UN discovers land reform many-angled

UNITED NATIONS (TNS) — Land reform at first seems to be a pretty simple concept, but the U-N has found that the subject has more angles than a Broadway bookie.

In an attempt to clarify the complex land reform picture, the U-N's food and agriculture organization is conducting a World Land Reform Conference in Rome.

More than 70 countries including Canada, are attending the meeting which concluded today, to discuss the efficacy of various types of land reform including private ownership and state farms.

One problem in the land reform question is that social values often clash with economic reality. For instance, from the Jeffersonian point of view, it might be best to have a nation of small land-owners, but it is a proven fact that big farms are able to produce more food than small plots can.

Mexico is perhaps the best example of what can go wrong in land reform theorizing. Land reform efforts by the Mexican government have often meant giving small parcels to land-hungry peasants who are not even able to grow enough food to feed themselves.

The spectacle of government trucks distributing food to these farmers is one of the every-day facts of Mexican life. Meanwhile most of Mexico's food is produced by large, capitalist-type farms which, if broken up, would plunge the country into serious famine.

INCENTIVE

One justification of land reform is that it will give the peasant incentive to work, an incentive which he often does not have when he hires himself out to a large land-owner.

Bank holdup

LA PATRIE (Staff) — Three masked bandits held up the Caisse Populaire here on Thursday afternoon and got away with between $3,000 and $4,000.

The three men held up the Caisse Populaire at about 2:50 in the afternoon, ten minutes before closing time. They were chased by one of the Caisse's clients, Laurent Gregoire, who pursued them until he found their car abandoned near a gravel road leading to Island Brook, Quebec Provincial Police are carrying on the search today.

According to this line of reasoning, the peasant who owns his land will be encouraged to stay on the farm rather than fleeing to urban slums which are growing at tremendous rates due to migration from the farms.

However, a U-N study notes that even when land reform has improved the lot of the farmer, the improvement often has not been enough to keep him down on the farm.

The Communist countries at the Rome conference would seem to be in an embarrassing position. On the one hand, they have to defend the principle of collective farming as a Marxist truth. Yet on the other, they have to admit — with the exception of Rumania — that the Red bloc has become an importer of food due to the failure of the collective system.

Capitalist style farming no doubt has much to brag about at the Rome meeting due to the success of North American agriculture.

Yet capitalist farming in Latin America — in spite of instances of high productivity — is still not able to adequately feed the quickly multiplying Latin American masses.

Women in the USSR

So equal they sometimes pay alimony

By PETER WORTHINGTON

MOSCOW — (TNS) — In the Soviet Union women have so much equality that sometimes they are required to pay alimony to ex-husbands.

Statistics on the subject are scarce, but Russia is in the throes of a mild divorce boom.

Six months ago laws were eased to make divorce quicker and cheaper. The result has been a flourishing business in the courts. Queues have formed, just like for bread milk or oranges.

No longer can the Soviet Union boast of an abnormally low divorce rate of 1.3 per thousand of population.

Now it is estimated that one of ten marriages winds up in the divorce court.

A year ago a couple who wanted a divorce had a complicated ritual to endure. First they appeared in a lower court; then their intentions were published in the newspaper; back to a courts for reconciliation hearings; a city court next; a fee of $60 to $240 to pay — up to two month's salary.

ENDED

The whole process often took longer than a year — not long by Canadian divorce standards perhaps, but quite an endurance feat.

Now divorces are handled entirely in the lower courts take only a few weeks; about the same time that it takes to get married, once you file application at the marriage palace.

Back in the bad old thirties 40 per cent of Soviet marriages ended in divorce.

One spouse merely filled in the necessary forms and notified the other by mail, and that was that: A "postcard divorce."

Stalin went from that extreme to the other, by tightening regulations so much that some considered it too dangerous to even marry, because they'd be stuck.

Now things are more realistic. Soviet law doesn't pretend that all Soviet citizens are so comradely that mistakes can't be made.

It is in property settlement that Soviet laws are most democratic.

Since virtually all wives hold jobs (one salary isn't enough to keep a family), the woman may be required to pay alimony if she is the cause of the break-up.

Soviet law spells out no specific grounds for divorce. Judges have maximum latitude to assess each case on its merits.

Whatever a man or woman takes into a marriage, he or she may take out.

But any property acquired during the marriage is considered the property of both partners and must be divided equally.

It is in this area lawyers are consulted — otherwise they stay out of matrimonial disputes.

If the husband is disabled, the woman is required to support him for one year after the divorce. And vice-versa.

Both parents are obliged to support any children.

Usually the mother gets custody of them, but not always.

The other partner must pay a quarter of his salary towards the upkeep of one child, one-third for two children, and one-half for three or more children.

Price's most controversial charges is that the islanders were better off economically under the Japanese than they are under Americans.

There are two key aspects of the American headache in Micronesia. One concerns the extent to which the U.S. has tried to bring the Micronesians into the 20th century.

US, long an anti-colonialist hero, finds itself suddenly a colonial villain at UN

By AARON R. EINFRAK

UNITED NATIONS (TNS) — After years of playing the anti-colonialist hero, the United States is experiencing the bitter taste of what it means to be a colonialist villain at the U-N.

America's colonial problem involves Micronesia, the 2,000 islands in the Pacific which the U.S. took over from the Japanese at the end of World War II. For the past 20 years nothing much has been heard of Micronesia except when the U.S. conducted nuclear tests in the area (Bikini is one of the Micronesian group). And nothing much would be heard about these islands if it were not for the U-N, that gadfly of colonialists.

The Japanese had appropriated the islands from the Germans during World War I and this was later legalized under the terms of a League of Nations mandate. After the victorious Americans moved in, a deal was worked out whereby Micronesia in 1947 became a U-N trusteeship with the U.S. as the administering authority.

Because Washington considered the islands valuable in a military sense, the U.S. was not willing to permit the U-N to have the last word in Micronesian matters. For this reason Micronesia became the only "strategic" U-N trust territory which means that the Security Council (where the U.S. has the veto) is responsible for Micronesia and not the General Assembly (where no big power veto exists) which usually handles trusteeship matters.

A series of developments has recently put Micronesia in the U-N spotlight, the most important being an investigation by the U-N's World Health Organization into charges by an islander that health conditions in the American-run territory are abominable.

The WHO report

The team of WHO experts which visited Micronesia, issued a report earlier this year largely substantiating the complaint and thus causing red faces among American UN diplomats. Although American UN ambassador Arthur Goldberg manfully admitted the correctness of the WHO report and pledged reforms, the damage to American prestige at the U-N was immense.

In noting the lack of proper medical facilities and personnel throughout the islands, the WHO report goes on to say: "Deficiencies in environmental health services are underlined by the prevalence of diseases due to poor sanitation. Gastro-enteritis is common throughout the territory and is a major cause of child mortality."

The WHO report brought out the fact that in addition to not providing good health facilities, the U.S. has also not developed an adequate inter-island transportation system.

To make matters worse for the Johnson administration a book was published in March which charges the U.S. with administering the islands badly. The author of America's Paradise Lost is Willard Price who first visited the islands when they were Japanese property in the 1930s. One of Mr.

Doom cried from the start Confederation's splitting seams an old old story

By MARCUS VAN STEEN

IT HAS BECOME fashionable in recent years to talk about Canada coming apart at the seams, and to predict that Confederation will not survive. Signs of disunity are pessimistically noted as though they were a new phenomenon.

The fact is that signs of disunity have been apparent in Canada from the very start of Confederation. And all the prophets of doom who were predicting on the first Dominion Day the Confederation would not survive its first five years would be astonished if they could see us observe its 99th anniversary, and making plans for its 100th.

Most of the long faces and dismal forecasts are based on the assumption that the provinces came together in joyous embrace in 1867 and that there has been a cooling-off since — a falling apart that can result only in final divorce.

No picture could be more inaccurate. The first Dominion Day was not marked by any outburst of popular rejoicing. Far from dancing in the streets, the people in at least two of the newly-linked provinces marked the day as one of mourning for their lost autonomy.

In N.B., crepe hanging

In New Brunswick, the people marked July 1, 1867, by hanging crepe on their doors — clearly symbolizing their feelings.

In Nova Scotia, the opposition was strong enough to sweep Joseph Howe into office the following year on the promise of repealing the union.

In Quebec, according to reports, the first Dominion Day was ignored by the general public. This is understandable. Their representatives had resisted the pressure for a union under one central Parliament, which would have placed the French Canadians in somewhat the same position as the Irish in the tightly-knit United Kingdom.

The Confederation agreement that was finally worked out would not effect the French Canadian in his home or in his church, so what was there to get excited about?

The birth of the new nation was marked almost entirely by official affairs, cold and formal. And two of the provinces that had originally been invited to join remained aloof — Prince Edward Island until 1873, and Newfoundland for more than 80 years.

Comment on the apathy

This apathy concerning a united Canada did not go unnoticed.

"The people of the upper and lower provinces simply do not know enough about each other," said Sir Sandford Fleming to D'Arcy McGee, in words that ring true even today.

News in brief

Strikers invade

MAGOG — (Special) — A parade of textile strikers invaded the grounds of the summer home of the vice-president of the Dominion Textile Company here yesterday afternoon.

A detective and two policemen were called from the Magog police department to control the crowd at the home of E. F. King. Police chief Telesphore Lavoie said no damage was done, and no arrests were made. The parade started out as part of a sports day the strikers who walked off their jobs more than 11 weeks ago, had planned to hold at Merry's Point.

At sea again

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's merchant ships began putting to sea again today soon after the 47-day seamen's strike officially ended at midnight Friday night.

Thirty minutes after the strike for more pay and better working conditions ended several ships slipped out of their home ports—the first since the costly, crippling walkout began.

About 100 ships were expected to depart from Britain's ports today.

Rally fizzles

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans by a militant separatist group to mark Dominion Day with a spectacular protest against Confederation founded Friday on the rock of 250 policemen.

Les Chevaliers de l'Indépendance (Knights of Independence) planned to assemble at east-end Lafontaine Park, and march to Jeanne Mance Park in the downtown area.

Is purged

BELGRADE (AP) — Vice-President Aleksandar Rankovic of Yugoslavia, one of the most powerful figures in this independent Communist country, has been stripped of virtually all public functions after being accused of dominating a power-hungry and obstructionist secret police organization.

Rankovic was one of two casualties of a crackdown on the secret police announced Friday by his longtime ally, President Tito. The other was Svetislav Stefanovic, a member of the Communist party central committee and former secret police head.

