150TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION — St. George's Anglican Church in Lennoxville will be the site Sunday of a celebration service commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Mission by Rt. Rev. Jacob Mountain.

St. George's to celebrate 150th year

LENNOXVILLE — In 1822 the first bishop of the Diocese of Quebec, Rt. Rev. Jacob Mountain, founded the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Mission, which extended north as far as Melbourne and south to include Compton. The contemporary descendant of that mission, St. George's Anglican Church, is this year celebrating the 150th anniversary of the event.

The first church in the mission was called St. James' and was built in Lennoxville, adjacent to the property where the Elmwood Inn now stands, near the junction of Haskell Hill Road and Queen Street. The land for the church was the gift of William Hunting and Ezekiel Elliott. The terms of the gift stipulated that the land was to be "the site of a church and parsonage, and a burial ground for all denominations of Christians and sheds for the congregation's carriages."

The church was a frame building 51 feet long and 40 feet wide and was described as "a handsome structure erected for the people of Ascot." In 1833 Rev. Lucius Doolittle, fourth incumbent of the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Mission, built for his home and parsonage the house known today as the Elmwood Inn. The records of the parish refer to Elmwood as "the Parsonage."

In 1844 the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville Mission was dissolved and Sherbrooke came under the charge of Rev. W.W. Wait. Rev. Doolittle retained the Parish of Lennoxville.

By 1845 the wooden church of St. James' was in need of repair. A meeting of the inhabitants of Lennoxville and the vicinity decided to build a new brick church to the north of the old site, as the village was growing in that direction. The name of the parish was now changed to St. George's, although no reason was given for this change. It has been suggested that it was done to honor the third Bishop of Quebec, Rt. Rev. George Jehoshaphat Mountain. In 1864 the present rectory was also completed.

SERVES 45 YEARS
Rev. Canon Archibald Campbell Scarth came to the parish as assistant to Rev. Doolittle in 1859. On the death of Rev. Doolittle in 1862 Canon Scarth became rector of St. George's and faithfully served the parish until his death in 1904, a period of 45 years. Until his successor, Rev. and later

Archdeacon R.W.E. Wright, was appointed, services were taken at St. George's by Rev. J.P. Whitney, principal of Bishop's College, and Rev. Dr. Allnatt, dean of Divinity in that institution.

The services rendered to the parish by these two gentlemen may serve to underline the close connection that has always existed among St. George's, Bishop's College and Bishop's College School. Rev. Doolittle was a co-founder with Bishop Mountain of the College in 1845. He had already founded Bishop's College School in 1837. For eight years Rev. Doolittle was bursar of the College and an important voice in its administration.

In his turn Canon Scarth also served both parish and college by holding the position of professor of ecclesiastical history. Dr. Jasper Hurme Nicolls, first principal of Bishop's College, was an interested and deeply sympathetic supporter of the parish where for 32 years he gave freely of his services when any emergency arose.

Rev. Joseph Henry Thompson, Harrold Professor of Divinity, was assistant minister to Canon Scarth in 1878 while Professor Edward Chapman, headmaster of Bishop's College School and later professor of classics at Bishop's College, was a faithful member of the parish church and warden for several years. His minutes of parish meetings are a model of lucidity and clarity of expression.

Although Bishop's College built its own chapel in 1853 for students, schoolboys and the staff, the minutes of St. George's continued to list the names of many who retained their allegiance to the parish church. With such a close connection among the parish, the college and the school it was hardly surprising that the third rector should be a graduate of the college and a one-time master at the school.

FAMILIAR WITH AREA

Archdeacon Wright came to the parish in 1905 and was its rector for 25 years. He had married the daughter of a local family, Sophie Mathewson of The Grange and, after serving his apprenticeship in the Diocese of Ontario, he subsequently served the parishes in Fitch Bay, Magog and Quebec City.

During the 25 years of his ministry, Archdeacon Wright was to initiate and bring to fruition many changes and improvements. These included the establishment of the Boys' Choir, the installation of a new organ and the building of a new chancel. He gave special attention to the Sunday School, and older members of the parish still recall the extreme pleasure which they felt on occasions when he took over a period of instruction.

He combined nicely in his person the sacred and the secular. He was Archdeacon Wright in his public life and Bob Wright on social occasions. As parish priest and chairman of the school board he promoted the interests of both these areas of endeavor. He retired in 1930 and was succeeded by Rev. and later Archdeacon Albert Jones, who came to Lennoxville from the parish of Danville.

Archdeacon Jones was a good example of those priests who were trained for overseas ministry by St. Augustine's College in Canterbury. He had been so anxious to shoulder parish and ministerial responsibilities that he did not have time to complete his studies for a Durham University BA. Members of the faculty of Bishop's University will remember the dignified humility with which he took his seat at lectures among students one-third of his age and completed the requirements for his degree.

He was an intellectual and brought to the pulpit of St. George's a standard of preaching rarely found outside the confines of metropolitan churches and university chapels. He too did much for the Sunday School, especially for some of the older teenage youths. To the sick he gave much and no one appreciated more the value of friendship.

GUIDES PASTORAL INSTRUCTION
When he left Lennoxville it was to guide a program of pastoral instruction for older men anxious to enter the church at Huron College. In this work he found great satisfaction and happiness.

His successor in 1957, Rev. Timothy J. Matthews, now Lord Bishop of Quebec, brought to the parish unusual talents and capacities. He descends from a long line of English country clergy, one of those clerical families that are the aristocracy of the English church establishment and have ministered for generations to countless village

MONTREAL (CP) — The political orientation of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, which led to creation of a break-away group in recent weeks, is expected to get rough treatment at next week's general convention of the labor federation.

While the CNTU leadership tries to still growing uneasiness among rank-and-file members, its convention will discuss a working document that clearly plots a socialist orientation in political action.

The document, considered by many as an underlying reason for current uneasiness and branded by some as Marxist, was endorsed by the CNTU's governing council in October, 1971. It will be voted on at the seven-day Quebec City convention starting Sunday.

