against the Cubs, including homers by Deron Johnson and Harper.

The Dodgers were outhit 12-10 but broke a 2-2 tie with a three-run sixth inning rally that handed the Pirates their sixth straight loss.

The Braves unleashed a 13-hit attack before a Milwaukee crowd of only 1,677—the smallest in County Stadium history.

Mathews' homer, off Bob Purkey, touched off a five-run fourth inning uprising, and Menke connected an inning later.

Margie Masters having trouble getting adjusted

NEW YORK (AP)—Margie Masters, the first Australian to take a fling at the women's professional golf tour, is finding it hard to adjust to three things —American beer, American men and American caddies.

She thinks the beer and the men are terrific. The caddies, particularly in the south, leave her in a state of complete confusion.

"I can't understand a word they say," the comely Melbourne miss said Tuesday when she was introduced to the New York press.

"And I never know what's going to happen next. One of my caddies turned up with a bandage on his right hand. He said he was cut up in a knife fight. Another called from the city jail and asked if I would go his $700 bond. I got another caddy."

LIVED IN OTTAWA

Margie, former amateur champion of Australia, New Zealand and Canada, who lived in Ottawa last year, turned pro recently. She has played in four tournaments on the southern swing and finished in the money in three of them.

"I plan to give it a two-year trial," she said. "After that, I may go back home and start teaching the game."

She is conscious of the problems.

"Women are just tolerated in sports in Australia; they aren't treated nearly as well as the women in America," she explained. "For instance, no woman is allowed on the golf courses down there on weekends. At other times, they must give way to men—even if the men are beginners."

Miss Masters said: "I love American beer. It's only three per cent. Ours is a potent 12 or 14 per cent and can leave you a bit groggy. I like the American men, too. They're nice."

Icy roads, closed sections test drivers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Icy roads and three closed sections to test the speed of competitors produced heavy competition Tuesday in the cross-Canada, 4,000-mile rally.

The rally is being run for the fifth consecutive year but this is the first time in three years that competitors travelled from Montreal to Vancouver rather than west to east.

Almost a third of the competitors who started the rally have been eliminated so far because of tardiness, mechanical failures, accidents or — in one case — "unsportsmanlike conduct."

John Bird and Klaus Ross, both of Toronto, were in first place Monday night following the 700-mile route between Sudbury Ont., and Port Arthur. Driving a Volvo 10, the team has only ten penalty points compared with 90 against Paul McLennan of Toronto and John Wilson of New Dundee, Ont., driving a Mustang.

Henry Taylor of England, and Robin Edwards of Fabreville, Que., with their Ford Cortina, were in third place with 100 penalty points.

The rally is not a race. Two special sections were set up along the route to be covered Tuesday to trap any competitors who exceeded speed limits. Up to 600 penalty points can be assessed against a team which goes over the speed limit.

Temperatures later changed Tuesday, turning warm and clear as the cars reached Winnipeg — a stopping point along the leg to Regina.

One team dropped out of the start Tuesday because of a damaged suspension. This was Bill Woodward of Spenard, Alaska, a private entry driving a BMW, navigated by Leslie Wildgoose of Anchorage, Alaska. They were in 43rd position with 1,820 penalty points at the end of the second leg.

Tuesday's leg—the third longest of the event—requires competitors to cover the 1,000 mile stretch in 21 hours. They also competed in three closed sections.

In the closed sections, drivers try for a fast time to avoid penalty points. The time of the fastest car is used as a minimum time and all who fail to meet the minimum are assessed penalties according to the number of seconds by which they trailed.

Results of the closed sections were to be announced in Regina at the end of the leg.

Ewen Graham of Midnapore, Alta., and Henry Acteson of Calgary, driving a Volvo, were in fourth place with 120 points. Tied in fifth place were Eppi Weitzes of Toronto and Eric Macduff of Oakville, Ont., in their Mustang; and Blair Bunch of Montreal and Mike Kerry of Agincourt, Ont., in a Volvo.

In the manufacturers' category, the Ford Mustang team had the best score with 410 points. Volvo was second with 450 and Cheville third with 1,520 points.

There are three cars in each manufacturers' team.

Bold Lad back in good graces of fans following his victory in Derby Trail, favored for Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Bold Lad was back in the good graces of his fans today and the firm favorite to take the 91st running of the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby Saturday at Churchill Downs.

The powerfully built chestnut son of Bold Ruler from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable erased any doubt as to his fitness Tuesday when he sped through the one mile of the Derby Trial in 1:35 1-5 and won by four lengths.

There had been some doubt as to the 1964 two-year-old champion's readiness for the big test after he finished a tiring third in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct 10 days ago. But Bold Lad lost no time erasing any doubts Tuesday.

It was not so much the horses he beat as the manner in which he did it. He soundly whipped P. L. Grissom's Carpenter's Rule with the Darby Dan Farm's Bugler another six lengths back for third place in the field of five.

Trainer Jimmy Conway declared Bugler out of the Derby with the remark, "he doesn't belong in that kind of company."

Frank Childs, who saddled Tomy Lee for his 1959 Derby triumph, said Carpenter's Rule would be in Saturday's starting line-up but added: "He'll never beat Bold Lad."

9-5 ODDS LIKELY

With the probable starting field still listed at 11 or 12, Bold Lad is expected to go postward at odds of 9 to 5 or even shorter.

Lucky Debonair, Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Santa Anita Derby and Blue Grass Stakes winner, still was the subject of strong support at odds of 5 to 2.

Odds on the others ranged from 5 to 1 on Tom Rolfe, the Chesapeake and Stepping Stone winner, to write your own odds on such probable starters as Mr. Pak, Carpenter's Rule, Apple Core and Dapper Delegate.

Hail to All, a stretch charger, was rated at 8 to 1 with the front-running Flag Raiser and Native Charger, Flamingo and Florida Derby winner, 10 to 1 each and Arkansas Derby winner Swift Ruler 15 to 1. There also was mild support for Ogden Phipps' Dapper Dan, a runner who'll be coupled with Bold Lad in the betting.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Pitching — Camilo Pascual, Twins, allowed only two hits in Minnesota's 11-1 victory over Cleveland.