Brookbury W. I. holds meeting

BROOKBURY — The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Sterling Bailey, with Mrs. George Lebourveau and Mrs. C. Lowe as joint hostesses.

The report on the Compton County annual convention was given by Mrs. Arthur Leonard.

Five Christmas stockings are being sent to save the Children's Fund.

A card of thanks from Mrs. Terry Hanson, the former Sandra Lowe, was read.

The canteen at a recent auction proved a financial success. Plans were made to cater to a July wedding.

Prize money was reported given to Pope Memorial School and Bishop Elementary School.

The question of a float for the first of July was left open. A suggestion that each member should donate some money to be used to buy articles needed in the hall kitchen, was discussed and left over to another meeting.

A generous donation of cloth from a textile mill was sold to members.

BARNSTON —

Mr. Dewey Rix has returned home, having spent the past three weeks at Brookbury Hospital in St. Johnsbury, Vt., where he underwent eye-surgery.

Barnston Baptist Church observed its 133rd anniversary on June 5. Rev. John Gilmour, Feller College, Grande Ligne, was the guest speaker. A large number of friends and former residents attended. Rev. Gilmour, Mrs. Gilmour and three children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Drew.

Mrs. Wright Parsons, Kent, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Parsons, Lennoxville, were calling recently on old friends.

Gala parade highlights Dominion Day celebration at Bury

GRAND PRIZE — The winner of the Grand Prize in Bury's Dominion Day parade yesterday was Sam Lake for his Sam Service sheep shearing float. The granny at the spinning wheel is Erwin Watson while the man at the wheel is Bill Buckland. Enoch Kerr is operating the shearing machine and Sam Lake holds the next victim. Also in the cab of the truck is Grace Gordon who helped dream the whole thing up.

WATCH IT, FELLAH — Robin Moore finds out the hard way never to pull a donkey's tail. The donkey piloted by Christine and Peter Moore won first prize in the children's comedy division at Bury's Dominion Day parade yesterday. Incidentally, the float belongs to Christine. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

BURY — Thousands thronged through the tree-shaded grassy Memorial Park here on Friday to help Bury residents celebrate the Dominion's 90th birthday.

The young and the old, the patriotic and the fun-seeking, the participating and the curious, from miles around congregated in this small but growing hamlet to watch the parade, to take in the sports or just to soak up some of that sun.

Houses and buildings bedecked with flags and bunting lined the parade route.

Spectators stood in the comfortable shade of the trees, squinting against the sun and cheering the floats, pipers, majorettes, bands, bicycles, and cars that proceeded through Bury's main street past the Town Hall and into the park.

At the end of the parade marched a corps of 25 leg-kickers, baton-twirling youngsters dressed in the traditional majorettes' short skirts, and led by a young lad on the bagpipes, David Moore. The Bury Majorettes are directed by Miss Linda Harper.

A real crowd pleaser, especially with the gents in the audience, was the Nudist Camp, entered by Barry Parsons. The float was surrounded by a brown paper fence, short at the bottom to show enough pretty girls to awaken any drowsing male.

For drawn float entered from outside went to Mrs. Preston Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Herbie Rowell for their "In the Garden". That all time pleases, "The Nudist Camp" took second.

The best float in the horse drawn category was the Little Rascals entered and put together by Mrs. Vera Harper.

In the comic class, Mr. Boutin took first place; Bicycle for Two by Terry Goode, second; Clarence Frost Hot Rod, third; and Claude Gilbert's family on wheels, fourth.

First prize for the best decorated car went to Eric Fisher for his Hello Operator; second prize to the Martini, Bobby Baker; and the third to Donald Martin's "Flower Car".

A special prize went to Harley Fearon's 1933 car complete with 1933 licence plates.

In the children's parade, Janice Page's float took the first prize.

In the first category Brian Rowell won first prize on the Bury Float and Andy McPhatter took second prize for "The Owl and the Pussycat."

MACHINE THAT CHANGED WOMEN'S LIVES AROUND THE WORLD

MONTREAL — "Next to the plough, this is perhaps humanity's most blessed instrument," wrote Louis Antoine Godey in 1856. In more modern times Mahatma Gandhi, the late Indian leader, stated: "It is one of the few useful things ever invented."

Both men referred to the sewing machine, celebrating its 115th anniversary this year. Since its invention, it has changed the way of life of millions of women on every continent and become the foundation of vast industries. More immediately important to the Canadian woman, it has put fashionable wardrobes within the financial reach of almost everyone, including the housewife.

The Eastern Townships Pipe Band provided the Celtic flavor without which any parade wouldn't seem a parade, and the Sherbrooke Dynamics put on a fine show of blaring brass, drums, and precision marching.

Claude Gilbert, wobbling along on a bicycle with a seat five feet from the ground, left the crowds wondering how he ever got off the thing or for that matter.

The space age was represented by Martine, Mr. Guzzo, a younger better known to his friends as Bobby Baker, riding a space craft that certainly wasn't designed at Cape Kennedy.

A miniature Model T Ford powered by a washing machine engine and driven by a seven-year-old Granby girl, Janice Page, turned back the clock a little for the machine age.

The Grand Prize for all the floats went to Sam Lake's wool growers' float. As Enoch Kerr, dressed to kill in the style of 50 years ago, cranked the handle on the sheep shearing machine, Sam Lake himself sheared a couple of live sheep.

Unfortunately, Sam was a little fast at the job and he ran out of sheep, to supply the spinning wheel that was diligently pumped by "Grandma" Erwin Watson.

Today's stress on education was evident in two floats in the parade, one entered by the Redemptorist Father's College D'Alzon in Bury and the other by the Cercle de Fermiers.

College D'Alzon's float depicted education as the key to success, while the Cercle de Fermiers emphasized the importance of education in modern farming.

The farmers' float took first prize in the tractor-drawn division and the college's second.

The prize for the best tractor-drawn float went to the Institute official referred to as "the first successfully operating and practical sewing machine."

In 1851 Singer and a partner had formed a company and were filling many orders for the novel contraptions. The first of these ponderous cast-iron machines were sold to factories. But in 1856 a lighter one was designed for the home. At the same time, the Singer sewing machine company introduced to the world a startling new idea: installment buying.

Thanks to this, although the average family income was only $500 per year, legions of women bought a $125 sewing machine, paying at the rate of $5 down and $3 per month. As sales increased, the price of the machine went down steadily, until it became a fixture in almost every home.

It wasn't long before the sewing machine people introduced another completely new idea: the trade-in allowance.

Within a few years, Isaac Singer's invention crossed the seas as his salesmen penetrated countries whose names were scarcely known by most Westerners.

In Japan the sewing machine was largely responsible for Westernization of women's garments. While this country was still virtually cut off from the Western world, one of its elder statesmen encouraged Singer to open the first sewing school in Japan. In later years sewing lessons were broadcasted by radio, with thousands of women listening at Tokyo and Yokohama municipal halls.

In India, the first company agent popularized the sewing machine's name by printing it in four languages on thousands of yards of cotton cloth. Sold at slightly below cost for iron cloths, it resulted in thousands of walking advertisements.

An explorer once followed the headwaters of the mysterious Yangtze River to a Tibetan village in the heart of Asia. So primitive was it that he was certain that no outsider had ever been there. While he congratulated himself a familiar hum fell on his ear. Tracing the sound, he spied a native crouched on the floor of a mud hut, using a Singer sewing machine.

Thanks to the enterprising Boston mechanic, Africa had hundreds of sewing machines long before Stanley met Livingstone.

The universal popularity of sewing machines isn't likely to slow down from old age on the 115th anniversary of their invention. Today more young Canadian girls than ever before are learning the fundamentals of fashion dressmaking, while their mothers continue to sew with unabated enthusiasm. And 160 stores in Canada alone, with tens of thousands throughout the world, carry on the work of a curious inventor who was certain he could make the sewing machine a practical tool.

Must pay $39,000 to the family of his dead brother

A Superior Court Judge ruled here this week that a man must pay a total of $39,000 damage for the death of his brother and sister-in-law, the parents of eight children, in a car accident.

Henri Paul Hallee, of Magog, was ordered by Mr. Justice Louis Philippe Clishe to pay each of the children following amounts: Gaetan, $5,800; Mario, $5,300; Jean Luc, $5,000; Guy, $4,500; Marcel, $4,200; Carmelle, $3,900; Yolande, $3,400; and Madeleine, $3,000.

On top of this amount Henri Paul Hallee must pay $2,300 for the funeral costs of his brother and his wife. Another $1,600 has to be paid by Hallee for the room and board of the eight children from April 11, 1965 to December 9 of the same year.

Originally, Fernand Hallee guardian of the children, filed a law suit for $107,500 for the accident which occurred April 11, 1965 at about 2:40 p.m. at the intersection of St. Patrice and Main Streets in Magog.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Hallee were passengers in the car of Henri Paul Hallee.

The plaintiff in the case alleged that the accident was the sole fault of the defendant.

The action taken out against the defendant arose out of the fact that the children were deprived of their parents' advice, company and whatever the children had a right to during the life of their parents.

The evidence showed that Henri Paul Hallee left the Hotel-Motel Four Foursches situated at the outskirts of Magog and drove towards the Main Street in Magog.

The defendant did not deny that prior to the accident he had had a considerable amount of alcohol, drove at an illegal and excessive speed, and that he had a race with his brother Real Hallee.

On the other hand the two deceased knew the condition of Henri Paul Hallee and agreed to be passengers in his car. Henri Paul Hallee claimed that he was not the only one to be blamed for his brother contributed directly to the accident by having a race.

The proof revealed, Judge Clishe, that as Hallee was going along Main Street with his passengers he lost control, and hit several electricity poles.

The judge ruled that there was no proof that the defendant was in the process of a race with his brother Real, nor that he was under the influence of alcohol.

The judge wrote in his six page judgment that the defendant was "Must Pay" Page 5

Sherbrooke Courts Youth's hearing held

The preliminary hearing of a youth accused of criminal negligence in connection with the death of one of the passengers in who died December 2, 1965 was held yesterday.

Denis Paradis, 19, appeared before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel Thursday morning to choose a trial before a judge and jury. The trial will be held at the fall criminal assizes of the court of Queen's bench.

Until his trial Paradis is free on $500 bail which was set on Wednesday by the Justice of the peace, Jean Marie Gregoire.

Paradis was found criminally responsible for the death of Jean Guy Plante of Sherbrooke Wednesday afternoon by a five-man coroner's jury.

According to testimony heard at the inquest the youths were driving at excessive speeds through Sherbrooke. The car collided with a sign post at the King Street West shopping centre.