Referred to as the CNTU manifesto, the pre-convention paper, Ne Comptons Que sur nos Propres Moyens—Let's Rely on our Own Means—favors a socialist system under which Quebec workers control and own their economy. It is an extension of CNTU President Marcel Pepin's call for a "second front" at the labor federation's 1968 annual convention.

At the time, Mr. Pepin recommended that the 235,000-member federation go beyond the "first front"—bargaining for collective agreements—and participate in more direct political and social actions.

That's when uneasiness within a more moderate faction began growing in the labor body. It broke wide open last month when three members of the five-man CNTU executive decided to break away and form a new labor federation.

The dissident executives—Paul-Emile Dalpe, Jacques Dion and Amedee Daigle—were later suspended and replaced by three men who support Mr. Pepin's call for more political action. The dissidents have scheduled a founding convention for their organization this weekend, on the eve of the CNTU meeting.

They have said they expect about 45,000 CNTU members to join the new group at the outset with many more to follow. Several groups within the CNTU have already said they will affiliate themselves with the new labor body.

The 1971 document, presented in four parts, tries to explain in detail why Quebec can no longer survive under the present economic system and what CNTU members can do to change this system.

The first part of the document is an in-depth analysis of the means of production in the Quebec economy and its consequence on the industrial structure.

HITS CAPITALISM

It bears down heavily on the capitalist system which "divides the world into two classes opposed to each other; the owning class and the working class."

"Although the owning class is a minority," the document says, "it dominates the working class... forced to sell its labor to the owning class in order to live."

The manifesto tries to show that the American capitalist system plays the leading role in dominating Quebecers at all levels of the province's economic structure.

The second part of the document deals with the "mistaken illusion" that replacing foreign economic control with a Quebec form of domination—Quebec economic independence—will solve the problem.

"Replacing foreign economic domination by a Quebec form of domination," it says, "is not the solution to our collective problems."

A solution to these problems is presented in the third section in which Quebec workers are told the only way their collective problems can be solved is by controlling their own means of production.

Quebec workers know they cannot count on national capitalists or on a government at the service of capitalists or the imperialists. "It is the workers who pay for all the defects of capitalism—unemployment, inflation, work insecurity, lack of housing."

"An economy dominated by the workers could only be socialist."

Council hostile to hostels

By LEWIS HARRIS

SHERBROOKE — In a strange twist of policy, Sherbrooke city council last night stymied plans for the opening of a youth hostel in Sherbrooke this summer.

Several months ago, council approved a request from the Sherbrooke YMCA that a youth hostel be operated again this summer by a group of students belonging to the Y. Last summer a group of Y students successfully ran a youth hostel on White Street.

But last night, a spokesman for another group of students made a similar request to council for authorization to run a youth hostel in Sherbrooke. Since youth hostels are subsidized by the federal government, council thought it wise to grant permission to run a youth hostel only to the group receiving the federal subsidy.

To put the two competing youth hostel groups on equal footing, council rescinded an earlier resolution promising the White Street building to the Y group. The group receiving the federal subsidy would be offered the building many councillors said.

Though the resolution rescinding the promise of the White Street building was passed, the next resolution, which would have made the building available to the group winning the federal subsidy, lost by a narrow 5-4 count.

In effect, council not only rescinded permission given several months ago to the Y students to run a youth hostel, but denied both groups of hostel organizers the opportunity to run a youth hostel in Sherbrooke this summer.

GAPES IN DISBELIEF

Daniel Toussaint, spokesman for a group called Guysmo Youth Hostel, stood gaping in disbelief following council's decision.

A slim possibility remains that a hostel will be run, however. While passing a resolution allowing Sherbrooke Boy Scouts to use part of the Lyon farm as a summer headquarters, councillor Romeo Bergeron suggested that some way could perhaps be found for both youth hostel operators and Scouts to use the same quarters.

"They aren't the same type of youths," councillor Tony Pinard explained in reference to his earlier opposition to allowing the youth hostel program to find a home in Sherbrooke.

"All youths are the same," councillor Jacques O'Bready shot back. The debate continues.

The city of Sherbrooke approved a quarter-page, $50 advertisement in the program of the upcoming Festival Lennoxville production. The advertisement was approved along with all other provisions in the treasurer's report No. 12 tabled at last night's meeting. "It's a question of being a good neighbor," said one of the councillors. Lennoxville town council denied a similar request at a Lennoxville council meeting also held last night.

TO STUDY BYLAWS

A hefty document containing recommendations for the reorganization of city bylaws and regulations was tabled for study last night.

"The city's bylaws have not been studied for an excessively long time," Mayor Marc Bureau explained after the meeting. "Laws concerning housing, noises and things like that will be regrouped under new chapters."

The Mayor explained that the reorganization of municipal laws and that a similar document reorganizing the city's tax structure would be available at a later date. The "tax inventory" could conceivably raise new revenues for the city, Mayor Bureau said.

Council decided to name the soon-to-be-completed Sangster Park sports arena the Ivan Dugre Arena in honor of the late Sherbrooke sports great. Several councillors paid homage to Mr. Dugre.

Council was informed that an obligation by a developer to build a hotel on a certain piece of property sold by the city to the developer has not yet been fulfilled and that the city could authorize the cancellation of the sale. Mayor Bureau told council that a meeting had been arranged between city representatives and the developers and that cancellation of previous agreements was unnecessary for the time being. Council agreed and decided to hear a report on the situation in about a month.

After the meeting, Mayor Bureau told The Record the dispute concerned a long-standing promise from a development company to build a Holiday Inn hotel on King Street West.

WATCH MAY BE COSTLY

A secretary's slow watch inadvertently caused a bid for demolition work to be submitted past an 11 a.m. deadline, council was told.

A spokesman for Marcel Dumoulin, whose $52,000 bid for demolition of homes slated for urban renewal was first accepted and then disqualified by council, explained last night that a last-minute bid had been completed by Mr. Dumoulin and submitted at or about the 11 a.m. deadline May 29. A secretary's slow watch may have made the bid five minutes late. Mr. Dumoulin's lawyer explained to council.

Council did not accept this explanation, however, and the contract will be awarded to the next lowest bidder conforming to the requirements of the bid.