Batting — Camilo Pascual, Twins, drove in five runs in his own support with a grand-slam homer and a run-producing single against the Indians.

Big Jean pots two to lead attack, Nesterenko floored by Ferguson, best game yet, says Coach Blake

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens were flying with such zest Tuesday night that coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks suggested someone should take saliva tests of the Hab players to determine whether they had been given stimulants.

It was Reay's jocular way of cushioning the terrible blow Canadiens had delivered his team —a 6-0 whitewash that moved Habs to within one game of the Stanley Cup championship.

"Heck, we were just up for this one," remarked Montreal coach Toe Blake.

"I think it was the best game we played in the two playoff series," he said, referring also to his team's six-game semi-final triumph over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Four of Montreal's goals came on their lethal power play. Reay, asked how he was going to stop it for the sixth game Thursday in Chicago, replied lamely: "See me after that sixth game."

Goalie Charlie Hodge received post-game congratulations from Prime Minister Pearson, a Forum spectator.

Captain Jean Beliveau, who scored two goals, said his line didn't do anything new to contain Chicago's Scooters, Stan Mikita, Kenny Wharram and Doug Mohns.

CONTAIN MIKITA

"We're just keeping an eye on Mikita and not letting him loose," Beliveau said.

The two chief pugilists of the night, John Ferguson of the Habs and Eric Nesterenko of Chicago, were in a subdued mood. Ferguson nursed a painful charleyhorse acquired in the third period when he was spun around by Elmer Vasko of the Hawks.

Nesterenko nursed a six-stitch cut below his right eye, the result of a first period fight with Ferguson.

The scuffle began along the boards when Nesterenko's high stick caught Ferguson on the head. In an instant, Ferguson shot two hard rights at the tall Chicago right winger.

"He got me with two good ones while I wasn't looking," said Nesterenko, who slumped face down and semi-conscious after the blows, blood from the cut blotching the ice.

Reay inserted sub-goalie Dennis DeJordy into the Chicago nets for the third period, and said the move was only to give Glenn Hall "a much - needed rest." Hawks were trailing 3-0 at the time.

Claim Red China is converting island into a strategic base

BOMBAY (CP) — Commu nist China has launched a cras program to convert Hainan I land "into the most modern a purpose strategic base," say an Indian government public tion.

The Indian and Foreign R view, a fortnightly journal pul lished by the ministry of info mation, gives in its curre issue some hitherto unknow facts regarding developmen on the pearl - shaped, 35,00 square-mile island facing th Gulf of Tonkin in South China

It says Peking has built a up-to-date naval and air bas on Hainan. A massive air forc training centre has been estab lished near Haikow, the Is land's capital.

"This (Haikow) air force base has several substitute run ways in the form of nearby highways, parts of them bein of reinforced concrete. Should the major runway become un usable under bombardment in the event of war, these roads can be used as runways, even for jet bombers."

The article says Peking's military activities on Hainan Island are "ominous for the independent nations of Asia in view of recent developments in Viet Nam and Peking's declaration last month (March) that Thailand is her next target."

"One would appreciate Hai-n's importance to Peking hen it is realized that eve e farthest south Asian countr an be reached by jet plane om this island within one ur."

The article, which create uch interest in diplomatic an olitical circles in New Delhi oes on to say that "apart from eing a strategic military base, 'ainan also plays a vital role n Peking's expansionist activi ies."

The island, it adds, is being sed as a "secret base" for nfiltration into southeast Asian nd other countries. "Trusted verseas Chinese and disgrun led elements from foreign ountries from the Afro-Asian egion are trained in subversive ctivities here. They get special raining in guerrilla warfare nd various manoeuvres in ropical jungles."

Believed to be based on first-hand information reaching New Delhi, the article says Hainan oday is out of bounds even to he Chinese people. Only such adres whose loyalty to the Communist party is absolute are assigned duties on the sland.

The journal reports that since January extensive roadworks have been undertaken on the strategic island.

"According to reports, the roads are capable of taking 20-ton tanks or light aircraft. Two hundred and fifteen motorable roads now cover over 3,000 kilometres."

Haikow, the island's capital, is said to have been developed into a major industrial centre, with more than 150 factories turning out machine tools, chemicals, medium and heavy guns and allied products to support defence needs.

A writer's notes

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks middle-aged women get tired of hearing:

"Oh, I don't think it's getting very grey. Someone across the room would hardly even notice it."

"Maybe Richard Burton does carry out the garbage for Elizabeth Taylor. I wouldn't mind carrying out the garbage for her myself."

"You need more than a husband, Grace, to help you get into that girdle. You need a crowbar."

"You mean this is your husband? He looks so cute and boyish — for a moment I thought he was your son."

"Mother, it's much too young for you. Why, even I wouldn't wear a dress like that."

"Madge, what makes you think everybody will know you're over 40 just because the boss gave you your 25-year pin at the company dinner? You can always claim you started as a child laborer."

"Yeah, that's my ball and chain over there—the one with the frizzy hair."

"Of course, I'm going to get you a present for Valentine's Day, Grace. What would you rather have—a wheelchair or a broomstick?"

"Sometimes I envy you, Madge: A career of your own, and no husband or squawling brats to tie you down. And think of the retirement pension you'll get—in a few years."

"Sure I asked you to get me a blind date, Charley. But where did you pick this one out—at the old ladies' home?"

"You sure you want to go on this particular cruise, ma'am? Usually it's taken—uh—by a — uh — well, by a younger type crowd. Sometimes they can be pretty noisy."

"I carried her over the threshold when we came back from our honeymoon, but I guess on our silver anniversary I'll have to rent a bulldozer."

"Remember how jealous the boss's wife was when you first came to work here, Madge? I guess she isn't afraid any more. She even sends you a box of chocolates on your birthday?"

