THE FIRST BLOOD IS SHED. STRAYED FROM HOME.

Clash Between Coal Strikers and Police at Shenandoah—Many Shots Were Fired—Deputy Sheriff Killed and Others Wounded.

Shenandoah, Pa., July 31.—A reign of terror holds Shenandoah in its grasp. At 6 o'clock last evening Centre street, one of the principal streets of the town, was taken control of by an infuriated mob. Two of the borough policemen were shot, one fatally, Jos. Bedell, a leading merchant, and cousin of Sheriff Bedell, was brutally clubbed to death and upwards of a score of strikers were shot by policemen, and it is expected that many deaths will result.

Sheriff Bedell arrived from Pottsville at 7.45 o'clock with a posse of deputies. He took up his headquarters at the Ferguson Hotel, which was surrounded by several thousand men. To an Associated Press reporter he admitted that he had asked Governor Stone to send the militia. The Governor wired that he will send them, and a petition was circulated for that purpose.

The trouble started about 6 o'clock when Sheriff Thomas Bedell attempted to escort two non-union workers through the strikers' line of pickets. The workers were dressed in their street clothes, but one of them carried a bundle under his arm, and this aroused the suspicion of the strikers. The bundle was torn from him and when it was found to contain a blouse and overalls, the man was taken from the depot and beaten almost to death.

In the meantime, Bedell opened fire on the mob, which had gathered by this time, and emptied his revolver. Two of the shots took effect, one man being shot in the leg and the other in the foot. The deputy and the other strike breaker were compelled to fly for their lives, and took refuge in the Philadelphia & Reading depot. The depot was soon surrounded by an angry mob of 5,000 men, and becoming more threatening and demonstrative every moment. Joseph Bedell, a hardware merchant, and brother of the deputy sheriff, was seen making his way through the crowd in an effort to reach his brother and the mob, divining that he was carrying ammunition to those inside the depot, seized him and beat him with clubs and bilbies into insensibility. He died en route to the Miners' Hospital.

Shortly after this the entire borough police force arrived on the scene and escorted the deputy sheriff and his man to an engine which had been backed into the depot for that purpose. When the mob realized that their prey was about to escape, they

10-Year-Old Marie Ann Demers Disappeared Last Friday.

REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SEEN ON TRAIN—EFFORTS TO LOCATE HER FAIL.

Marie Anna, the ten-year-old daughter of Wilfrid Demers, of No. 7 St. Paul street, Little Canada is missing. Without hat or boots she disappeared from home on Friday last and nothing has been heard of her since.

THE MOTHER'S STORY.

The mother of the lost child told the following story to a representative of the Record this morning. She said: "Friday forenoon at about 11 o'clock, my little girl, Marie Anna, who had been at home all morning, disappeared. No one remarked her when she started, so that it is impossible to find out the direction she took. Particular notice was not taken of her absence, as she had sometimes before been away a whole day playing in the woods near the Catholic Hospital. Friday night, when her father, on coming home from work, was told that the child had not yet returned, immediately notified the Chief of Police. I think she left bare-headed and bare-footed, as her hat and boots were found in the house. A man by the name of Poulin, who knew her, says that he saw her in a train at the Grand Trunk station on Friday afternoon at about three o'clock. This makes me think she has gone to Biddford, where she lived before coming here last August. She often expressed the desire to go back to Biddford to see her grandmother, and said she would go some evening, and on not finding out any particulars, thought that no search had been made, but I think that if it is published in the Record the child will be found. My little girl was 10 years old, had fair hair, blue eyes, was quite tall and stout for her age, and wore an old dress that she had to play in. Near the left ear appears a small scar which is quite visible and would prove much towards the identity of the child. Marie Anna spoke English and French very well, having been brought up in the United States, and when talking was stumped a little forwards with woks turned inwards. Her father's name is Wilfrid Demers and works for Mr. Jos. Charest, the contractor. We have been living here on No. 7, St. Paul street, since last August, when we came from Biddford, Me."

HAD STRAYED BEFORE.

It is learned from Chief Davidson that the child had strayed from home before this summer. On one occasion she was found at Lennoxville. Since her last disappearance enquiries have been made but to this time no trace of the girl has been found.

SCOTSTOWN.