Mr. Dumoulin made a last ditch effort to save his bid when it appeared his lawyer's attempt had failed. "If I may be allowed to address council for a short time," Mr. Dumoulin interjected. "After all, you listened to someone with a lot longer hair than mine on something less important," he said, referring to the earlier plea from Mr. Toussaint representing the youth hostel interests.

"It was just as important to him as this is to you," Mayor Bureau observed.

EXAMINE REQUESTS

Council tabled two improvement requests. A request from a group of citizens that a right-of-way be built near a busy intersection will be studied in August with other requests for new capital expenditures. A request that traffic lights be installed at the corner of 12th Avenue North and La Bruere streets was put off until cost estimates for the lights can be made available to council.

Council fired a fireman for "disciplinary reasons." Council upheld a report from the man's superior officer that the fireman be dismissed. The report brought to council did not elaborate on the circumstances of the dismissal, and the fireman was identified only as No. 23.

By Ann Landers

Turned off by kissing beards

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from "Ohio Teen" could have been written by me. I am also a high school senior who hates to kiss a guy who has a moustache or beard. But let's be honest — we girls are responsible for all that hair.

It all started when the Beatles came to this country and the teenyboppers shrieked, fainted and went completely ape over the group. The American boys felt that had to imitate the Beatles to win the favor of the girls. So they let their hair grow long and the inevitable happened. In true American style "bigger is better and most is best."

The youth of our nation became hair-worshippers. Hair became a symbol of the New Culture, independence and rebellion. Most parents hated it. Sample dialogue: "Get a haircut or leave this house."

So now it's up to the girls to get rid of the hairy problem. And it is a problem. Keeping all that hair clean is work, and most guys don't bother. We girls must now say "Off with the brush — or there'll be no kisses." Are you with me, Ann? — The All Clear In Eau Claire

Dear Claire: I don't need to be with you. There's nobody with a beard or moustache I care to kiss. But lots of other.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago we went to Canada for a vacation. There was a guided tour — courtesy of the motel. The guide kept referring to the Canadian side of the Falls and the American side of the Falls. My father called the guide's attention to the fact that Canada is just as much a part of America as the United States.

This is my question, Ann: The inhabitants of South America, Central America and North America are Americans. The inhabitants of Canada are also Canadians. The people of Mexico are called Mexicans. But what are the people of the United States called — other than Americans? — Lansing Query

Dear Q: U.S. citizens.

Dear Ann Landers: You have waged a most successful campaign against drop-invisitors who don't even knock, for which we congratulate you. Many people who thought they owed it to friends and relatives to be on 24-hour call have come to realize that they were being taken advantage of. Your columns gave them the courage to put an end to it. Now will you do something for those of us who own small yachts?

A great many landlubbers don't know it's not only bad manners, but a legal offense to set foot on a boat until the words

"come aboard" are spoken. For those who don't wish to shout, a light knock on the hull can be heard inside. And now the matter of shoes. It is an unspeakable gaffe to come aboard a yacht wearing ordinary street shoes. It could cause permanent damage to painted and varnished surfaces.

I am aware that a rather small segment of your readers own yachts but since you are read by people in every walk of life I felt this was the very place to go for help to get my message across. — Old Salt in Key West

Dear Salt: Never let it be said that I discriminated against the rich. Here is your letter — for the one tenth of one per cent.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was nine years old I lost my father in a truck accident and now I am 16. After the accident my cousin told me I was lucky — that she hated her dad and wished it had been him. I told her if she ever said that to me again I'd sock her.

When I hear kids at school say they hate their parents, it makes me sick. They don't know what they are saying. Sure, all families have disagreements and people get mad, but I can't imagine holding grudges and not being able to forgive each other.

I hope you will print my letter soon, Ann. It seems there is a lot more hate for older people today than there used to be. Or am I wrong? — Quincy Teen

Dear Q: I don't know if there is more hate for older people than there used to be but kids are more outspoken about their feelings. Every day I receive at least a dozen letters from teenagers who say they hate their mother or father — or both. I view this as a tragedy not only because the kids suffer, but their parents as well.

The best course of action is to try to re-establish communication at the point where it broke down. Sometimes the whole family must get counseling in order to accomplish this. If certain members refuse, the ones who recognize the need should go regardless.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is having an affair with his secretary. This has been going on for over a year, but I've been looking the other way, hoping it would wear itself out. I see nothing to be gained by confronting him, nor do I have any intention of asking him to make a choice.

Two weeks ago the secretary's 14-year-old son heard about the affair and told our 15-year-old son who promptly told his grandmother.

Now my mother-in-law is pressuring me to telephone the secretary and insist that she resign from her job. I believe this would be humiliating to my husband and place me in the position of having to "take steps" should she refuse. My mother-in-law also wants me to sit down with the two boys and explain the situation "objectively."

I've shed a bucket of tears over this mess and am confused and sick at heart. Advise me, please. — Insomnia in Idaho

Dear Ida: You've already had too much advice. All bad. Don't telephone the secretary. Don't have any summit meetings with the children. Hold your head up. Issue no ultimatums. If your mother-in-law continues to harangue you, tell her to butt out.

It is so easy to play a hand carelessly. All you have to do is to give it a quick look without really seeing if there is any possible problem.

South was very happy with his four-spade contract. He had to lose one heart and the ace and king of trumps. Maybe he could even cash them together and score an over-trick. Therefore South won the diamond lead in his own hand and planked down the queen of trumps.

West took the trick with the king. South looked around hopefully for the ace from East, but East dropped the deuce of clubs.

West led a second diamond. South won and played a second trump to West's ace. Now West put his partner on lead with a heart and East played a third diamond. West ruffed and another game had gone into limbo.

South was unlucky. It took all three trumps in the West hand to beat him but South had also been careless.

He could be sure that the eight of diamonds was a short suit lead. If it were a singleton he could do nothing about it, but if it were a doubleton and West did hold three trumps South could keep East from giving his partner a diamond ruff.

South should have won the diamond in dummy and led a heart. East would play the ace and lead a diamond but West would still have a diamond left. Then South would lead his queen of trumps. West would win and be ready for a diamond ruff but he would not be able to get East into the lead.