Plante died two days later.

Gerald Buck accused of attempted murder in the April 23 shooting of a Lennoxville taxi driver was found by psychiatrists to be legally sane. Buck is scheduled to appear on July 7 for his preliminary hearing.

Freddie Darling of Sherbrooke accused of attempting to cause bodily harm to Normand Cotteral on June 25 in a Hatley Township restaurant chose yesterday a trial before a judge and jury.

Warren Lynch counsel for the accused asked for bail which was set at $2,000.

A Disraeli man was fined $50 and was ordered to post a $500 bond to promise to keep the peace for a year, by Judge Benoit Turmel of the Sherbrooke Court of Sessions.

Edmond Croteau pleaded guilty to causing bodily harm to his wife for "no apparent reason". Croteau has no criminal record.

The sentencing of Gilles Prince has been postponed to September 12 upon the request of Crown Prosecutor Guy Blanchette.

Prince of Sherbrooke pleaded guilty to cashing false cheques valued at $225. Mr. Blanchette told Sessions Judge Redmond Hays that Prince was in the process of repaying his victims. He had already paid back $75.

Downtown plaza now on Sherbrooke's downtown Wellington Street has been turned into a shopping plaza, complete with potted flowers and park benches.

The street, from King West to Frontenac was closed to traffic yesterday as workmen moved in to set up the annual plaza.

Truck deliveries will be allowed between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. After that, it's strictly a walker's paradise.

This morning, in connection with the plaza, the Mennonite Children's Choir from Winnipeg was received at city hall by the Mayor.

This afternoon at 3 p.m. they will give a concert in the plaza, to be repeated tonight at Jacques Cartier Park at 8 p.m. The choir is composed of nine adults and 41 children between the ages of 8 and 16. There are 5 boys and 36 girls in the choir.

Yesterday, the plaza was officially opened with a flag-raising ceremony by the RCMP.

The Winnipeg group is on its way to an international competition in Wales, the Eisteddfod in Llangollen, this July. The choir is directed by Mrs. Helen Litz.

The project is part of the 1966-67 series of inter-provincial Community Cultural Exchanges in which folk arts groups travel for a weekend visit to other regions of Canada, are received there by similar units of like interests but of different cultural backgrounds and are billeted by resident families.

Discovers history of the area

The more places I visit, and the more people I meet in this town, the more I discover of the interesting characters in it.

And the more I realize how closely linked are the nearby towns and villages that surround it in history and tradition.

Already in the short time, I have been here, I have heard references to Lennoxville, North Hatley, Massawippi, Asbestos, Thetford Mines, Richmond, and many more.

They certainly must each have their quaint history. One village in particular Ayer's Cliff has an interesting story. But to tell it we must go back to the middle ages.

It all started in 1066 at the Battle of Hastings. I have heard that it was at this battle that William the Conqueror, starved, and I do mean starved in the true sense of the word.

It seems that in the heat of battle, at one inopportune moment when he wasn't looking, a strong cowardly barbarian took a mighty swing at him with his club, missed but caught the edge of his helmet sending it spinning around so that it covered eyes and mouth. William, stumbled about, a perfect target for the barbarian whose cowardice melted to courage as he took a good wind up swing to finish his enemy off.

Just at this instant, William's page, Truelove, rushed in and yanked his master's helmet off.

The barbarian, agog from the page's dexterity and his opponent's sudden recovery, froze, club over head ready to strike as William, recovering composure, said:

"Henceforth, Truelove, will thou be called Ayer, for you have given me Ayer (air)."

Direct descendants of Ayer (Truelove) came to Canada and settled in the Eastern Townships near present day, Ayer's Cliff. That village was named after Warren Ayer who is the great-grandfather of Miss E. T. Bradley, assistant librarian of the Sherbrooke Library to whom must go the credit for the essence of this tale.

Red pressure in seamen's strike

Communists and their sympathizers may be expected to deny vigorously charges by Prime Minister Harold Wilson that Red leaders are responsible for prolonging the strike which shut down the British shipping industry and caused incalculable damage to the nation's economy.

But it is significant that the Seamen's Union executive took action to end the walkout only a few hours after the Prime Minister documented his charges in the House of Commons. Union leaders refused to comment on the part the Prime Minister's accusations played in the decision to call off the strike but it is apparent that Mr. Wilson's declarations strengthened the hand of the moderate elements on the executive who have been urging acceptance of compromise proposals for many days.

The terms of the agreement indicate that the back-to-work call represents a truce rather than a settlement of the dispute, pending the report of a government court of inquiry into working conditions at sea.

The seamen did get an immediate reduction in the work week from 56 to 48 hours instead of the 40 hours they demanded.

Speed with which the compromise agreement was adopted following the disclosures by Prime Minister Wilson indicate that many of the rational members of the executive were unaware of or intimidated by the Communist pressure in key union positions.

Once the moderates became aware of this influence or had received government assurance of protection, they lost little time in ordering a work resumption.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR:

Bird that sings, hunts in darkness

When dusk is deepening in the valleys and twilight's last silvery-pewer hues are fading above the mountain rim, the clear, far-carrying calls of the whippoorwill begin. This bird which sings and hunts in the darkness belongs to a family called Goatsuckers — so named because of the false belief in olden times that the birds secured milk from goats.

It is a strange bird about the size of a robin, with gray and black rough feathers, large shoe-button eyes and peculiarly small feet. During the day they sleep on the woodland floor and their coloring blends with the dead leaves of the forest floor. The bird is silent in flight and catches night-flying insects in its enormous mouth.

If you have listened to a persistent singer through the moonlit hours, you perhaps wondered how many times it repeats its name. John Burroughs counted 1088 calls in unbroken succession; August Derleth, a well-known naturalist, counted to 1507 in a period of 33 minutes, an average of more than 45 calls per minute.

Legends have blossomed concerning this bird of strange appearance and protective coloration. The nest is on the ground and usually has two cream-colored eggs spotted with brown and gray. Through the summer the whippoorwills are with us and their haunting, piercing calls are part of the mystery of night. In late September they leave as suddenly as they arrive. They journey by night to southern states and to Central America. Listen to the calls in the darkness. Night time sounds have always had an elemental appeal to man. The whippoorwill's calls while Earth is turned from its sun are part of the wonder and mystery of our natural world.

Feathers are a weighty business

MONTREAL (CP) — If you want your financial affairs to look up you might try duck down. No kidding and no posture problem.

All you have to do is gather the fluffy stuff from the eider birds' nests and you will get $10 a pound for it.

That's the offer of Allan Hollander of Montreal, who operates the Hollander Co. and knows his onions in feathers.

This down business came up as the result of a one-paragraph Canadian Press item from Regina. Mr. Hollander had written the Saskatchewan department of agriculture asking the prospects of getting duck down from that province. The item produced queries to The CP.

Mr. Hollander is strictly a feathers man as an exporter and importer. He deals in almost anything his feather-pickin' collectors can gather. He doesn't go in for manufacturing and he never collected an ounce of down in his life.

The company gets about 700 pounds of duck down a season—late spring and summer—Mr. Hollander said in an interview. The down comes largely from collectors in Labrador and parts of Quebec.

Greater quantities are wanted, and Mr. Hollander figured the northern areas of Western Canada might prove worth investigating.

MUST BE CLEAN
He said a pound of duck down in bulk is about eight by 10 inches, deftly hand-pressed and not jumped on or squashed down. For his $10 the down must be clean, no twigs, leaves or pebbles.

His collectors have permits from the federal and provincial governments and ship the soft, darkish gray stuff to Montreal in bags.

The company also buys feathers of wild and domesticated geese and ducks, especially those of domesticated ducks from the Bromé Lake area of Quebec. It buys ostrich feathers from South Africa.

It exports to Britain, Switzerland and France.

The down and various types of feathers are used by manufacturers of such things as comforters, pillows, sleeping bags, ladies' hats, artificial flies for fishing and coat lining.

Mr. Hollander said he is no ornithologist but understands his collectors, in gathering down from nests, find the hatched-out eggs covered with the down. Nothing is taken until after the hatch and the birds have left.

Montreal's man of feathers is middle-aged and a native of Yugoslavia. His feathers business there was taken from him by the Communist government. He left the country without permission, stayed in Paris for a while, obtained his Canadian visa and came to Canada in 1952.

He is married and has a daughter who graduated from McGill University last year in political science and philosophy.

In addition to his native tongue, Mr. Hollander speaks English, French, German and a smattering of Italian.

Adventures with God

99 years after reverent birth our Canada's a Godless mess

Our beloved Land of hope and glory, is in a sorry mess, not physically but morally and it may not be long until the former glory will depart, and with it the peace and prosperity which has enabled our young country to flex its muscles and take its place in the high courts of the world.

When the glory of the Lord departs from the threshold of the house it is an ominous warning for the occupants. The house begins to decay and the people that forget God are turned into hell.

Ninety-nine years ago leaders of the provinces joined arms in an adventure in co-operation with God and each other, designed to make Canada one of the happiest, richest and most peaceful nations of the world. For three quarters of a century their dream worked well, because God was consulted and honored. His laws revered, His will sought and His help acknowledged.

Our nation under God became great horizontally because it was humble and reverent vertically. It acknowledged God as the creator and giver of all good and perfect gifts, and it regularly sought direction as well as blessing from the hand of Him who made heaven and earth.

Church and school bells called the people to learn of Him and worship Him in spirit and in truth. Today the battle is on to dethrone Him from heaven and earth, and woe betide the legislators who advocate prayers and Bibles in schools, and the preacher who warns of coming doom for the nations that forget God. The cry of "discrimination" is heard in the land. Discrimination against whom? Storms of protest are raised over racial, religious and economic differences. The minority groups must be considered and recognized and justice meted out for them. But if anyone is discriminated against today it is God Almighty and the people who love, honor and serve Him with their whole hearts and minds and strength. The crackpots who believe that life is both horizontal and vertical; and that man cannot "Live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Like the Israelites, Canadians have eaten and are full mortal remains lie buried in ten thousand churchyards spread across this beautiful rich, and bounteous land challenge us today to rethink our position before God. They, under God, laid the foundations for our goodly houses and our bulging silos. They showed the seeds of righteousness, reverence and hope which have brought us to our present state of abundance and affluence, but, like prodigals and wastrels, we are spending our money for that which is not bread, on that which "satisfieth not" and what is worse, many dishonor their heavenly Father and waste the good gifts which have been bestowed upon them.