July 31.—A very enjoyable and profitable evening was spent by those who attended the medal contest held here on Friday evening last, in the town hall, which was well filled by an appreciative audience. The contestants, Misses Margaret McKay, Bessie Paige, Queenie Sherman, Lena Murray, Mary Black and Fannie Cronie, looked charming indeed, with their bright, youthful faces and tasteful attire and recited their pieces in a manner that surprised and delighted the audience. We understand that the contest was a very close one, and certainly no one envied the task of the judges, Miss Scott, Montreal; Miss Greenlay, Milan, and Rev. D. McLeod, Hampden. After due deliberation on their part, the medal was awarded to Miss Fannie Cronie, who recited "Why he signed the pledge."

BOER GENERALS.

THEY SAILED FROM CAPE TOWN FOR ENGLAND YESTERDAY.

Cape Town, July 31.—General Botha, Delarey and DeWet sailed from here for England yesterday on the steamer Saxon amid great cheering. A procession accompanied them to the vessel. Prior to embarking they visited the governor of the colony and Prime Minister Sprigg. The Boer generals addressed a crowd numbering 2,000 persons yesterday after the marriage of Adjutant Ferreira and Miss Delarey, daughter of Gen. Delarey. Gen. DeWet thanked the crowd for their enthusiastic welcome. Gen. Botha advised them all to pursue a policy of peace and to avoid the cut-throat policy. South Africa, he said, was as beautiful and magnificent a country as existed under the sun and it might be turned into a happy home for all. He asked the people to cooperate unanimously in seeking its welfare. It is understood that the voyage of the three generals is taken at the direction of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, who wishes to consult with them regarding the situation in South Africa.

Double Door Spaces.
An artistic treatment of double door space is an arrangement of one wide portiere drawn to one side in a graceful, sweeping loop. This extends over fully two-thirds of the width. At the other side is a narrow drapery that falls in straight folds. A straight valance is hung across the top and may repeat the decorative border of the portiere, if one is employed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LIGHT QUESTION.

Editor Record:
Sir, I have said that I had finished with this discussion; but, when I wrote these words, I had not the least expectation that "Civitas Civitum" would, in the generosity of his magnanimous heart and colossal intellect, pay me so high a compliment as to call me "your Johnstonian correspondent," meaning, of course, Johnstonian. (His literary knowledge and that of municipalization are evidently about on a par). Common decency, despite my pledge, compels me, of course, to acknowledge this laudatory remark; but, in doing so, I express my regret at being unable to return "Civitas'" compliment. Imagine anyone taking his incoherent ramblings as a product of "Johnstonian" or other academic inspiration! It were as reasonable to propose that we should elect Forepaugh and Sells' circus clown to the management of our local affairs, with "Civitas" at their head—a noble adornment. No, after reading "Civitas'" letter, one's mind more easily and instinctively turns to such things as a strait-jacket and a padded cell, with the blustering "Civitas Civitum" inside both.

"Civitas'" poor cautious soul, asks if we are not getting moved about too much by "unseen factors"? How delightfully innocent and simple! Charming enough in its pitiable ludicrousness to make even a "Johnstonian" or "Civitas Civitum" giggle. Sherbrooke "Civitas" has been moved by the "unseen factors" of private corporations long enough, whose only interest in our city, as business concerns is to get as much out of it as possible as give as little in return, a cardinal principle of business the world over and not "Johnstonian" at that. But there does not seem to be any danger of your understanding such "unseen factors." I would require a brass band and a steam calliope to drive the most palpable argument into your delightfully luminous head, if one may judge the extent of your intellect by the brilliancy of your literary abilities and your knowledge of the commonest principles of municipalization and "Johnstonian" ignorance. The columns of public newspapers are no place for you, "Civitas." The proper place for you in which to analyze and criticize "unseen factors" is the darkness of a cellar in one of those municipalized mansions to which people are sometimes taken against their wishes, to be guests of the ratepayer, even though they do attempt to express their "Johnstonian" wisdom—or something else—under so high sounding and majestic a nom de plume as "Civitas Civitum."

I will not attempt to follow you "Civitas" in an effort to answer your very embarrassing question. They are such staggerers that, even with the help of my "Johnstonian" inspiration and "unseen factors," I dare not attempt this. Your cogitations, after such a sojourn as the one above referred to, would, no doubt, contain all the answers necessary.