Next move?

Back in 1966 the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were somewhat active sporadically in mine laying in South Vietnam. It was apparently a hit and miss operation.

There is a chronology for the Long Tau River, main channel leading to Saigon from the sea — from December, 1965, through March, 1967. Thirty-three mine accidents were reported.

On May 26, 1966, the Panamanian ship Eastern Mariner was mined while at anchor in Nha Be harbor and later grounded. On Aug. 23, 1966, the merchant ship Baton Rouge Victory was mined and grounded. Mines exploded near four other merchant ships, the French costal freighter Mino's Del Mar, the SS Our Lady of Peace, the SS Elaine and the Danish ship ETMA.

A U.S. minesweeping boat was sunk, as well as two South Vietnamese minesweeping boats and two river assault boats.

And that was that. Though it created some headlines at the time, the mining was erratic and largely ineffective. In most, in fact in almost all of the 33 cases, little or no damage resulted.

Most of the mines were crude and unreliable. Perhaps as a result, from April, 1967, to the present there have been comparatively few reports of mining by the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong.

All this is somewhat surprising. For one would think that in a guerilla war of the type being fought in the South during the past decade mining would have been a very heavy feature indeed. It would have been a relatively cheap method for securing sensational results.

By contrast, the United States has in the past carried on some quite extensive aerial mining of some of North Vietnam's rivers.

The chief activity, until President Nixon's current mining program, was back in 1967, after Navy men had come up with estimates that around half of the North Vietnamese cargo moved on internal waterways.

On Feb. 23, 1967, the mining from the air was authorized to close five river mouths to barges. Excluded were the deep water ports of Haiphong, Hon Gai and Cam Pha.

The Navy's after-action reports said that traffic across these five river mouths dried up — and that Hanoi had given up the attempt to use these routes. Instead, the Navy men said, the North Vietnamese shifted this river traffic to trucks traveling at night over unpaved back roads protected by jungle growth.

The heavy recent U.S. mining of North Vietnam's major ports and rivers raises the question again on mining in the South.

Will China or the Soviet Union now supply the North Vietnamese with mines, to be carried South and planted in the approaches to Saigon and other major ports? If Moscow or Peking does provide these mines and they are emplaced by the North Vietnamese by some method or other, what will the United States do?

Why haven't the North Vietnamese used mines extensively before? Was it because they wanted to escape retaliation? Or have the Russians and Chinese over the years been reluctant to supply Hanoi with effective mines? Though some numbers of the mines used in 1966 were Russian, certainly the numbers were not great, nor modern, but reports indicate that they were efficient types.

Hellyer defies 'McCarthyism' label

By Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — Ever since the late United States Senator Joseph McCarthy perverted vigilance against Communist espionage and subversion into paranoid witch-hunting, spies and subversives have had an easy time in North America. Nauseated by McCarthy's excesses, people came to regard all internal security measures as "McCarthyism."

In Canada, "McCarthyism" became almost synonymous with facism, and the dread of these labels effectively silenced even the most factual discussion of quite obvious instances of Communist spying and subversion.

In its courting of the regimes in Moscow and Peking the Trudeau government even discontinued the practice of expelling compromised Communist diplomats so as not to offend its totalitarian friends. And in the pursuit of their undefined goal of "social change" the Trudeaucrats have by now channeled large sums of taxpayers' money into grants to a wide variety of Marxist-inspired groups and individuals who make no bones about seeking to "smash the system."

Yet, despite signs of growing uneasiness with this sorry state of affairs, no public figure of national stature dares to call this suicidal misconception of tolerance by its true name, for fear of the "McCarthyism—Facism" labels. The only and quite recent exception among the big-name politicians is former Defence Minister Paul Hellyer who held the unofficial rank of Deputy Prime Minister in the Trudeau cabinet until he resigned over policy differences in April, 1969.

A life-long liberal who eventually parted company with what he regards as Trudeau's illiberal regime, Hellyer last year launched his own Action Canada movement. His effort to turn it into a full-fledged political party has so far produced meagre results, but that does not mean that his views carry no weight, particularly when he articulates the growing public uneasiness over the increasingly brazen onslaught toward the social fabric by the pathological left.

Risking not only the standard label of hysterical anti-Communism but also charges of breach of cabinet secrecy, Hellyer told Canadians that they would be shocked if they knew the extent of subversive activities in their country.

Trudeau's Justice Minister, Otto Lang, pooch-pooched the Hellyer statement by saying that the former Defence Minister was tilting at windmills. Solicitor General Jean-Pierre Goyr brushed the whole thing off by declaring that all pertinent information on the subject was made public in the 1969 report of a Royal Commission on Security and that security against subversion was completely under control. By his reference to the 1969 report — a document on which the Trudeau government sat for almost a year before it issued a screened and abridged version of it that still awaits a promised debate in Parliament — Goyr inadvertently strengthened Hellyer's statement.

"The main current security threats to Canada," the report says in its opening chapter, "are posed by international Communism and the Communist powers, and by some elements of the Quebec separatist movement. The most important Communist activities in Canada are directed from abroad, although domestic adherents and sympathizers with Communism pose considerable problems in themselves."

After stressing Canada's importance to the Communists as a base for operations against other countries, especially the U.S., the neglected report goes on to say: "The forms of Communist subversive activity in Canada are varied, ranging from efforts to develop front organizations to attempts to subvert individuals in government, the mass media, the universities, the trade unions, emigre and ethnic groups and political parties."

Hellyer's recent statement on security echoed this assessment of the extent and methods of Communist subversion which the Solicitor General admits to be as pertinent today as it was three or four years ago.

What worries Hellyer and a great many Canadians is that despite its knowledge of the manifold Marxist-inspired and manipulated endeavors to disrupt and demolish the delicate fabric of democracy, the Trudeau government has not only failed to take effective counter-measures but has been actually subsidizing some of the blatant subversive activities from public funds.

It is this incredible aspect of the rapid increase in subversion since the 1969 report that Hellyer's belated decision to speak up on the taboo subject has brought into focus. It's now up to the official opposition to brave the idiotic cries of "McCarthyism" from the assorted leftists and make an issue of the security mess in the coming election campaign.