May God look in mercy upon the sons of this soil, who through lack of foresight, and personal restraint, are today desecrating the fruits of field and vine, to the undoing of our nation. Men who have laid a snare for the feet of their children and their children's children. Unborn nations who through the mercy of a forgiving God may one day make the dream of the founding fathers a reality, when they enthroned the God their fathers have ignored, denied and defied by a rebellious generation of malcontent Canadians who would divide men from God and each other.

As we begin a new and more wonderful century, let us put on the "Breastplate of righteousness" and unite together again under God to fulfill the dreams and plans of our forefathers who endured the hardships which have brought us to our present state of prosperity. With God in the driver's seat we can go forward to greater things; without Him we may soon be one with Nineveh and Tyre, with Sodom and Gomorrah. God bless Canada — your Canada, my Canada, our Canada! He will if we honor Him.

Ex-pirate lair seeks citizens

ALDERNEY, Channel Islands (Reuters)—This old-time pirate lair, once a fortress under the Nazis and now an idyllic island of freedom, would like 500 more inhabitants.

But they must be the right type — persons of independent means, preferably.

The nine-man Parliament decided that this number of settlers, raising the population of 2,000, would make the community "a more viable economic unit," and help preserve its distinctive way of life.

Alderney, northernmost of the four main islands in the English Channel, has no crime waves, no color bar, no party politics, no industry, not even a parking problem.

Its unique liberties include the right of citizens to address its Parliament, provided they give due notice.

Other joys of the island life include almost 24-hours-a-day legal drinking, cigarettes and liquor at about half English prices, practically no property taxes, cheap gasoline, income tax (20 per cent) and no succession tax or death duties.

Scenes? The chief difficulty is getting in and out of the island, either by sea or air, during winter months, when both passengers and goods are liable to delays. Plans are under way to improve the airport without letting it swallow up too much of the valuable agricultural land.

East Clifton church marking centennial

EAST CLIFTON — The East Clifton Church is celebrating on Sunday the one hundredth year of its erection. Present day friends and descendants of the early settlers of East Clifton are meeting at the East Clifton United Church to commemorate the building of the Church in the year 1866.

One hundred years of continuous worship will again bring together Cairnes, Waldrons, Reeds, Taylors, Williams, McConeills, Blairs, Lowrys, Greys and Smiths. Other names of early descendants missing from the guest list are Betts, Lindsays, Hodgsons, Gates and Waters, but have been replaced by Bains, Bellis, Bellam, Barbers, Baileys, Elliotts, Thompsons, Dempseys, Gorrings, Forges, Parkinsons and many more in worshipping here. Friends from the adjoining communities will join with them on their day of joyous celebration.

Prior to the building of the church services were held at homes in the community by lay preachers or travelling preachers passing through the district from the United States. Mr. Orr had been holding services at the Murray Hill School until one Sunday morning the residents gathered to find the school house burned to the ground.

Thoughts were then turned to the need for a church and on Nov. 30, 1865, Brother Cairns turned over by donation and deed the present lot of ground to the trustees Messrs. Hugh Cairns, William Betts Sr., William Betts Jr., Ben Smith, John Cairns, Clark Gates and William Sawyer. Mr. H. E. Cairns took the building contract for $525. Later $106 was allotted for finishing the interior.

The trustees met again on Oct. 20, Sat., 1866, and marked the pews for choir and the poor placing a value on the remainder of $656.

Sunday, October 21, 1866 with the Rev. W. Hall of Sherbrooke as guest speaker and Rev. George Washington as host preacher the first service was held. Rev. Hall spoke at the morning service, Rev. Hugh Cairns in the afternoon and Rev. Hall at the evening service. Mr. Joseph Taylor Jr. played the concertina for the hymn singing.

This was followed by the auction of the pews on Monday which returned a value of $621 paid by money, notes or promises. One widow fulfilled her pledge by selling 8 straw hats and selling of 1 pair of pants to H. E. Cairns.

A Festival following the auction brought to a conclusion the celebration one hundred years ago. It added $20.58 to the building fund. The collection from the Services amounted to $16.25 also paid in to the building fund.

A few years later horse sheds were built for the increasing number of horses bringing the church goes to church. The total cost was $115.55. Nails

Bulwer U.C.W. is to suspend July meeting

BULWER — The meeting of the United Church Women was held on June 14 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Merrill. In the absence of the president, the business meeting was conducted by the vice-president, Mrs. Kenneth Johnston. The devotion was conducted by Mrs. Howard Kerr, assisted by other members. She took Brazil as a topic. Mrs. Geake led the group in prayer.

After some discussion, it was decided to suspend meetings until August.

Several thank-you notes were read, also a letter of appreciation for donations from Dr. Florence Murray, a missionary in United Church work in the Far East.

A donation was voted to the Bible Society. The date set for the annual fall supper was Sept. 10.

A gift was presented from the group to Mrs. Morris Smith, who, with her family, is leaving to take up residence in Cowansville.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Lindsay Nutbrown and Mrs. Douglas Grapes. Several visitors were present.

were .05c a pound. A day's work, 50c and $1.00. Board was $1.75 per week.

In 1875 Mr. Barber was hired to paint the church for $12.00. A communion table was purchased for $2.50, lamp $1.00, and two chairs $2.50.

In 1879 Mr. Wilson placed an organ in church which was later purchased. (He was H. C. Wilson, of Sherbrooke 1 presmure).

In 1867 the church was accepted by the Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church and was known as the Methodist Church, though called the Meeting House by folks of that day. On June 25th, 1925 this church became part of the United Church of Canada.

In more recent years many renovations have taken place. The more recent ones being a complete change in the interior in 1902 and wiring for electricity in 1950.

A War Memorial stands in front of the church in memory of the soldiers who gave their lives in Two Great Wars. Memorial and Service Memorials hang inside the church. Armistice Services in charge of the Canadian Legion take place here on Nov. 11, each year.

Bishopton group sets date for June supper

BISHOPTON — The United Church Women met June 8 at the home of Mrs. Robert Bennett.

Mrs. Irving Willard reported that 63 pounds of clothing had been shipped to Toronto. Correspondence was read from the foster daughter in Hong Kong, and it was decided to send her a Christmas gift of money.

Mrs. Sidney Bishop, on behalf of the U.C.W. members presented a farewell gift to Mrs. Jack Couchman, who will be moving from Bishopton shortly.

Steel share values cut by plans to nationalize in UK

LONDON (Reuters)—Millions of pounds were wiped off the value of shares in Britain's leading steel firms Friday as Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government announced plans to re-nationalize 90 per cent of the industry.

The legislation to take over and run the 13 top iron and steel companies provides for a 13-per-cent cut in compensation to shareholders.

They will get about £484,000, 000 ($1,452,000,000) compared with about £550,000,000 ($1,650,000,000) foreseen when the government's plans were first disclosed a year ago.

About £30,000,000 ($90,000,000) was immediately knocked off the value of shares of nine of the companies in dealings after the stock market had officially closed.

Steel was first nationalized in Britain in 1951 under a bill passed in 1949 after angry scenes in Parliament and many late sittings. The Conservative government reversed the decision when it returned to power in 1951.

IT'S 'SHEER LUNACY'

The Conservative spokesman on steel, Anthony Barber, condemned the new move as "sheer lunacy—a sop to the Socialist left wing." He branded the legislation as against the national interest and said Conservatives will fight it "all the way."

A spokesman for the minority Liberal party hit out at the legislation as irrelevant and said it leaves unanswered questions.

about the future of the British steel industry in Europe.

Under the new draft bill, the top 13 steel producers and the giant Richard Thomas and Baldwins plant, which already is state-controlled, will be operated by a national steel corporation similar to the government boards that run Britain's coal, gas and electricity industries.

Each of the 14 companies produces more than 475,000 tons of steel a year. Together they control 60 per cent of Britain's known iron ore reserves and employ about 220,000 workers.

EMPHASIZE DIFFERENCES

Observers agreed that the Labor government's new steel plan will again emphasize the deep policy differences between the government on one side and the Conservatives and Liberals on the other. Nationalization is an issue affecting the fundamental philosophies of all three parties.

The labor government's main case for a nationalization is that steel is, in effect, a private monopoly and, as a basic industry on which vital exports depend, should be made accountable to the public interest.

Labor has accused the steel industry of slow expansion, inefficient modernization, a poor export record, inadequate research and relatively high prices.

The Conservatives contend the re-nationalization move is a concession by Wilson to doctrinaire socialism and is aimed at placating Labor's restive left-wing.

ant was faced with a car coming out of a driveway. In order to prevent an accident he lost control over the car.

The judge ruled that the entry was well lit and visible for a distance of about 10 feet. Furthermore, Halley would not have been surprised if he had been careful and paid a reasonable amount of attention on a public road.

The judge assumed that although the car coming out of the entry was to blame for a certain degree it did not stop the defendant from slowing down on the Main Street.

BARNSTON

Mr. Clifford Drew, Montreal, spent a week at the home of his parents.

FLOWERS IN THE SUN — Suggests beauty? Anyone can see that, you say, but if this girl had badly deformed eyes, her teeth are in terrible shape and she has an unfortunate birth mark on the right side of her face what then? She still has the beauty the camera sees when the photo-

The beauty can be only lens deep when the photographer is at work

The power of suggestion for good or evil — is one of the greatest forces we have.

The simple reason for this is that we find anticipation is far greater than reality and we accept the suggestion because no one is actually commanding us to do something.

Photography is a powerful example of the power of suggestion. Things can be made to look more beautiful than they are as well as more horrible.

Naturally the man behind the camera controls this to some extent and some times the split seconds of the exposure do it by capturing an instant peak expression.

There is a lesson to be learned from this photographic medium—never believe anything you hear but only half of what you see.

In the serious worker of photography one can see some indication of his personality.

Personally, I hate disturbing pictures. I think generally most people do, and photographs of people in unfortunate circumstances or embarrassing positions are rude.

Camera talk by Doug Gerrish

Photography is an artistic medium and should be used to make people happy and make them aware of improving the place where they live.