"Oh, is that you Grace? You oughtn't to scare a fellow like that so early in the morning. Well, what are we having for breakfast?"

17-ton collection of sheet music has much of value to be sorted out

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Bly Corning has a treasure trove he thinks will provide him with an exciting hobby for years to come—17 tons of old sheet music.

Corning bought the collection —he won't say where—three years ago. He is still in the process of sorting and cataloguing it.

For most of the three years he was secretive about the collection, but he recently donated part of it to the University of Michigan.

There's no way yet of estimating the monetary value.

Dr. Warren Joseph, head of Eastern Michigan University's music department, said he's certain it's the largest collection of its kind in private hands in this country.

The collection dates back to 1759, at least. "We've only seen about 20 per cent of it," Corning said. The latest sheets were published in the 1920s. The 47-year-old Corning, who operates a factory making machine parts, won't say where he has the collection stored or how much he paid for it. "I'd just rather not."

COLLECTING TITLES

But he becomes very articulate when talking about the collection. "There are just so many areas of interest," he said. "I'm making a collection of fun titles and songs surrounding the presidents of the United States. There are songs about the nominations, the elections . . . all the way through the death marches."

He spoke enthusiastically of the covers of some of the music, engraved by master lithographers.

"I'm sorting out a collection of Stephen Foster originals. And there are many elaborate lithograph covers which in themselves are valuable as works of graphic art."

Included are covers by Nathaniel Currier, who later became a partner in the famous Currier and Ives prints.

Corning hired Dr. Joseph as research director and with his help is picking out the material to go to the University of Michigan. That's a massive job alone. Of the 700,000 pieces of sheet music, Corning and Joseph are picking out a collection of music composed and published in Europe between 1764 and 1924, most of it in original editions.

This material contains more than half of the works of George Frederick Handel—including a complete score as used in the first performance of The Messiah in Dublin in 1742.

Damage caused by grass fires at Bishopton

BISHOPTON — Grass fires in this district have done considerable damage.

One on April 20 destroyed a garage belonging to Leo Sirois, Dudswell Junction, but was kept from other buildings nearby. On April 21 another grass fire burned the barn on the old McKenzie farm, which now belongs to J. Ketchum and G. Hebert, Montreal.

Another blaze which started from the incinerator at the St. Clement School got out of control and nearly set fire to the Ralph Gilbert place.

The quick efforts of Paul Belisle, a school bus driver, using a fire extinguisher, saved the buildings which were within inches of the wind driven fire.

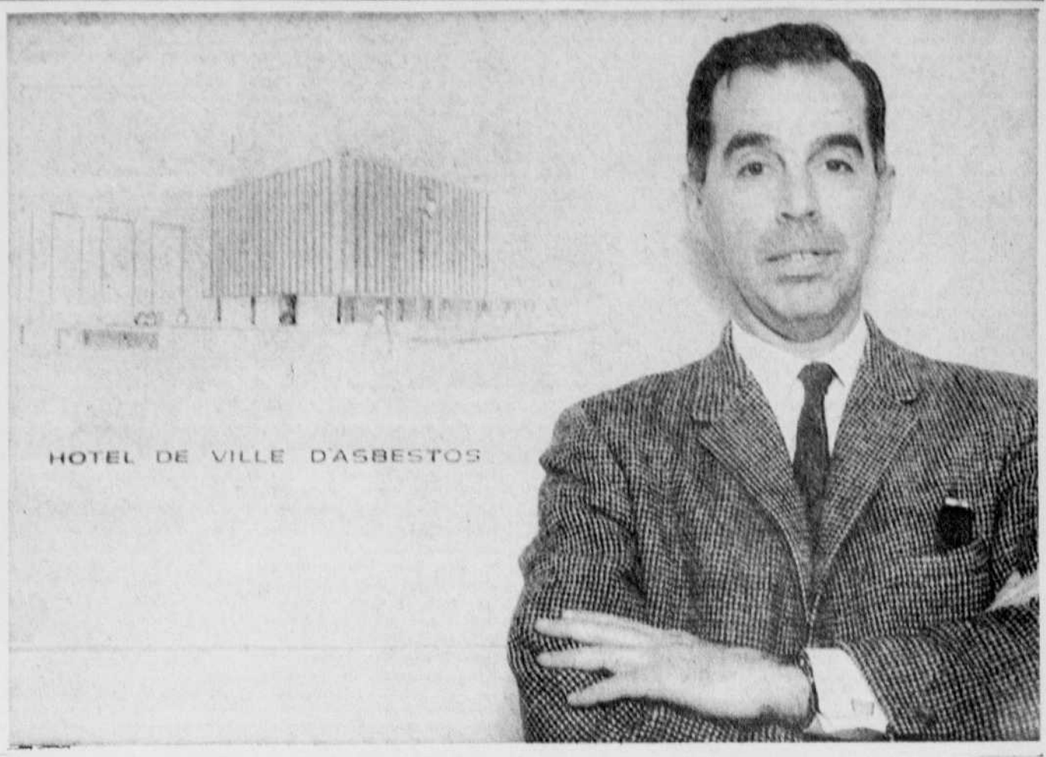
Richmond's futuristic town hall to cost half a million dollars



$450,000 Asbestos town hall Architect Philippe Demers

Modernistic town halls planned by four Townships centres

By DAVID WEBSTER
(Record staff reporter)

New city or town halls are in the offing for four major Eastern Townships centres.

The buildings range in cost from the $2,800,000 planned Sherbrooke city hall to the $450,000 Asbestos town hall to be completed by April 1966.

The city of Magog plans a $550,000 city hall, also to be completed in early 1966.

Richmond, too, plans a new town hall. The structure, to cost about $500,000, may be completed by late 1966, says Mayor George Savoie.

ASBESTOS

The Asbestos town hall will be square, 81 feet in length and width, five floors, including the basement.