This part of your letter, "Civitas" is too buffoonish, if taken seriously to merit comment, in so far as it refers to anything I have said. It strongly suggests the accidental immersion of a common house-fly in your ink pot and yourself engaged in the appropriate and congenial occupation of chasing the same over your manuscript, than in attempting to write decent English and equally decent sense. Perhaps, after chasing your fly—appropriate plaything—you slipped in the hieroglyphical sheets by mistake; and your list of questions is the best transcription which the printer's devil and the office boy could make of the same. Or, perhaps, which is more likely, the fly got ashamed of what you had previously written and decided to take a hand in the job himself.

The conclusion of your letter, "Civitas" shows that your heart and your intellect are about on a par. For you there dishonestly put a meaning to my words which I never intended and which was never expressed. Here I have three, padded cell, with the blustering "Civitas Civitum" inside both.

When I spoke of the contracted public capacities of our Councilors—their works prove this—and when I said they were about the same kind of men as governed other cities similar to our own, I was not, in any way, likening our Council, as a body, to the Councils of the type of Councilors of cities and towns in England where municipalization has been carried to such a successful issue. To suggest a connection, "Civitas," as you do, is a species of unscrupulousness in controversy bordering upon downright dishonesty; and, as such place its perpetrator, at once, outside the pale of public recognition. But, in this connection, I will and do admit the following, Mr. "Civitas," I want you to weigh well what I say, even though I call the illustrious Dr. "Johnston" to my assistance:

There are a few towns in Great Britain (few in comparison to the remainder) where municipalization has made little or no progress. Such places, by comparison with the others, are dirty, miserable, sleepy holes, where nothing and nobody seems to "do well, only the few that have their clutches on the citizens' throats. The industries of these places are of a very changeable order, and are generally on the decline. The death rates of these cities is appalling by comparison with that of a clean municipalized city, where the health of the inhabitants is even regarded as of more importance than cheaply cleaned and badly lighted streets, which are always dirty, and a reeking, foetid, half-made, badly managed, private-corporationized sewage system, which poisons and suffocates in an endless, wholesale devastation from one's end to another. Now, "Civitas," be careful and take the following "Johnstonian" advice: If you do not wish to be forcibly deported from here to there, keep very quiet, for I have word that several of these standstill, old-womanish towns are looking for a Mayor—and what if they should hear of the illustrious "Civitas Civitum."

Take away that tawdry vulgarity, "Civitas," and "go away back and sit down." But, in doing so, ponder, in thy "Johnstonian" wisdom over two things:

(1) Never sneer at an opponent's style, until he should first sneer at thine. His style may be that of Dr. "Johnstonian," an escaped lunatic, or "Civitas Civitum." But just the same, it may answer his purpose to administer to such as thee a good, sound thrashing. It has done in this instance, I think, Mr. "Civitas," and it may do again.

(2) And, in sitting down, when the actual point of contact between terms, firms and the home of thy "Johnstonian" wisdom is reached, never forget this piece of advice, that, in future, when thou hast occasion to "go away back and sit down," if thou shouldst run into a hornet's nest, thou wilt always exhibit a little more "Johnstonian" sense than to sit down on that. Sir, I have said, Yours very truly,
JOHN R. WIDDUP.

ELECTRIC LIGHT QUESTION.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent Civitas does not appear to realize the seriousness of the indiscretion alleged to have been committed by the Councilors referred to in your local contemporary. These "bold, bad business men" that Civitas refers to are doing something worse than going into an enterprise of a practical nature. They are interfering with the carefully considered plans of those who believe in municipalization and the other "zations" referred to by a former correspondent. These plans were all made with reference to acquiring the property of a company composed partly of widows and orphans and partly of men who have grown old in what now appears to be the thankless task of bringing the modern development of electric light and power to its present state of efficiency.

The investment of a considerable sum of money in an outside power was considered a good one by those who advocated it, as it was frankly stated in some quarters at the time that its expenditure would have the effect of reducing the cost of acquiring the plant of the present supply company by several times the amount expended when the screws were put on.

But to have all these arrangements upset by a parcel of investors from no one knows where, and who apparently care nothing for the "zations" so glowingly referred to in a recent issue of your paper, is a very serious matter, and should, according to your contemporary, be seriously looked into.