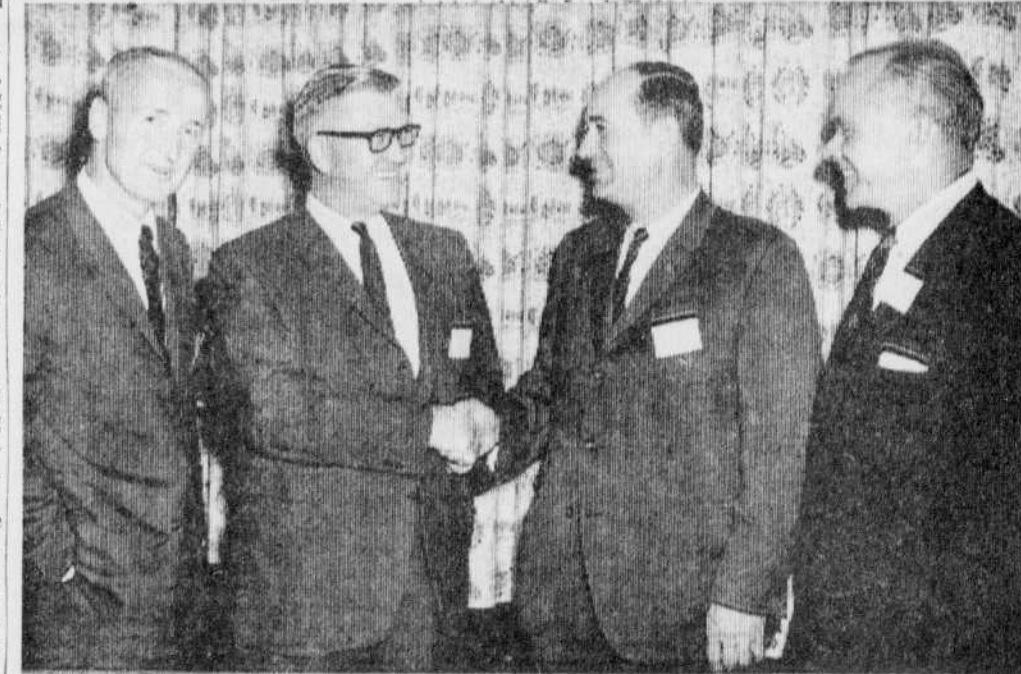

Through the power of suggestion the amateur photographer has a great chance to do this, he is free to pick his subject, and spend much of his free time doing it.

Through this column we try to suggest to photographers the different types of composition.

Actually, when you go to your vacation spot you may not know it but when you take those pictures showing what a beautiful spot it is you are creating the power of suggestion through photography.

As you gain experience with the camera and the medium so does your power of suggestion increase.

Remember there is beauty in anything and everybody. It is just a matter of point of view. Prove your point with photography.

Union Carbide Co. marks sixth year in Cowansville

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — Union Carbide Company Wednesday celebrated its sixth anniversary of successful operations in Cowansville.

At a dinner at the Hotel Mauney, Cowansville, the company is seriously considering expansion in the next few months.

The Cowansville plant, opened in 1960, produces polythene and polythene bags. When it started operations it employed only a few men, but since then, two major expansion projects have nearly tripled the size of the work force to 200 employees.

The Cowansville plant superintendent, George Tickle said that the company chose Cowansville as a production site as a possible inroad to make a dent on the Quebec market.

He said that surveys made at the time showed that Cowansville had the necessary labor force, both skilled and unskilled. "It was a growing town, a good town to grow with," he added.

Receipts: 1,184 cattle, 1,716 calves, 392 hogs, 106 sheep and lambs. Choice steers 25-26.75; good 24-25.75; medium 23-23.75; common 19.75-22.75. Volunteer work done by prisoners

TORONTO (CP) — Women

prisoners in the Metropolitan

Toronto jail are being given a chance to do the kind of volunteer work usually associated with members of the Junior League.

Many women serving sentences of up to 30 days make and repair dolls for such institutions as a school for retarded children, a crippled children's hospital and the Children's Aid

League.

The project, initiated 15 months ago by two jail matrons,

Dora Adams and Alice Whitson, is heartily endorsed by Mrs.

Gerald Whitehead, wife of the governor.

Prisoners select the dolls they will work on, the fabrics they will use, and create their own designs.

Other volunteer work includes making decorations for the annuual Queen's Plate ball, given by the Toronto branch of the Canadian Cancer Society.

During the last year the women have put together health kits for Indian children at Moos-onee, Ont., and Christmas gift bags for distribution in hospitals.

QUESTIONS

Q — I always worry a little in summer about how long fresh meats can be kept in the refrigerator before use. Can you give me some advice, please?

A — Experts on refrigerator storage of meats give the following advice: In general, large cuts of meat may be kept in the refrigerator longer than smaller cuts. A major factor is the proportion of cut surface to the total piece of meat. Ground meats such as hamburger should be used within two days of purchase at most. Liver, heart, kidney and sweetbreads should be cooked in about two days or less.

A standing roast of beef could be successfully stored for five or eight days. Chops would fall in the three- to four- day storage times.

Q — Isn't it true we are eating less pork today than we used to?

A — Yes. The average American this year will eat only about 57 pounds of pork as against

99 pounds of beef, a switch from

BRAHMS — Early Songs including Opus 32; Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, baritone; Gerald Moore, piano. (ANGEL Stereo 36316) — Some of the finest of Brahms's early (pre-Vienna) songs are included in this recital. The styles vary: some are quite Schumannesque (Lied, Opus 3, No. 6); others are reminiscent of Schubert (In der Fremde, Opus 3, No. 5). Brahms's characteristic style appears with the later Opus 19 songs, ending with one of his most beautiful love songs, "Wie bist du, meine Königin?" Fischer-Dieskau has never sung better and Gerald Moore is his equally fine partner.

BRAHMS — Liebeslieder Waltzes, Opus 52 and Opus 65; Robert Shaw Chorale; Saramae Endlich, soprano; Florence Foppleff, contralto; Seth McCoy, tenor; Theodore Uppman, baritone. (RCA VICTOR Stereo LSC-2864) — Brahms at his most genial — is a good description of these two delightful sets of waltzes. They are a surprising change of mood for the dark colors of most of his music. We are treated to a superb performance here — full of lightness and high spirits. Besides an ideal balance in soloists and chorus, there is some sensitive playing from pianists Claude Frank and Lillian Kallir.

Like a number of other countries, New Zealand is changing from sterling to decimal coinage. Australia and the Bahamas Islands have already made the change while Great Britain will be making the conversion in 1971. The New Zealand decimal coinage to be released next year will consist of one cent, two cents, five cents, 10 cents, 20 cents, 50 cents, and a commemorative dollar.

Biggest problem facing the Government is the selection of designs for these new coins. Some of those originally selected were criticized by the Royal Mint in London where the New Zealand coins are made. There was also widespread public criticism and the Government then asked several designers to submit new designs. Subsequently three or four possible designs for each denomination were selected and the public and mint officials are now being asked to voice their opinion.

The public is delighted to have a part in deciding on the new coinage designs and this is evident by the overwhelming response. Newspapers have had to hire extra staff to tabulate the opinions expressed in a huge volume of mail.

The Royal Canadian Mint report for 1965 has been released rather belatedly and for the first time since 1958 reveals a drop in total production due to a large decrease in cents. An increase was recorded for all of the other denominations and proof-like sets. Itemized production figures are as follows, with 1964 totals in brackets: dollars — 10,768,569 (7,296,832), 50c — 12,629,974 (9,377,676), 25c — 44,708,869 (36,479,433), 10c — 56,965,392 (49,518,549), 5c — 84,876,018 (78,075,068), 1c — 304,441,082 (484,855,322); total — 514,389,904 (665,402,790). Proof-like mint sets 2,904,342 (1,653,162).

Although the total for proof-like sets is up considerably from 1964, this was due to the avalanche of orders accepted on January 2 of last year amounting to two million sets and it would have been very much higher if orders for approximately four million sets had not been returned at that time.

Another jewel by Miss Picard

ONE IS ONE by Barbara Leenie Picard; Oxford University Press; $3.50.

This author's writing has always been distinguished by the beauty of its imagery and the flowing grace of its style. Whether she was conjuring up Norse gods or King Arthur's knights; whether she was retelling sagas and folk-tales or peopling her pages with those who went on pilgrimages or waged battles, each of her books has been hailed with delight. In ONE IS ONE Miss Picard has turned away from the thronging crowds to give us the story of a solitary boy, Young Stephen de Beauville, son of an earl, brother of knights, seeks to come to terms with life, and because much of his struggle is within his own heart, his situation is reflected in the old ballad, "One is One and all alone and evermore shall be so".

The 14-year-old Stephen longs vehemently to become a knight. He regards courage as the ultimate virtue, perhaps because he himself has been marked by craven timidity since he was a child. He is terrified of dogs, so that he is made the butt of children's ridicule. His father sees no point in having him trained in knightly duties. He is destined to become a monk, the only one in a family long distinguished for its warriors.

By the very insistence of his goal, Stephen forces life to shape his way. But young manhood brings a more mature sense of values. Courage, when it is born in him, leads him into unthought-of paths. The story is told with extreme sensitivity. It was a delight to read.

Turkey woos Arab neighbors with culture

ANKARA (Reuters)—Turkey is wooing its Arab neighbors. Following a recent visit by the Turkish foreign minister to Baghdad and a promised return visit of the Iraqi foreign minister to Turkey, a cultural agreement with the United Arab Republic was announced.

After a decade of cool relations, Turkey and the United Arab Republic will encourage exchanges of teachers, students, books, films and tourists.

Many things that parents don't know

YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH by Stella McKay; Doubleday; 310 pages; $4.95.

Stella McKay formerly wrote a daily newspaper column on children's health problems. She is, apparently, a nurse with special training in pediatrics, psychology, and psychiatry. At the present time she is the wife of a professor and the mother of two daughters. With so much in her favor, she has written this book, covering just about every ailment that could happen to a child from the moment of birth to adolescence. I think that the book will be eagerly accepted, especially by young parents. Mrs. McKay writes to her reader. Her language is uncomplicated, her sympathy and advice given with warmth and understanding.

The first part of the book is dedicated to the new baby and deals with the various ways of managing him in both health and sickness. In part two, Mrs. McKay devotes herself to the pre-schooler, to contagious diseases and to the use and advisability of serums and vaccines. I recommend especially this section because contagious diseases are so prevalent and their complications can be so serious. Often, we either do not know, or have forgotten what we did learn, about serums and vaccines. It is most comforting to have this knowledge before us in such compact and comprehensive text.

In her third section, the author speaks of older children and their problems. I was disappointed in this section. It is a good deal of a disappointment because it is so general and covers so much ground that it is almost impossible to find specific advice. It is a pity that the book is so general, for it is a pity that the book is so general.

appointed her in her treatment of the very brief chapter titles, "Alcoholism, Drug Addiction and Venereal Diseases". It seems as though this had been stuck in from a sense of duty. It casts no light at all on what has become the number one tragedy of today's teenagers—the use of addiction to drugs. Mrs. McKay merely indicates that she has heard of this and then throws herself into more homey advice on subjects like the common cold, stomach upsets, allergies and a few newer diseases.