The building will be located at the corner of St. Luc Boulevard and Du Roi, and will be surrounded by a 146 by 106-foot concrete square. Asbestos has a population of 11,000.

The plan for the exterior has already been approved by the town council says Asbestos Mayor J. Maurice Beauchesne. The plan for the interior may be modified, he adds.

Architects plans for the Asbestos town hall, like the Richmond one, are being drawn up by the Sherbrooke firm of Demers and Delorme.

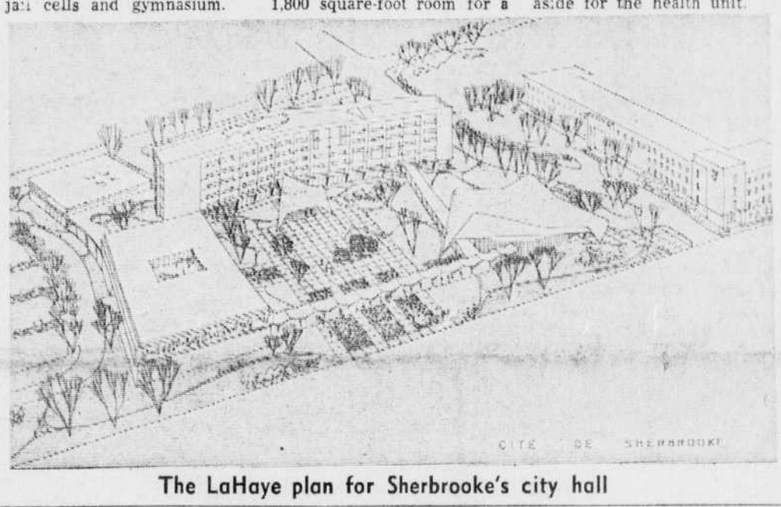
The present plans locate the police and fire department quarters in the basement of the Asbestos centre.

"At this location there are access routes to the north, the south, the east and the west in case of fire," says Mayor Beauchesne.

The plans show space in the basement for fire truck, workshop, and small cafeteria as well as police offices, jail cells and gymnasium.

The town has 14 policemen and 24 volunteer firemen, says Mayor Beauchesne.

The plans also show an 1,800 square-foot room for a municipal library, to have books in both French and English. Another 1,800-foot-square room has been set aside for the health unit.



The LaHaye plan for Sherbrooke's city hall

The ground floor is to be an entrance only with no offices.

The second floor is planned to have tax collection and building registration offices.

The third-floor plans show council chambers (to be enlarged for receptions) and police court offices.

Fourth floor plans show offices for mayor and other municipal officials, aldermen's caucus room, and social welfare and recreation association quarters.

The project will be financed with the aid of a $300,000 federal-provincial aid-to-municipalities loan, says Mayor Beauchesne. "If the project is completed by April 1, 1966 we're eligible for a 25 per cent ($75,000) rebate," he adds.

The Asbestos council decided on its model after visiting city and town halls in the Montreal area. "We considered the Pont Viau structure the best built," says Mayor Beauchesne.

The old town hall was recently sold to Canadian Johns-Manville for $140,000 to expand its open pit asbestos mine, he notes.

The old town hall was not very functional so that services were badly organized.

RICHMOND

The centre, to be completed this year, will have cultural and recreational facilities. It will include a small auditorium, a 2,500-volume library with books in French and English, quarters for the Richmond County Historical Society and an Olympic-size swimming pool.

Richmond's new town hall is to be located across the street from the civic centre.

Architects plans, also drawn up by Demers and Delorme of Sherbrooke, show the centre as a three-floor structure built along the same format as the Asbestos town hall.

The plans show a three-storey structure, surrounded by concrete patio.

The basement has space for fire station, police offices, jail cells, and municipal garage.

The first floor plans show municipal tax and registry offices, public health facilities, and municipal judge's chambers.

On the floor above are the council chamber (also serving as courtroom), judge's office and various county provincial government offices. These include an employment office, and quarters for the departments of agriculture and social welfare. Richmond has a population of 4,100.

The two civic buildings are to be located north of a planned access-road that will cross the St. Francis River.

Streets have not yet been laid out at the building sites.

MAGOG

The Magog city council will hold a public meeting tomorrow evening to approve a $195,000 loan bylaw to finance purchase of land for its new city hall.

The planned Magog city hall, like the Richmond building, is a three-floor structure with concrete plaza surrounding it.

Fire and police stations are also to be located on the premises.

Magog has a population of about 13,000.

Mayer Gerard Laurendeau declared at a recent press conference that construction could begin in early July to finish by March 31, 1966.

Proposed location for the building is the corner of Sherbrooke and Main streets.

The main floor of the city hall is to have offices for city employees while the second floor will house city council room, committee rooms, mayor's office, etc.

SHERBROOKE

A recently-released exterior plan of a proposed new Sherbrooke city hall shows a 13-storey building which would house provincial government as well as city offices.

The plan has not, as yet, been submitted to the Sherbrooke city council and the date of the building's completion is incertain.

Town planner J. C. LaHaye also submitted a town hall plan to the city when he drew up his master plan.

The plan for the newer "skyscraper" building shows concrete plaza in front of the modernly-designed building.

The plan places collection offices in the building's basement with council chamber and mayor's office on the first floor.

One portion of the building will rise another 12 storeys above this, however. The section would contain provincial and municipal government offices and would be visible from all wards of Sherbrooke.

Both city halls would be located on a plot of land bordered by King, Couture and Marquette.

Pleads for closer association between French, English papers

TORONTO (CP) — Stuart Keate, president of The Canadian Press, made a plea yesterday for an even closer association of French—and English-language newspapers in the national news association.

He forecast that if separate French- and English-language news agencies emerge in Canada, each will be weaker financially than CP and more exposed to pressure from interests outside the newspaper industry.