People willing to go into such a hazardous enterprise as your contemporary evidently considers it to be, according to the scare-headed item in his issue of the 18th, must be an entirely different proposition to bump up against than a handful of women and children and others, who have hitherto been considered an easy mark.

One of the beauties of the municipalization scheme in this country seems to be the ease with which any public utility can be gobbled up as soon as private enterprise has made it sufficiently efficient to be worth while gobbling up. Frankly, my dear sir, tell me how long do you think we should have been obliged to wait for municipalities to have developed any public utility from a straight start. But I digress.

The men who have the courage to offer to purchase a property such as the present going concern, under the threatening conditions now prevailing must evidently have strong convictions with the courage thereto belonging, as well as the will and means to back it up in hard cash. If they should acquire the property they will doubtless put up a stiff fight to hold on to it and this fight will, in my opinion, consist largely in cultivating the friendship and confidence of the citizens by doing business in an up-to-date manner, not possible by any municipal administration.

I perceive by to-day's issue of our local tri-weekly sheet that the editor in a holy state of wrath because "another citizen" has stated that his paper is the organ of any one man. In my humble opinion the statement that his paper is the organ of such a capable and public-spirited citizen as the gentleman whom he names is one of the most favorable things that could be said about him.

Yours truly,
"STILL ANOTHER."
Sherbrooke, July 30, 1902.

CITY NEWS.

Miss Mattie E. Waterhouse leaves today for a visit to her sister, Mrs. M. C. Stuart, of Hollis Center, Me.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Sherbrooke City Improvement Association is called for this evening at 8 o'clock, in the Art Hall.

A large number of the members of the different Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters in this city met Mr. W. G. Strong, organizer of the C.O.F., at the rooms of Court St. Francis last evening to exchange views on the condition and standing of the order and to discuss plans for its future advancement.

Mr. Strong made a short but telling address, in the course of which he said that the C.O.F. is universally admitted to be the grandest fraternal society in America; that its management is the best and most economical, its admission rates lowest and that its surplus fund increased enormously in the past few years, having reached the large sum of $1,250,000. Mr. Strong's remarks were enthusiastically received, and it was unanimously resolved that nothing should be wanting on the part of the members that would maintain the interest, extend the usefulness and widen the sphere of the great order.

Messrs. D. G. Loomis and Sons have secured the contract for the extensive alterations and improvements to the premises of the Edwards Furniture Co. on Wellington street. The plans have been furnished by Mr. W. H. Archer, and include the entire rebuilding of the rear wall to a much greater height, so that the top floor, which is now used as a store-room, will be converted into a lofty sales-room. The basement will also be finished off as a sales-room, made necessary by the increasing business. The flat now used for the carpet department is to be much enlarged, and on the first floor there will be an up-to-date office with every modern convenience, in addition to the showroom, and department for typewriters and supplies. A new metal ceiling will be added, and a complete hot water system of heating be installed throughout the building. The whole is to be finished in one month and before exhibition.

WAS CLOSE CALL.

An accident which might have had serious results occurred Tuesday night on the Lennoxville road. About ten o'clock two young bicyclists from Sherbrooke, whose names are Gagne and Charest, were riding home from Lennoxville in front of a car run by Motorman R. Roy, so as to use the light of the car as a guide. Mr. Roy told them several times to keep back or they would get hurt, but they did not take his advice. When at the watering trough, about half way between Sherbrooke and Lennoxville, young Gagne dashed into his friend Charest, causing him to fall. The latter fell between the two rails and rolled over into a little hollow between the fence and the track. The motorman on seeing the young man fall reversed the power twice and thus allowed Charest to escape. Had it been a new man on the car the young fellow would have certainly been seriously hurt if not killed, but owing to the presence of mind of Mr. Roy, who has been a motorman for ten years, young Charest escaped injury.

COULD SCHWAB BE REPLACED?

That is the Question Which Worries an American Journal.

Vicenna, July 30.—The Allegemeine Zeitung, in an editorial article on the indisposition of Chas. M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel Corporation, describes him as possibly the most perfect type of a modern American and expresses admiration at the ceaseless activity permeating such a life, which, it says, "offers one explanation of America's enormous success," but sees in Mr. Schwab's indisposition "grave peril. The giant trust, says the paper, which form the basis of America's economic system, rest upon the capacity to accomplish and the working vigor of a single individual. If one of these great leaders who today govern industrial America were removed, says the Allegemeine Zeitung, this serious question would force itself not only upon America, but upon Europe.