'Harvey's TERRIBLY ambitious — he's applied for a Canada Council grant, a L.I.P. grant, unemployment insurance...'

Prediction: McGovern

The second debate between Senator McGovern and Senator Humphrey, it seems to me, confirms this — that George McGovern is going to get the Democratic nomination.

I cannot imagine that Mr. Humphrey knows less well than other political analysts what the fates have decided. That no doubt is why, on television, George McGovern looked so cool and confident, and Hubert Humphrey sounded so raspy and edgy. And no doubt Mr. Humphrey's desperation was in part responsible for his disastrous performance. This isn't to say that McGovern came out of it with the marbles, but for all of his vagueness, his non-sequiturs, his banalities, there was an air of assurance which is the smell of the victor.

Mr. Humphrey began with an apology. In his prime, he'd have known that it would probably emerge in the headlines. The apology was utterly unnecessary. And it sounded unnecessary even as Mr. Humphrey spoke it. Political exchanges are not lapidary models of the syllogistic art.

Granted, in the classroom it goes this way:
— People who believe in confiscatory taxation are fools.
— George McGovern believes in confiscatory taxation.
— Therefore George McGovern is a fool.

It was rather painful hearing Mr. Humphrey explain that "if" people took what he said as being "personal" against George McGovern, then he wanted to "apologize" to Senator McGovern, who is a "fine" man. Rigorous thought would have required him, instead, to say that if people believed that Hubert Humphrey was being personal about George McGovern, the people were wrong. Or, he might have said, the people were foolish. But then on the third debate I suppose he'd have had to apologize to the people for calling them foolish. After all, the people are fine. Hubert Humphrey has known people all his life, and he's here to tell us they are fine, the finest people he ever knew.

Then the senators began exchanging statistics, dealing in the billions of dollars, and the craft began to show. Hubert Humphrey was out to suggest that the calculations of George McGovern were irresponsible, and of course they are irresponsible, but it doesn't sound very convincing when Hubert Humphrey suddenly puts on the toga of guardian of the exchequer. Hubert Humphrey, like Eleanor Roosevelt, in the fabled phrase of James Burnham, treats the whole world as his own personal slum project.

He did score off McGovern's infatuation with the military-industrial complex in California. George McGovern being brave in California reminds me of Bobby Kennedy's being brave in New York, when, running for senator, he dropped the scheduled passage on closing down the Brooklyn Navy Yard when he got a sniff of the crowd.

Humphrey skewered another of McGovern's tergiversations very neatly when he asked how come McGovern was against subsidies for Lockheed when he was in favor of subsidies for American Motors. Well, ah, uh, said George McGovern, America believes in competition. Well, said Humphrey, shouldn't there be competition among the airplane producers also? Here McGovern showed a superior skill, because although Humphrey made the point, McGovern slid off it in the direction of some social vapidity or other and Humphrey let him get away with it.

McGovern's most adroit maneuver was to rush in to identify himself exactly with Humphrey's views on busing. Humphrey's views on busing being absolutely unintelligible, that is where George McGovern is most comfortable. To say that busing is "only one of many tools to effect integration" is to say something as arresting as "paper is only one of the constituents of pornography." It is to say nothing at all, which both candidates are most in favor of saying, about busing.

But not about Vietnam. Humphrey, who a while ago was telling the South Vietnamese face to face that we would never let them down, is now in favor of cutting them off "flat." It is "my judgment," he said, that "they are capable of their own defence." In that event, of course, his judgment is very bad, because the South Vietnamese are not capable of their own defence, any more than the North Vietnamese are capable of their own offence.

But the climactic worst came, appropriately, at the end of the debate, when Senator Humphrey announced his brave solution for the war — turn the problem over to the United Nations. "I've lived too long," Senator Humphrey said a couple of times, introducing the subordinate clause. "To be taken in by" this, that or the other. By the end of the evening the subordinate clause melted away from memory.

We stand corrected

Dear Sir,
May I correct a statement made in your report on the final activities of the Sherbrooke Hospital School of Nursing (Friday, June 2, 1972). You stated that Mrs. A. H. Baker of Lennoxville was our oldest living graduate.

In fact, our oldest living graduate is Mrs. Gillam, the former Margaret K. Beard. Mrs. Gillam is 91 years old and lives at the Griffith-McConnell Home in Montreal. She graduated from the Sherbrooke Hospital School of Nursing in 1906.

Our second oldest living graduate is Mrs. Garfield Stalker of Lennoxville, the former Florence Campbell, who graduated in 1910.

Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Wilfred Davey both graduated in 1913.

After two months of careful research and preparation of the Nursing Souvenir Book, I am sure you will understand my mild annoyance at such a careless statement.

Sincerely,
Katherine Snow

Newly aware

Dear Sir,
The forthcoming June 12 School Board elections has inspired some previously "laissez-faire" parents like myself with a sudden surge of interest in all things educational. After some weeks of absorbing government publications, facts and prejudices, I have passed to evaluate the information gleaned and ruefully wonder how I could have been so blissfully ignorant of the structure of the school boards, before and after Bill 27, and the alternatives which the latter has provided for the Council of Commissioners.

Obviously, a major part of the blame for my lack of knowledge lies with myself for not taking full advantage of the meetings held at the Lennoxville High School for the information of parents.

We parents, however, are not all ostriches, and I am more than a little disturbed at the lack of information that has come out of the press — or, perhaps, given to the press. It is difficult to keep informed when details of public meetings are not reported in the press, when notice of Provisional Council meetings is published a few hours only before those meetings; when the Regional School Board meetings are held regularly — every third Wednesday, I believe — but at the unlikely hour of 3 p.m. which automatically rules out attendance by most working parents, housewives preparing supper — and perhaps even some School Commissioners.

It was helpful to receive in the mail two days ago a publication from the Department of Education, Education Quebec, describing the new school board structure and encouraging parents to take an active interest in the school system. On page 5, paragraph 4, it states: "Bill 27 has invested the Council of Commissioners with the power to delegate some of its rights, powers and duties to the Executive Committee and to the Director General."