In his address to the annual meeting of Canada's news-gathering co-operative, Mr. Keate referred to establishment in 1952 of CP's Service in French, delivering a complete world and Canadian news report to 10 French-language dailies in New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

A study committee of French-language editors and publishers had just decided that the best way to get improved news service for French-language newspapers is to develop this existing CP service. It had already been greatly improved.

VIEW EXPRESSED

However, he said, the view continued to be expressed in some Quebec quarters that an independent French - language news agency is required to give expression to the aspirations of the French-speaking people.

"It would be wrong for me to declare flatly that this suggestion does not correspond to a general desire of the French language community in Quebec. However, it is true to say that it has not ever been formally represented to us as such.

"It is also true to say that the cost of an independent service would be very great. We know this well because of our history of problems involved in maintaining for a widespread country a Canadian agency, keeping up-to-date in methods of reporting and distributing news.

"I find myself forced to the view that if separate French- and English-language agencies emerged each would be weaker financially and each would be more exposed to the pressure of interests who regard themselves as better judges of news values than newspaper men."

COUNTS ON MEMBERS

Mr. Keate, publisher of Vancouver Sun, said CP must count on its French-language members to keep it informed of any real need for an arrangement basically different than the present in CP as regards the two Canadian communities.

"We can only work for what we understand to be the best interests of all our members whatever their language, and take steps we deem to be valid and progressive on the basis of the advice of all.

"At the same time we have to continue to provide a service of news that is as honest in dealing with Canadian problems as we can make it. This requires, as always, the help of our members of both languages . . ."

Mr. Keate said CP membership increased by two in the last year. The co-operative now has 104 daily-newspaper members, the highest figure in 43 years. There had been a steady increase since the 1940 low of 86 members.

"This is a point worth remembering," he said. "Other media delight in talking about the dying newspaper industry. T'aint true. We have gained 11 dailies in the last 10 years—five of them in British Columbia."

Glazed carrots

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Recipe makes 8 servings. Halve if desired.

2 pounds carrots
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons brown sugar

Thoroughly scrub or scrape carrots and cut in ½-inch diagonal slices (about 4 cups sliced carrots).

Boil in salted water until tender (about 15 minutes). Drain.

In a casserole, combine butter and sugar. Slip into moderate oven, 350 degrees, until butter melts. Add carrots and stir gently until all are coated with the butter and sugar.

Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 15 or 20 minutes, until glazed. Stir occasionally.

Questions readers ask

Q—When we went away two weeks ago I left a dozen eggs in the refrigerator. Are they still fresh and can I still use them?

A—As a rule, eggs are not at their best quality and flavor after a week in the refrigerator. If held too long, the thick white may thin and the yolk membrane may weaken and break when shell is opened.

Today's recipe

SWEET POTATOES HAWAIIAN

This is a delicious accompaniment for baked ham or bacon.

6 drained canned pineapple slices
2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Salt, pepper
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
Drained maraschino cherries

Arrange pineapple slices on greased pan.

To the boiled and mashed potatoes, add egg, brown sugar, and salt and pepper to taste.

Divide potatoes in six equal parts and mound a portion on each pineapple slice. Brush generously with the butter and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, until thoroughly heated and golden brown. Top each with a cherry for serving.

Group Therapy for ailing marriages

Psychiatrists at the University of Cincinnati are using the group therapy approach in helping ailing marriages.

They get four couples together with two therapists, and have found that this "togetherness" treatment has helped the couples get rid of marital discord, improve communications with their marriage partner, clarify their roles in marriage, and relax barriers raised against a constructive discussion of differences.

It seems that couples who had quit trying to communicate or whose attempts at communicating always ended in bitter quarrels began to open up and discuss their problems intelligently when they became members of a group.

Perhaps the great benefit from group therapy in marriage counseling comes from the fact that each couple soon comes to realize that their problems are not unique — that other husbands and wives have the same kind of conflicts, and the same inability to discuss their disappointment with marriage and each other without bitterness and anger.

I long ago came to the conclusion, based on letters to this column, that most unhappy husbands and wives feel set apart from others.

Mrs. A seems to feel that no other wife has to put up with a husband as inconsiderate, as selfish, or as unappreciative as hers.

Mr. B seems to feel that no other husband has a wife who is as irresponsible in money matters, or such a disorganized housekeeper, or so overindulgent a mother as his wife is.

From the viewpoint of their dissatisfaction with their mates it seems to Mrs. A and Mr. B that they were just unlucky in the marriage gamble.

But get a group of Mrs. As and Mr. Bs together. Get them started talking about marriage.

They're bound to see some similarity in their problems.

They will, perhaps, discover that men and women think differently about many things — and that a happy marriage is more often the result of adjusting to these differences than in deciding to call it quits and look for another mate.

Lineups inevitable aspect of shopping in Soviet state stores

MOSCOW (CP)—Shopping in Soviet state stores, you quickly become familiar with an important five-letter word—kassa, or cash wicket.

You have to visit the little woman at the kassa every time you make a purchase.

After a while you begin to accept the lineups with reasonable equilibrium.

Having decided what to buy the customer must pay the required amount to the cashier and get a receipt ticket.

The shopper then takes the ticket to the correct counter and gets from the clerk the article for which he has paid. Almost invariably, there is a lineup here too.

If the purchase is sold by weight you may have to return to the cashier to pay more money. If your purchases are from different counters you must obtain individual tickets.

In the bread stores, you can choose from a variety of black and white breads. Sometimes you can get doughnut-shaped rings of white bread covered with poppy seeds, or large white buns.

Often a raisin loaf covered with a peanut mixture and small raisin buns with thin icing on top are on sale.

In the fruit and vegetable stores the offering of fresh items is seasonal. Last June I could buy oranges at the equivalent of $1.68 a kilogram—five or six oranges, depending on size—but from July to December I didn't see an orange for sale in any store.

During the fine weather, cases of fruits or vegetables are piled near a small stall or table outside the store. There a clerk serves the public.

Watermelons are stacked up in large metal cages standing on the sidewalk, and sold from there. When the clerk is off duty the cage is locked.