"Would it be possible to create a successor, to find one head with the talents and the wide experience, combined with the nerves of steel necessary to administer the affairs of his important office without endangering economic peace?"

SALOONKEEPER IS RESPONSIBLE.

A Ruling as to Accident to His Patron.

St. Louis, July 31.—According to a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeal, a saloonkeeper may be held responsible for the death of a patron of his place in the event that death occurs from an accident resulting from the inebriated condition of the patron. A suit was filed by the widow and daughter of Chas. Walker against John Moser et al., who are engaged in the saloon business at Ashland, Neb. Plaintiffs charge that Charles Walker drank intoxicants to excess at Moser's saloon and in consequence was thrown from a buggy and killed.

MASSAWIPPI

July 31.—Mr. John McClary died on Saturday last, about noon at the home of his son, Elmer, 1 mile south of this village, at the advanced age of eighty-four years and eight months. He had been very feeble for several years, and ill for some months lately. He was extremely quiet and reserved man, highly respected by all who knew him. In faith, a strong Universalist, and a sincere and true Christian. In his early and middle age he took an active part in church and Sunday School work. He was a son of Charles McClary, who was born in Epsom, N.H., in 1791, and married Betsy Cass, who was also born in Epsom. They settled in Stanstead and afterwards moved to Barnston, near Libbytown. John McClary was his eldest child. He was twice married, first to Marcella Bangs, second to Julia Ann Bangs. Lived in Stanstead and later in Libbytown, afterwards in Stanstead, near Cassville, and about two years ago moved here with his son Elmer. His family was twelve children, four of whom are living, Chester, Elmer, Janette and Murray. The funeral was held at the house and service by Rev. McLaughlin, of North Hatley, (Universalist). The burial was at Cassville where the other members of the family are laid. Thus he has fallen like a sheaf of grain, fully ripened and fit for the harvest.

Presentation of a Diamond Tiara to Lady Laurier at Ottawa.

The presentation which was made to Lady Laurier Thursday afternoon, May 1, says Annyllie in Toronto Saturday Night, in Mrs. Power's drawing room, consisted of a diamond tiara and a purse of gold. Those from whom the gifts came were the Senators on the Government side. The tiara was from a certain number and the purse of gold from the ladies. Both gifts are as safe to say, are most acceptable to Lady Laurier, and must show her in what high esteem the Senate holds the amiable wife of the Prime Minister. There was nothing at all formal about the manner of presentation—it was nothing more than an unceremonious five o'clock tea to which Mrs. Laurence Power had invited Lady Laurier and some members of the Senate. Mrs. George A. Cox, wife of Hon. G. A. Cox, happened to be in town that day, and also did Mrs. Mackay, wife of Hon. Robert Mackay of Montreal, and Mrs. Power invited these two ladies to come with their husbands. The honor of handing the tiara to Lady Laurier was given to Senator Mackay, and he accompanied the action with a few well chosen words. There was no address read, even though many of the daily papers have announced that "Senator Wark read the address." Senator Wark is the oldest member of the Senate, and the dear old man was at Mrs. Power's tea party. He was also one of those from whom either the tiara or the purse came, but he took no actual part in the giving of these things. Senator Raoul Dandurand presented the purse of gold with you may be sure—a few well turned words. Senator Dandurand is not the one to miss an opportunity of saying something pretty, especially when she appears at smart functions during the coronation festivities, will be properly equipped with a diamond tiara.

The Speaker and Mrs. Power gave a large dinner party on the night of many of their guests were Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, Hon. G. A. and Mrs. Cox of Toronto, Hon. Robert and Mrs. Mackay of Montreal, Sir William and Lady Hingston of Montreal.

AS OUR ALLIES SEE US. (Montreal Star.)
Recently received papers from Japan show that our allies were scarcely less interested and pleased with the conclusion of peace in South Africa than we were. No more conscientious and absolutely truthful nation exists to-day than Japan. These Japanese editorials do the cause and history of the struggle, are marked by a close study of the subject and an intimate knowledge of the facts, which give a value to their conclusions that it entirely wanting by some of the most pretentious publications in the great English-speaking country adjoining us. The more the British learn of Japan the more pleased they become that they have a friendly alliance with that country; an alliance which materially aid in guaranteeing peace, and which will be a source of satisfactory security to Canada's Pacific coast in case of war.