To delegate — or not to delegate. It is undoubtedly the issue in this, our first, general election of the School Board members. I am sure it would be easier for the government to deal with one local body incorporating elementary and secondary education, but we are not making a decision for their benefit.

For my part, considering arguments for and against, I know what has affected my own decision most strongly — it is easy to vote in delegation at any time in the future; it is almost impossible to reverse the action.

Why not first give the elementary Sector Board a chance to function autonomously?

Yours sincerely,
Jennifer Roman (Mrs.)
Waterloo.

We take the edge off asking.

To start with, let's set something straight. We're in the money business. We invest money to make money, so that we can lend money. It's that simple. But, all of it isn't worth a plugged nickel if someone doesn't use it. Which brings us to you.

And, hopefully you to us if you're thinking about a loan. The person you'll see at our place isn't some kind of financial ogre. He won't try to put you down, stare you down, or check the heels on your shoes. But most important, he wants to give you that loan. That's one of the ways he makes his money.

So you just tell him how much, how much you can afford each month, then it's up to him to work it out.

And without getting you in over your head. And, that's it. No red tape. No edge about asking.

You see, we feel two heads are better than one. We figure if two people set out to achieve goals, they might come a little easier. Your goals, and our goals. So with a Commerce Bankplan loan, you get more than money. You get a working partnership for achieving goals.

And that gives us still another edge over other banks. Besides taking the edge off asking in the first place.

Walkathon planned in Scotstown

At the last meeting of the Scotstown Recreational Center Inc. plans were made for a walkathon to be held on Sunday afternoon June 11 at 1 p.m., starting from the former Scotstown High School and going 15 miles. This one is for teenagers and adults.

Later in the season there will be a walkathon for those under 13 which will be less strenuous. It is hoped that the citizens of the town will help all they can in sponsoring those who will participate in the walkathon.

More will be reported about the programme for the summer from time to time in this paper.

in Ottawa. Mason joined the CBC News Service in 1961. He is shown with microphone in hand during a visit to the Arctic by Governor-General Roland Michener and Mrs. Michener.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Anxiety May Cause Rise

Is Her Blood Pressure Normal?

Dear Dr. Lamb—My younger sister on the West Coast had a blood pressure of 134 over 84. Her doctor said the maximum was 130 over 80 and if she didn't get immediate treatment she would die. She convinced me to get a check-up and my blood pressure was 136 over 86. My doctor said it was fine, that the maximum was 140 over 90, but it tended to creep up in a person my age. He said I shouldn't gain weight and if the pressure got higher we would have to start treating it. Any opinions or comments, please?

Dear Dr. Lamb—I used to exercise 15 to 20 minutes right before going to bed each night because I fell asleep faster, felt better in the morning and seem to have had more energy and be more alert the next day.

Dear Reader—The official opinion of the American Heart Assn. and the American Medical Assn. is that a blood pressure of 140 over 90 or below is normal. I can add to this from personal experience that there are a large number of healthy, young Air Force pilots with blood pressures higher than 130 over 80 who are flying aircraft today and a few astronauts. I am unaware of any qualified heart specialist who feels that 130 over 90 is abnormal.

Dear Reader—Of course not. Some people do not like to exercise at that time because it energizes them and they feel awake when they would like to feel drowsy and go to sleep. That apparently was not your problem. Other individuals who eat large, heavy meals, particularly those who have preceded their meals with a couple of cocktails, seldom want to exercise at that time.

Blood pressure varies from time to time. It can be sharply elevated during the anxiety of a medical examination, only to subside to much lower limits immediately thereafter. For this reason, most doctors will prefer to have more than one blood pressure reading in a variety of settings before deciding what its significance really is. Now, it is true that the higher the blood pressure the greater the increased likelihood of eventually having a heart attack. Thus, individuals who have blood pressure on the low side as a group are probably better off. It is also true that one of the most effective ways of preventing high blood pressure or its initial treatment in individuals who have mild elevation of blood pressure is weight loss. Many individuals after a significant loss of excess fat develop relatively normal blood pressure, even though they might have had quite significant elevations before that.

Then I read somewhere that exercise at that time is not good for you, so I quit altogether. (Other times are not as convenient.) I have decided to get a medical opinion. Do you think exercise at night before going to bed is harmful? I am a 17-year-old girl?

It is true that individuals who have health problems, particularly heart disease, are better off to do whatever exercise they are able to do before meals rather than after meals. Otherwise, there should be no reason why a person could not do his exercises just before going to bed. Each person often develops his own routine and the most important thing about exercise is to follow a proper program, which means enough, but not too much, and do it regularly.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Will you please discuss psoriasis in your column. I have what I think is psoriasis on my hand. What causes psoriasis and is there any permanent cure? If not, what is the best way to control it?

Dear Reader—Psoriasis is a common skin disease that usually causes rounded or oval red raised spots on the skin. These reddened areas are covered with silvery, scaly material. It is not contagious but tends to occur in families. More than eight million people in the United States and Canada are afflicted with this problem.

The cause of psoriasis is not known. This is part of the problem in treating the disorder. The rounded lesions most commonly appear on the parts of the body that are not normally exposed to the sun. Thus, the face and hands usually escape, although psoriasis of hands does occur.

Because there are so many skin diseases that resemble each other, it is not possible to give a distinct description of most skin defects. They have to be learned by recognizing them, much as the birdwatcher learns to recognize different birds by seeing them. There are several different types of psoriasis, but most commonly, they are not life threatening. The appearance of the lesions is the greatest source of their aggravation. Some of them have sticky surfaces and there is difficulty with clothing, and itching is usually the exception rather than the rule.

Psoriasis usually occurs in young and middle-aged people. It seldom occurs in older people and tends to disappear with age. Many of its characteristics are exactly opposite of the usual lesions seen on the hand and face with age. The latter are caused by exposure to the sun and wind, whereas psoriasis more commonly occurs on the surfaces of the body not exposed to sun.