I got an unsealed box of mixed vegetables to try—egg plants, green peppers, green beans, peas, and tomatoes grown in Bulgaria. I used the vegetables to make soup.

BUTTER IS GRADED

They have a fish tank at our local meat store. Having paid at the kassa, customers leave the store with fresh flipping fish.

We also have a local store that specializes in partially prepared foods. You can buy stuffed beets or peppers, pieces of chicken or meat with a potato or cracker coating, cooked chickens and salads.

At our local dairy store there is margarine or butter in packages but to be sure it's fresh you can also buy in bulk. They usually have three different slabs of butter—first grade at $4.32 a kilo or $1.95 a pound; another at $4.20 a kilo; and a third type, chocolate butter, at about $4.08.

I've watched the clerks prepare a new slab for sale. The slab is about a two-foot cube. A long knife is used to skim a thin layer off the cube. Then two girls, using wire, cut the cube down and across in several layers.

The clerk uses a long knife to cut off the required amounts for customers.

In the state stores, unlike the market place, you receive many of your purchases wrapped or in paper bags. Dairy and meat products are wrapped.

BONES REMOVED

Last summer and fall I ordered meat from G.U.M., Moscow's largest department store, and it was delivered to our apartment.

We received pork chops without bones; good in casseroles—40 cents each.

Beefsteaks are squares of meat without bone or fat—45 cents each.

Spring chickens arrived with the heads and feet intact and only partly drawn. The price averaged about $2.50.

Precautions are given for firecrackers

TORONTO (CP) — Almost every Firecracker Day leaves in its wake a scattering of burns, fires and occasionally death. Few accidents are caused by anything more than carelessness or misguided pranks.

A list of mishaps compiled one year by the Ontario Safety League included a $250,000 fire in a rail shed which came within inches of touching off a boxcar load of dynamite. Firecrackers had been stuffed around the door of the shed.

A four-year-old boy died of burns after firecracker powder saturated his clothes. Another four-year-old lost an eye because an older child took a hand-grip off a bicycle, stuffed firecrackers in it and set it off, a fragment of the grip lodging in the lad's eye.

Canadians set off an estimated 250,000,000 firecrackers a year, mostly on Victoria Day (May 24 this year) though Halloween is a popular time in British Columbia and Guy Fawkes' Day (Nov. 5) the occasion in Newfoundland.

LAWS VARY

Regulations of sale and use vary from community to community for, although they are classified as explosives under the Canada Explosives Act, there is no provincial legislation governing sale.

Some municipalities have by-laws which do that, though they are difficult to enforce. If you want to have a family or neighborhood fireworks display for Victoria Day, check with your police or fire department for local regulations.

Then there are some precautions that will help assure that the chorus of oohs and aahs won't turn to tears.

Whether you mean to or not, you will probably attract every child in the area when you start. You really should be stern about keeping them outside a designated area around your launch pad. And young children, especially, should not be allowed to help set off fireworks.

Keep a bucket of water handy, because many of the annual injuries are caused by fireworks that appear to be dead. If a firework does not explode, soak it thoroughly in water before anyone touches it.

SPARKLERS BURN HOT

No fireworks except sparklers are meant to be held in the hand after they're lighted. Even the sparkler burns at about 1650 degrees and can start a fire if it is thrown away carelessly.

Your firing area must be clear of overhead obstructions—trees, wires, rooftops.

SEVERAL CAUSES KNOWN FOR CURVATURE OF SPINE

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q — What causes curvature of the spine? Would a person who had this be bedridden?

A — Curvature of the spine may be lateral (as seen from the back this would look like a tall S or C) which is called scoliosis, swaying back (lordosis) or a forward curvature (humpback or kyphosis). These deformities may be caused by a disease or weakness of the muscles, pulling the spine in a given direction as occurs in such diseases as poliomyelitis or muscular dystrophy. Or it may be a developemental defect due to poor posture or the cause may be undetermined.

Scoliosis also occurs in persons who, for one reason or another, have one leg that is longer than the other. The degree of curvature may be mild or severe but in no case would the victim be bedridden because of the curvature.

Q—I am 30 and have been permanently deferred from the draft because of scoliosis to the right in the thoracic spine. Can it be corrected?

A — You have a curving of your spine to the right in the chest area. Some persons with this deformity carry one shoulder a little higher than the other. The condition usually develops before adolescence, but, when it is slight, it goes unnoticed until a chest X-ray is taken. It produces no symptoms but such a back is usually weaker than a normal back and that is the reason for rejection by the armed forces.

When the condition is discovered before full growth is attained, braces and corrective exercises may be used but the results are not impressive. Surgical correction and the application of a plaster cast are required if the degree of deformity seems to be increasing but in anyone who has attained full growth treatment is not advisable.

Q—Is a severe nervous illness the same as a mental illness? If not, in which category does schizophrenia belong?

A — They are not the same. Examples off severe nervous illness include such diseases as poliomyelitis, multiple sclerosis, brain hemorrhage (stroke), brain and spinal cord tumors, beri beri and pellagra (two vitamin deficiency diseases), some forms of epilepsy, brain damage due to lead, chronic alcoholism and other poisonings.

Schizophrenia (split personality) is a mental disease and takes various forms. The cause is unknown and it is difficult to cure.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Sometimes new mothers concentrate so hard on the technicalities of baby care they forget to enjoy their babies. Your delight in your baby is one of the great golden gifts you can give. The baby who is talked to (and laughed with) lovingly, develops security and sociability. The baby who is played with happily gains confidence early and learns invaluable lessons in co-operation.

•

Sipping-time specials. The five delicious Gerber Juices, of course! I know you mothers usually think in terms of orange juice for baby's vitamin C. And Gerber Orange Juice is an excellent natural source of this vitamin. But isn't it reassuring to know that Gerber Apple Juice and all the juice combinations have vitamin C added, to give your baby the same amount of this important vitamin as Gerber Orange Juice. The refreshing list of mild, pleasing flavours also includes Orange-Apple, Orange-Banana and Orange-Pineapple Drink—a delectable variety for baby to enjoy at "sipping-time."