TELEPHONE SERVICE FOR $10.

(Montreal Gazette.)
Hamilton is conducting negotiations with a telephone service for $10 a year with a company which promises to provide a telephone service for $10 a year for each instrument. The rate is less than half that ordinarily paid to companies which, while earning good profits, do not make any such amount as suggests that they could carry on their business on half of their ordinary receipts. If the Hamilton experiment succeeds the old companies as well as the public, will learn considerably.

GEORGE MUNRO GRANT.

Ready to Change, So Long as His Course Remains True to the Pole-Star Principle of His Life.

A thrill of tender regret went through all Canada when the word was given out that Principal Grant is dead. He was a preacher and something more, a university president and something more, a clergyman and something more, a Canadian citizen and something more. It was that something more that made him great, declares "J.A.M." in Toronto Star.

We are standing too near and the shadow of loss too deep as to judge aright his character or estimate the value of his contribution to the great world's life and thought. His nature was so rich and so variously endowed, his interests were so numerous and so widely separated, and his activities so broad, in each department, to be a man's full task, that almost no one knew the fulness of his strength or the range of his powers. When one recounts the many things he did, and with what strength and skill he did them all, when one marks the many points at which he touched the life of Church and State, and thinks how vital that touch was, one does not wonder that men of all classes and creeds are saddened by the news that Principal Grant is dead, and go on their way silent and sad, and those who have a personal loss, who did not appreciate his worth, Principal Grant was called a politician. Had he been so he would have been a lesser man but he would have had a larger following. A politician would have taken pains to conciliate the crowd, to have eyed his own tracks, and to have seemed consistent with himself. Principal Grant did none of these things. He had the far vision of a statesman and the spirit of a born leader of men, and he knew how to make conflicting currents co-operate to some great end, but he was ready to change his opinion with the changing days, so long as his course ran true to the pole-star principle of his life.

Principal Grant was a preacher, a teacher, a publicist, but the monument of his life is the university of which he was the guide and head. It has many times been said that he was the only university president that Canada has known. He gave us a new notion of what presidency means, and he illustrated for us what a university can do. Without endowment, with no equipment, without students, without prestige, and almost without friends, Queen's University a quarter century ago was a despaired and forsaken place. Today it is counted among the most vital forces in the intellectual life of this continent, and it can command from its students and graduates an enthusiasm for service and sacrifice impossible to any other university in Canada. How are we learning the national value of great men. Only slowly are we learning the national value of great men. Our impulse is to kill our prophets and stone them that are the best ones of God, and only when it is too late we learn their worth, and to make atonement we build their sepulchres. Canada will not come to greatness unless she counts great men among her greatest gifts. The name and work of Principal Grant are a legacy Canada well may prize.

AIRSHIP A DELUSION.

Lord Kelvin Says Santos-Dumont's Flyer is a Snare.

Lord Kelvin, the English scientist, has arrived in America, with Lady Kelvin, on the steamship Campania. His age, which is more than 80 years, seemed to weigh heavily on him, for he sank on to a bench, brought to him on the pier, at New York, with a sigh of relief, while waiting for his baggage to be inspected.

All questions put to him he answered pleasantly, except when talking about Santos-Dumont's airship, when a look of disgust and scorn appeared on his face.

"The airship on the plan of those built by Santos-Dumont, is a delusion and a snare," he said. "A gas balloon, padded around with ours is an old idea, and can never be of any practical use. I have not seen or heard, so far, of commercial purposes could be used for commercial purposes."

"Some day, no doubt, someone will invent a flying machine that one will be able to navigate without having to be attached to a balloon. But the day is a long way off, when we shall see human beings sailing around like the birds."

Lord Kelvin was very emphatic while talking of airships, and frequently waved his hands in the air, saying: "Useless! Useless!"

When asked his opinion of wireless telegraphy, his face brightened and he said: "Now, there is an invention that is of some commercial use. The workings of wireless telegraphy are marvelous. I spent hours in the Marconi room on the ship on the voyage, where the workings of this wonderful invention were demonstrated to me."

"I, myself, sent two messages to a relative in New York, by way of Nantucket, and received a reply from him, everything working without a hitch in the smoothest manner possible. There is no limit to the scope of wireless telegraphy, and you can rest assured that it has not been fully developed yet."