Because so many people have this problem, numerous therapies have been tried. Things which are successful in one patient, like antihistamines, will not be useful in another patient. Currently, one drug, Methotrexate, is being used by a number of skin specialists. This medicine is more commonly used in treatment of leukemia, not psoriasis. There is considerable difference of opinion about its use in treatment of psoriasis and in the past it has been banned by the Food and Drug Administration because of reported toxic reactions. Many of the other treatments used for psoriasis are directed towards keeping the scaly scab soft, hence a variety of ointments are used.

Strangely enough, natural sunlight on the skin seems to help a great deal, although great care must be taken to avoid sunburn in these individuals.

There needs to be a great deal more research done on the problems of psoriasis and since there are so many individuals with this problem, an organization has been formed called the National Psoriasis Foundation. It provides literature for people with this problem, and is supporting programs to stimulate research. Individuals who are interested in obtaining information from them should write to: National Psoriasis Foundation, Suite 250, 6415 S.W. Canyon Court, Portland, Oregon 97221.

Compton County Historical and Museum Society

The Compton County Historical and Museum Society held a general meeting at the Museum in Eaton on Saturday, May 20, 1972.

The president, Mr. Duncan McLeod, welcomed the members and friends, and reminded all of the Cavalcade to Lysander Falls in Megantic County on Sat. June 10.

He stated that two of the society's projects were in operation, one was to supply certificates for Century ownership properties, and the other was to seek out historical places of interest for which plaques could be erected.

He thanked Mr. Arthur McDaniel for a donation of a hay knife.

Regrets were expressed that a number of the officers were not present, and sympathy was expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Hurd in the death of their little four-year-old grandson.

It was stated that the Lennoxville Historical Society would hold a meeting on the second Monday in June in the Museum at Eaton.

Mr. McLeod introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Waymer Laberee, who spoke on "Tales of the Townships." He stated that local history is now being recognized, and records made of its interesting stories. Some of his stories included excerpts from the memoirs of the late Dr. Elliott, of Bishopton, also of the bridge being washed away at that town.

He told about the musical talent of the late Dr. McCormick, of Richmond, and of the late Rev. Thomas Chapman (a member of the first graduating class at Bishop's University), who, on a dare, crossed the St. Francis River, paddling across in an old wooden wash tub.

He related the story of the late Jonathan Taylor (first minister at Eaton) who because of the water being so high in the Eaton River, had to stand on one side of the river and the bride couple on the opposite side, while he read the wedding ceremony.

In olden days, church members could be excommunicated for not going to church.

Speaking of Stanstead and Richmond area, Mr. Laberee mentioned the late Rev. Stephen Burroughs. He was a jack of all trades, and not only tried to save people's souls, but their lives as well. During a small pox epidemic he treated Ward Bailey, and he survived. Dr. Burroughs ended his days as a school teacher in Three Rivers.

The excellent stewardship of the late Rev. Dickson, of Inverness, was also mentioned.

The first auto passed through Massawippi on March 18, 1922. Courtships were sometimes of short duration, six evenings, and then a marriage could take place. At Ulverton a public auction for a wife took place.

In a Brome newspaper medicine was advertised for growing whiskers and mustaches.

There were some queer ways of trying to smuggle things across the border at Starstead, and when a lady was told she could not take a box of strawberries across, she promptly ate them, and then crossed the border.

The pillory was used as a means of correction, and other cruel chastisements were also carried out. Instead of a 'chicken shoot' an 'oxen shoot' was often held.

Bears were numerous, and often very aggressive. People depended on Dr. Chase's Almanac for advertising and for weather predictions.

This talk was tape recorded for future use.

Mr. Worth Bishop thanked Mr. Laberee, following which, the Bury Women's Institute served doughnuts and coffee.

In Memoriam

CHUTE - In loving memory of a dear husband and father, and grandfather who passed away, on June 8th, 1971. Although you have left us, we will always remember your courage and wisdom.

Our dearest dad this world could hold. With a cheery smile and heart of gold. To those who knew him, all will know. How much we lost one year ago. What we would give if we could say "Hello dad" in the same old way.

To hear your laugh and see your smile. To sit with you and talk awhile. So you who have a father, cherish him with care. For you will never know the heart-ache. Until you see his empty chair.

You are always in our minds. No matter what we do. All the time within our hearts. There are thoughts of you. Sadly missed by: LEONA (wife), ALMEEA (daughter), CURTIS & CHARLES (sons), LAWRENCE (son-in-law), JEAN (daughter-in-law), LARRY & CURTIS (grandsons), ANNA & SHEILA (granddaughters).

PARKER - In loving memory of my dear wife Gladys who passed away June 6, 1971. Gone but not forgotten. Her loving husband JOHN PARKER.

PARKER - In loving memory of a very dear friend Gladys who passed away June 6, 1971. Fondly remembered by THE DUMONT FAMILY.

It was the first game in a five-game series with Pittsfield which winds up Thursday night. The Pirates return to Sherbrooke's Amedee Roy Stadium for three doubleheaders starting Friday night.

One of the heroes of last night's game was Marrujo, a relief pitcher who joined the Pirates Sunday. He came on in the sixth and pitched brilliantly, allowing only one hit and no runs during the 3-2-3 innings he pitched.

Without Marrujo's pitching the game could have been turned around. His hurling broke the Rangers' bats as well as their backs. When Marrujo came on with one out in the bottom of the sixth, it was still a relatively close game. The Pirates were leading only 6-4 at the time.

BUCS BREAK OUT

Marrujo bewildered the Pittsfield batters as the Pirates mounted the score in the seventh and eighth innings. Sherbrooke sent nine batters to the plate in the seventh to break loose for four runs, blasting the score to 10-4. As if that wasn't enough they sent eight more batters to the plate in the eighth to score three more runs and grab an insurmountable 13-4 lead. Seven of the Pirates' 14 hits came in those two thundering innings.

It was a good game all around for the Pirates. The team jumped to a quick 3-0 lead in the first inning and never looked back. Fernando Gonzales finally broke out of a hitting slump which has plagued the flashy young third baseman for nearly three weeks. He clouted his sixth homer of the season with two men aboard in the bottom of the first to shoot the baby Bucs to the first-inning lead.