Golden rules for baby care. Book rules are fine as guides but all rules do not fit all babies and any rule is only as good as its flexibility. Guides to good mothering: heed your doctor and your common sense and let your heart take the lead. Happy is the baby whose mother makes adjustments for his (or her) individuality.

•

Growth patterns. Your baby grows much faster the first year than the next few put together. That's why he needs protein a-plenty to help that growth along! The good Gerber Strained Meats are excellent dietary sources of protein, low in fat, ever so easy to digest. Points to remember:

- Gerber Meats are cooked by an exclusive process which preserves the utmost in nutritive values; insures a smooth moist texture.
- They now come in new slope-shoulder glass jars for easy spooning and convenient refrigeration of unused portions. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Landerbaugh, Bethlehem, N.H., were guests over the weekend of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jackson, Pine Street.

LAZY SPIDER SUCCEEDS

A species of Malayan spider catches flies without making a web. The creature's yellow body and thin legs look like an enticing flower.

A YEAR LATER — Mrs. Dora Fronezak is shown praying in a Chicago church on Mother's Day last year for the return of her infant son, Paul Joseph, who was abducted from her in a hospital a year ago yesterday. Mrs. Fronezak was feeding her 37-hour-old son when a middle-aged woman masqueraded as a nurse took him from her. Chicago police continue searching for the child after having interviewed more than 40,000 persons. Mrs. Fronezak has said, "I believe that God will return Paul some day."

A new resident, Mrs. G White, was welcomed.

Another 49 pounds of good used clothing has been sent.

Dixville Home Notes

A combined Easter and birthday party was held at Ginette Roy School on April 15 when three birthdays were celebrated: George Rosenberg, Gaeton Robert and Robert Beatty. The children enjoyed coloring and decorating eggs after which refreshments were served, including three birthday cakes. Each child received a basket filled with candy and a balloon.

A Good Friday service was held in the chapel, Dixville Baptist Church; The service was opened by Mr. Visser. Shirley Aikens and Herbert Cooperman read the story of the crucifixion. John Nangreaves recited a verse from the Scriptures. Several children's hymns were sung, with all the children from the Home participating.

Rev. Mr. Gibson addressed the children.

The four children of Mrs. Janet Visser, Stanhope, sang, There is a Melody of Love.

At the close the teachers were invited to the Home for coffee and refreshments.

Mr. John Visser, superintendent of the Dixville Home Inc., wishes to express his sincere thanks to all individuals, organizations, schools, churches and business who, during the past seven years, have supported the Dixville Home.

These past years were years of building and organizing a village type of institution, where over 100 retarded children live and receive training.

Without the help of all the kind people in the Townships, the province of Quebec and parts of Ontario, it would have been impossible to accomplish so much.

Ginette Roy School will close April 21 for holidays, and will re-open, May 3.

Getting summer job for students may depend on faculty; arts lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Engineering, science and commerce students may not have to look far, but other Canadian university undergraduates who depend on summer job income for tuition costs may be in trouble this year.

"Even with the improvement in the Canadian economy, arts students will have a difficult time," says William Thomson, director of the National Employment Service.

"Nothing in Canada is growing as fast as university enrolment, and there is a year-round shortage of unskilled and semi-skilled jobs where they try to find employment. This is why we're all in favor of year-round universities."

Mr. Thompson says there are jobs available in the agricultural field, especially at harvest time, "but most students won't consider these."

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed that while summer job prospects vary from province to province, in every case it is students who already have acquired basic skills who are in demand.

Third-year students in engineering, science and commerce are prime prospects for employers with an eye to future staff needs who take students for on-the-job training and hope to hire them when they graduate.

But for co-eds and arts students the outlook is not bright and university placement officers in Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island warn that conditions will not improve.

TYPING HELPS

Girls with shorthand and typing can count on office jobs, but others have to rely on resorts. Construction work is the best bet for men, but here again engineering students get first call.

Colin Dubell of McGill University's student placement office in Montreal said the problem is bad now and will become "appalling" during the next four or five years.

He said the emphasis on increasing university enrolment—it has doubled in the last nine years—has not been accompanied by a corresponding rise in job opportunities. "If this acceleration continues we can look forward to a bleak future for summer employment."

M. S. Anfossi, manager of an NES office in Montreal, reported 1,000 job vacancies in mid-April, with about 35,000 students in the area. Between 5,000 and 6,000 students were placed in jobs last year, but half the students looking for work were not successful.

He said one-third of job vacancies are for engineering students, with others mainly for office clerks, lab assistants and sales personnel.

Miss M. R. Saindon of the University of Montreal placement office reported "more openings this year than ever before," but said greatest demand is for applied and pure science students, who could earn up to $450 a month. Students in general work could expect $240 to $385 a month.

SOME TRY EUROPE

University placement officials in Ontario said students in general courses usually are considered unskilled labor and are confined to "blue collar" or manual work. Then, because their employment is temporary, they are less desirable to both labor unions and management. Best bet was in construction work and industry where hourly rates ranged from $1.50 to $2.50.

Students in professional or specialist courses have the best chance of obtaining jobs within their fields, often as an integral part of their courses.

Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., reported an increasing number of students looking to Europe for summer employment.

The same job shortage also was reported in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island where officials attributed it to increasing enrolment that had not been matched by industrial expansion. Third-year students get the pick of the jobs commanding salaries above $300 a month with firms recruiting summer replacements with an eye to permanent employees next year.

But the NES in Halifax said many first-year students head for Ontario and Quebec right after exams on a gamble that

WORK ON ROADS

A spokesman for the placement service at Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld., said 75 to 80 per cent of students have been placed in the last four years. Prospects this year were good with a heavy road-building and government works program this summer.

Monthly salaries range from $200-$250 for first-year students to $375-$400 for those in their third year.