She does include, however, an excellent table of common poisons and their antidotes. This is an invaluable possession in a household. Chapters follow dealing with such vital things as emergency first aid, and the importance of safe drinking water. She probably has her reasons and knows whereof she speaks. On the whole, the book has much value and is to be recommended. It abounds with an all-inclusive intimacy which invariably reaches to the heart of every young parent. There is information, help and comfort to be derived from the pages. If Mrs. McKay's advice seems at times to lack depth and to flutter rather lightly over some topics, it must be remembered that she is a columnist, not a physician, and that her book is not intended as a medical text but rather, as a simple, comprehensive and practical help to parents everywhere.

Edited by GLADYS TAYLOR

Readers may recall that last year at this time my Dominion Day column was about a new "O Canada Club" which had been formed in Ottawa. At that time the group was called the Canadian Confederation Movement but since then the name has been changed to the Voice of Canada League—and it appears to be still going strong.

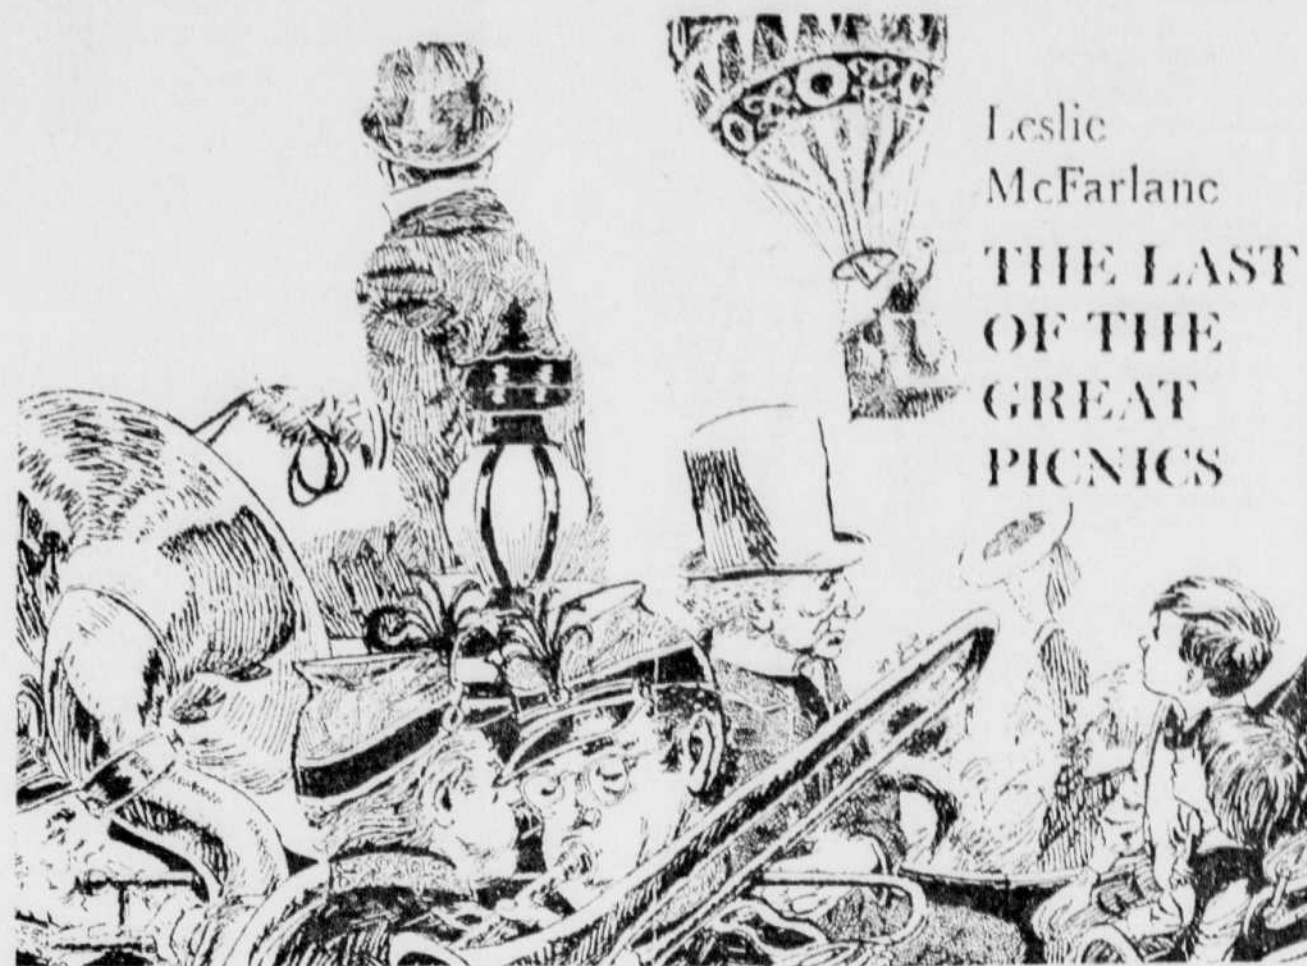

Beginning with 12 members it has averaged at least 12 new members every week since to say nothing of receiving, according to president Deane Russell, a large measure of financial help from behind-the-scenes well-wishers.

With branches in Ottawa, Toronto and the nucleus of branches in Chapeau, Winnipeg, B.C. and the Maritimes, the group appears to have completed its first—national identity—stage and be well into its second—publicity and research—stage.

Its publicity includes a newsletter called "Canadian Voices" and its research—the VCL's non-subsidized, pocket-sized answer to the B. and R. Commission—includes such studies as: "How much is bilingualism—translating and double printing of all government publications etc.—costing the taxpayer?" "Has the morale and efficiency of the Civil Service suffered from bilingual—oriented legislation?" "How much of the 'irritation tactics'—French-first announcements on trains; 'pauvre Jean' bias in CBC programs, etc.—to which WASPS are being subjected, is accidental and how much planned?" And so forth.

According to Mr. Russell the VCL studies have already revealed such interesting facts as: "between France and Canada some $40 to $50 millions has been earmarked for a French language expansion which includes sending Canadians to be trained in France's Civil School of Administration" or "making Canada bilingual will not take the French-Canadian out of his blind alley—only make the alley larger." In other words VCL research indicates that unilingualism in Quebec has the French-Canadian on a crash course to being internationally mute—because although he may persuade Canadians to learn French so he will feel at home in Canada; he can't expect Americans, Russians, etc., to learn French so he will feel at home in the world.

Guest speaker at the first combined Toronto and Ottawa meeting of the VCL was Montreal's John P. Boyle, who campaigned to represent the English-speaking view in the recent election.

The children can skip the pomposities

THE LAST OF THE GREAT PICNICS by Leslie McFarlane McClelland & Stewart; $3.95.

When Leslie McFarlane steps out of his world of adult plays, and into that of juvenile fiction, he brings his work bench with him. I have known him to use each tool with superb craftsmanship, and in THE LAST OF THE GREAT PICNICS, he endeavours to do no less.

And yet I closed the book with a sense of disappointment.

It is a nostalgic story, set in the Ottawa Valley in 1887, with Dominion Day as the highlight of the action. Granted that nostalgia is not the prerogative of the mature; that ten-year-olds can be heard boasting their heads off about last summer's vacation; it follows surely that events presented in retrospect impinge with greatest emotional impact on the young reader when they touch his own experience, however slightly.

And in this respect, I have no quarrel with the author. By appeal to the five senses, he conjures up in glowing pictures the rural community in which young David Campbell and his little sister live.

The smell of chicken roasting; the taste of newly baked bread; the sight of gathering storm clouds; the sounds of screaming children at a picnic; the feel of sloshing wet shoes, these images make the pages come alive. The fact that the shoes had to be buttoned in those days, and the chickens roasted in an old fashioned cookstove, thus identifying with my own personal memories, would not preclude a modern child from enjoying the happenings. Eleven-year-old David and his sister, Janet, go to the Dominion Day picnic with Uncle Ogden. From start to finish the hours are packed with action, from the bully who dogged their steps, to the balloon that made an unexpected take-off.

It is here that I am conscious of a cleavage between the juvenile and the adult memories, or perhaps I should say values. Sir John A. Macdonald makes a brief appearance at the picnic. When Janet stumbles in front of his carriage, he insists that she and her brother be picked up so that the little girl may be seen by a doctor.

Up to now, all the elements of a warm, exciting tale are present. It may well be that the encounter with Canada's first Prime Minister actually happened to some small forerunner of the author, but I doubt whether the rather pompous speech the Old Man gives the children would be the highlight of their First-of-July outing.

The choice of a title, THE LAST OF THE GREAT PICNICS seem to further confirm my doubts, it implying that the greatness of the day lay in Sir John's presence. Surely it is an adult title. Meeting the Prime Minister was indeed an event of significance. But I would have felt the story more credible had the children (much less mature than their age-group today) only become aware of this through the reaction of their parents or Uncle Ogden.

In spite of my own disappointment, most young readers will enjoy the book. They will probably hurry past Sir John's speeches anyhow!

Spreading influence through trade is explored in essays

EAST - WEST TRADE: A Symposium, edited by Philip E. Uren, introduction by Mitchell Sharp; Canadian Institute of International Affairs; 181 pages; $3.00 hard cover; $2.00 paperback.

As Mitchell Sharp remarks there are "many complex questions" of procedure and bargaining between state trading nations and private trading countries but "you do not influence people by isolating them"; on the contrary, "multiplication of trading contacts is a positive factor." It is with the positive aspects of trading between the Communist nations and the rest of the world that this book is concerned. The Canadian Institute of International Affairs, of which there is a branch in Sherbrooke, is to be commended for bringing to a wider audience Carleton's Conference on this vital topic.

The ten essayists examine the whole range of trading questions both from the point of view of the West (and Canada in particular) and from the theoretical role of trade in the Communist system. Some chapters deal with technical problems such as contracts and customs, while others evaluate the trading potential of the economies concerned. Our major sale is wheat and its possibilities are examined with care. The recent sale to the USSR makes the minimum estimated sales for 1963 - 75 of one billion dollars certain and the maximum of 24 billion not unlikely. Exportation of other products is often more complicated but the potential of such things as machinery (some past shipments have come from Sherbrooke) is considered.

The strategic aspects and the rationale of trading, including the more sensitive items like machinery, are thrashed out. As is inevitable in a book of essays, they vary considerably in quality and some repetition occurs but such is not all waste effort as the different presentations are useful.