Pittsfield and Sherbrooke traded runs in the second while the Rangers picked up one more in the fourth to pull within two runs, which was the closest Pittsfield could come to the streaking Pirates during the game.

In the sixth the Pirate production of two runs was equalled by the Rangers. Catcher Jim Campanis had three hits and shortstop Pablo Cruz drove home three runs.

Pittsfield starter Don Shields took the loss. Sherbrooke starter Bob Guerrero was the winner, while Marrujo picked up the save. Guerrero, who now has a 3-2 record, pitched 5 2-3 innings, allowing four runs on eight hits while on the road to victory.

In addition to his homer, Gonzales chopped a single to score another run. Catcher Jim Campanis had three hits and shortstop Pablo Cruz drove home three runs.

Pittsfield starter Don Shields took the loss.

Items on deck

PITTSFIELD (CC) — Manager Steve Demeter is quite pleased with the addition of Rimp Lanier to the Pirates although the skipper wasn't that pleased to see Larry Smith go. "Larry has been playing very well lately, but I had to decide which outfielder to let go — Smith, Dave Augustine, Dave Arrington or Perry Dunn," he said. Smith just happened to be the one manager Demeter found, the most expendable. What prompted the Pittsburgh move to send Lanier down to Sherbrooke? Charleston needed another right-handed hitter, but Lanier was a left-handed batter, so Charleston signed a right-hander. In them doing so, many changes were necessitated throughout the Pittsburgh organization. "Charleston has a great outfield and Lanier just wasn't playing," Keith Morgan, Pirate publicity director, said.

Bruin vets available

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins, winners of this year's Stanley Cup, obviously don't intend to stand pat going into the coming season.

The Bruins left the names of several veterans from this year's Cup winner off their list of 15 protected skaters, plus two goalkeepers which each of the 14 established teams had to present before today's expansion draft that will stock the league's two newest entries. Long Island and Atlanta.

The most familiar names missing from the Boston list were three veterans — right-wingers John McKenzie and Ed Westfall and defenceman Ted Green.

A pair of youngsters, goalie Dan Bouchard and defenceman Nick Beverley, were also dropped. Both were with Boston's American Hockey League franchise, Boston Braves last season.

However, there was no chance the Bruins would lose all five players, since after a club lost a player in the draft it was allowed to fill with another.

SATHER UNPROTECTED — New York Rangers, runners-up to the Bruins in Cup play last month, left forwards Glen Sather, a veteran, and youngsters Norm Gratton and Steve Andrusick off the list.

First-year professionals were exempt from today's draft. Four clubs, Montreal, St. Louis, Philadelphia and California, also held a goalie exemption because they lost a netminder in the 1970 expansion draft. However, it was understood that general manager Clif Fletcher of Atlanta was likely to pick up Montreal's Phil Myre because of a previous deal with Sam Pollock, general manager of the Canadiens.

Montreal's list indicated there was something in the wind when it protected Ken Dryden and Michel Plasse, the latter from Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League. This left the expansion teams a choice between Myre and Denis DeJordy.

St. Louis also waived the goalie exemption, by protecting Jacques Caron and Peter Duffie, leaving Ernie Wakely.

AGRHS presents athletic awards

By DEBBY CAMPBELL

LENOXVILLE — Alexander Galt Regional High School held its second annual sports banquet in the school cafeteria Friday afternoon. Students who had participated in any school interscholastic sport in 1971-72 were eligible to attend.

Doug MacAulay, AGRHS athletic director, served as master of ceremonies, and after the dinner MacAulay introduced the head table. Brian Heath introduced Bruce Coulter, the guest speaker and athletic director of Lennoxville's Bishop's University.

Coulter made the point that Alexander Galt had great sports potential which it had put to good use. "You have proven yourselves with your championship teams. Hopefully, we will have some of you at Bishop's," he told the assembled students.

Speaking about a conference of athletic coaches of Quebec universities, he remarked that "The elite team is receiving all the sports praise. There should be something far less competitive for the just plain enjoyment of the game, as well as the purely competitive team. If universities start this type of program we may then also have field days at the end of the year for the non-competitive side as well."

Coulter touched also on a topic he said he thought could conceivably figure in the future for the exemplary young athlete. "Another idea for the very elite sports athlete, such as an Olympic prospect, may be the setting up of a type of training that would be very intense, keeping sports before academics. This is next to impossible right at the moment because of the tremendous funds and support that would be needed, but it is indeed a possibility for the future."

"This would be offered in the Quebec universities with the proper facilities. The training period would be 8-10 hours a day 10-12 months a year. The athlete could concentrate on his sport — a choice would be offered from European handball, volleyball and basketball — and take up to eight years to complete his degree in the time that was not allotted to his sport," he suggested.

"International travel and excellent coaching would also prove to make this type of superstar training second to none."

Coulter again remarked on the outstanding sports performances achieved by AGRHS and congratulated the young athletes and the staff as well for the fine job.

Imlach tabs Horton

MONTREAL (CP) — Punch Imlach, general manager of Buffalo Sabres, envisioned an otherwise dull National Hockey League intra-league draft Monday, by picking up veteran defenceman Tim Horton from Pittsburgh Penguins.

The move, which cost the Sabres the $40,000 (U.S.) draft price, came as a surprise because Horton, a 42-year-old veteran of 20 NHL seasons, has announced plans to retire.

It took the 14 existing clubs only 25 minutes to complete the selections. Each team was allowed to lose only one player from its list. When a claim was made, the claiming club removed a player from its protected list to make room for its new player.

The losing club had the option of requesting the transfer of that player to its roster for $30,000 or accepting the $40,000.

ADMITS IT'S GAMBLE

"It's a gamble," said Imlach of his move. "But it's a good gamble. I must think so or I wouldn't have drafted him."

"He's the first NHL defenceman that Buffalo has ever had. This is the first guy we've had that has played 100 games in the major leagues. We didn't lose anything. I think he will help us."

"Horton is something like Johnny Bower, he's old in age, but he has a young body. I've got the rink for him to play in. Our small rink should help him. It will be harder to get away from him there."