University of New Brunswick called the job situation the best in six years, with a "decided upswing" for students one or two years away from graduation. Again, heaviest demand is for chemical engineering students, with other engineering fields, geology and forestry close behind. Pay ranges to $415 for third-year science students, with arts undergraduates about $25 lower.

Manitoba officials reported increasing demand for engineering survey people and math, science and commerce students. An increase in summer resort jobs was attributed to a three-year cycle caused by students graduating after returning to the same summer jobs for three years.

DEMAND STEADY

The University of Saskatchewan placement officer has a steady demand for students, especially those nearing graduation, as industries are coupling an early recruiting program with summer training courses.

John Lemay, NES officer at the University of Alberta, said "indications are we'll do better than in recent years." The Athabasca oil sands development at Fort McMurray, Alta., is one of the major reasons. Almost all construction and engineering companies have a real need for student help, he said.

Last year, 2,500 students were placed and "we couldn't find many students who were still looking for jobs after June." He expects an increase of 15 to 25 per cent this year, with 2,500 students applying for placement by mid-April.

But here again students with technical training, accounting and computing backgrounds will get first call.

It's the same story in British Columbia where the majority of jobs are in forestry or highway work and pay goes up to $400 a month, $25 more than last year.

Miles Hacking, student employment officer at UBC, said applications were down this year because "many students have found jobs on their own."

He said about 6,000 students—half of the university's undergraduate enrolment—had jobs last year. Students in their first or second year had the hardest time as employers prefer persons with previous work records.

Churches hold Easter services at Scotstown

SCOTSTOWN — Easter Sunday the communion service at St. Alban's Anglican Church was conducted by Rev. Garth Morrill, Ayer's Cliff and Rev. Gordon Peabody, Lennoxville. The service was well attended by members and friends from out-of-town.

Altar boys were Barry Hall and Leland Dougherty. Flowers on the organ were in memory of the late Fred C. Goodin, placed there by his family. Several other potted lilies were given by friends.

Easter hymns were rendered by the choir, with Mrs. Walter MacKenzie as organist.

Consumer controls packaging due to his purchasing power

ASBESTOS—The annual meeting of the Asbestos - Danville branch of the Consumers Association of Canada was held at the Golf and Country Club, on April 21.

The guest speaker was W. H. Morton, sales manager, E.S. and A. Robinson (Canada) Ltd., manufacturers of flexible packaging materials.

Mr. Morton stated that packaging is a vital part of Canada's economy and that the consumer, actually has control over the type of packaging, due to his purchasing power.

He mentioned several requirements of good packaging, such as easy handling, cost factor, marketing effect and needs of the consumer. Mr. Morton said that it is not always possible to include all these requirements due to cost, but that there is usually a compromise.

He displayed several samples of convenient packaging that are in growing demand and said that consumer groups could help the food manufacturer by letting them know how their goods are accepted.

A lively question and answer period followed which proved very informative .

Following the various reports, Mrs. V. Lindsay, of the Provincial Executive board, gave an encouraging account of the progress being made, regarding the water and sewerage problems in Danville.

The chairman urged the members to read the article in the March issue of Consumer Reports, Truth in Packaging — a tale for our times. There is cause for alarm because of the general complacency of the consumer.

The following slate of officers was presented: President, Mrs. A. Day; first vice - president, Mrs. D. Stemp; second vice-president, Mrs. F. Champoux; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Kirstein; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. Stevens; treasurer, Mrs. J. R. Lunan; program conveners, Mrs. D. Genn and Mrs. L. Imbeau; membership Asbestos, Mrs. K. Conn; Danville, Mrs. E. L. Gilbert.

This Junior Chamber of Commerce meets regularly behind prison walls

By WALTER HAYES

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—The Bridgeview Jaycees meet regularly behind prison walls.

It is not a matter of choice for the 24 members of the group. They are prisoners in the British Columbia penitentiary here.

The Bridgeview Jaycees recently became the first charter unit of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to be formed in a Canadian prison.

"The only limitations on the activities of the group are those imposed by the prison walls," says Alf Dunn, president of the New Westminster Jaycees who were instrumental in forming the group.

"Their social affairs are limited of course, but there are few limitations on their activities and projects."

He said the Bridgeview Jaycees, formed in January, engage in the same activities as Jaycees outside prison — public speaking, chairmanship and parliamentary procedure courses.

They are considering adopting an orphan, repairing broken toys for Christmas distribution and are currently organizing a blood drive within the prison.

Where Jaycees outside the prison engage in safety campaigns on the highway and in the home, the Bridgeview Jaycees are planning a safety campaign for the prison machine shop, said Mr. Dunn.

"If given the chance to develop skills in speaking and business practices, many of these young men can return to society with a greater chance of rehabilitation."

PAY FOR PRIVILEGE

Mr. Dunn said the official reaction at the maximum security prison has been "100-percent favorable." Prison officials have already seen results showing in the constructive attitude taken by many men in the group.

"I don't know whether it will work out, but I'm all for it," said Warden John Maloney.

"We are very selective in our membership. Prisoners must benefit from the public speaking and various courses and not by the types who would use them to further their criminal careers.

"We are not interested in turning out bigger and better con men."

Warden Moloney said prisoners make sacrifices to join the group.

"They must cough up five cents a week for their dues. This doesn't sound like much, but it is when you have only 75 cents a week for spending money. That five cents means a pack of tobacco."

Mr. Dunn said membership in the group will be limited to between 30 and 35.

"It's too difficult to keep a large group active. With a group of between 30 and 35, everyone has an opportunity to participate in activities."

The Bridgeview Jaycees are affiliated with the Jaycee movement in British Columbia and Canada.

While it falls within the boundaries of New Westminster, it will operate independently.

However, the New Westminster Jaycees have formed a permanent liaison committee to keep in touch with the group and provide instructors for public speaking and other courses.

At the close of the meeting. Junior members served a salad lunch to some 30 members.