EAST - WEST TRADE has something for the businessman contemplating his export possibilities; something for the casual reader trying to be come somewhat better informed on the world he lives in and much for those interested in East - West relations. Even if one does not read it from cover to cover, perusal of a few essays would readily repay the purchase price.

THE HOUSE AT SATAN'S ELBOW By John Dickson Carr; Longman's; 245 pages; $4.75.

Why should the ghost of a long dead owner of Greenacre, the house at Satan's Elbow, suddenly appear, first to a much later owner, the irascible Clovis Barclay, then to his neglected spinster daughter Estelle; shortly afterwards to the family cook and then to his son Pennington, in the last instance twice, and both times with murderous intent? This is the problem that faces Garrett Anderson when he is asked by his old school friend Nicholas Barclay, Clovis's grandson, to accompany him to Satan's Elbow to right what Nick considers a great wrong.

Nick, who had emigrated from Britain to the United States with his disinherited father many years before is, to his consternation, his grandfather's sole heir and he is making the visit with the intention of giving the property to his Uncle Pen and Pen's young wife Dierdre. The problem of ghosts and attempted murder is complicated by two or three love affairs, by a mystery in the life of Fay Wardour, Pen's charming secret-

Collecting

in the Townships

Canada lost one of her outstanding philatelists this month in the death of Rev. Hector LaFrance of Sherbrooke. Father LaFrance was a keen student of philately and his knowledge of many stamps was amazing. The number of collectors who first learned about stamp collecting from him and are now ardent philatelists surely would surprise us. He was ever ready to help out the beginner and especially the younger people with advice and, in many instances, stamps to start their collections.

The writer spent many hours with Father LaFrance discussing stamps and philately and it was always a pleasure to meet him. His collections of many countries, especially strong in souvenir sheets, will remain as memorials to him.

It is unfortunate that none of our national societies has seen fit to recognize this man; it is probably because he never pushed himself to the forefront but worked behind the scenes most of the time. It would be most appropriate if one of the local clubs would initiate an annual award to some collector from the Townships in memory of this leader. Many collectors will miss the cards which he sent at Christmas time, always with special souvenir sheet, usually humorous.

Plans have been finalized for the annual picnic and outing for stamp collectors and their friends at the home of the writer in Dixville on Saturday, July 16, starting at about 2 p.m. The host stamp club will be the St. Francis Club with the co-operation of the Eastern Townships Club and the Knowlton Area Club. A special invitation is extended to all stamp collectors. It is hoped that there will be several bourse tables where you will be able to find stamps for your collections. All those attending are urged to bring along their collections and items of interest. It is an excellent opportunity to show those old covers and documents you have managed to find. Mint stamps should be properly protected against the hot sun and the possibility of rain.

Last Monday, France released a 1-franc stamp in large format reproducing the painting Le Nouveau Ne (The New Born) by Georges De La Tour. The stamp, designed and engraved by Durrens, is produced in multi-color line engraving. The French Art stamps are extremely popular and a collection of them, complete, is indeed a thing of beauty. Many countries have produced stamps featuring works of art and an art gallery in miniature can be assembled by any stamp collector.

Much ado about 'me'

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL NOVEL by Kenneth Rexford; Doubleday; 367 pages; $6.95.

Kenneth Rexford is known at least to the avant garde as poet, painter, philosopher, and social critic. There is, however, nothing avant garde in the writing of his book unless one considers grammatical carelessness avant garde. AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL NOVEL is a conventional piece of writing with nothing really novel in it except the title, an autobiography & simple, not a story but an endless succession of I remember. Most authors are not lonesome, present and future, their own fancies and philosophies provide exhilarating introspective pleasure. In a "memoir" book like AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL NOVEL this truth is abundantly evident.

Mr. Rexford devotes almost four hundred pages to recalling his distant predecessors, his grandparents, his father who became a drunkard, his mother and her infidelities and charm and courage and the consequent odd kind of childhood he lived. He recalls in infinite detail the houses and neighborhoods in which he lived, the neighbors, family finances and lists the names of the books he read. There is a great deal about his involvement with socialism, labor, religion, politics. There are rather interminable passages devoted to little-boy, pre-teen and later love affairs.

Twenty years ago, much of Mr. Rexford's philosophy might have been universally provocative and perhaps some of it is still, but only amongst a limited group, and they would be unlikely to read his autobiography.

I was disappointed the author did not enliven his book with samples of his painting and poetry. Psychologically, long, unrelieved paragraphs tend to weary a reader and Mr. Rexford's style is not lively nor do his characters and events get off the page.

An autobiography should bring other people to full stature and in their stature bring the author to vivid life. I did not find this true of Mr. Rexford's autobiography though he has met and known some very interesting people during his life. For readers who like a book filled with old bits of information about places and people, however, AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL NOVEL is not unpleasant reading.

House burns at Bolton Centre
BOLTON CENTRE — Sunday morning June 12, residents awoke to church bells ringing, but most of them took it to mean that both churches were holding services. However a house, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Arland McGill, was on fire. It was built by Mr. Hollis Bracey in 1894.

Due to a mix-up in phone calls, the fire department at Mansville was not contacted early enough to help put out the fire. However, they sprayed the surrounding buildings, to prevent the fire from spreading.

Mrs. McGill was at work and Mr. McGill had gone fishing and neighbors arriving to help found the doors locked and were unable to enter the house. Mr. and Mrs. McGill lost everything as the building burned was also lost in the fire. Cause of the blaze was believed to be the explosion of an oil stove.

RICHMOND HILL
Tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. George MacKenzie were Mr. Joseph Stockwell and Miss Lucy Stockwell, Montreal, and Mrs. H. Boutele, Danville.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Doyle and family were in Montreal over the weekend and attended the wedding of a relative. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Healy were Mr. John Stalker and Mrs. Violet Weed, who have recently returned home after spending several months with her sister, Mrs. McMorine in Regina, Sask. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Stalker, Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mason and son Gene were also guests at the same home.

A RECENT MEETING of the Migratory Birds Committee of the Quebec Wildlife Federation under the chairmanship of Roland Cassault was held. The purpose of the meeting was to study and discuss laws and regulations concerning migratory birds. Reports were also heard from members of the Quebec Wildlife Service and from the Canadian Wildlife Service regarding projects already carried out and on projects that will be started before the end of the year. It was recommended (a) that a migratory birds sanctuary be established again on the South River, in Missisquoi County, with territory limits different from what they were before; (b) that a study be made of the legislation used by other provinces and States pertaining to permits issued for game farms. (c) Hunting Seasons: (Ducks, Geese and Brants): Northern Zone: September 10 to December 18, 1966; Central Zone: September 17 to December 18, 1966; Southern Zone: September 24 to December 18, 1966; Schefferville and North: September 1 to December 12, 1966; Wilson's Snipe: Same dates than ducks and geese; Woodcock: September 17 to November 20, 1966.

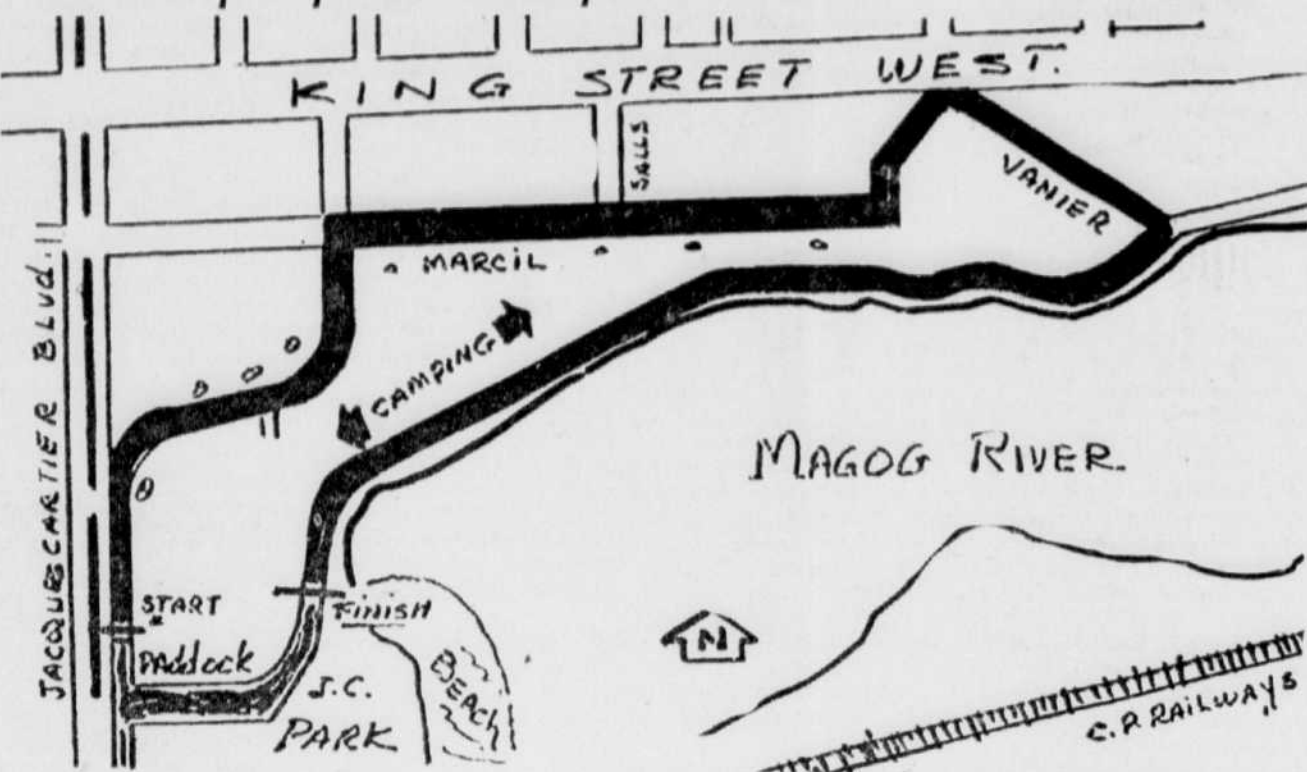

Another interesting point was the combined efforts of the Quebec Wildlife and Canadian Wildlife Services will be used to make an inventory of the wetlands of the Province. This survey will maintain certain wetlands against excessive draining and other alterations which might make them non-productive for migratory birds. One main area that is being considered as a starting point in this program is the area around Baie de La Valliere. This territory has been drained over for the past 30 years. The area will be surveyed this summer if it is possible to follow a suggested plan concerning the construction of a dam which could control the water level.