Why Are Sea Birds White?

In Longman's Magazine Mr. John Isabell, who asks this question, offers a justification to the usual answer, namely, that the whiteness tends to make the birds invisible to their enemies. He argues that they have scarcely any dangerous enemies, and that whiteness does not secure invisibility. "They are white," he says, "because flesh-eating enemies powerful enough to weed out whiteness are absent from the element which they frequent, secondly, because whiteness, and especially a white under-surface, facilitates their approach to the fishes which form their food; thirdly, because the preferences of the sexes for each other, taking the line of selection—goes, has accentuated the tendency to whiteness; and, lastly, because a white plumage forms, in combination with black markings, an excellent signal by which friend can recognize friend, and the whereabouts of food be quickly indicated. The third reason—that of natural selection—goes without saying, but the fourth is remarkable, for its points to visibility rather than invisibility as a cause of whiteness. It is, of course, important that the presence of a shoal of fish should be signalled immediately if it is desired by one of the members of the flock."

He Was in Need of It.

A pious lady of Portsmouth had a husband who was a seaman.

He was about to start on a projected voyage, and as his wife was anxious as to her husband's welfare, she sent the following notice to the village preacher:

"Mr. Blank, who is going to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation."

As the pious lady was quite illiterate, the minister read the following to the congregation from the slip handed to him:

"Mr. Blank, who is going to see his wife, desires the prayers of the congregation."—London Tit-Bits.

Japanese women put up their hair with wooden, ivory or tortoise shell pins seven or eight inches in length and fully half an inch wide. The pins are usually carved and are often capped with pivoted figures, which dance with every motion of the wearer.

TURBULENT ST. JOHN FALLS.

Fred Dodge, a 15-Year-Old, Went Through Them and Lived.

"Fred" Dodge, a fifteen-year-old son of F. T. Dodge, of Albert street, Carleton, N.B., will never be nearer death and live to tell of it than he was on the afternoon of May 23, 1902, when he earned the unique distinction of being one of the very few who have been swept through the fearful turmoil of the St. John Falls and survived.

About four o'clock, with a companion, Roy King, of Carleton, he was out on the point of land that juts from the Carleton side under the cantilever bridge. He was standing close to the edge of the cliff when the ground beneath him gave way. Springing out as he fell he managed to clear the rocks at the base and plunged into the rushing water twenty feet below.

It was about a half-hour after slack water and the falls, though not exhibiting the violence that shows later in the ebb, where in a condition that no boat would dare grapple with. Around the point where the boy fell the tide rushes with especial violence, and before he emerged from his icy plunge he was away below and many feet out in the stream in the grasp of which he was as powerless as a leaf. Fortunately he was a good swimmer, and had magnificent pluck. He struggled at first to near the shore, but finding it useless, as the current was whirling him toward the centre of the race, he gave it up and devoted all his energies to keep himself afloat.

Though only a few seconds had elapsed King had already given the alarm, and a crowd of helpless spectators were gazing with horrible anxiousness at the boy's gallant and apparently hopeless fight for his life. As he swept farther down toward the suspension bridge the waters, angry at the unexpected resistance, grew fiercer. Waves smote him under and he fought his way up again for breath. Whirlpools seized him and dragged him down for what seemed minutes to the straited watchers. But he broke their grip and emerged again and again. He was under water more times than he was on the surface. Time and again the waters thought he was gone, but lowered down a hand would appear, followed by a face gasping for air, as the game youngster continued the fight. Part of the time he turned on his back and attempted to float.

All the time the swift current was carrying him down. He passed under the suspension bridge nearly in the middle of the stream, but not far below a merciful eddy caught him and shot him toward the stiller waters of the cove. His companion, who had given the alarm, had fortunately met J. Fred Belyea, the oarsman from Old Fort, and the two, obtaining a boat from William Daley, who lives near the shore of the falls, put out to the rescue. By the time they reached the boy he had drifted to the lower part of the cove near the old water tank, and was about forty feet from shore. He was nearly unconscious, half drowned, and numbly by the bitter cold of the water. Before they could reach him he sunk, but came up again a little further down, where he was seized and drawn into the boat unconscious.

Young Dodge was in the river about twenty minutes, and swam about 500 yards in a wild water as ever a man lived through.