Cyclist race follows Grand Circuit July 9th

MONTREAL — (Staff) — Organizers of the sports program of the Sherbrooke Summer Festival will make use of the racing track at the Jacques Cartier Park in Sherbrooke on another time after this weekend's Grand Circuit auto race. The announcement of a Molson Cyclist Rally was made Thursday at a press conference here by Claude Beaudoin, of Molson's Sherbrooke agency, and also by Real Lapalme, director of the Sherbrooke Summer Festival.

The press conference, held at the home of Guy Morin, former Canadian cyclist champion from 1952 until 1960, was called to release the main details of the cyclist rally.

Mr. Morin, President of the Quebec Cyclist Union, and Louis Chantigny, President of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association, met with the Sherbrooke officials and stated that over 100 entries should be expected for the Rally.

The entries, coming from all points of the Province of Quebec, United States and other close provinces in Canada, will cover 50.8 miles on July 9 at Jacques Cartier Park, making the round 40 times in the afternoon.

The Molson Cyclist Rally is the first of such rallies to be staged in this city, and both Presidents of the cyclist associations expressed confidence and enthusiasm at the prospect of building up Sherbrooke as a cyclist center.

The rally, starting at 2 p.m. Saturday rain or shine, offers about $800 in prizes to the competitors.

The Quebec Cyclist Union, in charge of all technical and minute details of the rally, has invited participants from three classes to take part.

Cyclist rallies as such have an increased interest in growing cities, says Louis Chantigny, and the possibilities of holding a provincial championship in one of these newly-developed cyclist area is not a remote one indeed.

When asked whether Sherbrooke would have a chance at gaining the site for the '67 competitions for the Province, the CWA President said that there was "always a possibility."

That possibility, he said, would become a reality if the Molson Cyclist Rally offered encouragement.

The rally brings in teams of four to five members, racing against the other teams and also the clock, and thus creates the interest for the public.

The location of the Jacques Cartier Park was chosen for this race because of its proximity and paved track. The multi-purpose track can surely accommodate the many cyclists if sports cars can cover the distance at over 85 miles an hour.

Als slap Cardinals, Acton here tomorrow

Sherbrooke Alouettes protected their second place standing in the Provincial Baseball League Thursday evening, but that position seems unsatisfactory to them.

The Als reprimanded Granby Cardinals 7-4 Thursday night at the Municipal Stadium, and tomorrow evening, the name of Sherbrooke is planned for the top of the Provincial League. Planned, that is by the Sherbrooke Alouettes.

Acton Vale Beavers, league leaders presently, will be at the stadium tomorrow night at 8:30 to meet the Als for the third time this season. Thus far, there has been a split in victories.

At this time, as part of the Sherbrooke Summer Festival, Molson's Brewery will distribute $400 worth of prizes to the fans attending the game. All spectators will be given a ticket upon entry and prizes will be drawn throughout the game.

"Molson's Night" is just one of the attractions at the stadium for this game, as the Optimist Raffle for a car will also be made.

In Thursday's game, Adrian Zabala Jr. won his own game by slugging out a double in the sixth, to send in three runs. Bob Miceli, Guy St. Vincent and Andre Pratte scored the runs. At this point, the Als led 6-1.

Zabala Jr. won his second game in as many appearances with the Als, but was relieved by Eddy Kennemore in the eighth.

Lilas Poole was again the hitting star, maintaining a steady pace with his bat. He hit two singles and a double. Nick Testa, Granby's catcher, was their star with three singles. Other Sherbrooke hitters included St. Vincent, Miceli, and Gerry Lamoureux.

The Alouettes, always a contender for the top spot in the league standing, lost to Acton Vale 2-1 the last time that Acton paid a visit to the Sherbrooke Stadium. The two runs were scored on a homer by Gilles Robichaud, a former Sherbrooke mafe.

This time, with the prevention of cruelty to the Alouettes, barring home runs, the Als may Orioles in the Sher-Len Little League are keeping on the heels of the league leading Tigers and Red Sox. They have won their last three games and the team is beginning to show its strength.

The coming week will be their big test as they meet the Senators and Red Sox. If they get over the Senators then their battle with the Red Sox should be a good one.

Tigers are idle next week and the Red Sox could gain some ground on the league leaders. There could be a new league leader at the end of next week's play.

Indians are having their troubles these days. This team has lost more games by the odd run than any other team in the league. Coach Eddie Anderson intends to stick with his players and expects the law of averages should before long point his way. Pitching is the team's weak point and they fail to hit in the clutches, but maybe one of these days.

Twins are beginning to show a lot of hitting power and their outfield play has come on. This team will win a few more games and Ron Shea is looking for a playoff spot.

Young Robitaille, pitching for the Senators, is showing lots of improvement from last season and will make his team go all out to finish in the first four. Yankees and White Sox are running hot and cold, but show signs of improvement. Young Bruce Coley is hitting well for the White Sox as he came up with two homers in a row last week.

Provincial playoffs are just around the corner and players are beginning to be watched for All-Star games. Who will make the team holds the interest of the boys at this stage. Playoffs, if run the same as last season, should get underway around the latter part of July.

The three stars for the week are Bruce Coley, White Sox; Richard Aubrey, Red Sox, and Andre Roy, Twins.

Indians swamp Angels 5-0, McDowell hurls two-hitter

Sam McDowell crossed the finish line for the first time in two months, but for real endurance, it's hard to top Billy Short. He's back in the winner's circle for the first time in six years.

McDowell, Cleveland's sore-armed southpaw ace, pitched a two-hitter and struck out 13 Friday night for his first complete game victory since May 1 as the Indians blanked California Angels 5-0.

Short, who hadn't won a game in the majors since Aug. 6, 1960, marked his return to Baltimore Orioles with a six-hit 2-0 victory over Minnesota Twins, completing a doubleheader sweep for the American League leaders.

minors this week, was making his first major-league appearance in four years. He had no record in 1962, his first season with Baltimore, after a 3-5 rookie season with New York Yankees in 1960.

TIED TEAM-MATE McDowell, the AL strikeout king in 1965, tied Team-mate Gary Bell for the league's single game high this year with his 13 against the Angels. He had not started a game in two weeks and had not won since June 11.

He now is 6-2 for the season. Short was ready to call it a career in the spring after failing to make the Baltimore varsity. But Orioles' manager Hank Bauer talked him into sticking it out through the season.

Racing will resume this evening at the Sherbrooke Raceway.

Late Thursday afternoon the drivers and trainers, members of the newly formed local section of the United Horsemen Association, voted to return to racing under the same conditions they had previously.

Manager Roger Trudeau made the announcement following the meeting. On Monday evening the executive of the local club held a meeting and they issued a statement that they would be ready to pay 55% instead of the 65%. President Marcoux stated it would be impossible to operate the track if they were forced to concede to that demand.

Mr. Martel and Mr. Brisson, president and secretary of the Association, were in Sherbrooke and called a meeting for Wednesday. A private vote was taken and the majority of the members were in favor of returning to racing under the same conditions held prior to the layoff.

The club called off the racing last weekend and also on Wednesday of this week owing to lack of entries. A total of 139 horses will compete this evening and Sunday evening. Every class has been filled except tonight's ninth race which will see six starters.

The big class Sunday will have Fabi's Santa Glory, Clever Adios, Brochu's Flair Wick, Amedee Beaudoin and Rhythm Mac Henri Lepage will be teaming Super Knight while Buster Huckins will be guiding The Tempest as the main attraction. Tonight's top event is also in the ninth race when a field of seven starters will go to the gate for a purse of $300. A good race is expected as anyone of the starters could lead the field under the wire.

Sandy loses quite a bit

It was a bad night for Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers. Al Jackson grabbed his spotlight, Claude Raymond snatched his earned run crown and Woody Fryman stole his thunder.

Koufax, aimed for victory No. 15 and the halfway point of a potential 30-victory season, went down to his third defeat as the Dodgers bowed to Jackson and the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 Friday night.

Jackson took the spotlight with a six-hitter—he allowed only one base runner to reach second—despite the fact the Dodger southpaw allowed one less hit. But one was Mike Shannon's two-run homer.

The two runs allowed by Koufax, raised his earned run average to 1.60 and let Raymond, a native of St. Jean, Que., sneak in to the National League leadership with a 1.56 mark after preserving Houston Astros' 2-1, 12-inning victory over Cincinnati Reds with a scoreless inning of relief work.

Fryman, meanwhile, turned in the night's best performance by pitching a one-hitter in Pittsburgh Pirates' 12-0 victory over New York Mets, facing the minimum 27 batters and hurling perfect ball after Ron Hunt stroked a leadoff single in the first.

White Sox shade Yanks 13-12, Senators up in Little League

Senators and White Sox scored wins in the Sher-Lenn Little League Thursday night as Senators defeated the Indians 7-2 and the White Sox won a come-from-behind 13-12 verdict over the Yankees.

Monday White Sox travel to Lennoxville to play Yankees and at the Parade Grounds

Orioles and Senators clash. Singles by Huot and G. Nadeau, coupled with a base on balls in the last of the sixth, gave the White Sox their narrow conquest over the Yankees. Yankees at one time had an 11-7 lead but the Sox kept nibbling away at this lead and at the end of five the score was tied 12-12.

It was one in the first for Yankees, 10 in the fourth and one in the fifth. White Sox trailed five in the third, four in the fourth, three in the fifth and then came up with the winner in the sixth.

Senators with a big six run inning in the fifth to end their scoring. Indians managed one in each of the second and third but again they left men stranded on the bases.

TAKING STOCK

Take stock of your basic swing.

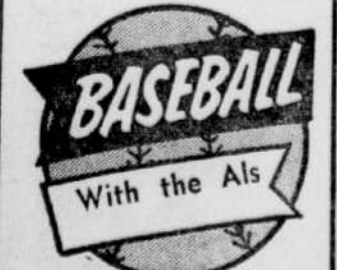

The grip and the stance are the same for all, but everybody develops tiny mannerisms that make his swing different from the next fellow's.

Once you have discovered the swing that works best, resist all efforts on the part of those who want to make you over in their image.

If your swing isn't working, it undoubtedly is because you are violating one of the basic principles of the grip or stance. Good golf is played with the hands, bad golf with the shoulders and body.

If your grip is correct, it will make a correct stance second nature. Never forget that the hands are the leaders.

A correct grip and a proper stance lead naturally to a one-piece swing that is fluid and smooth, regardless of what idiosyncrasies you introduce into it.
